INEVITABLE RESTORATION OF HIS DIVINE MISSION

~ BOOK TWO ~

PRABHUPADA TRUTH COMMISSION

A "PTC" COOPERATIVE EFFORT PUBLICATION

"Whenever an acharya comes, following the superior orders of the Supreme Personality of Godhead or His representative, he establishes the principles of religion, as enunciated in Bhagavad-gita. [...] It is the acharya's duty to spread a bona fide religious system and induce everyone to bow down before the Supreme Lord. [...] Unfortunately, when the acharya disappears, rogues and nondevotees take advantage and immediately begin to introduce unauthorized principles in the name of so-called swamis, yogis, philanthropists, welfare workers and so on. Actually, human life is meant for executing the orders of the Supreme Lord, and this is stated in Bhagavad-gita (9.34): [...] The acharya, the authorized representative of the Supreme Lord, establishes these principles, but when he disappears, things once again become disordered. The perfect disciples of the acharya try to relieve the situation by sincerely following the instructions of the spiritual master." SBhag 4.28.48 Pt

(1) "The poison is personal ambition..." (SPL, 11 Jan 1970) (2) "Now I am so advanced that I can kill my guru and I become guru. (SPConv 16 Aug. 1976) (3) "Silence in the face of evil is itself evil. Not to speak is to speak. Not to act is to act." [Dietrich Bonhoeffer] (4) "Our lives begin to end the day we become silent about things that matter." [Martin L. King] (5) "All that is required for evil to triumph, is for good men to do nothing." [E. Burke] (6) "...to write books and publish them for the enlightenment of the general populace is real service to the Lord." CC Mad 19.132

DEDICATION

To His Divine Grace AC Bhaktivedanta Swami Srila Prabhupada Founder-Acharya of International Society for Krishna Consciousness

And to the cause of the whole truth and nothing but the truth

Om ajnana-timirandhasya jnananjana-salakaya chakshur unmilitam yena tasmai sri-gurave namah

I was born in the darkest ignorance, and my spiritual master opened my eyes with the torch of knowledge. I offer my respectful obeisances unto him.

Namah om vishnu-padaya krishna preshtaya bhu-tale srimate bhaktivedanta-svamin iti namine

I offer my respectful obeisances unto His Divine Grace A. C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada, who is very dear to Lord Krishna, having taken shelter at His lotus feet.

Namas te sarasvate deve gaura-vani-pracharine nirvisesha-sunyavadi-paschatya-desatarine

*Our respectful obeisances are unto you, O spiritual master, servant of Sarasvati Goswami.
You are kindly preaching the message of Lord Chaitanya and delivering the Western countries, which are filled with impersonalism and voidism.*

THE POISONING AND GURU TATTVA ISSUES ARE SEPARATE BUT HISTORICALLY RELATED

Discovering and revealing truths regarding Srila Prabhupada's "disappearance" pastimes is an important service to Srila Prabhupada and his movement, and it should be done consistent with the highest standards of Vaishnava conduct. Those engaged in this service will naturally have diverse perspectives regarding the continuation of the disciplic succession in Srila Prabhupada's movement, a truth which will stand on its own research and evidence. The "poison issue" is not an agenda to promote one opinion about guru tattva, and one should not disregard or dismiss the poisoning evidence due to variations of opinion or realizations on the so-called "guru issue." Our discussions of the guru issue are sequestered and reserved as much as possible in Parts 18-19, to accommodate those focused on the other issues and ISKCON history.

DISCLAIMER AND CLARIFICATION

I, Nityananda das, disciple of His Divine Grace A C Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada, a researcher-compiler of "Kill Guru Become Guru: The Poison Is Personal Ambition" and related videos, and the revised edition "Srila Prabhupada's Hidden Glories: His Inconceivable Tolerance and Mercy," and this volume entitled "Srila Prabhupada's Hidden Glories: Inevitable Restoration of His Divine Mission," make this disclaimer and clarification: (1) I have studied the unusual circumstances surrounding Srila Prabhupada's disappearance since 1997, with a view to uncover the facts and truths as to what really happened. (2) I have obtained, directly and indirectly, much authentic and reliable evidence and materials from many sources, including the Bhaktivedanta Archives, Srila Prabhupada's disciples, Srila Prabhupada's museums, and those who were authorized by the ISKCON GBC to investigate this matter. (3) I have interviewed many who have reliable and useful information on this issue. (4) The forensic experts I worked with have very respectable credentials. (5) I have tried my best to present all materials accurately and truthfully as a service to Srila Prabhupada and for his glory, and for the service of his followers who are interested. (6) The depictions, analyses, comments, opinions, and conclusions I have presented about these facts are ultimately my own and not those of others unless expressly given by others under their own names. I welcome feedback and constructive criticism (1) to improve this service to Srila Prabhupada, (2) that his transcendental mission may be restored to what he left with us, (3) and that His Divine Grace may be glorified by his pastimes and teachings. Please forgive any oversights, errors, repetitions, etc- I hope this will be of some benefit to Srila Prabhupada's legacy. In his divine service, Nityananda das

PREFACE

This is the second book in the “personal ambition” series. The first book, Srila Prabhupada’s Hidden Glories: His Inconceivable Tolerance and Mercy, dealt with the evidence, facts, scientific forensic tests, philosophy, and analysis regarding Srila Prabhupada’s “disappearance,” specifically his cadmium and arsenic poisoning by some of his caretakers. They then hijacked the Hare Krishna movement by deception and the hoax they were appointed as successor gurus. This book continues the history of how these Ravana, with their supporters and followers, then poisoned Srila Prabhupada’s mission and mercy by converting a spiritual institution into a criminal enterprise. Srila Prabhupada’s physical poisoning was done to “gurujack” the movement and exploit its assets just as Ravana wanted Sita. As Christians speak of the anti-Christ or the evil that corrupts Christ’s teachings, we are now dealing with the anti-Prabhupada deviations which have corrupted Srila Prabhupada’s books, teachings, institution, and blocked His Divine Grace/mercy and Mission. When we look behind the curtain of phony respectabilities, we see the effects of poisonous influences that have adulterated Srila Prabhupada’s mission where the cheated become the new cheaters. How can Srila Prabhupada’s faithful followers restore the Hare Krishna Movement as it was when he left to us?

When their appointment hoax unraveled in 1986, they befooled the Society that they were nevertheless authorised to devise methods of vote-approving more “gurus.” Most devotees do not know the actual history of events from the gurujacking until the present day. Book One covered the 1977-87 history, and Book Two, Part 13 picks up from there. Part 14 looks at how almost everything in Srila Prabhupada’s mission has been spoiled by its misleaders, muddying the process and philosophy to the point of absurdity, in the deity worship and kirtans, with mission drift and many blatant deviations. The study of these deviations in the Hare Krishna movement must be undertaken scientifically to understand the appropriate remedies for restoration back to its original healthy condition. Part 15 addresses how ISKCON’s misleaders have caused much harm and suffering to the membership for over 4 decades. Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati’s words are very applicable in this regard: “I don’t read the book. I read the author. I first see the author to see if he is authentic or not. I am a proof reader. I always see what is right and what is wrong. My father trained me in proof reading, but I am not only a proof reader of the press. I am a proof reader of the world. I proof read men; I see their faults and try to correct them. I am a proof reader of religion also. I have appeared in the karkata lagna (astrologically). So whenever I see anything undevotional I will act like a karkata (a crab). If I see any so called devotion which is not actually in the true unalloyed spirit, I shall pierce it!” (Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati)

“I have most probably given many people troubles in the mind. Some of them might have thought about me that I am their enemy because I was obliged to speak the plain truth for service and devotion towards the Absolute Godhead. I have given them all those troubles only for the reason that they may turn their face towards the Personality of Godhead without any desire for gain and with unalloyed devotion. I hope some day or other they may understand me rightly.” –(From Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati’s last lecture, BTG #1)

Part 16 studies how the fundamental basis of the mission has been adulterated and spoiled, including the management systems Srila Prabhupada left to us, as well as the desecration of his sacred transcendental books with adulterous modifications. We advocate the irrevocable removal of all ISKCON leaders for their support of the poisoners and their unanimous cover-ups of Srila Prabhupada’s poisoning. Thereafter, with simply local and lower level leaders in place, an indeterminate time of open debate, discussion, conversation, and enlightenment should be fostered so devotees can naturally evolve in their understanding of the truths Srila Prabhupada taught. This process is the key for the future health and correct direction of the Hare Krishna movement. It is necessary to break free from the tyranny and gurocracy imposed by the present ISKCON misleadership and hold elections of new leaders who will facilitate an open and free societal culture of communicative exchange, including a brahminical council to research all critical doctrinal and philosophical issues. The extremely repressive and politically intimidative regime of ISKCON's tyrannical regime should come to an early demise, but being cautious not to replace it with another institutionally repressive regime of false dogmas. Followers of Srila Prabhupada should be encouraged to develop their abilities of critical thinking, using their own intelligence independently to understand the truths of the shastra and what Srila Prabhupada taught. This requires a discrimination and skepticism which is healthy for spiritual advancement. Blind following is discouraged; open dialogue is encouraged, but within the boundaries of basic incontrovertible and sacred principles, such as that ISKCON will always have Srila Prabhupada as its Founder-Acharya, that his books and instructions are the basis, and that he is the current life and link in the parampara. With the basics of a "Prabhupada Codex" in place, there will be no need for any repressive dogma as guru tattva shines on its own merit. A naturally harmonious consensus will precipitate in due time from the general confusion IF open and honest conversation is encouraged and maintained.

Part 17 examines how to practically bring the movement back to Srila Prabhupada and his instructions for the future. Part 18 studies the spiritual philosophy of Srila Prabhupada being physically departed but spiritually present as the current and direct link to the chain of spiritual masters originating in Lord Krishna Himself. Those who cannot subscribe to these conclusions will still find a better understanding of who Srila Prabhupada is. Part 19 deals with the evidence that Srila Prabhupada is the sole initiating spiritual master for those who would follow his teachings. The proposed solution to all of the problems in ISKCON and the wider Hare Krishna movement is that Srila Prabhupada be recognized as the fully available diksha guru, not only by his own arrangements but also naturally as an axiomatic spiritual truth. In the spirit of open discussion and critical thinking, we study the nuances in the May 28 talks and the July 9 Directive, including interpretations commonly given by various "camps." This is a lot of ground to cover and we hope that this initial summary review stimulates debate and discussion, meditation, and thought on these subjects in many spiritualists.

Part 20 examines the major doctrinal papers and defective policies issued by ISKCON since 1978, and their patchwork of attempts to rectify their innate contradictions and anomalies. Even today, there are gaping, unfilled holes and many unanswered questions. Members and students of the Hare Krishna movement will recognize this deficient patchwork as unsatisfactory. We address the guru and initiation issues and confront the unfortunate history of compounding deviations in ISKCON, not in the mood of simply finding faults, but as a step to restitution of the proper standards given by Srila Prabhupada. First the disease must be understood and correctly diagnosed- then the proper cure and medicines can be successfully administered. It examines and identifies the problems in ISKCON, and begins to prescribe the remedies. It addresses head-on the guru and initiation issue, which is at the heart of the problems in the Hare Krishna movement. Envy of the empowered guru led to Srila Prabhupada's poisoning and then those envious poisoners exploited the mission's assets for their own personal ambitions, poisoning the mission with deviations born of corruption and disobedience. Blind acceptance of defective doctrines is ill-advised: "...this Kṛṣṇa consciousness movement is not very difficult either to understand or to execute. Simply we shall be willing to do this. ...Because you have got little independence to accept something or reject something. ...And by rejecting something good, we are in distress, and accepting something good, we are happy. So this acceptance and rejection is in your hand. So here is the offering, Krishna consciousness, by great authorities, by Lord Krishna, by Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, and we are humble servants only. We are simply distributing. We have not manufactured a new type of religious sect or method of philosophy. No. It is very, very old system ...So our request to you all... you try to understand this Krishna consciousness movement, and if you do not understand immediately, if you kindly associate with us, put your questions, try to understand... We don't say that you blindly accept it. Put your question, try to understand, read our literature, and you'll understand. There is no doubt ...if you take to it, you'll be happy."

"We put for your judgment to understand. [...] That is our request." (SP Lecture Oct. 7, 1968)

FOREWORD by Dhira Govinda das

A while back I encountered many members of Srila Prabhupada's movement who, as a result of the videos produced by Prabhupada Truth Commission (PTC), and the book, Kill Guru Become Guru, have raised their awareness and opened their minds to the possibility that Srila Prabhupada was given poison with murderous intent by some persons who were close to him in 1977. Some of those whose awareness has been raised in recent years haven't read any part of the book, or actually watched the videos, but they've heard about the book and videos, and thus are thinking about Srila Prabhupada's disappearance in new ways.

In some instances the comments I've heard from them have given me encouragement, in the sense that they really seem to be applying their hearts and minds to this issue. From others I've heard statements like, "Well, even if Srila Prabhupada was killed, what's it matter..." (the implication being, "I've got a busy life, lots of service to do... I don't want to be distracted by such things...") It's as if we had discovered information that, for example, the disappearance pastime of Brahmanyatirtha, number 17 in the disciplic succession list, was something other than previously understood. Of course, Brahmanyatirtha is a great Vaishnava acharya, a pure devotee of Krishna, and this is in no way meant to minimize his glories. I'm using Brahmanyatirtha as an example, of an acharya about whom, as far as I'm aware, we don't hear anything from Srila Prabhupada, other than the fact that he is a member of our sampradaya, as listed by Srila Prabhupada in the Introduction to Bhagavad-gita As It Is. It seems that, increasingly, and unmistakably, for many who come to Srila Prabhupada's movement, Srila Prabhupada is a previous acharya, and not personally relevant for them. What they need to know about Srila Prabhupada, including his teachings and pastimes, is whatever they hear from their institutional authorities. This is certainly a sad and regrettable situation. I'm reminded of a conversation I had many years ago with a devotee who was serving in various leadership positions in the ISKCON organization. He was, based on evidence he had seen and considered, inclined to believe that Srila Prabhupada was given poison with malicious intent, by persons who were and are highly influential in the ISKCON organization. And simultaneously he expressed that, in regards to other issues related to the continuation and management of Srila Prabhupada's movement, "They pretty much got things right" (paraphrasing) ("they," meaning those who gave poison to Srila Prabhupada, in conjunction with himself and others in leadership positions in the organization). To this day, sixteen years or so later, I'm dumbfounded by such a statement.

To me it seems obvious that the noxious consciousness behind the act of giving poison with malevolent intent to Srila Prabhupada has severely, albeit in most instances less than consciously, affected Srila Prabhupada's movement, or what goes in the name of Srila Prabhupada's movement. And, on an individual level, this destructive mindset majorly affects those who come into contact with anyone influenced by those who committed this most heinous crime. A sincere, conscious approach to self-awareness, purification, and endeavors to serve Srila Prabhupada necessitate honest introspection regarding how we've been affected and impacted by this poison. I know for me this has been a productive, though certainly painful and uncomfortable, process. Much of my realization centers around awareness that, well, I've not realized much- that is, there is so much about which I remain ignorant, lost to myself, in connection with how and the extent to which I've allowed myself to be influenced, philosophically, emotionally, spiritually, and in terms of how I relate with others, by the pernicious acts and consciousness surrounding the events of Nov. 14, 1977.

Such insidious repercussions permeate the quality of relationships in societies purporting to represent Srila Prabhupada, and systemically pervade the form and nature of the institutions established by Srila Prabhupada, as well as those concocted after the disappearance of Srila Prabhupada. PTC provides cogent analyses of the organizational consequences set into motion by the poisoners and their associates. We will do well to give careful consideration to these observations. "Careful consideration" of course doesn't mean that we automatically accept, or reject. It behooves us to seriously consider, what happened to Srila Prabhupada's movement, and to organizations affiliated with it. It behooves us to Wake Up. What happened, what really happened, with Srila Prabhupada's disappearance pastime? And, seeing that there's been a concerted effort by the ISKCON organization to conceal and cover-up, and seeing that it is clear, as unpleasant as it is to acknowledge, that Srila Prabhupada was given poison with homicidal intent, it is unavoidable, in consciousness and integrity, to see that the Vaishnava society trying to represent Srila Prabhupada has been terribly harmed by happenings around Nov. 14, 1977. To whatever extent the reader concurs with this book's assessment of the damage, let us all recognize that harm has been done by the poisoners and their followers, including those of us who continue to take a head-in-the-sand non-stance, not standing for truth, not standing for Srila Prabhupada. Personally, I see that the PTC and others have been empowered by Srila Prabhupada to reveal vital truths regarding Srila Prabhupada's disappearance pastime. I am glad for the genuine movement of Srila Prabhupada that these perceptions and recommendations for the restoration of Srila Prabhupada's movement are being presented, for recognizing the toxicity that has been introduced, and for moving forward with absorption in the actual siddhanta and loving spirit embodied by Srila Prabhupada.

For sure, discussion of the poisonous ramifications of the crime of administering poison to Srila Prabhupada relates, philosophically and very personally, to Srila Prabhupada's full availability to serve as the current and direct link to the parampara for everyone in his movement, for the full timespan of his movement, and to the institutional obstruction of that full availability. Such obstacles to direct relationship with Srila Prabhupada, so directly connected with the poisoning of Srila Prabhupada's body, has wreaked untold and incalculable pain and havoc in the spiritual lives of so many. Obscuring Srila Prabhupada and the potential for his direct relationship with his sincere followers, is doubtlessly an intended effect, a prime motivation, of those who gave poison to Srila Prabhupada, and, perhaps less intentionally, an effect perpetrated by those who continue to follow the poison parampara. So, no one needs to be victimized by this any longer. We can wake up. The truth is revealed regarding Srila Prabhupada's disappearance, and this can be liberating, if you want it to be. No one who has contacted Srila Prabhupada's movement need any longer be blocked in developing their direct and personal relationship with Srila Prabhupada. This is very good news.

On the foundation of accepting that what was perpetrated in relation to Srila Prabhupada's disappearance was, though surely permitted by Sri Krishna and Srila Prabhupada for transcendental purposes, quite sinister, let us assess afresh the legacy we are bringing into the present and future of Srila Prabhupada's movement. Which elements are authentically given by Srila Prabhupada, and which are excess baggage to be discarded? In that process let's look inward, to our own process of anartha-nivrtti. What was it about me such that I allowed myself to be victimized by such deception and cheating, in the name of spiritual life, Krishna consciousness and Srila Prabhupada? How have I contributed and am I contributing to the agenda of those who poisoned Srila Prabhupada? How am I complicit? Where might I be abandoning Srila Prabhupada in favor of some petty personal agenda?

Our opportunity in this societal and intrapersonal undertaking is to clear whatever obstacles we've allowed to impede us till now, towards the most sublime purpose of enthusiastically encouraging and inspiring anyone who contacts Srila Prabhupada's movement, to establish their personal relationship with Srila Prabhupada as the central, primary relationship of their lives. Srila Prabhupada was given poison by some who were close with him in 1977. It doesn't require much effort to connect the dots, to see that his movement has been infiltrated by the venomous mentality that led to the poisoning of his body. Let's care about Srila Prabhupada, as the most important person in our lives. Let's distinguish, for the present and future, what is genuinely coming down from Srila Prabhupada, and what, in his name, is actually a deviation. This important volume has provided an impetus and framework for us to embark on this adventurous inquiry in a humble spirit of discovery, in the service of Srila Prabhupada and his movement. Hare Krishna. (Dhira Govinda das)

PART 13: ISKCON HISTORY FROM 1987

Book One reviewed the zonal acharya decade 1977-87, and followed Srila Prabhupada's poisoners and colluders onto their guru seats, into their spiritual degradations, and then into a phony guru reform where the door was opened for anyone to be an initiating guru. Now we resume ISKCON history with the story of the New Vrindaban schism, the Mississippi rebels who tried to put Srila Prabhupada back in the center, the Narayan Maharaja schism, the July 9 Movement, and the discovery and proof of Srila Prabhupada's poisoning. We do a short review of some of the major historical events after 1987 with their supporting circumstances. As is seen in ISKCON (and in the material civilization at large and as predicted accurately in Orwell's book 1984), "truth" means to falsify narratives and history to align with institutional policies and its own version of truth (siddhanta). "Doublespeak" is deception presented as truth, made relative, as in my truth vs. your truth, with no need to define or recognize a universal or factual truth. This was epitomized by ISKCON's Ministry of Protection which engaged in covering up the truth and facts, as ISKCON's notorious "Ministry of Truth" spewed out falsehoods, deceit, lies, and hypocrisies. Therefore the pursuit and understanding of actual ISKCON history is vital to the task of restoring Srila Prabhupada's Mission.

CHAPTER 109: NEW VRINDABAN SCHISM: 1987-98

Tamal Krishna Goswami was evaluated in Part 9 to be the principal architect of the poisoning of Srila Prabhupada's body and mission. The example of his personal ambition in pursuit of power, adoration, and distinction while enjoying the assets (and worship) of the real Acharya was extremely polluting and destructive to ISKCON. However, running in a close second place for who spoiled Srila Prabhupada's hard work of establishing the worldwide Hare Krishna movement would be Kirtanananda Swami. As the leader of the New Vrindaban farm community and an ISKCON

GBC/initiating guru, Kirtanananda, by the mid-eighties, presided over a thousand dedicated followers and disciples worldwide. He displayed a captivating intellect and magnetic charisma. But his head injury in late 1985, his unbridled ambition to become a religious reformer and saint, and his inability to give up perverted sense gratification- led to decades of turmoil, controversy, and infamy in ISKCON. His deviations from the devotional practices Srila Prabhupada taught and his illegal activities finally compelled ISKCON in 1987 to expel him and New Vrindaban as well, which he welcomed. This ultimately crippled the New Vrindaban community and destroyed/ damaged 100's of devotee's lives.

This was the fifth major ISKCON schism, but eventually some members returned to ISKCON.

BACKGROUND

In 1967 Kirtanananda went to India with Srila Prabhupada and was given sannyas. He wanted to return to America but Srila Prabhupada asked him to go to London to start an ISKCON center there. Kirtanananda Swami (KS) disobeyed that instruction and went directly to New York, where he began preaching his philosophy of black robes and compromising with Christianity, not expecting Srila Prabhupada to recover from his heart attack. Srila Prabhupada called him a "crazy man" and he was expelled from the temple by the New York devotees. He then started an independent farm project with Hayagriva das, but reconciled with Srila Prabhupada in 1968. His ambitions to start his own religious movement had failed (for the time being). This is documented in many letters. KS gradually developed the New Vrindaban farm project and community, and hosted a Janmastami festival late every summer to which devotees came from all over North America. He had a special relationship with Srila Prabhupada, whom he had great affection for. He also was extremely energetic and ambitious, with a grand vision that he pursued with indomitable determination. His independent, confident demeanor attracted many devotees to New Vrindaban (NV), which became the largest devotee community in ISKCON. While many ISKCON leaders had weak sadhana, KS always set an example by rising very early, attending the whole morning program, and living austerely. Based on inspiration from Srila Prabhupada, NV became a place of pilgrimage, and all the more so when Prabhupada's Palace opened in 1979.

After Srila Prabhupada's departure, KS increasingly assumed the profile of the next ISKCON acharya, and he was very competitive and uncooperative with the other gurus and Godbrothers. With condescension and argumentativeness he alienated many while attracting a loyal following and sychophants. He adopted the title "Founder-Acharya" of NV, which was widely protested. He dressed the Prabhupada deity at the Palace as a king ("Prabhupada Rex") with a royal crown, dress, and jeweled scepter, and after some years finally relented with this under GBC pressure, although only temporarily. He declined to support the guru reform efforts, and clearly hinted that he was a bonafide guru because he was divinely empowered, as could be seen by his strict practices and successes. Most devotees did not know about his homosexual lover Hayagriva das nor about his sexual molestations of many children, the facts of which became widely accepted in 1993. When Sulochan was murdered in May 1986, all of ISKCON knew NV was behind it, and the apprehension about KS bringing bad publicity and legal woes to ISKCON made NV the black sheep of the movement.

But in 1986 NV was flourishing, flush with cash from the "picking" parties of men and women and supplemented by illegal drug operations, insurance fraud, sales of copyrighted logos, and Dharmatma's polygamous women's funds-collection crew (even employing prostitution). Income was $100,000 a week. Prabhupada's Palace was built with the finest marbles, gold leaf, exquisite stained glass, prize rose gardens, deluxe restaurant, fine gift shop, and even a wildlife zoo including Malini, an elephant. Prabhupada's Palace tourism brought endless busloads of visitors. The Indian communities all over the East Coast and Canada became major supporters and participants, especially for festivals. A lake was constructed over which giant statues of Gaura-Nitai presided. The lake had an island gazebo and a swan boat. The gurukulas were full of children of all ages. Kirtanananda steadily increased the land purchases up to over 4000 acres.

MURDER OF SULOCHAN DAS: WAS KIRTANANANDA DIRECTLY INVOLVED?

On May 22, 1986, Sulochan was executed in his van parked near the Los Angeles ISKCON temple by NV enforcer Tirtha das (Thomas Drescher). In Krishna Killers, by Doktorski, a case is made that KS may not have been directly aware of or involved in the arrangements to murder Sulochan das, but it is clear he gave several strong indications to approve of Sulochan's disposal, barely short of an instruction. Further, when he became aware after the fact, he did nothing but cover up and hush the matter, much less be honest with the authorities. How could he? KS was too deeply implicated in numerous other illegalities that would have been discovered had he done so. NV was a real can of worms. In Oct. 1986 KS was hit several times on the head with a heavy metal bar by Triyogi das. Amazingly, KS survived, but he was never the same afterwards. His demeanor changed; his memory was very faulty; and his personality, according to many devotees, became hard, cruel, more dominating, and unpredictable. He had lost much of his kindness, softness, and humor. Devotees began to leave NV, although KS had achieved almost a mythic reputation and commanded undying loyalty and the faith of hundreds of hardcore disciples and Godbrothers.

INNOVATIONS AND INTER-FAITH EXPERIMENTS

KS again began to implement his ideas of inter-faith preaching and "de-Indianization" of Krishna consciousness. In late 1986 he engaged Hrishikesh das (Doktorski) to pioneer the use of Western classical music in Vaishnava rituals with his flawed philosophical rationale. He wrote Christ and Krishna (1985), a book which highlighted the commonalities and parallels between Christianity and Krishna consciousness. NV also published Dialectic Spiritualism in which Srila Prabhupada discusses the prominent Western philosophers, and this was protested against by the BBT and GBC, who objected strenuously but to no avail. KS rarely attended the annual GBC meetings and often spoke negatively about the GBC and their guru policies. He opened temples in the zones of other zonal acharyas, such as in Malaysia and India. From Doktorski: "Changes at NV officially began in the summer of 1986 (although the previous year, KS had talked about some "westernizing" influences), when he began reading, in the temple, excerpts from his book "Eternal Love" accompanied by recordings of Bach organ masterpieces. Oct. 1986, New Vrindaban choir was established to sing Western masterpieces with lyrics changed to Vaishnava-friendly texts. I was choir master. 1987: Franciscan-style robes, haircuts, and women's sannyasa were introduced and interfaith talks began. Feb. 1987: KS has a dream in which a spiritual city is revealed to him. Concept develops into 12 Interfaith "Cities of God." 1988: Chanting the mahamantra (translated) in English. Three temple worship programs standardized with new Western music and English lyrics. June 1988: First Interfaith conference at NV. Nov. 1988: silent meditation introduced. Christmas 1988: Jesus murti installed next to Srila Prabhupada's Vyasasana. Gaura Purnima: 1989: Bhaktipada's Rule introduced, similar to the Rule of St. Benedict. Aug. 1989: one hour silent japa introduced prior to morning service. July 1994: Under pressure, KS formally terminates reforms. Devotees return to traditional Bengali robes, singing in Sanskrit/Bengali, using Indian musical instruments, chanting japa vocally, not in the mind."

KIRTANANANDA EXCOMMUNICATED 1987

In Nov. 1986 the temple presidents asked the GBC to remove KS from ISKCON. During their 1987 annual meeting at Mayapur, the ISKCON GBC expelled KS for "moral and theological deviations," claiming he acted in defiance of ISKCON's policies and also attempted to establish himself as the sole spiritual heir to Srila Prabhupada's movement. They could no longer accommodate his independent and illegal activities. KS was now free to develop his own movement just as he wanted 20 years earlier. He had 700 devotees in New Vrindaban and hundreds more around the world. Those under his sway remained loyal, complaining about the small-mindedness of ISKCON leaders.

Resolution of the Decision of the GBC, Monday, March 16, 1987:

“(1) Whereas Kirtanananda Swami, by his words and deeds has systematically obscured and minimized His Divine Grace A. C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada’s pre-eminent position as the Founder-Acharya of ISKCON; (2) Whereas KS in word and deed rejects the GBC as the ultimate managing authority in ISKCON, and by doing so is dismantling Srila Prabhupada’s vision of unity; (3) Whereas KS is, in defiance of the GBC policy and over the GBC’s protest, establishing in North America, India and Malaysia, temples and institutions controlled by himself alone, thus creating a movement separate from ISKCON; (4) Whereas in word and deed KS, while acting independently of ISKCON authority, systematically misrepresents ISKCON to the public, the media, and the government, and thereby brings ISKCON into jeopardy; (5) Whereas, as indicated by GBC investigations, numerous serious illegal acts have occurred within his jurisdiction; The ISKCON GBC thereby expels KS from ISKCON and removes all his rights of responsibilities related to ISKCON. The ISKCON GBC further issues a notice of non-participation forbidding KS to participate in the functions of ISKCON.”

From Doktorski: “During the early-morning worship service at New Vrindaban, Umapati das denounced the expulsion of KS. The Arizona Republic reported: ‘Umapati interrupted the daily five a.m. service—where bouncing devotees chant Hare Krishna—to read a resolution denouncing the excommunication. ‘We declare the expulsion null and void,’ Umapati declared. ‘Everyone in agreement raise your hands.’ Amid muffled cheers, all of the nearly 100 devotees did so. Umapati smiled and said, ‘Hare Krishna.’ Ravindra-Svarupa das spoke about KS on the Larry King TV show: ‘We worked very hard to expel KS from the Hare Krishna movement. We found him a separatist, ambitious, arrogant, duplicitous. He was running his own movement. He was like a loose cannon on deck, and meanwhile more and more crimes were coming to light... He’s the fly in the ointment. He claims to be the heir of Prabhupada’s movement.’ Despite his expulsion, KS was inwardly pleased; he was tired of working within the confines of ISKCON and wanted out. He created his own society: the Eternal Order of the Holy Name, League of Devotees International and the Worldwide ‘Cities of God.’ Soon he began ‘De-Indianizing,’ or ‘Christianizing’ the prayers and music for the temple services, and the attire and appearance of the devotees. Women were given sannyas, japa was chanted in English and silently. A more inclusive ‘interfaith’ approach was emphasized in preaching and community living (1986-94).[...] I don’t know the complaints in Nov. 86 by the temple presidents about KS. He had been indicted in several RICO charges, and ISKCON knew NV had assassinated Sulochan. They wanted him out, fast.”

NEW VRINDABAN EXPELLED FROM ISKCON 1988

In 1988 the GBC also expelled NV from ISKCON. The legal problems were onerous and ISKCON could not afford to be implicated. The GBC gave all NV devotees a year to leave NV, after which NV and its members would no longer be part of ISKCON. KS introduced the initiation of women as sannyasinis, complete with danda. He installed a murti of Jesus Christ in the temple room with a framed photo of Mother Mary as well. He had a 70 foot tall concrete statue made of Srila Prabhupada, strangely and bizarrely depicting him very much like Lord Buddha. He had Interfaith Retreats including Native American sweat lodge experiences and he developed a vision of a series of Cities of God across the world, the first being in NV. One site in Pennsylvania was abandoned after vociferous local protest.

NEW VRINDABAN HISTORY: 1987-1996

NV was raided by multiple law enforcement agencies in early Jan. 1987. File cabinets, records, copyrighted souvenirs, and computers were seized, and bodies were dug up in a search for murder victims. A full scale state and federal investigation got underway. Sulochan’s murder resulted in prison time for Kuladri, Dharmatma, Tapahpunja, Dulal Chandra, and Daniel Reid. KS’s big trial was in 1991, and after his conviction, during the appeal, KS was kept under home detention. His conviction was reversed in 1993, but new charges were filed, and in 1996, Tirtha das, Sulochan's assassin, when he came to understand his guru's sex history, finally agreed to testify against KS, who then plea bargained and spent 8 years in prison until 2004. From 1986, devotees began to leave NV because: (1) Srila Prabhupada, the ISKCON Founder Acharya, was minimized and overshadowed by KS. (2) KS was excommunicated from ISKCON. (3) The court cases and the underlying illegalities behind them. (4) The Indian communities were alienated and withdrew their financial and moral support. (5) Allegations of child abuse and molestation began to surface that could no longer be denied. (6) The cows were neglected and not provided for in the harsh West Virginia winters, and many died. (7) Members of other faiths that had been lured to NV were mistreated and felt defrauded. (8) The controversial and bizarre "reforms" in the name of outreach: the robes, English songs, etc. (9) After revelation of various murders, the dissenters felt unsafe. /In 1993 Kirtanananda was caught embracing a young Malaysian male disciple in his camper van, and this episode was the straw that broke the camel's back. This new incident compounded with the previous allegations of child molestation caused about half of the remaining 100 followers to abandon KS, who alternately admitted and denied the allegations. Within months NV was down to about 50 residents only. KS retired to his retreat outside NV. In July 1994 he was pushed out completely, signing a document admitting the defeat and end of his Great Interfaith Experiment. Yet still he shouted in defiance with pen in hand and raised arms: "I am the world acharya!"...repeating it loudly three times.

RADHANATH SWAMI BRINGS NEW VRINDABAN BACK INTO ISKCON

In 1994 Radhanath Swami, who had left New Vrindaban in 1993 and had inherited KS's center in Chowpatty (Bombay) and all the devotees there, negotiated his personal return to ISKCON concurrent with his approval as an ISKCON initiating guru. Chowpatty was admitted as an ISKCON chapter. After some time of probation, NV was also re-admitted back into ISKCON in 1998-2000, under Radhanath Swami's guidance.

CONCLUSION

After the 1993 revelation of KS's homosexual activities, NV suffered greatly and underwent years of extreme financial and managerial hardships. Much of the land was sold. Construction equipment such as bulldozers, excavators, dump trucks, etc was sold off. Destitute NV youth even ransacked KS's private quarters and sold whatever they could to survive. Palace tourism and tours were revived, but only to a fraction of the previous levels. Gradually devotees began to return, as there were abundant empty residential facilities that were offered cheap. Gas drilling rights were controversially sold on thousands of acres of property, providing NV a steady stream of income. Seminars and festivals were again held during the beautiful NV summers. Sri Sri Radha Vrindabanchandra still preside in their beautiful temple. The extensive facilities and infrastructure developed by KS over 25 years from 1968-1993 remain largely in place. Original temple president Kuladri das returned as the salaried general manager. NV had neared oblivion and total collapse in the late nineties, but has reverted again to a viable, thriving community. But although the narcissistic KS is no longer there, other unauthorized and parasitic ISKCON gurus still dominate the scene and thus the disease which infected NV under KS yet remains in a different manifestation.

"If the so-called initiating guru is a conditioned soul, as was KS, then his defects and cheating propensity will trickle down to all his followers and those who associate with him, as happened with KS and all the other NV 'gurus.' The history of NV is a study in the effects of kill guru, become guru. Whether KS was involved in physically poisoning Srila Prabhupada is doubtful, but once Srila Prabhupada had departed, KS wasted no time in spoiling everything that His Divine Grace had so mercifully given. KS's story is about a gifted but delusional and hypocritical false phophet/pedophile who misled many sincere souls, causing great pain and spiritual disturbance in their lives, and paining Srila Prabhupada as well." (Anonymous, 2011)

CHAPTER 110: MISSISSIPPI REBELS: 1985-92

NEW JAIPUR'S OLD HOMES CEDARS, LAGONIA

hardwood Burmese furniture. The Hare Krishnas stayed in the local news for seven years straight as they were not a natural nor easy fit into the southern red-neck tour scene of Natchez, Mississippi. This was as deep into the Old South as one could go...

Inspired in many ways by Kirtanananda in New Vrindaban, the Mississippi community (named New Jaipur) developed quickly. When Rupa Vilas and Chandrika, former teachers from the Vrindaban GLOUCESTER SOUTH MEETS EAST TOUR MANSION gurukula moved to New Jaipur, a serious community evolved.

Karnamrita from London, Mukunda from Montreal, Pundarikaksam from New Vrindaban, Ganesh from Australia, Govardhan from Germany, Jnanagamy/Mahamaya from New York and others came with their families, one after another. Chandrika and Rupa Vilas started a gurukula. The Radha Govinda deities were settled in a grand ballroom in the Cedars plantation home, built in the 1840's with 12 foot ceilings and giant sliding pocket-partition doors. Cottages were built and a stipend was given to the “brahmanas,” including Rupa Vilas and Karnamrita, so they were free to teach, study, research, write, and give counsel. Books were published and devotees worked at the health food and antique stores in town. Six Milking Devon cows were brought from New England, cared for by cowman Rsi Kumar das from Oklahoma. The thirty residents strictly followed the temple morning program and everyone chanted their daily 16 rounds of beads meditation. The brahmanas were well respected and everyone seemed quite happy. Many visiting devotees passed through to see what was going on, including Sridhar, Indradyumna, Satsvarupa, Danavir, and Dhanudhara Swamis. The pioneering enthusiasm prevailed and spirits were high, excited about how the project was not officially part of ISKCON; there were no ISKCON gurus and everyone was simply centered on Srila Prabhupada.

DISCOVERING WHAT SRILA PRABHUPADA WANTED FOR INITIATIONS POST-DEPARTURE

The Vedic Village Review (VVR) was started as a farm newsletter in 1985 but it gradually transformed into a forum for an exchange of views and for debate on the issues of concern in ISKCON. The GBC corruption, the “guru” issue, how Srila Prabhupada wanted initiations done after his departure... these topics were discussed with lively, pointed, and controversial submissions from ordinary regular and leading devotees alike. Rupa Vilas and Karnamrita researched the tapes of Srila Prabhupada’s conversations from 1977, and communicated extensively with devotees such as Yasodanandana, Gauridas Pandit, and, secretly, Naveen Krishna, an assistant GBC. By 1989, in VVR #10 and #11, the research led to the conclusion that Srila Prabhupada never appointed any gurus and that he simply wanted ritvik representatives to initiate disciples on his behalf “henceforward” as his own disciples even after he departed. Srila Prabhupada had arranged to remain the ISKCON Acharya, as he would live through his books, his teachings, his service, and his true followers.

This same basic conclusion had been reached by Sulocan das in The Guru

Vedic Village Review Dec. '89

A CHALLENGE HORSE FOR THE GBC!

by Nityananda dasa

The character of VVR #11 has evolved rapidly into more than its past nature as a symposium for philosophical discussions and the examining of specific issues concerning the Vaishnava community. VVR #11, by a momentum seemingly impelled by fate, has become a crusade for the continued reformation of ISKCON. As publisher of VVR, I realize the risks of taking bold positions that will diametrically oppose the established order of our movement. Either the positions stated in VVR are correct, or they are incorrect and will be rejected by the devotees. Our research and the overwhelming endorsement of experienced devotees lead us to believe the former.

VVR and its editors are dedicated to ascertaining the truth regarding Srila Prabhupada's desires and instructions, which may from time to time become obscured. We are pro-ISKCON, pro-GBC, pro-Prabhupada and pro-reform. We are not revolutionaries seeking to tear down the ISKCON institution Srila Prabhupada established and hoped would be the vehicle for delivering Krishna consciousness on this planet for the next 10,000 years. We are concerned, however, that forces still at work are continuing to undermine the purity and strength of ISKCON. While many of us tried to go on preaching Krishna consciousness in the middle of ISKCON's mid 1980's turbulence, now it is clear that a higher duty than simply acting independently would be to join efforts with our many Godbrothers who want to restore ISKCON to its original healthy condition.

Since Srila Prabhupada's physical departure in 1977, ISKCON has been wracked by many scandals, schisms and setbacks. It is the opinion of the VVR editors that the root cause for this sad history of the last 12 years is:

THE GBC MISINTERPRETATION OF PRABHUPADA'S APPOINTMENT OF RITVIK GURUS AS THE APPOINTMENT OF REGULAR GURUS.

Whether it was a misinterpretation, or a conspiracy by Prabhupada's leading secretaries (as happened in the Gaudiya Math, 1936), will hopefully become more clear in the near future. But the definite result of such disobedience of the clear order of Srila Prabhupada was great distress and havoc, as unqualified persons "became" the new acharyas, emphasizing Prabhupada's supposed absence and their supposedly becoming the current links in the disciple succession.

The unauthorized guru-system that followed Prabhupada's physical departure is still in place at present, and VVR #11 is herewith inaugurating a comprehensive effort to end that unauthorized system as soon as possible, and establish the ritvik guru system instead, as was clearly Srila Prabhupada's desire.

The articles in this issue are a start in that direction, and VVR invites the devotees to participate in settling the matter once and for all.

This is the assertion of this periodical, that Srila Prabhupada is still the REAL INITIATOR and that the GBC must concur with this understanding, appointing only ritvik gurus to initiate new disciples for Srila Prabhupada, until such time as a genuinely qualified acharya is detected in our midst. We call on devotees worldwide to help resolve the guru issue by holding istagosthis on the subject and through honest discussions, try to enlist broad grass-roots support for a BACK TO RITVIK campaign. Participate in the VVR PETITION DRIVE. Tear out or copy the petition in this issue, collect as many devotees' signatures as possible, and return them to the VVR by February. We plan to present the hundreds, maybe thousands, of expected signatures to the GBC in Mayapura 1990.

Godbrothers! Now is the time to step forward and act to restore His Divine Grace Srila Prabhupada to his rightful position as ACHARYA of ISKCON. Prabhupada lives forever! May the "gurus" renounce their unauthorized guru-ships and declare all their disciples to be Srila Prabhupada's disciples! Enter their names as well into Prabhupada's black book of names. Purge the desire to prematurely become guru from our movement so that His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada will no longer be obscured by an artificial guru structure.

Dear GBC, our challenge horse (VVR #11) is released in your territory... defeat the assertions made herein, or accept and implement them!

CHALLENGE HORSE 2

- 1) Gauridasa Pandita Prabhu has sworn and stated that Tamala Krishna Goswami and he directly heard from Srila Prabhupada that Srila Prabhupada would appoint ritviks to initiate on his behalf not only during the time of his continued physical presence but also after, when he would leave this world. Yasodanandana Prabhu has confirmed hearing this both from the mouth of Gauridasa Pandita and from the mouth of Tamala Krishna Goswami, in 1977, when all three were in good standing.
- 2) Gauridasa Pandita dasa has sworn and stated that he and Tamala Krishna Goswami both heard Srila Prabhupada declare that vyasanas should not be used by ritviks as this would create enmity amongst Srila Prabhupada's disciples. Yasodanandana Prabhu has confirmed hearing this from Gauridasa Pandita dasa in 1977 (at the time it allegedly occurred) when Gauridasa Pandita was certainly a devotee in good standing, serving as one of Srila Prabhupada's personal servants.

VVR CHALLENGES TKG

In the light of the foregoing evidence, and supporting evidence that grows almost daily, will H. H. Tamala Krishna Goswami, for the sake of Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON, do the right, the honest thing, and admit to either one or both of the above assertions? The time has come for him to own up, for silence at this hour will be taken as a dishonorable admission.

Business in 1986, and partially by Padmapani das, editor of the Vaishnava Journal, in 1987. This was a major turning point in the lives of the New Jaipur residents, and many classes were held where doubts were resolved and the indoctrinations of ISKCON gurus and deviant doctrines were unraveled and discarded. It was a cleansing process, an unburdening of misconceptions and institutional propaganda. The VVR, 2000 copies quarterly, was sent out for 5 years all over the world to an ever-growing mailing list. Devotees everywhere read it and enjoyed thinking independently, something which had been severely repressed and demonized by the tyrannical ISKCON hierarchy since 1978.

VEDIC VILLAGE REVIEW PROVOKES DEEP DISCUSSION OF THE GURU ISSUE

Kirtanananda's expulsion from ISKCON, his Christianizing renovations to the process of Krishna consciousness as taught by Srila Prabhupada (Ch. 134), the questionable and politicized practice of re-initiation (Ch. 128), who is a bonafide guru, etc- deep discussion ensued in the VVR's. Devotees worldwide participated in the stimulating forum, having been stifled from open debate for a decade. GBCs, gurus, leaders, and regular devotees- they all joined in. The truth about controversial, obscured subjects leaked out from the dark places that it had been sequestered by a repressive ISKCON regime, and the GBC elite became worried. It threatened their hegemony and control of the devotees, as the VVR was counteracting their false indoctrinations.

CHALLENGE HORSE

The VVR editors became totally convinced that ISKCON and the GBC had been hijacked by personally ambitious men, and they put a “challenge horse” in the VVR, challenging the ISKCON leadership to prove that their guru system was authorized by Srila Prabhupada or else adopt the “ritvik” system of initiations. Over 300 devotees signed a petition that the GBC should adopt the system of “ritvik” initiations, and that everyone was actually a disciple of Srila Prabhupada. This challenge remains active today (Ch. 104). The July 9 letter was finally made public in June 1990’s VVR when it was found by Yasodanandana in his storage unit full of documents and papers. Interestingly, a widespread conviction in the process of Srila Prabhupada initiating his own disciples after his departure via deputies was reached before discovery of the July 9 letter (which was confirmation). Even without the May 28 and July 9 evidences, one will come to this same conclusion if he is honest, sincere, and not brainwashed by the bogus misconceptions which are constantly being promoted by the deviant ISKCON misleadership. This is demonstrated in Ch. 150.

SAN DIEGO DEBATE JANUARY 1990

Naveen Krishna das, the GBC member who scheduled the agendas for GBC meetings, secretly visited New Jaipur in Dec. 1989, expressing solidarity with VVR’s exploration of the truths that had been covered up after Srila Prabhupada’s departure. He asked us to attend the upcoming Jan. 1990 North American GBC meetings in San Diego, and he had surreptitiously scheduled a debate on the guru/initiation issue. Rupa Vilas, Yasodanandana, Karnamrita, and Gauridas Pandit prepared for the debate and flew to San Diego from their respective locations. The debate was a surprise to most of the GBC, represented by Jayapataka, Jayadvaita, and Ravindra Svarupa. Hrdayananda came but left after reading critical remarks about him in the latest VVR. Sri Ram moderated. Testimony was heard from two primary witnesses, Yasodananadan and Gauridas Pandit, who had direct experiences in Vrindaban in mid-1977 which confirmed that Srila Prabhupada had set up a system whereby he would accept disciples after his departure via “officiating acharyas” or “ritvik” priests. Rupa Vilas and Karnamrita argued philosophical points and countered protests from the GBC, such as Jayapataka’s claim that the ritvik theory was tainted with “mayavada.”

SWAMIS’ MANSION TOUR, INCENSE PHONE SALE CALLS

The debate lasted four hours and was video recorded by ITV. About 100 devotees attended and unanimously voted that the debate and discussion should continue at the annual GBC meetings in Mayapur, to which the New Jaipur contingent was invited (but did not attend). This debate had forced the questions and discussions about the guru/initiation issue out into the open, at least temporarily. The San Diego GBC resolution was: “The North American GBC recommends that the International GBC, at Mayapur Festival 1990, set up an independent brahminical committee, with unrestricted powers of investigation and examination of witnesses to investigate: (1). What system Srila Prabhupada wanted for initiation after his disappearance and the continuation of the sampradaya. The results of such investigation are to be duly considered by the GBC and widely published. (2). The possible cover-up of Srila Prabhupada's instructions in this regard."

GBC RALLY THEIR DEFENSES: ISKCON JOURNAL

Of course, the GBC would never allow any independent brahminical committee to research the system of initiations that Srila Prabhupada wanted after his departure. There were already about 40 ISKCON gurus, all of whom had no interest in discovering anything which might put them out of their guru business. Tamal and his allies got very busy preparing for the Mayapur meetings in March by producing the first and last ISKCON Journal (Ch. 206), containing 17 interviews and essays which all hammered away at the supposed deviancies in the ritvik representative initiation system for after Srila Prabhupada's departure. And this was prior to discovery of the July 9 Order! The GBC initiated the distasteful terminology of "posthumous ritvik theory," emphasizing Srila Prabhupada was dead and gone, insisting the ritviks had only been intended UNTIL Srila Prabhupada's departure. The ISKCON Journal was printed and ready for the Mayapur festival, and distributed freely. The GBC considered this magazine, put together by ISKCON interests heavily invested in the existing initiating guru selection and authorization process, as a proper "investigation" into the issue, and it was the final settlement and decision of the almighty GBC body. The ISKCON Journal had the following:

ISKCON guru Ravindra Svarupa compared the VVR challenge horse to Kesi, a horse demon who attacked Lord Krishna. The May 28 1977 transcript was included, as though the GBC's dubious interpretation of it put paid to the ritvik theory. In Tamal's interview, he claimed there was no confusion as to what Srila Prabhupada had instructed on May 28, 1977. "Everyone understood clearly that Srila Prabhupada wanted his disciples after his departure to begin initiating disciples of their own who would be Prabhupada's grand disciples." [Then why are there varying understandings today, if it is so clear? And why did Tamal confess to the opposite in Dec. 1980 in his Topanga Canyon talks?] Tamal also went to lengths to discredit Gauridas Pandit's accounts of what he claimed to have heard Srila Prabhupada say in 1977, hinting Gauridas Pandit was untrustworthy and an unreliable witness. In Bhakticharu Swami's interview, Gauridas Pandit was again belittled to discredit the testimony he had given about Srila Prabhupada appointing only ritvik representatives to initiate after Srila Prabhupada's departure. Bhakticharu stated, "...Srila Prabhupada named eleven devotees to act as ritvik acharyas, but they would become spiritual masters and accept their own disciples after he left the planet." Other interviews were those of Jayapataka Swami, Satadhanya das, and Narayan Maharaja (from Gaudiya Matha, foremost proponent of the "living guru" school). ISKCON Journal asked where was the clear evidence that Srila Prabhupada had wanted ritvik initiations after his departure? [The July 9 letter was unknown at this time.] Instead, it was stated that Srila Prabhupada had spoken so many times of his disciples becoming "guru" [What kind of guru?], that the etiquette was to wait until your guru departed before beginning initiations [this authorizes one to do so?], and that Gauridas Pandit had an erratic nature and that "what is clear is that the ritvik system was Gauridas' pet scheme all along..."

MARCH 1991: THE GBC EXCOMMUNICATE THE VEDIC VILLAGE REVIEW EDITORS

Rallying against the most serious threat to their vote-approved guru authorization system since the radical reformers of 1985-86 wanted to return to "square one," the GBC came down hard and heavy on the VVR and the "posthumous ritvik theory." They passed the following resolution:

[A.{90} Prohibition Order Against the Posthumous Ritvik Theory] Whereas the posthumous ritvik theory (a concocted system by which a spiritual master allegedly acts as diksha guru after his departure through the agency of ritviks or officiating priests) has never been sanctioned by His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada; Whereas posthumous ritvik representative initiation has never been practiced by the Gaudiya Vaishnava Sampradaya (disciplic succession); [COMMENT: Not true- leaders of both the Madhva and Ramanuja lines have confirmed this is how they operate.] Whereas posthumous ritvik representative initiation has never been approved by sadhu, shastra, and guru; Whereas the posthumous ritvik theory essentially conflicts with the law of disciplic succession as established by Lord Sri Krishna, as taught by Srila Prabhupada and all previous Acharyas, and as practiced by all bona fide Vaishnava sampradayas; The GBC hereby declares that the posthumous ritvik initiation theory is a dangerous philosophical deviation. It is therefore totally prohibited in ISKCON. [COMMENT: Yes, it is fatal for their own concocted, unprecedented vote approval system never practiced anywhere else nor sanctioned by Srila Prabhupada or any shastra.] No devotee shall participate in such posthumous ritvik representative initiation ceremony in any capacity including acting as ritvik, initiate, assistant, organizer, or financier. No ISKCON devotee shall advocate or support its practice. [B. Concerning the rectification of the editors of the Vedic Village Review] Whereas ISKCON law prescribes expulsion of a member from ISKCON for the following two reasons: The member is openly deviating from the fundamental tenets of the Society's teaching, and; The member is openly and flagrantly antagonistic to the GBC or other ISKCON authority; Whereas the VVR (newsletter of the New Jaipur rural community) has subsequently begun publishing sensitive philosophical matters (normally restricted to proper senior Vaishnava forums) in an increasingly sensational, antagonistic manner; Whereas Nityananda das, publisher and editor, and Karnamrita das and Rupavilas das, editors of the magazine VVR have publicly preached deviant philosophical understandings; Whereas the editors of the VVR have begun actively undermining the faith of ISKCON devotees in the authorized Krishna conscious philosophy and in the institutions established by Srila Prabhupada; Whereas, without following proper ISKCON procedure, the editors of VVR have villified and publicly attacked in the pages of their magazine many senior members of the ISKCON society. Whereas the editors of the VVR have been publicly antagonistic to the GBC Body and the principle of authority in ISKCON; Whereas the editors of the VVR have irresponsibly published false and unsubstantiated allegations that the GBC body and several ISKCON senior members have conspired to suppress Srila Prabhupada's will and to mislead the ISKCON society; [COMMENT: We could not put it more succinctly, and this holds true 30+ years later. Also, which "proper" forums would we have?]

Whereas the editors of the VVR have drawn-up and published a petition in their magazine calling for the GBC to declare the disciples of current ISKCON gurus to be diksha disciples of Srila Prabhupada; Whereas the editors of the VVR have brought considerable damage to the society by these activities. [COMMENT: What damage would there be in this?] Therefore, the GBC body, with deep regret, makes the following resolution according to its laws. Although the philosophical deviations of the VVR have been thoroughly exposed in The ISKCON Journal, the GBC unfortunately finds it necessary to take further action to protect the integrity of the whole ISKCON Society. {90} The GBC body declares that it is their sincere desire that Nityananda das, Rupa Vilas das, and Karnamrita das, realize, regret, and are willing to rectify their mistakes and re-unite themselves with ISKCON. They are talented devotees capable of doing tremendous preaching work for Srila Prabhupada's movement; unfortunately, they are now misusing their abilities to create havoc within ISKCON. {90} The GBC declares that it is prepared to forgive the VVR editors for their mistakes, and that they are always welcome in ISKCON, provided they completely adhere to the following conditions: It is hereby resolved that Nityananda das, Rupa Vilas das, and Karnamrita das have until May 31, 1990 to rectify themselves by submitting in writing to the Corresponding Secretary of the GBC a statement which: 1. Retracts their allegations of a conspiracy by Tamal Krishna Goswami and other members of the GBC. 2. Admit the error of their posthumous ritvik theory. 3. Apologize for the disruption caused to members of ISKCON by the formulation of their unauthorized philosophy. 4. Apologize for their antagonistic attitude towards GBC policies and practices. 5. Permit the Executive Committee of the GBC to distribute this written rectification -- and other material as they deem necessary -to the entire distribution base of the VVR at the expense of the VVR. If they fail to rectify themselves in this manner to the satisfaction of the GBC Executive Committee by May 31, 1990, the GBC body is regretfully compelled to hereby resolve to expell by ISKCON law, as individuals, VVR's editors Nityananda das, Rupa Vilas das, and Karnamrita das, from ISKCON. Furthermore, the GBC Body hereby directs all ISKCON leaders to take the necessary steps to prohibit the distribution in their temples of the VVR and other publications containing similarly questionable material. Distribution may only be resumed with the permission of the GBC Executive Committee.{90} [Excommunicated! Demonized. No discussion?]

[C. Reinstatement Procedure] In taking these severe measures, the GBC is following the example of Srila Prabhupada, who at different times similarly expelled disciples who introduced concocted philosophies into the movement. As soon as these disciples rectified their misunderstanding and attitude, His Divine Grace accepted them back into the fold. In the event, therefore, that Nityananda das, Rupa Vilas das, and Karnamrita das are however, individually expelled from ISKCON, but subsequently submit a document to the Corresponding Secretary which rectifies themselves in the above manner to the satisfaction of the GBC Executive Committee, they may be individually reinstated as members of ISKCON in good standing. Should either or both of the other two editors wish to rectify themselves independently of Nityananda Prabhu, they may be exempt from complying with #5 above, but they must leave the New Jaipur Community. {90}

128.{90} That the following is adopted as additional explanatory material to the above Resolution 90-73 concerning the Vedic Village Review: It is the sacred duty of the GBC to guard the society from philosophical deviation. In the last year, ISKCON has seen a very severe attack against its leaders and the Krishna conscious philosophy, an attack that has mostly affected younger devotees and also created further confusion for those devotees whose spiritual masters have fallen down. The attack has come from the editors of the VVR, the newsletter of the New Jaipur community.{90} In trying to relieve the disturbing situation, the North American GBC, during its January meeting, organized a debate with the editors of VVR to discuss the issue face-to-face and confront their destructive allegations. As a result of the debate, a resolution was passed to conduct an investigation and have further discussions during the upcoming Mayapur meetings.{90} Meanwhile, the Executive Committee of the GBC had been preparing the ISKCON Journal, to present a response to the accusations. The Journal contained the relevant minutes from the original GBC minutes book concerning the issue, interviews with several of the prominent devotees that were assisting Srila Prabhupada during his last year among us, including Tamal Krishna Goswami, Bhakti Caru Swami, Jayapataka Swami, and Narayan Maharaja (a long-standing associate of Srila Prabhupada and friend of ISKCON). Also included were a research document by Ajamila das, and other articles by senior Prabhupada disciples.{90} During the Mayapur meetings the GBC accepted the general conclusion of the Journal, considering that it was adequate to satisfy the concerns of the North American GBC, as expressed in their resolution. The GBC also strongly rejected the theories fostered by the editors of the VVR regarding initiations after the departure of Srila Prabhupada. Srila Prabhupada clearly instructed us that such disagreements should be settled in the sacred setting of Sri Mayapur Dhama during the annual GBC meeting which he instituted. The North American GBC officers therefore invited the editors of the VVR to Mayapur to further clarify the matter, but they did not come.{90} The GBC analyzed the issue and passed the necessary resolutions. {90} It is our sincere hope that they do not leave ISKCON. We are prescribing a method of rectification for their own good and for the good of Srila Prabhupada's society and the responsibility is on them to accept it or reject it. Srila Prabhupada was very firm and severe in dealing with this type of situation, expelling his own disciples from the society when they became contaminated by deviant philosophies and were unrepentant. In representing Srila Prabhupada, the GBC will act in a similar fashion if it is so obligated. [COMMENT: So where is the evidence that the ritvik after departure is false? The GBC did not in 1991 or thereafter ever produce anything except "It was well understood by everyone at the time." The GBC has ruthlessly stomped out all questions or discussion, expecting us to submissively go to Mayapur to be reprimanded and reformed of our deviant philosophical convictions? Rather, there is no proof to support their guru system. So we called their bluff. In 2004, Rupa Vilas recanted and was reaccepted as a good standing member in ISKCON UK. He now can give classes and sell books in ISKCON.]

CONCLUSION

Years later Tamal wrote: "Proxy-initiation proponents established their own community, New Jaipur, and published the VVR to propagate their philosophy. They also conducted initiations in which new recruits are deemed to be Prabhupada's own disciples [...] Ironically, the community and Review were both closed due to the moral and legal transgressions of their organisers, survived only by the proxy-initiation cause itself, which has since attracted new champions. The GBC has been far from silent on this issue. They devoted the entire first issue of the ISKCON Journal - seventeen essays, interviews and testimonies in all - to exposing the proxy-initiation fallacy. That same year (1990) the publisher and editors of the VVR were excommunicated for continuing to actively promote their views despite repeated warnings.” (The Perils of Succession, 1996)

The annual 1991 GBC meetings in Mayapura elected Tamal and Harikesha as Chairman and Vice-Chairman. The meetings ran from Feb. 12-18. Someone returning from India called Nityananda with the news of the excommunication of the VVR editors, that Tamal had angrily announced to the GBC body that “Nityananda das is ‘public enemy number one!’” and that we in New Jaipur should be concerned for our safety because of rumors that some GBCs had employed tantric curses against us. Within days, Nityananda had a freak accident and almost fell fifteen feet head first through a false ceiling from an attic catwalk into the community’s antique shop and onto the concrete floor. His unbuttoned flannel shirt snagged onto a broken floorboard and after hanging for several minutes, he was able to climb back up with only a nasty bruise on his stomach. Result of a tantric curse? See Ch. 127. More calamities followed in the next year and 26 years later.

One night in June 1990 Rupa Vilas disappeared with Karnamrita’s wife; they both had been unhappy with their spouses and were very much suited for each other. The New Jaipur community was traumatized and felt betrayed by Rupa Vilas, in whom everyone had placed their trust as their spiritual example. Karnamrita stoically carried on as a single parent with his two children, as did Chandrika dasi with Rupa Vilas’ son.

On March 1, 1991, six state and local law enforcement agencies raided seven properties of the New Jaipur community. Drug “paraphernalia” at a mini storage unit was confiscated, along with all of $2,800. That day a new federal statute went into effect which illegalized the sale of a broad array of items deemed to be associated with drug use, such as postage and digital weight scales, surplus war gas masks, ziplock bags, and various types of pipes. No drugs were found. Two legal firearms were impounded and later returned. The $40,000 down payment on a property purchase was seized and the sale reversed. Nityananda das’ wife had filed for divorce the same day. Empty bank accounts were frozen. All properties, except the devotees’ community farm where the deities resided, were seized, forfeited, and sold by the state, county, and city. A public state auction of all contents of the antique store and the South Meets East tour program netted Mississippi $250,000. Most devotees quickly deserted the community, the seven cows went to Alachua with $1000 each for maintenance, and New Jaipur closed in 1992. The local Sherriff and town police got new squad cars, copy machines, and German Shepherds. It is not known what Mississippi and the Feds did with their shares of the seizure and forfeiture program. In total, millions in assets were confiscated or wasted. There was no trial. A year after the raids, Nityananda negotiated a final settlement, signed over more assets to the government, and relocated with the Radha Govinda deities to the Carolinas, starting anew.

Although coming to a chaotic end, New Jaipur: (1) Was the first devotee community that was based on the ritvik representative initiation process as instructed by Srila Prabhupada, (2) by its being independent of ISKCON and the GBC, was able to openly challenge the ISKCON unauthorized gurus to substantiate their bogus policies, (3) through the VVR, instigated deep reflection and widespread discussion in ISKCON on the guru/initiation issues, and (4) researched, discovered, and promoted exactly what Srila Prabhupada had instructed in 1977 for future initiations after his departure. The Mississippi rebels discovered the evidence that undermined ISKCON’s concocted guru and initiation policies and system. The July 9th movement began and grows steadily to this day. While Rupa Vilas recanted later, Karnamrita and Nityananda proudly wore their ISKCON excommunication as badges of honor, and remained “rebels.” Alone, Karnamrita passed away in 2020.

CHAPTER 111: THE HIGHER KNOWLEDGE SCHISM

RASIKA GURU NARAYAN MAHARAJA: SIXTH SCHISM (1990-2012)

Ch. 71 and Ch. 112 discuss at length the Narayan Maharaja episode in ISKCON history, so no need to repeat here. Narayan Maharaja's influence on ISKCON members became significant around 1990, or from about the time he was interviewed and featured in the ISKCON Journal with the GBC's attempt to dispose of the "posthumous ritvik theory." Increasingly, until 1995, Tamal and a number of other senior ISKCON leaders/ gurus/ GBC "took association" from Narayan Maharaja to the point where they wanted him to be the next ISKCON Acharya or predominant spiritual guide. The GBC managed to sanction those leaders and put an end to their association with what the GBC and many ISKCON leaders believed was an influence contradictory to Srila Prabhupada's teachings. However, by that time, perhaps half of all active and former ISKCON devotees had become involved with Narayan Maharaja and paid no heed to ISKCON's prohibitions or warnings about him.

Finally, by 1995, ISKCON leadership, though seriously divided, gathered the strength and will to take a stand on the rasika guru phenomenon involving Narayan Maharaja, largely due to the insistence of the temple presidents. But the bleeding of devotees continued, most declining to take further risks with ISKCON gurus who were biting the dust one after another. This was the biggest schism of all, the sixth major departure of defectors to another cause or camp. Narayan Maharaja, although widely seen as a genuine mahabhagawata, was very controversial, and he would speak things which many took as minimizations of Srila Prabhupada and his teachings. He compared Srila Prabhupada's work to "sweeping" the ground, making a basement or foundation, or as a mere preparation to enable one to later rise to the highest subject matter of rasa-lila, a matter in which Narayan Maharaja was supposed to be expert and realized. Another premise was that all spiritualists must ultimately find a rasika guru and progress to the study of rasa-lila before becoming qualified to return to the spiritual world. However, many take this practice to be contrary to Srila Prabhupada's teachings and to be sahajiya Vaishnavism, something Srila Prabhupada had very much warned against.

A VISIT TO NARAYAN MAHARAJA'S GOVARDHAN TEMPLE

In 2004, Nityananda das visited Narayan Maharaja's temple at Govardhan, India out of curiosity. What he found was distinctly different than what Srila Prabhupada had given and taught his disciples. "I recognized or knew many of the western devotees when we arrived outside the Govardhan temple; I had seen them somewhere in ISKCON years ago. They were nicely attired and the men generally were several weeks unshaved. There was more emphasis on socializing than service. We took a tour of the interior parikrama corridor which had walls adorned with sculptured frescos of Lord Krishna's pastimes; most were of Radharani and the gopis. Some of the scenes were quite risque and inappropriate inside a temple with shapely, busty, partly clad young gopis in the water. I was obviously still very much too impure for gopi bhava. The kirtan was not a Prabhupada type kirtan at all- it was a simple repetitive Bengali chant, something about 'Radhe, show me your lover' and in two hours of continuous bhajan there were two Hare Krishna mantras. Afterwards my host took me to Narayan Maharaja's office and we waited outside. When he came, I was introduced to him, and he looked me in my eyes, put his hand on my shoulder, and said in a low, monotone English, 'I can help you.' He walked inside and left me there with my mind, which was screaming, 'No, no, no... I didn't ask for your help. I already have Srila Prabhupada!' The mood of the devotees in introducing me to him was as though they had just rescued another lost ISKCON Godbrother, who now had the great good fortune of associating with a rasika-guru. The experience was chilling- Narayan Maharaja in the center, with some gratitude and affection for Srila Prabhupada as the beginning in spiritual life, something like a first girlfriend who you will always remember throughout your life. I physically shuddered- it just felt very wrong to me."

Another account from Dhira Govinda das: "I conducted a seminar at Narayan Maharaja's Govardhan temple in 2005 for 80 devotees, and I spoke with Narayan Maharaja. His mood and teachings were in some obvious ways ( and to me, distasteful), different than the spirit and teachings of Srila Prabhupada. When I first met him in Alachua in 1999, his first statement to me was, 'You have come to me,' implying I wanted his guidance or shelter."

MANY ARE ATTRACTED TO A RASIKA GURU

Devotees who had formerly left ISKCON for various reasons now saw a charismatic and gentlemanly, elder Gaudiya Vaishnava who had not been beset with the scandals seen in all the ISKCON gurus. Narayan Maharaja (NM) attracted an ever-growing entourage of disaffected ISKCON devotees who found in him renewed inspiration and encouragement to again take up the principles of spiritual life. However, many of them seemed to only make a show of chanting on their meditation beads and studying scripture. NM was very learned, erudite, and knowledgeable of the pastimes of Radha and Krishna. He was a "rasika guru," one who taught the esoteric understandings of the "highest" spiritual rasa, conjugal love. Many devotees felt that they were now able to "move on" beyond the basic practices that Srila Prabhupada had constantly emphasized, and that to make further advancement in spiritual life, a rasika guru was essential. NM became a phenomenon.

Perhaps thousands of devotees neglected ISKCON in the association of their "rasika guru," many travelling with him full-time in a migrating "festival" entourage on engagement tours around the world. The swoon and reverence for NM was at least equal to what was seen during Srila Prabhupada's manifest presence, but the character of the program differed greatly from that of Srila Prabhupada. There seemed to be little practical engagement for most devotees except rasa-lila talks and socializing. Many claimed that NM obliquely diminished the work that Srila Prabhupada had done. "Higher knowledge" was supposedly being given by NM, and his followers were steeped in an aura of superiority, or as one said it: "We've been chanting for thirty years and now we should move on to the real thing." They said Srila Prabhupada wanted to give more than he did, but could not because his disciples were not ready. NM's statements were very controversial and ISKCON leaders/members became incensed at the subtle minimisation of Srila Prabhupada.

CONCLUSION

The NM phenomenon stretched from 1990 to his passing away in 2012, and it somewhat continues with his initiated sannyasis who still promote their organization and temples, some of whom are now gurus themselves. Although the ISKCON GBC finally reprimanded and reined in their own members in 1995 (Ch. 71) for associating with NM and endorsing his rasika bhakti philosophy, great damage to ISKCON had already been done and this continued for many years. With facilitation from ISKCON leaders such as Tamal, Giriraja, and others, the Gaudiya Math, whom Srila Prabhupada had left in the 1950's, siphoned off thousands of Srila Prabhupada disciples and followers. Although Srila Prabhupada had smashed the early 1970's "gopi bhava" club in Los Angeles, the lesson was lost as the rasika guru and the focus on the intimate conjugal pastimes of the Lord was again taken up as though it was the ultimate program for success in spiritual life. Tamal was the primary promoter of Narayan Maharaja.

This was the SIXTH major ISKCON schism.

CHAPTER 112: NARAYAN MAHARAJA

"There is nothing new to be said. Whatever I had to say, I have already said in my books. Now you must try to understand it and continue with your endeavours. Whether I am present or not does not matter." (SPConv May 17, 1977) "Therefore, those who are in bodily consciousness and who desire sense gratification are forbidden to indulge in discussions of the transcendental pastimes of Sri Radha and Krishna." (CC Adi 13.42)

INTRODUCTION

The supposed need for a rasika guru was a major deviation from Srila Prabhupada's teachings that entered ISKCON in the early nineties, promoted by Tamal as he led many GBCs and senior devotees. The effects were huge and continue to the present day. The history was already described in the previous chapter, how thousands of ISKCON devotees became captivated by Narayan Maharaja (NM) of Gaudiya Math. Below are direct quotes from NM which will make it very clear to Srila Prabhupada's followers that NM taught very differently from what Srila Prabhupada taught, and there was great disharmony between these two versions.

COMPILATION OF [SHOCKING] QUOTES FROM NARAYAN MAHARAJA

"Understanding Narayan Maharaja: his own words and other primary sources:" Compiled by disciples of Srila Prabhupada: one will require a good knowledge of Srila Prabhupada's teachings to recognize how NM conflicts with Srila Prabhupada. (1) NM, Hawaii, Feb. 17, 2001: "Prahlaḍ Maharaja was a very bona fide bhakta, and he never wanted anything worldly, but he could not serve Krishna. His bhakti was mixed with jnana, knowledge of the Lord's opulence. If you have some worldly desire, or any desire, then your bhakti may be sanga-siddha bhakti or aropa-siddha bhakti, but not pure transcendental bhakti." SP Lecture Feb 11 1976: "And uttama-adhikari, that is very rarely attained, this stage. Uttama-adhikari, has only equal, one vision, samah sarvesu bhutesu mad-bhaktim labhate. The uttama-adhikari, he does not think that 'He is envious,' or 'he is this,' or 'he is that,' he sees that everyone is engaged in Krishna consciousness. That is not to be imitated. That Prahlaḍ Maharaja is like that. He did not know who is his enemy and who is friend. No, he did not know. He is uttama-adhikari, maha-bhagavata. So this maha-bhagavata, this word is very important in this verse, maha-bhagavato 'rbhakah. Immediately, as soon as Brahma requested, 'My dear boy, please pacify.' No hesitation, immediately he fell down. Upetya bhuvī kayena. He is always at the lotus feet of Krishna, and, as a child..." (2) NM, Oct. 24, 1999: "We can glorify Swamiji, Bhaktivedanta Swami Maharaja. But those who are falling down, how can they glorify him? They cannot glorify him, never; they are cutting. They are establishing that he was the founder of ISKCON, but I know that he was not founder, he was one of the members of this in guru parampara. It was founded by Krishna, and first acharya was Brahma, then Narada, then Vyasa. Only he has changed the name and he has preached these things in Western countries." (3) NM, April 28, 1999: "Also you should know that Chaitanya Mahaprabhu is the founder of ISKCON. Swamiji, AC Bhaktivedanta Swami Maharaja is one of the prominent acharyas in this line only. He is not founder; he's one of the prominent acharyas, who spread all these things [over] whole world, in a very short time. Though Prabhupada Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati himself could not come here, and he sent Swami Bhaktivedanta Swami Maharaja here. So Swamiji is one of the hands of Srila Prabhupada. It is not that Srila Bhaktivedanta Swami Maharaja is also father and forefather of Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati. We should try to realize all these things. He was one hand, one hand, he was one hand, and that hand was so long that it traveled [over the] whole world, that long hand. But for this you should not minimize all other acharyas who have not come here, but more qualified they were. Like parama puṅjapada Sridhara Maharaja, Gosvami Maharaja, my Guru Maharaja, to whom this Bhaktivedanta Swami Maharaja used to make, used to honor like siksha-guru." (4) NM Australia: Feb. 18. 2002: "Your Prabhupada, Srila Swami Maharaja, only changed the name into English. He is not the founder-acharya of that eternal ISKCON... I am ISKCON. I'm not different from ISKCON. I am 'Bhaktivedanta' [Bhaktivedanta Narayan Gosvami]. Like father, like son. I am the real successor of Srila Bhaktivedanta Swami Maharaja, and there is no other. You should know this very openly. I am Bhaktivedanta and he is Bhaktivedanta, but he received this name after I did. I'm senior to him in this regard... I'm Bhaktivedanta, and I'm also ISKCON. Don't think that I'm out of ISKCON." (5) Hari Sauri March 31, 1997 Letter: "He (NM) shouted, 'I am not under your rules. I am not ISKCON, I am Gaudiya

Math!" (6) SPL Dr. Bigelow Jan. 20, 1971: "I am the founder-acharya of the International Society for Krishna Consciousness." (7) SPL Kurusrestha Dec. 28, 1974: "Also your idea of forming a trust between ISKCON and the leading men in the Indian community is approved by me. That is very nice. Let the Indians take part in our movement and help us to push on this mission of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. In that trust you must be very careful to make sure that my name is registered there as the founder-acharya and that I am to be the ultimate authority. In other words, in any case of necessity of vetoing or canceling any decision made by the other trustees, I should be able to do like that. My decision should over-rule all the other trustees combined." (8) NM Australia, Feb. 12, 2002: "Therefore, in his service to Radhika, for rati-keli-siddhyai, a guru cannot serve in his male form. Srila Swami Maharaja and my Gurudeva are both serving there in their female forms as gopis. In that realm my Gurudeva is Vinoda Manjari, Srila Prabhupada Bhaktisiddanta Sarasvati Thakura is Nayana Manjari, Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakura is Kamala Manjari, Srila Jiva Gosvami is Vilasa Manjari, Srila Rupa Gosvami is Rupa Manjari, and Srila Raghunatha dasa Gosvami is Rati Manjari. These manjaris can serve Radha-Krishna Conjugal." Dhirstadyumna das: "And our Srila Prabhupada?" NM: "If you fully surrender, by body, mind, words and ego, then I may tell you. Otherwise, I will not. I know who he is, but you do not know. None of the ISKCON leaders know. Your Prabhupada has cheated them all, in the sense that he has not revealed himself to them at all." (9) Datta das, Letter to NM July 19, 1998: "I do not understand why you are again giving the Gayatri mantra to Srila Prabhupada disciples who have already heard it from him. And I do not agree with you that Srila Prabhupada did not understand that if devotees heard his chanting of the Gayatri mantra from a tape, it was not bona fide."

(10) SP's SBhag 2.9.8 purport: "The potency of transcendental sound is never minimized because the vibrator is apparently absent." (11) NM Dec. 3, 2001 India: "You should try to realize what instructions Srila Swami Maharaja (Srila Prabhupada) has given. He has never given anything other than the instructions of Srila Rupa Gosvami. He always followed Rupa Gosvami, and therefore he is a rupanuga-vaishnava. He wanted to very clearly give the path of rupanuga (manjari-bhava), but he first had to cut down the jungles of mayavada and atheism. Because he wanted to give this path, he requested me to help them. He could have given it then, but they were not ready at that time." (12) NM, Australia: Feb. 18. 2002: "I am the real successor of Srila Bhaktivedanta Swami Maharaja, and there is no other." (13) NM Lecture, Sept. 19, 1994: "Those who are not rasika Vaishnavas, they don't know tattva, they have not gone to association with any Vaishnava... they think that to preach whole world... the name of Krishna... and to give Gita sandesha... is the whole thing. So I want to say that your Prabhupada has given these things... only these things... and not beyond these things. Then he was only the servant of Mahavishnu, not of Krishna. A strange thing... for them who are ignorant. But those who are wise and have done initiation from any rasika Vaishnava, bhava bhakta of Chaitanya Mahaprabhu... Those who have given their heart to them and have realized anything... very little... they can realize these things. [...] At first, if any temple is going on... we'll have to clear... the ground. The thorns are there, the trees having thorns... useless... to be cut, and to give some land... But to dig and to sweep is not everything. To dig for basement of this big temple is not everything. So Swamiji has at first cleared the atmosphere... Prepared the ground... by preaching name and the sandesh of Gita... he prepared. So very important work. Without this, without this, he could not have given these things. As Chaitanya Mahaprabhu first preached the whole world Krishna name, and he wanted all Vaishnavas to understand His inner mood. ...Otherwise everyone cannot understand... so he has done this task and it was so necessary for that world... for all world... he has done but he has not done everything ... by that doing. It was only basement... Foundation." (14) NM, Melbourne farm: "Srila Bhaktivedanta Swami Maharaja told me in the last days 'You should help my disciples. They are like monkeys; I could not train them so much. So always try to help them.'"

(15) NM, B.C. Canada May 2001: "When he came to the Western countries he saw that all were taking so many drugs, so many drugs. Almost all were mad persons, loving dog instead of God. Still he thought, 'What should I do? I should give something.' First he cut the jungles of all mayavada philosophy, atheism, material science propaganda, and so on. Next he explained that you should worship your own gurudeva first. It was something, a beginning for beginners. A, B, C, D. [...] However, when you pass the beginning primary school and enter high school or college, you should not think, 'Oh, I will only study the thing I learned at the beginning. I will not obey all these professors. I only want my gurudeva and what he has told us. A means apple, B means ball, and C means cat. Why are you telling different things? Narayan Maharaja comes and tells so many different things. We should not accept this. He is glorifying Rupa Gosvami, and he is teaching that we want affection for Radha-Krishna Conjugal. Why is he telling different things? Don't listen to him. It will be an offense.' What is this? Ignorant persons speak like this. Don't think that I am teaching anything other than what your Srila Prabhupada wanted and wrote. His voice has been recorded on his last day. He ordered me, 'Help my disciples.' After that he did not speak to anyone. You can get that cassette. Why did he order me in this way? Weeping, he requested this of me. If he had already told everything, then why did he request me in that way? If anyone does not have belief in my statements, he can acquire and hear the cassette. At that time he spoke in Bengali so that others would not understand. If he were to say that all his disciples were ignorant, that they did not know very much, and that they were imperfect, they may have become upset. For this reason he spoke so many things in Bengali. He told me, 'I brought them, but I could not teach them in full.' If he had told them everything, and if they were so knowledgeable and expert, why have so many of the senior devotees, even those in the renounced order, fallen down? Where are they now? Where they are now is not ISKCON. They were not ISKCON, they are not ISKCON, and they will not be ISKCON [...] If there is no need for Prabhupada's disciples to continue hearing from a bona fide guru, then why are they falling? Why? I know more than you, much more than you."

(16) The conversation to which NM refers to above is: A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami and NM Oct-Nov 1977, Vrindaban, as transcribed by NM's followers: SP: Are any of my God-brothers in Vrindavana now? NM: Yes. SP: Who? NM: Van Maharaja might be there, as well as Indupati Prabhu from Chaitanya Gaudiya Matha. SP: Any more? NM: Only these two at the moment. SP: Who is Indupati? NM: Indupati. He comes here often. Bhakticaru: From Madhava Maharaja's matha? NM: Yes. No one else is here. SP: Please call both of them. Van Maharaja and him. NM: This is very good proposal by you. SP: Please sit down. They will call them. NM: All right. SP: This cutting of arguments happens sometimes... NM: These are insignificant matters in such a substantial worldwide mission. A little something here and there is of no consequence. You have done this wonderful preaching work for the benefit of the whole world. There was no self-interest. You did everything only in devotional service to Krishna, for benefiting all people at large. SP: It is all by your blessings. NM: You have done a wonderful thing. It is necessary to care for and preserve this mission, and see that it is managed skillfully. SP: You kindly instruct them on this matter. I'm unable to speak. (17) Satsvarupa: "In the ultimate issue, however, what matters is not so much what Srila Prabhupada may or may not have said to Srila NM, but what Srila Prabhupada said to us, his disciples. And there is no record of him ever instructing the members of ISKCON to take direction from Srila NM, other than to seek his advice concerning the details of performing Srila Prabhupada's samadhi ceremony." (18) Hrdayananda Dec. 7, 2000: "NM states that he is the 'first' or maybe the 'true' disciple of Srila Prabhupada etc. Actually I have personally served Srila Prabhupada for so many years as a GBC member and he has never mentioned NM, nor was NM engaged in any significant service to Srila Prabhupada's Mission. Srila Prabhupada never told in any book, article interview or any other documented statements, that NM should become the siksha guru of ISKCON." (19) SPConv Aug. 16, 1976: "They (Bhaktisiddhanta's disciples) never thought, 'Why Guru Maharaja gave us instruction so many things, why he did not say that this man should be acharya?' They wanted to create artificially somebody acharya and everything failed. They did not consider even with common sense that if Guru Maharaja wanted to appoint somebody as acharya, why did he not say? He said so many things, and this point he missed? The real point? [...] So better remain a foolish person perpetually to be directed by Guru Maharaja. That is perfection." COMMENT: Which means, if Srila Prabhupada wanted us to study rasika tattva with NM, why did he not tell us such? (20) SPLilamrita: " Then he paused for some time, and wiping the tears from his cheeks, he said in an even more choked voice, 'He saved me.' At that point I began to understand the meaning of 'spiritual master' and dropped all consideration of ever replacing Swamiji. After two days Prabhupada said he would not call any of his Godbrothers to come and take care of his disciples. He said, 'If this person speaks just one word different from what I am speaking, there will be great confusion among you.' Actually, he said, the idea was an insult to the spiritual master." (21) SPL Dinadayala, Feb. 25, 1976: "I have instructed everything in my books." (22) SPL Satsvarupa, June 16, 1972: "I have given you everything, so read and speak from the books and so many new lights will come out. We have got so many books, so if we go on preaching from them for the next 1,000 years, there is enough stock. " (23) SPL Nitai July 14, 1976: "I have received reports that you have been developing the habit of going outside the temple to hear lectures by others outside like Nrsimhavallabha. Strictly nobody should go outside to hear lectures by others. If you are not satisfied by the calibre of the classes at the Krishna Balarama Mandir, then you should give another class, but you cannot go outside for hearing others' lectures. Kindly stop this habit immediately."

NARAYAN MAHARAJA ON ISKCON LEADERS AND DEVOTEES: (24) NM, B.C. Canada, May 2001: "Some of his (Srila Prabhupada's) sannyasis used to come to me, but where are they now? They were forbidden to continue hearing (from me) and properly understanding their gurudeva. If they will come again and serve their gurudeva, then they have a chance— otherwise not." (25) NM, B.C. Canada May 2001: "Though one may have taken initiation from Srila Swami Maharaja 30 years before, he may still be kanistha adhikari— not madyama. Otherwise, there would be no confusion or falling down. A pure devotee can never fall down. This is the reason: they did not want to listen to anyone other than Srila Swami Maharaja, but they should listen to grow." (26) NM Australia Feb. 15, 2002: "If the guru is following all the principles of bhakti, if he is in the line of his gurudeva, if he is chanting and remembering but he is not learned enough to give you Krishna-tattva, then don't give him up. With honor for him, take his permission, and go with his permission to associate with exalted Vaishnavas. And, if he does not give permission, you can consider that he is also among the kan-gurus meant for being given up." (27) Datta das Letter to NM July 19, 1998: "You have said to at least one disciple (that I know of) of an ISKCON guru in good standing that he should take second initiation from you since it was necessary to receive the Gayatri mantra from a Maha-Bhagavat devotee; otherwise the mantra has no effect." (28) Did NM re-initiate ISKCON devotees? What follows is but a partial sampling of devotees who were initiated by ISKCON gurus in good standing but who have rejected their ISKCON guru and instead taken shelter of NM. Several of these devotees have personally informed their ISKCON guru that they have left him and have clearly stated that they have taken re-initiation from NM. /Gopal Krishna Maharaja: Parasurama dasa, Parasara Muni dasa, Ramacandra dasa, Pavana dasa Jayapataka Swami: Vicitra Vasini dasi Satsvarupa: Navadvipa dasa, Narmada dasi, Jagannatha Krishna dasa Indradyumna Maharaja: Abhaya Mudra dasi Tamal Krishna Maharaja: Radhastami das Krishna das Swami: Ayodhyapati dasa Bir Krishna Goswami: Bhakti lata dd Madhusevita das: Keli-parayana das, Mahalakshmi dd, Gaura-pournima dd Vipramukhya Swami: Syamananda dasa.

(29) "I am greatly surprised for Bon Maharaja's initiating you in spite of his knowing that you are already initiated by me. So it is deliberate transgression of Vaishnava etiquette and otherwise a deliberate insult to me. I do not know why he has done like this but no Vaishnava will approve of this offensive action." (SPL Hrsikesa March 1968)

IS A BONA FIDE GURU OMNISCIENT? NM CONTRADICTS SP'S TEACHINGS: (30) NM Germany Dec. 12, 2001: "Nowadays there are so many devotees who were personally following your Prabhupada, and by that they came in contact with this transcendental life. But now they are thinking that he was not sarvajna, not allknowing or omniscient. What was he? Foolish? Ignorant? You know in His boyhood, that Krishna performed so many pastimes in which he appeared like a totally ignorant boy. But that does not mean He is ignorant or that He is not omniscient. And, if He is omniscient, why should His associates not be so? They must be." (Jadurani dasi mentions gurukula child abuse: how could it have gone on if Prabhupada was omniscient, or all knowing?) NM speaks about Prabhupada being omniscient and child abuse in ISKCON: "If those in the gurukula are not offensive they will get some good impressions, samskaras, in the heart—by sadhu-sanga. Srila Swami Maharaja knowingly did something like this for the gain of the whole world—the whole universe. He has given krpa, mercy, to all. Prabhupada did not do anything improper. He was sarvajna (all knowing), and he wanted to do good for all. It was not the fault of Prabhupada; it was fault of their bad karma of past births and also this birth. We should realize this. Although some are not realizing this, still he will help them. If those who attended gurukulas, who performed bad activities in past lives, had not come in contact with Srila Swami Maharaja—and instead of going to gurukula they had gone to any other school—the same karmic reaction would have come to them because of their past impressions. In fact, much, much worse things would have happened to them, and they would not have had the good opportunity to associate with a pure devotee—to receive prasada from his hand, to receive so much mercy from him, and to have the chance to take up devotional activities later on." COMMENT: So NM says SP knew of the abuse but let it go on because it was their karma? (31) SPL Rupanuga July 3, 1968: "Yes, those twelve symptoms of the spiritual soul are correct, except for 'all-knowing.' All-knowing it cannot be, but full of knowledge." (32) SPConv April 8, 1975: Jayadvaita: ...sometimes the acharya may seem to forget something or not to know something, so from our point of view, if someone has forgotten, that is... SP: No, no, no. Then... Jayadvaita: ...an imperfection. SP: That is not the. [...]. Then you do not understand. Acharya is not God, omniscient. He is servant of God. His business is to preach bhakti cult. That is acharya.

THE PROCESS OF DEITY WORSHIP AND NAMES OF DEITIES: (33) NM Australia, on Jan. 20, 2000: "We see that some devotees are doing bhajana of Radha Krishna, and also worshipping Jagannatha or Nrsimha. Sometimes Ramacandra, Laksmana, Sita and Hanuman are also there: and Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, Nityananda prabhu and Laddu Gopal are also there. Can you give them up? You can give up Jagannatha, no harm. You can give up other incarnations, but what will you do about Chaitanya Mahaprabhu? What should we do? If you are serving Chaitanya Mahaprabhu as well as Radha-Krishna conjugal, then it seems it will be not onepointed. Then what should we do? Then it will not be ananya. We should try to follow ananya. We should try to be one-pointed, not having so many ista-devas. Otherwise how can you concentrate? If you are doing archana of Radha-Krishna, and also Dvarakadhisa, Laddu Gopal, Nrsimhadeva, Mahaprabhu, Ramacandra, Laksmana and Sita, Jagganath-on the same altar- it means that you are ignorant. You have no knowledge at all. Perhaps your guru was not so high, and he has not explained all these things. We should know all these truths. All the doubts are cleared up in our acharyas' commentaries on Manah Siksha, and they will quickly disappear when reading their explanations. We should follow Srila Raghunatha das Goswami who was worshipping Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. In what way? As guru. If you are doing archana of gurudeva and Krishna, no harm. This is ananya." (34) Kamalacarana das April 2, 2002: "I was in Yogapit in Mayapur... Siddhanti Maharaja and gave me the following information: In 1894 Bhaktivinoda Thakura founded the Old Temple and established Radha Madhava, Gaur Visnupriya and finally Chaitanya Mahaprabhu Deities on the altar. Radha Madhava he got from one brahmana few years ago. Then in 1934 the New Temple was built by Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakura. He installed Laksmipriya, Panca-Tattva, Sri Jagannatha and Adhoksaja Vishnu. This Adhoksaja Vishnu Deity was the personal Deity of Jagannath Misra, found while excavating work was going on. Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati in 1934 established a Laksmi Narasimha Temple there also, which is actually the puspa samadhi of Bhaktisiddhanta Maharaja's mother. The Deities there are Sri Laksmi Narasimha and Gour Gadadhara." (35) Aranya Swami (leading NM disciple) June 8, 2000: "Srila NM expressed his concern over the worship of some Deities of Radha-Krishna in ISKCON Who are being addressed by the names Rukmini-Dvarakadhisa, Radha-Parthasarathi, Radha-Nilamadhava, Radha-Govinda Madhava etc. Srila Maharaja never criticized names that Prabhupada gave. Rather, he questioned whether Prabhupada actually gave them... The names of the above-mentioned Deities are either rasabhasa or inappropriate... Srila NM has stated that the name Radha-Partha-sarathi is rasabhasa because Srimati Radhika never leaves Vrndavan... As far as the names Rukmini-Dvarakadhisa are concerned, although they are bonafide names, they are inferior in tattva to Radha-Krishna... Therefore to worship Dvarakadhisa and Parthasarathi, Who are the vaibhava-prakasa expansions of Nandanandana Krishna, is clearly not following in the wake of Srila Prabhupada's inner moods." (36) SPConv Jan. 9, 1976: Acyutananda: The name of the Delhi Deities is Radha-Parthasarathi. So how do we understand? Because Partha means Arjuna. So Radha, how does Radha get there? SP: When Krishna is Parthasarathi, Radha is out of Him? Does it mean? Guest: What you mean, Parthasarathi is Sri Krishna. [...] SP: That's all. Yes. Radha-Krishna-pranaya-vikrtir ahladini-saktir. When He is fighting, the ahladinishakti is there. It is not manifest.

IS CONJUGAL LOVE IN SEPARATION THE HIGHEST EXPRESSION OF BHAKTI?: (37) NM, Vraja-Mandala Parikrama, p. 45: "Those who have not scrutinizingly studied the scripture Srimad Bhagavatam, and who have not conscientiously comprehended CC, and who have also not properly understood books like Bhakti Rasamrta Sindhu, Brhad Bhagavatamrta, Ujvala Nilamani, Krishna Karnamrta and other literatures of this nature. These people consider vipralambha, the mood of separation to be the highest level of ecstasy. Our previous acharyas also considered vipralambha to be an exalted state; but after much reflection they perceived vipralambha as a prerequisite to highlight and more fully embellish and amplify the ecstasy of reunion. If there would be only vipralambha for all of eternity what would be the use? What would be its service? Vipralambha is necessary only because it intensifies the ecstatic feelings of reunion again." (38) Continued, p.46: "So you can see that the mood of vipralambha is much more complex than possibly the way you envisioned it to be before. And those who still persist in advocating that vipralambha is the highest, they do not yet have the spiritual maturity and understanding to realize that it is not possible for anything to be more elevated than Srimati Radharani and Krishna's ecstatic loving exchanges in reuniting again." (39) From CC Mad 8.191-7 in TLC: "Upon hearing of these transcendental activities, Lord Chaitanya said, 'My dear Ramananda, what you have explained regarding the transcendental pastimes of Sri Radha and Krishna is perfectly correct, yet there is something more I would like to hear from you.' 'It is very difficult for me to express anything beyond this,' Ramananda Raya replied. 'I can only say that there is an emotional activity called prema-vilasa-vivarta, which I may try to explain but I do not know whether You will be happy to hear it.' In prema-vilasa there are two kinds of emotional activities—separation and meeting. That transcendental separation is so acute that it is actually more ecstatic than meeting."

GAYATRI MANTRA AND HARINAMA: (40) NM, Going Beyond Vaikuntha Ch. 7: "Without the gopala-mantra and the kama-gayatri, will our sadhana be complete with only the namasankirtana? No, because by nama-sankirtana alone we will not be able to chant suddha-nama, the pure name of Krishna." (41) NM, Confidential Secrets of Bhajana, p. 22: "Everything is there, but don't think that we can realize all this by chanting Krishna-nama alone. We must chant nama-mantra (gayatri) as well, if we want full understanding and realization of what is in the Hare Krishna mantra." (42) SPConv Aug. 13. 1973: "Chanting Hare Krishna maha-mantra. Then, as he practices, becomes more purified, then second initiation. Gayatri. Gayatri-mantra. But the first initiation, according to Jiva Gosvami, that is sufficient. Chanting Hare Krishna mantra, that is sufficient. But still, to purify them more, the second initiation, Gayatri, is given." (43) Sridhar Maharaja (Gaudiya Math) Sri Guru and His Grace: "We accept the mantra only to help the nama-bhajan, the worship of the holy name. Otherwise it may not be necessary at all. It has been judged in such a way. The name alone can do everything for a person. It is full and complete. The (gayatri) mantra helps us to do away with the aparadhas, offenses, and the abhasa, or hazy conception. The (gayatri) mantra comes to help us only so far."

HOW A DEVOTEE ACHIEVES PERFECTION: (44) NM, Bhakti-rasayana Ch. 6: "If after hearing these verses (about Krishna and the gopis) one doesn't meditate on them, then at the time of taking harinama his mind will certainly be absorbed in thoughts of material enjoyment. While chanting his mind will be unsteady, and remembrance of events from the life he led before he began to follow the path of bhakti will awaken inside him. Various kinds of sankalpa and vikalpa, attraction and repulsion to material objects will come to his mind, and he won't receive the full benefit from this nectar- tonic. But if someone meditates on these verses while taking harinama, then his bhakti will surely increase. This is the method for increasing one's bhakti." (45) Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati, Prabhupader Patravali, Ch. 1: "There is no point in making a separate effort to artificially remember the Lord's form, qualities and pastimes. The Lord and His name are one and the same. This will be understood clearly when the coverings in our hearts are removed. By chanting without offenses you will personally realize that all perfections come from the Holy Name." (46) Bhakti Prajnana Kesava Gosvami (NM's diksha guru)- His life and Teachings, Part 4, P. 343: "One day a devotee was studying the commentaries on rasa-lila, brahmara-gita and so on, and Srila Gurudeva [Bhaktisiddhanta] said, 'The qualification to hear topics such as rasa-lila will come when sri nama-kirtana has freed the heart from anarthas, and suddha-sattva has appeared there.'" (47) NM, Venu-gita, introduction: "Those who believe that only sadhakas who are completely free from all anarthas are eligible to hear the above-mentioned pastimes (of Krishna and the gopis), will neither become free from anarthas nor obtain eligibility to hear even after millions of births... Then how can this greed be obtained... Faithfully hearing the narrations of Sri Krishna's pastimes saturated with rasa from the lips of rasika Vaishnavas or by faithfully studying the literature related to the pastimes of Sri Krishna, composed by them, this greed may be obtained. Besides this, there is no other means."

(48) Srila Puri Maharaja Lecture, Nov. 11, 1994: "The only thing that can give you prema is pure chanting. There is no other process which can bring you to the level of prema. You may feel that sometimes a certain attraction, but if this is not steady, you cannot interpret it as lobha, which is so rare. You cannot just find it anywhere." (49) NM Going Beyond Vaikuntha Ch. 7: "Some people think that they will first become free from all offenses and anarthas, become pure by their own efforts, and then engage in bhajana, but that is absurd." (50) Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati, Prakṛta-rasa-sata-dusani: "Rasa, devotional mellow, can never be first present and then develop into rati, transcendental attachment, or sraddha, proper faith. The Srimad-Bhagavatam (or the realized devotee) never sings any opinion other than rati develops from sraddha." (51) NM Going Beyond Vaikuntha Ch. 7: "If one listens with faith to narrations of Krishna's pastimes with the gopis by anusnuyad— accepting a pure guru, an ideal rasika Vaishnava who knows bhagavat-tattva and then constantly hearing from him— then exclusive sentiment will come to him. This sentiment is our everything, and it will arise in us and give us great happiness." (52) Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati letter: "Those who have achieved the perfection of being fixed in their spiritual identity (svarupa-siddhi) have attained such a realization through internal revelation and the spiritual master's only involvement in these matters is to help the further advancement of a disciple. As a practitioner progresses toward spiritual perfection, all these things are revealed naturally within the heart that sincerely seeks service." (53) SPL Feb. 19, 1970: "As soon as a devotee is regularly engaged in this way, always engaged in Krishna Consciousness, Krishna will reveal the whole spiritual science from within the heart of such sincere devotee." (54) SP's SBhag 3.9.33: "When you are free from the conception of gross and subtle bodies and when your senses are free from all influences of the modes of material nature, you will realize your pure form in My association. At that time you will be situated in pure consciousness." (55) NM Venu-gita, Text 12, p. 37: "We should always hear and chant and remember Krishna's Vrindavan pastimes. A rasika devotee will learn only enough tattva-jnana to facilitate his entrance into the bhava he is attracted to. Then everything will develop and he will be able to enter the lila. If he always thinks of Krishna as the Supreme Lord, then his attraction for Krishna will be pre-dominated by aisvarya-jnana and he will not be able to enter Krishna's madhurya-lila. Therefore a rasika Vaishnava should not focus on Krishna in the way He is presented in Bhagavad-gita, as the Supreme God." (56) Bhaktivinoda Thakura, Sri Chaitanya Sikshamṛta Ch. 7 Part 1: "Those who have not attained pure rati and sense control make futile attempts to become qualified for rasa by practicing rasa. That taste which arises naturally in a person on the level ofprema is called rasa. The discussion of rasa is only a description of how the various elements combine in the different rasas; it is not a part of sadhana. Therefore, if anyone says that he will teach you the sadhana of rasa, he is an impostor or a fool."

(57) NM, Venu-gita, Text 17 p. 55: "Therefore, we should only focus our attention on those things that are helpful to our madhurya-bhava, not those things which pertain to aisvarya-bhava."

(58). NM Dec. 13, 2001: "If one wants to love Krishna in mood of a mother or father, his guru should be an ocean of that mood. If one is in the mood of Sri Rupa Manjari and thinks, 'I want my siddha (perfected spiritual form) to be that of the manjari followers of Rupa Manjari,' then the guru should be already perfect in that. He must already have that siddha-deha, and he should be very favorable and causelessly merciful to the disciple. Only that person can be one's siksha-guru; not others. One should think, 'A person may be very learned, but if he is not especially affection towards me, and if he does not possess the mood that I want, the mood that is in my svarupa, then he cannot be my siksha-guru.'"

(59) Bhaktivinoda Thakura, Bhajana-rahasya, Prathama-yama Sadhana: "(When) almost all anarthas have disappeared one therefore has the required adhikara for attaining siddhadeha. If one thinks of his siddha-deha without achieving the adhikara his intellect becomes bewildered."

ATTAINING GOPI OR MANJARI BHAVA: (60) NM Los Angeles May 31, 2000: "If you are pure or impure, if you have somehow come in the line of Mahaprabhu, then in your constitutional form there must be something of gopi-bhava. Otherwise how could you have come?" (61) NM Lecture Los Angeles May 13, 2001: "You may have decided that your goal is gopi-prema or radha-prema, but you cannot achieve radha-prema. By your constitutional form you can only have the service of the gopis. Only the manjari mood, always serving the gopis, is possible for the jivas. [being a sakhi is not possible for a jiva]" (62) SP's Nectar of Devotion, Ch. 11 purport: "Srla Bhaktivinoda Thakura writes in this connection that Sri Radha-kunda is the most select place for those interested in advancing their devotional service in the wake of the lady friends, sakhis, and confidential serving maids, manjaris, of Srimati Radharani." (63) SP's Krishna Book Ch. 29: The Rasa Dance: Introduction: "The gopis who joined Krishna's pastimes (to dance with Him in the rasa dance) within this material world were coming from the status of ordinary human beings. If they had been bound by fruitive action, they were fully freed from the reaction of karma by constant meditation on Krishna."

ATTAINING PREMA IN THIS LIFE: (64) NM Confidential Secrets of Bhajana p. 20: "Next is the stage of prema. But this cannot appear in this body. It can only come in our next life, somewhere in the material world where prakata-lila is going on. Then the sadhaka will take birth in the womb of a gopi. Prema can be achieved in that body, through the association of nitya-siddha devotees. Otherwise it is not possible." (65) SP's SBhag 6.16.51 purport: "The science of devotional service has been instructed by Narada and Angira to Chitraketu... By performing devotional service, one advances step by step, and when one is on the platform of love of Godhead (prema pumartho mahan) he sees the Supreme Lord at every moment. ...Chitraketu Maharaja was first instructed by his gurus, Angira and Narada, and now, having followed their instructions, he has come to the stage of seeing the Supreme Lord face to face." (66) Visvanatha Cakravarti Thakura Madhurya Kadambini, gives this verse from SBhag 1.6.17 as an example of the symptoms of prema—note the word "prema" in the Sanskrit—in reference to Narada in his life as a maidservant's son: prematibhara-nirbhinna- pulakango 'tinirvrtah ananda-samplave lino napasyam ubhayam mune "O Vyasadeva, at that time, being exceedingly overpowered by feelings of happiness, every part of my body became separately enlivened. Being absorbed in an ocean of ecstasy, I could not see both myself and the Lord."

DEFINITION OF RUPANUGA: (67) NM July 4, 1997: "When our hearts accept the same mood Srla Rupa Gosvami possesses in his heart- the mood of a palya-dasi (unpaid maidservant) of Srimati Radhika, it is called rupanuga-bhakti." (68) SP's CC Madhya 19.132: "According to Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakura, distributing literature is like playing on a great mrdanga. Consequently we always request members of the International Society for Krishna Consciousness to publish as many books as possible and distribute them widely throughout the world. By thus following in the footsteps of Srla Rupa Gosvami, one can become a rupanuga devotee."

STANDARDS FOR INITIATION: (69) Hari Sauri Letter Mar. 31, 1997: "Yesterday Jayapataka, B. Caru, B. Svarupa Damodar, Lokanath and myself went to visit BV Puri Maharaja at his matha, just next to our land. Narayan M. arrived with three others unexpectedly. He had not been invited but showed up of his own accord. JP had already gone back to our temple but the rest of us stayed on. There were some real fireworks. Puri M. immediately told NM that we were complaining about his initiating people from ISKCON. NM became very hot and agitated and defensive. He vehemently denied initiating anyone from ISKCON... Guru Kripa was there. He challenged NM that Prabhupada has set the standard for preaching all around the world [16 rounds/day, six month minimum probation period before initiation, etc.] but he (NM) is violating that by initiating people the very first time he sees them without knowing anything about them. NM denied he was initiating anyone without recommendations etc. But GK's own stepdaughter was initiated by him after only one day. GK caught him out in a lie, and he didn't like it. He shouted, 'I am not under your rules. I am not ISKCON, I am Gaudiya Math!' He repeatedly denied he was initiating any ISKCON devotees. I asked him, 'Maharaja, when you initiated people in Australia, where did they come from?' He couldn't answer." (70) Jayapataka Maharaja, "To Hear or Not to Hear, that is the question" Mar. 28, 2001: "I had some disciples and I consented that they could accept siksha from NM but instead of siksha, NM gave them re initiation." (71) Suhotra Swami: "In Holland, where Brahma-rata das solicited many congregational members to see NM, there were 17 initiations, a number of the initiates had come for only one or two days. Some of these persons didn't realize the significance of their actions, and many don't follow the four regulative principles." (72) Shivarama Swami: "In Leicester, I learned from the temple president that NM planned to initiate two congregational members who were completely unqualified. I faxed NM and asked him to desist. When the TP delivered the letter, NM replied, 'We do not want to create trouble with ISKCON,' from which I inferred that he would respect my request. Then he said, 'But giving a name and mala I do for children,' and consequently he went down and did the initiation anyway."

ADVAITA ACHARYA: (73) NM May 31, 2000: "He (Chaitanya) also did not come only to establish Yuga-dharma. That is the job of Maha Visnu, not of Krishna. It is not Krishna's function. Who is Maha-Vishnu? Sri Advaita Acharya. He is the amsa of the amsa of the amsa of the amsa of the Kala of Krishna Himself. He is a part of the part of the part of the part of Krishna. Being so far away, He can preach with kirtana, but He cannot give Vraja-bhakti. Never. He is not qualified for this. Only Krishna can do this." (74) CC Adi 1.6.28: "He (Advaita Acharya) delivered all living beings by offering the gift of Krishna-bhakti. He explained Bhagavad-gita and Srimad Bhagvatam in the light of devotional service."

THE PLACE OF BOOK DISTRIBUTION AND VARIOUS SERVICES: (75) NM Dec. 13, 2001: "Some say, 'My Gurudeva has told me that I should only distribute books, and by that, prema-bhakti or vrajabhakti will at once come. So I will only distribute books for my whole life. No reading. Doing only this.' What will happen? The current will stagnate. Only sukrti (pious credits that gradually accumulate to allow one to meet and/or follow a pure devotee) can come from such activity. Their Gurudeva has spoken rightly, for by doing so, they will meet so many good associates, they will hear hari-katha, they will get a real siksha-guru, their anarthas will disappear, and thus nistha will come. After nistha, ruci will come, then asakti, and then rati (bhava) will manifest. After that, prema will manifest, and as a result, sthaya-bhava, vibhava, sattvika, vyabacari (the transcendental sentiments of the soul) will manifest. You cannot imagine what this stage will be like. It will come, after a very long time. That is the general process. However, by the mercy of Gurudeva, it can come very quickly." (76) NM Confidential Secrets of Bhajana, p. 12: "We may think that we are engaged in so much devotional service and so much preaching work, but we must be careful. If we are not trying to do bhajana, if we are not trying to enter into the realm of real bhakti, then all of these activities are karmanga, actually material activities."

DEALINGS WITH OTHER BRANCHES OF THE GAUDIYA MATH: (77) Murlidhara das, of Sridhar Maharaja's Gaudiya Math, April 1999: <http://www.mandala.com.au/rupanuga/default.htm> "For several years NM heavily attacked Srila Sridhar Maharaja both verbally and in print. Before Srila Guru Maharaja's departure from this world, when we were living with Srila Guru Maharaja at Nabadwip Sri Chaitanya Saraswat Math in the 1980's the disciples of Srila Sridhar Maharaja who knew the facts about the relationship between our Divine Master and NM would never go to the Math of NM. Ultimately, however, it is not just NM's attitude towards Srila Sridhar Maharaja but also NM's philosophy that disconnects him from Srila Sridhar Maharaja, (especially), NM's proposal that neophyte devotees should constantly meditate on Krishna's pastimes with the gopis." Full article: <http://www.chakra.org/articles/2001/05/07/who/index.htm> (78) NM Nov. 10, 1991: "So you should not be satisfied what you have got from him (Srila Prabhupada?) at that time.... Without Raganuga Bhakti, Bhakti is not completed. So I think that you should try to enter in this raganuga Bhakti realm and you are so much qualified."

INFLUENCING WOMEN & CHILDREN; INITIATING WIVES WITHOUT HUSBAND'S PERMISSION:

(79) Datta das, Letter to NM July 19, 1998: "Last year, when my former wife asked me whether my two young sons could take initiation from you, I said no. Since I wasn't in New Braj at the time, I asked first Gopavrindopal, and then my former wife (now initiated by you as Prema Mayi) to convey my wishes to you on that subject. First Gopavrindopal spoke with you, then Prema, then myself, when I arrived in Badger. In each case, you said more or less that 'There is no problem. Whatever the father wants for his sons. This is Vedic.' I was very satisfied with your answer, and was pleased with your cooperative and considerate mood. However, you spoke with my sons later and told them that they should 'chant 5 rounds a day and accept you as their guru.' To my younger son, Gaura Hari, you then said, 'I will initiate you next year.' (80) Gaurahari das, Open Letter to NM July 8, 1999: "Our wonderful marriage and Guru disciple relationship has been shattered by your action and my wife's naive sentimental approach to you for initiation. My wife and I are both suffering intense emotional trauma now because of your hasty inappropriate and insensitive actions. You took advantage of my wife's sentiments without carefully evaluating our situation. I have already heard that two other marriages have been destroyed because of your initiating the female spouse, one of which I know for sure was against the husband's wishes. My wife also changed from being a very close loving, friend, and wife into one of your fanatical extensions trying to help you take over the world of Srila Prabhupada's devotees..." (81) From one ISKCON devotee, as verified by Gopal Krishna Maharaja: "NM has been trying to initiate me since a long time... I kept avoiding him. When I went away on business at one stage NM had somebody call my wife to tell her that 'NM wants to see her.' She went and he instantly initiated her. When I came back I was most upset and in fact infuriated. So I told my wife: 'Since you did this without asking me I can take sannyasa now at any time without asking you as well.' My wife was crying and crying and NM heard about it. He passed the message that we both should see him so he would fix this problem. When we went NM offered instantly that the whole situation could be resolved if I were just to take initiation from him as well. I declined his repeated coaxing, saying ultimately: 'Maharaja, you should know that every hair on my body belongs to ISKCON and Srila Prabhupada.' Instantly NM took my arm and said: 'Do you know that he (SP) was selling liquor?' My blood was boiling that he would go so far to get me to take initiation from him that he would try to break my faith in Srila Prabhupada. I instantly said to my wife: 'Give him the beads back' which she did. And we rushed out of his room." (Note: Maybe NM referred to how in his householder days Srila Prabhupada's pharmacy sold 100% alcohol for medical use.)" (82) NM Jan. 15, 2001 Auckland: "Krishna can never control me, because I am already under the control of Srimati Radhika. Radhika is so powerful. If Krishna will be angry upon me, I will say, 'Why are You angry? You should not be angry. My Swamini is Radhika, you know.' Then Krishna will say, 'Oh, your Swamini is Radhika. Then, namaskara to you.'"

RASIKA GURU NARAYAN MAHARAJA AND TAMAL'S GROUP

Around 1990 Tamal joined some other ISKCON devotees in regular association and discussions with NM of the Mathura Gaudiya Math. Tamal arranged for NM's interview in ISKCON Journal, a publication devoted to countering the VVR's challenge that the GBC justify their guru system or else adopt the officiating acharya method. On the guru issue, Tamal had found a philosophical affinity with

NM. The ensuing years up to 1995 wherein Tamal and others promoted NM and rasika bhakti constituted one of the most serious poisonings of Srila Prabhupada's mission. The result was an injection of the Gaudiya Math and their deviant philosophy into ISKCON, much of it contrary to Srila Prabhupada's teachings. Srila Prabhupada had struggled very hard to avoid this; he strongly warned against the influence of his Godbrothers and the Gaudiya Math, and Tamal very successfully accomplished exactly what Srila Prabhupada had made so clear that he did not want in ISKCON. Thousands of devotees were swept into NM's branch of the Gaudiya Math, and thus the door was also opened to other Gaudiya Math branches and their various "acharyas" as well. Due to Tamal's patronage of Narayan Maharaja, today there are dozens of Gaudiya Math centers and congregations all over the world, filled with those who originally were Srila Prabhupada's followers. Practices and philosophy much different and contrary to what Srila Prabhupada had imparted were embraced as part of the NM phenomenon. It was a major schism and weakening of ISKCON, and even though many who joined NM had already been inactive in ISKCON, also significant numbers gave up their direct involvement with ISKCON. Many Srila Prabhupada followers outside ISKCON were also brought in to Narayan Maharaja's "camp."

The irony is that NM followers ardently claim that they were given new spiritual impetus to dedicate themselves afresh to Srila Prabhupada's teachings, which was true in some ways, but in their enthusiasm they could not also recognize their deviations from Srila Prabhupada's standards and instructions NOT to do what they were doing. This is actually explained quite well by the "repentant and reflecting" Tamal in the essay just below on the history of Tamal's 1990's gopimania club and rasika bhakti episode. Of course, his version is sanitized via an academic, aloof overview and does not properly attribute responsibility to himself for rendering another devastating blow to Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON and mission. See Ch. 71. Again the North American temple presidents effectively confronted Tamal and the GBC, just as they did in 1976 and in 1986.

"GOPI BHAVA CLUB HERESY" (excerpts from Tamal's The Perils of Succession, 1997)

Tamal describes the 1970's gopi bhava club heresy as a background to the later rasika guru phenomenon. "In his discourse, Prabhupada usually spoke of bhakti generically. [...] His translation of Sri Chaitanya-charitamrita highlights many intimate pastimes in which Chaitanya and his companions became absorbed in and identified with the conjugal mood of Radha and her companions. However, Prabhupada repeatedly warned his audiences not to compare these wholly transcendental descriptions with their seemingly mundane equivalents. In spite of this, a group of his disciples - perhaps 25 women and an equal number of men - began meeting surreptitiously to read the portions of CC that describe Radha and Krishna's intimate pastimes. News of the 'Gopi-bhava Club' reached Prabhupada during his LA visit in June of 1976. [...] Prabhupada ordered an investigation. He expressed grave concern that such meetings, if allowed to go unchecked, would lead to illicit activities, thus thwarting the preaching mission. The club leaders appeared before Prabhupada explaining that they were [...] simply studying the descriptions in order to develop such desires. Prabhupada's lips quivered with anger: 'First deserve, then desire! ...So long as there is any pinch of material desire there is no question of desiring on the spiritual platform!' [...] Prabhupada's experience extended far beyond the limited knowledge of his disciples. Growing up in Bengal and later on living for years in Vandavana, he had ample opportunity to observe the behaviour of the various sahajiya sects who attempted to sacramentalise mundane, human sex. The sahajiya were renounced in appearance, dressed in a bare loincloth of babajis and living on the simplest of diet. But their illicit sexual behaviour belied their appearance and drew heavy criticism from the orthodox Gaudiya Vaishnavas. [...] he explained the background of the contamination. A segment of Chaitanya's movement had deviated from his strict principles, appropriating the model of Krishna and the gopis' love affairs for their debauchery. Lacking any spiritual qualification, they still aspired for the highest transcendental level of understanding. Prabhupada likened the attempt to an ignorant fool's desiring a Ph.D. As his predecessors had laboured to free Chaitanya's movement from the sahajiya stigma, Prabhupada acted to protect ISKCON in the same way. 'Keep your movement very pure. Don't mind if somebody goes away. But we must keep our principles pure.' [...] Prabhupada later stated, would not 'purify,' but rather 'putrefy.'"

"Though Prabhupada's disapproval of the 'Gopi-bhava Club' was well documented, a similar attempt was made again, some fifteen years after his departure. That the group included four members of the GBC and other gurus as well, added to the spectre of large numbers of their followers becoming deviated. These devotees were based in Vrindavana at ISKCON's Krishna-Balarama Temple. But perhaps most alarming was their allegiance to an elder Gaudiya Matha sannyasi. The rasika-bhakti controversy as it came to be known, was the re-occurrence of a problem - premature 'realisation' - Prabhupada had seemingly resolved, coupled with a challenge to authority. (COMMENT: The leader of the ISKCON devotees involved with NM was Tamal himself, followed by Satsvarupa, Shivaram, Giriraja, Bhurijana, Dhanurdhara, BB Govinda and many others.)

"The elder sannyasi Narayan Maharaja was a [...] long-time resident of Vrindavana, he has a fondness for narrating rasa-katha, the sublime topics of Krishna's Vrindavana pastimes. A small group of prominent ISKCON men and women were gradually drawn into his association, ignoring history, GBC resolutions on the books which forbade such outside association, and ample warnings from their peers as well. NM made no effort to conceal his relationship with them, which as time went on became increasingly intimate. When invited by ISKCON to a number of public functions, he frankly proclaimed that ISKCON devotees should not remain neophyte, clinging simply to rules and regulations, but should follow the path of spontaneous devotion. His emphasis on gopi-bhava, the mood of Krishna's amorous cowherd lovers, particularly disturbed his ISKCON audiences who were conscious of so many warnings from Prabhupada. Prabhupada had stressed that the path of spontaneous devotion was only for liberated souls. He personally taught and exemplified the activities of devotion performed according to rules and regulations. Once a practitioner became purified of all material inebrieties, spontaneous devotion would automatically manifest. Yet, the ISKCON followers of NM felt they were making tangible spiritual advancement by following his advice and example. [...] Prabhupada, they believed, was now guiding them in the person of NM. (Clearly NM taught something much different from and contrary to Srila Prabhupada's teachings.) At the annual 1993GBC meeting, members questioned their affiliation with NM. Those involved minimised the seriousness of the relationship, though for some it had been going on for as long as 5 years. Trusting their word, the GBC let the matter pass. But concern continued, especially among the ISKCON devotees residing in Vrindavana who felt NM's influence slowly pervade the Krishna-Balarama Temple complex. By their 1994 annual meeting, the GBC forced the involved members to promise to greatly restrict further association with their new teacher.

"Though adhering externally, their sympathies for NM's teachings were unabated. [...] NM was even attracting a following in a few ISKCON centres. The tension finally came to a head at the anniversary celebration of Srila Prabhupada's entering the sannyasa order, traditionally held at NM's temple where the actual sannyasa ceremony had taken place in 1959. Tamal Krishna Goswami and Giriraja Swami, rather than glorifying Prabhupada, used the occasion to praise NM, recommending his association to all of ISKCON. NM spoke next. He pointed out that there were many higher teachings that Prabhupada could have given had his disciples been more advanced. He implied Prabhupada's missionary work was elementary and ISKCON devotees were now ready for the more advanced stage of Krishna consciousness, which he could give. (COMMENT: NM spoke about Srila Prabhupada's preaching as "sweeping the floor," a preparation for receiving the "higher knowledge." It was as if NM was university and Srila Prabhupada was elementary school.) [...] the indignation evoked by these speeches reverberated world-wide. Many felt that things had gone too far and that the GBC must now take a firm stand. NM's followers, however, would not back down; believing that he was misunderstood, they met other ISKCON leaders in India, Europe and North America to promote their cause. But they had not correctly anticipated the response, especially from North American temple presidents. This influential group, the same who were primarily responsible for putting an end to the zonal-acharya era, demanded those following NM be stripped of their positions. Many feared ISKCON was heading for a major schism. (COMMENT: Tamal led the schismatic group, and had no fear for ISKCON. He had private motives.)

“This time the GBC was firm. The rasika-bhakti controversy was first on the 1995 annual meeting's agenda. A week of thorough investigation brought the implicated members in line. They admitted that by promoting a non-ISKCON authority and his teachings, they had relativised Prabhupada and his teachings. Many neophyte devotees were already following their example and, as Prabhupada had predicted during the gopi-bhava affair, missionary activities were being minimised to focus on personal spiritual advancement. (COMMENT: Yes, this is the mood of the NM group, self-centered.) Asked to suggest what they might do to make amends, the leaders involved with the controversy tendered their resignations, which the GBC promptly refused. They further volunteered to refrain from initiating new disciples or visiting Vrindavana until their case could be reassessed the following year. They promised to disassociate themselves entirely from NM and to correct any misunderstandings created by their past behaviour. [After a year] the GBC was not entirely convinced of their contrition and at the March 1996 meeting insisted on maintaining most of the restrictions.

*“Considering that they had avoided a split, one might conclude that the GBC should have relaxed the sanctions with a mood to fully reconcile both parties. Many of the GBC wanted this. NM announced he would tour the West. His visits to Holland and England were arranged by disenchanted former members of ISKCON and were solely aimed at attracting an ISKCON audience. Some members of ISKCON's congregation were initiated without consideration of Prabhupada's strict standards. (COMMENT: Often novices or guests were initiated without even knowing it, who were not following basic rules. NM followers were very aggressive to steal any ISKCON devotee they could. Many, even Srila Prabhupada's “direct” disciples, were reinitiated by NM, others given new names.) Though NM praised Prabhupada's accomplishments and expressed his desire to see ISKCON united, the GBC considered his tour anything but unifying. They called upon NM's former GBC followers to help draft a document that would clearly express this conclusion. The resulting paper entitled 'Keeping Faith with Srila Prabhupada' was released world-wide through the Internet. ISKCON leaders offered hospitable greetings whenever NM and entourage visited an ISKCON temple and saw that he had little opportunity to contact ISKCON devotees. By the tour's end in July, dozens had taken his initiation in Europe and North America; there seemed to be little overall impact within ISKCON's temples from his visit. Nevertheless, he announced his intention to extend his tour later in the year to include Australasia. While the impact of NM on devotees residing within the ISKCON temples is minimal, he has created a significant following among independent devotees not under any direct ISKCON authority. His visit to Australia attracted many persons who no longer felt inspired by the ISKCON leadership. The fact that ISKCON is bracing for his next world tour indicates that ISKCON is both concerned and affected by what goes on in the wider circle of devotees residing outside its immediate temple communities. (COMMENT: NM continued with world tours for many years which was a huge drain on ISKCON's membership and congregations which included inactive devotees.)

“A lingering concern to ISKCON are the disciples of a recently deceased ISKCON guru (Gaur Govinda Swami), and those of gurus who are fallen, some of whom are attracted to NM. While the capitulation of the GBC members previously following NM has certainly demonstrated GBC solidarity, that in itself will not be enough to prevent the continued exodus of devotees who feel unable to repose full faith in some ISKCON authority. Apart from their critics' cavilling, ISKCON gurus must satisfy their disciples' legitimate expectations that they be knowledgeable, self-controlled and realised. (COMMENT: Tamal failed to admit his responsibility for this major exodus from ISKCON by leading Srila Prabhupada's followers into the arms of the Gaudiya Math. ISKCON was already a disaster zone due to Tamal's previous misdeeds. Tamal's deviant leadership caused major troubles for Srila Prabhupada's mission.) But trying to emulate Prabhupada and his predecessors' perfection prematurely can only lead others to further disenchantment.”

SOME OBSERVATIONS ABOUT THE RASIKA GURU CULT

Sometimes devotees become very excited about sadhus with "higher realizations," who speak about confidential Vrindaban lilas in an intimate, attractive manner, and they think that Srila Prabhupada had a "lower realization," as he only gave the simple, basic philosophy of Krishna consciousness. Srila Prabhupada was most cautious about speaking of esoteric subjects, because simply speaking about "high topics" does not constitute the higher realizations and spiritual advancement necessary to truly enter into them. Srila Prabhupada was always absorbed in preaching Krishna consciousness and generally spoke of basic spiritual philosophy that was profound yet simple. He hardly ever discussed the subtleties of rasa-tattva or other intimate topics. Some people have concluded, therefore, that Srila Prabhupada is a lesser guru who teaches only on a lower level. But even higher than madhurya (the sweet exchange of Krishna and the gopis in Vrindaban) is audarya (the mood of liberal distribution of Krishna bhakti as exhibited by Lord Chaitanya). What is the essence of madhurya? It is sacrificing everything for Krishna, as the gopis did. Others may speak of love of God, but Srila Prabhupada practically demonstrated his prema by going all over the world, preaching to and convincing the atheists and karmis. NM's rasikas have little taste for such activities, and tend to associate only with each other or try to attract existing devotees to their esoteric group. They usually are on such a "high" level that they could hardly come down among non-devotees. They discuss the teachings of many previous acharyas, as though very learned. But Srila Prabhupada never did this.

NARAYAN MAHARAJA OPENLY DECLARES THAT SRILA PRABHUPADA WAS WRONG

In a video below, one can hear Narayan Maharaja openly lecturing that certain statements by Srila Prabhupada about women, blacks, etc are "WRONG" and he even reads from Srila Prabhupada's Gita to explicitly correct what he sees as defects therein. It is shocking how so many Srila Prabhupada disciples and followers could be so enamored of Narayan Maharaja even when Srila Prabhupada is being directly criticized. <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=RV6BpgQRkwU&feature=youtu.be&app=desktop> The real issue is not whether NM's teachings are bona fide Vaishnava siddhanta. Rather, the important question is whether a follower of Srila Prabhupada has, according to Srila Prabhupada's instructions, legitimacy in taking "siksha" from anyone who is not themselves strictly following Srila Prabhupada's teachings. NM was not a follower of Srila Prabhupada, and his teachings were actually very much different. This is certain and confirmed by Narayan Maharaja himself. Also many quotes from Srila Prabhupada make it very clear he did not want his followers associating with anyone in the Gaudiya Math. A list of those quotes is given in the next chapter.

CONCLUSION

Someone may witness that he feels better, he has strengthened his sadhana, has become more spiritually minded... by "taking shelter or association" of NM, but the correct validation must be whether Srila Prabhupada approved of his disciples doing this. The next chapter shows he did not. Srila Prabhupada discouraged his disciples from reading books other than his own. How can we do something that Srila Prabhupada clearly discouraged? If he warned us not to do something, then what is the value of my own judgment to the contrary? This is disobedience, and will be detrimental to receiving Srila Prabhupada's mercy. Srila Prabhupada's followers should have full faith in his instructions, even when tempted otherwise. The 1970's Gopi-bhava club also thought they were doing right, but Srila Prabhupada chastised them heavily. NM followers are very practiced in picking certain quotes in their favor while ignoring the ones in the next chapter.

One may claim to have faith in the instructions of his primary guru and direct link Srila Prabhupada, but generally the underlying misunderstanding by which this disobedience takes place is another deficiency of philosophical realization, namely that one needs a "living guru." If Srila Prabhupada were still physically present, it would be interesting to see how many followers NM would have attracted from ISKCON circles. Only because devotees have forgotten how or have no taste to associate with Srila Prabhupada after his physical departure, do they seek out a physically living guru. The NM phenomenon was based on: (1) attraction to rasika topics, which Srila Prabhupada warned against, (2) the misunderstanding that Srila Prabhupada is now gone, so now it is difficult to stay inspired in spiritual life, and (3) after so many years of chanting and being a practicing devotee, now we should progress to “higher knowledge” and the practice of spontaneous raganuga bhakti rather than only regulative vaidhi bhakti. But Srila Prabhupada, as seen in Tamal’s own explanations above, strongly cautioned us not to get ahead of ourselves lest we become sahijiyas, or pretentious spiritualists. The followers of Srila Prabhupada, connected to him by instructional adherence, do not require a new and “living” source of siksha to continue their progress in spiritual life.

From Dhira Govinda das: “In CC Mad 15:108 purport, Srila Prabhupada quotes Srila Jiva Goswami as follows. ‘Diksha is the process by which one can awaken his transcendental knowledge and vanquish all reactions caused by sinful activity. A person expert in the study of the revealed scriptures knows this process as diksha.’ Also, in Madhya-lila 4:111 purport, Srila Prabhupada writes ‘Diksha actually means initiating a disciple with transcendental knowledge by which he becomes freed from all material contamination.’ Sometimes it is asserted that one needs a ‘living guru.’ This is true, and Srila Prabhupada is a living guru. He lives through his vani. Even with regards to his body, Srila Prabhupada never had a material body (Nectar of Instruction, 6). ‘...the spiritual master, those who are acharyas, their body is not considered as material’ (SPLecture Jan. 13, 1969). Srila Prabhupada is available to fully and directly reciprocate with his sincere followers through his vani and murti. Transmission of divya-jnana, and not physical presence, is the defining characteristic of the parampara, as described in Bhaktisiddhanta’s song Sri Guru Parampara. Srila Prabhupada stated ‘I shall never die, I shall live forever in my books’ (Science of Self-Realization, Foreword). Thus, shastrically and philosophically it is possible for a devotee to directly connect with Srila Prabhupada as the link to the disciplic succession, and this is factually happening for devotees who contact the sankirtana movement.

“Whether there are pure devotees in India, in ISKCON, wherever, it’s a profoundly unimportant question. Of course, if there are pure devotees on the planet, that’s auspicious. But [...] Srila Prabhupada is my current and direct link to the parampara. I am completely satisfied with that. There is nothing remotely lacking in the arrangement of Srila Prabhupada being our current and direct link to the Vaishnava disciplic succession. It’s vital we establish that Srila Prabhupada is fully available as the current link for anyone who contacts his movement. If someone asserts Srila Prabhupada is not available in that way, that’s philosophically bogus with regards to historical precedent, the experience of millions, and by logic, Srila Prabhupada’s clear statements, basic Vaishnava principles, regarding vani and the essence of the process of initiation, divya-jnana.”

There was much controversy about NM reinitiating devotees who had already been initiated by either Srila Prabhupada or ISKCON gurus still in “good standing.” There were various explanations of NM’s actions. At least at one time, many NM followers were slack in their practices and sadhana, and that he freely initiated without any vetting and not after six months as required by Srila Prabhupada. Their kirtans, festivals, and deity worship are very different from what was taught by Srila Prabhupada. (Nevertheless, across the board, his followers, although neglectful of Srila Prabhupada’s instructions, are usually more gentle and thoughtful than those in the ISKCON leadership.) Much of the NM phenomenon was due to: (1) attraction to the prestige of a supposedly higher knowledge and spiritual status, (2) a renewed social life in a new sanga that was refreshingly cleaner than the ISKCON politicized and repressive atmosphere, (3) and the association of a lifelong austere Gaudiya Vaishnava such as NM, who insisted on the need for a living, rasika guru for diksha and siksha. By their corruption, oppression, and mismanagement, the ISKCON power elite drove devotees out of the house Srila Prabhupada had built for them, and then Tamal and his acolytes led thousands into the arms of the Gaudiya Math that Srila Prabhupada had quit long before he even came to the West. Ultimately the GBC is responsible for Tamal’s deeds, as they failed to prevent the damage he caused to Srila Prabhupada’s mission.

After NM’s departure in 2012, a number of sannyasi followers carried on their sanga and mission even with no more “living guru”... Hopefully they will increase association with Srila

Prabhupada through his vani or teachings. However, the need is not a study or debate on the NM phenomenon. It is the restoration of Srila Prabhupada's mission. Krishna Avatar das wrote to Dhira Govinda in 2000: "The GBC creates problems and then blames other people when things spiral out of control. Many senior GBC members went to see NM before the mass of devotees came to know about him. Then, when they realized that he was cherry-picking devotees from ISKCON, they decided to expel devotees that were associating with him."

CHAPTER 113: CHASTITY AND THE GAUDIYA MATH

"Nov. 8, 1975 NOTICE TO ALL CENTERS Dear President, Prabhus [...] Srila Prabhupada has asked me to write to you to make it very explicit that there should be no dealings between you and Prabhupada's so-called Godbrothers. They are all jealous and are all trying to do harm to our mission and also to Srila Prabhupada. So without Srila Prabhupada's permission, no one should correspond with any of them, and no one should have anything to do with any of them, without asking Srila Prabhupada. No one should give them any of Srila Prabhupada's books, no one should purchase their books, no one should visit their temples without authorization. I hope this is clear. It is very important. Please instruct all your devotees regarding this. [...] when the devotees come for the annual festival, you should also instruct them not to visit or have any dealings with any of the Godbrothers. I hope this is clear [...] Your servant, Brahmananda Swami Personal Secretary [SP]"

"...your letter dated Sept. 3, 1975 with the enclosed statement about Van Maharaja. So I have now issued orders that all my disciples should avoid all of my Godbrothers. They should not have any dealings with them nor even correspondence, nor should they give them any of my books or should they purchase any of their books, neither should you visit any of their temples. Please avoid them." (SPL Visvakarma Nov. 9, 1975)

SIKSHA AND UNCHASTE DISCIPLES

Sometimes devotees "shop around" amongst various sources for siksha (spiritual instruction), taking a little here, a little there, as though experimenting with different recipes or restaurants and tasting what they like the best or something "fresh." This is of course part of the "western disease" to be always changing to get something improved and more desirable to one's gross or subtle senses. This contrasts with one who, once finding a bonafide pure devotee such as Srila Prabhupada, remains chaste and faithful to Srila Prabhupada, convinced he lacks nothing and lives forever in his vani, murti, service, etc. (Ch. 181) Srila Prabhupada's followers have no need to supplement their guru by "shopping around," since Srila Prabhupada's association is always fully available as a perfected mahabhagawat who guarantees he will take us back to Godhead if we simply follow his instructions, simple as they are. Otherwise, we may easily become an unchaste disciple. A woman's honor and purity is known by her chastity, and similarly for a disciple. Nityananda das wrote a letter to Srila Prabhupada in the early days, in 1971, foolishly asking if there were any other pure devotees in India besides himself, and whether we should go to them for association. It was a neophyte, offensive inquiry, and the reply came Nov. 12, 1972: "It is a basic principle that one must accept a bona fide spiritual master in order to achieve the highest perfection of life, love of God. I thank all of you very much for accepting me as your spiritual master, and I promise that I will take you back to home, back to Godhead. I ask you all to promise me to always chant at least 16 rounds, follow the regulative principles, read our books and try to preach this Krishna Consciousness Movement all over the world. So far my qualifications are concerned, I am simply trying to carry out the order of my Guru Maharaja."

Just those four things, and Srila Prabhupada will take us back home; nothing else is required. Srila Prabhupada emphasized carrying out his instructions, and then he would take care of all the rest. We do not need to go elsewhere because nothing is missing. When and if Srila Prabhupada considers us ready for the intimacy of Krishna lila, we should leave this to him, as he is fully capable and aware of how to help us progress in spiritual life, rather than us foolishly rushing in where angels fear to tread. The idea that Srila Prabhupada was just a first step and that one must move on to higher knowledge and a rasika guru is plain nonsense. NM Maharaja up until 1995, explained his folly in Srila Prabhupada Smaranam (p. 102): “Why strain to develop a new relationship when easily you already have a very sweet complete relationship? Why try for a second one? Then the next thought is that this was a gamble because the new relationship was compromising the old relationship [...] he is a different person, and he teaches with a different emphasis than you (Prabhupada) do. [...] I found it definitely happening, this minimizing attitude towards Srila Prabhupada. Just to think of Prabhupada as my diksha guru, one of several gurus, I just don’t like it. I want him to be my all in all. And the only instructor gurus that I could entertain or have faith in would be those who would be so sold-out to Prabhupada to see him in an absolute way. Not to see him as a person whose opinion you differ with, which Narayan Maharaja is at liberty to do.” [Yes, a very appropriate understanding for SP followers.]

THREE ACCOUNTS OF A SPECIAL SRILA PRABHUPADA PASTIME

We would normally be shy about quoting too much from those who have furthered the deviations in Srila Prabhupada’s ISKCON, but the following is resonant with this chapter’s theme. We will seek out the truth and siddhanta, wherever it may be found. Mukunda Maharaja’s account below is also found in his book Miracle on Second Avenue, in Hayagriva’s Hare Krishna Explosion, and Satsvarupa’s Srila Prabhupada Lilamrita.

“I am saddened to see [...] the “house in which everyone can live” slogan used as the basis for followers to defect from your movement, seeking “shelter” elsewhere. I recount in more detail a passage from your Lilamrita (3.5). It was the summer of 1967 at Stinson Beach, CA. Your slow rate of recuperation from deteriorating health had alarmed several of us. You were going back to India, and, we thought, we might never see you again. One of the devotees asked me to inquire of you whether someone should take over in your absence, [how] to continue our education in Krishna consciousness if you were to leave your body. [...] this would entail a particular teacher or guru who would carry on the specific work you had started [...] under the wise direction of someone you would recommend or appoint. [...] unless you recommended an individual, the personal attention aspect of Krishna consciousness, which we depended so much on, would be absent. It didn’t really occur to me that the spiritual master’s potency could carry on after his physical departure. [...] it was a bit delicate, asking someone what to do after they die. But I thought it should be asked anyway, not realizing the implications [...] I found myself alone in the room with you. When you die, I queried, who would take over the movement, your work, our training and education? [...] the notion of becoming a spiritual orphan had crossed my mind. Your answer did not come forth quickly. After what seemed several minutes of silence, you almost distractedly uttered the name of one of your Godbrothers. [...] I expected you to say more [and] accepted any recommendation, but you didn’t seem satisfied with your answer. So I waited. [...] You looked off in the distance. Finally you said, ‘Actually, it is an insult to the spiritual master.’ If I could have [...] I would have instantly shrunk into the carpet. Another long silence. And you were looking wistful, this time, apparently miles away from [where] we were [...] I knew I had committed some kind of offense, but I didn’t know what it was. I had no intention of insulting you [...] ignorance would be no excuse. I had done something wrong [...] What was a spiritual master, anyway? [...] I was preparing for the worst, a rebuke, a stern lesson, an explanation [...] Then you closed your eyes. Your next response was [...] you didn’t open your eyes, change your expression, or say a word, a shallow stream of tears appeared below each of your lotus eyes. You sat perfectly still. Slowly you wiped away the tears [...] Then you gasped, ‘My spiritual master—’ More was coming. But again you were quiet [...] seemed to be crying, ‘He was no ordinary spiritual master.’ After another long pause, you said in a choked voice, ‘He saved me.’ I was too emotionally overwhelmed, almost crying myself

[...] “Now the answer was crystal clear. It couldn’t have been more obvious. You weren’t just telling me: you were showing me, imparting a lesson I would and could never forget. It was a lesson told by the spiritual emotions of a pure devotee. Vani was greater than vapu- words I then did not know. How could it have been said more poignantly? [...] You were no ordinary spiritual master. Not only were you saving me, but you were saving countless others. You were teaching by practice, not precept. How brilliant! In this one incident I learned volumes about a spiritual master. I learned that the spiritual master does not die with the passing of the physical body; that you must love the spiritual master unconditionally; that love for the spiritual master means fidelity, loyalty, and obedience first; that there could be no other shelter than you; [...] you started a movement that would save not only me but the whole the world as well." (Mukunda Goswami, Vyasapuja offering)

SOME QUOTES FROM SRILA PRABHUPADA RE: GODBROTHERS, GAUDIYA MATH

(1) "...I understand that in the past you were visiting Lalita Prasad and that you may also be planning to continue visiting him when you return to India. This is not approved of by me and I request you not to go and see him any more. He holds a grudge against my Guru Maharaja and even if it is transcendental it will gradually appear mundane in our eyes. Whatever is to be learned of the teachings of Srila Bhaktivinode Thakura can be learned from our books. There is no need whatsoever for any outside instruction." (SPL Yasodanandana, Gurukripa Dec. 23, 1973) (2) "Please continue reading my books seriously and everything will be revealed to you." (SPL Sept. 18, 1975) (3) "I am pleased to hear that you are chanting 16 rounds daily and reading my books regularly and following the four rules. In my books the philosophy of Krishna consciousness is explained fully so if there is anything which you do not understand, then you simply have to read again and again. By reading daily the knowledge will be revealed to you and by this process your spiritual life will develop." (SPL Bahurupa Nov. 22, 1974) (4) "Please continue in this way. Our process is something universal. It cannot be checked by any means. Anyone in any place, in any country can chant Hare Krishna. [...] In conjunction with this you should always read my books daily and all your questions will be answered and you will have a firm basis of Krishna consciousness. In this way your life will be perfect." (SPL Hugo Salemon Nov. 22, 1974) (5) "So it is better not to mix with my God brothers very intimately, because instead of inspiring our students they may sometimes pollute them. This attempt was made by them previously, especially [Madhava, Tirtha, Bon] but somehow I saved the situation. This is going on. We shall be careful about them and not mix with them. This is my instruction to you all. They cannot help us in our movement, but they are very competent to harm our natural progress. So we must be very careful about them." (SPL Rupanuga Apr. 28, 1974) (6) "All my disciples should avoid all of my God brothers. They should not have any dealings with them nor even correspondence, nor should we give them any of my books, nor should we purchase any of their books, neither should you visit any of their temples. Please avoid them." (SPL Viswakarma, Nov. 9, 1975) (7) "Do not be depressed. All along my godbrothers gave me only depression, repression, compression-but I continued strong in my duty. So never mind there is some discouragement, continue with your work in full enthusiastic Krishna Consciousness attitude of service..." (SPL Aug. 29, 1972) (8) "...and do not mix yourself with my so-called god-brothers. As there are in Vrindaban some residents like monkeys and hogs, similarly there are many rascals in the name of Vaishnavas, be careful of them..." (SPL Nov. 21, 1972) (9) "...My other godbrothers they are concerned with litigations, politics, and diplomacy, so what is the prachara? As far as I am concerned I have the blessings of my guru maharaj. I do not need anything else. That is how I went to your country, just to try to carry out his order. By his blessings it has come out successful..." (SPL Oct. 15, 1974) (10) "Regarding the Gaudiya Math books being circulated there, who is distributing? Who is sending these books? The Gaudiya Math does not sell our books, why we should sell their books. Who has introduced these books? Let me know. These books should not at all be circulated in our Society. Bhakti Vilas Tirtha is very much antagonistic to our society and he has no clear conception of devotional service. He is contaminated. Anyway, who has introduced these books? You say that you would read only one book if that was all that I had written, so you teach others to do like that. You have very good determination..." (SPL Nov. 14, 1973) (11) SP: That was the policy of Madhava Maharaja and Sridhara Maharaja, that "Although Bhaktivedanta Swami is propagating throughout, he is subordinate to us, under our instruction." So all these three... (Jan. 19, 1976)

(12) "...this cunning Puri das has taken advantage of your simplicity. So any of my godbrothers cannot help me in this way of book writing because they are unfortunate in the matter of preaching work. They are simply trying to infiltrate our society to do something harmful by this attempt. So please do not have any correspondence with this Puri or any of my godbrothers." (SPL Karuna Sindhu das, Nov. 9, 1975) (13) "Regarding Bon and Tirtha Maharaja, they are my godbrothers and should be shown respect. But you should not have any intimate connection with them, as they have gone against the orders of my Guru Maharaja." (SPL Pradumnya Feb. 17, 1968) (14) "...I am greatly surprised for Bon Maharaja's initiating you in spite of his knowing that you are already initiated to me. So it is a deliberate transgression of Vaishnava etiquette, and otherwise a deliberate insult to me. I do not know why he has done this, but no Vaishnava will approve of this offensive action..." (Mar 26, 1968) (15) "Snake is very envious. ...There are similarly men also. Unnecessarily they are envious, offensive, unnecessary. They cannot tolerate others' opulence. Just like our Godbrothers. They are envious. What I have done to them? I am doing my business, trying to serve my Guru Maharaja. But they are envious because I am so opulent. I have got so much fame, so many influence, so much influence all over the world. Everyone is praising me about... That is ignorance. And this is regrettable because they are posing themselves as Vaishnava. Ordinary man can do that, but they are dressing like Vaishnava, and they are so envious. That Tirtha Maharaja, unnecessarily he was envious, whole life fighting, fighting in the court and died. Simply planning." (SPConv Jan. 8 1977) (16) "Damodara Maharaja is a dangerous man. Remain very cautious with him. He is always causing difficulty. Regarding the two men who have come to us from Gaudiya Math, for the time being we should try not to give shelter to such persons unless they are tested." (SPL Dec. 4 1976) (17) SP: Sridhara Maharaja is little... Tamal: He read it? SP: I think so. Tamal: Did he make any comment? SP: He cannot make any comment. These are facts. Two parties there were. One party, to use guru as their instrument for self-aggrandizement, and another party left guru. So both of them are offenders. This Kunja Babu, this Tirtha Maharaja's party, he wanted to enjoy senses through guru. And the Bagh Bazaar party, they left. Tamal: Vasudeva. SP: So both of them are severe offenders. Tamal: What about Sridhara Maharaja? SP: Sridhara Maharaja belonged to the Bagh Bazaar party. And I was living aloof. My Guru Maharaja approved. He said, "It is better that he is aloof from them." Tamal: He could understand that his disciples were not... SP: No, he was very sorry. At the last stage he was disgusted. (SP Apr. 22, 1977)

COMMENTS: Surely some followers of NM will object, but these quotes are from Srila Prabhupada. Yes, NM was very friendly with Srila Prabhupada, was not actually a godbrother but a godnephew, and not (openly) hostile to ISKCON or Srila Prabhupada. But, NM's teachings and mood were very different from Srila Prabhupada's, who warned that these differences would confuse and harm us. He did not ask his followers to seek out a rasika guru, nor find siksha from his Godbrothers/nephews. Claims that Srila Prabhupada asked NM to "take care of" his disciples have never been verified by any tape recording. Tamal caused havoc by disobeying instructions he knew all too well and setting in motion the exodus of thousands to the various Gaudiya Math camps. Tamal never apologized or set right this huge misdeed. Today it is difficult to recommend people to go to the corrupted ISKCON, but hopefully in the future Srila Prabhupada's mission will be restored and worthy of recommendation. It was entirely the GBC's and Tamal's fault that the innocent devotees, who were left without a home due to ISKCON's deviations and tyrannical regime, desperately sought out a support system to advance in spiritual life. Unfortunately they were misled again.

SRILA PRABHUPADA SPEAKS ABOUT GAUDIYA MATH GODBROTHERS (Pratyatosh das)

Please keep in mind, while reading the quotes below (some removed as they are quoted just above), that Srila Prabhupada never retracted any of them. Some might say Srila Prabhupada apologized to his Godbrothers on his death bed, but how can this be considered a blanket referral to his Godbrothers? He set an example for his disciples of how to make amends before leaving this material realm. If Srila Prabhupada his Godbrothers' forgiveness, this does not retract the April 1974 letter to Rupanuga, which is a signed document, stating, "This is my instruction to you all." No retraction to this signed document exists. We may have been unsure about our relationship with Srila Prabhupada's Godbrothers before his letters and conversations were published, but now it should be amply clear for everyone. Any of Srila Prabhupada's disciples who still insist on associating with Srila Prabhupada's Godbrothers or Godnephews after reading the quotes below is obviously disobedient and not very sincere. (1) YOU SHOULD NOT HAVE ANY INTIMATE CONNECTION WITH THEM: "Regarding Bhakti Puri Tirtha Maharaja, they are my God-brothers and should be shown respect. But you should not have any intimate connection with them as they have gone against the orders of my Guru Maharaja." (SPL Pradyumna Feb. 17, 68) (2) NO POSSIBILITY OF COMPROMISE: "Regarding the 92 section case against the Gaudiya Math, I don't think there is any possibility of compromise. Both the Bhagbazar Party [Sridhar Maharaja's group] and Mayapur party [Tirtha Maharaja's group] have unlawfully usurped the missionary institution of Srila Prabhupada, and whenever they will talk of a compromise, it means another complication." (SPL Narayan Maharaja Sept. 30, 1969)

(3) MY FOURTH-CLASS GODBROTHERS: "Disturbance is caused by ignorance; where there is no ignorance, there is no disturbance. The four Sannyasis may bark, but still the caravan will pass. There is every evidence that they are influenced by some of my fourth-class Godbrothers." (SPL Sept. 14, 1970) (4) ENVIOUS GODBROTHERS: "Regarding the Gaudiya Math, our position has nothing to do with them. They cannot do anything and if somebody does something, they will be envious. That is the nature of third class men." (SPL Yamuna Nov. 18, 1970) "If somebody thinks, 'Oh, here is a snake with jewel. Let me embrace him, no, no, no, it is very ferocious. [...] Similarly, these people are envious. Although they have become so-called Vaishnava, they are ferocious. They have not acquired the qualification of Vaishnava." (SPConv May 24, 1977) (5) THEY HAVE ALL BECOME SUDRAS: "Our big, big godbrothers in India, they could not preach Lord Gauranga's name all over India. They are simply inclined to criticize me, that my students call me Prabhupada. They could not do anything practical and tangible. They are satisfied with a temple and a few disciples begging alms for the maintenance of the temple. So, we can understand that they have all become sudras. How can they have interest in Bhagavad-gita. Although some of them have been born in brahmana families, but by quality are all sudras." (SPL Niranjana May 21, 1973) (6) THIS IS MY INSTRUCTION TO YOU ALL: "In the latter days of my Guru Maharaja he was very disgusted. Actually, he left this world earlier, otherwise he would have continued to live for more years. Still he requested his disciples to form a strong Governing body for preaching the cult of Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. He never recommended anyone to be acharya of the Gaudiya Math. But Sridhara Maharaja is responsible for disobeying this order of Guru Maharaja, and he and others who are already dead unnecessarily thought that there must be one acharya. If Guru Maharaja could have seen someone who was qualified at that time to be acharya he would have mentioned. Because on the night before he passed away he talked of so many things, but never mentioned an acharya. His idea was acharya was not to be nominated amongst the governing body. He said openly you make a GBC and conduct the mission. So his idea was amongst the members of GBC who would come out successful and self effulgent acharya would be automatically selected. So Sridhara Maharaja and his two associate gentlemen unauthorizedly selected one acharya and later it proved a failure. The result is now everyone is claiming to be acharya even though they may be kanistha adhikari with no ability to preach. In some of the camps the acharya is being changed three times a year. Therefore we may not commit the same mistake in our ISKCON camp. Actually amongst my Godbrothers no one is qualified to become acharya. So it is better not to mix with my Godbrothers very intimately because instead of inspiring our students and disciples they may sometimes pollute them. This attempt was made previously by them, especially Madhava Maharaja and Tirtha Maharaja and Bon Maharaja but somehow or other I saved the situation. This is going on. We shall be very careful about them and not mix with them. This is my instruction to you all. They cannot help us in our movement, but they are very competent to harm our natural progress. So we must be very careful about them." (SPL Rupanuga Apr. 28, 1974) (7) THEIR PROPOSAL FOR COOPERATION IS A MYTH: "You should not write anything to Madhava Maharaja's camp. You may have talked many things with *Mangala Niloy but why write him in black and white. The letter must not be sent. Their policy has been all along to suppress me and take credit for himself. Their proposal for cooperation is a myth. They haven't done anything which is cooperative. You know in a recent article they managed to write in such a way that Madhava is doing the world movement and we are his subordinate. From the beginning that has been their mentality. So there is no possibility of cooperation with them. Rather you should avoid strictly meeting with them. They are not after preaching but material gain and reputation and adoration. Otherwise why they are non cooperating with me? So no cooperation is possible. Do not think or indulge in loose talks. Be careful always. Let us do the duty of propagation sincerely and seriously on our own principles. Krishna and Srila Prabhupada Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakura are our only hope and they are helping us. If anything thing has to be done it is to be talked on the higher level between Madhava Maharaja and myself, but I know his mentality is different and there is no possibility of cooperation.” (SPL Achyutananda June 8, 1974) (8) SMASHED... ON ACCOUNT OF PERSONAL AMBITIONS: *“In India some of the important members they have collected huge amounts in the name of the Society and spent it luxuriously. I wanted you all my experienced disciples should manage the whole institution very cleverly without any personal ambition like ordinary materialistic men. The Gaudiya Math institution has become smashed, at least stopped its program of preaching work on account of personal ambitions.” (SPL Karandhar Oct. 8, 1974)

(9) MY GODBROTHERS ARE CONCERNED WITH POLITICS: “My other godbrothers they are concerned with litigations, politics, and diplomacy, so what is the pracara? As far as I am concerned I have the blessings of my guru maharaj. I do not need anything else. That is how I went to your country, just to try to carry out his order. By his blessings it has come out successful.” (SPL Subala Oct. 15, 1974)

(10) THEY ARE NOT EVEN ORDINARY HUMAN BEING: *“So these rascals, Godbrothers, they are envious that... What he has written? Bon Maharaja. Just see what kind of men they are. They are not even ordinary human being. They are envious of me, and what to speak of make a judgment by estimation? They're envious. Enviousness is immediately disqualification of Vaishnava, immediate. He is not a human being. [...] Still, he is so envious, black snake. So one circular letter should be issued to all our center, that 'Any Bon Maharaja or anyone, his representative, should not be received.' They are envious. Yes. Quoting that. We have got several complaints like that. Satsvarupa also complained. Sometimes our order was cancelled by Bon Maharaja's propaganda.” (SPConv Oct. 16, 1975) (11) IN THE GAUDIYA MATH POLITICS IS STILL GOING ON: *“Why is there this politics? This is not good. If politics come, then the preaching will be stopped. That is the difficulty. As soon as politics come, everything is spoiled. In the Gaudiya Math the politics is still going on. My Guru Maharaja left in 1936, and now it is 1976, so after 40 years the litigation is still going on. Do not come to this.” (SPL Gurukripa Sept. 30, 1975) (12) CONCLUSION: *“[Krishna consciousness] is simple for the simple, but it is very hard for the crooked.” (SPLecture Dec. 26, 1969) The “simple” disciple simply follows his spiritual master's instructions, and refuse to associate with any of Srila Prabhupada's godbrothers or godnephews. The “crooked” disciple, on the other hand, finds so many excuses to try and rationalize such forbidden association. (END)**

MORE ABOUT SRILA PRABHUPADA'S GODBROTHERS

“Just to drive home the point about not associating with the Gaudiya Matha and Prabhupada's Godbrothers, I will recount a story back in 1973 while I was staying in Mayapur for a few months. During that summer, Srila Prabhupada came with about a half dozen secretaries and Sanskrit editors. Pradyumna das, his main Sanskrit editor, decided to go on his own down to the Chaitanya Matha to discuss some questions he had. He was not fluent in Bengali, so he wanted to ask some questions of the local pandits there. This story was narrated to me by someone who was in the room with Srila Prabhupada when he found out that Pradyumna had gone there. You can tell by the look on the face of someone the gravity of the situation as they describe what they witnessed. Srila Prabhupada chastised Pradyumna very heavily for about 45 minutes for going there. It was an innocent thing he had done. When I heard about this event, by the look on his face, there was only one conclusion to make. That is, that I would never, NEVER, EVER go to the Gaudiya Matha for any reason whatsoever, save perhaps seeing the Dieties. Now, anyone can say (and I have heard) that, 'No, Prabhupada's Godbrothers have changed their tune. They all appreciate what he did, and it's ok to go there and associate with them, no problem.' At least that's the gist. All I can say is, good luck with that. You want to defy a DIRECT ORDER from Srila Prabhupada not to go there? Better we offer respects from a distance and go on with our work. Not make offenses, but simply give them wide berth." (Paul McCloud/ Pavamana ACBSP)

From Rupanuga das: "The history of all the trials and tribulations instigated by his Godbrothers will not be lost in the annals of time. Srila Prabhupada immortalized the true story in his letters, lectures and purports, indelible shastra, for everyone's education. He set the record straight for future followers and readers. For ex., he writes: 'Sri Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Gosvami, at the time of his passing away, ordered all of his disciples to work conjointly to preach the mission of Chaitanya Mahaprabhu all over the world. Later, however, some self-interested, foolish disciples disobeyed his orders. Each one of them wanted to become head of the mission, and they fought in the courts, neglecting the order of the spiritual master, and the entire mission was defeated. We are not proud of this; however, the truth must be explained. We believed in the words of our spiritual master and started in a humble way --in a helpless way --but due to the spiritual force of the order of the supreme authority, this movement has become successful.'" (CC Adi 7.95-6) [...] Srila Prabhupada had offered ample opportunity to his Godbrothers to cooperate with him and work conjointly, especially Sridhara Maharaja. [Many times] he tried to convince his Godbrother to be a partner in ISKCON. But Sridhara Maharaja maintained his concept of independence, remaining at arm's length, unable to make a meaningful agreement. [...]

"Finally, on Nov. 8, 1977, when he was about to depart, Srila Prabhupada, the emblem of Vaishnava humility, begged forgiveness for his offenses to his Godbrothers. As the master of Vaishnava etiquette, he knew well the custom that at the time of death the devotee should show regret for any offenses he may have committed knowingly or unknowingly. But the truth is, as Srila Prabhupada stated during a room conversation a few days before he disappeared, 'I have never done anything inauspicious to anyone.' Factually, it was his Godbrothers' opposing behavior which had been inauspicious. And when he said, 'The war is over,' he was simply saying that now that he was going, the war should stop. But that war was not Srila Prabhupada's war, it was a war declared and maintained by his Godbrothers and he didn't want the war continuing against his disciples after his departure. Near the end, Narayan Maharaja, a God-brother's disciple, was employed by Srila Prabhupada as a messenger to his Godbrothers. The gist of the message was: "Help, don't hinder them." That was it. He was not asking Narayan Maharaja or anyone else to instruct his disciples in the future on how to manage a worldwide preaching movement and he already instructed them on numerous occasions not to fight amongst themselves. He wanted Narayan Maharaja to assist in the arrangements for the upcoming samadhi ceremony and the requisite paraphernalia and rituals. Srila Prabhupada, after the events of 1967, never instructed his disciples to accept guidance from his Godbrothers. Just the opposite. But he did mention to the GBC that if they reached an impasse on some technicality or philosophical point they could (not should) consult with Sridhara Maharaja, and he indicated no one else. Of course, it would be hard to imagine a philosophical question which could not be answered from Srila Prabhupada-vani.

"In any case, after Srila Prabhupada's disappearance, when his ISKCON was in chaotic condition, members of the Gaudiya Math encouraged and received ISKCON refugees with open arms, thereby attaining a temporary jolt from the infusion of preaching spirit already inculcated in those devotees by Srila Prabhupada. Sometimes some of those devotees say that the troubles in mainstream ISKCON are due to offenses to Sridhara Maharaja and/or other members of the Gaudiya Math. But the problems in mainstream ISKCON are actually due to the same cause that has been the bane of the Gaudiya Math's existence --neglect of the orders of the Founder-Acharya. Many of Srila Prabhupada's initiated disciples have left the jurisdiction of 'mainstream' ISKCON over the years since Srila

Prabhupada's disappearance, most often for good reasons not to be delineated here. But leaving Srila Prabhupada himself is another thing and/or accepting another spiritual preceptor as equal to or greater than Srila Prabhupada is a great mistake, a valid excuse for which cannot be found moving hell or heaven. Generally, the Gaudiya Math's condescending attitude towards Srila Prabhupada has not changed, and they have attempted to create an artificial competition between Srila Prabhupada and Bhaktisiddhanta Thakur as to who is the last Acharya in the parampara. They consider Srila Bhaktisiddhanta to be the uncontested last great Acharya, to be presumably succeeded by all of his disciples (each of whom would be on the top of the list for their own disciples). Some see Srila Prabhupada and Sridhara Maharaja as the two equal successor Acharyas to Bhaktisiddhanta Thakur. One disciple of Srila Prabhupada, who joined the Gaudiya Math early on, is fond of a saying he attributes to Sridhara M: 'Two eyes are better than one,' but the implication is that by having both Prabhupada and Sridhara as equal guiding authorities, one can make better spiritual progress. And Sridhara M was still a 'living guru' at the time. But the analogy has serious flaws [...] Srila Prabhupada gives a nice example: another word for 'swami' is husband and when a wife is unfaithful to her swami she is considered a prostitute. Similarly for a disciple who is unfaithful to his spiritual master.

"To summarize and conclude, it was the great fault of the Gaudiya Math leaders that they could not recognize Srila Prabhupada's spiritual leadership. They could not adjust the fact that Abhaya Charan das became the 'self-effulgent acharya' Srila Bhaktisiddhanta predicted, and had emerged by word and deed as the obvious Acharya of them all, indeed of all the Vaishnavas and the whole world! (from rupanugadas.com)

CONCLUSION

One who follows Srila Prabhupada's clear instructions will not associate with his Godbrothers, or the Gaudiya Math, and not trot out contradictory, foolish rationalizations.

CHAPTER 114: THE JULY 9th MOVEMENT

Srila Prabhupada's July 9 letter to all GBCs and temple presidents was concealed, ignored, and hidden by Tamal, Ramesvara, and other zonal acharyas (Ch. 85). The letter did not become public again until June 1990 in the VVR. That year Srila Prabhupada's 1977 conversations were also published, with the May 28 and July 7-8 talks which led up to the letter itself. In black and white, Srila Prabhupada's prescription for future initiations and guru policy was established, but to no immediate avail, as the hijackers had already entrenched their bogus, evolving guru system for 13 years. When the GBC's guru policy was challenged in 1990 at the San Diego "ritvik debate," they countered with damning resolutions, excommunications, and a one-issue ISKCON Journal discrediting the clear imports of the July 9 Letter (or Directive, Order). In 1989-92 a devotee community outside ISKCON, called New Jaipur Vedic Village, pioneered the application of the July 9 Directive by taking Srila Prabhupada as their sole diksha guru, rejecting ISKCON's zonal acharyas and the subsequent rubber-stamp approved gurus (Ch. 110). When New Jaipur closed in 1992, the GBC thought what they called the "posthumous ritvik theory" was dead. However, Krishnakant Desai, an uninitiated congregational London devotee had spent 6 months in New Jaipur in 1990 studying with Rupa Vilas and Karnamrita. He developed his research and essays over the coming years and from 1993-6 he had successfully established the ISKCON Reform Group, later renamed ISKCON Revival Movement or IRM. Many senior devotees became involved and were convinced that ISKCON in 1978 had failed to implement the July 9 Order and thus the institution had very seriously deviated from Srila Prabhupada's express instructions. IRM held major conventions in 1995-7, including Alachua, Los Angeles, and Malaysia, to review the philosophical understanding of Srila Prabhupada's "ritvik representatives" or "officiating acharyas." A quarterly magazine modeled after the VVR was started, called Back To Prabhupada, and is still in print in 2022. Krishnakant and the IRM engaged back and forth with ISKCON and its leaders via its essays and publications, most notably the 1996 small book The Final Order. IRM has not organized many centers, but the principles and philosophy of Srila Prabhupada's giving initiations after his departure has been most successfully defended and propagated, convincing countless devotees.

THE GROWING RITVIK ADHERENTS: SEVENTH SCHISM (1989, ONGOING)

As a major philosophical and doctrinal split with the official ISKCON line that Srila Prabhupada was "dead and gone," the "ritvik adherents" constituted another schism which further weakened the corrupted ISKCON institution but which can be seen as a rebirth, shedding a dysfunctional and diseased body for a new life. The "ritvik" schism continues to grow as increasingly more Hare Krishna movement participants adopt the understanding that Srila Prabhupada himself actually wanted to give diksha to any number of sincere seekers in the future via his officiating representatives. 35 years after the Vaishnava Journal first raised the issue of ritvik initiations in 1987, the "Prabhupadanugas," as they are generally called, have become a major section of the overall movement started by Srila Prabhupada, and continue to grow rapidly, just as the Sun burns away morning fog. Thus Srila Prabhupada's true mission has strengthened. After the 1992 demise of New Jaipur, Yasodanandana and Puranjana published many newsletters 1992-7 featuring the July 9 Order, including a book, The Living Guru. As Prabhupada Anti-Defamation Association (PADA), they openly exposed ISKCON anomalies and contradictions, with the deviated, false gurus and associated corruptions of all sorts.

In 1998 Rasaraja das slipped a Final Order under the door of the Bangalore ISKCON temple president Madhu Pandit das. Soon Bangalore ISKCON seceded from ISKCON, adopting Srila Prabhupada's July 9 Order initiation system. Krishnakant resided in Bangalore for a few years to assist in the philosophical "purification" of the temple members. ISKCON tried to regain control of the newly completed and wealthy Bangalore temple via many tactics, including numerous legal assaults, physical invasion with 200 devotees from Mayapur, false allegations, political intrigues, and assassinating Madhu Pandit's character. All failed, and Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON Bangalore Group, as they are called, remains apart from ISKCON today, having expanded to 30 cities, in India and abroad, notably in Malaysia, Silicon Valley, and greater New York. Their Akshaya Patra program is feeding 1.3 million children every day with school meals with much governmental and corporate support and recognition. A lawsuit from ISKCON Bombay to take over the Bangalore management has been resting with the Supreme Court for many years and appears to be on indefinite hold. Under Adridharan das, Calcutta ISKCON seceded in 1999 as an IRM chapter, and he spoke strongly against the deviated ISKCON guru policies. However, in 2001, Jayapataka Swami organized a massive physical invasion by force with 200 Mayapur brahmacharis, having also bribed the police, who did not show up when called. Adridharan was falsely charged for improprieties and never returned to Calcutta, fading from the scene.

In 2001 Yasodanandana das incorporated in California a non-profit corporation called Hare Krishna Society, modeled after ISKCON's original corporation. A website was established with an easy set of requirements which would enable any devotee or any group of devotees worldwide to "affiliate" and become a chapter of the society. Website: www.krishnaconsciousnessmovement.com The template to encourage devotees to return to the original ISKCON model established by Srila Prabhupada, which includes the July 9 Order, has been moderately successful with affiliates listed in many countries. Yasodanandana das also sponsored a website listing Prabhupadanuga devotees, families, programs, and centers around the world, including many organizations and groups. This website is: www.prabhupadaanugas.org (two aa's together).

In 2004 Nimai Pandit das became the president of the Freeport, Long Island, NY temple when his old friend handed it over to him as he departed. The temple seceded as a Prabhupadanuga center and ISKCON has battled legally ever since to dislodge the devotees who have taken Srila Prabhupada as the legitimate diksha guru as per the July 9 Order. ISKCON tried several physical invasions which were resolved by the police. ISKCON tried media campaigns, undermining of congregational members, and producing false corporate minutes. Nimai Pandit tried to transfer control of the BBT to the Long Island corporation via a legal theory which is as yet unresolved. Because the Freeport temple was the only ISKCON temple still operating under the original 1966 ISKCON incorporation charter, and due to other clauses in the BBT trust documents, there is a legal argument that the original ISKCON corporation is still the "owner" of the BBT. The purpose, Nimai Pandit das stated, was to force the BBT to print only the unedited, unchanged, and unrevised books that Srila Prabhupada had approved prior to his departure. ISKCON Freeport now also has a small farm project in upstate New York.

By 2001 Sundar Gopal das, who was initiated in the 1970's by Srila Prabhupada and served in ISKCON for decades, adopted the July 9 Order and established the International Sri Krishna Mandir in Singapore. In recent years many groups of Prabhupadanuga devotees have affiliated under the ISKM banner, including in New Zealand, Hungary, Russia, China, Philippines, Malaysia, India, and Bangladesh. Sundar Gopal das travels widely to support these devotees and publishes videos and books on the July 9 Order. The successful Hare Krishna Community with temple and farm in Jaipur, India, is a large successful group of dedicated devotees. The New Jaipur farm project in the South Pacific's Fiji islands was a resurrection of the Mississippi project. This Fiji village of Prabhupadanugas from 2008-2018 restarted the Vedic Village Review but closed due to a lack of local interest and devotee betrayal. The project may reincarnate again elsewhere. The Phoenix rises...

TAMAL DESCRIBES STRUGGLE TO COUNTER THE PROXY-INITIATION PROPONENTS

"In 1995, the GBC published Gurus and Initiation in ISKCON, a compilation of all the relevant ISKCON laws and official papers. Nor did that conclude the matter. Fresh legislation in 1996 states, 'Temple presidents, at their discretion, have the right to prohibit its [proxy-initiation] advocates from participating or visiting ISKCON if this creates a disturbance.' ISKCON leaders have individually published papers against the proxy-initiation philosophy. Jayadvaita Swami (Swami, J., 1996a) conceded that the proxy-initiation people are right on certain non-philosophical points. But the proxy-initiation people are in no way satisfied with such minor concessions. They remain solid in their conviction that the present ISKCON guru system is fundamentally flawed. ...an 87-page position paper entitled The Controversy Surrounding Srila Prabhupada's Final Order on the Future of Initiations Within ISKCON, or The Final Order, prompted the GBC's own response, Disciple of My Disciple (1997), with promises they will fully document the history/ theology of the guru in ISKCON to bring the issue to rest. That, of course, is doubtful, for as long as the gurus of ISKCON fail in the eyes of others to meet the rigorous standards established by Srila Prabhupada, they will have to continue to face their critics.

"At the very heart of this debate lies the succession issue: What is the best way to routinise Prabhupada's charisma? All agree that Prabhupada must remain at the centre of ISKCON, but disagree on how this may best be accomplished. Jayadvaita Swami sympathises with the proxy-initiation proponents' thoughts: 'Srila Prabhupada was staunch, unflinching, always perfect in his discretion and determination. He was undisputedly an exalted and empowered acharya, a pure and intimate personal associate of Krishna. Is it any wonder, then, that some devotees feel that only Srila Prabhupada can give them shelter and that no one else deserves the same surrender and trust?' Yet, surrender and trust are the very currency of the guru-disciple exchange. This is not a relationship of arbitrary acceptance, but a contract in which total submission is offered in return for unalloyed devotion to God. At stake in this debate is whether such a reward is attainable, even generations from now, by establishing an exclusive relationship with Prabhupada, bypassing such a relation with his disciples or heirs. Proxy-initiation theorists insist that Prabhupada made a permanent arrangement on 9 July 1977 when he approved this writer's letter to all the temple presidents which stated, "now that Srila Prabhupada has named these eleven representatives, temple presidents may henceforward send recommendations for first and second initiation to whichever of these eleven representatives are nearest their temple." Making such a statement absolute renders it absurd, as Jayadvaita Swami has vividly demonstrated, and is opposed to Prabhupada's time-bound use of the word 'henceforward' on numerous occasions. Proxy-initiation theory supporters will lose their case if their argument rests on haggling over the details of grammar and punctuation in the appointment transcripts. Their strength is in emphasising the value of directly connecting to Prabhupada's purity. Otherwise, logic, reason, reliable testimony and scripture, when used to interpret the transcripts will rule against them. [Witness Tamal's expert but deceptively faulty argumentation.]

"But even the 'direct connection' argument will not necessarily win the proxy-initiation case. Here is one counter argument: A guru who presents himself as a humble and sincere disciple of Prabhupada (or, in future generations, of any future guru in disciplic line) offers Prabhupada 'directly' through his words and actions. What better way to get Prabhupada's association than by connecting through one who is immersed in Prabhupada's teachings and mission? The advantage of being personally trained under the guidance of such a guru cannot be denied. The process of receiving initiation formalises the student-teacher relationship and offers the promise of God's mercy through the agency of the disciplic succession. As a via media, the present guru magnifies rather than obscures a disciple's vision of the previous gurus, offering them access otherwise denied to those who try for it 'directly.' The counter argument continues: Prabhupada often stated that a guru's success is to create at least one pure disciple. Did Prabhupada fail so miserably that he could not create even one pure devotee qualified to be a guru? Many of Prabhupada's disciples are 'pure' in the sense that they have made his mission their life and soul. Prabhupada's charisma may be that of a maha-bhagavata, a topmost devotee of the Lord. But if his disciples have only been able to individually capture a small fraction of that charisma, it is stated in scripture that even their madhyama-bhagavata (middle devotee) status is sufficient to qualify them for performing initiations. Arguing that all of Prabhupada's offspring are spiritually impotent, incapable of continuing the line of succession, appears more as a condemnation of the founder rather than a glorification of him. And so the arguments run. The debate continues, but the outcome appears already decided. Though it is still not too late to rethink the future course of guru theology, traditional antecedents and the reality of present day ISKCON make such a redefinition highly unlikely. Yet, the proxy-initiation theorists will have left their mark. If nothing more, even their most vigorous critics can thank them for helping to recognise all devotees' right to a real and direct relationship with Prabhupada." (Tamal, Perils of Succession 1997) (END)

COMMENTS: We can see here Tamal's devious intelligence. In disguise as one defending Prabhupada's mission from ritvik heretics, he makes defective arguments to support the concoctions that have come about in ISKCON under his guidance and influence. He twists things to sound good for his own case. Srila Prabhupada never told us we had to accept that at least one of his disciples would be a pure devotee, otherwise we would be deeming him a failure, nor that any pure devotee could initiate without an order from his guru to do so. ISKCON insists their vote approvals of conditioned gurus is proper, half of whom have been degraded publicly by "falldowns." The question is what did Srila Prabhupada arrange for? He certainly did not arrange for the corrupt GBC's concoction of a vote approval of gurus. Tamal first falsely ascribes a position to his opponents, and then faults it. He avoids the Prabhupadanugas' actual position. He, of all persons, with his horrible history and convicted in Ch. 74 as guilty beyond reasonable doubt of poisoning Srila Prabhupada, had the audacity to pontificate that ISKCON and its deviant doctrines should be followed? He was very dangerous and deranged.

ISKCON REPRESSION INCREASES WITH JULY 9th MOVEMENT'S GROWTH

In 1999 an ISKCON guru preaching in India, Navayogendra Swami, advised his disciples to take Srila Prabhupada rather than himself as their diksha guru. ISKCON suspended his guruship and placed severe restrictions on him, excluding him from all facilities. Navayogendra capitulated, made amends with the GBC, and was restored as an ISKCON guru once again after meeting various conditions and probations. Below is the 2002 GBC resolution which describes clearly how he was intimidated and coerced back into ISKCON.

60/2002. Navayogendra Swami: Whereas, NS has acted against the interests of ISKCON and, by GBC resolution 605/1999, has been on probation from initiating disciples and as a member of ISKCON and; Whereas, NS has offered an apology letter to the GBC Body and appealed for reinstatement as an ISKCON member in good standing and; Whereas, the GBC Body has recommended as a course of rectification that he: Publicly renounce all connections with the ritvik movement. Preach according to Srila Prabhupada's books. Turn over all separately held properties to ISKCON or an entity approved by the GBC Executive Committee. Work directly under a GBC member who will be chosen by the Executive Committee. Resolved, That the GBC Body is pleased to restore NS to full good standing provided that: NS signs a letter stating he renounces all connections with the Ritvik Ideology, repudiates the Poison Theory, will preach according to Srila Prabhupada's books, will turn over all separately held properties to ISKCON or an entity, approved by the GBC Executive Committee, and will work directly under a GBC member who will be chosen by the Executive Committee and read it aloud in the presence of the GBC members. He must also publicly announce his repudiation of the Ritvik Ideology and Poison Theory on the Chakra Web site. He must also reconfirm his Oath of Allegiance and Oath of Guru. The transfer of properties shall be done to the satisfaction of the ISKCON India Bureau and the ISKCON Property Office before he is reinstated. Upon compliance with these guidelines he will be reinstated as an ISKCON member in good standing, with the following conditions: He is prohibited from initiating disciples for one year after compliance with this resolution. NS shall not visit ISKCON zones without the approval of the local Zonal Secretary. This stricture will be reviewed at the 2004 Annual General Meeting.

CONCLUSION

One GBC characterized the Prabhupadanugas or those adhering to the "ritvik system" as being the most serious threat to ISKCON out of all the crises and challenges it has yet had to meet. This is correct because the system Srila Prabhupada gave for initiations after his departure does not allow for new initiating gurus, and thus the entire rationale today for ISKCON's operations will be finished, kaput- no more unauthorized gurus. No wonder they have to demonize what Srila Prabhupada left us, lest they be put out of the guru business. See also Parts 18, 19.

CHAPTER 115: PRABHUPADA'S POISONING PROVEN

BRIEF REVIEW OF THE POISONING ISSUE

Srila Prabhupada being poisoned by his own disciples burst into public view in late 1997 after discovery of ominous whispers about poisoning on tapes recorded in Srila Prabhupada's last days. These whispers were certified by multiple audio forensic laboratories to be about poisoning. On previously obscure transcripts of conversations in Nov. 1977, Srila Prabhupada stated several times he thought he had been poisoned, and there were long discussions between Srila Prabhupada and all his caretakers about homicidal poisoning (not about bad medicines), with Tamal asking Srila Prabhupada as to who had poisoned him. The GBC appointed Balavanta to investigate the matter, but did not provide sufficient funding, and his report in 2000 was inconclusive, recommending further investigation. The primary suspects secretly organized their own sham whitewash "investigation" with the book Not That I Am Poisoned which the GBC body endorsed as their final settlement of the issue. Balavanta was dismissed and ISKCON claimed there was NO evidence to support a poisoning. Their cover-up complete, they then banned any further discussion on the matter. However, the matter was not settled. GBC agents had obtained samples in 1999 of Srila Prabhupada's 1977 hair from Hari Sauri das, Srila Prabhupada's personal servant, but, failing to complete tests on them, left them at a lab in Wisconsin. Nityananda das located these samples in 2001 and had them sent to Dr. Morris at MURR, an advanced neutron activation analysis research center in Missouri. Dr. Morris tested Samples A, D, and Q-2 in 2002-05, finding average 15.75 ppm cadmium, about 250 X over the average normal. This forensic evidence did finally settle the issue: Srila Prabhupada was poisoned by lethal amounts of cadmium from at least Feb. 1977 (and as early as mid-1976) until his departure on Nov. 14, 1977.

Thus Srila Prabhupada's poisoning has been scientifically proven and the ISKCON cover-up exposed for the dishonest denial that it was. The cadmium findings remained unpublicized for 15 years until a group of former temple presidents and GBC members called Prabhupada Truth Commission completed a compilation of all the facts, evidence, and logical analysis. In June 2017 this book was released as a free e-book at www.killgurubecomeguru.com, with 828 pages, 108 chapters, and titled: KILL GURU, BECOME GURU: Book One: The Poisoning of Srila Prabhupada's Body.

Also six YouTube videos were released in 2017-18 which were widely seen (as of 2022, ±135,000 total views) and positively received. The first, BREAKTHROUGH IN THE POISONING EVIDENCE, described the history of the private and GBC investigations and how the cadmium was discovered. The second, POISONING OBJECTIONS ANSWERED, addressed the significance of the cadmium levels and answered common objections that Srila Prabhupada was poisoned. IN PURSUIT OF SRILA PRABHUPADA'S POISONERS and CRIME OF THE MILLENIUM further developed the evidence and analysis. A reward of $50,000 was offered for information on the poisoners. Included was discussion of how to take the mission back from those who have sided with the evil of Srila Prabhupada's poisoning. The narrative of this last video is given below. No response from ISKCON or senior leader came for almost 3 years, when Mayeswara das published his book Deception and an hour video. Acting on the GBC's behalf, Deception tried desperately, wildly, and vainly to discredit every piece of evidence with the most weird, kooky, and deceptive arguments. As more devotees in and out of the institution come to understand the evidence and proof that Srila Prabhupada was indeed poisoned homicidally by some of those in ISKCON's leadership, the day will come when ISKCON's misleadership is tossed out. Their days in are numbered. It is up to the warriors of truth to remove the "angels" of falsehood from ISKCON.

With Srila Prabhupada's homicidal poisoning now a historical fact, that the poisoners took over ISKCON and the Hare Krishna Movement becomes an obvious conclusion based on other history. (Part 11, Gurujacking The Movement) The zonal acharya hoax, concocted guru approval methods, and defective doctrines effectively ruined Srila Prabhupada's Mission, creating an urgency for its restoration to Srila Prabhupada's intentions.

CRIME OF THE MILLENIUM: POISONING SRILA PRABHUPADA (video transcript)

(1) Devotees have been misled that there is only some indecipherable whispers and some talk of medicine that was like poison, but this mischaracterization is due to the stone-hearted and treacherous cover-up engineered by ISKCON's top misleaders. They even issued an official statement that there was NO evidence at all to support the idea of Srila Prabhupada being poisoned. Bir Krishna Swami even laughed at the idea in an online video. They have adulterated Srila Prabhupada's society into a corrupted culture of absolute authority over an unthinking membership who is repressed, paid off in position, prestige, and salary, and who never dare to question official institutional doctrines. Many devotees actually believe that their spiritual lives will be ruined if they just look at the truth about Srila Prabhupada's disappearance lila. Outrageous, how their spiritual lives are been so restricted by tyranny. Actually, by bad association with poisoners and their supporters one's spiritual life will be seriously impaired. It is highly advisable to give up the bad association of the poisoners of Srila Prabhupada and their followers. (2) There is so much evidence that Srila Prabhupada was poisoned that when it was all compiled, it came to 828 pages and 108 chapters. Kill Guru, Become Guru: Book One: The Poisoning of Srila Prabhupada's Body is now available online for free download. For example: Srila Prabhupada's medical symptoms. They mostly fit in with Srila Prabhupada's diabetes and kidney disease which up to '77 were not very advanced; his diabetes was non-insulin dependent and his dropsy or swelling of extremities was occasional. But we should know that cadmium poisoning specifically causes and exacerbates diabetes and kidney disease, both of which dramatically worsened during the 1977 poisoning. But, there was a distinct group of symptoms which are not typical to either diabetes or kidney disease, but are unique to cadmium poisoning. These are the "mystery symptoms" described in Ch. 38: Four primary mystery symptoms are: a. extreme photophobia or aversion to light, b. constant and heavy mucus, c. constant heavy cough and hoarse voice, d. constant bronchitis and rhinitis. (3) The cadmium hair tests in 2002 and 2005 with Dr. Morris at the Missouri University Research Reactor have now proven as a scientific fact that Srila Prabhupada was poisoned with cadmium, at about 250 times above average normal levels. Three whispers or low volume speech units have been forensically certified by many audio laboratories to be the caretakers speaking about maliciously poisoning Srila Prabhupada, who also said he thought he was being homicidally poisoned as well. All his '77 caretakers discussed at length about poisoning as murder. There is much more confirming evidence.

(4) Cadmium poisoning is very difficult to detect. About 35 doctors, babas, and kavirajas came and went during Srila Prabhupada's last 8 months, all with different diagnoses of his medical problem. If there had been proper medical tests and qualified doctors employed, the cadmium poisoning might have been discovered in time. That is why Tamal and company constantly rejected one doctor after another. Each treatment program was sabotaged by further poisoning, which was then blamed on the new doctor and his medicines. This is found in Ch. 40: The Rejection of Proper Medical Care. We note that when Tamal had kidney cancer and Jayapataka had a massive stroke, what did they do? Consult back alley kavirajas like they did for Srila Prabhupada and reject qualified doctors, like Doctors Khurana, Ghosh, and Gopal? No, they spent hundreds of thousands on the very best doctors and hospitals, something Srila Prabhupada was denied. And Tamal even rejected one of the better kavirajas over about 20 rupees! (5) There was a urine analysis test done by Bonamali kaviraja in late October '77. He was asked to return to Srila Prabhupada's care, and two ISKCON devotees brought a Dabur honey bottle with Srila Prabhupada's urine to his dispensary in Vrindaban. The son, Braj Dulal Goswami, was 17 at the time and in 2005 he testified on national Indian TV how he witnessed his father three times mixing Ayurvedic powders with the urine, each time separating into layers of various colors. Bonamali declared, "This is poison. The body is rotting and no one can tell. For this there is no cure, so I will not treat him." This is in Ch. 80. Also, Srila Prabhupada's last kaviraja Damodar Shastriji believed that Srila Prabhupada was poisoned. This was confirmed by his son Dr. Rakesh Sharma in Calcutta. That's in Ch. 82.

(6) We previously discussed how the prime suspects, namely Tamal, Bhakticharu, and Jayapataka Swamis, all orchestrated a phony investigation to clear their own names with a book of lies, fraud, and deceitful denials. They thus cleverly sidelined and upstaged their own honest investigator Balavanta das. The treacherous GBC cover-up of the poisoning evidence is unraveled in 10 chapters of our new book. They utilized all the dark arts of mundane politics and even banned any further discussion of the matter, why? Because everything they have is mortally threatened by this truth. Their criminal cover-up itself amounts to another piece of evidence that Srila Prabhupada was poisoned as they have chosen the dark side by denying truth and protecting the poisoners amongst them. They say what difference does it make, don't disturb us, it was so long ago, and Prabhupada should not be taken seriously, etc. Thus the GBC has taken the side of evil, the side of Srila Prabhupada's poisoners. (7) How do we know some of Srila Prabhupada's senior disciples poisoned him with heavy metals? Because there is so much evidence to this effect - the new book has 25 chapters on the suspects, which reveal a very different picture than that all of them were always loving disciples. Tamal is thoroughly documented as the most materially ambitious of all, very intent on becoming the next sole Acharya and leader of ISKCON, responsible for hundreds of missing tapes, and concealing from us many letters and instructions from Srila Prabhupada. We put Tamal on trial with the evidence and found him guilty beyond a reasonable doubt as any jury would. He recorded an interview days after Srila Prabhupada's departure claiming that he was asked repeatedly by Srila Prabhupada for medicine (or was it poison?) to die "now." How preposterous as an excuse for the poisoning! (8) Tamal has departed, but the other poisoners remain. Several persons were whispering about the poisoning. About giving medicine for Srila Prabhupada to die, Tamal said "We could have done that, but we... etc" He was not alone. With diplomacy and politics Tamal made many allies. Three of them, Bhakticharu, Jayapataka, and Tamal organized their whitewash cover-up of the poison evidence in 2000, and Tamal was very close to Bhakticharu and Bhavananda. Poisoners had the motive, means and opportunity, and they gained enormously from Srila Prabhupada's early departure.

Tamal and Bhakticharu handled all the food and medicines. Bhakticharu emphatically defended that if there was a poisoning, it must have been him, and now we do know there was a poisoning. Tamal was not alone in poisoning Srila Prabhupada. A group of poisoners conspired and hijacked the leadership of ISKCON and they are still there today 40 years later. (9) In the months since we have announced the findings of catastrophic, massive cadmium poisoning by Prabhupada Truth Commission's private investigation, ISKCON and its leaders have not responded at all. Nothing. But what can they say anyway? Their bucket of denials is now empty. How does one refute solid scientific proof? Many ISKCON leaders either know about or accept the fact of Srila Prabhupada's poisoning. But they have all sold their soul to the poisoners in exchange for their positions and benefits. Such weakness! This is similar to Bhisma and Drona's silence when Draupadi was disrobed. Aiders and abettors, deniers of the truth, complicit after the fact, in the crime of the millennium.

(10) Dear GBC and all those in ISKCON: What is the use of your oaths, your positions, your tilak, dhotis, and saris, or your very life, if you are in bed with those who poisoned Srila Prabhupada? All for some pieces of broken glass? or the illusion of spiritual leadership? Break loose of your complicity and be loyal to Srila Prabhupada: find out the poisoners and remove them. We challenge the entire ISKCON leadership to publicly acknowledge that Srila Prabhupada was poisoned, then to deeply repent your cover-up of this truth, and to admit you are disqualified to lead Srila Prabhupada's institution. Then resign honorably, the sooner the better. (11) ISKCON has been controlled for 40 years by those who poisoned Srila Prabhupada. And that was not the end of their mischief. They and their successors then destroyed what Srila Prabhupada struggled to create. They have poisoned Srila Prabhupada's sacred books with endless, unnecessary, and unauthorized changes to spoil these transcendental literatures so they no longer even sound like Srila Prabhupada at all, what to speak of the changed meanings and purports. They allowed and even were part of a culture of child and sex abuse that still has not been cleaned up. They changed the deity worship, they introduced something called re-initiation, they posed as diksha gurus while behaving like perverts and false prophets, trying to be great religious innovators. They endorse mission drift and financial unaccountability- where does the money go?- and their trail of lies, deviations, corruption, and disobedience to Srila Prabhupada's clear instructions would fill an encyclopedia. They tried to fool us with a shift from Absolute zonal acharyas to an Absolute elite and unelected GBC which is totally politically corrupt. Kali-chelas control ISKCON- they have poisoned Srila Prabhupada's mission in so many ways that even 50 chapters in Book Two, The Poisoning of Srila Prabhupada's Mission is not enough to cover them all. Srila Prabhupada's poisoners still plunder ISKCON and continue to further corrupt the Hare Krishna movement with each passing day. While we have stood by and watched.

(12) Now that Srila Prabhupada's poisoning has been proven, how can honest and faithful followers of Srila Prabhupada leave his hijacked mission in the hands of his poisoners? The logical conclusion is that everything that has transpired since Srila Prabhupada's departure was done by the poisoners and is thus null and void, illegitimate and corrupt, and it must all be rolled back to square one so we can properly start over without these poisoners and their poisons. Their tyranny must end and that can only happen if those who care for Srila Prabhupada and want his mission to be restored, they must end their silence or complicity and take their stand against the evil that has invaded the Hare Krishna movement. Poisoning Srila Prabhupada is evil. The poisoners took over ISKCON. The poisoning is now exposed as the truth. So, faithful disciples of Srila Prabhupada must now rescue his divine mission. Sita is being held captive by Ravana. Each of us must consider what we should now do to rescue Prabhupada's mission from the Ravanas who poisoned Srila Prabhupada. If this does not motivate us, then we must be all dead stones. (13) But we won't hold our breath waiting for any sanity to manifest in the corrupted institution- we call instead upon the devotees everywhere to remove the ISKCON leadership and start over as though it were the day after Srila Prabhupada's departure. No more tyranny, ambitious hijackers, endless deviations, unaccountability, money siphoned off into private accounts, and aspiring gurus campaigning and colluding for vote approvals. Time to clean house. Time for civil disobedience with open isthagostees- no repression- meet and discuss- elect new leaders who have the backbone to confront the full ramifications and truth of Srila Prabhupada's being poisoned by a group of senior men. Find out these poisoners and their colluders, expel them forever, sent either to jail or exile in the Sahara Desert. Their offenses are unforgivable. (14) We reject the Ravana poisoners' lies, all their concocted policies and defective doctrines, which enabled their poisoning, takeover, and rape of Prabhupada's devotees. You, the general devotees, have the real power to end this. It is time to awaken, stand up against the poisoners and their corruption, stand up for Srila Prabhupada, and to restore his divine mission to deliver the fallen souls. Do not be afraid of them, put your name on the list and out in the open as those who want a new start. Do not allow their imposition of material considerations upon us to silence us any longer. Make your commitment to Srila Prabhupada by discarding apathy, silence, and all cooperation with Srila Prabhupada's poisoners. It's back to square one. Start over with only Srila Prabhupada.

(15) The Hare Krishna movement needs a total reset. The present GBC's authority is hereby revoked due to their corruption and failures, not least of which is their harboring of Srila Prabhupada's poisoners in their own ranks to this very day. Things are way off track and must be put right again. This begins at the local level, wherever there are those with gratitude to Srila Prabhupada, come together to discuss and study the facts, the issues, and the truth. Decide your own future with your own intelligence according to Srila Prabhupada's teachings. (16) One thing is sure- Srila Prabhupada did not want a tyrannical gurocracy or an ISKCON like it has evolved today. The era of the poisoners must come to an end, and in this there can be no compromise. Those who, after everything, still insist on following the poisoners and their poisonous doctrines, may do so, but separately, not in Srila Prabhupada's institution. ISKCON must be restored true to Srila Prabhupada, to his standards, instructions, and unchanged books. We have to determine by study, open discussion and debate, what it is that Srila Prabhupada wanted us to do after his departure. We reject what we've been told by the poisoners. Srila Prabhupada is calling out for your help in rescuing his mission from the Ravana poisoners. Those who can hear him, the time for a spiritual revolution has arrived.

CHAPTER 116: INTERNAL DISARRAY

Contrary to popular ideas that ISKCON survived some disastrous historical episodes but has corrected itself to be once again realigned with Srila Prabhupada's instructions, fundamental basis, and framework, the actual truth is that ISKCON's internal confusion and disarray has been simply pushed deeper into the institutional fabric with no alleviation of the deviation and disobedience to the Founder-Acharya. This was accomplished with cover-ups of the truth in the gurukuli physical and sexual abuse, Srila Prabhupada's homicidal poisoning, and the systemic corruption on all levels. Here are a few insider warnings about problems, anomalies, contradictions, and the general rot that continues unabated in ISKCON:

(1) "...It's obvious that we are going in the wrong direction... So for the time being, let's stop giving initiation." (Bhakticharu Swami, GBC/guru, July 20, 2003) (2) "If current trends within ISKCON are not addressed, we are already on our way down the path to a slow death of assimilation and irrelevance." (Badrinarayana Swami, GBC, A Fight For the Soul of ISKCON) (3) "However, the facts of the matter are that repeatedly, and with disastrous consequences, the combination of the spiritual role of guru in the context of a temporally powerful organization is proving to be incompatible." (Kripamoya das. guru, Sept. 21, 2007) (4) "The only recourse for responsible members of ISKCON is to take the matter to gutter level, i.e. the internet... it might at least create an awareness of deviations and warn devotees not to get sidelined into weird cults going on in the name of ISKCON." (Bhakti Vikas Swami, guru, 2003) (5) "The body of the society is unwell. The ills many, the symptoms complex, diagnosis difficult, and proper prognosis evades even the most experienced devotees... while others lunatically insist there's no problem. How I long for the Vaikuntha atmosphere you so wonderfully created by your mere presence... I, and a legion of others, disenfranchised, marginalized members of your movement, look skeptically at the present-day reality ...how I wish things were different." (Ananda Svarupa Swami, Vyasa Puja, 1991) (6) "Our first and foremost mission is to restore Prabhupada as the Guru of the institution and restore his teachings as he had preached and practised. There are a lot of little civil wars going on. Naturally, by restoring the Founder of the institution back to his movement, it is actually disenfranchising the other 90 'gurus' who are enjoying the assets and enjoying the disciples which are actually meant to be offered to the Founder." (Adridharan, Calcutta Temple president)

(7) Subject: Nomination of Janananda Prabhu as Diksha Guru: "Now the GBC has become very, very weak. The principal reason for this has been the fall-down of spiritual masters and the decay of spiritual authority in general. This applies to sannyasis, gurus and the GBC. There has been a big overlap of these three categories, and they are all in disrepute. The renounced order of life has come to be called the denounced order of life—we hear that all the time. People are very dubious about gurus—everyone is wondering when the next one is going to fall. And the GBC seems to be floundering and cannot do anything about it. There is a feeling that we do not know where our vision is going to come from." (Ravindra Svarupa das, Jan. 2000) (8) "I am abstaining as usual, until we have some good support and monitoring systems in place for our gurus. Having gurus crash and burn every few years is the main cause of ISKCON's diminished reputation and strength and I don't see what we have put in place to break this pattern." (Badrinarayana Prabhu to GBC EC Sec'y Feb. 2, 2004) (9) "The situation is, that ISKCON is facing a grave historical crisis, in terms of its survival as a relevant movement in the Western world. And, the GBC clearly is unable to even address the problem, much less solve it. They are just incapable of doing it. In fact they have become an obstacle to saving ISKCON." (Hridayananda, Nov. 2015) (10) "I don't hesitate to say that things are a mess in our society." (Bhakti Charu Swami Oct. 5, 2000) (11) "Thus ISKCON, which is meant to kick out cheating religion from the world, itself degrades into a cheap cult, an apasampradaya, a laughing stock, and a disgrace to Srila Prabhupada and the parampara." (Bhakti Vikasa Swami Aug. 23, 2003) (12) "In most temples the leadership seems to have given up on making and keeping full-time devotees, especially brahmacaris. The emphasis in our temples has transferred to developing the congregation, especially in maintaining the Indian communities who provide most of our financial support. It appears to me that we have lost our way from Srila Prabhupada's mood, mission, and methods for how to progress and how to attract the conditioned souls." (Kesava Bharati das Goswami, Sannyasa Reports, 2014) (13) "I see ISKCON as being increasingly off course." (Bhakti Vikasa Swami, 2014) (14, 15) "ISKCON Mayapur is run by a mafia [...] I am fairly sure that there is a lot of corruption going on in ISKCON India also [...] our movement's basically off the track and not properly following Srila Prabhupada. I know this is very discouraging [...] things are not philosophically in order in our movement [...] ISKCON has changed, and my contention is that it's become more mundane, and it's getting worse [...] It's too far gone. [...] So I don't think anything at this point is going to change [...] So then I thought, well that's, you know, that just shows our movement's a sahajiya movement [...] But it is difficult to train people within the present ISKCON Society when there are all these mayavada and sahajiya influences. ...there's thousands of things we could say. [...] So the standards have in many cases very much diminished. So that's a serious problem. [...] a whole book written about it called Hare Krishna Transformed, by E. Burke Rochford, Jr. about how the movement has deliberately changed from what Prabhupada instituted. [...] I feel uncomfortable representing a movement [...] which I feel we've deviated from Prabhupada." (Bhakti Vikasa Swami Aug. 24 & Oct. 10, 2011) (16) "Although the house you have created for us is still there, we lost the opulence and grandeur that we inherited from you. We have become like those old aristocrats, who are proud of their exalted lineage but became paupers. Srila Prabhupada, please bless me that I can do something to bring back our lost glory, unify our family and reinstate the spirit that you so effectively installed to ward off the evil influence of Kali and establish Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu's Sankirtan movement." (Bhakti Charu Swami, "Offering to Srila Prabhupada" 2008)

ISKCON LEADERS CONTRADICT SRILA PRABHUPADA

IN LATE 1977, THESE WERE THE ACTUAL STATEMENTS: (1) SP: Someone says that I have been poisoned. It's possible. (2) SP: Someone says that, somebody has given me poison. (3) PRABHUPADA: That same thing- that someone has poisoned me. (4) TAMAL: Prabhupada was thinking that someone had poisoned him? (5) BHAKTIC HARU: Someone gave him poison here! (6) TAMAL: Srila Prabhupada...[...] So who is it that has poisoned? /THEN DECADES LATER, THE STORY CHANGED: (1) BHAVANANDA: The entire poison issue is ludicrous and beyond absurd. (2) BHAKTI TIRTHA SWAMI: ...the major agents who are pushing this issue have been highly influenced by Kali. (3) TAMAL: Nobody poisoned Prabhupada. (4) DEVAMRITA SWAMI: ...a home-published book has spread this fetid brew around the ISKCON world. (5) JAYADVAITA SWAMI: ...As much as I dislike feeling obliged to respond to garbage... (6) ISKCON GBC: There is no evidence to support that Srila Prabhupada was poisoned.

BLATANT DENIALS OF FACTUAL EVIDENCE

In the face of undeniable evidence of Srila Prabhupada's chronic cadmium poisoning at very high levels of lethality and morbidity (see Book One) we contrast the statements of various ISKCON leaders who will now need to "eat their words." Maybe they could also eat cadmium until they have an average of 15.75 ppm in their hair too, just as Srila Prabhupada had in his hair, since, as they claim, the idea that Srila Prabhupada was poisoned is so absurd, ludicrous, etc. (1) "But nothing is too sacred for Kali's fiendish schemes. Into this cherished sanctum of Prabhupada's pastimes, the bold darkness of Kali seeks access. [...] The poison people think they can destroy this legacy of divine love. True, some poison adherents are just misguided and befuddled- temporarily overcome by the toxic fumes of propaganda so thick in the air these days. Others, however, suffer much more sinister afflictions. Their devilish tactics have made countering the absurd charges a trip into the heart of darkness. [...] What's worse, though, is the utter ridiculousness of the entire arsenic ploy." (Devamrita Swami, NTIAP, p. 7-20) (2) "What about those startling tapes said to contain whispers of the word 'poison' in the background? Relax. They are from the very same day that the bad medicine was publicly discussed by Prabhupada and the devotees." (Devamrita Swami) [NOTE: It was not the same day... it was two weeks later!] (3) "How could someone concoct this poison madness! How many of our dear fellow devotees temporarily fell victim to this smut campaign? And why so much time and energy wasted, out of necessity, debating this crazy idea? [...] The farce, 'the poisoning of Prabhupada,' has dramatized the effects of rampant Vaishnava aparadha that periodically plagues our society." (Devamrita Swami) (4) "When I first heard about this allegation I considered it to be so absurd that I did not think it deserved any response. I could not even imagine that anyone with a rational mind would give any credence to such an allegation." (Bhakticharu, NTIAP, p. 121) [NOTE: Yet, on Nov. 11, 1977, Bhakticharu tells Tamal, "Someone gave him poison here!" who then asked, "Prabhupada was thinking that someone had poisoned him?" -to which Bhakticharu answers, "Yes." The poisoning revelation was fully acknowledged when Srila Prabhupada brought it up, and decades later it became absurd?] (5) "So it really shows to the degree that Kali has entered our society, that the greatest attack- it's like in warfare it's not the enemy which is so obviously antagonistic, keeps their distance, but the greatest enemies in warfare are those who do espionage. [...] So beyond a doubt some of the major agents who are pushing this issue have been highly influenced by Kali." (Bhaktitirtha Swami, NTIAP p. 129)

(6) "Absolutely none of my Godbrothers poisoned Srila Prabhupada. The entire poison issue is ludicrous and beyond absurd. [...] Let us all at least put this particular lunacy to rest to allow us to get on with the serious work at hand." (Bhavananda das, NTIAP p. 135) (7) "...my initial reaction was to consider accusations of poisoning Srila Prabhupada too outlandish to bother with..." (Drutakarma das, NTIAP p.137) (8) "Surely Srila Prabhupada wasn't going to leave Lord Chaitanya's sankirtana movement in the hands of a poison giver. If he suspected anyone, he would have surely told us." (Jashomatinandana das, NTIAP p. 139) [NOTE: Jesus Christ was crucified and his teachings left with his faithful disciples, just as Srila Prabhupada was poisoned by cadmium, and his mission left to his faithful disciples.] (9) “I think that I too ought to comment on the scuttlebutt that Srila Prabhupada, by a conspiracy of disciples, was poisoned. [...] It pains me, therefore, when I hear those deep, multi-faceted, and precious times reduced to the level of tabloid journalism and pulp fiction... are made out to be devious killers... Maya has us gnawing instead on the poison theories about poison.” (Jayadvaita Swami, NTIAP p. 144) (10) “I did not poison Prabhupada. In fact, nobody poisoned Prabhupada.” (Tamal, NTIAP p. 145) (11) “...I, like Bhakticharu M., have not thought it necessary to involve myself in defending against this absurd allegation.” (Trivikrama Swami, NTIAP p. 149) (12) “Srila Prabhupada was surely not poisoned by any disciples. The poison theory is hatimata... Mad Elephant Vaishnava Aparadha at its heaviest. By drinking this deadly brew, bubbling with blasphemy of Vaishnavas, naïve devotees are ruining their spiritual lives. Please avoid listening to the poison theory.” (Danavir Goswami, NTIAP p. 151) [NOTE: We see many ISKCON leaders, including Danavir G, do not directly deny that Srila Prabhupada might have been poisoned, but they become fiery at the secondary issue that disciples could have possibly committed such an act. First, never mind by whom, was there a poisoning? Poisoning is now a proven fact by scientific evidence.

(13) “There is an idea, [...] that Srila Prabhupada was killed by some of his close disciples [...] this is nonsense; extremely offensive to both Srila Prabhupada and his close disciples. And, furthermore, what difference does it make to you? You have to chant Hare Krishna and go to Krishna. [...] There are all sorts of weird things out there.” (Bhakti Vikas Swami, lecture) (14) “...and we did a thorough investigation, we did a hair analysis... so the hair analysis did not show any poison, interestingly enough, and therefore we can conclude that Prabhupada was not poisoned, simply on that basis... also we did an analysis of all the recordings, and everything else... there was a book that was put out, by a devotee in Australia, called “Not That I am Poisoned”... so, Prabhupada said “Not that I am poisoned...” So, it was very clear... There’s actually no evidence [...] that Prabhupada was poisoned. The only thing they came out with was playing Prabhupada’s recordings backwards, and it maybe sounded like something... it’s just like one of these Beatles songs, Lucy in the Sky With Diamonds, and you play it backwards, and it means something... and that was the only evidence. There’s no evidence that Prabhupada was poisoned... Why do people say that- because, basically, they’re upset that they didn’t get any position in the Krishna consciousness movement, or they have some personal animosity, or problem with people who have some position in the Krishna consciousness movement. It’s all based on an emotional thing.” (Bir Krishna Maharaja, 2014) Ch. 141.

By comparing what Srila Prabhupada said and other poisoning evidence to the ISKCON misleaders’ denials and coverups, they are extremely dishonest and deceitful. They cannot be trusted.

EXAMINING THE INSTITUTIONAL CORRUPTION

An ISKCON initiating guru wrote (2017) in a discussion with senior ISKCON leaders: “If he thinks he has a real case then bring it to the police. Criminal cases have higher standards of evidence than just swaying public opinion. If the police think it is credible they will take him up, if not they will let him know why his case falls apart. If he really had a case, he could just go to the relevant police authorities and they would jail the culprits if they were found guilty. Instead he is just blowing hot air. He has no case; that is why he doesn’t bring it to the police. He doesn’t need GBC permission for that. What he does need is a solid case that is up to standards of evidence in criminal law. If his evidence is not good enough for a police investigation then I have no interest in hearing his nonsense anymore. He is not interested in bringing wrong doers to justice but only in attacking his enemies. If he is serious about justice, bring it to the law; until then he is just another liar with an agenda.” These are the kind of cheating misleaders in the ISKCON institution. We note that poisoning is often proven but the poisoners are not found. Stalin, Arafat, Anwar Ibrahim, and many others were poisoned by unknown persons, as seen in Ch. 58. Many proven crimes are perpetrated by unknown persons, although there may be suspects. Poisoning is proveable scientifically, as has been done with Srila Prabhupada, even when no one is sent to jail. The two parts of the poison issue are: (1) Was Srila Prabhupada poisoned? (2) Then, who did it? That Srila Prabhupada was homicidally poisoned is now proven by the evidence, which does not become worthless simply because the poisoners have not been convicted yet. Their deceitful denials where they first want a mundane court verdict is a diversion to avoid their responsibility to honestly investigate the matter.

It is ironic that in 1997 the GBC felt compelled to organize an investigation into this matter, phony as it was, and that they always required "family matters" to be resolved internally. Now their new attitude is: "Take it to the police, otherwise it is a personal agenda." This is also what the GBC told the abused children. They could care less if Srila Prabhupada was poisoned. They are corrupt hypocrites. It is their responsibility to properly deal with internal issues of this magnitude, not to cover them up. They are avoiding the truth in this issue because, if Srila Prabhupada was poisoned, based on the conclusive evidence, then they are forced to look in their own ranks as to who did it, who supported those doing it, who benefited from it, and what did the poisoners do to ISKCON after their gurujacking? See Part 11. And this they cannot do because the poisoners, and those beholden and indebted to them over the last 40 years, are in control of the institution and no one has the courage or character to stand up to the corruption. As party to this poisonous corruption, one goes along to get along, placing a higher value on the "benefits" one is receiving as part of the corrupted regime than on TRUTH. In ISKCON, a formerly spiritual institution that is now totally corrupt, it is not truth that matters, it is being politically correct and maintaining one's perks, income, prestige, position. Sick...

The institution and its leaders have no effective conscience or sincerity- it's all about letting the vultures and hyenas continue to feast on the Founder-Acharya's assets while the complicit participants collude, make no protest, and are spineless, apathetic, unable to stand up for the truth and Srila Prabhupada. And they boast about serving Srila Prabhupada! As another example, there is zero financial accountability for the 100+ ISKCON gurus, with recurrent rumors of missing or private millions, such as in Mayapur, Australia, Harikesh's former zone, Tamal's estate, Bhakticharu's business operations, and the secret assets of the major ISKCON gurus. ISKCON is run by very polished and sophisticated criminals and poisoners of the pure devotee of the Lord. ISKCON is controlled by dangerous and desperate men who will do anything to further their personal ambitions. Everything they have is mortally threatened by the truth about Srila Prabhupada's poisoning. Why else are they in such frenetic denial, unreasonably so, deliberately sabotaging and undermining all attempts to honestly investigate the crime of the millennium, Srila Prabhupada's heavy metal poisoning? They have so far bewildered their membership into believing they represent Srila Prabhupada and that the thought of Srila Prabhupada's poisoning is blasphemy and spiritually fatal. But, as long as one does not look at the actual facts and evidence, he will not be able to appreciate the reality. This set of two books is an eye-opener with the "forbidden" knowledge of facts and history. Prabhupada Truth Committee's private investigation found the proof of cadmium poisoning, and it is just a matter of time before this truth dissipates the fog of institutional corruption like the morning sun burning away the dawn's mist. They cannot see it coming. ISKCON misleaders do not want to face the music of the truth because it jeopardizes their status quo... selfish cowards and hypocrites, what kind of leaders are they? No honesty, totally corrupt, as everyone, including themselves, knows very well. What kind of leadership for 25 years deliberately hides from ISKCON members and Prabhavishnu's disciples that he regularly visited Bangkok for "rest and recuperation" a/k/a prostitutes? It was common knowledge to the entire GBC, just as they hide many of their comrade's nonsense. There are many reports of sexual shenanigans by three top ISKCON gurus, but to look into this would be bad for ISKCON, wouldn't it? Similarly ISKCON avoids looking into the facts about Srila Prabhupada's poisoning. This is institutional obstruction of truth. No evidence has been made up, exaggerated, tweaked, or finessed.

How is "take it to the police" an appropriate response to the overwhelming evidence in Srila Prabhupada's being homicidally poisoned, almost certainly by insiders? Does the GBC really want the mundane law authorities to meddle in ISKCON's business? When Kirtanananda dared them, the law put him in jail and almost closed down New Vrindaban. ISKCON misleaders are bluffing like this because they know that they have a problem, hoping that a poisoning 45 years ago will fade away. But it will be prosecuted in three courts: the secular courts, the court of public opinion, and the court of Yamaraja. It is a horrible and shocking thing to even have to imagine, that some of Srila Prabhupada's own men would poison him. About giving Srila Prabhupada "medicine (or poison) to die now," Tamal said "we could have done that..." Truth has a way of being seen by honest persons, and many are appreciating the truth of this matter, and the ISKCON misleadership's credibility and support continues to weaken, until one day there will be a revolution, like a rock breaking a window. Their support base is evaporating. Prabhupada Truth Commission has no agenda except bringing the unvarnished facts and evidence out of the darkness imposed by ISKCON into the light of day. We want only the truth. The ISKCON misleadership is totally corrupt, unaccountable, unanswerable, defunct, and detrimental to one's spiritual life. It is running only on some residual fumes of sentimentality in a cheated membership who will soon snap out of the spell that enslaves them to the poisoners of the pure devotee. As long as the institution functions to facilitate the personal ambitions of its elite, this self-consuming cancer will grow to its final end, just as a parasite ultimately kills its host and itself too.

The main reason people have a hard time believing that Srila Prabhupada was actually poisoned is because they do not know the facts, evidence, and the actual ISKCON history. Parts 11 and 13 chronicle this post-1977 history, and it becomes painfully clear why Srila Prabhupada was poisoned. It was a coup, a hijacking, a take-over by ambitious men, nothing more, nothing less. Until we look carefully at the evidence, the 1977 conversations, listen to the late 1977 tapes, read the books on the subject, we cannot understand how a poisoning is not only possible, but now scientifically a proven fact. Prabhupada Truth Commission consists of former GBC members, temple presidents, hard-working devotees, many in ISKCON for decades. They follow the principles, chant their rounds, and want Srila Prabhupada's mission to be restored. The institutional leadership fears them because they speak the truth and are a threat to their corrupt regime.

ISKCON has covered-up and lied about so much since Srila Prabhupada's departure. (1) The guru appointment hoax, (2) the child abuse, (3) suppressing critical documents and instructions, (4) hiding and changing Srila Prabhupada's request for all his disciples to come see him in his last days, (5) hiding Srila Prabhupada's revelations of being poisoned and then denying it, (6) that we could consult with the Gaudiya Math and then saying we cannot, (7) hiding the May 28 talks and July 9 Order, (8) allowing the primary poison suspects to do a sham investigation into Srila Prabhupada's poisoning and then unanimously endorsing it without any questions, (9) concocting unprecedented methods of vote approving initiating gurus while claiming "posthumous proxy" initiations are unprecedented (they are not), and the list goes on ad nauseum. It is utterly impossible to get any measure of truth from ISKCON's GBC/guru club on any issue, as their network of lies, denials, falsehoods, deceit, and corruption has trapped its members and congregations in a spiderweb of defective doctrines and lies. ISKCON is now an all-encompassing stronghold of deception that programs devotees like robots without the ability to think for themselves or do genuine research, and they literally think only what they have been told. Critical thinking is labeled 'dangerous' and every unorthodox discussion or investigation that tries to maintain an independent position is labeled 'a conspiracy theory.' "Think what WE tell you, or else we will shame, blame and censor you." The GBC uses deceit to convince us they are the ultimate authority of ISKCON, regardless of what previous acharyas such as Srila Prabhupada established in the past. The GBC simply pushes their institutional narrative of self-interests while hiding the true facts at all costs.

The GBC-GURU business has one goal: to maintain their exploitative regime of diverting Srila Prabhupada's assets of temples, wealth, and worship to themselves as long as they can, using defective doctrines and oppressive tyranny to prevent free thought and blanket our natural love of the pure devotee. In doing so, their regime blocks the flow of Srila Prabhupada's and Lord Chaitanya's causeless mercy, intimidating spiritually hungry and sincere seekers to surrender to conditioned souls who are pretenders and imposters. This same ISKCON sannyasi guru wrote further: "This is such a heavy accusation that all the purported evidence needs to be assessed by neutral parties before coming to such a damning conclusion. There are all kinds of possible variables, plus the consideration that the proffered evidence is presented by persons who believed or strongly suspected that Srila Prabhupada had been poisoned. You are so confident of the guilty verdict that you widely publicize it. Yet you will not submit to a court of law, where truly such matters belong. There is no statute of limitations on murder; the state is required to take up such cases. Murder is not the same as child abuse. It can be forensically tested by getting a tissue sample from the body - a small side tunnel can be dug under the samadhi and a tiny tissue sample can be taken to decide once and for all."

Just for the record... Prabhupada Truth Commission does not favor an exhumation. Only the Indian government could do this, and if it happens, the ISKCON misleaders' obstruction and failure to honestly investigate the matter will be to blame. Their "take it to the police" may well result in this. But this is yet another way the GBC and ISKCON elite, hope to scare us into letting the issue go back to deep sleep. We have yet to hear of any "plausible variables or alternative explanations" to the evidence. Where are they? That it was talk of bad medicine? See Ch. 37. That Srila Prabhupada reversed his statement that "Someone has poisoned me" with a denial of being poisoned? See Ch. 7. Where is the explanation for Tamal saying Srila Prabhupada wanted medicine to die now? See Ch. 60. Srila Prabhupada's poisoning has been uncovered and there will be no more burying it again with institutional obstruction. No one enjoys suffering the burden of being the messenger, but the facts, evidence, and truth must be known. Yes, it is very shocking how the evidence points to the suspects and how it proves that Srila Prabhupada was indeed maliciously poisoned. But anyone who honestly studies the total evidence will have to admit the truth of it, acknowledge it, and live with it, and then do as their own conscience dictates. We should go back to 1977 and start over.

The blind dishonest denials of the evidence is regrettable. This truth has major, earthshaking ramifications for the movement. The ISKCON leaders can sense that it does, and they react by denial, but that will not work for much longer because thousands of devotees who are looking at the evidence with an open mind are becoming convinced. When a certain threshold of convinced devotees is reached, the existing regime will collapse from having no authority or support. The evidence is extremely compelling, and thus their desperate denials. They are like rabbits closing their eyes when in danger, or like deer frozen in their tracks by the blinding light of the truth... We've answered all the doubts the institution has offered (Ch. 103)- it was bad medicine (Ch. 37), we can't take what Srila Prabhupada said seriously (Ch. 62), such a thing is impossible, there were only loving disciples, Krishna would have not allowed a poisoning (Ch. 102), Srila Prabhupada would have stopped the poisoning, all these and other false theories and defective objections have been answered in Book One. See <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=gOLeHjRhZMc> re: these invalid objections.

TAMAL WAS ISKCON'S DURYODHANA: A CHRONIC DISEASE MEANT FOR DESTRUCTION

From KRISHNA Book, Ch. 73: "...there was only one person who was not happy. He was Duryodhana. Duryodhana by nature was very envious because of his sinful life, and he appeared in the dynasty of the Kurus as a chronic disease personified in order to destroy the whole family." Although Tamal was not engaged in sinful activities like Duryodhana, he certainly had great ambitions for personal power and prestige, and these desires led him to disobey Srila Prabhupada repeatedly, and almost certainly poison him, creating one major disturbance after another in the Hare Krishna movement. Duryodhana himself could not have been more damaging. This is laid out in Part 9 in 17 chapters (covering only some of Tamal's history)- it is shockingly clear how negative Tamal's actions were for the Hare Krishna movement and Srila Prabhupada's mission.

Tamal is virtually certain to have poisoned Srila Prabhupada, as determined by the considerable evidence laid out in Part 9. He masterminded the criminal takeover of ISKCON and engineered the zonal acharya hoax with compatriots such as Kirtanananda and Satsvarupa, as laid out in Part 11. He and Kirtanananda exemplified the ambition to be the sole acharya after Srila Prabhupada, and many others followed their lead. He was the king-pin of ISKCON's living guru philosophy and diksha guru vote-approval process after the zonal acharyas were deposed in 1987. By his example he encouraged the departure of perhaps half of ISKCON to a sahajiya, Gaudiya Math renegade who taught rasika bhakti “practice,” something Srila Prabhupada warned against. With his personally motivated schemes, Tamal singlehandedly did more harm to Srila Prabhupada’s mission and ISKCON, many times over than anyone else. Who knows who Tamal really was? Based on his history and the effects of his life and activities, we can confidently say that he was ISKCON’s Duryodhana, meant to destroy Srila Prabhupada’s hard work and accomplishments. He was a chronic disease that impeded and reversed Srila Prabhupada’s plans, work, and achievements. Of course, this is all part of Lord Chaitanya’s plan somehow. We study Tamal’s life to understand what NOT to do...

ZONAL ACHARYA SYSTEM LINGERS ON... AND ON...

The zonal acharya system started in 1978 lingers on into 2022. Due to a GBC resolution requiring all new initiates to complete ISKCON’s “Disciple’s Course,” the practice of initiating locals at very low standards appears to be finally challenged. Bir Krishna Swami’s request that his disciples in Fiji try to do at least a five minute morning program, his regional secretary’s insistence on having Tamal’s photo on everyone’s altar (even non-Tamal disciples), and lax standards might be history soon. Gargamuni das, a central European sannyas candidate, toured Fiji, giving the Disciple’s Course to bring everyone “up to standard.” Thus the zonal acharya era remnants are being replaced with a menu of ISKCON indoctrinations on concocted guru tattva, such as when to and when not to chant your guru pranam mantra. Under the guise of increasing spiritual standards, outposts in ISKCON are being consolidated and absorbed into the elite GBC/guru’s control with formalization of the living guru philosophy and “training” that Srila Prabhupada must be respected only as a previous guru.

In Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, as of 2020, if one goes to the Jayapataka Swami ISKCON centers and fails to refer to Jayapataka as “Acharyapada,” he risks a severe chastisement or even physical beating, according to sources in Singapore. Most devotees are readily equipped to recognize evil when they directly see it. But what they are not usually equipped for is to recognize evil when it is disguised as spirituality. The worst of ISKCON’s history past and present is too often portrayed as something necessary for the “higher good.” When evil (the poison of deviations) becomes organized, it can only be countered by organized spiritual loyalists. Unfortunately, thus far, the ISKCON misleaders are much better organized than the ISKCON reformers.

THE FUTURE OF THE MOVEMENT

Generally, ISKCON is no longer preaching and recruiting new full-time devotees anywhere near like it was done when Srila Prabhupada was physically present. Now the primary concern is to entertain and satisfy the Hindu congregations and collect enough funds to cover management salaries and temple overhead. There is little chanting in the streets, book distribution, or recruitment other than wealthy Hindus in large cities. An article by Chaitanya das, Mar. 20, 2017 on the Sampradaya Sun included: “One leading member of the U.K. yatra was recently heard and published his concern that who will succeed us (us, being such important important managers of ISKCON). Never mind that he and other leading managers have engineered things in such a way that devotee making in the ashram is past history. Always bringing in new blood makes a society thrive and prolongs its influence and makes for exciting times. ...and although our leading managers are fond of following the corporate model, they leave out this all important feature and place too much emphasis on just congregational, mostly Hindu preaching... no doubt that in the future the Manor temple president will be a patron member, who with all due respect to their service and commitment, may not have been trained for widespread preaching, but has been only trained to preach to their own community...”

ISKCON appears to be doing well in a few locations, like India, Ukraine, Russia, etc, whereas in the rest of the world it is in stagnation, regression, even oblivion. Many former temples are closed or empty. This is due to the last four decades of serious deviations and disobedience to Srila Prabhupada’s instructions, as well as grave offenses against him as the Founder-Acharya and current link in the sampradaya, as will be seen in this book. ISKCON’s policies are based on speculation and cheating, but as the sincere members improve their understanding of Srila Prabhupada siddhanta, they will question and reject those errant policies. See Part 20. A corrupt institution resorting to repression and cover-ups can sometimes last longer than anyone thinks possible. Similarly, stock market bubbles seem permanent, but one day, it all collapses. ISKCON's corrupt regime is doomed in short order. It depends on "sincere" devotees' realizations. The ultimate disconnect with reality and show of confusion by the ISKCON leadership is seen in this statement they made in 2000 after their coverup and sham "investigation" into Srila Prabhupada's poisoning (by the suspects): "There is no evidence at this time to support the allegations of poisoning of Srila Prabhupada."

CHAPTER 117: MISSION DRIFT BY CRIMINALS, PIRATES

Rather than delve into more of ISKCON's historical details and stories up to 2022, we will summarize how ISKCON has fundamentally changed since Srila Prabhupada's departure due to extensive mission drift, and how its assets are siphoned off into the private control of primary "ISKCON franchise" gurus such as Radhanath, Bhakticharu (deceased), Indradyumna, Jayapataka, Shivarama Swamis, and others. The philosophical purity and spiritual integrity of ISKCON has degraded to the point where one can justifiably describe ISKCON as a mundane religious institution that no longer adheres to the strict principles inculcated by Srila Prabhupada through his teachings as found in his books, lectures, letters, and instructions. As the mission and asset drift in ISKCON becomes more noticed and objected to, the leaders react: "What happens in ISKCON, stays in ISKCON." (Ramai Swami, 2018) "It is more and more annoying how the mob sticks hard on the heels of the bona fide leaders." (Shivarama Swami, 2020)

MISSION DRIFT IN ISKCON

"He simply has to carry the message from the authority as it is without any personal interpretation. As soon as there is some personal interpretation, the message is lost and the instructions become offensive. A person who interprets the scriptures according to his own whims should be immediately rejected." (Elevation to Krishna Consciousness: Ch 6) Mission drift is the term given when a nonprofit or other entity moves away from the organization's fundamental mission in a direction other than its mission statement. The changes in ISKCON over the last four decades wherein its philosophy, policies, and activities are increasingly diverted away from those taught by the Founder-Acharya Srila Prabhupada is a pronounced mission drift. This is due to the takeover of the movement by dishonest and self-interested men who are more serious in fulfilling personal ambitions than in abiding by Srila Prabhupada's instructions. Srila Prabhupada is minimized, neglected; his instructions are deemed outdated and needing revisions to keep up with historical and social changes. Or, as is more often the case, the clear instructions of the Acharya are just ignored, and GBC/gurus do as they like, with the confidence that no one will or dare object. Mission drift serves the needs of pretentious leaders that want no restriction on their use of the spiritual movement inaugurated by Srila Prabhupada for their guru operations. If they were outside and separate from ISKCON, they would lose traction, so they stay aligned with ISKCON for their own ends. The temples, ISKCON's prestige, the congregations, their legacy as disciples of Srila Prabhupada- these things are very useful to them. It is like bogus commentators on the Gita; Srila Prabhupada would say, "Why don't you write your own book and comment on that?" Similarly, if these ambitious men want to be gurus with their own temples, disciples, and so on, why don't they leave ISKCON, which belongs to Srila Prabhupada and his followers, and do their mission drift elsewhere? Leave ISKCON alone. Mission drift occurs due to deviation from Srila Prabhupada's instructions to fulfill personal ambitions. E.g., rather than admit the lie about the appointment of zonal acharyas or that they concocted their vote system for gurus, ISKCON pretends this is all in Srila Prabhupada's service, but it is just to enable their guru business.

To prevent mission drift in ISKCON, the instructions and guidance from Srila Prabhupada must always be the basic guiding principle of the society. For example, ISKCON should always be a transcendental movement giving genuine spiritual knowledge rather than become humanitarian or philanthropic (in pretense or in actuality), with a view to increase donations from mundane welfare programs. The leaders must be cent-per-cent dedicated to defending Srila Prabhupada's transcendental vision in the face of an evolving mundane culture and its ever-changing morals and values. Because Srila Prabhupada was very specific and detailed in his instructions and teachings, there is no good reason for any "mission drift." It only happens as a result of cheating and deliberate disobedience. Some ISKCON temples invite prominent Mayavadis or popular materialists to speak or perform in or near the temple, just to attract visitors and donations. What kind of standard is this? (Selling one's soul to the devil?) The congregation then is confused by these impersonalists and karmis. Many temples and gurus conduct unVaishnava Hindu festivals in the ISKCON temples, and in private venues as well; but this was rejected and prohibited by Srila Prabhupada. For example, Shiva Ratri; Diwali (acculturated, watered down, Hinduized); Durga Puja; Holi; house, car, and pet blessings; and demigod worship rituals such as pitr-park were not endorsed by Srila Prabhupada. But they are now common because pure preaching is almost dead and few are coming to the temples anymore. ISKCON Florence recently advertised a program with Satyananda das BAUL coming from Bengal to perform "mystical music." Bauls are a severe deviation from the Vaishnava standards, and they are focused on sex and sense pleasure as the ultimate goal of devotional life. The Baul sect was condemned by Bhaktivinoda Thakur.

"I am very glad that you are repentant even for some action which is not sanctioned by me. This attitude is very nice and improves one in progressing on the path of devotional service. The rakhi bandhan ceremony observed by you under instruction of Prasad isn't approved by our Vaishnava rituals. Of course, such ceremony is observed among the Hindu community as a socio-religious convention. But in our Vaishnava community there is no such observance. Now, forget the incidence, and in future don't be misled by some unauthorized person. (SPL Mukunda Mar. 26, 1968) This was a Lord Shiva observance practiced by Hindus.

ISKCON's purity and transcendental mission has been watered down by its leaders and unauthorised gurus who are looking for cheap converts, followers, and wealth. All types of liberalism, "socio-religious" practices, and philosophy have been adopted in ISKCON to counteract its failure to attract new members interested in true spiritual life. Of course, this phenomenon of not attracting new members stems from a watered down program to start with, and then the remedy will be to water it down further? ISKCON temples are now places for deviated kirtans, hathayoga, Hindu culture, pseudo-spirituality, and vegan/vegetarianism. Classes and functions feature tangential storytelling and mundane jokes. We recall Jayapataka Swami's visits- for hours he spoke of sahajiya, esoteric stories from Chaitanya-lila, but never gave a Gita or Bhagwatam class.

"Being away from ISKCON since 1984, when I attended a lecture by Bir Krishna Maharaja in Fiji in 2012, I was shocked. He began with praise of ISKCON ideals, but most of his long talk was about the real reason Satyabhama in Dwarka was, something about the gopis and Kurukshetra, and the higher meaning of Radha's doing this or that; it was a rambling 'lecture' of lofty abstract subjects meant to impress the simple local Hindus. I met an ISKCON devotee who had been in Fiji for 20 years who gave me a flyer to recruit youth for a summer camp. There was no mention of Hare Krishna, Srila Prabhupada, or ISKCON- a misleading bait and switch type of preaching. In many places, such as in Radhanath's camp, ISKCON is now mixing in hathayoga, exercise, leadership skills, and all sorts of mundane items, to attract new members. Krishna West does not mention Krishna but talks about popular things like yoga while not wearing 'bedsheets' or tilak. This is a very sad and disturbing drifting away from how Srila Prabhupada taught us to preach Krishna consciousness." (Nityananda das, 2017)

ISKCON GURUS PROTEST MISSION DRIFT IN ISKCON

On May 22, 2012, Bhakti Vikas Swami, an ISKCON guru, posted his deep concern and opposition to how ISKCON had evolved, whereupon it no longer represented Srila Prabhupada's intentions and desires. Below are excerpts (although we do not support his acting as an initiating guru). "I do not support ISKCON's pronounced tendency toward Hinduization and to secular influences such as those of bodily welfare work, mundane feminism, mundane psychology, and mundane scholarship. ...[Regarding] a long report on the presenting of an award to an ISKCON trust (which includes the name of ISKCON) as the 'Best Organization in Social Work' for providing nutritious meals

Our process is to show Krishna Consciousness as it is, not as others want to see it. By showing KC in this way, you are making the thing less important. It is not that we should change to accommodate the public, but that we should change the public to accommodate us.

to slum children. The statement of Z Swami that begins 'It is actually an honor that we get to serve' would be fine if made in the context of serving Krishna and His devotees. But as it refers to feeding poor children and developing the nation, it smacks of the daridra-narayana philosophy. Similarly, nothing could sound more laudable than 'generating love, respect and trust in the hearts of millions' – but it is a mundane statement, having been made in relation to feeding poor children and developing the nation. I am much concerned that [...] ISKCON is being converted into something that Srila Prabhupada did not want it to be. Recently in a large city in India, at two functions attended by prominent businessmen and other dignitaries, in introductions to my speeches ISKCON was referred to as a social welfare organization. I object to the mission of Srila Prabhupada, that I have dedicated my life to, having being redefined [...] Apart from having been converted (in the public eye) into a social welfare organization, ISKCON has been changed in other significant ways. We openly present ourselves as Hindus. In India, it is becoming increasingly common that yajnas are performed for donors to remove negative astrological influences (such yajnas are within the wider Vedic culture, but Srila Prabhupada wanted his temples to be centers of pure bhakti, not of karma-kanda.) In the West, some of ISKCON's biggest leaders associate with and promote neo-Mayavadi lecher 'kirtanias.' Some leaders (GBCs, sannyasis, TPs) are chronically lax in rising early, attending programs, etc. This has been overlooked for years. These and other changes have infiltrated ISKCON. [...] I understand that the GBC does not share this vision of the state of ISKCON. [...] there are many good things that ISKCON is doing. I do not plan on leaving ISKCON. But [...] I do not wish to be identified with much of what ISKCON today does or stands for, as I believe that in many ways the drift of ISKCON is increasingly away from what Srila Prabhupada meant for it."

In a 2011 article by Krishna Kirti das, "Mission Drift," he referred to ISKCON Delhi's website for a separate trust which distributes meals to schools, but uses the ISKCON name. An website extract: "Vision: Removing hunger and upscaling learning opportunities for underprivileged children. Mission: ISKCON Food Relief Foundation (IFRF) works with government to provide hygienically cooked, balanced, nutritious, wholesome Mid-day Meal to children in municipal and government aided schools in India to improve access to good food and promote education. Philosophy: IFRF believes food is a fundamental right. Inadequate nutrition not only affects physical, mental, and emotional health of children adversely but also restricts their learning ability, development opportunities and effective participation in the community. A simple way of breaking the vicious cycle of hunger and poverty is by providing regular and nutritious food and this fulfills ISKCON's mission. Goals: To promote the provision of distribution of sanctified meals all over the India..."

In response to this type of ISKCON advertising, Bhakti Vikas Swami said in a lecture: "The idea of building the nation is totally mundane. [whereby] having more people educated so they can become lawyers, doctors, or more likely factory workers. [...] the idea that we are helping children to improve their life, that's also mundane. That we want to help develop present modern society... But [Srila Prabhupada's] social welfare program was to develop varnashram communities where people don't have to live in this demonic society. [...] It wasn't that Prabhupada was callous to social welfare, but he wanted to do so through varnashram [...] that people are educated according to their role in varnashram. Advertising for Mid Day Meals is totally mundane. You may say it induces people to give a donations, but the problem is, when [...] our people go out and speak to the public, they meet businessmen and tell them, 'We're helping hungry children, and building the nation' [...] you start to think like that yourself. Instead of following Chaitanya Mahaprabhu's order jare dekha tare kaha krishna upadesha, you're talking about mundane things. It changes the whole atmosphere of ISKCON."

Interestingly, Jayadvaita Swami, who many despise for stubbornly editing and endlessly changing Srila Prabhupada's books, also concurs on the issue of ISKCON mission drift, and decries ISKCON's mixing of karmakanda into Srila Prabhupada's gift of pure bhakti yoga: "What is the distinction between you and the Red Cross or the Red Crescent Society? Now that you are doing the work of all these charitable societies, who is doing your work? Who is there to preach renunciation? Who is there to preach that you're not this body? Who is there to preach that you should turn your back on material enjoyment and go back home, back to Godhead, now that you're busy fully dedicated to the urgent mission of uplifting the afflicted people of the poorer classes of this material world, so they can have a decent life, who is going to do that other work?"

From Sri Bhaktisiddhanta Vaibhava compiled by an ISKCON sannyasi: (1) "The thousands of karmis who have opened innumerable hospitals, old age homes, centers for the poor, and schools, and the thousands of jnanis who have undergone meditation and severe austerities, are insignificant compared to a single kanishta-adhikari Vaishnava once ringing the bell before the Lord's deity. This is not sectarianism, but plain truth. Atheists are wholly incapable of realizing this; thus they become either direct or indirect blasphemers of devotional service, or adherents to the doctrine of harmonistic all-inclusiveness. (Amrta Vani 102 3; Sri Srila Prabhupadera Upadesamrta 174) (2) "Being averse to Lord Vishnu, countless jivas have come to Maha-mayas dungeon to envy Lord Vishnu in countless ways. To deliver even one of them from Maha-maya's fortress and make him a devotee of Krishna is unlimitedly better welfare work than the construction of countless hospitals and schools. (Sri Srila Prabhupadera Upadesamrta 286) (3) "Krishna-bhakti is the only way to deracinate miseries from the world. You are working only for the good of the body and treating the symptoms, not the original disease. Your patchwork schemes of various social, economic, and political ideologies are like blowing on a boil, which gives but a momentary and false sense of assuagement. The real cure is to lance the boil and squeeze out the pus. Similarly, the pus of material attachment must be excised by the sharp words of the expert devotee, the only genuine well-wisher of human society (Jati Sekhara Prabhu, disciple of Bhaktisiddhanta)."

SANNYASI GURUS DEVELOP THEIR OWN INSTITUTIONS

The following is based on reports by Brajmohan das (Bangalore) and others regarding new developments in ISKCON. Guru sannyasis are gradually, quietly, but very profoundly moving "out of ISKCON" by moving in these directions: (1) Acquiring personal properties for private programs separate from ISKCON temple programs. (2) Organizing annual pilgrimage tours in India separate from ISKCON. (3) Conducting exclusive for-charge retreat and seminar programs outside ISKCON, promoting themselves as a spiritual leader to attract new followers. Topics may be japa, the Gita, meditation, or yoga, but are meant to attract new followers to their own group. (4) Forging relationships and associations with many outside groups and personalities who are non-ISKCON or non-Vaishnava, such as mayavadis, new-agers, sahajiya babajis, “kirtanias” of all stripes, Hindu religionists, and Gaudiya Math factions. Rather than preaching from ISKCON or as ISKCON, they are now focusing on these sectors to attract new followers and disciples for themselves. (5) The result is a huge financial strain on existing ISKCON temples who must now search for those Hindu patrons who are not interested, at least initially, in these ISKCON gurus. However, once a Hindu patron (or anyone) becomes a part of the local ISKCON congregation, they are then targeted by multiple gurus and after initiation, their financial support goes primarily to their guru and the temples are left to find new donors again. Vicious circle of internal competition as gurus siphon off the temple supporters. (6) Although the ISKCON gurus visit the ISKCON temples, over time they do so less and less as fewer prospects for increasing their following are to be found in ISKCON, and they spend more time circulating in the above-mentioned sectors with greater success. Radhanath Swami has many engagements at book shops, cafes, yoga clubs, corporate settings, music and yoga festivals, at which he speaks about love and compassion, gratitude and “service.” (7) Some gurus have a base of operations outside ISKCON or have built huge temples which are only nominally ISKCON temples but are actually controlled by themselves or their disciples, and their programs are increasingly held outside ISKCON temples where other gurus cannot go to compete for the attendees or guests in becoming future followers.

Thus the trend is towards gradual departure from ISKCON. Once ISKCON has been already divided up, controlled in pieces by various gurus, and the opportunities for canvassing new followers dries up, the gurus naturally begin to create their own organizations, temples, venues, and camps where they can again succeed in promoting themselves and their personal kingdoms. It is, as Sulochan described in 1984, the guru business.

FOOD FOR LIFE VRINDABAN, WITH BIR KRISHNA GOSWAMI

In 1990 ISKCON devotees initiated a Food For Life (FFL) program in Vrindaban. FFL is an ISKCON program for distributing prasadam all over the world, and it was started by Srila Prabhupada in the early 1970's in Mayapur. In 2010 in Fiji, we were told by Bir Krishna Goswami that he was sponsoring an orphanage gurukula near Vrindaban and that the children were wearing tilak and chanting Hare Krishna. His business card at the time read: B.K. Goswami, Food For Life Vrindaban, Govardhan Project, www.fflvrindavan.org. However, going to the website, we found that there is no mention at all of Srila Prabhupada, Hare Krishna, spiritual activity of any kind, prasadam, gurukula, ISKCON, or bhaktiyoga. It aims at overseas donors who may not donate to Hare Krishnas: “We are a humanitarian organization working to help the poorest of the poor for the past 25 years, particularly girls and women, by providing comprehensive, essential human services which empower them to pursue fulfilling lives and become exemplary members of the society, and by protecting the natural environment in which they live. Our work includes free meal distribution, providing water wells for villages with no access to drinking water, Care for cows, Medical camps, Environment projects, Cleaning & Planting trees, a Paper Recycling factory, an Organic farm, Sewing & Embroidery Centre (providing employment opportunity for village women), and a Charitable hospital providing free or near free care to village families. Most prominently, FFLV provides free education for over 1,300 girls who could not otherwise attend school.”

The website's only indications of transcendence are a blurry portrait of Srila Prabhupada in the background, an apparent devotee surrounded by children, and a few of the children with faint tilak. For a donation of $301, a special feast can be arranged for children, widows, sadhus, or the blind who are: “truly destitute, generally having no family to support them. You can celebrate your birthday, anniversary, or any other occasion by sponsoring a feast for the poor and share your happiness with them.” Also: “Every year since 1997, FFLV has distributed thousands of gifts to Vrindavan's poor children on New Year's Day Gift Festival. The cost of a gift pack is $6, we need 5,000 gift packs donated.” FFL provides safe, clean drinking water and drills wells with hand pumps in many villages. It provides schooling for 1300 girls and a clinic with free health care and medicine. That's what they say.

“FFLV understood this social unrest and ran many family welfare and educational programs in the past regarding prenatal care, micro finance, primary health care, adult education, HIV, nutrition, basic hygiene, social care, counselling etc. We trained doctors to provide first aid and other health related information. What worked most was vocational training, creating employment opportunities.”

ISKCON's leaders and gurus have become sponsors of what is openly advertised as every type of mundane welfare services. Is it just for the donations, so the public will be inclined to give more? Why is there no preaching of Krishna consciousness? Perhaps all the food distributed is actually properly offered prasadam, the school teaches Bhagavad Gita, and the children chant japa. We hope so but doubt it. That the program is not advertised as such, and shows how far the preaching has drifted away from Srila Prabhupada's model of straight, pure Krishna-is-the-Supreme-Personality-of-Godhead message. It sounds like an extensive program, well organized, but where are the Hare Krishnas? Why are we hiding who we really are? What mundane considerations are causing ISKCON to operated as a welfare and philanthropic group?

COMPOSITE REPORT ON NEW TREND WITH ISKCON GURUS

Recently Dhanurdhara Swami with his large crew, maybe a hundred followers/disciples, were staying with Ramesh baba (famous local activist sahajiya baba) at Varshana for the whole month of Kartika. Dhanurdhara Swami was found guilty of child abuse (excessive physical punishment) in Vrindavan gurukula and, rather than accept token punishment allotted by the GBC, left ISKCON instead. (“If my presence is disturbing, then it is better that I leave.”) Still, he always hangs around close to ISKCON, recruiting and initiating ISKCON devotees as an independent guru although no longer a GBC sanctioned as guru. The scene around Dhanudhara Swami is deja-vu. It was 1992 again, when Dhanurdhara Swami and the sahajiya gopibhava club were residing in Vrindavan, internally polarizing ISKCON's Vaishnava community. The only difference was that instead of Narayan Maharaja, there is now Ramesh Baba in the centre. Not only Dhanudhara Swami and his followers are regularly, intimately associating with Ramesh Baba, but so are also other ISKCON gurus: Bhurijana das, and Sachinandana Swami (and followers), and in 2017 there was Giriraja Maharaja and his followers. In 2021 Dhanurdhara Swami was applying to formally return to ISKCON.

It appears they have to some extent their own philosophical agendas, but follow the same pattern as Dhanudhara Swami, creating private facility that provides the environment of freedom and protection from any ISKCON institutional sanctions against them or their activities. Shivarama Swami, Giriraja Swami, Indradyumna Swami, Bhurijana das (via a disciple) all have private “bhajan kutir” compounds in Vrindavan and/or Mayapur, that give them independence, protection, and the freedom to do and talk about anything they want. The sahajiya gopibhava group was reined in by the GBC in 1995 and some of them were banned from India for two years, and then later they were also affected or threatened by the Turley child abuse lawsuit. They learnt to operate outside of ISKCON by incorporating private trusts and organizations so they would avoid ISKCON lawsuits and also survive possibly being expelled from ISKCON later. They hardly attend the ISKCON Vrindavan Mandir programs, but hang together in their “home-mandirs” surrounded by disciples. Giriraja Swami inherited a California luxury mansion, now his privately owned “temple” in Santa Barbara, CA where his female secretary also resides. Shivarama Swami legally and personally controls via disciple trustees all the “ISKCON” projects and properties in Hungary which were originally placed in a complex web of trusts, incorporations, and foundations following the fall of the Iron Curtain in 1989. This has been confirmed by the former vice-president of the Hungarian farm project. BB Govinda Swami has a privately incorporated temple in Khazakstan, Indradyumna Swami's Polish tour festival is privately incorporated, Dhanudhara Swami has a devotee community property in up state New York, Bhurijana's project in Perth, Australia is also privately owned which has nothing legally to do with ISKCON. (Details missing due to the secrecy veil over their internal affairs.) It is also likely that the Chowpatty “ISKCON” temple is not under the control of the ISKCON GBC. The same applies to the large Sigatoka Fiji ISKCON temple which is supposedly held in the name of the lesbian doctor and president who built the complex. Satsvarupa also stays in a private home in upstate New York and very rarely, if ever, goes to ISKCON temples. ISKCON guru Mahanidhi Swami has resided in Radha Kund since 1987 and has a residence complex there (ISKCON suspended his guruship). Hridayananda is building up his Krishna West society of 24 independent centers and with members (Ch. 136).

They contrived a way of recruiting new members via their Japa and Govardhan (for money) retreat programs, which have nothing to do with ISKCON. They use these programs to privately screen and groom the attendees, and recruit followers that are naïve and sentimental in nature, making them feel special and privileged to be part of their secret sahajiya gopibhava club. It is sad to see, after 20 years, this club is alive and well; only their modes of operation has changed. They have their programs independent of mainstream ISKCON but remain close enough, appearing to be ISKCON members and thus can still access temple assets (disciple prospects and finances). This is a major trend in ISKCON with various gurus creating privately owned communities, temples, programs which are fully outside ISKCON. The assets of the Acharya Srila Prabhupada are being plundered for their use. The ISKCON gurus control the GBC and are supposedly leaders responsible for ISKCON and its maintenance, expansion, spiritual health, but actually they are parasites of their spiritual master's institution by diverting assets to their own little sahajiya kingdoms. They are like vampires, who often allow their victims to recover after each sucking episode so that they may have always a fresh supply of blood. The privatizing of ISKCON is conscious and intentional. ISKCON gurus, to break away from all constraints, are legally and physically separating themselves from ISKCON while still ostensibly being its caretakers, managers, and trustees. It is a highly devious and rotten development. Now they can resort to any deviation they like, such as premature rasika bhakti, sahajiyism, impersonalism, new-ageism, bogus kirtans, or whatever, to increase their following and treasury. They see their ISKCON days as numbered as their activities are being constantly exposed on the internet and devotees sometimes protesting their activities. Those who insist on being a guru should leave ISKCON and honorably start their own show from scratch, separate from Srila Prabhupada's mission and movement. But they have one foot in ISKCON and one foot out.

"This is done by all GBC appointed gurus; none are members of Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON. They are members of the independent Mathas that their so called gurudeva has established but they use ISKCON's name and Srila Prabhupada's name for their personal purposes and keep all the disciples and money for themselves. The GBC should be transparent but they have lied and cheated us all for years now and there is no way that they will divulge to the public how many of their bogus gurus have private independent projects and have private tax free bank accounts in ISKCON's name or in the name of a private trust or business. One reason they don't is because they all do the same. Most of these private gurus are cheating Srila Prabhupada." (unknown)

No financial reports are given, and most donations go to the gurus, not temples or deities. ISKCON is becoming all private temples, or guru franchises. As in any crime, simply follow the money. Their exploiting Srila Prabhupada's assets while building their own guru kingdoms must stop. The sooner these rascals, who invariably deviate from the path Srila Prabhupada prescribed, officially and completely leave ISKCON, the better. ISKCON belongs to Srila Prabhupada and his followers; it is not a feeding ground for vultures, parasites, and deviants. Let them make their own destinies if they are able, but they must leave Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON assets to those who choose to follow the living Yuga Acharya Srila Prabhupada and his teachings.

ARE ANY OF THEM SRILA PRABHUPADA'S ISKCON?

We are confused! There are so many different ISKCONs today that we do not know which one is the real ISKCON. Are any of them the ISKCON that Srila Prabhupada established? (below, from Jaya Madhava das): (1) the Hinduized (Holi/Diwali/Shivaratri Hindu festival) so called-official ISKCON (2) the Mundane Charity ISKCON promoting hospitals and food relief (3) the Kirtanaya/New Age (for profit) Hip ISKCON (love and peace) (4) the Krishna West ISKCON promoting compromised, relaxed preaching (5) the Gay and Lesbian ISKCON (6) the Interfaith ISKCON, following in Kirtanananda's footsteps (7) the “Krishna Lounge” ISKCON, where we don't mention ISKCON, the Maha Mantra or Srila Prabhupada ... it's "Yoga," as in “The Loft” in New Zealand (8) the Kuli Mela ISKCON with the disenfranchised second generation (9) the Utah Krishna's Festival of Colors, Llamas and Yoga/Rock Music ISKCON (10) the let's have Female Diksha Gurus ISKCON- women have rights too! (11) the Seattle Uncle Hari Vilas Hindu version of ISKCON known as the Vedic Cultural Society.

SRILA PRABHUPADA WANTED US TO CHANGE THEM, NOT THEY CHANGE US

We should not compromise the principles enunciated by Srila Prabhupada, just to gain popularity or to "go along to get along." Srila Prabhupada was quite adamant about sticking to our philosophy whether the general masses of people like it or not. After all, if we actually believe all our information is coming from a bona fide spiritual master who is in the disciplic succession from the Supreme Lord since time immemorial, then why the doubt or lack of faith in his words? Srila Prabhupada also makes a point about tactics, and how each of us has to learn how to convince others on the basis of intelligence or reason and at the same time not make enemies, which is a great art. (1) Paramahansa: That means sometimes we might have to compromise in certain ways. SP: Why compromise? You don't compromise. Then you associate with him. If you make compromise, then you associate with him. Then gradually you'll also go down. When we... see some person, we do not associate with him, but we give him chance to associate with me. Why you should make compromise? What is the reason? If you know something positively, why should you make compromise? When people come to talk with me, see me, I don't make any compromise. Do I make any compromise? Devotees: No. SP: Then why shall we make compromise? That gentleman, Mr. Gene Herbert, he said that "It has taken 18 years to write these books." I said, "Still, there are so many mistakes." Immediately I said. And he could not say anything. [...] Pusta-Krishna: He said that morning "...What can we do? If we do not compromise, we will make enemies." SP: No, you'll not compromise; at the same time, you'll not make enemies. That is tactics. If you make enemies, then what is your tactics? You must speak the truth; at the same time he'll not be displeased. That is tactics. If you can defeat him by your argument, then he'll not be displeased. After all, everyone is human being. If you can find out his defect, why he shall be enemy? Therefore, it is said, "...You don't make friendship with a fool, but if a man is intelligent, better make him an enemy. (SPConv)

(2) "It is very difficult to conquer over the influence of Maya, but who is firmly fixed up in Krishna Consciousness cannot be a victim of Maya. Anyway, we cannot stop our fighting with Maya, neither we can expect that all our soldiers will remain unhurt. You know Arjuna's son Abhimanyu was killed... Fight Krishna's cause sincerely and you will be gloried with victory. I was glad to hear ...you refused to set me in the N.Y. Times columns along with the other so called Swamis or yogis. We have a distinct position that we are neither cheated nor cheaters. We are the genuine representative of Krishna who is the friend of all living creatures. We must play our part independently only on faith in Krishna and His bona fide representatives. ...Lord Chaitanya was eulogized by Rupa Goswami as the latter understood that Lord Chaitanya was there to distribute Krishna Consciousness. The only gift for the humanity at large. Lord Chaitanya wanted that the message should be distributed in every village and town of the globe. Let us do this service as far as possible in all seriousness. We can not make any compromise with anyone for cheap popularity." (SPL Brahmananda Dec. 21, 1967)

DO SRILA PRABHUPADA'S BOOKS NEED TO BE ADJUSTED TO THE CHANGING TIMES?

This theory was strongly debated and pushed by a number of senior ISKCON devotees, including, notably, Devamrita Swami. He made an astonishing public declaration of doubt about the potency and legacy of Srila Prabhupada's books. In his 2002 Vyasa-Puja offering to Srila Prabhupada, Devamrita Swami offered some shocking suggestions for a “post-Prabhupada's books” ISKCON. Considering that Srila Prabhupada's books are destined to be the lawbooks for ISKCON for the next 10,000 years, we are amazed that this concept has arisen in ISKCON many thousands of years before the end of the Golden Age of Lord Chaitanya. What is particularly shocking is the doubt the Swami casts on the legacy that Srila Prabhupada has left. His “offering”: (1) "During your physical presence your books were our be-all and end-all. Now, have we entered, consciously or unconsciously, a new era of ISKCON known as "PPB"—that is, 'post-Prabhupada's books'?" (2) "More than a few seasoned devotees and supportive academics opine that indeed it's time to move on. Maybe, while maintaining our eternal gratitude to you, our founder-acharya, it's now necessary to evaluate what you have left us and distill whatever part of that legacy should accompany us into the future of a different world and a different ISKCON." (3) "Amidst the burgeoning potpourri of Gaudiya Vaishnavism outside of India, do you still assert that your books are sufficient for bringing us to the zenith of bhakti?" (4) "Can your books withstand time? That is, are the purports and language dated—if not now, then in the future?" (5) "Is emphasis on distributing your books, by whatever method, outmoded? Isn't ISKCON without emphasis on mass distribution a breath of fresh air for us?" (6) "Should our senior devotees take the lead in demonstrating lifelong dependence on your books for their spiritual sustenance and delight? Is there a danger that by doing so they could inhibit their spiritual maturity?" (7) "Would we gain anything significant and lasting if ISKCON's leaders, in both word and example, rallied to exalt your books as the main basis of our cultural unity?"

An ISKCON Guru/GBC must be 100% surrendered in mind, body and words to the instructions of Srila Prabhupada, the Founder-Acharya— yet, he is asking whether: Srila Prabhupada's books can bring us to the highest point of bhakti, Srila Prabhupada's books are outdated, distributing Srila Prabhupada's books is an outmoded concept, dependence on Srila Prabhupada's books will inhibit one's spiritual maturity, are Srila Prabhupada's books the basis for cultural unity within ISKCON? This faithlessness in Srila Prabhupada's books is apparently still endemic in ISKCON, for even today the former GBC Chairman Devamrita Swami's "urban preaching centre" prefers to discuss mundane books: "The Loft - Yoga Lounge - 1st floor, 99 Elizabeth St, City, Brisbane. The Da Vinci Code Discussion. Relax in our comfortable lounge and discuss these issues. Followed by dinner. Suggested Donation: $7"

The references to women's ideal position in Vedic culture and being always protected throughout life, questions about whether they ever went to the Moon, and other items in Srila Prabhupada's books are often deemed "outdated" for the modern world. A drive was undertaken to insert footnotes in Srila Prabhupada's books to qualify certain points that they deemed controversial or 'needing an explanation.' Fortunately the BBT declined to do so. These ideas and too many other deviations have popped up in ISKCON because of a lack of good leaders and the fatally corrupting influences of guru franchises. ISKCON is no longer about pleasing Srila Prabhupada (OK, but in name only). It is only the rank and file general devotees who have held back the ISKCON guru cartel from adopting all sorts of deviations, maintaining in ISKCON a slight resemblance to what it was when Srila Prabhupada was managing its affairs. Some ISKCON leaders no longer accept Srila Prabhupada as a perfect and pure representative of Krishna, free from inebriety and therefore worthy of surrendering to. Some leaders see Srila Prabhupada as a normal jiva under the laws of nature and capable of mistakes and therefore they have started to discount or apologize for parts of his teachings. The GBC featured in their book of denials of Srila Prabhupada's poisoning that Srila Prabhupada was just an "elderly Bengali Vaishnava who typically complain of poison at the time of death."

Others object to Srila Prabhupada's teachings on the position of women in society, and they explain Srila Prabhupada's "opinions" as products of an Indian upbringing in the previous century or the "Victorian colonial culture of British India." This amounts to guror avajna, the third offense to the Holy Name, considering the Guru as an ordinary person and disobeying him. The rights and position of women is a contentious one in ISKCON, and many devotees perceive that the institution is drifting away from Srila Prabhupada's teachings in this regard and towards current mundane societal standards. In reaction, Bhakti Vikas Swami published a book, Women: Mothers or Masters? -in which he presents traditionalist arguments for the direction of the Krishna consciousness movement, insisting we should take up Srila Prabhupada's mandate to establish varnashrama-dharma rather than capitulate to the norms and ideologies of secular culture. Particularly discussed are gender roles, parental responsibilities, feminist follies, and some of Srila Prabhupada's more controversial teachings, such as those concerning early marriage, divorce, and polygamy. However, his book was banned from sale within ISKCON because of pressure from modernist opinion holders and fear of losing the support of patrons who hold secular views about women. On this point, we sympathize with BVKS- we should not accommodate or adjust to changing secular, liberal views; we must simply repeat Srila Prabhupada's teachings fearlessly.

Rupanuga das said (July 2017) about resistance to Srila Prabhupada's "controversial" statements: "In my humble opinion, a major revolt was brewing within Iskcon against the many "politically incorrect" statements Srila Prabhupada made in his books about women (whom Krishna called less intelligent), world leaders, mass education, the UN, India's failed Vedic culture, Muslims, blacks, etc. So many things, that now many of his supposed followers consider "controversial." Something similar is being done now with Krishna West, opening medical facilities, plus the fact that Kirtanananda was always in revolt, but contained by Srila Prabhupada, who finally forced him onto the GBC, whereby he could be monitored, etc. Anyway, I do not believe that Krishna wanted Srila Prabhupada to be disturbed by such things and sent him elsewhere 'to do the same thing' as he said of his Guru Maharaja's disappearance."

CONCLUSION

To track and catalogue the endless deviations that move ISKCON away from Srila Prabhupada's standards and teachings is not an easy task. Some of the aspects of the poisoning of Srila Prabhupada's mission are: (1) Befriending and social interaction with mayavadis, Hindu religionists, sahajiyas, and sentimentalists (2) Tainting of the movement with liberal philosophies such as humanitarianism, humanism, human welfare activities, and adverse influences of academia (3) Pursuit of mundane fame and success by discarding Srila Prabhupada's models and Vaishnava traditions, as with themes to increase public appeal. (4) Bootlicking subservience to insane and unscientific political and demoniac medical mandates and policies.

The Hare Krishna movement "drifts" by the year, and is now unrecognizable from what Srila Prabhupada left us. With so many additions, deletions, modifications, and waterings down, it no longer is the same movement. It is now something else entirely from when Srila Prabhupada was physically present. These adulterations ensue from the cheating mentality of an unchecked institutional leadership seeking material advantages by absorbing features of mundane society into the movement. But Srila Prabhupada did not want anything changed, just to maintain things just as they were. Lack of faith in Srila Prabhupada's instructions and the foolishness of deviations have sapped Srila Prabhupada's once transcendental mission of its strength, vitality, and purity. The first step to correcting this disaster is to identify the cause. Human welfare work, charity, medical assistance, academia, etc must be placed in proper context as per Srila Prabhupada's teachings. E.g., Srila Prabhupada gave coins to Puri lepers, but he did not put common charity on the same level as the highest welfare work of the Sankirtan movement. Today's ISKCON, under the guidance of the GBC is completely adrift, with no rudder, no plan, no captain... just looting pirates. Srila Prabhupada's Mission has drifted off course from the true spiritual path as laid out by the pure devotee, lost in a sea of speculative deviations. The remedies to this sad and urgent situation are given later in this book.

SUMMARY OF ISKCON HISTORY

(1) Srila Prabhupada comes to the material world (2) Empowered by Lord Chaitanya, he establishes a spiritual mission and ISKCON to correct the misdirection of human society from sinful life to transcendental knowledge, self-realization (3) He recruits followers from the dregs of civilization, such as acid-freaks, social drop-outs, rebellious youth, dysfunctional misfits (4) Starting in 1967, Srila Prabhupada and his mission were threatened repeatedly by the actions of immature, materially ambitious disciples anxious for power, wealth, prestige, and guruship. (5) With a leading secretary at the center, a group of senior disciples plotted Srila Prabhupada's cadmium poisoning to quickly remove him (6) Some were directly involved in poisoning Srila Prabhupada's body while others suspected or knew of it, but remained silent or became complicit as aiders and abettors after the fact due to their guru desires (7) They exploited the spiritual mission posing as absolute authorities, though they were conditioned souls (8) Opposition was ruthlessly purged; Srila Prabhupada's disciples were alienated, and unauthorised gurus tried to hide their impurities (9) In 1986 the elite guru club's appointment myth was exposed, guruhood was opened to all, corrupting more with guru-desires (10) They pandered to Hindu congregations and areas where people were more easily cheated (11) Progressive deviations from Srila Prabhupada's standards and teachings deteriorated ISKCON's spiritual purity until it almost completely lost its potency (12) Gradually the true ISKCON history was understood by more sincere followers of Srila Prabhupada, and efforts arose to restore the mission to its original condition (13) There were two options: (a) Save the original institution, devolved into a cheaters and cheated, dying branch of the Chaitanya tree (b) Or a revival by strict following as a loosely associated network of home temples up to large temples evolves as the real ISKCON of the future. (14) Lord Chaitanya's Golden Age thrives for almost 10,000 years.

PART 14: SAND IN THE SWEET RICE

(1) "What will happen when I am not here, shall everything be spoiled by the GBC?" (SPL, 1972) (2) "That I am thinking, that such a big society, the aims and object may be dismantled, I am thinking from that vision." (SPConv Oct. 26, 1977) (3) "Krishna did not send me any first-class men, He sent me only second and third-class men." (SPConv) (4) "The further a society drifts from the truth, the more it will hate those that speak it." (George Orwell) (5) "If you tell a lie loud enough and long enough, the people will believe it." (Adolf Hitler) (6) "Unfortunately, when the acharya disappears, rogues and nondevotees take advantage and immediately begin to introduce unauthorized principles in the name of so-called swamis, yogis, philanthropists, welfare workers and so on. The acharya, the authorized representative of the Supreme Lord, establishes these principles, but when he disappears, things once again become disordered. The perfect disciples of the acharya try to relieve the situation by sincerely following the instructions of the Spiritual Master." (SBhag 4.28.48 purpt)

INTRODUCTION

Those who poisoned Srila Prabhupada were envious, desiring to capture the power, prestige, and position of the Acharya for themselves, and they thus committed the crime of the millennium by poisoning the pure devotee, and then they stole his assets for illicit self aggrandizement. Their presence in the spiritual movement is the work of maya, to test the devotees in their sincerity and convictions. They are like Duryodhana, a chronic disease that will destroy the purity of Srila Prabhupada's mission unless it is removed quickly and completely. First was the poisoning of Srila Prabhupada's body, and then the poisoning of Srila Prabhupada's mission, by pretentious hypocrites overwhelmed by intense desire for profit, adoration, and distinction. Although each one of them knew how to properly serve Srila Prabhupada and his instructions, at some point they each surrendered to their material desires, betraying Srila Prabhupada and Krishna's mercy by exploiting the trust and positions given them. At that point, siddhanta, or correct understanding, was compromised by deviation. The post of an absolute guru is very attractive. They had the charisma, intellect, and opportunity, to pull off this pretense, and gratify their senses, mind, and false ego. The closest thing to becoming God is to become as good as God. Thus the immemorial, primordial ambition to become the lord of all he surveys was resurrected from the core of the heart. This disease today pervades ISKCON, but one has to sell his soul and pretend to be what he is not, rationalizing his posturing as a guru who liberates his disciples with tricky word juggling and misapplied, misconstrued quotes from Srila Prabhupada's books. A true initiating guru is without any personal motive, and further, he is empowered by his guru and Krishna to awaken transcendental knowledge in the hearts of the fallen conditioned souls. The original 11 and those who followed them, all had mundane motives. None were free of material desire, and half have publicly been exposed as deviated from just the proper standards of a regular devotee (what to speak of a diksha guru) and, including those secretly fallen, it may be 90% or more. It is a club of cheaters. Below are two historical examples to illustrate how these imposters were deviously hypocritical and duplicitous.

TAMAL AND HANSADUTTA KNEW IT WAS A LIE BUT CONTINUED CHEATING

In 1977 Tamal privately understood what Srila Prabhupada had arranged for future ISKCON initiations, seen in his confession Dec. 3, 1980: “Actually, Prabhupada never appointed any gurus. He didn't appoint eleven gurus. He appointed eleven ritviks. He never appointed them gurus. Myself and the other GBC have done the greatest disservice to this movement the last three years because we interpreted the appointment of ritviks as the appointment of gurus... You can't show me anything on tape or in writing where Prabhupada says, ‘I appoint these 11 as gurus.’ It doesn't exist because he never appointed any gurus. This is a myth.” Tamal knew what Srila Prabhupada intended as “guru-tattva” for ISKCON’s future, but he concealed it, feeding the lie that the 11 ritviks were to be full gurus after Srila Prabhupada’s departure, even though this is an unsubstantiated interpretation. After confessing the truth, Tamal was reinstated as a guru, and he again resumed the previous lie that they were appointed. Tamal chose the dark side, to chase his ambition of becoming number one, and betrayed Srila Prabhupada’s trust out of selfishness, causing endless harm to Srila Prabhupada’s movement.

When Hansadutta first received the July 9th order, he was clear that it meant he would be a ritvik representative for Srila Prabhupada henceforward, perpetually. “I distinctly remember when I received the July 9, 1977 letter in Sri Lanka; it was clear that this was Srila Prabhupada’s arrangement for future initiations. I also remember feeling some disappointment with the obvious conditional authority that the ‘Ritvik representative of the Acharya’ designation implied, because I actually had a great desire to be a Guru like Srila Prabhupada, and I think many of the leaders did have similar desires. Still, I understood it was a very responsible and authoritative appointment... It was clear Srila Prabhupada had officially introduced the concept of ‘Ritvik representative’ as the arrangement for initiations by his disciples for the future of ISKCON. Had there been anything more to clarify, certainly Srila Prabhupada would have written another letter to amend what was already so clear. But he never did, other than reinforce what he had already written: ‘Continue to act as ritvik representative of the Acharya.’” Yet, in spite of Hansadutta’s understanding in 1977, with a few months association of others who wanted to sit on the Vyasasana, he morphed into one of the 11 “appointed” full diksha gurus. He thereafter enthusiastically pursued the mirage of having become a full guru, exercising absolute authority and aggressively collecting his worshipping followers. What happened? His “great desire to be a Guru like Srila Prabhupada” overwhelmed his honesty, and he became a hypocrite. He sat next to Tamal at Topanga Canyon in 1980 when Tamal made his confession (quoted above). Yet, Hansadutta and Tamal both within a few weeks went right back to operating as pretentious gurus again, despite being reminded again of what he admits he had properly understood in July 1977. Of course, Tamal’s confession was a political ploy.

PERSONAL AMBITION CORRUPTED THEIR SINCERITY

What happened to the leadership of Srila Prabhupada’s ISKCON and mission after his physical departure? Was it simply a slackening of sadhana due to being so busy? “Many leaders, in their efforts to fulfill this desire of Srila Prabhupada, allowed their sadhana to slacken. Therefore after Srila Prabhupada left, the strengths and devotional qualities derived from sincere absorption in the practice of Krishna bhakti had not fully matured in their hearts, causing unfortunate and tragic consequences within ISKCON.” (Yamuna devi, Vol. 2, p. 102) No, no, no... this in no way comes even close to explaining even a fraction of the turmoil, confusion, and deviations that occurred in ISKCON. The true reason was more insidious: Too many of Srila Prabhupada’s trusted and senior disciples became corrupted at heart by the overwhelming desire of falsely being absolutely powerful gurus who were as good as God. Their sincerity was swamped by attraction for sense gratification.

WHILE SRILA PRABHUPADA WAS WITH US, THEY WERE UNQUALIFIED AS GURUS

“Prabhupada’s own movement also soon provided him with ample reason for discouragement. From the very outset there was trouble: his authority was challenged; his position compromised; his instructions distorted, neglected or selectively followed; his teachings moulded to various fancies; his assets misused, mismanaged and misappropriated; his standards broken; his dependents neglected, exploited and abused. And the worst of this was committed by men Prabhupada entrusted with responsible positions. Prabhupada travelled continuously around the world, grappling with problems. Each day his mail washed up to him a jumbled deposit of scandals, failures and disappointments. Internal weaknesses and shortcomings turned the eleven years of Prabhupada’s personal supervision into a concatenation of crises.” (Ravindra Svarupa, 1999)

While Srila Prabhupada was still with us, the problems created by his senior men were very significant, but these problems became worse after his departure. One in the neophyte stage who gets some power or authority tends to pursue personal ambitions, due to not being advanced in spiritual life. Such men would only undermine the society Srila Prabhupada had hoped would lead the world out of darkness. Part 14 shows the troubles they made after Srila Prabhupada left the institution in their hands. They poisoned his body, then poisoned his mission. “Because I am not adulterating the sweet rice with sand, people are tasting it very nice. So you also follow the same principle. Don’t try to adulterate. Present it as it is.” (SPLecture July 17, 1971)

PERILS OF SUCCESSION?

In Tamal’s essay “The Perils of Succession,” he subtly defends his own past controversies which had severely disrupted ISKCON even during Srila Prabhupada’s manifest presence, what to speak of afterwards. He conveniently characterizes “heresy” as a useful opportunity to “preserve the [religious] tradition in changing cultural and intellectual circumstances.” The defect in his reasoning is that his “heresies,” and those in ISKCON since 1977, were actually deliberate deviations from Srila Prabhupada’s clearly enunciated teachings. He refers to “doctrinal issues,” as though there is a need to adapt Srila Prabhupada’s teachings to different circumstances, or as though Srila Prabhupada’s teachings were not complete/ perfect for all places and times. What a clever way to portray himself, the greatest bane of Srila Prabhupada’s mission and almost certainly his poisoner, as the one who “helped” ISKCON progress in its “learning” from his “heresies.” The only peril of succession in ISKCON was Tamal’s careful concealment of Srila Prabhupada’s instructions and intentions for the future (Ch. 63-64) and his conspiracy with others to introduce a totally unauthorized and concocted system of zonal successor acharyas. (Part 11) These things were expressly forbidden by Srila Prabhupada, and Tamal was key to the introduction of disruptive heretical deviations in ISKCON. (Ch. 71, 72, 111)

Tamal: “Guru, sadhu, and shastra check and balance each other. But when the guru departs, sadhu and shastra can take on a new import, as those who succeed him become the new interpreters of past precedents, scriptural law, and the new set of circumstances.” Tamal’s assumption that anyone should have succeeded Srila Prabhupada after his departure is erroneous. Srila Prabhupada, like Bhktisiddhanta Saraswati before him, never named any successor acharyas. There was no need to re-interpret past precedents or scriptural law, because Srila Prabhupada had already laid everything out in his books. How did Tamal think he or anyone was able to do this anyway? Everything was nicely arranged for by Srila Prabhupada, and his GBC leaders only had to carry on as it was going, without any changes, simply maintaining the movement as it was. The import of sadhu and shastra can only change by deviation, which is what Tamal and his band of pirates did. And it is outrageous that Tamal so sanctimoniously and arrogantly characterizes himself or others as the new interpreters of Srila Prabhupada’s teachings. Those teachings required no re-interpretation. It was a huge betrayal that those Srila Prabhupada trusted to protect the mission added so much sand to the sweet rice.

“WHAT WILL HAPPEN WHEN I AM NOT HERE, SHALL EVERYTHING BE SPOILED BY THE GBC?”

In 1972 when 7 of the 12 GBC’s met in New York and decided on a centralization scheme, the GBC was temporarily disbanded by Srila Prabhupada, and he sent out a telegram with the above title.

In late 1977 also, Srila Prabhupada repeatedly queried whether his senior leaders would spoil everything after his departure. And actually this came to be the case, as ISKCON was poisoned by incessant deviations which can be generally characterized as "Tamalism," or the use of Srila Prabhupada's assets for personal benefit and ambitions. This was the poisoning of Srila Prabhupada's mission. "I have given in writing everything, whatever you wanted—my will, my executive power, everything. Disaster will happen if you cannot manage it." (SPConv Oct. 2, 1977)

WHY EXPOSE THE POISONING OF SRILA PRABHUPADA'S MISSION?

We may think that to ferret out and expose the deviations in ISKCON, the unauthorised gurus, corrupt policies, and to investigate the poisoning of Srila Prabhupada is nothing but fault-finding or like the flies that go to the stool or sores instead of like the bees that look for the nectar. But actually, to expose the deviations and anomalies is very necessary lest they be accepted by the innocent as the Vaishnava standard. Krishna consciousness means being always vigilant that one is staying on the right track. As Srila Bhaktinoda Thakur wrote long ago: "In the name of bhakti in many places people are engaged in illicit or anti-bhakti activities in the name of practicing bhakti. If one does not expose those issues (cases) very clearly, then pure bhakti will never be victorious or be established." (Bheka Dharana, Sajjana Tosani) "One should compulsorily engage in endeavoring to trying to uplift the Vaishnava Dharma from the mud of contamination and trying to free it from all kinds of dauratmya (wrong ideas and practices)." (Patrikara Uddesya, Sajjana Tosani)

Those who relish in the finding of faults do so unnecessarily. But it is necessary and our duty (Ch. 172) to protect and defend the transcendental mission. It is hoped that the poisoning of Srila Prabhupada's body and mission as discussed herein will assist in a restoration of the mission and a renewal of Srila Prabhupada siddhanta in his movement. None of us has enjoyed the research, investigation, and time invested in this endeavor- it has been done because it is a necessary chore and our duty in Srila Prabhupada's service.

THE RASCALS ARE ONLY INTERESTED IN THEIR GURU BUSINESS

One may wonder why the 30-40 GBCs have not prevented all the damage, scandals, deviation, mismanagement, and chaos that has occurred in ISKCON. The answer is that most GBCs are gurus while the rest are hoping to become gurus, and they are all focused on guruship, not the running of the ISKCON society according to Srila Prabhupada's vision or teachings. Their true interests lie in their guru business, their empires, disciples, power, money, profit, adoration, and distinction. ISKCON affairs are a sideline, something they rely on their deputies and underlings to deal with. Once a year they meet in Mayapur and paper over the problems with more meaningless resolutions, decrees, laws, and nice-sounding proclamations while the underlying rot continues. They are all self-interested rascals with no real interest in Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON beyond how it will serve their guru interests. They devote themselves primarily to their own slice of the pie.

DON'T SPOIL THE MOVEMENT

(1) "So don't spoil the movement by manufacturing ideas. Don't do that. Go on in the standard way, keep yourself pure; then movement is sure to be successful. But if you want to spoil it by whimsical, then what can be done? It will be spoiled. If you manufacture whims and disagree and fight amongst yourself, then it will be another edition of these so-called movements. It will lose the spiritual strength. Always remember it. You cannot... [...] then it will lose its effect." (SPL Apr. 27, 1976) (2) "It is a great responsibility you now have. Maintain at least what I have given you... [...] Now you have everything, respect, philosophy, money, temples, books, all these things I have given, but I am an old man and my notice is already there. Now it is up to you all how to manage it. If you cannot increase it, you should at least maintain what I have given you. You cannot accuse me that I have not given you anything. So it is a great responsibility you now have." (SPL Jagannatha Suta Aug. 26, 1975) (3) Excerpts, special letter from Karandhar/Shyamamsundar authorized by Srila Prabhupada, June 22, 1972: "Our process is kirtan, philosophy, and prasadam, nothing more. We do not need to glamorize or spectacularize beyond these simple methods [...] The conditioned souls will be attracted by the Holy Name sincerely chanted by pure devotees and the perfect knowledge of BGita and SBhag [...] The responsibility to maintain the standard of Krishna consciousness as Srila Prabhupada has given to us is our single, most important duty. We must be careful to avoid the entrance of poison and pollution into our line. If we simply present things exactly as Srila Prabhupada does, there will be no loss. [...] If people come or do not come, that does not matter, but we know we are presenting the real thing...

CHAPTER 118: DEITY WORSHIP ADULTERATED

“Now you are asking if Lord Jagannatha carries flute? Why this nonsense question? You are asking me so many concoctions and manufactured nonsense. Don't bother my head in this way any more. From now on unless I order you do something change or in addition, go on with the usual standard way. You manufacture ideas and then I have to waste my time. I have given you everything already, there is no need for you to add anything or change anything. Why you are asking these things? Who has given you such freedom? Pujari should operate entirely under the supervision of temple president and GBC, not independently. The greatest danger to our movement will come when we manufacture and create our own process for worshipping the deities. So don't ask any more new questions, whatever is going on, follow it just to the exact standard as I have given you, that's all.” (SPL Dhruvananda Jan. 4, 1973)

DESCENDING OR ASCENDING? THE CORRECT ORDER OF WORSHIPPING THE DEITIES

Bir Krishna Maharaja, an ISKCON GBC and guru, in a 2012 conversation, reassuringly confessed that he himself preferred the old deity worship method of starting worship with Srila Prabhupada and going up the disciplic succession, even though he knows many temples “do it the other way.” It was as though he was simply an observer rather than the senior GBC man that he is, and neither did he bother to delve into the virtues or faults of either method, as though it was simply a matter of one's preference. Some like it this way, some like it that way. So there is not a proper method as taught to us by the ultimate spiritual authority, Srila Prabhupada? Yes, there is, and his instructions are to follow them. Below: Srila Prabhupada quotes and discussion on the proper methods of worshipping deities at home or temple. No changes are required.

(Below: DEITIES IN CHRISTMAS OUTFITS)

NO CHANGES

Srila Prabhupada also wrote in a letter to Nityananda das, 1976: “I am returning one Deity photo to you. This dressing style is not authorized. But the other photos are very nice.” When Srila Prabhupada was asked about painting Radha Radhakanta (white marble Krishna deity) in New Talavan with a bluish tint, the reply was “Do not concoct anything.”

THE ORDER OF WORSHIP

(1) “Yes, it is nice that you are worshipping Lord Chaitanya along with Radha Krishna. That is alright. Lord Chaitanya should be placed to the right side of Krishna. There is nothing special for His worship, but you may continue as you are doing now. The order of worshipping is first Spiritual Master, and then Lord Chaitanya, then Radha Krishna (as in the mantras or vande aham prayer). Your confidence to do whatever you are instructed by the Spiritual Master is very encouraging. Yes, this is the method of the Vedic injunction, staunch faith in Spiritual Master and Krishna makes one perfect in spiritual understanding.” (SPL Himavati Apr. 1, 1970) (2) “So this is the parampara system. As you receive knowledge step by step... Narayan, Krishna, instructed Vyasadeva. Brahma, Brahma instructed Narada. Narada instructed Vyasadeva. Vyasadeva instructed his disciple Madhvacharya. In this way we have to go through also, in the same way. First of all, offer respect to the spiritual master, as he has done to Sukadeva Goswami. [...] So then his spiritual master [...] then his spiritual master, his spiritual master, his spiritual master- ultimately Krishna. This is the process. Don't try to approach Krishna directly, jump over. That is useless. As you receive knowledge through the steps, parampara system, similarly, we should approach Krishna through these steps." (SP Lecture May 28, 1974)

OFFER WORSHIP TO KRISHNA THROUGH HIS DEVOTEES FIRST

"Radharani is presented, the original pleasure potency, always absorbed in thought of Krishna. So anyone who comes before Radharani to serve Krishna, oh, She becomes so pleased, 'Oh, here is a devotee of Krishna.' She immediately recommends, 'Krishna, oh, here is a devotee. He is better than Me.' This is Radharani. I may be a, not devotee. I may be most fallen rascal. But if I try to reach Krishna through Radharani, then my business is successful. Therefore we should worship Radharani first. That is our business. Instead of offering directly one flower to Krishna, you just put it in the hands of Radharani: 'My mother Radharani, Jagan-mata, if you kindly take this flower and offer it to Krishna.' 'Oh,' Radharani says, 'Oh, you have brought a flower?' Krishna said, patram puspam phalam toyam yo me bhaktya prayacchati, but don't offer Krishna directly. Just offer through Radharani. It will be very much appreciated by Radharani." (SP Lecture Sept. 5, 1973)

OFFERING GOES THROUGH SPIRITUAL MASTER FIRST

(1) "Regarding your question about offering Prasadam, whatever is offered to the Deity actually it goes through the Spiritual Master. The Spiritual Master offers to Lord Chaitanya, and Lord Chaitanya offers it to Krishna. Then Radha Krishna eats, or Jagannatha eats, then Chaitanya Mahaprabhu eats, then the Spiritual Master eats, and it becomes Mahaprasadam. So when you offer something, you think like that and chant the Gayatri mantra, and then everything is complete. At last, ring the bell, take out the plate and wipe the place where the plate was kept." (SPL Arundhati June 16, 1969) (2) "Not a special plate. The process is that whatever we offer to the Deity, that is offered to guru. And guru offers to his guru. In this way goes to Krishna. We don't directly offer Radha-Krishna. No. We have no right. Neither He accepts in that way. The pictures of the acharyas, why there are? Actually, one has to offer the plate to his guru, and he'll offer his guru, he offers his guru, his guru. In this way it will go to Krishna. That is the process. You cannot directly approach Krishna or other subordinates to Krishna. That is not possible." (SP Lecture Feb. 15, 1971)

SRILA PRABHUPADA STILL ACCEPTS OUR OFFERINGS NOW

(1) Revatinandana: So sometimes the spiritual master is far, far away. He may be in Los Angeles. Somebody is coming to Hamburg temple. He thinks, "How will the spiritual master be pleased?" SP: Just follow his order. Spiritual master is along with you by his words. Just like my spiritual master is not physically present, but I am associating with him by his words. Revatinandana: And Krishna knows that; therefore we make advancement. He is sitting in our heart. He knows what we're doing. So He sees, "He's serving My pure devotee," immediately there is advancement. SP: Yes. Spiritual master... Krishna is not limited. It is not material. You can associate with Krishna and the spiritual master in any circumstance... (SP Lecture Aug. 18, 1971) (2) "In the absolute world there is no distinction as me, or he, and I. Krishna and His representative is the same. Just like Krishna can be present simultaneously in millions of places. Similarly, the Spiritual Master also can be present wherever the disciple wants. A Spiritual Master is the principle, not the body. Just like a television can be seen in thousands of places by the principle of relay monitoring." (SPL Malati May 28, 1968) (3) "The Spiritual Master is present wherever his sincere disciple is trying to serve his instructions. This is possible by the Mercy of Krishna. In your attempts to serve me and in all your sincere devotional sentiments I am with you as My Guru Maharaja is with me. Remember this always." (SPL Dec. 1, 1973)

CAN IMPERFECT FALSE GURUS ACCEPT FOOD AND WORSHIP THROUGH PHOTOS?

(1) "Regarding the above question: Srila Prabhupada can accept offerings in the same way the Deity does. Offering to him, if done properly is just as good. Srila Prabhupada doesn't need to separately then offer everything, because Krishna automatically accepts what His pure devotee accepts. They can eat off the same plate. Some of this is explained in SP Conversations, Oct. 27, 1975, Nairobi." (Dhira Govinda das) (2) "Yes Srila Prabhupada 'really' does, or can, eat our offerings and he can be present in his form and murti if we worship correctly with devotion. Worship of forms and persons who are not specifically empowered by Krishna to be guru, is nothing more than idol worship, an offense.” (Narasimha das, 2016) (3) “If the person being worshiped is not fully on the transcendental platform, then that worship is idol worship. And, relatedly, if person A is worshipping the picture of person B, and person B is affected, subtly or grossly, by the modes of material nature, then, very likely, person A has at least some less than pure motivation for engaging in this worship (idol worship). If the devotee being worshiped, in-person, or through murti or picture, is, like Srila Prabhupada, a pure devotee of Krishna, then the sincere worshipper, whatever modes he may be influenced by, achieves purification through such bona fide worship of the transcendental personality. [...] Srila Prabhupada established an altar, with all personalities on that altar being unquestionably freed from any taint of the modes of nature. To introduce a system where pictures of other personalities are added to the altar (even if sometimes for only half an hour for arati, or bhoga offering), then, if there’s even a possibility that any of these other personalities are influenced by the modes, this is contrary to the principles that Srila Prabhupada established, and, essentially, is introducing idol worship into Vaishnava practice, and thus is apasiddhanta. Yes, if there’s even a tinge of the modes of material nature in the consciousness, then the worship of the person who is influenced by material nature, is idol worship. They’re not present in their picture, and the worshipper is simply worshipping matter, not transcendence.” (Dhira Govinda das, 2016) (4) “Srila Prabhupada clearly explained the most basic aspect of devotional service- namely HOW to approach God. His answers are clear to the clear headed- one has to offer all to guru first, not to God first--which is wrongly being done all over the world in ISKCON temples. Even Jesus Christ said, ‘Only thru me can the father be reached.’ These are basic principles of spiritual practice. (Damaghosa das, 2016)

PLACING CONDITIONED SOUL’S PHOTOS NEXT TO OUR ACHARYAS

Ever since Pradyumna’s letter of protest to the GBC in 1978, there has been controversy over whether ISKCON gurus’ photos should be placed on our altars next to Srila Prabhupada, Bhaktisiddhanta, Bhaktivinode, and Gaura Kishore das Babaji. The issue stems from whether conditioned souls should be placed or worshiped on the same level as the great acharyas, starting with Srila Prabhupada. Should they be worshipped on the altar (or anywhere, for that matter)? Many say that this is a great offense that defiles the altar and makes a mockery of the deity worship. Since 1978 the new ISKCON gurus have instructed their disciples to connect with the disciplic succession through their picture and name, BEFORE Srila Prabhupada, claiming they are the present link in the disciplic succession. For about a decade after 1978, pictures of the zonal gurus were always on the altar next to Srila Prabhupada. Sometimes the ISKCON guru’s photo was larger than those of the acharyas. A great controversy ensued as senior Prabhupada disciples strenuously objected, noting that ISKCON no longer was focused on Srila Prabhupada as the center. The new gurus had stolen the limelight and worship. Many considered it very offensive and inappropriate to bring Srila Prabhupada down to the level of these conditioned souls, which was confirmed quickly as ISKCON gurus were exposed in major deviations of character and action, breaking the illicit sex and intoxication rules. Finally the ISKCON gurus were pushed back and the GBC ruled that new guru photos could not stay on the temple altars (at home was still OK), could not be on the same level as the acharyas’ photos, and could only be lower, and smaller, and “nearby,” visible only for a new guru’s disciple while they were doing the arkte ceremony, after which the photo was taken away out of sight. It was a compromise which hoped to end the controversy. Of course, in ISKCON’s far-off places like Fiji, Africa, Brazil, where devotees are still in the zonal acharya consciousness, these GBC modifications are unknown. But, this compromise does not correct the deviation, but simply sweeps it halfway out of sight.

This cheating process is similar to how many Hindus around the world, being attached to the eating of meat, adhere to a strange ritual of eating meat only on certain days of the week, and becoming “vegetarian” again on other days. In this way they pretend to be faithful to the prohibitions against meat-eating, similar to the Christians who sin, confess and repent, then sin again. ISKCON thus has created its own rituals surrounding their concocted unauthorised guru charade instead of actually following what Srila Prabhupada taught us: "Do not concoct anything." "Do not change anything." "In Catholicism they are taught to not eat meat on Fridays- so they had something like fish instead. If they admit meat eating was not good and had to be stopped at least once a week, why isn't it bad on all days? In the back of the 'revised' book Perfect Questions, Perfect Answers it is explained how to offer ones food on an altar. For beginners it is to chant Srila Prabhupada's mantras, then it's prasadam. But when one joins ISKCON and finds a guru, you then first offer to some imperfect 'guru.' And they say if this guru falls down, then go back to offering again to Srila Prabhupada. So, if it's good enough in the beginning and end to offer to Srila Prabhupada, why offer to somebody else in the middle? This is an example of a concocted philosophy, a deviation in deity worship." (Damaghosh, Jan. 2017)

KEEP THE ALTAR JUST AS SRILA PRABHUPADA GAVE IT TO US

ISKCON GURU TO DISCIPLE: "My first suggestion is that you put your guru's picture back on your altar and that you take up the tried-and-true path of following the guru." REPLY FROM DHIRA GOVINDA: "Again, we see the term 'the guru.' X Swami seems to clearly imply that for you he is 'the guru,' and certainly that is the organizational status quo. Philosophically, though, 'the guru' is the Vaishnava from whom you're receiving divya-jnana, directly. ...that is Srila Prabhupada. Humbly stand strong in this truth, and communicate it, as appropriate, with proper discretion, in a Vaishnava manner, in a gentlemanly way that is not intended to offend. Even if you do real well with that, it doesn't guarantee that no one will feel offended."

Below: LADDU GOPAL FOR SHIVA RATRI IN ALACHUA ISKCON

"As far as pictures, I know of no instruction from Srila Prabhupada to change the altar he gave us. Srila Prabhupada gave us a perfect and beautiful altar, and no instructions to change it. So, if someone says, "Well, I'm inspired to put my guru's picture on the altar..."- [...] that is a strange and inconsistent line of thought. Why not just keep the altar that Srila Prabhupada gave us, and respect and honor those who are determined to do so. The reasoning that one must put on one's altar a picture of he who performed his formal initiation ceremony is not supported by Vaishnava parampara. Srila Prabhupada doesn't even mention who did the formal initiation ceremony for Bhaktivinoda Thakura. To not put the photo of a great Vaishnava on one's altar doesn't minimize him. On our altars we don't have the picture of Suta Goswami. That doesn't mean we're minimizing him. Srila Prabhupada gave us an altar that is perfect for us. Why create confusion by attempting to change it? Suppose the family puts grandma's picture on the altar for awhile [...] let's not pretend that it's philosophically-based, or Srila Prabhupada-centered. If someone wants to put a particular Maharaja on the altar (perhaps by whom they've been inspired in Krishna consciousness), and someone else puts his dog Fluffy on the altar. [...] actually Fluffy on the altar would likely be less damaging than some of those who have been on ISKCON altars. Srila Prabhupada gave us an altar, and [...] He gave no instructions to change the altar. So, why change it? Yes, there are different tiers on the altar, to distinguish between Vishnu tattva and jiva tattva. Srila Prabhupada's standard is that all personalities on the altar are fully transcendental, with no tinges of the modes of material nature. [...] To put conditioned souls up there, it relativizes the whole thing. Philosophically, if I were to place on the altar a personality who may be influenced by the modes of material nature, then I would be engaging in idol worship, in line with the golden calf parampara (Exodus, Ch. 32). [...] (END)

IS IT REALLY PRASADAM, IS IT STILL BHOGA, OR SOMETHING WORSE?

The introduction of less than self-realized links into the disciplic succession, or at least the futile attempt to do so, has created yet another conundrum for those trying to take advantage of the transcendental blessings therein. Unauthorized gurus in ISKCON pose themselves as the current link to their disciples and arrange for all food or bhoga offerings to be made to them via their picture and their pranam mantra. These disciples place their offerings before their guru's photo, bow down, and recite these “prayers,” such as, “Oh, XYZ Swami, you have delivered the western world of all false misconceptions and are very dear to Lord Sri Krishna,” while meditating on their “guru” who will be “accepting” the food. Of course, XYZ Swami is in New York and has no idea who is offering what to him in Hyderabad. He is not a fully enlightened soul with full communion with the Supersoul; he is only aware of what is happening within the range of his external senses. Even if the food offering was made in his physical presence, would he have the spiritual wherewithal to arrange for the food to be delivered and offered to the next links in the disciplic succession? No, and the food goes nowhere and is never tasted by Srila Prabhupada or Lord Krishna. It remains food and never becomes the Lord’s mercy or prasadam (spiritual food). It was a futile exercise involving cheaters and the cheated. Prasadam is a very important part of the devotee’s advancement in Krishna Consciousness, and if he offers food to a unauthorised guru, one not authorized by Srila Prabhupada nor Lord Krishna to be the next link in the disciplic succession, then that devotee’s advancement is seriously thwarted because of being denied actual prasadam. Once the question was asked of Bir Krishna Maharaja (2012), “Do you really accept the offerings of your disciples?” The answer was shocking: “Yes, I can accept their offerings anywhere in the world.” Really? ISKCON gurus, even the new ones just vote-approved, somehow got their powers to transform bhoga into prasadam, mysteriously, unexplainably, as part of ISKCON’s guruship doctrines? Actually, it’s all a big bluff and almost everyone in ISKCON is eating bhoga or worse, and that could help explain the general lack of clarity and spiritual insight of the membership who blindly follow their gurus. In ISKCON restaurants and food distribution programs, since they are not offering to the pure devotee but to a conditioned soul, how does that food become prasadam? By wishful thinking? By sentiment, or empty ritual? Maybe Srila Prabhupada will be kind and step in to accept it anyway? That is very dubious. Srila Prabhupada said that if a dog sees the offering, or if the cook tastes it beforehand, or if it is prepared in bad consciousness, then the offering is spoiled, and is unofferable. In corrupted ISKCON, how can their food be prasadam? How can they be making advancement by eating sin, or food that is not prasadam? As the emperor was naked pretending to wear invisible clothes, ISKCON pretends they have spiritual food. Srila Prabhupada honored prasadam privately, stating we should not eat in front of envious animals or we will be contaminated by their envy, and we should not eat food cooked by non-devotees (especially grains) or we become infected by their material consciousness. So why should we eat food offered to conditioned gurus? Will we become contaminated at heart with their guru ambitions disease? Bir Krishna M. (2012) readily admitted he was not a pure devotee, so how can he accept offerings?

Devotee: In regard to worshiping arca-vigraha form, you have explained that if one receives a mantra from a spiritual master who is not bona fide, that mantra has no effect. So I would like to ask if one is worshiping a Deity and his spiritual master is not bona fide, so that Deity cannot be considered the Supreme Lord? SP: Well, first of all, thing is if the spiritual master is not bona fide, how his mantra can be bona fide? Your statement is contradictory. [...] If he is bona fide, then his mantra is bona fide.

Devotee: Then why is he giving instruction to worship the Deity? If the spiritual master is not bona fide, then is the Deity also not bona fide? ... SP: Then there is no question of mantra. There is no question of worshiping Deity. These are all bogus things. If you are not... Just like here is a young medical man. If he has not received instruction from a bona fide medical college, so what is the value of his medical [...] What is the technical name? Devotee: Quack... SP: A quack is not a medical man, however he may show all red bottles, white bottles... But generally, one who is not a bona fide doctor, he is called a quack. So anything, experience required, not that you have to go to the medical college. If you are trained under a bona fide doctor, then also you can get the quality of a doctor. Similarly, the whole thing is tad-vijnanartham sa gurum evabhigacchet. One should go to the bona fide spiritual master to learn this transcendental science. (SP Lecture Dec. 23, 1970)

That ISKCON devotees are for the most part not eating prasadam explains how many of them cannot seem to understand philosophical issues, such as the initiation and guru issues. It is prasadam that clears up the consciousness and makes a devotee transcendently intelligent. Otherwise we remain dull-headed, unable to grasp the depth of Srila Prabhupada's teachings due to eating only sin. "The devotees of the Lord are released from all kinds of sins because they eat food which is offered first for sacrifice. Others, who prepare food for personal sense enjoyment, verily eat only sin." This verse (BGita 3.13) confirms these conclusions. By interjecting their impure selves between devotees and the actual disciplic succession, being nothing more than a barrier and a disconnection from Srila Prabhupada, the unauthorized gurus in ISKCON are poisoning the mission and the lives of devotees with sin. Such a devious and hypocritical act will not go unpunished. These little Hiranyakashipus who are knowingly exploiting devotees to maintain their status of phony exaltation will be corrected by the Lord's arrangement in due course. The most evil feature of ISKCON's prasadam charade is their knowing, selfish obstruction of the innocent devotees' advancement in spiritual life. Prasadam...? Not!

Although perhaps sometimes troublesome, one must always be sure whether so-called prasadam is actually spiritualized food, having been transformed by following the exact and proper method as taught by Srila Prabhupada. Attending any temple, Govinda's restaurant, home program, or "prasadam" distribution, one must be sure it is real prasadam or risk eating bhoga (or worse when the food is infected with the diseased consciousness of bogus gurus). Perhaps this is how the "dreaded acharya disease" has spread through ISKCON, namely by the means of phony prasadam. These highly questionable situations should be avoided. Bhoga infected by impure souls should be rejected, even if tasty, lest one's consciousness become defiled. If karmi-cooked food infects the consciousness with the impurities of the karmi cooks, then what of food offered to ISKCON gurus? We may think in those situations, 'Better that I offer it properly before taking this food, just to make sure it is actual prasadam.' But the food in question, depending on how it was prepared and with what consciousness, strictly speaking may be both unofferable and inedible. Srila Prabhupada said devotees should take a vow to never eat anything not first offered to Lord Krishna, which must be done by the three prayers he taught to us. Then it will be prasadam, otherwise not, plain and simple. Deluded belief that a conditioned soul can transform food into prasadam will not make it happen.

Another quote about following strictly is: "So do not think that 'We have made such nice, sumptuous plate for Krishna. Krishna must eat.' No. There is no such thing, 'must.' You cannot make Krishna must. That is not possible. So Krishna will see how much you have love for Him. Then He will accept. Otherwise He'll reject. Therefore, it is forbidden, those who are nondevotee, those who are not initiated, those who are not chanting regularly, their offering to Krishna will not be accepted. We must be very careful. We must know our position, whether I am sincerely following the principles of devotional service. Then Krishna will accept. Yo me bhaktya prayacchati. The real thing is bhakti. So either you offer Krishna prayers or you offer foodstuff, everything must be along with bhakti, devotion, love. Then Krishna will accept. (SPLecture May 6, 1973)

GAURA KESHAVA DAS HAS BEEN AN ERRANT INFLUENCE

Widely known as a learned brahmana and scholar, Gaura Keshava das, a direct Srila Prabhupada disciple, resided in Los Angeles in the 80's and 90's. As a leading member of the Shastric Advisory Council (SAC), he became ISKCON's advisor brahmana and toured ISKCON widely by invitation, training brahmanas and pujaris. Based upon his opinion after studying shastra, other sampradayas, Gaudiya Math, and "technicalities," he advocated reversing the order of offering in temple or home altar worship, from ascending to descending with Krishna first to the ISKCON conditioned "guru" last. Most of ISKCON in India, Europe, Australia adopted the changed deity worship procedures, which was supported by Jayapataka, Bhavananda, and others. ISKCON pujaris mentally seek the permission (a meaningless exercise of imagination) of their conditioned "guru's" photo on the altar and then make offerings first to Radha Krishna, then to Gaur Nitai, the Guru parampara, and then last to Srila Prabhupada and their respective "guru." But this was not the system of how to offer aratis as taught by Srila Prabhupada where we offer first to Srila Prabhupada, then previous acharyas, and up to Gaura Nitai and finally Radha Krishna. Srila Prabhupada emphatically warned us not to make changes after his physical disappearance, but ISKCON has boldly made many changes, and continually makes more changes. This was adopted largely to solve the problem of conditioned “gurus” not being spiritually able to pass the worship up the discipic succession. A new problem arose: can a conditioned “guru” spiritually induce Krishna to accept worship directly? The contradictions and anomalies (Ch. 91) that compound and multiply when ISKCON adopts defective initiation and guru policies cannot be solved with more defective doctrines.

We agree that ISKCON gurus are not in a position to receive and pass on the offerings and worship up the parampara. But this does not mean that the process of deity worship must be changed to accommodate those who do not represent the parampara. Most deity worship changes took place when ISKCON “guru” Bhavananda was discovered in homosexual relations. The question arose whether his disciples should first offer to him, or to Krishna and then to him, and the GBC decided that he should not be offered bhoga, but only prasadam, for his own good and that of others. Later Bhavananda lost his guru status, but the policy remained because guru deviations had become a regular affair. This was a quiet end to all that advertisement and self promotion about them being pure devotees and liberated souls. ISKCON has changed the process of deity worship, adopting the descending sequence that is practiced in Gaudiya Math temples. However, some temples like ISKCON Los Angeles are still offering in the original ascending order. Gaura Keshava wrote March 29, 2009: “...do we follow Srila Prabhupada’s personal example or the shastra that he gave us? My contention is that we must follow the shastra that he has given us, and we must not imitate his personal example when it does not technically follow shastra. So the system of arotik in all Gaudiya Vaishnava temples is to first pay obeisance to the guru and take his permission for worshipping Lord Krishna. Then worship Krishna first and then Radha then Mahaprabhu and the guru parampara in descending (senior to junior) order, lastly the arotik items are to be offered to the assembled devotees. In ISKCON Srila Prabhupada instituted another order offering the items to the guru first. In this case the item cannot technically be offered afterwards to the Lord having first been enjoyed by the guru. This is technically not correct. Therefore we must in this case follow shastra and adapt our worship method to the one followed by all Vaishnava sampradayas. The doctrine or principle of worshipping the guru first is correct but the technicality of HOW that is to be done is incorrect. By the way, this system is followed in most temples in Europe where I standardized the deity worship in the 1980’s. It is not followed in some temples like Los Angeles because some Prabhupada disciples find it difficult to accept and they have no experience of the correct technical details as practiced in India. Sincerely, Gaura Keshava das”

But this analysis is deeply defective and offensive to Srila Prabhupada. The guru does not “enjoy” the item for himself. We offer to him, because he is the via medium. The entire parampara is the via medium, transparent window to Sri Krishna. We cannot go before Krishna and hand over directly to Him what we want to offer Him. We offer to the spiritual master, who passes it on to his spiritual master, who in turn passes it to his, and so on, all the way up through the line of discipic succession to Sri Krishna. If the bona fide spiritual master is a liberated person, as is confirmed in shastra, then he is always situated in the mode of service, not enjoyment; he is free from desire for personal sense gratification or enjoyment, thinking only how to please his spiritual master and the Supreme Lord. Moreover, we are confident that Srila Prabhupada has not contradicted shastra. His scholarship was unparalleled— throughout his books and lectures and conversations he freely cited passages from so many different sources— the Upanishads, Puranas, Vedanta Sutras, Srimad-Bhagavatam, Bhagavad-gita, Brahma-samhita, Chaitanya-charitamrita, the Six Goswami’s writings— all of which were known to him. To suggest he did not know what was in shastra is ridiculous and impudent. Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati wrote in “Thakur Bhaktivinode” this: “What are the Scriptures? They are nothing but the record by the pure devotees of the Divine Message appearing on the lips of the pure devotees. The Message conveyed by the devotees is the same in all ages. The words of the devotees are ever identical with the Scriptures. Any meaning of the Scriptures that belittles the function of the devotee who is the original communicant of the Divine Message contradicts its own claim to be heard. Those who think that the Sanskrit language in its lexicographical sense is the language of the Divinity are as deluded as those who hold that the Divine Message is communicable through any other spoken dialects. All languages simultaneously express and hide the Absolute. The mundane face of all languages hides the Truth. The Transcendental face of all sound expresses nothing but the Absolute. The pure devotee is the speaker of the Transcendental language. The Transcendental Sound makes His appearance on the lips of His pure devotee."

But what shastra did Srila Prabhupada contradict? Srila Prabhupada's warning was that the disciple should not think himself smarter than the spiritual master, that he should remain a fool before him. Has Gaura Keshava fallen into the category of smarta-brahmanas, those attached to rules, regulations, and flowery language in the Vedas, missing the principle of humble obedience and service to the pure devotee? "A disciple is always in deficiency before his spiritual master. Just like Chaitanya Mahaprabhu says, guru more murkha dekhi karila shashana [CC Adi 7.71]: 'My spiritual master saw Me a fool number one. Therefore he has chastised Me.' So disciple should be always ready to be chastised. He should not think that he has become perfect. That is perfection. So long he thinks that he is not perfect – he's to be chastised – then he's perfect. And as soon as he thinks that he has become perfect, he's nonsense immediately, nonsense number one. [...] Chaitanya Mahaprabhu said [...] 'My spiritual master saw Me a fool number one.' Was He fool number one? He's God Himself. But that is the position. [...] Then he's perfect." (SPConv Apr. 8, 1975) A disciple's position is to simply accept Srila Prabhupada's instructions and teachings as the yardstick for everything, and to reject anything and anyone who does not agree with Srila Prabhupada. If Gaura Keshava does not accept the absolute authority of Srila Prabhupada, but only that of shastras, then we have to conclude that he presumes to be more intelligent and more knowledgeable than Srila Prabhupada, and we will thus reject Gaura Keshava das and his advice. "Do not change anything." (Srila Prabhupada)

DEITY DRESSING, ARATI CHANGES, FOOD OFFERINGS

Sometimes deities have been dressed as Santa Claus (ISKCON Northern Ireland), in Christmas or St. Patrick colors, in T-shirt, jeans, and cell phone (Bunki Bihari, Vrindaban), or in other unauthorized styles or dress. In ISKCON we must stick to the authorized methods and styles as approved by Srila Prabhupada. No one can be allowed to introduce contradictory things into ISKCON different from what Srila Prabhupada instructed. Srila Prabhupada, permanent Founder-Acharya of ISKCON/World Hare Krishna Movement, taught us how to offer food to Lord Krishna. Srila Prabhupada taught and established the ISKCON standards during his manifest presence. He never changed that system; it is what we must follow as per his wishes and instructions, which are to be followed with no time limit. Some more citations from Srila Prabhupada and elsewhere:

(1) Chaitanya-Bhagavata Madhya Kanda, 20.6-9: TEXT: At that time Murari Gupta came there and offered obeisances at the lotus feet of the Lord. The greatly effulgent Murari Gupta next offered obeisances to Nityananda and then stood before Them. The Lord was very pleased with Murari, so He spoke to him without duplicity, "O Murari, what you have just done is not proper. You have transgressed etiquette while offering obeisances. PURPORT: Murari Gupta offered obeisances first to Lord Gaurasundara and then to Lord Nityananda Prabhu. Objecting to the sequence of Murari Gupta's obeisances, Mahaprabhu told him, "You have a misconception regarding Baladeva's senior position and My own junior position. Especially since you are a devotee of Sri Balarama. The conclusion is that if the Supreme Lord is worshipped without first worshiping Sri Guru and Jagad Guru, the proper sequence is broken." In common language there is a saying: ghoda dingaiya ghasa khaite nai—"One should not jump over the horse to eat the grass." Without the mercy of Sri Guru, no one is qualified to serve the Supreme Lord. (2) "Krishna has so many forms, and which ever form you worship it is all the same, but you should worship that form which you like most. Regarding the means of worship, our Vaishnava process is first offer respects to the Spiritual Master, then Lord Chaitanya, and then Lord Krishna." (SPL Tamal KG May 15, 1970) (3) "We begin from our first disciplic succession. Vande 'ham sri-guroh [...] 'I offer my respectful obeisances unto the lotus feet of my guru, spiritual master...' And then, his guru, his guru, his guru, they're all Vaishnavas. ...Sri-rupam. Then we offer respect to Sri Rupa

Goswami. [...] All the Goswamis, six Goswamins. [...] Sanatana Goswami was the elder brother of Rupa Goswami, and Rupa Goswami accepted him as his spiritual master. [...] Associated by Raghunatha. There are two Raghunathas: Raghunatha dasa Goswami and Raghunatha Bhatta Goswami. Sa-jivam, with Jiva Goswami. This is the process. [...] Then we go to Chaitanya Mahaprabhu's status: sadvaitam savadhutam. That is also... First of all, Advaita Gosani, then Nityananda [...] Krishna, and He has got innumerable servants. Krishna is Mahaprabhu, and all others, they are prabhus. And the spiritual master who has got many prabhus to abide by his order, he is addressed as Prabhupada. This is the system. [...] After offering all these obeisances to Goswamis, to guru, and Advaita, Nityananda, then you come to Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. Then Sri Radha. Not Krishna directly. [...] Radha-Krishna means They are always associated by the gopis, of whom Lalita-Vishakha are the chief out of the ashta-sakhis. So this is the parampara system." (SPlecture Oct. 8, 1971) (4) "So this is the parampara system. As you receive knowledge step by step... Narayan, Krishna, instructed Vyasadeva. ... Brahma instructed Narada. Narada instructed Vyasadeva. Vyasadeva instructed his disciple Madhvacharya. In this way we have to go through also, in the same way. First of all, offer respect to the spiritual master, as he has done to Sukadeva Goswami. [...] So then his spiritual master, then his spiritual master, then his spiritual master, then his spiritual master. Just like you have got the pictures. [...] ultimately Krishna. This is the process. Don't try to approach Krishna directly, jump over. That is useless. As you receive knowledge through the steps, parampara system, similarly, we should approach Krishna through these steps." (SPlecture May 28, 1974)

THREE PRAYERS FOR OFFERING PRASADAM

The following 3 prayers are progressively recited 3 times each; thus Srila Prabhupada taught us to offer our food to Krishna. Of course, what we offer is restricted and must be prepared properly.

(1) nama om visnu-padaya krsna-presthaya bhu-tale srimate bhaktivedanta-svamin iti namine namas te sarasvate deve gaura-vani-pracarine nirvisea-sunyavadi-pascatya-desatarine

(I offer my respectful obeisances unto His Divine Grace A. C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada, who is very dear to Lord Krishna, having taken shelter at His lotus feet. Our respectful obeisances are unto you, O spiritual master, servant of Sarasvati Goswami. You are kindly preaching the message of Lord Chaitanyadeva and delivering the Western countries, which are filled with impersonalism and voidism.)

(2) namo maha-vadanyaya krishna-prema-pradaya te krishnaya krishna-chaitanya namine gaura-tvishe namaha

(I offer my respectful obeisances unto the Supreme Lord Sri Krishna Chaitanya, who is more magnanimous than any other incarnation, even Krishna Himself, because He is bestowing freely what no one else has ever given pure love of Krishna.)

(3) namo-brahmanya-devaya go brahmana hitaya cha jagad-hitaya krishnaya govindaya namo namaha

(I offer my respectful obeisances to the Supreme Absolute Truth, Krishna, who is the well-wisher of the cows and the brahmanas as well as the living entities in general. I offer my repeated obeisances to Govinda [Krishna], who is the pleasure reservoir for all the senses.)

HOW TO OFFER FOOD AND WORSHIP

Devotion is the key ingredient in offering prasadam. There are many methods of self-realization, but Lord Krishna is most pleased by devotional service. We should offer to food to Krishna with love and affection for Him. Material nature, including foods, is divided into three different modes: goodness, passion and ignorance. We only offer sattvic foods, in the mode of goodness, to Lord Krishna. These foods are strictly vegetarian, meaning they have no traces of meat, fish or eggs, and also prohibited are a few other items such as garlic, onions, and stimulants such as caffeine. Lord Krishna is also known as Govinda, meaning one who gives protection and pleasure to cows. Milk products and sweets are some of Krishna's favorite foods. When preparing prasadam, we should make sure our cooking area is very clean. Food should be prepared on cookware that is especially reserved for Krishna in a kitchen that is not contaminated by meat, fish, or eggs. When the food has finished cooking, we should arrange portions on a nice plate or dishes specifically reserved for Krishna. No one else should eat off this plate. We should think of Lord Krishna as the primary guest in our house, and thus He should be the first one to taste the food. We should not taste the food, nor subtly enjoy it with the eyes or nose, prior to offering. Once Krishna's plate is arranged with food, we take the plate and offer it on an altar in front of a picture of Srila Prabhupada, who is the only perfected person we know can actually offer it to Krishna on our behalf. For beginners or the general public, offering can be encouraged by bowing down and repeating the full Hare Krishna mantra three times. However, devotees aspiring to follow the standard methods that Srila Prabhupada established for ISKCON should bow down while ringing a bell, and repeat the three prasadam mantras three times each, then chant the Hare Krishna mantra at the end. Then we leave the altar area and let Krishna enjoy the food with some privacy and respect. After 5-15 minutes we remove the plate from the altar, clean His plates, and store them nicely. No one should take the prasadam until the Lord's plates are cleaned. All the cooked preparations that were represented on His plate have now become prasadam and can be eaten and distributed. It is Krishna's mercy, transformed by the spiritual touch of the Lord Who kindly left some or all of it for our spiritual satisfaction. Krishna does not need to consume food like us in order to enjoy it, which He can do with any of His senses such as His eyes or ears.

OTHER PRASADAM AND ALTAR RULES AND GUIDELINES

While cooking, avoid smelling the preparations, or looking at them with desire, as they are meant exclusively for Krishna's satisfaction, not ours. Also do not talk idly while cooking for Krishna; best to meditate fully to do this service nicely. Cooking pots and utensils should not be used for eating, for which separate plates and utensils should be used. After eating, one should wash before touching any of the Lord's pots and utensils again, such as when serving prasadam or when returning for seconds. We should vow that nothing will ever enter our mouths unless it is first properly offered. Bhoga (unoffered food) should be offered to Krishna via Srila Prabhupada, who we fully trust as a pure devotee, as only pure devotees are able to offer to Krishna. Pure devotees never fall down, and by taking only prasadam we will not fall down either. Srila Prabhupada's two verse pranam mantras are meant only for him, and it is an offensive insult to substitute anyone else's name in his pranam mantras. Srila Prabhupada is "servant of Saraswati Goswami," (Bhaktisiddhanta), not us.

The GBC passed a resolution in 1995 that the GBC-elected initiating gurus must not have their own photos on the altar, neither in the same size, or on the same or higher level as Srila Prabhupada's photo (also in publications, exhibits, etc). To do so is a minimization of Srila Prabhupada's stature and position as the permanent founder-acharya of ISKCON. This GBC resolution was one their few good ones, though it is not really enforced. ISKCON "guru" disciples do as they wish in "their" temples or at home, and they are not trained how to properly honor Srila Prabhupada by their gurus who want that honor for themselves. Article worship articles should be offered to Srila Prabhupada first, then up the disciplic chain, to Radharani and then Krishna (or Balarama, then Krishna, or Nityananda then Chaitanya). After Krishna, then articles may be offered to the Prabhupada deity, then the devotees. The essence is the devotion and keeping Srila Prabhupada in the center. Devotion compels one to follow the detailed rules. Krishna prasadam should be honored, not thrown out, even a little grain or speck, but may be given to other living entities. Care should be taken not to allow spoiling, but rather honoring (eating) until all is enthusiastically consumed. If we change the methods of deity worship as taught by Srila Prabhupada, our worship will be ineffective and spoiled. What is the difficulty? For ISKCON Bangalore's well researched, documented deity worship handbook: (vakd@iskconbangalore.org)

CHAPTER 119: SECULARITY AND LIBERALISM

Because the actual principle in ISKCON is that everything facilitates the guru franchises, whenever something arises that interferes with this basic principle, adjustments and compromises are made to maintain the guru interests. This is a subtle underpinning that is easy to recognize. In response to the world's moving towards secularity and liberalism, away from spirituality, ISKCON has steadily, incrementally accommodated the increasingly materialistic culture rather than defend the teachings of the Founder-Acharya, which even are often openly spoken of as outdated or in need of revision, adjustment, footnoting, or modernizing. Thus the gurus preach less and less Krishna consciousness as they appeal to people's political, secular, and mutating cultural values with material distinctions. Accommodation with women's liberation, homo/pan-sexuality, mundane education, "sanitized" Krishna West, medical tyranny, censorship, etc have eroded ISKCON's fundamental purity and its adherence to Srila Prabhupada's legacy. Mundane popularity and political correctness is given precedence over the verdict of shastra and Srila Prabhupada's teachings. Homosexual pujaris, gay marriages, sensual dancing, body consciousness, immodest dressing, women's loose association with men/sannyasis, patriotism, mundane welfare/charity, and so on... have become normal and standard. Srila Prabhupada's movement has thus been very significantly adulterated, as liberalism, secularity, and materialism has seeped into the ISKCON institution in disturbing ways. ISKCON is now a mundane church and not the transcendental institution Srila Prabhupada created to uplift humanity with Krishna consciousness.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY IRISH GREEN RATHAYATRA?

Incredibly, in London the ISKCON centers are now organizing an all-green St. Patrick's Day Irish Rathayatra, depicting Lord Jagannath appearing in a poster with a green top hat and leprechauns. The ratha cart is green, not red. This is not Hinduization, but something like Irish-ization. What will it take to keep our transcendental culture from being lost to the influences of maya? Other photos of this annual festival have shown devotees dressed in green "Irish" costumes with masks. What is the need for this compromise with mundane so-called culture? Why do we become like them instead of trying to make them like us (Krishna devotees)?

Srila Prabhupada wanted to introduce the Vedic culture around the world, not modify it with mundane "culture" so that it becomes lost... It is amazing how far off-track ISKCON has gone with its mission-drift and accommodations of the materialistic civilization.

EQUAL WOMEN'S RIGHTS AND FEMALE DIKSHA GURUS

As of 2017 ISKCON had still not finalized approval of any female diksha gurus, although theoretically the idea was passed by the GBC, but then blocked by "reactive" elements, primarily the temples in India. Although Srila Prabhupada gave no instructions for female gurus, what to speak of anyone, male or female, becoming a diksha guru without his order, which was never given, still, perhaps half of devotees believe that women should be allowed to offer themselves as diksha gurus. This is due to being influenced by modern liberal society, the pressure of which is intense, especially when it encourages pursuit of personal ambitions. Of course, it hasn't helped that sannyasis and many ISKCON men were seriously misogynistic and prejudiced, practicing unfair discrimination, psychological and emotional abuse, with the resultant reactionary pushback for revenge or mundane social justice. What a mess. Now the pendulum is swinging from discriminatory to excessively permissive. Murari das on the controversy and discussion (2015, excerpts, see also Ch. 150):

"Often the nature of schism is such that while there is a conflict, both sides do not know that they are in the midst of an impending schism until it is too late. Both sides feel that they are right and keep pushing and causing a bigger and bigger rift. The planned implementation of Female Diksha Gurus (FDG) in ISKCON is such an issue which is threatening to tear apart the social fabric of the ISKCON community. On the one hand we have the GBC which is pushing more and more for liberalization and secularization of ISKCON by implementing changes or planning to implement changes such as: Introduction of women leaders (GBCs, temple presidents etc.), Formation of Vaishnavi women's ministry, Allowing female bodied devotees to give class in situations where there are qualified men to give class, Introducing the concept of FDGs in ISKCON. And on the other hand there are those who want that any policy or activity of ISKCON should be according to a "traditionalist" understanding of the teachings of Srila Prabhupada. There have been disagreements between these two sides on various issues such as whether or not insert footnotes in the books of Srila Prabhupada, should kirtan standards be regulated, should mundane welfare work be one of the activities we engage in, should philosophical purity be strictly maintained in the movement by pointing any instances of deviations out to concerned preachers or speaker, etc.

"This latest issue of FDGs is the most contentious. One of the elements of the opposing sides is the ISKCON India Advisory Council (IIAC). This is a council of ISKCON temple leaders of India. Although Varnasaram Dharma is waning and immorality is rearing its ugly head, India is still the most pious place on the globe. So, adherence to the teachings of shastra is generally strong here and although there may be small or subtle deviations here and there, generally gross deviations and anything going against general Vedic culture is not much appreciated in India. Devotees in ISKCON India in particular therefore, have been resenting the liberalization or compromising of standards such as allowing women to give class, inducting women leaders and most recently the proposal to introduce FDGs in ISKCON, all of which is generally against shastra. To this effect IIAC, has forthrightly rejected the resolution on FDG which means that whatever the outcome of the final debate about FDG, it will not be implemented in India at all. This is quite a far reaching statement as for many years India has been the best performing part of ISKCON where new temples are being opened every year and devotees are joining ISKCON en masse. India is also one of the most financially stable sections of ISKCON. Comparing this to North America and Europe where there is hardly any local congregation in the temples, finances are not so good and there is markedly less growth, and we can see why India is such an important place for ISKCON.

*"Thus far the opposition among ISKCON's Indian members has been merely vocal and passive. Over the years the introduction of changes as listed above, have been protested but largely tolerated. But the FDG issue caused an unprecedented reaction to even if only implemented outside of India. Also, the devotees opposing these changes are not only in India, but all over the world. The worst case scenario would be schism of ISKCON along the lines of whether to fully base everything on Srila Prabhupada's directions concerning the secondary social role of women (discussed extensively by Bhakti Vikasa Swami in Women: Masters or Mothers?) or to go along with the modern materialistic civilization and adjust ISKCON. Thus it is hoped that all further liberalization changes are halted or even reversed and both sides enter into dialogue and finally agree on how to take the ISKCON movement forward as a force of change as Srila Prabhupada intended: 'I wish that it will be noted down in history that this Krishna Consciousness Movement is responsible for saving the world. Practically, our Movement is the only hope for saving the world from complete disaster. So you have got all good opportunity now, do everything very nicely.' (SPL Sucandra Jan. 1, 1972) Let us tread cautiously and not do anything to cause a major schism or that will make generations of devotees criticize our actions."*

SECULARIZATION OF THE HARE KRISHNA MOVEMENT

From Burke Rochford's 2007 book (p. 179) Hare Krishna Transformed: "Religious movements require effective and legitimate leadership if they are to grow and prosper [...] Moreover, rank-and-file members must perceive themselves as active players in that system of authority [...] As Chaves argues, organizational or internal secularization grows from the shrinking influence of social structures whose legitimization rests on the world of the supernatural [...] ISKCON's GBC and guru structures of authority lost legitimacy in the eyes of large portions of ISKCON's first- and second-generation members. The resulting crisis of authority had far-reaching consequences for ISKCON's development as a religious organization. Internally, the leadership's weakened authority had a substantial influence on members' commitment and levels of ISKCON involvement. It also gave women the political opportunity to advance their pro-change agenda. In addition, ISKCON's crisis of authority led to individual and group defection, organizational switching, insurgency, schism, and the rise of independent householder communities. By the mid-1980's this outpouring of devotees left ISKCON's North American communities struggling to survive. [...] The dramatic decline in temple residents, combined with the limited contributions of ISKCON's congregation, left local ISKCON temples with a critical shortage of labor and other resources. Although women were called on to fill a variety of administrative positions, such as temple president, many communities lacked the routine labor required to keep them functioning. By the mid-1980's, virtually all of ISKCON's communities were forced to rely on devotee labor from developing countries to meet their needs [...] Many devotees from these countries are eager to go to N. America in hopes of securing 'green cards' and resident status. Yet imported devotee labor has been associated with the further weakening of ISKCON's North American communities. By the beginning of the new millennium, what remained of ISKCON's residential communities was populated largely by devotees from overseas. Although imported devotee labor helped offset labor shortages, ISKCON's communities continued to face persistent and grave financial problems. [...] ISKCON leaders tried to alleviate this financial crisis by cultivating local congregations of Indian Hindu immigrants. In doing so, however, ISKCON's religious culture and identity underwent yet further change."

FROM ISKCON REFORM MOVEMENT (2006) RE: ISKCON SECULARIZATION

"We provided illustrations of how ISKCON has deviated from the original mission of its founder and Guru, Srila Prabhupada, as the message of pure Krishna consciousness has become diluted. From selling courses on mantra meditation, to "soul mate yoga," to demigod worship and opening a school which teaches the syllabus of the government, ISKCON's descent into commercialisation continues unabated. This dilution of one's spiritual principles, in an attempt to become more mainstream, is more accurately known as "secularisation," with commercialisation being merely one symptom of this spiritual dilution. As ISKCON's own Communications Journal notes, secularization is: 'change in the direction of accommodation with mainstream cultures.' However, ISKCON's mission is supposed to be to influence the mainstream culture to adopt Krishna consciousness, and not the other way around. Nowhere was this trend towards accommodation of both the wider "Hindu" and mainstream culture more apparent than at this year's Sri Krishna Janmashthami festival at ISKCON's UK headquarters, Bhaktivedanta Manor where, in the drive to appease the Hindu dollar, the focus on Srila Prabhupada's teachings seems to have been lost - as we illustrate below.

"KEYNOTE SPEAKER: Previously, the following warning was given by Bhaktivedanta Manor's one-time GBC representative and voted-in guru, HH Shivarama Swami: 'In July, a well-known Hindu organization launched a worldwide yatra on the grounds of Bhaktivedanta Manor. To preside over the function, they invited many spiritual leaders. [...] When I saw the mélange of spiritual dignitaries, I had second thoughts. On the stage were to be two yogis, a guru, a Sankaracharya, and myself - compromising association! [...] I felt that you, Srila Prabhupada, our Society, and Krishna had been grievously offended.' (Shivarama Swami, 2002)

"However, the keynote speaker at this year's Janmashthami festival at Bhaktivedanta Manor was the famous Indian yogi-guru Swami Ramdevji Maharaja. According to the Maharaja's bio, he is: '...the first, in the world health history, to use freely available Pran (Oxygen) as a medicine and in turn succeeds to cure thousands of grief stricken persons suffering from lethal diseases like Diabetes [...]' In this regard Srila Prabhupada, the Founder of ISKCON's Bhaktivedanta Manor, states: 'The guru does not mean that I keep a guru. So as order-supplier "My dear guru, I am suffering from this. Can you give me some medicine?" "Yes, yes. Take this medicine." "Yes." Not that guru. If you are suffering from some disease, you go to a physician. It is not guru's business to give you some medicine. A guru's business is to give you Krishna.' (SP Lecture Aug. 7, 1973)

"So while the Maharaja may have excellent credentials as a healer, we do question the wisdom of the Manor's management in selecting him as their keynote speaker on Lord Krishna's appearance day, particularly in light of both Srila Prabhupada's teachings and the warning given by their own previous GBC!

“CHARITY PURPOSE CONTRARY TO GITA: The secular approach to religion was continued via the promotion of ‘Hindu Aid,’ a charity which was allowed to distribute a brochure at the Janmashatmi festival that directly contradicted the teachings of Srila Prabhupada. Just one of the brochure’s statements to illustrate the point: Hindu Aid: ‘For Hindus, serving humanity is like serving God.’ But: ‘In the Bgita is there such statement, that “Service to humanity is service to God”? Is there any statement? There is no. This is wrong theory. Don't maintain this. This is a very wrong theory [...] why do you say like that? And Krishna says openly, mam ekam saranam vraja. He doesn't even recommend to worship demigods. [...] So these are imagination, concoction. They are not authorized.’ (SPConv Apr 24, 1977) ISKCON's liberalism contrasts with their attitude to anyone who dares to utter that Srila Prabhupada is the Guru of ISKCON, who are subject to bans and violence.”

“HUMAN CHAIN IS FESTIVAL HIGHLIGHT: The Hindu Forum of Britain, whose Spiritual Commissioner is the Manor’s Temple President Gauri das, issued the following statement about Janmashthami celebrations: ‘The highlight of the festival is a human chain to pray for the victims of terror and war.’ This ‘highlight’ was to take place as the time approached for Krishna’s divine appearance at midnight. So instead of being urged to meditate on the divine appearance of the Lord, the real highlight of Janmashthami, instead thousands were encouraged to meditate and pray for the victims of the many political problems engulfing the planet. (END)

WOMEN: MASTERS OR MOTHERS? ISKCON CATERS TO WOMEN LIBERALISTS

Recently one of ISKCON’s “fundamental/conservative” initiating gurus, Bhakti Vikasa Swami, published a book called Women: Masters or Mothers? It contains 218 quotes from Srila Prabhupada and defends the Vedic role of women in varnashrama society. It immediately became extremely controversial and liberalists protested so vigorously that the GBC banned the book worldwide, then backed off somewhat, stating instead that the opinions were only those of the author and did not represent the views of ISKCON (or Srila Prabhupada?) Modern women and many of the female participants in ISKCON do not appreciate that they were created to be chaste and shy. Bhakti Vikasa Swami defended his book: The Book Ban: What’s At Stake:

“The very title ‘Harmonizing Our Preaching Efforts’ sets the tenor of the (GBC) resolution by its striking euphemism. Harmonize means ‘to bring into consonance or accord,’ but there was no attempt on the part of the GBC to reach accord with me, despite my repeated pleas for discussion. What the GBC resolution calls harmonization is rather an attempt to crush a voice that it doesn’t like—in this case, a voice that harmonizes with the thrust of Srila Prabhupada’s social teachings. The GBC resolution uses doublespeak that implements a distinctly political agenda. (Granted, not every GBC member voted for this resolution. But as with every resolution, it reflects on the whole body, which as an institution speaks with one voice.”

“GBC: Whereas the GBC Body accepts that many different understandings of the teachings of Srila Prabhupada and shastra, and many different understandings of what constitutes effective preaching, exist amongst ISKCON devotees, and this, in general, is a healthy situation; Whereas when one ISKCON devotee’s well-meaning preaching efforts, work at cross purposes with the preaching efforts of others, it is the responsibility of ISKCON’s leadership to step in and take regulative action that it considers will be most favorable for the fulfillment of the objectives of ISKCON;”

“The GBC seeks to suppress a book that points out the increasing secularization of ISKCON and our need to fulfill Srila Prabhupada’s mandate for a varnashrama-based society instead. It appears, without directly stating it, the GBC has redefined Srila Prabhupada’s socio-religious objectives of ISKCON. GBC: Whereas when publications are sold or promoted on ISKCON premises it gives the impression that ISKCON as a whole is endorsing the contents of such publications;”

According to this statement, many questionable books thus have the indirect imprimatur of the GBC. "GBC: Whereas the book, "Women: Masters or Mothers" by Bhakti Vikasa Swami, has been seen to cause misunderstanding of Srila Prabhupada's instructions,

What are the concrete examples of this? What exactly is the correct understanding of Srila Prabhupada's instructions that the GBC infers that it knows, and how does WMM violate that? The resolution should specify what misunderstandings WMM has caused. Otherwise it remains just a list of allegations. Please let the GBC define the proper understanding, especially in regard to its statement: "many different understandings of the teachings of Srila Prabhupada and shastra... exist amongst ISKCON devotees, and this, in general, is a healthy situation." In presenting the supposedly right understanding from which they insist WMM deviates, the GBC will have to refute the dozens of quotes from Srila Prabhupada given in WMM. But in doing that, the resolution itself, and not WMM, would most certainly cause tremendous misunderstanding. ...alienation and polarization of many devotees, and it has the potential to create even more disruptions to many aspects of ISKCON's preaching work in the future; Ironically, banning this book has itself caused alienation and polarization of many devotees, probably much more than if the GBC had not banned this book.

GBC: Whereas the book contains statements advocating practices that are illegal in the majority of countries in the world, notably polygamy, child marriage and child labor; The opinions expressed by Bhakti Vikasa Swami in his book Women: Masters or Mothers are solely those of the author in his private capacity and do not necessarily reflect the views and practices of ISKCON or its Founder-Acharya, Srila Prabhupada." [...] Srila Prabhupada himself advocated all these practices. WMM advocates, as does Srila Prabhupada, vocational training for children within the family—NOT child labor as an exploitive practice. This term 'child labor' is misleading and inflammatory. Stating this is unnecessary and overkill. ISKCON has no imprimatur system; any book authored by an ISKCON devotee does not officially represent ISKCON [...] the GBC tacitly declares [...] that I have deviated from properly understanding and representing Srila Prabhupada; thus, it implies, I am a heretic, unfit even for discussion before being publicly shamed. [...] this resolution will simply reinforce the conviction of many that the GBC itself is very poorly representing Srila Prabhupada. [...] rather than focusing on the spiritual master's order [...] neglected for 40 years, the direction from the GBC seems to be one of secularizing ISKCON, of trying to fit it into contemporary Western society rather than providing the social alternative that Srila Prabhupada wanted, of simple living/high thinking, varnasrama communities. Let's be clear what is at stake here. This book ban has nothing to do with harmonizing. It is realpolitik, a clear sign that activist elements within the GBC are determined to continue steering ISKCON away from the socio-religious norms that Srila Prabhupada repeatedly instructed for his society. WMM clearly demonstrates those ideals in Srila Prabhupada's own words. If this ban succeeds, it will be a victory for the forces behind ISKCON's currently increasing secularization. It will mark the end of hope, for the foreseeable future, of the GBC leading ISKCON toward where Srila Prabhupada said he wanted it to be. I therefore call on the responsible members of the GBC to take very seriously the need to reassess ISKCON's current trajectory, in light of Srila Prabhupada's numerous instructions in this regard, and to 'do the needful' in 'this momentous hour of need.'" (END)

PRINCIPLES OF LIBERAL SECULARIST DEMOCRACY CONFLICT WITH VEDIC SHASTRA

Trying to be seen as decent persons, men have caved in to the values of modern "civilization" and many women have become indignant campaigners for rights that they perceive as having been denied to them. They expect equality. If men can be gurus, why not women? If the sannyasis have their own ministry, why not one for women? If men can be GBC or temple presidents, why not women? Little reference is made to what Srila Prabhupada taught about the Vedic role of women in human society, and that is often disparaged as "backwards," "colonial," the remnants of "another culture," or in need of revision now that we have entered the modern age of democratic liberalism. An excerpt from an online article gives the feel of the discussion: "After all (conservatives in ISKCON take note!), the war is over. The homophobes lost. Sure, not everyone has received the memo, so legal and symbolic battles will still be fought for some time to come. But, as for your attempts to stand at the edge of the ocean and order the tide to recede – it's not happening. Homosexuality in general and gay marriage in particular have passed the tipping point of acceptability in mainstream Western culture. In India and the rest of the world, it's only a matter of time. But let's not get distracted. The real point here, at least as far as this missive is concerned, is how much the validity of liberal ISKCON depends on a revisionist's view of Prabhupada. Their conception of ISKCON's founder, 'the savior of the most fallen,' depends on an alchemical blend of wishful thinking and denial, informed mostly by their assumptions about what a saint should be. Because they can't imagine a "pure devotee" would be a misogynist, a racist, or a homophobe, they refuse to believe that Prabhupada could have been any of those things." CONCLUSION: We suggest those who cannot relate to Srila Prabhupada's teachings are welcome to go elsewhere, stay apart from the mission he founded and in which he remains the Founder-Acharya, and find or form another institution to their liking. ISKCON is not to be where popular opinions become the siddhanta of the day, nor a place to continuously shift with the changing values of mundane society. ISKCON is now a totally different entity than what it was during Srila Prabhupada's manifest presence. At this rate, ISKCON will be fully "harmonized" and assimilated into mundane society in another two generations, indistinguishable from all the cheating so-called spiritual organizations out there, completely liberalized, secularized, and materialized, beyond recognition to any faithful fundamentalist. This must be reversed, beginning by calling attention to the problem. A disease must first be correctly diagnosed; then the prescribed cure may be effective.

CHAPTER 120: THE KIRTAN SPOILED

"One night there was a darsana... I thought it was someone coming to Krishna consciousness that wanted to use their western rock and roll guitar style in service to Lord Chaitanya, and Srila Prabhupada was very adamant, and the guy kept bringing the point up two or three times and finally Srila Prabhupada said "No!" and he pointed, there was this beautiful picture of Panca-tattva on the wall of his room. He said 'You see Mahaprabhu; kartalas and mrdanga, that is all.'" (Caturatma das)

The magic of Srila Prabhupada's kirtans was amazing. He would just play kartals and sing seriously and melodiously, accompanied by kartals and mrdunga, with devotees replying, back and forth. His style was nectar, and his early followers loved sitting for an hour or more, twice a day, having this kind of kirtan. Srila Prabhupada taught the "swami step" and then up and down jump dancing, and always emphasized the Hare Krishna mantra. His kirtans were simple and sweet. But, since Srila Prabhupada disappeared, gradually the kirtans in the Hare Krishna movement have moved further (and further) away from that original standard. The American disease of changing things has seriously affected how kirtans are conducted, and today one is hard pressed to find kirtans like Srila Prabhupada himself did them. All manner of innovations, changes, evolutions, additions, speculations, and artistic license have rendered today's kirtans unrecognizable to the 1966-77 ones.

It is understood there are styles of kirtan other than what Srila Prabhupada gave us. Some of these styles come from other sampradayas, other Maths, but most are random evolutions from what Srila Prabhupada gave us, produced by influences such as impersonalists, modern musical fashions, or plain speculations. Of course anyone can do as they like, but if one is to "follow" Srila Prabhupada, then, as he taught, we should not make any changes to what he gave us. Otherwise we cannot be his followers, we become something else. We should not mix in other styles because, if Srila Prabhupada is our guru, then we must stick to what he taught without changes. We know that what he taught us is bona fide transcendental kirtan, and anything else risks making it ineffective as a material sound vibration. A disciple follows his guru. Much of the new kirtan in vogue today is bogus, manufactured out of the modes of nature, and although it may be exciting music and entertainment, it is not transcendental meditation. At best we will have watered down the potency. That there are “no hard and fast rules” in chanting the Holy Names does not mean “carte blanche;” what if we took LSD (like Jayatirtha) while chanting, is that bonafide? This is a broad subject, difficult to address it in a short space. The summary is, whatever Srila Prabhupada did or approved of, that should be our style of kirtan. Then we are sure to get the most spiritual benefit from kirtan. Kirtan is essential to our spiritual life and must be practiced in strict adherence to the teachings of Srila Prabhupada. It is like a razor blade, be careful...

COOPERATION BETWEEN ISKCON GURUS AND PSEUDO-BHAKTI KIRTANIYA SCENE

The wishy-washy, mayavadi, demigods, Hindu culture, and sahajiyaism trends are infecting ISKCON increasingly in the last decades. There is a subcultural circuit for “kirtan” and “bhajan” bands, many with very loose connection to ISKCON; BhaktiFest, Wonderlust, Kirtan Melas, and ShaktiFest are regular gatherings of pseudo-spiritualists and/or half-way devotees where various yoga practitioners, yoga instructors, spiritual seekers, etc congregate. E.g., Amma the hugging saint is part of this sub-culture that ISKCON gurus such as Indradumnya, Radhanath, Sacinandana Swamis, and others patronize and tap into, exuding their own charms, and canvassing for followers and influence, making connections and engagements. Mother Amma appeared for kirtans at the Washington, DC temple on June 24, 2012. Intertwined are Neem Karoli Baba’s disciples Baba Ram Dass and Krishna das, Jai Uttal, and “Hare Krishnas” such as the Mayapuris kirtan band, Gaura Vani, Radhanath and Sacinandana Swamis. ISKCON sannyasis and gurus mix with this crowd extensively, including sponsoring and co-partnering with non-Vaishnava so-called “kirtanias” who chant, sing, and perform with Hindu mantras, sometimes including the Hare Krishna mantra. Impersonalism, New Age, Hinduism, bogus yogis, pseudo-spiritualism, and western liberalism all merge into a very unique phenomenon in which thousands of western younger generation and post-hippie searchers commune and share their life style. Women are typically scantily or seductively dressed, and everyone hugs, smiles, and “loves.” Philosophies are vague, sentimental, even totally sahajiya. Sense gratification, social welfare activities, unique styles of music and “kirtan” with mixed western and Indian instruments, and engagements or tours attract participants for whose attention many compete, especially the recruiting gurus from various groups.

Often the non-Vaishnava kirtanias perform at ISKCON events, or ISKCON gurus and assistants attend their events, tours, or engagements. ISKCON leaders and devotees involved in this scene have compromised the proper presentation of Krishna consciousness as taught by Srila Prabhupada. Their lectures are designed to appeal to this scene, with undefined references to love, gratitude, service, humility, and enlightenment, and usually without reference to Krishna, bhakti, any of the four bona fide disciplic successions, Srila Prabhupada, or restriction of sense gratification. ISKCON gurus are singing Hare Krishna to various popular rock music hits such as the Rolling Stones, despite the obvious conflict of mood and the often difficult synergy, resulting in distraction and inattention to the mantra itself. Often the instruments prevail or dominate so that the music becomes more important and the mantra is incidental.

Srila Prabhupada preached to and engaged George Harrison to use his talent to attract others to Krishna and bhaktiyoga, and under Srila Prabhupada's inspiration he did that as a novice devotee. Do initiated, senior leaders of ISKCON need to follow Srila Prabhupada's example and model, or can they neglect the standards Srila Prabhupada set for his disciples? What then will distinguish us from all the pseudo-spiritualists?

SRILA PRABHUPADA REMOVED AND SIDELINED AS THE SOURCE OF KRISHNA KIRTAN

This is another facet of the ongoing minimization of Srila Prabhupada: facilitating, promoting, or just standing by without awareness as ISKCON leaders and many others introduce, or accept without protest, changes to the standards, tunes, "style," instruments, and mood of our kirtans. The kirtan has changed from what Srila Prabhupada gave and taught us. Rather than appreciate his great transcendental gift of kirtan, or Prabhupada Kirtan, it has become almost lost as we now sit with non-devotee kirtanias who lead us in music and singing instead of glorious prayer and praise of Lord Krishna. Often the mantras are not even Vedic, but songs written by imperfect souls, or mantras for demigods, mixed with sensuous or scandalous dancing. There is rarely any invocation of the kirtan by reciting pranams to Srila Prabhupada, as he is now largely forgotten. Srila Prabhupada engaged Allen Ginsburg, who was openly homosexual, in public chanting, who did so with harmonium and simple tunes. Anyone can chant Hare Krishna but one cannot chant it in any kind of way which violates the authorized principles given by Sri Guru.

BHAKTIVINODE'S ADVICE ON WHO TO JOIN IN KIRTAN

From Bhaktivinode Thakur's book Jaiva Dharma (Sarva bhavana das Ch. 24, p. 384): Vijaya: Gurudeva, I now understand that the mayavadis, karmis jnanis and yogis in general are all namaparadhis. Should a suddha bhakta participate in harinama sankirtan with them? Raghunatha das babaji: Vaishnavas are advised not to join an assembly of chanters that comprises a majority of namaparadhis, and also if the lead singer is a namaparadhi. However in a kirtana group consisting mainly of suddha bhaktas and bhaktas upon the platform of namabhasa there is all good reason to participate. And such participation will bring great satisfaction and spiritual bliss.

CHANGED KIRTANS OR CONCOCTED, SPECULATIVE KIRTANS

Very questionable or outright deviant changes to Srila Prabhupada's kirtan standards include: (1) Additions of Shiva, Ganesh, Durga, Om, or Hindu mantras. (2) All sorts of dance styles that are not to Srila Prabhupada's standards, such as break-dancing, the square-dancing arm-lock twirling, swinging someone horizontally in mid-air by their arms, "disco" motions like fists rotating in a circle around each other, etc. (3) Favoring other kinds of drums and instruments besides kartals, mrdunga, harmonium, sitar. Newcomers may bring their instruments but Srila Prabhupada followers should use the basic instruments that Srila Prabhupada told us to use. (4) Addition of all sorts of Jaya this and Jaya that at the start, middle or end of kirtans at the expense of time lost to chanting Hare Krishna mantra. (5) Jaya Gurudeva is impersonal- who does it refer to? (6) Once Baradvaja das sang Gaura Gaura in the Krishna Krishna... Krishna He tune, and Srila Prabhupada said never to do that again, being very upset. (7) Some musicians add elaborate electric guitar riffs into kirtan, or harmonizing choirs, or complex orchestrated combinations of various overlaid chants. (8) Screaming or crude shouting to convey enthusiasm or devotion. (9) "One time an Indian woman called [Shyama] Mataji who had some followers in Los Angeles came to visit the temple. Prabhupada let her stay at the temple [...] When he came back, she was gone. We had kirtan one night, and this Mataji had taught the ladies how to dance a circle dance where they went around in a circle and jumped in together toward the center and then came out again. So they turned in and turned out, and the ladies liked to do it and they were doing it when Prabhupada came back and we were having kirtan. Then afterwards he called in Tamal Krishna and said, 'Tell them to stop dancing like that. I did not teach them to do it that way. I don't want them dancing with each other, I want them dancing before the Deity.'" (Revatinanadana das, Aug. 28, 1995) (10) SP: "He chanted for some time and, of course, there was chanting of 'Nitai-Gaura.' He introduced new system of chanting: nitai-gaura radhe-syama. So the Nitai-Gaura chanting will have some effect, Kali-yuga. Although he was presenting pervertedly, the beginning was Nitai-Gaura, [...] He used to preach that Nitai is Radharani and Gaura is Krishna. That is siddhanta-viruddha. But some way or other, he was chanting Nitai-Gaura. So some effect were there. Just like sandalwood. You do not know which way better pulp comes out, but if you rub any way, some pulp will come because it is sandalwood. So he had some effect of chanting Nitai-Gaura, but later on they deteriorated because they did not know actually [...] The siddhanta-viruddha means it will deteriorate. It will not endure." (SPConv May 2, 1976) (11) Tamal: (reading) "The kirtan begins with the chanting of the mahamantra, slowly at first and melodiously. Later the chant will speed up as the spirit of the devotion spreads. Often the most rapid and intense chanting is done by a hard-core knot of dhoti-ed men before the curtains of the shrine." The devotees get in one group and start...(laughter) Hard-core devotees. "The rhythm approaches that of an express train, and the atmosphere is apt to remind a lay visitor of an old-fashioned football rally. Some of the onlookers try to keep up with the central group, clapping their hands, swaying their bodies, throwing arms upwards and, among the younger, adapting modern dance steps to the rhythm. When the shrine curtains are drawn back, devotees kneel and press their foreheads..." SP: Who has introduced this peculiar dancing? Hari-sauri: It just evolved. (laughs) Rupanuga: We were speaking about that the other day. It's changed from the original dancing that you showed us to something else. Too much like modern dancing. SP: Hmm. I think this is not good. (12) Another development in kirtan festivals is that the singers are on an elevated stage, similar to rock concerts. A senior devotee is pushed off the stage into the crowd and caught by many hands in mid-air (stage-diving). Sometimes a sannyasi will pump his fist to the beat, rock concert-style (BB Govinda Swami).

SRILA PRABHUPADA KIRTAN STANDARDS

These are some of kirtan standards or rules Srila Prabhupada established: (1) "If one actually wants to derive the effects of chanting, one must strictly follow the great acharyas. [...] maha-jano yena gatau sa panthau. 'The real path of progress is that which is traversed by great acharyas and authorities.'" (CC Adi 7.168 purport) (2) Kartals, mrdunga only, sometimes simple tamboura (harmonium is for bhajans not kirtans). (3) ONLY use the morning tune during mangala aratika, for Samasara prayers and all other mantras including Hare Krishna. (4) Srila Prabhupada emphasized maximum chanting of Hare Krishna mantra. (5) Srila Prabhupada did not much like the "Gaura Nityananda Bol," "Nitai Gaura Haribol," or "Haribol, Haribol" additions to kirtan, stopping his godbrother Ananda das once for doing so at mangala aratika. (6) Srila Prabhupada in July 1974 in Vrindaban established the standard contents of temple kirtans: (a) For mangala aratika: the samsara-dava prayer, then Sri Krishna Chaitanya (pancha tattva maha mantra), then Hare Krishna mahamantra, nothing else. (b) For the guru-puja: the "guru-prayer" (as he called it), Sri Krishna Chaitanya, then Hare Krishna, nothing else. (c) For evening aratika: the gaura aratika song, Sri Krishna Chaitanya, and Hare Krishna, nothing else. (d) In all aratikas this basic pattern is to be followed. The chanting of Sri Krishna Chaitanya should be only 3 times. (e) No one should sing a bhajana unless the devotees know what it means. (7) Mid 1977 Srila Prabhupada changed Bhaja Sri Krishna Chaitanya Prabhu Nityananda Sri Advaita Gadadhar Srivasadi Gaura Bhaktavrinda to Jaya Sri Krishna Chaitanya Prabhu Nityananda Jaya Advaita Gadadhar Srivasadi Gaura Bhaktavrinda, replacing the bhaja and sri with jaya. One of several confirming sources is Vaikunthanath's book Srila Prabhupada's Miracle, p. 188. Srila Prabhupada wanted to differentiate ISKCON from another sanga nearby the Vrindaban temple.

(8) "Prabhupada was present during a kirtana performed by his disciples in the Brooklyn temple. The mrdanga player had been practicing to learn complicated beats, and he was demonstrating his rapid and intricate abilities in the kirtana. But Prabhupada stopped the music and said to the drummer that he should follow the leader. Then he started the kirtana again, but it happened again and again Prabhupada stopped the kirtana and asked the drummer to follow the leader." (Prabhupada Nectar 1.22) (9) The tune should be simple, one easily followed by everyone. No complicated tunes; definitely no Hollywood or Bollywood tunes. (10) The instruments should be played rhythmically, melodiously. "If Kirtananada can play the harmonium melodiously along with the chanting it will be nice. If somebody can play the tambora, that will be still more nice. But they should be rhythmically played." (SPL Hayagriva, Pradyumna Mar. 5, 1969) (11) The kirtan leader and those playing the instruments are not musicians. "We shall not divert our attention too much to adjustment of musical sounds. People should not misunderstand that we are a band of musical artists. They must know that we are devotees of Krishna. Our devotional practice and purity shall be so strong that wherever we chant there will be immediately an impression in the audience for devotion to Krishna." (SPL Tamal Krishna Oct. 30, 1969) (12) We should not manufacture mantras or types of kirtans, but follow what Srila Prabhupada gave us and do that faithfully. (CC Adi 7.4 purport: "...many unscrupulous devotees manufacture a maha-mantra of their own... But these unscrupulous, less intelligent men confuse the entire process.") (13) SP: Not in this way. This is not the process. The process is you must be free. Don't manufacture something. That is the way of dancing. You have seen all the Pancha-tattva, they are dancing like this. So you should follow them. Hare Krishna. (In response to frantic dancing after class, Chicago Apr. 7, 1975)

COMPILATION OF SRILA PRABHUPADA KIRTAN STANDARDS

Srila Prabhupada's kirtan standard is what he taught, exemplified, or approved during his manifest pastimes. Anything else should be neglected or adopted with great caution. Common sense should prevail. By studying Srila Prabhupada's books, lectures, letters, conversations, and devotee testimonies, we can easily know what the kirtan standards should be. Although much of this compilation is based on ISKCON'S June 2008 Kirtan Standards Book and a seminar on kirtan reform by none other than Jayadvaita Swami, one of ISKCON's gurus and the infamous "book-changer," we carefully verified each point's value against Srila Prabhupada's example, instructions, and teachings. We rejected more than a few items as concoctions suiting the ISKCON guru charade or because they were irrelevant, dubious, etc. Due to influence from sahajiyas, mayavadis, and various parts of the Gaudiya Vaishnava nebula, Srila Prabhupada's kirtan standards he established for the Hare Krishna Movement and ISKCON have been largely lost, forgotten, modified, or otherwise changed. It is important for the purity and potency of the Hare Krishna Movement that Srila Prabhupada's kirtan instructions and standards be researched and resurrected, and all foreign introductions be set aside. Those faithful to Srila Prabhupada as their guru, Founder-Acharya, and primary siksha or diksha guru will naturally want to practice kirtan as he did and how he wanted us to do it. We accept what has come from our Acharya Srila Prabhupada, not what comes from the cinema, India, Bengali culture, musician "devotees," or even the streets and temples of Vrindaban. There are many details too numerous to address, so instead, we limit this compilation to some of the basic issues, and the authoritative sources and references for each item are listed in a revised, edited version of ISKCON's Kirtan Standards Book (2008), renamed Complete Guide to Kirtan Standards (2016, 155 pg), available on request by email. Interesting is how Srila Prabhupada told Harikesha das (when he was Vrindaban temple president): "Tell him that this is your temple and that you will lead the kirtanas the way you want." It is the local leaders' or temple presidents' responsibility to set the proper kirtan standards.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS: Instruments should not be too loud, they should be played appropriately for the situation. Kartals are meant to sound sweet, not clang, bang, and drown out the chanting. Harmonium is for bhajan, not kirtan, because melodic instruments in kirtan distract from the mantra. All instrument players should follow the lead singer. One who cannot play an instrument nicely should not play them in kirtan. Too many instruments are a diversion; instrument players should also sing. Mrdangas should not be played too complexly, and in coordination with each other. The main thing is to hear the Holy Name, not the instruments. "All kirtan instruments should be taken care of carefully, respectfully- karatala and mrdanga are sufficient. There is no need of other instruments." (SPL Rupanuga Feb. 2, 1975) DANCING: Simple dancing, either up and down or the side to side Swami-dance are the basics. Group dancing going forward to the deities and then back in synchrony was approved by Srila Prabhupada. Wild twirls, spins, disco-type dancing etc are not bona fide; no crazy dancing concoctions. Hold hands up like Pancha Tattva. We should not have our backs towards Srila Prabhupada nor the deities. A steady tempo is best for dancing. Dancing is for the pleasure of the deities or Krishna, and not for our enjoying like at a disco club.

WHICH SONGS ARE BONAFIDE?: (1) "Authorized songs means the songs which were sung or composed by self-realized Acharyas. It is an injunction in the Vaishnava regulations that unauthorized songs or statements should never be heard. The comparison is given that milk, although very nutritious food, if it is touched by the tongue of a serpent, it acts like poison." (SPL Syamasundara Feb. 25, 1970) (2) "Always remember that Hare Krishna is the prime authorized mantra" (SPL) (3) "We generally sing two songs. One is Sri-Krishna-chaitanya prabhu Nityananda Sri-advaita gadadhara srivasadi-gaura-bhakta-vrinda. This is bonafide." (SBhag 8.5.25 purport) (4) Mangal artike should be Samsara prayers, both Srila Prabhupada pranam mantras, jaya Sri Krishna Chaitanya..., Hare Krishna mantra primarily, and a little Jaya Prabhupada and Jaya (deity name). (5) Guru puja should be Guru prayers, Srila Prabhupada pranam mantras, jaya Sri Krishna Chaitanya, Hare Krishna mantra primarily, and a few Jaya Prabhupadas. (6) Three times Jaya Sri Krishna Chaitanya is sufficient.

(7) Almost all other songs/mantras should be kept for bhajans, kirtan is to focus on Hare Krishna mantra. (8) Many songs/mantras are not bona fide: Mira bhajans, Bhaja or Bolo Hare Krishna, Nitai Gaur Radhe Shyam/ Gaura, Gaura, Gaura, Gaura, Gaura, Gaura, Gaura He.../ Cinema songs, or adding Hey, hey, or Woah, woah, etc/ raghupati raghava raja rama, patita pavana sita rama. (9) Many songs/mantras may or may not be bona fide but Srila Prabhupada did not like them, and preferred we just chant Hare Krishna instead. Some of them are: "Gauranga," "Nityananda," "Nitai, Nitai, Nitai, Nitai, Nitai Gauranga," "Gaura, Gaura," "Gaura-Nityananda Bol, Haribol," "Gaura Sri Advaita Bol, Haribol," "Gaura Sri Gadadhara Bol, Haribol," "Gaura Sri Srivasa Bol, Haribol," "Jaganatha Haribol," "Radhe Radhe Govinda, Govinda Radhe," "Haribol, Haribol," "Hari, Hari Haribol," "Hari, Hari, Hari, Hari, Hari, Hari, Haribol," "Jaya Radhe," "Radhe, Radhe, Radhe, Radhe Radhe Govinda," Jaya Sacinandana, Nitai Gauranga, Gaurahari, Nitai Gaur Haribol... etc, etc. Yes, much of these are chanted all over Bengal, but Srila Prabhupada did not ask nor show us these mantras for our kirtans.

(10) Nevertheless, Srila Prabhupada sometimes approved of Nitai Gauranga and Jaya Sacinandana, or Jaya Radhe (e.g., on Radhastami) (11) Some mantras/songs are bona fide, but Srila Prabhupada wanted us to chant more Hare Krishna. These can be chanted sometimes, in long kirtans, festivals, but not at the expense of chanting the primary authorized mantra of Hare Krishna: Sastric slokas, Namomaha badanaya, Hare Haraye namah, Govindam adi purusam, tam aham bajami, Harer nama, harer nama, Vande Hum, Sri Guru, Govinda Jaya Jaya, Sri Rama Jay Rama Jay Jay Rama (12) Srila Prabhupada wanted us to focus primarily on the Hare Krishna mantra. (13) Pancha Tattva glorification is best via the standard Pancha Tattva mantra. (14) No cinema songs like bhakta Prahlad, no mantras from other groups, temples, Gaudiya Math. (15) Srila Prabhupada's kirtans will be most powerful and effective. (16) During Rathayatra, Srila Prabhupada liked "Jaya Jagannath..." (17) "An intelligent disciple just takes whatever his spiritual master provides for him, considering that sufficient. There are many names of God you can chant, but it's best to take what comes in disciplic succession and what the spiritual master introduces." (Unknown) are not bona fide. Monotone, flat, non-melody incantations are not suitable for melodious kirtan. Frequent changing of tunes and songs is a distraction; in June of 2006, Satsvarupa das said Srila Prabhupada in his kirtanas at Tompkins Square Park would sing only one tune—the familiar melody from the first “Hare Krishna” album, for 3 hours. Ramo and Krishno are not bona fide. Difficult, hard to follow tunes should be reserved for bhajans. We should favor often those tunes Srila Prabhupada specifically chanted himself, but he said any tune is good. QUALITY: Kirtans should be sweet and melodious, but we need not become professional, expert singers, musicians, or dancers. Singing too high or low is not good; (when possible) kirtan should be led by qualified kirtan leaders. Excessively loud kirtans, flamboyant styles and unbona fide ‘mantras’ and tunes will reduce the purity and potency. Those who sing off-key or poorly should be careful not to distract others with their singing, singing quietly or learning to sing better. It is doubtful if 28 syllables is as good as 32, as when Ram is chanted, not Rama. The mantra should be pronounced properly, sincerely. “So kirtan is not clanging and banging, screaming and shouting. Kirtan is sweet and melodious.” (Tejijas das Nov. 12, 2002)

CONSCIOUSNESS & MOOD: Clapping too loud is a distraction from the Holy Name. Kirtan is to meditate on the sound vibration of the Holy Names. Kirtan is to glorify Krishna, not to show off or for competition or prizes. The more kirtan the better. STYLE & ETIQUETTE: (1) “With regard to your question about Bengali style kirtan and mrdanga playing, one or two styles is best. To introduce more styles is not good. It will become an encumbrance. If we introduce so much emphasis on style of kirtan, then simply imitation will go on. Devotional emotion is the main thing. If we give stress to instrument and style, then attention will be diverted to the style. That will be spiritual loss.” (SPL Satsvarupa June 30, 1976) (2) Simplicity is a primary consideration: “He liked the kirtan that was slow.” (3) Kirtans that are too fast for too long, suddenly shifting speeds, stop/starts, are not Srila Prabhupada’s style. (4) Wild & exciting is not the aim for having kirtan: it is to meditate on the Holy Names: Stop & start routines should not be overdone: Srila Prabhupada never did it himself (stop singing or playing instruments temporarily, then resuming suddenly). (5) Distractions in kirtan should be avoided, such as uncontrolled children. (6) At least half of the artike/ kirtan should be Hare Krishna. (7) The best kirtan is done so you never get tired. (8) No Jaya Gurudeva, only Jaya Prabhupada. (9) Too many Jaya mantras are not good in kirtan: save them for the end with Kijayas... (10) Long, slower kirtans are nicer than short, fast ones. (11) Talking and conversations during kirtan is disrespectful and distracting. (12) No concoctions or speculations should be introduced into kirtan. COMMON SENSE STANDARDS: (1) The instruments should not be louder than the kirtan leader. The mrdanga should be played with the wrist and not with the fist. One should play the drum, not bang the drum. Similarly, the karatals and whompers should be played softly and sweetly like a lady’s ankle bells and not cause harm to the ear. We don’t want to dance into the silent world of the deaf. (2) We can please Srila Prabhupada best by using the tunes that he himself used. (Memory, Rupa Vilas das)

CONCLUSION: KIRTAN HAS SPREAD NOW OUTSIDE THE HARE KRISHNA MOVEMENT

Over the years we have seen that “kirtan” is being taken up by Jewish rabbis, yoga instructors, Hindu-new age personalities, and others, but unless the Hare Krishna maha mantra is chanted purely, without mayavadi association, without distractions of being overly-musical, without sahajiya overtones, etc... the result will be minimal or even negative. Milk touched by the lips of a serpent has poisonous effects. Best that we practice and promote Srila Prabhupada’s style of bona fide Krishna kirtan for everyone’s eternal benefit.

Hare Krishna Hare Krishna Krishna Krishna Hare Hare, Hare Rama Hare Rama Rama Rama Hare Hare

In the list of deviations that have been introduced unto Srila Prabhupada’s mission, largely by or under the watch of ISKCON’s GBC and misleaders, we note that even the transcendental kirtan has been taken away from us. This is not accidental. It is by the infiltration of Kali Yuga’s influence.

CHAPTER 121: HINDUIZATION

ISKCON temples now routinely invite noted Mayavadis or popular karmis to speak or perform in the temple, apparently because such a guest will attract more visitors, usually from the Hindu community. The congregation then gets the message that they should also patronize these impersonalists and karmis since they were invited to the temple... Many temples and ISKCON gurus conduct Hindu festivals in the ISKCON temples, and in private venues as well, but this practice was never endorsed by Srila Prabhupada, and he strongly disapproved. E.g., Shiva Ratri; Diwali (with Hindu socio-religious customs); Durga Puja; Holi; house, car, and pet blessings; and other demigod worship rituals such as pitr-park, none of which were not taught by Srila Prabhupada. But they are now very common due to faithlessness in Srila Prabhupada's standards that he established as the permanent ISKCON Founder-Acharya. Thus pure preaching is almost dead and few people other than Hindus are coming to most or all of the ISKCON temples anymore. This has been called the Hinduization of ISKCON, something which Srila Prabhupada cannot be happy about at all.

QUALITY, NOT POPULARITY OR QUANTITY

"His Divine Grace was more concerned with quality than with popularity or quantity. [...] In the 1960s and 70s there was ONLY ONE unified ISKCON... Srila Prabhupada's version. All Temples were the same: same programs, same mood. No Diwali, no Holi, no demigod worship, no Hinduization. That's not an oversight by Srila Prabhupada. He did not want these things. ISKCON was NOT promoted as Hindu, we wouldn't dare! Srila Prabhupada's anger at seeing all these things going on in ISKCON today would be tremendous! Any honest Prabhupada disciple will tell you how it was then. Hari Nama daily, book distribution, and festivals. No paid salaries, to no one, only provision of basic necessities. No Hindu weddings in the Temples. No mission drift to a Hinduized ISKCON for money. Compare ISKCONs: pre-1978 and now- two entirely different ISKCONs. ISKCON was never meant to be politically correct, compromised, and changed." (Jaya Madhava das, 2014)

ADDING SHIVA WORSHIP IN ISKCON TO ATTRACT MORE HINDU DONATIONS

Another facet of the Hinduization of ISKCON temples over the years has been the addition of demigod worship, often with worship of Lord Shiva and Durga deities. Srila Prabhupada described demigod worship as the business of less intelligent men and is something he NEVER taught his disciples. This is done in ISKCON to attract more Hindus to their congregations and increasing the financial support from Hindus. This is primarily a financial consideration, and is direct and blatant disobedience to Srila Prabhupada's clear instructions that demigod worship is not a part of ISKCON because we only worship Lord Krishna. In 2007, devotees under the guidance of Shivarama Swami introduced the deities and worship of Lord Shiva and Durga at the New Vraja-dhama ISKCON Hungary farm project, and the defense was: "Actually we worship Lord Shiva as Gopiswara Mahadeva and Yogamayi devi. Lord Shiva is the best of the Vaishnavas. [...] Yogamayi devi can remove the illusion of the material world from us. That's why we worship Them." However, Srila Prabhupada in many places in his books and lectures made it VERY clear that ISKCON and his disciples should have absolutely NOTHING to do with demigod worship.

"[...] this Krishna consciousness movement simply advocates worship of Krishna to the exclusion of the demigods." (SBhag 4.31.14 purport)

Also, in ISKCON Zurich, on Shiva-ratri when many Hindus worship Lord Shiva, a framed color picture of Lord Shiva and Durga was placed on the main altar to accommodate reverence and worship of Lord Shiva by temple members and guests. Srila Prabhupada, however, made clear: "You know that we have refused even the Hindu people to hold demigod worship in our temple." (SPL Oct. 10, 1968) In mid-2007, under auspices of Ravindra Svarupa das as Germany's GBC, ISKCON Abentheuer dressed their Sri Sri Radha Madana-mohan marble deities as Shambu and Parvati "in honor of Shiva." Thus there was the bizarre concoction of a three-fold bending form of Krishna playing a flute being dressed in a tiger skin and cobra, topknot and half-moon with Shiva's trident. The photo is disturbing and sahajiya. Srila Prabhupada made it clear not to concoct: (1) "The greatest danger to our movement will come when we manufacture and create our own process for worshipping the deities." (SPL Jan. 4, 1973) (2) "But if everyone says that 'I can manufacture my own way of worshipping the Deity,' then what will be the condition? It will be simply pandemonium." (SPLecture June 22, 1972) (3) "The Deity worship should be done just in the way it was carried out in my presence." (SPL Nov. 13, 1970) (4) On Feb. 25, 2017, the ISKCON Labasa (Fiji) devotees went to a local Hindu Hanuman-Shiva temple to give a Shiva program on the occasion of Shiva-ratri. Once the Labasa ISKCON temple president announced in his lecture that the reason Srila Prabhupada chose to translate and present the Bhagavad Gita is because it is much easier to understand than the Ramayana. From Achyuta das in 2017: "Here in Australia, ISKCON is fast becoming the United Hindu Church of Australia. I went to the Rathayatra celebration in Melbourne; there are very few Western devotees. Many many Indians, migrants and their families; my observation is they are lovely, morally healthy people who could keep the outer form going at least until a future reformation."

MUCH OF ISKCON CONSISTS SOLELY OF HINDU CONGREGATIONS

In many (most?) ISKCON temples there are congregations almost exclusively composed of local Hindus. Of course, there is nothing wrong with a Hindu congregation. However, ISKCON leaders have begun to change the temple programs by introducing deviations such as demigod worship to attract more Hindus, and neglecting to reach out to other groups of fallen conditioned souls. The result over the last few decades is that many temples are run by Indians for Indians only (e.g., New Orleans, Toronto). Rather than finding a Hare Krishna temple, one finds a Hindu temple where the Hindu dharma is featured rather than the Varnashrama or Sanatan Dharma as taught by Srila Prabhupada in his books. This is the Hinduization of ISKCON. Temples are now solely focused on cultivating their wealthy Hindu congregations for donations, conducting Hindu festivals like Diwali, Holi, Shiva Ratri, Durga puja, etc. Book distribution and recruitment of temple residents and full-time devotees has become a lesser to no priority. In many Western temples, most or all Western devotees have left and the GBC has imported Indians on religious worker visas to fill the posts of temple management with remuneration and the promise of green card residency status after some years of service. India, Bangladesh, Malaysia, Indonesia export Indian devotees. As soon as the proverbial green card is obtained, invariably the Indian devotee immigrant disappears, or becomes entitled to a higher salary comparable to those in the outside world.

Therefore local devotees are not made, and imported Indians become the temple managers; the mood is to support the Hindu congregation only. ISKCON has mostly transformed into Hindu temples. Remember that Hinduism is not even a religion but a conglomeration of socio-religious traditions including impersonalism, hathayoga, demigod and forefather worship, etc. Hindu religious leaders who are Mayavadi in their philosophy are invited to the temples for speaking or kirtans, to attract more Hindu guests. Publications and websites give a clear impression that ISKCON is a Hindu organization, with emphasis put on humanitarian welfare work, charity, and health yoga. Back to Godhead is available only by subscription. Srila Prabhupada's books are not used in temple lectures, which are simply story and joke telling entertainment sessions. In some places ISKCON is officially a Hindu cultural society. Jesus and Sai Baba are commonly on ISKCON devotees' home altars. Devotees are distributing mundane yoga magazines in Russian ISKCON temples, and on their street chanting.

Srila Prabhupada boldly declares that Varnashrama MUST be established, not Hinduism. Yet some high profile leaders and GBC/Gurus shamelessly and directly preach that ISKCON is Hindu, thus regularly misrepresented on ISKCON websites. The GBC is in denial, playing their I'm OK/You're OK, Hindu/New Age games with Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON. They sit by silently, letting ISKCON undergo more changes in the Western countries for popularity, public relations, attracting cheap followers and their money. This was NOT Srila Prabhupada's intention for ISKCON. Change and compromise is now the ISKCON norm and the GBC, the "ultimate managing authority," does nothing about it. ISKCON is in trouble with too many compromises.

HARE KRISHNA TRANSFORMED, BURKE ROCHFORD, CH. 9: HINDUS AND HINDUIZATION

"I had a feeling that I never experienced before as a devotee. I felt like an outsider. Like it wasn't my temple. It was so strange." (ISKCON devotee reacting to many Indians at Krishna's birthday festival, 2005) 'It's not about getting money [from Indian supporters]; It's about serving Krishna. Better to keep the purity and remain poor, than deviate and get millions of dollars.' (Das, Ragaputra 2005:2) Asian immigrants are changing the religious mosaic of North America [...] Despite the growing literature on immigrant religions in America, the question of how immigrants promote change within established religious organizations has gained little attention. Immigrant Indians became vital to ISKCON's survival beginning in the 1980s. In a state of decline, the leadership turned away from the movement's radical goals and lifestyle, focusing instead on Indian-Hindus congregations within its temple communities. In coming to ISKCON to worship and strengthen their ethnic identities, Indian-Hindus reshaped ISKCON's religious culture and overall mission as a new religious movement.

"The Emergence of an Indian-Hindu Congregation: Estimates indicate that in 2005 a considerable majority of ISKCON's c. 50,000-member North American congregation was of Indian descent. Only a small portion are committed devotees. Most are patrons whose involvement is limited to intermittent temple worship and contributions. Large numbers of other Indians attend ISKCON sponsored festivals celebrating major Hindu holidays such as Janmastami (Krishna's birthday) as their only form of ISKCON involvement. A Sunday visit to most ISKCON temples would reveal 80% + in attendance are Asian Indian immigrants with families. At festivals that approaches 90%. Yet this remarkable growth in ISKCON's Hindu congregation represents a relatively recent development in the movement's North American history.

"During ISKCON's formative stages in the late 1960s and early 1970s, there were relatively few Indians to be found in ISKCON's temples. Prabhupada remained ambivalent about involving Indian-Hindus in his incipient movement short of their becoming fully committed ISKCON members. Early on he generally ignored Indian immigrants in America fearing that ISKCON would be overly identified with Hinduism. As Prabhupada wrote in 1970, 'factually this Krishna Consciousness movement is neither Hindu religion nor any other religion. It is the function of the soul.' In a 1969 conversation, Prabhupada stressed ISKCON was not a Hindu movement. 'I don't want a Hindu temple. Our constitution is different. We want everyone. Krishna consciousness is for everyone. It is not a Hindu propaganda. People may not understand. And actually, till now in our society there is not a single other Hindu than me (laughter). Is that not?' Prabhupada also openly questioned the spiritual commitment of Indians who immigrated to the West. He believed their primary motive for coming to North America was 'to earn money' and that the "[b]est thing will be to avoid them as far as possible" Only after ISKCON became well established in America did Prabhupada encourage Indians and other Hindus to become involved in the movement. Despite the general disinterest shown by Prabhupada and his followers, increasing numbers of Indian immigrants were drawn to ISKCON's temples to worship. This was largely because when widespread Indian immigration to the United States occurred after President Johnson rescinded the Oriental Exclusion Act in 1965, there were virtually no established Hindu temples in the country beyond those offered by ISKCON. The same for Canada where substantial numbers of South Asian professionals immigrated during the 1960s and 1970s, [...] Indian immigrants found ISKCON attractive because the young American converts affirmed the value of the Hindu tradition in their new environment. [...] They were also attracted by the elaborate deity worship found in ISKCON's temples. [...] Yet of greatest significance was the shared belief that [the] temple served to maintain cultural traditions and ethnic identity because of the direct relationship between Hinduism and Indian cultural and sub-cultural traditions. [...] Until the mid-1970s, Indian-Hindus generally came and went from ISKCON's temples after taking darshan of the deities. Official ISKCON recognition of Hinduism and its Hindu supporters emerged only in the mid-1970s as ISKCON faced a variety of threats from the anticult movement and governmental officials. To defend itself against accusations of being a dangerous cult, the leadership asked ISKCON's Indian supporters to speak to the movement's authenticity as a traditional Hindu religious group. On other occasions, ISKCON called on its Indian supporters to respond to the discriminatory actions of government officials. In 1980, for example, city officials seeking to deny ISKCON a Los Angeles permit for its annual Rathayatra festival were confronted by Indian-Hindus charging religious discrimination. City officials quickly backed down and allowed the festival to proceed. [...] the movement's leaders thereafter sought to publicly align ISKCON with Hinduism and with its Hindu patrons.

"ISKCON introduced the 'Life Member Program' to North America in the mid-1970s to formally ally its Indian-Hindu supporters. [...] Few Indians became full-time members or took on positions of organizational responsibility. Only a few became disciples of Prabhupada or one of his successors. [...] Given the increasing presence and importance of the movement's Indian-Hindu supporters, ISKCON's North American GBC declared in 1980 to alter the public image of ISKCON from that of a 'cult' to 'a denomination of the Hindu church.' This effort was meant to bring greater legitimacy to the movement while encouraging financial support from its emerging Hindu congregation. Hindu contributions quickly became critically important as book distribution revenues dropped precipitously from 1980 [on]. One temple president stated, 'The growing importance of Indians in ISKCON is due to a lack of a proper economic infrastructure. [...] In 1982, Indian-Hindus in Detroit contributed $100,000 to the Bhaktivedanta Book Trust. [...] Hindu members of ISKCON's Houston temple provided much of the funding that allowed the community to purchase a temple in 1982 Hindu funds were vital to Radha-Krishna Temple of Understanding at New Vrindaban in the mid-1980s.

"ISKCON's financial troubles deepened in the mid-1980s, and financial contributions of Indian-Hindus grew in importance. ISKCON launched an active campaign to expand its Hindu congregation in hopes of bringing economic stability to its impoverished North American communities. When confronted with the Los Angeles Robin George brainwashing lawsuit [...] Two Indian ISKCON members, one a GBC member and U.S. immigrant, the other a well-known guru from India, visited ISKCON temples throughout the United States seeking large donations. [...] After this successful fund raising effort, ISKCON Foundation was established in 1991. The director [Naveen Krishna das] explained, 'So we saw this opportunity for the George case to be used as a vehicle to turn every temple around. We saw the George case as a blessing in disguise. Krishna is giving us a chance to come up to a much higher level.' The Foundation's primary mission was to raise money to support ISKCON's communities by actively encouraging the involvement of Indian-Hindus in ISKCON temples. [...] ISKCON Foundation successfully mobilized the support of a significant number of Hindus. A major part of the Foundation's strategic plan was to establish advisory boards in each of ISKCON's North American communities. Influential and affluent Hindus comprised the majority membership of these temple boards and most proved successful in enlisting the support of local Indian immigrants. As a result, many temple revenues increased substantially. Most ISKCON temples in North America thereafter operated on what one ISKCON leader characterized as a 'Hindu economy.' In 1988, congregational members and visitors to Philadelphia ISKCON contributed 48% of the total income. In 1991, that grew to 62%, and in 1992, 67%. [...] Dependence on Indian financial support has only grown [...] 'In the case of this temple, 95% of the funds supporting the temple are coming from the Indian congregation. Only 5% from American devotees.' Unsurprisingly, the financial support from Indian-Hindu congregations expanded their power and influence within ISKCON temples. A temple president admitted, 'The whole temple becomes dominated by Indians. Because they have put their money there [in the temple] you are going to have to go their way. Obviously you have to give them a say.'

"Hindus and Westerners in Comparative Perspective: Because Hindus immigrating to the West come from different regions, language groups, and sects practicing diverse rituals, Hinduism is often practiced as an ethnic religion outside of India Hinduism thereby becomes general in form rather than regional and sectarian. Knott refers to this process as one of 'standardization' producing something akin to a 'text-book Hinduism.' [...] Yet ISKCON temples are dedicated neither to an ethnic or ecumenical form of Hinduism; rather they are dedicated exclusively to the worship of Krishna and His incarnations. Although Indian immigrants are clearly familiar with the forms of worship, teachings, and religious practices associated with Krishna, many do not consider Krishna the supreme god. Rather they favor worshipping a variety of Hindu gods and acknowledge different Hindu traditions as equally valid. [...] 'The Indians really respect Prabhupada because he has converted thousands of Christians and Jews into Hindus. In India that is really what they respect Srila Prabhupada for. This one man had such an impact globally.' [...] Although respecting Prabhupada, many of ISKCON's Indian-Hindu supporters do not embrace his teaching. [...] 'Many Indians do not fully understand Srila Prabhupada's unique qualities. That he was the leading proponent or teacher of our Vedic philosophy. They don't for the most part understand that or his teachings. Rather they fall back on the more ritualistic aspects that they grew up with. Going to temples [...] In my view these are often compromised understandings of the Vedic teachings, not in keeping with Prabhupada's teachings.' [...]

"Indian-Hindus expressed less commitment to ISKCON's religious beliefs, the movement's preaching mission, and to the authority of Prabhupada's scriptural commentaries. With respect to religious practice, Indian-Hindus participated far less in ISKCON's collective religious practices [...] Although about equally committed as other members to the authority of the GBC and ISKCON's gurus, Indian-Hindus were less committed to ISKCON's purposes and goals. [...] In essence, the Indian-Hindus affiliated with ISKCON in most cases do not share the movement's sectarian religious orientation and are less committed to ISKCON and the broader devotee community. [...] 'Most accept that Krishna is the supreme personality of Godhead... But they are not ISKCON on the basis of philosophy. All Hindus are brought up with a certain faith and that sticks to them. When they come to a Hare Krishna temple and you try to impose your faith into them, and your style of puja [deity worship] and arati, and so on, they are not totally in sync with it.' [...] ISKCON's North American temples are comprised of two distinct and parallel communities. The first is comprised of mostly Western converts dedicated to Prabhupada's religious teachings and overall vision for ISKCON. The second is made up of Indian-Hindus who view ISKCON's communities as places of worship and ethnic identification.

"Divided Communities and Collective Estrangement: The different orientations of Indian-Hindus and ISKCON's Western devotees have produced strains between the two groups. These tensions have only intensified as Indian-Hindus have gained power and influence within ISKCON's temple communities. [...] 'The temples are becoming Hindu temples because they put their money there and they are more involved than the American congregation. [...] the whole temple becomes dominated by Indians. The American devotees must get more involved in the temple and make their presence felt. Come do service. Sing, dance, chant and contribute [...]' Any observer of an ISKCON community on Sunday will note limited interaction between Western devotees and Indian-Hindus. [...] 'There is not very much interaction unfortunately between the Indians and the devotees on Sunday. And there is a need for a lot more. [...] you would reduce so much resistance.' [...]

"The Indian-Hindus who come to ISKCON's temples to worship and feast on Sundays do so in large part so they can socialize with other Indians. [...] ISKCON's Sunday programs provide structured opportunities for Indian-Hindus to communicate and to make contacts with members of the Indian community. [...] Apart from the limited interaction between Western devotees and Indian-Hindus, there are also fewer Westerners who choose to attend the Sunday temple program because of the large Indian presence. [...] 'It is common to meet intelligent, good devotees who say, "I just go to the temple when I want to see the deities. But otherwise I just can't relate." [...] Indians also find reason to feel estranged at the Sunday program. Many find the loud kirtans and active dancing that forms part of the Western devotees worship disagreeable and even offensive.' [...] 'They want to change the way Westerner devotees dance in the temple; jumping up and down, screaming and shouting. They think this is y monkey like; very off-putting to them. In Hindu temples that is not the way it is. One doesn't pray to God like that. The way to pray to God is very sober, with awe and reverence [...]

"To Hindus who view ISKCON communities largely as sites of worship, they see little need for more than a few religious specialists to serve as pujaris, teachers, and temple administrators. So, temple residents are often viewed as unnecessary expenses rather than evidence of ISKCON's vitality as a missionary movement. [...] 'It is obvious to the Indians that funds were necessary for the deities, grounds, and temple building maintenance. Also, the mortgage had to be paid, utilities, insurance, but [...] Why do we need so many people? What do they do all day? [...] In other [non-ISKCON] U.S. temples there are only one or two pujaris who come from India and are given simple accommodations. That is all it takes from their perspective.'

"Questions about support for temple residents are part of a broader concern about how funds collected from the Hindu congregation are used by temple authorities. [...] a majority (84%) believed that 'local temple management should be the responsibility of an elected board of directors.' Elected temple boards would place greater control over ISKCON's communities in the hands of Indian-Hindu congregations. Indian advisory board members have exerted pressure meant to influence management decisions within ISKCON's temple communities. [...] To the extent that local Hindu congregations can exert their newfound power on temple decision-making however, this may be changing. [...] an increasing number of Indians are now serving as temple presidents in major ISKCON communities, such as in Atlanta, Chicago, Dallas, Houston, San Diego.

"The Hinduization of ISKCON's Religious Culture: ISKCON's temple communities have faced growing pressure to conform to the religious orientations of their increasingly influential Indian-Hindu congregations. As a result, ISKCON's traditional religious culture has been subject to negotiation and change. [...] One negotiation related to organizing an evening for Goddess Durga. Board members asked the temple president to conduct a puja for Durga in the temple room. [But] demigods, is not worshipped in ISKCON temples. [...] the temple president allowed the program, but in a rented hall [...]

Other examples of Indian-Hindu influence on ISKCON's religious culture have emerged in recent years. On several occasions festivals held at ISKCON's Spanish Fork temple in Utah have provoked criticism from ISKCON members [...] In both 2004 and 2005, the Spanish Fork temple celebrated Shiva Ratri complete with storytelling and a sacred bathing ceremony for Lord Shiva. [...] The president of the temple noted, 'If the Hindus, who are our biggest natural supporters all over the world, are going to worship Lord Shiva anyway, isn't it better we bring them to do it gorgeously in the Krishna temple, rather than someplace else where they will not get the Krishna overview?' 'The problem is that every new element of ritual and Hindu tradition that is brought in means that another element of what Srila Prabhupada gave us is gradually pushed aside. We may have an opulent temple, with a Shiva Ratri festival and meticulous observance of various aspects of Hindu practice and tradition- but at the same time we are losing energy to pursue Srila Prabhupada's social programs of building self-sufficient Krishna conscious communities.' (Dasi, 2004:2). [...]

"Holi/Gaura Purnima festival" at Spanish Fork temple also provoked an outcry when advertisements appeared to minimize the birthday of Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, considered an incarnation of Krishna by ISKCON members. Holi is a religious occasion celebrated by Hindus in and out of India. Only followers of the Gaudiya Vaishnava tradition, of which ISKCON is a part, celebrate Gaura Purnima. [...] the 'Holi/Gaura Purnima' festival attracts as many as 800 visitors to the Spanish Fork temple. [...] A recent and perhaps more dramatic example of the influence of Indian-Hindu congregations on ISKCON's religious culture can be seen in the building of a new ISKCON temple near San Diego, California. The Indian congregation raised millions of dollars to help build the temple. The temple however will not strictly conform to ISKCON tradition as it will include traditional Hindu images of Shiva and Ganesh with accompanying samskaras and pujas 'performed regularly for the Indian community' [...] such a concession represented 'kowtowing to the material conceptions of the Indian community' [...] 'The Indian community has a lot of money and is willing to fork it over for the projects that fit in with their notions of Hindu dharma. But we are not Hindus. We are devotees of Krishna...'

"Hinduization and the Demise of Preaching: Preaching has been a defining element of ISKCON's religious culture. [...] Although ISKCON's recruitment in North America declined dramatically beginning in the mid-1970s, preaching has remained emblematic of ISKCON's identity as a new religious movement. Yet as Western devotees moved out of ISKCON's temple communities during the 1980s and Indian-Hindus gained dominance, preaching was no longer an organizational priority. [...] 'Throughout ISKCON the temples are becoming Hindu temples. The Indians [mostly] don't take to Krishna Consciousness... But Prabhupada came to this country to attract Americans, not Hindus. My biggest frustration and failure is that I have not been able to attract Americans to the community.' Without sufficient labor in the temples and facing a financial crisis, ISKCON's communities shifted their priorities to serving the religious and ethnic needs of Indian congregations. ISKCON's temples emphasized deity worship at the expense of preaching. [...] 'The most insidious influence of the Indian presence is the growing laziness that has resulted where we have abandoned Prabhupada's mission to preach. We thought it would be the opposite. With funds provided by the Indians we would be free to preach more, not less. Now we are free not to preach [...] The decision was made that deity worship must be maintained but that the preaching would be reduced. The problem is that this is exactly opposite of what Prabhupada wanted. Prabhupada said, "Reduce the deity worship and increase the preaching. The deities keep the devotees spiritually strong so they can preach." We find ourselves relying on a congregation [Hindus] who desire nice deities so they can worship. They give money so we have to satisfy their desires. [...] We have given up our autonomy and independence and become uninterested in preaching. The risk is that the temples will be transformed into third class mundane institutions because of the exclusive focus on deity worship rather than preaching... Will we be transformed into something else, or preserve what Prabhupada wanted?'

"The demise of preaching goes beyond the question of deity worship. The number of Indians on Sundays has made the temple an unattractive place to bring Westerners interested in Krishna [...]

"Hinduization and Uneven Transformation: Despite the ongoing Hinduization of ISKCON's North American communities the movement's leadership has generally been slow to respond [...] Although preaching ISKCON's sectarian beliefs to the Indians has converted some to Prabhupada's teachings, it seems unlikely that large numbers will become active ISKCON devotees. [...] ISKCON's temples provide a place to worship in the company of other Indian people. [...] ISKCON is changing to accommodate its Indian supporters. Unwilling to alienate its Hindu supporters out of concern for losing financial support, ISKCON is likely to continue acquiescing to 'Hindu dharma.' To do otherwise, ISKCON's Hindu supporters may transfer their allegiances to established Hindu temples, or construct temples of their own. Yet in continuing to compromise elements of its religious culture and overall mission, ISKCON's temples seem destined to become ethnic churches. [...] 'But when [Hindus] are attracted, it is we who should be giving them Srila Prabhupada's teachings about how to be a Vaishnava- not that we should leave Srila Prabhupada's teachings, and take up Hinduism. This is a disservice to both them and ourselves, and to Srila Prabhupada's Krishna consciousness mission.'

"Conclusion: Once a radical and controversial new religion, ISKCON in North America has evolved into a new denomination in order to survive. ISKCON's Indian-Hindu congregation has clearly helped rescue a failing religious organization. In pursuit of needed financial resources in the face of decline, Prabhupada's movement is steadily advancing toward becoming a Western sect of Hinduism. Today ISKCON provides temples, leadership, and religious specialists for a sizeable number of Indian-Hindus throughout North America. In so doing however, ISKCON has progressively aligned itself with the religious orientations of its Indian supporters and negotiated away elements of its traditional religious culture. By compromising elements of its core teachings to implement innovations meant to ensure the organization's survival, ISKCON has lost the basis for generating member commitment and loyalty. For most of its Indian supporters, ISKCON represents a place of worship and ethnic identification rather than a source of organizational commitment. For its traditional Western members, temple communities have become sources of estrangement reducing rather than promoting commitment. ISKCON is unlikely to attract significant interest among a new generation of Americans seeking alternative religious paths. Organizational maintenance in the form of a Hindu revival is transforming a new religion that once symbolized the radicalism of the 1960s." (END)

LINES OF AUTHORITY AND HINDU ENTANGLEMENT by Krishna das, July 23, 2013

"On many occasions Srila Prabhupada instructed his disciples to preach to everyone and not just to Hindus. [re:] Africa he wrote: 'Brahmananda was mixing only with those Indians, and they were giving profusely money, and there were so many plans for temple and deities. In this way he was neglecting to do the real work which was preaching to the black Africans. No one Hindu who is rich and living in foreign place is very much interested to become devotee, it is show only, sentiment or custom. So I wanted that he should preach to the Africans and convert them to become devotees, that should be his real business, never mind wasting time with so many nonsense Indians. And as soon as he did as I instructed, immediately he has got some black devotees, and he has removed himself from the entanglement of the Hindus, and he is making good progress spreading Krishna Consciousness amongst the native citizens...' (SPL)

"In present day ISKCON we see that many temple managers neglect to preach to everyone and instead focus on the Hindu community. If members of ISKCON voice their concerns to local authorities they are often chastised and even banned from temples. If they appeal to the GBC they are ignored. Some sannyasis were warned to remain quiet about the problem. The GBC is not protecting devotees who present Srila Prabhupada's instructions as they are. Instead, the GBC turns a blind eye and allows local managers to ignore spiritual principles. In the GBC paper 'Harmonizing ISKCON's Lines of Authority' this type of management is criticized [...] it is explained that the GBC has 'the mandate to organize the preaching movement so it is aligned with the instructions of Srila Prabhupada.' Why then do the GBC allow temple managers to turn ISKCON temples into Hindu temples? Is that Srila Prabhupada's desire? Also, that the GBC has 'the responsibility to offer spiritual guidance (siksha) to the whole of ISKCON.' Is it the GBC's duty to offer the members of ISKCON guidance on this issue. But, the GBC has chosen to remain silent. When we consider these points the problem becomes clear: the GBC cannot simultaneously remain silent about the Hindu problem and follow its duties as laid down in the paper. For the GBC to follow the "Harmonizing ISKCON's Lines of Authority" paper it should: (1) Teach that Srila Prabhupada wanted Krishna consciousness to spread outside of the Hindu community. (2) Acknowledge that many temple managers are neglecting to do this and are spiritually compromised. (3) Organize the preaching movement in alignment with Srila Prabhupada's desire that EVERYONE gets the opportunity to become Krishna conscious./ By remaining silent the GBC is agreeing to the Hinduization of ISKCON, undermining their own authority, failing those who repeat Srila Prabhupada's words."

MORE QUOTES FROM SRILA PRABHUPADA

(1) "Regarding Mataji Syamadevi's temple in Leicester [...] I am not very interested to establish a Hindu temple. [...] from the very beginning I never described my movement as Hindu religion. Religion means the bona fide process by which we understand God and the first class religion is that which teaches people to develop love for God. To know or accept the authority of God is one thing, but to love God is another. Generally, people are interested in material comforts and they make God as the supplying agent. This kind of devotion is not purified. It is contaminated by material desires, but when one is elevated to the position of giving everything to God out of love and affection, that is the first class position. We are teaching this philosophy in the name of Krishna Consciousness, and it is applicable to all sober persons. The Bhagavat principle is that because we can be happy simply by developing our dormant love of God, this is our first business..." (SPL Mukunda das June 10, 1969) (2) "Regarding the Hindu centers in the foreign countries, none of them are bona fide. There is a similar hodge podge center in London. Actually Hindus and non-Hindus, everyone is at the present moment out of touch of the real science of spiritual knowledge. Everyone is going under some religious badge only, so it is very difficult to deal with them unless they are very much serious to understand the science of God." (SPL 1969) (3) "Everyone of the Hindu community in the Western world has got some very good feeling for me because superficially they are seeing that I am spreading Hindu religion, but factually this Krishna Consciousness movement is neither Hindu religion nor any other religion. It is the function of the soul. So even though the Indian Hindus are very much inclined in my favor, so far I have experience it is very difficult to turn them into pure devotees. The difficulty has become more acute on account of Ramakrishna Mission's preaching that any opinion about religion is alright. But our philosophy is different, we do not accept any opinion which is not advised by Krishna. So unless one is very fortunate, never mind whether he is Hindu or non-Hindu, one cannot take to the Krishna Consciousness movement and accept its bona fide principles..." (SPL April 17, 1970) (4) SP: In India, what is going on as "Hindu dharma," it is a bogus thing. It has no meaning. Just like this Ramakrishna Mission, this Vivekananda, this Aurobindo, this Mahesh Yogi, so many others, all bogus. Anyone who is not going in terms of the Chaitanya Mahaprabhu's cult or His teaching, he's a bogus. Anyone. Not only in India, all over the world. At the present moment, the real, transcendental spiritual life means to follow the cult of instructions of Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. Otherwise, everyone is bogus. They're simply wasting their time. They have no knowledge of spiritual life. And Chaitanya Mahaprabhu's cult means Krishna consciousness. (SPConv April 29, 1973) (5) Kathy Kerr: I understand that your movement is an extension of the Hindu religion. SP: No, that is not correct. You will not even find the word Hindu in the Vedic scriptures. Real religion, or dharma, is not a kind of faith. It is the eternal characteristic of all living entities. It is compared to a chemical composition. For example, the chemical composition of sugar makes it sweet. If something is pungent, you can know for sure that it is not sugar. Similarly, the eternal characteristic of all living entities is the same—to serve the Supreme Lord—and the Vedic system is meant to train human beings to come to this ultimate goal of life. That system is called the varnasrama-dharma, which gradually trains one how to be a perfect human being and understand the goal of life. It is not for a particular sect or nation, but for the whole human society. Kathy Kerr: How do you teach people to become perfect? SP: The first thing is to understand our spiritual identification—we are not this body. But at present everyone all over the world is under the bodily concept of life. This misconception is the defect of modern civilization. [...] it is meant for all human beings, not just Hindus or Christians or Muslims. Krishna consciousness is a science meant for everyone. I have not come to preach Hinduism. What is the use of changing Christians to Hindus? We want to make all human beings perfect in knowledge. (SPConv June 16, 1975)

FAMILY TEMPLES IN ISKCON?

"The evolution of Canada ISKCON, and elsewhere is that many of the smaller temples are turning into family temples, along the lines of the Indian model. This is true even at some of the big, original temples like Los Angeles. Vancouver seems to be headed that way, and Calgary, Edmonton and Regina, are all essentially family temples now. This phenomenon is but one aspect of the Hindu-ization of ISKCON, and it clearly is not in keeping with Srila Prabhupada's plan." (Rochan das, Oct. 1, 2009)

CONCLUSION

ISKCON temples are influenced by the Hindu "dharma" of Indian-Hindus who use ISKCON temples as a place of worship and for meeting other Indians. That influence should be counteracted by following Srila Prabhupada's priorities at all times, and preaching this to the entire congregation, not being tempted to accommodate one group of guests to the extent that they infiltrate the temple with practices contrary to the mission established by Srila Prabhupada. Hinduization must be properly reversed by strong preaching. The GBC has allowed, encouraged, and facilitated this serious corruption/ degradation of Srila Prabhupada's Mission.

CHAPTER 122: ABUSE OF MEN, WOMEN, AND CHILDREN

(1) "Let them all leave [Srila Prabhupada's disciples] - we have our own disciples now." (Bhavananda, Aug. 1978) (2) "ISKCON gurus have had illicit sexual intercourse with both women and men, and possibly children as well." (Jayadvaita Swami) (3) From a letter to Dhira Govinda by Krishna Avatar das in 2000: "I have experience working with the GBC on the child abuse issue. They were duplicitous, lied before the deities and the media about the manner in which they dealt with it, and basically undermined the whole issue collectively. At the end, I was disgusted with my waste of time. The GBC makes bizarre decisions, and their psychology is 'let's just get through this crisis, then we'll deal with the next one.' An example is the last GBC meeting here in Alachua; they were warned that if they did not take strong action, it would be disastrous. Now they will waste millions defending the Turley child abuse case. For me, the final blow was how the GBC overrode the recommendations by the Child Protection Office re: Dhanurdhara Swami."

ISKCON LEADERS ARE NOT SERIOUS ABOUT ENDING CHILD ABUSE

"An example: Vatsala and his wife, Sashikala, are serious devotees and preach the truth. Recently they did wonderful service in Honolulu. Vatsala was temple president and Sashikala was much liked by all the devotees for her constant service and dedication. Many younger devotees were attending the programs and appreciating Krishna consciousness at this wonderful tirtha that Srila Prabhupada personally created. Then Sashikala's grand-daughter complained of getting molested by the temple's head cook, an ISKCON guru disciple. The result? The cook is still in the same position, but Vatsala and Sashikala had to leave. And a wonderful temple program he helped organize, went to hell." (Narasimha das, 2016) In Oct. 2016 Subhalaksmi dasi posted an appeal for help in her fight against women abuse: "Right now in Australia, there is a Royal Commission into Institutional Responses to Allegations of Sexual Abuse. Evidence from sex abuse victims has caused the reputation of the Catholic Church to be dragged through the mud. [...] The media reports of the shocking abuse suffered at the hands of 'leaders' within the Catholic Church and the criminal negligence of others in bringing these perpetrators to justice, has horrified and outraged members of the Australian public. In the same way, Ramai Swami, the senior GBC man in Australia, for the last 30 years, is known by sworn testimony of victims of sex abuse by ISKCON officers, to have protected pedophiles and shuffled them around to other temples. Many of these victims have now gone to report their stories to the Royal Commission who are collating the evidence against those ISKCON leaders who have failed to respond appropriately when instances of sexual abuse were reported to them. If this behavior happened 30 years ago but was now rectified and past mistakes corrected by sincere apologies and restitution to victims, I would not need to be writing this article."

"But earlier this year, the complicity of the Adelaide Temple President, Adi Purusa Krishna das, in ignoring pleas for help from young women who were subject to prolonged and traumatizing sexual harassment and assault from the Acting Temple President (the son of the Temple President) were revealed. No member of the EC has had the time or inclination to speak to the victims to offer them support or empathy of any kind. All the congregation of sincere initiated devotees have told the representatives of the EC that they will not work under the current Temple President. Yet the EC is now threatening to ban anyone who opposes them, they insist on propping up this man as the Temple President, in full knowledge that the Royal Commission is currently collecting testimony. For the sake of a 70 year old man who is desperate to hold onto his position, even though despised by the majority of the devotees for many reasons, they are showing their reckless disregard for the reputation of Srila Prabhupada's movement. They refuse to abide by Australian law and take their responsibilities seriously in protecting young people from abuse. Indeed, the top men have pressured victims to drop police charges. This is even against ISKCON policy. Why would they sacrifice the interests, well being and devotional service of so many, the entire rank and file temple devotees, for one man? All attempts to discuss this matter with members of the EC have been made by many concerned devotees. All have had their efforts rebuffed, ignored and stonewalled. On behalf of many Australian devotees, who will not stop until this matter has been dealt with comprehensively and with justice for the long suffering, mistreated victims of sexual abuse, I request this be seen as an international matter. Our two local GBC men have abandoned the welfare of local devotees. They do nothing. Indeed they create obstacles for attempts at straightforward communication."

A week later, Subhalaksmi dasi wrote: "I have been based at Govinda Valley, a project 1 hour south of Sydney, for the last year and a half. I was forced to leave for speaking out against ISKCON management and protecting young women at Adelaide Temple. Typical." Nothing had changed.

AN ISKCON GURU CRITICIZES ISKCON CORRUPTION AND CHILD ABUSE

Corruption At The Highest Levels Of ISKCON: EDITORIAL, Jul 22, 2000 (VNN) (HH Bhakti Vikasa Swami)

The status of the GBC in the eyes of the general devotees is rock bottom and could hardly go lower. A far cry from the Prabhupada days, when GBC men were practically worshipped. Those who are responsible for this demise should accept moral responsibility, or forced to do so. Unless punishment for abuse is extended beyond that of child abusers, injustice will be done in the name of justice and reform will not go to the roots. At present, deviations by GBC members are simply not taken seriously enough. I was told by a GBC that another GBC recently slept in a van with a brahmacharini, and regularly bought flowers for her. But no action is taken. There is no accountability for the GBC, and they do whatever they like and get away with it. In extreme cases, they may get a temporary suspension from initiating, which they don't follow anyway. This is abuse. The lack of character and moral responsibility in our top leaders created an atmosphere in which child abuse flourished and was allowed to continue unabated until some ex-abusees got vocal about it. Child abuse is the tip of an iceberg of improper behavior that has led to massive lack of confidence in ISKCON and its leaders, and mass desertions. If ISKCON leaders are serious to truly restore the good name and missionary dynamism of the society, the first step is that they must have enough courage and character to own up to their mistakes and be prepared to take the consequences for them.

I am not in favor of punishing devotees, but if at all there is to be punishment, then it is unfair that XX and a few others are punished for past sins, while the leaders who presided over the whole catastrophe and whose policies have caused untold distress to thousands of devotees, not only go scot-free, but continue to enjoy the honor and position of great saints. Does not big position bring with it big responsibility? Should not the GBCs accept responsibility concomitant to the unparalleled honor, facilities and personal finances that have been bestowed on them? Even in corporations and governments, top leaders resign when subordinates make major blunders injurious to people's lives and well-being. Even if the leaders were unaware of their subordinates' malpractices, they take moral responsibility for it. The logical extension of this should be a sincere desire to make amends, to reform and to start a new era of zero tolerance for all forms of abuse, especially that perpetrated by leaders, whose moral responsibility is greatest and who are therefore more guilty for any crimes. Several top leaders in ISKCON have abused their positions and scorned the faith placed in them, by deviating from the high standard desired by Srila Prabhupada. It is also in order to take retroactive action against ISKCON leaders who propagated erroneous and highly damaging speculations such as zonal acharya-ism, premature gopi-bhava etc. Those who deviated from their initiation vows by failing to regularly chant 16 rounds, or who engaged in grossly sinful activities after initiation, should also have punitive action taken against them. Child abusers cannot give class, lead kirtan, initiate, or hold any leadership position; the same should be done with those who have abused their leadership roles. [...] If we accept the concept of psychological abuse, then there is hardly a devotee outside the top ranks of this movement who was not abused, especially in the zonal acharya era. Thousands of devotees who came to ISKCON with hope, later left or were driven away in bitterness. Excesses by leaders even led to cases of murder and suicide. The worst abuse mostly fell on the weaker sections of the society, the women and children. ISKCON leaders are surely responsible for the ethos of abuse they created and presided over. Child abusers in ISKCON may be victims of misguidance by leaders more than they are criminals. If we were really remorseful about abuse, we would punish not only child abusers, but abusers of all categories. We show no interest in coming to terms with the shattering abuse that has been perpetrated in the name of guruship. In light of the profound, all-pervasive abuse that took place throughout our society, to target only child abusers is biased and hypocritical. Thus, while campaigning against abuse, we perpetrate more abuse, all in the name of justice. Reports of child abuse investigations take much care to persuade us of the fairness of the proceedings. Yet there is inherent unfairness in pinpointing only child abusers. Let justice and retribution be at all levels.

Why are only child abusers being punished? [...] Our movement has a horrible history of abuse. Srila Prabhupada made a house for the whole world to live in, but we have made it uncomfortable for anyone to live in, including ourselves. [...] We needed a mass catharsis years ago, and it may not be too late if we dare to look into our hearts and be honest before Krishna about our massive failure. But will it happen? Unlikely. The GBC are the perpetrators. How then, are they going to put themselves on trial? They have already been judged and tried by thousands of devotees, who have voted with their feet by walking out. But the GBC goes on with its mutual lauding and platitudes, assuring each other that everything is basically all right, and that we're really doing a good job of cleaning up the house. Dear GBC men: is it possible that you open your eyes? The house is in worse shape than anyone could have imagined. There are many angry people both inside and outside it, and they can no longer be easily fooled or appeased. Unless and until there is a real change of heart, and a genuine attempt to overcome the terrible mistakes of the past, those angry people are not going to let us go. [...] BTW the same thing is going on today--devotees known to be spiritually sick are allowed to go on initiating. Is this not abuse of the prospective disciples? [...] It is imbalanced, at best, to come down heavy on child abusers while neglecting the widescale abuse that pervaded our whole society. [...] Everywhere, devotees are expressing discontent [...] Many senior leaders, including temple presidents, sannyasis, and GBCs, have expressed their discontent with the state of affairs and with the policies and attitudes of the GBC. [...] Many are resigned to living and working in an organization in which they feel uncomfortable, but feel helpless to change. [...] trying to communicate matters to the GBC have been most discouraging. In response to my recent postings, a senior and respected devotee wrote to me: "I very much enjoyed and appreciated reading this from you, Maharaja. I share your anger. [...] I completely agree that there is deep corruption and hypocrisy in ISKCON leadership, and practically the ISKCON so-called leaders are the only ones who don't see it, and thus devotees more and more do not try to take shelter in the GBC, as the GBC body does not command respect, and in fact has become a laughingstock, at best, and perhaps an abject tragedy." (END)

COMMENTS: Not a GBC, Bhakti Vikas Swami has been often warned by the GBC for being overly critical of ISKCON leadership. As a result, he has had to tone down his positions markedly, shoved into line by a repressive regime who does as they like and will not tolerate being corrected even for their own obvious deviations and misleadership. We admire BVKS's honesty and insights, but he also bowed down to the corrupt regime. He would lose his guru franchise if he did not behave and shut up. And it is not just a matter of apologies, remorse, punishment, or even new leaders. If ISKCON's abuses are not understood for what they are: disobedient deviations introduced by Srila Prabhupada's poisoners who baited everyone with guru ambitions and turned ISKCON into a machine for the elite's gratification. Otherwise we will never correct anything and the same problems will remain, although perhaps in different manifestations. Abuse of the devotees, children, women came about due to the gurujacking of the movement. It is the guru/ initiation issue and lack of siddhantic understanding thereof that has caused all anomalies in ISKCON. Emotional “changes of heart” without honest study and realization of Srila Prabhupada’s guru/initiation instructions will be fruitless.

A LETTER TO THE MAYAPUR CHILD PROTECTION TEAM

“For the last 20 years every single investigation of child abuse or misconduct in Mayapur has been a joke, and you are the latest joker making everyone laugh. You say you are thoroughly investigating Bhakti Vidya Purna Swami’s case and will announce your opinion shortly. Why don’t you first announce the results of your investigation into pedophile Bhavananda whom you have sitting on the Vyasasana giving classes on Srimad Bhagavatam even today? Bhavananda, one of the most notorious child molesters in Mayapur, is today sitting in front of Radha Madhava with a garland around his neck giving class to all of the devotees, calling them rascals.

Or why don’t you go ahead and post the results of your investigation into notorious pedophile Nitaichand ‘Swami’? For decades he was molesting boys and girls, and you didn’t do a thing because he didn’t target foreign kids. [...] As everyone in Mayapur knows, Nitaichand was the one who almost perfectly fit Jayadvaita Swami’s statement: ‘ISKCON gurus have in the past had sex with men, women and possibly children.’ You just needed to cut out that ‘possibly’ for it to be 100% accurate. In his case you didn’t say a word because your only concern was to live comfortably in Mayapur. [...] so to hell with those Bengali, Bangladeshi and Nepali kids he and Bhavananda were molesting. [...] your CPT investigations mean anything? You are all rascals for selfishly remaining silent while Nitaichand and Bhavananda molested dozens of children. What about your investigation into the notorious pedophile Satadhanya, ISKCON’s main lawyer for years. Why did you let him stay in Mayapur when everyone knew he was a homosexual predator? Even after completing a CPT investigation that dragged on for years, he was just made to move one block down the road, and pay a $3,000 fine. He is still on ISKCON salary, fighting court cases against the ‘evil’ Ritviks in Bangalore. What was the use of your eyewash CPT investigation in his case? Where in the world a child predator can get away with just a $3,000 fine? Why wasn’t he reported to the police and sent to prison, like child molesters are meant to be dealt with? I’m sure you will reassure everyone that there was no cover up involved in his case either. You can’t touch him because being the main lawyer of ISKCON he knows all the illegal dealings of the Mayapur management. He could molest 1,000 kids and you still couldn’t touch him with your CPT investigation. You couldn’t touch Nitaichand because he ran the Mayapur mafia, and you would end up dead if you opened your mouth. You couldn’t touch Bhavananda because the local Zonal Acharya has given his backing, and if you go against it you are out of Mayapur. These are all the facts of the Mayapur CPT. You are nothing but a cover up team. You say CPT will ‘publish its findings’ on Bhakti Vidya Purna Swami shortly. Does that include all past investigations into his activities still not public? Will you make them all public together, or will you pretend the old investigations no longer exist? In the past you never made anything public, so why are you changing your policy now? From the 1980’s, beginning with the homosexual rule of Bhavananda’s disciples, till the present I can list you dozens of incidents in the Mayapur gurukula that were ‘investigated’. Amazingly not a single one has been made public.” (Navadwipchandra, 2005-son of Sruti Kirti, Srila Prabhupada’s servant) (LEFT: BHAVANANDA & BALA)

COMMENT: The truth about the Mayapur (and Vrindaban) child abuse, sexual and physical, will never be known but for scratching the surface and only token revelations and “remedies” will come from investigations. The vested interests (Jayapataka, Bhavananda, Bengali Mafia, some GBCs) will never let the truth see the light of day. This is the nature of a thoroughly corrupted ISKCON leadership. Only a major revolution by rank and filers will work.

ANOTHER REPORT ON MAYAPUR CHILD ABUSE

"Let's not forget the pedophiles: And then there was of course a host of pedophiles who were both teachers and monitors over the years in the Vrindaban Gurukula: Manihara, Shastra (Vancouver), Niragdeva, Anantarupa, Atmabhavana, Premnidhi, many more. Surely they were not going to fight a war for the children against Dhanurdhara's ongoing abuse. Over the years there have been some who attempted to expose and challenge the inappropriate behavior of Dhanurdhara and his supporters. Invariably they were expelled from service, often after having their character blemished. There was one boy, an orphan, 10-12 years old. His mentors decided to send him there possibly because the fees were lower than Vrindaban Gurukula. This boy stayed in Vrindaban for a while and I had the chance to get to know him a little, despite being an orphan he was a lively, happy, and playful boy. Then he left for the Chandigarh Gurukula. When I saw him a few months later; my heart cringed, there was no joy left in his eyes, once very talkative and active, he now did not have anything to say, he could not look me in the eyes. In a short time he seemed to have aged far beyond his years. He was not a carefree, innocent child any longer. His spirit was broken. I was convinced something very ugly and violent had happened. Looking at him then, I felt angry and helpless. Jayapataka Swami has been the Mayapur GBC since the beginning. Is he less responsible than Dhanurdhara? What he has done over the years to protect the children? Although he did not personally perpetrate abuse, he was negligent in his duty of care toward the children at least as much as Dhanurdhara. [...] Given the carelessness with which he enrolled teachers, no wonder so many atrocities took place. Anybody willing to do the job was welcomed with no screening. Sadly the volunteers for this job often had their own agendas. Gurukulis have been beaten and tortured by Doyaram, former temple president of Mayapur and Jayapataka disciple. Similarly to Gopal Krishna, Jayapataka did not make an effective attempt to protect the children who over the years were being sexually, physically and psychologically abused right under his nose. He was so busy traveling, preaching and initiating disciples, he was unable to be a guide and protector. Nitai Chand was a good friend of pedophiles Bhavananda and Satadhanya when they were in power. And devotees were asking to make Nitaichand a Guru! Granted there is not sufficient evidence that he is also a pedophile, however in my eyes the simple fact that he did not speak up against the perpetrators makes him guilty. It tells me a lot about his character." Gurukuli das, 2005

FARCICAL TOKEN PUNISHMENTS

In 2002 the ISKCON Child Protection Office determined that a Vakresvara Pandit das had consensual sexual relations with a 13 year old girl student for a year, and that he was to apologize to the girl and pay her $3000, and follow restrictions for 5 years. He did not apologize, nor pay the money, and his probation was reduced to 3 years instead. VPD violated the restrictions frequently and without consequence, despite complaints. VPD was a good kirtan leader, and since the relationship was consensual, it appears that after the CPO ruling, ISKCON leaders did not take his offense so seriously and did not enforce his probationary restrictions. However, civil law in Texas considers such a case to be "aggravated sexual assault," a felony, with a fine of $50,000 and a minimum of 5 years in prison with a maximum of 99 years. The token punishment by the CPO was farcically unenforced, with no consequences, and reduced as well. This is typical for ISKCON child abuse cases. The CPO was simply not supported by the ISKCON leadership, but rather, undermined.

BHAVANANDA SET UP MOLESTER NESTS IN MAYAPUR AND VRINDABAN

"At the time of Srila Prabhupada's disappearance, Bhavananda was in charge of Mayapur and trying to adjust the management of the boys gurukula school there so he could get a constant supply of young boys for his sexual pleasure. And Srila Prabhupada maybe suspected this could be a problem. Prabhupada ordered that there should be women teachers for the younger boys and he started employing retired Indian scholars and appointing them as the teachers for the older boys in the gurukula. This was completely frustrating Bhavananda's desire to turn the Mayapur Gurukula into a haven for pedophiles. So Bhavananda really had a very strong motive to get Srila Prabhupada out of the way. In 1979 Bhavananda took over Vrindaban as GBC and brought in his boys from Mayapur, expanding the pedophile haven there too.” (Anonymous)

FROM BETRAYAL OF THE SPIRIT: WHO’S WATCHING THE CHILDREN (By Nandini Dasi)

“...Some schools were free from abuse, but ironically the gurukula in Vrindaban, India, the land of Krishna’s youthful pastimes, was the setting of the worst child abuse. The most dedicated ISKCON parents sent their teenage boys there because it was the only gurukula that offered a high school curriculum. The prevailing wisdom was that public schools were bad and a strict religious education in a gurukula high school would set boys on the righteous path. Tragically, there were men on the staff who never should have been around children. Students were slapped, kicked, beaten, and slugged when blindfolded, held under water faucets, locked in bathrooms for days without food or blankets, sodomized, and threatened with death. The most abusive aspect of gurukula life was that the teachers employed the older, more experienced boys as ‘monitors’ to enforce discipline and corporal punishments. Teachers looked the other way when monitors abused and sodomized younger children. ISKCON defiled the holy land, and an offense there is said to be more serious than the same act elsewhere. But the problems were systemwide in ISKCON. Family incest is usually accompanied by demand for blind obedience to authority, poor communication, lack of loving and playful touch, duplicity, deceit, and family secrets. ISKCON’s offenses in Vrindaban could be characterized as organizational incest. Communication was seriously breaking down. Rumors of abuse spread as perpetrators around the gurukulas, with authority gurus’ blessings. Ignoring the problem was just easier for the GBC than facing it. Maybe the violent pedophiles might reform themselves? [...] After dealing with a 1984 abuse case at the L.A. community nursery school, Mukunda tried to convince other GBCs to face the issue. Incest doesn’t go away on its own, it gets passed along to the next generation. The only way to stop it is to bring it out in the open.

“[...] Prabhupada never would have approved of the abuse; he once reprimanded the teachers in Dallas merely for using a paddle. Nevertheless, many women naively enrolled their teenage boys in Vrindaban and collected money to support the school. These are the darkest secrets of the organization, which the women and children have had to bear alone. [...] it hid a growing desperation. All the children in ISKCON during those years felt it, even if they were not assaulted. Some adults sensed the tension, but most trusted the GBC leadership and left childcare to the gurukulas. Perpetrators told the children it was their karma that they were abused, but that’s not true. It was neglect on the part of idealistic and irresponsible adults.” (Betrayal of the Spirit, p. 76-7)

PEDOPHILIA IS RAMPANT IN CATHOLIC CHURCH, ISKCON, OTHER INSTITUTIONS

On June 29, 2017, after a year-long investigation by the Australian Royal Commission into Institutional Responses to Child Sexual Abuse, Cardinal George Pell was charged by Australian police over allegations of sex with minors by multiple complainants. Cardinal Pell resided in the Vatican as the #3 most powerful figure in the Catholic Church. He denied the allegations, dating back to the 1970s when Pell was a priest and later Melbourne’s Archbishop, as “lies” and returned to Australia to face the charges. He pled not guilty but was convicted and jailed. In April 2020 the High Court acquitted him “because the evidence did not establish guilt to the requisite standard of proof.” In Sept. 2021 he returned to the Vatican and forgave his accusers.

The Royal Commission, who has investigated many Australian institutions and presumably ISKCON as well, had earlier issued a report that more than 4000 children, mostly boys, have been allegedly assaulted by Catholic priests in Australia over a period of decades. Since the 1950s some 7% of Australian Catholic priests were alleged perpetrators. Since the 1980s the Catholic Church has paid over $200 million to victims of sex abuse by priests, solidly establishing a very widespread pedophilia problem amongst churches. Thus we can see that pedophilia and child sex abuse is rampant in many educational and religious institutions. It should be no surprise that ISKCON has been plagued by these problems for many decades, as sexual predators with some apparent spiritual leanings often end up in institutions taking care of children. By 2022 still nothing had come of the Royal Commission's supposed investigations into ISKCON history of child abuse. July 7, 2021: The Boy Scouts of America finally settled with 60,000 claimants for sexual abuse by Scout leaders over many decades, agreeing to pay $850 million, about $4K each, with hardly any arrests. Lousy deal.

"FESTIVAL OF RED FLAGS" (By Dhira Govinda Das, Director CPO)

As director of the Child Protection Office for ISKCON until 2002, Dhira Govinda das had written an article about the GBC weak corrective actions against child abuse in ISKCON and how the leadership was not serious about remedying the systemic problem in the society. It is titled Festival of Red Flags (find it online). An ISKCON gurukuli named Sanaka Rsi das, now an adult, has produced excellent documentaries on ISKCON child abuse and the ongoing corruption in the society and amongst its leaders which prevents real protection of the children. The CPO in ISKCON makes the impression that the ISKCON children are now being protected, but they are not. His films, Cost of Silence, are free online. These efforts to speak out openly about the abuse and corruption are absolutely necessary and applauded. Years later, however, the institutional pushback snapped Sanaka Rsi's mind and he apologized for polluting the air with his research and film.

CONCLUSION

The members of ISKCON are made up of "aspiring" spiritualists who still have material desires, often of the grossest sort. The proper approach is to protect the children with effective, advance managerial systems in place. Unfortunately in ISKCON we have seen that leadership is apathetic or even participating in the abuse and reacts only when absolutely necessary to make token amends, concessions, and shabby preventative measures. This is because the leadership is not focused on serving the mission and the devotees, but only on serving their personal ambitions with guru franchises, positions, benefits, and prestige. There has been widespread abuse of not just children in ISKCON since Srila Prabhupada's departure, but also of men and women- 1000s of devotees have been seriously mistreated and abused, sexually, emotionally, physically and especially spiritually. This occurred as the movement was hijacked by materially ambitious, pseudo-leaders who exploited resources and devotees alike for their sense gratification and mundane profiteering. By repression, intimidation, corruption, oppression, and tyranny, thousands have been abused by those who raped the mission in their greed and lust for power, worship, and distinction. Sad and sick, but true. Again, this is a failure in responsibility of a misleadership that should be kicked out wholesale, forever.

The damage done to thousands of talented, highly enthusiastic and spiritually motivated, dedicated men and women by the Ravanas with their Tamalism or guru ambition disease was tremendous. It practically crippled Srila Prabhupada's movement as these dispirited, alienated, and heart-broken devotees struggled to find ways to continue their service to Krishna and Srila Prabhupada. The chaos caused by the zonal acharyas and GBC misleaders was a true disaster. Can these elevated souls ever be rescued?

CHAPTER 123: CORRUPTION AND UNACCOUNTABILITY

"As soon as there is a little impurity, the whole thing will deteriorate and go to hell. We shall not like to take the credit in that case, therefore I am praying simply that all of you, my advanced disciples, GBC men, Temple officers, will become sober-minded." (SPL Dec. 29, 1972)

"Concentrated power leads to concentrated corruption. Always has, always will." (unknown)

We will look at many examples of the massive, wholesale plundering of ISKCON by its own misleaders. Without doubt the fraud and theft is extensive, society-wide, and rampant. This is due to Tamalism in ISKCON, the exploitation of the Acharya's assets for one's own self-serving purposes. These assets typically were built up by the hard work of Srila Prabhupada and the rank and file devotees. From Eleven Naked Emperors (Henry Doktorski), there is a description of the huge wealth accumulated in ISKCON by 1977, a wealth that was secretly envied by many of Srila Prabhupada's senior disciples: "The institution he founded was also a financial success; by 1977 ISKCON had collected tens of millions or more of dollars through fundraising, book selling and business ventures and with the profits had printed millions of Bhaktivedanta Swami's books, purchased luxurious mansions, historic churches, thousands of acres of land, and in India constructed imposing marble temples and guest houses for pilgrims: all for the glory of Krishna."

Similar to the central banking fraud whereby the state currency is debased and degraded, ISKCON has adopted the principle of unauthorized and imperfect, conditioned initiating gurus despite this program having proved itself to be an unredeemable failure. Frustrated by the continual appearance of more problems, conundrums, and contradictions after so many emergency meetings, policy papers to "clarify" questions of questionable policies, and hopes for a dumbed down membership, the ISKCON leadership stumbles on down a path to oblivion. Over 50% of all approved gurus in ISKCON since 1978 have "fallen," based on publicly-known exposures. The actual fatality rate is significantly higher because ISKCON's leadership invariably keeps their guru scandals secret as long as possible. Then, although having restricted devotees to no other choice than taking imperfect souls as their guru, they duplicitously caution to "choose wisely" as though it is a game of stock-picking or Russian roulette, and that disasters with gurus cannot be avoided. Yet, if one wants to stick with the pure devotee, Srila Prabhupada, they are derided as a deviant and an evil troublemaker.

As such, most ISKCON members initiated since 1978 have lost their guru to some sort of maya and the rest just do not know it yet. Everyone knows that practically all so-called "unfallen" ISKCON gurus have concealed their secrets which would require their resignations if revealed. Illicit sex with women, men, children, or themselves, frivolities, forbidden activities, intoxication, perverted delusions, etc. Some desire to be the new world savior, or be recognized as a great author, most holy saint, or charismatic sage... there's a maya for everyone who falsely wants to be a guru. Hundreds or thousands at a time were thrown into the fire of spiritual turmoil upon learning of their guru's demise or of his being "unqualified" as guru. Bhavananda, Hariksha, Satsvarupa, Jayatirtha, Bhagavan, Ramevara, Prabhavishnu, Kirtanananda: all horrific guru disasters.

The ISKCON power elite is most corrupted. This was clear in Part 7 re: Srila Prabhupada's poisoning coverup, and it is clear in Parts 11 and 13 re: the gurujacking history of ISKCON. Part 14 examines corruption or the poisoning of the mission by the spoiling of Srila Prabhupada's gifts to us. The poisoning and corruption in ISKCON goes very deep, starting at the top and trickling down, contaminating all participants. It is extremely unlikely anyone can remain adversely unaffected inside ISKCON; it would be an amazing feat of dexterity, aloofness, realization, and determination. Shastra dictates avoiding association with those not up to proper standards, and in the next chapters one will become convinced that covers the entire ISKCON institution.

WHAT IS ACCOUNTABILITY?

This is the obligation of an individual or organization to account for its activities, accept responsibility for them, and to disclose the results in a transparent manner. It also includes the responsibility for money and entrusted property. Accountability shows ownership and a willingness to admit mistakes. Accountability is answerability, blameworthiness, liability, and the expectation of account-giving. In leadership roles, it is the acknowledgment and assumption of responsibility for actions, decisions, and policies in the administration, governance, and implementation. It encompasses the obligation to report, explain and be answerable for resulting consequences, including punishment in the case of misconduct. From discussions in Alachua (2001) about problems with the GBC, this was written: “Laxmimoni dasi describes lack of accountability as ‘the most serious shortfall’ regarding the GBC. I agree. There may be unresponsiveness, inconsiderate behavior, irresponsibility, ineptitude, etc. that is found to some degree in all organizations. But due to lack of basic functional systems of accountability, these normative problems have persisted and worsened, eroding the body’s credibility, perhaps beyond repair.” The GBC has no accountability.

LOWER STANDARDS

The corruption and unaccountability in ISKCON due to the pervasive systemic infection of personal ambition at all levels has resulted in a severe lowering of standards and ideals across the board. Truth and siddhanta in Vaishnava philosophy has been compromised by political expediency. The leadership fears all potential threats to their authority, and they cover-up as many of the institutional problems as they can from the eyes of the world and its own membership. Gurus and sannyasis who fall from their religious vows and basic principles are quietly implored in private to do a better job of pretense and concealment. Active participation of membership in many areas of the world have become so low that GBC resorts to imported Bengali or Asian semi-devotees to keep temples operating. Salaries are standard, “necessary” to attract even halfway qualified personnel. Devotional standards naturally decrease as the quality of ISKCON membership deteriorates, with devotees no longer inspired to devote themselves to a life of austerity and bhakti, but now look how to mix in artha, kama, and material ambitions. In Fiji, the local GBC guru gently coaxed a small congregation of initiates, “At least try to have a 5 minute morning puja.” Elsewhere, temples advertise pet, car or house blessings, or demigod worship such as Shiva and Durga puja, complete with their deity forms. Bhakticharu Swami performed car pujas and worship of Shiva, and many temples incorporate Hindu festivals into temple activities that Srila Prabhupada never taught us. Thus the purity and standards that were rigorously set and defended by Srila Prabhupada himself have been jettisoned out the window as a “do the necessary” entails an “anything goes” simply to keep the primary operations going. This is serious corruption.

THE BASIC CONFLICT OF INTEREST IS COMPETITION WITH SRILA PRABHUPADA

Corruption in ISKCON has arisen because of a pervasive, underlying, systemic conflict of interest problem: namely, that Srila Prabhupada cannot be the center of everything as the Founder-Acharya, essential and effective diksha guru, and current link to the sampradaya while others want to falsely be those things themselves. It is as simple as that. If ISKCON eliminated all diksha gurus except Srila Prabhupada, then all those conflicts of interest vanish and the atmosphere would immediately clear up. Things would run nicely and all devotees would harmoniously work together, focused on a common interest: pleasing Srila Prabhupada. How can ISKCON be Srila Prabhupada’s institution with self-appointed and unauthorized gurus vigorously competing for disciples, worship, funds, etc? The cure for ISKCON’s corruption and all its problems is that simple.

“Just like... But the thing is, if the GBC and the president is the same man, that is not good. That is not good. The president should be separate. (SPConv Mar. 27, 1975) In the same way that there is a conflict of interest when the GBC and temple president are the same person, similarly when the GBC and the guru is the same person, there is a conflict of interest or an undue consolidation of power that will be abused. Of course, if Srila Prabhupada is the “divya-jnana” diksha guru instead of bogus pretenders, then there is a perfect balance of affairs. But today’s ISKCON is totally corrupt as the leadership consists of mostly GBC’s who are also the institutional gurus. Although we are supposed to assume that the ISKCON gurus would never stoop to utilizing their positions for their personal interests, such as manipulating GBC decisions and policies to further their guru franchise interests, this is exactly the underlying story in ISKCON’s history since 1977.

CORRUPTOCRACY: CORRUPTION AND CHEATING TRICKLES DOWN FROM THE TOP

After Srila Prabhupada physically departed, ISKCON took a sharp turn towards illegal and immoral practices. As the new ISKCON gurus had taken a short cut to guruhood, even though they were unqualified and unauthorized, this principle of cheating quickly trickled down from the top echelons of the society to the rank and file devotees. Techniques for distributing books became even more questionable, and then were replaced with selling “paraphernalia” and quick-money scams or semi-scams. Women were reportedly used as prostitutes (New Vrindaban) or as polygamous collecting parties, drug dealing appeared in different quarters of the movement (rumors were widespread), stealing was rationalized as “for Krishna,” and debts were incurred with no intention of repaying them. Scams in ISKCON proliferated. E.g., making $750 false claims with airlines on two lost bags per a $29 flight. Receipt-less returns of shoplifted items at department stores, fire insurance/ arson, collecting donations for non-existent charities, fraudulent government welfare claims, and much more were widespread practices. Some ISKCON leaders openly endorsed these practices, such as Kirtanananda and Hansadutta, who were brazen in their transgressions and contempt of societal rules and laws. Other leaders were more discreet in what they did, but by the eighties cheating became firmly established as a way of life in ISKCON. Temple presidents followed the example of their leaders, and the common devotees followed the temple presidents. This cheating atmosphere of corruption developed because it flourished at the highest levels. Unfortunately those giving donations were cheated and became implicated as well. ISKCON became and remains today a corruptocracy.

Achyutananda: If a man says, “I am giving you this donation because it is a spiritual organization,” but if the money is misused, does that man benefit? SP: If money is misused, then both of them become implicated. If it is not used for Krishna, then both of them becomes under the laws of karma. (SPConv Mar 14, 1976)

EXAMPLES OF ISKCON CORRUPTION

General examples of ISKCON institutional corruption, degradation, and ruination are:

(1) Srila Prabhupada was poisoned with homicidal intent, almost certainly by his leading disciples. (2) Misleaders masquerading as the next link in the disciplic succession. (3) The GBC was hijacked by the new gurus in March 1978; there has been no GBC since then, only an elite guru club. (4) There is no choice given to ISKCON devotees other than initiation by conditioned gurus. (5) Hundreds of children in ISKCON schools were physically, sexually, or mentally abused. (6) Thousands of devotees have been mistreated in ISKCON, causing them to depart the institution in distress and to give up the practice of Krishna consciousness. (7) The pure original teachings in the Founder-Acharya’s books were extensively revised, adulterating their meaning and spiritual potency. (8) Illegalities and internal scandals have given the Hare Krishnas a bad name in many quarters. (9) Virabahu Swami was apparently “selling” religious student and worker visas for $10,000 each. Where the money went is unknown. (10) Umapati Swami was again caught sleeping with male disciples, and was sent to another temple for “rest and recuperation,” the stress of being a guru given as reason for his “mishap.” (11) Bhavananda was caught engaged in homosexual activities and molested many children.

(12) Kirtanananda Swami was convicted of federal crimes and jailed for 8 years, and admitted having sex with young men (but denied sex with children). (13) Kirtanananda and Ramevara are both alleged to have been party to the 1986 Los Angeles murder of Sulochan das, an early ISKCON reformer. (14) Female devotees aspiring for guruship were on the Shastric Advisory Committee, whose task it was to determine the shastric support for female diksha gurus to be allowed in ISKCON (obvious conflict of interest). (15) On Feb. 23, 2016, Jaya Gaura das posted comments about corruption in Mayapur just after the incident where the GBC Chairman was dangled off a balcony with threats by local devotees: “It is the fault of the GBC and other ISKCON temple presidents and politicians that has perpetuated a culture of mistreatment of godbrothers, wives, and children. Before I was in Brooklyn, NYC, Port Royal, Brazil and Puerto Rico acting as temple president. I always left broken hearted and in pieces after working hard for Srila Prabhupada and Krishna. The Bengalis and Bangladeshis are a symptom, they are not the disease here in Mayapur. Bhaktividyapurna roams free like a king here. His history of caning boys until they bled and other sexual deviations have magically disappeared. It’s a tragedy. Most are not capable of critical/discriminative thinking without falling into the trap, ‘Oh, this is Vaishnava aparadha.’ Any dissent is labeled as maya. There is no process for judicial or executive oversight. The leaders have all gotten rich, and left a trail of devotee bodies. Millions are missing here. It's time for devotees to wipe those idiotic smiles off their faces, but I think it's too late."

DEVAMRITA SWAMI REJECTS ACCOUNTABILITY

From Devamrita Swami, 13 June 2018, his "declaration:" "In Feb. at the annual GBC meetings I met with some of my GBC godbrothers at their request to address some concerns raised in regards to the transparency of my past when it comes to accepting and initiating disciples. The conversation was conducted respectfully and in a collegiate manner and I have humbly conceded to comply with some conditions put forward during the discussion. Those conditions are... That the following declaration be made available to all current disciples and existing prospective disciples, and that appropriate temple authorities discuss the below declarations with any future prospective disciples before such candidates approach me for shelter and immediately upon learning that the candidate is seeking shelter from me, and that the below declarations be made publicly available in all temples and zones where I am a GBC, hold a position of leadership, or have a significant number of supporters. My declaration: [...] my re-entry in to Iskcon after being excommunicated during the New Vrindavan years was under an agreement of amnesty, I expect that amnesty to be honored, I reserve my right to silence on questions around my involvement in the activities of the time, assets I had control over, and the ongoing proprietorship of said assets. Along with the vast majority of my sannyasi godbrothers I decline to participate in the GBC mandate that Sannyasis' declare their assets and income on an annual basis. I include questions around my Australian registered company 'Jay Matsya Superannuation' within this privacy. I have several aliases that I have not deemed necessary to declare publicly in the past, Devamrita Swami, Jay Matsya, and my birth name Lee Reynolds. I have been married and divorced twice... Sometimes I denied being married. In 2016 a recording was made public of me giving advice in regards to how local authorities should deal with the reporting of a sexual assault; I advised them to try and get the victim to state it was mutual and that it will all go away. No Iskcon authority has expressed to me that this advice is inappropriate."

RESTRICTING THE TRUTH FOR PERSONAL INTERESTS

It is seen that whenever an honest devotee takes up some service in or for ISKCON, they are invariably confronted with push-back and resistance from those with selfish interests at stake. This is common in mundane institutions, which unfortunately, ISKCON has become, in all of too many ways. An example is illustrative, written by Yasodanandana das in 2016: "Dhira Govinda das is promoting Srila Prabhupada, his original books and teachings. ISKCON GBC has stopped recommending and sending any of their disciples and followers to attend any of his seminars. What was his crime? Since he published the essay Prominent Link, where he had the 'audacity' to suggest that Srila Prabhupada should be the main and prominent link for newcomers and prospective disciples coming to Krishna consciousness, he has been publicly derided and attacked for preaching this dangerous 'ritvik-like' philosophy. His publication was a lethal threat to the GBC caste-like monopoly on initiations. To add insult to injury, his exposing the BBT and BBTI's unauthorized changes to Srila Prabhupada's original CC re: how Jagannatha das Babaji initiated Bhaktivinoda Thakur and the deletion of the word 'initiated' in their revised edition, further alienated the GBCs. Re: his role in ISKCON's child protection office, I was informed by senior devotees that the elitist clique within the GBC (executive committee) did not like that he was investigating the alleged activities of various members involved in the ISKCON Mayapur Gurukula. As a separate point, I was told by an ISKCON sannyasi, who investigated the alleged abuses at Mayapur, that he had been threatened at gun point by an associate of the infamous Bhavananda."

AN ACCOUNT OF THE ISKCON RELIGIOUS VISA ABUSE

As the ISKCON gurus alienated and shunned their Godbrothers after 1978, devotees left ISKCON in droves. By 1990 only a handful remained; they had moved out into the world to find jobs, raise families, and live peacefully. Western ISKCON temples became empty, with skeleton crews and imported "green carders." Jayapataka had introduced this remedy: the importation of Indian and other young Asian devotees with temporary religious visas to staff the Western temples, and today most Western temples operate on the strength of this now-permanent stop-gap measure. Decades ago Virabahu (ISKCON guru) was chastised by the GBC for selling ISKCON religious entry visas to devotees from the third world. This is a shady but widespread practice amongst ISKCON gurus and other leaders. A complaint to the GBC from Raktak das (2000):

"I am writing ...to help further the mission of Srila Prabhupada and ISKCON. ...discrepancies I saw during the time I resided at ISKCON Baltimore and to raise some questions... Why is everyone living in the temple an immediate relative of the temple president, Narasingha-Chaitanya das (NCD) and sponsored by Ravindra-Svarupa das (RVD) through US Immigration? NCD always arranges for RVD to stay at Howard Johnson when he comes to Baltimore? How can RVD know what's going on at the Temple? He does not attend the full morning program when he visits the temple as GBC. ...Why is RVD given over $5000/mo from the temple, as a check to ISKCON Philadelphia or cash in hand from one palm to another, when the Deities cannot even get their daily offerings... Is ISKCON Baltimore Srila Prabhupada's temple or is it a Visa factory for the Pani family to come to the U.S.? Why are all temple members here with the last name of Pani related to NCD? Why were all who raised questions thrown out? On the whole this is now the empire of Ravana... Your servant, Raktak das"

In 2000, Govinda das gave a 53 pg. report to the GBC Exec. Comm. about financial misappropriations, immigration fraud, and devotee abuse in Baltimore ISKCON under GBC RVD. Two previous Baltimore treasurers claimed "they could show through bank statements indicating substantial amounts of misappropriation of funds..." After more than a year of GBC "investigations," Govinda das was dismayed to learn that the GBC had failed to look into Baltimore's finances. A respected devotee (Karnamrita das) volunteered to manage the temple and straighten everything out, but this was put on hold, and "in one full year of impotent research no significant change occurred." A group of 17 Baltimore devotees had volunteered to help reform the local problems, but "they were treated to RVD immediately berating, belittling, and threatening them." Govinda das: "The Baltimore case is a perfect example of a temple under the GBC 'dictatorship,' defining how GBC members become so corrupted that they will protect themselves and their positions at any cost. They will even ignore, belittle, and abuse devotees who want to assist. This is the characteristic style of GBC behavior." (2001)

VOLUNTEERS AND SALARIES

It was revealed in recent years that the salaries paid to the ISKCON London Bhaktivedanta Manor devotees (or "staff") was $1,600,000/yr, funds collected mostly from the Hindu congregation. Pujaris, cooks, temple managers, teachers, gardeners, everyone is paid a salary for their "work," which then (according to Srila Prabhupada) no longer can be counted as pure devotional service. This is typical across ISKCON today because the mood of service, simple living, and surrender in voluntary work has changed dramatically from the times when Srila Prabhupada was physically present. Some quotes from Srila Prabhupada on giving devotees salaries to do their devotional service: (1) "I have no objection to paying you something monthly for doing the Hindi translating work, thereby freeing you to devote your time 100% in this way, but I am hesitating for one reason only, that it is the common understanding of Krishna Consciousness or the science of devotional service rendered to Krishna that we shall serve Him spontaneously and without any desire for compensation for our service. Our service to Krishna is voluntary and we are interested only that He shall be pleased, not myself. Therefore the advanced devotee is ready to serve Krishna under all conditions of difficulty or scarcity [...] If He sees His devotee sincerely and seriously trying to serve Him, He is prepared to give His devotee anything and everything to mitigate any suffering conditions. That is mature understanding and realization of Krishna Consciousness [...] you are a married man, with wife and children, but so are many of my students, and what will they think if I give you money for your devotional service? But I do not give them any money? and I am willing to pay you in principle, only I do not want to create any example which may be mistaken by other students. So under these circumstances, if you do not want to give your time and energy full time for translating and editing the Hindi work, unless there is some compensation of money, then what can I do? All of these American and European boys and girls, they have had enough of money, they are sons of millionaires and rich men of America, still they do not ask me for one farthing for their work. They could [...] make thousands of dollars a month as educators and skilled professional men, still they prefer to live with me and eat only a little rice from the floor, and sleep on the cold ground without cover, that is their advanced realization of spiritual life.” (SPL Ramananda das) (2) SP: You take prasadam. But why salary? Where is the question of salary? Where is vairagya, renouncement? So in all circumstances the salary process should be stopped. One who wants salary, he can work outside. Tamal: Actually, even if you don’t give a salary, if you give an apartment and you give food and you give all these other things for someone to maintain his household life. SP: Because his service is essential. Tamal: But that has to be determined very strictly. SP: Yes. Yes. Whether his service is absolutely required? So you give him. Tamal: That is the factor. That point must be clearly acknowledged. SP: Hm hm. So he’s trying to practice... Because sevonmukhe, if he gives service, then gradually he’ll renounce. Sevonmukhe hi jihvadau svayam eva sphuraty adah [...] The more you give service to the Lord, the more you become advanced in devotional... So one who is giving service, dedicated life, so maybe... But no salary. They may live in the temple, woman separate, man separate. So these things should be stopped, that they should live comfortably with husband and wife, children, and take salary [...] You decide. This is not to our... Besides that, in our BBT it is clearly written that “Fifty percent for printing book, and fifty percent for...” So you cannot violate this. Those who can give voluntary service, “Welcome.” Otherwise we don’t require. At least they should not be given any salary. That is very bad. This is against principle. (SPConv Apr. 28, 1977) (3) SP: Please try to understand the philosophy. [...] So you are welcome. You come. Live with us with your family. We take charge of you. But if you ask some salary, that is not possible. That is not possible. Guest: I have my sisters and mother and father to support. SP: So let them come, all, and live with me. [...] But if you want money, that is not possible. (SPConv)

Today, generally all married and many unmarried devotees working for ISKCON receive compensation or salary, most often very much beyond a bare maintenance level, and rather on a competitive level with mundane societal standards. There are many temple presidents with expensive cars and extensive travel or vacation expense budgets. In 2002 the GBC resolutions required all teachers at the Vrindaban gurukula to be paid on par with Indian national teachers. ISKCON simply no longer has a standard of voluntary service.

Salaries are another corruption in ISKCON. Srila Prabhupada did not like salaries; sometimes he would allow provision of housing, prasadam, and a small maintenance stipend, but not salaries comparable to those in outside society. Tamal’s letter as Srila Prabhupada’s secretary to Radhaballabha at the BBT: “When His Divine Grace heard that you were able to save $5500.00 by removing some of the less essential devotees from the press, he commented as follows: ‘Henceforward, nobody should be appointed without my permission. Money is not so easy to get. In the BBT Trust it is clearly said that all of the funds are meant for printing and construction of temples. Not for salaries. Why have so many people been appointed without my permission? We do not want any salaried men. That is the principle to be followed. So many scientists are working and they do not take a single paisa. This extravagancy must be stopped immediately.” (April 27, 1977)

BIRDS OF A FEATHER FLOCK TOGETHER

Since ISKCON is allowing any of its members “in good standing” to unilaterally announce their candidacy and shamelessly campaign for the vote-approved position of initiating guru, the institutional atmosphere has become stained with the dark ink of personal ambitions. ISKCON has become a parampara of the cheaters and cheated, as pretentious and phony gurus (who are conditioned souls) compete for disciples who do not understand who is a bona fide guru. Srila Prabhupada strongly emphasized that ISKCON was not meant to facilitate personal ambitions (Ch. 154), which could not be allowed to enter lest all be ruined. However, that is what ISKCON has become: a facility for sense gratification, especially for the more subtle varieties. The ISKCON atmosphere is polluted, inky, and highly infective for anyone who enters- an insidious miasma. Naturally, a society of materially ambitious persons will generally attract others of the same quality and mindset. “Birds of a feather flock together,” Srila Prabhupada would say. Thus over time the corruption of ISKCON reinforces itself. Also, by negative association, those members with genuine spiritual inclinations and sincerity become spoiled as well. If ISKCON’s leadership does not safeguard spiritual purity by adhering strictly to Srila Prabhupada’s instructions and standards, corruption will come because we are living in the inky, dirty atmosphere of the material world. Srila Prabhupada said, “We are not in Los Angeles. This is Vaikuntha.” Unfortunately ISKCON has lost its spiritual purity due to deviations from the correct standards and due to exploitation of Srila Prabhupada’s assets (ISKCON) by facilitating personal ambitions and not pure preaching.

FOUR MEANS OF CONVINCING SOMEONE

How did ISKCON maintain some degree of membership loyalty after corruption of the spiritual principles given by Srila Prabhupada? It was achieved through mundane political expedencies and methods. There are, according to Chanakya Pandit, four means of convincing someone and earning their loyalty: (1) SAMA (logic): By philosophical deviations and defective logic/doctrinal policies, ISKCON has covered truth, convinced the less sincere and less intelligent to conform to its corrupt system. (2) DANA (bribery): When ISKCON ordered in 2000 that any of their members who would become involved in the poison investigation would be disenfranchised, not one senior leader had the nerve to stand up for the truth because they were all dependent on ISKCON for material facilities. All cowards. (3) BHEDA (duplicity): The GBC response to the poison evidence is full of duplicity, lies, fraud, etc. (4) DANDA (stick, fear, intimidation, punishment): Current link and poison theorists are banned, ridiculed, vehemently criticized, and demonized.

NEWCOMERS TO ISKCON ENTICED BY ITS MATERIAL OPPORTUNITIES

“Navadvipa das from Vancouver told me that an Indian devotee, who later became the Vancouver president, told a new Indian devotee, that if you just work hard, soon you can be in charge of something, and then receive a good salary. So this reveals how ISKCON now has very little of the volunteer service mood that Srila Prabhupada wanted.” (Damaghosh das 2016) There are innumerable cases of young Asian devotees brought to Western temples to “work” as cooks, pujaris, management, etc, by getting immigration visas or “green cards” wherein they can legally reside as foreigners. However, almost all, as soon as their permanent residency is obtained, leave the temple for more lucrative employment elsewhere. They use ISKCON as a springboard to gain coveted residency in the West. They plan to work in ISKCON under a religious worker visa only until they can move on to better material opportunities. Obviously, this system attracts little spiritual sincerity. A 2016 report re: Bengali devotees brought on religious worker visas to the ISKCON Belfast temple showed most local devotees had left the temple to live outside. The Radha Krishna deities were moved to Leicester, England due to insufficient devotees in Belfast. It appears that ISKCON in the West has temples staffed primarily by very small crews or primarily foreign devotees on temporary visas. This is also the situation in New Orleans, Baltimore, Boston, and many temples in the West, save and except a few such as Los Angeles, London, etc. Even New York ISKCON in Brooklyn has only a few resident devotees. Most visa holders are from greater India, and this further Hindu-izes the temples (Ch. 121).

GBC RESOLVES THAT ALL LEADERS MUST SUBMIT ANNUAL FINANCIAL REPORTS

Over the years, devotees often complained about the total lack of transparency in ISKCON regarding the money trail. Unaccountable money means corruption. Who is getting the money and what happens to it? Rumors abounded of gurus having millions in Swiss accounts, and no one knew how much each guru had accumulated, spent, or what it was spent on. Sometimes information arises—such as Bhakticharu “Swami’s” multi-million dollar losses in his failed business ventures, or Giriraja “Swami’s” being awarded US$29 million in a court case trust settlement. The donations received by ISKCON gurus, called guru dakshina, is an area that is particularly sensitive, as formerly these donations should go to Srila Prabhupada’s temples, but now disappear into private accounts instead. No one knows how much the gurus collect or what they do with it. Sometimes the GBC has some new semi-honest, non-guru members, but the guru club never allows them to develop a majority, although they are useful to generate at least a veneer of decency and reform for ISKCON's external appearances. The gurus get a cleaner image while the weak reformers feel they are making progress in cleaning up the show. Unfortunately, the basic corruptions remain in place and simply become more hidden, sophisticated, and entrenched, forced deeper into ISKCON's fabric. E.g., see Ch. 98, Book One.

An example is seen in the ISKCON societal enthusiasm for financial accountability that began in 1999. That year, a GBC resolution was passed, establishing a "committee put together to establish financial accountability for ISKCON leaders." The following year (2000), the GBC passed another resolution: "Financial disclosure annually required for all ISKCON leaders including guru dakshina. There is a need to expand the financial reporting of ISKCON leaders and this should be done prior to any further discussion of specific regulation of guru-dakshina. Resolved: (LAW 614): All GBC body members, gurus, sannyasis and international project directors are required to file annual personal financial reports to the GBC Executive Committee... contain a standard income statement and balance sheet... include a list of all ISKCON related bank accounts with signers, names, balances for which they are a signer or have some control. All guru dakshina must be included in the report... all income and non-monetary gifts over US$500 must be itemized according to source. All annual reports must be submitted by Jan. 31 each year be signed and sworn to as true and accurate. The Executive Committee will compile these reports and make a general report to the GBC body prior to annual meetings, including who did not report." Urmila dasi in 2016 wrote who provides financial reports in ISKCON:

"I have no idea; ask Anuttama Prabhu. I've never seen any other than Jayadvaita Swami's. He posts his publicly every year." So, there has been no compliance with this resolution, another case of the elite GBCs being comfortable ignoring their own resolutions. Financial reports by ISKCON leaders are not made public. Even if they were given to the GBC Executive Committee, who else would see them? And who would verify if they were accurate? There are no audits. It is another ISKCON show-bottle reform. Did anyone really think the big gurus like Bhakticharu, Radhanath, Gopala Krishna, Jayapataka, Indradyumna, Hridayananda, and so on would reveal their finances? Of course not, it is none of anyone's business! The sacrosanct principle of gurus being untouchable and unaccountable is called the guru business, and it is secret, private, and hidden. Trivikrama Swami, 2004: "Before we get too many more righteous letters on this subject please allow me to explain why I have not submitted a financial disclosure. I thought Iskcon was based on 'Love and trust.' If after 35 years of unsalaried service, why can't we trust our leaders? Again, the GBC passing laws they can't enforce. Will they look in everyone's pocket? If the institution gave me money to do it's work then I should report on how I spent it. I recently had to go to the flea market to come up with my rent money. What of those who start a new center? Sorry, I have no time to give this kind of report... If you don't like it then fire me!"

The GBC cannot police itself: this is a silly, naïve notion. The working ISKCON system is that their approved gurus are authorized to collect guru dakshina and do what they like with it, and do not have to reveal their finances. Tax exempt too! What a perfect business! But Srila Prabhupada would be livid about this. It is theft of Srila Prabhupada's money, a serious crime. No accountability means corruption, doing things wrongly. The ISKCON gurus collect dakshina from admirers, disciples, the public. What happens to it? Krishna Avatar das wrote Dhira Govinda das in 2000: "There has been such mismanagement of resources that if this were a corporation, everybody would be fired. The selling of the Manhattan and Miami Beach temples come to mind: what happened to the money? Some ideas for the ISKCON money trail: (1) Sannyasis should have ISKCON credit cards to detail all expenditures publicly. (2) All donations, and especially guru dakshina, should be documented and deposited into a general ISKCON fund. (3) Every temple should provide financial statements on the net. (4) Independent audits of each temple, GBC member, sannyasi, guru, and other leaders, as well as affiliated organizations. As Srila Prabhupada said: Every paisa should be accounted for. (5) Any questionable devotee should not be a leader, as many sannyasis and gurus are very sketchy. (6) There should be an equal level of accountability applied to all levels of devotees at all times./ Some people have concerns that if we reject the GBC, who will we take guidance from? But the GBC are not going to help us."

FOLLOW THE MONEY

Why was Bhakticharu, as a sannyasi and guru, investing in speculative businesses? As Kirtanananda used to say, "the money is the honey." When he hired high profile attorney Alan Dershowitz, he dropped a $100,000 retainer and paid him $500/hour. Yet, abused gurukulis had to sue ISKCON properties and temples to get compensation for their horrible treatment as children under the supervision of these secretly wealthy leaders, each ultimately getting a few thousand only. ISKCON's siphoned-off money should be a major scandal. The ISKCON guru franchise business is more or less a money-making operation, and without any accountability. Sannyasis and especially gurus in ISKCON must be made to report their finances, be audited, and practically all funds must go to the temples and Srila Prabhupada's service instead of luxury apartments for gurus. Private guru operations will fizzle out when the guru business is outlawed in ISKCON. Just to get an idea of the cash flow that had existed in New Vrindaban in 1986, we read: "By 1986, he [Kirtanananda] had initiated a thousand devoted disciples throughout the world, and had an army of dedicated fundraisers out on the 'pick' who collected sometimes $150,000 per week and $5,000,000 per year. Bhaktipada had deep pockets and he could spend his money, for the most part, however he pleased." (Krishna Killers p.7) The amount of money in ISKCON's guru business is far more than the average devotee can even imagine.

GBC ESTABLISHES SHASTRIC ADVISORY COUNCIL (SAC)

In 2002 the GBC established the SAC in response to popular demands that the GBC depoliticize and re-spiritualize by taking neutral advice from honest, learned scholars and brahmanas.

"DEFINITION OF THE SAC: The SAC is a permanent, pro-active body of senior, trusted and proven brahmanas that offers input to the GBC Body according to scripture, philosophy and realization. Subordinate to the GBC Body, the SAC is advisory only. The conclusions and advice of the SAC are in no way binding on the GBC Body. The purpose of the SAC is: (1) To avail the GBC Body of philosophical perspectives, references and siddhantas, to which it may otherwise not have access, or which its members may not have time to access. (2) To alleviate the burden of the GBC Body and its members. (3) To augment the utility and soundness of the GBC Body's decisions, thus preserving the integrity of the GBC. (4) To focus, refine and support the power of the GBC Body, not counter balance it."/ It is to be noted that SAC members must be approved by the GBC, they must be mutually and strictly confidential, they are advisory ONLY, subordinate to the GBC, and are purposed with 'support(ing) the power of the GBC Body, not counter balance it.' Again, we find only the appearance of checks and balances and objectivity, but actually it is a bureaucratic sham. The SAC will only find ways from the shastra to legitimize and rubber-stamp the deviancies of the GBC. That is their purpose and charter. To do otherwise would mean immediate termination of their operation and positions, which one might note, is highly prestigious in the ISKCON world. One of the primary complaints even amongst subservient ISKCON devotees is that the GBC "should explain the reasons for their decisions" with reference to sadhu, guru, shastra. Thus, the SAC was born. But the SAC only exists to take workload off the GBC itself, allowing them to make decisions which the SAC justifies later. This is another aspect of ISKCON's deep corruption, as in approving two women SAC members (wanting to be gurus) to study if ISKCON should approve a policy of women gurus.

THE GBC IGNORE THEIR OWN RESOLUTIONS, MADE ONLY FOR SHOW

Although the GBC boldly declares that their guru policies are shastrically correct and must be accepted and followed by ISKCON devotees at risk of severe consequences, they do not even fulfill their own resolution to define and give support from shastra as to what their guru system actually is. This is amazing hypocrisy. Every year in Mayapur, the GBC's annual meetings produce nice sounding resolutions that are simply flowery language or never implemented, completed, or defined, and are only concessionary lip service to whatever sincerity is still in ISKCON, meant to mollify us with empty promises, just as mundane politicians do. Another history is: "In 1999, the N. American GBC resolved that members must undergo certain training in areas such as management and interpersonal skills, within a year. Many GBCs clearly most in need of this training, completely ignored this GBC directive. There were no consequences for ignoring the required training. Thus the mandating of some basic education for GBCs resulted in an even greater loss of faith, as everyone saw that GBC members can ignore their own resolutions without consequence. In 1998 at the Mayapur meetings there was an assessment process for each GBC member. Many shortcomings were pointed out and some were told that without marked improvements in certain areas, they should not be a GBC. Hardly any, if any at all, training or education took place to remedy the deficiencies that had been noted. This is the integrity of the GBC. They make a show of response but it is all phony. Therefore the GBC has lost its rights to claim the authority that Srila Prabhupada wanted them to properly exercise.” (Dhira Govinda das)

A GURUKULI’S MEDITATIONS (2005)

(1) As Vaishnavas we must strive to be more humble than a straw on the street, yet some of our Gurus display an arrogance and pride equal to a rock star. Is this acceptable behavior for a model Vaishnava? (2) The position of GBC comes with a duty to care, protect, serve and safeguard the members and assets of Srila Prabhupada’s movement. The GBC has taken these duties too lightly. ISKCON ought to have a level of financial transparency that its members can be confident and reassured when donating their material wealth before departing this world. Imagine how many resources could be gathered. The lack of integrity that we have had over the years has created a lot of distrust, much to the detriment of ISKCON. (3) Protecting abusers and thus allowing them to continue abusing makes us silent accomplices. (4) Our leaders must be accountable, spiritually, morally and financially to the society, not simply between themselves. (5) The most worrisome aspect of the situation is that what is seen publicly is but a glimpse of the actual abuse of power taking place within the movement. The true magnitude is much more frightening. (6) Very, very few of ISKCON leaders have to this day shown the decency to come forward to acknowledge and apologize for their mistakes. No ISKCON leader has come forward while in power and say “Dear Vaishnavas, I have failed in my service to you, I have abused your trust and I have made many mistakes, please forgive me, I submit myself to your judgment and I am prepared to accept your advice and whatever atonement you give.” (7) Should ISKCON keep scandals private, or devotees would loose faith in ISKCON? But with our silence we are an accomplice to the problem. Because so many ISKCON scandals have been covered up, devotees have lost faith in the movement. There must be zero tolerance for abuse exploitation, deviant philosophies and practices. (END)

UNACCOUNTABILITY AND CORRUPTION

ISKCON leadership consistently covers up the “falldowns” of their own approved gurus, such as in the decades long hush-up over Prabhavishnu “Swami’s” visits to Bangkok for rest and recuperation among the city’s famous comfort women. Many other guru deviancies were covered-up. The ISKCON GBC hides the internal strife and conflicts, hides the defects in their own policies. They cannot enforce financial reporting or accountability amongst their own leaders and gurus. They cannot come up with proper shastric justifications for their concocted and illegitimate, deviant guru vote-approval system, even though they resolved to produce such a policy paper. There are a lot of skeletons in the closet of the ISKCON GBC leadership. Peripheral property development (in Mayapur, Vrindaban, etc), restaurants, guru dakshina, salaries, temple donations, temple-affiliated businesses, and so on make for lots of money being siphoned off from Srila Prabhupada’s movement that never gets used for preaching Krishna consciousness, as it ends up in private bank accounts. This is ISKCON corruption. Even sincere devotees who have spent a lifetime of selfless service to the mission become corrupted in ISKCON, as they are enticed by distinguishing themselves above others with moving up in the ISKCON hierarchical and bureaucratic structure. To aspire for positions where greater esteem and respect is given simply corrupts one's consciousness. Srila Prabhupada said: "There are no big devotees in ISKCON. We are all on the same level."

"Corruption and unaccountability is endemic in ISKCON. It exists because there is a vested interest group at the top of the power structure which exploits all the resources that in fact belong to Srila Prabhupada. The gurus want to maintain their privileges and opportunities for exploiting ISKCON's resources. It is a gurocracy." (Nityananda das, 2018) In the late nineties the Alachua ISKCON Board of Directors passed a resolution of no confidence in the GBC. Despite many attempts to meet with the Alachua GBC, Hridayananda refused, unresponsive to any correspondence. He simply refused to speak with community leaders. At the 1999 Mayapur GBC meetings, the GBC "evaluated with weight a letter from a former Alachua community member who almost everyone knows as a mentally imbalanced fanatic, instead of directly from the community leaders. The letter came with a petition including forged signatures." This story is typical of the ways in which the GBC handles the affairs of ISKCON. Corruption: acting to deviously serve private interests instead of ISKCON's interests. Strict systems of accountability are rarely seen anywhere in ISKCON, as everyone from top to bottom is "dipping into the till" or is "on the take." ISKCON misleaders do not want to become too strict on those in their charge lest those same rules come back to apply to them as well. Everyone has something to hide, and so everyone must support another's corruption by the rule of reciprocation.

One instance where there is little to no financial unaccountability or corruption is in ISKCON Bangalore temples Group. As described by Madhu Pandit das: "We have a well defined 'authority level matrix' describing limits of how much each person can approve expenditures. There is a good independent audit system to check whether the expenditure was done through proper documentation of following the practices for best prices from vendors. We have digitised everything and have an ERP where data on stock and purchase has to be entered on a daily basis including how much was spent on vegetables etc. Nobody can back date anything. Over and above that we have an internal audit system reporting independently directly to the top management. All these bring financial transparency and accountability within the organisation." Hoping to catch some incriminating defects and to support their allegations, ISKCON Bombay, in battling ISKCON Bangalore's secession, obtained court-mandated audits, but they came up completely clean.

DISTRIBUTE HIS BOOKS AND CONDUCT BUSINESS BY HONEST MEANS, WITHOUT CHEATING

Sometimes it is said that ISKCON corruption and dishonesty was widespread during Srila Prabhupada's physical presence also. However, in spite of the caliber of his disciples (lower class men), Srila Prabhupada was very clear in his words and actions that he wanted purity, honesty, and accountability in his institution. There were many examples of Srila Prabhupada being confronted with dishonest and corrupt practices that he ended with very clear instructions. When he learned about the source of funds from Prasadam Distribution Inc in Laguna Beach as being from hard drug sales, and when he learned of the brazenly illegal thefts by Gurukripa and Yasodanandana's collection party in Japan, he ordered an end to these practices. When book distribution tactics went on a tangent into short-changing, fraud, and scams, he put an end to those practices. Ramesvara (1981) said: "[In] 1974 I wrote to Prabhupada about controversies on what our methods should be on sankirtan. What kind of lines are we allowed to say. How we are allowed to represent ourselves. How much can we stretch the truth or how much can we conceal the truth. How much can we claim we are collecting for starving children. Jan. 1, 1975, he wrote me a very strong letter giving the policy regarding sankirtan lines."

"Whatever fund is collected for food distribution should be sent to India. Why is it not sent? [...] Don't use these UNICEF cards, that will not be good. You can make ISKCON FOOD RELIEF cards. But the money collected using this card must be sent to India where we are actually feeding people. If we simply speak nicely to a person and try sincerely to get him to take the book he'll take it. Why should we adopt unfair means? We should not do anything which will create a bad impression or make us unpopular. People are after these books, they are hankering for them. We don't need to take cheating method. I never had to use any cheating method when I first began. I simply presented the real thing.

Basically and practically speaking everything that is done sincerely for Krishna's satisfaction is perfect. But we have to be very very careful in our dealings with others so that they will not take the wrong view... While dealing with the ordinary men, we must spread this movement in such a way that they will not misunderstand us and take offense. Try to sell as many of my books as possible to your best ability." (SPL Ramesvara Jan. 1, 1975) And more Srila Prabhupada letters on this:

(1) "Regarding the controversy about book distribution techniques, you are right. Our occupation must be honest. Everyone should adore our members as honest. If we do something which is deteriorating to the popular sentiments of the public in favor of our movement, that is not good. [...] we should not become unpopular in the public eye. These dishonest methods must be stopped. It is hampering our reputation all over the world. Money collected for feeding people in India [...] must be sent to India, or better yet, buy food grains there and ship them here and we will distribute. But every farthing collected for that purpose must be used for that purpose." (SPL Rupanuga Jan. 9, 1975) (2) "So it is not very much advisable to make lies just to sell book. If we simply stick to describing how wonderful is Krishna, then whatever we may lie or exaggerate, that will not be lie! But other things, lies, they will not help us to train ourselves in truthfulness. Lie to some, not to others, that is not a good philosophy. Rather the brahmanas are always truthful, even to their enemies. There is sufficient merit in our books that if you simply describe them sincerely to anyone, they will buy. That art you must develop, not art of lying. Convince them to give by your preaching the Absolute Truth, not by tricking, that is more mature stage of development of Krishna Consciousness. (SPL Sri Govinda Dec. 25, 1972)

(3) "A film showing illegal techniques of distributing my books (money shuffle) was never authorized by me. [...] stop it immediately. In all our dealings we should be above suspicion. They say first impressions are lasting. If someone feels cheated by our men because they are using dubious methods of distribution and collecting money our purity may be doubted and reputation spoiled." (SPL Kirtanananda Oct. 15, 1976) (4) "I have read the clipping and you have also mentioned of the women wearing karmi clothes and going into sex movies and bars late at night for collecting. So this kind of canvassing should be immediately stopped. (SPL Nalinikanta Nov. 21, 1975) (5) "By stealing, did Gurukrpa M. collect that money? Stealing is not our business. Our business is to become Krishna conscious. Caesar's wife must be above suspicion. This is our program." (SPL Trivikrama Nov. 9, 1975)

(6) "Accounts must be kept, things must be in order and lawfully done." (SPL Karandhar Dec. 22, 1972) (7) "Letter to: All GBC Secretaries Aug. 19, 1976 All GBC Secretaries Dear GBCs: [...] It has come to His Divine Grace's attention that many members of our society are engaged in the same business that Rsabhdeva (ex-President) and devotees of Laguna Beach Temple were engaged in. (SPL Ramesvara, Sept. 8, 1976) (9) "I have received your invitation to the opening of Prasadam Distributing International Inc., and I found it nicely presented. Krishna will give you intelligence how to engage in honest, brilliant, glorious work on His behalf. There is no need to engage in anything dishonest. Krishna has given enough money, now earn by honest means." (SPL Alex, Bob, Drdhavrata, Gupta, Rsabhadeva, Stan, Jan. 24, 1977)

(SPL Karandhar Dec. 22, 1972) (7) "Letter to: All GBC Secretaries Aug. 19, 1976 All GBC Secretaries Dear GBCs: [...] It has come to His Divine Grace's attention that many members of our society are engaged in the same business that Rsabhdeva (ex-President) and devotees of Laguna Beach Temple were engaged in. (1) "The more honesty a man has, the less he affects the air of a saint. The affectation of sanctity is a blotch on the face of piety." (Lavater) (2) "According to a Bengali proverb, ati bhakti corera lakshana: Too much devotion is a symptom of a thief. A person who assumes himself to be a great devotee but mentally is thinking of something else is duplicitous. One who is not duplicitous is called sadhu." (CC Mad 17.15) (3) "We will establish hundreds of temples, and they will all be very opulent. But if we do not follow the instruction of the Spiritual Master, they will just be showbottle. Do you know what showbottle means? It means colored water in a bottle which looks just like medicine, but which does not work." (SPConv NY, July 1970) (4) "I will kill thee now and love thee later." (Othello by Shakespeare) (5) "Kirtanananda may be eager to address in the Harvard university but recently he has lost his link on account of disobedience. You sing every day morning that by the mercy of the Spiritual Master one can please the Lord and one who has not pleased the Spiritual Master cannot have any access in the realm of Krishna Consciousness. Very recently Kirtanananda has developed a different consciousness of Maya which is called misuse of one's minute independence offered by Krishna. [...] one at once becomes a victim of Maya and thus he loses all importance in Krishna Consciousness. So it is my definite opinion that his lecture anywhere now will bear no spiritual sequence. He must rectify his mistake before he can play in our Society any important role. By lips he says that he is a surrendered soul but by action he is thinking differently." (SPL Satsvarupa, Oct. 6, 1967) (6) Bhakticharu Swami: "...we see how miserably we failed to fulfil that instruction. Srila Prabhupada's greatest asset was his devotees, and that asset we started to lose first. Now we are about to lose everything else that His Divine Grace gave us to maintain. I do not want to blame anyone for all the mistakes that were made, but we must nonetheless recognise them and learn our lesson from them. Therefore, with all sincerity, I say that we are losing everything because we had been thinking that Srila Prabhupada is now dead and gone, and we started to claim our shares of our inheritance." (Nov. 18, 2001) Bhakticharu as the "reformer" ceased his initiations, but soon he began again. It was contrived posturing only. (7) "Most people are readily equipped to recognize evil when they see it directly. What they are not equipped for and must learn is how to recognize evil disguised as righteousness." (Brandon Smith)

THE MASK OF GURU BHAKTI IS A FALSE PRETENSE

If the materially-conditioned, self-appointed gurus in ISKCON were to operate on the actual asset strength of their own persona, charisma, knowledge, advancement, and spiritual power, they would not be very successful with their guru business. To enhance their profile they need to use Srila Prabhupada as their calling card. Srila Prabhupada, as the bona fide spiritual master and shining beacon of purity and transcendence, is very attractive to all sincere spiritualists. With the appearance of serving Srila Prabhupada, working on his behalf, trying to please him, claiming to follow his instructions (as they understand them, which they insist is the only way to understand them), glorifying Srila Prabhupada, and by giving Srila Prabhupada to others –their own attractiveness and success increases immensely. All ISKCON gurus know their guru career is greatly enhanced with the mask of guru bhakti. Exhibiting a show of love and devotion to Srila Prabhupada is standard practice for the ruling elite GBC-guru cartel of ISKCON. But all too often it is only lip service.

When one cannot recognize the material ambitions and misrepresentations of these false gurus, one is fooled by their show of devotion. It complicates matters that ISKCON gurus often do have genuine love and devotion for Srila Prabhupada; but it is mixed with pretense as well. Each case is unique, and although the disease is the same, the degree of phoniness varies from one to the next. It is like cancer: some have stage 2, others stage 4, etc. Invariably they all have material ambitions to enjoy gross or subtle sense and mind/ego gratification as a guru. This desire is the last snare of maya. Aside from detecting deviations in sadhana or spiritual practices, one may analyze the statements of these gurus carefully to ascertain their genuineness. Typically they give lip service to Srila Prabhupada and his mission, but then they eagerly pursue their own "mission," increasing their disciples, properties, businesses, bank balances, worship, and prestige, all which they fiercely guard as their private estate or guru franchise. There is bitter competition for followers, influence, and status. The ISKCON gurus circulate in ISKCON to collect new disciples, worship, and money. ISKCON gurus make no financial disclosures and carry on with blanket protection from the corrupt GBC-guru club.

For example, we see rather inspiring pronouncements from an ISKCON guru: "...to save the world is now in the hands of Srila Prabhupada's followers. One symptom of a devotee who has taken Srila Prabhupada's mission seriously is a sense of purpose and urgency. He sees so many things that need to be done for spreading Krishna consciousness, and diligently applies himself in some activity to help push on this movement. He is not a lazy man. How can we recognize a true follower of Srila Prabhupada? By his qualities. Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati was famous as the Lion Guru, and Srila Prabhupada was similarly ferocious in preaching. Lions do not give birth to lambs. The world is full of impersonalism, atheism, wickedness and nastiness. Srila Prabhupada fought his whole life against this rascaldom. If we really want to be known as followers of Srila Prabhupada, we must come together and fight against all this nonsense. Srila Prabhupada wanted his followers to be preachers. Preaching is and always will be the essence. The topmost perfection for a devotee is to engage in activities to help others come to Krishna. And if we do not make the endeavour to preach, we simply slide into frustration and mediocrity... It is not very difficult to be Prabhupada conscious and have his association... immersing ourselves day and night in thoughts of how to push on Prabhupada's mission, within our given capacity. We have to absorb ourselves in preaching activities... we pray, 'Please, Srila Prabhupada, help me convince these people.' When asked questions... we remember how Prabhupada replied... When tempted by maya we say, 'No' because we know that it will be displeasing to Srila Prabhupada and a hindrance to our full absorption in his service... we remember how Prabhupada tolerated all inconveniences, patiently overcame all obstacles, and went on, undisturbed, pushing on his movement. ... being Prabhupada conscious is to offer all our successes back to him. We are made of his mercy and have no abilities of our own. All guidance, inspiration and blessings come from him. Srila Prabhupada was sent by Lord Chaitanya to fulfil His mission [...] There is no doubt that this movement will become prominent and lead the world, for it is the desire of Lord Chaitanya and Srila Prabhupada. This movement is meant for fabulous success, and it will happen when we all clearly understand that this was, is, and always will be Prabhupada's movement. Everything belongs to Prabhupada; nothing is ours. We are absolutely and always his servants. We do not have dozens of movements with dozens of leaders, but only one movement with one leader." (My Memories of Srila Prabhupada, Bhakti Vikas M.)

Everything above is philosophically correct, but it is far from what the ISKCON gurus are actually doing. "Nothing is ours"? They all refuse to allow Srila Prabhupada to even have his own disciples, and insist that all disciples are theirs even though they are conditioned souls incapable of delivering anyone. They siphon off huge amounts of funds that would otherwise go to the temples and instead use it for their own programs, even making loans with interest to the cash-starved temples (as did Tamal, Romapada, others). No wonder book distribution has declined so greatly, as these gurus accumulate huge amounts in private accounts. And, though 50%+ have "fallen," they still insist they are pure devotees or do not need to be pure devotees in order to be a guru, since they are "in good standing" (until they are found not to be). And we do not have dozens of movements? Actually, ISKCON is a federation of guru fiefdoms where the gurus find it profitable and convenient to limitedly cooperate together, with their masks of Srila Prabhupada devotion, to maintain a mutual "preaching field" for continued exploitation. It is mutual back-scratching, and just like in any franchise, pay dues to use the corporate "good will" of ISKCON and Srila Prabhupada's name. The mask of guru bhakti is obvious except to those lost inside the organization, those who cannot see the forest for the trees.

The failure to direct one's admirers or followers towards the real pure devotee and making feeble protestations about being worshipped, as in the case of ISKCON gurus, is revealing of pratishta, desire for prominence. Memories of Siddhaswarupa Swami's meeting Srila Prabhupada, 1975: "Srila Prabhupada calmly moved on to the next point of contention. Each issue became more serious. Srila Prabhupada said, 'They say that your followers, they do not come here to see me, that they only see you. They only hear from and deal with you. They won't come here?' Siddha replied, 'If they want to come, they can come.' Srila Prabhupada quickly replied in a more authoritative voice, 'But this is your business. It's all right they may worship you if they like you very much, that's all right. But your business is to bring them to me. You are my disciple. The duty of the disciple is to bring the devotees to the spiritual master. This is your business. Your preaching should be like this. If your preaching does not bring them to this point, then it is useless.' Siddha replied, 'This is probably my defect. My preaching is not so good. Therefore they are not coming. But what can I do but try to preach to them?' Srila Prabhupada replied, 'Well, if your preaching is insufficient, then better not to preach.'"

ARE ISKCON GURUS REALLY PRABHUPADA CENTERED? By Dhira Govinda das

DEVOTEE: Some of the prayers we sing for guru worship don't fit the ISKCON gurus, but they respond that as long as they are following Srila Prabhupada and the parampara, repeating their message, they are in good standing, properly situated. They say this all necessary for organisational purposes, to have a working system, and that ISKCON gurus are suffering from taking on their disciples' karma, proving they are diksha guru. On the other hand, most of the initiations I've witnessed in ISKCON, the gurus stress on how Srila Prabhupada is our prominent link. I've heard Bhakticharu Maharaja severely chastise a lady who introduced herself as his disciple as he conducted her initiation ceremony. He stressed we are all family, Srila Prabhupada is our pre-eminent siksha guru and founder acharya and we should all connect with him as our main guru. Some say Bhakticharu was a "covered ritvik," passing the buck and responsibility to Srila Prabhupada.

DGOVINDA: This points to why I wrote Current and Direct Link (CDL): Nine Principles and Practices. These 9 concrete points provide a reference for discerning what I would call genuine Prabhupada-centeredness, as opposed to appearances of it. The woman Bhakticharu severely chastised: suppose that when asked "Who's your spiritual master?" and she responded "Srila Prabhupada." And, she recites Srila Prabhupada's pranam mantras, regards and realizes Srila Prabhupada as her current and direct link to the parampara, worships Srila Prabhupada's picture, without any other pictures or pranams between her and Srila Prabhupada, etc. (as per CDL). Is Bhakticharu Swami instructing her like that? If so, then that is genuinely, from my perspective, "Prabhupada-centeredness." If not, then it's something else. If Bhakticharu Maharaja realized this woman is Srila Prabhupada's disciple- great. To the extent Bhakticharu Maharaja continued, implicitly or explicitly, to guide and instruct her to chant his own pranam mantras, worship his picture on the altar, refer to him as "my guru," etc, then there is no depth of the Prabhupada-centeredness he professed. But, if Maharaja had realized Srila Prabhupada as this woman's current and direct link to the parampara, that is commendable. Much more admirable, it seems to me, are those that for years and decades, since 1978, had clarity about this, and expressed it. I know that many who have expressed such things since the late 1970s have been, and are, banned, excluded, ostracized, etc by ISKCON. ISKCON gurus seem to profess Prabhupada centeredness but still insist they are the current link who must be worshipped as the primary guru, in spite of their flowery language, which just serves to distinguish themselves as very devoted to Srila Prabhupada.

REGULAR NEW GBC RESOLUTIONS PAY LIP SERVICE TO SRILA PRABHUPADA

Mar. 27, 2013: DEVOTEE: I was wondering what you thought of the latest GBC resolution: "As the Founder-Acharya of the International Society for Krishna Consciousness (ISKCON) and the preeminent teacher and ultimate authority within our society, Srila Prabhupada has a unique relationship with every ISKCON devotee." A softening up of their stance? Could one take initiation from an ISKCON guru but take full shelter and all inspiration/direction from Srila Prabhupada?

DGOVINDA: I don't know firsthand what is the actual spirit and intention behind this recent resolution. I am reminded of the reasons that I wrote Current and Direct Link (CDL), providing several concrete ways by which we can assess the extent to which someone is genuinely Srila Prabhupada- centered, apart from the sort of language that we see in the resolution. From the “Terms of Relegation” in Ch. 179: “In recent GBC resolutions Srila Prabhupada was described with expressions such as ‘foundational siksha guru for all ISKCON devotees’ (1994), ‘pre-eminent siksha guru for every member of the institution’ (1999), and ‘pre-eminent and compulsory siksha-guru for all Vaishnavas (gurus and disciples) in the Society’ (1999). We suggest that terms such as these actually depreciate Srila Prabhupada’s position, rather than genuinely acknowledge and glorify it.” Why? Because Srila Prabhupada’s position is limited to only a siksha while reserving the diksha role for themselves. It is like praising someone for having one eye when actually he has two eyes. *“The GBC comes out with resolutions with wording similar to what you mention above. From what I perceive, they make such resolutions for purposes of image and political control, to show how reformed they are, or to enhance their Prabhupada-centered image. It seems more or less smoke and mirrors, dependent on members of the institution being pretty much not conversant with ISKCON history, and happy to unthinkingly believe ‘Oh, look how reformed the leadership is... just see how much things are changing...’ I regard the principles and practices mentioned in Current and Direct Link to be the litmus test for genuine Prabhupada-centeredness.”

CHARISMATIC, SENTIMENTAL ISKCON GURUS

It is increasingly seen that ISKCON gurus will engage in empty, sentimental Srila Prabhupada homages intended to boost their own appearances of devotion and spiritual advancement rather than actual loyalty to his instructions, which they have circumvented and disobeyed in pursuit of distinction, adoration, and profit. Sometimes these hypocritical, duplicitous gurus state they are working on Srila Prabhupada’s behalf, and everything belongs to Srila Prabhupada. This cheating is but a public show, as they collect money and disciples for themselves. These gurus continue to enjoy being worshipped and to pocket dakshina as their own spending money. This cheating by the ISKCON gurus is exposed in many of the IRM Back to Prabhupada magazines, for which free subscriptions are there for the asking and well worth reading cover to cover, every and all issues.

CONCLUSION

Some may wonder how it is that so-called followers of the bona fide spiritual master, Srila Prabhupada, even those who physically served his lotus feet, could fall into degradation even lower than that of ordinary materialists. “Everything depends on the strength of the recipient. For example, due to the scorching sunshine many vegetables and flowers dry up, and many grow luxuriantly. Thus it is the recipient that causes growth and dwindling. Similarly, mahiyasam pado rajo abhishekam: the dust of the lotus feet of great personalities offers all good to the recipient, but the same dust can also do harm. Those who are offenders at the lotus feet of a great personality dry up, their godly qualities diminish.” (SBhag 4.4.13 purport) One of the prime poisoning suspects, Bhakticharu Swami, once stated: “Srila Prabhupada is the delivering guru.” However, he still insisted he was the current connection to the disciplic succession. WAS.

CHAPTER 125: MAYAVADI POLLUTION

Srila Prabhupada several times was obliged to emphatically deal with the entry into ISKCON of the sahajiya mentality that is so prevalent in India and especially Vrindaban. When Nitai das requested permission to leave Srila Prabhupada and study with the Radha kund babajis to find a “higher” guru, he was severely chastised by Srila Prabhupada. Jaya Sacinanadana das was also rejected by Srila Prabhupada for a similar offense. Srila Prabhupada, as we saw Tamal describe it in a previous chapter, strongly reprimanded the Los Angeles devotee gopi-bhava group in the mid-1970’s for their sahajiya inclinations of emphasizing the conjugal love affairs between Krishna and the gopis. Yet, forty years after Srila Prabhupada’s departure, we see many parts of ISKCON and many ISKCON gurus are steeped in the sahajiya culture as never before. And this is after and in spite of the GBC taking a firm stand on the rasika guru Narayan Maharaja infiltration issue in 1995.

SAHAJIYA POLLUTION INCREASINGLY POISONING THE HARE KRISHNA MOVEMENT

Radhanath, Sacinanadana, Tamal, Giriraja, Shivarama Swamis, Aindra das: the list keeps growing. These are some major personalities in ISKCON who embraced the prakrita-sahajiya culture, which often is often on display and obvious in ISKCON at festivals, its associated events like Kirtan Melas, etc. Sahajiya means easy or cheap. Sahajiya is the pretension that one is more advanced than he actually is, and this not only applies to those presumptuously intruding into Krishna's rasa lila, those prematurely discussing intimate pastimes between Radha and Krishna, and those imagining their Svarupa/siddha deha (eternal identity), but also to those who take the political endorsement of the GBC that they are a diksha guru when they have no power to give diksha or divya jnana. Those who follow nicely for some years and then announce themselves as diksha gurus are easy, cheap gurus. Is it so cheap to be able to deliver souls back to Godhead? The ISKCON guru and initiation system is sahajiya: pretentious, cheap, with cheaters cheating the cheated. An ISKCON sannyasi and guru: "Our movement's basically off track and not properly following Srila Prabhupada [...] that just shows our movement's a sahajiya movement [...] But it is difficult to train people within the present ISKCON society when there are all these mayavada and sahajiya influences." (BVKS lecture, 2011)

QUOTES FROM SRILA PRABHUPADA ON SAHAJIYAS

(1) "The Vaishnavas are by far the greatest philosophers in the world, and the greatest among them was Srila Jiva Gosvami Prabhu, whose philosophy was again presented less than 400 years later by Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakura Maharaja. Therefore one must know very well that Vaishnava philosophers are not sentimentalists or cheap devotees like the sahajiyas. All the Vaishnava acharyas were vastly learned scholars who understood Vedanta philosophy fully, for unless one knows Vedanta philosophy he cannot be an acharya. To be accepted as an acharya among Indian transcendentalists who follow the Vedic principles, one must become a vastly learned scholar in Vedanta philosophy, either by studying it or hearing it." (CC Adi 7.102 purport) (2) "A class of so-called devotees known as prakta-sahajiyas sometimes display devotional symptoms to exhibit their good fortune. They are pretending, however, because these devotional features are only external. The prakta-sahajiyas exhibit these symptoms to advertise their so-called advancement in love of Krishna, but instead of praising the prakta-sahajiyas for their symptoms of transcendental ecstasy, pure devotees do not like to associate with them. It is not advisable to equate the prakta-sahajiyas with pure devotees. When one is actually advanced in ecstatic love of Krishna, he does not try to advertise himself. Instead, he endeavors more and more to render service to the Lord." (CC Ant 20.28 purport) (3) "Sahajiya... Sahaj means easy. Easy-going. They will smoke cigarette at the same time they will play rasa-lila. This is sahajiya. [...] They will do all nonsense; still, they will become God, imitation of God." (SPConv May 1, 1974) (4) SP: Unless we are very sincere, we cannot cope with maya. That is not possible. If you remain a servant of maya, you cannot conquer over maya. You must be very sincere servant of Krishna. Then you can conquer. Mam eva ye prapadyante mayam etam taranti te (BGita 7.14). It is clearly said. Otherwise, you are subjected to the tricks of maya. Devotee: Unless one surrenders to Krishna. SP: Then you can get rid of maya's tricks. Otherwise, you may dress yourself like anything, but you are simply maya's servant. Bhaktivinoda Thakur has sung one... Ei ota kalir chela: 'Here is another disciple of Kali.' Nake tilaka galai mala. 'He has got tilaka on the nose and mala, kanthi, also.' Sahaja bhajana kache namu sange laiya pare bhalo: 'And he's..., he has become a Vaishnava by illicit sex.' This is stated by Bhaktivinoda Thakur. 'Here is a Kali's chela. He has dressed like a Vaishnava, but he is doing his bhajan with illicit sex.' [...] You know? There is a class of sahajiyas? Devotee: Yes. SP: Yes. Vaishnavas. Just like, dress like Rupa Gosvami, loincloth and... but three dozen women behind him. Devotee: Yes, gopis. SP: So Bhaktivinoda Thakur: 'Here is a disciple of Kali. He has tilaka and he has kanthi and he's doing this nonsense.'" (SPlecture July 13, 1974) (5) "This is sahajiya-vada. He is thinking, 'Oh I have become liberated. I don't require any direction of my guru. I'm liberated.' Then he's rascal. Why this Gaudiya Matha failed? Because they tried to become more than guru. He, before passing away, he gave all direction and never said that 'This man should be the next acharya.' But these people, just after his passing away, they began to fight, who shall be acharya. That is the failure." (SPConv Aug. 16, 1976) (6) "Here in Los Angeles, we have [...] about 40 devotees who privately meet to discuss the intimate pastimes artificially thinking that they can enter into the understanding of the gopis prematurely. This will create havoc in our society, and the result will be that if this is allowed to go on, our preaching work will be greatly hampered. This premature desire to understand the lila of Krishna is due to mundane sex-life desire as we have seen amongst many of the babajis and sahajiyas in Vrindaban. Our Jagannatha das came back from Vrindaban asking me that he had heard some babaji speaking about siddha-deha and he also was listening to these babajis. So I want this immediately stopped. If it continues, this mixing with the babajis, then it will mean spoiling. In many cases, these babajis keep 2 or 3 women. Asatsanga tyagi. Their association is to be avoided and prohibited amongst all of our devotees who visit Vrindaban." (SPL June 7, 1976)

(7) "Following in the footsteps of Gopis comes in the perfectional stage. First you come to the perfectional stage, then you talk of Gopis. Going to girls and making them pregnant, then talking of Gopis, that is going on, that is nonsense. Without coming to the perfectional stage, if anyone tries to understand the Gopis he becomes a sahajiya. Gopis are not ordinary women, they are all expansions of Krishna's pleasure potency. So when we understand Krishna, then we shall understand Gopis. We can simply follow foot prints of Gopi how they loved Krishna." (SPL, Dec. 14, 1972) (8) "Don't try to understand Radha-Krishna very quickly. It is a very big subject. [...] then there will be so many prakrta-sahajiyas. In India there are prakrta-sahajiya. Just like Radha-Krishna dancing. Radha-Krishna has become a plaything. The painting Radha-Krishna, Krishna is kissing Radha, Radha is kissing. These are all nonsense. Radha-Krishna philosophy has to be understood by the liberated person, not by the conditioned soul. So we shall await for the fortunate moment when we are liberated, then we shall understand radha-krshna-pranaya-vikrtir. Because Krishna and Radha, They are not on the material field." (SPLecture Aug. 30, 1968) (9) "Unfortunately, after the disappearance of Lord Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, many apa-sampradayas (so-called followers) invented many ways not approved by the acharyas. Bhaktivinoda Thakur has described them as the [...] sahajiya, [...] The aula-sampradaya, baula-sampradaya and others invented their own ways of understanding Lord Chaitanya's philosophy, without following in the footsteps of the acharyas." (CC Mad 1.271) (10) Devotee: Srila Prabhupada, when one returns to his svarupa, his natural form, how does... SP: First of all, anartha-nivrtti. You are accustomed to so many bad habits. First of all try to rectify it, then talk of svarupa. Where is your svarupa? Simply wasting time. A man is diseased, he's thinking, 'When I shall be cured I shall eat, go to this hotel, I shall eat like this.' First of all cure, then talk of eating this and that. Svarupa, when you are cured, that is svarupa. So long you are not cured, what is the use of talking svarupa? First business is cure yourself. [...] that is anartha-nivrtti. Then svarupa will come. That is the babajis. In Vrindaban, you have seen? Siddha-pranali. Devotee: Ah, siddha-pranali, siddha-deha? SP: They are smoking and having illicit sex with one dozen women – svarupa. Rascal. This is called sahajiya, a rascal. Condemned. Where is your svarupa? Don't talk unnecessarily. First of all come to svarupa, then talk of svarupa. (SPConv June 23, 1976) (11) SP: That will happen. Sahajiya. Devotee: Posing himself as a big, learned man. SP: My Guru Maharaja used to say, "When our men will be sahajiya, he will be more dangerous." Devotee: Our own men. SP: Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakura, he said that "When our men will be sahajiya, oh, they'll be more dangerous." So our men are becoming, some of them, sahajiyas." (SPConv Jan. 24, 1977) (12) "Srila Vishwanath Thakur has warned that, 'Don't mix with Vaishnava who is not well trained up, well behaved.' [...] 'Don't mix with them, these professional, so-called Vaishnava, sahajiyas.' This is warned. [...] 'You should not hear. Eh? What is the wrong there? The Krishna-katha is there.' No, Krishna-katha is there just like milk is there, but if it is touched by the lips of a serpent, it is no more to be taken. It has become poison. So unless one is situated as pure Vaishnava in his dealing, in his behavior, inside and outside, he should not become a preacher because it will not be effective; neither one should hear from such a person.” (SP Lecture Mar. 6, 1976)

THE OTHER SIDE OF AINDRA DAS: SAHAJIYA IMAGINATION

Aindra das was a kirtaneer who inspired many devotees, and he died under strange circumstances after he preached spiritual revolution and spoke frankly about ISKCON corruption. Yet, he was also adversely affected by sahajiya ideas, seen in excerpts from his book. This has given us great pause, wondering how such inappropriate expressions of imaginary love affairs with Lord Krishna could be seen as part of Srila Prabhupada’s teachings... Someone wrote online: “...regarding Aindra das and his writings. As you may know, Aindra das is a celebrated devotee the world over. Upon reading his book, “The Heart of Transcendental Book Distribution” (available online), it’s my duty to warn you of its contents. I’m not attacking Aindra das personally, but his writings are highly objectionable according to the standards set by Srila Prabhupada, who gave us innumerable warnings on this very subject... ‘In the premature stage it is sometimes found that a lusty, conditioned person will artificially try to establish some relationship with Krishna in conjugal love. The result of this is that one becomes prakṛta-sahajiyā, or one who takes everything very cheaply.’ (NOD Ch. 40) Below are some excerpts from Aindra’s Ch. 3, ‘Third Heartfelt Effusion.’ Apologies for the graphic nature of these excerpts, but I think it’s important to highlight the offensive content to convey the seriousness of this matter. Aindra das imagines himself a gopi: “When, by the mercy of my beloved guru, will I appear as a resplendently delightful young damsel of Vraja? I will never mature beyond the end of my twelfth year and will remain ever intoxicated with luscious freshly blooming vamamadhyā love-fascinations. My bewitching spiritually perfect bodily features and transcendental voluptuousness will lay to shameful waste all the most beautiful and supposedly charming frog-like women of the lower, middle, and upper planetary systems of this cosmic creation! O He Radhe! When, in Your assembly of sakhis, will I get the chance to see, with my own blooming eyes, incomparably lovely Lalita Sundari forcing her way between me and Lord Shyama while endlessly rebuking Him with the most outrageous, audaciously sarcastic criticisms to prevent Him from capriciously ripping at my upper garments?” COMMENT: Aindra’s descriptions become too “intimately” explicit for us to quote, being very disturbing as he writes about entering into love affairs with Krishna, with Radha’s help. It seems that he has contracted the rasika bhakti fever. Even if he was genuinely on that level, why would he publicly write in this way to cheapen this most elevated subject before neophytes? Srila Prabhupada never spoke like this or revealed his intimate relationship with Krishna, so how can we?

SHIVARAMA SWAMI SAHAJIYA BOOKS

Shivarama Swami has also written books about fictional pastimes of Lord Krishna, Radharani, the gopis, and Vrindavan transcendental intimacies. No previous acharya has written fiction about the Lord’s intimate Vrindaban pastimes. Thus he continues with his rasika bhakti attachments long after being suspended in 1995 for his stubborn associations with the Gaudiya Matha. His books such as Venu-Gita are still widely available. His sahajiyaism continues, and of course, the GBC cannot do anything nor cares to correct him.

SACINANADANA (SWAMI?)

Sacinanadan Swami from Germany is as of 2022 still an ISKCON guru in good standing, more or less. There are exposes online about his relationship with his female personal secretary, Bhanu Nandini dasi, with whom he travels and spends much time together. The conspicuous relationship is disturbing to many. Various GBCs discussed the matter with him, but to no avail. He goes everywhere with her. A recent letter from an anonymous ISKCON guru lamented his frustration: “Yes, this is a terrible deviation and it has gone on since long. Thus so many devotees in your country are being poisoned by mayavadi philosophy. Krishna das one day, Ramesh on another, Sacinandana Swami never stops to drag people way from Srila Prabhupada. Same happened in the past when he introduced so many of his disciples to Narayan Maharaja. Sacinandana Maharaja has no discretion and is associating in so many ways with asat sanga, and his followers are thus exposed to this poison. Lord Chaitanya has said, that anyone who hears Mayavadi is ruined. Does he have to personally appear to Sacinandana Swami to tell him that? Maharaja does not listen to anyone in the world short of God Himself. (besides of having of course an open ear to Krishna das, Ramesh Baba, and every other Mayavadi, such as Ravi Shankar with who he shared the dais in Berlin last year.)”

He has friendships with impersonalist/ sahajiya persons, such as Krishna das (kirtan singer) and Ramesh Baba, a Vrindaban sahajiya-rasika babaji, with whom he is shown on YouTube discussing “Sriji” or Radharani. Dinabandhu das claims Ramesh Baba “admits to having no guru or sampradaya,” yet “Sacinandana Swami's disciples are quite open on Facebook about the fact that he is siksha disciple/ friend/ admirer of Ramesh Baba.” (Sun, Nov. 23, 2014) Sacinandana arranged and participated in European tours by Ramesh Baba and other sahajiya. He is a “sannyasi” freely associating with his female disciple and with sahajiya babajis. Hanuman das (online commentator) investigated, to try and resolve the issue. ISKCON leaders are not helping. Apparently the GBC told Sacinandana Swami that his female secretary could not live with him anymore, but whether there is compliance or not is unknown, as he leads a private life much of the time.

MAHANIDHI SWAMI

In 2013, due to devotee complaints, ISKCON guru Mahanidhi Swami was investigated by the GBC at his residence in Radha Kund and found to have had some unspecified inappropriate relations with a female disciple. Mahanidhi Swami later denied the accusations but the GBC suspended him as a guru. Mahanidhi continued as before and in late 2014 took babaji initiation from Krishnadas babaji, seen in the photo. Once, on his birthday, his disciples rented a helicopter to shower flowers on his residence in Radha Kund, and that evening there was bhajan and a rasa lila performance. Excerpts of praise online reveal his interest in gopi-lila, raganuga bhakti, and the life of a hermit: “Radharasa Sudha Nidhi – A nectar ocean of classes all about scintillating Radharani’s sweet Holy Name, form, qualities, pastimes, Her dear sakhis and Her dearest beloved Priyatama Shyamasundara. You must listen if you are at all interested in practicing Raganuga Bhakti Sadhana. He leads scintillating parikrama's of Vrindavan, brilliantly elucidating Radha-Govinda's lila-stalis...” Hmmm... this sounds like a gopi-bhava Radhakund babaji, not a disciple of Srila Prabhupada.

ISKCON LEADERS AND TEMPLES: FAKIR MOHAN

“It’s important to understand how ISKCON is being infiltrated and influenced by bogus siddhantas, and here are some of the sources of these deviated siddhantas. The trail of the idea there is no Kalki Avatar leads back to two infamous Gaudiya Matha personalities, Ananta Vasudeva and Sundarananda Vidyavinoda. Both these personalities were defectors from Gaudiya Matha in 1947 (ten years after departure of Sarasvati Thakur). Ananta Vasudeva went to Vrindaban where he sought out siddha-pranali diksha and Sundarananda Vidyavinoda returned to his family guru in Navadvipa. Kanupriya Goswami was formerly the family guru of Sundarananda Vidyavinoda with whom he reconnected. Sundarananda also introduced Fakir Mohan, a third Gaudiya Matha defector, to Kanupriya Goswami from whom Fakir Mohan took diksha. Fakir Mohan had been a disciple of Ananta Vasudeva as well as a junior editor for Ananta Vasudeva under Sundarananda. And Fakir Mohan was invited to ISKCON temples: http://youtu.be/\_WIEDf9mj9M Srila Prabhupada has written about the infamous Vasudeva: ‘One of your closest disciples, the jackal Vasudeva [srgala-vasudeva], has rejected your instructions [tomara upadesa tyaji]. His regrettable preference for infectious poison has resulted in an epidemic of worshipping and serving sahajiyas [sahajiya-seva]. Where are your instructions still being followed? As it is said: 'punar musika bhava' –everyone has 'again become a mouse' Today the lion's food has been stolen by the jackal and everyone is reduced to tears as they are caught in Maya's clutches.' (Viraha-astakam, Ch. 5)

"That Kanupriya Goswami may be at the root of numerous Sahajiya concepts that have crept there way into contemporary Vaishnavism is confirmed by statements of an ISKCON acharya in 1994. There is still plenty of nama-aparadha to be found and misconceptions have now become mainstream conceptions among many western Vaishnavas and in ISKCON. Another confirmation of the influence of Kanupriya Goswami upon ISKCON: 'From what I have heard from tapes and from the mouths of Fakir Mohan and our Gaur Govinda Maharaja, they did not meet so many times. [Fakir Mohan] would sometimes bring books of his diksha-guru's writings (Kanupriya Goswami) for Gaur Govinda Maharaja, who was very appreciative and they spoke a number of times about the prema-yuga and about the esoteric significance of Jagannath Puri Dham. Gaur Govinda M. requested him to be in charge of a Vaishnava college that he wanted to start in Orissa.'" [Bhubaneshwar, 2005] Fakir Mohan acted in the capacity of giving siksha to the residents of ISKCON Bhubaneshwar and Gaura Govinda M. was associated with him. Fakir Mohan was invited to lecture in ISKCON temples and associated closely with ISKCON leaders including Gaur Govinda M. and Indradyumna Swami. How is it that a disciple of Ananta Vasudeva was allowed such influence in ISKCON? Srila Prabhupada made it clear that Ananta Vasudeva was disobedient to Bhaktisiddhanta, was a false acharya, was a sahajiya, and so much more unsavory things. Yet ISKCON devotees associated openly with Fakir Mohan until his departure in 2016. No wonder that sahajiya influences have entered Srila Prabhupada's mission.'" (from www.gosai.com)

From Krishna devi dasi: "Madhavananda and Bhaktarupa prabhus took guidance from Dr. Fakir Mohan das, a Vaishnava friend of Gour Govinda M. Eventually, this relationship became more formal, with the little group of Western Gour Govinda disciples in Bhubaneswar hearing Bhagavatam class daily and taking siksha from Fakir Mohan, formerly of the Gaudiya Mission. Something happened a few years ago, and they stopped publicly supporting Fakir Mohan. By then however, Fakir Mohan had been introduced to many ISKCON leaders and devotees, and he has lectured in ISKCON temples, including Amsterdam. You can read more about Fakir Mohan from Bhaktarupa. There are also YouTube videos of Fakir Mohan. My point being that even some of Gour Govinda Swami's followers go outside ISKCON, despite their external allegiance to the GBC. If ISKCON devotees bring outside influences into the institution, then what does 'Stay with ISKCON' mean?

"It was known amongst the intimate disciples of Gour Govinda M. that he himself took siksha from Oriyan babajis and saints. Otherwise, where did he get the things he preaches? Not from our Srila Prabhupada! And why do Gour Govinda and Narayan Maharaja's teachings so closely resemble each other? Again, it's the babaji connection. Narayan Maharaja even liked to say that Gour Govinda Swami secretly took siksha from himself. Bhakti Prajnan Kesava Maharaja, Narayan Maharaja's guru and our Srila Prabhupada's sannyasa guru, was very strict about discussing rasa tattva or permitting disciples to read raganuga literatures. So where does Narayan Maharaja get such knowledge? From outside the institution of his spiritual master. At an earlier point in Narayan Maharaja's life, he left the math of Bhakti Prajnan Kesava Maharaja and went to Radha Kunda to take shelter of the babas there. He talked privately about this with his early ISKCON followers like Tamal Krishna Goswami, Giriraj Swami, Shivarama Swami, etc. Although Narayan Maharaja disagreed with the babajis publicly, privately he took their siksha for rasa tattva and raganuga sadhana. In fact, some of Narayan Maharaja's writings are directly plagiarized from the commentaries of Sri Ananda Gopal Goswami and Sri Ananta Dasa Babaji, renowned Radha Kunda babajis. There continues to be crossover between Narayan Maharaja's devotees and the siddha pranali lines, with Premananda das (BV Tirtha Maharaja) giving siddha pranali diksha or directing devotees to raganuga gurus in the babaji line for siddha pranali diksha. It is an open secret that a few advanced Indian disciples in Narayan Maharaja's camp are getting siddha pranali. Narayan Maharaja, on the other hand, preached that if he is not permitted to preach and canvass in ISKCON temples, then ISKCON devotees should leave their gurus and come to his camp. To solve the dilemma of 'stay within ISKCON,' he states that he himself 'is ISKCON' and the 'real successor' to Srila Prabhupada. To address [...] 'honesty,' Narayan Maharaja's camp preaches: 'Krishna is very tricky. Therefore, raganuga devotees are also very tricky.' Or, 'If you have greed for raganuga bhakti, you will do whatever necessary to obtain your goal, prema-bhakti.' So it's considered a sign of advancement that a devotee will be a powerful devotee in his math, but slip away for siksha from a babaji or saint on the sly. The point being: 'Stay within ISKCON' or 'Stay within your guru maharaja's math' is a public stance meant to preserve a connection for a variety of reasons. The downside of this is that Srila Prabhupada's teachings in ISKCON are being weakened by the introduction of outside elements from caste Goswami or babaji lines."

RAMESH BABAJI IS VERY INFLUENTIAL AMONG ISKCON DEVOTEES

Describing the apasampradaya known as the Sakhibekhis -sahajiya men who dress up in women's clothing, put cloth over their heads like a sari, and role-play as gopis in order to enjoy sex desire -Srila Prabhupada says the following: "Sakhibekhi. There are so many apasampradayas, thirteen at least in the counting by Bhaktivinoda Thakur: aula, baula karttabhaja, neda, daravesa, sani sahajiya, sakhibekhi. This sakhibekhi. Smarta, jata-gosani, ativadi, cudadhari, gauranga-nagari. These thirteen, fourteen apasampradayas. They are passing as Chaitanya Mahaprabhu's sampradaya. But they're the worst, rejected. The sakhibekhi, dressing like.... To cheat Krishna. Krishna is after the gopis, so they have dressed like gopi, and Krishna does not know that he's a rascal man. (laughter) Just see. This is their intelligence, to.... 'I have become a sakhi. Krishna will embrace me and kiss me.' So Krishna is so fool. (laughs) These rascals are doing that. Sakhibekhi. There was a Lalita-sakhi in Navadvip. All women surrounding him." (SPConv Jan. 24, 1977)

Ramesh Babaji is popular with Sacinanadana Swami, Radhanath Swami, and other ISKCON members, and he has many online YouTube videos where his program can be understood. Srila Prabhupada was not favorably inclined to the Vrindaban/ Radhakund babajis who were sahajiya posing as very advanced, giving deviant philosophy to innocent people. Some ISKCON gurus have regularly associated with these babajis or spent decades living with them. Ramesh Babaji has become popular with many ISKCON devotees and gurus. It is a gradual contamination and spoiling of everything that Srila Prabhupada taught during his manifest lila.

"Recently Dhanurdhara Swami with his 100 followers apparently stayed at Varshana, and were with Ramesh Baba (local famous activist sahajiya) the whole month of Kartika. He was found guilty of child abuse (excessive physical punishment) in Vrindavan gurukula and rather than accept the token punishment allotted by the GBC, he left ISKCON instead. ('If my presence is disturbing, then it is better that I leave.') Still he is always hanging around close to ISKCON, still recruiting and initiating ISKCON devotees, although no longer sanctioned by the GBC. The scene around Dhanudhara Swami is deja-vu. It was 1992 again, when Dhanurdhara Swami and the sahajiya gopi-bhava club were residing in Vrindavan, internally polarizing ISKCON's Vaishnava community. The only difference was that now Ramesh Baba is in the centre. Not only Dhanudhara Swami and his followers are regularly, intimately associating with Ramesh Baba, but also Sacinanadana and Radhanath. Previous years there was Bhurijana das, and Sachinandana Swami (followers included), and this year Giriraja Maharaja.”

“DOCUMENTING THE NEW SAHAJIYA MOVEMENT” by Krishnakant in BTP

In Back To Prabhupada #38 (Winter 2012-13), an article describes many ways in which ISKCON has become cheapened by the sahajiya influences that are widespread now in ISKCON. As follows:

“SENTIMENTALITY: ‘It is not that one should create something out of sentimentality, become a sahajiya and advocate such concocted devotional service.’ (CC Mad 1.34) ‘Therefore so-called good men of this world, who are engaged in so many welfare activities, humanitarian activities, by mental concoction, they may be all foolish activities in the estimation of the Supreme Personality of Godahead. They are very much puffed up, that ‘We are doing this, opening hospital and school, and philanthropism, nationalism. Is there any such thing in the Bhagavad Gita? Is there any advice that ‘You open hospital, school, and do this philanthropic work?’ No.’ (SPLecture Aug. 3, 1973) COMMENT: Radhanath Swami has created an entire cult of philanthropy based on sentiment, establishing “missionary hospitals and eye camps,” “an orphanage,” “schools,” and “emergency relief programs.” These exact phrases are from his own website and autobiography the descriptions, but which are clear deviations from Srila Prabhupada’s teachings. “USING FALSE HUMILITY FOR FAME: “Sometimes a sahajiya presents himself as being void of desires for reputation (pratistha) in order to become famous as a humble man.” (CC Mad 4.147) COMMENT: Radhanath and Bhakticharu Swamis are notably humble-appearing but very ambitious at the same time. This is a standard technique in ISKCON, mastering the charisma of humility to enhance one’s guru franchise.

“THEY CONSIDER THEMSELVES NEXT ACHARYAS: ‘This is sahajiya-vada. He is thinking, ‘Oh, I have become liberated. I don’t require any direction of my guru. I’m liberated.’ Then he’s rascal. Why this Gaudiya Matha failed? Because they tried to become more than guru. He (Srila Bhaktisiddhanta), before passing away, he gave all direction and never said that ‘This man should be the next acharya.’ But these people, just after his passing away they began to fight, who shall be acharya. That is the failure.’ (SPConv Aug. 16, 1976) COMMENT: Similarly, Srila Prabhupada never gave any direct instruction or order for anyone to become an initiating guru, still the poisoners of Srila Prabhupada who hijacked the movement falsely claimed that they had been appointed as the next acharyas, pretending to be very advanced devotees capable of giving diksha.

“TAKE EVERYTHING CHEAPLY: ‘That is sahajiya, which means a class of men that take everything very cheaply.’ (SPL June 15, 1972)” COMMENT: In ISKCON the position of diksha-bestowing guru was cheapened by moving Srila Prabhupada to the background as a “previous” acharya and introducing a vote procedure to approve those “in good standing” as new initiating spiritual masters. Thus it has become so cheap and easy to become a guru, supposedly as the next link after Srila Prabhupada. But they are proving to be all jokes.

“NO DEPTH OF KNOWLEDGE: ‘...we do not want to create a group of prakrita sahajiya, or devotees who do not know the science of Krishna and don’t know the science of devotion, but simply worship the Deity with no depth of knowledge.’ (SPL June 3, 1969)” COMMENT: ISKCON claims that the spiritual aspirant must physically associate with their guru and personally be instructed and receive the mantras for first and second initiation lest it be ineffective. However, probably most of Srila Prabhupada’s direct disciples received their initiations by letter and formalities were done by local leaders, and they typically received Gayatri mantra from a tape recording, and many never even saw Srila Prabhupada in person or never spoke to him in person. ISKCON leaders do not say these initiations were invalid, yet insist that after Srila Prabhupada’s departure, now everything must be done personally, physically. This is quite inconsistent and contradictory.

“INVENT THEIR OWN WAYS OF UNDERSTANDING: ‘Unfortunately, after the disappearance of Lord Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, many apa-sampradayas (so-called followers) invented many ways not approved by the acharyas. Bhaktivinode Thakur has described them as the [...] sahajiya, [...] The aula-sampradaya, baula-sampradaya and others invented their own ways of understanding Lord

Chaitanya's philosophy, without following in the footsteps of the acharyas.' (CC Mad 1.271)"

COMMENT: The proper system of understanding is to accept the words of the acharya, Srila Prabhupada: "A bona fide spiritual master is in the disciplic succession from time eternal, and he does not deviate at all from the instructions of the Supreme Lord." However, from the website of ISKCON initiating guru Romapada Swami, we see he has invented his own way of understanding: "That may be a possibility. There are some instances when one does accept a bona fide spiritual master but later on that spiritual master may fall away from the strict standards." (2011) But shastra and Srila Prabhupada make it clear a bona fide spiritual master NEVER falls down under any circumstances, and if he does, then he was not a bona fide guru. To justify their own own false guruship positions, ISKCON will invent new ways of understanding which are deviant and useless for spiritual advancement.

"THEY MAKE THE GURU-DISCIPLE CONNECTION VERY CHEAP: 'Such a relationship is condemned by Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati Thakura, who calls such spiritual masters and disciples a society of cheaters and cheated. They are also called baulas or prakrita-sahajiyas. Their aim is to make the connection between the spiritual master and the disciple into a very cheap thing. They are not serious in wanting to understand spiritual life.' (CC Mad 24.330)" COMMENT: ISKCON gurus have become so cheap that when one of them, which over 50% have "fallen down," then the disciples are advised that either they find another cheap ISKCON guru for re-initiation or just be satisfied that their "diksha" was received before their guru fell down, so it is still "institutionally valid." What double talk and word jugglery to avoid dealing with the real issues involved. "GOPI PASTIMES: 'Some become sahajiya, pretending to be Krishna and Radharani and Her gopi friends.' (A Second Chance, Ch. 16) 'The prakrita-sahajiyas [...] To try to become writers of Vaishnava literature, they introduce their material conceptions of life into pure devotional service.' (CC Ant 20.28)" COMMENT: An example is Shivarama Swami's fictional works of imaginary characters in Radha Krishna intimate lilas as "poetic license" but which is unauthorized and bogus. Such sahajiya books cannot have good effects on anyone.

CONCLUSION

(1) "These sahajiyas will come out of so many devotees. What can be done? From my Guru Maharaja's disciples, so many sahajiyas came. These are called sahajiyas. Very easily they capture thing. So my Guru Maharaja used to say, 'When my disciples will be sahajiya, it will be more dangerous.'" (SPConv Jan. 28, 1977) (2) "That sahajiya tendency is very easy to take up [...] Anyway, keep your movement very pure. You don't mind if somebody goes away. Don't mind. But we must keep our principles pure." (SPConv June 7, 1976)

From at least the time of Bhaktivinode Thakur in the mid 1800's, the acharyas in our line have struggled diligently to eradicate sahajiya-ism and protect the sampradaya from this dangerous contamination. But the ISKCON misleadership mostly looks the other way as many of their own indulge in this deviation to varying degrees. If the GBC was as vigilant with sahajiya-ism as they were with the "posthumous diksha" proponents, then the sahajiyas would flee. But the fact is that sahajiya culture is good for their guru business, so why to respond to this deviation? Actually, sahajiya-ism attracts more cheap followers to these cheap gurus, and since ISKCON today has few bright minds left, no one seems to notice when sahajiya-ism is employed despite its prohibitions in Srila Prabhupada's teachings. "...to learn the transcendental science, it is imperative that one avoid the company of undesirable persons and always seek the company of saints and sages who are able to impart lessons of transcendental knowledge. The potent words of such realized souls penetrate the heart, thereby eradicating all misgivings accumulated through years of undesirable association. For a neophyte devotee there are two kinds of persons whose association is undesirable: (1) gross materialists who constantly engage in sense gratification and (2) unbelievers who do not serve the Supreme Personality of Godhead but serve their senses and their mental whims in terms of their speculative habits. Intelligent persons seeking transcendental realization should very scrupulously avoid their company." (CC Adi 1.59)

CHAPTER 126: ACADEMIA

"I am also practically finding that if any of our students artificially try to become scholars by associating with unwanted persons they become victimized, for a little learning is dangerous, especially for the Westerners. I am practically seeing that as soon as they begin to learn a little Sanskrit immediately they feel that they have become more than their guru and then the policy is kill guru and be killed himself." (SPL Dixit Sept. 18, 1976)

"HERMENEUTICS is the "academic skill" of interpreting what an author has written. In theology, hermeneutics focuses specifically on constructing and discovering the appropriate rules for interpreting the scriptures. These methods and principles, however, are often drawn from outside of scripture in historical, literary or other fields. It inevitably involves exegesis, which is the act of interpreting or explaining the meaning of scripture. The goal in applying the principles of hermeneutics is to correctly portray the truth, striving to accurately discern the meaning of the scripture." The above is from Wikipedia etc, but we understand that the Vedas are spoken by the Supreme Lord Himself, so they are already perfect, and do not require speculative academic interpretations via history, literature, etc. Rather than interpretation according to one's imperfect understanding, they should be understood at face value by perfecting our understanding through Srila Prabhupada's purports. This is the difference in approach between mundane academicians and sincere devotees of the Lord. Interpretation can be speculative, whimsical, motivated, and defective or it can be honest and transparent, recognizing the inherent truths imparted in the Vedic sruti shastras, and this is actually realization. And same with the smriti and itihasa compiled by self-realized souls such as Vyasadeva.

"We do not interpret but accept verbatim the words of shastra. There are two meanings or ways to accept understandings- gauna and vrtti- direct and indirect, and Srila Prabhupada explains that when something is not clear, then you can interpret. He gives the example of some Sanskrit phrase where it is said this "village was on the Ganges river," which is unclear because it really means on the bank of the Ganges since no village is IN the Ganges. But this is the exception to the rule since the Vedas were written to be accepted verbatim as they are, and they are written in clear and easy to understand language. And we have all heard many times he explains how Gandhi, Dr. Radha Krishna etc would interpret dharmakshetra to mean not a place of pilgrimage but the material body with the five senses being the five Pandavas. This is what happens when devotees do not accept verbatim the clear language of Srila Prabhupada and shastra." (Damaghosh das, 2017)

Unless devotees are fixed up in their spiritual practices (sadhana) and on the transcendental platform, they are vulnerable to the contaminating influences of mundane scholarship and academic culture. We must not become adversely affected by defective academic interpretations of Srila Prabhupada's clear teachings.

EVERYTHING, ACADEMIA AS WELL, CAN BE USED FOR KRISHNA OR FOR MAYA

Srila Prabhupada engaged devotees to distribute his complete sets of books to university libraries and religious scholars all over the world. Satsvarupa, Mahabuddhi, Ghanashyama, Satyanarayan, and others sought out endorsements of Srila Prabhupada's books from prominent college professors and academicians, especially those whose field of "expertise" was in religion and philosophy. The BBT printed a pamphlet with all the "endorsements" by scholars, used as to promote Srila Prabhupada's books. This started the Hare Krishna movement's engagement with the scholarly community (academia) and it was a positive development and pleasing to Srila Prabhupada. But gradually, after Srila Prabhupada's manifest departure, things have "developed." Since 1977 the landscape of the religious scholar community has changed as "scholarly" devotees influenced the academic world to foster a broader and more accurate awareness of the Hare Krishna movement and ISKCON. Hridayananda's request for going back to university to get a degree in Sanskrit was denied by Srila Prabhupada, but he did so anyway 15 years later, earning his Ph.D. degree in Sanskrit and Indian Studies from Harvard University. By the turn of the 21st century, a good number of devotees had gotten prestigious university degrees: Garuda (Harvard), Urmila (Duke), Krishna Kshetra, Tamal (Cambridge), Shukavak, Ravindra Svarupa (early 70's), Subhananda, and quite a few others.

However, it appears that many "devotee scholars" became influenced by their association with mundane religious scholars while they were trying to influence them. It is one thing to try from the transcendental platform to influence mundane scholars so they will better appreciate Srila Prabhupada, his books, his teachings, his movement, and bhaktiyoga. That is very worthwhile to further Lord Chaitanya's mission, as mundane scholars and all those they teach are further enlightened in transcendental science and universal religion/ dharma. It is another thing, though, when devotees enter the scholarly community and are themselves influenced by mundane academia and its mundane methodologies, psychology, and values. When that occurs, the devotee scholar actually may become an agent of maya by then espousing deviations, misunderstandings, and philosophic compromises, as in trying to "reconcile" apparent difficulties with the assimilation of "Gaudiya Vaishnavism" into the degraded western demoniac so-called "culture." Many consider that the ISKCON offshoot called Krishna West seriously alters and undermines the purity of Srila Prabhupada's preaching by unauthorized compromise. Many academics, devotee and non-devotee alike, have portrayed Srila Prabhupada as simply a charismatic religious leader who happened to come to the right place at the right time, achieving some success due to mundane circumstances, and thus they discard or miss his exalted status as a paramhansa. Serious and offensive mischaracterizations of Srila Prabhupada are made which are counter-productive to the preaching progress made by other devotee scholars. Of course, the ISKCON GBC leadership seems to be completely unaware of or unconcerned about these events, being asleep at the wheel as usual.

Ravindra Svarupa das wrote in ISKCON Review 1.1 (1985) about devotees and academia: "...whether those of us in ISKCON who have academic training consider ourselves to be 'modern scholars' or 'transmitters of an intellectual tradition.' We consider ourselves first and foremost to be the latter, and if 'modern scholars' means those who accept the empirical methodology to be the ultimate arbiter of truth, then we are not modern scholars. As transmitters of our tradition, we follow Chaitanya when he says that 'the evidence of revealed scripture [...] is the only means of Vedic knowledge...'" He writes about this because it is an issue. To convince academia of the soundness, logic, metaphysicality, and bonafidity of the Hare Krishna movement is laudable and will contribute significantly to paving the way forward in the expansion of Krishna consciousness. However, while utilizing empirical methodology to establish and demonstrate "Vaishnavism" as universal truth in academia and the broader mundane society, devotee scholars must be very careful not to become affected by mundane empiricism, intellectualism, speculation, public or scholarly opinion, etc. and take to the ascending process instead of the descending. These pitfalls have obviously befallen some devotee scholars, as discussed below. A key principle to note is that spiritual knowledge is descending, not ascending. Take, for example the classic statement by the Hare Krishna "scholar" Tamal (1996): "But when the guru departs, sadhu and shastra can take on a new import, as those who succeed him become the new interpreters of past precedents, scriptural law, and the new set of circumstance." This cloaks the ISKCON deviants' philosophy in nice-sounding academic language in an attempt to give credibility to a flawed idea, namely that conditioned souls are able to concoct spiritual principles and methods of preaching which become authorized even though unprecedented, but when they are actually bogus and spiritually unauthorized. Beware phony successors who wreak havoc with their illegal assumption of leadership and their deviations from the authorized teachings of the Founder Acharya and previous acharyas. Examples of this are the 1978-87 ISKCON zonal acharya system and the evolving no-objection, multi-level vote approvals for ISKCON diksha gurus.

DID SRILA PRABHUPADA APPROVE OF GOING TO UNIVERSITY?

Srila Prabhupada never prohibited going to university, and the historical record shows he sometimes discouraged it and sometimes he encouraged it. Each case was individually evaluated for what was best for the preaching, the individual, and the expansion of the mission. It had little to do with what a devotee preferred or felt would be best for his future economics, prestige, or power/influence in the society of devotees. But today we have the distinct impression that mundane higher education status is a means for personal benefit rather than considered carefully in terms of what is best for Srila Prabhupada's service. Some letters from Srila Prabhupada give the idea: (1) "I like the idea of yours to continue on for PHD presenting our books and philosophy in your thesis. This will be a great service for you to perform and I shall be very grateful to you if you can do it. Please therefore go ahead with obtaining PHD and become a learned scholar in the science of loving Krishna." (SPL Feb. 2, 1975) (2) "So far as your course at the Temple University is concerned, [Ravindra Svarupa was studying for his Ph.D. at Temple University] that is the best platform for introducing our philosophy to the serious persons. And if they become sincere to learn the highest topics of subject matter or transcendental knowledge from us, that will be the perfection of their education. If you must read some other books of philosophers, even they are Mayavadis, as a sideline we can speak about them as comparative study. Otherwise our main aim is to study and preach Bhagavad-Gita and Lord Chaitanya. Our purpose is to teach our own philosophy. Do not lose sight of that purpose or become distracted by other things. I have also made one book about other philosophies of your western philosophers, but I did not make compromise." (SPL Ravindra Svarupa das) (3) "Regarding Srinivasa Svarupa it is very pleasing to hear that this Indian boy wants to surrender his whole life to Krishna. There is no harm if he finishes college and gets his degree. If possible, he can live in the temple and attend the university daily. At any rate, he should carefully follow all the regulative principles and associate with his fellow devotees as much as possible. The university is well known for demonic association, but if he is able to keep up his devotional practices and protect the creeper of devotional service, then he may complete his degree. I think there is more advantage in Bir Krishna remaining fully engaged in his temple duties than in going back to college. What would be the practical benefit of such degree?" (SPL Bhaktadas, Apr. 13, 1974) (Note: one was encouraged, the other discouraged.)

SRILA PRABHUPADA: PLEASED/DISPLEASED DEPENDING ON THE SPIRIT/SUBSTANCE

Dhira Govinda: "Without doubt, some, or maybe much, of what's happening in the name of academic work from devotees, is serving to erode trust in Srila Prabhupada. Definitely it is poisoning Srila Prabhupada's movement. But we don't want to paint with too broad a brush. In the spirit of yukta-vairagya, Srila Prabhupada wants his followers to be participating and influential in the world of academia, and practically every other sphere: politics, entertainment, business, agriculture, literature, military, psychology, industry, etc. We want sincere followers of Srila Prabhupada expertly giving Krishna consciousness throughout society. That of course requires tact, proper discretion, spiritual strength. Without spiritual strength, it becomes like trying to catch the big fish, and getting pulled into the ocean (and, due to maya, not even realizing that we've been pulled into the ocean). So, with regards to academia, I'll say that my perception of the efforts of some devotee scholars is that they are contributing in positive ways to Srila Prabhupada's movement, in ways that Srila Prabhupada would fully encourage. There are fine examples that I'm sure Srila Prabhupada is pleased with, but also surely the opposite. Examples: Years ago I read a book with a collection of Tamal's essays, written while he was at Southern Methodist University. I remember not perceiving meaningful value to Srila Prabhupada's movement. Hridayananda Maharaja, as far as I can tell, is leading a 'Srila Prabhupada is not shastra' movement- so, if that's the result of his Harvard studies-, that's discouraging, irritating. Srila Prabhupada would be displeased, perhaps furious. Recently I read something from an academic, a former follower of Srila Prabhupada. He refers to Sri Haridasa Sastri as 'the 20th century's most prolific and knowledgeable Gaudiya Vaishnava scholar...' Clearly, Srila Prabhupada is conspicuous by his absence in that statement. [...] A view such as that, from a former follower of Srila Prabhupada, clearly indicates the principle of getting pulled into the ocean. But Murli Gopal das (Dr. Mauricio Garrido), a quantum physicist, is doing excellent work, in my opinion, using his mathematics and quantum physics education and experience to establish and introduce in the community of scientists, a model of consciousness founded in Vedic psychology and philosophy (his efforts are building on my studies/publications on the Vedic Personality Inventory and the Hare Krishna Maha Mantra research). Sadaputa's work in archaeology is great, in my opinion. So, for each individual's efforts, we can assess, based on the spirit and substance of Srila Prabhupada's vani." (2016) (END)

Around 2008 Akrura das, a GBC apologist in UK, wrote a study on Bhagavad Gita wherein he emphasizes at the start: "Bhagavad-gita can only be understood when knowing the whole Mahabharata." He is married to a disciple of Krishna Kshetra Swami (ISKCON guru), who published a rendition of the Mahabharata. So here are two things: corruption of so-called scholarship by promoting your wife's guru's books, and minimizing Srila Prabhupada's Gita by claiming it cannot be understood in and of itself, but requires study of the Mahabharata (something Srila Prabhupada never said). This is an example of questionable application of academics in the service of the transcendental mission. The entanglement in maya is often very subtle, and the dangers of academia are also very subtle. Krishna consciousness is like a razor blade.

SRILA PRABHUPADA IS NOT SHASTRA? By Dhira Govinda das

"Not that I'm involved in any substantial way, but, from what I've seen and heard, especially in recent years, a trend amongst 'devotee academics' is to embrace the view that 'Srila Prabhupada is not shastra.' Recently I corresponded with a member of the devotee higher education community at the doctoral level. He wrote to a very new devotee, 'Keep in mind that Prabhupada is not Shastra'. Since I know that this senior devotee's 'ISKCON guru' is a major proponent of the 'Srila Prabhupada is not shastra' stance, I am assuming with confidence that this devotee who wrote to the newcomer to Srila Prabhupada's movement, was simply acting as a mouthpiece for his 'guru.' Below is an excerpt from a response letter I wrote to him:

"You write 'Keep in mind that Prabhupada is not Shastra...' I certainly do regard all of Srila Prabhupada writings and teachings as shastra, smrti shastra. I'm wondering what's your reference(s) for 'Prabhupada is not Shastra.' I mean, did Srila Prabhupada ever say that? Or, did Srila Prabhupada ever say, or indicate in any way, that Srila Bhaktisiddhanta is not Shastra? I'm interested to hear more about your understanding in this regard. Of course, Srila Prabhupada often writes and speaks of shastra, and guru. My understanding about that, about the checks and balances system regarding shastra and guru, is that as a foundational reference for determining who is a bona fide guru, and who isn't, we refer to shastra. That, as far as I've comprehended, is Srila Prabhupada's teachings with regard to how to utilize the checks and balances of shastra and guru. Not that, once we have found a bona fide guru, we check shastra to determine which teachings from the bona fide guru to accept, and which to reject. And, practically speaking, for me anyway, to check shastra to determine who is a bona fide guru isn't really practically relevant. I mean, what do I know about shastra? Previously in life, I knew nothing at all about shastra. Whatever I know about shastra, I know from Srila Prabhupada. Srila Prabhupada and his teachings are non-different from shastra. They are one (while simultaneously distinct, of course, in the sense that Srila Prabhupada and all his vibrations are distinctive, personal representations of the essence of shastra). I understand shastra through Srila Prabhupada. Of course, it can be acceptable, on relatively rare occasion, to directly approach, for example, the teachings of Srila Bhaktisiddhanta, or the Goswamis, or other smrti or sruti shastra, to enhance our realizations, on the condition that we're firmly fixed in the spirit and teachings of Srila Prabhupada. Thus, if we do approach previous acharyas, or the Puranas, we hear and receive such shastra through the pure lens of Srila Prabhupada. For me to approach the Puranas or previous acharyas in any other spirit, I believe, would be the principle of 'jumping over,' and quite bogus and impudent on my part, and probably disastrous for my spiritual life. Of course, to understand how Srila Prabhupada's teachings are non-different from shastra, and how the statements of shastra, and of Srila Prabhupada, are true, that's another discussion, and it's the sort of discussion we're entering into... And in such discussions, for sure, there is ample room for permissible conjectures, as Srila Prabhupada describes, for example, in his purport to BGita 14.1 (where he uses the term 'the process of philosophical speculation.') (END)

Hrdayananda "Swami" is promoting "Srila Prabhupada is not shastra." There are two quotes from Srila Prabhupada in this connection: "Unless one is under the shelter of a realized spiritual master, his understanding of the Supreme is simply foolishness" (TLC) "Unless one is prepared that 'I am accepting somebody as my spiritual master. I must accept whatever he says,' if there is any doubt, that 'I cannot accept his words verbatim,' then one should not accept him as spiritual master. That is hypocrisy." (SPConv July 13, 1971)

THE ACHARYA IS NOT UNDER THE SHASTRA AND IS AS GOOD AS KRISHNA

ONE: (Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati, The Harmonist, Dec. 1931, Vol. 29, No. 6) "It is not empiric wisdom that is the object of quest of the devotee. Those who read the scriptures for gathering empiric wisdom will be pursuing the wild goose chase. There are not a few dupes of their empiric Scriptural erudition. These dupes have their admiring under-dupes. But the mutual admiration society of dupes does not escape, by the mere weight of their number, the misfortunes due to the deliberate pursuit of the wrong course in accordance with the suggestions of our lower selves. What are the Scriptures? They are nothing but the record by the pure devotees of the Divine Message appearing on the lips of the pure devotees. The Message conveyed by the devotees is the same in all ages. The words of the devotees are ever identical with the Scriptures. Any meaning of the Scriptures that belittles the function of the devotee who is the original communicant of the Divine Message contradicts its own claim to be heard. Those who think that the Sanskrit language in its lexicographical sense is the language of the Divinity are as deluded as those who hold that the Divine Message is communicable through any other spoken dialects. All languages simultaneously express and hide the Absolute. The mundane face of all languages hides the Truth. The Transcendental face of all sound expresses nothing but the Absolute. The pure devotee is the speaker of the Transcendental language. The Transcendental Sound makes His appearance on the lips of His pure devotee. This is the direct, unambiguous appearance of Divinity. On the lips of non-devotees the Absolute always appears in His deluding aspect. To the pure devotee the Absolute reveals Himself under all circumstances. To the conditioned soul, if he is disposed to listen in a truly submissive spirit, the language of the pure devotee can alone impart the knowledge of the Absolute. The conditioned soul mistakes the deluding for the real aspect when he chooses to lend his ear to the non-devotee. This is the reason why the conditioned soul is warned to avoid all association with non-devotees. Thakur Bhaktivinode is acknowledged by all his sincere followers as possessing the above powers of the pure devotee of Godhead. His words have to be received from the lips of a pure devotee. [But] from the lips of a non-devotee they will certainly deceive. If his works are studied in the light of one's own worldly experience their meaning will refuse to disclose itself to such readers. His works belong to the class of the eternal revealed literature of the world and must be approached for their right understanding through their exposition by the pure devotee. If no help from the pure devotee is sought the works of Thakur Bhaktivinode will be grossly misunderstood by their readers. The attentive reader of those works will find that he is always directed to throw himself upon the mercy of the pure devotee if he is not to remain unwarrantably self-satisfied by the deluding results of his wrong method of study."

TWO: "...But in devotion, there is no karma-bandha. As Krishna is free from all reaction, similarly Krishna's devotee who wants to satisfy Krishna only, he is also free from all reaction. Therefore Krishna says, acharya mam vijaniyan nava-manyeta karhicit [SBhag 11.17.27] 'The acharya is as good as I am,' Krishna says. Nava-manyeta karhicit, 'Never neglect him.' Na martya-buddhyasuyeta, 'Never be envious of the acharya, thinking him as anything of this material world.' [...] Therefore, acharya's position is as good as Krishna. Saksad-dharitvena samasta-sastrair. Acharya is always cautious that he may not be subject to criticism. But who criticizes acharya, he becomes immediately offender. Because he is playing the part of acharya, he plays as far as possible. But sometimes for preaching work, he might have to do something which is not consistent. But if he is criticized, then that man who criticizes, he becomes... [...] Ordinary man cannot transgress the laws, but Krishna and His representative, acharya, might be sometimes seen that he has transgressed.

Therefore Krishna says, acharyam mam vijaniyan. Vaishnavera kriya, mudra vijneha na bujhaya. In the CC, Vaishnava acharya, his activities is not understood even by the wisest man. Vaishnavera kriya, mudra vijneha na bujhaya. Brahmany upasamasrayam. Acharya, guru, he is completely surrendered to Krishna. He has taken the shelter of Krishna, being completely freed from all material affection. [...] Everyone has got some material desire to fulfill, but a guru or acharya has no such business. That is the symptom of acharya. He has no more any material business. [...] He has finished all business of material satisfaction. That is the symptom of acharya. And sabde pare ca nishnatam. And he has taken full bath in the ocean of transcendental... [...] Tasmad gurum prapadyeta [SBhag 11.3.21], one should surrender to such spiritual master. Jijnasuh sreya uttamam, when he is actually serious about inquiring the transcendental subject matter. Otherwise there is no need of accepting guru or acharya. He has no business. If one is not interested in the transcendental subject matter..." (SPConv Mar. 10, 1972)

LICKING THE OUTSIDE OF THE HONEY BOTTLE by Nityananda das

"Academia tends to evaluate Srila Prabhupada and his movement through the lens of mundane sociology, anthropology, history, psychology, and their speculative methodologies... whereas devotees want to live in spiritual practice and action, on the basis of Srila Prabhupada's teachings, to make devotees out of the lost souls. Srila Prabhupada's knowledge is already perfect, it is a descending process. So if devotee scholars can assist mundane scholars to properly understand the Hare Krishna movement, Srila Prabhupada, and the philosophy of Lord Chaitanya, that is great. But if they become influenced by academic culture, they may become disturbances to Srila Prabhupada by accepting academia's speculative interpretations above shastra.

"Burke Rochford, the academic scholar on the Hare Krishna movement since the seventies, is an old acquaintance and I have read his books. I find them interesting, useful, and insightful. However, many of the other scholarly books on the Hare Krishnas, especially some by devotee authors, I find disturbing, like when they examine Srila Prabhupada and his legacy in the framework of mundane academia. Terms such as hermeneutics, post-charismatic, routinization, and exegesis are esoteric terms, and when devotee scholars speak about 'Bhaktivedanta' in terms of 'modern theologies,' comparing him to other religious phenonema, I feel nauseated. Are Hare Krishna devotees to study Srila Prabhupada through the lens of the mundane academic method? Their ivory-tower, sanctimonious evaluations, analysing Srila Prabhupada as a cult phenomenon is offensive by minimizing the pure devotee. Also it can be creepy, being studied by these academics via their limited scientific methodology and by cross-referencing to their 'published' academic forerunners and peers, as though they were building up their knowledgeable conclusions, brick by brick, ascending to attain... what? Their conclusions are most often speculative, innovative, competitive, and useless.

"Are devotee 'scholars' appreciating 'Bhaktivedanta' properly? It's one thing to have mundane scholars appreciate Srila Prabhupada's legacy, and quite another for a devotee to become one of them to explain transcendence in academic terminology. Srila Prabhupada has already explained it all nicely; we should distribute his books, not write new ones about Hare Krishna in academic lingo. Some of these books on 'Bhaktivedanta' and his 'religious transplant,' and 'seeking clues to the sources of Prabhupada's exported Vaishnava theology' ...are troubling to read. These analyses about problems that Lord Chaitanya's movement faces in adapting to modern society should rather note the problems of the sinful modern society. Academic discussion of the internal problems in ISKCON are ironic, as they were caused by disobedience to Srila Prabhupada's instructions, especially by Tamal, one prominent devotee 'scholar.' Adjustments to and re-interpretations of the shastra are debated to solve problems caused by deviations from Srila Prabhupada's and the shasta's verdicts. It's like licking the outside of the honey bottle. Is it speculative intellectualism? Is there an attraction for the prestige of honored mundane scholarship and attending religious conventions with really smart people? Although some academic devotees are doing nice preaching to further Srila Prabhupada's mission, others appear to have seriously drifted off course. Srila Prabhupada warned scholarly Hiranyagarbha das about this, who later rejected Srila Prabhupada with his faulty academic interpretations." (END)

SRILA PRABHUPADA IS THE PERSON BHAGAVATA, MORE THAN SHASTRA

In reply to Hrdayananda Swami, who maintains Srila Prabhupada is not shastra, are these quotes: (1) "Devotees of the Supreme Lord are not controlled by the scriptures since their activities are congenial to Divine Wisdom. When self-realized devotees ordain any new arrangement, this should be accepted as religious code, even if such new arrangements are not found in the scriptural dictums of the previous sages." (Sri Tattva-Sutra by Bhaktivinoda Thakura) (2) "He said, 'Bhaktivinoda Thakura is Kamala Manjari, a personal associate of Radharani. He ordered me to establish daiva-varnasrama. I must obey his order. The acharya is not under the shastra. The acharya can make shastra. Bhaktivinoda Thakura, the acharya, has inspired me in various ways. By his mercy and that of Gaura Kisora das Babaji Maharaja and the previous acharyas we are going on, not caring for the precise technicalities of smartas." ("Sri Bhaktisiddhanta Vaibhava" compiled by Bhakti Vikas Swami) (3) "In all the Vaishnava sampradayas, the correct shastric understanding is thru the acharya's commentaries, not opinions of academic scholars' speculations. We must note that most of the academic scholars connected to ISKCON are usually mouth pieces for the GBC's interpretations. Academic training has not helped them understand Srila Prabhupada's living presence and transcendental availability." (Damaghosh das, 2016)

ISKCON SCHOLARS PRODUCING THEIR OWN BHAGAVAD GITAS

Another trend in ISKCON: producing other Bhagavad Gita editions, with uniquely different translations and commentaries from the one Srila Prabhupada already gave us. This is a presumptuous activity, and by promoting one's own version of the Gita, one naturally must neglect to promote Srila Prabhupada's Gita. How can one advocate two Gitas at once, neither will people study two or three Gitas; it is difficult to get others to read even one. So at the expense of Srila Prabhupada's preaching via his wonderful and perfect Bhagavad Gita As It Is, devotee "scholars" who are Srila Prabhupada disciples or followers thus study Srila Prabhupada's Gita and then make their own version as though it was better (or more unique) in some way than Srila Prabhupada's Gita. This is offensive. Srila Prabhupada's Gita, the original unchanged version, is fully relevant and appropriate in all circumstances and for all persons. To doubt this shows these devotee scholars are drowning in maya.

FIRST, Hrdayananda's Gita (Above): It contains a "literal translation" in English as well as a "comprehensive guide." From Note to the Readers: "...note that in translating the Gita the author has chosen to keep ambiguities in Sanskrit ambiguous in English as well. The Gita clearly contains an explicit central message, but it also at times contains mystic and mysterious language, dense and intense philosophy and unique ways of self-expression, which the author tried to retain in the English. The purpose of this elaborate Comprehensive Guide is to unpack, disambiguate and explain the literal translation such that the clear central meaning shines through." So, was Srila Prabhupada's Gita not adequate in delivering a central message that shines through? If Srila Prabhupada's Gita is perfect, what is the need for a conditioned soul's defective version? This is the problem: those producing their own Gitas are not accepting that Srila Prabhupada's Gita is perfect and complete, and so there is no need to add to it or upstage it and garner acclaim from those who don't know better. Hrdayananda uses H.D. Goswami as the author's name instead of the name Srila Prabhupada gave him, as he likes to change things for the "better." Upon examining his Gita, it is obvious that anyone in any condition or station would be far better off with Srila Prabhupada's Gita. We pity him, who tried to distinguish himself by re-doing what his own guru has already done so wonderfully.

SECOND, there is Bhagavad Gita: The Beloved Lord's Secret Love Song by Garuda das (Graham M. Schweig), who is a tenured Virginia professor, a religious scholar. He completed Tamal's Cambridge thesis, published to honor Tamal's "outstanding academic credentials" (see below). To publish a Bhagavad Gita as one's own work, being a disciple of Srila Prabhupada who has already done this par excellence, is in the opinions of many, an arrogant, offensive disservice, and prohibited by proper etiquette as prescribed in shastra. A Facebook discussion about this matter from which we can look at the issue more closely: PGD: "This is a matter of etiquette, if a previous acharya has already written about something, there is NO need to repeat it for personal sense gratification, or to outdo the previous acharya." [CC Mad X:151] KD: Each living entity's bhava will be different, this is more like poetry and it appeals to a certain audience I think, Prabhupada would never object... if you really understand Prabhupada. JYD: Srila Prabhupada did want that we should describe in our own words all that he gave us, while his rendering of all he gave us is the core, the foundation and is not superseded.

necessary books. Outside of that, everything was extra. Once we were in Prabhupada's room in New York when Radhaballabha asked Prabhupada, "So, after you finish the Bhagavatam, Prabhupada, what books would you like to translate?" Prabhupada said, "Oh, maybe Jiva Goswami's Sat Sandharbha, or Vedanta-Sutra or Bhagavad-gita. There're so many." Someone spoke up, "But Prabhupada, you already did the Bhagavad-gita." Prabhupada said, "There are so many commentaries. We did a small part." He said, "Ramanujacharya, Madhvacharya, everyone has given a Gita commentary. We could do many Gitas, not just one." So he had a conception like that. (From Memories: Anecdotes of a Modern-Day Saint. Vol. 2.)

PGD: I let Srila Prabhupada respond to your reply: "So Vyasadeva is the spiritual master. So the later acharyas, they did not think it proper that whatever the... Because their spiritual master has had already made a commentary on the Vedanta-sutra, 'Oh, that is sufficient. Why should we do again?' These are some of the etiquette." (CC Mad 22.21-8, Jan. 11, 1967) "One cannot defy the previous acharyas. The false pride that makes one think that he can write better than the previous acharyas will make one's comments faulty. At the present moment it has become fashionable for everyone to write in his own way, but such writing is never accepted by serious devotees." (CC Ant 7.134) "The writing of Vaishnava literatures is not a function for ordinary men. Vaishnava literatures are not mental concoctions. They are all authorized literature meant to guide those who are going to be Vaishnavas. Under these circumstances, an ordinary man cannot give his own opinion. His opinion must always correspond with the conclusion of the Vedas. Unless one is FULLY qualified in Vaishnava behavior and authorized by superior authority (the Supreme Personality of Godhead), one cannot write Vaishnava literatures or purports and commentaries on Srimad-Bhagavatam and Bhagavad-gita." (CC Mad 24.326) "The words spoken by the Lord are different from words spoken by a person of the mundane world who is infected with four defects. A mundaner is sure to commit mistakes, is invariably illusioned, has the tendency to cheat others and is limited by imperfect senses. With these four imperfections, one cannot deliver perfect information of all-pervading knowledge. Vedic knowledge is not imparted by such defective living entities... One cannot say anything about the transcendental world without being free from materially contaminated consciousness." (Introduction to Gitopanisad) "Unless one is a FULLY unalloyed devotee of the Lord, one should NOT try to describe the pastimes of Krishna in poetry, for it will be only mundane. There are many descriptions of Krishna's Bhagavad-gita written by persons whose consciousness is mundane and who are not qualified by PURE devotion. Although they attempted to write transcendental literature, they could not fully engage even a single devotee in Krishna's service. Such literature is mundane, and therefore, as warned by Sri Sanatana Gosvami, one should not touch it." (CC Ant 1.212) So, do you not feel that ANY of these statements by Srila Prabhupada apply to you, as you clearly do not consider yourself an "ordinary man," or one who is still on the "mundane platform," but rather, apparently, you view yourself as being a "Fully Unalloyed Devotee of the Lord"? Re: "Ramanujacharya, Madhvacharya, everyone has given a Gita commentary. We could do many Gitas, not just one." Do you see yourself in the league of such acharyas as Ramanujacharya, Madhvacharya, or Srila Prabhupada? When Srila Prabhupada said "WE," he was not referring to "us" [his neophyte disciples], but to himself. He very rarely used the words 'I, me, my', but rather the word "we" when speaking of himself.

GARUDA: Here's what I do know: (1) I don't know how to judge myself spiritually; (2) I do know that the Guru can assess my qualifications; (3) I do know that once Prabhupada saw my first master's thesis on the CC and was informed that I was going into doctoral studies at Harvard that he said to Satsvarupa Das Goswami that he was pleased that I was serving on such a high level; (4) I do know that Mahaprabhu's anugraha is a lot more powerful than any type or number of shortcomings I have; (5) I do know something of how much so many people have come to appreciate Krishna Bhakti through my scholarship and publishing writing and translations; (6) I do know that I receive the support and encouragement of so many of my guru brothers and sisters for continuing in this direction; (7) I do know that Krishna bhakti seva takes many forms, and that this one happens to be mine: a university professor teaching the BGita and other bhakti texts, and protecting them from misinterpretations by offering strong scholarship, and (8) I do know that once you actually read my translation and presentation of the Bhagavad Gita: The Beloved Lord's Secret Love Song, that you'll give me your sincere reactions, since you obviously care deeply for how the guru parampara is represented. PGD: KD, how can you say that Garuda's Gita translation is "more" like poetry? Especially since the Gita is a 'poetic song' "composed" by Lord Krishna Himself, and translated "As It Is" by the Lord's pure devotee Srila Prabhupada. Garuda advertises his Gita thus: "To all my current and former yoga students and teacher trainees, take advantage!!! Bhagavad Gita: The Beloved Lord's Secret Love Song: [It] will remain the standard text of this marvelous Song for years to come, if indeed it is ever superseded." -Huston Smith, author of The World's Religions, said of Graham M. Schweig's translation of the Bhagavat Gita. GARUDA: I believe was trying to point out that Prabhupada's translation is in prose, plain and simple, and was trying to appreciate that my attempt was to bring in some of the poetic quality and feel of the original Sanskrit poetry as a reader of Sanskrit feels it. [...] By the way, may I ask, what is your Krishna Bhakti seva? You seem to have a lot to say about mine, about which you know very little. So why don't you share with me what it is that you do to contribute to the seva of Krishna? My "Krishna Bhakti Seva" is too insignificant for me to mention in any way, I do, however, due to my expertise in faultfinding have some qualification in recognizing an envious offender to my Spiritual Master. And for this moment I consider it my 'seva' [selfless/thankless service] to do just that.

PGD: You writing your "own" translation as well as commentary of the Bhagavat Gita flies in the face of all the quotes that I posted by Srila Prabhupada [there are many more]. I do not believe that any truly genuine or chaste Srila Prabhupada disciple, or any Krishna Bhakti for that matter would EVER consider attempting to upstage THE present yuga acharya Srila Prabhupada, who said that His books [including, and especially the Bhagavat Gita As It Is] that they will be the law books [Gold standard] for the next ten thousand years. Yet in light of those words by Srila Prabhupada you have the audacity to proudly and shamelessly display in your original post the [ignorant] comment of Mr. Huston Smith regarding "your" Gita."

Tripurari Swami, Sravaniya dasi, and others have also done versions of the Gita. Epidemic.

POSITIVE PREACHING IN THE ACADEMIC WORLD

(1) "I was recently invited to speak at a conference of devotee academics, and I spoke about my studies and publications on the effects of chanting the Hare Krishna Maha Mantra, and on the development of the Vedic Personality Inventory (VPI). Thinking back on my personal history, when I was a relatively new bhakta in Israel, I was plagued by severe doubts from studying various sections of Srila Prabhupada's books, particularly related to science, astronomy, and those sorts of areas. Devotees there in Israel weren't able to satisfactorily respond to my questions, and they appropriately referred me to Sadaputa Prabhu, who was based in Philadelphia at the time. So, back around 1984 I wrote to and exchanged correspondences with Sadaputa, and, based on his scholarly study of Srila Prabhupada's books integrated with his extensive background in mathematics, physics, etc., his responses immensely helped me to enrich my faith in Srila Prabhupada. With that correspondence as a foundation, I've come to appreciate how the Vedic version in areas such as, for example, astronomy, includes what's valid in the Western paradigm, and of course far surpasses it in scope, thoroughness, and completeness." (Dhira Govinda das, 2016) (2) "We are not against preaching within academic circles, but we are against false elitism within ISKCON academia." (Rotten Academia, by Krishna das, 2017) (3) "There is a Bengali proverb: tora sil tora noda, tora bhangi dantera goda. I take your mortar and pestle and I break your teeth. This means that we use the scientists' own weapons and with them we defeat their atheistic philosophy. [...] Similarly, we can use our materialistic knowledge to defeat the atheistic philosophy of the scientists. So you also can continue your studies and learn what is sil and noda (mortar and pestle) so you can break their dantera goda (break their teeth)." (SPL Mar. 8, 1976)

WHY DID TAMAL GO TO TOP UNIVERSITIES FOR HIS PH.D.?

In 1996 Tamal devised a new plan to become the leader of the movement by becoming the unchallenged, prominent academic and intellectual spokesman and figurehead of ISKCON (see Part 9).

ISKCON was inundated with propaganda that the world would not take ISKCON seriously unless the leaders became "scholars" with advanced degrees from top universities. This was a subtle mundane calculation how to improve the preaching with material qualifications. He used Srila Prabhupada's accomplishments, his own supposed intimacy with him, and fresh university credentials to jump-start his intellectual and academic stature in ISKCON and academia in yet another attempt to gain unique prominence, to finally become the leader of the movement. If his spiritual stature was insufficiently recognized, his new mundane stature would make the necessary difference. Tamal had his new plan to control ISKCON. He enrolled in college and worked hard to become a religious scholar and academic authority on the Hare Krishna Movement. He pursued his doctorate (Ph.D.) at Cambridge/Oxford University in England, attending conferences of religious scholars around the world. He hoped he would finally be accorded proper respect as a great spiritual leader, and transcend the many years of poor reputation earned while causing numerous controversial and debilitating ISKCON crises. His life was a menagerie of evolving, mutating, contradictory, political patchwork of positions, policies, and plans that were wholly incompatible with the true Acharya's instructions and desires.

In his last six years, Tamal survived kidney cancer with the best modern medical treatments, and he entered the academic world, attending universities, studying, writing, living in a London apartment. Tamal's overhead exceeded US$6000/mo. (while he and the GBC would not pay $6000 for Dr. Morris' tests on Srila Prabhupada's hair samples). His new plan of conquest was to become the world's leading academic scholar and authority on the Hare Krishna Movement, and to do so as a longtime practicing, active member who had been the founder's personal assistant and secretary. Tamal went to the top two universities in the world; his friend Hridayananda went to Harvard, and other devotees followed their examples. As many devotees sought a Ph.D. as ISKCON scholars, the idea was that ISKCON leaders needed to become scholars to save the troubled institution.

This was promoted in 2002 at the annual ISKCON Mayapur gathering. Tamal's credibility with Godbrothers had eroded so much from constant embroilments in and fomenting of institutional crises, so he finally found an audience where he could be appreciated as a leading authority on a vital subject: the Hare Krishnas. Tamal relished attending scholarly religious conferences and rubbing elbows with the lofty intellectuals of the day, distinguished as he was in being a practicing member of the religious cult which he was now "objectively analyzing." Tamal, once establishing his distinguished position in the scholarly realm, would then leverage this into a more distinguished leadership position in ISKCON. Tamal's newfound scholarliness produced his Ph.D. thesis about Srila Prabhupada's great theological “contribution to religion,” titled: A Living Theology of Krishna Bhakti: Essential Teachings of AC Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada. In academia, we see, it is necessary to omit “His Divine Grace” from Srila Prabhupada’s name, or perhaps it would appear biased and evangelical. Tamal analyzed Srila Prabhupada and his teachings through the unique, esoteric lens of mundane academics, starting with his “colonial background” and Christian indoctrinations in Scottish College, and as though he were simply a brilliant inculcator of an ingenious new theology that resonated in certain modern cultural conditions. Tamal admitted this book was controversial. He would have been, if not for his 2002 demise, the leading scholar and expert on this subject. But, as Tamal was leaving the holy land of Lord Chaitanya’s pastimes to return to England to complete his thesis, he was relieved of this “service” by divine intervention when he expired in a car crash in India. Garuda das finished his thesis and published it 10 years later in 2012. A sample from A Living Theology of Krishna Bhakti (286 p.) P. 32:

“If Prabhupada is to be spared from the charge of naive literalism, we will need to examine his constant use of metaphorical language (semantically, not syntactically) and his frequent deployment of models when speaking of God. In doing so, we shall have to consider the nature, function, and cognitive status of these models to determine, as far as possible, the reality to which they refer. Do his models and metaphors commit ‘violence to genuine religious conviction by vulgar anthropomorphism,’ which Soskice so abhors?” Such clinical examination of Srila Prabhupada feels very offensive.

TAMAL’S “CONSTRUCTIVE THEOLOGIZING FOR REFORM AND RENEWAL”

An essay by Tamal and Krishna Ksetre (2001), as titled above, is included in Ch. 212. It proposes there is a need to modernize ISKCON and Srila Prabhupada’s “thought” or teachings by “reform and renewal” according to the new set of circumstances presented by the modern world, characterizing Srila Prabhupada and his teachings as “pre-modern.” Such is the dangerous nature of an intelligent but deviant disciple who always thought he knew better than Srila Prabhupada how to propagate Krishna consciousness. A Tamal disciple (Krishnabhishek das) posted a defense online of Tamal’s “idea behind getting into the academia was to represent Gaudiya Vaishnavism, especially coming from the line of Srila Prabhupada, to worldly scholars.” He quotes Srila Prabhupada wanting to preach nicely to the scholarly class “in their own language,” and further cautions that we “must understand how the academia/intellectual world works and to effectively spread Krishna Consciousness in that area, it takes time, energy and resources, patience and intelligence to deal with intellectuals who influence the way the world thinks... Finally, I humbly request the author and all other Vaishnavas questioning the motives of Tamal Krishna Maharaja in the academia to seek the essence of his words and actions; a careful unbiased analysis will clearly reveal Maharaja’s true intentions.”

Yes, we see Tamal’s motive to enter academia was to use the prestige as an intellectual and scholar to change Srila Prabhupada’s Mission with his own concocted ideas, not to impart Srila Prabhupada’s teachings to academia. Is this so hard to see? Hridayananda’s association with mundane scholars also resulted in his wanting to modify Srila Prabhupada’s instructions on how to propagate the movement. Hridayananda and Tamal fell victim to the contaminating influences of mundane academia, or did they use academia to undermine the Divine Mission. Was it both? On July 5, 2009 Gopinath das posted his essay titled “Religious Integration of ISKCON by Academia,” where we read: “...I feel that certain questions have to be asked in the attempt to clarify your intent and ability to appropriately represent our Acharya, Srila Prabhupada, to the academia. There is no doubt that Srila Prabhupada wanted devotees preaching to scientists and scholars in order to establish ISKCON (Gaudiya Vaishnavism) as a bona fide religious movement in their circles, and making them into devotees. However it appears that in these days, this dynamic is reversed and the academics and scholars are the ones who ended up preaching to our devotees, who in turn are disseminating these speculative mundane academic systems within our movement. Instead of giving association, our academic devotees... are taking association from them. They reversed the roles and became the disciples of academic gurus. This is clearly evident when we see how our leading academic devotees are attempting to pollute our movement while undermining and belittling the teachings that Srila Prabhupada established, with the humanistic sciences given to them by these New Gurus. They are quietly and incrementally introducing these academically acquired impersonal humanistic ideologies and methodologies in a form of so-called pluralism, egalitarianism, liberalism, corporatism etc. into ISKCON, taught by academic gurus. The relationship between Braja Bihari das and his Corporate/Academic Guru, Arnold Zack and his ADR program, which Braja Bihari das effectively imbedded into our society (in the name of Krishna consciousness), is a fact. We clearly see who the Guru is and who is the student. ISKCON Communications Journal nicely introduces Arnold Zack's ADR program, which was a spring board for Arnold Zack to facilitate GBC meetings, etc. Ananda dasi in her Sampradaya Sun article entitled "ISKCON Dissolve," gives a nice synopsis on Braja Bihari's introduction of the ADR program into ISKCON.

"Hridayanada 'Swami' is another stark example of a person who became polluted by academia. We saw this when he started to preach liberalistic acceptance of homosexuality in ISKCON, which clearly transgresses Srila Prabhupada's teachings. His conduct as a sannyasi is questionable, at best. On a recent visit to India, he was flamboyantly parading around Mayapur dham with two female devotees, one on each side, while laughing and joking with them. ...He was not wearing neck beads, brahman tread, or uttaria, sannyasi upper cloth, 'because he does not want to be external.' Would Srila Prabhupada approve of this behavior? I don't think so.

"Srila Prabhupada did try to warn Hridayananda: '...But, if you disturb me, then my mind will be disturbed. I want that what I have established may go on nicely, but I see that some of the devotees are reviving their old "good" qualities. That is the difficulty. If the old habits come back, then everything is finished. If my mind becomes disturbed in this way, then how can I concentrate on book writing. It is not possible. Better not to inform me anything, and let me sit in Vrindavana.' (SPL Hridayananda, Nov.13, 1975)" (END)

On July 19, 2009, Achyuta das posted a critique of ISKCON's academic devotees, specifically Basu Ghosh das, Tamal, and his disciple Krishnabhishek das. Excerpts: "Srila Prabhupada was not simply a person who had a 'facile' personality characterized by personal charm and magnetism, no matter how supernatural or superhuman they may be! To refer to Srila Prabhupada as a "charismatic leader" is insulting, not only for Srila Prabhupada and Krishna but also it is an insult to our intelligence... I'd love to see the un-sanitized version of TKG's Thesis (before published by Garuda das)... Srila Prabhupada is the only preacher in ISKCON. We give the non-devotees Srila Prabhupada's books and they read them and Srila Prabhupada does the rest. We don't have to change to accommodate them; they must try and understand us. Let them use their so-called superior intellect and academic approach to Theology and see how they fare with Srila Prabhupada's books. Tamal Krishna believes that he has the right to interpret our Vaishnava shastra as if he is greater than Srila Prabhupada: 'But when the guru departs, sadhu and shastra can take on a new import, as those who succeed him become the new interpreters of past precedents, scriptural law and the new set of circumstances.' (A Hare Krishna at So. Methodist Univ., p. 297) The modern academics with their Diacritical Theology, which is only a disguise for their impersonalist agenda, is only being made relevant by Tamal Krishna, Krishna Kshetra, Garuda, and Hridayananda. They have sold out to professionalism and interfaith. Our philosophy needs no champion other than Srila Prabhupada. Let any Academic prove that their so-called critical analytical interpretations of our philosophy can prove us false. Let them make a diacritical study of our shastra instead of our so-called academics trying to pass Srila Prabhupada off as if he is [an imperfect religious innovator.] We should critically analyze Tamal with a rationally unbiased analytical mind, by looking at: (1) How his background impacted on his devotional career (2) How he related to other devotees, taking into consideration all views and opinions of him, good or bad (3) The philosophical deviations that he stood for (4) An estimate of how much of Srila Prabhupada's money he spent obtaining formal qualifications, knowing full well that Srila Prabhupada did not want his sannyasi disciples going to mundane university (5) His published work and how it relates to the points being raised regarding his interpretation of Srila Prabhupada and our Vaishnava siddhanta.

“What do these Diacritical Theologians represent? Are they [...] ‘big big’ scholars who should be respected and treated with awe and reverence? But this so-called Academia that you firmly believe we must bend our knees and crawl to, is representing the Humanistic and Agnostic approach that God is ultimately unknowable, and Srila Prabhupada's theory that Godhead is knowable is naive. [...] The so-called Academic language, terminology and ideologies that you so eagerly want to embrace and use in your refutations and ultimately self-aggrandizement are all coming from the impersonal humanistic sciences. We are aspiring Vaishnavas- these rational mechanistic scientists have no idea what and who we are and most importantly, what and who Srila Prabhupada is. Srila Prabhupada is nothing whatsoever like Tamal or the Academics you admire. This caliber of soul rarely walks this earth and when he does, he does it for Krishna, not these impersonalist pseudo-philosophers. That includes Tamal! You must remember that being a Vaishnava is not such an easy thing. We are all aspiring Vaishnavas and must be very careful when inferring anything about a pure devotee such as Srila Prabhupada, our Sampradaya Acharya. (1) Why do ISKCON's leaders want to modernize, liberalize and pluralize our movement? (2) Why are they behind the ‘Interfaith’ process in ISKCON? (3) Why is it appropriate for our movement to keep up with modernity? (4) Obviously ISKCON's leaders are not above the modes of material nature. (5) Why the push for acceptance by Academia? (6) Why do ISKCON's leaders seek academic qualification, but also are the push behind our devotees, both child and adult, to obtain western secular qualifications? (7) Why the ISKCON leaders are behind the corporatization of our movement? (8) Why is there no transparency at all about the finances of ISKCON and leaders' bank accounts? (9) Why are the ISKCON leaders behind every single one of the philosophical deviations that have infected our movement?”

CONCLUSION

Everything has its proper use in the service of Lord Krishna, but if it is misused it is no longer devotional service, or at the minimum it becomes tainted with the modes of nature and has at best, mixed effects. Coming chapters show more how academia has corrupted prominent ISKCON misleaders. Academia is especially dangerous because it entails close association with mundane scholars who are often not sincere spiritualists, but simply rascals corrupted by speculation, impersonalism, false pride, and empiricism. ISKCON is overly enamored of their academic members and the mundane qualifications of intelligence and prestige, and there has been little discussion nor realization of mundane academic contamination of the movement. Tamal was an unhealthy influence upon Srila Prabhupada's movement from when he first joined and introduced his heavy management style in 1968 right up through his last act: that ISKCON be improved by the norms and assertions of materialistic scholars (2002). If devotees cannot preach to scholars without becoming maya's agent, better stay at home and chant Hare Krishna. Many of these devotee academics have horrible sadhana practices (although they speak of raganuga sadhana). Srila Prabhupada: “These things are going on...”

CHAPTER 127: TANTRA AND BLACK MAGIC

WHAT IS TANTRA PRAYOGA OR BLACK MAGIC SORCERY?

Black magic can be used to harm, impede, or curse others by performing various tantric rituals even from a far place. These rituals of sorcery can be conducted by hired “pandits” who use names, photos, or personal items to project negative energy and potent curses upon a victim or opponent. Motives may be to obtain favors in love, business, or employment, to gain power, or to defeat enemies. Many Indian websites offer the services of counter rituals to remove the effects of black magic tantric curses and spells, advertising at costs of 10-25,000 rupees. In India there are many tantric yogis and kavirajas who are expert in the art of success-enhancement pujas and mantras, and also more sinister acts like curses, remote-poisoning, or hexing your enemies. We saw in Ch. 81 that the provider of free makharadhvaja medicine for Srila Prabhupada in 1977 was a trained, practiced tantric who was an extremely controversial person in politics, assassinations, terrorists, and arms dealing. Black magic tantra is very much a part of Indian culture and is also called JADHU TONA, KIYA KARAYA, MARAN PRAYOGA, or KALA JADU. "Tantra sadhaks" are priests who perform black magic counter rituals called suraksha kavacha puja. One advertisement: "The Black magic or kala jadu removal Puja is a high potency puja for removal and repelling black magic, haunting experiences and evil spirits. Our aghor suraksha kavach puja acts as a barrier to harmful forces. It functions to remove and further prepares a protective covering from evil spirits, black magic, kiya karaya, evil spells, bhoot, pret, negativity and psychic trauma. Vamtantra tantra sadhaks will perform Puja as per tantric rituals based on birth details. It cures one from the evil effects of past attacks and protects one from all future attacks and maran prayog, and helps in protecting from malefic planetary positions and their ill effects." (https://youtu.be/GPIZ4rSxP\_o)

Tantric practices are for those wanting power, sex, money, and elimination of enemies or those standing in the way of achieving these things. Tantra was never taught by Srila Prabhupada- it is a serious deviation with which Srila Prabhupada is not pleased. Srila Prabhupada taught that anything material cannot last. These tantric practices will never give anyone a permanent advantage. Actually, their use is an involvement in the laws of karma, and black magic or tantric curses and rituals will eventually lose strength and backfire, especially when employed upon the devotees of the Lord. The shastra has many examples of this.

TANTRIC INVOLVEMENTS AND ISKCON GURUS

After 1980, as is it widely known, some ISKCON "gurus" were involved with "tantric practices," including Harikesha, Jayapataka, Radhanatha, Bhavananda, Bhakticharu, Tamal and others. These practices may have begun even before Srila Prabhupada's departure. In 1991 Jayapataka Swami introduced and actively promoted his disciple Chittesvara das to all ISKCON temples worldwide in the 1980's for his infamous "ghost-busting" rituals. Of course, hefty fees were charged ($200-800 and up). Chittesvara also offered private rituals to remove "thousands of ghosts from the body" which also cost devotees handsomely. Ravindra Svarupa was de-ghosted and his doctor noted that his anemia was remarkably improved. Harikesh introduced black magic and the "occult" amongst many top ISKCON leaders, including Shivarama and Mukunda Swamis. He would test the genitals with a pendulum ritual. He was working on a machine to transform Sweden into the tropics but it cut off someone's fingers in an accident. Some GBCs are intimately involved with black arts and tantra, including the production of destructive yantras, or they install "the Jinn" in their enemies' homes to create mischief. Harikesh constantly espoused on the magical, mystical, UFO's, aliens, an area of activity not officially approved by the GBC but also fully tolerated and used by many of its members. In Indonesia, ISKCON leaders even set up a committee on parapsychological healing methods.

There were many rumors that Jayapataka Swami often employed various tantric services, what to speak of the hiring of thugs and bomb-makers in Mayapur. Is the Holy Name no longer sufficient? Tamal and Bhavananda were rumored as using tantra. To what extent and purpose have ISKCON leaders and "gurus" availed themselves of the dark side through black magic and tantra? How does this fit with bhaktiyoga? In Lord Chaitanya's time there were many tantric yogis and these practices are still very widely practiced in India. It was said Jayapataka and Bhavananda used tantric curses against Hansadutta and the New Jaipur ritvik community. When demons cannot use force against opponents openly, they will often use tantric curses.

Chandra Swami is suspected as being connected to Srila Prabhupada's poisoning. He was a shakta, a worshipper of Lord Shiva, an adept tantric yogi, and his dark history is described in Ch. 81. In the guise of a sannyasi, he was after political and financial advancement, obtained by manipulating people, with alleged involvement in murders, assassinations, arms dealing, and with foreign intelligence agencies. It has been asked why Srila Prabhupada's medicine in Oct. 1977 was obtained from such a tantric criminal. ISKCON's reply was that Chandra Swami was not known in 1977 to be a nefarious personality. However, Adi Keshava contradicts this, that he knew well of his shady and dirty past in 1976-1977. ISKCON leadership in 2000 stated (NTIAP, p. 111) that ideas Chandra Swami might have been involved in Srila Prabhupada's poisoning were a "wishful fantasy," regardless of his having been associated with murders and assassinations.

PURPLE VIBHUTI AND HARIKESHA IN 1998

Harikesha was deeply involved in tantric practices. One year in the 1990's it was publicized that he and other ISKCON gurus, including Bir Krishna Swami and Tamal, went to a Navadwipa tantric who pulled black poisons from out of their stomachs with a thread and mantras. This was related to Nityananda das by Bir Krishna Swami himself. In his European headquarters, surrounded by video cameras and motion detectors, Harikesha consulted his hand-held pendulum in all his decisions, big or small. Many accounts also alleged that he would regularly engage tantric services to enhance his power and defeat his enemies. Chittesvara (Jayapataka's tantric disciple) was supplying Harikesha a purple "medicinal" powder called vibhuti for 10 years, which later was found to be a powerful psychotropic drug. Jayapataka arranged this medicine for Harikesha after the latter complained of mental and psychological problems. Interestingly, the first ISKCON guru to rush to the scene of Harikesh's total mental breakdown and dramatic departure from ISKCON guruhship and leadership in 1998 was Jayapataka Swami, canvassing to reinitiate disciples for himself. Some said he had sabotaged Harikesh's stability with vibhuti on purpose, planning to eliminate his competition.

A PRIVATE FIRE SACRIFICE IN THE DARK CONDUCTED BY THREE GURUS

During one of the annual Mayapur GBC meetings in the mid-1990's, Naveen Krishna das and his wife were noticing that every day after mangal arotik, there was a fire yajna conducted by the older gurukula boys. It was held in a pavilion building in the front of the property where sometimes kirtan or bhajan bands would perform at night. They thought how nice it was that the young school devotees were doing these sacrifices.

One morning they went for a pre-dawn japa walk and came to the pavilion, but it was locked and dark. They found one side entrance slightly open and came into a dark room where they saw a fire in the sacrificial pit, surrounded by three persons. Naveen was surprised to see Bhavananda, Jayapataka, and Bhakticharu Swamis, who were surprised to see him. "How did you get in? Why are you here?" asked Bhavananda. It was clear that they were not comfortable with his presence, so Naveen excused himself and departed, and thought little of the incident until years later. After he resigned from the GBC, Naveen lost all trust in his former GBC comrades and ISKCON leaders due to their cover-up of Srila Prabhupada's poisoning. Recalling this Mayapur fire sacrifice, he concluded they were engaged in something other than a typical Vaishnava purificatory ritual, namely tantric rituals for some materialistic benefits. In hindsight, he understood that the three he had seen that morning were actually devotees in disguise. (Naveen Krishna das, 2016)

TANTRIC RITUAL CURSE ON NEW JAIPUR IN 1991?

From the VVR #16, Aug. 1991, p. 2: "Some say that certain GBC members have employed tantric yogis to curse New Jaipur. At the 1991 Mayapur GBC meetings it was a major topic of discussion among the GBC elite: the use of "Vaishnava" tantric rituals for expelling poisons and ghosts from the body and mind." An informant phoned New Jaipur after leaving the 1991 Mayapur Festival, which went from Feb. 4-18. He informed there were prominent rumors at the festival that several ISKCON leaders had employed black magic and tantric rituals to impart bad fortune upon the VVR editors and the New Jaipur devotee community. Two weeks later the community collapsed due to a federal and state raid. The actual series of events support this: (1) 1989: VVR publishes its research of the evidence that Srila Prabhupada instructed he wanted a ritvik representative initiation system after his departure, challenging the GBC to comply or produce evidence to the contrary. (2) Jan. 1990: VVR editors Rupa Vilas, Karnamrita, Nityananda attend the San Diego GBC sponsored open debate on the ritvik evidence, resulting in a widely distributed video of the debate discussions and a resolution that the full GBC further discuss the issue. (3) Mar. 1990: GBC meetings in Mayapur: Bhakticharu, Tamal, Satyaraja, Ravindra Svarupa put together ISKCON Journal, a one issue magazine with denials that the ritvik representative initiation system was meant for after Srila Prabhupada's departure. At the meetings Tamal characterizes Nityananda das "Public enemy number one." (4) Feb. 1991: Rumors of Tamal, Jayapataka, and other gurus engaging in black tantric rituals aimed against New Jaipur Mississippi, VVR and its editors. Nityananda has a freak accident when surveying the attic of a building, narrowly escaping death after a floorboard snapped, left dangling by his snagged shirt above a concrete floor 15 feet below. (5) Mar. 1, 1991: The government raids New Jaipur community, seizes all properties on an asset forfeiture program, alleging illegal business activity. No trial was ever held, and plea bargaining was the only practical recourse, resulting in the closure of the community. Most of the project assets were seized and sold for the benefit of government agencies. Were these unusual events the result of the rumored tantric curses by ISKCON gurus?

INDICATIONS OF BLACK MAGIC USED AGAINST HANSADUTTA IN 1980's

In Eleven Naked Emperors by Henry Doktorski, testimonies from various devotees are given in regards to black magic tantric curses that had been placed by ISKCON gurus against their arch-rival Hansadutta in the early 1980's. Rumors to this effect came to Hansadutta's headquarters in Berkeley, California, and to nullify the curses, Hansadutta's ally Rohini Kumar das "performed fire sacrifices and other rituals at the Mount Kailasa farm and behind the Berkeley temple." Puranjana das remembered, "I asked Rohini-Kumar what the sacrifice was about- he said he had to counteract demonic curses placed upon Hansadutta by other GBC gurus. Haripada das also told me he had been in Mayapur and he had heard that two other GBC gurus had hired black magic tantrics to curse Hansadutta, and these curses were the cause of Hansadutta's strange behavior."

Bizarre as it may seem, the fact was that various of the original eleven ISKCON zonal acharyas were very inimical to each other and their use of black magic curses against each other is abundantly evidenced and thus we take it as very likely to have occurred. And it continues to the present day.

BLACK MAGIC TANTRICS ENGAGED AGAINST BANGALORE ISKCON

Since 1999, the Bangalore ISKCON devotees, their affiliated temples, and the leadership by Madhu Pandit das and Chancalapati das have been confronted by a daunting struggle against aggressive takeover by ISKCON Bombay and Mayapur. Fraudulent frame-ups, multiple lawsuits with wild allegations, legal wrangling in Supreme Court, a physical invasion by 200 devotees from Mayapur, political intrigue, and more has so far been weathered successfully. According to reliable sources, Radhanatha and Jayapataka have regularly engaged South Indian "pandits" to cast tantric ritual curses against the Bangalore group of devotees. However, Madhu Pandit das knows these South Indian tantric pandits well and he is informed whenever curses are made against him. He then engages in counter measures such as Lord Narasimha pujas. Radhanatha was studying tantric rituals in India before joining ISKCON, and according to Bangalore sources, he is proficient and well versed in these black sciences. (Naveen Krishna das, 2015)

BLACK MAGIC?

Srila Prabhupada never taught black magic or tantric rituals. These things have no place in the Hare Krishna movement. There are consequences for those who take up these practices, as described in Krishna Book, Ch. 65, re: Paundraka. A fiery demon invoked by Sudakshina failed to set fire to Dwarka and he was forced to return to where he originated, namely Varanasi, where he wreaked havoc instead. "As a result of his return, all the priests who had helped instruct the black art of mantras, along with their employer, Sudakshina, were burned into ashes by the glaring effulgence of the fiery demon. According to the methods of black art mantras instructed in the Tantra, if the mantra fails to kill the enemy, then, because it must kill someone, it kills the original creator. Sudakshina was the originator, and the priests assisted him; therefore all of them were burned to ashes. This is the way of the demons: the demons create something to kill God, but by the same weapon the demons themselves are killed." Those who use black magic and tantra will soon have to pay the price, and their achievements are temporary. However, those who depend on the mercy of the Lord eventually prosper with all success (e.g., Pandavas). The poisoners who took over Srila Prabhupada's movement may gloat about their clever actions and apparent gains, but their suffering and defeat will be total and utter in due course of time. Sincere followers of Srila Prabhupada have no need to resort to black magic or tantra, and will always be protected by the Supreme Lord Sri Krishna and Srila Prabhupada.

From Dasaratha Suta das, Jan. 2022: "Yes, I know the entire history since Mayapur 1971. Vishnujana Swami said he was cursed in 1973 by black magic when his school bus burned down on the Texas interstate on the way to New Vrindavan "to confront a demon." Radhanath, who was already a hardcore tantrik before he met Prabhupada in Bombay, was living like a dreadlock sadhu traveling in India learning these dark arts. Radhanath brought it to New Vrindavan. Jayapataka, 'the Bengal mafia godfather,' has a whole tantric nest in Mayapur, they are all his disciples, and he and his cronies have been utilizing their 'skills;' since 1971. I can tell hours of details on this black magic agenda. Of course they put you on the hit list years ago. You're a super-enemy of the criminal program. I knew you are cursed just by seeing you describe certain things over the last few years. Bengali tantrik demon science can inflict all sorts of mischief and calamities on the victim. You can get clear of the curses by hearing Srila Prabhupada, Nrsimhadev puja, and many other spiritual remedies... but whenever you get clear, they hit you again. It's a continuous and relentless bombardment. Even when the tantrik dies, his disciples will continue hammering on his "hit list."

"Few western devotees know about this, but all Indians do because it is part of popular culture. In every village, you can go to the local tantrik and buy a curse to get something (love, sex, money, job, pass the exam, etc) or to ruin someone (business competition, bad family member, meddling neighbor, assorted enemies like us who expose corruption, etc). This needs to be exposed, and doing so will also alleviate some of your tantrik torment because Their Lordships are pleased when we expose cheaters as you have done for decades as a whistleblower. This disturbance by demons is only temporary until Krishna or Balaram kills them. This black magic is actually the Muslim system because Mayapur is surrounded by Muslim villages -these were the first Indian boys who joined. Practically every village has a multi-generational tantrik lineage, so these boys joined and brought the family tradition with them. Jayapataka and Bhavananda and their cronies were ecstatic to find out these dark arts were available for their utilization, and that the arts are effective and get results. In 1991 Jayapataka brought it out in the open with promotion of the "ghostbusting" program of his disciple Cittesvara (remember the 'Haunted Gurus?' newsletter?) Fortunately it is said in the Muslim tantrik lore that the spell is weakened just by knowing about it. Here in Alachua is a Bengali black magic prolific sexual predator named PG, allegedly he's Bhakti Charu's cousin. This man is terrorizing the community here, exploiting women and men; he leaves cursed objects near our doorsteps, sending his Jinn."

Re: "PG" in Alachua: "One mother has a story but too afraid to talk about it... Which involves him." "PG is planning to soon receive sannyasa from within ISKCON. ...over the years, I have heard things that would seem to give credence to at least some of those allegations/rumors."

ANOTHER BLACK MAGIC ACCOUNT

"There is a serious devotee in Ukraine, former disciple of Radhanath, now a Prabhupadanuga, mataji Tarini Radha. She was a director of ISKCON Vrindaban Gurukula while her son studied there. Also, she gave classes at ISKCON Kiev temple. She chants 32 rounds daily, and she has experienced black magic in ISKCON. She told me of her bad experiences with ISKCON India and ISKCON Ukraine, about her personal contacts with Radhanath and his disciples, about some black magic attacks on her from 'devotees,' and about her experience with a ghost in ISKCON Ukraine that lived in a specially built dark room, etc. She is an intelligent devotee and sober person." (Alexander Sergentsev, 2021)

CHAPTER 128: RECYCLING DISCIPLES

"This 're-initiating' is a modern Kali Yuga terminology started when the first of the 11 zonals bottomed out. The greediness of picking up potential money-collectors from 'fallen gurus' became a frenzy competition, a global vacuuming effect, which still goes on today." (Mahasrnga das, 2012)

A: I have contemporaries who discovered that their guru they had worshipped for 25 years was something other than what they were led to believe. We don't have those years to waste on a 'maybe.'

B: Agreed. It is a travesty, and completely unnecessary- all the pain, suffering, rage, around "gurus" falling etc. The system intrinsically involves 1000s "re-initiations," a concept Srila Prabhupada didn't mention, because he established a system that wouldn't require anything of the sort.

THIS "NEW" PRACTICE INTRODUCED IN 1982

A 1982 GBC policy paper explained: "...questions have come before the GBC as to when a spiritual master becomes unfit to be followed, when a disciple is freed from his vows to the spiritual master, and when he should take re-initiation from a another bona fide spiritual master." The paper advised to reject a spiritual master if he breaks the four basic regulative principles, quoting from SBhag (8.20.1): "A person attached to sense gratification or material enjoyment, bewildered or misled from his real spiritual duties and one who has left the strict path of devotional principles must be renounced even if he be the spiritual master."

The GBC paper stated: "In this regard Jayatirtha Maharaja has been found to be acting not as a bona fide spiritual master, and he has admitted to the same. He has disqualified himself by acting in the following ways:" Five items were listed: non-cooperation with ISKCON, lack of faith in the spiritual process as taught by Srila Prabhupada, having broken the principles over a long period of time, misleading his disciples to go outside ISKCON, and refusing the GBC program for his rectification. Not being a bona fide guru "any longer," the paper advised, "Therefore those devotees who have accepted initiation from him are authorized to accept re-initiation from another ISKCON initiating guru in whom they have faith, and they are recommended to do so." The paper claimed Jayatirtha relinquished his disciples, approving of their re-initiation by other gurus. For disciples who chose to wait and see if Jayatirtha would become rectified, the paper advised a maximum of six months to a year before taking re-initiation. When Bhagavan das Goswami flew into London from France upon public disclosure of Jayatirtha's "falldown" in early 1982, he held meetings with all the UK devotees, and gave them a deadline by which to be reinitiated, by him, of course. In this instance, re-initiation was mandated. Many were very distraught. Some flew to India to be with Jayatirtha anyway. Some left the movement or moved outside. It was a tumultuous time in the UK. When Bhavananda was removed as an ISKCON guru, many of his disciples also became agitated and confused, being very fond of him. And with every one of the ISKCON "gurus" that have so far officially publicly been exposed as fallen from 1982 to 2022, all their thousands of disciples have been put into great anxiety and suffered painfully. What were they to do?

"I was in the thick of this when Jayatirtha fell in 1982. I was TP in Detroit and assistant GBC. All his so-called disciples including my wife were forced to decide who they wanted to be reinitiated by. Ramevara and Bhavananda were the choices, though a few went elsewhere. The UK disciples mostly went to Bhagavan. It was pretty much a regular affair as more of the original 11 fell over the years." (Naveen Krishna das) "From what I remember, in the mid to late 80s the GBC policy was something to the effect that while re-initiation is not required, it is recommended. Then, shortly thereafter, the tenor of the policy changed, to something like, while re-initiation is valid, it's definitely optional and the GBC was then less enthusiastic in recommending it. I'm pretty sure that extensive re-initiations are still quietly happening in ISKCON." (Dhira Govinda das)

RE-INITIATION EVOLVES BUT REMAINS AS A PRIMARY “REMEDY”

The ISKCON GBC added another resolution to the record about re-initiations in 1987 to address the questions that had arisen as to exactly under which circumstances should a disciple think about being re-initiated. What if your guru disappears, never to be seen again, like Vipramukhya Swami did? What if your guru claims he only had a little, temporary “indiscretion” in illicit sex with a female disciple, as Satsvarupa said? What if your guru is found to have been visiting Bangkok for liaisons with comfort women, as Prabhavishnu did? What if your guru was expert in printing and distributing books, married his massage therapist, renounced being a guru and sannyasi, and left ISKCON with perhaps millions, as Harikesha did? What if your guru has drifted away from active involvement in ISKCON, leads a private life, very seldom wears Vaishnava dress, tilak, and is slack in chanting his rounds, like Hridayananda does? What if your guru was Gunagrahi, who admitted to a pornography addiction? The 1987 resolution attempted to define when re-initiation was recommended: “That if a guru has become hopelessly entangled in sense gratification [...] takes on demonic qualities and becomes inimical to ISKCON he should be rejected and the disciple may take re-initiation.” Is it clear now, all you thousands of affected disciples? What is the exact ISKCON policy as to what is “demonic”? Disciples are left to speculate and find their own way. After being pressured to take a spiritual master from amongst those “approved” in ISKCON, when the guru turns out to be not a guru after all (as none of them are), due to questionable activities or standards, or cheating on vows, etc- then there is suddenly no guidance anymore. Who would be “demonic”? Disciples were more confused than ever. It did not occur to anyone that maybe their guru was never a guru at all. Usually “fallen” gurus would be reinitiated within a year or two.

Krishnakant (IRM) wrote: “However, recently, the GBC has been claiming something EXTRA - that all initiations are considered in ‘good standing,’ regardless of what the guru goes on to do later on, as long as the guru was considered by the GBC to be in ‘good standing’ at time of initiation. Therefore, from now any guru can fall down, and it does not matter. The person is ‘connected’ to the parampara and takes shelter of Srila Prabhupada, i.e. it is just like a ‘ritvik’ initiation. In BTP and our website we explain this in more detail in several articles.” E.g., when Umapati Swami was found to be engaged in illicit sex with his own male disciples in China for the third time, after already having been disciplined for the same, he was finally suspended permanently as an “approved” ISKCON guru. His suspension was “back-dated” or made retroactive to Feb. 2010, and anyone’s initiation by him after this date was invalidated, they were deemed “uninitiated,” and they would require re-initiation (gambling with another “approved” guru). Questions arose as to how that date was determined: no one knew when or even if Umapati had ever really been in “good standing.” (see Ch. 145) But in ISKCON, it is the authority of the GBC that is more important than facts, scriptures, or philosophy. Yasodanandana das clarified: “The entire basis for the re-initiation philosophy is that everyone within ISKCON must have a living guru. It has more to do with money, institutional control and power than correct, bona fide philosophy.”

ISKCON devotees are led to believe that each disciple needs a “properly situated” diksha guru to make satisfactory spiritual advancement. “Properly situated” ends when a guru’s deviations become public, but is not affected otherwise, regardless of that guru’s actual secret activities. The living guru tenet is that one needs an institutionally approved and physically present guru for spiritual success. Thus whenever their so-called diksha guru was exposed as “fallen,” ISKCON devotees faced a deep and unanswerable philosophical quandary. No one, including the GBC and other senior devotees, could do much except offer empty sympathy and petty condolences. The inability to solve their dilemma is due to the defects in the ISKCON guru policy; the living guru philosophy is shastrically defective. Re-initiation and living guru philosophy are both siddhantic concoctions. Devotees indoctrinated with these misconceptions thus suffer. Typically, a rival ISKCON guru who already has contacts or familiarity with the fallen guru’s territory or disciples, will make the rounds to offer his association and support, offering re-initiation and thus increasing his disciples and empire. This occurred when Harikesha Swami was characterized as having a mental breakdown in 1998, and he married his female massage therapist. Within days, Jayapataka was touring Germany to assist in normalizing ISKCON affairs, and offering re-initiations. One devotee: "I knew our neighbor Rukmini dasi in North Carolina, and she explained how she had given up on re-initiations after going through Bhavananda, Ramevara, and Kirtanananda. She decided it was silly to gamble on anyone else and had become cynical about ISKCON guru policies. Thrice was enough for her, and she vaguely 'took shelter' of Srila Prabhupada as a sort of grandfather who cares for his displaced grandchildren."

Eventually the GBC began to give what became their standard, placating statement, in effect an announcement, every time another guru was publicly exposed as "fallen:" "...they may accept another ISKCON guru as their siksha-guru and perform devotional service in ISKCON in that shelter, praying for the mercy of Krishna. Of course, in all cases they can depend on His Divine Grace AC Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada, the Founder-Acharya of ISKCON." However, "depend on" Srila Prabhupada is not defined or explained philosophically in reference to the question of how to be connected via "diksha" to the disciplic succession. ISKCON holds that the supposed diksha initiation of a fallen guru remains valid, but does not explain how that is so, nor what is meant by "diksha" other than a label. They insist on a "living" guru to train the disciple, so how can a fallen guru do that? The GBC also, at another later point in ISKCON history, made it clear that re-initiation was not absolutely necessary; it was an individual decision. This shift from required to voluntary is part of the evolution of ISKCON's guru policies, and was in response to much protest as to re-initiation's questionable applicability and validity. Still, to this day, the surviving ISKCON gurus quietly scout and patrol the wastelands of fallen guru zones and quietly offer devotees re-initiation, effectively keeping the practice very much alive. Generally, with their "living guru" misconception very deeply ingrained, devotees tend to feel better that they are not left without a living diksha guru in "good standing," so they most often are re-initiated after finding a "replacement guru." Gurus are like car tires: you get new ones when the old ones fail. These policy defects have caused untold harm to spiritual lives, borne by devotees while the guru charade continues.

DUE TO SERIAL GURU FALLDOWNS, SERIAL RE-INITIATIONS BECAME A FARCE

"Jayatirtha's disciples who remained in ISKCON were instructed to choose another zonal acharya and take diksha again; to become re-initiated. This would become a problem in the future as more and more gurus began falling down. Some disciples of zonal acharyas had to go through the ceremony of diksha three times. One godbrother recalled, 'I've friends who've taken "initiation" three times (!) from ISKCON gurus, all of whom fell down. I thought, 'Dear Lord, where does it end? Four? Five? Six?!' I personally had one friend who was originally initiated by Jayatirtha, then he took re-initiation from Bhavananda, and when Bhavananda fell down due to illicit sex with boys and men, he sat through another fire sacrifice with Ramesvara, who later resigned after he had been caught dating a teenage girl. One ISKCON senior manager recognized the inherent danger of re-initiation, 'I am very much opposed to re-initiation. It is a joke. A man may have to be initiated five to ten times the way things are going now.'" (VVR #9, 1989) Serial re-initiations became a farce to many, especially to those who experienced it themselves. But the guru regime pretended all was well and happily recycled the "disconnected" re-initiates as their own disciples. Frankly, without the option of re-initiation, at least by the ISKCON guru philosophy of needing a "living guru," what are disciples of "fallen" gurus to do? Although they are officially encouraged to take siksha from Srila Prabhupada and senior devotees, there is an enormous, albeit subtle, social pressure to have an ISKCON guru in "good standing." Some devotees do, and some do not.

Tamal raised the re-initiation issue in "The Perils of Succession" (1997): "...an aspiring initiate after learning that the guru of his choice had recently renounced his duties [asked me to] accept the aspirant as a disciple and award him initiation in the future. They are not written by one who believes that initiation from a present ISKCON guru is unimportant. Similar letters requesting re-initiation are also received from initiates whose gurus have fallen. Both bear out what scripture affirms: without the mercy of the spiritual master one cannot make spiritual advancement.” Herein lies another defect in the ISKCON guru philosophy: that, never mind if the guru is a conditioned soul and may soon fall down, shastra dictates that one needs a guru, and we in ISKCON approve of so-called bona fide gurus by a vote system. But a bona fide guru capable of delivering a disciple with divya jnana or spiritual knowledge is not an ordinary, conditioned soul. The ISKCON gurus, as proven by their “falldowns” and indiscretions, are conditioned souls who should not pretend to be able or authorized to take disciples. No wonder re-initiation is required. Tamal does not address this obvious fact. He cleverly fails to distinguish between a bona fide and a unauthorised guru. ISKCON devotees are made to play Russian roulette with conditioned gurus. Also, the term “falldown” is a misnomer because one who “falls down” never was on the infallible platform- a bona fide guru cannot not falldown.

Tamal continues with his academic essay laden with misconceptions: “But is this really so? Is the devotion of the uninitiated fruitless? And having been initiated, if one’s guru falls, is all one’s devotion worthless? And what is the connection between the guru’s own level of advancement and the potential advancement of his disciple? These questions, with only slight adjustments in terminology, are at the heart of every founded religion. ...the Christian Church under Augustine’s guidance rejected as heretical the Donatists’ assertion that the flawed character of a priest invalidated the sacrament he administered. ...800 years later, Aquinas invoked sacerdotalism to establish the via media of the priesthood. Nor are such issues new to Gaudiya Vaishnavism, which emphasises the centrality of the guru’s role in the salvation of the disciple with the same fervour it argues for the existence of the Godhead. Although elevating the guru to a place beside the Godhead, Gaudiya Vaishnava doctrine makes provisions in case he falls. In centuries past, acharyas like Bhaktivinoda and Narahari Cakravarti gave guidelines for rejecting a fallen guru and accepting re-initiation. Guru scandals and controversies, it seems, have besmirched the hallowed sanctuary of religion since long ago...”

It is disgusting to those who knew Tamal to hear him speak so aloofly about the serious deviations and resultant anomalies that he himself was largely responsible for creating in ISKCON. It is like an arsonist intellectually pondering about the charred rubble at the site of his secret crime, babbling about the inevitability of fires and the struggle between good and evil. Tamal outrageously speaks like a learned scholar, and then says it is beyond his purpose to answer his own questions! (there are no answers) Rejected doctrines, terminology, heresy, provisions, assertions- this academic blah-blah portrays Srila Prabhupada’s teachings as fallible, imperfect, relative dogma that must be re-interpreted by the likes of himself and his poisoning cohorts (actually to patch up anomalies stemming from their disobedience to Srila Prabhupada’s instructions for how his mission was to be carried on after his departure). Tamal was too intelligent not to understand that a devotee who takes shelter of Srila Prabhupada does have a living guru; that vani is more important than vapu.

Tamal deliberately created these philosophical conundrums to enable his deviant unauthorised guru scam. His essays and other writings constitute the doctrine of “Tamalism” which has crippled Srila Prabhupada’s once glorious institution with the poison of apasiddhantic perversions. We should look first to Srila Prabhupada’s perfectly complete set of instructions itself rather than search for secondary references from the past, adopting them in our interpretations to suit the political necessities of the day. Speculative, defective “siddhanta” is precisely what derails the purity of the current Acharya’s teachings.

LIVING GURU POLICY REQUIRES DISCIPLES OF DEPARTED GURUS TO BE RE-INITIATED?

ISKCON guru tattva policy is that one requires a physically living guru for initiation in person and to be trained under his personal supervision with customized guidance in a lifetime process of gradual advancement. Mostly, ISKCON gurus do not do remote initiations via mail or representative agents, as Srila Prabhupada did. They initiate in person. So, by this policy, what of Srila Prabhupada’s 5000 disciples? They have been without a living guru since 1977! All of them should have been re-initiated after Nov. 14, 1977 when Srila Prabhupada departed and was no longer “living.” How will they now be personally guided and trained by Srila Prabhupada? And the same for disciples of Tamal, Bhakti Svarupa Damodara, Gaur Govinda, Sridhara Maharaja (Navadwip), Narayan Maharaja, Kirtanananda, Bhakticharu... because they are now not living either. If having a living guru is an essential principle, then those whose guru has physically departed, they must also get a new living guru. Why does ISKCON only apply their "living guru" principle to certain circumstances like for new initiates or disciples of gurus whose approval has been revoked, but not to disciples of deceased gurus? They have never explained this contradiction in their living guru policy, neither could they ever justify their illogical policies. Perhaps they believe that once the connection is made in person at the time of formal disksha initiation, then it doesn't matter what happens afterwards? So what about personal lifetime guidance? Why re-initiation in ISKCON at all if it does not apply to deceased guru disciples? Actually ISKCON does not make policy based on sound philosophy from shastra, they make it to suit their institutional and political necessities, then try to find shastric justifications. In the re-initiation issue, they do not even do that. The idea of re-initiation for deceased guru disciples was not discussed much in ISKCON, although logically, by their policy, it should be necessary. This is a glaring contradiction in their guru tattva.

"And, according to ISKCON, Tamal Krishna Goswami, Gaur Govinda Maharaja, Bhakti Caru Swami- they are available as current links to the disciplic succession. 'But, they're dead.' 'No. Don't be offensive. They live forever through vani, through their divine instructions, and so their sincere followers continue to eternally have them as their current and direct link to the parampara." "Oh, okay. So, Srila Prabhupada also lives forever through his vani, through his divine instructions, and he also is the current link for those who sincerely follow him.' 'No. Srila Prabhupada is, well, not dead, but, you know, he's not available, in the same way that Gaur Govinda Swami is available....' 'Ummm, why?' So, to the limit of my capacity for analysis, the current ISKCON system is rife with absurdities and inconsistencies." (Dhira Govinda das, 2021)

SRILA PRABHUPADA NEVER REFERRED TO ANYTHING LIKE RE-INITIATION

"Srila Prabhupada said nothing about 're-initiation.' He never mentioned it or used the term. So, how could Srila Prabhupada have set up a system where there have been thousands of 're-initiations,' and where there will be thousands more later, when he never used the term? 'Re-initiation' wasn't in any way part of his paradigm, and the organization has established a paradigm quite foreign to Srila Prabhupada and his teachings. Similarly with terms such as 'living guru' and 'living spiritual master'- Srila Prabhupada never used those terms either. Yet, there are so many discussions about the need for a so-called 'living spiritual master'- again, the organization, and those influenced by it, have embraced a paradigm that is substantively distant from and not aligned with Srila Prabhupada's teachings. Srila Prabhupada did not relate to the concept of 'living spiritual master,' which implies a thing as 'dead spiritual master,' which Srila Prabhupada saw as absurd. Srila Prabhupada said 'Spiritual master is eternal.' (SPConv Feb. 10, 1968, Dhira Govinda das, 2013)

WHAT IS THE ISKCON POSITION PAPER ON GURU TATVA?

Actually, ISKCON does not have a single, concise, and comprehensive policy paper on what is their guru tattva. In recent years the GBC itself resolved that they should make such a policy paper, but it has never been produced. From 1978 until today the GBC has issued many partial policy papers on the subject, all piecemeal with gaping holes unexplained. One problem lies with the fact that their policies and methods are continually evolving and changing, with many areas that remain vague, similar to the redundant and overlapping complex body of laws passed by a legislative assembly. To understand what is ISKCON guru policy, one has to sift through 40 years of policy papers and their lawbook to patch together bits and pieces, and still there will be as many interpretations as there are gurus and leaders in ISKCON. This embarrassing situation has come about because their policies are contradictory, speculative, concocted, incomplete, and unfounded in Srila Prabhupada's teachings. ISKCON guru-tattva is evolving and changing, so how to nail it down? There are too many open-ended, unresolved issues and questions to be able to define what is ISKCON's guru-tattva. Yet the ISKCON leaders haughtily declare that views contrary to theirs (whatever they are) are heretical and dangerous, although they have not defined their own position! Speculation is always imperfect. Flawed ideas like Srila Prabhupada is a “previous” acharya, that one needs a living guru because Srila Prabhupada is now dead, and that Srila Prabhupada is not present in his murti- these are a few of the absurd, ashastric views of the ISKCON GBC. Part 20 looks at ISKCON’s defective doctrines. Because their positions are not based on Srila Prabhupada’s teachings, it will be very hard for them to defend their positions in writing or succinctly, what to speak of at any open debate or ongoing discussion.

“My impressions were that the GBC’s position would regularly change, and none of their positions at any point in time seemed internally consistent, or solidly consistent with Srila Prabhupada’s teachings. In 1999 I attended GBC meetings in Mayapur, after I had written The Humble Guru. Many devotees, including ISKCON leaders in North America, were quite moved by The Humble Guru, and through their efforts, in 1999, the GBC passed several resolutions along the lines of The Humble Guru. Those 1999 resolutions were shortly after the prominent ‘ISKCON guru’ Harikesha Maharaja left; and there was quite some disturbance in the organization. Then, at the meetings in 2000, when the GBC was feeling less pressure to show ‘reform,’ the resolutions, and ‘philosophy,’ from what I could tell, went the other way, back to the way they were before. So, my experience is that the GBC philosophy and practices change according to political winds.” (Dhira Govinda das, 2013)

Many GBC shastric references are NOT from Srila Prabhupada’s books, but elsewhere, raising even more questions. But this is the nature of imperfect concoctions- they need continual revisions.

DISCUSSIONS ON CONVERSATIONS WITH ISKCON GURU

DEVOTEE: I spoke with an ISKCON initiating guru who is a disciple of Gaur Govinda Maharaja about the guru issue, re-initiation, and the guru who is a liberated soul. His understanding was that when someone's guru falls down, that is not guru, that is maya coming in the form of guru to an insincere disciple, and he seems to agree the diksha guru must be a liberated soul. About re-initiation, he told me that it is mentioned by Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati that if one's guru is falls down then one should accept another bona fide guru. He said all these matters were discussed by the GBC and SAC and conclusions were made.

DGOVINDA: That illustrates an important point. We follow Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati through Srila Prabhupada, who didn’t mention re-initiation, because he established a system whereby re-initiations would be non-existent. There would be no need to even discuss the concept. So, the ISKCON organization has established a system wherein re-initiations have been, are, and will continue to be rampant. To justify this they need to jump over Srila Prabhupada to Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati. I saw this approach to handling philosophical discussions in my correspondence with the GBC’s SAC. I would repeatedly establish points based on Srila Prabhupada’s teachings. The SAC, to attempt to establish a counter point, would cite Bengali and Sanskrit references from previous acharyas, such as Narahari Sarkar, Sanatana Goswami, and Jiva Goswami. Essentially, they were trying to explain Srila Prabhupada through reference to previous acharyas, rather than, as I believe Srila Prabhupada wanted us to do, understand previous acharyas through Srila Prabhupada.

In my “Response to the SAC,” I cited at least one example of this approach to understanding Srila Prabhupada (twist out some meaning from Srila Prabhupada’s words, to serve some agenda). Someone may be of the opinion that “It’s offensive to say that they’re serving any agenda other than Srila Prabhupada’s mission...” Okay, then how is perpetuating a system that includes thousands of re-initiation serving Srila Prabhupada’s mission, if he never once mentioned “re-initiation”-philosophically or practically? Why not establish a system wherein the concept of re-initiation wouldn’t even need to be discussed, what to speak of applied? If Srila Prabhupada wanted us to do re-initiations he would have extensively educated us in it; but he didn’t, and I don’t see that as an accident, and neither do I believe that Srila Prabhupada thought, “Oh, I forgot to explain about that-oh, I guess they’ll study Bhaktisiddhanta’s teachings and learn about it.” Is the GBC/SAC the authority, or Srila Prabhupada? Is following the GBC/SAC the same as following Srila Prabhupada? No, and even it seems he's following the GBC/SAC blindly. He can't respond to the questions you ask. He can only name his authorities, and hope you have the same faith in them. But blind following is condemned.

DEVOTEE: When I ask for more specific references, he said I was asking him very difficult questions. He said a guru has to be personally present to give instructions unless one is very elevated.

DGOVINDA: The various systems in use in ISKCON since 1978 have resulted in thousands of "re-initiations." This will continue in the future. Srila Prabhupada said nothing about re-initiation. How could Srila Prabhupada establish "re-initiations"- something he never mentioned? Re-initiations do not appear in the paradigm of Srila Prabhupada's legacy. So, ISKCON has created something outside of Srila Prabhupada's legacy. (END)

FALSE "GURU" CANNOT GIVE EFFECTIVE INITIATION (OR RE-INITIATION)

Any discussion on re-initiation should examine whether a re-initiation, or even a fresh initiation, taking place in corrupted ISKCON by their appointed or vote approved gurus will be effective, valid, or connective to the parampara. One must have a bona fide guru who is a fully liberated soul, a pure devotee of Krishna. This is clearly established in shastra (see Ch. 191). Are the ISKCON gurus bona fide? Why are they getting decertified? It is the institutional defective doctrines by which they are certified/decertified. The first question is to define what a bona fide guru actually is, arrange for that, and then there will be no re-initiations. ISKCON has false gurus who cannot give initiation or re-initiation- they have no spiritual shakti for this. Therefore all ISKCON initiations are imaginary... their re-initiations also. It is all make-believe fantasy in a disobedient paradigm.

What is the value of their initiations or re-initiations? Initiates will advance only to the degree they are hearing from Srila Prabhupada and following his instructions sincerely, without grave offenses. So even when following a false guru, then some advancement can be made. Fire burns whether one knows about fire or not. Otherwise their conditioned gurus are actually impeding their spiritual progress and undermining their spiritual health by implicating them in offenses against the pure devotee, Srila Prabhupada. Those offenses include, amongst others, adulterating his books and poisoning his body, and covering up their deeds. While ISKCON gurus always warn us not to "break the disciplic succession," the irony is they themselves are disconnected from the parampara due to disobedience and deviations. Initiation or re-initiation is a farce in ISKCON due to their being disconnected from the parampara.

CONCLUSION

Re-initiation was never mentioned once by Srila Prabhupada, so, obviously, if we follow his teachings, there is no need for it. It is an ISKCON GBC concoction to patch up problems created by endorsing conditioned souls as so-called initiating gurus. Re-initiation is still widely practiced in ISKCON and is evidence of their deviancy from the instructions of Srila Prabhupada. The GBC has refined this practice by allowing recalcitrant gurus who have fallen down to retain their existing disciples if they promise not to initiate new ones and remain submissive. This began in 2002 with the case of Satsvarupa (see Ch. 144). Thus the ISKCON guru and initiations system evolves with adjustments, becoming a policy patchwork, with no coherent or comprehensive study or doctrinal paper. These are ecclesiastic and bureaucratic maneuvers in pretense of spiritual authority.

CHAPTER 129: VARNASHRAMA NEGLECTED

Kuladri das: "I was the temple president at New Vrindavan for so many years and Prabhupada had a vision for a pilgrimage site in North America and a farm community. ...just before he left, he explained to me that the second half of his movement would be dramatically different than the first half. Emergency tactics were used to distribute books and give young people sannyas and open as many temples as possible. But he wanted places like New Vrindavan to establish the culture of Krishna consciousness with colleges, grhastha lifestyle, and all of the things to demonstrate the philosophy that he was so careful to present in his books. So right up to the end, he was telling me that the farm communities were so important for the second half and that the vision would be so different than when his movement got started in the Western world."

While ISKCON has been weakened by various parasitic species like poisoners, Gaudiya Math, successor zonal acharyas, wannabe gurus, scholars, social welfare, etc in exploiting Srila Prabhupada's assets, the ideal of establishing Varnashrama Dharma has been almost lost and forgotten. This goal, which was very dear to Srila Prabhupada, has been neglected, and almost all ISKCON "farm" projects have either disappeared into the dustbin of history or become something other than what Srila Prabhupada had intended and instructed. North American ISKCON farms include: (1) Denver, Colorado area, led by Pranaballabah das for decades, 200 acres, finally SOLD when the mortgage could no longer be paid and interest dwindled to unsustainable levels. (2) Three Rivers, California, connected to Los Angeles temple, included a full gurukula, residences, river, large acreage, and many families, was SOLD. (3) New Vrindaban, although formerly a thriving rural devotee community, now subsists on royalties from natural gas wells and drilling, and has changed from a self sufficiency project into a suburban outpost, and Varnashrama culture is mostly forgotten. (4) Mt Kailasa (Berkeley: Hansadutta), 400 acres, SOLD. (5) Sebring property near Miami: Bir Krishna Swami, SOLD, after it was found to be prone to regular flooding. (6) Lake Huntingdon, New York, a full rural gurukula with lake, SOLD. (7) Oklahoma, connected to Dallas temple, fertile but boggy, 1000+ acres, Tamal lost over $1M and the farm was LOST to foreclosure. (8) Bridesville, Canada farm, connected to Vancouver, many cows, financial problems, SOLD. (9) Buffalo, NY farm, 100 acres with cows, farmhouse, barn, SOLD. (10) Murari Sevaka farm, Tennessee, foresaken by Atlanta temple, now supported by Balavanta das, but struggling due to little interest or finances, surviving under Gada das as a forest hermitage. (11) New Talavan farm, Mississippi; Srila Prabhupada visited in 1975, 1400 acres, Sri Sri Radha Radhakanta deities in a nice temple, supported by area Hindus and true to Varnashrama goals but having few participants. (12) Gita Nagari, PA; Srila Prabhupada visited in 1976, stable. (13) Saranagati, BC, Canada: sold in parts to devotees, an independent rural community, more or less a residential neighborhood.

Also: ISKCON farm projects in Spain, Brazil, Hungary, Russia, Mauritius, India, Guyana, Australia: however, only a few are actually attempting to develop or establish Varnashrama culture, being instead focused on: (1) Tourism: This may be good for preaching Krishna consciousness, but becoming dependent on tourist dollars can undermine and neglect the ideal of self-sufficiency. (2) Businesses: Growing crops for profit, running a commercial dairy operation, mass producing of organic food for sale, or any business to extract profits from the outside world. This perpetuates dependence on the mundane culture and society and distracts from the work of establishing Varnashrama culture/dharma. (3) Hathayoga, mixed/novel yoga, training courses, meditation retreats or resorts where Hare Krishna chanting might be included, for-charge programs, to generate contacts and income; these are distractions from the Varnashrama ideal, and labor, funds, attention is diverted. (4) Suburban residential devotee neighborhood; no Varnashrama. (5) Woofers: As in Murwillumbah, Australia, where non-devotee volunteers live and work on the farm in exchange for room & board, no controls on intoxication, free sex, diet, parties; free labor is desperately needed due to lack of devotee participation. (6) Commercial farming (7) Doomsday refugees: Hansadutta pioneered this idea.

Independent non-ISKCON projects: (1) Bhaktivedanta Eco-Village, south India, headed by Tattva Darshan das, remote, few devotees, well developed, requires constant flow of money to sustain its operations, a difficult challenge to overcome. (2) New Jaipur Fiji: 856 acre rainforest private river valley oceanfront estate, closed due to lack of participants. (3) Washington state, three small separate devotee projects, pioneering simple living, no participation. (4) Alachua, Florida: many devotees own farms, mini-farms near the ISKCON 100 acre farm and temple, but mostly they work outside at jobs, receive government assistance, do organic for-profit farming, or have inheritances./ Some ISKCON farm projects are now faint memories to a few old-timers. These lost farms gradually died off by asphyxiation. ISKCON is more interested in accommodating modern culture, pampering to liberalism, feminism, secular culture than it is interested in Varnashrama dharma. New farm or self-sufficiency projects have been few in ISKCON. The independent projects tend to be more interesting, and initial funding for the transition into self-sufficiency is a major hurdle.

SIMPLE LIVING AND HIGH THINKING

Srila Prabhupada stresses the great importance of making one's own personal lifestyle simple, and becoming economically independent from the system called "the rat race." He also stressed the benefits that this lifestyle provides, the most important of which is more TIME for spiritual life. Since real life is spiritual life, the best way towards that goal is to minimize one's daily wants and needs, and a very important step to grow one's own food. Our philosophy is simple living and high thinking. Either is hard to obtain without the other.

SRILA PRABHUPADA ADVOCATED A SIMPLE WAY OF LIFE

(1) "...you can say that 'If we are engaged in real business, then how the economic question will be solved? We have to work.' That's all right, you work. But... there is milk, there is fruit, there is flower. Anywhere, you can live peacefully. Whole economic question is solved." (SPLecture May 27, 1972) (2) "Yes. Why don't you solve? There are so many land. Come here and grow food. Grow fruit. That is the desire of Krishna. Annad bhavanti bhutani. Produce food and... ask, 'You have to pay this price.' And you have to pay. And if you grow your own food, there is no such question. The simple economic problem, solution, this rascal cannot take..." (SPConv April 3, 1975) (3) "...a nice place. And the grhasthas may come here, have some small cottage, and grow your own food grains, vegetables, and have your cow's milk. Get nice foodstuff, save time. Why should you go... and again hundred miles come back and take unnecessary trouble? Stick to this spot and grow your own food, your own cloth, and live peacefully, save time, chant Hare Krishna. Very nice program." (SPLecture Aug. 1, 1975) (4) "I see in your this Mauritius land, you have got enough land to produce food grains. You produce food grain. [instead] you are growing sugar cane for exporting. Why? And you are dependent on food grains, on rice, wheat, dahl. Why? [...] You first of all grow your own eatables. And if there is time and if your population has got sufficient food grains, then you can try to grow other fruits and vegetables for exporting. The first necessity is that you should be self-sufficient. That is God's arrangement. Everywhere there is sufficient land to produce food grains, not only in your country. I have travelled all over the world –Africa, Australia, and other, in America also. There are so much land vacant that if we produce food grains, then we can feed ten times as much population as at the present moment. purnam adah purnat purnam udacyate, purnasya purnam adaya purnam evavasisyate. If we don't produce food grain –you require it –and put unnecessarily men into scarcity, that is sinful." (SPLecture Oct. 2, 1975) (5) "We have created a civilization that one must earn thousands of dollars, then he can live like a gentleman. Is that successful life? And for earning that thousands of dollars he has to work so hard, just like animal, beast. No. That is not successful life. Successful life is [...] we should make our bodily necessities of life as far as required, not more than that. I want to eat something. God has given sufficient food. You grow. You live anywhere. You grow foodstuff. You grow grains. You grow fruits. You grow vegetables. Keep cows. Take milk. You can live anywhere. You haven't got to go 50 miles off with a car to attend your office at six o'clock with velocity of 100 miles speed. Is that successful life, do you think? So where is successful life? We are proposing successful life." (SPLecture Mar. 23, 1969)

(6) "And yajnad bhavati parjanya. And when we regularly perform yajna, then there is regular cloud in the sky. And when there is cloud in the sky, there is regular rainfall, and when there is regular rainfall, there is sufficient production of food grains, fruits and other vegetables so that both the animal and the human beings, they eat sufficiently, they grow strength, they become happy and again perform yajna. And the animals supply, the cow supplies milk. In this way, the whole society becomes happy. These are the prescriptions, or directions, given by the Vedic literature. So if people take advantage of this instruction, as you have mentioned in your article 'The Great Seers,' so if we follow their instruction, the whole history of the human being can be changed. There is no difficulty. But whether the people will accept or not, that is the business of the leaders of the society." (SPConv July 22, 1973) (7) "If you open farm for financial help, then it will not be successful. You should take to farming for supporting yourself. That's all. Grow your own food. Grow your own cloth. There is no need of financial help from outside. You get your food grains sufficiently, rice, dahl, wheat, vegetables, milk, sugar. Bas. You get everything. From these five, six items you should be economically free. That you have to do, not for trade to get money. Then it will be failure." (SPConv Oct. 28, 1975) (8) "Business means if you have got extra grains or extra foodstuff, you can sell where there is necessity, there is want. That is business. We are not going to open mills and factories and... No. We are not going to do that. That is sudra business. The real business is that you produce enough food grains, as much as possible, and you eat and distribute. That's all. This is business. He does not require any so high technical education. Anyone can till the ground and grow food. Is it difficult? This is the business. The first thing is that everyone, man and animal, especially the cows, they must be properly fed so become very stout and strong. Cows will supply milk, and man will work hard, without being suffered by dysentery. He must work hard. Any capacity. Work as a teacher or work as a ksatriya, work as a ploughman. Or work as general assistant. He must work. Everyone should be employed. And his employment will be provided from any of these groups, according to his capacity. Either as a brahmana, or as a ksatriya, or as a vaisya, or as a sudra." (SPConv Mar. 14, 1974) (9) "Lazy intelligent means brahmana, and busy intelligent means ksatriya. So the catur-varnyam maya srstam. The society should be divided into four classes. The sudras, they are busy fools. Therefore they are to be guided. [...] If there are, hundred workers are there, then one leader must be there to give the direction: 'Why you are doing this? Why you don't do this?' Otherwise he'll create havoc. Busy fool. So the whole world is full of busy fools. That's all. In the BGita you will find that for brahmana, samo damah satyam saucam titiksa arjavam, jnanam vijnanam astikyam brahma-karma sva... There is no recommendation that 'You work hard day and night.' The brahminical qualification is controlling the senses, controlling the mind, truthful, clean, knows everything nicely, practical application of the knowledge, full faith in shastra and Bhagavan. Jnanam vijnanam astikyam. These things are recommended, not that a brahmana should become very busy whole day and night for getting food. So shastra says, 'There is no use of becoming busy for your food. Food is there already.' [...] He'll get his food. [...] They do not understand the God's arrangement. Only for food they are busy whole day and night like cats and dogs. Now this land is there. You can... Everyone can grow food if he works for two months. Everyone can grow his whole year's foodstuff. There is so much land. But no, they'll not grow food. They will grow hammer, manufacturing it. You see? Tire tube, then atom bomb, then this and that. [...] They are busy fool. Actually they are fools, and they are very busy. Everyone is busy. There are so many parts in the motorcar, [...] and they are busy in manufacturing three thousand parts of motor parts. So everyone is busy in producing things unwanted. But they have created a society in such a way that they have to do that." (SPConv Oct. 19, 1975) (10) "Yes. Farm project is very nice. Krishna gives. Krsi-goraksya-vanijyam vaisya-karma svabhava-jam. This is economic problem solved. And brahmana, brain problem solved, and ksatriya, protection problem solved, and sudra, labor problem solved. Four things combined together, live peacefully, happily. Chant Hare Krishna. Introduce this farm project. In America there is enough scope. So much land is lying vacant." (SPConv Feb. 15, 1977)

(11) "As Krishna says, catur-varnyam maya srstam guna-karma. There must be ideal brahmana, ideal ksatriya, ideal vaisya, as Krishna says. That is Krishna consciousness movement. It is all-inclusive. Economic question? Annad bhavanti bhutani. Grow food. Practical. Just like when I was going to the pandals, millions of clerks were coming. "Education. Educated." And who is growing food? And they have to be provided in these pigeon holes and depend on ration. Is that civilization? And throngs of people are coming, just like machine, ants. Ants are coming. I saw like that. And go to the village side— all vacant land. Nobody's interested to produce food. Everyone is interested to live within the city, in these pigeonholes, and go to the cinema and go to the brothel, go to the club and learn how to drink, how to become gentleman. Is that civilization? Human life's aim is lost. You do not know why you are going to the office, why you are eating, why you are... Keeping them all pet animal's mentality, doggish mentality.” (SPConv Mar. 22, 1977) (12) “A wise man, however, learns from the shastras and guru that we living entities are all eternal but are put into troublesome conditions because of associating with different... under the laws of material nature. He therefore concludes that in the human form of life he should not endeavor for unnecessary necessities, but should live a very simple life, just maintaining body and soul together. Certainly one requires some means of livelihood... is the basic principle of Vedic civilization. One should be satisfied with whatever means of life comes automatically. The modern materialistic civilization is just the opposite of the ideal civilization. ...the so-called leaders of modern society invent something contributing to a cumbersome way of life that implicates people more and more in the cycle of birth, death, old age and disease.” (SBhag 7.14.5 purport) (13) “So our Krishna consciousness movement is not a sentimental movement. It takes care of all-round social organization. It is not something like religious sentiment. Everything should be take care of. Therefore we say cow protection. [...] Mahi means land, bhumi. [...] This mahi word is used there is Vedas, Brahma-samhita. What is that mahi? Agnir mahi. You require fire. You require land. You require sky. [...] You require water. [...] You require air. You require space. These are requirements. [...] It is Krishna's energy, Krishna's energy. So the mahi, the land, the land is there. Just like in America or in Australia there are so much land. In Africa, so much land lying vacant. But they do not know that this land can produce all the needs of life. [...] Sarva-kama, whatever you want. Actually we are getting... Just like this Western civilization has created so many slaughterhouse for eating purposes. But wherefrom they are getting? From mahi, from the land. If there is no pasturing ground, grazing ground, wherefrom they will get the cows and the bulls? That is also... Because there is grass on the land and the cows and bulls eat them, therefore they grow. Then you cut their throat, civilized man, and eat, you rascal civilized man. [...] you can grow your food. Why you are cutting the throat of the cows? After all, you have to get from the mahi, from the land. So as they are, the animal which you are eating, they are getting their eatables from the land. Why don't you get your eatables from the land? [...] You can get all the necessities of your life from land. So dughā means produce. You can produce your food. Some land should be producing the foodstuff for the animals, and some land should be used for the production of your foodstuffs, grains, fruits, flowers, and take milk. Why should you kill these innocent animals? You take. You keep them muda, happy, and you get so much milk that it will moist, it will make wet the ground. This is civilization. [...] Maharaja Yudhisthira maintained this standard of civilization. Just see how the economic problems will be solved simply by one movement, this Krishna consciousness movement. Try to understand. Mahi. Because mahi will produce everything. [...] there are so many, so much land lying vacant. You produce you own food. Why you are going to London, to the factories? There is no need. This is wrong civilization. Here is land. [...] If you produce your food, there is no need of going 100 miles, 50 miles on your motorcycle or motor to earn your livelihood. Why? There is no need. Then you require petrol. And petrol there is scarcity. Then you require so many parts, so many. That means you are making the whole thing complicated unnecessarily. [...] Simply you keep to the land and produce your food, and the cows are there. They will supply you milk. Then where is your economic problems? If you have sufficient grains, sufficient vegetables, sufficient milk from the land where you are living, where your economic problem? Why you should go to other place? That is Vedic civilization. Everyone should remain in the spot and produce everything as he requires, and God will help you.” (SPLecture Nov. 25, 1973)

(14) “But we are projecting this path for them: let them remain in their home, produce their own food only and cloth and chant Hare Krishna. This is our policy. Our policy means Krishna's policy. Let them have sufficiently to eat, and they'll be all satisfied. If the mind is Krishna conscious, then they don't want anything, either liquor or meat or anything. No. This is the advantage. And this is not social... What is that? That first of all drag him from the innocent life of village and engage him in the factory in the hope of getting more money, and then he's habituated to liquor. When he cannot pay, they purchase this poison and die.” (SPConv May 8, 1977) (15) “The village organization is that the local people produce their necessities like grain, vegetables, milk, and cloth; and for recreation they have the chanting of Hare Krishna. They should live there comfortably and have spiritual recreation. They should not come to the cities. I wish to introduce this ideal now. Then if we are successful this cheating civilization will stop. They have made these cities as hell. If people do not cooperate with them, then how will the factories run on? And, if the people are satisfied by this arrangement, then what will the communists do?" (SPL Aug. 3, 1975) (16) RSW: Many people already have their jobs and their families. SP: All right, let them not come, but those who are unemployed, let them come. RSW: But what...? For those people who already have their jobs, instead of... SP: That job... They will be very soon jobless. Don't worry. (laughs) They will come. They will be obliged to come. Now they have got job, but as the days are advancing in Kali-yuga, they'll be jobless. (SPConv Jan. 11, 1977)

TEN REASONS WHY VARNASHRAMA DHARMA CANNOT BE ESTABLISHED IN ISKCON

Serious issues that must be resolved to establish ISKCON Varnashrama Dharma (by Dhanesvara das)

Varnashrama Dharma (VA) has been on my mind for a long time—ever since I lived at the Gita Nagari in 1977 when Srila Prabhupada was going to come there to teach us all about it. [...] As I have contemplated all of this over the course of years I have observed various conflicts between the VA culture and the ISKCON culture [...] I thought [...] to articulate those differences and share them with others who also desire to establish VA culture [...] these conflicts arise within my understanding of the VA culture [...] which may be different from the conceptions of others. [...] the conflicts noted here may engender a discussion that will help to further clarify what is called VA. [...] Srila Prabhupada considered the establishment of VA Dharma to be no less than half of his mission. [...] challenges will arise as much from the various conceptions of what ISKCON is, as what VA Dharma is. [...] Why it is impossible to establish the VA culture within ISKCON:

(1) THE REQUIRED CULTURAL SHIFT IS ALREADY TOO GREAT: The VA culture is [...] an all-encompassing culture that provides a framework within which all members of the society may spiritually advance to according to their chosen path without dictating what that path should be, what they should believe, etc. It is an open system that places responsibility on the individual, encouraged through the actions of the brahmanas and ksatriyas who oversee and guide the citizens. ISKCON is presently organized following the corporate model, characterized by centralized command and control, a very different cultural structure with a very different purpose. [...] ISKCON's organization is sufficiently different from the VA model that proper VA culture cannot be established within ISKCON as it is presently arranged. [...] (2) LEADERSHIP FOR VARNASHRAMA CULTURE IS MISSING AT THE TOP LEVELS OF ISKCON: The leadership of ISKCON [...] do not understand VA culture, and do not realize the need or value of establishing it. Until the top leadership of the society understands VA culture and implements it within their sphere of influence, there is little chance that the rank-and-file devotees will embrace it and practice it. [...] ISKCON follows a corporate model in which the GBC has full control of ecclesiastical and administrative functions. [...] VA culture necessarily dismantles this control and gives ecclesiastical authority to the brahmanas, limited administrative authority to the ksatriyas, and freedom to all else. VA administration does not allow for executive authority beyond that. There is no concept of global organization/management, commanding the actions of others, within the VA framework. This fact is at odds with modern organization and centralized command. Unless the GBC will let go of the idea of centralized command the VA culture cannot be established.

COMMENT: This principle applies to secular authorities as well, and it is practically impossible to break free of the control of mundane governments without establishing own's own country, a daunting proposal. In some places one could operate in the jungle or forest with minimal interference from the local mundane authorities. We note that there are exceptions to this point, notably New Vraja Dham in Hungary and Bhakti Raghava Maharaja who is establishing varnashrama projects in Indonesia, Cambodia and India. It is a question of leadership and ideology. Although these projects are oriented toward self-sufficiency and preaching of Krishna Consciousness, [...] the question is how these projects interface with the ISKCON leadership.

(3) VARNA IS NOT UNDERSTOOD BY THE BODY OF DEVOTEES: The social system of the varnas has not been understood, or articulated, or taught to the body of devotees and they therefore have little idea of what it really is, or how to apply it. Devotees are understandably reluctant to sign on to something that they do not understand. How does the culture function? How does a person find their place in it? What is their relationship with others and how is that determined? How does one support themselves in the VA culture? What is acceptable and what is not? All of these and many more questions must be answered [...] and they need to then sign on voluntarily. Leadership by precept and example is required. [...] The present effort to reach and teach VA culture must answer all of the above questions and more. [...]

(4) EVERYONE IS EQUAL: Modern society propagates the concept that everyone is equal, and while this is ostensibly for political purposes, the idea carries over into all aspects of life. In fact, no two people on the planet are equal. ...this concept of equality is naturally brought into the society of devotees, especially in online discussions. Although we profess to subscribe to the idea that there are four classes of men, we do not, as yet, have any method for distinguishing them, or applying such distinctions. Indeed, we even see a strong resistance to introducing this aspect of Vedic culture. There are distinctions and etiquette based on ashrama and seniority in the society, but we note that these are not the distinctions of varna, entirely overlooking this important half of the culture, without which varnashrama culture obviously cannot be established. Because we think of everyone as being equal those who actually have a brahminical nature, and are making efforts to lead according to that nature, are often ignored. This can clearly be seen in various forums. It's one person's opinion against others, with no deference to senior devotees or brahmanas.

(5) FEAR OF THE UNKNOWN: Almost everyone is fearful of being exploited by a social system they don't understand. We know the existing culture, our place in it, and how to function in it, but we don't know how we will fit in VA culture and it feels insecure. VA culture an unknown, possibly fraught with problems that we cannot anticipate or know how to deal with, therefore it is avoided.

(6) THERE ARE NOT ENOUGH PROPERLY ENGAGED KSATRIYAS WITHIN THE SOCIETY: Men of great ability cannot find their place [in or out of ISKCON] so [what] is the actual role of a ksatriya? Whatever men of ability are present, almost all have leadership responsibility in ISKCON [so where are the VA leaders/ksatriyas?] Since ksatriyas create the place/space, without ksatriyas there is no ksetra, or field of activities, for the body of the devotees. Men of ability [must] be independent, and it may be argued that the present structure of ISKCON does not encourage independent, thoughtful action, in contrast to true VA culture... (7) INSTITUTIONALISM: [...] The modern system is antithetical to the VA culture wherein authority is placed in a qualified individual, not in a fictitious position (officer of a fictitious corporation), and further creating levels of bureaucracy not seen in VA culture. We should note the design principle that form follows function. The two cultures are so arranged to pursue different purposes. The purpose of the VA culture is progressive spiritual enlightenment for [all classes]. The purpose of the present dominant culture is increasing the sense gratification of a small section of society at the expense of the vast majority. Further, the idea exists that climbing the corporate ladder is an indicator of spiritual progress [...] The corporate structure and the VA culture are mutually exclusive paradigms. Since in the modern world we must work within the framework of the dominant culture we are challenged to establish a legal position that gives proper authority to qualified persons in the VA structure. The argument may be raised that Srila Prabhupada himself set up the corporate structure of ISKCON and therefore it can hardly be considered antithetical to the purposes of the society. While this is true we must also note that Srila Prabhupada regularly and consistently requested his leaders to establish VA colleges in every temple, and to establish VA culture, requests [mostly] ignored [...]

(8) VAISYA'S CONFUSION ABOUT THEIR DUTY: ...there exists the idea that the duty of vaisyas is to do business, not agriculture or cow protection. This is not what Srila Prabhupada or Sri Krishna say [...] "Krishna does not say that "Take to industry." Krishna says, "Produce foodstuff." Annad bhavanti bhutani." (SPConv Apr. 3, 1975) "The vaisyas must be engaged in producing food grains, but they are not interested. They are interested for opening factories for bolts and nuts and tires [...] Now you eat tire and bolt nut. No, you cannot eat. You have to eat rice, and rice is ten rupees per kilo because no vaisya is producing food grains. This is the defect.” (SPConv Feb. 2, 1974) Our so-called vaisyas are almost all engaged in business of various sorts, and although this is not what Srila Prabhupada indicates what is proper, this is accepted as normal or even good since they support the temples. And because everyone is equal, if the brahmanas make notice of this, it is not given much attention [...] Used to being independent and having the means of being independent, such devotees are not willing to listen to the brahmanas who may instruct them in their proper duty.

(9) LACK OF PERSONAL QUALIFICATION: We understand somewhat our own lack of qualification and see that others are also unqualified, therefore we lack trust in depending directly on others. The VA culture requires the members be qualified- this is one of its very desirable characteristics. In modern society however we are accustomed to being “independent” and free to live at any standard we choose, rather than being accountable to the VA principles of dharma that demands specific conduct. Not many are interested in this.

(10) AN ATTITUDE OF COMPLACENCY: There is a very strong idea by some that by distributing books (and perhaps doing Harinam as well) everything else will come, since Srila Prabhupada said as much. Therefore we need only continue the mission in the same fashion as when Srila Prabhupada was with us. “There is no need for VA dharma. Harinam and book distribution is all that is needed.” [...] As a result of book distribution and harinam we can expect to see men of ability come forward to do the needful to establish the entire Krishna VA culture, but they must be recognized as the agents who are going to develop that “everything else.” We should recognize and accept their efforts, understanding that they have been sent by the Lord to further the mission. Unfortunately [...] “varnashramites” are sometimes seen as unnecessary, idle dreamers. Finally I note that at least some of these issues do not apply only to ISKCON, but must be dealt with in any circumstance. However the existing culture within ISKCON seems to make it that much more difficult. (END)

COMMENT: (11) LACK OF A INDEPENDENT BRAHMANA CLASS: (Yasodanandana das)

CHAPTER 130: WHICH YOGA?

Today’s ISKCON has greatly changed since Srila Prabhupada’s time in many significant ways, with the ISKCON misleaders themselves gradually introducing/allowing more and more nonsense into the ISKCON culture. The GBC is unconcerned about these anomalies as long as there is no major protest and that new blood is made available to the ISKCON guru vampires who suck their victims’ devotion, wealth, and talents for their self aggrandizement. Part of this program involves the use of various yoga techniques, both ancient and modern concoctions, to lure in spiritual seekers who are fooled and fleeced by conditioned, phony “gurus.”

GYM, EXERCISE, FITNESS, HEALTH DEVIATIONS

(1) “Dance and chant. This is best exercise. We allow them to dance very... Yes. High jump. Actually that is exercise, and at the same time ecstasy. If they dance and chant Hare Krishna, it is automatically a very big exercise and spiritual advancement. Yes. Yes. There is no doubt about it. If he chants and dances, immediately he become ecstatic.” (SPConv Dec. 27, 1976) (2) “So yoga, yoga, this bodily practice, that if I am not body, then what shall I get by bodily exercise? Bodily exercises can help me little, but that is not spiritual platform. The [indistinct], kundalini, these are to the bodily concept of life. Actually, to tell the truth, those who are too much bodily absorbed, that ‘I am this body,’ for them this yoga practice is recommended. [...] Because one who identifies himself with this body, he is not very intelligent. But because such persons are not very intelligent, for them this bodily exercise of yoga, astanga-yoga, is recommended. Not for the intelligent person. Intelligent person, they take immediately to the devotional service, immediate.” (SPLecture Mar. 7, 1972) (3) “A spiritual master does not mean that he’ll teach you how to keep your body fit, how you can reduce your fat, how you can remain a young man, so many nonsense. This is not the duty of the spiritual master. However you may try to keep your body fit, how long you shall keep your body fit? As soon as you are born, the death is also born along with you. Suppose one man is 25 years old. That means he has already died 25 years. So you cannot protect yourself from death, however you may become very strong, stout. Therefore actual education, actual spiritual knowledge begins, as stated in the BGita [...] when Arjuna surrendered to Krishna, He immediately said that ‘My dear Arjuna, you are posing yourself as very learned man but you are fool number one.’ Why? ‘Because you are identifying yourself with this body.’ [...] ‘...you are talking just like very learned man, but you are lamenting on the subject matter of your body.’ [...] Actually one who is learned, he has no necessity for lamenting on the subject, on the body, either living or dead. So the whole process of education in the materialistic way of civilization is on the body, how to keep the body fit, how to avoid death, how to avoid disease. Simply concentration on the body. So this bodily concept of life is immediately discouraged in the BGita.” (SPLecture Sept. 25, 1968)

In the above photo is Bhanu Swami and “spiritual gains: the squad” in a Mayapur gym, working out and staying fit. Is this an approved part of Krishna consciousness as taught by Srila Prabhupada? To stay fit, devotees should dance in kirtan, work hard in devotional service, go on a japa walk, swim in a river or the ocean, and eat less and properly. No gym is necessary. If leaders do not follow Srila Prabhupada’s clear advice on these things, then how do we expect the common devotees to follow ANYTHING that Srila Prabhupada teaches? Hanuman das (Croatia) wrote: “When Mahadyuti prabhu visited us in 2014, he was sannyasi candidate. [...] he wanted to go to gym every day. I asked him how he got inspired to go to gym, he told me he saw that from Bir Krishna Goswami and Devamrita Swami. As far as my understanding of Krishna consciousness goes, going to the gym is waste of time. Dancing in kirtan is enough physical exercise for devotees, and then we can also follow Prabhupada in doing morning walks. Prabhupada warned us against frivolous sports, and gym seems to me as another type of wasting time and money. We don’t see that Bhaktisiddhanta Sarsvati went to gym, or Prabhupada either. I don’t see any philosophical or practical justification to go to gym, unless one suffered injury and therapy.” (Nov. 5, 2017)

Vaidyanath das: Many ISKCON leaders go every year to Udupi and Kerala, South India to stay at a health spa, especially Purnarogya Holistic Health Care Project. One should take care of one’s health, but daily gym visits, artificial exercise programs, and body consciousness is not recommended by Srila Prabhupada. This trend is taken even further by the adoption of supposedly “healthy yoga sessions, good for body, mind, and soul,” in ISKCON centers or under the name of ISKCON.

YOGAS OTHER THAN BHAKTIYOGA

Srila Prabhupada taught that the highest yoga system is Bhaktiyoga, which includes the benefits of all the lower rungs on the yoga ladder. However, there is a rapidly growing trend all over the ISKCON world to mix into ISKCON’s recipe various programs of other yogas, primarily hathayoga, but others as well. Radhanath Swami is training hundreds of hathayoga teachers at the Govardhan Eco-Village Project outside of Mumbai, India, where chanting Hare Krishna and other aspects of Krishna consciousness are also taught. Devamrita Swami holds hathayoga practice sessions at “The Loft” centers he has organized in New Zealand and Australia, followed by chanting and supposed prasadam. ISKCON gurus and leaders are increasingly featuring programs that include hathayoga or other yoga systems to tap into today's growing interest in yoga. The problem is that the way this outreach is conducted contradicts Srila Prabhupada's instructions, and is a watering down of the process of Krishna consciousness with useless and unnecessary additions, thus spoiling the message and mercy of Srila Prabhupada. It is like adding sand to the sweet rice; it becomes spoiled and loses its taste or potency. The BBT has even published a book titled "Inner Yoga" which is not written by Srila Prabhupada. Did Srila Prabhupada ever refer to "inner yoga"?

GOVARDHAN ECO-VILLAGE NOT APPROVED BY SRILA PRABHUPADA

"Climate Change Adaptations For Sustainable Development:" Govardhan Eco-Village north of Bombay hosts a "Nexus Conference" on this subject, as announced on their website. Srila Prabhupada never advised us to host these kinds of environmental concern conferences, so why does Radhanath Swami? The project also hosts events as a resort for rent, including for various bogus yoga groups and pseudo-spiritual organizations, and Radhanath Swami happily meets important guests for photos and building friendships. Again, Srila Prabhupada never advised us to do this. The Eco-Village also conducts series of one month yoga teacher training: "Govardhan Ecovillage invites you to our month-long Yoga Teacher-Training Course in Mumbai, India. This 28-day residential programme will not only enable you to learn and teach yoga, but also practice healthy eating, self-care through holistic-living, and meditation techniques from the bhakti tradition. Our yoga teachers are qualified and highly experienced professionals, with specialisations in traditional Hatha and Ashtanga Yoga. At the end of this course, you will have the knowledge in yoga philosophies and techniques to teach others, thereby enabling ever-expanding ripples of well-being."

Srila Prabhupada never taught us Hatha and Ashtanga Yoga, so why should Radhanath Swami? But this project is typical Radhanath Swami- he has gone far away from Srila Prabhupada's instructions, becoming ever more "popular" with the yoga crowd, the Vegan crowd, the peace-love-compassion crowd, humanitarian and public welfare crowd, etc. He is an ambitious man who wants more fame and followers. His astrological chart confirms this. But it all comes to an end around 2025 and he will have a nice ride while it lasts. Then Radhanath's show rapidly unravels. More from their website: "YOGA TRAINING COURSE OVERVIEW: Classes include various techniques for improving your skills as a yoga teacher, including: Lessons on yoga sequence creation, Teacher-training in the principles and philosophies of multiple forms of yoga, including Hatha and Ashtanga Yoga, The techniques of asanas, pranayama, bandhas, kriyas, cleansing routines and their physiological impact on our anatomies, Skills for assisting the progress of students, Methods for managing your yoga class, Guidelines for being an ethical yoga teacher, Practical workshops where you will practice teaching, perform Seva (service), learn basic Sanskrit and Ayurveda, Final Assessments, conducted by external examiners from the Yoga Vidya Gurukul to ensure that the highest standards of certification are maintained."

CHANTING HARE KRISHNA COMBINED WITH POPULAR YOGA

At the Govardhan Eco Village in India, a Radhanath Swami project, many strange things go on. They host events for other sampradayas and groups, such as Milan Goswami, who is married and gave mantras to his worldwide mission teachers with Radhanath in attendance, smiling nicely, of course. Govardhan also hosts regular yoga mantra classes for nominal entry fees where guests sit upon a yoga mat, closed eyes, in lotus sitting position, boys and girls mixed, casually dressed, and they chant Hare Krishna slowly and meditate. This appears to be a cross between hathayoga and bhaktiyoga, something which Srila Prabhupada never taught us. Why these new things? Radhanath Swami will broaden his appeal to thousands more by diluting the teachings of Srila Prabhupada, in the name of effective preaching. In Brazil there is an ISKCON center called Pandava's Paradise where various yoga sessions are held (termed "acroyoga," or acrobatic yoga postures), inviting some rather risqué scenes as shown here. Kissing yoga, group tree yoga... (Above: KISSING YOGA, ISKCON BRAZIL)

The yoga mats are used for various stretches and rehearsal of positions. Recently the local hero and guru, Hridayananda "Swami," appeared there for a festival wearing his baseball cap and casual karmi clothes. He has completely given up on the sannyas dress and Vaishnava customs, as he promotes his worldwide ISKCON offshoot called Krishna West, where he conducts centers that are more "culturally compatible" with western norms in terms of dress, food, musical instruments, with nothing that looks like a Vedic temple (that might alienate sensitive people: Ch. 136). FBook, Dec. 2, 2017, a post advertised a "beautiful yogini" giving classes at the Bhakti Center in New York, the ISKCON center run by Radhanath Swami. Srila Prabhupada would not be favorable to having "beautiful" female yoga teachers at his temples, and these examples are not unique by any means, but indicative of what goes on in ISKCON. Yoginis dressed in yoga pants or tights, mixing with men in the temple, whereby one must focus on the physical body movements and positions of the beautiful yogini... This is not Srila Prabhupada's style, mood, or standard. Sand in the sweet rice. Body consciousness, not Krishna consciousness. Deviation.

PART 15: CRIMINAL, DEVIATED MISLEADERS

Disqualified leaders should be removed. This occurs in democratic and parliamentary governments with a regulated system meant to counter corruption in a country. It also occurred in times of the Vedic civilization, such as when Duryodhana was removed from Hastinapura and when the brahmanas removed the evil king Vena. Srila

Prabhupada prescribed elections for the ISKCON GBC members and temple presidents in his Direction of Management document. (see Ch. 161, 163) However, after Srila Prabhupada's departure the GBC installed themselves for life as an elite guru club and placed themselves beyond the control or review of any outside persons or bodies, including the general constituency body of devotee members themselves. Thus the GBC has become corrupt to the core as there are no checks or balances on their activities or policies. This is why the GBC can make preposterous proclamations like their resolution, "There is no evidence at this time to support the allegations of poisoning of Srila Prabhupada."

The following chapters offer strong, frank critique of many of the ISKCON leaders, past and present. Anyone with attachment to these personalities is warned that the reports below may be disturbing and unsettling. Proceed at one's own risk. You have been forewarned. The material is based on facts, without unnecessary innuendoes or fault-finding. "As soon as there is a little deficiency we must repair it or it will create a big hole and the ship will drown. So I have said keep fit. [...] Without following the regulative principles advancement is doubtful, and one may fall at any moment." (SPL Rupanuga Apr. 28, 1974)

CHAPTER 131: MISLEADERS AND MISMANAGERS

(1) "Maybe if all these gurus would give up their high profile lifestyle, and stop wasting hundreds of thousands, even millions of dollars of Krishna's money by traveling all over the world, and invest that money into printing and distributing books, the movement would expand at a huge rate. How much do you think the average guru spends on travel per year? I'd guess that the small scale gurus spend anywhere from $25-50,000 a year. And as for the "big-time" gurus like Jayapataka Swami, Radhanath Swami, or Indradyumna Swami, I'd say they probably spend $150-300,000 a year. ISKCON's gurus are wasting a MASSIVE amount of money through their trivial travel, so if they would give up their "guru superstar" lifestyle and print Prabhupada's books, the movement would flourish. No need to travel everywhere to compete for disciples, fame and laxmi, and allow us to print books and build temples in every town and village..." (Chaitanya das 2009) (2) "Power tends to corrupt, and absolute power corrupts absolutely." (Sir John Dalberg-Acton) (3) "Myself and the other GBC have done the greatest disservice to this movement the last three years because we interpreted the appointment of ritviks as the appointment of gurus..." (Tamal, Dec. 1980) (4) "Swami Kirtanananda has returned to the United States and is causing quite a stir among the devotees. Following his suggestions, we have stopped wearing robes and have cut off our flags. He said these appurtenances are too strange-looking to outsiders and only make it more difficult for them to consider chanting Hare Krishna. Swami Kirtanananda has said we must avoid appearing to be Orientalists if we are to have 108 centers in the US." (Brahmamanda Letter to SP, Oct. 1967) (5) "This is very much disturbing to me and has caused me much pain. Please therefore stop Kirtanananda from making his mental concoctions. Do not be misled by him. I have never advised him to act like that. If he is causing such disturbances he should not be allowed to indulge in such nonsensical activities. I have already written you to inform you that somehow or other he has become crazy; otherwise he would not have disobeyed me to go directly to N.Y. For the time being he has cut all link with me, therefore any instruction given by him is unauthorized & should at once be rejected. He has no right to dictate as he has without my sanction. Whatever is to be done will be executed when I return. He is too much puffed-up nonsensically therefore you should copy this letter & forward to all centers that Kirtanananda has no right to dictate anything to the Society in this way. I am very sorry that he is exploiting his present position as a sannyasi." (SPL Oct. 14, 1967) (6) "A true leader has the confidence to stand alone, the courage to make tough decisions, and the compassion to listen to the needs of others. He does not set out to be a leader, but becomes one by the quality of his actions and the integrity of his intent." (Unknown)

ISKCON's leaders' deviations from following Srila Prabhupada and thus being misleaders may be due more to their being misled and cheated than being miscreants themselves. As Ravana through Marici even misled Rama, Sita, and Laksman, so "Tamalism" (see Ch. 75) has misled the entire movement, mesmerizing us with hopes and promises of fulfilling our immemorial ambitions by following the bewitching golden deer of concocted, deviant GBC policies. Thus the delusory original sin, wanting to be God (or guru), is nourished and the "pilgrim's" progress is blocked with this greatest obstacle to success, by his own doing. By misleadership the ISKCON GBC has completely corrupted and changed the face and nature of the institution which Srila Prabhupada struggled to establish and hoped would change the face of the world. The GBC transformed ISKCON into an entirely different type of entity, and it now appears more like an international franchise business. Here are some of the ways the GBC Ravanas have misled themselves and the devotees in general:

(1) MYTH CREATION: That ISKCON gurus are sent by Krishna to assist Srila Prabhupada, they are pure devotees or empowered associates of the Lord, and that GBC approved gurus are divinely sanctioned. (2) SECULARISM: Gurukulas should have mundane and government approved curriculum, devotees may pursue university education and accreditation to enhance their prestige and careers. (3) UNACCOUNTABLE FINANCES: ISKCON gurus and sannyasis are unaccountable for their finances. (4)

SALARIED “DEVOTIONAL SERVICE”: Only some brahmacharis are volunteer workers, all others must be salaried and/or be given other financial opportunities to justify their service in ISKCON. (5) DOUBTS ABOUT SRILA PRABHUPADA: The adulterations to Srila Prabhupada’s books, management systems, and instructions cause many to doubt in Srila Prabhupada himself, that he was not perfect, that his instructions need to be modified sometimes according to changing circumstances. (6) OVERLAPPING DIRECTORS: The same GBCs, gurus, and sannyasis hold multiple posts throughout the management structure of ISKCON leading to control by a small cadre of elite leaders. The GBC is a legal society which effectively owns all ISKCON properties and assets. No more local independence. (7) PHILOSOPHICAL DEVIATION: Srila Prabhupada’s teachings are not being followed in ISKCON. “To honor the spiritual master means to carry out his instructions word for word.” (SBhag 3.24.12 purport) (8) ACADEMIA: The appeal of mundane position and distinction has led, without no GBC protest, to many senior devotees and leaders entering academia for university credentials. (9) FALSE DOCTRINES: Reinitiation, one needs a physically present “living” diksha guru, the GBC is the ultimate spiritual interpretative authority, women diksha gurus...

The ISKCON GBC, gurus, and leaders have misled ISKCON for many decades and they have failed to properly represent him. Below Srila Prabhupada speaks about the mundane scientists, false religionists, unauthorised gurus, etc. These quotes can also apply to those who are misconstruing Srila Prabhupada’s teachings to serve the interests of their fraudulent guru businesses in ISKCON. Note: Srila Prabhupada espouses exposure of the fraud. (1) “So this is sattvaṁ jayate. It must come out triumphant... How foolishly they are propagating a false theory, and amongst themselves self-complacent, getting prize, eulogization. What is this nonsense? Expose them. Bluffing. The bluffing should be exposed.” (SPConv May 4, 1973) (2) “Simply rascals. At least expose these rascals... That is also great service.” (SPConv Feb. 6, 1976) (3) “They have become unnecessary authorities and misleading people. That we want to expose.” (SPConv July 6, 1976)

“The horrors of the last 30 years were due almost entirely by the GBC posing as Vatican ‘Cardinals’ whose authority flowed from the Pope, and who then ruled with ‘absolute authority’ over a self created hierarchy imposed on ISKCON.” (Naranarayana das, 2006) The poisoning of Srila Prabhupada’s mission is a matter of obvious facts and history, and it has become pervasive and debilitating. It arises out of a basic, underlying conflict between the mission (ambitions) of its false gurus and Srila Prabhupada’s Mission. This subtle but very deep tension may not be easily seen to all, but competitive authorities means conflicting purposes and disharmony. The society moves along in a state of confusion, and when this irreconcilable dichotomy of purposes is philosophically defined and understood, ISKCON’s anomalies can be quickly rectified. If those who insist on posing as diksha gurus were to depart from the ISKCON institution, establishing their own temples with by their own disciples, and ISKCON was restricted to Srila Prabhupada’s followers, harmony and purity would return. Srila Prabhupada’s ISKCON is for his followers, not those who follow other “gurus.” ISKCON is the home for Srila Prabhupada followers who have chosen not to take a conditioned soul or a vote-approved so-called guru as an institutionally mandated and fallible spiritual guide. The ISKCON gurus’ sub-cults grow ever more bizarre. Radhanath Swami sells Srila Prabhupada Srimad Bhagwatam sets that are “personally signed” by him as a blessing. On his Disciples Network website, front page, the human welfare theme is loudly evinced: “Mumbai, Nov. 20, 2016: People from different walks of life, including corporate head honchos, spiritual leaders and top bureaucrats, have stressed on the need to encourage social entrepreneurs in business and give back to the society by empowering others. Ajay Piramal said, ‘In our society there is a huge divide between haves and have-nots; we must address this issue as taught by Bhagwad Gita. The rich have to become the trustees of their wealth and use it for the benefit of the society.’” (Where is that in the Gita?)

GBC ASSUMES FUNCTIONS NOT GIVEN BY FOUNDER-ACHARYA

As will be expanded upon in Ch. 162, the GBC functions and duties as instructed by Srila Prabhupada do not include manufacturing new systems for endorsing or voting-in of initiating gurus. If Srila Prabhupada did not give it, then we do not need to concoct something. The GBC's duty is simply to properly understand Srila Prabhupada's instructions and try to implement them, with no authority to add new procedures or policies which were not already in place nor instructed by Srila Prabhupada. Outrageous as it is, the GBC claims Srila Prabhupada did NOT give us everything we need for the future, and that he created the GBC to fill in the missing pieces as it likes. The idea that the GBC has unrestricted authority to do as they please in Srila Prabhupada's name has brought the Hare Krishna movement to its present state of corruption. See Part 16.

Srila Prabhupada created the Governing Board Commission as an advisory body in ISKCON, and the powers of the GBC were very limited. They could not even change the temple president without the approval of a temple's membership. Many letters to this effect are supplied in Ch. 162-3. Yet, it is now standard procedure for the ISKCON GBC/gurus to appoint (without a membership vote) temple presidents who are supportive and loyal to their corporate and guru policies, even when their choices are vigorously opposed by local devotees, or even after these acts have resulted in a history of gross mismanagement and corruption.

EVER INCREASING ISKCON REGULATORY BUREAUCRACY WITH GBC AT THE TOP

The GBC increasingly centralizes ISKCON's bureaucracy, adding new "laws" every year to the ISKCON Lawbook, more GBC white papers and policies, by-laws, management levels and structures, rules, and meetings. Originally there were only GBC, sannyasis, and temple presidents. Now, however, the ISKCON bureaucracy of officeholders has increased immensely: (1) Approved initiating gurus, (2) full GBC members, (3) GBC Deputies, (4) Regional Secretaries, (5) Zonal Supervisors, (6) SOA team (Succession, Organizational Development and Appointment Committees), (7) Devotee Outreach Initiative, (8) GBC College graduates, (9) GBC Standing Committees, (10) Global Duty Officer, (11) Strategic Planning Network, (12) GBC candidates, (13) GBC assistants, (14) Acting GBC, (15) GBC Nominations Committee, (16) global ministries, (17) ministers, (18) various officers, (19) assistants, (20) departments, (21) secretaries, (22) Guru training seminars. "Once there is bureaucracy the whole thing will be spoiled. There must always be individual striving, work and responsibility, competitive spirit, not that one shall dominate and distribute benefits to others and they do nothing but beg from you and you provide. No." (SPL Dec. 22, 1972) But with more bureaucracy, things have not improved.

WHY GIVE THIS MONEY TO SRILA PRABHUPADA?

"Once in Mayapur, Kirtanananda said to me 'Why are you giving all that money to Prabhupada. You should give it to me, in America we are protected. The communists one day will come and take these buildings away... Prabhupada is making a big mistake.' I was shocked by what I heard. At that time, Kirtanananda was considered by Satsvarupa to be the greatest [...]. My answer was, 'I do not care what he does with the money. He can flush it down the toilet, for all I care, I just love to give it to him.' Srila Prabhupada... told me once in his room in Vrindavan, 'My guru ordered me to go to the west, and I did that. My main service was to translate these books and I did that. I have a personal desire to build these temples in India. That is my personal program. But my disciples will not give me money and my head is getting hot. I have to translate these books, write many letters, and I am thinking how to raise the money to build these temples because my disciples have their own programs and will not give me money.'" (Gurukripa das, 2009) Hardly unique, this attitude prevails in ISKCON—that we know better than Srila Prabhupada, and we will do it better our way. Faithless little Ravanans.

ISKCON GBC ARE NOT HONEST OR ACCOUNTABLE LEADERS

(1) HIDE TRUTH FROM MEMBERS WHEN POLITICALLY EXPEDIENT: Sexual "falldowns" of numerous ISKCON gurus was hushed up, even for decades, as the GBC feared that the fallout would be harmful if devotees came to know. The poison evidence coverup with lies and fraud continues today the truth has dangerous ramifications to their regime, thus they deny all evidence. (2) NO APOLOGIES FOR PAST MISTAKES: Except rarely (e.g., apology to Pradyumna das 20 year later), apologies with meaningful amends are practically nil unless the GBC is forced by circumstances, even when they commit catastrophic wrongs. E.g., there was no apology for the zonal acharya hoax. (3) ORWELLIAN:

Today's policies may be totally contrary to past policies; no explanations are given for contradictions, sometimes the GBC just edits their online resolutions as though what we now read was always there. (4) OVERLAPPING DIRECTORS: E.g., Brooklyn NY ISKCON temple property trustees and board of directors are overlapping, so accountability, checks and balances are impossible.

LONG LIST OF LOST PROPERTIES AND TEMPLES SINCE 1978

There is a long list of real estate properties since 1978 that were lost to foreclosure, firesales, mismanagement, and then the sale proceeds misappropriated or mismanaged. Srila Prabhupada had always warned against this, but he has been sorely disappointed. (1) MANHATTAN SKYSCRAPER, W. 55th St, sold shortly after Srila Prabhupada's departure and the great New York ISKCON yatra is lost. (2) See list of sold, lost farm projects in Ch. 129. (3) RETTERS HOF CASTLE, Germany: Srila Prabhupada said not to sell; sold anyways. (4) CHAITANYA COLLEGE: England manor house with gurukula, sold, lots of money lost. (5) COCONUT GROVE, MIAMI: Beautiful 10 acres and temple in the very best location; sold, then regretted. (6) NORTH MIAMI BEACH HOTEL and TEMPLE: 13 stories, on beach, sold cheap at market's bottom, horrible loss. (7) BUFFALO TEMPLE, Bidwell Pkway: Sold, now there is no temple in this college town where 40+ devotees joined 1968-1983.

The above list is partial, there were many more. Some nice temples from the early days that are long gone due to ISKCON mismanagement, even though Srila Prabhupada insisted, once opened, to never close them: San Antonio, Tx.... Albuquerque, Nm.... Winnipeg, Canada... Tallahassee, Florida... Minneapolis, Mn.... Manila, Phillipines.... Memphis, Tn.... Nashville, Tn.... State College, Pa.... Ann Arbor, Mi... And countless others in Europe, Asia, South America, for which there are no longer any records or history. Catastrophic waste...

BACK TO GODHEAD (BTG) MAGAZINE COLLAPSES

BTG magazine was started by Srila Prabhupada in India in the 1940's and became a primary venue of literature distribution in ISKCON, reaching a height of 1,000,000 copies a month in USA and Canada alone, with a combination of subscriptions and mass distribution on the streets by temples all over the world. In the early eighties book distribution in general had precipitously fallen and BTG's were piling up in temple storerooms, unsold as devotees fled ISKCON and their crazed zonal gurus. With full GBC approval, a zany plan to shift BTG to solely subscription basis was made, causing BTG to be reduced to a monthly circulation of 3,000 copies. The subscription price went from $6/year to many multiples of that amount, further discouraging subscriptions. The temples no longer were getting any copies to sell, although many temples wanted them in bulk. This was a huge disaster and management bungle, and has never been corrected. BTG almost went out of print several times, requiring subsidies from the BBT to carry on. Further, BTG has simply become a mouthpiece for the corrupt GBC policies and ISKCON gurus, hiding ISKCON's troubles behind phony feel-good stories.

EVOLUTION OF THEIR GURU SYSTEM

From 1978 until present, ISKCON's guru system policies have gradually evolved like the shifting sands in the desert, and sometimes the shifts are great and sudden, as in 1987 when ISKCON abandoned the zonal successor acharya policy but keeping the remaining zonal acharyas. One of the eleven zonal acharyas, Satsvarupa, later admitted, "If the different worship systems we [the zonal acharyas]... instituted were excessive, my answer is that we did not know what to do [in regard to excessive guru worship] because there was no precedent scriptural rule which told us what to do." In reply to this very deceptive and dishonest excuse, Eleven Naked Emperors (p. 68) explains: "While it may be true that he did not 'know what to do,' it is not true that there was no 'precedent scriptural rule' which explained what to do. Srila Prabhupada clearly explained the qualification of one who initiates disciples: 'A sober person who can tolerate the urge to speak, the mind's demands, the actions of anger and the urges of the tongue, belly and genitals is qualified to make disciples all over the world.' None of the eleven, including Kirtanananda, as was revealed later, were firmly fixed on this basic rudimentary platform, much less on the more advanced platform of the 'acharya,' who is not 'an ordinary man, for he is the representative of all the demigods,' who is 'nondifferent from Krishna.' The zonal acharya system was a disaster waiting to happen; few foresaw its negative effects..."

For almost a decade the GBC insisted that Srila Prabhupada had empowered and appointed 11 successor acharyas who were pure devotees in spite of their "momentary lapses" of basic Vaishnava practices. Due to a revolt by temple presidents, this system was suddenly replaced with another concocted arrangement wherein the GBC could approve by votes more new initiating gurus. It was an enormous shift of policies. The GBC hoaxed the movement with the lie of appointed zonal successors, and without blinking an eye, then hoaxed the movement again by declaring they were authorized by Srila Prabhupada to concoct guru election methodologies. Fool me once, fool me twice... Since 1987, refinements and adjustments have evolved ISKCON's speculative guru policies, and the bungling, bewildered, and defiant misleaders have run ISKCON into the wastelands of deviations, betraying their mandate as the protectors of Srila Prabhupada's Mission.

THE GAUDIYA MATH FLIP-FLOP

In 1978 the GBC claimed Srila Prabhupada had advised them to consult Gaudiya Math's Sridhar Maharaja in Navadvip for philosophical guidance, and they themselves did so, to ask questions about their zonal acharya system. But 2 years later the GBC said Srila Prabhupada never said we should take siksha from him, and forbade devotees from going to Sridhar Maharaja for advice. It was clear the GBC makes shifting policies to suit their shifting deviational purposes. At one time it was politically expedient to have Sridhar Maharaja help them establish their conditioned soul guru system, and later, when their system was in place, they disposed of Sridhar Maharaja, since many devotees were more attracted to him than the GBC. In response to the VVR challenge to their guru system, the GBC in March 1990 quoted heavily from Narayan Maharaja in their sole ISKCON Journal issue. However, in 1995, the GBC banned a number of their own gurus from even visiting or communicating with Narayan Maharaja at the risk of being suspended, which was indeed Tamal's fate. First, the GBC quoted from Narayan Maharaja to oppose those who questioned the GBC guru/initiation system, but then later stated that this same advisor had sahajiya overtones and that there was no direction from Srila Prabhupada to consult him after all. One year they say this, and the next they say the opposite. This Gaudiya Math flip-flopping does not add to GBC credibility.

WHAT IS SRILA PRABHUPADA'S STANDARD FOR GOOD MANAGEMENT?

(1) "I am very glad to hear that a new devotee has given $6,500 to your temple. A similar report has just come from Hamsaduta [...]. So it is a very good sign that people are coming and of their own accord giving everything, that is the proof of your powerful preaching work. If we simply remain pure and become very convinced of this Krishna philosophy, any sane man will agree with us when we speak. And if we are determined to please Krishna with our routine work despite all kinds of economic handicaps, He will provide all relief. Just see. If preaching is strong, management will be strong. That is the rule." (SPL Dec. 13, 1971) (2) "I am very pleased upon you that you have opened Geneva, Switzerland, center for pushing on the revolutionary Movement of Lord Chaitanya [...] is now growing like anything all over the world, and practically it is being recognized as the best solution for the general world crisis. [...] He shows His special favor by making you a big officer because now you must become very responsible and serious to organize and administrate things, and as leader you must set the highest KC example, so in this way Krishna is forcing you to advance in spiritual life. Now just do all our routine work nicely. This routine program is the backbone of our Movement, and we stand solid on such program such as chanting, speaking, arati, reading scriptures, prasadam, like that. These things are sufficient for us. Any sane man will be attracted to such program. And if we perform everything nicely and always seize every opportunity to preach about Krishna, that is our formula for success. Of course management must be there, but if preaching work is strong, management will automatically be strong. So in all cases, become a very good preacher, and this will please me very much." (SPL Locanananda Dec. 8, 1971) (3) "Yes, preaching is more important than managing. Just because you are preaching nicely and distributing so much prasadam, the management will follow like a shadow and Krishna will send you no end of help.” (SPL Satsvarupa Nov. 21, 1971) (4) “I am pleased to see that routine work is going on nicely... under your supervision. This routine work, such as chanting, speaking, rising early, cleaning, cooking and offering prasadam, arati, reading books—these activities are the backbone of our Society, and if we practice them nicely in a regulative manner, then our whole program will be successful. If we become slack or neglect these things, then everything else we may try will fail. So it is very important that you keep your standards very high in these activities, then your preaching will be strong. Preaching is our real business, and distributing books. If your preaching work is strong, then your management of temple affairs will also become automatically very strong. Just like if the head wills it, the hand will move. Preaching is like the head of our KC Society—if the head is removed, the whole body dies. Managing is the hands, which work nicely if the head is healthy. If the hands are removed, the body will not die, but it will be crippled. So preaching is more important than management, but both must be there if the whole body is to operate nicely.” (SPL Dec. 8, 1971)

WERE ISKCON LEADERS DECEPTIVE EVEN WITH SRILA PRABHUPADA?

“I had a history of professional credit management. I went to LA to work there. A year later, Karandhar had to vacate as ‘President’ of Spiritual Sky Incense Co. He chose me as his successor. I had a conversation with Karandhar and Jayatirtha about the transfer of power. At Spiritual Sky on Landmark St., President’s office, Jayatirtha said: ‘You have to learn how to handle Srila Prabhupada.’ He told a story how the GBCs had specific techniques to gain Srila Prabhupada’s approval or denunciation. It was all about deceiving Srila Prabhupada and the devotees, BECAUSE -you have a plan and this is how stuff gets done. Karandhar recommended I read Machiavelli’s ‘The Prince,’ ‘now that you are in the big time,’ so I would know how to operate- this gives some idea of their manipulative attitudes. ‘The Prince’s’ applicability to ISKCON politics was how to prevail in the exercise of power at any price -it is a primer in the necessity and efficacy of lying, murder, betrayal -the whole skill set needed to prevail (‘he is my enemy and I shall kill him’). On power and money, Karandhar had internalised the Machiavellian principles as he held his cards close and I always felt most of his intention was hidden. Besides the Godbrothers who might object to one’s plans, the greatest check on the exercise of their power was Srila Prabhupada. Jayatirtha explained to me that Srila Prabhupada was perfect in understanding Krishna, but he just did not understand modern times, how to do business, how to meet the imperatives of the movement’s growth. I raised specific objections to their argument, and Jayatirtha explained an established method of how to get Srila Prabhupada to endorse a leader’s ‘needs’ so his plans could move forward. We had a spirited conversation. What emerged was an impression- based on Jayatirtha’s gestures, words, expressions- of the classic government minister deceiving the King. Thus they introduced me to ISKCON leadership. Devastated by this information, I remember becoming very upset. To placate my distress, ‘You are in the big time now.’ I had to learn the realpolitik of the real ISKCON. Jayatirtha’s view was that this not to be generally communicated, was not ever really needed to be understood by the general devotees, because their ‘faith’ might be impacted. I remember their sympathy for my state of mind but, this is the reality and there was an implied assumption that I would work within this new understanding.” (Achyuta das, 2016)

FUND TO HIRE PRIVATE INVESTIGATORS

Prabhupada Truth Commission has a fund to hire professional private investigators to look into the secret lives of the prominent GBCs and gurus of the corrupt ISKCON. Where does their money go? What do they do when they are alone on vacations? What real estate do they own or control? Are their sannyas vows kept? What businesses and incomes do they have? What are their private lives? Persistent perennial rumors about ISKCON gurus have pointed to illicit sex with disciples, business fraud, tax evasion, illegalities, even murders, and private bank balances of millions. ISKCON elites do not give any account of their secret lives, but they must be held accountable and forced to be transparent, as they are obligated. It is time the truth be known so these pretenders can no longer exploit Srila Prabhupada’s mission. Hrdayananda once famously said he needs “a private life also.” But a sannyasi has no privacy. “Sadhu, those who are saintly person, for them there is no secret. [...] There is no privacy. A sadhu, sadhu has no privacy. Just now in our ordinary social affairs, there is difference between private life and his public life. Now, if somebody is teacher... Now, he is very good teacher. He can very good... He can explain very nicely a subject matter, but his private life is not very good. Then he is not a teacher. He is not a sadhu. That is Vedic conception.” (SP Lecture Nov. 4, 1966)

SHOULD WE IGNORE THE RUMORS UNTIL THEY BECOME FACTS?

For many years the GBC hid the problems that Harikesha Swami was having, hoping they would go away. Bhakti Vikas Swami (ISKCON guru) confirmed Dec. 15, 2016: “Of course, the GBC kept Harikesa’s madnesses covered up for years.” Many members of the GBC also knew for decades, according to unpublished GBC meetings and decisions, that Prabhuvishnu “Swami” had been visiting prostitutes in Bangkok. Satsvarupa also finally admitted to improper relations with a married woman, but only after general devotees pursued the truth and forced him to confess in installments. Umapati “Swami,” ISKCON guru, generated widespread rumors over many years about sleeping with Chinese male disciples, but he has always denied them. Finally the GBC suspended him as an ISKCON guru and sannyasi when the evidence became overwhelming. There is also the example of Bhavananda, whose escapades were very well known to devotees, especially to the ISKCON GBC. At the New Vrindaban 1985 meetings, despite his decadent activities being well-known, the GBC-guru elite defended him, and threatened those who dared criticize him, and he continued as “guru” for more time. This is how the GBC operates. They are not proactive in maintaining the integrity of their elite club comrades, even in the face of facts that persist. Plausible deniability. Their policy, as Bhakti Vikas Swami put it: “If there was incontrovertible evidence to back these allegations, well, we would have to take this very seriously. The proof would have to be very strong to warrant punitive measures.” (Dec. 15, 2016)

So the GBC does not keep watch over its own members, except in the way of cover-ups. And anyone pointing out defects will be thrown out of the society as envious troublemakers and blasphemers of “exalted devotees.” So, ISKCON has floated along for decades in a bubble of make-believe, where everyone is afraid to look, hear, or speak unless it supports the tyranny and charade. Rumors of leaders’ indiscretions are swept under the rug. No one cares because they may be in the limelight next, and everyone has something to hide. Why rock the boat while I am in it? After 40 years of repeated guru and sannyasi “fall downs,” the institutional leadership has still not developed a methodology to investigate rumors or maintain GBC/guru integrity. This is because the power-elite members of the GBC do not want themselves to be restricted from their own deeds.

A private fund should finance private investigators to look into the affairs of ISKCON leaders. We, the general devotees who want to follow Srila Prabhupada, cannot wait for the GBC to do what they should be doing. We must do it for them. In Parts 17-19 scenarios for deposing the corrupted GBC and restoring health to Srila Prabhupada’s mission are discussed, but meanwhile it is necessary to investigate misleaders to ensure purity, performance, and accountability. E.g., rumors swirled around one prominent ISKCON GBC-guru. Many prominent devotees heard these rumors in all parts of the world, and finally someone investigated privately and the rumors were verified. Prabhavishnu was confronted by a disciple with a camera on a Bangkok street with a woman. The GBC did nothing for 20 years while devotees misplaced their faith, service, and hearts in phony GBC reassurances, only to be dashed upon the rocks when the truth finally was verified with “proof of incontrovertible evidence?” In ISKCON, such proof always comes from private sources with no help from the GBC. This applied to the poisoning evidence as well, which the GBC continues to deny and cover-up. The amazing thing is that Prabhuvishnu simply continued with his guru business anyways, even after being demoted by the GBC, who again looked away. The members must be the watchdogs and revolutionaries.

CONCLUSION

If Srila Prabhupada were to physically come back for a tour, he would definitely not be pleased with what has happened to ISKCON in the hands of the men he had trained. He hoped they would at least maintain everything and hopefully expand further. Instead, the institution is drastically changed from what he had left to us. Book distribution dramatically declined from the late 70’s and for many years at a time SBhag and CC book sets were out of stock. Srila Prabhupada's books have been adulterated with over 5,000 changes in the BGita alone. ISKCON diksha gurus regularly, secretly break the basic rules, yet the GBC covers it up, hoping for the best. Basic philosophical issues are never openly addressed with the participation of the general devotees, and the GBC imposes tyranny to force compliance with official policies, which are contradictory, unjustified, or vague. There is corruption at all levels and there is no accountability by the leaders, financial or otherwise. Each ISKCON guru competes for money and disciples to build their own guru franchise empire, which are increasingly more loosely affiliated with ISKCON. Due to misleadership, many more disasters have beset ISKCON. Is Srila Prabhupada is still present in ISKCON, as his name, instructions, true followers, and assets are all being exploited by deviant misleaders who have caused so much damage in 45 years, they may as well be Srila Prabhupada's enemies? Their personal ambitions have led them to make choices that are contradictory to Srila Prabhupada's interests, as they exploit his mission for their own personal advantage. There may be some sincerity in the GBC body, but it is overshadowed by the predominant force in ISKCON, the GBC guru power elite, a sort of controlling central committee or cartel, busy with their private guru franchises, without much interest in Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON. This is why the GBC cannot perform at even a mediocre level in meeting its responsibilities, which has led to a drain of advanced and qualified devotees ever since the 1978 abuse of Pradyumna das (Ch. 94). The best men are gone, and those remaining are "yes men," psychopaths, new guru disciples, guru wannabees, etc. If one reads Srila Prabhupada's letters chronologically, a picture emerges, one that Sulochan das described in 1986: "Prabhupada's whole strategy changed dramatically in July of 1970. He freely started giving sannyas (celibate renounced order) to his male followers instead of encouraging them to marry. He stopped encouraging devotees to open temples and instead to distribute books. He wrote very heavy letters indicating the character of many leading disciples was way below the mark. They clearly show why Prabhupada became disgusted with these 'top men' and ultimately why he decided to leave the planet early."

The role of the GBC in Srila Prabhupada's mission is to act as guides to the devotees, showing how to follow Srila Prabhupada's instructions. Unfortunately, they have failed in this due to their disobedience and pursuit of their personal ambitions. "A siksha-guru who instructs against the instruction of spiritual, he is not a siksha guru. He is a demon. [...] Sometimes a diksha-guru is not present always. Therefore one can take learning, instruction, from an advanced devotee. That is called the siksha-guru. Siksha-guru does not mean he is speaking something against the teachings of the diksha-guru. He is not a siksha-guru. He is a rascal. [...] Because that is offense. [...] First offense is guror avajna, defying the authority of guru. [...] So one who is offensive, how he can make advance in chanting? He cannot make. Then everything is finished in the beginning. Guror avajna. Everything is there. If one is disobeying the spiritual master, he cannot remain in the pure status of life. He cannot be siksha-guru or anything else. He is finished, immediately." (SPLecture) Hare Krishna.

CHAPTER 132: NO MORE FALSE PHOPHETS

"Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves." (Bible King James Version, Matthew 7.15) How many times have we seen in ISKCON since Srila Prabhupada's departure that a senior leader displays psychopathy, narcissism, or megalomania, develops the Messiah complex, and believes himself the next great, chosen spiritual leader? Unfortunately, all too many. A short review of some of them is included below. We also will discuss exactly what it is that makes a false phophet in terms of psychology and transcendental philosophy, and how the seed of material ambition within all conditioned souls leads to this type of extreme insanity. May we not be fooled or preyed upon by false phophets. There are three dark triadic personality traits: psychopathy, narcissism, and Machiavellianism.

PSYCHOPATHY

Wikipedia: “Psychopathy, sometimes considered synonymous with sociopathy, is traditionally defined as a personality disorder characterized by persistent anti-social behavior, impaired empathy and remorse, and bold, disinhibited, egotistical traits. Different conceptions of psychopathy have been used throughout history. Hervey M. Cleckley, an American psychiatrist, influenced the initial diagnostic criteria for anti-social personality reaction/disturbance in the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders (DSM), as did American psychologist George E. Partridge. The DSM and International Classification of Diseases (ICD) subsequently introduced the diagnoses of anti-social personality disorder (ASPD) and dissocial personality disorder respectively, stating that these diagnoses have been referred to as psychopathy or sociopathy. Assessments of psychopathic characteristics are widely used in criminal justice settings in some nations. While the term is often employed in common usage along with the related but distinct “crazy,” “insane,” and “mentally ill,” there is a distinction between those with psychosis and psychopathy...” To understand psychopathy symptoms, experienced all too often in the Hare Krishna movement, we present a list offered by two of the main experts on psychopathy: Hervey Cleckley (The Mask of Sanity) and Robert Hare (Without Conscience, Snakes in Suits and The Psychopathy Checklist). Their lists are similar; Robert Hare built upon Hervey Cleckley’s research.

PSYCHOPATHY SYMPTOMS (ROBERT HARE): (1) GLIB AND SUPERFICIAL CHARM: smooth, engaging, charming, slick, verbally facile. Not in the least shy, self-conscious, afraid to say anything. Never gets tongue-tied, can be a great listener, to simulate empathy while zeroing in on his targets’ vulnerabilities, to manipulate them better. (2) GRANDIOSE SELF-WORTH: a grossly inflated view of one’s abilities and self-worth, self-assured, opinionated, cocky, a braggart. Arrogant people who believe they are superior human beings. (3) NEED FOR STIMULATION, PRONE TO BOREDOM: an excessive need for novel, thrilling, and exciting stimulation; taking chances, doing risky things. Often have a low self-discipline in carrying tasks through to completion because they get bored easily. They fail to work at the same job for any length of time, for example, or to finish tasks that they consider dull or routine. (4) PATHOLOGICAL LYING: in moderate form, they will be shrewd, crafty, cunning, sly, and clever; in extreme form, they will be deceptive, deceitful, underhanded, unscrupulous, manipulative and dishonest. (5) CONNING AND MANIPULATIVE: use of deceit and deception to cheat, con, or defraud others for personal gain; exploitation and callous ruthlessness as reflected in a lack of concern for the feelings and suffering of one’s victims. (6) LACK OF REMORSE OR GUILT: lack of feelings or concern for the losses, pain, and suffering of victims; a tendency to be unconcerned, dispassionate, coldhearted, unempathic. Usually demonstrated by a disdain for one’s victims. (7) SHALLOW AFFECT: emotional poverty or a limited range or depth of feelings; interpersonal coldness in spite of signs of open gregariousness and superficial warmth. (8) CALLOUSNESS and LACK OF EMPATHY: a lack of feelings toward people in general; cold, contemptuous, inconsiderate, and tactless. (9) PARASITIC LIFESTYLE: an intentional, manipulative, selfish, exploitative financial dependence on others as reflected in a lack of motivation, low self-discipline and the inability to carry through one’s responsibilities. (10) POOR BEHAVIOR CONTROLS: expressions of irritability, annoyance, impatience, threats, aggression, verbal abuse; inadequate control of anger, temper; acting hastily.

(11) PROMISCUOUS SEXUAL BEHAVIOR: variety of brief, superficial relations, numerous affairs, an indiscriminate selection of sexual partners; the maintenance of simultaneous, multiple relationships; attempts to coerce others into sexual activity, taking pride at discussing sexual exploits. (12) EARLY BEHAVIOR PROBLEMS: behaviors prior to age 13 of lying, theft, cheating, vandalism, bullying, sexual activity, fire-setting, glue-sniffing, alcohol use, running away from home. (13) LACK OF REALISTIC, LONG-TERM GOALS: inability or persistent failure to develop, execute long-term plans and goals; a nomadic existence, aimless, lacking direction in life. (14) IMPULSIVITY: unpremeditated behaviors that lack reflection or planning; inability to resist temptation, frustrations, momentary urges; no deliberation of consequences; foolhardy, rash, unpredictable, erratic, reckless. (15) IRRESPONSIBILITY: repeated failure to honor obligations and commitments; not paying bills, loan defaults, sloppy work, being absent/ late, failing to honor agreements. (16) FAILURE TO ACCEPT RESPONSIBILITY FOR OWN ACTIONS: reflected in low conscientiousness, absence of dutifulness, antagonistic manipulation, denial of responsibility, an effort to manipulate others through this denial. (17) MANY SHORT-TERM RELATIONSHIPS: a lack of commitment to a long-term relationship reflected in inconsistent, undependable, and unreliable commitments in life, including in marital and familial bonds. (18) JUVENILE DELINQUENCY: behavior problems between the ages of 13-18; crimes involving antagonism, exploitation, aggression, manipulation, or a callous, ruthless tough-mindedness. (19) REVOCATION OF CONDITION RELEASE: a revocation of probation due to technical violations, such as carelessness, low deliberation, failing to appear. (20) CRIMINAL VERSATILITY: a diversity of types of criminal offenses, regardless if the person has been arrested or convicted for them; taking great pride at getting away with crimes or wrongdoings.

After reviewing psychopathy symptoms, have there been any psychopaths who terrorized the Hare Krishna movement? Unfortunately, yes. These “devotees” who are not up to the proper standards should be recognized for what they really are and avoided. Psychopaths can only operate where foolish or naïve persons fail to recognize their mental illness. These traits are often found in ISKCON misleaders.

NARCISSISM

Narcissism is defined as excessive interest in oneself, extreme selfishness and self-centeredness, with a grandiose view of one's own talents and a craving for admiration. The term originated from Greek mythology, where young Narcissus fell in love with his own reflection in a pool of water. Four dimensions of narcissism as a personality variable have been delineated: leadership/authority, self-exploitativeness/entitlement, superiority/ arrogance, and absorption/ self-admiration. Some of the traits of a narcissist are: Flattery towards people who admire and affirm them (their narcissistic supply); Pretending to be more important than they actually are; Bragging (subtly but persistently) and exaggerating their achievements; Difficulty with empathy; and hypersensitivity to any insults or imagined insults. Sandy Hotchkiss's book The Seven Deadly Sins of Narcissism (2003) lists them as follows: (1) shamelessness (2) magical thinking (illusions of perfection) (3) arrogance (4) envy (5) entitlement (6) exploitation (7) bad boundaries (others exist to meet their needs).

MEGALOMANIA, OR MESSIAH COMPLEX

Very similar to narcissism is megalomania, defined as a pathological egotist or someone with a psychological disorder with symptoms like delusions of grandeur and an obsession with power. It is a delusional mental disorder marked by feelings of personal omnipotence and grandeur. An example could be Tamal when he was confronted by Srila Prabhupada and ordered to go to China, but flatly and audaciously refused. Historically, examples would be Napoleon, Hitler, Stalin, Alexander the Great, Idi Amin, Mussolini, and Genghis Khan. The Messiah complex is when one considers themselves a saviour or deliverer of the world by their supposedly extraordinary divine qualifications. Many cult leaders exhibit this mentality, and are prepared to sacrifice themselves and their followers (Rev. Jim Jones of Jonestown, Guyana) as martyrs in order to better the world. Kirtanananda was an example, as he had such great confidence in changing Srila Prabhupada's teachings in ways he believed to be superior, and in expectation of igniting a religious revolution in the world. He had grand visions of Cities of God, none of which were ever built. As a messiah figure, he inspired others with his “divine” visions, while thinking he was the true world acharya after Srila Prabhupada. (see Ch. 134)

NARCISSISTIC PERSONALITY DISORDER

Narcissistic personality disorder (NPD) is a mental disorder where people have an overly inflated sense of their own importance, a deep need for admiration, and a lack of empathy for others. But behind this mask of ultraconfidence lies a fragile self-esteem that's vulnerable to the slightest criticism. A person is considered affected with NPD if they have five symptoms or more of the following: (1) grandiose sense of self-importance (2) fantasies of unlimited success, power, brilliance, beauty, ideal love (3) feels he is special, unique (4) needs excessive admiration (5) has a sense of entitlement (6) is inter-personally exploitative (7) lacks empathy (8) is often envious of others or believes others are envious of him (9) shows arrogant behavior or attitude.

Many (or most) societal leaders have narcissistic tendencies: they believe in themselves, they tend to try to control others, have grandiose fantasies which motivates and guides their achievements and goals, and they have a sense of self-entitlement. Psychologists believe there is no harm in NPD unless it becomes acute or excessive. Of course, from the spiritual point of view, no material consciousness is healthy, which is all more or less insanity. The progressive degrees of NPD: (1) Healthy (2) Extraordinary (3) Arrogant (4) Psychopathic.

Dr. Elsa F. Ronningstam, said about the Arrogant Narcissist: “Inflated and vulnerable self-esteem with inner sense of superiority and uniqueness. Grandiose fantasies support and enhance self-esteem. Interpersonal relations serve to protect and enhance self-esteem: arrogant, haughty attitude, seeking admiring attention, and entitled, controlling, hostile behavior. Impaired empathic processing. Compromised/ inconsistent superego functioning ranging from temporary extreme moral perfectionism to corruptive consciousness, deceitful manipulative behavior.” A Psychopathic Narcissist may also exhibit an extreme “lack of remorse or guilt.” As one’s degree of NPD becomes more severe, it becomes more difficult to function in society. An Arrogant or Psychopathic Narcissist has difficulty in nearly all occupations, yet some have thrived as politicians, tyrant dictators, and as gurus. “The guru has absolute authority over his disciples’ lives and the disciple expects to receive chastisement on occasion, but if the guru’s narcissism is Arrogant or Psychopathic then he will abuse his disciples to further his own agenda, which is always self-aggrandizement.” (Henry Doktorski)

NARCISSISM, UNAUTHORISED GURUS, AND ADMIRATION

The disease of lording it over the material world (Part 16) reaches a peak when one desires to falsely become a guru, a position of high esteem which offers superb facility for distinction, profit, and, especially, admiration. The Dreaded Acharya Disease (DADS) involves one who has psychological aberrations due to the illusory energy facilitating illicit desires deep in the heart, stemming from the “original sin” /desire to imitate or become God. Krishna is the center of everything and attracts all beings’ love. The conditioned soul seeks love from things other than Krishna, and cannot achieve true satisfaction, and thus he gradually intensifies his illusions of grandiosity and importance. The unauthorised guru who is not completely free from illusion and desires for profit, adoration, and distinction is often a narcissistic personality, as seen in ISKCON history. “The grass [humbler than a blade of grass; Sikshatakam] is specifically mentioned in this verse because everyone tramples upon it yet the grass never protests. This example indicates that a spiritual master or leader should not be proud of his position; being always humbler than an ordinary common man, he should go on preaching the cult of Chaitanya Mahaprabhu by chanting the Hare Krishna mantra.” (CC Adi 17.41 purport)

Unauthorised gurus, in contrast to Srila Prabhupada, often become addicted to the worship and adulation of their disciples and society at large. The guru is constantly admired, glorified and worshiped by adoring disciples. If one is not a pure devotee of the Lord, and due to the contamination of narcissistic desires for self-centered enjoyment, this adulation becomes addictive with disastrous effects. In The Guru Papers: Masks of Authoritarian Power we find the following: “Most people enjoy feeling special... Adulation, the ultimate form of special treatment, has an addictive quality difficult to resist. Being the focus of such attention would activate the excitation levels of any sentient being on the receiving end of it. Whether for a guru or a rock star, this can be a more powerful experience than the strongest drug. It is also one of the great seductions of power. Successful gurus, rock stars, charismatic leaders of any sort, experience the intensity of adulation amplified beyond most people’s ken... Being the recipient of such adulation and devotion is exceedingly addictive... Since adulation is totally a function of image, should the images crack, adulation disappears, demonstrating that it is essentially empty of real care. Psychoanalytic theory would say that adulation is the emotional experience a narcissist most craves. What better profession for a narcissist than being a guru? ...For a guru, adulation and power are intricately connected since the disciples' surrender is the ultimate source of his power, and adulation is the prerequisite for surrender. A guru is made to feel he is the center of the universe by his disciples." (Joel Kramer and Diana Alstad, 1993)

The unauthorised guru thus goes essentially insane by tasting absolute power, something the conditioned soul has sought and craved for perhaps millions of lifetimes since leaving Krishna in the spiritual world. Rochan das wrote about the "guru disease" which had engulfed so many ISKCON gurus: "There is no greater disease known to man than that which inflicts those who have tasted absolute power. It is an experience they can never free themselves from. In fact, they are cursed, in this lifetime and probably many lifetimes to come." (June 25, 2000) Hansadutta das, one of ISKCON zonal acharyas who crashed and burned and gradually came back to his devotional senses, once explained what happened to ISKCON gurus. (Doktorski interview, 2003): "When most conditioned souls are exposed to immense wealth, unlimited prestige, adoration from women and devoted disciples, we go crazy. We can't help it. Our constitutional position is not lord and master of all we survey, our position is servant of the servant: dasa dasa anudasa. We go crazy. Nearly any conditioned soul would." Jitarati das explained further: "Hansadutta told me that if Krishna had not smashed him completely, he would never have been able to give up the intoxicating elixir of being an absolute guru."

It is interesting to note, as has been explained by Doktorski in Killing For Krishna, that after his near-fatal and traumatic head injury, Kirtanananda was not the same person, and exhibited more fully the extreme characteristics of NPD. Doktorski interviewed Kanka dasi in 2003, and she confirmed this: "But after he got hit on the head, everything changed. He was not the same person. He got hard and calloused. It seemed that there was another entity in his body; like he was possessed. He lost his pious side. Dark energy came out. We didn't have the same relationship anymore. He became abusive to the sankirtan mothers. I was freaking out, 'Who is this man?' I never saw him chant anymore. I decided I had to get out of there and so I left the community."

Accusations of pedophilia seem to follow the globalists and elitist politicians wherever they go. This is not surprising, as they often exhibit characteristics of narcissism and psychopathy, but their ideology of moral relativity is what would lead them to such horrible crimes. "Evil often stems from people who are empty. When one abandons conscience, one also in many respects abandons empathy and love. Without these elements of our psyche there is no happiness. Without them, there is nothing left but desire and gluttony. Narcissists in particular are prone to use other people as forms of entertainment and fulfillment without concern for their humanity. They can be vicious in nature, and when taken to the level of psychopathy, they are prone to target and abuse the most helpless of victims in order to generate a feeling of personal power. Add in sexual addiction and aggression and narcissists become predatory in the extreme. Nothing ever truly satisfies them. When they grow tired of the normal, they quickly turn to the abnormal and eventually the criminal. I would say that pedophilia is a natural progression of the elitist mindset; for children are the easiest and most innocent victim source, not to mention the most aberrant and forbidden, and thus the most desirable for a psychopathic deviant embracing evil impulses." (Brandon Smith, Alt-Market.com, late 2016)

WHY DO FOLLOWERS OF UNAUTHORISED GURUS HAVE SUCH STRONG LOYALTY?

We often see that even when an ISKCON unauthorised guru has been publicly exposed as a fraud, still many of his followers refuse to accept the obvious facts and reject him, and they desperately cling to him out of loyalty, hoping for a miracle of some sort. They are paralyzed because of their total emotional investment and the unhealthy type of "love" they have nurtured for their guru. When rumors develop about their guru, it is attributed to envious blasphemers. The behavior of the guru is rationalized ("his transcendence is inconceivable") and the disciple dreads acknowledging that his guru may not be what he has been held up to be. That would be a personal crisis far worse than divorce, marital betrayal, or any other injustice in love or life. Explaining how disciples become trapped in catastrophic attachment to a guru who turns out to be a fraud, Kramer and Alstad further elaborated: “People justify and rationalize in gurus what [...] would be considered unacceptable because they have a huge emotional investment in believing their guru is both pure and right. Why do people need images of perfection and omniscience? This goes back to the whole guru/disciple relationship being predicated on surrender. Surrender of great magnitude requires correspondingly great images of perfection. It would be difficult to surrender to one whose motives were not thought to be pure, which has come to mean untainted by self-centeredness. How can one surrender to a person who might put his self-interest first? Also it is difficult to surrender to someone who can make mistakes, especially mistakes that could have significant impact on one’s life. Consequently, the guru can never be wrong, make mistakes, be self-centered, or lose emotional control. He doesn’t get angry, he “uses” anger to teach.”

Kirtanananda’s drastic changes in the practice of Vaishnava traditions, and his repeatedly being caught in illicit sex, shows that his followers were slow to abandon him, some even after his 8 years prison. In 1993 when he was caught in bed embracing a teenage male disciple, his followers split into two camps, those who rejected him and those who claimed the story was false. In 2008 he was welcomed by disciples in Bombay as a perfect guru as though all that had happened in the past 40 years was untrue. To give up the misplaced faith in a unauthorised guru is indeed very difficult, and this is why these unauthorised gurus who mislead their followers will suffer greatly for their selfish indulgences and the mental, emotional, and spiritual harm they have wrought upon innocent, trusting dependents. The unauthorised guru will emphasize the disciple’s need to surrender completely to the guru as the representative of God. These demands led to fanaticism such as Sulochan’s murder. The bond of intense love between guru and disciple is particularly

Above: ISKCON GURUS ON ALTAR IN FIJI 2018 strong and deep, although harmful if the guru is bogus. Len Oakes in his Phophetic Charisma: Psychology of Revolutionary Religious Personalities (1997) stated how this guru-disciple bond surpasses all else: “Love may be so intensely experienced in charismatic groups as to transcend worldly, even, human, concerns... In ordinary life this may mean taking a stance of selflessness toward one’s beloved—typically a spouse or child—that seeks satisfaction in terms of their, rather than one’s own, good (or even one’s survival). But in a charismatic movement the love that is generated may transport the group to an otherworldly or world-rejecting state.” (Killing For Krishna)

Unfortunately, in ISKCON, with their bogus, self-appointed gurus, the bond of love is not purely spiritual nor is it healthy. This is so because the guru is exploiting his disciple, and the disciple’s love is not transferred to Krishna due to there being no factual connection to the parampara. Such pathological and dangerous love simply ends up, at best, in stalling, and at worst, in creating havoc in the disciple’s spiritual progress. Actually such love is not real love, but just another form of material attachment. This is what takes place with ISKCON gurus, as opposed to the spiritual affection that Srila Prabhupada attracted. The lessons of each false prophet that appears in ISKCON, such as Kirtanananda, Harikesh, Hansadutta, Tamal, Jayapataka, Bhakticharu, Radhanath Swami, Shivarama Swami, et. al. serves to enlighten us as to the need for a true, bona fide guru, like His Divine Grace AC Bhaktivedanta Swami Srila Prabhupada. May these tragedies end now.

In various parts of the ISKCON world, it is still the zonal acharya consciousness in many ways. The GBC so-called reforms from the late eighties and on have not yet taken hold, what to speak of the understanding that Srila Prabhupada lives forever in his books and instructions. In ISKCON Sigatoka Fiji, Tamal's photo and another ISKCON guru's photo are very prominently displayed on the main altar (March 2017). Long ago the GBC had ruled that no ISKCON guru photos can be placed on the altar, yet this continues in very many temples.

GASLIGHTING OR MANIPULATIVE DECEIT

Gaslighting is a term in psychology where narcissists or sociopaths (such as the zonal acharyas) manipulate others into dependency and loyalty. Wikipedia: "Sociopaths consistently transgress social mores, break laws, and exploit others, but typically also are charming, convincing liars who consistently deny wrongdoing. Thus, some who have been victimized by sociopaths may doubt their own perceptions. Some physically abusive spouses gaslight their partners by denying they have been violent. Gaslighting may occur in parent-child relationships, with either or both, lying to each other and attempting to undermine perceptions. An abuser's ultimate goal is to make their victim second guess their every choice and question their sanity, making them more dependent on the abuser. A tactic which further degrades a target's self-esteem is for the abuser to ignore, then attend to, then ignore the victim again, so the victim lowers their personal bar for what constitutes affection and perceives themselves as less worthy of affection. The term 'gaslighting' has been used colloquially since the 1960s to describe efforts to manipulate someone's perception of reality."

Gaslighting is often used by exploitative persons, such as pretender gurus, to manipulate others into doubting their own doubts and increasing further trust and blind loyalty in them by their victims, disciples, and supporters. The psychology of deceit is complex and difficult to understand by honest persons, who, being naïve, are easy prey for gaslighters. The phrase originates from a 1944 movie "Gaslights" wherein a wife is manipulated by the husband into doubting her own sanity in regards to the intermittent dimming of the gaslights in their home. Similarly, the defects and anomalies of a conditioned soul acting as a perfect person may sometimes require that perceptions of them by others, such as disciples and godbrothers, be undermined, by recharacterizing these perceptions as: (1) They never happened, and you must be mistaken (2) They are transcendental pastimes which you cannot understand (3) They were misperceptions and not what you think you experienced (4) How can someone like you be expected to know what really happened? (5) There is an obvious explanation (which is unbelievable, yet you believe it) (6) And so on... typically involving psychological manipulation, such as spreading fear of making "offenses." The victim doubts whether something which he experienced ever really happened- no, my guru never visited prostitutes... nothing to see here, move along!

THE HIGHEST MATERIAL PLEASURE IS SEX

There is an interesting connection between extreme narcissism and sex pleasure, which is the highest material "happiness" and the narcissist's forbidden fruit of self-centeredness. Material sex is actually gratification of one's own body, an addictive narcissistic experience. As the material world is a perversion of the spiritual world, so the materially entrapped soul futilely seeks out increasingly perverted sex pleasures to find the "nectar" for which everyone is anxiously searching. This may explain the increasing prominence today of culturally "forbidden" sex, such as homosexuality, bisexuality, pedophilia, cannibalism, sadism, etc. The increasingly desperate narcissist seeks out the more abnormal, unacceptable, sinful, and forbidden pleasures of sex and exploitation of others. They enjoy the daring, risky, and taboo as it increases their sense of power and infallibility. This would explain how the false guru goes to great lengths to project charisma and "divine aura" lest he be exposed. From this viewpoint, child abuse and pedophilia in the Hare Krishna movement was related to the unaccountable gurus and false prophets that were given carte blanche to indulge in their fantasies. The fantasy of being a guru and messiah goes hand in hand with secret illicit sex fantasies. This was clearly evident in Kirtanananda, Jayatirtha, Hansadutta, Bhavananda, and others. Why are 90% of ISKCON guru and sannyasi "falldowns" due to illicit sex? And much of it homosexual and pedophilia? Better that we refrain from awakening and inciting those demented desires that we may be harboring somewhere in our hearts, and accept our position as servant, not as false gurus or prophets. It can also be understood that the desire for admiration and distinction as a guru is actually subtle sex; the fantasy of enjoying our superiority is an illusion and a disease of the soul. Rather, for one who has sex desire, they should be nicely married, and then progress satisfactorily in Krishna consciousness with Srila Prabhupada as the Acharya. Falsely taking up the position of diksha guru can open a Pandora's Box of narcissistic fantasy by fanning dark desires long buried in the heart.

It seems the appeal of forbidden enjoyment such as pedophilia and beyond is not just a problem to ISKCON, but it has plagued many institutions such as the Catholic Church and powerful political cliques. There was the 1988-91 Franklin Scandal which almost aired on the Discovery Channel in 1994, but was pulled at the last minute. It was a documentary complete with interviews of victims peddled to Washington elites for favors and blackmail. Officially ruled a hoax, many insist on its veracity. But this child abuse goes on everywhere. In Australia, a Royal Inquiry determined that 7% of Catholic priests had engaged in pedophilia with over 4000 victims. Cardinal George Pell, third most powerful Vatican figure, was charged with child sex abuse allegations in 2017, but he was acquitted due to "lack of evidence." There was the UK's Westminster Pedophile Ring, highly evidenced, but the UK government lost/ destroyed 114 investigation files. There is Jeffrey Epstein's "Lolita Express," an airliner in which he ferried minors for sex with politicians to his private island. The powers that be usually succeed in quashing full revelations of their activities. Epstein appears to have been murdered in jail to protect those he provided children for sex. For a deeper view on narcissism in ISKCON, we look at Brandon Smith's general analysis: "When they grow tired of the normal, they quickly turn to the abnormal and eventually the criminal. ...pedophilia is a natural progression of the elitist mindset; for children are the easiest and most innocent victim source, not to mention the most aberrant and forbidden, and thus the most desirable for a psychopathic deviant embracing evil impulses. Beyond this is the even more disturbing prospect of cultism. [...] When one confronts the problem of evil head on, one quickly realizes that evil is within us all. There will always be an internal battle in every individual. Organized evil, though, is in fact the ultimate danger..."

ISKCON pedophilia reached its peak in Vrindaban/Mayapur from 1980-90, and is still ongoing. Organized overlordship reached its zenith in the 1980's under the zonal acharya system. ISKCON's being plagued by these types of exploitation by misleaders is part of the materialistic spirit of enjoyment where Krishna's supreme authority is disregarded and perversely imitated.

KIRTANANANDA SWAMI AND THE ETERNAL ORDER OF THE HOLY NAME

He thought he was the next ISKCON sole acharya, as he chuckled at the demise of other ISKCON zonal "acharyas." He tried to become a great spiritual leader through interfaith, ecumenism, and radical changes to Srila Prabhupada's teachings. His sense of invulnerability due to NPD led him to illegalities "in Krishna's service," but for which he went to jail. In March 1987 the GBC expelled him from ISKCON for "moral and theological deviations." Ravindra Svarupa das said on the Larry King TV show: "We worked very hard to expel Kirtanananda from the Hare Krishna movement. We found him a separatist, ambitious, arrogant, duplicitous. He was running his own movement. He was like a loose cannon on deck, and meanwhile more and more crimes were coming to light... He claims to be the heir of Prabhupada's movement." As Doktorski described in Killing For Krishna: "He was tired of working within the confines of ISKCON and wanted out. He created his own society: the Eternal Order of the Holy Name, League of Devotees International and the Worldwide 'Cities of God.' Soon he began 'De-Indianizing,' or 'Christianizing' the prayers and music for the temple services, and the attire and appearance of the devotees. Women were given sannyas, japa was chanted in English and silently in the mind. A more inclusive 'interfaith' approach was emphasized in preaching and community living (1986-1994). [KS] and his followers had created a charismatic cult: the 'Cult of Kirtanananda.' [His] disciples and followers believed he was a pure devotee, the only self-realized guru amongst all the ISKCON gurus, and the 'World Acharya.' Unfortunately, we were all deceived; for in secret, Kirtanananda enjoyed the pleasures of the flesh with boys and teenagers as early as 1970, if not earlier, according to reliable witnesses. New Vrindaban had an 'Inner Sanctum'—a secret society of homosexuals and pedophiles. [...he] also enjoyed the intoxicating pleasures of alcohol and recreational drugs such as cocaine in the company of Hayagriva and others in the 1970s, throughout the 1980s, and also into the 1990s. Randall Gorby claimed, 'Howard Wheeler (Hayagriva) preferred opium and ...Keith Ham (Kirtanananda) preferred to use cocaine.'"

From Monkey On A Stick, p. 209-11, Kirtanananda's thinking is described: "Kirtanananda shook his head [...] they'll see that there is only one true swami fit to lead ISKCON: Kirtanananda Swami Bhaktipada. [...] When the Palace of Gold is finished, devotees everywhere will visit New Vrindaban and see that only the true acharya could build such a splendid temple, Kirtanananda told himself [...] I don't have to take over the movement; the movement will come to me." From Doktorski's new book on New Vrindaban's history: "Kirtanananda retired to his retreat outside New Vrindaban, and in July 1994 he is pushed out completely wherein he signs a document admitting the defeat of his Great Interfaith Experiment. Yet still he shouts in defiance with pen in hand like a spoiled child: 'I am the world acharya! I am the world acharya! – I AM THE WORLD ACHARYA!'"

ISKCON FALSE PROPHETS: SUPER ARROGANCE, OVER-CONFIDENCE

TAMAL: In 1978-80, he insisted he was best suited to be the sole ISKCON acharya, and that Srila Prabhupada had chosen him to lead the movement, insisting that his Godbrothers in his zone could reach Srila Prabhupada only through him. The many ways he attempted to become number one are recorded in Part 9. HANSADUTTA: He claimed Srila Prabhupada choose him in a dream as the sole Acharya of ISKCON, and he operated his zone as his personal kingdom, preparing for doomsday with plans to takeover the government by armed revolution and deliver the world after Armageddon. HARIKESH: He became the ISKCON miracle man and kingpin in the nineties, as lord of book distribution and with great success in preaching, recruiting devotees, opening temples. His zone collapsed in 1998. RADHANATH SWAMI: Ch. 135. KIRTANANANDA: Ch. 134. BHAKTI TIRTHA SWAMI: Ch. 143. HRIDAYANANDA: See Ch 136.

CONCLUSION

All these ISKCON false prophets were removed by Krishna when their "outrageous" deviations became too acute, sparing the transcendental mission of Srila Prabhupada further inconvenience. Why do the ISKCON false prophets and world saviours keep coming? It is due to the disease of the conditioned soul, namely the deep-seated envy of the Supreme Lord, by trying to imitate Him or the pure devotee (e.g., "I will live on in such a wonderful way through my disciples."- (Bhaktitirtha Swami, 2005) We do not need more false prophets in Srila Prabhupada's mission. Haven't we had to endure enough of them already? Unfortunately, there's always a new angle and more fools to cheat in this world of darkness. Some of these false prophets, both major and minor, are recorded here to give the real history of the times after Srila Prabhupada's physical departure for those who would work to prevent such recurrences in the future. As soon as we think that just anyone, what to speak of hundreds or thousands of "anyones," can give DIKSHA or transcendental knowledge by mystical injection into the soul's heart of a "disciple," we have set ourselves up for being cheated. And then come the psychopaths, narcissists, gaslighters, and perverts to exploit us as their next victims. It is a sick world. Better to just stick with the known pure devotee, Srila Prabhupada. Has anyone found that Srila Prabhupada cheated anyone, anywhere, in any way at all? No, he never did. Trust the real Acharya, not self-appointed, voted-in pretenders whose primary business is to adopt the profile of something they are not. Self-serving cheaters.

CHAPTER 133: HOT TAMALE

INTRODUCTION

The life history, personal character, activities, and involvement in Srila Prabhupada's poisoning have already been finely detailed in Book One, Ch. 59-75. There is no need to repeat what kind of ISKCON leader Tamal Krishna Goswami actually was. Yes, he was expert, extremely intelligent, charismatic, and is thus remembered by some as a great contributor to Srila Prabhupada's mission.

However, we disagree and maintain it would have been far better for the Hare Krishna movement if Tamal had never been involved. His contributions were on balance exceedingly negative, and many senior Godbrothers who knew him well believe he was sent as a disguised agent of Kali or demonic forces. The horrible impact of his "contributions" to ISKCON will not be remedied easily or soon. As Ravana kidnapped Sita and attempted to minimize the position and glory of Lord Rama, similarly Tamal, with his comrades, poisoned Srila Prabhupada's body and then his divine mission with Tamalism (see Ch. 75). He engineered the hijacking of Srila Prabhupada's institution and in so many ways undermined and aggressively but cleverly minimized Srila Prabhupada's position and glories. As Ravana disguised as a holy sannyasi and religious man, Tamal used saffron dress to befool innocent devotees to reject the true Acharya as the living link to the parampara and instead accept he himself and some other rascals as the new acharyas. Every time Tamal's deviant moves were exposed or became intolerable, he shifted to a new plan of subterfuge and continued in systematically spoiling what Srila Prabhupada had struggled to establish, and did it as though he were the great defender of Srila Prabhupada's mission. He was the anti-Christ, the anti-Prabhupada. At least Ravana revealed his true identity after as he captured Sita. See Book One, Part 9 for the real deal on who Tamal Krishna Goswami actually was.

CHAPTER 134: KIRTANANANDA BHAKTIFRAUD

KIRTANANANDA (SWAMI BHAKTIPADA)

Kirtanananda took sannyas in 1967 and immediately left Srila Prabhupada to start his own movement, using black robes, trying to recruit devotees from the New York temple while Srila Prabhupada's was in India recovering from his heart attack. After a year on a W. Virginia farm, Kirtanananda's separatist endeavors failed and he returned to ISKCON in 1968. His homosexual and pedophile activities from before joining ISKCON continued throughout his time in ISKCON and afterwards as well.

He fostered a sub-culture of child abuse in New Vrindaban, looking the other way as he too kept himself busy with children and young men. He replied to a mother's complaint about her child being sexually abused, "Sex is sex." His full history is detailed in writings by Henry Doktorski a former Kirtanananda (KS) disciple. In 1993 he was caught embracing a teenage disciple in a Winnebago camper, admitting and then denying improprieties. He had oral sex with some gurukula boys. This is based on multiple testimonies that reach the level of indisputable evidence, and is not hearsay.

KS organized a women's collection party where the male leader would enjoy all the women, who sometimes sold drugs, their bodies in prostitution, or engaged in various scams, giving thousands a day to KS personally. He was highly regarded by 600 devotees in New Vrindaban as a pure devotee, but he secretly engaged in many illegalities, as such burning houses for insurance claims, selling copyrighted materials, condoning and reaping the profits of running drugs from India to sell in the USA, instigating the murder of maybe half a dozen devotees including Sulochan, Chakradhari, maybe Taru, stealing devotees from other temples, and all sorts of ruthless, gangster-type activities- all for money and power. Hrishikesh das wrote to us Dec. 25, 2016 the following regarding Sulochan's killer, Tirtha das: "In 1980-81 Tirtha was in Ohio prison for making Methaqualone, 2 years 8 months. Purvacitti was his first wife in Buffalo in 1970's. Yes, Kirtanananda must have known about Tirtha's laboratory. I suspect he financed it. That's why he was so keen on Tirtha taking the full rap, to protect New Vrindaban. You must certainly know about Adwaitacharya's big India/Thailand/NYC drug enterprise in late 1970s? Tens, maybe hundreds of thousands of dollars profit to help purchase rare marbles for the Palace. I was in Kirtanananda's office once when Adwaitacharya brought in a briefcase (or was it a suitcase?) filled with stacks of big bills. Law enforcement finally caught up with him in 1990."

A letter recovered from Purvacitti dasi noted that KS had guaranteed Tirtha would go back to Godhead if he took the fall for the Ohio quallude (illegal drug) lab operation. KS dressed the deity of Srila Prabhupada in New Vrindaban's Prabhupada's Palace with a royal crown and robes. A sixty foot tall statue of Srila Prabhupada meditating and dressed as Buddha was built near Prabhupada's Palace in New Vrindaban. Kirtanananda changed the devotees into Franciscan robes, using harp, guitar, and church organ instead of mrdunga and kartals, changed all the devotional songs into English, and had devotees silently chanting their rounds in English. They sang "Onward Krishna Soldiers." He introduced an interfaith ecumenism, hosting Native American sweat lodge rituals and having a children's choir on tour singing English devotional hymns and promoting his vision of a series of Cities of God, which were fortified refuges for the upcoming world cataclysm. He was excommunicated from ISKCON in 1987, left New Vrindaban in 1994, spent 8 years in prison after Tirtha das implicated him in Sulochan's murder and he was forced to plea bargain with the Feds, moved to his north Bombay temple in 2008, and passed away in 2012 from kidney disease. In a series of YouTube videos called Peons of Perfidy (5 parts), where around 1987 KS discusses guruship with Jayapataka Swami, he enthusiastically proclaims, in his insanity: "Anyone of us can become as great as Prabhupada."

We can only imagine the amount of hard earned money collected by faithful followers that KS paid to attorney Allen Dershowitz to represent him in the Court of Appeals. Dershowitz, who represented Patty Hearst and O.J. Simpson, was one of the most expensive, high profile attorneys in the entire country, with a $300,000 initial retainer and $500/hour thereafter. Not only was it well known to some members of the community, including Radhanath Swami and other community leaders, that over a long period of time KS had been sexually abusing at least two young males (Chaitanya Mangala/Christopher Walker and Kaliya) at New Vrindaban, but then he was caught and confessed to sex with a young adult male devotee while driving back to West Virginia after attending the Parliament of the World's Religions. Just before going to prison, while residing at the Sanctuary in Manhattan, he was again accused of making sexual advances towards a male guest.

Right: SRILA PRABHUPADA'S PALACE OF GOLD Kirtanananda had been called Bhaktipada by his disciples and supporters, but eventually, after his crimes and true nature was exposed, they began to call him Bhaktifraud instead. He was extremely influential from the mid sixties until about 1990, when his world began to seriously crumble apart. For 25 years he disguised his ambitions of becoming an acharya or world famous religious innovator by adopting the profile of a Hare Krishna sannyasi and by externally making a good show of following the prescribed sadhana. He ruined the lives of many devotees as he used his inspirational skills and speaking abilities to gather followers who would assist in his secret ambitions. Many photos show him surrounded by a throng of young boys, sometimes with their hands on him in public. Then he was exposed as a pedophile, although he was never punished for his sexual misbehavior with children. An internal ISKCON investigation confirmed his sexual affairs with children. Although he knew about it, he did little to correct the sexual predation upon children by a number of other New Vrindaban devotees, including school teachers who lived with the children. Some went to jail, some did not.

To illustrate the bewildering charisma that exuded from Kirtanananda, there is this story: “In 1971 I was advised by Armarendra das, the president of the Gainesville temple, that I should not allow Kirtanananda and his bus tour to visit our New Orleans temple because they would steal everything as they had done there. Kuladri and Narada Muni came in advance to discuss their visit, and when I expressed my reluctance to accommodate their bus party, they then frightened me with their revelation that Kirtanananda Swami was a pure devotee, and thus I would be committing horrible offenses by not cooperating with him. I acquiesced, and drove three hours to personally apologize to Kirtanananda in Mobile, Alabama. Later I wrote to Srila Prabhupada and asked if there were any other pure devotees on the planet; I had been so deeply intimidated.” (Nityananda das, 2016) No doubt KS had a deep love for Srila Prabhupada, seen in the Palace of Gold. He was a capable preacher. But his ambitions overcame his sincerity and his deviations spoiled his life and much of Srila Prabhupada’s mission by pursuing his personal plans and his sense gratification. He will be remembered more for his disservice to the movement and to Srila Prabhupada, and his life will be discussed for a long time for the lessons to be learned in our own advancement in Krishna consciousness.

What is amazing is that even though KS was obviously smashed by divine arrangement from 1987 to 2004, with 8 years in prison where he was raped by inmates, he simply carried on with being a false guru, and even in the face of clear proof that he was a practicing homosexual and child sex abuser. After his release from prison and 4 years his New York Sanctuary Center, from which he was expelled in 2008, he went to India where he had many followers in north Bombay. In his last six years, he was the acharya of over a hundred disciples in India, and online videos can be seen of him listening to songs of his own praise by little children. After his passing away, the new acharya was selected, presumably with KS’s prior approval. Mudusudhan das, with his large head of bushy hair reminiscent of Sai Baba, was ceremoniously enthroned and crowned, being the next acharya in the disciplic succession from Brahma to Kirtanananda Swami (?). Mudusudhan commissioned a deity of KS which was installed in their temple. To his very finale, KS clung to the vain illusion of being the next acharya after Srila Prabhupada. Very bizarre and sad. Below we have a contribution from Henry Doktorski, a long-time resident of New Vrindaban and former KS disciple, who gave us this timeline of “Bhaktipada’s” life and the major milestones thereof.

- 1949: Keith has his first “real religious experience” at 12, tries to convert his classmates Baptist faith
- 1953: Keith attends Stony Brook School in Long Island, New York, but contracts a severe case of polio
- 1955: Honor graduate, Peekskill High School; excells at debate, reputation for heavy drinking at parties
- 1959: Begins graduate studies in American History at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill
- 1960: Keith meets his life-long friend and lover Howard Wheeler at a gay bar in Chapel Hill (Oct.)
- 1961: Keith, Howard resign UNC in sex scandal (Feb. 3), move to NYC’s Lower East Side

1961-64: Keith attends Columbia Univ, NYC- fails to complete doctorate degree. Howard gets Master Degree in English, NYU in 1964, takes English teaching position at Ohio State Univ. in Columbus, OH

1965: Srila Prabhupada arrives in New York City from India on the steamship Jaladuta (Sept.19)
Keith and Howard travel to India on the steamship Jaladhir in search of a guru (Oct.)

1966: Keith and Howard return to the United States from India, unsuccessful in their quest (Jan.)
SP moves to the Lower East Side, establishes storefront at 26 Second Ave (June 1)
Keith, Howard begin attending Swamiji's BGita classes, assisting him in his work (July)
Keith moves into the temple, shaves his head, wears traditional Indian robes and tilak, and serves as Swamiji's cook (probably Aug.), then incarcerated at Bellevue Psychiatric Hospital (Aug-Sept)
The first initiation (Sept 9) of 11 SP disciples. Howard becomes Hayagriva das, serves as editor
The second initiation ceremony (September 23). Keith formally becomes Kirtanananda das

1967-1968: Kirtanananda helps open Montreal ISKCON center (March) Swamiji has a stroke (May 31)

"BHAKTIPADA'S RULE" EXPLAINED (by Henry Doktorski)

Bhaktipada wanted the residents of the City of God to live a regulated and disciplined life, free from the distractions of sense gratificatory pursuits. He was especially enamored by the Holy Rule of Saint Benedict (c. 480-543), founder of Western monasticism. Benedict's Rule, a comprehensive document written around 530 in Italy, defined the cenobitic (regulated community life) monastic tradition and is regarded as the first and best among monastic legislative codes. Of the 73 chapters comprising Benedict's Rule, 9 deal with the duties of the abbot, 13 regulate the worship of God, 29 are concerned with discipline and the penal code, 10 refer to the internal administration of the monastery, and the remaining 12 are miscellaneous regulations. Such issues as humility, patience, simplicity, solitude, caring for others, and living in community are addressed.

Bhaktipada's Rule was officially introduced on Mar. 21 (Gaura Purnima) 1989, when residents of New Vrindaban sat in a fire sacrifice and vowed to follow the Rule and rededicate their lives to guru and Krishna. Initiates received an ornate certificate stating: "NV League of Devotees, Interfaith Cities of God International, to certify that [name of devotee] has vowed to follow the Rule of the Order of the Holy Name and is therefore a duly authorized Member of the New Vrindaban City of God. In witness whereof the President of this branch and the League and the Acharya of the League give our seal and signature on this 21st day of March 1989."

Evening Temple Worship, 7:20 pm Devotee Social Hour, 9:00 pm-3:00 am Rest. On the final page of the Rule was a form: "I, (sign your name), do vow to follow the above Rule of the Order of the Holy Name to the best of my ability."

KIRTANANANDA DAS: CONFIRMED PEDOPHILE

Below is the report from the in-house ISKCON Child Protection Office's investigation which found that KS was definitely implicated in child sexual molestation of one teenager on two occasions, and voyeurism with another child. But the historical records show that KS was a habitual and lifelong sex abuser of male children of all ages, committing illicit child sex innumerable times. There is no doubt he was an active homosexual and pedophile from 1966 to at least when he was imprisoned in 1996. Hayagriva was KS's lifelong sexual partner.

On Apr. 23, 1999, ISKCON's Child Protection Office began investigating evidence that KS molested children. On Sept. 10, 2000, it was determined that, based on testimony from two victims, "KS das committed sexual child abuse. Due to these transgressions, it is the determination of this panel that KS is not permitted to have any contact with ISKCON or affiliated organizations for five years from the date of this Official Decision."

ISKCON OFFICE OF CHILD PROTECTION: OFFICIAL DECISION ON THE CASE OF KIRTANANANDA DAS

"This judgment, decided on Sept. 10, 2000, was rendered in accordance with the guidelines for adjudicating cases of alleged child abuse established by the ISKCON Child Protection Task Force Report and ratified by the ISKCON GBC. This judgment is the Official Decision of the Association for the Protection of Vaishnava Children (APVC) on the child abuse case of Kirtanananda das (KS; Keith Ham). This decision defines the parameters of the relationship of KS with ISKCON. The APVC advises child abuse victims, their parents, and all members of the ISKCON organization to report allegations of child abuse to governmental social service and law enforcement authorities. Also, the APVC advises all members of ISKCON to learn and follow their local laws regarding child abuse and mandated reporting of child abuse. KS is a white-bodied person who was one of the first persons to join the movement in the mid-1960s in New York. He took first, second, and sannyasa initiation from Srila Prabhupada. KS has not responded to efforts of the APVC to contact him. The APVC has provided him full opportunity to respond to all allegations against him, but he has not replied. The APVC has received written, first-hand testimony stating that KS forcefully caressed the genitals and other parts of the body of a 15 year old boy in 1989 in Malaysia on at least two occasions. In 1991, on at least one occasion, KS committed the same acts of sexual abuse against this child, and also, according to the testimony, attempted to perform oral sex on the boy, who was then 17 years old. The APVC has received first-hand testimony stating that KS engaged in voyeurism by making the claimant, when he was a boy, take off his clothes, then watching him take a shower.

"Based on the testimonies and documentation described above, this panel has determined that KS committed sexual child abuse. Due to these transgressions, it is the determination of this panel that KS is not permitted to have any contact with ISKCON or ISKCON-affiliated organizations for five years from the date of this Official Decision. This restriction includes a prohibition from visiting an ISKCON temple or participating in ISKCON functions. After five years from the date of this Official Decision KS may reapply to the APVC or the GBC Executive Committee for reinstatement into ISKCON. This application for reinstatement will be considered if KS complies with the following stipulations: (1) He must contribute at least $10,000 to an organization dedicated to serving Vaishnava youth, such as Children of Krishna, the APVC, or a gurukula approved by the APVC. (2) He must write apology letters to all the victims described in this letter. In these letters he must fully acknowledge his transgressions of child abuse, and he must take full responsibility for those actions. Also, he must express appropriate remorse, and offer to make amends to the victims. These letters should be sent to the APVC, not directly to the victims. (3) He must undergo a psychological evaluation by a mental health professional pre-approved by the APVC, and he must comply with recommendations for ongoing therapy described in the evaluation report and by the APVC. (4) He must fully comply with all governmental investigations into misconduct on his part./ After KS complies with the four conditions above, his application for reinstatement will be considered. If KS is readmitted as a member of ISKCON, then his participation in the activities of the organization must be constrained as follows: (5) KS cannot reside overnight on ISKCON property or on the property of an organization affiliated with ISKCON. (6) KS cannot lead kirtans or give class at an ISKCON temple or at an ISKCON function, or at any function of an organization affiliated with ISKCON. (7) He cannot perform any service that involves association with children for ISKCON or an ISKCON-affiliated organization (A child is defined as a person under 18 years of age). (8) He must show this document to the temple president or facility manager of any ISKCON temple or project that he visits, and obtain a signed statement that the president or manager has read this decision. He must send the signed copy of the decision to the APVC. (9) He cannot visit ISKCON property or attend an ISKCON function if his child abuse victims or their family members are present, unless, uncoerced and without manipulation, they give their consent. (10) He is not permitted to hold any positions in the ISKCON organization, or in any organization affiliated with ISKCON. (11) If KS violates any of the dictates of this Official Decision, then he can have no association with ISKCON temples or projects until his case is reviewed by the APVC. [...] These judgments constitute the minimum restrictions that an ISKCON organization may place on KS. Any specific ISKCON organization may choose to invoke more stringent restrictions. [...] Judges serving on this case were: [names of judges]. The Case Manager, APVC Director at the time of this Official Decision was Dhira Govinda das.”

EXCERPTS FROM UPCOMING BOOK SERIES BY HRISHIKESH DAS

From Doktorski’s book on New Vrindaban (NV) and KS, Gold, Guns, and God: Swami Bhaktipada & West Virginia Hare Krishnas, Ch. 35: The Secret Homosexual Society- The Inner Sanctum.

(START) “The devil and the devotee reside in the same body.”- Kirtanananda Swami (KS)
PRACTICING HOMOSEXUALS: Was it possible that Cheryl Wheeler was correct in her suspicion that her son with Hayagriva had been sexually molested by KS? Certainly her husband’s behavior was not up to Vaishnava standards; he became known throughout ISKCON as a major sense enjoyer; one who consistently breaks the regulative principles, especially regarding illicit sex and intoxication. Satsvarupa put it mildly: “Over the years, Hayagriva has experienced his own difficulties.” From the very earliest days of NV, did Hayagriva and KS ever strictly followed the regulative principles of Krishna consciousness? Although before meeting Prabhupada in July, 1966, they had been practicing homosexuals (with teenage partners), it is likely both followed the regulative principles while living at Swamiji’s 26 Second Ave. ashram. Prabhupada made it known that homosexuality was demonic. “the homosexual appetite of a man for another man is demonic and is not for any sane male in the ordinary course of life.” (SBhag 3.20.26 purport) “The world is degrading to the lowest status, even less than animal. The animal also do not support homosex. They have never sex life between male to male. They are less than animal. People are becoming less than animal. This is all due to godlessness. (SPConv May 25, 1972, Los Angeles) “I am very sorry that you have taken to homosex. It will not help you advance in your attempt for spiritual life. In fact, it will only hamper your advancement. I do not know why you have taken to such abominable activities. What can I say? Anyway, try to render whatever service you can to Krishna. Even though you are in a very degraded condition Krishna, being pleased with your service attitude, can pick you up from your fallen state. You should stop this homosex immediately. It is illicit sex, otherwise, your chances of advancing in spiritual life are nil. Show Krishna you are serious, if you are.” (SPL Lalitananda 26 May, 1975)

Novice devotees often follow very strictly for a few months or a few years, but all devotees’ vows are eventually tested in time. Hayagriva and KS’s vows were tested after about one year of following the regulative principles and they failed the test. KS resumed smoking marijuana after he left ISKCON in Sept. 1967 and it is probable that he also resumed his homosexual relationship with Hayagriva and other partners. When KS and Hayagriva returned to ISKCON in July 1968 it is unlikely that they renewed their vows and following strictly. How could they—living alone without association in the wilderness of West Virginia? This suspicion is corroborated by several devotees. [...] One of NV’s neighbors who was friends with Hayagriva since 1968 remembered, “Howard [...] he has never hidden the fact that he was a blatant homosexual, and that his preference was younger men in sexual partners.” During 1969 in England, Umapati das verbally chastised Hayagriva for his homosexual activities. Hanuman Swami recalled, “When I was in England in 1969 (living at John Lennon estate) I witnessed a very big verbal fight, where Umapati was trying to lecture Howard ‘that he should stop his homosexual lifestyle.’” During May 1972, Hayagriva had so many difficulties that he resigned as president of NV. [...] While Hayagriva vacationed in Mexico and India he found dark-skinned young men with whom he enjoyed sporting pleasures. One devotee who spent time with KS and Hayagriva in India claimed, “It was known that Hayagriva preferred dark-skinned young men.” Hayagriva was known at NV for his parties with young dark-skinned Mexican men. He even boasted to his friends about his young homosexual adventures. Randall Gorby said that Hayagriva called his Mexican boys “his treasure of the Sierra Madre.” [...]

In public, Bhaktipada preached about the evils of sex, but in private he indulged his senses. NV had an underground secret homosexual society of perhaps a dozen or more practicing homosexuals and pedophiles. Soon after I joined the community in Aug. 1978 I was unwittingly auditioned for membership in this secret society. At the time I did not know what was happening; I thought I happened to overhear a mock debate about homosexuality, but years later, after hearing reliable accounts of some of KS’s sexual escapades, I understood I had been tested to see if I was open to gay sex. [...] Some others claimed that children in the community were abused both physically and sexually. Naranarayana das, who first visited NV in 1968 and lived there 1969-70, believed that the first two boys (young teenagers) who came to NV had been molested by Hayagriva, who, he claimed: “was frequently a pedophile. He actually destroyed the lives of two devotee boys: [G] and [B]. Later when he was living in Ensenada, in Baja California, Mexico, he had a thing going with some of the boys there.” Labangalatika dasi, who lived at NV from 1969-72, claimed, “Hayagriva to me is a very dangerous ...child molester. ...He did a lot of service by Srila Prabhupada’s mercy, which is for his eternal benefit, but ...it should be known what he had become and what things he did. He molested [B], Silavati’s son ...for sex.” Puskara dasa, who lived in NV in 1971, also claimed that Hayagriva molested Birbhadra and Giresh.

KIRTANANANDA BATHES NAKED BOYS: In 1970, while traveling with Prabhupada in India, KS started a daily program of bathing naked boys at the Calcutta temple. This caused anxiety and dissension amongst his Godbrothers and they tried to convince him to stop. Srila Prabhupada himself had to personally mediate in the affair and end KS’s “bathing program.” Hanuman Swami remembered: “I met KS for the first time in Calcutta. There were just six of us devotees living in a house with Prabhupada, and one day Tamal-Krishna got very upset because KS was bringing hordes of boys inside the house, bathing them, feeding them, and then sending them away. This was KS’s daily program. Tamal-Krishna thought that the neighbors would wonder [...] Tamal went to see Prabhupada [who] was in complete agreement with Tamal and in a subsequent meeting told KS to end his program. KS—who was sitting directly in front of Prabhupada with only Tamal and me in the room—became insolent and questioned Prabhupada, ‘Why do you give preference to Tamal-Krishna above anybody else in the movement these days?’ KS badgered Prabhupada, asking two, three, four time the same question in a row very quickly, ‘Why him, why him, why him?’ I was a new devotee at the time, and I was horrified to hear KS actually raising his voice and interrogating his spiritual master. [...] Prabhupada sat there for a very long moment, then slowly but firmly said, ‘I am like the sun. The sun is the sun; it shines for everyone. It all depends on how close you want to come; how much you want to expose yourself to the sun.’ And that was the end of the argument.”

Hanuman Swami: “KS made sexual advances toward me [...] we were in Calcutta together, in 1970. [...] KS took me aside and told me in a low quiet voice near my face that Tibetan monks in the monasteries were permitted to have sex between monks. After a few times, I made it clear to him that I was not interested [...] it was a come-on move on me. In those days I was a new devotee—I had no idea that Keith was gay.” [...]

BOYS AT NEW VRINDABAN: When Kirtanananda Swami returned from India, his homosexual and pedophilic tendencies continued. He secretly and routinely molested boys and young men in the community and personally picked gurukula boys to stay with him overnight in his cabin at Bahulaban. [...] “When Maharaja was living in his cabin, it was considered a great privilege to get to stay in the back room. Only a handful of selected boys got the opportunity.” NV residents assumed KS [...] taught them about Krishna consciousness. Little did the naïve Brijabasis understand what really happened [...] behind closed doors. One boy claimed: “I got molested by KS. I couldn’t speak about it for years until I got counseling. So when I saw the online post glorifying this madman, I got nauseated... I still hurt from what KS did to me but I’m going on with my life.”

In 1978 KS left the little cabin at Bahulaban and moved into a suite on the fourth floor of the administration building at Bahulaban where the men’s ashram was located. One boy explained: “I came to NV in Aug. 1978 with my mother [...] one summer KS had us stay in the brahmachari ashram. After finishing our afternoon services, we’d shower up and attend the evening aroti. I remember several times, KS invited me and another boy to take a shower in his personal bathroom [...] He had a brand new bathtub [...] To my surprise, he told us to shower together, completely naked, and he insisted that we keep the shower curtain open! He stared at us the whole time. I was embarrassed and extremely uncomfortable.” Bathing naked was highly irregular behavior for devotees. When a new brahmachari joined in NV, one of the first things he was taught was modesty; the genitals should always be covered, even while showering. [KS] continued inviting youngsters to stay with him. One boy remembered, “As we grew older we surrounded him at mangal aroti, and a few of us would go to his house and stay there, sometimes for a week on end, when he had his new house at Vrindaban.”

KS’s sexual molestation of boys and young men continued apparently without interruption and may have increased in frequency as the years passed. One mother of a gurukula boy remembered: “I joined in Columbus, on May 1, 1979 [...] My 7 year old son, [D] went directly to Nandagram [school] after spending a week with KS at Bahulaban probably during June. I stayed in the Columbus Temple until Dec. 1979, when I went to visit my son at the NV gurukula. When I saw him, he proudly exclaimed to me: ‘Did you know that I had a great honor when I first came here!?’ KS selected me out of all the kids to be his personal servant and live with him for a whole week. Do you know what he did? He fondled my genitals!’ I was shocked with disbelief, as I had never used that word ‘fondle’ in my son’s presence. Where did he learn it? However I dismissed his complaint as a weird manifestation of a child’s fantastic imagination and chastised him: ‘Don’t make up stories like that!’”

YOUNG BOYS MESSAGE BHAKTIPADA IN THE TEMPLE: After 1983, none of the Brijabasis, with the exception of a few such as Hayagriva and Gopinatha, suspected that KS was sexually attracted to boys and young men. NV residents concluded KS had only fatherly feelings toward the children. The Brijabasis observed KS in the temple daily receiving affection from the gurukula boys, but they didn’t see the perverted pastimes of a pedophile, they saw a pure devotee allowing little children to get special mercy which would help them go back to Godhead. There was no secrecy involved; KS received this affection from the boys, in full view of their parents, right in the temple room. Obviously, he was not trying to hide any illicit activities. [...] described one noon aroti at the temple [...] “There is already a large crowd waiting close up at the altar. “Bhaktipada! Bhaktipada! Jaya Srila Bhaktipada!” [...] Sometimes he smiles sweetly. Looking at the deities he appears to become stunned... Then he would look lovingly at the Gurukula boys who were rubbing his feet and calves, and he rubs their heads in reciprocation. [...] his luminous eyes that sometimes appear meditative, stunned, or shy. When he is seated, small boys wearing T-shirts stating “Srila Bhaktipada’s Honor Student,” gather around him. They sit on the floor, holding his feet, or stand behind him, touching his head and arms. The dancers direct their attention to him. They are his servants, and he is their representative for God on Earth.”

KS's Indian disciples were particularly affectionate towards their spiritual master and sometimes competed with each other to massage him. During a visit to Bombay, Nityodita recalled: "Wherever KS is, he gives his darshan freely to whoever wants it, but in Bombay, his darshan potency seems to expand unlimitedly. He totally gives himself and makes himself available to the devotees. Just like when he sits down in his room, one devotee begins massaging his right foot, another massages his left foot, one devotee grabs his right arm, and another the left. The next devotee gives him a head massage—until every extremity seems taken. Then another devotee might come to massage his calves, so sometimes he has 6-7 devotees squeezing him all over, simultaneously... I've seen KS sit there with a smile on his face, preaching. He appears to be simply a receptacle for the devotees' love for Krishna." Nityananda das, former president of New Orleans temple and New Talavan farm in Mississippi, recalled, "I came to NV several times between 1981-86, and KS would give me the tour. Once he did so with [S] riding on his lap in the jeep. Weird. He also offered me as many wives as I wanted if I came to NV with my incense business. I was insulted by his low class offer." [...] When he traveled to Cincinnati in late-July 1987, a newspaper reporter specifically asked him about the two young boys in his car. The Cincinnati Post reported: "A smiling, pot-bellied man in saffron sits cross-legged in the back of his black Cadillac limousine with a German shepherd attack dog and two young boys. A Bach fugue is playing on the stereo. 'The boys?' the smiling man says. 'They're children of members of my community. I take a couple boys with me when I go out. It's an incentive for them. The best boys get to go with me.'"

KS seemed to described himself in his 1988 book, Joy of No Sex, when he wrote about the roller coaster-ride of the chronic sexoholic, although at the time few could possibly imagine such an ironic scenario. KS explained, "For most people, sex is a compulsion, cultivated by years of giving in to desire. Like an opiate, sex ceases to satisfy but cannot be given up. The sexoholic is hooked. Sex has become his second nature, an integral part of his personality. He knows that he has lost control, but he won't admit it. Sometimes he prays to die in his sleep, hoping then that the madman possessing him will go away. But in that sleep of death what sexual dreams may come?" In the book, KS described himself further, "If a religious man cannot control his sexual desires, he is called a hypocrite."

FEW SUSPECTED: Although KS (and others) enjoyed the company of boys and young men, he also put on a good show of appearing to care for the children. After Sri Galim and [LM] were arrested for sexual child abuse, most devotees thought these two cases were anomalies. Some others who visited the community agreed that child abuse was rare at NV. Sandy McElroy [...] came to live at NV in 1988 for her research paper on "Special Problems in Criminal Justice." She also spent much time with the children of NV and helped to educate the children to recognize warning signs of sexual and physical abuse. McElroy became convinced that child abuse and sexual molestation were rare in NV. She also met with KS and she was charmed by his "intelligence," his "great personality" and his "nice smile." She could not imagine that KS could ever hurt a child; in fact, she felt she understood why he was "loved by so many, especially the children."

BHAKTIPADA'S FAVORITE: ADOLESCENTS: Although KS enjoyed the company of prepubescent boys, what he (and Hayagriva) really appreciated were young men "at the end of adolescence." When KS was interviewed for a TV documentary (1996), he expressed his appreciation for the all-attractive cowherd boy of Braja. KS glorified the adolescent qualities of Krishna, "That boy is not an ordinary boy. [He's] just at the end of adolescence; just where manhood begins; about 16 to 18. Everything is in full development. No deterioration." KS's description of the glory of Krishna's young manhood was uncanny in its resemblance to the description of the 17-year-old who lived with Howard and Keith in NYC 30 years earlier. Howard described, "I delight in having the boy with me again and in seeing that his beauty was only beginning to blossom and would be at its peak for a good while longer. A thing of beauty is a joy for five years, I think. Its loveliness decreases. It eventually passes into nothingness. Keith puts his hand on Jimmy's knee." KS's appreciation of young men had changed little after 30 years of chanting Hare Krishna. [...] In addition to prepubescent boys, it seemed KS also enjoyed the intimate company of post pubescent young men such as teenagers. He attended with Hayagriva some of the parties hosted by the Mexican workers recruited by Hayagriva (many were homosexual). At one party KS became intoxicated, fell down and injured his knee or ankle, after which he used crutches. Photographs show [this]. Tirtha das recalled: "I learned that Hayagriva had revealed to some people that KS was getting frisky with some of the young Mexican laborers. The Mexicans would throw some pretty wild parties at their 'house' from time to time. On at least one of those occasions KS stopped by and the alleged incident(s) occurred... It was sometime around 1979. I remember the incident because it was during that encounter [at the Mexican's party] that KS somehow hurt one of his legs, severely twisting his ankle or knee. Following this he was laid up and walked with two canes for a time instead of his customary one cane. I heard of it from one of Hayagriva's local friends, Randall Gorby. He said Hayagriva told him [...] Hayagriva, would at times succumb to the temptation of intoxication [when] his tongue loosened [and] he revealed to his wife intimate details of secret trysts occurring in the community. Among them, that KS was having homosexual affairs with youthful Mexican immigrant workers. Affairs that had been going on for some time. Even as he sat on the Vyasasana and initiated disciples. When the episodes began to leak, KS sent the boys back to Mexico."

RUMORS WERE IGNORED: Certainly the Brijabasis had been deceived by KS: he was having illicit sex and taking intoxication in secret. Sometimes devotees heard rumors about KS. Once a Brijabasi whispered to me that KS attended parties with the Mexicans, but I dismissed it as rumor. I believed KS was a pure devotee and I denied anything that I might see or hear which was contrary to my belief. We were taught that the spiritual master was above criticism. [...] Prabhupada explained, "A devotee should be fixed in the conclusion that the spiritual master cannot be subject to criticism and should never be considered equal to a common man. Even if there seems to be some discrepancy according to an imperfect devotee's estimation, the devotee should be fixed in the conviction that even if his spiritual master goes to a liquor shop, he is not a drunkard; rather, he must have some purpose in going there." Neither I, nor the mother of the 7 yearold boy, nor the other Brijabasis, were alone in our blind devotion to KS. It seemed everyone believed he was a pure devotee, except for those few members of the secret homosexual inner sanctum like Hayagriva who knew him intimately. And because of our blind faith, we were really blind: blind to reality and living blissfully ignorant in our imaginary world of make-believe in the "Cult of Kirtanananda." (END Ch. 35)

BHAKTIPADA'S 48TH BIRTHDAY PARTY by Hrishikesh das

On Sept. 2, 1985 (at the annual NV Labor Day Festival), KS's 48th birthday was celebrated with great pomp and circumstance. Clearly, no offering could be too extravagant for the spiritual master. NV News described some of the exciting festivities commemorating the birthday of the spiritual master, "KS's vyasa-puja began early [Monday] morning with a fire yajna and initiations... The procession, offerings, gift presentations, feast offering and remnant pass-out lasted almost 3 hours and were accompanied by an ecstatic kirtan. The temple reception was followed by a swing ceremony in KS's yard, and the most spirited and highly-bid auction to hit NV. A set of KS's counter beads went for $3,000, his japa beads for $7,000, a peacock feather went for $80." Hansadutta das (Hans Kary)—one of the original 11 zonal acharyas who had been demoted 2 years earlier by the GBC for illicit sex, intoxication, and shooting bullets into a Berkeley liquor store and Cadillac dealership—attended KS's birthday celebration and led a glorious kirtan. When Hansadutta returned to the West Coast, he spoke to the Seattle temple president Rocana about the exuberant kirtan at NV, who recalled: "Hansadutta also tried to make a come back by taking shelter of another psychotic, KS. Birds of a feather flock together. K "swami" was still in ISKCON at the time, around the time the reform meetings were taking place at NV. Hansadutta had then become pro-KS... KS's birthday came at just about the same time as Janmastami and Srila Prabhupada's birthday, so NV was into merging all three into one great love festival. Hansadutta attended and spoke, trumpeting the glorious accomplishments of “Bhaktipada.” The peak of the festivities was a kirtan, with KS on his opulent throne, and his disciples and followers and well-wishers glorifying the “acharya.” Hansadutta said it was the loudest and most enthusiastic kirtan he had ever heard or seen. He compared it to kirtans done in the presence of Srila Prabhupada on his vyasasana and said the intensity and potency of those kirtans for Srila Prabhupada was dwarfed by this ultra-ecstatic kirtan for KS. He said it would not be possible for a kirtan of this overwhelming exuberance to take place. The kirtan proved that he was a pure devotee.”

Swami Knew of Plan To Kill Dissident

By DAVID SHARP
Associated Press Writer
MARTINSBURG, W.Va. — A former Hare Krishna leader testified today that the one-time head of West Virginia's New Vrindaban community knew of plans to kill a dissident who was spreading rumors of homosexuality, drug use and child abuse at the Northern Panhandle commune.
Terry Sheldon, who headed the religion's Cleveland temple, said he told Swami Bhaktipada that two devotees were in California with plans to kill dissident Stephen Bryant.
“He was reflective. Then he turned to me and said, ‘Maybe that’s what Krishna wants,’” Sheldon said.
Bhaktipada, 58, is accused of amassing more than $10 million through moneymaking schemes using unlicensed logos and trademarks on T-shirts, hats and other items at the nation's largest Krishna community that spread over 4,000 acres.
The former New Vrindaban leader is on trial in U.S. District Court on

CONCLUSION

After digesting the history of “Bhaktifraud,” we can only advise that we should simply take shelter of the Founder Acharya Srila Prabhupada rather than be misled by ambitious, charismatic but fatally flawed conditioned souls such as Kirtanananda das. Many surrendered their everything to him and his inspired vision, only to be betrayed and cheated. Srila Prabhupada never did this, and never will do this. Unfortunately, KS, although certainly the most infamous, along with Tamal, was not the only bogus cheater successor guru in ISKCON. There are over a hundred others, over half of whom have already disappointed and betrayed their follower’s trust, and been exposed as imposter spiritualists who cheated their misled and innocent followers.

CHAPTER 135: RADHANATH SWAMI

THE REMARKABLE RADHANATHA SWAMI SENSATION

In the 1990’s, ISKCON’s unofficial hero was Harikesha Swami. He was at his peak, with his European zone distributing more of Srila Prabhupada’s books than anywhere else, and with his benevolent financial support of many ISKCON programs. After 20 years of horrendous ISKCON history full of fiascos, including the fall from good standing of many ISKCON gurus, Harikesha had become the new hope and inspiration. Then in 1998 he had an erratic nervous breakdown, married his massage therapist, and retired to Alachua, Florida devotee community. Thereafter, Radhanath Swami (RS) rose in prominence as the shining light of ISKCON; he was soft-spoken, good mannered, gentle, sensitive, and danced beautifully in kirtans. He became one of ISKCON’s most popular gurus and he has attracted droves of disciples worldwide. He has wealthy disciples, and his Chowpatty temple and others bustle with energy. RS arranges meetings and engagements with prominent persons such as the US president, Dalai Lama, celebrities, and other “spiritualists.” However, although he has tremendous opportunities to preach straight Krishna consciousness like Srila Prabhupada did, instead he gives “feel-good” talks and essentially promotes himself. His book The Journey Home tells how he searched India for the truth and a teacher, meeting almost all the well-known yogis, tantrics, gurus, mendicants, and ascetics- from the Himalayas to Vrindaban. Later he published a second book (The Journey Within) which details his progress of spiritual realizations. He does book signing events and gives public lectures, sharing watered-down spiritual inspiration and wisdom about compassion, love, forgiveness, sharing.

RS has also espoused a Vegan position regarding boycotting milk due to animal cruelty, something Srila Prabhupada never advocated, contradicting SBhagwatam's verdict that milk is the one completely nutritious food upon which one can live. This is another of his calculated compromises of Srila Prabhupada's teachings simply to attract more followers from amongst Vegans. Srila Prabhupada, however, knew well of the modern treatment of the cows of whose milk he would purchase, and never adopted Veganism. RS is promoting mundane social welfare work as well, and he does not discriminate nor avoid mayavadi or sahajiya so-called spiritualists. This is all integral to the RS star guru sensation. Many other ISKCON leaders and gurus follow his example, misleading followers and admirers by greatly deviating the Hare Krishna movement from the transcendental course charted by Srila Prabhupada, bringing these deviations to a new level of sophistication.

RADHNATH SWAMI'S BOOKS ARE JOURNEYS INTO MAYA

Radhanath Swami's autobiographical books are entirely about himself, and many devotees find them abhorrent. They highlight many bogus spiritualists to appeal to pseudo-spiritualists and sentimentalists. At his public book events, attending devotees are required not to wear Vaishnava dress, tilak, sikhas, neck beads, and bead bags. He is on a self-promotional campaign. He loves to tell stories about bogus yogis and wonderful people who open orphanages. He has embraced the principles of humanitarian welfare work in his books, public image and lectures, and also through his disciples who operate hospitals and medical clinics, and he is described as "guide, community builder, activist, and acclaimed author" (not as a Vaishnava or Hare Krishna). The "spiritual" instructions and "wisdom" in his books and public lectures are largely sub-religious, similar to Christianity, dripping with sentimentalism. His contrived realizations are time-travelled back into his stories about his pre-ISKCON spiritual search. He claims the Hare Krishna mantra was imparted to him by the River Ganges Herself, and saints or divine agents appear in his stories about his journey "home" as though they were a series of miracles by "God" anointing a favorite son on his divinely ordained mission to deliver the world. It is a sickening self-promotion as another narcissistic false prophet.

A few candid and critical reviews on his books: (1) "There's a book [The Journey Home] [...] written by probably the most popular leader within ISKCON today –Srila Prabhupada would not have been pleased, because there are pictures of all these mayavadis and mundane people [...] and there is not a bad word about them. People that Prabhupada, if he spoke about them at all, would criticize [...] At the end of the book he says that now having come to Prabhupada, now I'm engaged in helping with hospitals and feeding children and eye clinics [...] So as I see it there are serious problems with that [...] if anyone read that book thousands of times, they'd never even get the idea that you're supposed to surrender to Krishna, the Supreme Personality of Godhead [...] some erotic or almost erotic scenes [...] it's not the duty of a sannyasi to write about such things [...] I just can't imagine what Prabhupada's response would have been if he saw that book, but our movement has changed, it's not for the better." (Bhakti Vikas Swami, ISKCON guru: Aug. 24, 2011) (2) "I read The Journey Home and it left a bad taste. It's about his travels to and in India before he became Srila Prabhupada's disciple. He describes incidents which should not be told by a sannyasi nor by a preacher of Krishna consciousness. Many of his stories are not credible, obviously embellished, sentimentalized, and they glorify himself, not Srila Prabhupada. With the same effort used to sell his autobiography (is he competing with Yogananda?), even if he sold 1% as many of Srila Prabhupada's Gita, he would realize 100 times greater benefits for himself and his readers. What is the credit in meeting so many unauthorised gurus and rascal mayavadis? Why is he proud of his associations with so many bogis, mayavadis, and cheaters, such as the rascal Neem Karoli Baba?" (Nityananda das, 2019) (3) From BTP #49, 2015: "RS glorifies a number of non-Krishna consciousness teachers: 'Anandamayi Ma was like a mother to me. Neem Keroli Baba, his joyfulness, his enthusiasm to give God's love [...] Swami Rama, Swami Muktananda, J. Krishnamurti, Satyanarayan Goenka-ji of Vipassana meditation teaching [...] I met with Swami Satchidananda and BKS Iyengar [...] I met His Divine Grace Srila Prabhupada. [...] In his teachings I found a wisdom that included all that I had learned from these other teachers. I am still trying to share the precious gifts that he gave me and all of these other great saints, what they have given me.' (RS interview 2010) RS calls these teachers "great saints," and their teachings "precious gifts" which he is trying to share along with Srila Prabhupada's teachings. However, these teachers have philosophies in contradiction to Srila Prabhupada's teachings, not accepting Krishna as the Supreme Personality of Godhead. One of them does not even accept the guru: SP: Nowadays, some of the rascals, they are preaching openly that you haven't got to go to a guru. Huh? Is it not? GUEST: Krishnamurti is... SP: Yes, this rascal was speaking like that. (SPConv Dec. 20, 1975) RS claims what he learned from them is "included" in Srila Prabhupada's teachings, which is ridiculously false. RS promotes a false equivalence between Srila Prabhupada and these teachers, whom he calls "great saints," as if they are on the same level: both are giving "precious gifts." (4) "The author of this book is a kanistha adhikari and the book is an offense against Srila Prabhupada because he has equated him with other nonsense non-parampara ganja-smoking so-called gurus. This book should be rejected and it shouldn't be read by any devotee in ISKCON. It belittles and equates Srila Prabhupada to nonsense gurus. Avoid this book and author." (Gargamuni das, 2016)

Why sell RS's books and not Srila Prabhupada's books? It appears that a curtain of maya has descended over the good sense of the mission and followers of Srila Prabhupada. This is another way in which Srila Prabhupada's mission has been deviated. One advertisement for RS's book, The Journey Within, contains these vague descriptions: (1) Conveyed the Divine Light (2) Move closer to the truth within you. It certainly appears as though impersonalism, sahajiyaism, and pseudo-spirituality complements mundane welfare activities and philanthropy in the new ISKCON. This is due to the guru business disease and the pushing of Srila Prabhupada and his teachings further into the background. The mission of Srila Prabhupada continues to be poisoned by ambitious pretenders who are aspiring to be served, worshipped, loved, famous, and successful, just as Srila Prabhupada was. This is envy of the true pure devotee. His books are reviewed: iskconirm.com/docs/webpages/btp49\_radhanath\_swami2.html & www.youtube.com/watch?v=ioSD7sUnJ2Y

"THE RADHANATH-IZATION OF ISKCON"

From an article by Vastavika das (Sept. 16, 2012), summarizing complaints and doubts about RS's preaching style: "Hospitals, free school lunch programs, counseling systems, retreat centers, autobiographies, an emphasis on human compassion and love— the Ramakrishna mission should be concerned because ISKCON is competing in their backyard. Did it ever occur to RS why Srila Prabhupada condemned philanthropic activities, and emphasized the importance of telling everyone we meet about Krishna, not peace, love, compassion, etc? In the early days, while RS was under KS's care in New Vrindaban, we were preaching in Srila Prabhupada's own uncompromising verbiage. We all knew philanthropy was a trick of maya. Compassion, as we understood it from Srila Prabhupada, was to practically force the Holy Names on the 'innocent,' and mercy was 'prasadam distribution.' We were trained in this un-sentimentality. With that mood, ISKCON expanded in the West rapidly.

"KS was the first ISKCON leader to steer away from Srila Prabhupada's presentation. He introduced a Christian veneer to the Movement. The robes, the English hymns of Sanskrit prayers, etc. were instituted in the cloak of outreach, very Abrahamic style. KS associates such as RS, Devamrita Swami, Malati, et al embraced these changes and remained with KS six or more years after he had been excommunicated from ISKCON. They were inspired by KS's vision, not by any loyalty to Prabhupada's ISKCON. [...] which, from RS's perspective, needed some changes. He had been mentored by KS as his intimate friend. Though he assumed KS's role and Chowpatty flock after KS was jailed, RS never forgot the philosophical (mis)understandings that forged his own vision of how Krishna consciousness must be practiced. RS took a page from KS's playbook. RS's folksy style was ingratiating.

He has a flawless memory, engaging style, and he loves to talk. "Shall I go on?" he asks his fawning congregation after two hours of storytelling. RS is a style-setter when it comes to long discourses; many ISKCON gurus have adopted this marathon pontificating, though Srila Prabhupada rarely exceeded 40 minutes when lecturing. ISKCON has appeared to become a more 'gentle and kinder' society as it has expanded. Shades of gray have appeared where there used to be black and white. Now you don't even have to chant 16 rounds a day to be considered a "senior devotee." This wider circle of inclusiveness is the background upon which RS has injected his vision of how people should dedicate themselves to a life of 'service' (not necessarily to Krishna). You hear repeatedly in his lectures about service, compassion, and love. Is he an evangelical preacher extolling the virtues of a true Christian? From his emphasis, Krishna consciousness seems to be a by-product of service to humanity. I thought service to Krishna was service to humanity. RS's influence is everywhere as he rises to position of most admired ISKCON guru. Whatever he does, ISKCON leadership follows. For example, writing autobiographies without much mention Srila Prabhupada.

"Prabhupada was a Vaikuntha man, transcendent to all that RS was searching for or had experienced, but this is not found from reading his autobiography, a watering down of the profound presentation of the philosophy which Srila Prabhupada delivered in a way that created a worldwide society of Krishna bhaktas without pandering to peace, compassion, and love, as it is currently understood by the non-devotees. ISKCON is moving steadily in the direction of a more 'universal, inclusive society.' I thought ISKCON's strength was in its 'take no prisoners' presentation of Chaitanya Mahaprabhu's mission, that made it a very exclusive club indeed. All the non-Vaishnavas [in his book] can't help anybody. RS's latest adaptation of Krishna consciousness is to become a Vegan. He does not want to support the exploitation of the cow who is milked until dry and then slaughtered. But Srila Prabhupada never instructed us to exorcise dairy from our diets, though he certainly was aware of the travesties. Does that say RS knows better than his guru? Is he more 'compassionate?' Now there will be a marked increase in Vegans in ISKCON, as word spreads that RS eschews the ingestion of anything made with milk. That just is not Srila Prabhupada's program. Without milk preps, our preaching arsenal is depleted. There is a great similarity between Amaji (the hugging 'Ma') and RS. They both chant Hare Krishna bhajan. They both have opened hospitals and orphanages. They both preach the gospel of 'love' and 'oneness.' And both enjoy giving lots of hugs. In my opinion, RS presents Krishna consciousness through the lens of a devotee heavily tinged by sentimentality rooted in impersonalism. He is an immaculate Western sadhu. He has good sadhana, outstanding verbal skills, and empathic qualities. What's not to like? RS provides a model for how to act if you are looking to be inclusive. Gone is the day when exclusivity was a marketable commodity in the eyes of most ISKCON leaders. Nearly all have been jumping on the 'integrate' agenda. Recently, the Russian edition of Science of Self Realization purposely omitted the chapter where Srila Prabhupada discusses ISKCON as not being Hindu. ISKCON is becoming quite ecumenical, less confrontational – more lamb than lion. Who knows, the GBC might re-name it 'The International Society for God Consciousness.'(ISGCON)" (END)

RADHANATH WITH RAMDEV & HINDU SPIRITUALISTS

MAYAVADI ASSOCIATIONS

From the same article above: "In his book Srila Prabhupada appears in the end not as superior to the mayavadis featured throughout the odyssey, but just as one that appealed to Richard Slavin as he vetted what the 70's in Kali Yuga had to offer. I don't think that RS has ever resolved the mayavadi/personalist confusion. Srila Prabhupada has spoken and written so much more about the poison of impersonalism, yet RS continues to entertain intimate relationships with them. He is very fond of staying at residences of self-proclaimed impersonalists even while in cities that have ISKCON temples. He appears to have taken a self-edited understanding of Srila Prabhupada's moods and neglected the his guru's denunciations of the mayavadis, such as: 'Sunnyavadi, they say, "There is no God, and there is nothing, fact. Everything is combination of some illusory things." This is sunyavadi. And the Mayavadi, they say, "Yes, there is God, but He has no form." Therefore we have to kill both of them. Nirvisesa-sunyavad-pascaty-a-desatarine. The whole Western world are filled up with these sunyavadi and impersonalists. India is also nowadays, but there are, still there are devotees in the acharya-sampradaya. They are fighting against sunyavada and nirvisesa. (SPConv Dec. 3, 1975)' RS has cultivated a preaching style that accommodates the mayavadas quite comfortably. He doesn't speak with the passion of a personalist who is willing to be unpopular for his dogma. He has taken the path of least resistance. Unfortunately, that approach dilutes the message rather than making it stronger. Devotees find pleasure in freely associating with other mayavadas? He doesn't believe, as Srila Prabhupada warns, that this sanga will destroy his bhakti-lata-bija. Srila Prabhupada 21 Dec. 1967: '...I was glad to hear from Gargamuni that you refused to set me in the N.Y. Times columns along with the other so called Swamis or yogis. We have a distinct position that we are neither cheated nor cheaters. We are the genuine representative of Krishna who is the friend of all living creatures. We must play our part independently ...We can not make any compromise with anyone for cheap popularity.' Also from CC Adi-lila 17.53: 'Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu gave protection to devotees and killed many demons in the course of His preaching work. He specifically mentioned that the Mayavadi philosophers are the greatest demons. Therefore he warned all others not to hear the Mayavada philosophy. mayavadibhasya sunile haya sarva-nasa: simply by hearing the Mayavada interpretation of the shastras, one is doomed.'"

RS attended a ISKCON Seattle 2016 Kirtan Yoga program with guest singer Gina Sala. Website: www.ginasala.com: "Sacred names and syllables with devotion and groove: 'Gate gate para gate para sam gate bodhi svaha' Om shanti shanti shanti Om! Peace and blessings to all Beings! Jai Ma!"

HUMANITARIANISM, PHILANTHROPISM, MUNDANE WELFARE ACTIVITY

Many devotees have complained the GBC is asleep at the wheel as ISKCON gurus are drifting away from Srila Prabhupada's preaching model and not representing Srila Prabhupada in their activities and outlook. They refer to the introduction, practice, and promotion of humanitarianism, philanthropism, impersonalism, mundane welfare work, mundane education systems, demigod worship, and other things not part of the Vaishnava paradigm. They have moved away to an extreme degree from Srila Prabhupada's uncompromising stand on the accommodation of political correctness and mundane cultural standards of the demonic "civilization." Srila Prabhupada pointedly said we should not conform to public opinion, but we should change public opinion to conform to shastra or the will of God. From BTP #49, 2015:

"...RS also promotes a whole host of philanthropic projects, and in an interview he spoke about them as follows: 'We have a hospital. We do a lot of charitable eye camps and other such medical work [...] And for this purpose we started Bhaktivedanta Hospital, named after our beloved guru ACBSP, who taught us to be instruments of compassion for the body, mind and soul.' (RS interview 2010) RS claims such activities are based on Srila Prabhupada's teachings regarding "compassion for the body." But not so: "They are very much puffed up, that "We are doing this, opening hospital and school, and philanthropism, nationalism." Is there any such thing in the Bhagavad-gita? Is there any advice that "You open hospital, school and do this philanthropic work"? No." (SPlecture Mar. 8, 1973) Not only does RS deviate from Srila Prabhupada's teachings, but he cheats by claiming that this deviation is authorised by Srila Prabhupada. In Mumbai and Vrindaban, RS disciples and ISKCON congregational physicians have founded Bhaktivedanta Hospital, Bhaktivedanta Eye Clinic, and a series of medical facilities to serve the public with affordable or free health care, where devotees are also treated. Strictly speaking, these are quasi-ISKCON projects, although they are very closely associated, and ISKCON clearly reaps much public and social credit for these mundane welfare activities. Actually the GBC claims on its own website: '340,000: the number of patients treated by ISKCON hospitals such as

Bhaktivedanta Hospital in Mumbai, the Bhaktivedanta Hospice in Vrindavan, mobile clinics and eye camps.' Why are ISKCON gurus encouraging their disciples in humanitarian mundane welfare activities which were expressly decried by Srila Prabhupada? Has something changed since Srila Prabhupada imparted his purports on the sampradaya siddhanta? They have deviated from those teachings only to garner mundane laudations and cheap fame.

"The name of ISKCON nor of Bhaktivedanta should be used, and these projects should be the private business of devotees (if at all), not of the society, otherwise the public will come to see ISKCON as a mundane welfare society like the Ramakrishna Mission. These medical projects should be for the livelihood of devotees or to serve the Vaishnavas, but not become advertised, as they are now, as ISKCON's contribution to human welfare. Further, these projects solicit donations from the public and wealthy devotees like Alfred Ford (Ambarish das), but these donations would be much better utilized for pure Krishna consciousness preaching and opening of Hare Krishna temples. "Yes. Temple construction is different from hospital construction. That is for Krishna." (SPConv April 1, 1974) Srila Prabhupada wanted to open Hare Krishna temples, which would be spiritual hospitals to cure the material disease of the soul, and he wanted his followers to be fully engaged in preaching pure Krishna consciousness, the science of the soul. There will always be plenty of hospitals, clinics, welfare programs, but who will teach real knowledge of the soul? Prasadam distribution was approved and encouraged by Srila Prabhupada, as was our own gurukulas to train children as devotees. But Srila Prabhupada did not approve of mundane welfare work at all. Sometimes it is explained that the hospital staff preach to patients. But Srila Prabhupada's position on ISKCON or his followers being involved in these kinds of activities is clear. Obviously, preaching does not require a hospital, which takes a lot of money, time, and labor to carry on. Srila Prabhupada wanted direct engagement in preaching, not welfare activities for the poor, sick, unfortunate, and disabled with some preaching thrown in afterwards as a secondary priority. The primary focus of pure preaching by ISKCON devotees has been supplanted by these human welfare activities.

"ISKCON leaders should understand Srila Prabhupada's instructions on this matter, and by resolution, philosophical essays, and position clear this misunderstanding society-wide, even if it were to reduce the donations and cheap public appreciations. Pure devotional service is light-years superior to mundane welfare work, which is not ISKCON's concern. Srila Prabhupada taught us to distribute his books, chant Hare Krishna in public, give prasadam, operate temples (not hospitals, clinics, or yoga studios), worship the deities, have spiritual festivals. He did not ask us to feed the poor and give care to the needy (we give prasadam to everyone, not just the poor), have eye clinics, open hospitals, help the blind and widows, or open orphanages (unless they are completely converted into a Srila Prabhupada-style gurukula.) It is not an ISKCON sannyasi or guru's business to open a hospital. Nor do we simply do food distribution for public welfare; we must give spiritual education along with the prasadam. The notion arises that by doing human welfare activities the Hare Krishna movement gets a good public reputation which is positive for preaching. However: (1) our time meant for preaching the highest spiritual knowledge and welfare work is taken away for karmakandic activities, and (2) the public sees us as human welfare workers, not representing Krishna's message of surrender with love to Him. In 1977 Gopal Krishna returned from a Moscow book fair and asked Srila Prabhupada: '...whether it was alright to allow the government to rewrite his books, portraying Krishna as a great hero rather than as the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Gopal Krishna felt that we should grant permission because, at least, there would be something about Krishna. Prabhupada, however, said no.'"

SRILA PRABHUPADA QUOTES ON HUMAN WELFARE ACTIVITIES

(1) *"Thus the so-called renouncer, unable to remain in meditation upon Brahman, returns to materialistic activities by opening hospitals and schools and so on." (SBhag 7.13.27) (2) "As long as a conditioned soul does not have this knowledge, he wants to be the enjoyer of everything; he wants to become a humanitarian or philanthropist and open hospitals and schools for his fellow human beings. This is all illusion, for one cannot benefit anyone by such material activities." (SBhag 3.27.25) (3)

“Hospital-making business is there, going on by the government, by the state. You are not meant for making hospitals.” (SPlecture Aug. 21, 1966) (4) “So therefore the best advancement of civilization is not to open hospitals, but to give them a lesson that they may not fall sick and go to hospital.” (SPL) (5) “Those who are not devotees, therefore, are interested in so-called humanitarian or philanthropic work, such as opening a hospital or charitable institution.” (SBhag 3.25.27) (6) “Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu’s welfare activities were concerned to take the people ‘Back to Godhead’ by the simple devotional activity of ‘Sankirtan.’ That is the picture of the welfare activities of Lord Shri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. People misunderstand Him because He did not open any hospital, because He did not canvass for the undertakers or because he did not labour for any so-called social welfare work. But in fact what He did, that includes all varieties of social, political, humanitarian, altruistic, moral and spiritual work.” (TLC) (7) Hridayananda: You’re the only one, Prabhupada, who dares to criticize hospitals and schools. [laughter] SP: Yes. So many people came to request me... Even Dr. Ghosh. Eh? You know. Satsvarupa: He wanted you to open a medical dispensary. SP: “No, no, we are not going to waste our time in that way.” I frankly told him. We have no extra time to waste like that. What he thinks very big project, we say it is waste of time. [laughter] Hridayananda: Jaya. It is a completely revolutionary idea. SP: Yes. I cannot allow anyone to waste his valuable time of human life. (SPConv July 9, 1977) (8) “Nowadays, especially, it is very difficult to collect fund. If you say, ‘I am going to open a temple,’ nobody will give you. But if you say, ‘I am going to open a hospital,’ he’ll give you.” (SPlecture Oct. 22, 1974) (9) SP: Actually she has no... She is not a preacher. She is a sentimental so-called religionist among some women, and naturally their husbands... And she has no objection. Whatever you do, it doesn’t matter. Therefore she is getting some following. And posing herself as... She’s opening hospital. That means she has no asset. [...] We are going without opening hospital and school; rather challenging ...and diminishing everything, decrying. We do not agree with anyone, and still people like us. Is it not? (VedaBase) (10) “In Bhagavad-gita there is no such statement that you take care of the eyes of the people. There is no such statement. That is your manufactured idea.” (SPConv Jan. 8, 1977) (11) Bhagavat: That he has opened the clinic. SP: Daridra-narayana-seva. [laughs] We are not all these false things. Dr. Ghosh is also after daridra-narayana-seva. [break] We will collect medicine. Our... We shall pay for the expenditure. Our men will be engaged for bandaging. [laughs] Nonsense. Bhagavat: And the preaching stops. SP: Ah. They cannot understand what is the meaning of this Krishna consciousness. They are such dull-headed men. They have no brain to understand. (SPConv May 9, 1974) (12) “If government has got so many hospitals, what is the use of opening a teeny hospital by us? Vivekananda policy— to collect money by school and hospital.” (SPConv May 9, 1974) (13) Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati said: “To transform the adverse desires of the jivas is the supreme duty of the most merciful. To rescue one person from the stronghold of Mahamaya is an act of superb benevolence, far superior to opening innumerable hospitals.”

(14) The opening of hospitals is not one of the 64 angas of bhakti listed in Nectar of Devotion nor is it mentioned in the Bhagavad-gita. Opening hospitals is a karma-kanda activity. (unknown) (15) “Is there any such thing in the Bhagavad-gita? Is there any advice that ‘You open hospital, school and do this philanthropic work’? No.” (SPlecture Aug. 3, 1973) (16) “...to give help to the poor or to open a school, hospital. This is called karma-kanda.” (SPlecture May 18, 1972) (17) Bhaktivinoda Thakur, Tattva-viveka: “By building hospitals and schools, and by doing various philanthropic works, they try to do good to the world and thus please God. Worship of God by performing fuitive work (karma) and by engaging in philosophical speculation (jnana) is very important to them. They have no power to understand pure devotional service (suddha-bhakti), which is free of fruitive work and philosophical speculation.” (18) SP: “Now let us start this school, now let us start this hospital...” They’re coming to the mithya platform under some disguise of philanthropy activities. If it is mithya, why you are starting a school? Satish Kumar: Yes. Only way is to sannyasa. SP: Yes. It is not sannyasi business. For starting a school the government is there, public is there. Why you? (SPConv July 30, 1973) (19) “It is the acharya’s duty to spread a bona fide religious system and induce everyone to bow down before the Supreme Lord. One executes the religious principles by rendering devotional service, specifically the nine items like hearing, chanting and remembering. Unfortunately, when the acharya disappears, rogues and nondevotees take advantage and immediately begin to introduce unauthorized principles in the name of so-called svamis, yogis, philanthropists, welfare workers and so on.” (SBhag 4.28.48) (20) “Just like take for example, hospital. There are hundreds and thousands of hospital, but where is the hospital for treating the spirit soul? [...] They have no knowledge even, what to speak of hospital. [...] This Krishna consciousness temple is the hospital for the diseased spirit soul. And everyone is diseased. Come to this hospital. We shall take care of you and cure your material disease.” (SPecture Apr. 14, 1972) (21) “This Sankirtana movement is the prime benediction for humanity at large because it spreads the rays of the benediction moon.” (Sikshastakam 1) (22) Dr. Ramachandra: I only want that your movement should utilize my services because I believe service to mankind is service to God. SP: No, no, service to God is service to mankind. If you pour water in the root, then it is service to the tree. And if you pour water on the leaf, then nobody is served. Everything will be dry, that's all. That is imperfect service. If you have got realization of God, why should you give only human being service? Why not tiger? He is also... Krishna says, "They are also My sons." That means you discriminate... Father will be satisfied when all the sons are given, not partial... Suppose I have got five children. If you give service to one child, so I'll ask that "Why not other children?" Naturally. Dr. Ramachandra: Discrimination comes. SP: Discrimination comes. So if you have realized God, then you must be learned. (Dec. 16, 1976 Press conference)

COMMENT: Of course the devotee doctors must engage in their profession, and to organize amongst themselves as a hospital is very nice, but not represented as Bhaktivedanta's hospital or closely associated with the divine mission of ISKCON. ISKCON itself is not concerned with welfare activities; it is a direct preaching organization just as Srila Prabhupada designed and organized it, and it is something we should maintain. Otherwise the transcendental message of the divine mission of the Founder-Acharya becomes watered down with humanitarian welfare work and the public misunderstands the preaching of the Acharya. Surely Radhanath Swami privately understands this?

WHICH RADHANATH SWAMI'S PROJECTS AND TEMPLES ARE IN ISKCON'S NAME?

Kripa Sindhu Das May 5, 2021: “How many of RS's projects and temples are in ISKCON's name? This information is a well kept secret but indications are that none of his centers are run and operated under ISKCON's name. Srila Prabhupada wanted all his temples, buildings and projects to be in the name of ISKCON. So why does the GBC allow RS to use ISKCON's name to promote his independent guru business? If RS's temples are not in ISKCON's name are any of his disciples actual ISKCON members? Is RS cheating his disciples by making them believe they are members of ISKCON when his temples are private trusts? This is the same with all ISKCON appointed gurus. None of them are members of Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON. They are members of the independent Mathas that their 'gurus' have established, but they use ISKCON's name and Srila Prabhupada's name for their personal purposes and keep all the disciples and money separate. So where is ISKCON now? It seems to be a franchise and brand name only. The GBC should be transparent but they have lied and cheated us all for years now and there is no way that they will divulge to the public how many of their bogus gurus have private independent projects and have private tax free bank accounts in the name of a private trust or business. They don't tell us because they all do the same as private gurus. What is stopping RS from splintering away from ISKCON and taking all his disciples and projects with him? RS must be very wealthy by now. We are supposed to be a society of beggars and our senior most men who are supposed to be renounced are the wealthiest devotees. How many of RS's disciples are presidents of other temples around ISKCON? How deep has RS infiltrated into ISKCON? How much have his ideas and programs influenced the way we do things in ISKCON? The pyramid counselling system that he has running in all his centers is not Srila Prabhupada's system and yet many non RS temples and projects use it. How much of the way that RS conducts his private businesses/mathas are in line with Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON? Not much! And he is allowed to use ISKCON's name as his bona fides for recruiting devotees? How many disciples would he have made had he not been affiliated with ISKCON and Srila Prabhupada? No one would know him at all. He would be just an ex hippie that took up the new age guru business. No one would give him a second glance. He should be honest with us and finally give up this charade. The GBC are supporting him in this by allowing him to have his way inside of the ISKCON society.”

WHY ARE RUMORS ABOUT ISKCON LEADERS NOT INVESTIGATED?

A PTC corruption investigator disclosed some of ISKCON’s cover-ups of its leaders:

“ONE: Rakshana das from New Zealand told us in 2013 and in 2016 he confirmed it in writing: ‘It was Urmila herself (female diksha guru candidate) who informed me about RS and his behavior. [...] Urmila told me in person while standing outside the Auckland temple room in 2009 or 10. She said RS had been found out having inappropriate relations with several women over time, and especially with one young woman just prior to our discussion. She said if word got out, the whole movement could be thrown into turmoil and it would be extremely damaging for his disciples. She first said that one of our super-gurus has been caught out. She then told me that no one knows what to do about it. She then said it was RS, that he had been having illicit relations with women, and that everyone in the GBC knew about it. I asked her what they were going to do but she didn't know. Then she informed me she expected to be voted in as the first female guru at the next GBC meetings. I don't know the source of Urmila's information. She also said Radhanath was previously found out a decade ago with another woman. The more recent relationship (2009/10) was with a relative of a wealthy Indian supporter to the Radhanath cause. I don't know how far the illicit connection went. I have also read occasional online comments about the affair, but it has been well hushed up, with no additional details. I had expected Urmila or the victim would speak out in support of other women, but the victim I believe was silenced by family pressure.’

“TWO: Shortly afterwards in 2013 we were informed by the wife of Mahabuddhi, a former New Vrindaban resident, that Kuladri das, the New Vrindaban temple president, had told her that the Moffatlals (Hrishikesh das and Radhapriya dasi) were ‘fried’ (very upset) with Radhanath for sleeping with his female disciples. I wrote to Urmila dasi but she denied knowing anything. THREE: Tattva Darshan in India wrote me: ‘Radhanath stuff is always surfacing and going under again. I also heard about Urmila's statements about RS and that due to her bid to be a female guru she did not pursue or substantiate her claims further. Among many GBC they are not so much inclined to RS, but on the plea of protecting the movement they do not challenge. For some time there were write ups about RS in cyber space along with the evidence he was involved in Suloachan's 1986 murder.’ FOUR: Then in late 2016, Bhakti Vikas Swami also told me that he had heard some of these rumors, and wrote me: ‘Years ago when RS was rejoining ISKCON [1994] I heard directly from one of his men that some brahmacharis had left him due to his sexploits and that others were keeping mum.’ “FIVE: It also came to be known to me that RS was the subject of allegations brought to ISKCON’s Child Protection Office (CPO), but insufficient evidence resulted in no follow-through. Also I was informed that in 2001, in regards to the CPO investigations of a prominent ISKCON guru and his lack of protection for gurukula children, that the GBC Chairman protested: ‘He has so many thousands of disciples. If this information was publicly exposed that would be ruinous for ISKCON...’ This is the problem with rumors, that we bend over so far backwards to ignore them until proven factual, that all sorts of horrible things can continue until someone finally decides to investigate them. SIX: ‘Gaura’ posted on Facebook, May 5, 2012: ‘Has anybody the phone number of Radanath's disciple girlfriend named Prema Bhakti dd? She is an air hostess and when his close circle found out he had a sensual relation with this girl they had to order him to get rid of her. So he married her to one of his disciples. In the meantime she is already divorced and still gets VIP treatment from his holixxxx. It would be nice to interview her.’ SEVEN: Jvalamukhi dasi, a former gurukuli student from New Vrindaban, now residing as a strict devotee in Alachua, Florida, posted a YouTube film in 2016 wherein she claims that a good friend of hers told her that Radhanath Swami had raped her. Another gurukuli student in Alachua, now in her forties, told her parents she was molested by RS while on a boat outing at the Detroit mansion in the 1970's.

“CONCLUSION: Even having lived the last 16 years on faraway islands, I have heard these reports from living people I know, not from internet gossip. I never heard about Satsvarupa, Prabhavishnu, or Harikeshu escapades until after everyone else found out first, but these reports somehow came to me without being solicited. Where there is smoke, there's probably fire, and these rumors should be looked into because they deal with the integrity of Srila Prabhupada's movement and those who supposedly represent the Founder-Acharya. As for Radhanath's involvement in Sulochan's murder, this is quite conclusively established in a book by Henry Doktorski titled Killing For Krishna. Prabhupada Truth Commission needs funds for private investigators to look into ISKCON leaders, RS included. We can look the other way, but then how will the integrity of the leaders and Srila Prabhupada's mission be ensured? We ask all to come forward with information RS had illicit relationships with anyone since he became a sannyasi or a guru in ISKCON.” (Nityananda das, 2016)

NOWHERE MAN

In 2014 a RS disciple wrote to his guru in great frustration that Srila Prabhupada's books had been so drastically adulterated (see Ch. 148), asking why nothing had been done to correct this travesty? RS's reply: “I thank you for confiding in me on this subject. There is much to be said and I sincerely respect your concern. Actually, the subject is being discussed on the GBC level. The sacred principle of not changing what our Acharya has written is to be taken with great care. At the same time, the editorial process was done by persons who were personally trained by Srila Prabhupada. So it is not an easy subject. As it stands, it is being discussed on a high level of leadership. I do not believe that your separating from our society will have any positive result. There are many innocent and sincere devotees simply trying to be faithful to their seniors. I believe that Srila Prabhupada would want this issue resolved on a higher level of leadership, which I believe it will be in time, and that it not disrupt the lives of innocent devotees or the unity of our society. You have a right to your genuine concerns, please consider my appeal that you express it in a balanced way that preserves other sacred principles, those of respect and unity which Srila Prabhupada also emphasized as cardinal principles in Vaishnava culture. With gratitude, your servant, Radhanath Swami”

[COMMENTS: In 2017: “Three years after this letter and 34 years after the first embarrassing changes to Srila Prabhupada's 'Bhagavad-gita As It Is' in 1983, the situation is UNCHANGED. How is it going with the 'GBC level discussions'? What is happening on 'the high levels of leadership' on this very, very, very important matter?” Although RS spoke sweet, comforting words as seen above, he himself did nothing nor take any position on the crisis of book-changing. All talk, nothing done. Others have rallied to the cause and are making good headway to correct this problem, but RS contributed nothing. He is too busy with his own program. RS misses that the book adulterations are the cause of disturbance to the devotees, not the protests about them. And that it was the “high levels of leadership” that caused the problem in the first place. And that he does not take any position himself, as a “Nowhere Man,” meaning he is complicit in the book adulterations. It is a leader's responsibility to defend the legacy of Srila Prabhupada's mission and sacred writings, teachings. Misleader.]

EDUCATION DEVIATION

From BTP #49, 2015: “On his website RS promotes a regular government-sanctioned academic school: 'Gopal's Garden High School, guided by Radhanath Swami, aims to build that proper character. Located in suburban Mumbai, the school is affiliated with the University of Cambridge and has 178 students enrolled.’ On his website it is also stated that this activity is based on the ‘vision of Srila Prabhupada:’ ‘Gopal's Garden School was established in July 2001. The vision of Srila Prabhupada was given to us by Radhanath Swami and based on this vision we framed our mission statement and school objectives.’ (Principal, Gopal's Garden School) But such schools are not authorised by Srila Prabhupada: ‘Our school will not be government recognized because we cannot follow the government syllabus. We want to teach only Krishna Consciousness.’ (SPL Apr. 12, 1972) Thus, not only does RS deviate from Srila Prabhupada's teachings, but he cheats by claiming that this deviation is authorised by Srila Prabhupada. The Cambridge affiliation requires a mundane curriculum."

RADHANATH WAS KIRTANANANDA'S RIGHT HAND MAN IN SERIOUS DEVIATIONS

"Bhaktipada is a man of spirit. He is not a man of external form, and he's been training us intensely. Why do you think he changed the dress from dhotis to robes? It was for one reason—preaching in the West. But that's not all. He saw that we were attached to the concept of being a devotee based on how we look externally rather than being fixed in the spirit of devotion. Why are you sitting in chairs instead of on the floor? Why are the hymns in English instead of Sanskrit? Why is our hair an inch long rather than shaved off? On one level, it's practical for preaching in the West, but Bhaktipada had something much deeper and more profound than just that. He saw that we were ritualistically attached to our approach to God, just like practically all other so-called religious persons in this world. We thought we were devotees because of how we looked, how we sang, and how we wore our hair. Bhaktipada wanted us to smash through all these external trappings and go right to the essence of the spirit of bhakti." (Radhanath Swami, "Perfect Plan to Increase Devotion," Apr 26, 1991)

These words are from RS a full 20 years after he became a follower of Srila Prabhupada. One would expect that after so long he would understand at least something about following the order of the Acharya Srila Prabhupada rather than know better and act in direct disobedience and speculation. But RS is still today inventing, changing, disobeying, knowing better than Srila Prabhupada how to prosecute bhaktiyoga.

THE CASE FOR RADHANATH SWAMI'S COMPLICITY IN MURDER

Radhanath Swami has not been honest about his role in the murder of Sulochan das, a dissident devotee who was ordered eliminated by New Vrindaban leaders including himself. He was the second in command in New Vrindaban in 1986, and knew everything that went on there, and was very involved in the administration of the community. He delivered the "escape to India money" to Tirtha das days after the murder in 1986, and he contradicts the testimonies of several devotees as to his role in the murder. All is fully revealed in Henry Doktorski's very compelling book KILLING FOR KRISHNA: "Radhanatha Swami appears prominently in the tenth chapter of this book: the evidence implicates him without question in Sulochan's murder, and yet he consistently denies it."

Radhanath Swami's involvement, planning, execution, arrangements, and after-the-fact expenses payment in Sulochan's murder has been verified by Janmastami, Dharmatma, others, and by the evidence as well. On a visit to Jagat-Guru Swami's South India ashram, Radhanath Swami is reported to have said: "What was I supposed to do under those circumstances in 1986? We were convinced that Bhaktipada was a pure devotee and that Sulochan was determined to murder him, so we thought we were obligated to stop some demon from killing a pure devotee by any means possible." (Doktorski, 2016) On Aug. 26, 1994, Dharmatma wrote to Hansadutta: "Recently, they made Radhanatha Swami a GBC. With all due respect, as I do like him as a person, and he is a sweet devotee, but still he was involved to some degree or had knowledge of Sulochan's murder. I know this for a fact. Not only that, he supported Kirtanananda Swami to the end, causing many devotees much anguish and suffering. My feeling is that he, like many of the others, is motivated by profit, adoration and distinction. It's too bad, but not at all surprising. A truly advanced devotee is a rare commodity." Around 2011, after Hansadutta had posted Dharmatma's old letter on his website, Radhanath privately visited Dharmatma at his Alachua home and convinced him to sign his lawyer's affidavit that his memory was faulty in these matters. Dharmatma signed it, but immediately regretted it and still til today maintains the same original position of Radhanath's involvement in the murder.

RADHANATH'S ALLEGED INVOLVEMENT IN SULOCHAN'S MURDER

BY: Hrishikesh das (Henry Doktorski) Sampradaya Sun, Aug 16, 2010 (Abbreviated)

If most ISKCON devotees believed that Radhanath Swami participated prominently in Sulochan's murder, he might be stripped of his high standing in ISKCON. In that case, probably most of his loving disciples would dismiss the allegations and continue to worship him as guru. I expect his disciples who manage his temples would formally leave ISKCON and create their own society rather than abandon their guru, just as Kirtanananda Swami's disciples did in 1987 when their guru was excommunicated from ISKCON. This is to be expected when the guru exudes substantial charisma, as Radhanath does. Regarding Radhanath's alleged involvement in Sulochan's murder, we know that Tirtha das pulled the trigger, but not everyone knows the extent of the New Vrindaban support group which provided Tirtha with the intelligence, funding, and "spiritual" inspiration to remain steady in his "service for guru and Krishna." Kuladri das, the New Vrindaban Temple President, performed a number of important managerial duties to facilitate the murder, one of which was to provide Tirtha with the latest information from various surveillance sources. Tirtha said that he phoned Kuladri every day, "I called Kuladri... to get an update... every day." (Thomas Drescher Before the Federal Grand Jury for the Northern District of West Virginia Investigative Grand Jury, Aug. 11, 1994, Wheeling, WV, 55.) Kuladri, New Vrindaban's chief manager, was certainly aware of the other devotees who assisted and inspired Tirtha in his mission. Kuladri indirectly implicated Radhanath when he said: "I know Tapahpunja, along with other swamis, were saying that the community had to do whatever is necessary to protect the Swami [Kirtanananda]." At this time there were only three swamis at New Vrindaban: Kirtanananda, Tapahpunja and Radhanath. (Kuladri das, Mar. 13, 1991, cited by court reporters) Kuladri claimed that Radhanath was one of the key actors in this sordid drama: "Radhanath, Hayagriva and Tapahpunja were pushing like crazy for this [murder] to happen." (Kuladri, Mar. 14, 1991, trial transcript)

Dharmatma claimed that Radhanath was involved to some degree: "he [Radhanath] was involved to some degree or had knowledge of Sulochan's murder. I know this for a fact." (letter to Hansadutta Aug. 26, 1994) Janmastami das, who traveled with and assisted Tirtha while conducting surveillance on Sulochan in California, explained how he was recruited to assist in the elimination of Sulochan: "In Jan. 1986, on my return to New Vrindaban, I was ordered by Radhanath, not by Kirtanananda Swami, to terminate Sulochan. This happened with Tapahpunja Swami and Tirtha in Nov. and Dec. 1985. I was on traveling sankirtan until Christmas and didn't get back to the farm until New Years. Immediately on our arrival at New Vrindaban, Radhanath sought me out and made arrangements for us to meet in his van, where he went through a prepared speech that he had delivered to Tirtha, Tapahpunja Swami and Kuladri many times before. Later talks with Tirtha confirmed this." (Janmastami das, "New Vrindaban History, for the Record," Sun: Dec.22, 2006.)

Radhanath flattered Janmastami: "You are one of those rare few that Krishna has endowed with the ksatriya spirit and the courage enough to do what has to be done." (recalled by Janmastami das) Janmastami also remembered: Radhanath was saying to those he was giving marching orders to: "Sulochan poses a life threat to both Kuladri and to Kirtanananda Swami. He has written that in his diary, and for that reason alone, this guy must be transmigrated to his next body." Radhanath was clear in his meaning beyond any shadow of a doubt. "Now that Srila Prabhupada has left us, the entire fate of this movement—OUR movement, Lord Chaitanya's movement—rests in Kirtanananda Swami's hands, and according to our nature, it is up to us to do whatever we can to help the movement in that regard." Radhanath had made his pitch to at least a half a dozen sympathetic devotees before someone raised these Gita related questions: "How can a person who knows that the soul is indestructible, unborn, eternal, and immutable, kill anyone or cause anyone to kill?" Tough questions, but from a submissive audience. Radhanath was undaunted. He quoted: "Everything has its proper utility, and a man situated in complete knowledge knows how and where to apply a thing, so there is no possibility of sinful reaction. Also, considering your specific duty as a ksatriya..." That settled it. The order was there from your bona-fide spiritual authority, based on scripture, directly from Krishna. Either you followed those instructions or you were going to hell! (Janmastami das) Janmastami's story was collaborated by two eyewitnesses. Bhaktipada's chauffeur confirmed: "I was privy to much behind-the-scenes action, and I was there when Radhanath told Janmastami to 'destroy the demon.'" (Priyavenu das, with author Sept. 14, 2003)

A teenage gurukula boy who served under Janmastami also claimed he overheard Radhanath order Janmastami to "destroy the demon." (Harivrata dasa, with author Jan. 9, 2007) On Thursday, May 22, 1986, 33 year old Sulochan sat in his 1976 Dodge van a half-mile from the Los Angeles ISKCON temple. His brains were blown apart by two bullets from a hand gun fired through the driver's side window at close range. The news of Sulochan's murder traveled lightning fast. Tirtha made a speedy getaway to the LAX airport, where he dumped his rented car and made a quick telephone call to New Vrindaban while waiting for the next flight back east. He said, "I went to the airport, dropped off the vehicle, took the first flight out of Los Angeles, going to Dallas." (Thomas Drescher, Grand Jury, Aug. 11, 1994) During the New Vrindaban morning program hushed whispers of the news of Sulochan's death circulated, just thirty minutes after the murder. Dharmatma: "When I came in the morning everyone was very excited and jubilant and the whole temple was buzzing. Everyone was talking in little circles. I asked what is going on. 'Haven't you heard? Sulochan was killed last night!'"

During the question and answer period after class, a devotee asked Bhaktipada "How should we understand it when a demon is killed?" Bhaktipada responded that "A devotee isn't disturbed when a snake is killed." (Dharmatma Trial transcript Mar. 14, 1991) When Ramachandra das, a New Vrindaban devotee, asked Radhanath Swami: "Do you know who killed Sulochan?" Radhanath replied: "I don't know, but whoever it was, he was doing devotional service to Krishna." (Ramachandra das, with author on Apr. 10, 2007) Dharmatma remembered the day of the murder and how Kuladri named three instigators: "Later on after the morning functions, I had a discussion with Kuladri. He was quite disturbed. He mentioned... how it shouldn't have been done like that. And that how Radhanath, Hayagriva and Tapahpunja were pushing like crazy for this to happen, and how he had told them not to do it." (Dharmatma Mar. 14, 1991) Janmastami collaborated: "Kuladri was VERY, VERY frightened by the time it was coming to 'reaction time' because he knew that he and Radhanath were in very deep doo-doo." (Janmastami e-mail Aug. 1, 2008) Although Tirtha successfully flew from California to Ohio, he was still in dire straits; New Vrindaban hadn't paid him what they promised, and he needed money for plane tickets to India- fast. Dharmatma described how Bhaktipada and Radhanath came to him to pick up the escape money at his house: "The next day Bhaktipada, along with Radhanath, drove up in my driveway in Bhaktipada's vehicle and tooted the horn for me to come outside. When I came to the car we engaged in some small talk, I don't remember what. And then Bhaktipada asked me if I had 6000 dollars cash in the house. And I said, 'I don't know. I will see if you want.' He told me to go in and see if I had 6000 dollars. I went in the house and went into my safe and I counted out 6000 dollars and brought it out to him, and handed it in through the window. I don't remember if I gave it to Radhanath and he passed it to Bhaktipada, or I gave it directly to Bhaktipada. The mood was a little bit strained, and I said, 'What is this? So they [Tirtha and Tapahpunja] can get out of the country?' And Bhaktipada and Radhanath smiled and nodded their heads: 'Yes.' And then they said, 'Hey, we've got to go,' and they left." (Dharmatma Mar. 14, 1991)

The money was delivered to Tirtha and Tapahpunja [via Radhanath], but before the two could get to India, they were apprehended by police and incarcerated. Tapahpunja was released after three days, but Tirtha is still in prison for life. Tirtha spoke about the first person who visited him in jail, Radhanath Swami: "When I was first arrested... it was Radhanath Swami who first came to see me. He spoke to me in a most kind and compassionate manner, explaining that my life was now completely in Krishna's hands. [...] When I next spoke with Radhanath Swami he said that I was most fortunate, for Krishna was showing me great mercy by ripping everything away so abruptly. Perhaps if it didn't kill me it would make me much stronger. Die before you die. Surely this is what death is like for the soul too attached to home and hearth. Indeed, it surely felt like death, with everything I held so dearly, now gone in an instant." (Tirtha das) [...] It was very simple: Sulochan was a demon, period. Killing him was good for him, good for the devotees, and good for the entire world. That was the prevailing belief at New Vrindaban at the time and the devotees involved in the planning, support and execution of Sulochan's murder quoted verses to justify in their minds their unusual "devotional service." Even if the New Vrindaban ksatriyas failed in their attempt to assassinate Sulochan, they believed that their lives would still be successful, for if somehow they were to die performing their prescribed duty, or if they were executed by the state after being convicted in a murder trial, they would ascend to the heavenly planets. [...] Those involved in the plot to destroy Sulochan were confident that their actions were sanctioned by guru (Kirtanananda Swami), sadhu (Radhanath and Tapahpunja Swamis) and shastra and would be pleasing to Prabhupada and Krishna. Even a normally kind and humble devotee who would never harm an ant could take part in this noble mission with enthusiasm. Some may have even felt special honor to be called by Krishna to perform such a glorious task: to render valuable service by protecting the saintly pure devotee of the Lord. What sincere disciple could ask for more? However, sanity came too late to those who conspired in Sulochan's murder. After Tirtha was arrested and the government began a serious investigation of the community, Tapahpunja fled to Ireland and Janmastami fled to India. Within a year Kuladri resigned his post at New Vrindaban and moved to Arizona, and Radhanath Swami began spending most of his time in India, far from the scene of the crime, only to return to New Vrindaban a few times a year. If there is any lesson to be learned by this sad story, perhaps it is that we should beware of the dangerous mindless cult mentality which can develop between disciples and a charismatic guru whom they believe can do no wrong [...] FOOTNOTE: Someone asked me why the GBC didn't do their own investigation about Kirtanananda and New Vrindaban. Wasn't it their duty to investigate when a GBC member was charged with felony crimes? I answered: because the GBC already knew that Sulochan was assassinated by New Vrindaban devotees, who told them Bhaktipada had authorized the murder. In addition, Kuladri (and Tapahpunja) had spread the word: "We have hit men in California," beginning in Jan. 1986. The GBC did not need to investigate what they already knew. They quietly hoped for the best. This is another instance of their cover-up history. (END)

CONCLUSION

In Ch. 130 we saw how RS has introduced "regular," hatha, astanga, and other yoga practices into his guru franchise. This is a very serious breach of Srila Prabhupada's teachings, but he doesn't care. "It is not that one attends yoga classes to reduce fat or to keep the body fit for sense gratification. This is not the goal of yoga, but people are taught this way because they want to be cheated. [...] The real purpose for practicing yoga is to realize that I am not this body." (Ch. 8, Path of Perfection) RS's style of "preaching" is unbona fide and Srila Prabhupada is not pleased by it. RS is becoming famous and his books are selling. But Srila Prabhupada did not teach us to do like this. He is compromising Srila Prabhupada's mission with the quasi-spiritual modern sub-culture of impersonalists, huggers, vegans, hatha/ astanga pseudo-yogis, new agers. Conspicuous is his mood of humility as a nice spiritualist who loves everyone... it is a phony style never exhibited by Srila Prabhupada. RS welcomes everyone, even the mayavadis. What is going on?

It is amazing that even after the New Vrindaban interfaith experiment from 1987-94 completely failed, with monk robes, English song lyrics, guitars, choirs, Native American sweat lodges, and Jesus deity, that RS (Hridayananda too) would undertake similar or further changes to Srila Prabhupada's preaching model again? He didn't learn the first time? Why re-invent and change the methods that Srila Prabhupada taught? Srila Prabhupada's methods would not be the best? We haven't learned yet about deviating from what Srila Prabhupada gave us? RS and other ISKCON "gurus" cannot stop adjusting things (actually it is wholesale sabotage) for more effective preaching?

Which next fool will rush in where even angels fear to tread? We have seen enough disasters from so many big leaders who had some new angle and it proved to be a deviation. Now we must add your name to this list of deviated ex-leaders? Kirtanananda (ecumenical interfaith), Tamal (rasika guru), Hansadutta (charismatic megalomania), Jayatirtha (LSD and ecstasy cult), Jayadvaita (changing Srila Prabhupada's books), Hridayananda (Krishna West and Srila Prabhupada is not shastra), and now RS (integrate/ love everyone/ everything). Why don't you just follow what Srila Prabhupada gave us?

Someone may argue RS is applying the principle of yukta-vairagya, dovetailing or using everything in Krishna's service. They may say he is utilizing unique methods for spreading Krishna consciousness. His rising popularity, success with his books, thousands of disciples, and many engagements attest to his apparent success. This was the defense used by KS, who was RS's mentor for 20 years, when he also changed Srila Prabhupada's model by "westernizing" New Vrindaban and adopting ecumenical, interfaith strategies. New Vrindaban's membership fell from 700 to 90 (1987-94). This was not a good affirmation of his retooling the mission for greater success, and he was then sent to prison. While we wait until 2025 to see what happens with RS's innovations and compromises, we find no confirmation from Srila Prabhupada. He has many devotee critics who question what he is doing, many of whom have posted articles on "Hare Krishna" websites.

In addition to the damning evidence that RS was intimately involved with arrangements for Sulochan's murder (Ch. 99) and his decade-long loyalty to KS throughout the crazy New Vrindaban deviations, and his being outside of ISKCON for a decade during that affair, now he has become an innovative acharya? However, creativity in spreading Krishna consciousness was Srila Prabhupada's wonderful talent, and we cannot imitate. Actually the ISKCON GBC leadership is too corrupt to constrain the deviations of its own gurus, especially the charismatic RS. What can they do? Even when the GBC becomes aware of one of their gurus visiting Bangkok prostitutes for 20 years, an obviously illicit behavior, they could do nothing but try to keep it quiet and privately beg the offender to cease such embarrassing activities. How will they confront the foremost ISKCON guru RS about his "creative" style of immersion in mayavadi, phony spiritualism? RS's style is being duplicated now by other ISKCON gurus. Unfortunately it has become a trend-setting ISKCON phenomenon. "Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakura, he said that 'When our men will be sahajiya, oh, they'll be more dangerous.' So our men are becoming, some of them, sahajiyas." (SPConv Jan. 24, 1977)

"So far as the "rehabilitation center" is concerned, such work can be taken up, but to have any separate institution apart from the temple is not possible. I have written Rupanuga in this regard as follows: 'Youth work can be taken up, but our process must be followed strictly. Anyone may come but our process must remain the same. The men are expected to shave their heads and wear robes; they must attend classes, read our books, chant 16 rounds, attend arati, go for street Sankirtana, take prasadam only, etc. To have any institution apart from the temple, that we cannot do. Everything must be in the scope of our activities, then this 'youth problem' can be solved. Our process is proven as the only effective means. If the government or any other organization gives us a place, then we can train up such youth in our own way and surely they will come out sane. That place given will be a temple. So the process remains the same, except on a larger scale. Not that there is a separate division of ISKCON to handle youth problem, but that we have a bigger temple to accommodate them, is all. And then the people will see practically how we are doing the highest welfare work.'" (SPL, Jagadish, Jan. 24, 1977) What about these instructions is unclear, and why is RS not doing this?

LEFT: TWO-FACED

Srila Prabhupada emphasized how our ISKCON temples and programs should attract the common people to Krishna consciousness (not welfare activities): "...dealing without any duplicity, and above all keeping oneself in the society of pure devotees. Our different centres are meant for organizing a group of pure devotees so that neophyte visitors may take examples from them and thus become attached to Krishna Consciousness. This formula is active everywhere..." (SPL Bali Mardan Aug. 11, 1970) In reviewing RS's activities, we think of the phrase "bad faith" where one is divided against themselves, of two minds or unknowingly lying to even oneself, a type of malfeasance born of duplicity in the heart. This leads to lying to others and being two-faced, or even multiplicitous, where people often say things like, "my hands are tied" or "I am just acting on my orders..." It was Jesus who begged forgiveness for his crucifiers by saying, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do," but excruciating practitioners of bad faith invert the formula: they know exactly what they do, and yet they do it. Can they even forgive themselves? Does this fit RS like a hand and glove?: "...or one may desire mundane reputation by making compromises with nondevotees, compromising one's philosophy or spiritual life, or one may become a supporter of a hereditary caste system. All these are pitfalls of personal sense gratification. Just to cheat some innocent people, one makes a show of advanced spiritual life and becomes known as a sadhu, mahatma or religious person. All this means that the so-called devotee has become victimized by all these unwanted creepers and that the real creeper of bhakti- lata-bija has been stunted..." (CC Mad 19.160 purport)

We should note what Srila Prabhupada said about ISKCON or devotees associating with Mayavadis or non-devotees, and his uncompromising position as opposed to ISKCON's recent open arms: (1) "They are clearly rejecting all these bogus rascals like Sai Baba... Actually these rascals are simply creating magic and jugglery. Even during the time of Krishna, Paundraka was there and Krishna immediately cut off his head. That is the only punishment for them, to immediately cut off the head of such rascals who pose themselves as God. They are simply cheating the people." (SPL Riddha das June 15, 1976) (2) "Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakura warns all devotees engaged in broadcasting the Krishna consciousness movement not to speak to the impersonalist mayavadis who are always determined to oppose such theistic movements... It is best to avoid association with them completely and never ask them about anything confidential because they cannot give good advice. Nor should we extend invitations to mayavadis and atheists nor accept their invitations... It is the negative injunction of this verse that we should refrain from giving anything to or accepting anything from the Mayavadis and atheists." (NOI 4) (3) "Ordinary sraddha is... they are going this temple or another Kali's temple or Durga's temple. They say that 'Everyone is all right.' Yata mata tata patha: 'Whatever you like.' That is not sraddha; that is whims. And sraddha means when you firmly believe on the words of Krishna." (SPLecture Sept. 24, 1976) Another concern is RS's apparent remaining affections for KS. When KS passed away in 2012, RS went to offer his last full dandavats and a garland at the Samadhi site before interment. After a few decades to reflect on KS's murders, illegalities, devotee abuse, sex with men and boys while pretending to be a sannyasi and guru, RS still saw fit to do this. Is there a carry-over of KS's teachings? KS: "Purity must come before unity." RS: "Collective unity is more important than individual purity."

Also, regarding Radhanath Swami's "new" style of "outreach," we wonder, in spite of his charisma and apparent success in reaching people, whether he has actually been able to plant the seed of bhakti in the hearts of those who hear him speaking, as Srila Prabhupada did. Is his audience receiving the pure transcendental knowledge that Srila Prabhupada taught? To listen to his lectures, one notices that Srila Prabhupada's shakti is missing.

RADHANATH SWAMI WITH SAHAJIYA KIRTANEER KRISHNA DAS

"The thing which separated Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON from every other philosophical or religious group was he asked his disciples to fully surrender to Krishna and spiritualize their whole life. He wanted pure devotional service and trained his disciples to become pure devotees. There is no shortage of people or organizations who are prepared to give some of their time and energy to God. But Prabhupada wanted one hundred percent. Prabhupada could have had millions and millions of disciples if he had relaxed the rules and regulations. But he was not interested in that. He wanted a few pure devotees, not millions of mad sentimental followers who were not serious about surrendering to Krishna or giving one hundred percent of their time and energy to Krishna.” (Madhudhvisa das, younger, 1995) “We may not have as many followers, we don't care for that. We don't want these nonsense followers, many thousands. What will they do? But if we can turn one man into Krishna consciousness perfectly he can do tremendous work in the world. That is our principle. We don't want nonsense.” (SPL Nov. 27, 1968)

CHAPTER 136: HRDAYANANDA AND KRISHNA WEST

Hrdayananda Swami was one of the original 11 zonal acharyas in 1978-1987. He never apologized or acknowledged the grand appointment hoax which he ardently supported and participated in, and he wrote several defective policy papers for the GBC since 1978 (see Part 20). He is well known as a scholar, intellectual, debater, and sometimes as an arrogant snob. In recent years, Hrdayananda Swami (HS) inaugurated an “innovative” international “outreach” program for Western people by stripping Srila Prabhupada’s preaching model of its Vaishnava dress, “Eastern cuisine,” and “Eastern music.” Guitars, piano, and other western instruments accompany the chanting of Hare Krishna mantra. Baseball caps, modern relaxed clothing, no altars or religious-appearing settings... this is Krishna West’s theme, with points in Chapel Hill, NC, London, and elsewhere. HS’s defense of Krishna West (KW): “ISKCON’s western mission is in great jeopardy. Unless we change, we will be extinct. We need a modern Hare Krishna movement. People think we are very strange, and therefore they are not joining us. [...] Unless there is a modern Hare Krishna Movement, it is not going to work.”

Rather than being a bona fide religious innovator who, fixed in Krishna consciousness, finds ways according to time, place, and circumstances to introduce Krishna consciousness, HS has eviscerated Krishna consciousness by “westernizing” it and thus his program has lost the spiritual potency as Srila Prabhupada gave it to us. He did not think that Srila Prabhupada would have already given us Krishna West or an equivalent if he thought it wise and worthy? Srila Prabhupada, after all, started his movement in the West, in New York City. There are many reports that HS never wears tilak, does not chant his rounds, plays sports like tennis and ping pong, associates loosely with women, and goes to temples and his own initiation-giving ceremonies in western clothes. Amazingly, in 2017 the GBC made him again the GBC for Brazil? If HS is the best the GBC can produce for a leader, then ISKCON certainly has serious leadership problems. The reason the movement is weak in the West is not due to it appearing “strange,” but because of disobedience to Srila Prabhupada’s instructions, and Krishna West simply worsens that problem. In India, Russia, and eastern Europe where ISKCON is supposedly doing well, these are modern and Westernized places. HS’s argument is flawed. HS is completely deluded and thinks he knows better than Srila Prabhupada. “Please do not try to do anything beyond the jurisdiction of my instructions. My will I have already disclosed to you all that each and every one of you should chant the Mahamantra regularly in sixteen rounds, follow the four regulative principles, chant Hare Krsna mantra on the streets, try to distribute our books and literature.” (SPL Makhanlal June 3, 1970)

KRISHNA WEST: AN ACADEMIC-INSPIRED, INNOVATIONAL “OUTREACH”

From KW’s website: “At Krishna West we do everything possible to make bhakti-yoga easy, relevant and enjoyable for Western people, without in any way compromising, diluting, or diminishing the purity and power of a glorious ancient tradition. We do this by offering the essential spiritual teaching and practice in its entirety, without requiring students and practitioners to embrace a new ethnicity composed of non-essential Eastern dress, cuisine, music etc. People in the West need and deserve the chance to practice genuine bhakti-yoga within an external culture that is comfortable and natural for them." (But: is not a Vaishnava's dress, cuisine, music, etc transcendental, coming from the spiritual world, and thus not a mundane ethnicity which should be avoided?) Also, from a KW participant in Japan: "Our struggle for justice, freedom, and identity has erupted into revolutionary movements throughout the world. As a microcosm of society at large, our own religious community faces similar challenges. As the torch passes to us, the next generation of leaders, it is more necessary than ever that ISKCON's theology and practice are crystallized. In this regard, your hermeneutical insight has been vital. Although Srila Prabhupada has given us the greatest spiritual knowledge and an authentic process of self-realization, you emphasize the importance to preserve and simultaneously adapt Prabhupada's teachings in order to better communicate with contemporary audiences. By encouraging constructive self-criticism of ourselves and our communities, you are maintaining the purity of the Hare Krishna movement. In recognizing an overemphasis on internal rituals at the expense of outreach, your detection of mission creep will prevent this movement from drifting off course. You warn us of the dangers of arrogance and psychological atheism, a type of self-centeredness masked by religiosity." (But, do you think Srila Prabhupada made a grand oversight in how to teach bhaktiyoga and that HS needs to correct this short-coming?)

"It's like a rite of passage, a test of your faith and love, that you don't care what the public thinks. If we go out in the street [sankirtan], it's like Vedic Cirque du Soleil. People love it. They take pictures. But how many Americans want to join the circus?" (HS, KW website) "Then of course there's the argument about uniforms. And what I say is the general advantage of a uniform does not necessarily justify a specific uniform. It's like what if for example a policeman [...] wore clown costumes? You could say, 'Well it's a uniform.' What if police wore clown costumes so if you saw someone dressed as a clown on the street you know, 'That's a policeman. So, I need a policeman. Look for someone in a clown costume.' It's not just the general idea of wearing a uniform, it's wearing something that people feel comfortable with, they can relate to, and it totally connects with them." (HS, lecture, 2011) (Note: I thought we recognize police by their police uniforms?)

Due to its controversial nature, augmented by HS's pointed criticism of the GBC and ISKCON's lack of preaching vision in a modern world, KW has drawn much consternation and adversity from many devotees and ISKCON leaders. Although the GBC finally approved of Krishna West in early 2015 with their resolution, by early 2016 several GBC's met with HS and it seems he decided to quit the new program. HS apologized for his criticisms of ISKCON's western preaching model and its GBC, and will undertake a secluded life devoted to writing. HS was reined in by the GBC without a disclosure of what really happened, but KW has continued anyway in the years since. KW programs continue with Bir Krishna Swami and in London by Yadavi dasi.

Pertinent are the following letters from 1967 when Kirtanananda also wanted to westernize ISKCON. (1) *"Swami Kirtanananda has returned to the United States and is causing quite a stir among the devotees. Following his suggestions, we have stopped wearing robes and have cut off our flags.

He said these appurtenances are too strange-looking to outsiders and only make it more difficult for them to consider chanting Hare Krishna. Swami Kirtanananda has said we must avoid appearing to be Orientalists if we are to have 108 centers in the US." (Letter from Brahmananda) (2) "This is very much disturbing to me and has caused me much pain. Please therefore stop Kirtanananda from making his mental concoctions. Do not be misled by him. I have never advised him to act like that. If he is causing such disturbances he should not be allowed to indulge in such nonsensical activities. [...] somehow or other he has become crazy [...] For the time being he has cut all link with me, therefore any instruction given by him is unauthorized & should at once be rejected. He has no right to dictate as he has without my sanction.” (SPL Brahmananda Oct. 14, 1967)

SRILA PRABHUPADA ON REJECTING VAISHNAVA CULTURE

(1) “When I was speaking in Berkeley Univ. sometimes in the year 1966, one Indian student stood up and he said, ‘Swamiji, what this Krishna consciousness movement will do? We require now technology.’ So I replied, ‘Yes. You are after technology. So you are a beggar. I am not a beggar. I have come here to give something. That is the difference. I have come here to give some culture, and you have come to imitate the Western civilization by technology. That is the difference. You’ll remain a beggar, I shall remain a giver. That is the difference.’ So still I am maintaining that position of giving, not taking. Before me, so many swamijis went there. They did not give, but they took something and came here and advertised themselves as foreign-returned sannyasi and exploited the people. They lost even their original dress. Everyone knows, I have never changed my dress. Rather, I have given the dress to the foreigners, and they have taken it. The Ramakrishna mission people came to request me that I dress myself in coat, pant, hat. Because they are doing. Their so-called swamis, they are dressed in coat, pant, hat.” (SPConv) (2) “So this is a culture. This culture is meant for the human society. Fortunately this culture developed on this land of Bharatavarsa. Unfortunately, people are so much bewildered that they are giving up this culture. That is the most regrettable portion of, of our movement. Anyway, my mission was that I shall go to America, and if some of the American boys and girls, younger section, would accept it, then I’ll bring them here to show these rascals that how great this culture is. So portion of the population, they are realizing now.” (SPLecture Jun. 14, 1973) (3) “I have noted the contents with great concern. I do not know why these things inventions are going on. That is our only business, to invent something new programme? We have already got our Vaishnava standard. That is sufficient for Madhvacharya, Ramanujacharya, it was sufficient for Lord Chaitanya, six Gosvamis, for Bhaktivinode Thakur, for my Guru Maharaja Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati, for me, for all big big saints and acharyas in our line— why it shall be inadequate for my disciples so they must manufacture something? That is not possible. Who has introduced these things...” (SPL Dec. 3, 1972) [COMMENT: Would HS comment on this letter from Srila Prabhupada?]

Krishna West is the inspiration of HS, a retired “GBC Emeritus,” a fully independent ISKCON guru immersed in academia. Online audio files have him openly critical of the GBC, using foul language. Of course a devotee may use any mode of dress to preach Krishna consciousness, and it is the consciousness that matters. But we must not reject what Srila Prabhupada gave us to invent a “new program” for saving lost souls. We should follow in Srila Prabhupada’s footsteps, and do as he did. Mundane academic knowledge filters and liberalism are further deviations which have negatively infiltrated the Hare Krishna movement. HS has been criticized online by Godbrothers and former disciples regarding his apparent departure from Krishna consciousness and posing as an active devotee. He is in no way to be taken as a sannyasi...

“In Hridayananda’s lecture he not only expressed doubts regarding aspects of Srila Prabhupada’s teachings, but he blatantly, selectively rejected certain aspects of his spiritual master’s teachings. Rather than simply presenting what he has heard from his guru maharaja, he listened to his own materially conditioned mind and selectively rejected those aspects of Srila Prabhupada’s teachings that his conditioned mind (and probably his non-devotee academic comrades) did not agree with, and used so-called higher intellectual reasoning to justify his misdirected path. But, I also made the video because several years ago I had spent some time at the Atlanta Temple and several Godbrothers and nephews sharply complained of Hridayananda’s behavior and off-color philosophic stance. Notably his not only wearing of non-Vaishnava dress, but in classes in the temple he said he wanted the entire temple to follow suit.” (Ameyatma das)

HRDAYANANDA (SWAMI): "RETIRED SANNYASI"

(HS) joined in 1969 in California, married in 1971, and took sannyas by mutual agreement with his wife in 1972, although their "separation" was sporadic and scandalous. He pioneered Krishna consciousness in Latin America and headed the translation and distribution of Srila Prabhupada's books in Spanish and Portuguese. Perhaps overly intelligent and sharp-witted, he loved to give classes and preach all day long, although his ability to manage is questionable. He became a GBC member during Srila Prabhupada's physical presence, after which he completed the Bhagwatam translation and purports, discussed elsewhere in this book. He has continued to act as an initiating guru since 1978, and has had serious confrontations with the GBC in recent years. Although Srila Prabhupada told him by letter not to return to college, he later obtained his Ph.D. from Harvard anyway. In 1999 he resigned from the GBC and retreated further into his seclusive private life at his Beverly Hills family home. He rarely came to ISKCON temples and mostly wears shorts, TShirt, and baseball cap. Later he did not wear neck beads, and stated he too deserved a private life. As an academic, he has accepted only some things that Srila Prabhupada taught, saying: "So on important spiritual matters, Prabhupada is my eternal spiritual master." He characterized that Srila Prabhupada "was not shastra." This is an outrageous offense against Srila Prabhupada. Still, he is advertised as: "Dr. Resnick received his Ph.D. in Sanskrit and Indian Studies from Harvard Univ. As a visiting scholar at UCLA, Dr. Resnick has taught the history, philosophies, and religions of India at the Graduate Theological Union in Berkeley and, most recently, at the Univ. of Florida in Gainesville. He has published articles at Harvard, Columbia, and the Univ. of California. Having lectured at leading universities throughout the United States, Europe, India and South America, Dr. Resnick is much sought after as a speaker for colleges, universities, divinity schools, civic groups, and religious organizations of all kinds."

However, HS has deviated from Srila Prabhupadas' teachings in a serious and fundamental way, and should no longer pretend to represent Srila Prabhupada. He appears to have gone mad by thinking himself superior to his own guru, misleading innocent devotees. Another statement from him: "In contradicting the principles of modern psychology and sociology, which have been proven scientifically beyond any doubt, Srila Prabhupada has exceeded his authority." Overly intelligent. Deviations from Srila Prabhupada's teachings can drive a disciple insane. Due to offenses by stepping into Srila Prabhupada's shoes, he has gone mad. As was expressed by Srivas das: "One reason usually cited was that HS was a senior Vaishnava preacher with an illustrious past who had done much to spread ISKCON in Central and South America during Prabhupada's time prior to 1977. So HS was a glorious 'hero' from ISKCON's past. [...] while he may have been a hero in the past he was a villain post 1977 to the present. That in fact, he was ISKCON's own version of France's Marshal Petain, who was hero of WWI but a traitor in WWII. But the French, unlike the GBC, quickly understood that Petain was a traitor and did the needful in a timely manner."

Vastavika das wrote in 2014 about HS's new KW program: "The result is divisiveness where there had been none. What else is new when it comes to how HS has operated from his guru-sannyasi and managerial positions? Controversy is synonymous with his reign as the philosophical contrarian that he has been since 1977. He is definitely a survivor. Neither a luxurious lifestyle, support of gay marriages, taking undeserved sole credit for the Bhagavatam 10-11-12th cantos, chanting japa without beads, living alone in an expensive beach 2-bedroom apartment, spending hours learning the piano, never being able to finish his books or remain in one place long enough to develop the preaching to a mature, sustainable level, and... let us count the ways. [...] he still has caused yet another schism - as if there aren't enough already. He has his disciples and followers who hang on his every word (like many of the ISKCON gurus.)" NOTE: This is actually a rather mild analysis.

A former HS personal servant (Aniruddha das) posted claims online that were supported by several other Brazilian devotees including Harinamananda das and devotees in Alachua, FL, that in the 1980's HS had some sort of affair with a female disciple named Devamrita dasi, spending many hours with her in person and on the phone. "HS ordered Brahmaturtha to install a personal phone line to Devamrita's room at the so-called Govinda's Vaikuntha's Building, so he could communicate directly and privately with her at all times. He would spend hours upon hours talking to this woman, either talking to her personally or using the phone. I noted that many days he would spend more than 8 hours talking directly or indirectly with her (via phone and letters). I remember perfectly that one day he woke at 4:00 a.m. and immediately called her. I was assisting, watching him at all times. So this particular day HS stayed on the phone for a period of over 3 hours. All through the brahma-muhurta. In order for me not to hear the details of the conversation, he asked me to leave his bedroom and lock the door. While talking to the woman HS was quite frivolous, cutting jokes and sometimes relating to her only as a lover would treat a beloved. Sometimes he would call her "monstrua," a Portuguese word for "a she-monster," or "bonitinha" (very pretty), while he was alone with her. I would massage HS up to 3 times on a daily basis. A few times, while massaging him at the condominium, he would call the woman and make her sit directly in front of him. Barely 2 meters away at the most, she would sit on a kusa mat on the floor, with him wearing only a gamsha. I would always start the massage by standing behind him, applying my hands to work on his head and back. But the forceful, continuous movement of my hands would invariably pull up the gamsha and in this way, HS would have his genitals exposed, covered only by the brahminical underwear. The woman would try unsuccessfully not to stare directly at the bundle of genitals, but obviously this was impossible. Once I told him: 'Maharaja, this relationship can ruin your reputation. You are translating the Srimad-Bhagavatam, and devotees would want you to behave as a bona fide spiritual master.' He never heeded my advice. He scoffed at the many complaints lodged from well-intentioned but worried Godbrothers and followers. In fact, he stopped overtly associating with the woman (who I now see more as a victim) only after Gopiparanadhana and Dravida threatened not to work with him anymore on the translation and editing of the Bhagavatam." (<http://www.harekrnsna.com/sun/editorials/11-09/editorials5268.htm>) HS is often seen with female disciples on walks, in his home, in hugs. He also would have his ex-wife visit him for weeks at various temples and he would associate with her at length, having explosive, passionate arguments: very un-sannyasi-like.

Venkata Bhatta das (18 Apr 2009): Philadelphia: "Following a meeting with a delegation appointed by ISKCON's GBC here, ISKCON leader HS issued a letter upholding the traditional Krishna conscious view of sex and marriage, and apologizing for acting and speaking in a way to lead some to believe that he did not uphold this view. The letter addresses controversy stemming from a blessing that HS gave to a same-sex couple during a commitment ceremony held in California in Nov. 2008. The blessing, conveyed through email, reminded the couple that 'our love for each other is a reflection of God's love for us. Thus, the perfection of every relationship is to see God in each other.' It went on to invoke God's blessings upon the couple, 'as they commit themselves to each other in the spirit of God's love for them.' HS also gave the benediction that the two men 'always be, each for the other, a source of spiritual inspiration and happiness' such that their 'relationship lead them, patiently and steadily, back to our real home in the spiritual world.' Although the blessing did not speak directly to the issue of whether homosexual relationships could be accommodated within ISKCON, critics felt that it was tantamount to an ISKCON endorsement of same-sex marriage. Not surprisingly, the blessing generated a great deal of backlash within devotee communities and on the internet, feeding fuel to what many regard as a full-blown 'culture war' between conservative and liberal viewpoints in ISKCON today.

"The matter reached the GBC and that body passed a resolution this year specifying that it did not 'endorse or support' HS's actions, and tasking a delegation to meet with him in hopes of reaching 'a common understanding.' The delegation, Ravindra-svarupa and Bir Krishna Goswami, met with HS and in a succinct letter to the GBC on April 11, HS wrote: 'I am writing to reaffirm that I uphold the Krishna conscious principle that sexual union is for procreation within marriage, and that no spiritual leader should encourage or endorse any other form of sexual relation.' While not commenting as to whether the blessing was itself inappropriate, HS did apologize for not being more clear in his intentions. 'I regret that I acted and spoke in such a way as to give many an impression to the contrary,' he concluded. 'I am sorry.' HS is no stranger to this controversy. In 2004, he authored a paper on gay monogamy, arguing that Vaishnava moral theology ought to encourage homosexuals to commit to monogamous relationships as an alternative to leading promiscuous lifestyles. The paper continues to spawn heated debate." (END)

HS, 2004: "Given the need to balance strict varnashrama with liberal spirituality, I believe that ISKCON should recognize and encourage monogamy among all its members of whatever orientation... I am not convinced that marriage is the best means in all cases, but some serious, formal and public recognition and appreciation of gay monogamy is in the best interest of ISKCON and its members."

"Hridayananda was the most blatantly arrogant, like a gifted child who was completely spoiled. He was also a glutton, stuffing himself with chocolate cake whenever he could. " (Navayauvana das, blogspot 2008) HS is certainly a main character in the ISKCON circus show of rascals (Ch. 145). We could go on and on about HS, who was once a glorious servant of Srila Prabhupada, but has now become a poison to his mission. The internet has the details. His fall was due to deviations, offenses, disobedience, and false pride. No japa beads.

MESSAGE FROM HARINAMANANDA DAS TO HRDAYANANDA DAS

A public posting in late 2009 from Harinamananda das from Mexico stated: "The recent visit of HS to Mexico City 2 weeks ago was a despicable insult to the sannyas way of life. It created sorrow in our hearts. I can't help but write and express my concern over his conduct during his visit. From my humble position and harboring no desire to criticize maliciously, I cannot remain silent and leave his actions ignored. It is very sad to see how a Godbrother has fallen so grotesquely—one who is supposedly a sannyasi, a guru, and more than that, one who declared himself an acharya. He is making a mockery of his vows and post. HS did not dress as a monk of our Gaudiya Vaishnava line all the time he was in Mexico. He also did not chant his rounds, what to speak of Gayatri mantras. Also, everyone noticed he did not wear the sacred thread. In spite of being announced as the main speaker of the event, he didn't bother to attend the Ratha-yatra parade nor the festival site. Also, as I am a personal witness, he does not follow any sadhana at his "home." In Mexico he was seen all the time wearing only polo shirts, dockers, shorts and even vulgar baseball hats. He dressed as a karmi, against Srila Prabhupada's direct instruction to him in Mayapur. I remember back in the 70's, when HS was a dedicated sannyasi. In spite of the many complaints about his despotic and sarcastic ways, still he was trying his best to follow Srila Prabhupada's instructions. Because he was sincere, devotees tolerated his excesses and eccentricities. We who were close to him knew that he was not pure, but he was pushing Srila Prabhupada's mission. Last Nov. (2008) I stayed at the home of a young man who I convinced to move to Alachua to involve himself more directly in devotional service. I asked him why he ignored Srila Prabhupada's instructions on the matter of dressing properly as a Vaishnava and he did not wear any tilaka? He responded, 'HS advised me not to shave my head, not to keep sikha, and not to wear devotional clothes.' I got into a strong philosophical discussion with him. After a short time he recognized that he was wrong in following HS's advice. The point I want to make here is that HS's 'sophisticated' attitude is creating a lot of confusion and anxiety amongst devotees in general, but especially neophytes. They see HS's behavior as an example to follow. Please, Hridayananda das, stop behaving whimsically. You have developed the rare mystic power to be two persons at once. You present yourself as a guru, acharya, and accept a level of worship deserved only for the highest class of devotees of the Lord. But on the other hand, you keep a selfish private lifestyle. You own real estate properties and a bank account with millions of dollars. You have a karmi job, wear karmi clothes, and have close association with women. HS, listen to me: I am your same age. I have known you for over 30 years. We embraced the same spiritual path and we have the same glorious spiritual master. If you get married and act with responsibility, I guarantee that you will make more progress than you are now. Then you won't continue making a laughing stock of the sannyas-ashram. I apologize for speaking to you so frankly. Of course, the final decision is yours, but don't lie anymore to yourself and to your blind followers passing as a guru, as a pure representative of Srila Prabhupada, as a link to our sacred guru-parampara. This is a total illusion, a maya's masterpiece. For the sake Srila Prabhupada's unblemished name, and for the love of him, I repeat my sincere request once more: Hrdayananda das, please get married!"

As of 2022 HS remains as an ISKCON approved initiating guru by the blessings of the ISKCON GBC with thousands of disciples (however, many have left him), as a supposed sannyasi, and in 2003 he returned from retirement as a "GBC Emeritus" to being an active GBC member again. Amazing!

SP: Why your dress is not as a sannyasi? Tusta Krsna: The robes make people uncomfortable, Prabhupada. They see you as different and can't relate. They won't relax enough to listen when I wear robes. SP: But sannyasi must dress in saffron with robes and shaven head. Tusta Krsna: I am following all the principles, but the dress is external and superficial. Why should we let it hamper the preaching? SP: If the dress is superficial, why should you change your dress to please people who are so serious about superficial? You understand my point? Superficial people become controlled by superficial and external things. Why do you dress to please superficial people? You should dress to please Krsna. Tusta Krsna: So you would like me wear saffron and shave up? SP: Yes, I want you to promise this. Only wear saffron and keep your head shaved. This is sannyasi dress. You should promise. Tusta Krsna: Yes, Prabhupada. I promise. (SPConv 1974)

"The dress is also required. You should be always equipped with tilaka, kunti, and sikha, sutra.

Then, as soon as a common man sees, "Oh, here is a Hare Krishna man. Hare Krishna," he'll chant. Automatically you give a chance to chant Hare Krishna. So this is required. THE FOOLISH RASCALS, they say that 'What is the necessity of this, that?' No. This is necessity. You must always remain dressed like a Vaishnava. That is necessity. So preksaniya: "is very beautiful to see." Otherwise how they became impressed? Immediately they become so pious that they chant Hare Krishna." (SP Lecture Oct. 29, 1975)

CONCLUSION

It can be asked whether the KW program might be as successful or more successful by simply doing what Srila Prabhupada did when he came to New York in 1965? Guitar and piano instead of mrdunga and kartals: this is really such an issue? To many devotees, KW appears totally unnecessary and is just another needless innovation, altering the fabric and integrity of the Hare Krishna movement as Srila Prabhupada gave it to us. Further reports complete with photos have HS playing ping pong with women, encouraging devotees to go back to university, not following his strict sadhana, maintaining the pamho forum "VAST" that was a breeding ground for those who openly blasphemed Srila Prabhupada, and making egregious statements that are gravely erroneous, deviant and offensive like "the attempt to disrobe Draupadi never took place." Srila Prabhupada advised him not to study Sanskrit outside of his books, but he went to Harvard and became an accredited academic in Sanskrit with PhD, etc. On Aug. 6, 1972, Srila Prabhupada sent a letter to Hrdayananda: "...You have studied the Sanskrit language for some years, that is sufficient of study, there is no more need. Now you read our books, not that lifelong you have to study Sanskrit. Simply read our Sanskrit wherever it appears in our books and teach these slokas to the devotees, do not waste time by studying Sanskrit independently of our books." Obviously HS is fallen from sannyas, his sadhana practice, and Vaishnava sanity. Thus as a misleader he has negatively affected and disturbed the Hare Krishna movement and his spiritual master with his deviations. It is because he has falsely taken the position of a guru and a senior ISKCON leader that we are compelled to protest, to warn others not to be cheated by him.

Compare ISKCON guru Hrdayananda's words with Srila Prabhupada's. SP: "That's a fact. The spiritual master has to take the responsibility for all the sinful activities of his disciples. Therefore to make many disciples is a risky job unless one is able to assimilate all the sins." HRDAYANANDA: "The idea that a guru suffers for a disciple's, even when the guru is in no way responsible for that sin, is absurd in my view." This guy is a clown. Anyone still following him is walking into a ditch. He also claimed that japa malas were brought to India by the Portuguese. He wears shoes while doing arati to Lord Krishna, walks around in the mall in bermuda shorts, etc. He is in no way a sannyasi, and is just a poser. He also refuses to wear tulasi neckbeads, or chant on a japa mala, as that hurts his wrist, but he plays ping pong, golf and basketball, which don't hurt his wrist.

CHAPTER 137: SHIVARAMA SWAMI

Shivarama Swami is a self-appointed initiating guru and ISKCON GBC, and is in charge of UK, Hungary, Romania, and Turkey. He has developed a large farm project in Hungary. He was heavily involved with Narayan Maharaja and the rasika guru episode of 1990-1996, and wrote several fictional books about Lord Krishna's intimate pastimes with the gopis. He received much criticism for this, but never admitted any fault. He is known as a hardline manager who takes a heavy hand with any opposition or views differing from his own or those of the GBC. IRM has published a small book chronicling the numerous defects and deviations in Shivarama's lectures and conversations whereby he not only contradicts Srila Prabhupada's teachings but also himself. He has been dishonestly inconsistent, saying one thing and entirely the opposite later. This is unique to those who improvise as they go along. He likes to take luxury vacations at the expense of his disciples. Re: his philosophical confusion and inconsistencies, see: <http://www.iskconirm.com/docs/webpages/srs7.htm>.

SHIVARAMA INVITES HINDU MAYAVADIS TO ISKCON TEMPLE

We have two abbreviated excerpts from IRM's BTP magazine which shows Shivarama Swami inviting mayavadi Hindu "spiritualists" to ISKCON's Bhaktivedanta Manor near London. First account:

"A year ago, in 'Bhaktivedanta Manor Promotes Sai Baba in British Media' we warned of the consequences of disobeying Srila Prabhupada's instructions by associating with atheists, false gurus, mayavadis, and supporters of Sai Baba just for cheap popularity. Srila Prabhupada as follows: 'They are clearly rejecting all these bogus rascals like Sai Baba... Actually these rascals are simply creating magic and jugglery. Even during the time of Krishna, Paundraka was there and Krishna immediately cut off his head. That is the only punishment for them, to immediately cut off the head of such rascals who pose themselves as God. They are simply cheating the people' (SPL Riddha, June 15, 1976) 'In this regard, Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati warns all devotees engaged in broadcasting the Krishna consciousness movement NOT to speak to the impersonalist mayavadis who are always determined to oppose such theistic movements... It is BEST TO AVOID association with them COMPLETELY and never ask them about anything confidential because they cannot give good advice. NOR SHOULD WE EXTEND INVITATIONS TO MAYAVADIS AND ATHEISTS NOR ACCEPT THEIR INVITATIONS... It is the negative injunction of this verse that we should refrain from giving anything to or accepting anything from the Mayavadis and atheists.'" (NOI Text 4 purport)

"Choosing to disobey these instructions, Bhaktivedanta Manor in the UK, which is the largest ISKCON temple in Europe, whose GBC is Shivarama Swami, decided to invite 'all these bogus rascals' who are 'always determined to oppose such theistic movements' with the express purpose of: '...gaining goodwill amongst a large section of the Hindu community' (quoted from an email sent by ISKCON's Romapada das to the Pandava Sena youth group on Sept. 5, 2001). A press release issued by ISKCON UK's press officer Bimal Krishna das announced to the national media that: 'The rally will be addressed by some of the most senior spiritual leaders of the Hindu faith including HH Swami

Divyanand Teerth, Jagadguru Sankaracharya of Bhanpura, HH Swami Chidanand Saraswati Maharaj, HH Sri Sri Sri Saldas Baba, and HH Sadhavi Dr Sadhana...' (ISKCON press release, Sept. 8, 2001). According to the Sai Foundation: 'Sri Saldas Baba is the Chairman of Sai Foundation which is dedicated to both the Shirdi Sai Samsthan of Shirdi and Satya Sai Organisation of Puttaparthi. Sri Saldas Baba has been playing an active role in spreading the message of love and peace of Shirdi Saibaba and Sathya Saibaba.' The same Sai Baba recently accused of fake miracles and homosexual molestation. We refer our readers to the abovementioned letter from Srila Prabhupada. Lo and behold, Shivarama Swami - the 'Guru' and GBC of Bhaktivedanta Manor - under whose leadership this invitation to mayavadis and atheists was made - again received instant karma for disobeying Srila Prabhupada's orders. (Again because as highlighted in our newsletter no. 28 story "Would-be Gopi Receives Instant Karma," we noted how he had received a just reaction for his unauthorised abandonment of Srila Prabhupada for Narayan Maharaja, with many of his disciples and his yatras also defecting to Narayan Maharaja). This is evidenced from his Vyasa-Puja offering wherein he details what happened as a result of inviting these mayavadis to come and speak at Krishna's temple."

Second account from BTP: "In July, a well-known Hindu organization launched a worldwide yatra on the grounds of Bhaktivedanta Manor. To preside over the function, they invited many spiritual leaders. [...] When I saw the mélange of spiritual dignitaries, I had second thoughts. On the stage were to be two yogis, a guru, a Sankaracharya, and myself - compromising association! I inquired about the scheduled speeches and was assured I would have equal time. After consultation, I decided to make the best of the situation and participate." (Here Shivarama Swami honestly admits that he compromised himself by allowing ISKCON invite these Mayavadis to speak at Krishna's temple - something Srila Prabhupada warned us in the Nectar of Instruction purport above NOT to do - and that therefore he simply had to 'make the best of the situation'.)

"Then, sitting beside me, the Sankaracharya, a small chubby man my age, with an ignoble tendency to fidget, spoke, regularly alternating between Hindi and English. In addition to eloquent servings of mish-mash common to the other speakers, His Holiness made philosophical points clearly targeted at his hosts - namely, the ISKCON devotees and, more specifically, Their Lordships Radha-Gokulananda." (Please note that it was the ISKCON management for Bhaktivedanta Manor, for whom Shivarama Swami is the GBC, which had invited these persons to hold a function at THEIR temple so that they could attack Their Lordships, Radha-Gokulananda!) In response he diligently continued to churn the mish-mash, but true to form he returned to his Mayavada siddhanta to exclaim, 'The names of God are immaterial, for above name and form is the formless eternal [...] This is what Chaitanya Mahaprabhu meant when He said mayavadi-bhasya sunile haya sarvanasa. [...] Through his speech he made one more classical jab, describing the Ultimate as pure knowledge and the worship of Deities as a temporary means to Brahman. [...] I felt that you, Srila Prabhupada, our Society, and Krishna had been grievously offended.' (Of course they had. And Shivarama Swami omits to mention that as the GBC for the hosting temple, he is the architect for this offence.)

"The Sankaracharya replied, 'What I have said is all right.' 'No!' I interjected smiling, 'In Krishna's temple you have said that Krishna is a subordinate manifestation of Brahman. You said the Absolute Truth is, in reality, nirguna. That is both impolite and against the Vedic conclusion.' But there was one last thing to say. I smiled at him, 'But Swamiji, you know what Adi Sankara said.' [...] 'bhaja govindam bhaja govindam bhaja govindam,' and stopped. [...] 'Gazing into his eyes, speaking very audibly, I continued, 'mudha-mate.' The Sankaracharya jerked - shocked. In a public assembly I had implied he was a mudha! [...] Perhaps I was guilty of inhospitality to a guest - an unfortunate transgression of etiquette. However, I did not want to tolerate grievous offenses to the Lord - a major spiritual transgression. (Yet Shivarama's leadership had paved the way for this grievous offence to be committed and broadcast in Krishna's temple.) Sure enough, the Sankaracharya leant over to me and said, 'Excuse me, I must go to the toilet.' He rose with his escort of followers and reassured me, 'I will be back. But I knew he wouldn't. The organizers were unsure why he left untimely in his Mercedes, retinue and all. They were puzzled, I was happy. (Shivarama claims he was happy that he had effectively driven away his Mayavadi guest. Then why disobey Srila Prabhupada and allow him to be invited in the first place? So Shivarama's Vyasa-Puja offering to Srila Prabhupada is to boast how he tried to fix a problem he created by disobeying his instructions!)"

LORD SHIVA, DURGA WORSHIP

Lord Shiva and Durgadevi deities (see Ch. 118) were worshipped in Hungary under Shivarama Swami's guidance. Aug. 18, 2008, Shivarama stated: "Actually we worship Lord Shiva as Gopisvara Mahadeva and Yogamaya devi. Lord Shiva is the best of the Vaishnavas [...] Yogamaya devi can remove the illusion of the material world from us. That's why we worship Them." Later, on June 16, 2008, ISKCON guru Danavir Swami countered: "There are some immature devotees of Krishna who chant prayers to the demigod Shiva [...] Although it is true that Lord Shiva is the greatest Vaishnava, nevertheless, Lord Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, the yuga avatar for this age, has clearly stipulated that the only process for self-realization is chanting the names of Hari." Shivarama Swami also adopted a concocted practice or vow which he explained: "Devotees ask what kind of vow I am doing and what is its purpose? [...] In the wake of the vow the young gopis performed to have Krishna as their husband, I am following a kind of Katyayani vrata. I eat havisya once a day, bathe in cold water, don't shave, chant prayers to and worship Devi (Durga) daily. I pray to Yogamaya, 'The gopis accepted so many austerities so that you would bless them with Krishna's company...' (Dec. 14, 2007) However, worship of Shiva or Durga is not allowed by Srila Prabhupada: "Generally they worship various demigods-devotee of Lord Shiva, Goddess Kali, Durga, so many. But they have been condemned by Bhagavad Gita." (SPLecture Oct. 19, 1972)

CONCLUSION

Shivarama Swami kept Krishnalila dasi as his personal female secretary for 15 years, questionable for a sannyasi. Not any previous acharya has written fiction about the intimate Vrindaban pastimes of the Lord, but SS decided he should, and he did. Thus he continues with undertones of his rasika bhakti long after he was temporarily suspended as a guru in 1995 for his stubborn association with Narayan Maharaja of the Gaudiya Matha. He also has adopted tunes from famous rock n roll stars in chanting the Hare Krishna mantra, another questionable practice. SS is another ISKCON "guru" with the penchant for innovations in Krishna consciousness contrary to Srila Prabhupada's teachings. Online one may learn more about SS's deviations and madness.

CHAPTER 138: THE BOOK CHANGER

JAYADVAITA SWAMI: THE BOOK CHANGER

Jayadvaita Swami (JS) was a trustee and the "senior editor" at the Bhaktivedanta Book Trust (BBT) from the 1970's to 2017. He personally effected thousands of discretionary changes to Srila Prabhupada's books, especially the Bhagavad Gita. See Ch. 148 re: the book adulterations. What began as common-sense corrections for a few obvious errors in punctuation, spelling, and grammar expanded to other omissions and technical discrepancies, then evolved where innumerable discretionary and unnecessary changes became part of his editorial mission. He claims to be have been authorized by Srila Prabhupada for his unsupervised, unanswerable, and unilateral changing whatever he likes in Srila Prabhupada's books. Such a self-assumed mandate is unprecedented in literary history where a famous, deceased author's works are tampered with and radically modified, without permission, much less to this extent.

JS insists his book adulterations are justified and legitimate, and aggressively defends against all who disagree. He regularly published explanations for selected changes and he somehow maintained support for his work from ISKCON leaders and the other BBT trustees. However, Srila Prabhupada never gave him any instructions to make book changes after his departure. He cleverly confuses the issue by pointing out many changes which seem to be good and necessary, but rarely discusses those changes wherein the subtle philosophical meaning is changed or the syntax and mood of Srila Prabhupada's writing is disturbed and altered. There are many websites and essays online on this subject. It is almost incomprehensible how he can actually think he is entitled to make so many drastic and fundamental changes to Srila Prabhupada's style, meanings, and teachings with book changes decades after Srila Prabhupada has departed. If a publisher were to do the same with Shakespeare's works, this would be instantly condemned and no one would buy that "edition." However, ISKCON has endorsed the changed editions of Srila Prabhupada's books as "authorized" while heavily discouraging and blocking the original editions. Srila Prabhupada said "back to the original way," meaning as it was printed during his presence, and also said "no more changes." Below, we probe why Jayadvaita Swami is so insistent on his extremely controversial "service." Many believe it is due to envy, insanity, or even that he is an agent of demonic forces.

THE BLUE JACKAL WILL EVENTUALLY REVEAL HIMSELF BY HOWLING

There is a story about a jackal who fell into a bucket of blue dye and became the ruler of the forest after he claimed to be God. Eventually the jackal was found to be nothing but a jackal when he could not help but howl at the full moon. In 2015 JS gave a seminar on standards for kirtans wherein he revealed his true attitude towards Srila Prabhupada as the eternal Founder-Acharya of ISKCON. He mocked those chanting "Jaya Prabhupada" during the morning temple "Samsara" prayers, and declared this is not the "Prabhupada song," and that it is instead a song for all gurus. Even JS's usual supporters were shocked and strongly protested. By watching the video online to catch JS's sarcastic and offensive tone of voice and facial expressions, one clearly sees JS's motivations in his book changes. It is a matter of character, not principle. JS's has deep envy of Srila Prabhupada, compelling him to continue tampering ad infinitum with Srila Prabhupada's books, something only he is qualified to do? What kind of illusion is it to change Srila Prabhupada's most dear books? JS said:

"A devotee is asking whether after Samsara dava we should chant Prabhupada pranams mantra. Interesting question. When Prabhupada chanted it in the morning, he chanted Samasara dava, Sri Krishna Chaitanya, Hare Krishna, nothing else. He didn't chant the pranams mantra to his guru maharaj. Now, if I suggest that we shouldn't chant Prabhupadas pranams mantra, there'll be a revolution. But actually it's not necessary. It's not what he did and we don't have to. Samsara dava, Sri Krishna Chaitanya, Hare Krishna, nothing else. So when someone, who's not Prabhupada's direct disciple, begins by offering pranam mantra to Prabhupada, my hearing takes a beating. I think: 'What's wrong with this person?!' But at least: don't start with Prabhupada pranams mantra. You're totally contrary to the tradition if you do that. The next thing that disturbs me, sometimes we hear right in the middle of Samasara dava 'jaya Prabhupada, Jaya' What the hell is that?! ..." (COMMENT BY AJIT KRISHNA DAS: JS says "Jaya Prabhupada" in a ridiculing manner several times, swaying his hands in a 'funny' way, pulling a face. This is extremely disgusting to watch.)

"Samsara dava is not the Prabhupada song! It's the guru song... which doesn't mean the founder acharya of ISKCON. Samsara dava is not the Prabhupada song. And therefore it even disturbs me when, you know, they finish the... dhyayam stuvams tasya yasas tri-sandhyam vande guroh sri-caranaravindam. 'jaya Prabhupada jaya'... as again if it was the Prabhupada song. If you want to think of Prabhupada during that song, that's fine, but it's not... What if somebody else is thinking of his guru? God forbid! Then you've spoiled his meditation. Because you're thinking it's the Prabhupada song. You don't need to chant 'Jaya Prabhupada' at any point. Samsara dava, Sri Krishna Chaitanya, Hare Krishna, nothing else."

Gaura das, from a FB group of 850 SP disciples, and usually a supporter of JS's book changes, wrote in protest: "He has stated that the Samsara Prayers are not the Founder Acharya Song and discourages the idea of singing Srila Prabhupada's pranams or name during Mangal arati. JS's example and understanding of mangal Arotike in the 1960's doesn't apply to the way Srila Prabhupada established standards for his worldwide ISKCON. Starting with the acquisition of New Dwaraka as his world headquarters Srila Prabhupada had leaders fly into LA for 1-2 weeks to be trained in new permanent standards for arotike, for the morning program, for Deity worship, for morning and evening class which included chanting Sanskrit, etc. The kirtans always included chanting the pranam prayers and Jaya Prabhupada. I simply have no words to express how obvious this is. To preach that the standard should not include these pranam prayers and that the chant "Jaya Prabhupada" shouldn't be part of mangal arotike during the samsara prayers is offensive and completely against the foundational position of the founder-acharya. When his Godbrothers tried to minimize his position, Srila Prabhupada emphasized even more the importance of his pranam mantras. His Divine Grace was very concerned about his name appearing in his books, on the BBT building, on letterhead, etc. This is central and essential to not having his teachings and position marginalized. How JS doesn't understand this is bewildering and I can only attribute it to his being covered by the illusory energy."

COMPLETELY DISREGARDING THE SENTIMENTS OF SO MANY GODBROTHERS

In spite of widespread, overwhelming protest and condemnation of his unnecessary and decades-long book changes program, JS arrogantly refused to change course on his editing work or negotiate a definition of limiting parameters to his "work." This is even contrary to Vaishnava principles- that if so many devotees are disturbed by his so-called service, he should consider that perhaps there is something amiss? His book changes is one of ISKCON's greatest controversies. Perhaps most devotees prefer to read Srila Prabhupada's unchanged books, while some ISKCON misleaders refuse to read Srila Prabhupada's unchanged books, even offensively throwing them aside. JS has succeeded in creating a great polarization and enmity amongst devotees. He is the four-star general of disturbances to the Hare Krishna society, yet he arrogantly is unfazed. We also note JS is an ardent supporter of ISKCON's concocted guru by vote approval system and is an ISKCON guru himself. He has written much against the idea that Srila Prabhupada is still the current link in the disciplic succession, and that the ritvik representative system that Srila Prabhupada instituted for initiations after his departure is not traditional nor bona fide, ridiculing the notion. Yet, JS has never justified ISKCON's guru system, wherein, as he himself wrote, gurus have had "sex with men, women, and probably children as well."

We find JS to be a thorn in Srila Prabhupada's sacred mission that should have been pulled out long ago. His role as the adulterer of Srila Prabhupada's sacred books has been met with especially strenuous and consistent resistance and condemnation from many senior devotees, but JS is unmoved and stubborn in his self-appointed duties as Srila Prabhupada's eternal "editor." We cannot imagine how Srila Prabhupada is pleased with these changes; few devotees are pleased with them either. Due to his insistence at changing Srila Prabhupada's books in ways that significantly alter the feel and meaning of Srila Prabhupada's books, it can be safely noted that JS is perhaps the most despised ISKCON leader, perhaps even more so than the suspects in Srila Prabhupada's cadmium poisoning. One wonders how JS has the audacity to slaughter the sanctity and purity of Srila Prabhupada's divine teachings unless it is a deliberate and demonic intention.

SEPT. 8, 2017: JAYADVAITA RESIGNS FROM BBT

"I hereby submit my resignation as a trustee of the BBT, a California trust. I am aging. And though (as far as I am aware) no mortal disease has yet laid claim on me, I have reached the years where my powers are dwindling, not growing. And I would prefer to leave my 'lifetime post' timely, and with a minimum of fuss. As a member of an older generation, I also welcome the opportunity to move aside in favor of those who are younger. I will be happy to continue to serve the BBT, mainly as an advisor, for however long my service may be useful. But for this I need not hold a post. From what I understand of trust law, to resign from a trust one does not need approval from one's fellow trustees. Nonetheless, I request my fellow trustees, and the directors of the BBT International, to give my resignation their blessings. Finally, my gratitude to my fellow directors and trustees for the pleasure of serving in their midst." (END) NOTE: He refers to two BBT's; see Ch. 149, App. 15.

Conspicuous in JS's resignation is the absence of any acknowledgement of the book changing controversy or harm he has done to Srila Prabhupada's mission. ISKCON's GBC did not decide to remove him, nor make a ruling on the book adulterations issue, such as reversing the changes or assigning a council to research and study the issue. And JS's influence at the BBT is such that he is free to continue adulterating with Srila Prabhupada's books even if officially resigned. No one knows if JS or others are still making more changes that will appear in future printings. It appears his resignation is a sly maneuver to calm the nerves of the ISKCON membership and not have to confront the protests. But the opposition to the "changed books" is not going away and in Ch. 148 we will see some notable progress being made in rectifying this disaster. The second BBT editor is Dravida das, who has assisted JS in devising 1000s of book changes, and who introduced the much debated change to CC where Srila Prabhupada describes the disciplic succession. We suspect the rising groundswell of dissatisfaction and anger amongst devotees had a hand in JS's resignation. However, the book changes remain in place as official ISKCON policy. The struggle to preserve the purity of Srila Prabhupada's books is not over. IRM has published a small book on JS and his nefarious deeds, called: The Book Changer.

CHAPTER 139: BHAKTIC HARU "BLUE" SWAMI

Ch. 73 in Book One deals with how Bhakticharu Swami (Kishore Battacharya) is a person of primary interest in Srila Prabhupada's poisoning. This chapter addresses how he has been engaged in misleadership of devotees as an ISKCON unauthorized guru, sannyasi, and GBC member. In 2016 he was the GBC Vice Chairman. We call him "Blue" Swami due to his statements about how he did not take Srila Prabhupada saying that he was being poisoned seriously because he noted that Srila Prabhupada had not turned blue. He passed away at age 74 in July 2020, supposedly from COVID, shortly after he again deemed the "poison theory" as ridiculous, false, and he gave some more boringly defective arguments in an online video.

Sometimes the bewildered followers of an unauthorized guru will object that despite some oversights and errors, the important thing with their "guru" is his sincere attempt to preach Krishna consciousness in the service of the parampara. However, the visible anomalies are but the tip of the iceberg, and BCS's life was as more about garnering worship, money, and power for himself, and he has greatly contributed to undermining Srila Prabhupada's mission. This he has done by falsely posing as a bonafide guru, defending the erroneous "living guru" theory whereby Srila Prabhupada is no longer able to give transcendental knowledge via his books and recorded teachings, and by introducing or supporting deviations from Srila Prabhupada's teachings. This is not a matter of simply finding some faults. BCS was one of the main ISKCON misleaders and GBCs who cheated naïve persons by presenting himself as a deliverer of the lost souls while exploiting Srila Prabhupada's mission for his own self-aggrandizement. It is not a pretty picture; neither is it our pleasure to describe it, yet it is necessary to stop the cheating. We pinpoint the exact problems as objectively and surgically as we can without envy, ridicule, or embellishments in the attempt to restore the purity of Srila Prabhupada's mission.

HOW BHAKTICHARU (BCS) INVESTED AND LOST MILLIONS IN BUSINESS

From 2011 articles posted by Caranaravindam das, we review some of BCS's business dealings where he invested millions from supporters and disciples and then lost that and more. We note there were "shady" dealings, dissatisfied investors, and issues went to the ISKCON Justice Ministry and GBC for resolution. "Some years ago, he purchased a Canadian aerial survey company, McPharr Geosurveys, in Toronto. This business involved many devotees in its management including Bhagavan and Dayarama from Mayapur. Unfortunately, throughout its history, the company never fared well. McPharr engaged in aerial surveys searching out mineral deposits. This is done by machinery and sensors flown over specific geographical areas gleaning data which is later analyzed as to the area's existing mineral content. The business is technical and the investment required is high. Various industry members have opined that novices getting involved in such a sophisticated and expensive industry is ill-advised. But the amounts of money made is high and intoxicating. And BCS found the attraction irresistible. McPharr ran into constant problems [...]. The company leased planes to assist their survey work, which led Ambarisa das, an investor in the company, to purchase a plane to do their flying, and Skyvision Exploration held title to the plane. The money used was earmarked for the Mayapur temple project and Ambarisa was convinced to have the money be put to work to produce more profit for the temple. But McPharr was forced into bankruptcy in order to escape their creditors and a new company, AMG India, continued McPharr's work. In the end, as of 2010, BCS's debts totaled $11M to 150 creditors. BCS solicited loans from many disciples to purchase a property in Ujjain, India. Taking this as collateral, the Bank of India issued a line of credit to AMG for $5M dollars. Millions more were also borrowed from disciples for the McPharr enterprise. According to industry sources, AMG is also now in the red for $8M. As a result of $6M in loans from disciples, the $11M in debts listed above and the large debt owed by AMG, BCS has a huge debt. There has been further action to raise loans from other disciples in the hope of paying down these debts. These efforts have fallen short; and debts to the devotees will not be repaid.

"A friend of mine, Krishna das (Kd), has direct experience dealing with BCS and his sidekick Sudipto McKerjee. He shared all the details with me. [Describes how BCS borrowed money from Kd, others, defaulted, went to court, tried to move the plane to India, bond and insurance, collateral, damage awards, legal maneuvers, lawyers, bankruptcies, etc.] There was no way BCS could retain possession of the plane due to the nonpayment of the loan and the ironclad lien on the plane. Their plan was to bankrupt Kd and take the plane as payment for contrived damages. McKerjee and BCS were very bitter that possession of the plane was lost. [...] BCS was in consultation with McKerjee on every aspect of the business and this cold-blooded legal maneuver. The GBC became involved after many complaints from BCS's lenders. An investigation was begun and intense pressure at the Mumbai GBC meetings was placed on BCS to repay the loans and stop his business involvement. The GBC involved ISKCON Resolve regarding BCS's survey work in Iran. There were hundreds of emails exchanged during the negotiations between McKerjee and Kd. In the end, the company trustee of Skyvision attested that there were no damages to the company and released ownership of the plane. Before the whole legal debacle began, BCS provided a written guarantee to his creditors as follows: 'I am extremely sad to hear this from XX. He had been loyally serving McPharr through its extremely critical phase. He had been holding the fort single handedly. To make him feel that he is worth nothing is extremely unfair and ungrateful. XX, please do not feel that way. We may have failed you in many ways, however, please rest assured, that at this time of your difficulty we will not desert you, rather we will be there with you and give you all the support you need. Please let me know what are your difficulties and we will try our best to sort them out together. Please also assure all the devotees to whom we owe money that, although due to the present critical situation we have been defaulting in paying them back and it may take a little longer, nevertheless, their money is safe and they will get it back with interest. I personally am standing guarantee for that. BCS'

“BCS offered to help Kd pay his legal fees, which was accepted but none of the fees were ever repaid. ISKCON Resolve has informed us that the committee handling BCS’s business failings feel that the plane represents a larger portion of repayment of Kd’s loan than what can be offered to the other lenders, so no more funds are to follow. The end result is another example of an ISKCON ‘leader’ manipulating disciples and begs the question as to why a ‘sannyasi’ is engaged in business activity.”

BHAKTICHARU IS THE EXPERT AT GURU BHAKTI HYPOCRISY by Adridharan das, IRM

Bhakticharu Swami (BCS) is the master of hypocrisy par excellence. In previous IRM newsletters we showed that BCS will say one thing which people want to hear, but PRACTICE something completely different. Like re-naming his Vyasa-Puja festival the 'Sri Prabhupada Memorial Festival', but still managing to squeeze in lavish worship for himself in the middle of it. The following from BCS at a Toronto meeting: (1) "Like some individuals are very open, like Bhakti Marga Maharaja, he is kind of, even, he was telling me yesterday when he gives initiation he tells his disciples that you are actually Prabhupada's disciple and I am taking care of you, trying to help you to become engaged in Sri Prabhupada's mission. Now that's actually the crux of the whole thing, that if everybody understands and makes that point clear to their disciples then I think that a lot of our problems will be solved." Here BCS agrees with Bhakti Marg Swami that at initiation the disciple must be told that they are actually Sri Prabhupada's disciple. This is of course 'hard-core ritvik' and goes much further than even the watered-down 'officiating acharya' proposal which was put to him at the same meeting. Yet BCS does NOT practice this himself, but continues to agree with the rest of the GBC that the idea that at initiation the initiate becomes Sri Prabhupada's disciple is a most dangerous, deviant and heretical idea. He also of course continues to relate with 'his disciples' as if they are HIS disciples and NOT Sri Prabhupada's-Guru dakshina, regular Guru-puja, Vyasa-puja offerings and celebrations etc. (2) BCS: "After Harikesh's fall down, I proposed in 1999 that it's obvious that we are going in the wrong direction. Now, when you know you're going in the wrong direction, what do you do? You stop to find the right way. So for the time-being, let's stop giving initiation and find out what is actually the problem and whether we can find a solution and until then, let us stop."

He claims in 1999 he agreed ISKCON's gurus were going in the wrong direction and they should STOP initiating, and figure out the right thing to do. Of course, BCS himself did NOT stop giving initiation, but rather, 'continued going in the wrong direction', which he continues to do to this very day. (3) BCS: "Yes, I agree, to begin with, I think at the beginning I said our main problem was introducing a defective initiation system. And that defective system may have been watered down to some extent but its still prevailing." But this 'defective initiation system' which is 'still prevailing', is the very same one which BCS continues to practice with vigor. Just last week he did many initiations at Bhaktivedanta Manor. (4) BCS: "Like in 1987, although we had a reform, after so many gurus fell down, there was a fifty man committee formed and there was reform, but actually, at least my perception, that it was not a reform. It was kind of watering down the same misconception and continuing. What we did was appoint some more gurus and open up the world for anybody to initiate wherever he wanted. Previous to that it was a kind of zonal acharya? So that I think is the main mistake where we started, that took place after Sri Prabhupada's disappearance that has never been properly rectified."

Here BCS openly admits that the zonal acharya guru hoax of 1978-1987 was NOT reformed. He admits that the main mistake has never been properly rectified and is still continuing today. Yet for the last 17 years he has made ZERO attempt to rectify this deviation, and instead he has continued practising this same 'watered down' misconception. (5) BCS: "Like I noticed that the first ones to leave the movement were the leading devotees who did not become initiating spiritual masters. Like, to name a few, Achutyananda, Gurukripa, Gargamuni. They were all leading devotees, but they didn't become gurus. Many of them were GBCs and then we noticed that those who did not support the gurus, they were systematically driven out of the movement." And BCS was one of those who supported the gurus while they 'systematically' drove these devotees out of the movement? Hence BCS did NOT get thrown out. (6) BCS: "I felt it was becoming fragmented because Prabhupada's position hasn't been properly established. Theoretically we may have established but we haven't practically applied it. One of the main things is to understand is that in ISKCON everything belongs to Srila Prabhupada, not only the assets and properties belong to Srila Prabhupada, but even the individuals also belong to Srila Prabhupada." If everything belongs to Srila Prabhupada, then obviously so do the disciples. Yet BCS is still initiating, trying to scoop up as many disciples for himself. If he truly believed everything belonged to Srila Prabhupada then he would hand all his disciples back to him!

(7) BCS: "But after Prabhupada left, we actually started a philosophy that now Srila Prabhupada is gone, and now the gurus, mainly the diksha gurus, are the sole responsibility of their disciples. Now, had it been a situation where the institution wasn't there, then probably that could have been the case but generally that was the old traditional understanding in India that the guru leaves the planet and the disciple initiates and then it is that guru's responsibility to guide his disciples. But ISKCON was something very different from that. Like those situations are when an individual opens an ashram, and has a few disciples, personally training them and they were responsible for their spiritual life. But when you look at ISKCON, there you can see that it's an institution, it's a worldwide international organization with so many centres, so many devotees, and this structure has been created by Srila Prabhupada." Again here BCS is doing the very opposite of what he says. The very reason the GBC gives for propping up their unauthorised guru system is that "the guru leaves the planet, the disciple initiates, and then guides his disciples." The same system that BCS practices.

In summary, this has to be one of the most brazen displays of hypocrisy ever witnessed. BCS admits that what is going on in ISKCON today, and hence also what he is doing, is WRONG – but he continues to do it anyway. He admits they should have stopped initiating in 1999 - but HE didn't. He admits that the correct thing is to say to the disciples they are Srila Prabhupada's disciples, since everything in ISKCON belongs to Srila Prabhupada anyway - but HE doesn't do this. Rather he carries on initiating, taking more and more worship, dakshina and disciples. It seems in today's ISKCON you can say anything and get away with it. You can admit that everything I am doing is wrong, but I am still going to do it anyway, and like all good cults, no one cares. Meanwhile, Srila Prabhupada's movement continues to disintegrate due to the 'defective' 'main mistake' initiation system that BCS agrees is wrong but still practises anyway, while assisting suppression of the 'everyone is Srila Prabhupada's disciple' system which he agrees with. Hypocrisy. Cheating. (END)

ANOTHER FLIP FLOP BY BCS ON HARIKESHA (BTP 2005)

In an astonishing statement that will bewilder even the most ardent ISKCON Guru supporter, ISKCON Guru BCS encourages that faith be reposed in a certain "Harikesha das." BCS states: "If you still have faith in Harikesha Prabhu, I will be the last one to tell you that you should take shelter of someone else. That's why I feel very hesitant and awkward to give re-initiation to his disciples. He is my Godbrother." (BCS email Oct. 2005). Readers could be forgiven for doing a double-take here. Is this not the same Harikesha of whom BCS stated only two years ago: "After Harikesha fell down in 1998, in 1999 I proposed that it's obvious that we are going in the wrong direction." (BCS, July 20, 2003) Is this not the same Harikesha who was featured in BTP 2 with his female partner and his million-dollar luxury villa in France? BCS' illusion about Harikesha is further compounded by the fact that the GBC itself, who elected BCS as a Guru, categorically rejects Harikesha as any sort of spiritual authority, and recommends that Harikesha's disciples take shelter of Srila Prabhupada instead!

Notice from the GBC Executive Committee Status of Harikesha dasa – Dec. 8, 1998: "On Aug. 12, 1998 the GBC issued a statement on the status of Harikesha das acting as an initiating spiritual master in ISKCON. [...] It now appears that his lack of faith in Srila Prabhupada and his inability to represent the standards and teachings of our disciplic succession and Vedic shastra are deep and on going. [...] The Aug. 12 decision to place Harikesha das on probation came with a set of guidelines for rectification. To date there has been no positive or encouraging movement in this direction, rather it appears that he is moving farther away from Srila Prabhupada and Vedic standards and philosophy [...] We are all fortunate that there is always the security and shelter of Srila Prabhupada's books, his personal example, his service, the Deities, and above all the association of the Vaishnavas. Taking shelter in these will protect you spiritually in these difficult times. Your servants..."

And if even THAT wasn't enough to show how bewildered BCS has become by usurping Srila Prabhupada's position, we now see that Harikesha himself contemptuously rejects the idea of the bona fide Guru as being essential in spiritual life; for on his wife's website, he states: "An understanding of spirituality as distinct and free from 'religion' as we know it today. The freedom of the soul and the soul's inherent right to have a direct and deep loving relationship with the supreme without a need of dis-empowering itself to any form of intermediate 'representative' of God." (www.earthfuture.se/lectures.php, archived 17 Oct. 2005)

BCS has a knack for flip-flopping and making contradictory statements, which undermines his credibility on anything he has said, including his denials of Srila Prabhupada's poisoning.

THEFT OF A DEVOTEE'S BUSINESS

Govinda's Bliss Bars was a San Diego prasadam health foods business developed over many years by Jayanta das, who employed in the mid-nineties one of Bhakticharu's disciples. This disciple was engaged in an undercover operation by his "guru" in 1997 and he stole Jayanta's customer list and all the recipes, disappearing one day. Soon BCS organized and financed the same business under a new name as "Yogi Bars" in North Carolina, declaring that Jayanta das, being a Narayan Maharaja follower, no longer deserved it. This was a cut and dry, clear case of theft of another devotee's business by the millionaire BCS.

BHAKTICHARU'S DEFECTIVE GURU ASHRAYA PAPER AND MORE by Urdhvaga das

"In reply to BCS's 'Guru-Ashraya' paper: it is severely lacking- it not only falls short of describing 'guru-tattva,' but mainly deals with forced re-initiation, already refuted in VVR #10. His paper has already been very scholarly refuted by different devotees; but I wonder why BCS hardly mentions Srila Prabhupada, who is not only the example of the perfect guru, but also the diksha and siksha guru of so many devotees? BCS missed the essential point, namely that any devotee can accept Srila Prabhupada as his siksha guru and follow him directly through his vani (books). Did BCS avoid this because Srila Prabhupada has gone back to Godhead now and we need a new guru as the 'current link' to explain to us what Srila Prabhupada really means regarding guru-tattva as described in SBhag? The following statement is in his paper: 'In order to receive the real message of SBhag, one should approach the current link, or spiritual master, in the chain of disciplic succession.' Of course, one has to understand the message of the Bhagavatam through the person Bhagavata. That is why Srila Prabhupada wrote his own purports. Our SBhag is unique because the verses are directly complemented with the purports of Srila Prabhupada, who is the bonafide maha-bhagavata; therefore, the book Bhagavata and the person Bhagavata are combined in Srila Prabhupada's SBhag. Therefore, there is no need for a third party, 'the so called current Iskcon links' to (mis)interpret what Srila Prabhupada really means to say. Why is it that Srila Prabhupada's books are no longer able to communicate directly to his readers? Didn't it work for BCS? Aren't they the Law books for the next 10,000 years? Otherwise, what is the use of our mass book distribution if Srila Prabhupada is no longer directly available through his books, but only through the interpretation of so called current links? Srila Prabhupada himself said in his last words: 'There is nothing new to be said. Whatever I had to say, I have already said in my books. Now you must try to understand them and continue with your endeavours. Whether I am present or not present doesn't matter. I'll always be with you in that way.'

“But BCS concludes his paper as follows: ‘Now that Srila Prabhupada is no longer physically present, those who truly take shelter of him are those who take shelter of his servants.’ This is nonsense: Srila Prabhupada did NOT say we should take shelter of his servants, but that we should take shelter in his books and directly associate with him through his books. Reporter: What will happen to the movement in the United States when you die? SP: I WILL NEVER DIE. Devotees: Jaya! Hari bol! (laughter) SP: I SHALL LIVE FROM MY BOOKS, AND YOU WILL UTILIZE. (SPConv July 16, 1975) BCS continues his nonsense: ‘I must also admit that Srila Prabhupada did not say anything very clearly about how the initiation system in ISKCON should be after his disappearance from this planet.’ (June 11, 1999) But BCS contradicted himself earlier: ‘When Srila Prabhupada spoke about who will initiate after His Divine Grace leaves this planet, he named some of his disciples, but he suggested that they should not initiate while he was present on this planet. As long as he was present they could initiate on his behalf. And that point Tamal Krishna Gosvami asked Srila Prabhupada: “So, will they be like ritvik?” Srila Prabhupada answered: “Yes, like ritvik.” When Prabhupada was present in Vrindaban, he was not able to give initiation to so many devotees all over the world who were waiting, so there was a need for giving them initiation. So Prabhupada suggested that different devotees in different areas could give them initiation. As long as he was present, they could give initiation on his behalf, but after he had left the planet they would become their disciples.’ (BCS Sept. 1995) Then BCS puts his foot in his mouth: ‘But if instead we feel that, “Now Srila Prabhupada is dead and gone; now I am the guru. So what Srila Prabhupada was to his disciples, to my disciples I am just that.” That mentality would have been fine if we were not a part of a world-wide institution like ISKCON. But since I am a part of ISKCON and ISKCON has been established by Srila Prabhupada, then I have to act within ISKCON under the authority of Srila Prabhupada. This fact we have to recognize.’ (June 11, 1999)

“BCS clearly states that the mentality that ‘Now Srila Prabhupada is dead and gone; now I am the Guru. So what Srila Prabhupada was to his disciples, to my disciples I am just that’ would be FINE - if we were not part of a world institution. But such a mentality is NOT FINE under ANY circumstances! Even if ISKCON was to collapse tomorrow for any reason, how does BCS think that any sincere disciple of Srila Prabhupada's could even ENTERTAIN the possibility that 'Srila Prabhupada is dead and gone'? This is a most offensive mentality, and we are shocked that BCS is preaching that this mentality is only to be kept in check because we happen to belong to a world-wide institution. Please compare these remarks of BCS with what Srila Prabhupada teaches: ‘So my Guru Maharaja will be very, very much pleased with you ... it is not that he is dead and gone. That is not spiritual understanding... he is seeing.

I never feel that I am alone.’ (SPLecture Feb. 3, 1975) Srila Prabhupada used the exact same phrase –‘Dead and Gone,’ and so the understanding that the Guru is 'dead and gone' is FINE except when one just happens to be in a world institution, is not a 'spiritual understanding.' BCS not only does not understand this himself, but he teaches this to his ‘disciples.’

“Years ago Suhotra Swami asked to be given a leave of absence from his duties as a Guru, because amongst other things, by his own admission, over a long period of time he still has ‘deep-rooted attachment;’ his mind ‘is not only unstable in the usual sense (chanchala), but also deformed;’ he now needs ‘psychological counselling’ and a ‘program of rehabilitation.’ He got ‘carried away’ being absorbed in mundane videos and novels so that his ‘sadhana deteriorated,’ and which was all ‘a waste of time.’ (From letter to disciples, June 19, 2000) However, shortly afterwards, BCS's assessment of Suhotra Swami before he gave a lecture in North Carolina was: ‘I feel a little embarrassed to give the class in front of two very, very exalted Vaishnavas who are very learned as well as exalted with their realizations (Bir Krishna Swami and Suhotra Swami).’ Whilst Maharaja thinks it is ‘fine’ to think that Srila Prabhupada is ‘dead and gone’ if one is outside a world institution, Suhotra meanwhile is ‘very, very exalted,’ and ‘very learned and exalted’ in his ‘realisations.’ We wonder how one will ever be able to trust Maharaja's judgment again, when he is not able to detect such deep maya in his Godbrothers? We expect gullible disciples to make such mistakes, but not supposedly 'self-realised' gurus. When one adds BCS's recent exposure for doctoring the translation of Srila Prabhupada's books to support his guru position (IRM #20), we have a behavior catalogue not at all consistent with one who is supposed to be acting as a self-realised Guru full of love and obedience to Srila Prabhupada. We present the above information not to humiliate or embarrass BCS, but as a public service to his disciples and well-wishers, who need to be made aware of BCS's state of consciousness. Srila Prabhupada is dead and gone but ISKCON gurus are learned and exalted?" (END)

BHAKTIC HARU'S ANGER AT LACK OF WORSHIP- WHO IS REALLY IN THE CENTER?

Adridharana das, Oct. 6, 2000: "The GBC gurus have been continually trying to portray the illusion that they are always endeavouring to put 'Srila Prabhupada in the center,' and that they themselves are simply nothing but assistants in this most noble task. Bhakti Caru Swami (BCS) more than anyone specialises in this technique. He will go out of his way to try and show how he is always concerned that Srila Prabhupada be in the center rather than himself. This charade is used no doubt to deflect attention from the real situation, which is that he and others have replaced Srila Prabhupada, stolen his disciples, and are busy enjoying the result of this disobedient activity. We see this in the following accounts of the BCS's pastimes, including the recent Vyasa-Puja celebrations of BCS: 'The next morning, at 6:30, BCS went to Mayapur by car [...] the kirtan kept going and BCS circumambulated the main deities three times, sometimes dancing lightly with his hands held in the air. Finally, he went upstairs to his quarters, again accompanied by a huge trail of devotees all running up the stairs one after another. When he came in and sat down on his Vyasasana, a Guru Puja was started. As the many devotees sang and danced, he distributed 3 types of cookies to the children first and then to the rest of the devotees, as they came to him and offered a flower at his lotus feet. [...] On Vyasa Puja day, BCS was in the temple for Mangala aroti. [...] After that, BCS went to Srila Prabhupada's Vyasasana to be the one to offer the more than 60 preparations that had been offered for the occasion [...] Then, there was supposed to be readings of Vyasa Puja offerings to BCS in the conference room at 4:30. At 5:15 BCS went up there, sat down... but he noticed that there was only about 30 devotees there. He got a little upset with the organizer of the event. He grimaced, got up and left. As he walked away, he said, "I didn't even want to do this! There is practically no one here, so what is the use?" After some time, BCS came out of his room and sat on the Vyasasana, his anger completely gone. Then, for 3 hours, so many devotees stood up and read their offerings to BCS. He said a few words again in glorification of Srila Prabhupada and of the need in our society to put all emphasis on him.'

"Please Note: (1) He receives regular Guru-Puja as he sits on his Vyasasana, with flowers offered to his 'lotus feet', and he hands out cookies to children. (2) He has a lavish Vyasa-puja celebration with 60 preps and a cake so huge it took 8 devotees to carry. (3) He is overcome with 'anger', 'grimaces' and walks out in a huff because there were 'only' 30 disciples waiting to read Vyasa-Puja offerings to him. (4) As soon as there are enough disciples gathered to glorify him, so that the offerings last for a full 3 hours, he is happy to sit on his Vyasasana and listen. (5) Then after having spent 100% of his time ensuring that the emphasis was 100% on only him, he then pontificates that the society needs to 'put all the emphasis' on Srila Prabhupada! This has to be the height of hypocrisy. This charade epitomises perfectly his technique of receiving massive adulation and glorification for hours on end, and then simply SAYING that actually we should all emphasise Srila Prabhupada. This technique serves two purposes: (1) It distracts everyone's attention from the massive 'Srila Prabhupada imitation' that has just gone on. (2) It makes BCS less guilty for having just engaged in an orgy of self-glorification. To see how he has substituted Srila Prabhupada from the center with himself, we can hear a few of the 'Vyasa-Puja' offerings which were made to him this year: 'Due to Your direct mercy we are progressing in our Krishna Conscious lives and we cannot understand how much we have lost out in our lives. We thank You for picking us up from the gutters and accepting us as Your children; we pray that we live up to Your expectations. [...] Please give us Your spiritual guidance, we need it to make our lives successful and have an opportunity to go back home, back to Godhead. You have so very mercifully lifted us up from the gutters of material nescience and given us the wonderful opportunity to establish our lost relationship with Krishna.' But isn't it actually Srila Prabhupada who is doing this? Is BCS really keeping Srila Prabhupada in the center when he has trained his disciples to ascribe to himself the characteristics which are really actually only applicable to Srila Prabhupada? And is it really keeping Srila Prabhupada in the center when as he have just seen above he tries to imitate the position of Srila Prabhupada? When you hear BCS or anyone else pontificate about how they are keeping 'Srila Prabhupada in the center,' please remember: ACTIONS SPEAK LOUDER THAN WORDS. And we can see very clearly that the actions do not match their hypocritical words." (END)

BHAKTIC HARU SWAMI INITIATES DESPITE PROMISE NOT TO by Gauridas Pandit das

"New Dwarka, Sunday: BCS performed an initiation ceremony in the temple room. Just a few months prior I had a talk with him in Srila Prabhupada's garden, his favorite place, here in LA. At that time BCS said that Srila Prabhupada is the delivering guru to the devotees he initiates. He said that the current guru system in ISKCON is in need of more reform and therefore he proposed to the GBC to hold off on initiations until we can work it out. He said he was not initiating for this whole year. Then all of the sudden he goes on initiating. Isn't that a little (a lot) duplicitous? Bhaktisidhanta Sarasvati warns against duplicity, especially for those in the renounced order. I was so happy with BCS before but now am disappointed again. Will the GBC ever change? In private many GBCs agree with reformers but when it comes to action they fall back on their unauthorised guru system. In ISKCON we have to follow the founder acharya Srila Prabhupada and initiate on his behalf. We are getting closer every year to Srila Prabhupada's desire in this regard. Still leaders refuse any real reform. When are the modern day gurus going to stop living the lie? When death grabs them?" (Nov. 22, 1999)

ANOTHER FAUX PAS OR A DELIBERATE OFFENSE? By Adridharan das

Bhakti Caru Swami Criticises Srila Prabhupada's Household Life

"The catalogue of offences against Srila Prabhupada by our GBC continues. Now BCS, who loves to paint himself as someone who is always promoting Srila Prabhupada, has launched an attack on grhasta householders, sparing not even Srila Prabhupada, who was also married before he came to preach in the West. In preaching to a devotee, BCS said the following: 'In certain circumstances, Srila Prabhupada sometimes spoke very openly about brahmacharya. Nobody criticized him for that.' Similarly, BCS, following Srila Prabhupada's footsteps and example, spoke to a devotee yesterday about brahmacharya. He told him, 'Don't think of women. Actually, when a man thinks of woman, he becomes weak.' He added, 'To get involved with a woman is completely useless. You can ask any mature woman, and they'll also tell you that, because they KNOW that when men become involved with women, it makes them weak. At the same time,' he continued, 'we are not supposed to run away from them. We have to confront them. We must respect them, otherwise that is another attachment. They are spirit souls in a certain body, and they are, in spite of themselves, playing a certain function, namely that of attracting men.' He said 'the grihastha ashram is not practical for dynamic preaching. Look at Bhaktisidhanta Sarasvati. And look at Srila Prabhupada: He became involved in preaching after he got out of householder life.' (Email PAMHO, Jan. 31, 2003 Chandrasekhar Acharya das BCS)

"Firstly, we see that Srila Prabhupada directly contradicts BCS's offensive speculations against both marriage and himself: (1) 'I want that some ideal families of Krishna Consciousness should be established in your country, so that people can see that our movement is not one sided or dry. So we do not want dry renunciators. Krishna Himself married so many wives as a ksatriya. Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, although He was to take sannyas at the age of 24 years, still He married twice within 20 years. Lord Nityananda Prabhu also married. Advaita Prabhu and Srivas Prabhu, they were also householders. So to become married is NO impediment for advancement in Krishna Consciousness. One should be vigilant only that he is not diverting from Krishna Consciousness. One has to follow the footprints of the great Acharyas, then everything is all right. I was also a married man – my family is still existing. So you should always remember that marriage is NOT impediment.” (SPL Madhusudan 10 Mar. 1969) (2) “They (women) have also come to Krishna, we cannot reject them. Therefore I have advised my students to get themselves married. I was householder, my Guru Maharaja was life-long brahmachari. But we are doing the SAME work of preaching Krishna Consciousness, so what is the difference, grhastha and brahmachari?” (SPL Danavir 17 Dec. 1972) (END)

THE CHEAP, HINDUIZED ABHAY CHARAN VIDEO PROJECT by Gaura Prasad das

“I would like to draw attention to another misrepresentation of our Srila Prabhupada by an ISKCON guru. Years ago Bhakticharu Swami (BCS) embarked on the serialized Abhay Charan video project on the life of Srila Prabhupada. He spent over $1,000,000 to produce 108 episodes and spent much of his own time as well as the valuable time and money of many ISKCON devotees to achieve his goal. The result was a cheap ‘hinduization’ of Srila Prabhupada. From the first episode, his depiction of Srila Prabhupada, Srila Bhaktivinoda and other acharyas in our line is third-rate and erroneous. The characters in the series are so two-dimensional and their depictions so misleading, a disclaimer should have appeared at the end of each episode: “This is a work of fiction. Any resemblance to those depicted is purely coincidental. For example, under BCS, Bhaktivinoda Thakur’s famous struggle against the yogi Bisakisen became a poorly directed, poorly scripted and poorly acted parody –something like Ghost Busters meets the Telly Tubbies. It bore no resemblance to the original story. The scripts are never according to what we have heard from Srila Prabhupada or his disciples. I was told by one of the devotees working on the project that when one of BCS’s disciples remarked, ‘But that is not the way it really happened,’ his response was, ‘I know – but I saw it like this in my heart!’ (yeah, right...)”

“However, the worst was when Srila Prabhupada goes to the West. The actor (not a devotee, but a chain-smoker) BCS chose to play the elderly Srila Prabhupada only resembled Prabhupada in as much that he was old! He was so tall that he towered over the other actors. How did BCS use this actor to present Srila Prabhupada’s pastimes to the world? In one of the episodes, Srila Prabhupada meets Kali personified in New York one night. Suddenly a beam of light shoots from Prabhupada’s forehead and destroys Kali. Er...sorry, but I don’t remember that incident. BCS said he was inspired that the world was in need of real heroes, and Srila Prabhupada was certainly a real hero. OK, but what BCS has done is turn Srila Prabhupada into a Marvel Comic superhero, or more specifically a cheap Bollywood imitation of a Hindu superhero. Yes, this is BCS’s very own personal representation of his spiritual master – immortalised on celluloid for generations to watch in awe.

Yes, this is BCS’s very own personal representation of his spiritual master – immortalised on celluloid for generations to watch in awe.

“Of course, I’m sure that his followers and the Hindus that support (and manage) various ISKCON temples think that Abhay Charan is a wonderful TV series. The reality is that Abhay Charan was so bad that even the Indian TV networks wouldn’t take it; that’s REALLY bad! I’m wondering why didn’t we hear any more about Abhay Charan after BCS finally completed this project? It was neither glorified or endorsed by the GBC, it wasn’t propagated by the temples –it doesn’t even have its own website. Strange for something that BCS spent $1,000,000 and almost a decade of his life on. Was this silence because the GBC felt that his depiction of Srila Prabhupada was an embarrassment to ISKCON? This sad caricature of our beloved Srila Prabhupada and the bogus pastimes that have been fabricated by BCS do more damage to the image of His Divine Grace than Satsvarupa’s humanistic Lilamirta ever could. More likely that ISKCON congregational members will watch Abhay Charan than read Satsvarupa’s biography. Abhay Charan, Video Epic, DVD Set now only: $ 99.95” (END)

COMMENT: Thank goodness this video series is so “off” and poorly done that few have become infected by these deviant portrayals of Srila Prabhupada, deciding not to watch them at all.

BHAKTICHARU’S UNHAPPY CUSTOMERS

An article around the turn of the century by Mr. Kay Maharaj from Newcastle, South Africa was posted online which complained bitterly about “Bhakti Charu's Video Cheating.” He claimed that

“hundreds” of persons including himself were cheated with no restitution despite all efforts. “A few years ago some of your devotees from my city in South Africa began to market a video on the life of your leader Swami Prabhupada. The video is titled Abhay Charan. We were told that the producer of the video is one of the present leaders of your movement. His name is recorded on the sleeve of the video as Bhakti Charu Swami. We were sold the first video and asked to subscribe for the balance of 25 videos. Many of us did this, consenting our banking details for a debit order. This meant that the money would be automatically withdrawn from our banking account for 26 months. We were promised one video per month. I was coerced by your leader in my area to get my friends and family members to order for this video which I did. I signed the subscription in Jan. 1997. It is now over 4 years and I have received 7 videos only. Yet the money for all 26 tapes were taken out of our accounts. Despite our repeated attempts for reasonable answers from this person, all we got were stupid reasons. This in spite of our numerous complaints regarding the video itself. Some of the videos were posted to us in a different language, some with very poor sound quality or no sound at all. During the middle of last year I was offered an apology by this person and invited to attend a conference in Newcastle whereby we were told that the producer will be in attendance. He would address the delay of the videos. This turned out to be a farce. All we get is a load of empty promises. This is really a shame and disgrace. What has happened to the hundreds of thousands of rands collected by your movement for this video? If the tapes are not available then at least refund our money. It would be beneficial for your movement if your members could be truthful and present the correct facts rather than embark on ambitious projects and involve the public by taking our money and then doing a disappearing act. This has happened to us once too many. If we cannot get some answers for this latest round of cheating we will opt for legal aid.” Mr. Kay Maharaj (K Natal, South Africa) (END)

DEFECTION OF ALANATH DAS AND SATYABHAMA DAS, TOP AIDES TO BHAKTICHARU

“I am one such victim. I found I have surrendered my profession as a teacher in South Africa, and given up all my assets and all my valuables, and I had been exploited, and I would say I had been treated like a polished slave. (The gurus) do not obey the four regulative principles that Prabhupada has laid out - no gambling, no illicit sex. We find in the history of the ISKCON gurus they fall away with the female disciples whom they are supposed to regard as their daughters. In a way it's like incest, but still they hang on to this position of saying 'I'm a pure devotee, I'm a guru'.” BBC Interview July 2001: Satyabhama dasi: Aired to 150 million viewers worldwide. COMMENTS: Satyabhama dasi and her husband Alanath were leading disciples of and fundraisers for BCS. They were both schoolteachers from South Africa who gave up their careers to work as the top aides to BCS's projects, including the Abhay Charan video series. They merged their savings into BCS's bank account with assurances of its safety, but when they finally came to realise that Srila Prabhupada was their real guru, they were cast out and their $100K life savings was gone and lost. They complained to BCS about his Mercedes, luxuries, unnecessary expenses in his lavish lifestyle, and when he spurned their protests, they spoke to other devotees in despair and went to the media such as BBC London.

BHAKTICHARU ENCOURAGES HIS SUPPORTER IN LAND SWINDLE by Nityananda das

“In 1998 BCS impressed some devotees near ISKCON Hillsborough North Carolina that he would like to do grand things there, such as build a Vedic Ashram, temple, school, etc. But he needed some land. Suddhajiva das tried to pressure myself into defaulting on 12 acres by filing a court claim which failed but cost me great expense. I phoned BCS by to appeal about being unfairly subjected to legal attack on his behalf and how this land would be donated to him if the court case was successful. He simply said he did not want to get involved in a dispute between devotees, though it was being conducted with his secret encouragement and with himself as the beneficiary. This was a case of extreme duplicity on his part.” (see Book One, Ch. 49 Bearing False Witness)

DEMIGOD WORSHIP IN HIS TEMPLES AND NEW CAR PUJAS

In 2006 Bhakticharu Swami opened his new temple complex in Ujjain, India. Everything was first-class and exquisite, but included was a greater than life-size Lord Shiva deity within the temple itself. This is not something Srila Prabhupada gave in his teachings or did anywhere, and he specifically instructed against such demigod worship in ISKCON. Many other ISKCON leaders attended the grand opening and endorsed this arrangement, with Badrinarayana das making justifications with reference to a Shiva linga installed by Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati on one occasion and also Ganesh figures that had been included over the entrances of two of the Vrindaban Goswami temples. However, Srila Prabhupada disciples must follow what Srila Prabhupada taught them and not search out obscure precedents to rationalize the obvious appeal that Lord Shiva will have to Hindu guests. ISKCON is not meant to cater to Hindu sentimentalities, as seen in quotes from Srila Prabhupada himself: (1) "So I think that the Murti which you have got is not Visnu Murti, but it appears to be a Murti of Lord Siva. Anyway, this Murti is not worshipable by us. In our temple we shall always worship Radha Krishna Murti or Lord Jagannatha." (SPL Jan. 15, 1969) (2) "The Deity worship should be done just in the way it was carried out in my presence." (SPL Nov.

13, 1970) (3) "You know that we have refused even the Hindu people to hold demigod worship in our temple [...] As a matter of fact, we should not allow anyone to hold any function in our temple, otherwise than Vaishnava principle." (SPL Oct 10, 1968) (4) "Other demigods, like Brahma, Siva, Surya, Ganesa and many similar deities, are worshiped by men in the mode of passion, urged on by the desire for material enjoyment. But those who are actually situated in the mode of goodness (sattva-guna) of material nature worship only vishnu-tattvas [...] It is for this reason only that candidates for liberation deliberately reject the worship of the demigods, although they have no disrespect for any one of them." (SBhag 1.2.26 purport) (5) "The greatest danger to our movement will come when we manufacture and create our own process for worshiping the deities." (SPL Apr. 1, 1973) (6) "But if everyone says that 'I can manufacture my own way of worshiping the Deity,' then what will be the condition? It will be simply pandemonium." (SPLecture June 22, 1972)

Lord Shiva deities and worship has become quite common throughout ISKCON, thus BCS did not encounter any resistance from ISKCON leaders for this clear and dramatic deviation from the teachings of Srila Prabhupada. At least one ISKCON guru objected, though. Danavir Goswami wrote in 2008: "Those who are attracted to Lord Siva would do well to follow his own example by exclusively worshiping and glorifying Lord Krishna. There are some immature devotees of Krishna who chant prayers to the demigod Shiva on the basis that worship of Krishna's devotee is superior to worship of Krishna Himself. Although it is true that Lord Shiva is the greatest Vaishnava, nevertheless, Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, the yuga avatara for this age, has clearly stipulated that the only process for self-realization is chanting the names of Hari." The Hinduization of ISKCON (Ch. 121) takes place amidst both support and objections from within ISKCON. It is a seriously fractured society, or as one senior ISKCON devotee stated: "ISKCON is a complex organization." BCS has contributed very unfavorably to ISKCON's standards of purity and fidelity to Srila Prabhupada's teachings by introducing Lord Shiva in "his" ISKCON Ujjain temple.

THE HARD LIFE OF BHAKTIC HARU SWAMI

A report on BCS Istagosthi about their Guru Maharaja's hard life, May 27, 2007: *"There, Guru Maharaja is able to 'take it easy,' so to speak, namely resting, catching up on correspondence, and guiding various business ventures of XX and his associates. Every morning at seven, he goes down to the indoor pool to swim several laps and spend time in the sauna, one after another, repeatedly for 4-5 times [...] On gurudev's request in the Jacuzzi this morning [...] Gurudev whilst sitting in the Jacuzzi [...] Gurudev recalled 'I swam in the pool in the backyard, it was a nice pool.'" But Srila Prabhupada said that sannyasis have nothing to do with business, swimming (or saunas?) (1) "And they are finding out sporting, swimming and surfing- simply all programs of wasting time... I see only and laugh." (SPConv*

Nov. 11, 1975) (2) “We are not interested in these things like hathayoga and swimming, We do not encourage such useless activities.” (SPL Jan. 6, 1975)

Sure, we’ve all sometimes gone swimming, but a sannyasi/GBC/guru is held to a higher standard and it is all too common for ISKCON gurus such as BCS and others to be luxuriating unnecessarily or engaged in idle sports. The clear impression given is that he/they are simply enjoying sense gratification and thus are imposter gurus. Tied in with Hridayananda’s tennis and ping pong, Shivarama Swami’s penchant for luxury resorts, Tamal’s ultra top-tier modern medical treatment program, Kirtanananda’s $3K million attorney fees, BCS’s luxury Mercedes, and so on- one sees that ISKCON guru sannyasis are not renounced at all. We estimate the sum total in the 10 wealthiest ISKCON gurus’ bank accounts to at least $100-200 million. This is stolen loot.

ANOTHER BIG REAL ESTATE PROJECT FIASCO

From BTP magazine #19, Spring 2008, is another BCS deviation: “Another gross example of deviation by BCS is his desire to turn ISKCON [or his own part of it] into a mundane business enterprise. He recently held Vedic yajnas and puja for the ground-breaking ceremony for an IT Park he is planning to build. The details, given on his own website are (Mar 8, 2008): ‘The IT Park will be the highest building in Madhya Pradesh consisting of 15 stories and be twin towers. Two floors of shopping mall, and 12 stories of exclusive IT offices, conference rooms, state of the art auditorium and stereoscopic planetarium [...] it will also host IT related setups like a 3D animation studio, an animation school, advanced software base, a training school, a call centre, and research and development. Plus a TV channel broadcasting 24 hours a day all over the world!’” Despite such grandiose plans and visions of grandeur, it is believed that nothing was built as planned on this property, but that serious legal improprieties developed over violations of pledges to the government on specific land use restrictions, defaulted bank loans, and missing funds. At least, this was seen online. It is hard to know what actually goes on in BCS’s enterprises, though, because he is not held to account for financial disclosure even though it is ISKCON law. Srila Prabhupada wrote in a letter on Jan. 22, 1976: “Business must be done by the grihastas, not by the sannyasis or brahmacharis.” Hello... did you hear that, BCS?

HIS MANY SELF-CONTRADICTIONS WITH THE POISON ISSUE

Book One Ch. 78 we saw BCS’s multiple contradicting statements about Srila Prabhupada’s poisoning. We concluded that with so many changing stories and inconsistent statements, he was a man with something to hide. “If he says contradictory things is he not a rascal?” (SPConv July 13, 1975)

WHY IS IT THAT MAJOR RUMORS ABOUT ISKCON LEADERS ARE NOT INVESTIGATED?

Monalisa Roy (Mohini Radha dasi) and her parents are all Jayapataka Swami disciples. Around 2003 she visited her parents in Calcutta and she learned without doubt that BCS’s secretary’s wife, who also resides in Calcutta, had a prolonged affair with her guru BCS while her husband Chaitanya das had an affair with her sister. The husband knew what the wife was doing, and when the wife became remorseful for causing her guru’s falldown, she attempted suicide by dousing and igniting herself with kerosene. She survived but not without serious burns and scars. Mohini Radha’s parents and other Calcutta devotees were all privy to this scandal. The story was told to Nityananda das in 2003 by Mohini Radha dasi in person. In 2016, Tattva Darshan das (India) confirmed: “The rumor about BCS and Chaitanya das was heard in the grapevine years ago but was never substantiated.” Perhaps a private investigator could better determine the facts because the GBC will not. We are looking for funds to hire private investigators to check on all the ISKCON leaders. If everyone looks the other way, then how will the integrity of ISKCON’s leaders and Srila Prabhupada’s mission be ensured?

LUXURY “SPIRITUAL” CRUISE WITH BHAKTIC HARU SWAMI

OK, this has got to take the cake, the grand prize! From BCS’s official website: SPIRITUAL CRUISE With Bhakti Charu Swami, AUG. 11, 2017, ISKCON CRUISE – Organised by ISKCON Ujjain-Beginning the new year – Jan. 2018, you are offered a special spiritual retreat with 3 Days stay in Singapore and 3 Days stay in Sydney, followed by a Spiritual Cruise for 8 Days to New Caledonia.

Bookings open to Sept. 30, 2017. Contact iskconcruise@gmail.com or call +91 98368 30414 We hope to see you! Your servants, Team ISKCON Cruise

At first it seemed this was a joke or hoax, but after confirmation, to our utter shock and disgust, we saw it's all true. Hundreds of thousands will be spent on this fiasco, a mixture of sense gratification (in the company of the lowest of mankind) and so-called spiritual retreat with a primary suspect in Srila Prabhupada's poisoning. It is sure BCS will be making a good profit from the cruise program, which will go into his Panama offshore bank account or to promoting his good self to gain more hapless disciples. Sannyasi on a luxury cruise to South Pacific destinations for a profit... did Srila Prabhupada ever do such a thing? Maybe a retreat on a holy pilgrimage to the Himalayas, Vrindaban, Jagannath Puri... but New Caledonia? Will the "pure vegetarian meals" be prepared by the same cooks who cook and serve the flesh of cows from the same kitchen? And to whom will the "pure" food be offered? To BCS? BCS prasadam!

This is a prime example of how the bogus ISKCON gurus are simply exploiting their followers and giving them not Krishna consciousness, but a very bad example in mission drift and totally bizarre behaviors. And if they will be engaged in kirtan, shastra study, Bhagwatam discussions, and japa sessions all the time, but not swimming in the pool or sunbathing on the deck with almost-naked women, watching movies in the theatre, playing games, gambling and what not, then why are they doing this on an expensive cruise ship and not in some mode of goodness forest ashrama or Radha Krishna temple? BCS is catering to materialistic sentimentalists who want to mix the sense gratification of an ocean cruise with the "holy" association of a prominent ISKCON guru. What a profound adulteration of Srila Prabhupada's standards!

CONCLUSION

BCS has not done very well with big business ventures, neither did he achieve much with his low quality and bogus Srila Prabhupada video biography. As many of the ISKCON unauthorized gurus have experienced, at least one of BCS' disciples, Sri Krishna Chaitanya das (Kersi Mehta), publicly renounced him as a guru in favor of Srila Prabhupada on Oct. 19, 1999. There are major questions about his business ethics, dishonesty about Srila Prabhupada's poisoning, deviations with demigod worship and rituals for money (such as new car pujas), and why he has so much money as a sannyasi. Are there any financial disclosures for his finances? No, there are not, as there are none for any ISKCON guru other than Jayadvaita Swami. An online article on Sept. 11, 2017 questioned why BCS has risen to repeatedly being GBC Chairman and one of the most esteemed persons in ISKCON. This seems very unusual considering that although he is not seen as so philosophically adept nor a giver of profound classes, given to sentimentality and that he joined very late in 1977, still he became an initiating guru after only 10 years and is an outstanding person in ISKCON today. This speaks much of ISKCON's condition. He was never interviewed regarding Srila Prabhupada's being poisoned and the circumstances surrounding His Divine Grace's physical disappearance in 1977, and his numerous contradictions indicate he had lots to hide. He passed away alone, July 2020 on a COVID respirator.

CHAPTER 140: JAYAPATAKA SWAMI

“OBSESSED” TEFLON DON OF ISKCON

Jayapataka Swami (JPS) can be best described as ISKCON’s “Teflon Don” in that he has escaped any serious public scandal in his guru career. While many other ISKCON gurus have been exposed as deviating from the basic principles of spiritual life, JPS has somehow better maintained his reputation, presiding as the seniormost ISKCON guru with deference almost as ISKCON’s Godfather. However, he was censured by the GBC for his poor sadhana and not chanting his japa bead meditation, and he was restricted to only one birthday celebration a year (he was constantly travelling and in each place he would have a huge birthday “Vyasapuja” party). The GBC had to respond to a multitude of complaints. He is widely seen as a “diplomatic” or slippery-worded, duplicitous person, not straightforward in his dealings, and Shivarama Swami complained loudly to other GBC members about JPS. “It is a matter of how to deal with, restrict, constrain JPS in a way that does not break him, his disciples and also protects the Society from him. [...] From the evidence I would say that he is a sick person, obsessed, and that obsession makes lying or duplicitous behavior fully reconcilable with service to Prabhupada and Krishna consciousness.” (Shivarama Swami email to Bir Krishna Maharaja Sept. 18, 2003).

JPS has out-lasted all the other 10 zonal acharyas, who have all more or less been discredited as sannyasis and gurus. He amazingly survived an attack in Spain in 1990 where his throat was cut on three sides within 1/8 inch of his jugular vein. He (partially) survived a massive stroke in 2008 and he continues as the senior-most ISKCON guru still standing (sitting now). His astrological horoscope contains a raja-yoga for cheating defeat and death. Although he has not been implicated in any major personal scandals, his very participation in ISKCON throughout the zonal acharya era, the guru falldowns and deviations, the child abuse, not responding to the “poisoning controversy,” etc- reflects upon him. His past certainly is not as clean as many would think.

AT THE CENTER OF THE MAYAPUR CHILD ABUSE SCANDAL

“JPS has been the GBC for Mayapur since the beginning. If I am to believe that he is less responsible than Dhanurdhara I want to know what he has done over the years to protect the children. Although he did not personally perpetrate abuse, he was negligent in his duty of care toward the children at least as much as Dhanurdhara. Once he randomly asked my father if he wanted to be a teacher in the Gurukula, he didn’t even know my father. Given the carelessness with which he enrolled teachers, it is no wonder that so many atrocities took place. Anybody willing to do the job was welcomed with little or no screening. Sadly more often than not the volunteers for this job had their own agendas.” (Gurukuli das, 2005) JPS has been in charge of the Mayapur project since 1972. He necessarily was intimately familiar with all the physical and sexual child abuse in Mayapur, including what was done by Bhavananda, Satadhanya, Nitai Chand, etc with whom he was intimately involved day-in, day-out. It is impossible he knew nothing- he HAD to know almost everything. Yet he was silent and did nothing to prevent further abuse nor to protect those who depended on him for protection. His leadership was a colossal farce. He neglected the duties and great responsibilities of his office, and should answer and pay for the inexcusable horrors foisted upon innocent, trusting children under his watch while he did nothing. Silent consent is as culpable as active child abuse.

JPS RESPONSIBILITY FOR MAYAPUR CHILD ABUSE

Q: Did Jayapataka know about the widespread Mayapur child sex abuse right under his nose for many years, or how it was covered up, and why did he fail to protect these children in his care?”

Dhira Govinda das replied: *"I established the ISKCON CPO (or Association for the Protection of Vaishnava Children [APVC]) in April 1998, and served as director for over six years. Based on my experience in that capacity it is clear the most severe child maltreatment in the history of ISKCON happened in Mayapur, from the late 70s through the early 90s. If professional child protection investigators were to review the voluminous case files related to the child abuse cases connected with ISKCON Mayapur during those years, I feel certain that the picture they would get would be that of a multi- generational ring of sadistic pedophiles. As CPO director I spoke in-person with Jayapataka Swami (JPS) several times, 1999-2002. He was at least a main GBC for ISKCON Mayapur during those years and while I served as CPO director. I perceived JPS showing some care and concern for the children there at Mayapur, including for the pain and torment suffered by those children who were supposed to be under his care, who experienced severe child maltreatment of various sorts- physical, sexual, emotional, and child neglect. Mainly, though, I experienced speaking to JPS about the past, present and future of child protection in ISKCON Mayapur to be like entering some sort of twilight zone. It was spooky. We would inform him of various grievous instances of child abuse, under his (lack of) supervision, in the past, and various protective measures to implement in the present and future. Conversing with him a year later, or, in some instances, even days later- it was like he was impervious and oblivious to the previous conversations, and the information and recommendations related to those conversations. I am confident that if the cases of child abuse in ISKCON Mayapur were to have gone to a governmental court of law, and processed justly, Jayapataka Swami, at least in most countries, would spend time in prison, for charges such as child endangerment and obstruction of justice related to cases of child maltreatment.

"At a meeting with some GBCs during an international GBC convention in 2001, the topic came up of processing- investigating and adjudicating- cases of alleged child maltreatment, not just of those who were accused of directly committing child abuse, but also of those who were in supervisory positions and apparently acted with malfeasance and gross negligence. JPS's name naturally came up, as, again, the child abuse in ISKCON Mayapur was the worst in the history of the institution (and, by any standards, it was quite egregious). One GBC retorted, 'Do you know how many disciples he has?' The meaning was clear- it was not feasible to process any case in regards to JPS, due to the number of his disciples. And in my experience, in my interactions with ISKCON GBC leaders, especially the GBC Executive Committee, the question of how many disciples someone had was for them commonly, routinely, a major, primary consideration in regards to how to handle and process (or not process) cases of alleged or confirmed child maltreatment connected with ISKCON. I was actually stunned, speechless, the first time. In future occurrences, I would respond, 'My concern is the protection of children, and the integrity of Srila Prabhupada's movement. I don't get how someone's number of disciples ought in any way to be a consideration.' I was incredulous that they were placing so much weight, or any weight at all, on how many disciples someone had, in decision-making processes related to child maltreatment cases. In writing this I don't mean to paint with too broad a brush.

"My impression was that, at least 80-90%, it was a political concern, and not concern for the spiritual welfare of the disciples. And at least just as much, the concern was that the ISKCON guru would leave the institution with thousands of his disciples. My impression is that, if that happened, then they (particularly the GBC Executive Committee) were very concerned that it would reflect badly on their performance. Anyhow, that's my perception, for whatever it may be worth. And, if I were to cut through the fluff and bluff and get to the crux of the matter, the GBC as a group, and many or most of its members, manifested that 10-20% in the form of, 'Well, if we don't continue to deceive those poor disciples, how will they ever progress towards realization of Absolute Truth? In this current case of Lokanath Maharaja, clearly, obviously, it is and has been, largely if not completely, about, 'Do you know who he is... how many disciples he has?!' In April 1998 the GBC insisted the CPO not investigate Lokanath Maharaja's case. Ostensibly that was because, the GBC has already handled this case. I've previously provided facts on the GBC's deception, double-dealing, and smoke and mirrors, around that assertion, that ‘the GBC has already handled this case.’ My personal perspective is that that paradigm, how many disciples he has, is Twilight Zone, if not Jonestown. With the prevailing paradigm, the question, instead, is, whether he should be enthusiastically regarded and worshipped as nondifferent from God. I’ve shared what I’ve presented above to illustrate that it likely won’t serve anyone to retain the notion, the illusion, that the GBC, to any appreciable extent, substantially values the principle that justice is blind, and to support and encourage each of us to healthily examine our paradigms of thought, in a spirit of self-discovery. I encourage you to read carefully the Red Flags article I wrote, to get a sense of the depths and layers of deception and cover-up that permeates the ISKCON Mayapur culture (under the governance of Jayapataka Swami). Also, read closely thru p. 14 of the Report on the Bhaktivedanta Gurukula Village document, to see the lies and culture of concealment and cover-up rampant there in ISKCON Mayapur, related to child abuse.”

RUMORS THAT SHOULD BE INVESTIGATED

In 2004 we heard from a source that we know and trust that JPS had an affair and child with a former Gurukuli girl. In 2017 a former ISKCON devotee, initiated in 1971 who was a longtime resident in India in the seventies and eighties and is now a sannyasi, independently volunteered this account: “I never told you the whole story about JPS and his affair with the woman because it came from XXX’s son. As long as XXX was alive I did not want to be the one to let the cat out of the bag because he could be vicious. But now that he is dead you should contact his son YYY who lives here in Alachua. The gist of the story is that JPS made an ex-kuli girl pregnant when she was in her 30’s. JPS pays for the house, car and monthly stipend to keep her quiet. Tamal found out about it. He threatened to expose JPS. Ravindra and Badri stopped him because JPS has his disciples all over the world in every temple cooking and doing Pujari work. Badri and Ravindra were afraid the movement would collapse if JPS were exposed. Tamal agreed to back down but said that the next time he would not ask, he would just expose it. [So JPS felt threatened by Tamal.] JPS arranged the taxi for Tamal to return to Calcutta. The driver killed him and got a big payoff. I spoke to a very well known taxi company owner and he told me that this driver is still alive and lives in a big mansion. YYY knows the girl, where she lives, and how to contact her. This is not directly related to the poisoning but... I can get hold of the Taxi company owner in India when I go later this year. His name is ZZZ. Yes this was at that Mayapur meeting in 2002 just before Tamal died in the accident. JPS arranged the taxi for Tamal and it is rumored he paid the driver to do the deed; the first ones from ISKCON on the scene were JPS and Bhakticharu, who had a car waiting at the gate. There was a couple in the back, the woman died, the husband survived.”

Two Tamal disciples were riding in the back of the taxi, one of whom, Vrindabaneshwari dasi, died along with Tamal, but her husband Kalasamvara das (temple president in Auckland) survived with minor injuries. The taxi driver disappeared from the accident scene uninjured. Tamal had no seat belt and received a massive injury to his head, dying after an hour-long coma with his eyes frozen wide open. We hope someone will come forward with further evidence of this incident. But considering JPS’ s history, with his 1983 takeover of New Talavan farm and secret middle-of-the-night transfer of 70 cows from another farm, the suspicious suicide of a devotee critic in a local Navadwip jailcell, a bomb explosion on the Mayapur property with fatality, the all-pervasive and extensive Bengali mafia and corruption in Mayapur, the millions of unaccounted BBT funding for the Mayapur project- a confirmation of a rigged taxi “accident” to eliminate and silence his rival Tamal would come as no surprise to us at all. (However, others might be shocked.) All of the 11 original zonal acharyas but Tamal are exposed or rumored as having inappropriate relations/dealings with women. Tamal was widely said to have had an operation in China to disable his sex capacity, a rumor so unusual it is likely true... ISKCON misleadership has a documented track record of cover-ups of Srila Prabhupada’s poisoning and multiple ISKCON guru fall-downs. When institutions are thoroughly corrupted, as is ISKCON, and the members are complicit in the corruption, rewards must be offered to establish the truth and clean up the corruption.

In Dec. 1983 JPS removed Nityananda das as temple president of the New Talavan Mississippi farm project without a vote by the devotees. He simply informed him of his decision with a smile. There was no discussion, no forum, no alternative. The reason given was that the farm was not developing, although this was due to being cut off from the nearby city temple by its president Vrikodara das, who then took over the farm. Dirty politics. JPS's unspoken reason was that Nityananda had an "open guru" policy at New Talavan where new devotees could choose their own guru, something which flew in the face of the prevailing zonal acharya system and which JPS did not appreciate as the zonal acharya for New Talavan.

CHAPTER 141: BIR KRISHNA MAHARAJA

At one time Bir Krishna Goswami (BKG) was the Miami temple president, and he purchased a large farm property in South Florida near Sebring. However the property was soon found to be subject to flooding, and the farm was useless and sold. Ever since, BKG has been known as the "Bir that made Miami famous." He built a geodesic dome temple on 10 acres in North Carolina where he also had his private cabin and recording studio deep in the forest by the Eno River, away from the main complex. Pratyatosh and his wife Urmila operated a Hare Krishna ashrama school near the temple and there were tensions with how BKG sometimes became involved with the management, the children, parents, or with Urmila. BKG was criticized heavily by Pratyatosa das for improper behaviors and familiarity with his wife Urmila dasi. He wrote in 2021: "BKG... [tried] to turn my wife against me. He pulled the same stunt against another Hare Krishna husband: 'Krishna das said: BKG did the same thing with my wife. When we first moved there, he visited her at my house while I was away at work and turned her against me using promises of position and power. He inserted himself between us. He used my wife to play with as if she was his private toy. It was marriage interference and split us up. What a liar.'" (Reference: <https://urmiladasi.wordpress.com/2014/11/18/pratyatosha>) BKG's son Krishna Jacobs was his sworn enemy who greatly embarrassed BKG with many accusations. BKG exhibited sahajiya dealings with lady devotees including Dirgha dasi in 1994 during ISKCON's Narayan Maharaja crisis, talking about which gopis they were, etc, for which he later apologized as being inappropriate. Many consider BKG to be duplicitous in his dealings and not a straightforward person. This is confirmed from personal experiences as well. "BKG is duplicitous. He is a pathological liar. He is a childish control freak." (Pratyatosa das) "A few months later I was a bit curious so I read some private emails that BKG had written to other devotees. What I saw devastated me. He wrote all sorts of nasty things about me and the other devotees in Hawaii. At the same time he was saying these things behind my back, he was encouraging and nice to me to my face." (Sudama das, former BKG disciple, 2003) We note that the North Carolina temple, where BKG is the GBC, is not owned by ISKCON and does not have GBC trustees as Srila Prabhupada's instructed in 1974, 1977.

"PRABHUPADA'S CULTURAL MILIEU"

From IRM's BTP #46 (2014): "Now, another ISKCON guru and GBC member, BKG, has also repeated this same hellish theory: 'Well, we have to understand that Srila Prabhupada was brought up in a certain culture in Bengal, West Bengal, and there are certain cultural things that Prabhupada was manifesting. [...] And the few comments that are there in Prabhupada's books are simply from the cultural milieu or background where Prabhupada appeared in West Bengal.' (BKG Lecture, Slovenia, May 27, 2014) This hellish theory that we can see certain statements that Srila Prabhupada makes in his books as simply being a result of Srila Prabhupada belonging to a certain culture, means that one can pick and choose whichever teachings of Srila Prabhupada one likes by simply claiming that the ones one does not like are just Srila Prabhupada 'manifesting certain cultural things.' In this case, BKG was referring to statements Srila Prabhupada made regarding women. As BKG believes that these types of statements are not spiritual but only cultural manifestations, others can also dismiss statements they do not believe to be true in the same manner.”

GBC CENSURES HIM FOR KNOWINGLY KEEPING A SEXUAL ABUSER IN GURUKULA

BKG has been a GBC member and an ISKCON guru for many years. He manages a mundane charitable orphanage (Ch. 117). He has stated publicly that the only evidence that Srila Prabhupada was poisoned is from some speech reversals. And in 2010 he was censured by the GBC body as follows: 308: Letter of Censure to Bir Krishna Das Goswami: Due to the reasons stated below, you have been censured. A censure expresses disapproval of your conduct. A censure is an official note of caution. Please take due notice thereof and rectify the situation. In 1996, as GBC of ISKCON Hillsborough, NC, you received a credible allegation that a member of the congregation had committed sexual abuse of a child some years earlier in another country. While some investigation was done, and some cautionary steps taken, you failed to properly report the incident to local authorities, or later to the CPO. Most significantly, the local community and householders were not notified or made or aware of this potential threat, contrary to ISKCON Law 3.5.5.1.3.9. This put the community at risk and created serious potential exposure to repetition of these incidents. Your servants on the GBC Body

Bir Krishna Swami: censured in 2010 for knowingly engaging a child molester as a gurukula teacher; keeping it secret from the GBC, CPO, parents, police, and local devotee community.

DEEPLY IMMERSSED IN THE POISON DENIALS

On Aug. 4, 1999, just shortly after publishing Someone Has Poisoned Me, BKG, former GBC Chairman, wrote to GBC special investigator Balavanta das that: “I have come to the conclusion that the test readings from the sample of hair sent to Dr. Morris are not acceptable. His neutrality and professionalism have been compromised by the fact that he gave the information on the results to Nityananda who was not his client. This indicates some possibility of collusion with Nityananda or at least leads one to question the results. Therefore the hair and clippers should be transferred to another laboratory...” Balavanta replied the next day: “In consulting with Dr. Morris, I do not believe the results have been compromised. However, I will be happy to look into the matter further to find out exactly how Nityananda obtained what information that he did...”

Actually Nityananda das first heard about the arsenic results from Naveen Krishna who had been told by Balavanta. Nityananda then called Dr. Morris to confirm, who said “almost 3 ppm arsenic.” Nityananda had first contacted Dr. Morris about doing hair tests, but referred him to Balavanta and he himself used Dr. Chatt in Halifax. Dr. Morris assumed Nityananda was working with Balavanta, so he discussed the results with him. It must be noted that after reading the presentation of the poisoning evidence, all BKG could think to do was try to discredit the hair test by insinuating that Nityananda may have “compromised” or “colluded” with the neutrality and professionalism of the scientist Dr. Morris. Such dishonest misleaders in ISKCON always search for some supposed defect to avoid dealing with the real issue: in this case, that the evidence of Srila Prabhupada’s poisoning was substantial and compelling. We note that Nityananda was not at all involved with Balavanta’s hair test except to hear of the results many months after its completion!

In 1997-99, BKG was also very much at the center of ISKCON’s denials and discrediting of the poison whispers, even claiming he could not hear them at all. While 98% of all devotees, upon listening with headphones, can easily recognize the two primary poison whispers, BKG conspicuously stands out as someone who cannot hear them at all. Even Tamal admitted that what he heard on the tape was something innocuous, but BKG could hear nothing; this is an obviously dishonest denial. Nityananda das remembers BKG telling him in 2011: “If you have some new evidence, take it to the authorities.” In other words, he doesn’t want to hear about it, he has dismissed as useless all previous evidence, and is uninterested in any new evidence, conveniently deferring to the legal authorities, who, of course, require a high level of proof in order to convict and punish those who break secular laws. He expects no law enforcement agency will want to investigate a poisoning in India 45 years ago. This allows him to maintain his dishonest position, “Oh, there is no proof of a poisoning because law enforcement has not brought it to a court trial.” But secular laws differ from the spiritual standards that require higher responsibilities from devotees. The GBC deflects to secular laws so they can avoid their spiritual responsibilities, such as responding to thousands of very concerned devotees who want a proper investigation into the allegations of Srila Prabhupada’s being poisoned. This is called STONEWALLING –a practice that can be readily learnt and perfected by association with ISKCON GBCs. As an ISKCON leader, it is his duty to investigate this critical internal issue. BKG engaged a very unsavory character called Jagannath das Puripada to make defamatory and untruthful accusations (and paid for it in some manner) about the team of devotee investigators who made a CD in 1998 with the whispers and poison discussions from the Nov. 1977 tape recordings. (See Ch. 50) The ISKCON GBC should be embarrassed for featuring such a false witness and his untrue statements in their sham denial book Not That I Am Poisoned.

BIR KRISHNA SWAMI LAUGHS ABOUT SRILA PRABHUPADA’S POISONING EVIDENCE

BKG class in Slovenia, May 27, 2014: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=VdsG\_v948XA

Question: “Is it true that Srila Prabhupada was poisoned....” BKG laughs, then responds: “It is not true that Prabhupada was poisoned. Actually, I was one of the people who did the investigation as to the allegations of whether Prabhupada was poisoned or not....and we did a thorough investigation, we did a hair analysis.....so the hair analysis did not show any poison, interestingly enough, and therefore we can conclude that Prabhupada was not poisoned, simply on that basis...also we did an analysis of all the recordings, and everything else....there was a book that was put out, by a devotee in Australia, called “Not That I am Poisoned”...so, Prabhupada said “Not that I am poisoned...” So, it was very clear... There’s actually no evidence, and if anyone is interested to read the book... There’s no evidence that Prabhupada was poisoned. The only thing they came out with was playing Prabhupada’s recordings backwards, and it maybe sounded like something. It’s just like one of these Beatles songs, Lucy in the Sky With Diamonds, and you play it backwards, and it means something, and that was the only evidence. There’s no evidence that Prabhupada was poisoned. Why do people say that? Because, basically, they’re upset that they didn’t get any position in the Krishna consciousness movement, or they have some personal animosity, or problem with people who have some position in the Krishna consciousness movement. It’s all based on an emotional thing. We have to understand that when someone says something, there’s always an emotional background to it. There are emotions that are stimulating, when there are strong emotions, logic is thrown out. So, this is actually the case. Logically there’s nothing; physically there’s nothing. Also there’s devotees who were taking care of Srila Prabhupada, such as Bhakticharu Maharaja, and Tamal Krishna Maharaja. And specifically BCS, who had so much love for Srila Prabhupada, they would kill themselves rather than hurt Prabhupada. There was nobody with any motive that would have hurt Prabhupada who was around Prabhupada at that time. What’s the next question; that was an easy one. You can just go on the internet and read that book, Not That I Am Poisoned...” (END)

COMMENTS: This is an extremely ridiculous and crazy statement by BKG, showing great duplicity. His denial of the poisoning with a laugh and “that was an easy one” is a bluff- this issue is a major ISKCON crisis. As a person in a top spiritual and managerial leadership position in ISKCON, he has horribly betrayed his duty to be even an honest person. He says: “they’re upset that they didn’t get any position in the Krishna consciousness movement, or they have some personal animosity, or problem with people who have some position in the Krishna consciousness movement.” He dismisses the poisoning issue by faulting those genuinely concerned that Srila Prabhupada was poisoned and he denies there is any evidence at all. He describes those who present the evidence for consideration by honest and intelligent persons as envious people who did not get a position or who are upset over something. He flatly states that Srila Prabhupada was NOT poisoned and that the only evidence was some sound recording reversals. He also deceitfully told his audience that Srila Prabhupada himself had denied being poisoned. Did Srila Prabhupada bring up his being poisoned, only to then deny it? No, Srila Prabhupada clarified that a person had not told him he had been poisoned, but had told him that he had poisoning symptoms (see Ch. 7). But isn't having poisoning symptoms indicative of actual poisoning? Well, not with BKG, who denies it all with laughs, showing how arrogantly insensitive and deceitful he is. Nityananda das tried several times in person to appeal to BKG's intelligence by describing the substantial evidence of poisoning, but each time the slick swami slid sideways and avoided further discussion. He was simply not interested in understanding the evidence, as then he would have to deal with it. "they can say anything and everything. [...] In the Bengali it is said: A madman, what does he not speak? He speaks any nonsense. And a goat, what does he not eat? So if you keep a madman... They are keeping them mad... That is our protest, that why you are keeping all people mad, crazy, nonsense?" (SPConv Aug. 11, 1973) (END)

Dhira Govinda das (2016) on BKG's statements: "He's giving a conclusive statement, that, as we know, is wrong. For him to give such a statement, in 2014, along with his "no evidence" stance (only some reverse speech...) is absurdly, recklessly, irresponsible. After the book is published, is there any culture in the organization, or in him, that he would rectify his grossly misleading comments, rectify the misunderstandings that he perpetrated to everyone who has heard that lecture?"

To review all the cheap objections to Srila Prabhup[ada being poisoned, see Book One Ch. 103.

The forensics say there was a serious malicious poisoning, and this fact cannot be undone by saying no one could do such a thing, which is illogical because there WAS a poisoning. The hair tests and audio forensics prove it. BKG and his confederates in the ISKCON GBC leadership are the illogical ones, wanting to keep their positions by dishonestly denying the hard facts, and BKG is the cheater for claiming he investigated the matter when all he did was cover it up with a book of fraud, lies, deceit, denials. BKG's laugh will haunt him forever.

FURTHER ANECDOTES TO FILL IN BKG'S PROFILE

In 2012, upon a visit to Savusavu, a small town on the second island of Fiji, BKG responded to a question from his local disciples as to whether it was necessary for them to observe a regular morning program of artike, class, etc. He replied: "I know you all have businesses and jobs, so if you can even do five minutes of puja in the morning before leaving home, and try to chant your rounds, I will understand and be happy with that." The primary prerequisites to be initiated as his disciples in Fiji was wearing neckbeads and being vegetarian. In 2016 that changed when the GBC mandated that new initiates must take the "Disciples Course," wherein they are taught the ISKCON dogma that Srila Prabhupada appointed new gurus in 1977 and the disciplic succession is kept intact by courageous, advanced devotees taking the role of initiating gurus, etc. Now devotees are trained to a higher standard of institutional propaganda. A 5 year devotee in Savusavu explained how good the Disciples Course had been; now they knew when to chant their guru's pranam mantras, when not to place his photo in various places, and how to offer food to their guru by including Srila Prabhupada's pranam mantra too, etc. These are token appeasements to those who have protested that Srila Prabhupada has been minimized, but they do not solve the real problem: that ISKCON replaced Srila Prabhupada with unauthorized so-called gurus who are actually materially-motivated, conditioned souls.

At the Labasa, Fiji Hare Krishna Restaurant run by the ISKCON devotees, there is no photo of Srila Prabhupada to be found, playing only popular Hindi bhajans and songs, although our advice was to play Srila Prabhupada kirtans and bhajans which would actually spiritually benefit their clientele. BKG's photo with a Christ-like radiating halo is the prime centerpiece by the cash register next to Lakshmidēvi's photo. BKM has often visited the restaurant and not protested his disciples' adorning the premises with his poster but without any reference to Srila Prabhupada in sight or sound. This is another practical example of how Srila Prabhupada has been replaced by unauthorized, bogus ISKCON gurus. The following from Sri Isopanisad Verse 13 purport applies today not only to Sai Baba et al but also to ISKCON "gurus." "Instead of hearing of the activities of Lord Krishna, such pseudo spiritual masters advertise themselves by inducing their followers to sing about them. In modern times the number of such pretenders has increased considerably, and it has become a problem for the pure devotees of the Lord to save the masses of people from the unholy propaganda of these pretenders and pseudo incarnations...” On March 25, 2017 BKG joined the local devotees in Labasa, Fiji on Harinam sankirtan down the main street, playing Holi with clouds of colored dye wafting over the street, faces red and blue, and clothing stained in all hues. Srila Prabhupada, however, did not ever ask, instruct, or encourage his followers to observe Holi by playing with colors. This is Hinduism, welcomed by ISKCON leaders interested in accommodating the locals’ sentiments and thus garnering more disciples and supporters.

BKG also is fully immersed in Hridayananda’s Krishna West center in Chapel Hill, NC, who once stated: “Dhotis look to a certain extent like adult diapers.” He claims Vaishnava culture is “Indian” and is dispensable, such as dress, cuisine, Tulasi worship, deity worship, etc. From Mahasrngas das, Oct. 2017, is the following assessment of BKG: “I’m surprised you would publish anything that BKG would say. He is dishonest, does what he wants and then tells half truths, twists facts and pretends to be an authority. Ever since he sold the Miami Temple on Coral Way, an unlimited devotee maker, across from the Florida University, because he took a real estate course, then bought the multi storied hotel on Miami Beach,

[which was then sold as well], BKG dropped his GBC duties in Florida, going to North Carolina, where he now has his base as an acharya. Trying to have an intelligent conversation with BKG is painful to the max. He’s very nervous and avoids any controversial discussion, always replying with whatever the GBC wants him to say. None of these men have the success of Prabhupada’s mission in their heart. Their kingdoms, zones, money, and disciples are the cause of their existence.”

Srila Prabhupada instructed his disciples not to eat foods in the mode of ignorance like mushrooms, but BKG has posted a cooking show online wherein he very prominently cooks with... mushrooms. During the peak of the COVID-19 lockdowns in mid April 2020, Anuttama dasi wrote BKG that devotees everywhere should go out in public to chant Hare Krishna kirtans to counter the dark effects of the virus epidemic. He replied, thinking she was the Anuttama das of ISKCON Communications: “Very bad idea. It will reflect very badly on our movement.” When she wrote back to argue, he replied that he did not have time for any discussion. Public chanting was not banned or restricted in the US at that time, so why would it have been a bad idea? Rather than being faithful to Srila Prabhupada, BKG and the GBC as a whole are more concerned about “looking good” to mundane authorities and earning points with demonic leaders. They have also publicly endorsed the controversial experimental COVID vaccines, lockdowns, masking, and allowed only vaxxed persons to enter or serve in the temples. In 2001 BKG organized the devotees into a parade to support anti-terrorism and the USA just after the 9/11 “attacks.” BKG always looks to improve his APPEARANCE.

INSTITUTIONAL OBSTRUCTION IN POISON INVESTIGATION (by Nityananda das)

“On Sept. 23, 2017 I met with GBC former chairman and member BKG, one of ISKCON’s initiating gurus for Fiji, and someone I have known pretty well for 40 some years. He was visiting Savusavu and had just accepted 16 new disciples on the other island. We spoke about the “poison issue” for a half hour, and reflecting afterwards, I was once again deeply affected by how the ISKCON leadership’s institutional obstruction of the truth about Srila Prabhupada’s poisoning was still very much operative. I had hoped for something different, but behind the façade of friendliness and fair-handedness, there was the same denial and obstruction mentality as 20 years earlier. I left disappointed and angry, reminded that there is no hope of any proper, just, or honest action from ISKCON’s leadership. I found no independent thinking and honesty about this most crucial of all issues even in such a prominent institutional leader. I asked him what he thought of the poison issue in light of the new cadmium and other evidences uncovered by Prabhupada Truth Commission, and he quickly reassured me that he had watched all the videos and had studied the matter ‘quite a bit,’ but he was still unconvinced that Srila Prabhupada was poisoned. I asked if this was a change from his previous public position that there was no evidence to support a poisoning and that Srila Prabhupada was definitely not poisoned. He replied that there was no change in his position, but that he was always open to new information. Thus he tried to show his open-mindedness, even though dramatic new proof of poisoning meant nothing to him.

“Then he mentioned there was a National Institute of Health (NIH) study where it was found that ‘hair tests were not an accurate indicator of cadmium body burden.’ I protested that this may sometimes be the case when cadmium levels are very close to normal, and that in those cases, urine tests would be better, but that Srila Prabhupada’s cadmium levels were so high that such inaccuracies at lower levels are inconsequential. You know, why fret over a penny when you have a hundred dollar bill? Later that night I saw an email exchange he had the day before with Anuttama dasi about the same NIH study, and how he was trying to discredit the new evidence of the cadmium tests. Anuttama had replied with 3 NIH studies that used hair tests to determine cadmium levels, refuting his assertions. (1) In this study: <https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pubmed/9064744> children in Lublin, Poland, were found to have 0.31 ppm mean cadmium in their hair, about 4-5 times more than normal, while Srila Prabhupada had 15.75 ppm average, or about 250 X normal. So at levels 1/50th of what Srila Prabhupada had, scientists are still choosing to employ hair tests to determine cadmium levels, due to their accuracy. So, there is no issue as to the accuracy of hair tests in determining Srila Prabhupada’s cadmium poisoning, contradicting BKG. (2) In this study: <https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC3484795/> children in Saudi Arabia who had mental and developmental disorders were tested and found to have 10 X normal cadmium, or about 1/25th what Srila Prabhupada had in his hair throughout 1977. Again, scientists do use hair tests to determine cadmium burden even at much lower levels than what Srila Prabhupada had, so why would there be any issue with accuracy in the tests done by Dr. Morris of Srila Prabhupada’s authenticated, GBC-arranged hair samples? Ironically, the GBC was ready to test in 1999, but today they say this test is inaccurate? Why did they want to do tests before? (3) In this study: <https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC3250020/> which is titled “Tracing Elements in Hair,” scientists determined by hair tests the levels of trace elements of all kinds, including cadmium. The levels were “trace,” far below the lethal levels found in Srila Prabhupada’s hair.

“There are many more scientific studies using hair tests on living persons to determine their cadmium body burden. But somehow BKG managed to find one study in which urine tests were found much better than hair tests at determining very low levels of cadmium, and he tried to bluff that it is no use to test hair for cadmium. This is selectively, dishonestly using science, just as evidence shows the global warming theory is based on fraudulent science. This is comparable to tobacco companies who paid doctors in the 1940’s to encourage smoking, saying it was good for health. Also in 2000 the GBC put together their selective and fraud-science cover up of the poison evidence in their NTIAP book. This book of denials remains the GBC position on the issue up until today. BKG co-ordinated this GBC cover up and book of denials. We cannot believe anything BKG says, or any GBC, on the poison issue since there is a colossal conflict of interest in his being an ISKCON guru and being honest about Srila Prabhupada’s poisoning evidence. Why is this? Srila Prabhupada’s poisoners designed and established the doctrines by which they all became a voted-in guru! Let’s let that sink in a bit...

“BKM had tried to bluff Anuttama dasi the day before with the following scientific bunk: “Just to let you know the NIH studies show that cadmium hair analysis is not an accurate measure of cadmium in the body. Hair analysis is good for mercury and arsenic but not cadmium. NIH studies conclude this.” Anuttama had replied with the three NIH studies listed above, but he still tried to foist this deceit upon me the next day. I told him that hair tests may sometimes not be useful for determining abnormal cadmium at levels near normal, but he said, no, these were very high levels. What levels, I asked? Oh, I don’t remember, he replied. BKG will spend his time not to understand the actual evidence properly, but to find ways to cast doubt and confusion upon it. This is his deep dishonesty and why we call him a MISLEADER. In Slovenia in 2014 BKG said that hair tests are “the best way to determine poisoning." Note the contradiction between what he said then about hair tests and what he told me. Flip-flopping duplicity. The GBC deny the poisoning IN TOTO, and the telling of this "BIG LIE" is described by Adolf Hitler in his 1925 Mein Kampf: 'It would never come into their heads to fabricate colossal untruths, and they would not believe that others could have the impudence to distort the truth so infamously. Even though the facts which prove this to be so may be brought clearly to their minds, they will still doubt and waver and will continue to think that there may be some other explanation. For the grossly impudent lie always leaves traces behind it, even after it has been nailed down, a fact which is known to all expert liars in this world and to all who conspire together in the art of lying.' Unfortunately too many devotees have too much blind faith in the ISKCON obstructionist misleaders and, parroting what they have been told, think that the evidence of poisoning is the fabrication, and that Srila Prabhupada being poisoned is the lie. The reverse is the truth. I emphasized to him how the GBC had covered up and denied the evidence with fraud and dishonesty, and that the GBC so-called investigation in 2000 was conducted by the suspects themselves. I advised that thousands of sincere devotees, based on the overall evidence, were accepting the truth that Srila Prabhupada had indeed been poisoned with cadmium, and that the GBC would be well-advised to get ahead of the inevitable future where Srila Prabhupada's poisoning is universally accepted because it had been proven as a fact of history. BKG, as usual, insisted he was open to the truth, whatever it was, and that if he felt he had to take a position based on truth, he was not concerned about institutional political pressures. However, when I suggested he discuss the matter with other GBC members, he was uninterested and advised me to do so, and that it was my 'right' to carry on with this matter as I had been doing. He did not even have the guts to tell me that he really thought I was doing a disservice to Srila Prabhupada. It was clear he had no real interest in pursuing the truth about the issue, and he saw no need to even discuss the matter with his co-misleaders. Although I pressed him to work within the GBC body to respond to the new evidence from hair tests that the GBC themselves had arranged but failed to complete, he declined. It was like pushing on a string. We have an institutional leadership who, in the face of very convincing and conclusive evidence that Srila Prabhupada was maliciously poisoned at lethal levels with the heavy metal cadmium, with arsenic and who knows what else mixed in, simply remains silent and goes on with their affairs as though this truth was just another irrelevant background noise in the big picture of things. (A recap of poisoning evidence is in Ch. 108, Book One.)

BTP #59, VOL 3, 2018: GBC BKG PROMOTES NEW TEACHINGS

The practice of going outside Srila Prabhupada's teachings to get 'spiritual help' has now reached absurd levels, with even material knowledge being promoted as necessary for advancing in Krishna consciousness. We refer to a book titled Realizing Our Empathic Nature: Connected to Krishna by GBC/ GBC-elected diksha guru BKG. He states: "I feel pain when I don't see devotees experiencing great happiness. So, I naturally want to facilitate their attainment of blissful Krishna consciousness. [...] Therefore I searched for something that would transform devotees' consciousness with respect to relationships, both internally and externally." He became a follower of a Clinical Psychologist: "led me to take the practical action of studying sociology and relationship strategies [...] My search for understanding brought me to the teachings of Nonviolent Communication (NVC) by Marshal B. Rosenberg, PhD., which deals with an individual's underlying basic needs [...] I studied NVC, attended workshops." BKG attended a "10 day" intensive training course with Rosenberg and has spread Rosenberg's teachings to the devotees: "I adapted the NVC principles of need facilitation to Krishna consciousness. In the process, I developed workshops and seminars that have been well-received in the society of devotees." Rosenberg's teachings involve methods to "connect empathically with self and others to have more satisfying relationships." But, these teachings are not Krishna conscious. (1) "Empathic communication focuses on human needs. [...] Basic bodily needs [...] Shelter [...] Interconnectedness – reciprocation, giving, receiving. Self-satisfaction – self acceptance, autonomy [...] Acknowledgement [...] we can celebrate when a need has been met, or develop a plan for fulfilling a need that is not met." But we are only supposed to satisfy Krishna's needs, not focus on meeting our mundane needs: (a) "human energy is primarily meant for purifying the senses in order to be engaged in satisfying the senses of the Supreme Lord." (SBhag 2.5.30) (b) "We should endeavor to understand Krishna. We should not worry about eating and sleeping, for the needs of the body are already arranged." (TLK v.2) (2) "When needs are not being met, that stimulates anger [...] Once the needs have been addressed, there will no longer be any impetus towards anger. [...] Being angry is not wrong. See anger as a positive." But Srila Prabhupada states it is only possible to give up anger by becoming Krishna conscious: "So angry, we can give up anger only when we are Krishna conscious. Otherwise it is not possible to give up lust and anger. It is not possible." (SPLecture 31/8/66)

NO OUTSIDE TEACHINGS AUTHORISED: In ISKCON the path for the "attainment of blissful Krishna consciousness" and to "transform devotees' consciousness" should be the path of as given by Srila Prabhupada. Even if Rosenberg's teachings were not opposed to Krishna consciousness, it would not matter, because we are not authorised to go outside Srila Prabhupada's teachings, period. Srila Prabhupada was against doing this even when one was consulting some "spiritual" subject matter, not to speak of "psychology" teachings that have zero connection to Krishna consciousness: (1) "There is no need by any of my disciples to read any books besides my books— in fact, such reading may be detrimental to their advancement in Krishna consciousness. [...] what need is there to read CC translated by someone else. You are right to stop such reading." (SPL 20/1/72) (2) "Brahmananda Swami has read me your letter regarding the students there reading other books. I request you to stop this practice." (SPL 13/10/73) This prohibition is there because: (3) "In my books the philosophy of Krishna Consciousness is explained fully." (SPL 22/11/74) (4) "So there is nothing to be said new. Whatever I have to speak, I have spoken in my books." (SPConv 17/5/77)

Thus, the issue is not just these specific teachings being propagated by BKG, but any attempt to introduce teachings outside of those given by Srila Prabhupada. Srila Prabhupada has never stated that we need anything other than his teachings to successfully practise Krishna consciousness. The path given by Srila Prabhupada for the leaders of ISKCON is very straightforward: "The GBC should all be the instructor gurus. I am in the initiator guru, and you should be the instructor guru by teaching what I am teaching." (SPL 4/8/75) Note Srila Prabhupada never states: "By teaching what I do not teach..." Thus, the option of introducing any teachings in ISKCON outside of those given by Srila Prabhupada does not exist. Earlier in ISKCON's history, due to a lack of faith in Srila Prabhupada, we saw ISKCON leaders going to "sadhus" from other organisations to seek "higher" spiritual knowledge. And now they are even going to psychologists, whose material knowledge is supposedly needed to help us in the "attainment" of Krishna consciousness. This deviant tendency can be corrected if we adhere strictly to the "Prabhupada-Only Paradigm," just as Srila Prabhupada ordered us. (END)

BKG ON RITVIKS, SATSVARUPA AS GURU EVEN AFTER ILLICIT SEX EPISODE

As seen in Ch. 196, ISKCON has been gradually moving towards "ritvik" initiations. BKG is seen online where he advocates that ultimately, if ISKCON was to expand and succeed as a religious movement, it would need to "absorb the ritviks." In actuality, it is the ritvik instructions by Srila Prabhupada that are absorbing ISKCON, as the GBC is finding it ever more difficult to avoid Srila Prabhupada's natural position as the effective diksha guru, in spite of and in the face of so many ISKCON gurus and their foibles, falldowns, and flaws. BKG is trying to appeal to those attracted to Srila Prabhupada and those dismayed by ISKCON's guru history of scandals and rascals, doing so by appearing like a ritvik although denying he is a ritvik. He just wants to pad his book with more names of disciples by telling them he will connect them to Srila Prabhupada. Cheater.

On Oct. 1, 2005 BKG received an inquiry: "Is Satsvarupa das fallen down? I am curious because he is still guiding disciples. Does ISKCON agree devotees to take shelter under him?" and he replied: "I think he can guide the disciples since it was an accidental fall down and he got right back up and is determined to never let it happen again." BKG, as another GBC voted-in guru, confirms that in his opinion a sannyasi (renunciant) who admitted to a lengthy illicit affair with a married woman disciple ("physically intimate,") can still act as a guru guiding his disciples, stating the falldown was “accidental.” If this was an “accidental” falldown, what would a deliberate falldown be? But, as we repeatedly stress, the bona fide, authorized initiating gurus in our disciplic succession do not fall down: “A bona fide spiritual master is in the disciplic succession from time eternal, and he does not deviate at all from the instructions of the Supreme Lord.” (Bgita 4.42 purport)

BKG has deviated from Srila Prabhupada’s teachings, also, the GBC with a bogus guru system.

CONCLUSION

BKG taught a Health Seminar in Serbia to ISKCON devotees, about vitamins, deficiencies, etc. Rather than teaching pure Krishna consciousness as Srila Prabhupada did, BKG does what Srila Prabhupada never did. He is a leading GBC, supposedly steering the Hare Krishna movement as Srila Prabhupada taught us, but he is introducing things from mundane society which have nothing to do with our spiritual life. Yes, health is good and each of us must take care of it so our devotional service is not impeded. But a sannyasi, a supposed initiating guru... giving a seminar on health? This shows how off-track BKG has gone. Pure devotional service mixed with material considerations and distractions. BKM is a shame and a dishonest misleader.

CHAPTER 142: THE MESS DOWN UNDER

Next: the Australian yatra with GBCs Ramai Swami and Devamrita Swami, and a sampling of ISKCON’s internal corruptions. This is based on corroborating interviews with older devotees there, including Mandapa das, Subhalaksmi dasi, Sabhapati das, and others. A full investigation is required.

RAMAI SWAMI

He is the longtime GBC man for Australia and a member of the BBT Construction Grant Allocation Committee. He is an ISKCON guru and tightly controls Australia’s ISKCON programs and temples as if it were his personal business. Minutes/ results from annual meetings are not publicly disclosed; he says, “It is not necessary for anyone to know.” The report is as follows: “He and his gundas treat every one as mushrooms, he keeps them in the dark and feeds them BS. He is a psychopath, and any one who challenges or questions him is belittled and kicked out. We have lost hundreds of devotees fed up with his bullying ways. He lives in a seaside resort hotel on the Gold Coast. He lives a secretive life and no one is even allowed to visit him. He is notorious for owning big new cars, regularly traded in every year, but due to intense criticism, he now has had a Mercedes van for a couple of years. He has not made a devotee in 25 years. He is the ultimate parasite bleeding the devotees and living a materialistic life style. He has often been seen walking the streets and beaches in normal beach wear of Surfers Paradise which are full of scantily clad beach bunnies. Is this an appropriate place for a Sannyasi to reside? When he flies he wears karmi clothes, never sannyas attire. After 6 years and mounting criticism he moved to Newcastle. Now more isolated and reclusive. I could write a book on Tirtharaj, Ramai, Ajita and Aniruddha lies and deception in manipulating Srila Prabhupadas society in Australia. Ramai has alienated 95% of his Godbrothers and sisters and is hated by most devotees here. When VIP’s come to OZ, many devotees complain about Ramai. But there is no justice in Iskcon’s Greedy Boys Club; they protect their own and the devotees suffer. Ramai keeps Tirtharaj on the national council even after all his frauds and incompetency. The big bully has to have the next bully with him so he can push out his opponents. And gives him a vote at the meetings. Cronyism. Now Subhalaksmi and others are taking them on in the media and through common law; there is a Royal Commission into past sexual abuse in churches and institutions. They covered up so many sexual abuses cases and will get jail for compliant negligence, and will have to pay big damages. Now we have to take back the movement based on Srila Prabhupada's DOM. We will no longer tolerate centralisation of the GBC's powers and will refuse to accept their appointed agents. If we can't vote for our own man, we will reject anyone else. Ramai Swami has long history of supporting abusers and banning those who speak in favour of victims of abuse. I am compiling a comprehensive, detailed and factual report stating his crimes against humanity. This report, fully documented and referenced, will go to the police and other agencies. Our aim is not just to force the removal of the Adelaide temple president but also the long serving GBC man Ramai Swami. Maybe some devotees will return. Ramai is really a suspect individual. Rumors here abound. I expect a closing net to reveal surprising facts about this reclusive, elusive, rich saffron wearing very, very manipulative man who gives the most philosophically infantile and deviant public discourses one might encounter in a temple or even a pub." (From Achyuta das, others, 2017)

NARESWARA DAS

"For many years Nareswara was the BBT manager in Australia and oversaw all the book publishing and finances. Often he would supply books to the North American BBT and far beyond Australia. He ran the BBT with an iron fist and no one could touch him. He manipulated BBT funds for his own advantage. He used to invest large sums on the 30 day money market and pocket the interest. He also played the market with BBT funds, famously losing not only BBT money but also mortgaging his house. When it became apparent that he was investing BBT funds in losing stock market trades, audits showed no evidence. He had no accounting system in place. He was the only accountant. When he was finally removed, after many dramas and prolonged controversy, there was no proof of any wrongdoing or what happened to the BBT funds, whatever amounts they were. He was accused by employees and devotees of embezzling millions over the years. He said he had $400,000 supposedly locked in a Russian safe in the Twin Towers when they went down. Also he was Pratapana's accountant and expert at fixing the books. They had an ISKCON charity account for all their profits; a perfect tax dodge for Pratapana. Over the past decade he has lived in Mayapur and has made a lot of money from property development. Where did he get the seed money? His finances have never been investigated and it appears he is aiming to return to financial management in ISKCON. He has been director of the Bengali BBT [and now a BBTI director too] for at least the last 5 years. He also was co-signer for the Mayapur Development Fund which gets funds from BBT's around the world. Same story: no records, missing funds. Why does he still get away with such financial trickery? He also had many women in his life. He had a long affair with a married, second-gen lady with children, meeting her daily for bed and lunch at her husband's home. He is remarried."

TIRTHARAJ DAS

*He was reconfirmed in 2016 as a GBC candidate. Of German heritage, he was initiated by Tamal, who engaged him to organize and produce the GBC-endorsed book Not That I Am Poisoned, which was funded by the prime poisoning suspect Bhakticharu Swami. "Tirtharaj is a heavy, nasty guy; for 30 years he has been Ramai Swami's hatchet man, as well as TKG's hatchet man. A few years ago, Ramai made him the Regional Secretary of Northern Territory, which is all desert with 3 towns and no preaching. Tirtharaj is still on the Oz National Council. Tirtharaj's money laundering scam is a bomb shell which Ramai never disclosed to the general devotees. Hari Sauri said this was the biggest ISKCON scandal since the New Vrindaban murders. Sydney temple president Atmarama was in his office one day around 2002 when two sinister South American characters came into his office, asking for their money back. Atma asked, what money? Tirtharaj and Krishna Kirtan were using an ISKCON account to launder Columbian drug money. An Indian accountant met Tirtharaj and offered a percentage of the deposits and money transfers. Tirtharaj was ambitious and trying to work his way up the ISKCON ladder. He had been appointed as the International ISKCON GBC account treasurer, and he transferred the GBC account from Holland to Westpac in Sydney. Sums up to $500,000 at a time were deposited into the account, totaling ultimately $14.5 million. Now where would a small charity get such sums of money? Tirtharaj gave the crooks signatory rights on the GBC account so they could make withdrawals. When both he and Krishna Kirtan each received their first $80,000 commission, he asked* if they had more to deposit, and was told they had $150 million. Aniruddha the Melbourne president wanted in on the deal. It was a crime organization laundering money through the International GBC account for handsome profits. It is alleged that Tirtharaj was paying off his superiors, namely Ramai Swami, Devamrita Swami, and Prabhavishnu das to look the other way. Westpac became suspicious of the large cash deposits, especially as one large bundle of cash had been frozen, and they notified the federal police. The feds wire tapped the druggies' phones. They arrested and charged them when they made a large deposit. Tirtharaj got off by lying but he was named in the federal police report. Later the law was changed so that Tirtharaj could have been charged. Ramai kept the whole thing secret, but it broke open when the Columbians came to Atmarama demanding their money back.

"His fraudulent operation of the account would never have been detected because the account was never audited. How incompetent are the GBC? Atmarama has all the evidence and the names of the crooks. It was in the newspapers. Many senior devotees still don't know. Atmarama immediately contacted Bir Krishna Maharaja because he knew he would get nowhere with Ramai. Bir Krishna rang Ramai to discuss, but Ramai told him to keep out of the Australian affairs. The devotees to this day still have no idea of the scam. Tirtharaj gave some money to Indradumya Swami, and some amounts to other GBC members. He was trying to grease his way into the GBC. He claimed he was a big wheeler and dealer. He traveled all over the world, completely neglecting his duties as president of the small Brisbane temple. One year he said he had visited 93 countries. He is now a GBC deputy, and has fully duped the GBC. Five years ago the rented Brisbane temple was closed down by the City Council. Tirtharaj was rarely there and the temple collapsed. He was forced to resign due to the pressure of the congregation which by this time was full of Hindu Indians. The accounts were impossible to audit, but he had left the temple with a $400,000 debt. Typically he blamed others, while he continued to travel the world. He now resides in Hong Kong working as a school teacher and is trying to become GBC of China. He had money, inherited it from his mother, but is now broke. For 20 years he was going to build a temple in Brisbane. The Indians raised a lot of money and land was purchased 15 years ago. The donations mysteriously disappeared, they become frustrated with Tirtharaj. Big Indian donors in Brisbane, worth together $1.5 billion, then went and built their own Lakshmi Narayan temple. Now the Gujaratis have taken over the temple and are raising money to build the new temple that Tirtharaj never delivered. A sad history but true."

An ISKCON representative in Australia re: GBC disposition of Tirtharaj: "No public statement in the GBC minutes (likely unpublished resolution) although I can confirm that Tirtharaj's punishment was permanent suspension from his position as GBC Treasurer, suspension from all other positions for a 9 month period, and a $3000 fine."

GOVINDA'S IN SYDNEY

"Around 1990 ISKCON Sydney bought a 3 story building in North Sydney and moved the deities there, where they still are today. Pratapana made a lease agreement with GBC Ramai Swami. He turned the 1st floor into a clothing shop, the 2nd floor into Govinda's Restaurant, and the 3rd floor into a trendy art house movie theatre. He offered a meal and movie ticket for a good price. Years later he turned the bottom floor into a yoga and kirtana center, somewhat successful but totally sahajiya. In the early days the place was pretty wild. Pratapana hired attractive young backpacker girls, and he allowed customers to bring their own alcohol, which caused an uproar amongst the devotees. Bhavananda was a paid employee of Pratapana as the Maitre'd (in charge of restaurant service) and brought all his gay boy friends to drink champagne with him at Govinda's and then lounge on the floor with cushions to watch the mainstream movie of the day."

CHITTAHARI DAS

"In the early 80's Vamsi Vardan's uncle coaxed Chitta Hari to put up $30,000 in a Ponzi scheme. Chitta Hari was signer on the New Govardhan Gurukula account. Without telling any one he withdrew the money. The Uncle cheated them and they lost the lot. The uncle actually gave some of the money back, but the Gurukula never saw it. In the big painting sales money days, Chitta Hari stuffed a brief case with $75,000 in bank notes, taking it to Mayapur for Bhavananda. He said he was arrested by Thai immigration who claimed it was drug money, but mysteriously he was released the next day minus the brief case. Who are we to believe? Another case of how the hard working street collectors were duped. Cittahari was forced to take sabbaticals for being busted growing dope and using it on the temple grounds in Murwillambah and he had a clique of customer devotees. I have always suspected the Darlinghurst operation of being a haven of criminal activities which enriched the managers there. There was a period when Chittahari and I were pretty good friends and I used that to introduce gingerly the topic of 'what about all that crazy stuff you guys were up to, huh?' His response, 'Oh, the bad old days, we don't talk about that.'" sex offenders and potentially could cause a huge impact internationally. It is the unholy duo of Ramai and Devamrita Swamis who prop people like this up as 'spiritual leaders' in our Australian temples."

ADI PURUSHA KRISHNA DAS

"He is the ISKCON temple president in Adelaide, Australia, he ignored the women who came crying to him about his own grown son when they were being subjected to traumatizing sexual harassment and assault. It is my belief that if all the local devotees stay united and strong, and simply refuse to cooperate with the GBC decision to have a sex offender as Temple President, and indeed manage their own local temple without interference from corrupt and bullying outsiders, then this will be a great victory. It will inspire the devotees of other temples to stand up and be proactive in defending their communities from those who endorse

DEVAMRITA SWAMI

In response to the matter of the sexual abuse in Adelaide temple described above wherein the abused had filed statements with legal authorities, Devamrita Swami responded with his male advice and solution: "Aniruddha, be what he be, he has a certain vision and is very strict about it. He doesn't even allow Indian ladies married to non-devotees to take initiation. The best thing to dissipate all these clouds is if the young lady simply says, you know, it was mutual, she was weak, she needed to get married and now everything's fine, she's living happily ever after. And so she retracts and withdraws her one-sided statements. That will dissipate all the clouds." He is the GBC for New Zealand and the chairman of the BBT Construction Grant Allocation Committee. He is an initiating ISKCON guru, famous for wearing the Franciscan brown robes in New Vrindaban 1987-96 when he was a part of Kirtanananda's changes to the Vaishnava culture as given by Srila Prabhupada. His disciples in New Zealand enthusiastically proclaim him to be the next ISKCON Acharya. In Auckland he has a downtown operation called The Loft which advertises hathayoga, vegetarian feasts, and meditation, without any indication of Krishna consciousness except for Lord Jagannath's eyes. This is a backdoor approach to bringing in people, a method also used in Sydney and in many places in ISKCON. He has supported Ramai Swami and ignored all efforts to clean up the corruption in the Australian temples. He runs a heavy hand as the sole ISKCON New Zealand authority and aggressively promotes himself as a guru. We note the logo he uses to attract yoga guests: "SELF CARE" as the trunk of the tree of life. Rather than use Srila Prabhupada's teaching of "spirit soul," he uses mundane considerations like environment, etc.

ANIRUDDHA DAS

"The GBC in Australia are assisted by the National Secretary, Aniruddha das, who time and time again has shown his total lack of concern for truth, justice, or even plain old accountability. These three are running the Australian yatra in an unauthorized and secret manner."

three are running the Australian yatra in an unauthorized and secret manner."

AJITA DAS

"I have heard many stories of his behavior and criminal activities and I am appalled he holds a seat on the Australian Exec. Committee. ISKCON Australia will never flourish until these men are swept out. Criminals, those who have been involved in sex abuse coverups, immigration scams, money laundering, drug trafficking, pedophile protection, and other activities that bring shame and disgrace on the Hare Krishna movement, are still holding ISKCON positions of power and influence."

OPEN CHALLENGE FOR AJITA, ANIRUDDHA, TIRTHARAJ AND RAMAI SWAMI

An article from Prabhupadavision.com, Mar. 9, 2012, highlighted corruption down under: "So there has been so much talk about the extracurricular activities of Ramai, Tirtharaj, Aniruddha and Ajita, with hands in Srila Prabhupada's till. Are we too hard on you, are you simply misunderstood? The question that is on everyone's lips is where are the millions of dollars we keep hearing about that are passing through your hands from New Govardhana? Could it really be true that you still are not keeping proper accounting records even though the business income of New Govardhana has jumped so dramatically? Two and a half million a year for the past three years alone with catering and Govindas (in Burleigh) would mean that $7.5 million aussie dollars have touched your palms and then it has gone somewhere. So where is it? Did Ajita go off and buy that silver bullion already and stash it in an off shore bank for when he finally gets the flick? How does Ajita provide for his wife and child and how does Aniruddha travel the world with his wife in tow? How does Tirtharaj own so much real estate and travel nonstop? Who is paying for Ramai's luxury cars, Gold Coast pad and video shop rentals? If all the hype is wrong, then show us. Publish Govindas (Burleigh) and the catering business income and expenditure accounts for everyone to see. Include all the income tax amounts paid for each employee of Govindas, their super contributions, and workcover contributions. Also your expense accounts where Iskcon provides all your daily dealings, rent, food, travel, computers, phones, car, credit cards etc, for every year you have been at the top. These accounts should clear it all up. Otherwise, then perhaps we were all right in our criticisms. Put up or get out. Reveal what you did with Srila Prabhupada's money."

CHAPTER 143: KRISHNAPADA: BLACK LOTUS

BHAKTI TIRTHA SWAMI (KRISHNAPADA)

As Ghanashyam das (pre-sannyas), Bhakti Tirtha Swami (BTS) preached undercover behind the Iron Curtain in dangerous conditions and earned Srila Prabhupada's deep gratitude. He also vigorously distributed Srila Prabhupada's full sets of books to hundreds of university libraries, earning the pleasure of His Divine Grace. He became an initiating guru in ISKCON in 1985 by a ¾ vote of the existing zonal gurus including Bhavananda. He adopted un-Vaishnava dress and lectured on UFO's and aliens, cultivating the profile of an enlightened, controversial, and liberal guru to attract attention and followers. There were persistent allegations of affairs with women in Africa. He was flamboyant, charismatic, self-centered, very conceited, and rogue. In 1990, the GBC clamped down on BTS' disregard for cooperation with the GBC under Kirtanananda's influence: "Furthermore, whereas BTS has repeatedly failed to follow the directives of the GBC Body such that the GBC Body has serious doubts as to his abilities to instill in his disciples the importance of following the ISKCON's authorized authority structure, he is hereby placed on probation as an ISKCON guru. During the period of probation he must cease initiating any new disciples."

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=hmKlh39xO08&t=564s>

An American devotee, Mahamegavati dasi, who had worked in the African yatra under BTS, gave a testimony online: She makes allegations of BTS' affairs with women, implies he arranged for Hladini Shakti devi's death in Liberia at the hands of the rebels during a vicious civil war, and that he proposed to the GBC in 1990 that sannyasis be permitted to have sex once a month. That was the year he was suspended. In 2005 he was diagnosed with aggressive cancer and he sent a letter to disciples and well-wishers advising that he would meet them again in dreams and visions. He was another ISKCON false prophet who tried to generate a spiritual phenonemom around himself as a great, realized teacher, and he relished being a controversial and charismatic figure in alternative social circles. He wrote offbeat books trying to tie in bhaktiyoga and Srila Prabhupada's teachings with aliens, UFO's, psychic phenomena, motherships, the pyramids, strangers in our bodies, angels, demigods, horns and tails, etc. "Some of the things that we are discussing you will not find in books. Much of this information was made available through contact with a level of cosmic attunement as well as a connection from a previous life. We are summarizing tremendous amounts of knowledge in an attempt to make it available for your growth. [...] Some years ago, Minister Farrakhan [Nation of Islam] shared an experience he had that was similar to the Biblical story of Ezekiel mentioned earlier. Farrakhan has relayed that he was picked up by a beam of light from a smaller ship and taken to a larger ship. There, he had a chance to meet with the Honorable Elijah Muhammad. He was instructed to inform Colonel Muammar Qadhafi of Libya that there was going to be a bombing of his capital and a personal attack and that other plans were being made to accelerate a Third World War [...] The second classification of alien beings is called the 'gray' type. They are depicted as very short with large black eyes, big oval heads, thin bodies and vestigial mouths, noses and ears. This type carries out the majority of the abductions. Examinations are typical of UFO abductions. Sme people who have been abducted have dreams of being raped or of being on a spaceship and ejaculating continuously. The abductors take semen and use it for the continuation of their own race." (Spiritual Warrior, 1996)

COMMENTS: Truly bizarre for a GBC/guru ISKCON sannyasi.

I AM OUTRAGEOUS

In a letter (Mar. 7, 2005) titled "I Am Outrageous" he explained he had only weeks more to live due to a vigorous cancer: "...I am dying on the battlefield. Three days ago I did a one hour live radio show... yesterday a recording for the Oprah Winfrey show... my life has been my message in the rather unique way that I served Srila Prabhupada's mission. [...] Why am I at this time ready to take more disciples when I am leaving in a short time and won't see 99% of you again in this lifetime other than if I appear to you via visions, dreams, or sound etc? [...] my higher self is now dictating that yes I should encourage you all... since most of you are so deeply connected to me in the heart and some have connected with me from a previous life. [...] So I cannot tell you, 'No, I will not pass on your dedication and love to Srila Prabhupada. [...] how joyful and happy I am that my impending death has had an impact on the international community. [...] Don't worry; my books will have more impact after I leave, even though there are already 17 books translated into 15 languages. The biography of my life was written two years ago [...] will increase your faith in Srila Prabhupada more. I will live on in such a wonderful way through my disciples, especially those rare disciples who will be 'love in action' as they interact as sweet sadhus in their various communities. The next four books that will come out [listing of them] all basically conclude the major messages that I wanted to share in helping to bring about some international transformation. Some of the things that I have done in this lifetime, I have done in previous lives. I've even helped pick out my own Samadhi..... What can I say? I am outrageous... When the full biography comes out and when some of you later visit the museum that's being set up and you see all the outrageous clothes, crowns, canes, and volumes of books that I used as references, you will realize that it's amazing how I appeared to be as sane as I did. Just keep sending the love. Yes, I know you love me, but I love you three times as much. I will find some ways to show you this even more after I have departed. [...] With love, previously known as John Favours, Ghanashyama, Swami Krishnapada, Bhakti Tirtha Swami..." (Note: Outrageous, yes. Off-track, yes. Crazy, yes.)

BTS had strong delusions of grandeur. It is now 2022; Srila Prabhupada's books are still transforming millions of lives, while we don't hear of BTS and his books anymore. Previous lives, live on in a wonderful way, crowns and canes, dressed as an African king, his death having a major international impact... We think his sanity suffered from an acute case of "guru-itis" and narcissistic delusions. He was fond of carved armchairs and regal African lion-faced walking canes, which he sported in his meeting with Nelson Mandela- one hand around his danda, the other around his lion cane. He fancied various African embroidered Nehru-type hats and colorful Zulu clothing, in stripes or scotch patterns, and enjoyed mixing his ultra-glossy silk sannyas cloth with dark grey vests and tunics, or African scarves and primitive jewelry. Would he have gone before Srila Prabhupada like that? Doubtful. How can a supposed guru representative of Srila Prabhupada introduce such radically different methods of dress into the Hare Krishna Movement? It was an obvious attention-getting gimmick, and because he craved the attention so much, he dressed up outrageously right to his last days. In the GBC book denying Srila Prabhupada's poisoning evidence (Not That I Am Poisoned) BTS included several pages to denounce the messengers of the evidence, saying they were agents of Kali, emotionally and mentally disturbed ex-devotees who were envious, and he very generously said such persons should be given kindness and understanding. How Christ-like... Such false phophets who do not stick to the example and instructions of Srila Prabhupada but "enhance" their profiles with all manner of weird additions meant to falsely attract the bewildered souls as their followers, are never missed once they are finally forced to exit the scene. Lord Krishna relocated him elsewhere none too soon.

CHAPTER 144: SATSVARUPA DAS GOSWAMI GURUPADA

Satsvarupa das Goswami "Gurupada" (SATS), joined in 1966 and was an original 1970 GBC member, taking sannyas in 1972. He was an early, prominent leader in ISKCON, became a key participant in the gurujacking of ISKCON in 1977-78, and he was an ally to Tamal and Kirtanananda, the two most ambitious successor acharyas with he himself close behind as third. Although many saw him as a gentleman and honest, he vigorously defended the deviations and tyranny of the ISKCON GBC and guru elite, eventually becoming a recluse and tormented by his own inner demons. "Of course I knew Satsvarupa from BTG magazine days. He was quiet but restless and dictatorial." (Navayauvana das 2008) From BTP, Summer 2004: "He was once a leading disciple of Srila Prabhupada who performed great service, but who later became the founder/architect of the great Guru hoaxes 1978 & 1987. Recently he had to publicly admit an illicit affair with a married Godsister, yet is so deluded he still feels fit to act as a Guru. What a disaster ISKCON's unauthorised Guru system is, both for the disciples who waste their entire lives worshipping a mundane person (rather than the bona fide representative of Krishna, Srila Prabhupada), and for the bogus Gurus themselves, who end up in their last days exposed as lying charlatans. Upon Srila Prabhupada's physical departure, SATS, falsely declared he had been appointed as a successor initiating Guru to whom all worship and wealth must be directed. The 11 became 'zonal acharyas', carving up the world between them. He announced this hoax as chief editor of ISKCON's magazine, BTG: "Srila Prabhupada selected eleven senior disciples to act as initiating Gurus who could accept disciples after his disappearance. In this way he insured the continuation of the parampara." ('Notes from the Editor' #13-01/02 1978) The result of this initial deception was unmitigated catastrophe, candidly summarized by one of the second wave of unauthorised Guru successors: FACT: ISKCON Gurus have usurped and misused money, and diverted other ISKCON resources for their own personal prestige and sense gratification. ISKCON Gurus have had illicit sexual intercourse with both women and men, and possibly children as well" (Where the Ritvik People Are Right, Jayadvaita Swami, 1996)"

SAD HISTORY OF FOUNDER, ARCHITECT OF GURU HOAXES

Practically from the moment he founded the Guru hoax, Satsvarupa began to develop strange illnesses like migraines, anxiety attacks, and physical exhaustion. Many suggest his declining health is due to offences to Srila Prabhupada. He has required professional psychiatric help and many medical treatments. Satsvarupa is proud of assisting with the second phase of the great Guru hoax, where the initial 11 hoaxers made way for dozens more, as he reveals in the following letter: "I was one of the pioneer revolutionaries in giving up the wrong 'zonal Guru' system, allowing devotees to choose bona fide ISKCON Gurus as they wished, recognizing that others could become Guru and removing the heavy control of the 'zonal Guru' even over his Godbrothers." (SATS June 2, 2004) In reality he only became a 'revolutionary' once there was no further holding back his many ambitious Godbrothers from either entry into or destruction of the elite Guru club.

Guru Needs Therapy: In one letter to his followers, SATS admits he is so mentally debilitated that he is "under the care of an expert psychiatrist MD and an authorised counsellor who is helping me with my anxiety issues." How can he be spiritually qualified to be a diksha guru? Srila Prabhupada tells us that: "If you chant Hare Krishna mantra without any offense, then immediately the stage will be that you are freed from all material anxieties. That is the test. How I am advancing in chanting will be tested how far you are free from material anxieties." [CC Antya 20.12] The diksha Guru must be fully liberated from all material anxiety, fully self realized, and always experiencing Krishna's transcendental, blissful association. Professional counseling, psychiatric treatment? What he received later from his female therapist was sexual, less than professional.

Nightmare Visions: SATS then started to display his tormented and bizarre art work. These ghastly, nightmarish visions revealed a mind wracked with fear, doubt and anxiety. This is Srila Prabhupada's opinion: "This is not a good style of painting. It is an artistic style for sense gratification only. I cannot encourage this style, it should be stopped immediately. Paintings should be like the Deities, formal and worshipful. This type of painting is sentimental and not authorised. Paintings should be as our artists in New York are doing. Do not introduce any new styles." (SPL Madhudvisa Dec. 8, 1973) Aug. 8, 2003: SATS sent a letter to his disciples explaining his bizarre lecture three days before: "I think my main point and theme was empathy. I want you to love me despite my faults, as detailed a disciple should do in the NOD verse I read. By playing this song "My Funny Valentine," I pledged that I want to see you with a loving heart despite your faults just as we know Gaura Nitai loves us despite our faults... I spoke of changes in myself and in

ISKCON, in a positive way, my use of creative innovation and that I am doing that in the way I write and paint... to demonstrate this kind of innovation I played a Coltrane composition intending you to see it as bhajana as pure and even superior to most bhajana music..." SATS had played a mundane pop song to his hapless disciples, comparing it to injunctions in NOD and the divine love of Gaura Nitai. This behavior is incompatible with that of bona fide Vaishnava Gurus. Obviously he needs help, and fast. He should admit he was never authorised to be a diksha guru, he should give his disciples back to Srila Prabhupada on whose behalf he was meant to be initiating. Instead, after his fall down and the deal he worked out with the GBC to stop his future initiations, he revealed: "I actually declared an event that would be the very last initiation. Since then because I am soft hearted, a few people have

'snuck in.' These devotees were highly recommended and in some cases had been waiting for years." And in answer to the following question: "Are you still our Guru?" SATS' answer is unequivocal: "Yes. I am happy to be Guru of the family I have."

SECRET SEX AFFAIR GRADUALLY LEAKS OUT

Having become almost a recluse and indulging in his sense gratification of mundane music, nightmarish art, and weird writings, in 2002 Satsvarupa (SATS) resided in Ireland, and he had a sexual affair with a married Godsister who tried to assist with his depression by professional therapy and then being physically intimate. "Then, out of lust, I misbehaved and committed adultery. It took me several years to candidly admit the full extent of my falldown and that was another fault, of dishonesty... I have been held responsible and punished by the GBC- not allowed to initiate... But I can be forgiven... I am even allowed to remain a guru for those who maintain faith in me, despite my slip... I maintain a number of disciples who haven't rejected me, and I write to them and occasionally meet with them." (his autobiography) At first, SATS denied the rumors but over several years slowly admitted in stages to his indiscretions. Then he apologized for his lies and dishonesty. The GBC pressured SATS to allow his "disciples" to seek shelter elsewhere, but he did not like his diminished status: "When I first read this order, I felt a bit angry." Cornered by the GBC, he pointed out that Srila Prabhupada is everyone's siksha (instructing) Guru and then generously conceded: "So if some of you who I have initiated have lost faith in me because of my fall... I hereby bless you to choose another ISKCON Guru and approach him and ask him to become your siksha Guru." His bewildered followers are still his initiated (diksha) disciples, despite all his nonsense, but they are now 'allowed' to get siksha (instruction) from Srila Prabhupada or other bogus ISKCON Gurus if they really want to. So, nothing has changed since this was always the case, and the Guru hoax nightmare continues. Negotiating with the GBC, which until then had completely suspended ISKCON gurus for sexual falldowns, SATS was permitted to care for his existing disciples and only restricted from initiating new disciples. He did a final grand initiation, and "snuck in" others later. Attached SATS desperately clung to his diminished guru status.

Normally if a sannyasi does fall down, he would do the honourable thing and continue his spiritual life in the household ashram. Not only did SATS cover up his affair until exposed by one of his disciples, but he maintains that he is still a sannyasi: "Yes, I am still a sannyasi by Prabhupada's grace" [email Dec. 16, 2005] Yet Srila Prabhupada states: "If a sannyasi is illicitly connected with women, all his claim for the honour of a sannyasi at once become a perjury." (SBhag 1.17.41 purport, original 1964 edition) It is now surely time for the GBC to give up its guru charade and reinstate the one and only bona fide initiating Guru in ISKCON: His Divine Grace Srila Prabhupada. SATS kept his sannyasi position because it was a one-time "accidental" falldown which would not reoccur. Those disciples who kept their faith in him, perhaps thousands, knew of his continued status as an approved ISKCON diksha guru. But why was SATS allowed to keep his sannyas and guruhood? This is another ISKCON policy contradiction. The GBC is concerned only about how to keep ISKCON from disintegrating completely. Somehow or other, their guru businesses must go on despite all setbacks.

HIS BLATANT HYPOCRISY (From IRM's BTP, Autumn 2004)

We note the pathetic decline of the founder of the ISKCON Guru hoax, Satsvarupa das Goswami. Forced into admitting an affair with a married Godsister after lying and covering it up for over a year, he then maintained he was still a "Guru." After cheating his disciples by covering up an illicit affair, SATS should have directed his disciples to the shelter of Srila Prabhupada's books. But not so. He is more proud of his own books: "You can keep some pictures of me and of course read my books and it is a kind of vapu. Every day they read my books they feel that all their questions are answered, all their doubts are removed. Please take this seriously... and study my books together. When I am gone you will have my books and each other to carry on." (SATS letter to disciples May 10, 2004) Yet on venturing into Satsvarupa's books, we find blatant hypocrisy. Why take him seriously as a spiritual leader when his OWN books, which he is urging his disciples to read, condemn the exact cheating behaviour that he is now guilty of? From SATS' book Vaishnava Behavior, 2003:

"The misbehaving brahmachari, grhastha, or sannyasi hurts the cause of religion for all people, since the bad example breeds cynicism. [...] If people suspect that a representative of God is cheating on the very principles he is supposed to be upholding, then how can they hear him with faith? If a man advises others not to smoke cigarettes but he himself smokes, of what value are his words?" We urge his disciples to accept his own recommendation that his words have no value and instead take shelter only in Srila Prabhupada as their Guru. SATS says: "Hypocrisy is dishonesty, and according to Srila Prabhupada's purport, without honesty there is no question of spiritual life: 'Truthfulness is the basic principle for all religions.'" (Vaishnava Behavior) (END)

SANATORIUM, WRITING AND ART BRUT INDULGENCES

SATS went through several decades of decadence and confusion, and even a year after his sexual falldown he wrote a racy sex novel called Sanitorium (2005), which was used as "assigned reading" in 2006 at ISKCON's "higher learning" Bhaktivedanta College in Belgium. On July 7, 2007 the GBC stated: "In response to some devotees concerns regarding his book Sanitorium, SATS has given the following comment and has also decided to withdraw from circulation any remaining copies of the book: 'I have come to realize that my book "Sanitorium" contains explicit sexual scenes and references. I am sorry I have written it. I apologize and promise not to write a book like this again.'" SATS disciple and GBC member Praghosh das clarified: "The statement was posted due to significant numbers expressing concern about the content of the book." But this book is still available on Amazon, links to which are given on SATS' website. Some may wonder at the relevance of continuing to expose SATS' deviations, since after his falldown, it is assumed he was removed as an ISKCON diksha guru. However, this relates only to him taking new disciples. For disciples he already has, it is 'guru business' as usual. SATS went to Mexico in 2006 and Trinidad in 2007 for his Vyasapuja celebrations with many disciples. But how can he remain as diksha guru? Srila Prabhupada condemned sex literature: "We should not waste our time simply reading these all nonsense literatures, sex literatures. Simply wasting their time. [...] just like the pleasure place of the crows..." (SPLecture July 12, 1969). SATS audaciously dedicated the book to Srila Prabhupada: "Most of all I acknowledge my spiritual master, [Srila Prabhupada] [...] I pray that Sanitorium pleases him and that he blesses it to be widely read around the globe."

Clearly, any sane devotee would ask why SATS, an aged "renounced" monk with an illicit sex affair and writing sex novels is still regarded as a "very advanced devotee" (Bhakticharu's words) and an initiating guru successor to Srila Prabhupada? Such blatant deviation from the bona fide spiritual master's instructions, and the subsequent moral and spiritual degradation that follows thereafter, is only to be expected when one tries to replace the spiritual master and occupy his seat without any authorisation, as SATS and his fellow guru hoaxers have done: "One should not imitate the behaviour of an advanced devotee or maha-bhagavata without being self-realized, for by such imitation one will eventually become degraded." (NOI, 5)

HIS PRABHUPADA BIOGRAPHY IS POISONED

Now that his facade of guruship has been exposed as a sham, we should warn of his 1983 GBC "authorized" Srila Prabhupada biography: Srila Prabhupada lilamrta (LM). LM is quite dangerous since it mixes truth with illusion, the mundane with transcendental. "Intermingling the spiritual with the material causes one to look on transcendence as material and mundane as spiritual. All this is due to a poor fund of knowledge." (CC Mad 16.72 purport) This might explain SATS' past infatuations with mundane songs, poetry, jazz, paintings, and another's wife; all while as a spiritual master. Many appreciated LM due to its Srila Prabhupada quotes but SATS has also weaved in his own mundane bias and self-interest. LM was poisoned to subtly, offensively portray Srila Prabhupada as an ordinary man, and this was (consciously or not) part of the successor hijacker gurus in ISKCON bringing Srila Prabhupada down to their own level as conditioned souls. Throughout, LM insidiously implies that Srila Prabhupada was an ordinary human being with all the regular frailties, fears and insecurities. The book is subtitled: "A very real human story," and in the introduction SATS writes: "I invite the reader to enjoy the very real, human life story of Srila Prabhupada." Perhaps this is just in case anyone might get the wrong impression that Srila Prabhupada was in any way superhuman or transcendental. The correct scriptural understanding is: "...the spiritual master is the sum total of all demigods." (SSR, Ch. 2) "A person acting in the service of Krishna with his body, mind and words is a liberated person, even within the material world." (Bhakti-rasamrta-sindhu 1.2.187) "Therefore, one is forbidden to regard the guru as an ordinary human being [...] The spiritual master, or acharya, is always situated in the spiritual status of life. Birth, death, old age and disease do not affect him." (SBhag 10.4.20 prpt)

When SATS wrote LM he had already illegally ensconced himself as one of Srila Prabhupada's successors, even though he knew he was not qualified for this position: "As for guru, I am in no position for that... Now Srila Prabhupada has departed in his personal presence. I am to begin initiating disciples. At present I don't feel I could give a disciple shelter. I could not tell a soul that if he simply served me nicely, I could take him back to Godhead." (ISKCON in the 1970s) He later wrote: "I sometimes saw him as my rival. Still, I sometimes feel a twinge of jealousy when one of my disciples speaks on and on about all the realisations he is getting from his relationship with Srila Prabhupada." (Srila Prabhupada is Here) In the material world we are innately envious of God and whoever represents him. So, trying to have absolute faith in the bona fide spiritual master, we don't need SATS offensively superimposing onto Srila Prabhupada mundane, "human" attributes."

(1) "The Bowery and Chinatown were too far out of the way. They would find him a new place. Forced by conditions he accepted as Krishna's mercy, Prabhupada sat patiently, trying not to disturb anyone..." (LM Vol. 2) The subtle inference here is that Srila Prabhupada was forced into situations, just like you and I, the only difference being that he somehow "accepted" those circumstances as "Krishna's mercy." However: "...a pure devotee is never under the modes of nature. In other words, no material laws apply on a devotee because he is fully under the direction of Kirhsna. (...) in this kind of loving service there is no question of force." (SPL Feb. 14, 1970)

(2) "Although Prabhupada's home had suddenly become an insane terror, the street at its door was also a hellish, dangerous place. He was shaken." (LM Vol. 2) Yet Srila Prabhupada taught: "Established thus (in Krishna consciousness), one never departs from the truth, and upon gaining this he thinks there is no greater gain. Being situated in such a position, one is never shaken, even in the midst of the greatest difficulty." (Bgita 6.20-23) "An unalloyed devotee is never disturbed by any kind of trying circumstance." (SBhag 6.12.19 purport)

(3) "He was gaunt and looked very sorrowful." (LM Vol. 4) "When Abhay left Bharati Bhavan, with its six-foot-high lettering 'League of Devotees' painted across the outside wall, he felt sad." (LM Vol. 1) Yet Srila Prabhupada taught: "When one is self-realized, then he is jolly. Prasannatma. He is never morose. He is jolly. Na socati na kanksati: He has no lamentation, no hankering." (SPConv June 19, 1974) "In the liberated stage, oneness with the Supreme Lord means that one has no realization other than happiness." (SBhag 3.28.37 purport)

(4) "A mendicant, Prabhupada was temporarily dependent on the good will of his Mayavadi acquaintance, with whom he regularly conversed and from whom he accepted shelter." (LM Vol. 2) "Now his last hope was Sri Padanpat Singhanian... He was Prabhupada's final hope ." (LM Vol. 2) Yet Srila Prabhupada taught:

"When you live at the mercy of others, this is called dog's business. Just like a dog lives at the mercy of the master. So it is strictly prohibited for the brahmanas." (SPLecture July 8, 1976) "A Krishna conscious person does not take shelter of any person, man or demigod." (Bgita 3.18 purport) (5) "A. C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Maharaja... now had to face starkly that he had not one friend of stature in the US. Suddenly, he was as homeless as any derelict on the street. In fact many of them (...) were more secure than he. They were ruined but settled." (LM Vol. 2) "This is what it meant to be working without government sponsorship... without a patron. It meant being vulnerable and insecure." (LM Vol. 2) Yet Srila Prabhupada taught: "'You just become obedient to Me, surrendered to Me. I shall give you all protection.' This is the law. So if you become a surrendered soul to God, then your position is very secure." (SPLecture Oct. 19, 1975) "When a devotee needs something, the Supreme Personality of Godhead supplies it." (SBhag 7.10.4 purport) (6) "Yet even armed with this philosophy, Abhay felt all alone. His two great well-wishers were gone - his father and now his spiritual master." (LM Vol. 1) "...yet without his spiritual master's physical presence, he felt small and very much alone." (LM Vol. 1) "Abhay groped after memories of his spiritual master." (LM Vol. 1) Yet Srila Prabhupada states the opposite: "When I first came to the United States I was seemingly alone for one year. But I never felt alone. I always felt the presence of my Guru Maharaja." (SPL Dec. 27, 1974) "So my Guru Maharaja will be very, very much pleased with you... it is not that he is dead and gone. That is not spiritual understanding ...he is seeing. I never feel that I am alone." (SPLecture Mar. 2, 1975) "I was only with Guru Maharaj 4 or 5 times, but I have never left his association, not even for a moment. Because I am following his instruction, I have never felt any separation." (SPL Feb. 20, 1972)

Yasodanandana and SATS' ex-wife Jadurani have both written lengthy essays on this subject.

DESIRE FOR RECOGNITION AS GREAT AUTHOR AND ARTIST

He also openly admitted reading a ton of mundane literature and listening extensively to mundane music- blues, classical, and jazz. He emulates Picasso's art style and "free writing." He has been plagued with horrible incurable headaches since 1980. SATS also wrote a book series on the adventures of a devotee mouse (Nimai the Mouse), another novel in 2008 called Under Dark Stars, endless petty confessions, mental ramblings, but with some nice memories of Srila Prabhupada thrown in too. He obviously has a dying ambition to be a famous, great author, but he doesn't write much of true value. As a sample, just from his Here is Srila Prabhupada (1991), we find (1) minimization of Srila Prabhupada by describing him as an ordinary person, and (2) his ambitions to be a great guru: "So here I am, beginning another book about Prabhupada with a feeling of regret. Prabhupada should be the center of my life, but I continue to take his place..." (p.2) "There is a danger of creating an illusory Prabhupada. It is all too easy to worship malleable Prabhupada, one who changes his orders to suit our own needs and deviations?..." (p.15) "Earlier in the dream, I was talking either with Srila Prabhupada or with devotees... I think my envy was manifesting in the dream when I was glad to see that the person being massaged was no longer Prabhupada..." (p. 22) "Now Prabhupada is arriving, he pulls up in a big comfortable BMW... As I offer the arati articles, I feel rushes of emotion. Srila Prabhupada doesn't have to read my mind; just by standing before him my activities since his disappearance -my attempt to become a guru and some of the excesses of that, my readings in Christian saints, my publishing my own books, my seeking lonely places, my hurts. He also sees my desire to serve him..." (p. 111) "After your disappearance I went along with the guru worship which our society now deems as a period of abuse to devotees and minimizing the central position of your Divine Grace. It would have taken great conviction of purpose to keep a humble course in defiance in those years, and I didn't have such strong conviction to stand alone..." (p. 118) "Whatever problems I haven't yet resolved in terms of how to get rid of anarthas, excess baggage and the vain glory of thinking myself a special devotee-it will all work out in my remaining days." (p. 130) "I used to feel more the conflict between trying to be his disciple and trying to be guru. That was because there were excesses in the way we received grand worship befitting only Srila Prabhupada. I sometimes saw him as my rival. Still, I sometimes feel a tinge of jealousy when one of my disciples speaks on and on about all the realizations he is getting from his direct relationship with Srila Prabhupada. In 1978-86 we used to tell them, "Don't jump over your spiritual master. You cannot have a direct relationship with Srila Prabhupada. You have to go through us." Now I encourage them differently..." (p. 211) "...(Srila Prabhupada) explains that we should never have deviated in any way. Did he ever deviate from the orders of his guru maharaja? Never. Why do we? The instructions are clear. Deviation means we are foolish rascals with desires other than service to guru. He means me..." (p. 261)

ISKCON promotes Satsvarupa's art- in early 2017 a MOSA (Museum of Sacred Art) exhibition at Radhadesh in Belgium was toured by about 1000 devotees. "They are however sought after by connoisseurs of the art brut movement (French, meaning 'rough art'), whose raw authenticity is championed as honest and visionary. 'Satsvarupa's paintings bring his inner world to the canvas in strong colors,' says MOSA Director Mahaprabhu das. 'His art isn't sophisticated from an artistic point of view, but it does transmit his emotions, struggles, and joy in practicing Krishna consciousness. His art has been a kind of therapy and a way to share what goes on in his mind and heart." Satsvarupa confirmed: "I love to paint; it gives me satisfaction, and I am getting validation that it is pleasing to others and they enjoy seeing and owning my paintings. 'I think I have my spiritual master's permission, and in a small way it is pleasing to Krishna. Thus it is part of my devotional service to the Lord. I intend to keep it up." Permission from Srila Prabhupada? Art brut movement? Struggles and therapy? Painting Lord Gauranga, the Golden Avatar, a bright fluorescent pink? An online video called "A Day in The Life" (May 2021) shows him absorbed in deity meditation at his upstate New York home, living in semi-seclusion where he spends his days in silent or tortuously slow japa chanting, with his freaky tormented artworks, and writing more stuff which his disciples pay to print. He is attended like an exiled king by a few of his faithful disciples with everything fresh and new. His main caretaker calls him a "pure devotee" and tells how he has learned not to "become too familiar." SATS was almost paralyzed, cannot walk, still perpetuating the myth of bona fide spiritual master in spite of all his history. Deluded with self-importance, he will never come clean about the ISKCON 1977 hijacking, of which he was a key figure, the lies about being appointed as successor acharya, the mercy killing interview he conducted with Tamal in Dec. 1977, or say anything at all about Srila Prabhupada's proven poisoning- his silence on this critical subject is very telling (see Ch. 83, Book One). His role in the gurujacking of ISKCON was that of an accomplice to the poisoners, as their philosopher and gentlemanly spokesman. There is also good reason to believe SATS knows much about Srila Prabhupada's poisoning. Of course he did not respond to our inquiries.

SATS' 2016 Vyasa-puja festival showed he is still worshipped with the same pomp, grandeur, awe and reverence as in the zonal acharya days. Even after his sex affair, he was allowed to remain as a sannyasi and it merely meant he could not take more disciples, but he has found a back-door solution. "Those who are siksha disciples may have joined me more recently. But in either case, it's important that we keep alive the spiritual connection. [...] Some devotees are approaching me for a siksha relationship [...] What I have said about the promises the diksha disciples make, applies to siksha disciples. For the relationship to be real, they should give up the four sinful activities, chant 16 rounds, read my writings, correspond with me, visit me individually, and form an intimate relationship. And all disciples should render service to the guru. [...] I gave you the Hare Krishna mantra on behalf of Srila Prabhupada and that binds us permanently as guru and disciple."(SATS Lecture 2016) Thus, he continues his guru business by accumulating more "siksha" disciples. More followers.

CHAPTER 145: CIRCUS OF UNSCRUPULOUS RASCALS

(1) RASCAL: An unscrupulous, dishonest person, scoundrel; UNSCRUPULOUS: Contemptuous of what is right. (2) Pride goes before destruction, and haughtiness before a fall. (Proverbs 16.18) (3) Jayadvaita Swami mentioned that some of our initiating Gurus are not even chanting their rounds. Yet they ask disciples to vow to follow rules and regulations when they themselves are not following?

In the history of ISKCON there are many who falsely assumed the position of guru and then “fell down” by breaking the basic regulative principles or breaking sannyasi vows. Of course “guru falldown” is an oxymoron since no real guru can ever fall down from perfection, and the ISKCON gurus who do so have thus proven they were not ever real gurus. There are also those, namely all of the rest of the ISKCON gurus, who although they may or may not have publicly been exposed as fallen by breaking regulative principles, are nevertheless to be considered fallen because of their serious deviations from Srila Prabhupada’s orders. Therefore even those who have not married their disciple, had illicit sex with men, women, or boys, taken intoxication, or fallen from their sannyas vows, etc... simply because they unauthorizedly assumed guruship and then stole from Srila Prabhupada what was most dear to him- the loving relationship he had with his own children, his own followers- are also fallen. They are all members of the great circus of unscrupulous rascals.

Sad to say, but ISKCON history since 1977 has been like a circus freak show. Each ISKCON rascal deserved his own tent show so Vaishnava historians could study his particular type of maya. From the struggle to become number one to insane changes to Vaishnava tradition to trying to be a great spiritual innovator, and from the rock and roll guru to the guru who took LSD and rolled around during kirtan, having sex before the deities... what an amazing show it has been! Embarrassing, painful, despicable... but also educational in our personal battles against the vast array of powerful material illusions. In the future, devotees will learn about Satsvarupism, Tamalism, Kirtananandism, Radhanathism, or Bhaktitirthism as types of maya one must be cautious to avoid. These are definitely things each devotee should rather study from real history instead of through the school of personal experiences or “hard knocks.” This may be the only bright side of what has happened in ISKCON, that Krishna has arranged for us to see what we must be serious to avoid as pitfalls and obstacles on the path of pure devotional service. And the most amazing thing is how Srila Prabhupada established the Hare Krishna movement with (or in spite of) such a circus show of unscrupulous rascals!

Some persons insist that we should ignore the fallen, deviant ISKCON gurus, never recite their names or history, never look upon their pictures, and thus not be contaminated. There is definitely value to that idea. However, there is also great value in studying the huge deviations in ISKCON by those who became unauthorized gurus, to prevent a future repeat. May it never happen to us or anyone else, as it is the curse of DADS, the dreaded acharya disease, for which one must suffer greatly and by which one’s advancement in spiritual life becomes ruined. Those who ignore history will be compelled to repeat it. May we know better.

NO MORE SANNYASIS, SO HOW CAN ANYONE CAN BE A GURU?

In Jan. 1977 Srila Prabhupada was so disgusted with the high rate of falldowns by his sannyasis that he declared there would be no more sannyasis made in ISKCON. If Srila Prabhupada was so reluctant to give sannyas to senior men due to so many falling down shortly afterwards, then how can we think that he thought those same senior men were prepared or qualified to become a guru? To be an initiating guru requires far, far more qualifications than simply being sannyasi. “This should be strictly outlawed, no more sannyasis. And those sannyasis who have fallen, you get them married, live like a... No more this showbottle, cheating. It is very ludicrous. [...] And this kind of hypocrisy- they have taken sannyasa and mixing with woman. This is not to be allowed. If you want woman you get yourself married, live respectfully. We have no objection. But this hypocrisy should be stopped. There have been so many fallen down. First of all there will be no sannyasi anymore. I have got very bad experience. And at least, we are not going to create new sannyasis. And those who have fallen down, let them marry, live like respectable gentlemen.” (SPConv Jan. 7, 1977) Srila Prabhupada gave only three more sannyasi initiations, in May 1977: Bhakticharu and two others (who fell down).

LOKANATH SWAMI

Lokanath Swami (LS), one of the more gentlemanly, quiet, and respected sannyasis in ISKCON, admitted to inappropriate “touching” in 1992 of an 11 year old Indian girl in Philadelphia while he stayed a week with that family. In 1993 the girl’s parents formally complained to the GBC, who did an internal “investigation.” LS said he knew nothing about sex and was naïve, simply curious, meant no harm, and it was a “minor mishap.” There have been no rumors/complaints of inappropriate behavior on his part in the decades since. The GBC quietly suspended his guru privileges for 2 years, 1994-96. He apologized to the victims in writing and in person. Then he continued as an institutionally approved ISKCON guru to accept disciples and deliver them out of this material world where all conditioned souls are bound by the ropes of lust and sex attraction. A major issue in this incident appears to be the cover-up by the GBC, who refused to allow the Child Protection Office under Dhira Govinda investigate the matter in the late 1990’s since the matter had already been dealt with by them. Twenty years in 2012, the little girl, resurrected her complaint, that justice was not done, and that LS received preferential treatment as one of the members of ISKCON’s corrupt elite guru club. Now 32, Satya dasi wrote:” “I am the girl that Lokanath touched inappropriately. It did NOT just happen one time on the sofa, but he touched me various times inappropriately throughout the week that he stayed. I am surprised that nasty, vile pedophile did not try to rape me. He took my innocent father's words: "She is growing up here in America, why don't you teach her some Indian culture?" and turned into his way of taking advantage of me. He called me various times during Easter week vacation, and it was hot, so I was wearing shorts. I was 11½. I sat down next to him after he insisted many times, and he taught me to play harmonium. Several times he rubbed his hand up and down my leg, inner leg, and out, as I was seated there next to him. I asked him, "What are you doing?" He replied, "Nothing, just concentrate on the harmonium." I cannot tell you how horrified and dirty I felt inside. Through out the days, he once woke me up singing ‘jeeva jago, nidra chadi uttha jeeva’ and when I got up (I was wearing shorts), he patted me on my butt. I ran into my mother's room, and into her closet, and he pulled me out, saying, ‘Why are you hiding?’ and again touched me on my butt, held my hands and put his arms around me. Again he called me for harmonium lessons, and then when he touched me inappropriately AGAIN on my leg, I got up and ran to my mother. I went to my friend Sangita's home and I told her he disgusts me, I don't like the way he touches me. He makes me feel so dirty. She said tell your mother. The next day he asked me to read Krishna book to him. He had me sit right next to him, leaving no space between us. He PLACED HIS HANDS ON MY CROTCH, NOT ON MY LAP, and said I am keeping the book from touching you there, so just keep reading. He kept his hand there, and any time my mother would walk by, he would quickly remove his hand and place it around me. He did this several times in an hour, and when the sick feeling inside me became too much, I told him I was tired and left the room. The nasty pedophile left 2 days after. I told my mother everything the night before; she was shocked, disgusted and appalled. What could a defenseless 11 year old child do? Just tell her mother. There was no legal action that I knew of then. Yes, that silly investigation by Yasoda dasi following me around the house, asking where this and that happened. We were promised he would be punished. He was NOT. His misled followers still blindly follow him, and accused me of lying. I will never forget what I have been through. Till this day, Ravindra Svarupa, the head of our nearest temple, acts like nothing happened. We trusted him, and he nor the GBC (garbage committee) never followed through. But the law of karma and Lord Shri Krishna will. That is who THEY will have to answer to ultimately.”

In June 2021 a confidential 1997 communication by Bir Krishna Maharaja to the GBC conference was leaked: “Dear GBC members, It is my duty to inform you of the actions of a special GBC subcommittee that dealt with a confidential investigation of Lokanath Maharaja. The members are: myself, Badrinarayana, Mukunda Maharaja, Sridara Swami, Virabahu, and Ravindra Svarupa. It is important that you be aware of the decisions and findings of the committee so that you can properly deal with rumors that are circulating. Please understand that those matters are strictly confidential. I am requesting each GBC member to not show this message to anyone else. Also please erase this message after reading it. Madhusevita Prabhu asked me to add the following: 'If a GBC member is detected as having printed or disseminated this report in an unadvised manner he may be subject to censure by the Ex Comm.' Here are the details: 'In 1990 while staying at the house of a family for a few days Lokanath Swami (LS) touched a young pre-adolescent girl in an inappropriate way by putting his hand on her lap. He was sitting next to her on a couch in a families living room, both were holding the Krishna Book in their hands, the hand holding the book (the back of the hand) rested on her lap as he read the Krishna Book. The hand did not move. In 1993 when the GBC chairman became aware of the incident and appointed a committee to deal with the issue, LS was also told to stop all initiations. The committee conducted a thorough investigation, which included bringing a team of professional experts in New York and involving Mother Yasoda. The cost of the experts exceeded $2,500 for a four day intensive assessment. The experts made an in depth examination of LS after which they concluded that this unfortunate incident had occurred because of LS's complete lack of prior experience on the matter of dealing with women. Having learned his lesson (the need to follow the proper social conduct for a sannyasi) they were confident that this incident would not reoccur. They also stated that he had the proper nature of a spiritual leader and should be allowed to continue in this role within our society. An apology was made by letter and in person to the girl and the family. They were satisfied. The GBC committee concluded that this deviation from the acceptable conduct had been accidental. So in 1996 after Gour Purnima, he was allowed to begin accepting disciples again.' It was concluded this year in Mayapur that all prospective disciples of LS would be given the history of the above. Bir Krishna G"

Satya dasi (the victim girl) has recently insisted the GBC had not done her justice, had covered the incident up, and in May 2021 came news that: "...the NAC and GBC Executive Committee instructed the Intern'l Child Protection Office (ICPO) to investigate Lokanath Swami's 1990 case of child molestation. Since the victim and her family came forward in 1993, this would be the first time the ICPO investigates this case. We appreciate the GBC finally doing the right thing and turning this case over to the ICPO. We look forward to updated communications from the GBC in this matter. If you would like to know more about this case: <https://satyavrata.wixsite.com/lokanathswami>" The Lokanath impropriety in 1992 had been "investigated" in 1993-4 by the GBC, and LS apologized to the girl victim and make a public apology as well. He was suspended from initiating for 2 years. The GBC in 1998 disallowed the "arms-length" and newly formed Child Protection Office from re-investigating the incident. "When I served as CPO dfirector, the GBC gave specific instructions for the CPO to not address the case of LS. The dealings of ISKCON leadership around the case of LS was filled with concealment, deception, inconsistencies, and lack of accountability." (Dhira Govinda das) This certainly looks like an "internal" cover-up or soft-punishment "cover-up" of sorts, and thus with new advocates in assistance, the girl victim Satya dasi generated a firestorm of new protest and calls for "true justice." The fact that women's rights and liberal societal principles had been accentuated with "leftist" politics further propelled this case's resurrection. In mid-2021 the GBC appointed a new panel to re-examine the LS controversy.

"The GBC has been discussing the [...] LS issue for many weeks [...] this issue has drawn global attention within our society and evoked strong—and often contradictory—feelings among devotees around the world. [...] GBC is also weighing whether our own past investigations, actions, and decisions regarding this problem were sufficient, appropriate, and what should be improved in the future. [...] July 14 the GBC voted to establish a special Panel of senior devotees with expertise in both child protection and legal principles, to review the matter [...] with recommendations to the GBC. [...] The resolution is: '[...] Tamohara das, Navin Shyama das, and Champakalata dasi, shall assess and evaluate the matter [and] it will present its recommendations/report to the GBC Body, who will decide the way forward from there.' The ISKCON Indian Central Committee has also been invited to nominate two devotees [to] the panel. [...] within the ISKCON society, there is heated debate whether or not the LS's case should go to the CPO. [Our current CPO Director] advocates that afterward the case should be sent to the CPO. Other[s] argue this case was reviewed by a special investigative process in the past, prior to the existence of the CPO, and sufficient remedial steps and restrictions were put in place, and thus no further review is required [ICC's position]. The GBC decided that a skilled and experienced Panel must first clarify the broader issues involved, including the facts and history of the case, and then recommend the next step. We recognize this is a very contentious issue [...] The GBC is dedicated to moving forward in a sober, just, and thorough manner. GBC Exec Comm: Bhakti Chaitanya Swami, Banu Swami, Revati Ramana das

"Scope & terms of reference for panel in review into LS matter: "[...] To establish a shared baseline of facts and evidence regarding this case. • [...] assess and review the facts and evaluate the evidence of the case [and] the manner in which the previous investigation and adjudication of this case were handled by the GBC [...] whether the GBC erred, [...] the appropriate action that could be taken. • Assess and review the sanctions on LS, the extent [they] were complied with [...] to examining the issue of double jeopardy. • Present its findings and make recommendations [...] to the GBC."

The GBC also appealed to the ICC (200 India temple leaders) to work together on this review, which the ICC refused to do. This issue is as much a matter of the GBC's self-serving conduct with its sham investigation and slap on the wrist, something we have seen all too often with falldowns by ISKCON gurus, and especially with the poison issue's suppression, lies, and cover-up (see Part 7, Book One). We cannot expect that devotees, including Lokanath Swami, will have lifelong perfect sense control. But was he protected by an institutional cover-up? ISKCON's unaccountability culture, elite privileges, and false guru is a system that LS has supported and participated in, and this is his greater crime for which he must also pay the price. But the GBC must first be reformed by regular elections before any kind of justice will be possible. (see Ch. 161)

WHAT IS A GURU "FALLDOWN"? WHO QUALIFIES FOR THIS?

Anyone who wants to try to fill a position that is already filled by Srila Prabhupada and then deny Srila Prabhupada's availability to others is already fallen. This applies to all the ISKCON so-called gurus who are taking disciples as their own when they should be bringing them to Srila Prabhupada as his disciples. Some gurus listed in this chapter may not have been publicly exposed as fallen by breaking basic regulative principles, but still should be considered "fallen" due to the grave offenses committed against Srila Prabhupada for stealing his assets and disciples, and obstructing His Divine Grace's mercy upon fallen souls.

AGAIN BECOME A MOUSE

"And now the GBC has become very, very weak. The principal reason for this has been the falldown of spiritual masters and the decay of spiritual authority in general. This applies to sannyasis, gurus, and the GBC... they are all in disrepute. The renounced order of life has come to be called the denounced order of life... People are very dubious about gurus -everyone is wondering when the next one is going to fall." (Ravindra Svarupa, 2001) Again a mouse! They got their strength and power from Srila Prabhupada, but when they tried to remove him and take his place, they lost everything and reverted to their former fallen consciousness.

HANSADUTTA (SWAMI MAHARAJA)

Hansadutta joined in 1967. He led very nice kirtans and was an inspirational speaker. He opened temples in Germany but due to illegalities the police raided the temple and confiscated bank accounts, causing great negative publicity. He had many disagreements with Godbrothers due to his aggressive and ambitious nature. He organized the translation and distribution of Srila Prabhupada's books and was appointed by Srila Prabhupada as one of three BBT trustees. In 1974 Srila Prabhupada said Hansadutta was praying for him to die so he could become a guru. He was one of the original 11 ISKCON zonal acharyas and he was arrested in 1980-84 several times for illegal weapons, a drunken drive-by window shooting of a car dealership. He attracted devotees with criminal backgrounds, stockpiled a gun arsenal, engaged in theft and credit fraud, and had plans for a farm fortress to survive an expected world apocalypse. That is a brief summary of his notorious activities.

He was suspended by the GBC for one year as an initiating guru in 1980 and accompanied Tamal to Topanga Canyon for Tamal's famous confessions that Srila Prabhupada never appointed any gurus, but only ritviks. In the early eighties he recorded many rock n roll albums, trying to become a music star, even though Srila Prabhupada had told him in 1975 not to be concerned with selling record albums. "Regarding record albums, [of Srila Prabhupada and other devotees] it is something sentimental, they will purchase and hear for sometime and throw it and purchase another. A book purchased will remain, and once even one line is read, that will benefit the reader." (SPL Hansadutta Sept. 9, 1974) "This record distribution has caused havoc. It should be stopped immediately. I have also asked Hansadutta to stop it. Book distribution is our real business. If we give them a record they simply hear some magical sounds and take it for sense gratification, but if they receive one of our books and read even one page, they get eternally benefited. Therefore I am stressing this book distribution, not other things. Stop record selling completely. This is my order." (SPL Jan. 6, 1975)

He had illicit relations with several female disciples and sometimes was literally at war with Ramevara. Due to abuse of his position, addiction to painkillers and alcohol, he was terminated as an ISKCON guru in 1984. He tried to recover his position by having Kirtanananda take over the Berkeley temple, but this failed. Finally in 1992 he came to his senses and admitted that Srila Prabhupada had only wanted ritvik representatives, and he apologized repeatedly for his role and participation in the zonal acharya scam. He was the only one of the original eleven to partially repent and make amends. Afterwards he led a more quiet life, married, and did some local preaching. He coined the term "Bhaktivedantas" referring to those who were following the July 9 letter. He advised Nityananda das in 1998 to read the book about Napoleon's poisoning with arsenic. By late 2016, his health had become frail, and he advised us that this was the last chapter to his life's book. Three times we tried to elicit some information about his knowledge of the guru hijacking of the movement and what he might know about Srila Prabhupada's poisoning. He sometimes replied but did not address the questions we asked: "We are interested to know about what really happened with the hijacking of the movement, how Tamal concealed Srila Prabhupada's instructions, and how the GBC in March 1978 suddenly declared that they were appointed as successor acharyas. This was obviously a lie; what were you thinking at that time? Who told you at first that there would be 11 acharyas? Who first discussed with you about being an acharya rather than a ritvik representative? Didn't you already initiate some disciples before the 1978 GBC meeting? Who did you first discuss being a successor acharya with? Was it Tamal? Satsvarupa? It is clear there was a collaboration and secret discussion on this matter before March 78? Was it before Srila Prabhupada departed? Did you ever learn anything about Srila Prabhupada's now proven poisoning?"

Jitarati das has done business in Hong Kong and Philippines since the late 1970's. In 1981 he once flew into Cebu airport and learned later from 5 Filipino devotees that Hansadutta had ordered his murder- a disciple had laid in the tall grass near the airport with a shotgun, but Jitarati had come in on an earlier flight already. Hansadutta's men raided his warehouse, taking $90,000 of goods, and also three times fraudulently ordered large shipments from Jitarati's supplier, billed to Jitarati. Hansadutta's men even hired a local sheriff to confiscate merchandise delivered to various Jitarati customers. Once Jitarati was invited to meet with Hansadutta at the Cebu temple, but when he came with a gift, Hansadutta lost his temper and began to berate Jitarati heavily in front of many zealous disciples. Somehow Jitarati managed to calmly walk out and escape in his car, chased by devotees on foot. Yet, Jitarati remembers Hansadutta fondly for his dedication to selling Srila Prabhupada's books. It is difficult to be too hard on Hansadutta, since he has apologized repeatedly for his part in the guru takeover of Srila Prabhupada's mission, and has led a proper life according to Srila Prabhupada's instructions for almost 30 years. Still, he did not come completely clean, deeply embarrassed by his past. He was a living participant and witness of these events, and it would have been very valuable if he had told everything he knew. He passed away in April 2020 with his unconfessed secrets.

JAYATIRTHA

By early 1981, the GBC was fully aware Jayatirtha was regularly taking drugs such as Ecstasy and LSD. Jayatirtha (JT) would exhibit supposed ecstatic symptoms, often while on the Vyasasana or during kirtans, going into trance, howling, or rolling on the floor. He was forced in May 1980 by certain GBC members to take sannyas in Los Angeles, against his will. He went to Sridhar Maharaja in Navadwipa for support, and he tried to separate himself from ISKCON. There is strong evidence he was involved in the drowning murder of a dissident disciple in a Nepalese lake. He was removed from the GBC and demoted as a guru when he rebelled against the GBC's authority. He later was often intoxicated on LSD which he claimed was the dust of Radharani's lotus feet, and even had sex before the dieties. Many devotees, remembering the gentlemanly JT they had known before 1982, were pained and bewildered over what had happened to him. The offenses in posing as a pure devotee, misleading others, and blocking access to Srila Prabhupada caused his insanity and horrendous degradation. Over the coming years, JT became increasingly estranged from the GBC and he "took shelter" of Sridhar Maharaja when leaving ISKCON in 1982 with hundreds of his disciples. He openly had LSD kirtan festivals and formed his own quasi-spiritual sect. He was expelled from ISKCON in 1983. In Monkey On A Stick (p. 167) there is the description of a never prosecuted drowning-murder of Nitaipada das by JT and his disciples while on a winter boat ride in a Nepal lake. "The Nepalese authorities discovered the body several days later, washed up on the shoals of a river that drained the lake. They found an envelope containing five hundred dollars in Nitaipada's pocket. They noticed several fingers were broken. But they ruled that the drowning was accidental. Case closed." JT carried on with his Peace Krishna group from 1982-87 in England, taking LSD and Ecstasy until one day his most faithful disciple "realized" JT was not Krishna after all, but Rasputin instead, an evil imposter. Navaniticara das ambushed JT with a huge kitchen knife and killed him, then decapitated him. The police were lenient with Navaniticara, who was out of prison quite soon, as JT had been England's largest importer/ distributor of the drug ecstasy. They were glad he was out of business.

GUNAGRAHI (GOSWAMI)

On Mar. 24, 2016 Gunagrahi "Goswami" announced publicly that he had advanced prostate cancer; it had spread to his lungs and lymph nodes. Survival was questionable, and he was being treated at ISKCON's Bhaktivedanta Memorial Hospital in Bombay. Funds were solicited for the treatment. He had been an ISKCON guru and sannyasi with disciples in Uruguay and Argentina. The GBC issued their usual statement of sympathy and guidance for his disciples and all devotees in general which raised more questions than it answered. He admitted a lifelong on-off addiction to pornography in a resignation letter: "I am writing this letter to reveal my mind and heart... Seven years after joining the movement, I began occasionally looking at inappropriate explicit material. I said nothing about this to the GBC before taking sannyas, because I thought I had successfully freed myself from this deviation (but) my pride prevented me from opening my heart. After accepting sannyas, I sometimes slipped again, and at one point my superiors learned of an instance when this had happened. But I tried again to be fixed in my vows, and when from time to time I failed, I kept my failure to myself, even after I took up the position of initiating guru. I wanted very much to serve the movement by accepting such responsibilities, and I told myself I could purify myself through the service. But instead I sacrificed my integrity and the welfare of others... I should have disclosed the truth to my Godbrothers, seeking their help. Now I am deeply regretful. When I was diagnosed with stage 4 prostate cancer, I felt as if Krishna was making me aware of my misdeeds and how difficult it would be to face Him and Srila Prabhupada without being open... about what I had done... contemplating the seriousness of my actions and how they would affect others' lives, I needed to reveal my heart [...] So I spoke my secret to the Vaishnavas. I am so regretful [...] Krishna is putting me through this to help me give up a sin I couldn't give up on my own. Now I want to spend the rest of my life genuinely living in Krishna consciousness, without this sin and without attachment to any position or title. Although I do not deserve it, I pray for your forgiveness. Your servant, Gunagrahi Das"

However, although he resigned as sannyasi and guru, "in October 2017 the GBC voted to reconfirm Gunagrahi Maharaja as an ISKCON sannyasi" (GBC secretary), and he was reinstated as a bona fide ISKCON initiating guru for those disciples initiated prior to 2016. He passed away Sept. 8, 2018 and was placed into "Samadhi" the next day in Vrindaban, a practice which Srila Prabhupada said was reserved for great saints.

Atmavidya das wrote to all ISKCON leaders: "Will you ever get real? Without a doubt Gunagrahi das gave up everything to join the Hare Krishna movement, doing a lot of service throughout the years. But, he had kept up very gross attachments throughout the decades. Still, he was given sannyas and made a 'guru.' All while keeping his disgusting habits. In his resignation letter in 2016 after being diagnosed with cancer he admitted to everything and was sincerely repentant. He deserves great credit for that. He went through a tremendous lot of suffering for more than two years before passing away. Why can't you just leave it at that and take it as a warning for yourself and to devotees in general? ...that making conditioned souls into acharyas by vote does not work and never will. I find your eulogies and over-the-top glorifications of Gunagrahi das downright disgusting and irresponsible. Is it really so cheap to go back to Goloka Vrindavan and 'and wake up in the arms of Sri Krsna?' [as Indradyumna wrote] When will you stop deceiving yourselves and others?"

THE ISKCON CULTURE OF CORRUPTION AND DARK SECRETS

The dishonest, corrupted institution allowed Gunagrahi das to hide his secret for so long. He was caught watching pornography but ISKCON leaders, including Tamal, convinced him NOT to give up sannyas. The GBC hushed up illicit activities in many of its leaders, hoping no one would discover the transgressions. ISKCON has a culture of dark secrets, and Gunagrahi was sucked in. His is a story of the institutional cheating of innocent, trusting devotees. At least Gunagrahi had the decency to confess, apologize, resign, and repent, unlike many disreputed ISKCON leaders. Time and again, ISKCON misleaders hide their internal scandals "for the sake of the movement" but this "remedy" simply accentuates the real problem- that Srila Prabhupada is the real safe shelter for all, not ISKCON's fallible vote-elected rascals. Surya Narayan in NZ, 2021: "A pure devotee cannot fall and suddenly become unqualified to be the transparent via medium back to the spiritual world. If someone's heart is not pure, but they pretend to be pure, then they haven't truthfully come to a position to fall from. The illusion of spiritual qualification is simply happening within the mind, expanding outward as they convince innocent others of the false image they have created. It could be seen as a mental illness, not unlike Dissociative Identity Disorder, and is no less strange or unhealthy than someone who thinks they're Jesus or Elvis. These actors in the pantomime don't fall down, they get found out."

TYPICAL GBC CONDOLENCE LETTER TO DISCIPLES OF "FALLEN GURUS

"All glories to Srila Prabhupada. It is with great sadness that we inform you of the health crisis and spiritual difficulties of Gunagrahi das Goswami. He is currently... receiving treatment for advanced-stage cancer... he experienced severe anxiety out of guilt for spiritual difficulties that have lasted several decades, and he decided to disclose his difficulties. He explains this in the enclosed letter. Gunagrahi das has stepped down from the sannyas ashram, as an initiating guru and as Co-GBCin his zone... We thank him for his years of loyal service to Srila Prabhupada and ISKCON, and for his honesty and humility... For his disciples and followers: We are painfully aware of how difficult this time must be for you. We want to assure you that, since you were duly initiated in accordance with ISKCON law, you are in good spiritual standing. Whether you continue to take shelter, guidance and siksha from Gunagrahi das is entirely up to you. We encourage you, especially at this time, to take shelter of Srila Prabhupada and his instructions, as His Divine Grace is the preeminent siksha guru for all ISKCON devotees. We also encourage you to seek guidance of other senior devotees in ISKCON. As long as you continue to take guidance from Srila Prabhupada and his sincere followers and remain strict in your spiritual practices, you will be safe and secure under Lord Krishna's protection. We also request the devotees of ISKCON to offer their prayers for Gunagrahi das and to extend their full support, friendship and understanding to his disciples and followers. Your servants, GBC Executive Committee"

Another instance of GBC condolences: On May 1, 2017 there was news of problems in the ISKCON GBC leadership: Bhakti Vijnana Swami resigned as GBC and guru, and will be essentially "disappearing" indefinitely to "recover" from his devotional service... (??) "The last two months were very difficult for me. The tension of the past weeks have been superimposed on the chronic fatigue, accumulated over the years. All this has led to nervous and physical exhaustion - the state in which I now reside. Similar, although not as severe, the condition I had occasionally before, but once I get out of them. Short breaks helped you to recover, but recovery was not complete. Even during the recovery periods of inertia and a sense of duty did not allow me to fully retire. Now, however, the situation is more serious, so the senior Vaishnavas recommended me to take a vacation and for an indefinite period to depart. My communication with the outside world during this period will be reduced to a minimum. My body and mind are in need of complete unloading." (Bhakti Vijnana Swami) Why have so many ISKCON gurus in the last 40+ years similarly developed migraine headaches, nervous and physical "exhaustion," spiritual "falldowns," and insanity? What is this?

RAVINDRA SVARUPA DAS

After being a leader in the guru reform movement for several years, Tamal tempted Ravindra Svarupa to the dark side with the offer of guruship, which was quickly accepted. Thereafter Ravindra Svarupa became a GBC and has apologized for or covered up ISKCON's corruptions ever since 1986. His scholarly credits have been spoiled by defending the unauthorized and deviant ISKCON guru system. He runs his zone like a personal kingdom and engineered the new corporation bylaws that give the GBC centralized control of all temples. He is a chief spokesman for and leader in the GBC body, and has promoted many philosophical deviations. He has compromised with Srila Prabhupada's poisoners and the gurujackers of the movement, sharing in the spoils. His history of deviations and complicity with a corrupted institution are described very well in BTP issues.

HARIKESHA, NARESWARA, RUSSIAN MAFIA, MISSING MILLIONS

Harikesha was one of the original 11 successor zonal acharyas. He then operated behind the Iron Curtain in Russia and Eastern Europe, and in both Germanys. In the late seventies and early eighties he was based largely in Hungary but rumors of involvements with women led to Shivarama Swami's assuming responsibility for Hungary. By 1995 he was the preeminent force in ISKCON and had become a legendary. Book printing and distribution in many languages became the main feature of Harikesha's zone, and he was successful with thousands of disciples, properties, ample funds, and he was a benefactor to gurukulas, etc. Faith in the ISKCON guru system was upheld due to his apparent spiritual strength and success. However, in 1998 he unraveled and amidst financial and sexual scandal, married his massage therapist and moved to Alachua, Florida. He complained bitterly about Srila Prabhupada giving him sannyas and thus denying him the emotional gratification he needed to be happy in life. One of his disciples in Europe wrote: "Most devotees know that Harikesha left with a handsome payout. What perhaps is not so well known is how he got the money. Some came from a BBT trust: the leftovers of money Harikesha lost on the Russian stock market after the 1997-8 crash. His disciple was one of the trustees. In order to access the funds Harikesha needed his signature, requesting this devotee to give him the money. When the devotee refused to sign it over, Harikesha's loyal Russian disciples threatened this devotee and his family. This accounts for a portion of the US$ 5 million that Harikesha is said to have taken with him. Nareswara das was sent to try and recover these funds from Harikesha, who threatened to reveal all the illegal activities that had taken place in ISKCON. Calculating the damages of such a scenario, Nareswara negotiated with Harikesha, who was satisfied with $2 million, returning $6 million to ISKCON. However, Nareswara claims that while he was at a hotel with the $6 million, agents of the Russian mafia came and took half the money that they said was owed to them by Harikesha for a loan. Nareswara thus gave only $3 million back to ISKCON. What to believe? There were also photos of Harikesh's French Riviera luxury estate. We just do not know without financial transparency."

From Dhira Govinda das, 2016: "Harikesha was the organizer of this entire conference, and he was scheduled to lead many presentations, host the events, etc. And, he wasn't showing up- nowhere to be found. Various fine-sounding explanations were given (he's feeling ill from over-working)- but rumors abounded about what may be happening. It was said he needed to be rushed to the hospital because of a mental breakdown, and various other rumors. One night, the phone rings around midnight. Ravindra Svarupa and Badrinarayana were calling from Bombay. There was a full-blown crisis situation with Harikesha, and they were consulting me about what to do. I had recently become the CPO director, and so they contacted me, because of my psychology professional background. They shared what was going on- taking vibhuti, a purple psychotropic Ayurvedic drug for 10 years which said had negative effects on his stability etc. I also heard he would do nothing without the pendulum test. They described how Harikesha was apparently having a psychotic episode, had been in relations with a woman who was acting as some sort of therapist. And his disciples were getting more suspicious... so, at our midnight talk, I provided whatever guidance I thought might be helpful... Shortly thereafter, ISKCON leadership couldn't effectively conceal the situation from the rank and file devotees, and the truth (or at least some of it) of what was happening, came out." Bhakti Vijnana Gosvami later explained that some Russian BBT money (over $1.4 million) was used for market speculation through Russian Prema Invest and European Visva Tosani which run by Harikesha disciples who had Russian mafia connections. But upon Harikesha's departure in 1998, the Russian BBT funds and book stocks were 'plundered' by Harikesha disciples who left ISKCON with him, causing the Russian temples great hardship. Harikesha disciples who left ISKCON en masse took over ISKCON St Petersburg temple, the biggest in Russia, which is still lost for ISKCON. A Sept. 1, 1998 email from Hari Sauri to the GBC reveals some of the rumors and mess going on regarding Brahma Muhurta das (then head of North European BBT and topday a BBTI director): "Just a brief message to inquire from you, as you appear to be in the forefront of the problem's with Harikesha, did the GBC recently agree to release a very large amount of Lakshmi to him ? There are rumours flying about all over the place."

Hari Sauri had received this message, raising his concerns: "There was a dispute over several million dollars in the Visva Toshani fund. HK claimed it was his, part of some private business he was running and made threats to Brahmamuhurta that if he didn't send the entire amount to him he would expose some wrong doings in ISKCON and the BBT and send BMD to jail for 5 years. BMD pointed out that HK himself would go to jail too if that happened. The Russians had also made threats to Lochan and Dharmaraj that the money was actually theirs (it originally came from Prema Invest in Russia) and if it was not given back to them they would make life hell for them and their families. In preliminary negotiations between HK and Lochan and co. it turned out $1.4M was actually Moscow BBT money and HK agreed it should be given back to them. He also agreed that a further $600,000 be used to pay off VT's existing liabilities. And he wrote off some $2.5m in outstanding loans given to ISKCON temples. Still there was $1.5m that he was claiming. He had already been given $500,000 in the form of a couple of vehicles and some cash."

A Nov 17, 1998 letter to Harikesha from some of his disciples, just after his falldown, reveals some of the insanity that had been underway for decades, and about which the GBC did nothing.

"Please help us resolve these questions? You say that Srila Prabhupada tricked you into taking sannyas. Why did you then write for Satsvarupa's Lilamrta that you asked Srila Prabhupada to give you sannyas and he refused? And only after you begged and convinced Srila Prabhupada that your Godbrothers would not let you give class in the temples, he agreed to give you sannyas? You say that 'you were not into the guru trip.' If that is true, why did you order your Godbrothers to fan you on the Vyasasana the day you came back from India with your guru title? Why did you go to Sweden and throw Vegavan out of the temple, who had started the preaching in Sweden? Why did you use the very radio station that Vegavan had established to preach the glories of Srila Prabhupada and Lord Chaitanya to smear him over the airwaves and call him a demon? Why did you publicly encourage your disciples to threaten Vegavan's life? Why did you kick some of your Godbrothers out of your zone just for attending a meeting of Srila Prabhupada disciples in Harivilasa's house in Paris in 1984, who met there to talk about this issue? Why did you declare in 1981 that if anyone wanted to initiate disciples in your zone it would be 'over your dead body?' Why did you tell your Godbrothers in Europe that 'they could consider themselves fortunate to take birth in their next life as an American.'? Why did you ban all marriages for European devotees in your zone for many years while offering any American devotee, who would travel through your zone 'any girl they would pick' for marriage? Were you a racist? Why did you then manage to sell the house belonging to one of your disciple's mother, while she was still living in it, with the help of legal trickery, to build your 'rock-and-roll' studio in Sweden for $150,000 Dollars? Why did you not stop making your 'techno-music' after the GBC ordered you many times to cease, which music sounded like 'an Elephant having a miscarriage'? Why did you engage many of your disciples in selling millions of these 'rock-and-roll' records when these had no preaching value? Why did you decide in 1984 to make all your decisions as GBC and during leadership meetings by swinging a pendulum over a Ouija board? Why did you tell your Godbrothers in 1984 that you had the power to kill anyone on this planet by some new age 'woodoo' practice? Why did you tell your Godbrothers in 1984 that you had invented the 'perpetual motion machine'? Why did you engage your disciples to build such a contraption, almost killing one of your disciples, ripping off half of his hand?

Why did you spend 100's of 1000's of dollars trying to build a flying saucer? Why were you planning to build a flying saucer landing platform on your Mayapur building, to land your "UFO"? Why did you try to have your Godbrother Bhakti Dayal Swami assassinated after he could no longer accept you as a GBC due to all this? Why did you tell your disciples in Hungary that they would not get any karma if they murdered Bhakti Dayal Swami? Why did you send your men to break into Bhakti Dayal Swami's temples in Vienna and Hungary, to interrogate his followers and steal the multiple false passports he was using to preach in the communist countries? Why did you turn these false passports over to the Russian KGB? Did you or the KGB have anything to do with the 'car accident' in which Bhakti Dayal Swami died shortly after that? Why did you state, from the Vyasasana, that you never made any predictions about a 3rd world war coming, when all your disciples had heard these things from you for years with their own ears? Why did you rewrite all of Srila Prabhupada's purports of the 5th Canto Srimad Bhagavatam to be published by your BBT, to replace Srila Prabhupada's edition of the 5th Canto, but never publish it? Why were you the only one to vote against allowing more gurus, in New Vrindavan in 1985? Why did you vote to reinstate Bhavananda, knowing he was having sex with men and his own disciples? Why did you take mind-altering drugs for a decade even though you knew that it was against one of the Vaishnava principles to get intoxicated? Why did you make a rule in Argentina that devotees could not touch, embrace or pay obeisances to each other? Why did you throw out one of your senior Godbrothers because he said that you were "not a loving spiritual master for your disciples"? Adding up all the expenses related to your guruship and position, the $100,000 Mercedes cars, Million dollar motor home, expensive apartment flats all over Europe, air line tickets can easily add up to Millions of dollars. Were your services were so valuable? Have you considered that receiving that $500,000 payoff would nullify all your devotional service you have done? Why did you arrange marriages for some of your disciples, and then instruct the wife to spy on her husband and report to you? Why did you say from the Vyasasana before the deities: 'If I see a devotee girl looking for a husband, I offer her my foot.' Why did you encourage disciples to gamble in the Russian Stock market, losing 20 Million dollars of ISKCON and BBT money? Why did you throw out 100's of devotees in the street with not a penny in their pockets after they had served ISKCON sometimes for a decade?

Will your disciples be cheated out of their devotional service, having served all these years a 'karmi', who worked all these years for a salary? Did you know that some of your disciples that have collected much of this money over the last decades are considering suing ISKCON for this money, feeling cheated out of their devotional service? Why are you now comparing Srila Prabhupada to Hitler? What does Srila Prabhupada have in common with Hitler for you to make such statements? Isn't it more correct that you are like Hitler? Why did you demand to be handed over Millions and accepting $500,000 dollars for your "services" after falling down with a prostitute years ago? Why did you try to sell your gross fall down with one of your disciples and later with a "karmi" woman as some sort of transcendental affair? Were you ever a devotee of Lord Krishna and the Vaishnavas at any point in your life, or did you just stay in ISKCON for all these years for the opportunity and the luxury lifestyle? Were you not one of the chief engineers who turned Srila Prabhupada's wonderful dream into a nightmare for many? Do you really think you can find happiness in this world or in the next without sincerely seeking forgiveness from all the devotees that you have severely offended over the last decades? We appreciate your patience to listen to all our questions. Your former disciples."

From various sources, we have confirmed most of the above is based on facts and this reflects how Harikesha ruled his zone for 20 years with tyranny, perverted intelligence, and ruthless authority.

MALATI DAS: ISKCON GBC MEMBER

A PTC member had brief, polite correspondence with GBC member Malati dasi in Sept. 2017, but she then ceased communicating. Here is her reply when asked if she had any questions for Prabhupada Truth Commission about the cadmium evidence: "As a person who does not shy away from controversy, I have looked into the various so called evidences and films that have been presented related to the Poison Theory. I have consulted both a nondevotee doctor and attorney for their opinion. Neither one agreed that there was any merit, as the so-called evidence was not substantial. I am not at all interested to discuss this topic further. I can easily live with those who do not see eye to eye with or do not accept the views of the GBC so long as they are servants of Srila Prabhupada. I cannot live with those who are blasphemous serial criticizers. It is unhealthy for anyone, including the persons themselves. [...] I am done with this issue. I will not nor do I try to convince persons who are already convinced of something. When I mentioned a doctor and an attorney, it was only part of my effort. I consulted them as outside persons who were not likely to have any personal opinion, one way or the other. Frankly, I don't remember all of the details at this point. I did not keep a 'file.'"

Malati declined to say what the doctor and attorney had found to be defective in the evidence. We doubt Malati has even a basic knowledge of what the evidence actually is, but it is clear she wants nothing to do with it at all, and she thinks those who would be concerned that the actual evidence may have validity are "blasphemous serial criticizers" and "unhealthy." She also implies that anyone concerned by the poison facts and evidence is blinded by a prior conviction they are erroneously justifying. She is another ISKCON institutional MISLEADER who is blind and will not open her eyes. Her leadership ability and intelligence is dubious- in the 1990's she left the movement and practiced Satanic rituals and worship as a heroin addict with AIDS. She was rescued from a hospital by Kirtanananda and brought to New Vrindaban to recover her health.

RAMESVARA (SWAMI)

"Ramesvara was a meticulous fault finder. He criticized anyone and everyone. He spent thousands each month on international phone calls. He had his own private Mercedes which he would use to go to see films at theaters. The Godfather was his favorite. He would put on an expensive hair piece and karmi clothes and slip into his Benz at night. I assumed that watching films was all he did." Navajavana das, 2008. "When I went to LA in 1983 for the Robin George trial, I hoped to see Ramevara, but every evening that I went to his quarters across from the temple, his curtains were drawn and he would not answer the door. I could see the TV going inside; he was watching the Academy Awards as though it was the Moon landing..." (Nityananda das, 2016)

Ramevara allegedly assisted Tirtha das in the murder of Sulochan das by ordering his own bodyguard to help locate Tirtha's whereabouts, and his bodyguard heard the fatal shots from a block away after showing Tirtha where Sulochan had parked his camper for the night. Ramevara kept Srila Prabhupada's letters, July 9 Order, Final Will, and Direction of Management locked in his office safe, blocking any access to devotees. Although Ramevara removed his Vyasasana from the LA temple in 1980, not feeling qualified to sit on it, he was again forced to do so by the GBC, and thereafter became known as a ruthless and dictatorial personality with a fierce anger. He frequently called devotees "demons" and after a decade as one of the most notorious of the original 11 ISKCON zonal acharyas, he was caught at a LA mall with a 14 year old girl, dressed up in fancy karmi clothes. He then disappeared to New York, his parents married him, and he did real estate business. From 1972-86 he was extremely devoted to the printing and distribution of Srila Prabhupada's books, but all his service came to an abrupt end due to his many deviations and offenses.

Ramesvara has returned to LA in recent years and taken a more apologetic and humble role as a resident devotee in the temple community. Regarding the "poison issue," in 2017 he posted on FaceBook: "I know the devotees who were serving Srila Prabhupada in the final months [obviously Tamal, Bhakticharu etc]- this horrific rumor is not only inconceivable to anyone who knows how much they love Srila Prabhupada and would cut their throats for him, but it's inconceivable to me than any sincere devotees could even entertain or consider such an evil rumor [poisoning Srila Prabhupada]. Please move on and away from this illusory obsession." Former GBC Naveen Krishna das replied to Ramevara's post: "We also got to know these loving 'disciples' very well, the same people Srila Prabhupada called his Ravana caretakers and those he pointed out to be his poisoners in his last days. Srila Prabhupada knew them a lot better than you and he tells us they were disguised as devotees. Also they have destroyed or damaged thousands of dedicated servants of Srila Prabhupada and caused so much devastation in his global family. We who know this without a doubt includes many former GBC's, temple presidents, other leaders who have kept their vows and sadhana intact. What about you? What is your track record after you joined the mass deception and thieving party after hijacking the mission in early 1978 as one of the original cheaters? There is always room for regrets and apologies to Srila Prabhupada. Have you the courage to start there? We are happy to go over the evidence with you step by step and leave no room for doubt." Another reply to Ramevara from Padmagarbha das suggested that the unapologetic zonal acharyas SHOULD cut their own throats for what they had done.

Ramevara was one of the obstructionists of Srila Prabhupada's last request that all his disciples come to see him in Oct. '77. He secretly conspired with other GBCs to change this instruction, that only senior devotees, a few at a time on a rotating basis, should go to see srila Prabhupada in his last days. (Book One Ch. 86) Ramevara over-rode Srila Prabhupada's request and thousands missed their last chance to be with their eternal guru. Ramevara will speak of the caretakers' love? Love or not, it is a clinical fact in psychology that opposite emotions struggle for dominance in the same person. The demon and devotee are both there in the same person. Is it so hard to understand that a few loving disciples could also be simultaneously consumed with envy, resentment, or personal ambitions? It is a common scenario where "loving" children will murder their parents due a mix of other emotions such as greed or revenge. Let us dispose of this silly idea that loving disciples could not poison Srila Prabhupada. Poisonings happen all the time. Tamal, whom Ramevara appears to be defending, gave a Nov. 23, 1999 lecture about how those who disagreed with ISKCON positions were dealt with: "You can see people got kicked out of ISKCON for taking different positions. ISKCON takes very strong stands; it's quite typical of religious institutions, that they are always trying to identify themselves correctly, to define their positions, and they do so by saying who's wrong, and the people who are wrong are demonized and driven out, or (chuckles) burned at the stake..."

We appreciate that Ramesvara wants to return to meaningful service to Srila Prabhupada, but he must begin by coming totally clean on his past and first make amends like Jagai and Madhai had done, as his wrongs are perhaps somewhat comparable in their severity, magnitude, offensiveness, and destructiveness. The rest of us have to take responsibility for our actions in life, so why not Ramesvara? Did he edit the May 28 tape? Where did he hide that tape, the July 9 Order and other documents and letters from 1978 to 1986? Is he open to answering a lot of questions about his role in the zonal acharya era, the gurujacking, or not?

INDRADYUMNA SWAMI: TRAVELING MONK

Indradumnya Swami joined in 1970 by the influence of Vishnujana Swami and went to Europe in 1972 to open temples in France. He has traveled widely to preach Krishna consciousness. He has published an ongoing account of his travels under "Diary of a Traveling Monk (or Preacher)"- which features accounts of endless mini-miracles, such as a dog appearing from the jungle, taking prasada, and disappearing again. His stories are romanticized, clearly self-promotional. Neither does he shy from being worshipped or receiving attention, basking in the limelight with his wide grins. A few years ago his Facebook and website highlighted his close association with, and personally taking photos of, scantily clad women in beach kirtans. Other photos of him with adoring female disciples and little girls on his lap drew much protest that he was not being faithful to sannyasa or renounced standards. Sanaka Rsi das, a gurukula graduate and film-maker about child abuse in ISKCON, wrote: "...his Sannyasa Asrama, there simply is no room for his interaction with women of any age, certainly not the sort of interactions he is accustomed to. I find some of the exchanges he has with children to be highly inappropriate (with or without parental consent). In this 40 min. video you can watch Maharaj interacting extensively with children and judge for yourself. He disregards norms of basic social respect and child safety. In doing so he is setting a bad example and precedent, not only because those who have unhealthy inclinations towards children may view what he does as some sort of a licence, but also because they could reasonably assume that Hare Krishna children are still a soft target. ...the children themselves, could it teach them that it is ok for older men to touch them the way he does? At times Maharaj has taken photos of children and posted them on his public Facebook profile without parental consent; some of these children were in bikini. A few months ago Indradumnya Maharaj visited one of the Hare Krishna schools in Alachua and again, without parental consent, he went around giving hugs, cuddles, etc... in breach of the school code of conduct and safety policies. [...] the management treated the incident with the seriousness it deserved, and it is unlikely that there will be a repeat. If any other 70-year old man came to one of our schools and started to hug and cuddle children the way Maharaj does, we'd probably call the police. As a society, ISKCON has allowed Indradumnya Maharaj to have special licence; he operates under a different set of rules from anyone else. [...] Indradumnya Swami, unfortunately, doesn't behave as real, bona fide sannyasi and therefore shouldn't be considered as such."

He is one of ISKCON's most prominent, charismatic, and "successful" vote-approved initiating gurus, smilingly collecting disciples while telling mystical adventure stories. He annually takes his disciples and their friends in the Vrindaban Girls Gurukula on an exclusive Braj Dham pilgrimage retreat. He fully supported Bhagavan das Goswami during his autocratic "Sun King" reign as zonal acharya and he has been an avid loyalist of the GBC through all its scandals and deviations. He is close to other ISKCON guru "heavies" like Shivarama, BB Govinda, Giriraja Swamis, with whom he became very involved in rasika-guru Narayan Maharaja. In 2006 Indradumnya was again with Fakir Mohan (ex-Gaudiya Matha member who first became a disciple of false acarya Ananta Vasudeva, and after whose falldown and suicide, he became a disciple of a jata gosai (an apa-sampradayi) Kanupriya Goswami who was open adversary of Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati, as reported in Gaudiya Matha literature of 1930s). Indradyumna Swami likes to “party” with his guru friends, as two of them will sit on a grand Vyasasana joking around or feeding each other from huge arrays of sweets and delicacies, or like in 2018 when he read his Vyasapuja offering to his Godbrother Giriraj Swami who sat on his Vyasasana being lauded for his “extraordinary qualities as a disciple of Srila Prabhupada.” His friend BB Govinda Swami has a penchant for sticking out his tongue in a gross display of his ecstasy. Indradyumna’s face is tattooed on the chest of one of his sychophants in Europe, such is the strange mood of reverence for ISKCON gurus as the new Prabhupadas. He also imitates Srila Prabhupada’s tasting of some prasadam during a huge kirtan as though it is transcendental event of great significance. All this shows that “gurus” such as Indradyumna, BB Govinda, Shivarama, etc. are not tattva-darsi, they live in an imaginary world. They are friendly with other bogus “gurus” and sahajiyas. The cheaters and the cheated.

(1) *“Those of us who are initiating, at least I can say for myself, we are not pure devotees of the Lord. I am not. I don't see Krishna in Vrindaban. (SPConv 1974) (2) “But because I may be on a lower level of realization as an ISKCON spiritual master, that does not mean that my disciples cannot go back to Godhead.” (IDS Lecture 1998) In Hawaii, Srila Prabhupada criticized “artificial attempts” of some his disciples to “prematurely” become guru, that guru can not be “imitated,” one should become “expert disciple,” “perfect,” “very dear to Krishna” and follow the order of one's guru, only then a disciple will able to become real guru. “Otherwise it will be artificial attempt, and that kind of guru will not help.” (SPConv May 30, 1976) (3) “You think that all of the disciples of Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati who began initiating, were fully self-realized souls?” (IDS Lecture 1998) “But just after his [Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati's] passing away, his leading secretaries made plans, without authority, to occupy the post of acarya, and they split into two factions over who the next acarya would be. Consequently, both factions were asara, or useless, because they had no authority, having disobeyed the order of the spiritual master.” (CC Adi 12.8 purport) “Unless one takes shelter of a bona fide, fully Krsna conscious spiritual master, there is no chance of understanding Krishna. [...] These are Vedic injunctions. One must take shelter of a self-realized spiritual master, not a materially educated scholar or politician. One must take shelter of a niskincana, a person engaged in devotional service and free from material contamination. That is the way to return home, back to Godhead.” (SBhag 7.5.32 purport)

PRABHAVISHNU SWAMI (PV)

PV was finally exposed to have been visiting Bangkok for liaisons with comfort women, which the GBC knew about for 20 years, and then after a few months he reappeared in white cloth as though nothing happened. According to witnesses and unpublished GBC meetings and decisions, the GBC covered up that PV had been visiting prostitutes in Thailand since about 1991, and although rampant rumors arose in 2001 and 2008 to this effect, PV denied them. Finally he was caught red-handed by a senior disciple. Although officially and formally suspended with public notice as a GBC, sannyasi, and guru in ISKCON, at an ISKCON Voronezh, Russia temple in 2019 he received worship at his own Vyasapuja festival, sitting on his Vyasasana, practically on the same level of Srila Prabhupada. Some of his disciples have no idea what this means to their devotional lives, refuse to accept he is anything less than their pure devotee guru, and continue to worship him. Some cannot believe the “rumors” of his falldown, or choose to rationalize that “at least it was sex with a woman,” which is not such a big thing in Kali yuga (she was a humble lady). He continues to operate as a guru on the fringes of ISKCON despite the GBC, and has his own Vrindaban residential complex. From FB, 2021: “The GBC are now claiming they can connect the ex disciples of PV, (and we presume any other fallen Iskcon gurus) to Srila Prabhupada and our entire parampara. The obvious question would be, ‘then why did they insert PV in between the disciples and Srila Prabhupada in the first place?’ It seems like the person who carried out the initiation is inconsequential, that even if they fall from their own KC practices, the disciples are still linked to Srila Prabhupada. Their function appears to be the same as the Ritvik priest, the only difference being that they are in a position to exploit and abuse members financially, psychologically, physically and spiritually before they fall down and go away. ‘Those devotees initiated by PV continue to be connected to Srila Prabhupada and our entire Vaishnava parampara.’” (GBC Res. 311, 2012)

DEVAMRITA SWAMI (DS)

Devamrita Swami was a part of Kirtanananda’s Franciscan-robed monks scene from 1986-94, and he later returned to ISKCON. In 2005 he was GBC Chairman for a year and was raising funds for the Mayapur Planetarium. In 2002 he was approved as a guru and wrote a demented Vyasapuja offering to Srila Prabhupada, questioning His Divine Grace’s books’ modern relevance: “During your physical presence your books were our be-all and end-all. Now, have we entered, consciously or unconsciously, a new era of ISKCON known as “PPB”—that is, ‘post-Prabhupada’s books’? More than a few seasoned devotees and supportive academics opine that indeed it’s time to move on. Maybe, while maintaining our eternal gratitude to you, our founder-acharya, it’s now necessary to evaluate what you have left us and distill whatever part of that legacy should accompany us into the future of a different world and a different ISKCON. Amidst the burgeoning potpourri of Gaudiya Vaisnavism outside of India, do you still assert that your books are sufficient for bringing us to the zenith of bhakti? Can your books withstand time? That is, are the purports and language dated—if not now, then in the future? Is emphasis on distributing your books, by whatever method, outmoded? Isn’t ISKCON without emphasis on mass distribution a breath of fresh air for us? Should our senior devotees take the lead in demonstrating lifelong dependence on your books for their spiritual sustenance and delight? Is there a danger that by doing so they could inhibit their spiritual maturity? Would we gain significantly if ISKCON’s leaders... rallied to exalt your books as the main basis of our cultural unity?”

Devamrita Swami acts as an ISKCON self-appointed initiating guru primarily in New Zealand. Upon a visit to Auckland, we were told that his disciples enthusiastically propagate that he is the “next ISKCON acharya,” perhaps because of his charisma? At least twice now we have seen that Devamrita Swami openly advocated serious deviations by modifying Srila Prabhupada gifts -who would trust in him now? He also strenuously denies any of the evidence that Srila Prabhupada was poisoned.

ROHINI SUTA DAS: MARRIES HIS DISCIPLE IN 2001

Rohini Suta das’ letter to GBC Feb. 1, 2001: “I would like to resign forthwith from the ISKCON GBC for these reasons: I recently entered the grihastha-ashram and have to deal with its natural responsibilities, such as economics, etc. I will not have sufficient time to give attention to my GBC duties. I want to give more time to caring for my health. I want to strengthen my sadhana. I want to spend more time with certain Godbrothers. I want to do more reading and distributing of Srila Prabhupada’s books. I also desire to write articles and books. I wish to travel less. I will still visit some of my old GBC areas. Due to my discrepancy in marrying one of my own disciples, I will not be initiating any more disciples. I will keep contact with my disciples to help and encourage them as I am able, within my Krishna conscious capacity and according to the teachings of Srila Prabhupada and our guru-parampara. I will be happy to continue to assist the GBC Body to the best of my abilities...”

BHAGAVAN DAS (GOSWAMI)

Bhagavan das joined in 1969 with Rupanuga das in Buffalo, NY. He started the Detroit ISKCON temple the same year and went to expand ISKCON in Europe in 1972. He became a GBC member in 1970 and was one of the original eleven zonals. He was close to Tamal and a heavy-handed manager, once famously joking, "It's my way or the highway." He took over the UK from Jayatirtha in 1982, where he required devotees to be reinitiated by him or leave "his" zone. He reigned while ISKCON became successfully established in South Africa. He adopted a regal aura in imitation of Srila Prabhupada, even by an imitation upwards tilting of his head. He had an affection for large manor type properties, some of which were then lost due to debt. He is famous as the "Sun King" of ISKCON, a reference to Louis XIV's opulences, with his gold-plated lavatory faucets, crystal chandeliers, and onyx desk. In 1986 he disappeared with a female disciple to South Africa, even though he had a beautiful wife Krishna-bhamini dasi and devotee children. His new relationship was short-lived. He resigned as guru, GBC, and sannyasi with a letter of apology to his many hundreds of disciples. He spent time in prison for drug offenses, defended the original BBT in 1996, and has been involved in business on ISKCON's periphery.

SANKARSHAN DAS ADHIKARI

ISKCON approved diksha guru Sankarshan das of Austin, Texas can be seen in online YouTube videos, one of which depicts him on a visit to Lithuania where he sits upon the guru throne and demonstrates his skills at singing his own songs with folk guitar and harmonica. The song titled "Existential Blues" is a rendition of a popular blues artist with no mention of Krishna, and this shows just how far astray the ISKCON institution and gurus have gone off the track. The ISKCON gurus have now come to this: singing the blues from the Vyasasana... Shocking, hilarious, depressing, revolting- all at the same time! Sankarshan das was interviewed and asked what was the next step in his songwriter's career, and he answered, "Become the most popular singer/songwriter in the world." More: Austin Songwriters Group (ASG): Who is your biggest songwriting influence/mentor? Sankarshan Das (SD): Bob Dylan. ASG: Who is your favorite songwriter/performer? SD: Pete Seeger ASG: How did you get into songwriting? SD: I hitchiked from Texas to San Francisco/Haight Ashbury to bring a love and peace revolution to this planet and wrote 300 songs in one year for that purpose. ASG: Tell us your favorite songwriting story (i.e. pitch to publisher, live show, strangest inspiration...) SD: I was doing a set between the Jefferson Airplane and the Grateful Dead in Golden Gate Park in 1969. The crowd roared with approval and the MC predicted that I would become a big name in the music world. I've been on a multi-decades self-discovery sabbatical; now I'm coming back to the music scene. (Any delusion or conceit?)

"HIS DIVINE GRACE" SUHOTRA (SWAMI, DAS TAPOVANACHARI)

In 2000, a former disciple sent a long report to the GBC describing Suhotra Swami's behavior: poor rounds, missing the morning program, long walks in the city alone, watching "film noir" movies day and night, reading mundane literature, harsh treatment of devotees, misspending money, etc. Suhotra sent a letter to his disciples, June 19, 2000: "I have a problem with depression. Depression is nowadays classified as an illness... But the actual cause lies in the heart. It is the same cause Krishna gives in BGita for Arjuna's unhappiness: hridaya-daurbalyam, or weakness of heart. Weakness that was already there from a disturbed childhood gradually became more apparent under pressure. With a Godbrother trained in psychological counseling, I've discussed my childhood problems. He was emphatic that they amount to a serious disorder... I have requested the GBC to authorize a program of rehabilitation. This will involve a leave of absence from GBC/guru responsibilities while I take counseling from a devotee professional... I acquired some 1940's films [...] I also read books from that time. I got carried away. My sadhana deteriorated. [...] I admit it was a waste of time." Suhotra Swami asked to be given a leave of absence from his duties as a Guru, because amongst other things, by his own admission, over a long period of time he still has "deep-rooted attachment;" his mind "is not only unstable in the usual sense (chanchala), but also deformed;" he needed "psychological counseling." On Feb. 12, 2001 he wrote to the GBC:

"Herewith I request a leave of absence from my GBC duties, which the EC may review after two

SRIPAD SUHOTRA DAS TAPOVANACARI

1950 – 2007

HIS PASSING WAS LIKE HIS LIFE MYSTERIOUS BUT ULTIMATELY GLORIOUS

years. I intend to spend a good deal of time in India to enhance my spiritual life. Also, I will not be making disciples or giving initiation during my leave of absence. In two years I will reassess in consultation with my Godbrothers my situation as a spiritual master." Then, after 2 years absence of "voluntary" suspension, he returned as a sannyasi and a member of the Shastric Advisory Council, a clear contradiction of spiritual evolution. The GBC reactivated his guruship in 2004, but then suspended him again the following year in 2005; he had been exposed with prostitutes, according to reports. Suhotra wrote: "Though for many years I have held high positions in ISKCON, I confess I am unqualified [...] Several years ago I published a letter my trouble from depression. I tried to rectify myself by resigning from the GBC, ceasing to give more initiations, and concentrating on my sannyasa duties. But the depression persisted and conspired with unhealthy, restless travel, lack of regulation, and lust, to knock me out of the race again. Since I have not kept the vows of sannyasa, I shall step one asrama back to vanaprastha... I relinquish the position of diksha and siksha guru. I urge the devotees initiated by me to take shelter of a fixed-up ISKCON guru. If you so desire, do not hesitate to take re-initiation." Typically, the incident was sugar-coated and the GBC awarded him a new vanaprastha title: Suhotra das Tapovanachari. He went from sannyas to austere vanaprastha: the Vedic system in reverse. He soon passed away in 2008, and that solved one of the GBC's conundrums. He wrote (2005): "I shall be under the care of my sannyas guru, HH Bhaktividya Purna Maharaja." (Whose extreme physical child abuse case, non-sannyasi activity is below.) Suhotra's website, his biography, and his Wikipedia pages in English and Russian, all maintained by his disciples, were purged of any "negative" information, and it was stated he had "relinquished his duties of guru due to illness." In 2009, following its new policy on deceased leaders, ISKCON placed the fallen "guru" Suhotra in the holy Mayapur Dhama into a samadhi (like Gunagrahi, Tamal, etc) as if he was a great saintly acharya. Thus ISKCON disregards Srila Prabhupada's teachings as to who should be given "Samadhi" and falsely glorifies even their fallen vote-approved gurus as exalted devotees who have spiritual bodies. But shastra clearly states a bona fide spiritual master never becomes subject to the laws of the material world, such as illness, mental disorders, lust, accidental falldowns, and other excuses. (1) "...but it is not the same body. It is cin-maya. [...] the iron rod put into the fire, it becomes red hot, so it is no longer iron; it is fire. Similarly, if we constantly keep ourself in touch with Krishna consciousness, then the body is no longer material; it is spiritual. Therefore a spiritual body is not burned. They are kept, samadhi. Just like in Western countries they give samadhi to any, everyone, tomb, entombing. In India the tomb is offered to a very advanced spiritually person. You'll find many tombs in Vrndavana, because their body is spiritual." (SPLecture Dec. 9, 1975) (2) "A person acting in the service of Krishna with his body, mind and words is a liberated person, even within the material world." (NOD) Therefore, one is forbidden to regard the guru as an ordinary human being [...] The spiritual master, or acharya, is always situated in the spiritual status of life. Birth, death, old age and disease do not affect him. [...] after the disappearance of an acharya, his body is never burnt to ashes, for it is a spiritual body. The spiritual body is always unaffected by material conditions." (SBhag 10.4.20 purport)

BHAKTIVIDYA PURNA SWAMI (BVPS)

BVPS was the Mayapur Gurukula headmaster since the early 1980's and after being a sannyasi for many years, was approved as an ISKCON initiating guru in 1988. Sexual and physical abuse at his school came to light in 1991; he was relieved of all involvement in the school, but somehow returned as headmaster within a few months. The GBC squashed any investigation. In 2000 the ISKCON Child Protection Office determined that BVPS had been dishonest about his knowledge of child abuse in his school, and that he was violently beating the boys himself, and that he made no efforts to protect the students from known sexual and physical abusers who were his teachers. One gurukula student later recounted: “BVPS is notorious for his expertise in lacerating the skin off the back of the children with one single hit of his special bendy bamboo cane. He would get the boys to kneel forward and hold their ankles with their hands, so as to form an arch of some sort with their body. He would then hit the boys on the back, causing the tip of the stick to whip around striking their chest. Many boys recall that he preceded his beatings with a sadistic ritual intended to increase the fear of his victims. He would smile and wiggle his eyebrows gleefully while bending the cane full circle and making whipping sounds with his mouth. Several boys suffered shock after those canings. The father of a prospective student questioned BVPS about the sexual abuse that was said to be taking place in the Mayapur Gurukula at the time. BVPS said something to the effect of, ‘sex, whether it is between you and your wife, not intended for procreating, or between a teacher and a boy is illicit: It is all sex.’”

After the CPO findings, the GBC did little to discipline BVPS, and he is to this day still deeply involved not only with the Mayapur Boys Gurukula, but the Girls Gurukula as well. Rumors were rife about his affair with the 23 year old Girls School principal, and his sleeping alone in the girl’s school building. Still nothing was done. Why? He has many friends in Mayapur and among the GBC, and he knows their dark secrets. If they go after him, he will reveal the dirt on them. He was banned from the Bhaktivedanta Manor, but continues initiating disciples, many from the Mayapur Gurukulas. The enigma is that while he has a horrid history with child abuse and scandals, he is a brilliant lecturer and scholar. From a 2017 article by Saunaka Rsi das in 2017, addressed to Bhakti Vikas Swami’s defense of Bhaktividyapurna Swami (BVPM): “You go to great lengths to support BVPM, but it appears that you are not very well acquainted with his case, nor the extent and gravity of his actions. This is something I have come across often in ISKCON, when certain devotees arbitrarily choose to endorse a known child abuser, without even having taken the trouble to read the case file of the offender they support. Which raises the question, ‘If you don’t know the full extent of this person’s actions, what exactly are you endorsing and supporting?’ You gave an entire class wherein you try to excuse BVPM’s behaviour. You highlight BVPM’s accomplishments of as if whatever degree of success he may have achieved somehow negates the children he has abused... It doesn’t. You claim the only incidents with BVPM are 25-30 years ago, and that when you once visited the Mayapur Gurukula, BVPM did not occupy any position of relevance in the school, hence you argue that it is not fair to place the entire responsibility of the problems in the school on his shoulders. If you read his entire case file, you will find that BVPM has been personally investigated and sanctioned by the authorities several times. The first major investigation took place in 1990, the second in 1998, the third in 2007 and the last one in 2015. Each one of these investigations brought to light the negligent, inappropriate and abusive behaviour towards the children placed under his care. The incidents you describe in your lecture date back to the late ‘80s and early ‘90s, and were [...] investigated in 1990 and 1998 took place while BVPM was the principal of the Mayapur Gurukula, hence he was deemed accountable. At any rate, all teachers have a duty of care towards their students. It is reported: several children approached BVPM to plead for his help and protection because they were being sexually abused, and he failed to protect them. He also personally beat children in a brutal fashion; some of his victims were bleeding after receiving his lashes and remained in bed for an entire week. The 2007 investigation further reports the following incidents: (1) BVPM was present while young girls were bathing naked. (2) A 16 year old girl was rubbing oil all over BVPM’s back because apparently he was experiencing some back pain. (3) BVPM was rubbing chickpea paste on the body of young girls who were semi-naked, only wearing their underwear. (4) BVPM spent several days and nights in the room of the 23 year old female principal of the girls school alone with her. This relationship is reported to have spanned over the course of 8-10 years. (5) This lady was sitting on BVPM's lap in front of other students. (6) BVPM and this lady were seen indecently dressed and acting in a frivolous manner in her room.- (From 2007 investigation)

"The 2015 investigation confirms many of this, leading to the conclusion BVPM's abusive/inappropriate behaviour was over many years. He quoted BGita 9.30, 'api cet su-duracaro,' and said: 'Do we want to edit this out of the Bhagavad-gita... is there some crime that is unforgivable?' You also speak about the story of Lord Brahma when he attempted to assault his own daughter, you explain how the other demigods did not banish Lord Brahma for his actions. [...] We have 4 separate CPO investigations, and each of them lists several instances of BVPM's inappropriate behaviour, highlighting a pattern of abuse that spanned over three decades. It is a stretch at best to try and use BGita 9.30 to excuse or justify BVPM's conduct. We have a clear case where this person has abused dozens of children and breached the regulations of his sannyas ashram on many occasions. How do you make this fit into the category of 'an accident'? [...] I do not regard BVPM's transgressions as unforgivable; I do however believe that it is reckless to allow a man with his history to have any involvement whatsoever in the education of children. If you allow a person that has a track record of abusing power to continue occupying the same position you are not being forgiving, you are enabling abuse. You are doing a disservice to child protection, to BVPM, and to society at large. [...] One thing we can learn from the history of corporal punishment in ISKCON is that teachers cannot be trusted to administer it in a measured and controlled fashion. Hence, even if you are of the opinion that some degree of corporal punishment can be helpful at times, you need to take into account that we do not have self-controlled brahmanas as teachers. Rather, over the years we seem to have attracted an exceptional number of immature and wrathful individuals, who more often than not abused their position of authority to lash out and release their own anger and frustrations on defenceless children."

Dhira Govinda das, former director of the CPO and author of Festival of Red Flags, described BVPM's time in the Mayapur gurukula as "a pandemic of child maltreatment, the most severe in ISKCON history's."

DHANURDHARA SWAMI

Dhanurdhara Swami (DDS) was the ISKCON Vrindaban gurukula headmaster for many years and after investigation by the ISKCON Child Protection Office, he was found in 2000 to have engaged in severe physical abuse of many gurukula children. The GBC recommended some paltry measures of atonement and the resultant uproar from former students and devotees caused DDS to announce that if his presence in ISKCON was a disturbance, he would leave ISKCON, and he did. He had been made an ISKCON guru in 1990 and around 2009 he was officially suspended. DDS continues to operate as an independent guru outside of ISKCON and circulates on the fringes of the movement, such as at the

New York Bharati Center, Kirtan Melas, and in Braj Dham. He has a retreat in upstate New York and divides his time between India and traveling. His example is one of unaccountability and how a former ISKCON guru may "successfully" go on with the guru business outside ISKCON, a program increasingly being followed by other ISKCON gurus (Mahanidhi, Prabhavishnu, etc). He hosts annual Braj mandala pilgrimage tours, having friends amongst other ISKCON gurus, such as Satsvarupa, Indradyumna, Radhanath, etc. The gurukuli community is quite disturbed that he was never fairly punished for his child physical abuse. Now he is negotiating with the GBC on his official return to ISKCON... as one of their diksha gurus.

ROMAPADA SWAMI & SALE OF THE BROOKLYN ISKCON TEMPLE 2017

An ISKCON guru, Romapada Swami (RPS) presides over the ever-stagnant New York ISKCON temple. He made a personal loan with interest to the temple, although a sannyasi. Dasarath das, who has developed two Arizona temples, found him to be difficult and duplicitous, setting up a website complaining about RPS's underhanded dealings in taking over the Phoenix temple, pushing him out, and causing a split in the congregation by banning 25 local devotees. In recent years there has been an odd struggle between the GBC and the New York temple board of directors which includes RPS. The board has voted several times, unanimously, to sell the temple against the expressed will of the GBC body and much of the local congregation (hardly anyone resides in the temple itself). RPS seemed to be working both sides of the situation. By mid-2017, the saga of the sale of the Brooklyn New York ISKCON temple had become bizarre. For years the management, basically RPS, Ramabhadradas, and his wife, had been trying to get approval from the GBC and the New York State Attorney General, who regulates non-profit organizations, to sell the temple. Property values have gone from under a million in 1983 to $60,000,000 with a longtime standing signed offer which was accepted by the temple board. However, somehow the property ended up in the name of Bharati Center, which is not ISKCON, nor beholden to GBC dictates.

In June 2017 visiting GBCs including Bhakticharu Swami were ousted from the temple for trespassing with Ramabhadradas turning out the lights on them and the police waiting outside should they not vacate the premises. The ISKCON sign was removed and guards restrict who comes in. Symbolically, the GBC "removed" Ramabhadradas as the temple president which did nothing since the GBC has no say on the temple board of the Bharati Center. Amazingly Ramabhadradas is the fall guy while the temple board's chairman RPS, who privately supports the sale, is not in the spotlight. The night the temple turned out the lights on devotees opposed to the sale, RPS was in attendance, silent, trying to look innocent. Ostensibly Bharati Center intends to build a large temple complex in Queens where a large Hindu congregation awaits with their pocketbooks. However, the NY State Attorney General ruled against the sale and Bharati Center continues operating as an independent Hare Krishna center. Incredibly, after the 2004 loss of the Freeport, Long Island ISKCON temple to Prabhupadanugas, the GBC lost its Brooklyn temple too. This is certainly incompetence if not also corruption.

MAHAVISHNU SWAMI

In 1984 Mahavishnu took sannyas and he accepted his first disciple as an ISKCON approved initiating guru in 1990. He has posted videos and photos of himself on the internet which show him to be embarrassingly eccentric. This is the caliber of the spiritual guides that ISKCON is offering the world. In one video he sings a nonsense song and pulls out his false teeth midway. The photo speaks for itself: this is a bona fide spiritual master to deliver one back home? He does public sankirtan decorated with plastic flowers on his hat and glasses, etc as though dressed up for the circus. Strange.

UMAPATI (SWAMI)

Umapati das joined ISKCON with Kirtanananda and Hayagriva in 1966. He was an avid supporter of Kirtanananda in New Vrindaban until 1993, throughout the radical changes and scandals that he could not have been ignorant about. Navadvipacandra das (2006): "Not only was Umapati Swami wearing the Franciscan robes, but he rewrote all the songs and prayers into English poetry. He didn't just participate, he led the way. The entire Vaishnava song book and Maha Mantra was rewritten into English poetry, primarily by Umapati and Hayagriva." He was also involved in the Sulochan murder and its cover-up, pampering the killer Tirthadas in prison with spending money, weekly visits, awarding of sannyas, and even authorization to be an initiating guru to prison inmates. "It was Kirtanananda who awarded sannyasa to Tirtha, although I performed the ceremony." He officially returned to ISKCON in 1994 and was approved by the GBC as an ISKCON initiating guru in 1995, already working under Tamal in China. He took a course in Mandarin and translated the Gita, resulting in fierce protests from Chinese devotees who said the philosophy had been changed and was full of language errors. Tamal later engaged him as the chief editor of ISKCON's website CHAKRA in covering-up and denying Srila Prabhupada's poisoning evidence. Tamal, Dec. 16, 1997: "How is it possible for our main writer and editor, Umapati Maharaja, to do his work if he cannot access the VNN website? Most articles are Umapati's." He was also a contributing author to the GBC's 1997 official "anti-ritvik" paper "Disciple Of My Disciple."

As an ISKCON guru initiating in China, complaints arose in 1998 from several Chinese men about Umapati's illicit homosexual activities with disciples and his repression of those who protested. Persistent rumors that he was having illicit relations with his male disciples were suppressed by Tamal and Giridhari Swamis for many years, but were later confirmed. Finally, in 2007, after a decade of shenanigans in China, Umapati and the GBC released a joint statement: "Umapati Swami improperly interacted with several male devotees past the boundaries of what is proper... Effective immediately he will reside for a time in a holy place, likely Mayapur. He will behave in a low-key manner as tirtha sannyasi. He will not conduct major ceremonies in the temple such as his Vyasa Puja. He will remain out of his preaching field for 2 years, from Oct. 2007... [he] agrees not to initiate new disciples and will encourage others to initiate in his preaching field. Those disciples who have lost their faith in him and wish to take shelter elsewhere in ISKCON have his full blessings to do so. Those disciples who wish continue taking guidance from Umapati Swami may do so. After 2 years of probation, he will spend more time traveling outside of his preaching field than his previous schedule." From the accompanying statement by Umapati Swami: "I would like to offer my apologies to all those whom I have disappointed by my inappopriate behavior some years back, and I would especially like to apologize to those who were victimized by this behavior. I was living in an isolated situation where Krishna Consciousness is illegal, and I would often go days without association. I tried to encourage some of the men with displays of physical affection, but Maya entered, and things slipped past the boundaries of what is proper. I take full responsibility for my actions I alone am to blame... It is time for me to recharge my spiritual batteries. I plan to work on my own purification by living for some time in a tirtha and associating with my Godbrothers. Umapati Swami"

However Umapati "Swami" again engaged in homosexual activity with disciples in China, and the GBC in Feb. 2010 decided he was now only a "half-guru." "Umapati prabhu had misused his status as a guru to behave inappropriately with several male disciples over a number of years and that this behavior was of a sexual nature. It is our duty to inform you that Umapati prabhu is no longer authorized by the ISKCON society to serve as an initiating spiritual master and sannyasi within ISKCON [...] Disciples and followers who wish to do so may continue to consider Umapati prabhu their spiritual master and continue to take guidance from him." The GBC cancelled his status as an ISKCON sannyasi and initiating guru (barred taking any new disciples, the existing ones he can keep). Due to Umapati's refusal to agree to these restrictions, on Feb. 28, 2011 the GBC suspended him completely as sannyasi and guru. "In recent years, accusations were presented to the GBC that Umapati Swami had violated the required standards of behavior for a Krishna Conscious leader. The GBC carefully considered these allegations and determined that Umapati Swami, now Umapati das, shall no longer be accepted as a sannyasi, nor may he function as an initiating guru within our society. ISKCON will not recognize initiations given by Umapati das after February 2010. Devotees initiated prior to this date are accepted as duly initiated members of ISKCON." Strangely, the GBC announced that only those initiations by Umapati prior to Feb. 2010 would be considered valid, being ostensibly the time of his fall from proper sannyasi standards, although it is accepted he was sleeping with brahmacharies in China for maybe 15 years, since the late 1990's. Not only does the GBC reassure naïve devotees that their initiation, by a guru who later becomes degraded, is still valid because of "ISKCON law," but here the GBC very arbitrarily picks a date before or after which initiations are or are not valid, simply by dint of their "spiritual authority." Such is the condition of ISKCON as an institutionalized religion with no shastric basis. Umapati was defiant: "Umapati Das does not accept the findings of the GBC and has informed us that he plans to continue in the role of a sannyasi and initiating guru against the direction of the GBC. Umapati das acknowledges that by doing so he will not be accepted by the GBC as a member, sannyasi or initiating guru of ISKCON [...] Umapati das may visit ISKCON centers only with the prior permission of both the Temple President and GBC representative. He will not be allowed to reside in ISKCON temples, nor to teach or lead kirtan at an ISKCON temple, or an ISKCON-sponsored event.” (GBC, 2011) Noted is the GBC’s 15 year response delay in Umapati’s case and their hypocrisy by pretending their guru-initiation system is working and is not a pathetic circus of rascals.

VIPRAMUKHYA (SWAMI)

Vipramukhya Swami was a sannyasi for 21 years and an ISKCON self-appointed, vote-approved initiating guru in ISKCON for 16 years. He was stationed in the Vancouver and London temples and had about 40 disciples. Suddenly, in 2002 he disappeared, cancelled his email account, and left a letter of apology. “I also confess that seeking some kind of recourse and companionship, I was not always able to strictly follow the regulative principles [...] as my behavior and activities are no longer appropriate for someone in the renounced order of life or spiritual leader, I will no longer be able to maintain those posts of honor. As for me, I still believe in Srila Prabhupada and Krishna... I will be living a life of seclusion from ISKCON now and will sort out my personal emotional and spiritual needs independently.” Just prior to his departure, Vipramukhya had famously auctioned off his socks amongst disciples. He is now married, working as a Texas corrections officer.

BHAKTI ABHAY CARAN (SWAMI) REMOVED 2000

In 2000 the GBC resolved to indefinitely remove Bhakti Abhay Caran (Swami), formerly Sri Padambuja das, as an ISKCON sannyasi and initiating guru. A program of so-called rectification was given by a GBC committee, and the GBC said: “Sri Padambuja das is not competent to deliver instruction or receive gifts of veneration at this time.” We wonder why the GBC was not able to ascertain these misqualifications in one whom they carefully vetted and approved by vote as a so-called bona fide initiating guru capable of delivering his disciples from the very pitfalls of maya into which he himself has fallen. And so goes the ISKCON guru charade, one is elected, then soon after he is removed. It is not known what happened, but it may have been due to his involvement with Narayan Maharaja wherein most of the Costa Rican devotees defected from ISKCON to join the Gaudiya Math.

BADRINARAYAN SWAMI

Amala Bhakta Swami forwarded an email in 2017 about the poisoning evidence to Badrinarayan Maharaja, a GBC member, just for his information. The response was standard Badri arrogance, and he included some 20 year old letters from ISKCON deniers like Ravindra Svarupa, Abhirama, Srutirupa, and Bhakticharu which denounced the poisoning theory, with a link to the online ISKCON book of lies and fraud, Not That I Am Poisoned (2000). He completely ignored the new scientific evidence which proved homicidal cadmium poisoning. “Please relay the attached to the foolish person who contacted you. This poison issue raises its ugly and deeply offensive head periodically. Any reasonable person, after reading the attached, rejects the claim. Please do not give this person my e-address. I have enough fools in my life already.”

Actually in 2004 Badrinarayan carefully listened to Srila Prabhupada’s 1977 recorded statements about being poisoned and the poisoning discussions with his caretakers, spending hours with former GBC Naveen Krishna das, and at that time he was impressed and deeply confirmative of the truth of Srila Prabhupada’s own words about being poisoned and that the poisoning whispers were very credible. But, being a typical company man, he has since reverted to full denial mode. What happened? As all GBCs must do, he adopted the institutional official narrative: “OK, fools and mushrooms, back into your dark caves. Stop asking questions and just accept what you are being told! How could you doubt us, Srila Prabhupada’s ultimate authority?”

Badrinarayan Swami is the quintessential company man whose MO is politics over truth. He has deceitfully avoided the cadmium evidence and its significance. He will not appear even slightly open to the truth of the matter lest he risk disapproval from the GBC body, which is controlled to this day by those who got their power and positions from those who poisoned Srila Prabhupada or gurujaacked the movement. Due to the “deep state” in ISKCON, all GBCs are in denial of institutional corruption. If the ISKCON leadership is so close-minded, it does not bode well for their future. In a final try to rescue any sincere or innocent members still in the leadership, amnesty should be offered for cooperation with ongoing investigations.

GIRIRAJA SWAMI (GS)

GS, a retired GBC “Emeritus,” is now based outside ISKCON but making disciples in ISKCON. This is the new “in-out” model for ISKCON guru franchises, common among ISKCON gurus. It another way of exploiting Srila Prabhupada’s assets and ISKCON. Based on a 2011 article by Rochan das:

Rising from the ashes of his tainted past, GS is gradually recreating his ISKCON image. We note GS's deep roles in scandalous periods of ISKCON history, like the Zonal Acarya system and the 1990's Gopi Bhava Club. Like all ISKCON gurus, GS's website paints a rosy perspective of his past. He omits the unflattering and traumatic periods of his history. Very significantly, early on GS took shelter of his good friend Tamal. GS was a Prince of the Zonal King, Tamal. Similarly, Radhanatha Swami, at an early impressionable stage took Kirtanananda as his siksha guru, whom he naturally emulated. Each Zonal King and their Princes can be seen as a branch on the ISKCON tree. To the degree they have deviated from the Founder-Acarya's mission, they are now apa-sampradayas. GS is fixed in the dying Tamal branch. In early ISKCON history, GS was president of Juhu Beach ISKCON Bombay temple. GS was protected by Tamal and received sannyas from him. Tamal was an extremely dominant and aggressive leader whereas GS was a dagger in a soft sheath. GS had a lavish lifestyle with a competent support staff. GS assisted Tamal's being enshrined as the Zonal Acarya of Juhu Bombay. With politicking they managed to minimize the power of the GBC, Gopal Krishna Goswami, who ran the BBT for India out of the Bombay temple. Throughout the 10 years of the "dark ages" of Zonal Acarya-ism, GS remained Tamal 's chum under all circumstances. GS became an ISKCON guru before the 1986-7 reforms. GS was unable to maintain his Indian residency, so the GBC posted GS to South Africa, East Africa and Mauritius after Bhagavan fell away. As a Tamal protégée, he created complete havoc by applying Machiavellian style Zonal Acarya techniques. Whimsically, he totally transformed the programs in South Africa and drove out all the Prabhupada householder disciples. He re-initiated many Bhagavan disciples. Raghubhir das became GS's close ally and he took sannyas from GS as Bhakti Chaitanya Swami, who remains the today's GBC for South Africa. Even in Bombay, GS showed an infatuation for select subservient women. But in the South African zone, this went to higher levels. His close association with a bevy of female disciples centered upon a practice that he had introduced: he would only grant women second initiation if they took a lifelong vow of celibacy.

This was another novel, concocted practice not given by Srila Prabhupada. One of his women sent a damning report of this scandal to the GBC, how GS was spending many hours with individual women behind locked doors. GS was forced to leave his zone. The surviving “celibate” is Kuntidevi. The other personal associate was Arca-Vigraha dasi, a wealthy artist who recently passed away, who built a nice ashrama near the Vrindavan Krsna-Balarama Mandir, with GS's opulent suite on the top floor, and many female disciples including Kuntidevi and Arca-Vigraha resided on the bottom floor. They served and worshipped their guru, GS. The GBC knew all this, and from the late 1980's until 1995, GS lived in his women's ashram also intimately associated with Narayana Swami. GS was a primary supporter and promoter of rasika-guru Narayan Maharaja (see Ch. 71, 112). GS adopted Narayana M's philosophical outlook, and this became the Gopi Bhava Club. GS shared his pseudo-enlightenment with Tamal, Bhurijana, Dhanurdhara Satsvarupa, Sivarama and other sannyasis. They were members of Narayana Maharaja's intimate raganuga-bhakti cult. This deviation existed in full view of all the GBC. Finally, due to devotee complaints, the GBC had to act, but the details of the closed GBC meetings are unknown to this very day. The GBC put an end to the Gopi Bhava Club, but for its founder GS, who promoted Narayana Maharaja as the new Acharya of ISKCON, the GBC decree was too much to swallow. "Those convinced against their will are of the same opinion still." In Sept. 1994, the duo of GS and Tamal were the guests of honor at Narayana M's Gaudiya Math to celebrate Srila Prabhupada's taking sannyas in 1959. Disregarding the GBC mandate, they both presented dissertations to the assembly. Their transcribed lectures were sent to all GBCs, who finally saw they had a much more serious problem than first understood. The GBC had an emergency meeting Nov. 5, 1994, where GS vehemently defended his "rights" to keep a rasika guru, adamantly defying the GBC. At Mayapur 1995 the GBC's final order stated that GS and Tamal were banned from living in or visiting Vrindavan for 2 years. GS had to renounce his "family" ashrama and his siksha guru Narayana M.

No women confessed to sexual relationships with GS but: "BGita Ch. 16:1-3 applies to many ISKCON sannyasis who openly associate with women and are corrected by the GBC. "There are so many rules and regulations to be followed in the renounced order of life. Most important of all, a sannyasi is strictly forbidden to have any intimate relationship with a woman. He is even forbidden to talk with a woman in a secluded place. Lord Chaitanya was an ideal sannyasi, and when He was at Puri His feminine devotees could not even come near... They were advised to bow down from a distant place. This is not a sign of hatred for women as a class, but it is a stricture imposed on the sannyasi not to have close connections with women. One has to follow the rules and regulations of a particular status of life in order to purify his existence. For a sannyasi, intimate relations with women and possession of wealth for sense gratification are strictly forbidden."

GS left Vrindavan a very bitter man. The GBC also banned him from initiating disciples for a number of years. He lived in Laguna Beach and kept in contact with the women, and the GBC directive didn't specify that GS had to renounce his disciples. Then he won $29 million in a court case from a trust in which he was a sole trustee. He refused to share with the family of the deceased, although that was the trust's intention. When Tamal passed away in 2002, he inherited millions more. He also inherited his parents' wealth and mansion in Santa Barbara, where he now resides. Recently Arca-Vigraha dasi also left everything she owned to GS. Kuntidevi dasi and some of the celibate Mauritius women disciples moved into GS's mansion. GS placed Tamal's picture on his altar, and he hosted a Tamal Vyasapuja ceremony. Visitors come by invitation only. His Wealthy Swami Country Club includes Radhanatha, Indradyumna, BB Govinda, and others, who may regularly stay for months in GS's luxury 5-star apartment. A few years back, GS addressed his questionable relationship with Kuntidevi dasi by having her marry one of his male disciples much younger than her. This marriage façade was short-lived. Kunti still lives with her very own semi-retired Swami, who sports the GBC-bestowed title of "Emeritus." The other Indian women disciples found husbands or just peace of mind. After all this, GS was put on a GBC committee, along with Malati dasi, to oversee his old ex-Zonal Acarya friend, the fallen sannyas Emeritus Satsvarupa. How bizarre is that? Today GS is back in the guru business, harvesting disciples in Tamal's Texas temples. He authored "Watering the Seed" and posts articles online. In GS's case, it's obviously not for the money. It's for other things. See Ch. 153-155.

We ask, what is he doing with his estimated $50 million?

BALABHADRA DAS/BHAKTI BALLABH PURI GOSWAMI (BBPG)

Bhakti Ballabh Puri Goswami (Balabhadra das), used a perverted "test" to decide if the Scotland temple ladies should remain single or if they had to get married. They privately showed him their breasts. If too big, they had to get married; if small, they could remain single. From the GBC report Sept. 17, 2007: "The GBC, after much deliberation and consultation, has no alternative but to sadly report the deviations of and the abuses to devotees by Balabhadra das (BBPG). Notwithstanding his fall-downs the GBC offered BBPG shelter and guidance provided he work under their guidance, absorbing himself in sadhana. Unfortunately he has recently defied this agreement, the guidance of his friends, the direction of GBC members and the authority of this Society, thus in effect leaving ISKCON and acting independently. [...] he was always eccentric and even in the early 80's showed a penchant for cars, cameras and handling money. [...] The death of his wife [1994] seemed to be a turning point. His sadhana deteriorated, his weight increased and he became increasingly involved in his female disciples' lives, despite being a sannyasi. There was a "special" relationship with one female disciple, with whom he repeatedly fell down. [...] Over three years ago BBPG's this sexual abuse came to light and in our investigation, a Pandora's box of equally serious deviations were revealed, as well as his degradation into a disoriented person who could not fit for a position of authority or spiritual leadership in this movement. This view is shared by all the senior Scotland devotees [...] He was sent to a professional psychiatrist for 6 weeks, but he blocked us from obtaining the report. [...] Balabhadra was physically abusive to disciples, sometimes violently hitting and kicking them, even drawing blood. [To help them] he performed many explicit sexual and voyeuristic acts by exploiting the obedience of his female disciples. Considering himself proprietor of the Society's funds he wasted money on the frivolous purchase of expensive cars, motor-homes, cameras and dozens of guitars. His dealings with disciples were contradictory, duplicitous, manipulative, intimidating and abusive. [...] He admitted he thought of himself as a personal associate of Lord Chaitanya and/or Krishna. His conception of guru was as the proprietor of his disciples, ISKCON Scotland's assets [...] Until this year, only the temple president knew of these things, others thought he had semi-retired for health reasons. [...] He has] no means of livelihood [...] supporting him is not an ISKCON approved project or person."

From the GBC report and other sources, we understand: (1) the GBC knew Balabhadra was "eccentric" and highly materialistic, and yet still voted him in as a good-as-God guru for ISKCON, (2) the GBC knew he had deteriorated after 1994 when his wife died, (3) the GBC tried to "manage" and "investigate" this crisis for 3 years while only the Scotland temple president knew the situation, (4) the GBC thus covered-up the whole mess for 25 years, not caring that many devotees were worshipping a fallen guru, (5) the GBC was quiet because Shivarama and BB Govinda Swamis were getting large "donations" from Balabhadra das. Corruption.

Balabhadra bought himself a $250,000 motor home; he had a collection of over 50 expensive electric guitars, worth $20,000. His disciples collected on the streets with their sweat and blood working 365 days a year: supposedly surrendering it all to Krishna. Shivarama Swami and BB Govinda Maharaja knew of his behavior yet did nothing. Maybe a publicized scandal is not always the best way to deal with these situations, but cover up is certainly not a better alternative. Why did they allow him to remain as a Sannyasi? Initially the only action taken was to remove him as the GBC/Temple president in Scotland and relocate him to South Africa, to start over, as if nothing happened, with no apparent consequences to his actions. Finally he was caught in self-erotic sex and terminated as an ISKCON guru, although the GBC does not mention this. Amazingly, the "GBC members" admitted that BBPG "was always eccentric" and materialistic, but still later voted to approve him as a false diksha guru. Even after the GBC "investigated" his sexual affairs with a female disciple and other severe offences/falldowns, they were "deliberating," "consulting," "negotiating with him" for 3 long years, and meanwhile they hid from his disciples how their "guru" had gone haywire. The case of BBPG shows, once again, a GBC who reflexively covers up their gurus' falldowns, quietly trying to negotiate and bury the past, hoping to recreate the illusions for the future. All GBC approved gurus are bogus. Their present guru system is a scam, a guruocracy, a guru franchise business. In 2008 the GBC suspended his sannyasi and guru status, and his ISKCON membership. There is no doubt that top GBC men knew of this problem for decades, but hushed it all up until the situation could no longer be avoided or ignored. Then they suddenly “investigated” for 3 years. The GBC has dozens of crises at any point in time. This is due to an insane, ashastric policy of approving fallen souls as false diksha gurus.

GOPAL KRISHNA MAHARAJA (GKM)

One of the prominent ISKCON gurus is Gopal Krishna Swami, an Indian bodied devotee who joined in the late sixties and now controls half of ISKCON India, namely Bombay and Delhi, two major temple complexes. In some ways GKM leads a humbler profile than many ISKCON gurus, yet we see he sat on a Vyasasana larger than Srila Prabhupada’s seat recently. He has been a staunch defender of ISKCON guru policies, opposed any investigation into Srila Prabhupada’s poisoning, and engages ISKCON in various mundane social welfare programs, including a “COVID Care Center” with 200 beds in May 2021. He also manages “gurukulas” which have government curriculums, even though Srila Prabhupada told him specifically not to. GKM: “I was thinking, Srila Prabhupada, we should get this gurukula accepted by the government also...” SP: “No, no, no. Never do that.” (SPConv Oct. 25, 1972) He also was behind the seizure of Jitarati’s Bhagwatams.

PARAM GATI SWAMI

“ISKCON GBC wishes to announce that Param Gati Swami has resigned from the GBC and will no longer accept [new] disciples for initiation. The GBC has determined, following a careful investigation, that Param Gati Swami recently made sexual advances to a male devotee. The man did not welcome these advances and matters advanced no further. In pursuance of GBC direction, Param Gati Swami will be staying in Mayapur for the next year for a directed course of counseling and spiritual restoration under GBC supervision. Those who are his initiated disciples should approach their local temple or regional authorities, as well as other trusted senior devotees, for personal guidance and direction.” (GBC release, 2009) In 2010 the GBC agreed with Param Gati that he would relinquish his sannyasi status and be known as Param Gati das, to be reviewed after 3 years. Also he was to undergo “counseling and restoration” and eventually he was allowed to initiate new disciples again. His sannyas status was also re-approved because in 2017 Param Gati das Maharaja was being worshipped as a guru and a sannyasi in Brazil, with his annual Vyasa puja celebration. So, the GBC suspended him temporarily as guru but not as a sannyasi, then suspended him as a sannyasi a year later, then re-instated both his guruhood and sannyas status a few more years later. Did you follow that?

WHAT HAPPENS TO THE DISCIPLES WHEN A GURU FALLS DOWN?

The GBC reassures its members that ISKCON law guarantees their being situated properly in spiritual life, even if their guru was fallen before or after their being initiated, as seen in the above histories of fallen ISKCON gurus. ISKCON bureaucratic rules violate the clear truths of shastra and Srila Prabhupada’s teachings. And ISKCON law does not philosophically explain when a guru falls down, how do the disciples have a bona fide spiritual master? If they should take shelter of Srila Prabhupada when they get in difficulty because of unauthorised gurus, why not just go to Srila Prabhupada from the start? The GBC says, “By virtue of strong association with good devotees and a deep relationship with our Founder-acharya Srila Prabhupada, they will be able to overcome any impediment and continue to advance on the path of devotional service.” But then why get initiated by any GBC guru at all? It must be Srila Prabhupada who is the bona fide Guru with whom one can have “a deep relationship” as a direct disciple and thereby “advance on the path of devotional service,” just as Srila Prabhupada himself teaches: “First we must find a bona fide guru, establish our relationship with him, and act accordingly. Then our life will be successful, for the guru can enlighten the sincere disciple who is in darkness.” (SSR Ch. 2) After 50%+ guru falldowns, why risk discovering (or not discovering) that your ISKCON guru is bogus? Amazingly, however, the ISKCON game of guru roulette continues... The GBC, whose mandate supposedly allows it to manufacture a system of authorizing gurus in ISKCON, and when one of their approved gurus bites the dust, cannot say or do more than give the advice: "...whether you continue to take shelter, guidance, and siksha" from Mr. Fallen "is entirely up to you"...? In other words, the ISKCON guru system has no guarantees or remedies against gurus being exposed as bogus. If it happens to you, it's your tough luck- you chose the wrong one. So why choose any of them? Better to take no risk and stick with Srila Prabhupada. ISKCON advises that he is the pre-eminent siksha guru for everyone, and that just leaves the technicality of an official diksha ceremony to complete the formula. (see Parts 18-19)

LIST OF ACTIVE INITIATING GURUS IN ISKCON MID-2016

Those gurus marked in bold are known have faced heavy widespread rumors or censures re: illicit sex, mismanagement, eccentricities, inappropriate behavior, insanity, suspensions, censures, etc.

(1) Atmanivedana Swami (2) Bhaktivaibhava Swami (3) Bhakti Bhrnga Govinda Swami (4) Bhakti Chaitanya Swami (5) Bhakticharu Swami (6) Bhakti Dhira Damodara Swami (7) Bhakti Gaurava Narayan Swami (8) Bhakti Gauravani Goswami (9) Bhakti Raghava Swami (10) Bhakti Sundar Goswami (11) Bhakti Vikasa Swami (12) Bhakti Visramba Madhava Swami (13) Bhakti Vrajendranandana Swami (14) Bhaktivyasa Tirtha Swami (15) Bhakti VV Narasimha Swami (16) Bhakti-bhusana Swami (17) Bhaktimarga Swami (18) Bhurijana dasa (19) Bir Krishna dasa Goswami (20) Chaitanya Candra dasa (21) Chaitanya Candra Caran das (22) Candra Mukha Swami (23) Candramauli Swami (24) Caru dasa (25) Danavir Goswami (26) Devamrita Swami (27) Dhanvantari Swami (28) Druktakarma dasa (29) Giridhari Swami (30) Giriraja Swami (31) Gopal Krishna Goswami (32) Guru Prasad Swami (33) Hanumatpresaka Swami (34) Hridayananda das Swami (35) Indradyumna Swami (36) Janananda dasa Goswami (37) Jayadvaita Swami (38) Jayapataka Swami (39) Jivananda Das (40) Kadamba Kanana Swami (41) Kalakantha Das (42) Kavicandra Swami (43) Kesava Bharati das Swami (44) Kratu dasa (45) Vedavyasapriya Swami (46) Virabahu dasa (47) Kripamoya Das (48) Krishna Ksetra dasa (49) Krishnadas Swami (50) Lokanatha Swami (51) Madhu Sevita dasa (52) Mahatma Das (53) Mahavishnu Swami (54) Manonatha Das (55) Matsya Avatara dasa (56) Navayogendra Swami (57) Niranjana Swami (58) Partha Sarathi das Goswami (59) Prahladananda Swami (60) Purushatraya Swami (61) Radha Govinda Swami (62) Radhanath Swami (63) Ravindra Svarupa dasa (64) Romapada Swami (65) Rtadhvaja Swami (66) Sacinandana Swami (67) Sankarsana dasa (68) Satyadeva dasa (69) Shivarama Swami (70) Smita Krishna Swami (71) Subhaga Swami (72) Suresvara Das (73) Trivikrama Swami (74) Vaisesika Das (75) Varsana Swami (76) Badrinarayan Swami (77) And others for which we have no information here.

COMMENT: Who can guarantee the status of those in official good standing? Buyer beware!

PARTIAL LIST OF ISKCON GURUS: REMOVED, SUSPENDED, LEFT, OR "FELL DOWN"

(1) Agrani Swami (married a disciple) (2) Ananda Svarupa Swami (sannyas fell down) (3) Atreya Rsi Das (left ISKCON) (4) Bhagavan das Goswami (married a disciple) (5) Bhakti Balabh Puri Goswami/Balabhadra das (sex problems) (6) Bhakti Abhaya Carana Swami (Padambhuja) (7) Bhaktiprabhava Maharaj (8) Bhaktivaidurya Madhava (Rohini Kumar- homosex) (9) Bhavananda Goswami (suspended; homosex) (10) Hansadutta Swami (sex, drugs) (11) Harikesa Swami (married, retired) (12) Isvara Swami (Brazil, voluntarily abdicated; told his disciples to accept Srila Prabhupada) (13) Jagad Guru Swami (GaudiyaMath) (14) Jagadish Goswami (married a disciple) (15) Jayatirtha das (Sex, drugs, beheaded) (16) Kirtanananda Swami (Ch. 134, pedophile) (17) Kshiti Mohan (Mexico) (18) Mahabhogavata Swami (El Salvador) (19) Maharam das (20) Narahari Swami (took ISKCON's yacht) (21) Panchadravida Swami (Gaudiya Math) (22) Param Gati Swami (sex, reinstated) (23) Paramananda das (left in disgust) (24) Prthu das (25) Radha Krishna Swami (Mexico, married) (26) Ramesvara Swami (suspended, married) (27) Ram Govinda das (Mexico) (28) Rohini Suta das (married a disciple) (29) Rukmini Pati das (Brazil) (30) Rupanuga das (declared himself unqualified) (31) Satsvarupa das Goswami (adultery, partial insanity) (32) Somaka Swami (left) (33) Suhotra Swami (sex, suspended) (34) Umapati Swami (suspended, homosex) (35) Vaninatha Vasu das (36) Vegavan das (37) Vipramukhya Swami (disappeared, married) (38) Prabha Vishnu Swami (suspended); prostitutes, now independent guru) (39) Mahanidhi Swami (suspended, affair, private babaji-guru) (40) Dhanurdhara Swami (left, suspended, trying to return) (41) Ganapati Swami (took his name off the list) (42) Gunagrahi Swami (pornography, resigned, half-reinstated) (43) Sacinandana Swami (still an approved ISKCON guru but sahajiya, secretary scandal) (44) Giriraja Swami (retired, woman secretary) (45) Bhakti Vijnana Goswami (resigned, mental breakdown) (46) Nitai Chand Swami (child sex & abuse) (47) Rasananda Swami (48) Bhakti Visramba Madhava Swami (insanity) (49) Bhaktimarga Swami (homosex, reinstated) (50) Kesava Bharati das Swami (sannyas problems, reinstated) (50) Lokanatha Swami (suspended 2 years) And many others; it seems ISKCON keeps no records.

In 2018 the GBC website began to show a new category of initiating ISKCON gurus called “Not accepting [more] disciples,” with 9 names, and the GBC corresponding secretary Ananda Tirtha das explained: “This means they have disciples, or were cleared to initiate disciples, and can act as guru to those they initiated, but are not initiating new disciples, either by their own choice, or direction of the GBC.” The list included: (1) Bhaktividya Purna Swami (child abuse), (2) Bhakti Visrambha Madhava Swami (insanity), (3) Bhanu Swami (??), (4) Ganapati Swami (quit), (5) Gunagrahgi Swami (pornography), (6) Jayadwaita Swami (only wanted one disciple), (7) Mukunda Goswami, (8) Satsvarupa (adultery), (9) Vegavan (unknown reason).

BHAKTI VISRAMBHA MADHAVA SWAMI (BVMS)

The GBC resolved: “317: [...] suspended BVMS as an initiating guru effective May 8, 2017 due to his inappropriate and erratic behavior; whereas after meeting with BVMS on Feb. 18, 2018, the GBC decided existing restrictions on him should be continued; [...] the GBC recognizes he is not well and needs our support as well as appropriate boundaries [...] 318: Letter to Disciples of BVMS: [...] by the influence of time, BVMS’s physical and psychological health have become compromised [...] we also took guidance from health care professionals [...] because of his inability to care for new disciples, and because BVMS was instructed not to initiate after that date, any initiations after May 2017 are INVALID and not spiritually binding. We strongly recommend anyone who may have taken initiation from BVMS after May 2017 to seek spiritual care from the many other sources of shelter within the ISKCON community.” Arrangements were made to care for BVMS, but he keeps wandering off... He has his own apartment in Vrindaban. Thus BVMS was moved to the guru list not accepting disciples, at least not acceptable by ISKCON, which now has created a new category of bona fide guru: one who takes care of existing disciples (also done with Gunagrahi, Satsvarupa, Bhaktividya Purna Swami, etc), but cannot take new disciples. Their institutionally ordained disqualification began at a certain date and only forbids making new disciples. Does it make any scriptural sense? Any logic here?

Who is your guru? Oh, so and so (you know, the one who went insane, had a pornography addiction, poisoned Srila Prabhupada, was the worst ISKCON child abuser, was caught with a Bangkok prostitute, who took initiation from the Radha Kunda sahajiya babajis, who was implicated in the murder of Sulochan, or a Gaudiya Math swami who said Srila Prabhupada was just laying the groundwork and only worshipped Mahavishnu, not Radha Krishna.) And if you say your guru is Srila Prabhupada, you are crazy- unless you were initiated before 1977, and then why aren’t you a guru by now? Something wrong with you?

FORGOT HE WAS A SERVANT, OR COMMITTED MANY OFFENSIVE, DEVIANT ACTIVITIES?

“I am some kind of leader in this movement. As a sannyasi, initiating guru, and writer of strongly-worded books, I have taken a stand against maya. Sannyasis are meant to generate faith in devotional service by their exemplary behaviour. If I were to fall from such a standard, it would not only be bad for me, but for others also, especially my disciples. I cannot claim, ‘I have conquered maya!’ as did one of our foolish Godbrothers. He appeared to have attained mighty heights, but was kicked by maya into nasty depths. How was it possible? Because he forgot his position as servant. We have seen several devotees in our society attain extraordinary opulence and power in devotional service, perform exceptional activities, and then fall down. This caused chaos throughout the movement. It was especially disastrous for their disciples, few of whom ever really recovered from the shock. My activities are very small compared to what some of these great sankirtana generals did. Srila Prabhupada, your mercy is all I am made of. I have taken this great risk of sannyas only to serve your lotus feet. Nor am I very good at that. So many Godbrothers and disciples of Godbrothers are doing far more than I to please you. Srila Prabhupada, this is not a very exalted prayer, but one that I need to make: 'Please don't let me fall down.' Even Srila Prabhupada was praying like that (he told us). The difference is that he didn't need to, although out of humility he may have felt that he did. For me, it's a real prayer that I cannot put enough energy into." (Bhakti Vikas Swami, ISKCON Guru, 2009)

NO IDLE SPORTS, SAYS SRILA PRABHUPADA. BUT ISKCON GURUS PAY NO ATTENTION...

The reason ISKCON gurus "fall down" (although already fallen) is not just that they forget they are servants, it is due to offenses incurred by sitting on Srila Prabhupada's seat and blocking others' access to Srila Prabhupada, what to speak of multiple other serious offenses and deviations.

Hridayananda is famous for his photos and videos of playing ping pong or tennis with other devotees, including pretty young women who are not wearing saris or even dresses, and joking, laughing, and having fun with such idle sports. "Demons arrange many kinds of performances to see the glaring beauty of a beautiful woman. Here it is stated that they saw the girl playing with a ball. Sometimes the demoniac arrange for so-called sports, like tennis, with the opposite sex. The purpose of such sporting is to see the bodily construction of the beautiful girl and enjoy a subtle sex mentality. This demoniac sex mentality of material enjoyment is sometimes encouraged by so-called yogis..." (SBhag 3.20.35 purport) Bhakticharu, Indradyumna, Bhanu and others are also seen engaged in gym workouts. (To "spiritualize" this non-devotional activity, devotees can be seen chanting their japa while meditating on the sports game.) Srila Prabhupada forbade idle or frivolous sports, including them with the four regulative principles: "...they are trained to refrain from the following four principles of degradation: 1) Sex life outside of marriage, 2) Meat eating, or eating of any animal food, 3) All forms of intoxication, 4) Gambling and idle sports." (SPL Pope Paul IV Aug. 3, 1968)

Srila Prabhupada encouraged the children to play, especially kicking a ball, swimming, and running around. But for adults, he limited sports to swimming. Once, as Rupanuga das told the story, while driving past a golf course in Washington, DC in 1976, Srila Prabhupada shed tears watching men wasting their valuable human life in golfing frivolities. On Sept. 3, 2017, Lastingimpression.info posted a video of Indradyumna Swami playing tennis with disciples who chanted japa. He also goes to the gym and swims 2 km in Olympic pools. Satsvarupa admits he likes to watch football, and roots for Navy against Army (he was in the Navy). There are many quotes from Srila Prabhupada on whether he wanted his followers to engage in any idle sports or not. It is very clear- NO IDLE SPORTS! So, why do these ISKCON misleaders not abide by these instructions? It is symptomatic of the new ISKCON; a society where laxity and disobedience to the Acharya is widespread because, after all, Srila Prabhupada is a previous acharya now, dead and gone, and the current paradigm is being set by the new interpreters of time, place, and circumstances, as was explained by Tamal (1996).

A 1969 letter from Srila Prabhupada to the USA military draft board makes the case that his students are serious about spiritual life, not even allowed to engage in idle sports: “March 20, 1969 [...] This is to certify that Thomas Gritton Allin III (Tosan Krishna Das) is my bona fide initiated student. He is being trained under me to become an ordained Minister of Religion in the Krishna Consciousness Society, and he is studying [...] and other allied literatures. He is [...] strictly forbidden to indulge in the following principles of degradation: (1) All forms of intoxication, including coffee, tea, cigarettes, drugs, alcohol, etc. (2) The eating of animal foods- meat, fish, and eggs. [...], (3) Unmarried sex indulgence, (4) Gambling, or idle sports of any sort. Their lives are dedicated to serving God, and as such, they have no time to squander on unbeneficial activities or non-Godly activities.” On Dec. 27, 1976 Srila Prabhupada said: “Dance and chant. This is best exercise. We allow them to dance very... Yes. High jump. Actually that is exercise, and at the same time ecstasy. If they dance and chant Hare Krsna, it is automatically a very big exercise and spiritual advancement. Yes. There is no doubt of it.”

CONCLUSION

The histories of key ISKCON figures Bhavananda, Bhakticharu, Jayapataka, Satsvarupa, and others are in Part 10, Book One. We could go on for many more chapters on ISKCON initiating gurus, but at least we have given some idea of what has happened and what is still going on in ISKCON. Truly it is a history of a circus of unscrupulous rascals. A sad, but true story... “These things are going on.” (SPL) We found about ISKCON leaders and thought it crude but quite accurate:

“Radhanath playing the blues / Indradymna playing with little girls / Bhagavan playing with his golden trinkets / Sivaram playing with his holy dolls / Romapada playing the moneylender / Kirtanananda playing with little boys / Hamsadutta playing with guns / Giriraja playing a gopi / Kavichandra playing the GBC jester / Bir Krishna playing with himself / Harikesha playing the stockmarket / Bhaktitirtha playing the tribal chief / Bhurijana playing the storyteller / Bhaktividya purna playing the pillion / Hrydayananda playing tennis / Tamal playing the autocrat / Dhanurdhara playing the bully / Bhakti Chaitanya playing the thief / Bhavananda playing with Indian Taxi drivers / Lokanatha playing with little girls / Prabhavishnu playing in Bangkok / Paramagati playing the Techno jock / Braja Bihari playing Sakuni / Sesa playing Teflon man / Gopala Bhatta playing a debauched businessman / Gupta playing the shyster / Jayadvaita playing the deconstructionalist / Malati playing the witchy madame / BB Govinda playing with his secretary / Satsvarupa playing village fool / Devamrita playing Friar Tuck / Balabhadra playing with his disciples bodies / Narayani playing a guru / Prahladananda playing the bogi yogi / Ramai playing the rock n roller / Umapati playing with grown men / Pragosh playing the comedian / Jayatirtha playing with LSD / Jayapataka can't play much anymore / Prithu playing with himself and men / Gopal Krishna playing the Attention Deficit child...

PART 16: FOUNDATIONAL BASIS POISONED

Psalms 9:16: 'The Lord is known by the judgment which he executes: the wicked is snared in the work of his own hands.' Part 16 investigates how the fundamental basis of Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON has been lost, poisoned, adulterated, and corrupted by the abhorrent GBC misleadership. This is important to document to fortify the contentions in Part 17 that Srila Prabhupada wanted elections for ISKCON leaders, something contrary, of course, to the GBC's official position. The GBC has overtly disobeyed Srila Prabhupada's instructions, they have neglected to preserve his institution, they have deviated from the principles he taught, they have spoiled the pure spiritual movement he carefully created, there is still no ISKCON Constitution, Srila Prabhupada's sacred books have been defiled and adulterated by open-ended unauthorized, unnecessary changes. The next 15 chapters examine how the GBC has poisoned the fundamental basis of Srila Prabhupada's Mission. Most devotees who have been around the movement long enough, are at least subconsciously aware that there is something fundamentally wrong with the society's fundamental basis.

SOME OF THE DEVIATIONAL POISONING IN SRILA PRABHUPADA'S INSTITUTION

Here are some of the deviational poisoning in ISKCON, of which volumes could be written, but our purpose is to inspire restoration, not wallow too long in the cess pool of maya.

(1) Srila Prabhupada's instructions and fundamental documents were hidden for many years and are even today neglected or repudiated: his letters, the Last Will, July 9 Order, Direction of Management, etc. (2) Creation of a tyrannical institutional regime where asking the wrong questions lead to expulsion. (3) Money meant for the temples and devotees is siphoned off for the opulent lifestyles and secret savings of the elite gurus (Giriraj Swami has $50M). (4) GBC claims that acharyas sometimes fall down, mahajanas are often in illusion and imperfect, that this is a transcendental pastime, and that imperfect conditioned souls can give diksha. (5) Srila Prabhupada is dead and gone, not available as diksha guru. (6) The diksha guru can often become demonic. (7) Srila Prabhupada was not as perfect as scripture. (8) Scripture and Srila Prabhupada's books need to be adjusted to the circumstances and culture. (9) Deviations may be necessary according to time and circumstance. (10) Collective disobedience is GBC authority. (11) Never disobey the GBC authority which is the same as Srila Prabhupada himself. (12) Srila prabhupada's books must be edited endlessly to improve and correct them. (13) Purity is a given for those wearing saffron cloth, regardless what they do or say. (14) Do not ask questions and be a nice blind follower of ISKCON's defective doctrines (see Part 20).

CHAPTER 146: MINIMIZING SRILA PRABHUPADA

MINIMIZATION DUE TO ENVY AND OVERCOMING

(1) "The third offense at the lotus feet of the holy name, which is called guror avajna, is to consider the spiritual master to be material and therefore envy his exalted position." (CC Adi 8.24) (2) "One should know the acharya as Myself and never disrespect him in any way. One should not envy him, thinking him an ordinary man, for he is the representative of all the demigods." (SBhag 11.17.27)

All the conditioned souls originally came to this material world due to envy of the Supreme Lord, His position, and His opulences. Srila Prabhupada's appearance as world acharya and empowered representative of the Supreme Lord will naturally attract the envy of many conditioned souls as well, even from his own disciples. Every conditioned soul has an internal struggle taking place between divine and demoniac tendencies. This is due to the presence of material desires in the heart of the originally pure spirit soul. This envy of Srila Prabhupada is perhaps best exemplified by Kirtanananda's statement on the video titled "Peons of Perfidy" (circa 1987): "We can all become as great as Srila Prabhupada..." and his arguments that since Srila Prabhupada did not arrange daily guru-puja for Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati, why should they not receive daily guru-puja as Srila Prabhupada's heirs and the next link in the parampara? Thus, by presuming themselves to be far more than they actually are, the conditioned souls, out of envy, imitate Srila Prabhupada. Simultaneous to the imitation comes the minimization of Srila Prabhupada. It is a process of artificially elevating oneself while pushing Srila Prabhupada down, most often subtly and subconsciously.

Who can begin to reach the heights of greatness found in a mahabhagawat pure devotee such as Srila Prabhupada? It is impossible for us rascals on planet Earth. The desire and attempt to do so is envy, which entails directly or indirectly reducing the stature (minimization) of Srila Prabhupada whereby we appear to become elevated by comparison. (1) "These great souls were not mere luminaries like comets appearing in the firmament for a while and disappearing as soon as their mission is done. They are like so many suns shining all along to give light and heat to succeeding generations. Long time yet to roll on when they will be succeeded by others of sublime mind, beauty and calibre." (Bhaktivinode Thakur) (2) Yasodanandana das: "Similarly many envious persons in the guise of Vaishnavas and acharyas manifested their envy towards Srila Prabhupada by exploiting the assets of his society, impudently imitating him by sitting on Vyasasanas in front of his deity and photos, and knowingly disregarded the injunctions of the sacred shastras not to imitate the acharya." (3) "One who is beyond the limit of envy and who is sane accepts the order of his father with great delight and executes it to his full capacity." (SBhag 3.13.10) (4) "So guru, acharya, being representative of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, he should be worshiped. [...] Never think of envying. As soon as we become envious of the acharya, there is falldown, immediately. Yasyaprasadan na gatih kuto'pi. Yasya prasada bhagavat-prasadah. This is the teaching of Visvanatha Cakravarti Thakura." (SPLecture Oct. 5, 1976) (5) "And if you have really a bona fide guru, then by pleasing him you will get the favor of Krishna. Yasya prasada bhagavat [...] If you have become more than your guru, then 'Overcoming guru, I shall get Krishna's prasada, Krishna's favor, I have learnt more, guru mara vidya,' that is also not good..." (SPLecture Nov. 6, 1976)

SRILA PRABHUPADA IS MINIMIZED AND RELEGATED TO HISTORY

In Radha Damodara Vilasa (p. 273-9, 342-4), we read about the first ISKCON conspiracy: "Srila Prabhupada has been disturbed due to a series of mishaps over the past several months... It all began with a letter from Achyutananda in early April (1970)... (the Gaudiya Math) object to him applying the title 'Prabhupada'... They prefer the title Swami Maharaja, who, they say, is not the only spiritual master, nor the only pure devotee... Achyutananda naively repeats this new information in a letter to his friends at the New York temple... (and) that any ISKCON devotees coming to India should first write to receive permission from Madhava Maharaja. [Prabhupada] detects a discrepancy regarding edits to the new KRISHNA book manuscript... [he] begins to spot check other manuscripts [for errors]... Prabhupada is shocked that no one (or editor) has detected these blunders... One day [...] he notices that one of the cleaning ladies absent-mindedly put his Guru Maharaja's picture upside down. After greeting the Deities, Prabhupada is offered caranamrita. But someone put salt in it instead of sugar... Prabhupada is startled to see they have printed his name on one small paperback simply as A.C. Bhaktivedanta, leaving out 'His Divine Grace' and 'Swami Prabhupada.' Another booklet ascribes him the title 'Acharya' rather than 'Founder-Acharya.' ...upon opening the book the binding cracks and some of the pages fall out... He discovers not all the devotees are chanting their prescribed sixteen rounds. Some are encouraged by temple authorities to do service in lieu of chanting rounds... In June, a letter arrives from Tamal... (he) asks about his spiritual master's previous life and whether he had been subjected to the laws of material nature... Prabhupada learns that his secretary, Devananda, is showing his incoming mail to temple leaders, who arbitrarily decide to withhold letters they feel are not important. This offense of censoring... outrages Srila Prabhupada. Now he discovers that these leaders are denying other disciples direct access to him, on the plea of protecting his privacy. He recalls that during Ratha-yatra he had been restricted from riding on Subhadra's cart [which they then rode on themselves]. His leading disciples are acting independently and without authority to control him. With so many disturbing incidents... He is pained certain leaders isolate him from other devotees. It appears that a veil of maya descended over ISKCON in 1970... led Srila Prabhupada to conclude there was a conspiracy to minimize his position as the Founder-Acharya of his own institution. He understood that he was being pushed into the background- that his supreme authority was being challenged, even doubted... This was the first major heresy on a societal level... Madhudvisa had suggested that Prabhupada not attend Ratha-yatra due to the outbreak of violence... Kirtanananda Swami had called Los Angeles regarding the Janmastami celebration in New Vrindaban. Prabhupada had made plans to attend, but now Kirtanananda called to say it wasn't necessary for him to come... was part of the superior tendency by devotees to assert themselves and minimize the guru."

COMMENT: Some of these mishaps might be attributed to simply immaturity or carelessness by some devotees, but Srila Prabhupada saw all the symptoms of minimization as being tied together in one event or general consciousness. Does the above 1970 situation resemble that of 1977? Yes, very much so. Censoring the mail, severely restricting access to Srila Prabhupada, discrediting almost every doctor or kaviraja who came to diagnose and treat the elusive ailment, refusal to clarify with Srila Prabhupada his instructions for the future of ISKCON, resisting Srila Prabhupada's requests for going on parikrama even though he said, "I think I shall be cured": this was the scene in 1977. Tamal, as personal secretary, assumed many privileges and effectively took over control of most everything from Srila Prabhupada. The excuse was Srila Prabhupada was withdrawing from all external affairs. But the syndrome of minimizing Srila Prabhupada started long before 1977, and after Srila Prabhupada's physical departure it was infused into ISKCON with policies that effectively sidelined Srila Prabhupada as the real Acharya. The foremost minimizing offense is insisting Srila Prabhupada is now unavailable, dead and gone, and thus the need for new living gurus to continue the parampara.

"So my Guru Maharaja will be very, very much pleased upon you and bless you with all benefits. So he wanted this, and he is not... It is not that he is dead and gone. That is not spiritual understanding. Even ordinary living being, he does not die. Na hanyate hanyamane sarire [BGita 2.20]. And what to speak of such exalted, authorized personality like Bhaktisiddhanta. He is seeing. [...] Similarly, Krishna and Krishna's representative, spiritual master, if you keep always intact, in link with the words and instruction of the superior authorities, then you are always fresh. This is spiritual understanding." (SP Lecture March 2, 1975)

TELLTALE EXAMPLES, MINIMIZING SRILA PRABHUPADA

An ISKCON guru in a 2010 public lecture stated: "Gramatically Srila Prabhupada was not very proficient." Who would dare say this to Srila Prabhupada's face? Statements such as these and much worse are part of the semi-conscious Srila Prabhupada minimization atmosphere in ISKCON. Comments: "Srila Prabhupada was more grammatically astute than most of his disciples. He knew and spoke English very well, and sometimes when questioned about how he used a word, he would have devotees look it up and they found in the dictionary the exact meaning that he had given. So this is way out of line and only based upon envy. This minimization is based also upon little practical knowledge of the actual status of a maha bhagavat pure devotee. The pure devotee maha bhagavat is on an inconceivable platform. Only an envious fool would say something like that." (Damaghosh das, 2017)

In 2002 Adridharan das noted an example of how Srila Prabhupada is minimized: "Prabhupada was full of human characteristics. He could be humorous, gentle, even whimsical at times in the way he expressed himself [...] I must confess that I sometimes grow tired of rigid hagiography that doesn't accommodate Prabhupada's humanness but emphasizes only that he was absolute or legendary." (Satsvarupa das, Vyasa Puja Book 2002) We see a GBC "guru" "glorifying" Srila Prabhupada by preferring him depicted as a relative, non-absolute, non-legendary human being, who would even be "whimsical." But in Gita 16:23's purport Srila Prabhupada states behaving "whimsically" is characteristic of the Demoniak Nature: "The word kama-karatah is very significant. A person who knowingly violates the rules acts in lust. He knows that this is forbidden, but still he acts. This is called acting whimsically. He knows that this should be done, but still he does not do it; therefore he is called whimsical. Such persons are destined to be condemned by the Supreme Lord." Whimsical does not describe Srila Prabhupada. During Srila Prabhupada's physical presence, no one else would sit on the Vyasasana, and even sannyasis and lecturers would sit on the floor amongst the devotees. Today, anyone can sit on the Vyasasana, even visiting academic religious scholars. Shivarama Swami (Oct. 20, 2020): "In what quantity should a devotee listen to Srila Prabhupada, his spiritual master, and other devotees? Now I can't give you a shastric answer for this in terms of quantity, I'll give you a reasonable speculation [...] I suggested 40% Srila Prabhupada, 40% guru, 20% others." IRM commented: "This shows how in practice the ISKCON guru system is leading to a minimization of Srila Prabhupada, with GBC gurus pushing for him to be relegated to being a minority figure even in terms of whom the devotees listen to. Other GBCs such as Pragosh das complain about this, but to no avail." (BTP 68 p.15)

MINIMIZING BY NOT ACCEPTING EVERYTHING SRILA PRABHUPADA TAUGHT US

Another way of minimizing Srila Prabhupada is to selectively accept his teachings. Hrdayananda has actually said he accepts Srila Prabhupada when it comes to important issues that are verified by shastra, but otherwise he feels free to use his own intelligence to determine what to accept. But what is the use of that? SP: Unless one is prepared that "I am accepting somebody as my spiritual master. I must accept whatever he says," if there is any doubt, that "I cannot accept his words verbatim," then one should not accept him as spiritual master. That is hypocrisy. One must be first of all convinced. Therefore it is the duty of the spiritual master and the disciple to associate- that is the injunction of Sanatana Gosvami- for some time, and both of them should study. The disciple should study, "Whether I can accept this saintly person as my spiritual master." And spiritual master also will see, "Whether I can accept this boy, this person, as my disciple." That is the way. (SP Lecture July 13, 1971) Hrdayananda "Swami" stated: "In contradicting the principles of modern psychology and sociology, which have been proven scientifically beyond any doubt, Srila Prabhupada has exceeded his authority." At least publicly, the GBC failed to protest this statement by one of their own members, a statement which is a gross minimization of Srila Prabhupada, the eternal and perfect spiritual master, subordinating him to one's defective intelligence and speculation.

MORE EXAMPLES HOW PRABHUPADA HAS BEEN MINIMIZED

(1) The living guru philosophy misunderstands Srila Prabhupada to be no longer available for the transmission of spiritual knowledge, and minimizing him while conditioned and fallible souls are held up as the replacements. This was epitomized by simultaneous guru pujas in the 1980's. (2) The huge extent by which Srila Prabhupada's books have been adulterated lessens the potency and originality of those transcendental books, as though Srila Prabhupada's work was faulty, ordinary, and needing revisions. This is very offensive to Srila Prabhupada. (3) The primary minimization is obstructing Srila Prabhupada from initiating his own disciples via the officiating acharya system he set up in May and July 1977. (4) Replacing Srila Prabhupada in ISKCON as THE acharya by allowing anyone to compete for his followers. (5) Relativizing Srila Prabhupada by characterizing him as an ordinary although devout man is a minimization of his true stature. E. g., as is done in the Lilamrita biography, that he is not shastra, using the terminology “postcharismatic fate,” disobeying his instructions as irrelevant now he is dead and gone and he is just a previous and historical acharya, relegated to the back pages of history. (6) From the Jayapataka disciple who was the editor of ISKCON website CHAKRA: “MRdd: I do want you there, but without the threats and put downs. You do have something to contribute and your literalism is a welcome viewpoint (but it's not the only one). So also is your deification of Prabhupada. But it's equally acceptable for some to see Prabhupada as an empowered human being who made some material mistakes but who nevertheless is able to give us Krishna. Although other people may see Prabhupada as more of a human being and less ‘God-like’ than you do and they may feel that he has made mistakes about material matters, without feeling that this detracts from his ability to give us Krishna, you have taken it upon yourself to judge that this constitutes an offense, that your view of Prabhupada is the only right one and that everyone else is a blasphemer.” [COMMENT: This lady may not be a spokesperson for ISKCON leaders (some of whom also found her opinion offensive), but Jayapataka’s hesitancy and reluctance to publicly correct her grave misunderstandings are inexcusable. These types of attitudes towards Srila Prabhupada are prevalent and tolerated even among the misleaders.] (7) Jumping from one guru phenom to another, Sridhar to Narayan to Radhanath to who’s next? This neglects the understanding that Srila Prabhupada was, is, and always will be the empowered acharya of the Hare Krishna movement for anyone via his original books, lectures, etc. (8) Srila Prabhupada cannot be killed or confined to the past as an historical irrelevancy, as envious persons try to reduce Srila Prabhupada’s stature. (9) Putting photos of conditioned souls on the altar next to Srila Prabhupada to artificially raise their status. (10) Poisoning Srila Prabhupada is the ultimate minimization of his exalted stature.

(11) Rejection of Direction of Management (Ch. 161). (12) “The atmosphere in ISKCON is permeated by and inundated with examples of Srila Prabhupada being minimized. Examples could fill tens of thousands of pages (no exaggeration). I have no doubt that if I went to the ISKCON temple here in Alachua for the morning program, I’d see at least a dozen clear examples of Srila Prabhupada being minimized and pushed out of his rightful position. About 10 years ago I attended the morning program here, and after Mangala-arati, instead of reading from a book of Srila Prabhupada, they read a book from some other author. Also I’ve heard that for the past several years, during morning class they’re not reading Srila Prabhupada’s Srimad-Bhagavatam, but rather the 10th, 11th, and 12th Cantos translated and purported by others.” (Dhira Govinda das, 2016) (13) Some gurus promote their own books and lectures and thus their followers have little time or interest in Srila Prabhupada’s legacy. Satsvarupa’s tape ministry has 700+ lectures online; Bhakti Vikas Swami has 4,000. Satsvarupa wrote: “I have written over a hundred books [...] All of them are valuable and of interest to the growing numbers of Krishna conscious devotees.” Srila Prabhupada’s books are thus being minimised, and the study of Srila Prabhupada’s books dwindles by competing output from the ISKCON gurus. This leads to Srila Prabhupada’s books being seen as inferior to these other books. “There is no need by any of my disciples to read any books besides my books – in fact, such reading may be detrimental to their advancement in Krishna Consciousness.” (SPL Jan. 20, 1972) “This mission has been established simply on the publishing and distribution of my books. So get them translated and published as soon as possible.” (SPL July 26, 1975) Yet, Satsvarupa and other ISKCON “gurus” promote their own books rather than Srila Prabhupada’s books. Some examples of this distraction: “Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati told Prabhupada that printing books was more important than building temples, he told Prabhupada to print books. I have followed in the footsteps of that instruction and dedicated my life to writing Krishna conscious literature.” (Satsvarupa Legacy website) “What I like the most is Shivarama Maharaja’s books. This book is my lifesaver [...] I worship these books. [...] I feel like with these books, yeah, maybe I have a chance to go back home back to Godhead." (Disciple Shivarama Swami website, Sept. 30, 2019) (14) Narasimha das, 2017: "On a tape a devotee asked Srila Prabhupada if he had seen any demigod, who replied this was not a very meaningful question to one who was a personal friend of Krishna, that a personal friend of the Emperor need not approach any minister for any purpose. Rather, high-ranking ministers will approach the Emperor's intimate friend for advice and favors. A few years ago I was glorifying Srila Prabhupada as the predicted shaktavesha-avatar and jagat guru for the Golden Age in the presence of a senior ISKCON devotee, who replied: 'You may have such understanding of Srila Prabhupada, but other devotees may still be respectful without that understanding. Senior Vaishnavas have warned about deifying Srila Prabhupada, or over-exaggerating his importance in the Gaudiya Sampradaya.' I replied, 'All the scriptures implore that the spiritual master must be accepted to be as good as Krishna Himself. The words we sing during guru-puja and mandala-arotik are not just hyperbole. We should believe and preach these things for the benefit of the whole world. Otherwise, why did Srila Prabhupada sit on a throne and accept daily formal worship in the temple? He is always on the altar. So it would seem that our first duty is to accept Srila Prabhupada for the divinity that he was and is. At least his own disciples should understand this immediately and then later the whole world. Otherwise what does it mean that the real Acharya is 'self-effulgent' and 'as good as God?'

"To neophytes, outsiders, and the uninitiated, the GBC stance may seem reasonable: that Srila Prabhupada was a nice sadhu but nonetheless imperfect or limited by imperfect senses, just like every other mortal man. (And we, on the other hand, may seem like fanatics.) It seems almost everyone in ISKCON, or at least the leadership, regularly minimizes Srila Prabhupada due to envy or ignorance. Although they accept that he did something wonderful, they feel he couldn't have done it without them. And they consider that he may have made many mistakes "materially" --whatever that means. We must always offer the scriptural evidence regarding the exalted status of a pure devotee, along with scriptural predictions regarding the Sena Pati etc. The evidence for Sri Sri Gaura Nitai as avatars for the age and Srila Prabhupada's status as the embodiment of hope and salvation for the world is far more complete and convincing than any Christian doctrine or historical evidence regarding Jesus Christ. In the case of Srila Prabhupada, however, it is a deliberate grave insult to say his skills in English were lacking. He did, after all, produce 80 volumes that were praised by scholars and devotees worldwide. His books created millions of devotees and are the law books for the next 10K years. But these GBC criminals are saying, 'No, he needed us to make these books proper. His grammar was lacking. We needed to edit his original books extensively to get them right.' In reply, one example I give are his poems. Every writer knows that to create perfect poetry in English is a serious challenge. It is harder to do than prose. Only really great writers can write great poetry. Srila Prabhupada's understanding of English and English grammar was perfect and certainly far better than any of his disciples- or even ordinary professional writers. Doubters often foolishly ask, 'Why didn't Srila Prabhupada use his mystic powers if he had them, like Jesus did? Why did it appear that he made mistakes sometimes, such as forgetting an English word or Sanskrit verse? Why did he prop up so many rascals with spiritual authority? Why did it appear that he was sometimes ignorant of certain facts? Answer: It was because he avoided calling attention to himself as an exalted person and he played the role of an ordinary Vaishnava. But we should know his true glories. He wanted the focus to be on Krishna and the wonderful process of pure devotional service, not himself. He was truly humble." (END)

SATSVARUPA'S PRABHUPADA LILAMRITA BIOGRAPHY IS A MINIMIZATION

LILAMRITA- "PLANTING THE WEED" by Urdhvaga das (8/12/98): I find Lilamrita not only very painful to read but also very offensive and distorting. The "Abhay" described in the Lilamrita is not the same as the Srila Prabhupada which I knew while he was with us. Satsvarupa wrote the Lilamrita (1978-83) before his personal "reform" took place (1987), when he still thought he was a "Prabhupada-appointed successor-acharya;" which he later on admitted was an erroneous presumption. The Lilamrita is therefore imbued with Satsvarupa's personal misconception and thus cannot be an authorised biography of Srila Prabhupada. Besides falling short of describing a pure mahabhagavata devotee of Lord Krishna, the Lilamrita also very badly misrepresents Srila Prabhupada by indicating Srila Prabhupada left his movement in the care of 11 chosen “successor-acharyas.” By advocating a unauthorised guru-system the Lilamrita has not only heavily deviated from Srila Prabhupada’s originally established ISKCON but it is also perverting Srila Prabhupada’s teachings. The book puts forth many ideas which contradict Srila Prabhupada’s statements. The Lilamrita subtly interpret Srila Prabhupada and his teachings in distorted ways. For example, the author quotes a review of his books describing it as a “very human story, with a very human A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami.” “I invite the reader to enjoy the very real human life story of Srila Prabhupada, who is known in this volume as Abhay Charan.” (Vol. 1 p.19) The Lilamrita portrays Srila Prabhupada in a very mundane way by describing that he becomes: fatigued, goes into ignorance, gets heart stroke, diseased, starves, suffers from old age, has imperfect senses, becomes drowsy, dozes off, made mistakes, all of which are inappropriate characterizations of a pure devotee. This minimization of Srila Prabhupada stems from the envy of the zonal acharyas who were not pure devotees, so Srila Prabhupada could not be one either. Below are examples of minimizations and mischaracterizations:

(1) Vol. 1 p. 286 “Bhaktivedanta Swami’s neighbours observed him coming home dead tired. He stayed around 11:00 and then became drowsy. ...It became apparent that he was over-exerting himself.” SBhag 3.2.3: “In the transcendental service there is no feeling of fatigue, because it is spiritual service and not on the bodily plane. Service on the bodily plane dwindles as the body grows older, but the spirit is never old. On the spiritual plane the service is never tiresome.” (2) Vol 1 p. 287 “He (Srila Prabhupada) was dangerously old and not in strong health.” SBhag 5.4.5: “Another symptom of a liberated person is vijara, which indicates that he is not subjected to the miseries of old age.” (3) Vol. 1 p. 194 “Abhay suddenly began reeling, half unconscious, overcome by the heat.” BGita 6.7: “The devotee of the Lord is unaffected by the dualities of material existence, namely distress and happiness, cold and heat.” (4) Vol. 2 p. 259 “After some time the drive became tiring for Prabhupada.” [...] “The next morning Prabhupada didn’t get up. He was exhausted...For the first time, it became apparent that he was overexerting himself.” (5) Vol. 1 p. 164 “When Abhay arrived, he appeared very poor, starving, he had no means.” (6) Vol.1 p. 88 “Abhay shuddered as he read the verse. It seemed to speak directly to him. But what does it mean? Does it mean’, he thought, that Krishna will take away all my money? Was that what was actually happening? Was that why his business plans were failing?” (7) Vol. 1 p. 163 “His spiritual emotions were so turbulent that he wasn’t thinking of going to Jhansi. He wanted to take a train to... ANYWHERE.” (8) Vol. 1 p. 222 “Abhaya spent his time in Jhargram chanting the Holy Name and becoming settled in detachment from his family.” (9) Vol. 1 p. 24 “But to Abhay, Calcutta and the British were not alarming, and he even held a certain fondness for his Scottish teachers. Although he looked up to them with a mixture of awe, distance and some tension, he admired their moral uprightness and their gentlemanly courteous behavior with the boys.” (10) Vol. 2 p. 95 “Although Prabhupada’s home had suddenly become an insane terror, the street at its door was also a hellish, dangerous place. He was shaken.” (11) Vol. 2 p. 37 “America seemed so opulent, yet many things were difficult to tolerate (for Srila Prabhupada). The sirens and bells from fire engines and police cars seemed like they would crack his heart.” (12) Vol. 2 p. 95 “Prabhupada moved quickly down the four flights of stairs. He had not stopped to gather up any of his belongings or even to decide where he would go or whether he would return. There had been no time to consider anything. He had taken quite a shock and now he was leaving the arena of David’s madness.” (13) Vol. 2 p. 59 Prabhupada: “Yes, I am not happy here.” (14) Vol. 1 p. 135 “But, then the worst thing happened. The manuscript was stolen... Abhay was baffled; so much work had been undone. He felt he had worked so many months for nothing.” (15) Vol. 1 p. 276 “But his first attempts to arrange a meeting were unsuccessful. Frustrated at being put off by Mrs. Morarji’s officers, he sat down on the front steps of her office building...” (16) Vol. 1 p.157 “No,’ Abhaya said. ‘This is good for me. I was sad, but now one great attachment has come to an end...””

My list is 39 pages, too much to include here. If someone, in the name of glorifying Srila Prabhupada, also criticizes him by attributing to him such mundane qualities as destitution, insecurity, vulnerability direction-less, familial attachment, dependency on others, attainment of knowledge via material experiences, etc., then Srila Prabhupada's spiritual quality is brought into question. Also interpreting the Vedic literature minimises the authority of the Vedas. Mixing the spiritual with the mundane allows the mundane to be accepted as spiritual, and the spiritual to be considered in a mundane manner. The Lilamrita is not only unbona fide and unauthorised but also very offensive because the author portrays Srila Prabhupada in such a way, that the reader might get the wrong impression of Srila Prabhupada as a mere mortal being (human swami), or just another of the many Indian gurus who came to the West to save drug-addicts and hippies. Srila Prabhupada does not sound very glorious when Satsvarupa delineates the pure devotee's activities and qualities, from his imperfect vision, which regularly is found to contradict that of scripture. The Lilamrita also refers to Srila Prabhupada as "Abhay." The author of the Lilamrita is an initiated disciple of Srila Prabhupada, but audaciously refers to his guru as "Abhay." No wonder the reader would consider Srila Prabhupada a "very human swami with a very human story." Satsvarupa does not like the flowery prose style used, for example, in the Gaudiya Math tradition, and noted that Srila Prabhupada wrote in a more down-to-earth, clear-cut prose. But Srila Prabhupada does not write mundane misconceptions about his own spiritual master. He referred to his spiritual master, His Divine Grace Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati Goswami Maharaja, in exalted terms, even a pastime of his spiritual master as a 6 month old child.

Accepting any mundane conception of the spiritual master and considering him a "very human swami" is wrong and dangerous. The scripture describes such misconceptions of the guru as a hellish mentality. This is capable of uprooting the devotional creeper of even a staunch devotee, a nistha-bhakta. All true Vaishnavas would view mundane statements about the acharya, especially if they were printed in a book distributed to over a million people, as maha-guru-aparadha, a greta offense to one's guru. An acharya's biography must be above suspicion, but Satsvarupa admits in his Guru Reform Notebook that he has slighted and offended his Godbrothers -and Srila Prabhupada- in various ways by allowing himself to be worshiped and regarded on the level of maha-bhagavata paramahansa which was a grave error. Satsvarupa a maha-guru-aparadhi.

If an author is not actually authorised by Krishna, the nectar of transcendental lila he seems to be writing about will actually produce results opposite of nectar. Perhaps this is the cause of the author's permanent and constant sickness for decades. Instead of watering the seed of devotion, the Lilamrita is planting the weed of illusion. No sane and knowledgeable devotee reader of the Lilamrita will consider its author either empowered or free from conditional defects, which are the requirements, as quoted by the author himself. We therefore reject this Lilamrita, because of its many poisonous defects. It gives a completely distorted view of Srila Prabhupada's spiritual activities and erroneously speculates about his emotions.

If the BBT publishers have any regard for Srila Prabhupada as a nitya-siddha devotee, then they will declare the Lilamrita as unbona fide and unauthorised and refuse to reprint it. It must be redone in a proper manner, eliminating the completely distorted mundane view of Srila Prabhupada presently given. The book took birth during the heyday of the zonal acharya fervor. The 11 zonal acharyas lied to the world that Srila Prabhupada had appointed them as successor acharyas, and they even boasted they were now empowered pure devotees, despite their bad habits, offences and deviations. This rejected biography of Srila Prabhupada is the product of an ordinary conditioned soul imitating Srila Prabhupada and daring to sit in his place. (END)

THE LILAMRTA: A REVIEW & PHILOSOPHICAL ANALYSIS By Yasodanandana das, 1996

"Srila Prabhupada is a pure devotee always, being an eternally liberated associate of the Lord. He did not have a material past at any time. Being an associate of Lord Sri Krishna, he is properly understood to never have been contaminated by matter. As we knew him, his so called material body was not at all material. Heat, cold, happiness and distress, hunger and thirst, birth, disease, old age, and death never touched him. It is not correct to describe that he felt or suffered these mundane influences and pains in a mood of tolerance. He never even felt them, according to the scriptures. The Lilamrta speculated erroneously about the emotions of His Divine Grace Srila Prabhupada and thus it has criticized His Divine Grace, though it tries to cover its subtle criticisms with a thin veneer of the mundanely-presented greatness of his struggle through all the internal and external 'difficulties.' We heard Srila Prabhupada sent letters discouraging a biography of stories about himself by any of his disciples. But, if a biography were to be compiled, the Krishna Consciousness Movement could have simply printed statements from His Divine Grace about his own life minus any misleading commentary. [Actually Mukunda das in UK actually did this, titled Srila Prabhupada Lilamrita As It Is, in 2001.] This could have assured the correct transcendental version of the activities and qualities of the topmost paramahansa devotee of the Lord. Some letters and Indian BTG articles written by His Divine Grace could have been included. And statements directly from Srila Prabhupada's books on the wonderful and totally transcendental activities and qualities of the pure devotee in his preaching pastimes, would most definitely have made a shastric basis for such a project. As always, by simply repeating from shastra, in context, the words of the liberated soul, it is easier to avoid harmful speculation. "If one becomes an offender to the spiritual master or the Supreme Personality of Godhead, he falls down to the material platform to merely speculate." [C.C. Antya 8.26]" (END)

Puranjana das stated: "Satsvarupa's book 'Lilamrita' should actually be burned. Any one reading this book, his faith will be destroyed at once." Sulocana das: "No devotee in his right mind should read even one page of 'Lilamrta,' and those copies that have already been distributed should be recovered and burned."

MOON MADNESS: LACK OF FAITH IN THE ACHARYA by Narasimha das, 2017

Recently I heard an odd accusation from a so-called senior devotee that those who repeat what Srila Prabhupada taught about various controversial facts are embarrassing and minimizing Srila Prabhupada because they hate him and his mission. This came up because some devotees sent out excerpts from Bhagavatam regarding eclipses, responding to an eclipse-event mania, where 1000s drove 100s of miles to bask in the darkness of a total solar eclipse. Apparently this senior devotee is himself embarrassed by some of Srila Prabhupada's teachings, which he believes are mistaken and should be hidden. Those who aspire to build their congregations worry that talk of certain subjects will scare away potential converts and thus impede their own sense gratification in the name of preaching. Srila Prabhupada, on the other hand, was not afraid to mention things which may, in the view of some people, tend to create a backlash of contempt and doubt about him, the Hare Krishna movement or the authority of the Vedas. Since he mentioned these things often in lectures and in his books, it would be foolish to conclude that he wanted us to hide these facts.

What are the contentious issues? The structure of the universe. The size of women's brains. The social roles of women. The relative social status and intelligence of various races and classes. The existence of hell, and so on. Srila Prabhupada didn't harp on contentious issues but also didn't shy away from them in proper context. He never agreed that the material bodies of all men and women are created equal. He saw distinctions in this world and taught us that real equality, real happiness and real knowledge free from illusion existed in the spiritual world— not in Maya's kingdom. Some devotees leave the movement over these contentious issues, such as the Vedic view that the Moon is further away than the Sun and that eclipses are due to the influences of the evil planet Rahu. For thousands of years people in India of all classes accepted the Vedic version of things because, in part, they had no other recourse. Modern people think they know everything because they watch TV and have computers to access the all-knowing internet. They blindly accept the version of modern science because it has answered questions such as, "How can we make bombs and missiles that can kill millions of people?" "How can we create technological addictions to enslave the world?" "How can we exploit the earth by force and enjoy lives of luxury and ease?" "How can we engage in all manner of unhealthy habits yet be fit by taking FDA-approved drugs?" "How can we abort unwanted embryos by popping a pill?" "How can we make synthetic pain killers so we don't need poppy fields?" and so on.

Although the answers to such inquiries are important to many, this won't help anyone solve the actual problems of life, namely birth, old age, disease and death. Nor should we readily accept the dubious "evidence" of Moon photos, climate change analyses, pandemic fears, Mars dune-buggy photos, the safety of untested experimental "vaccines," and so more that is touted as fact. Some say the scientists must know everything about the Moon because they are able to predict eclipses and Moon phases. Vedic astrologers, however, can do so by following the Vedic models. Because you can predict an event doesn't mean you understand what's really going on. People in general feel great devotion to science, because it has given us cars, computers, nuclear weapons, jet planes, birth control pills, amazing drugs, TV, cell phones, hospitals, big cities, and safe abortion clinics. Such people are not interested in the Vedas, which teach us how to live on the land, protect the Earth and go back to Godhead. The fact is no one can go to live on the Moon by mechanical means. Since 1972, the scientists admit no one has gone back there. Why? No one knows what's going on inside his own body or in the next room. Their powerful instruments as well as their senses are imperfect. Instruments are meant to circumvent limitations and illusions, but, in fact, they only increase these limitations and illusions. This material universe is called maya for a reason. It is colossal hoax, a shared dream. Nothing here is substantial, nothing is as it seems. A cheap magician can trick the greatest scientist with a house of mirrors and make them bump into walls and get lost, even in a small space. But a second-rate magician is not needed- they are constantly fooled by their own minds and senses. Just because many imperfect people agree on something doesn't make it real. Nor does the predicting or partial understanding of relative and illusory causes and effects make one a great scientist or thinker.

Srila Prabhupada didn't want blind followers but preferred blind following to no following. He wanted intelligent and sincere disciples, not those with ulterior motives. He may have sometimes deliberately said or done things that tested our faith. Unless we carefully understand the limitations and imperfections of our minds and senses in understanding this complex and illusory world, we will be unable to stick to the path of hearing from real authorities; and thus we will take birth again and again in the darkness of ignorance. Once while trying to preach I was challenged by a listener who said, "We have faith in modern science because science is confirmed by experiments and observation. Science has given us jet travel, global communications, great medical advancements and comfortable living." I countered, "Yes technological sciences provide some good for those who think life is an accident with no meaning or purpose, but the actual cost of our modern society to the planet and all life is not yet understood. Our fast-paced modern life is making us weak, immoral, lazy and dependent. We don't understand the damage we are doing to the environment or whether this can be reversed. Modern science has made us so stupid that we are willing to risk killing the planet we live on for sake of supporting extravagant exploitation that benefits a few at the expense of many. I will stick with the perfect acharya who has come from the eternal world, not with the crazy cheating scientists." (END) COMMENTS: With the deliberate COVID "plandemic" and the fraudulent vaccination tyranny by Big Pharma, it has become clear science has become a tool for exploitation and false narratives.

CONCLUSION

There are endless ways ISKCON misleaders are poisoning ISKCON's fundamental basis and minimizing Srila Prabhupada. Disobedience, deviations, changes, false prophets, envy, and his poisoning with heavy metals. Sometimes devotees say: All Glories to Guru Maharaja, or All Glories to Guru and Gouranga." This is also the minimizing Srila Prabhupada disease. "One thing, on the invitation card you have written All Glories to Our Guru Maharaj. This is impersonalism. As soon as we offer obeisances to guru, the name should be there. We are strictly personalists. The sahajiya's, they write Glories to Guru. Why you are learning this impersonalism, who has taught you? Daily I am offering obeisances to my Guru by vibrating his real name, Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati, otherwise it is impersonal." (SPL July 14, 1972) ISKCON is a "bait and switch" scheme. People read Srila Prabhupada's books, and want his association and divine mercy. But soon they are steered to an ISKCON-approved initiating guru. Srila Prabhupada's name is hung like a shingle to attract disciples for the false ISKCON gurus. Srila Prabhupada is minimized and everyone is cheated by this bait and switch ruse. More on the minimization disease is in Ch. 179, Terms of Relegation. To not follow Srila Prabhupada's teachings faithfully is to minimize the those teachings; unfortunately this is what is going on in Srila Prabhupada's mission. Srila Prabhupada is now a stranger in his own home.

CHAPTER 147: THE POISONING OF HIS DIVINE GRACE

"I do not think that we are capable to overestimate the pain and emotional and mental torment and suffering caused by the ISKCON organization in disallowing Srila Prabhupada as the current link (SPCL). This rejection of the possibility of Srila Prabhupada serving as the current and direct link for any and all members of his movement interferes with the establishment and development of the personal relationship of sincere members of Srila Prabhupada's movement, with Srila Prabhupada. This is a travesty. That, due to organization policy, and a dark culture founded in fear and repression, those who come to Srila Prabhupada aren't even aware of the possibility to establish their direct, personal relationship with Srila Prabhupada, with Srila Prabhupada as their current link to Sri Krishna's parampara- what a corruption, a shameless mockery of sanatana-dharma. My view is that there is no greater obstruction to the expansion of Lord Chaitanya's sankirtana movement than the organization called ISKCON rejecting Srila Prabhupada as the current link for its members. [...] we can search, but we won't find, a more fitting example than ISKCON's continual, albeit sometimes slippery and evasive, rejection of his divine grace, than in Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati's statement, 'The churches have always proved the staunchest upholders of the grossest form of worldliness from which even the worst of non-ecclesiastical criminals are found to recoil.' (Dhira Govinda das May 26, 2021)

"Each demon that attacked Lord Krishna in Vrindaban 5000 years ago represented a particular material affliction, such as envy, anger, lust, etc. Putana was a poisoner but adopted the disguise of a very beautiful woman to gain everyone's trust, just as those who poisoned Srila Prabhupada appeared to be very devoted and advanced devotees who were selflessly serving the pure devotee. It was pretense." (Naveen Krishna das, 2021)

The title of this chapter (Poisoning of His Divine Grace) has a double meaning. One, it refers to the heavy metal poisoning of Srila Prabhupada's body. Two, it also refers to ISKCON's blocking and obstruction of Srila Prabhupada's divine grace or mercy upon millions of lost souls. After poisoning his body and Srila Prabhupada decided to depart, then Srila Prabhupada's universal availability was denied and obstructed by false doctrines, insisted upon by ambitious men who thought that they had become the next link in the parampara. ISKCON's misleaders are steering everyone AWAY from Srila Prabhupada, and instead to their non-liberated "gurus" by aggressively discouraging one and all, through false philosophy and corrupt institutional doctrines, from accepting Srila Prabhupada, who can actually free them from material bondage. It is actually the official ISKCON doctrine that Srila Prabhupada cannot be your connection to Lord Krishna, you will need to choose one of the vote approved ISKCON gurus instead. This is the worst harm one could ever do to anyone in this material world- deny them access to their sure opportunity to end all their suffering forever. It is worse than a doctor denying his dying patient a life-saving miracle medicine because then he would make less in fees. The mercy and blessings of Srila Prabhupada are being impeded, and his divine grace has been poisoned by the deviations and changes made to his Mission and books. How disgustingly atrocious and upsetting. This must be remedied so that Srila Prabhupada's divine grace once more flows freely.

"For sure I can say with certainty that Srila Prabhupada is my direct and current link to the disciplic succession. He is the guru in whom I have, or endeavor to have, absolute faith- the guru without whose mercy I would have no chance to progress in Krishna consciousness." (Dhira Govinda das, 2016) This statement is intolerable in ISKCON today; devotees are falsely indoctrinated that Srila Prabhupada's divine grace was only for those before 1978. Srila Prabhupada is now a "previous acharya." Personal relationships with Srila Prabhupada as the primary guru who will deliver one Back to Godhead are prohibited as a dangerous heresy. "One who understands and appreciates the disciplic succession is certainly advanced, and we should always be very careful to give full respect to those who have so carefully handled this Divine Fruit of transcendental knowledge before us. Even a slight change will spoil it. That is why I have always been so careful to give you only those things which I have heard from my Guru Maharaja ." (SPL Hansadutta Aug. 1967)

DOES THE MERCY STOP FLOWING...?

The conditioned souls with demoniac consciousness, otherwise simply called demons, are always adverse to the plans of the Supreme Lord and the activities of His pure devotees such as Srila Prabhupada. Such demons try to obstruct, sabotage, interfere, undermine, and counteract the merciful blessings from the pure devotee upon all conditioned souls, including themselves. Consciously or not, their intent is to stop the delivery of Srila Prabhupada's mercy. Two perfect examples are seen in the adulteration of his sacred books with endless, unnecessary revisions and the false doctrines which misguide innocent, sincere persons to the shelter of false and cheating gurus instead of Srila Prabhupada's lotus feet. Not satisfied with stealing the assets of the pure devotee, they also resort to imitating him, by sitting on his worshipable seat or by enjoying the sucking of misplaced devotion out of spiritual seekers. Like vampires who are addicted to drinking fresh blood, these rascals relish and thrive on the energy and devotion of their followers. It is quite sinister upon close analysis. But the plans and efforts of the demons (and those bewildered by them) are always futile, and their actions often are part of the transcendental pastimes of the Supreme Lord and His pure devotee. Lord Chaitanya's movement is preordained to succeed and change the face of the earth in a very dramatic way, ushering in a "Golden Age" of ten thousand years. So whatever setbacks to the movement that are effected by the demoniac are unsustainable and only temporary. Even the worst imaginable pollution and devastation during Kali Yuga will be completely normalized and reversed when Satya Yuga arrives by the design of the creators, Lord Krishna and Brahma. Similarly, Srila Prabhupada's mercy, legacy, books, availability, and divine grace cannot be impeded in the bigger picture, despite the influence and actions of demoniac forces. Dedicated followers of Srila Prabhupada want to protect the spiritual message and transcendental mission from the demoniac forces (which are not accidental or random). Although the Hare Krishna movement has experienced serious setbacks since Srila Prabhupada's manifest departure, the Will of the Supreme Lord will wash aside all these paltry setbacks with more spiritual mercy. It is guaranteed, inevitable. So the blockage of Srila Prabhupada's divine mercy will not be denied any sincere soul, by Krishna's grace. This does not mean, however, that the work of the asuras has no effect. The success of our service and Srila Prabhupada's mission are at stake. It is a war between good and evil of the highest importance and order.

(1) "You have asked about whether nuclear devastation on this planet would effect the Sankirtana Movement. No, there is nothing that can stop the Sankirtana Movement because it is the will of God Himself, Lord Chaitanya, that His Holy Name be heard in every town and village. Neither can the demons devastate this planet independent of the will of Krishna. Nothing happens without His sanction. If Krishna wants to kill someone no one can save Him, and if Krishna wants to save someone no one can kill him." (SPL June 22, 1973) (2) "These rogues are the most dangerous elements in human society. Because there is no religious government, they escape punishment by the law of the state. They cannot, however, escape the law of the Supreme, who has clearly declared in the Bhagavad-gita that envious demons in the garb of religious propagandists shall be thrown into the darkest regions of hell (BGita 16.19-20). Sri Isopanisad confirms that these pseudo religionists are heading toward the most obnoxious place in the universe after the completion of their spiritual master business, which they conduct simply for sense gratification." (Isopanisad 12) (3) "The true acharya, the spiritual master of the entire world, must be considered an incarnation of Krishna's mercy." (CC Antya 7.12 purport) (4) "The sun is far above the planetary systems, and there is no possibility of its being covered by any kind of cloud; similarly, when a devotee is purified like the sun, from his pure heart there is a diffusion of ecstatic love which is more glorious than the sunshine." (Nectar of Devotion, Ch. 17) (5) "Vaishnava is the ocean of mercy. There is no end. As you cannot, I mean to say, draw all the waters from the ocean, it is not possible. Similarly, a Vaishnava, a devotee... ocean of mercy. You can draw from it as much mercy as you like, still, it is full." (SPLecture Boston Dec. 1969) (6) "The mercy of the spiritual master is always there, but we have to take it. Just like the sun, it is there for everyone, but we at least have to stand in a receptive place to get the benefit." (SPL Dec. 8, 1975) The divine Will of the Supreme Lord cannot be frustrated. Dumb demons.

SERVICE TO THE PURE DEVOTEE WITH ILL MOTIVATION

We now know from the scientific evidence that there was a homicidal poisoning of Srila Prabhupada, which, of course, occurred only by the sanction of the Supreme Lord. The final pastimes of Srila Prabhupada resembles Jesus Christ's crucifixion, where the pure devotee willingly accepts the Lord's arrangement without protest. Srila Prabhupada was aware of being poisoned when he said "Someone has poisoned me" just days before his departure and he probably knew this much earlier in 1977. The absence of his protest or any resistance, or even acknowledgement, prior to his last days, can be understood as his surrender to Krishna's plan, while, out of his boundless mercy, even while he accepted service from those who were his poisoners.

In SBhag 9.11.23 purport Srila Prabhupada wrote: "Here in this material world, everyone is envious of someone else. Even in religious life, it is sometimes found that if one devotee has advanced in spiritual activities, other devotees are envious of him... One becomes envious because of being influenced by the designations of the body, but the liberated devotee has nothing to do with the body, and therefore he is completely on the transcendental platform. A devotee is never envious of anyone, even his enemy. Because the devotee knows that the Lord is his supreme protector, he thinks: 'What harm can the so-called enemy do?' Thus a devotee is confident about his protection." This answers doubts why Srila Prabhupada did not protest or act to stop his poisoning. We should not assume that Srila Prabhupada would behave as we would. Further to this subject is found in Perfect Questions, Perfect Answers, a conversation with Srila Prabhupada where he described that his own spiritual master had a disciple with the "personal motivation to do business with my Guru Maharaja." But Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati did not reject the disciple, and accepted his service just as baby Krishna accepted Putana who came to offer her poisoned breast milk with the secret motive of killing Him. Krishna accepted her service as a mother, for which Putana was liberated, and He overlooked her murderous intent, being very merciful. Similarly, Srila Prabhupada accepted the services of those who were secretly poisoning him, being very merciful and not concerned for himself, knowing that the poisoners would be greatly benefited by their service. They were spreading Krishna consciousness even during their secret plans to hijack the movement. Srila Prabhupada was not tricked nor ignorant of their plans; he was just more kind than we can imagine. The service performed by the poisoners, acting as devotees, engaged in bhakti-yoga and working to spread Krishna consciousness, was Srila Prabhupada's primary concern. His causeless mercy.

WOULD PRABHUPADA ALLOW HIMSELF TO BE POISONED?

Wouldn't Srila Prabhupada put a stop to being poisoned? Not necessarily, as we learn from the examples of Jesus Christ, Haridas Thakur, and child Prahlad about their tolerant, dependent demeanor. "A sadhu, who has got the shelter of Krishna, if he is placed in the severest type of dangerous condition, he is never disturbed. Just like Prahlada Maharaja, his father was putting him in so many dangerous conditions, even he was supplying with poison. He knew that 'My father has given me poison to drink. All right, let me drink. If Krishna likes, He will save me. I am now put into such dangerous position. I have to drink. Father is giving poison. Who can check?' And such a big powerful Hiranyakasipu. The mother cried, requested... He forced the mother, Prahlada's mother, 'Give your son this poison.' [...] What can he do, a small child? 'All right, let me drink.' [...] He is not agitating. 'All right, if Krishna likes, I will live.’ This is the position of sadhu. He is not disturbed. Titiksavah. In all circumstances, he is tolerant. That is sadhu. [...] At the same time, karunikah. He is himself disturbed, but he is merciful to others.” (SPLecture July 18, 1973)

By his causeless mercy and kindness to those who were giving him some service, even while being poisoned, Srila Prabhupada tolerated their offenses and continued to preach until he decided to depart this nasty material world. The liberated soul is very tolerant of offenses made against himself.

In Chaitanya Bhagwat by Vrindaban das Thakur, Haridas Thakur’s being beaten and whipped in 22 marketplaces is described. Upon being sentenced to punishment, Haridas said, “Whatever the Supreme Lord desires is destined to happen and no one can check it.” By the grace of Krishna, Haridas felt little pain and throughout his beating by the soldiers, he prayed, “O Lord, please be merciful upon these poor souls so that they may not be punished for their offenses.” Yet due to Haridas Thakur’s being a pure devotee and in possession of all mystic powers, he did not die when beat enough to kill an ordinary man many times over. When the soldiers became distressed that they could not kill him, they worried for their own safety due to their ruler’s wrath. Haridas kindly accommodated them and entered into samadhi, appearing to have died. Jesus Christ was also a pure devotee of Krishna and possessed mystic powers, evidenced by his many miracles. But when he was whipped, tortured and crucified, he made no objection and did not try to extricate himself from his predicament, accepting it—“Thy will be done.” Then he prayed for his executioners, “Lord, forgive them, for they know not what they do.” Srila Prabhupada knew very well that he was being poisoned and yet did not protest. This was explored at length in Ch. 101-102 in Book One.

JESUS COULD NOT BE KILLED; NEITHER SRILA PRABHUPADA WAS KILLED

On Apr. 16, 1977, after his own poisoning had started, during conversations with Ram Jethmalani Srila Prabhupada made clear that Jesus Christ only appeared to be killed by crucifixion. Similarly, we should not think that Srila Prabhupada’s poisoners were successful in killing him, but that Srila Prabhupada departed when he chose to do so. SP: Therefore according to history, he retired. That is resurrection. He went to Kashmir. ‘It is hopeless.’ Tamal: He didn't die on the cross. SP: It is not possible to kill him. Such a great personality, representative of God, he is not killed. That is not possible. Tamal: Simply by putting some wounds. SP: He made a show that "I am killed." That is resurrection. And when you finished your business, then he will go (indistinct). Tamal: They say that when he got down they rubbed his body with oils. SP: He was a great yogi and so on. Tamal: You remember in that book you were reading, The Aquarian Gospel. It mentioned how he learned yoga when he came to India. SP: We admit. Guru Maharaja said shaktyavesha-avatara, powerful incarnation. Therefore whenever there was question of Jesus, I never disrespected Jesus. Never criticized him, because I know that he is powerful representative of God. We took it from Guru Maharaja... He said that Christ is shaktyavesha-avatara, as Buddha. How he can be otherwise? He sacrificed everything for God. He cannot be ordinary man. During Srila Prabhupada’s the last month, several times doctors were very surprised at the sudden strength of his heart or the sudden improvement of the kidneys’ infection. The poison may not have had much effect on his health. As Jesus appeared to expire on the cross, similarly Srila Prabhupada appeared to deteriorate in health due to the cadmium poisoning. But he departed on his own schedule, regardless of poisoning, as it was Lord Krishna’s desire for his going to preach elsewhere.

A POWERFUL OMEN

Niscintya das became disturbed when he heard Srila Prabhupada may have been poisoned. The doubts plagued him day and night, and finally he decided to seek divine guidance. Praying, chanting, worshipping Lord Nrsinghadeva, for hours he meditated, “Was Srila Prabhupada poisoned?” Then, closing his eyes, he reached at random for a book on his shelf, allowing the book to open to whatever page it would. He opened his eyes, and had his answer, an omen to dispel all his doubts. The book was Srimad Bhagwatam, Canto 8, Ch. 7, Text 42: Lord Siva saves the universe by drinking poison produced by the churning of the milk ocean.

ISKCON HAS BECOME AN ABERRANT SECT AND A BROKEN BRANCH

Due to so many deviations, corruptions, and rampant disobedience of Srila Prabhupada's standards and instructions for ISKCON, the institution which was supposed to carry Krishna consciousness all over the world, has now become an aberrant sect, an apa-sampradaya. It is no longer the organization which Srila Prabhupada established. In terms of its activities, philosophy, standards, goals, leadership, purity, purpose, operations... it is another species entirely than what it was in the 1970's. It is legitimately questioned whether ISKCON is still connected to the Chaitanya tree, how much more it can grow in its diseased, dying condition. Just as Bhaktivinoda Thakura was dismayed by the state of Lord Chaitanya's mission in the late 1800's due to sahajiya-ism, and just as after Bhaktisiddhanta departed the Gaudiya Math deteriorated into useless factions that had no preaching spirit, so also ISKCON has become a "church" utilized by unauthorized and self-appointed "gurus" to collect money, worship, and disciples. ISKCON has been largely spoiled by materially ambitious exploiters, as the light of pure devotional service in its temples and membership grows dimmer. Madhudhvisa das, younger, 1995: "There is still lip-service to the instructions of Srila Prabhupada and if you talk to one of today's ISKCON devotees they will still talk about Prabhupada and Krishna, but something has changed. The mood of pure devotional service has gone. Practically every religious group on the planet is promoting some sort of mixed devotional service, but that is not bhakti, love, it is business. When he is in need, he turns to God to fulfill his needs and desires, but it is not Krishna consciousness and it is not what Srila Prabhupada established ISKCON for. ISKCON today is where Krishna is served, but not purely. This has developed because of bad leadership who has detoured ISKCON off the right path." CC describes the "Chaitanya tree," of which some branches thrived and grew whilst others became disconnected and died. A diseased or broken branch may still receive a little nourishment but it slowly withers and dies. If ISKCON continues on its present course of errant doctrines and serious deviations, it will soon expire due to receiving no mercy from Srila Prabhupada. The disciplic succession is broken. This is already apparent with the institution's chronic diseases of secularization, Hinduization, and materialization. But while the ISKCON branch dies, the Chaitanya tree will sprout new branches to replace ISKCON (if it is not resuscitated and restored back to how it was in 1977). While many believe ISKCON is already too far gone (IT'S GON) and hopelessly unrecoverable, others hold hope for its restoration. It is up to Krishna and Srila Prabhupada, and us.

ISKCON HAS LOST ITS LINK TO SRILA PRABHUPADA AND HIS MERCY

Due to the enormous weight and seriousness of the disobedience and deviations in ISKCON, as studied in these volumes, the consequence is that ISKCON has lost its link with Srila Prabhupada and that the flow and delivery of "his divine grace" and mercy is cut off and interrupted. Those who understand this will have no interest in participating or associating with such a deviated, polluted, and offensive institution. Just as one is strictly cautioned not to associate with karmis (materialists) lest he become affected by the material disease of karmic activities, so also a sincere spiritual seeker must be very cautious that his spiritual progress not be hindered by association with severe offenders of the bona fide spiritual master, Srila Prabhupada. Srila Prabhupada wrote to the early devotees in New York who were confused when Kirtanananda had deviated from Srila Prabhupada's standards and instructions: "...but recently he has lost his link on account of disobedience. [...] Kirtanananda has developed a different consciousness of Maya which is called misuse of one's minute independence offered by Krishna. [...] one at once becomes a victim of Maya and thus he loses all importance in Krishna Consciousness. [...] He must rectify his mistake..." (SPL Oct 6, 1967)

INTERFERENCE WITH OTHERS' RECEIVING SRILA PRABHUPADA'S MERCY IS EVIL

Sulochan das wrote in 1985 about the unauthorised gurus and the effects they had on devotees: "Prabhupada says that the most dangerous are those who exploit others in the name of religion. They are the most dangerous because they hurt people in the deepest way possible—their souls. This world has only one purpose; to teach people to surrender to God. When society is infested with rogues posing as saints, that stops the progress of human life." The divine grace or mercy of the pure devotee is like the sunshine- it is available to anyone who wants it. But the unauthorised gurus redirect innocent souls into the darkness, away from Srila Prabhupada's divine grace, by restricting devotees' surrender to him and interfering in their relationships with him, insisting on themselves being the central focal point of spiritual attention. This great and evil crime will not go unpunished. It is such a sad and disturbing phenomenon, that when Srila Prabhupada, an exalted ambassador of Godhead, has finally arrived to benedict the fallen souls with Lord Chaitanya's mercy, that a swarm of envious, ambitious rascal-insects block the progress of suffering souls to lure them into the darkness of their selfish delusions. Parasite is a word that comes to mind. These misleaders are the among the greatest enemies of humanity, far worse than those who commit genocide, promote abortions, operate slaughterhouses, or propagate endless wars for profit, since they harm the soul's eternal welfare, not just the condition of a temporary physical body which is extraneous to the soul. This catastrophic cheating deprives countless souls, who are lost in a nightmare world of repeated birth and death, of their extremely rare chance (one in a trillion?) to find their forever happiness and full knowledge of the Absolute Truth. This is worse than tearing away someone's beloved child or wife, or stealing a man's entire wealth, or hoaxing a deadly virus pandemic for billions in drug profits. Although modern moral standards in mundane society hold the taking of a person's physical life (murder) as the greatest evil, actually the cheating by imposter gurus and Prabhupada-minimizers is a far greater evil. If a murderer is punishable with death, what punishment is appropriate for one who denies another of spiritual salvation, doing this for personal greed and perverted enjoyment? Is there anything more evil? In addition, if we include the crime of high treason, which is what ISKCON misleaders are doing in their betrayal of Srila Prabhupada and the devotees, then the "guru business" of imposters and fake cheaters who deny Srila Prabhupada to others, while exploiting Srila Prabhupada's assets and reputation like leeches and vampires, then we understand such men to be true demons. So the description in Sri Isopanisad about false gurus going to hell is not an exaggeration, nor an overly extreme characterization of their fate.

May Srila Prabhupada's divine grace and transcendental mercy no longer be impeded or corrupted by those who poisoned his body and his spiritual mission. "What Srila Prabhupada said about Christ is relevant, and even if Srila Prabhupada prayed for their forgiveness, which certainly he did, we cannot forgive. Our duty as I see it, now that the proof is complete, is to discredit the leadership since that time for allowing, if not encouraging so much moral and spiritual corruption to go on, culminating in the highest offense to His Divine Grace, the interpolation of his books and lectures, a direct attack on Srila Prabhupada-vani." (Rupanuga das, former GBC member, July 2017)

Sincere devotees must work hard to end the poisoning of his divine grace.

CHAPTER 148: POISONING SRILA PRABHUPADA'S BOOKS

Soon after Srila Prabhupada's disappearance, while most devotees were preoccupied with the guru and initiation chaos created by the zonal acharyas with their guru appointment hoax, a few others were busy adulterating Srila Prabhupada's books, starting with the Gita. These book "changes" were not limited to punctuation or spelling errors, but evolved into a complete rewrite in the 1983 Gita "revised" edition with 5000 changes. Then the Srimad Bhagawatam, the CC, and other books, one after another, were adulterated as well. Jayadvaita Swami and Dravida das worked full-time at the BBT on "revisions," and consternation gradually mounted amongst Srila Prabhupada's followers, who became aware of what had happened after it was already done and printed. With the prolific poisoning of Srila Prabhupada's books, devotees wanted the original books that Srila Prabhupada gave us. Too many Gita verses now sound strange and alien to older devotees who were trained in the original edition. Are these transcendental literatures now spoiled and less potent, less pure, less saturated with the mercy of the pure devotee? Unfortunately the answer is yes.

They tried to kill Srila Prabhupada with heavy metals and then they poisoned his greatest contribution to humanity- his sacred books. There is much online discussion regarding the BBT changes to Srila Prabhupada's books. We will summarize the main points and the questions/issues involved. "I recently talked with a godsister, Divya Drsti, who organizes the New Dvarka Ratha Yatra and she told me how she only recently discovered the extent of the book changes. She thought it was just punctuation and was astounded when she discovered the truth [of the book changes]." (Unknown) It is a broad topic but also simple, as Ramevara das stated in a recently rediscovered 1981 interview: "The first of many experiences I've had with Prabhupada literally drilling me, pounding it into my head that you're never allowed to change anything in his books. He trained me so intensely on this point. Even when the changes make sense he wouldn't let me change."

In Srila Prabhupada's very own words: (1) "So far your telling me that some devotees consider that because there may be some grammatical discrepancies in my Srimad-Bhagavatam, first canto, then they may also be allowed to translate with errors accepted, that is just like imitating Raslila. When you do all other things like Krishna, then you can do Raslila. So if these other writers can do like me and spread Krishna Consciousness all over the world by becoming big Vedic scholars, then they can do. If one is too big, there is no mistake. 'Arsapreyaya' means there may be discrepancies but it is all right. Just like Shakespeare, sometimes there are odd usages of language, but he is accepted as authority. I have explained all these things in my Preface to First Canto." (SPL Mandali Bhadra Jan. 20, 1972) (2) Even a slight change will spoil it. (SPL Hansadutta Aug. 1967) (3) SP: So you bring this to Satsvarupa. They cannot change anything. (SPConv June 22, 1977) "Everyday when I sit down here to write these books Krishna personally comes and dictates every word." (SPConv) (5) "You have taken the right view of the importance of my books. Books will always remain. That was the view of my Guru Maharaja, and I also have taken it. Therefore I started my movement with my books. And we shall be able to maintain everything with the sales of the books. The temples will be maintained by the book sales, and if there are no more temples, then the books shall remain." (SPL Hansadutta Nov. 8, 1973)

Srila Prabhupada's transcendental books are his legacy. They will do everything, and are complete for anyone to utilize for going back to Godhead. (1) "Every one of you must regularly read our books at least twice, in the morning and evening, and automatically all questions will be answered." (SPL Jan. 24, 1970) (2) "There is nothing new to be said. Whatever I had to say, I have already said in my books. Now you must try to understand it and continue with your endeavours. Whether I am present or not does not matter." (SPConv May 17, 1977) (3) "If it is possible to go to the temple, then take advantage of the temple. A temple is a place whereby one is given the opportunity to render direct devotional service to the Supreme Lord Sri Krishna. In conjunction with this you should always read my books daily and all your questions will be answered and you will have a firm basis of Krishna Consciousness. In this way your life will be perfect." (SPL Nov. 22, 1974) (4) "After 80 years, no one can be expected to live long. My life is almost ended. So you have to carry on, and these books will do everything." (SPConv Feb. 18, 1976) (5) "Any way, whatever your position may be simply follow the rules carefully, chant 16 rounds and read my books and you will be saved from Maya." (SPL Mar. 18, 1975) (6) Reporter: Who will succeed you when you die? SP: I will never die! Devotees: Jaya! Haribol! SP: I will live forever from my books and you will utilise. (SP Interview July 17, 1975)

SRILA PRABHUPADA EMPHASIZED THE DISTRIBUTION OF HIS BOOKS

Between 1966 and 1977 Srila Prabhupada wrote and published an amazing number of books, almost eighty 400 page books. He constantly stressed that the most important aspect of the Krishna consciousness movement was the distribution of his books. This inspired his disciples to distribute books in unbelievable quantities such that the world had never before seen such a huge quantity of religious books sold so quickly and widely. Srila Prabhupada was so enthusiastic about distributing his books unlimitedly because they were all transcendental sound vibrations that would change the lives of anyone who read even a page or a line. Tens of thousands of lost souls in the western countries became devotees of Krishna due to the books that contained the timeless science of Krishna consciousness as it was being handed down through the disciplic succession from Lord Krishna Himself. They are not speculative interpretations but absolute, authorized knowledge. Reading Srila Prabhupada's books is direct association with Krishna himself and transports the reader to the spiritual world. Even seeing or touching one of these books will bring auspiciousness, and the devotees distributing these books are giving Krishna to the conditioned souls. Srila Prabhupada's emphasis on book distribution and his great satisfaction on hearing of devotees successfully distributing his books inspired them to increase more and more. The 1970's saw huge results in spreading Krishna consciousness through the distribution of Srila Prabhupada's books.

"Again I am feeling overjoyed at hearing your increased distribution program and I request you to increase more and more. There can be no limit to our distribution because Krishna is unlimited, so you may instruct the devotees about this." (SPL Nityananda das Feb. 18, 1973) "There is no doubt about it, to distribute books is our most important activity. The temple is a place not for eating and sleeping, but as a base from which we send out our soldiers to fight with maya. Fight with maya means to drop thousands and millions of books into the lap of the conditioned souls. Just like during war time the bombs are raining from the sky like anything." (SPL Ramevara Aug. 3, 73)

"Wherever devotees took distributing Srila Prabhupada's books as their life and soul everything was auspicious. There were plenty of enthusiastic devotees and the mood was ecstatic. The experience of a book distributor who was prepared to tolerate the difficulties and go out and sell Srila Prabhupada's books to people, who were initially not very interested, and to see them become transformed in front of their eyes, simply by touching the book and hearing the philosophy of Krishna consciousness, is impossible to explain. Every devotee was practically seeing Krishna work every day. The devotees were practically realizing the philosophy of Krishna consciousness. The book distributors were getting practical realization of Krishna consciousness and they were experiencing a variety of transcendental bliss that is very, very rare." (Madhudhvisa das, younger, 1995)

SRILA PRABHUPADA'S WORKS ARE CONCLUSIVE

Hasti Gopala das notes important points (2012): "All of Srila Prabhupada's original literary works are conclusive, as their content put an end to doubt, questions or uncertainty; they inform decisively. Any illegal changes to these literary works leaves them inconclusive, or not finally settled, interminate. This is a fact because the presence of literary changes without reference to the original texts leaves the readers unknowingly abandoned. This we know from the perspective of the original texts and their pundits. These surreptitious changes are disguised as a benefit to humanity [...] The contrived excuse, not backed up by Vedic literary laws, of the existence of Srila Prabhupada's so called literary short comings clearly indicates serious short comings of the so called scholars of the BBT, which includes Jayadvaita Swami. Why? Because it took him and the BBT five years after the person they claim as their most infallible spiritual master to pass away, to publish their audacious revisions to his Bhagavad Gita. Why not present these massive changes while he was physically present? That in itself indicates motive to deceive the world's people for reasons the book changers only understand. The BBT and it's contributors have not, after 35 years, produced one independent literary Vedic commentary work. Yet they claim to understand perfectly what is "wrong" with the works of their founder. The massive changes wrongly indicate defects in Srila Prabhupada's books and are a deep offence to him."

BBT'S RATIONALE FOR "REVISING" SRILA PRABHUPADA'S BOOKS

Does the BBT (dominated by "book-changer" Jayadvaita Swami/JS) maybe have good reasons for "changing" Srila Prabhupada's books, that maybe there are some rationales which make sense, that maybe the fuss is unnecessary? The conclusion is that their reasons are fraught with defects and deceit. So if there is no good reason for it, and Srila Prabhupada himself has already clearly and strongly spoken against changing his books, then why are they doing it? This contradiction leads one to think that perhaps these book-changers are not the sincere devotees they seem to be; so what or who else could they be? Who would do this? What happens when the Acharya's instructions are deviated from, changed, or disobeyed? Disaster and chaos.

(1) RETURNING CLOSER TO THE ORIGINAL MANUSCRIPT? Some changes to BGita are justified by the BBT/JS by referring back to what they call the "original manuscript," a transcript of Srila Prabhupada's initial dictation of the book. This was the first draft, from which Srila Prabhupada and his editor Hayagriva das did major revisions in their preparation for the 1972 printing by Macmillan Co. Madhudhvisa das, younger, Jan. 20, 2017 wrote: "Govinda dasi's essay gives personal eyewitness proof that Srila Prabhupada spent a lot of time working with Hayagriva Prabhu, the principle editor of Srila Prabhupada's books, to take his Bhagavad-gita As It Is from the first draft to the manuscript that was presented to Macmillan to print the book. What was approved by Srila Prabhupada for printing was the blueprint of the book provided to him by Macmillan, not his first draft. Srila Prabhupada was personally involved in all stages of writing, editing and printing his original BGita, and he lectured from this book constantly from 1972-77 and personally read the book in his leisure time. Excepting of a few obvious typographical errors he never authorized any changes to this book." The "original manuscript" would not be the final pre-press version Srila Prabhupada approved of printing. So why go back to that first draft and reject all the revisions that Srila Prabhupada made with Hayagriva's help? Might the reason be that the BBT editors can then make their own improvements instead and push aside Srila Prabhupada's final version? Why do that? The "original manuscript" or first draft was already edited, so why try to do it better than Srila Prabhupada did it? This is highly offensive and a very devious way to tamper with the books.

(2) RETURNING CLOSER TO THE ORIGINAL MEANING THAT SRILA PRABHUPADA INTENDED? The BBT editors actually claim that their purpose is to return Srila Prabhupada's books closer to the original meanings that were intended by Srila Prabhupada. But who decides what Srila Prabhupada's original intent was? The BBT editors? And they do this after Srila Prabhupada already wrote, edited, and authorized final versions of his books, and he already decided this was the way he intended them to be what he wanted to mean? The rascal BBT editors are so crazy, that they will decide that Srila Prabhupada really meant something that he himself could not express in his original books that he approved and read himself for years? The BBT editors thus make Srila Prabhupada's books seem so imperfect and full of gross errors, which they are not. Their revisions are spoiling the meanings in Srila Prabhupada's books, and there are many examples online of this.

(3) IMPROVEMENTS OF ENGLISH GRAMMAR, PUNCTUATION, SPELLING? This is how they started their editing, with this "reasonable" justification. But Srila Prabhupada instructed that not a comma be changed, that out of respect for the acharya, nothing AT ALL is changed. Their policy is one of audacious, envious, arrogant superiority, and disrespect. So what if a mundane scholar notices an "error"- they would probably have better sense to see that the message is perfect and doesn't need any "improvements." Will they edit Shakespeare, Wordsworth or Melville too? Of course not. No one would tolerate it, so why do we? (4) SRILA PRABHUPADA HAD CONFIDENCE IN JAYADVAITA'S EDITING? JS offers that Srila Prabhupada had written a letter to the BBT in 1976 wherein he said: "Concerning the editing of Jayadvaita Prabhu, whatever he does is approved by me. I have confidence in him." However, that was confidence in editing done under Srila Prabhupada's supervision at that time for a specific area of work authorized by Srila Prabhupada. This does not translate into carte blanche to do editing forever more, even in the face of massive protests from thousands of sincere devotees, including ISKCON scholars, senior men, former GBCs. JS is a rascal cheater.

BBT EDITORS ADMIT THEY HAVE NO AUTHORIZATION FOR CHANGES

(1) Vyapaka das: "Do you have explicit instructions from Srila Prabhupada authorizing you to make post-samadhi changes to his books?" Jayadvaita Swami: "No." (Published e-mail correspondence) (2) Govinda dasi: "...JS has said that Srila Prabhupada did not specifically give him the permission to..." JS: "I never got an explicit word from Srila Prabhupada to do this work at an explicit time." (Conversation on posthumous changes to BGita, Jan. 19, 2003) (3) "To my knowledge, Srila Prabhupada never asked us to re-edit the book." (JS's letter to Amogha Lila, 1986) (4) "In answer to your questions, I don't have any original tape recording of any kind of Srila Prabhupada authorizing the editorial changes in the Gita. And despite scouring the GBC resolutions from 1979-83, I found no reference to BGita whatsoever. It seems the assignment of JS to perform that task was unpublished—at least I couldn't find it in the GBC resolutions. Dravida das” [Editor, BBTI, Apr. 24,1996]

Both Jayadvaita Swami and Dravida das, the leading editors for the BBTI, admit there is no instruction from Srila Prabhupada to edit his Bhagavad-gita nor any other of his books. So why do it?

EDITING SRILA PRABHUPADA'S BOOKS By Narasimha das (excerpts)

“Before Srila Prabhupada’s first revised editions of Srimad-Bhagavatam were complete, we used to study Srila Prabhupada’s first three India volumes. We loved these editions, even though it seemed they were ‘irregularly composed’ and contained obvious typos. We thought Srila Prabhupada’s English was exotic and beautifully poetic [...] Srila Prabhupada’s English was perfect, even from a contemporary American point of view. This became clearly obvious when devotees discovered his early writings in BTG Magazine, his poems, and his first editions of Sri Isopanisad and Easy Journey to Other Planets. [...] Srila Prabhupada very humbly writes in his 1962 Preface: “I must admit my frailties in presenting Srimad-Bhagavatam, but still I am hopeful of its good reception by the thinkers and leaders of society on the strength of the following statement of Srimad-Bhagavatam 1.5.11: ‘On the other hand, that literature which is full with descriptions of the transcendental glories of the name, fame, form and pastimes of the unlimited Supreme Lord is a transcendental creation meant to bring about a revolution in the impious life of a misdirected civilization. Such transcendental literatures, even though irregularly composed, are heard, sung and accepted by purified men who are thoroughly honest.’ Srila Prabhupada later engaged under his direct supervision some of his educated disciples to make his books technically more presentable for the wider academic community (‘the thinkers and leaders of society’). He accepted their service and finalized those authorized editions.

“On the other hand, when Lord Chaitanya was playing His pastimes of being a scholar, before He manifested His pastimes of pure devotional service, He used to try to debate devotees on topics of philosophy, grammar, and logic. [...] Then one day Lord Chaitanya met Isvara Puri who stayed in Navadvipa Dhama at the house of Gopinatha Acharya for a few months and offered him obeisances, regularly going to see Him. Isvara Puri taught Nimai Pandit his book, Sri Krishna-lilamrita, and after a while asked Nimai Pandit to point out the technical mistakes in his book to correct any mistakes. Bhaktisiddhanta Saravasti Thakura comments: ‘Hearing his words, the Lord condemned mundane scholarship and spoke the following invaluable nectarean words: “First of all, this book is composed by such a pure devotee as Puripada, and, moreover, it is full of topics about Krishna. Therefore, whoever finds faults in this book is certainly an offender. The poetry of a pure devotee, in whatever form it may be, is always pleasing to Krishna. There is no doubt about it. The Supreme Lord never sees any grammatical faults in the statements of His devotees. A person who finds faults in the statements of a devotee is himself full of faults. No one is so audacious as to find faults in the descriptions of the Supreme Lord by a pure devotee like Puripada.”” (Sri Chaitanya-bhagavata Ch. 11)

“Srila Prabhupada himself, while he was personally present, clearly and forcefully condemned the unauthorized changes in his own books as unwanted editing. He forbade it several times, as has been well documented. Thus it is astonishing to hear arguments from self-appointed ISKCON editors defending their continuous unauthorized, unasked for, and bogus revisions, which they stubbornly promote against the wishes of all sincere followers and senior disciples of Srila Prabhupada. Their agenda, apparently, is to minimize Srila Prabhupada’s importance, suggesting he was a fallible conditioned soul like they are and a mere worker or servant in ISKCON, like they are supposed to be. Until such miscreants [...] are purged from the leadership of ISKCON, the institutions Srila Prabhupada created may remain in great peril.” (END)

HOW TO TELL IF YOUR BOOK IS ORIGINAL OR “CHANGED”

The original 1972 “first” edition is sub-titled “Complete Edition.” In 1983, the second edition was released sub-titled “Revised and Enlarged Edition.” Check the dates and these particulars in your BGita to determine if your book is changed or original. One can spot check Ch. 4, Text 34, and see if it reads “The self-realized soul” (original version) or “The self-realized souls” (revised edition). The new ISKCON gurus had to also be self-realized souls, so they “updated” the BGita accordingly, whereas Srila Prabhupada had written “soul,” meaning himself. Yasodanandana das wrote: “Soon after your departure some of your editors, under pretexts of improving your BGita As It Is, impertinently deleted your honorific title of the “greatest exponent of Krishna consciousness in the Western World” from the original edition. They even had the audacity to delete your Guru Maharaja’s picture, Gaura Kishora das Babaji’s picture and Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakura’s picture.”

The original KRISHNA BOOK edition was in 1970. All editions printed before 1978 are original, authorized versions. Chaitanya Charitamrita and Srimad Bhagwatam also have many changes made to them, but not as many as the Bhagavad Gita. Still, any changes should be avoided. The omission of one word in Chaitanya Charitamrita has completely changed the meaning of a very important passage regarding initiation (see below). Check the front matter for dates and ascertain for yourself if the books you have are pure or adulterated, potent or compromised. There is no doubt that unauthorized changes diminish the potency therein. Just like fruit juice: the more water is added, the less it’s taste is appreciated due to dilution.

SRILA PRABHUPADA QUOTES ABOUT MAKING BOOK CHANGES

(1) “Suppose there is a law of the state, ordinary, say, ‘Keep to the right,’ and in this village, all members, they assemble together and pass a resolution that ‘No, keep to the left.’ Will it be accepted? Even they pass a resolution, the state will not accept it... Of course, there should be no change. But, anything spoken by God or His son or His representative, that cannot be changed. It is not that Christ said 2000 years ago, ‘Thou shall not kill,’ now it can be changed. That is rascaldom. They are doing that. If you do that, then, as it is said here, then it becomes lost. Then there is no meaning. If we take the instruction of God and His representative as temporary, then he is not representative, He is not God. Whatever is spoken by God and His representative, that is eternal. You cannot change by your whims. So, that is going on... by votes in the Parliament, they pass any nonsense thing, so they want to do that in the case of Bible also. Then where is the authority of Bible? If Christ says that ‘Thou shall not kill,’ and if people, say 10,000 people in a meeting pass resolution, ‘No, this is wrong,’ then where is the authority of Bible?” (SPConv June 30, 1976) (2) “Because so far Krishna consciousness movement, now many swamis went there and they preached Bhagavad-gita also, but not a single person became a devotee of Krishna for the last hundreds of years. But now Bhagavad-gita is being presented as it is, and people are taking it by hundreds, thousands. ...this Bhagavad-gita as it is, we do not change anything.” (SPConv Apr. 18, 1974) (3) “No. Therefore, why they are changing? We don’t change, millions of years. What Krishna said, we are following the same. But they change every year.” (SPConv Mar. 22, 1976) (4) “One who understands and appreciates the disciplic succession is certainly advanced, and we should always be very careful to give full respect to those who have so carefully handled this Divine Fruit of transcendental knowledge before us. Even a slight change will spoil it. That is why I have always been so careful to give you only those things which I have heard from my Guru Maharaja.” (SPL Hansadutta Aug. 1967) (5) “There is no change. Therefore shastra means it is for all the time, not that shastra was meant in the past for something else, and now something else. That is not the fact. That is, means, shastra, that it does not change. The time, place and atmosphere, according to that, everything is the same.” (SPLecture Feb 7, 1975) (6) “That is the trouble with you westerners, always changing. No changes should be made without first consulting with my GBC representative. So, the children should immediately be allowed to chant on their japa beads.” (SPL Yadunandana May 14, 1975) (7) SP: That is opinion, the opinion is changing. How you can rely? That is not fixed up. So what is this opinion, what is the value of this opinion? You give some opinion, and after some years you change it... How can I rely on your opinion? Reporter: Would Darwin's theory of evolution... SP: Whatever it may be. If it is being changed every year or every ten years, then what is the value of this opinion? There is no value. Reporter: Well, but religious thought in India has changed too. SP: No. Nothing. We do not change... Reporter: Others change. SP: Ah, others may deviate, that's another thing. But the system is not that. You cannot deviate from the Vedic injunction that if you have to follow the acharyas, just like India is obeying. The mass population or the sane population, they are following the acharyas. Acharyas means great teachers, bona fide teachers [...] just like Ramanujacharya, Madhvacharya, Nimbarka, Vishnu Svami, Lord Chaitanya. So they are followed, and they are of the same opinion. Millions of years ago, what was the opinion, and that opinion is still there. (SPConv: June 4, 1976) (8) "You cannot change one comma not even a punctuation mark, that is the etiquette! [...] Don't you dare change the picture on my book! I have deliberately chosen the picture of Vishnu because I want this book to be attracting the Mayavadis and impersonalists. [...] If you put anything bogus in my book, this is my greatest fear that you will ruin my book and the whole book will be ruined because of you!" (Ramesvara interview, 1981, citing Prabhupada)

(9) "Many times they give me very great credit that I have done wonderful. Yes, I have done wonderful. But what is the reason? Because I am not a rascal. I speak what Krishna has spoken. That's all. Very easy. Everyone can do that. Not only I. Any of you, you can do this. Simply speak what Krishna has said. That's all. Don't make addition, alteration. Then you become rascal. Immediately..." (SPLecture Aug 10, 1974) (10) "He's giving some examples, but the knowledge has to be received by the parampara. But some way or other, the parampara being lost... Just like I have spoken something to my disciple. He says the same thing to his disciple. He says the same thing to his disciple. But some way or other, if it is distorted at a certain point, then the knowledge is lost. As soon as any of the disciples in the succession distort the knowledge, then it is lost. That is being explained." (SPLecture Mar. 22, 1974) (11) *"He was disturbed. He ordered Tamal Krishna to write at once to the BBT and stop these speculations by his disciples changing his books in the name of editing The devotees were startled to see Prabhupada so angry; he was supposed to be peacefully relishing a Srimad-Bhagavatam reading in his garden. Such a change was very serious, he said, because it changed the meaning. 'Even if the authorized acharyas would make a mistake,' he said, 'it would not be changed. This is arsaprayoga. In this way the acharyas are honored.'" (SPLilamrita, Ch. 52) (12) "Just like milk is very nutritious food, but if a little milk is touched by the tongue of a serpent, whole thing is spoiled. A serpent, a very thin tongue, if he touches the milk, oh, the whole milk is spoiled. So if we take such milk, 'Oh, milk is very nice,' no. Because it is touched by the serpent's lip, it should not be taken. Similarly, any transcendental message, any Vedic literature, unless it is presented by a self-realized devotee, it is poison. You simply misunderstand the whole thing, and you do not get the benefit. Rather, you become a victim of misunderstanding." (SPLecture May 9, 1969)*

SO WHEN YOU CHANGE, THE AUTHORITY IS LOST: May 9, 1975 Perth

SP: Then on the whole it comes that his (Jesus) instructions are sometimes contradictory.
Paramahansa (PH): Not only that but they say that... the Bible has gone through so many interpretations and so many changes in the last two thousand years that... SP: Yes. It is very difficult.
PH: I've talked to professors who know the original Hebrew and the original tongues that the Bible was written in. They say that it has changed so much that you can hardly... SP: Yes, they are changing. Just like he said, "Thou shall not kill." They are now changing, "Thou shall not commit murder." They are doing that. PH: Yes. They have a modern Bible, using all modern terminology. SP: So, when you change, then the authority is lost. Just like in our society, sometimes they do something nonsense and they say, "Prabhupāda said." (laughter) They are doing that. We know that. It is deteriorated like that. Therefore Krishna said, sa kaleneha mahata yogo nastah kaunteya: "And in due course of time, this yoga was lost. Therefore I am repeating the same thing, old philosophy to you." So it requires like that.
PH: One thing about the Christian religion is [...] SP: So how you'll find, if everything is now changed? Where you will get the right information? PH: That's the problem. That's why there are so many hundreds of branches of Christianity... So many divisions of Christianity. Some people accept this, some people accept this. SP: Therefore we should advocate that Bhagavad-gita is not like that. It is coming in the same form as it was taught to Arjuna. If you challenge that "How you know that it has not been changed?" ...the acharyas are there. The acharyas are there, and they are accepting.

Therefore it is correct. [...] All the acharyas [...] they accept. They never say that "This was not in the original scripture. It has been changed." You don't find any such statement of the acharyas. The best thing, therefore, if you want a religious system, Bhagavad-gita is coming without any contradiction, change, for the last 5000 years. You accept it. Other scriptures are (unclear), and there are so many doubts, so many interpretations. So, if you want real religious system, this is the scripture spoken directly by God, and accepted by all the acharyas, so take it [...] PH: The Christians openly admit the Bible has been changed [...] Actually if anyone looks at Bhagavad-gita As It Is, presented by yourself, then they can logically see that it is perfect. SP: Yes, we have got our argument, logic, everything. Why should we blindly follow? Ganesh: [...] Srila Prabhupada, if the knowledge was handed down by the saintly kings, evam parampara-praptam [BGita 4.2], how is it that the knowledge was lost? SP: When it was not handed down. Simply understood by speculation. Or if it is not handed down as it is. They might have made some changes. Or they did not hand it down. Suppose I handed it down to you, but if you do not do that, then it is lost. Now the Kṛṣṇa consciousness movement is going on in my presence. Now after my deparature, if you do not do this, then it is lost. If you go on as you are doing now, then it will go on. But if you stop... (END)

The Christian scripture, the Holy Bible, has no copies earlier than 300 years after Christ died. But there is a large body of scholars with research and evidence showing the Bible was originally much different than the one we have today or even the one from 300 A.D. From Steven Rosen's Food For The Spirit: Vegetarianism and the World Religions, p. 33 we find: "Many scholars assert that at the Council of Nicea (A.D. 325) priests and politicians completely altered original Christian documents, through omission and interpolation, in order to make them acceptable to Emperor Constantine, who, at the time, bitterly opposed the scriptures. Their purpose was to convert Constantine to Christianity... 'Some are not aware,' wrote Archdeacon Wilderforce, 'that after the Council of Nicea, the manuscripts of the New Testament were considerably tampered with. Prof. Nestle, in his Introduction to the Textual Criticism of the Greek Testament, tells us that certain scholars, called "correctors," were appointed by the ecclesiastical authorities, and were actually commissioned to correct the text of the scripture in the interest of what was considered orthodox.' Commenting on this idea in the foreword of his The Gospel of the Holy Twelve, Rev. Gideon Jasper Richard Ousley says: 'What these correctors did was to cut out of the Gospels, with minute care, certain teachings of our Lord which they did not propose to follow- namely, those against the eating of flesh and the taking of strong drink...'"

There is very strong evidence that all references in the original Gospels to karma, reincarnation, and vegetarianism were removed at the Council of Nicea. All previous editions were rigorously hunted down and destroyed. It was a major revision of the Christ's teachings. All books of his original teachings were changed. And today the same catastrophe is occurring with "revisions" to Srila Prabhupada's sacred writings/books.

THE UNAUTHORISED BOGUS BHAGWATAM COMPLETION PROJECT

Srila Prabhupada wanted to complete his translation and commentary on the Srimad Bhagwatam, but by his last days, he had only finished up to Canto 10, Ch. 13, leaving the rest of Canto 10 and Cantos 11 and 12 undone. Of course, he had already given his summary of the tenth canto in Krishna, the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Hansadutta had done a very nice printing of Srila Prabhupada's Bhagwatam work up through "10-3," and then included the Krishna Book as well. This effectively left out only the 11th and 12th cantos.

Pradyumna das ("Panditji"), Srila Prabhupada's Sanskrit editor for many years, was requested by Srila Prabhupada in 1977 to complete the Bhagwatam translation. This assignment to him was not recorded but witnessed by other devotees, including Yasodanandana das, who confirmed in 2016: "It was well understood by the GBC and the senior devotees in 1977 that Pradyumna das was authorized by Srila Prabhupada to finish the Bhagavatam 10, 11 and 12th canto. Pradyumna das was not making his own translations and his own Bhagavatam purports. He was simply translating the bhasyas and tikas [purports and notations] of the great purva acharyas like Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati, Jiva Goswami, Baladeva Vidyabhusana, Sanatana Goswami, etc.”

PRADYUMNA DAS (on right), MAYAPUR 1974

This is verified by Satsvarupa in ISKCON in the 1970's (p. 312): “TKG told us that Srila Prabhupada said the completion of SBhag can be done by Pradyumna das. He will do the translations and if he has anything to say, he can write it down.” (Entry, Oct. 2, 1977) After Pradyumna publicly questioned the new zonal acharya system in Aug. 1978: “He was ruthlessly driven away from his service, subjected to false accusations and the typical GBC style character assassination based upon prevarications, falsehoods and innuendoes, and eventually in March of 1979, the service of Bhagavatam translation service was taken from him. Because he had objected to their illegal and unauthorized guru system, he was singled out for removal.”

Pradyumna das left ISKCON in 1979. At that same time the GBC appointed Hridayananda Swami to take over the Bhagwatam completion project. He was one of the 11 zonal successor acharyas and used the titles His Divine Grace and Acharyadeva. He finished his completion work in 1982, devising his own purports and “realizations” after reading those of the previous acharyas, in effect imitating Srila Prabhupada as though he were a self-realized soul.

Left: HRIDAYANANDA SWAMI TRANSLATING

But Hridayananda’s Bhagwatam renditions were not well received by many. As one of the zonal gurus, he had participated in and furthered a great disaster in ISKCON. In 1991, the GBC acknowledged the “falseness” of the zonal acharya era, and BTG magazine editor Jayadvaita Swami wrote: “But by the influence of maya, illusion, a different idea soon evolved- that Srila Prabhupada had appointed eleven ‘pure devotees’ to serve as the only gurus after him. These eleven, the idea went, should each serve as the spiritual master for a geographical ‘zone’ of the world. This zonal guru system, as it came to be called, prevailed in ISKCON for about ten years, until its falseness became clear [...] we express our heartfelt apologies for contributing to the hurts and wrongs devotees endured when ISKCON diverged from Srila Prabhupada’s instructions.” (BTG #25-1, 1991) [However, exactly which instructions were diverged from was not explained.]

Proof of the defects in Hridayananda’s Bhagwatam writings are found in his “purports” which praised two of the zonal gurus, both of whom were soon exposed as complicit in homosexual activities with boys and men. “We are happily resting in the New Vrindaban community, founded by His Divine Grace Kirtanananda Swami Bhaktipada [...] Outstanding examples of such endeavors can be presently seen in India at the Mayapur Chandrodaya Mandira gardens developed by Srila Bhavananda Goswami Vishnupada.” (SBhag 11.7.6 and 11.11.41 purports, first printing). The end result was chronicled in BTP #51 (Spring 2016) by Krishnakant: “Acknowledging Hridayananda’s illusion in writing such ‘purports,’ all such references [to Kirtanananda and Bhavananda], along with Hridayananda’s honorific titles of ‘His Divine Grace’ and ‘Acharyadeva,’ were removed in later printings.” And here is another example of ISKCON’s rewriting history, right out of Orwell’s “1984.”

Independent commentaries and purports by unqualified persons are not authoritative nor pure. (1) “Transcendental literature that strictly follows the Vedic principles and the conclusion of the Puranas and pancharatika-vidhi can be written only by a pure devotee.” (CC Adi 8.39) (2) “Unless one is empowered by the higher authorities, or advanced devotees, one cannot write transcendental literature, for all such literature must be above suspicion, or in other words, it must have none of the cdefects of conditioned souls, namely mistakes, illusions, cheating, and imperfect sense perceptions.” (CC Adi 8.72) (3) “Unless one is tattva-darshi, in complete knowledge of the Absolute truth, one cannot describe the activities of the Personality of Godhead. [...] But we must select only those books written by tattva-darshis (jnaninas tattva-darsinah), not the books of so-called scholars who claim knowledge only on the basis of a doctorate.” (SBhag 9.10.3) (4) “A realized soul, must be [...] My purports are liked by people because it is presented as practical experience. [...] They are not ordinary... One cannot become unless one is very realized. It is not A-B-C-D translation.” (SPConv May 28, 1977)

After the zonal acharya system was dismantled in 1987 by a devotee uprising, strong protests against Hridayananda’s Bhagawatam compelled the BBT to remove his name as the author from the book’s cover, saying instead: “by the disciples of HDG Srila Prabhupada.” Many devotees still refuse to read those portions of the Bhagwatam done by Hridayananda, and wisely so. It is not known how much further SBhag translation that Pradyumna had completed before being removed in March 1979. Pradyumna das, working independently outside ISKCON, wrote in late 2016 that “Re: ongoing work, I am dedicating my last few years of life to editing and publishing scriptures with commentaries of the acharyas, along with notes from myself and others. Several senior Godbrothers requested me to translate remaining chapters of the Bhagavatam, but I consider that as already completed (BBT edition). However, I have been hard at work on other important texts, including [acharyas’] commentaries on the Bhagavad-gita and Srimad-Bhagavatam, various Upanisads and works of Baladeva Vidyabhusana and Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakura. In addition, I have worked on selections from the Mahabharata and Vishnu Purana, old, standard English translations included, with Sanskrit texts, commentaries and (in process) my notes on the translation and commentaries.” We note the style in Pradyumna’s work is of primarily translations of commentaries by the previous acharyas, supplemented by “notes,” rather than imitating Srila Prabhupada who wrote his own transcendental purports based on his spiritual “ecstasies” and realizations. We look forward to Pradyumna’s work.

SHOCKING REVELATION OF MOTIVATION IN CHAITANYA CHARITAMRITA CHANGE

(By Mathias Sabji)

Some time back many devotees had noticed that the new 9 Volume edition of the Chaitanya Charitamrta had made a deliberate change from Srila Prabhupada’s original version, which stated: “Srila Visvanatha Cakravarti Thakura accepted Srila Jagannatha dasa Babaji, who *initiated* Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakura, who in turn initiated Srila Gaurakisora dasa Babaji.” (CC Ch. 1) In the new BBT doctored 9-volume edition, the same passage reads: “Srila Visvanatha Cakravarti Thakura accepted Srila Jagannatha dasa Babaji, the spiritual master of Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakura, who in turn accepted Srila Gaurakisora dasa Babaji.” In other words, it has been decided that contrary to what Srila Prabhupada states, Jagannatha Das Babaji did not really INITIATE Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakura after all. Now the reason for the BBT changing Srila Prabhupada’s teaching here is very significant, since the GBC maintains that the relationship between Jagannatha Das Babaji and Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakura was based not on ‘formal initiation’ but rather only on the ‘transmission of transcendental knowledge’. Once it is accepted that the transmission of divine transcendental knowledge ALONE constitutes INITIATION— then the objections made by the GBC to the Ritvik system of initiation crumble, since then Srila Prabhupada could also *initiate* us with transcendental knowledge. Thus the BBT could not allow Srila Prabhupada to teach that Jagannatha Dasa Babaji actually *initiated* Bhaktivinoda Thakura, for that would indirectly sanction Srila Prabhupada *initiating* for many generations to come simply via his transcendental knowledge, with the ‘formal initiation’ administered via the Ritvik system that he set up. In any case the teaching given by Srila Prabhupada above is totally consistent with what Srila Prabhupada has taught about Diksha and initiation in the CC itself: “Diksha actually means *initiating* a disciple *with transcendental knowledge* by which he becomes freed from all material contamination.” (CC Mad 4:112 purport) Just the very fact that the BBT is changing the main legacy left by Srila Prabhupada –his teachings –is horrendous enough. But the fact it was done specifically to keep the positions of the GBC within the crumbling Guru system intact, is totally shameful.

The Shastric Advisory Committee, in their response paper to Srila Prabhupada: The Prominent Link, attempted to derive some meaning from Srila Prabhupada’s purports in the CC Madhya-lila, that was clearly different from the direct and clear meaning of Srila Prabhupada's words. To do this they cited various Vaishnava acharyas from previous ages. Dhira Govinda das responded: "In that section [you] cite authorities such as Sanatana Goswami, Narahari Sarakara, and Jiva Goswami. As a general principle we refer to Srila Prabhupada to understand previous acharyas, not vice versa. We suggest that Srila Prabhupada's meaning in the cited purports of Madhya-lila are clear, and do not demand reference elsewhere for understanding." The BBT is so arrogant in their campaign against Srila Prabhupada's teachings, that they have even tried to JUSTIFY this change. Dravida das, a BBT editor, upon being asked by Dhira Govinda das to justify the change, first sums up the reason for NOT changing Srila Prabhupada's teachings as follows: "On the side of not changing the 'initiated' phrases we have the strong bias against changing the books unless absolutely necessary and the fact that Srila Prabhupada did indeed say that Jagannatha das Babaji initiated Bhaktivinode." Dravida clearly ADMITS that Srila Prabhupada "DID indeed say that Jagannatha das Babaji initiated Bhaktivinode." Dravida gives a reason to override what Srila Prabhupada taught, stating we must adjust his teachings to ensure they conform with what is currently understood within ISKCON in regards to initiation: "Leaving one or both 'initiateds' will strongly imply that the use of the phrases 'direct disciple' and even 'accepted [as his disciple]' indicate formal initiation as we know it in ISKCON, which is far from the truth. This last was the weightiest argument, in my view, for changing the passage."

So whenever Srila Prabhupada's teachings differ from the way 'we know it in ISKCON', then they must be changed to conform with the way we DO 'know it in ISKCON'? And the way 'we know it in ISKCON' is dictated by whatever ridiculous philosophy the GBC happens to be preaching at the time. So the fact that we have had a unauthorised guru system imposed on us in ISKCON by the GBC means that even though we may find that Srila Prabhupada teaches something else, we must modify Srila Prabhupada's teachings to agree with the way things are understood in ISKCON. Instead of changing the practices and understanding of ISKCON to conform with Srila Prabhupada's teachings— which of course is what a spiritual society based on following Srila Prabhupada would do. Not only is it bad enough that ISKCON is NOT run according to Srila Prabhupada's teachings, but now Srila Prabhupada's teachings must also be changed to fit in with the way rascal misleaders are doing things in ISKCON. What makes this shocking state of affairs even more ludicrous is that the way things are 'known in ISKCON' are themselves constantly changing anyway. 1. From 1978 we 'knew' you could only take initiation from one of 11 men in your geographical area. 2. Then from 1986 we 'knew' something else about initiation – that you could take it from many others providing they had received the necessary number of votes. 3. Now we 'know' something else – that whoever gives the formal initiation, do not worship him too much, because Srila Prabhupada is also involved somehow, maybe even more importantly. 4. Some ISKCON gurus' falldowns mean their initiations after an arbitrary date are institutionally "invalid." 5. Since we happen to 'know' at the moment in a certain way, we must adjust any teaching in Srila Prabhupada's books that conflict with this current understanding. Obviously the changes will not be just once, or twice...

This is all a very sinister development and laying the groundwork for ANY further change to Srila Prabhupada's teachings that the GBC deems fit. Thus in the future if it is 'known in ISKCON' that 'women are as intelligent as men,' then we will need to alter all of Srila Prabhupada's statements where he says that women are less intelligent, since then it would not conform with the way things are 'known in ISKCON'. [...] And so on. If (ISKCON history) is anything to go by, [...] the GBC will ALWAYS be deviating from Srila Prabhupada's teachings, and the only safeguard we have is Srila Prabhupada's teachings. Once we change Srila Prabhupada's teachings to fit in with whatever nonsense we happen to believe, then all will be lost... How much longer must we put up this with this madness that is leading to the destruction of Srila Prabhupada's movement?

This one book change shows how ISKCON misleaders want to hide that Srila Prabhupada is initiating us with transcendental knowledge = divya-jnana = diksha. The book changers are changing Srila Prabhupada's books so nobody can understand what diksha really is. Otherwise it is easy to understand that Srila Prabhupada is the diksha guru of ISKCON. BGita, 4.34: 1972 original edition: tad viddhi pranipatena / pariprasnena sevaya / upadeksyanti te jnanam / jnaninas tattva-darsinah “Just try to learn the truth by approaching a spiritual master. Inquire from him submissively and render service unto him. The self-realized soul can impart knowledge unto you because he has seen the truth.” SYNONYMS: tat—that knowledge of different sacrifices; viddhi—try to understand; pranipatena—by approaching a spiritual master; pariprasnena—by submissive inquiries; sevaya—by the rendering of service; upadeksyanti- INITIATE; te—unto you; jnanam—knowledge; jnaninah—the self-realized; tattva—truth; darsinah—the seers.

In this verse the word “upadeksyanti” is translated as meaning to “initiate;” (1972 edition) however, in the full translation this to “initiate” is rendered as requiring the Guru to “impart” (knowledge). Consequently the “Srila Prabhupada is siksha not diksha” advocates are caught in a logistical trap of their own making. If Srila Prabhupada is capable of “imparting knowledge” or “divya-jnana” to newcomers via his books, which the GBC concede in advocating him as the pre-eminent siksha Guru for ISKCON, then he must by definition be able to initiate or give diksha too. Transcendental knowledge or transcendental siksha = divya-jnana is, after all, the main constituent of diksha (only possible to received from a qualified bona fide Diksha guru, meaning uttama-adikari who is additionally authorised by his predecessor spiritual master). This states that the spiritual master is the person who will impart knowledge unto us. If one reads Srila Prabhupada’s books, they are having knowledge imparted to them by Srila Prabhupada, our current link in the disciplic succession. In the German first edition 1974 the word “upadeksyanti” is translated = “INITIATE.” But in the next edition 1983, in the word-for-word translation, you find “upadeksyanti” translated as “can be given.” The word INITIATE is completely deleted in the German translation. And in the new changed Gita English version you find “THEY INITIATE,” no more “INITIATE.” The result of too many unauthorized book changes is a broken guru-parampara. (END)

DISCUSSION ON THE CHANGING OF THE CC INITIATION VERSE

The following communications in 1999 between Dhira Govinda and Dravida (BBT) is re: a change made on the first page of the most recent BBT edition of Sri-Chaitanya Charitamrita.

DGOVINDA: I have a BBT-related question. On my Prabhupada Vedabase, which I obtained from the BBT archives in 1996, a paragraph from the introduction to Ch. One of the Chaitanya Charitamrta reads: "The direct disciple of Srila Krishnadasa Kaviraja Gosvami was Srila Narottama dasa Thakura, who accepted Srila Visvanatha Cakravarti as his servitor. Srila Visvanatha Cakravarti Thakura accepted Srila Jagannatha dasa Babaji, who initiated Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakura, who in turn initiated Srila Gaurakisora dasa Babaji, the spiritual master of Om Visnupada Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Gosvami Maharaja, the divine master of our humble self." (But) In the recent edition of CC (9-volumes) the passage reads: "The direct disciple of Srila Krishnadasa Kaviraja Gosvami was Srila Narottama dasa Thakura, who accepted Srila Visvanatha Cakravarti as his servitor. Srila Visvanatha Cakravarti Thakura accepted Srila Jagannatha dasa Babaji, the spiritual master of Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakura, who in turn accepted Srila Gaurakisora dasa Babaji, the spiritual master of Om Visnupada Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Gosvami Maharaja, the divine master of our humble self." [...] I'm curious about the reason for the change. Did the original editors make a mistake- e.g., not properly hearing Srila Prabhupada's voice on tape? Or is it assumed that Srila Prabhupada made a historical mistake when he stated that Srila Jagannatha dasa Babaji initiated Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakura, and the 9-volume editors corrected this mistake? Or for some other reason?

DRAVIDA: Thank you for your inquiry concerning the CC changes. I agonized over this one for some time, consulting several senior devotees before making this change. Here was my thinking: First of all, there is no tape of this passage. Rather, it derives from an excerpt of the CC Srila Prabhupada published in March 1960 in the BTG. Here is how the passage read there (from the latest VedaBase): "Viswanath Chakrabarty accepted Jagannath Das Babajee from whom Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakore was initiated and Srila Gour Kishore Das Babajee the spiritual master of Om Vishnupada Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati Prabhupada-the Divine spiritual Master of our humble self." Notice that while Srila Prabhupada does say that Bhaktivinode Thakura was initiated by Jagannatha das Babaji, he doesn't say that Gaura Kishora das Babaji was initiated by Bhaktivinode, which was added in the 1975 edition of the CC. Historically, neither is accurate if we accept the usual sense in which Srila Prabhupada used the word "initiated." So just on the grounds of bringing the new edition closer to the original words Srila Prabhupada wrote, no longer having Bhaktivinode initiating Gaura-kisora is justified. But we are still left with Jagannatha das initiating Bhaktivinode. Before we proceed, I tracked down the source upon which Srila Prabhupada based this passage in his BTG and CC, and that is the song by Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati called "Sri Guru-parampara." You'll find it in the latest edition of the Songs of the Vaishnava Acharyas, and it is included in the supplementary literature on the latest Vedabase. The actual relationship among all the principals is illuminated there. The final bit of research that went into my decision was finding support for Srila Prabhupada's strict use of the word "initiated." I found this at Adi 11.13: "Among his many disciples, Sriman Srinivasa Acharya was the most famous and the most dear, but it is doubtful that he was his initiated disciple." This indicates that in this very book (CC) Srila Prabhupada reserved the phrase "initiated disciple" for a formal initiation, and that he felt that the word "disciple" is perfectly appropriate for someone who receives siksha but not diksha from a superior. So now we have these considerations: On the side of not changing the "initiated" phrases we have the strong bias against changing the books unless absolutely necessary and the fact that Srila Prabhupada did indeed say that Jagannatha das Babaji initiated Bhaktivinode. On the side of changing we have this: How the parampara is listed and perceived is very significant for all devotees. Many devotees know, and soon all devotees will know, that Jagannatha das Babaji did not initiate Bhaktivinode Thakur in any way that is normally understood from Srila Prabhupada's books, other statements, or practice. Removing the idea that Bhaktivinode initiated Gaura-kisora [...] but leaving the other "initiated" will seem to be a gross oversight, since neither initiation is historically accurate. Leaving one or both "initiated" will strongly imply that the use of the phrases "direct disciple" and even "accepted [as his disciple]" indicate formal initiation as we know it in ISKCON, which is far from the truth. (Narottama may have "accepted" Visvanatha as his servitor, but it wasn't on the physical plane, since there is a gap between their lifetimes; likewise between Visvanath and Jagannatha das.) This last was the weightiest argument, in my view, for changing the passage. So, after weighing these arguments carefully and consulting with several learned Godbrothers (who came out in favor of change, but not unanimously) and agonizing for several days, I decided to remove the "initiated"s.

COMMENTS FROM DHIRA GOVINDA DAS (2002): Of concern is that the explanation for deleting the word "initiated" seems to be largely based on the understanding of the word "initiated," "as we know it in ISKCON." Perhaps when Srila Prabhupada used the word "initiated," he did so deliberately, and the meaning of the term as it has come to be understood in ISKCON is faulty. That is, instead of making changes in this passage based on what we think Srila Prabhupada may have meant, it may be fruitful to consider that the current conception in the organization of the word "initiated" is not perfectly consistent with Srila Prabhupada's understanding of the concept. One possible way that this could be true is by referring to one of the definitions that Srila Prabhupada often gave for diksha, or initiation. Namely, Srila Prabhupada frequently equated diksha with the process of imparting transcendental knowledge, or divya-jnana. In CC Madhya-lila 15:108 purport Srila Prabhupada quotes Jiva Goswami: "Diksha is the process by which one can awaken his transcendental knowledge and vanquish all reactions caused by sinful activity. A person expert in the study of the revealed scriptures knows this process as diksha." Also, in Madhya-lila 4:112 purport Srila Prabhupada writes "Diksha actually means initiating a disciple with transcendental knowledge by which he becomes freed from all material contamination." In a July 29, 1968 lecture Srila Prabhupada said: "This is called initiation. Or initiation from the very beginning. This is called diksha. The Sanskrit term is called diksha. Diksha means... Di, divya-jnanam, transcendental knowledge, and ksa, iksha. Iksha means darsana, to see, or ksapayati, explain. That is called diksha." This is similarly confirmed in several lectures and conversations (e.g., June 17, 1976 initiation lecture; July 11, 1976 lecture; Feb. 22, 1973 lecture; Dec. 29, 1973 lecture; Jan. 27, 1977 conversation).

"Perhaps Srila Prabhupada was referring to diksha, or initiation, in the sense of 'transmitting transcendental knowledge' when he used the word 'initiated' to describe the relationship between Jagannath Das Babaji and Bhaktivinode Thakur. The ISKCON GBC has asserted that Srila Prabhupada is the 'preeminent siksha guru' for all ISKCON members and that 'ISKCON members shall be trained to place their faith, trust and allegiance first and foremost in the Founder-Acharya who is the preeminent siksha guru for every member of ISKCON.' The Vaishnava who is the preeminent instructor, or siksha guru [...] may also be considered to be the primary deliverer of transcendental knowledge. Imparting transcendental knowledge, or divya-jnana, is the essence of initiation, and thus the primary deliverer of transcendental knowledge may be considered to be the diksha guru, at least in a transcendental sense, though not necessarily in a formal sense. [...] my hope is that, with a clearer, deeper, and perhaps synthetic understanding of initiation, or diksha, our Vaishnava society may be able to [...] resolve some divisive conflicts. [...] I believe that the points described herein are important for discussion. Srila Prabhupada wrote (CC Adi 1:35 purport) 'A devotee must have only one initiating spiritual master because in the scriptures acceptance of more than one is always forbidden.' We know that Vipina Vihari Goswami initiated Bhaktivinode Thakur, but Srila Prabhupada also wrote, in the original version of CC, that Jagannath das Babaji initiated Bhaktivinode Thakur. [...] it may also be fruitful to consider other solutions by looking more closely at various definitions of 'diksha' and 'initiation'." [COMMENT: It is also necessary to consider who has the power to awaken and inject transcendental knowledge in the heart or the soul of a conditioned being. Shastra says that only mahabhagawat, liberated persons who are empowered by the Supreme Lord can do so. False gurus cannot, unless they repeat purely and without adulteration the message and instructions of Srila Prabhupada, in which case Srila Prabhupada is the effective diksha guru, not them. It is a massive misunderstanding that a conditioned soul can awake or inject divya jnana in another person. Real initiation is a process and not an impersonal thing like an injection of medicine. The diksha guru must have the God-given authority and spiritual Shakti to deliver a fallen soul out of illusion. It is not a cheap thing.]

CC EDIT: "THE WEIGHTIEST ARGUMENT" BY DHIRA GOVINDA (2006)

"Leaving one or both 'initiated's will strongly imply that the use of the phrases 'direct disciple' and even 'accepted [as his disciple]' indicate formal initiation as we know it in ISKCON, which is far from the truth... This last was the weightiest argument, in my view, for changing the passage" (Dravida das). "The revision is small and in itself, we believe, of no great consequence" (Jayadvaita Swami) In May, 2005 I saw Jayadvaita Maharaja in Alachua, and he shared with me about recent, somewhat extended deliberations, and conclusions, of the BBT directors concerning the revision on the first page of CC. In July, 2005 I received the article that he wrote, on behalf of the BBT, about this matter, wherein he wrote "In particular, Dhira Govinda questioned it and asked us to reconsider it. We took his request seriously." The BBT directors then discussed it at length.

My perspective is that the revision is of profound consequence [while] the BBT directors believe that the revision is "in itself, of no great consequence." On June 16, 2000, about half a year after he wrote the statement at the start of this post, the BBT rep [Dravida] who had written "This last was the weightiest argument..." wrote to me as follows: "Aside from the passage itself, I can easily see the following syllogism flowing from your notes on diksha: Diksha is really the imparting of transcendental knowledge. Srila Prabhupada is the pre-eminent imparter of transcendental knowledge for all generations of ISKCON devotees, now and in the future. So Srila Prabhupada is giving diksha to all who take knowledge from his books, tapes and other media. He who gives diksha is the diksha-guru. One is enjoined to have only one diksha-guru because the acceptance of more than one is strictly forbidden in the shastra. Therefore Srila Prabhupada is the only diksha-guru for all ISKCON devotees for the next 10,000 years. I don't think I want to go down that road."

This article is not about whether "Srila Prabhupada is the only diksha-guru for all ISKCON devotees for the next ten thousand years." [...] This article is about an apparent knowledge filter that is active in decisions regarding revisions to Srila Prabhupada's books. From what I see, the psychology underlying the emendation under discussion embraces a priori assumptions regarding which roads may be traversed. Rather than impartially presenting Srila Prabhupada's words with an eagerness to discover which roads open, there seems to be an attitude, albeit subconscious, of pre-determining which paths are permissible for visitation, and accordingly adjusting Srila Prabhupada's writings. [...] it seems that in this instance Srila Prabhupada's clear intentions are obscured due to a filter composed of presuppositions. These assumptions perhaps have not been closely examined, or at least are not readily apparent to many current and future readers of Srila Prabhupada's books. In a May 6, 2006 article, Bala das similarly addresses the topic. "This is a very troubling development for yet another reason. For this justification is laying the ground for making ANY further change to Srila Prabhupada's teachings that the GBC deems fit." Notwithstanding the distinction between the GBC and BBT, Bala das' essential point seems to be a caution regarding the peril implied by application over time of this "weightiest argument" to revising Srila Prabhupada's books. Apart from future considerations of damage caused by this gatekeeper mentality, I believe it relevant to contemplate present effects. The revision to the first page of CC is one of thousands of changes to Srila Prabhupada's books. [Surely] the knowledge filter has been at play in more than this one case. [...] We might fruitfully deliberate on the influence this has had on the Vaishnava society. I suggest that sober reflection on the substance of this one change (CC p. 1) and the paradigm of thought that engendered this change, would tremendously impact the philosophical, political, economic, social and spiritual culture of persons and groups that are influenced by the consciousness and determinations of the BBT and GBC. Acknowledgement of this "great consequence" by any of the BBT directors would provide momentum for this impact, and would launch torpedoes at embedded institutional structures. [...] "There is principle which is a bar against all information, which is proof against all information, which is proof against all arguments, and which cannot fail to keep a man in everlasting ignorance. That is contempt prior to investigation." (Herbert Spencer) Contemporary ISKCON policy and thought as a basis for changing Srila Prabhupada's books carries serious risk of "contempt prior to investigation." Such a strategy seems to be dedicated to institutional preservation more than to authentically representing Srila Prabhupada. I assert that we may trust that authentic representation of Srila Prabhupada is the strongest assurance of protection, integrity and healthy expansion that an organization may enjoy.

It is of course noteworthy that Srila Prabhupada, following Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Goswami's song Sri Guru-parampara, lists a disciplic succession wherein several of the spiritual masters did not receive formal initiation from their spiritual masters. Perhaps even more noteworthy is that Srila Prabhupada uses the word "initiated" to describe parampara relationships where no official initiation occurred, in reference to the relationships between Jagannatha dasa Babaji and Bhaktivinoda Thakura, and between Bhaktivinoda Thakura and Gaurakishora dasa Babaji. In the recently published edition of CC the BBT editors deleted the words "initiated" in the two cases cited above, explained as necessary to conform to: "...formal initiation as we know it in ISKCON..." This edit seems to be largely based on the understanding of the word "initiated," "as we know it in ISKCON." Perhaps when Srila Prabhupada used the word "initiated," he did so deliberately, and the meaning of the term as it has come to be understood in ISKCON is incomplete. That is, instead of making changes in this passage based on what we think Srila Prabhupada may have meant, it may be fruitful to consider that the current conception in the organization of the word "initiated" is not perfectly consistent with Srila Prabhupada's understanding. One way this could be true is by referring to the definitions of initiation provided above. Perhaps Srila Prabhupada was referring to initiation in the sense of "transmitting transcendental knowledge" when he used the word "initiated" to describe the relationship between Srila Jagannatha dasa Babaji and Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakura. (END)

NO BOOKS APART FROM SRILA PRABHUPADA'S TO BE PRINTED IN ISKCON

"I am setting up a different body of management known as the BHAKTIVEDANTA BOOK TRUST... ISKCON Press was created for the exclusive publication of my books and literatures and should be continued in that way." In direct violation of Srila Prabhupada's clear arrangements and desire, the BBT began right after Srila Prabhupada's departure to print books by other authors, such as zonal acharya Vyasapuja books, Varnashrama Manifesto for Social Sanity by Harikesha Swami, Servant of the Servant by Tamal, Srila Prabhupada Lilamrita by Satsvarupa, and so on. This continues in full force at the present. DISOBEDIENCE.

HOW DO ISKCON LEADERS RESPOND TO THE PROTESTS ABOUT BOOK CHANGING?

In Sept. 2014 Radhanath Swami sent the below e-mail to one of his Danish disciples, Chaitanya Candra das, who complained about the book changes: "Actually, the subject is being discussed on the GBC level. The sacred principle of not changing what our Acharya has written is to be taken with great care. At the same time, the editorial process was done by persons who were personally trained by Srila Prabhupada. So it is not an easy subject. As it stands, it is being discussed on a high level of leadership." Why is it ISKCON leaders cannot understand the issue of book changing? Almost every last one of the ISKCON leaders have cleverly deferred and evaded the book changes issue, taking no position. They go along to get along- not to rock the boat they themselves are sitting in. As they hem and haw, the sacred books deteriorate further into oblivion. E.g., when questioned by Nityananda das in 2012, Bir Krishna Swami said, "Well, I prefer the original books myself." What a wimp. No right or wrong? Apparently it is just a matter of personal preference; to do as we like?

THERE IS NO NEED WHATSOEVER FOR ANY OUTSIDE INSTRUCTION

Srila Prabhupada made it adequately clear he wanted his disciples to study his books and not become distracted by the writings of others, even other bona fide acharyas. Quotes in this regard follow below. What is clear as well, is that if this is so, that Srila Prabhupada's books were so complete and sufficient in themselves, even to the extent that they included whatever the previous acharyas had taught, then how can we tolerate the changing of Srila Prabhupada's books? Since they are already so perfect, what is the need for improving them by editing, especially anything more than a few glaring grammar errors or typos? They are perfect as is, so who can make them "more" perfect?

(1) "Whatever is to be learned of the teachings of Srila Bhaktivinode Thakur can be learned from our books. There is no need whatsoever for any outside instruction." (SPL Yasodanandana et al Dec. 25, 1973) (2) "If my students cannot even read my own books thoroughly, why they should read others? I have given you TLC, what need is there to read CC translated by someone else. You are right to stop such reading." (SPL Sri Govinda Jan. 20, 1972) (3) "Brahmananda Swami has read me your letter regarding the students there reading other books. I request you to stop this practice . Our students have no time to read our own books, but they have time to read other's books, and the money to purchase them? Why this mentality is there? You are a serious student, therefore you have correctly found out the defect in these books. We don't want babaji class. We want active preachers." (SPL Cyavana Oct. 13, 1973) (4) *"One should not partially study a book just to pose oneself as a great scholar by being able to refer to scriptures. In our Krishna consciousness movement we have therefore limited our study of Vedic literatures to Bhagavad-gita, Srimad-Bhagavatam, Chaitanya-charitamrta and Bhakti-rasamrta-sindhu. These four works are sufficient for preaching purposes. They are adequate for the understanding of the philosophy and the spreading of missionary activities all over the world. If one studies a particular book, he must do so thoroughly. That is the principle. By thoroughly studying a limited number of books, one can understand the philosophy. (CC Madhya-lila 22.118 purport) (5) "So if you want to understand Bhagavad-gita, then we must understand in the same way as the person who directly heard from. This is called parampara system. Suppose I have heard something from my spiritual master, so I speak to you the same thing. So this is parampara system. You cannot imagine what my spiritual master said. Or even if you read some books, you cannot understand unless you understand it from me. This is called parampara system. You cannot jump over to the superior guru, neglecting the next acharya, immediate next acharya." (SPLecture Dec. 8, 1973)*

(6) Devotee: ...Gaudiya Matha. But there's nothing wrong with the idea of studying the previous acharyas' books. SP: No. Who said? That is wrong. We are following previous acharyas. I never said that. Paramahansa: All of your commentaries are coming from the previous acharyas. SP: Yes. Jayadharm: But that wouldn't mean that we should keep all the previous acharyas' books and only read them. SP: That is already there. You first of all assimilate what you have got. You simply pile up books and do not read—what is the use? Jayadharm: First of all we must read all your books. SP: Yes. Paramahansa: Practically speaking, Srila Prabhupada, you are giving us the essence of all the previous acharyas' books in your books. SP: Yes. Yes. (SPConv May 13, 1975) (7) "I will always be with you through my books and orders. I will always remain with you in that way." (SPL)

ONE COMMA CAN CHANGE THE WHOLE MEANING by Dhira Govinda das

"One popular example: 'Let's eat, Grandma.' And 'Let's eat Grandma.' One missing comma drastically changes the whole meaning. An example we sometimes use in our seminars is, we'll display a flip chart page with, 'Woman, without her man, is nothing.' Then, we'll display a different page with the following- 'Woman, without her, man is nothing.' For sure, even one comma can make a tremendous difference in meaning."

REDISCOVERED RAMESVARA DAS INTERVIEW

A 1981 interview of Ramesvara das done by Satsvarupa surfaced recently. "...at that 1976 Mayapur meeting we met with Prabhupada about the Bhagavatam.... But he warned us emphatically that this must be the very very last change that is ever to be made in the Srimad-Bhagavatam. [...] But then he got very grave and said, 'Now, this is the final plan, this is the final approved standard, there can never be any more changes.' He was emphatic, he was insistent, and he pounded it into our heads. 'What about the incorrect grammar?' Prabhupada's reply, 'You cannot change one comma, not even a comma, not even a punctuation mark, that is the etiquette.' So that was just another one of those super heavy instructions that the etiquette in dealing with a great acharya's books is that whatever he has done, it's eternal and it can never be changed. And I believe that all of this was part of Prabhupada's training us. He wanted to train people who would be entrusted with his books. [...] With the BBT, the size of the books, the type of art in the books and so on, on principle Prabhupada would not allow changes even if the change was an improvement. Just to teach that principle of don't change. Prabhupada just explained how everyone's a rascal for daring to touch anything in his books. [...] Don't you dare change the picture on my book! I have deliberately chosen the picture of Vishnu because I want this book to be attracting the Mayavadis and impersonalists. So that was the first direct instruction that I had received from Prabhupada which gave me an understanding of how much he would meditate on every facet of his books. The art, the size, the pictures, who the market was. [...] Prabhupada is very much on top of his book design and publishing. [...] The first of many experiences I've had with Prabhupada literally drilling me, pounding it into my head that you're never allowed to change anything in his books. He trained me so intensely on this point. Even when the changes make sense he wouldn't let me change."

LAW BOOKS FOR MANKIND: THE FINAL AUTHORITY By Narasimha das

Recently I saw a discussion wherein an ISKCON "guru" sannyasi was disputing a verse purport he determined was wrong in Srila Prabhupada's original CC edition. Based on his knowledge of Bengali, he contends that his study of the Bengali purports of Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati (which Srila Prabhupada based his own purports upon) has revealed that the CC version is incorrect. The original version is: "One should not try to be an artificially advanced devotee, thinking, 'I am a first-class devotee.' Such thinking should be avoided. It is best not to accept any disciples." (CC Mad 7.130 purport) He says this verse should read: "One should not try to be an artificially advanced devotee, thinking, 'I am a first-class devotee, so it is best not to accept any disciples.' Such thinking should be avoided." I am not a Bengali scholar nor studied Bhaktisiddhanta's purports to this verse, but I know English fairly well and have carefully studied all of Srila Prabhupada's books. The CC version found is consistent with the siddhanta throughout Srila Prabhupada's books. The version of the swami, however, contradicts siddhanta. There is significant difference in meaning between these two versions. The CC version is clear. It says devotees should not think of themselves to be paramahamsas simply because they are following the basic principles and chanting 16 rounds for a few years. Such is the qualification of a disciple, not a guru. Srila Prabhupada clearly says, “It is best not to accept any disciples.” Throughout Srila Prabhupada’s books the emphasis is on the strict sadhana required to become a bona fide disciple. Srila Prabhupada never ordered, authorized or suggested ecclesiastical arrangements for electing “gurus” nor adopting the office and status of spiritual master on his own initiative, without divine authorization and realization.

The swami’s version perverts the meaning drastically. He puts Srila Prabhupada’s statement “It is best not to accept any disciples” within the quotation marks that Prabhupada uses to illustrate the type of thinking that should be avoided. In other words, the swami’s version says, “One should not think himself too exalted to take on the botherations involved in accepting disciples.” The CC version, on the other hand, shows no quotation marks on the statement “It is best not to accept disciples.” This statement appears as Srila Prabhupada’s clear warning that one should not become a spiritual master on his own initiative. (Krishna sometimes orders His pure devotees to descend to the material world to do so.) Throughout Srila Prabhupada’s books he has repeatedly cited evidence that shows only a first-class devotee is qualified to become a genuine spiritual master and deliverer of fallen conditioned souls and that even such a qualified devotee never accepts disciples on his own initiative. The version promoted by the swami, however, disputes this idea by suggesting: One should avoid thinking: “I am a first-class devotee, [therefore, for me] it is best to not accept any disciples [since accepting disciples is the work of second-class and third-class devotees].” We should carefully note the placement of quotation marks in these two versions. The second version is misleading. It gives emphasis to the idea that thinking “It best not to accept disciples” is the thinking that should really be avoided, not necessarily thinking “I am a first-class devotee.” In other words, the swami’s version is structured in such a way as to suggest that it may be fine to think of oneself as a first-class devotee as long as he doesn’t use that as an excuse to avoid accepting disciples.

Such speculation, change and interpretation of Srila Prabhupada’s books creates a dangerous precedent. Devotees may come to believe it is a good idea to analyze every book statement based on old archived manuscripts someone has dug up somewhere--manuscripts that have been transcribed from tapes long ago or recently by who knows who. Should we doubt statements we don’t like and go back to so-called “original” manuscripts or even the writings of previous Acharyas to determine what Srila Prabhupada really meant? It seems odd to say, “The CC that Srila Prabhupada gave us was a rushed job, so naturally it is full of serious mistakes, even though Srila Prabhupada accepted it, read it and lectured from it many times. I am an advanced scholar, so let me offer the correct version.” With all the book changes and speculation in ISKCON, the authority of Srila Prabhupada’s books has been undermined. If this continues, the authority of Srila Prabhupada’s mission will be obscured, as a floodgate of speculation is opened wide. We must carefully maintain respect for the integrity and authority of Srila Prabhupada’s original books. Otherwise, the whole mission will be severely adulterated or spoiled by misguided pundits and persons with false ambitions. (END)

ARE THERE ANY LEGITIMATE CHANGES THAT SHOULD BE MADE?

Jayadvaita Swami pointed out some “serious” errors in the BGita that prompted him to get approval from the GBC to make the revisions seen in the 1983 edition. For example, cattle vs cows, planet of the trees vs planet of the Pitrs, as well as punctuation and spelling. But obviously Jatadvaita Swami, putting aside the question for now of whether he should have made any changes at all, went overboard and started making changes that are quite obviously totally unnecessary. So even IF some changes were proper, what has been done has gone FAR beyond minor corrections. “...in Srila Prabhupada’s 1970 Nectar of Devotion, I’ve checked many references from the Index, and not one of them corresponds to the page number in the book. So, for future printings, should this be changed, such that the index is accurate? I feel certain that Srila Prabhupada would want that change to be made. An accurate rather than a misleading index would add credibility to Srila Prabhupada's writings, and Srila Prabhupada would want that. Also the 1968 edition of Teachings of Lord Chaitanya: on p. 172 the Hare Krishna Mantra has 14, not 16 words, with two "Ramas" missing. I'm sure that Srila Prabhupada, in future printings, would want the full Hare Krishna Maha Mantra written. There are hundreds of examples on the same level, throughout the pre-1978 editions of Srila Prabhupada's books. So, what to do? If we open up to make changes in future printings, then there's the weighty task regarding what to change. Who will decide what changes Srila Prabhupada would want, and what not?" (Jayadvaita Swami)

This issue can be resolved by a process of consultations amongst a broad representation of senior Vaishnava followers of Srila Prabhupada, not by a rogue man that has become known as the "Book Changer." ### THE PURITY OF THE BOOKS

"ISKCON has long been infiltrated by, and is now controlled by, agents of Kali whose purpose is to destroy the transcendental potency of Srila Prabhupada's teachings. Part of their effort in doing so is to incrementally change Srila Prabhupada's teachings until they no longer resemble what he wrote/taught, and they no longer have any transcendental potency. The teachings of His Divine Grace are presented in his books and lectures. In order to maintain and protect for posterity the fidelity of his teachings, Srila Prabhupada's followers should exclusively use Srila Prabhupada's original, unedited books. Although Jayadvaita Swami attempts to justify his 'editing' in the numerous and ongoing changes, we see another agenda. Given the evidence of infiltration by Kali-chelas we cannot accept his statements at face value. We see something more sinister at work. The Jayadvaita book changes that continues to this day are documented at: www.bookchanges.com. Srila Prabhupada himself discovered the unauthorized book changes and was greatly alarmed. His exasperation with the situation was very obvious." (www.prabhupadanugas.eu)

FROM THE "RASCAL EDITORS" CONVERSATION: JUNE 22, 1977

SP: Now here is "O sages," and the word meaning is "of the munis." Just see. Such a rascal Sanskrit scholar. Here it is addressed, sambodhana, and they touch (?) it—"munayah—of the munis." It is very risky to give to them for editorial direction. Little learning is dangerous. However proper Sanskrit scholar, little learning, dangerous. Immediately they become very big scholars, high salaried, and write all nonsense. Who they are? [...] No, they cannot be reliable. They can do more harm. [...] Tamal: We're finding out in the Fifth Canto that there are words that are so off, the meaning is completely changed... in the three chapters that we read, Bhakti-prema Maharaja made at least half a dozen corrections [...] They had changed the meaning. [...] SP: So how they can be reliable, so-called, this way...? [...] Yasodanandana (YS): ...the words which the recent edition of the Press is wrong. Many changes were brought. They were trying to make better English, but [...] I think they were making philosophical mistakes also. [...] Your English is sufficient. It is very clear, very simple. We have caught over 125 changes. They're changing so many things. We are wondering if this is necessary. I will show you today. I have kept the book. SP: I know that these rascals are doing. What can be done? How they can be relied on? Tamal: He actually took out the whole part about their going to the moon being childish. He deleted the whole section. YS: Also in the Bhagavatam... You mentioned that if the followers of Lord Buddha do not close the slaughterhouse, there is no meaning to such a caricature. That word was very nice. But in new book that word is not there any more. They have pulled the word. The meaning of the word is not... So many times. SP: It is very serious situation. Ramesvara is in direct... Svarupa Damodara: I think they're working too independently without consulting properly. YS: Sometimes they appeal that "We can make better English," so they change like that, just like in the case of Isopanisad. There are over a hundred changes. So where is the need? Your words are sufficient. The potency is there. When they change, it is something else. Svarupa Damodara: That's actually a very dangerous mentality. YS: What is it going to be in five years? It's going to be a different book. SP: [...] It is very serious situation. You write one letter that "Why you have made so many changes?" And whom to write? Who will care? All rascals are there. Write to Satsvarupa that "This is the position. They are doing anything and everything at their whim." The next printing should be again to the original way.

EXAMPLES OF UNNECESSARY CHANGES TO BHAGAVAD GITA AS IT IS

(1) Ch. 6: Sankya Yoga is now titled Dhyana-Yoga. Even though Srila Prabhupada often referred to this chapter by the name that he himself had chosen, Jayadvaita Swami changed it. (2) Original manuscript, BGita 12. 2 purport: "For one in such Krishna consciousness there are no material activities because everything is done BY Krishna." Original 1972 Macmillan: Exactly the same. JAS: "For one in such Krishna consciousness there are no material activities because everything is done FOR Krishna." (3) BBTI changed the Gita's front cover even though Srila Prabhupada wrote: "And the covers, if possible, should always be the same for each respective book regardless of what language it may be printed in." (SPL Jadurani Jan. 3, 1975) But BBTI continually changes the cover illustrations on many books. (4) Unnecessary change: Original 1972, BGita 18.2 purport: "There are many prescriptions of methods for performing sacrifice for some particular purpose in the Vedic literatures." JAS: "In the Vedic literature there are many prescriptions of methods for performing sacrifice for some particular purpose." (5) More needless changes: BGita 18.63: Manuscript: "Thus I have explained to you the most confidential of all knowledge. Deliberate on this fully, and then do what you wish to do." Original 1972: Exactly the same. JAS: "Thus I have explained to you knowledge still more confidential. Deliberate on this fully, and then do what you wish to do." (6) Deleting the sea? BGita 11. 5: Manuscript: "The Supreme Personality of Godhead said, My dear Arjuna, O son of Pritha, see now My opulences, hundreds of varied divine forms, multicolored like the sea." The Original 1972 Edition: "The Blessed Lord said: My dear Arjuna, O son of Pritha, behold now My opulences, hundreds of thousands of varied divine forms, multicolored like the sea. NOTE: This verse was read to Srila Prabhupada on Apr. 4, 1974. JAS: "The Supreme Personality of Godhead said: My dear Arjuna, O son of Pritha, see now My opulences, hundreds of thousands of varied divine and multicolored forms." (7) Another unexplainable change, BGita 18.50: Manuscript: "O son of Kunti, learn from Me how one can attain to the Supreme perfectional stage, Brahman, by acting in the way I shall now summarize." Original 1972: "O son of Kunti, learn from Me in brief how one can attain to the supreme perfectional stage, Brahman, by acting in the way I shall now summarize." JAS: "O son of Kunti, learn from Me how one who has achieved this perfection can attain to the supreme perfectional stage, Brahman, the stage of highest knowledge, by acting in the way I shall now summarize."

(8) Jayadvaita is re-writing the Gita: (BGita 8.18): Manuscript: "On the manifest of the Brahma's day, all living entities, they come into being and when there is arrival of night of Brahma everything becomes annihilated." Original 1972: "When Brahma's day is manifest, this multitude of living entities comes into being, and at the arrival of Brahma's night they are all annihilated." Science of Self-Realization, p. 225: Exactly same. JAS: "At the beginning of Brahma's day, all living entities become manifest from the unmanifest state, and thereafter, when the night falls, they are merged into the unmanifest again." NOTE: Merge is a mayavadi word. (9) Manuscript BGita 10.38: "Amongst all principles of separation I am the punishment, amongst all the victorious I am morality, amongst all confidential things I am silence, and amongst all wise men I am the knowledge." Original 1972: "Among punishments I am the rod of chastisement, and of those who seek victory, I am morality. Of secret things I am silence, and of the wise I am wisdom." JAS: "Among all means of suppressing lawlessness I am punishment, and of those who seek victory I am morality. Of secret things I am silence, and of the wise I am the wisdom." Purport to the original verse: "...the rod of chastisement represents Krishna." JAS's change of the same purport: "...the agency of chastisement represents Krishna." (10) Manuscript BGita 2.26: "If, however, you think that the life symptoms, or the soul, is always born and dies for good - still you have no reason for your lamenting, Mighty-armed." Original 1972: "If, however, you think that the soul is perpetually born and always dies, still you have no reason to lament, O mighty-armed." JAS: He introduces brackets: "If, however, you think that the soul [or the symptoms of life] is always born and dies forever, you still have no reason to lament, O mighty-armed." (11) Jayadvaita "improves" the original version: Manuscript BGita 9.19: "I give heat; I withhold and send forth rain. I am the cause of degradation and promotion, O Arjuna, and also death personified. Both being and nonbeing reside in Me." Original 1972: "O Arjuna, I control heat, the rain and the drought. I am immortality, and I am also death personified. Both being and nonbeing are in Me. JAS: "O Arjuna, I give heat, and I withhold and send forth the rain. I am immortality, and I am also death personified. Both spirit and matter are in Me." NOTE: 'Being and non-being' is deleted. 'Spirit and matter' is added. 'Drought' is taken out. WHY?? (12) Another unnecessary change: Manuscript BGita 11.28: The page for 11.28 is missing. But 11.30 mentions the words 'blazing mouths.' Original 1972: "As the rivers flow into the sea, so all these great warriors enter Your blazing mouths and perish." JAS: "As the many waves of the rivers flow into the ocean, so do all these great warriors enter blazing into Your mouths. NOTE: 11.29 reads: "I see all people rushing with full speed into your mouths as moths dash into a blazing fire.

(13) Manuscript BGita 5.5: "One who knows that the position which is obtained by means of Samkhya can also be attained by devotional service, and who therefore sees both Samkhya and Yoga on the same level, does see things rightly." Original 1972: "One who knows that the position reached by means of renunciation can also be attained by works in devotional service and who therefore sees that the path of works and the path of renunciation are one, sees things as they are." JAS: "One who knows that the position reached by means of analytical study can also be attained by devotional service, and who therefore sees analytical study and devotional service to be on the same level, sees things as they are." NOTE: Both the the original's 'renunciation' AND the manuscript's 'Samhkya' is rejected. (14) Another change? Manuscript BGita 11.8: "But you cannot see Me with your present eyes. Therefore do I give you divine eyes, so that you can behold my mystic opulence." Original 1972: "But you cannot see Me with your present eyes. Therefore I give to you divine eyes by which you can behold My mystic opulence. JAS: "But you cannot see Me with your present eyes. Therefore I give you divine eyes. Behold My mystic opulence!" (15) The most known change in BGita is 4.34. The book changer substitutes the ISKCON pretender gurus for Srila Prabhupada: Original 1972: Just try to learn the truth by approaching a spiritual master. Inquire from him submissively and render service unto him. The self-realized soul can impart knowledge unto you because he has seen the truth. JAS: Just try to learn the truth by approaching a spiritual master. Inquire from him submissively and render service unto him. The self-realized souls can impart knowledge unto you because they have seen the truth.

RESPONSE TO SRI ARJUNA DAS VIDEO ABOUT ORIGINAL, AUTHORIZED BOOKS

"It is inspiring to see your video, <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Te22u6wLgH4> but personally I do not recommend people go to bbtedit.com (BBT website defending their book changes) and I never read, mention, or respond to their articles. It is all nonsense. I recommend: bookchanges.com, because bbtedit.com is in response to the articles on bookchanges.com. The main point is Srila Prabhupada did not ask anyone to change his books and he expressly forbade them from doing so. This was his greatest fear, that after his disappearance his disciples would change his books. The central point of this issue that you touched in your video is 'If you change the authority is lost.' Srila Prabhupada's original books are authoritative because they were printed in Srila Prabhupada's personal presence and he read them daily and gave his classes from them. There are some typographical errors that Prabhupada wanted corrected. You mentioned cow protection instead of cattle raising in Bhagavad-gita. So simple typographical errors can and should be corrected. But that is not what was done. They have made a massive 5000+ changes in Bhagavad-gita. In only a very tiny fraction of these cases was there any problem with the text of the original 1972 Gita. There is no need whatsoever to change something that is already correct. Jayadvaita even says this in regard to the translations, something like 'Although the original translations were correct we have changed them anyway...' This is totally outrageous.

"[...] I have presented the main points on bookchanges.com maybe 20 years ago and ever since BBTI and Jayadvaita have tried to defend their changes, but they failed embarrassingly. If I have learned not to waste time arguing with the nonsense presented on bbtedit.com. The way to defeat these demons who are changing Srila Prabhupada's books is to get everyone to distribute Srila Prabhupada's original books. Just establish that Prabhupada wants his original books distributed and doesn't want his books changed using the proven and tested logic at bookchanges.com and then get everyone to purchase cases of Prabhupada's books from: https://krishnastore.com/books-wholesale-om-21\_37.html Better to not advertise bbtedit.com. It is all poisonous lies which will discourage them from distributing Prabhupada's original books. It is my personal experience that if you just show any devotee what the actual Gita changes are, one change after another, they become convinced that the changes are nonsense and should be reversed. I have tested this with many devotees and it has always worked. What I do is print out the following 2 articles:

<http://bookchanges.com/108-iskcon-bhagavad-gita-changes/>

<http://bookchanges.com/examples-of-iskcons-bhagavad-gita-changes/>

"So you go through it with them and explain a bit. The 108 changes article has an introduction and goes through a few changes. The second article is a list of changes. It is such a dramatic revelation to devotees to see for themselves WHAT SOME OF THE CHANGES ARE. Just show them some actual changes, and let them make up their own minds on the nature of these changes. They have been brainwashed that there were only a few typographical corrections made. When they see so many real philosophical changes for no reason at all, even supporters of Jayadvaita Swami become convinced. The main thing is devotees can't make an informed decision without information. Just show what is printed in the original Gita and what is in the new Gita, side-by-side. [...]" (Madhudhvisa das, 2012)"

SELF-APPOINTED GHOSTWRITER

"GHOSTWRITER: noun: a person whose job it is to write material for someone else who is the named author. However, the difference between the usual ghostwriter and Jayadvaita Swami is that the latter is forcing his service upon the author, Srila Prabhupada, after his demise. We got rid of the eleven self-appointed zonal "gurus." But we still have Jayadvaita Swami who, as the self-appointed ghostwriter, is forcing his editing on Srila Prabhupada. Srila Prabhupada has no say in this regard. He is simply being forced to accept the ghostwritten material of Jayadvaita Swami. And so is everyone else." (Ajit Krishna das, Apr. 15, 2017)

ROOM CONVERSATION MARCH 1, 1977

Radha Vallabha (RV): Now Jagannatha had some questions on corrections in the book. In verse 28 it says, "Then he worshiped Sri Krishna, the essence of all Vedas, with this hymn. It's verse 28, "Then he worshiped Sri Krishna." So Jagannatha said it should be, "Then he worshiped..." SP: No, no. Jagannatha cannot correct. That bad habit he must give up. RV: So we should just leave it exactly. SP: Oh, yes. You should not be more educated. RV: He wasn't changing any of the words. He was just... SP: Nothing of the... This should be strictly forbidden. RV: So no corrections. That makes it simple. SP: They can divide the synonyms. That's all. RV: Synonyms. So even... SP: That is his tendency, to correct. That's very bad. He should not do that. RV: So I'll just forget this, then. SP: The system is: whatever authority has done, even there is mistake, it should be accepted. RV: Oh. SP: Arsa-praya (?) That is... He should not become more learned than the authority. That is very bad habit. RV: He was always wondering how he should think. So I'll tell him that. He thinks, "If I think I see a mistake, what should I think?" I'll tell him what you just said. SP: He cannot see mistake. He is mistake. (laughter) He should... That is being done by this rascal.

DO NOT CHANGE MY WORDS by Gauridas Pandit das

[Gauridas Pandit das was one of Srila Prabhupada's servants in 1977, and writes in his memories:]

"Srla Prabhupada used to like to sit in his garden in Vrindavan especially in the mornings. He liked to hear his books read to him daily. One time Yasodanandan Prabhu was reading Sri Isopanisad when Srla Prabhupada stopped him and asked him to reread the last paragraph. Hearing it again Srla Prabhupada became very angry: "Those are not my words! They are changing my words! Is my English not good enough?' This is the worst thing a disciple can do! [...] thinking you know better than him. Tell them immediately do not change my words!' Srla Prabhupada was very upset about the changes in his books. I never saw him get so angry. Years before Srla Prabhupada said the same thing. 'Don't make addition, alteration. Then you become rascal. Immediately you become rascal. And many times they give me very great credit that I have done wonderful. Yes, I have done wonderful. But what is the reason? Because I am not a rascal. I speak what Krishna has spoken. That's all. Very easy. Everyone can do that. Not only I. Any of you, you can do this. Simply speak what is..., what Krishna has said. That's all. Don't make addition, alteration. Then you become rascal. Immediately you become rascal.' (SPLecture Aug. 10, 1974) Despite these admonitions the BBT editors and trustees, who are the very persons charged with protecting the vani of His Divine Grace, are engaged in a continuing campaign to change both the words and meaning of his teachings, actions that have created the greatest furor among his faithful followers. When Srla Prabhupada was asked by Revatinandan Prabhu if we could read Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati's books; Srla Prabhupada said not the ones that were edited by his disciples, and also told him that we couldn't understand Bhaktisiddhanta's books. He said not even his Godbrothers could understand them, and said, 'Actually, he wrote those books for me.' (Revatinandana Memories) Srla Prabhupada translated the spiritual law books for the next 10,000 years, day and night, until his dying day. He translated constantly despite his busy preaching schedule. He did this to live on in his books. He said he had given us everything in his books, which were manifestations of his ecstasy. He said if we read his books and cooperated together, every thing would go on nicely. To edit his books without his sanction is insanity. We should try to be absorbed in the ecstasy of the spiritual master and not try to alter it. How can we 'improve upon' his ecstasy? One reason given to justify these changes is that the new edition is closer to what Srla Prabhupada said on the original tapes. But he lectured on many verses many times and never said to change them. He authorized about three changes, not the thousands we have in the new Bhagavad Gita. We need Bhagavad Gita As It Was! There is a nicer vibration to the original Srla Prabhupada approved version.

"When a new book came out Srla Prabhupada would be in total bliss. I remember when he was so sick he could hardly sit up. When he heard that the new Srimad Bhagavatam had arrived and he asked to be propped up on his bed. He asked for his glasses and more light. As he marveled over the quality of the book and the excellent artwork, tears came to his eyes. This gave him life. Another time when Srla Prabhupada asked a devotee to read in the garden the devotee asked him why he liked to hear his own books so much. Srla Prabhupada said, 'I did not write these books. Krishna wrote these books!' When Srla Prabhupada came into the room and caught me reading the Srimad Bhagavatam, he smiled nicer than ever and told his secretary, 'He's reading in his spare time; this is very good!' I was surprised to see how happy Srla Prabhupada was because I was reading. Srla Prabhupada put everything into his books and we would be better off to accept them as is/was. They made so many devotees in the past and will in the future. They are tried and true!

"Another important publication is 'Back To Godhead' magazine. Srla Prabhupada said BTG and Hari Nama Sankirtan are 'the backbone of our movement.' We need a mass distribution BTG {currently, due to changes since 1977, BTG is only available by subscription}. So many of us became devotees by getting a BTG one way or another. It should be cost effective, 25-50 cents, and distribute it for a dollar or so. The old BTG's were great. Srla Prabhupada said the Americans' disease is changing everything. Let's get rid of this disease and maintain what Srla Prabhupada has worked so hard to give us; without adulteration or change." (END)

CONCLUSION

In recent years, the growing resistance to the book changes and the increasing number of senior devotees who oppose them has reached an inflection point. Jayadvaita Swami resigned from the BBT, which hopefully means no more changes, although his nefarious deed is already done. Also a growing group of Vaishnava/ISKCON/non-ISKCON scholars have joined together to push back on the book changes. Led by Garuda das, a religion professor in a Virginia university, these devotee and non-devotee scholars attended a book changes conference and resolved, in essence, that the changes should be, by academic standards and religious principles, reversed, with astute suggestions to limits changes and how minimal editing should be done. ISKCON Bangalore and Jitarati das shared the conference costs, and a follow-up conference is scheduled. Recommendations were made to the BBTI, who is making a weak show of listening and participating. However, this is only a start in the process of righting the enormous wrongs done with the endless, unnecessary changes to Srila Prabhupada's books. Now is the time to push the issue to a solution, but we do not hold our breath waiting for the corrupt GBC to do much until they feel compelled by the force of circumstances to act.

The BBTI's changes are whimsical, unnecessary, and even convey a different style and meaning, and are not what Srila Prabhupada gave us. The 1972 Gita was approved by Srila Prabhupada, so why re-write it? Why go beyond correcting simple punctuation or omission errors to make thousands of unauthorized, crazy changes? As of 2022, ISKCON was still pushing the adulterated versions of Srila Prabhupada's books. Why?

CHAPTER 149: BHAKTIVEDANTA BOOK TRUST (BBT)

Founding Document for the BBT, USA

BBT Trust Agreement- May 29, 1972

I, A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami, disciple of Om Visnupad Paramhansa 108 Sri Srimad Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Gosvami Maharaj Prabhupada, hereby give and transfer all of my books and all property rights incidental thereto as hereinafter described to A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami, Bali Mardan Dasa Brahmachary, And Karandhar Dasa Adhikary as Trustees, in Trust, for the purposes hereinafter stated and to be administered in accordance with the provisions hereinafter set forth.

I. TRUST FUND: The properties which shall constitute the Trust Fund include all books and manuscripts and other documents written by me or translated by me, including the following hereinafter listed, and all those written by me in the future, including all copyrights and publication rights incidental thereto: The Nectar of Devotion; KRISHNA, The Supreme Personality of Godhead; Srimad Bhagavatam; Teachings of Lord Chaitanya; Sri Isopanisad; The Bhagavad-Gita As It Is; Easy Journey to Other Planets; KRISHNA CONSCIOUSNESS: The Topmost Yoga System; Back to Godhead Magazine; The First Step in God Realization; The Lord in the Heart; Pure Devotional Service—The Change in Heart; Process of Creation; The Cause of All Causes; The Incarnations of Godhead; Purushasukta Confirmed; Answers by Citing the Lord's Version.

II. NAME OF TRUST: This trust shall be known by the name, "BHAKTIVEDANTA BOOK TRUST." Insofar as practicable, the Trustees shall conduct the trust activities in that name.

III. PURPOSE OF TRUST: This trust is created and shall be operated exclusively for the benefit of the INTERNATIONAL SOCIETY FOR KRISHNA CONSCIOUSNESS, incorporated by me, and qualified as a tax-exempt religious organization under the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code, and specifically for the Book Fund and Building Fund activities hereinafter set forth in particular. This trust shall exist independently of the International Society for Krishna Consciousness and the Trustees' functions and duties stated herein shall be separate and not dependent on the Governing Body Commission of the International Society for Krishna Consciousness. I direct that no part of the Trust Fund shall inure to the benefit of any private individual and no part of the activities of this trust shall consist of carrying on propaganda or otherwise attempting to influence legislation, or participating in or intervening in any political campaign on behalf of any candidate for public office. I insert these mandates in order to comply with the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code applicable to tax-exempt organizations. For the same purpose, I direct that the Trustees shall not conduct or carry on any activities which are not permitted to be conducted or carried on by tax-exempt organizations under the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code. IV. USE OF THE TRUST FUND: The Trustees shall collect all proceeds from the sale of my books, that is 100% of all the proceeds from all of the ISKCON Temples and divide these proceeds into two funds, one-half (1/2) for the fund known as the Book Fund, and one-half (1/2) for the fund known as the Building Fund. The proceeds allocated to the Book Fund shall be used for the following purposes, all in the discretion of the Trustees, in whom I have complete confidence: Printing and reprinting of books; Directing and managing all publicity and distribution of my books; Processing all copyrights and legal rights to my books; Allocating funds as they see fit to ISKCON Press and directing the operation of the activities of ISKCON Press in the printing and reprinting of said books. Those funds allocated to the Building Fund shall be applied in the sole discretion of the Trustees in the following manner: Purchase of properties for the construction of new temples or renovation of old temples. In the application of said proceeds, I direct the Trustees to distribute the trust income for each taxable year at such time and manner as not to become subject to the tax on undistributed income (Internal Revenue Code). In addition, in the discretion of the Trustees, I direct them to allocate such portions of the principal portion of the proceeds of said trust for the purposes stated in this Paragraph IV. Any funds not so allocated may be distributed in the sole discretion of the Trustees to other charitable or religious organizations or purposes which qualify as tax-exempt under the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code.

V. MANAGEMENT OF TRUST FUND: I have full confidence in the manner in which my Trustees will govern the Trust Fund but, in order to give them as much flexibility as possible in accordance with the law, I set forth the following powers. In the administration of this trust and the Trust Fund, the Trustees shall have all powers and authorities necessary or available under the law to carry out the purposes of this trust, subject to the restriction as heretofore stated that they may not exercise any power or authority which is prohibited by the Internal Revenue Code for tax-exempt organizations. Without limiting the generality of their powers, for purposes of clarification, I include the following special powers: A. To invest any of the principal of the Trust Fund not used for the purposes hereinabove stated; B. To open bank accounts in the name of the trust for the transaction of business; C. To pay such administrative expense as may be necessary in the administration of this trust; D. To appoint a secretary to keep account books and issue a monthly statement to the Trustees.

VI. APPOINTMENT OF TRUSTEES: The Trustees whom I have herein designated are appointed for lifetime. In the event of the death or failure to act for any reason of any of said Trustees, a successor Trustee or Trustees may be appointed by the remaining Trustees, with never more than 5 Trustees acting at one time. VII. TERM OF TRUST: This trust shall be irrevocable. In the event of an inadvertent disqualification of this trust under the laws as they may exist from time to time, which may require a dissolution of the trust, the entire Trust Fund shall, in that event, be distributed to the International Society for Krishna Consciousness.

In witness whereof, I have executed this trust this 29 May 1972. A.C. BHAKTIVEDANTA SWAMI

ACCEPTANCE OF TRUST: The Trustees hereby accept this Trust and the obligations imposed thereby and undertake to hold, manage and administer the Trust Fund in accordance with the terms of this Agreement. A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami, Bali Mardan dasa, Karandhar dasa

HISTORY OF THE BBT

BOMBAY BBT: Just months before the California BBT was formed, Srila Prabhupada filed for the Bombay BBT (finalized shortly after California BBT was registered) as an Indian trust with the publishing rights to his books. The copyrights were not explicitly granted although today the Bombay BBT justifies their claim to them because they were the first BBT and through some vague language in the trust document which will likely not hold water in a court test. Bombay BBT has been printing Srila Prabhupada's books since 1972.

CALIFORNIA BBT: In May 1972 Srila Prabhupada formed the California trust and very clearly vested it with the copyrights to his books, as seen above. This was a brilliant arrangement for posterity and for expanding the Hare Krishna Movement, based on his books. Srila Prabhupada emphasized book distribution, which peaked in 1977. The history of the BBT after Srila Prabhupada departed is a sad one, as those entrusted to its continuity, according to Srila Prabhupada's directions in the trust document and in verbal and written instructions, disobeyed and made a grand mess. Right from 1972, the BBT itself never was active with even a bank account and all book sale receipts went to an ISKCON California account, which was the defacto BBT. When Ramevara hired a trust attorney (years after 1972) who gave recommendations to form another legal entity for tax purposes, Srila Prabhupada was dismissive and not pleased. Karandhar wrote (May 2021): "During my tenure at the BBT, all its funds were routed through a bank account titled ISKCON BBT, which was separate from the LA temple account- funds were not mixed. This was done to maintain the temple tax exemption but which we were unable to obtain for the BBT as a separate legal entity (not for lack of trying)... The lawyers we had researching the issue at the time did not advise us about any other tax exempt status options. Funds in the ISKCON BBT account were fully tax exempt. Prabhupada wanted the BBT to be a separate legal entity from ISKCON and administered as such. He wanted it to make a profit, and this profit be divided 50-50 between the BBT and the Mayapur-Vrindaban Trust, both of which were to be separate tax-exempt legal entities." The 1983 revised/ edited Bhagavad Gita was published by Harikeshia in Germany through a new BBT entity formed in Liechenstein (European trusts tax haven). Other BBT entities were formed as well, as confusion reigned as to how to operate, although it is uncertain what exactly was the problem in using the original BBT itself, as was intended by Srila Prabhupada. The entire mess (as will be described below) could have been avoided if the 1972 BBT was used as Srila Prabhupada wanted. And why in 2022 is the 1972 BBT not simply returned to, instead of millions in legal cases being spent to avoid it?

First Printing, 1983: 250,000 copies

Bhagavad-gītā As It Is has also been printed in Arabic, Bengali, Chinese, Dutch, French, German, Gujarati, Hindi, Italian, Japanese, Portuguese, Spanish, Swedish and twenty-nine other languages.

BBTI: The BBT was actually ISKCON Los Angeles, and the operation fumbled along until a meeting that Tamal held in Dallas in 1986, just after Ramevara's departure, where all the various BBT international departments and trustees had gathered. They decided to form a new BBT entity and vest it with all the rights and functions of the original BBT, which was done in 1988 with a California religious corporation named BBT International (BBTI) which obtained US 501 C-3 tax exemption status. Offices were set up in Los Angeles and Alachua, Florida. Later a settlement of $300K with the IRS was made due to reporting violations. BBTI took over or absorbed all the former 1972 BBT branches, such as Spanish, Portuguese, Australian, and Harikesh's European BBT's. It was loosely called the "Global BBT." The last holdout today is the Bombay BBT (India trust) who refused to merge with the BBTI, and there is some degree of legal tension between the BBTI and Bombay BBT.

SRILA PRABHUPADA LETTER 1974: to temples re: paying their bills to BBT according to SP's plan for the BBT. BBT trust specifies 50% for reprinting books, 50% for new temples, loans, temple renovations, but from Ramevara's time onward, this has been interpreted as 50% of gross, not 50% of "proceeds" or net profits, and thus books were priced at over double of cost, which hurt distribution and was not Srila Prabhupada's idea. In 1986 the BBTI resolved to give 25% to temples, 25% to book printing, and 50% to costs. Why could they not just follow Srila Prabhupada's formula? E.g., in 2013 BBTI annual sales were $1.5M and the only temple to get funds was Mayapur with $300K. All other temples and projects are neglected.

ISKCON INC (LONG ISLAND): In 2004 Nimai Pandit das was given control by the previous president of the Long Island ISKCON temple (2 buildings, Freeport, NY), the only ISKCON temple still registered under the original 1966 ISKCON corporation. ISKCON panicked- Nimai Pandit was a “ritvik”- and many takeover attempts failed after the police intervened and courts confirmed Long Island’s independence. Legal maneuvers also failed to dislodge the duly elected Freeport directors. ISKCON had no legal standing to oust Long Island’s directors and the matter still is in court in 2022. Long Island also took a longshot with a lawsuit against ISKCON claiming it, as the only original ISKCON, was the BBT’s sole beneficiary, hoping to reroute the BBTI funds to a better use. This is unlikely to come to much, however. In reaction, ISKCON has increased their centralized control over all temples with overlapping loyalist trustees and restrictive bylaws.

KRISHNA BOOKS INC (KBI): Hansadutta, although removed as an ISKCON guru and GBC in filed;

 AND WHEREAS, by way of their complaint, Plaintiffs sought a judicial declaration that the assignment document dated May 30, 1990, is valid, and that both the Indian Trust and the BBT have been extinguished;

1983, continued to print Srila Prabhupada’s books as an appointed BBT trustee; he never resigned from this lifetime position. In 1992 his Singapore disciple Bhima das and wife, printing inexpensive small Bhagwatam sets under their yoga society, were sued by the BBTI through its agent Sundar Gopal das. After $1M in legal costs by Bhima, the Singapore court case was withdrawn by BBTI. To protect its market share and supposed exclusive rights, BBTI sued Hansadutta personally in California in 1996 using an apparently fraudulent assignment document, claiming the BBT nor Hansadutta had any copyrights or publishing rights since the BBTI had “extinguished” both the 1972 BBT and the Bombay BBT in 1988. However the California Probate court confirmed the BBT’s validity and Hansadutta as a BBT trustee, and with Bhagavan’s encouragement, a settlement was reached whereby Hansadutta and Bhagavan would resign as BBT trustees in exchange for the publishing rights of pre-1978 books to be given under license to a new entity, Krishna Books Inc. KBI’s directors were Hansadutta, Bhagavan, Gupta, Veda Guhya. Also BBTI paid $500K to KBI for printing unchanged books. The court ordered that the original BBT should be reactivated since it was still a valid, irrevocable trust and that there had been no transfer of Srila Prabhupada’s book copyrights to BBTI. It is the fiduciary duty of a trust and its trustees to protect the trust assets; they cannot simply assign/convey the copyrights elsewhere. (See Appendix 15) BBTI’s attorney Armarendra and KBI’s Gupta colluded and went back to the Probate Court in 1997, both sides asking that BBTI grant the license to KBI, rather than BBT, as “this would be more workable.” This was inane since the court had already ruled the BBT had the copyrights, not BBTI, so how would BBTI grant a license for something it had no rights to? The judge, unable to take an opposing position as a third party, had to rubber stamp an agreement between plaintiff and defendant. This undercut any progress made up to that point in the restoration of the original BBT; it was a boondoggle and reversed much of what the book change opponents had fought and spent so much for.

Meanwhile, considering Hansadutta an unpredictable wildcard, KBI’s directors deftly removed Hansadutta and the $500K disappeared into Gupta’s Bahamas account, and was never used for book printing. The BBTI’s goal of removing Hansadutta had been done by his own lawyer. Hansadutta went to the California Bar Association, and after an investigation, Gupta was suspended from legal practice for two years (reduced to 6 months on appeal), even though it had been a serious attorney betrayal of his client. KBI went on to print millions of Srila Prabhupada’s unchanged books which, as per the license, could only be sold outside ISKCON temples and congregations. Until his death in 2020, Hansadutta did not print books again.

JITARATI’S BOXED BHAGWATAMS: As KBI’s authorized agent, Jitarati printed unchanged boxed Bhagwatam sets in India, but BBT Bombay, led by Gopal Krishna Maharaja and incited by BBTI, went to court and seized 5000 sets on Feb. 8, 2017 just after they were printed. BBT Bombay claimed they were the copyright holder and they had not given Jitarati’s Pristine Trading any publishing rights, ignoring that BBTI had given a license to KBI. KBI was listed on the title page as publisher and KBI gave the printer a letter of authority to Pristine Trading. In May 2018 a Parsee judge ordered BBT Bombay and Jitarati/Pristine to make a settlement because “religious books should be distributed, not fought over.” BBT Bombay and Jitarati (KBI) mended their differences, working together to distribute Srila Prabhupada’s unchanged books. Pristine and many others are selling these beautiful Bhagwatams; it was a win-win outcome, largely due to Jitarati’s generous flexibility.

BBT/BBTI UPDATE: Long before the Jitarati Bhagwatam episode, BBTI had been trying to have BBT Bombay’s publishing rights assigned to itself. Also BBTI clearly wants to somehow end the license to KBI, which by the settlement would require three distinct, formidable steps which would be difficult to complete. KBI’s license is still as valid as when the court approved the 1996 settlement, even if BBTI’s actions insinuate otherwise. Up to 2018 BBTI had given “last notice” cease and desist letters to Bombay BBT. Bombay is holding fast and BBTI has not pushed it further. BBTI has no real interest in printing unchanged books, does not encourage KBI to print them, begrudges KBI’s license, and insists it is the legal holder of the copyrights to Srila Prabhupada’s books, even though the California Probate Court in 1996 ruled that the original BBT was.

BBTI TRIES TO EXTINGUISH SRILA PRABHUPADA’S BBT’S IN INDIA AND AMERICA

Q: “The BBTI was not successful in extinguishing the 1972 BBT or Indian BBT as far as I could tell from reading the 1996 settlement. Did I miss something? The settlement keeps the 1972 BBT alive but with rogue persons replacing Hansadutta, et al. I saw no legal restriction on the Indian BBT.”

A: “You sure did miss something... The most significant aspect of this whole thing is Naresvara and others saying they must stick to the legal independence part of the BBT trust document, but they tried their best with a million plus dollars to deceive Srila Prabhupada’s followers, trying to ‘extinguish’ that same Trust, and which they now say they believe in again. Krishna stepped in and didn't allow it to happen. This is very significant. They say they are trying to save Prabhupada's books by stealing the copyrights from the BBT and then don't sell Prabhupada's unchanged books and do not allow others access to them either. The GBC are no better as they are not demanding Prabhupada's unchanged books. They say they will be the ones to decide who in their ranks are up to the spiritual standard, and then appoint the worst criminal gangster and BBT thief as their leader. How can these BBTI people talk about legal responsibility or authority when they themselves tried to wipe out the two BBT Trusts that Prabhupada himself established? They have gone rogue long ago.”

Bombay BBT’s directors are Gopal Krishna Maharaja, Bhima das, Jayapataka, Yasomatinandana (passed away 2020), and Ananda Tirtha (Jayapataka disciple, who runs the operations nicely). The De’s (Srila Prabhupada’s former family members) had previously lost their 1990’s Bombay court case that Srila Prabhupada’s assets were inherited by them. The ruling was that Srila Prabhupada was a sannyasi and thus his property and book copyrights cannot be inherited. Then in 2015 the BBTI invented another legal maneuver by which they hoped to finally acquire Srila Prabhupada’s BBT copyrights. They filed a new claim in the US Copyright Office. Despite the De family’s earlier court loss, the two party claim, infers the De family does have the copyrights (C) which are now assigned to BBTI (As). Unless contested (who wants to, or has the money?), this claim becomes legally more solid as time goes by. Uncontested claims are eventually confirmed by default.

“The Dey family is the last known claimant of the copyrights. In 2015, on June 8th, a new claimant(s) was registered at the US Copyright office for the MacMillan 72 edition. The entire Dey family and the BBTI: Brindavan Chadra De, Bhaktilata De, Mathura Mohan De, -2004 (C), (Bhaktivedanta Book Trust International Inc.) (As) Their reason: New Matter: extensive revisions and additions to the balance of work. However, they were claiming the original '72 Mac edition, not JDS's 2nd edition. So what extensive revisions and additions could they possibly be talking about in the unchanged books? There are none! “

BBTI also filed claims on the abridged copyright (changed books) at the same time. It seems BBTI and the De's made a sham deal (surely for some compensation) for them to "sign over" Srila Prabhupada's book's copyrights to the BBTI, although both of them have been found by courts not to have them! This is a phony transfer of the copyrights and BBTI hopes no one will contest their claim. The copyright saga becomes increasingly complex. BBTI now operates as though they own the copyrights, which they postured had been transferred to them from the BBT but which was ruled false by the Probate Court CA in 1996, and they now claim was owned by the Deys, and not the BBT after all. These are desperate measures to steal the copyrights.

BBTI's CEO is Gopal Bhatta; other directors are Naresvara, Svavas, Brahma Muhurta (formerly of the 1990's Harikesha European BBT), and Jayadvaita Swami (resigned in 2017 but still with significant influence). Nareswara (Ch. 142) has a checkered history, with many claiming he extorted US$1M from the BBT and lost it in the stock market, or which was cash in a safe at the Twin towers in 2001 and lost in the buildings' collapse. He was removed as a director due do his "mismanagement" at the Australian BBTI and for his illicit sex trysts, yet inexplicably was brought back in some years later. He now resides in Mayapur. Brahma Muhurta also had a checkered history with European BBT, with mismanaged funds, and who once wrote the Bhaktivedanta Archives to press for major redactions in Srila Prabhupada's books (which was flatly refused).

PUBLIC DOMAIN? RESTORE THE 1972 BBT? As of 2022, who really owns the copyrights, who is the trust beneficiary, who are the trustees, who has rights to publish, or even whether the copyrights should be or already are in the "public domain"- all this has no clear answers. These are the results of disobeying Srila Prabhupada and gross mismanagement since 1972. To restore the original 1972 BBT and exclusive copyrights for Srila Prabhupada's books would require an expensive court case which would be vigorously opposed by BBTI and there is no force or party interested or equipped to do this at this time. Public domain might be good in that ISKCON and BBTI no longer would be able to restrict book publishing and distribution, titles would be much less likely to be out of print, and the unchanged books would be available through anyone who wanted to print or sell them. However, the profits would not necessarily go to print more of Srila Prabhupada's books or open new temples as was arranged by Srila Prabhupada. Today, BBTI book profits are only go to print changed books and supporting Mayapur which is a haven for ISKCON's corrupt guru regime, so many rather the copyrights be taken away from BBTI. Krishna will determine the future of Srila Prabhupada's books.

According to Cornell University (<https://copyright.cornell.edu/publicdomain>) all works registered or first published in the US between 1964 and end 1977 are copyrighted for 95 years after publication, when they automatically become public domain. It seems this would exclude Journey to Other Planets (India, 1959), original Bhagwatam Vol's 1 and 2 of First Canto (India, 1962, 1963), and also works published in India where copyrights only last 60 years after the author's death (until 2037). But in general, all Srila Prabhupada's books will become public domain from 2063 to 2072 (95 years after 1968 to 1977). Another 40-50 years for more BBTI nonsense but then the unchanged books will definitely become widely available without any fear of legal restrictions. Books could come out India by 2037. But this a very complex legal dilemma no one can predict.

UNCHANGED BOOKS: Many devotees, ISKCON leaders and several primary advocates for the unchanged books openly say Naresvara and Brahma Muhurta are "crooks" (self-motivated businessmen at best) and should be removed for the good of Srila Prabhupada's book distribution, for honest management, and the restoration of the 1972 BBT. Then most problems could be resolved re: the BBTI's deviant practices of circumventing the original BBT trust and promoting "changed books." The Bombay BBT prefers the unchanged books being printed and distributed, and has settled with KBI and Jitarati to print the boxed Bhagwatam sets and other books. Some feel the BBT legal quagmire is a time waster and distraction, and that the real goal must be to get the unchanged books printed and distributed. Still, the 1972 BBT should be restored with honest, Prabhupada-centered trustees and the copyrights denied to the BBTI. But how will this ever happen? The issue is more about who are the directors, and what is their Krishna consciousness related to Srila Prabhupada's desires for his books. Nareswara, Brahma Muhurta, Jayadvaita should not be trustees of the 1972 BBT because of their conflict of interest as BBTI directors claiming the BBT copyrights. What a mess. With assistance from Rupanuga, in 2020 Gupta resided in Alachua working on legal materials supporting a return to printing only "unchanged" books. Good progress is being made on rectifying the changes in Srila Prabhupada's books (see Ch. 148). Gupta has researched this issue in cooperation with Partrikananda, Jitarati, Vedaguhya, Govinda dasi, Garuda, and others. Meanwhile, support unchanged book sales.

BBTI STATEMENT 2017, WITH REPLIES

"Recently, the BBT trustees [Bombay BBT, not BBTI] became aware that Jitarati and his company printed sets of Srimad-Bhagavatam in New Delhi without consulting with or being authorized or licensed by the BBT. [Untrue: He is a legal KBI agent. KBI has the license from BBTI, not BBT Bombay.] This is a serious legal matter, and his printing also has ramifications for the worldwide distribution of Srila Prabhupada's books; and so the BBT trustees who discovered Jitarati's printing have delayed the release of the books. [Actually the BBT 30 point court reply asks for the books to be turned over to them or destroyed.] Jitarati's edition and the BBT's edition of Srimad-Bhagavatam are practically identical. There is no question of "preserving" some earlier edition. In fact, the BBT not only preserves Srila Prabhupada's books, but it also publishes earlier editions of them such as the first edition of Bhagavad-gita As It Is for those who prefer it. [The Bhagwatam set printed by BBT includes Hridayananda's 10, 11, 12 Cantos; KBI/Jitarati's set includes only Prabhupada's KRISHNA Book as the 10th Canto.] The BBT's legally appointed trustees are bound not only to uphold the BBT's founding documents, personally approved by Srila Prabhupada, but also to execute the specific instructions Srila Prabhupada gave on Mar. 14, 1974 in his "Memorandum to all ISKCON Centers" where Srila Prabhupada forbids the printing of his books outside the BBT as well as the collection and spending of book sales proceeds by anyone other than the BBT. "This must not go on." Why? Because such independent printing “could eventually cause the financial ruin of the BBT.” [See this letter above. Again, the BBTI in 1998 gave KBI the license to print all pre 1978 Prabhupada books and Srila Prabhupada’s “specific instructions” were that the BBT print only his books, not those of conditioned souls like Hridayananda, Satsvarupa, Harikesha, et al.]

“Jitarati and others are in direct opposition to Srila Prabhupada’s orders on these matters and should not be lauded for their departure from these instructions. [BBT is printing a Bhagavad-gita with 4985 changes as an “IMPROVED” Prabhupada version; how is this preservation?] There is no doubt that Srila Prabhupada wanted to safeguard the BBT and the BBT’s exclusive rights to print his books in order to protect and encourage the distribution of those books around the world. The distribution of BBT books is on the rise all over the world... such increases require painstaking planning, cooperation, and dedication. Independent and unauthorized printing of Srila Prabhupada’s books sabotages this growth. All over the world strict laws protect companies from unfair interference. Srila Prabhupada enacted similar protections for his main business interest, the BBT, to prevent undercutting by competitors not held to the same responsibilities he established for the BBT – for example, his desire to use BBT profits to “print as many books in as many languages” and then to distribute them throughout the whole world, and also to contribute significantly toward the construction of ISKCON temples. [BBTI authorized, encouraged and licensed KBI to print “unchanged” books. BBT Bombay knows this; Jitarati/KBI gave proof in court of the license and Jitarati’s legal agency with KBI, but BBT’s aims were economic, not philosophic. The KBI boxed Bhagwatam set is an economic threat because it was superior in quality, design, price.] “Every follower of Srila Prabhupada holds his books as sacred. However, his specific instructions are to cooperate with the BBT for the printing and distribution of his books, his formula for allocating BBT profits for BBT and ISKCON development, and his specific written empowerment of legally appointed trustees to oversee these proceedings are also sacred. [Prabhupada’s formula hasn’t been followed for 3 decades by BBT Bombay regarding 50% of the profits of book sales going to building temples (development) and there is no accounting where their profits went. It is well-known that Nareswara embezzled maybe a million dollars of BBT money in Australia.] Srila Prabhupada invested the BBT with the exclusive right to print his books in order to keep the BBT financially solvent and able to print his books in perpetuity. This is something we all want.” [Yes, but Jitarati/KBI have the BBTI license to print unchanged books...]

HOW TO SPEND BBTI’S FUNDS?

There are serious doubts if BBTI is actually spending its funds according to Srila Prabhupada’s directions and if there is any public accounting of their finances outside their own directors with checkered histories. Accusations and evidence of fraud, theft, missing millions, etc demands that a public accounting be available to anyone interested, which is a worldwide standard for charities and non-profits. The BBTI website nor its directors have provided this information. Thus there is no confidence in the integrity of the BBTI. Srila Prabhupada’s formula for the BBT was 50% for books, 50% for temples. Is this 50-50 of the gross or net income? Why are books other than Srila Prabhupada’s being financed by the BBTI, contrary to Srila Prabhupada’s order? Is the GBC influencing or directing the BBTI? Srila Prabhupada wanted the GBC to have no control over the BBT. (See Appendix 15.)

(1) “These properties should be purchased in the name of BBT, and when the local center repays the loan, then the name can be transferred. Now you have loaned Madhudvisa $133,505.50. How will he repay? What are the terms for repayment? In France they are wanting to borrow $120,000.00. Can you arrange for this loan in Jan. 1975? I understand that Spiritual Sky is not able to repay its loan now. This rule must be strictly followed that 50% paid for printing and 50% paid for property and building loans.” (SPL Ramesvara Nov. 14, 1974) (2) “I am in due receipt of your letter dated Nov. 6, 1974 and have noted the contents. No, we cannot loan BBT money for any other purpose than what is mentioned in the BBT Agreement. These other loans for cows, equipment, and restaurants must all be re-paid, and no other loans other than for publishing and temple construction can be granted.” (SPL Ramesvara Nov. 25, 1974) (3) “I think that you should immediately try and get the church in Toronto. Take it immediately. Church is always cheaper as there are not many other purchasers. This way we can bargain with them and bring the price down. The psychology behind it is that the Christians will hesitate to tear down a church. They would rather see it still standing. Gradually you should buy all the churches and make them into temples. There are so many churches actually they should give us these churches free, if they were actually God-conscious. But they are sectarian. Anyway purchase this church immediately. It is not very costly. $200,000 you can arrange. If it is available from BBT at this time then I have no objection. You can make the $150,000 loan from BBT. I do not know though if that much is available." (SPL Jagadish Dec. 28, 1974) (4) "Yes, this is our philosophy; anandambuddhi vardhanam. It means to expand or to increase. Therefore I strongly encourage you to double your program by getting three more buses if you can do it. There is no difficulty. BBT will help. I have written Hansadutta one letter to give you the loan of $30,000. BBT means 50% is for printing books and 50% for construction of temples. So your buses are all moving temples." (SPL Tamal Krishna Dec. 28, 1974) (5) "Regarding your question about the loan for the building, Ramesvara and Jayatirtha have suggested that you be given a $4,000 loan from the BBT. So, I think that will be nice." (SPL Ravindra Svarupa Feb. 2, 1975) (6) "I am in due receipt of your letter of Nov. 9, 1975 and also your telegram to BS reading as follows: 'ASK SRILA PRABHUPADA IF WE SHOULD BUY SMALL CHURCH IN PHOENIX TWO BLOCKS FROM UNIVERSITY WITH $15,000 to $20,000 LOAN FROM BBT. WIRE BACK IMMEDIATELY AS MAY BE SOLD SOON. NALINIKANTA.'" So this matter I cannot say because I do not know what money is available. You have to consult this with Ramesvara." (SPL Nalinikanta Nov. 21, 1975) (7) "The church proposal in Houston is a good offer. I think somehow or other the BBT must give you loan for it is a worthy cause." (SPL Satsvarupa Jan. 22, 1976) (8) "I am in due receipt of your letter dated Aug. 23, 1976 and have noted the contents with care. Your scheme to purchase that building with BBT loan is fully approved by me." (SPL Kurusrestha Sept. 5, 1976)

In just a few years, the BBT financed so many temple purchases. Now, no temple loans. Why?

QUESTIONS TO THE BBTI UNANSWERED

"(1) Why is the 1988 BBTI a "corporation" instead of a religious trust as was done by Srila Prabhupada with the original 1972 BBT, even though BBTI has "Trust" in its name? (2) What was the exact reason to start BBTI and abandon the original BBT? The indications that the 1972 BBT had serious incurable tax issues are not plausible. (3) "I read in Srila Prabhupada's letters that BBT money was used to buy temples, quickly expanding the movement. I asked an ISKCON regional secretary with 30+ years service in Russia's national council; he gave one example of BBTI providing money in Russia for anything. Russia has been since the early 1990s in 1st, 2nd, or 3rd place in book distribution, yet practically got nothing from BBT as loans for new temples? There are still no big, nice buildings for ISKCON temples in Russia, as far as I know. So how can BBTI (after 1988) have been following Srila Prabhupada's formula of 50% for temples and 50% for books? Where are the BBTI incorporation documents? (Not on website.) BBTI did not answer my letter with these questions. In 2013 I visited Sannyas das in St. Petersburg (formerly in charge of Moscow branch, North European BBT, for all CIS/former USSR until 1999); he said during his time, BBT/BBTI never assisted with temple buildings." (Alexander Stegantsev, 2021)

CONCLUSION

BBT (1972) was abandoned after operations were shifted to BBTI, a CA corp, which is a breach of Srila Prabhupada's deliberate arrangements for his movement and his books. BBT is a trust, BBTI is a corporation. Jayadvaita Swami resigned as a BBTI director around 2017, leaving Brahma Muhurta das and Nareswara das, both who have very poor reputations. They both have been accused of financial improprieties. So Srila Prabhupada's books are in the hands of these two disreputable persons? Nrsinghananda das has done research and compiled an essay showing that while the BBT was to be legally separate from ISKCON and the GBC, the BBT should still be spiritually guided by the GBC so that it does not deviate from the principles which Srila Prabhupada enunciated for the BBT.

But the GBC is “Deviation Central” and is completely unable to police itself since it has become a cabal of elite gurus who cannibalize ISKCON with their guru franchises.

CHAPTER 150: DEVIATIONS

(1) “The least deviation from the truth is multiplied later a thousand fold.” (Aristotle, 384-322 BC) (2) “As soon as the disciple thinks independently, not caring for the instructions of the spiritual master, he is a failure.” (SBhag 8.17.1 purport) (3) “Our only business is to follow the superiors. Just like a faithful servant, if he simply follows the instruction of the master, then he is perfect. If he does not adulterate the instruction of the master, then he's perfect.” (SPLecture Apr. 6, 1971) (4) “The instructions received from the spiritual master must be followed immediately. One should not deviate from or surpass the instructions of the spiritual master.” (SBhag 5.5.14 purport) (5) “But if he makes addition, alteration, then he is finished. No addition, alteration. You have to approach guru –guru means the faithful servant of God, Krishna --and take his word how to serve Him. Then you are successful. If you concoct, 'I am very intelligent than my guru, and I can make addition or alteration,' then you are finished.” (SPLecture July 12, 1975) (6) CC Adi 12.10 Translation: The order of the spiritual master is the active principle in spiritual life. Anyone who disobeys the order of the spiritual master immediately becomes useless. Purport: Here is the opinion of Srila Krishnadas kaviraja Gosvami. Persons who strictly follow the orders of the spiritual master are useful in executing the will of the Supreme, whereas persons who deviate from the strict order of the spiritual master are useless. (7) Deviations take place due to the mode of passion: BGita 18.31 Text: And that understanding which cannot distinguish between the religious way of life and the irreligious, between action that should be done and action that should not be done, that imperfect understanding, O son of Pritha, is in the mode of passion. Purport: Intelligence in the mode of passion is always working perversely. It accepts religions which are not actually religions and rejects actual religion. All views and activities are misguided. Men of passionate intelligence understand a great soul to be a common man and accept a common man as a great soul. They think truth to be untruth and accept untruth as truth. In all activities they simply take the wrong path; therefore their intelligence is in the mode of passion. (8) “One who deviates is not a sage. He's a thief.” (SPConv June 12, 1974) (9) “Deviations are a kind of hypocrisy, to change a thing into something else although it may look the same. Deviations have changed Srila Prabhupada's movement into something very different to what it was. Let us not be naïve. It is not accidental. It is effected by very dark, organized, and unseen forces.” (Narasimha das)

THE NATURE OF DEVIATION IN SPIRITUAL LIFE

Disobedience or deviation from Srila Prabhupada's instructions disconnects us from the parampara. The GBC's concocted guru system of vote-approved, conditioned soul diksha gurus is the epitome of disobedience. The irony is that the GBC claims their concoctions were necessary to preserve the continuity of the disciplic succession, but the truth is that they have disconnected themselves, abruptly and totally. Srila Prabhupada never approved of anything like this and he actually spoke out expressly and repeatedly against such a thing. We find the results have been horrific and devastating. (1) “Our process is to show Krishna Consciousness as it is, not as others want to see it. By showing Krishna consciousness in this way, you are making the thing less important. It is not that we should change to accommodate the public, but that we should change the public to accommodate us. If we simply present Krishna Consciousness in a serious and attractive way, without need to resort to fashionable slogans or tricks, that is sufficient. Our unique asset is our purity. No one any where can match it. That will be noticed eventually and appreciated, as long as we do not diminish or neglect the highest standard of purity in performing our routine work, not that we require to display or announce ourselves in very clever ways to get attention. No, our pure standard is enough. Let us stand on that basis.” (SPL Yogesvara Dec. 28, 1971) (2) “One must see things as they are through the mercy of a spiritual master [...]. A sincere person is able to see Krishna through the transparent via medium of Sri Gurudeva, the spiritual master. Unless one is enlightened by the knowledge given by the spiritual master, he cannot see things as they are, even though he remains constantly with the spiritual master." (CC Mad 18.99 purport)

(3) "You have asked if it is true that the Spiritual Master remains in the material universe until all of His disciples are transferred to the Spiritual Sky. The answer is yes, this is the rule. Therefore, every student should be very much careful not to commit any offense which will be detrimental to this promotion to the Spiritual Kingdom, and thereby the Spiritual Master has to incarnate again to deliver him. This sort of mentality will be a kind of offense to the Spiritual Master. Out of the ten kinds of offenses, the number one offense is to disobey the orders of the Spiritual Master. The instructions given to the disciple by the Spiritual Master at the time of initiation should be strictly followed. That will make one advance to the spiritual path. But if one deliberately defies such instructions, then his advancement is hampered from the very beginning. This defying means to disconnect the relationship with the Spiritual Master. And anyone who defies and therefore disconnects the relationship with the Spiritual Master can hardly expect the assistance of the Spiritual Master life after life." (SPL July 11, 1969) (4) "I entrusted this matter to Kirtanananda but he has disobeyed which has given me a shock. Once he disobeyed my order and we lost $1200.00 in connection with Mr. Payne. This time he has again disobeyed me. If he sets such example in the Society it will be a great impediment. Obedience is the first law of discipline. We are thinking of a great world wide organization which is not possible to be executed if there is disobedience." (SPL Gargamuni Sept. 23, 1967) See Ch. 158 re: Disobedience.

INTERPRETATION WITH IMPURE MOTIVES RESULTS IN PHILOSOPHICAL DEVIATION

Sometimes it is wondered how there can be various and differing interpretations of the same philosophical teachings, such as those given by Lord Krishna in the Bhagavad Gita or those expounded by Srila Prabhupada in his books. There are 650+ Gita editions with differing interpretations. We find many camps in the Gaudiya Vaishnava tradition as well, with significant interpretative differences that cause confusion and sectarianism in others. This problem arises from interpretation of the teachings according to one's impure motivations, and not because there is no correct absolute siddhanta. These adulterations occur in the material world where everyone has material desires and deceitful motivations to "adapt" or twist scriptures and the divine teachings to suit some impure purpose. It is almost universal. And it is because Srila Prabhupada did not have any mundane motivations nor make any impure interpretations of shastra that his teachings were so effective in delivering the Absolute Truth to millions whose lives and hearts were profoundly uplifted. BGita 4.9 purport: "Consequently he will not attain salvation, simply, so to speak, by licking the outer surface of the bottle of honey, or by interpreting the BGita according to mundane scholarship. Such empiric philosophers may assume very important roles in the material world, but they are not necessarily eligible for liberation. Such puffed up mundane scholars have to wait for the causeless mercy of the devotee of the Lord."

It is not only mundane scholars or imposter sadhus from India that make various interpretations on the transcendental science. Unfortunately, many in ISKCON, presumably well-versed in scripture and Srila Prabhupada's teachings, also make interpretations to accommodate their impure desires and ambitions. This is the nature of cheating, of which one may not even be conscious. One may be attached to the perks of guruship and cleverly, convincingly misconstrue Srila Prabhupada's teachings to support an assumption of this false position. E.g., the living-guru philosophy, although not supported by Srila Prabhupada's teachings, can be made to appear as logical and factual by selective and subtly defective argumentation and misinterpretation. Cheating has become standard practice in ISKCON, in contrast to those purified of material motivations, who have no need of misinterpretative twisting of the philosophy of Krishna consciousness. Various false interpretations can be made of the same shastric truth, but the pure interpretation or true understanding is only one, that revealed by Srila Prabhupada in his books.

To make the truth taught by Srila Prabhupada suitable to their purposes of maintaining a concocted system for approving initiating gurus, ISKCON has re-interpreted key parts of Srila Prabhupada's teachings with an underlying cheating motivation based on a conflict of interest. This deviation from the right understanding as taught by Srila Prabhupada, who is the representative of the Supreme Lord, is simply a justification for material attachments. We must surrender faithfully and honestly to the siddhanta as given by Srila Prabhupada without giving in to personal ambitions. Only one who is sufficiently purified and detached from personal motivations can understand Srila Prabhupada's instructions. In reconciling or correcting false interpretations and philosophical deviations, an atmosphere of open discussion and debate with standards of Vaishnava etiquette is essential. Open-mindedness is key so the true meanings can be perceived without prejudiced intelligence. Openminded is being unattached to selfish outcomes. The policies of repression, partisan interpretation, banning "dangerous philosophies," etc. are counterproductive. Social or political correctness should not enter into the culture of transcendental science. Otherwise philosophy is custom-tailored to fit one's impurely motivated agenda and attachments. There must be SINCERITY of purpose to realize sanatana dharma, or eternal truth. Our understanding should not fluctuate depending on circumstances. Maya, or illusion, is very expert at bewildering those whose purpose is not sincere or pure, and therefore misinterpretations and deviations arise. Until one's convictions are firmly based on undeviated philosophy and doubts are removed by understanding truth as it is, one will remain confused and doubtful. Until one's mind and heart become purified of mundane ambitions and desires, it will be difficult to understand of Vaishnava siddhanta properly, and the cheating propensity will dominate in the mind. Cheating is the technique by which truth can be modified to suit one's material desires. Cheating will not be purged from Srila Prabhupada's Mission while faith in Srila Prabhupada's instructions is weak or neglected, or if one is not strict in sadhana.

Many ISKCON gurus were not chanting their rounds or following the basic practices, contributing to their philosophical cheating and deviations prior to their downfalls. Others are deviated from the absolute philosophical truths due to their purpose of fulfilling mundane ambitions, such as being an as-good-as-God guru, respected sannyasi, or powerful leader, businessman, scholar, speaker. The summary is found in CC Adi 12.9 purport: "Any opinion different from the opinion of the spiritual master is useless. One cannot infiltrate materially concocted ideas into spiritual advancement. That is deviation."

STUDY AND CAUSES OF ISKCON DEVIATIONS (from "INITIATIONS AFTER 1977" by ISKM)

Despite crystal clear instructions by Srila Prabhupada regarding the continuance of his position as the diksha guru of ISKCON even after his physical departure, so much deviation has ensued after his physical departure. Even to this day, the deviants may justify their stand in this way or that. But with each passing day, their stand is becoming weaker and weaker as news of the official and unofficial downfalls of the deviants are revealed. An authorized or empowered acharya never falls down but one who is not authorized will fall down. NOD, Ch. 14: "The spiritual master must never be carried away by an accumulation of wealth or a large number of followers. A bona fide spiritual master will never become like that. But sometimes, if a spiritual master is not properly authorized and only on his own initiative becomes a spiritual master, he may be carried away by an accumulation of wealth and large numbers of disciples. His is not a very high grade of devotional service. If a person is carried away by such achievements, then his devotional service becomes slackened. One should therefore strictly adhere to the principles of disciplic succession." We shall visit the shastric references which point out why deviations take place, the position of deviants, the results of following deviants, how to rectify the situation and how to deal with the truthful, sincere devotees and the envious ones. So why do deviations take place, in general? "The main business of human society is to think of the Supreme Personality of Godhead at all times, to become His devotees, to worship the Supreme Lord and to bow down before Him. The acharya, the authorized representative of the Supreme Lord, establishes these principles, but when he disappears, things once again become disordered. The perfect disciples of the acharya try to relieve the situation by sincerely following the instructions of the spiritual master.” (SBhag 4.28.48 purport) When the acharya is physically present, he can forcefully correct a wayward disciple and Srila Prabhupada did this many times. But when the acharya leaves, the onus of conducting his mission solely rests upon his disciples. Their sincerity plays the biggest role. If a disciple deliberately disobeys the instruction of the diksha guru and if there are no competent senior siksha gurus to rectify the situation, then chaos reigns. This is what happened to Srila Prabhupada’s movement. The psychology is: 'nisiddhacara', 'kutinati', 'jiva-himsana'/ 'labha', 'puja', 'pratisthadi' yata upasakha-gana “Some unnecessary creepers growing with the bhakti creeper are the creepers of behavior unacceptable for those trying to attain perfection, diplomatic behavior, animal killing, mundane profiteering, mundane adoration and mundane importance. All these are unwanted creepers.” (CC Mad 19.159)

“I can definitely say for myself, and for which I humbly beg forgiveness from everybody, that there was definitely some degree of trying to control [...] This is the conditioned nature, and it came out in the highest position of all, “Guru, oh wonderful! Now I'm a guru, and there is only eleven of us.” (Tamal, Dec 3, 1980)

When a progressing devotee acquires these unwanted desires that are separate from the desires of the acharya and the Supreme Lord, he is said to be a separatist. Such a person commits the greatest offence of disobeying the order of the spiritual master. His devotional service is understood to be mixed with passion and ignorance. He becomes envious of the acharya and desires fame and adoration. “The worship of Deities in the temple by a separatist, with a motive for material enjoyment, fame and opulence, is devotion in the mode of passion.” (SBhag 3.29.9) “Devotional service executed by a person who is envious, proud, violent and angry, and who is a separatist, is considered to be in the mode of darkness.” (SBhag 3.29.8) Such a devotee is considered a third class devotee. “A devotee who faithfully engages in the worship of the Deity in the temple but does not behave properly toward other devotees or people in general is called a prakrtabhakta, a materialistic devotee, and is considered to be in the lowest position.” (SBhag 11.2.47) [...] As long as one keeps oneself in the third class platform, one will fall down. “The third-class person in Kṛṣṇa consciousness may fall down, but when one is in the second class or first class, he does not fall down.” (BGita 9.3 purport)

As long as one does not follow the strict prescription of sadhana given to us by Srila Prabhupada: 16 rounds, the 4 regulative principles, manglarati, and participating in the entire morning program until the Bhagavatam class and later on engaging in various other services, reading Srila Prabhupada’s books daily- one is sure to remain in the third class position. And then he is bound to cause problems to others because of his imperfect conduct. In ISKCON the seniormost devotees proved themselves to be third-class by falling down. And if such people head the movement in the garb of gurus, what will the result be? Utter chaos. They are not representing Srila Prabhupada in their position as leaders of ISKCON in terms of their outlook, especially on major issues like women's liberation, gender roles, homosexuality, mundane welfare work, education systems, demigod worship, etc. Rather they have decided to go with the karmi society on these points. (END)

ISKCON’S SHASTRIC ADVISORY COUNCIL POLITICALLY CORRUPT, DEVIATES

In discussions, a member of the GBC’s SAC stated: “This is a novel theory, or at least one I am not familiar with, that the murtis and pictures of specially empowered acharyas are equally potent to the murtis of the Supreme Lord and His internal potency, while the images of less empowered Vaishnavas are impotent. The arca-murti of the Personality of Godhead is a special incarnation, nondifferent from His original self, and manifests all His potencies to those who worship Him with love. The murti or picture of one's guru is recognized as the proper place to make offerings in worship, but as far as I know the Vaishnava shastras do not identify the guru's image as the same kind of arca-murti.” Absolutely amazing it is, that such a faithless understanding could enter into the ranks of those who claim to be ISKCON members, what to speak of brahmana advisors to leaders. Gaura Keshava das was for some years also a member of the Shastric Advisory Committee. He also was endorsed by some

ISKCON gurus to “standardize” deity worship methods in many temples. The change in deity worship whereby most ISKCON temples begin their offering with Krishna and then descend to their guru was taught and rationalized by Gaura Keshava, who the errant advice that guides the ISKCON misleaders: “...do we follow Srila Prabhupada’s personal example or the shastra that he gave us? My contention is that we must follow the shastra that he has given us, and we must not imitate his personal example when it does not technically follow shastra.” [Srila Prabhupada IS shastra!]

The GBC-appointed “scholarly and learned senior devotees” to a Shastric Advisory Council (SAC) to give advice on troublesome philosophical issues confronting them. However, the arm’s length SAC is not free from the corruption of the guru GBC cartel which administrates ISKCON for their guru franchises (wealth, worship, followers). Corruption at the top results in ISKCON policies which facilitate personal ambitions, and this filters down to all below. An insider’s confession from former SAC member Mukunda Datta das, 2014 :

“The SAC has written numerous opinions and papers which then were adopted as ‘shastrically bona fide’ ISKCON policy. One recent opinion they issued is called the Female Diksha Guru paper, or FDG, whereby women gurus were deemed shastrically appropriate in ISKCON. The members of the SAC for that verdict were Yadunandana Swami, Madan Mohan, Drutakarma, Urmila dasi, Narayani dasi, Adi Purusha, Isvara Krishna, Chaitanya Cahara, Sarvajna, and Vinod Bihari. Examining the wholesomeness of this SAC body and its neutrality in deciding about women gurus, we observe the following: (1) Urmila and Narayani, both women, ‘have strong ambitions to be guru’ according to former SAC member Mukunda Datta das, and are not known as learned scholars. (2) Drutakarma may be an archeologist, but he is closely associated with Hridayananda who blessed gay marriages and heads up Krishna West, a very non-Vedic, westernized program. He also is not known as a Vedic scholar. He wrote books about the corruption in modern science but has fallen for the corruption in ISKCON. (3) Adi Purusha is employed by Prasanta dasi at VIHE, who is also involved with ISKCON’s Women’s Ministry and has ‘major ambitions to be a guru herself.’ (Bharata das, 2014) (4) Yadunandana Swami was headmaster at “Bhaktivedanta College,” a non-traditional, co-educational school where the sexes freely mix, so his predisposition is hardly ‘neutral.’ (5) From a Feb. 2014 Bharata das letter: ‘Things are so bad at the SAC that because of distrust in regards to the neutrality and sagacity of the GBC’s SAC, ISKCON India has created its own SAC to get competent advice on important matters. And, on the basis of this advice the leadership of ISKCON India is strongly opposed to implementing Female Diksha Gurus in ISKCON.’

“So the SAC is hardly neutral, sagacious, or nonpolitical in their membership makeup. If we look at another sometimes-SAC member, Gopiparanadhana das, his character and history, we understand the quality of SAC’s “shastric” opinions. [NOTE: “In late 1994, I visited the ISKCON Chapel Hill center near the University of North Carolina, and was informed by two resident devotees that the temple president, Gopiparanadhana das, had just admitted having some improper relationship with his daughter. He was leaving immediately to India under GBC arrangements. I remember being in shock that he was not going to jail instead.” (Nityananda das, 2015)] From a Jan. 3, 2010 article by Mahesh Raja, we learn of Gopiparanadhana as translator, commentator and Sanskrit editor along with Hridayananda on the Bhagwatan completion volumes: ‘...he was also the commentator with Hridayananda in their corrupt Srimad Bhagavatam purports. A brief analysis to expose just HOW bogus their “shastric” understanding on the position of uttama-adhikari is, is shown below. It appears they are looking for an EXCUSE to present the bogus GBC rubber-stamped “gurus” as uttama-adhikari -the kind of “uttama-adhikari” that cannot see Krishna everywhere -to justify their existence. So their TRICK is if Narada, Vyasa and Sukadeva are to be accepted as uttama- adhikari, who they are presuming don't see Krishna everywhere, then there would be nothing wrong with accepting bogus GBC rubber-stamped "gurus" as uttama-adhikari (who definitely don't see Krishna).' Hrdayananda and Gopiparanadhana's criticism against the following pure devotees in their SBhag Canto 11.2.45 p. 148: 'If only those who constantly see the form of Krishna are to be considered uttama-adhikaris, then Narada, Vyasa and Sukadeva cannot be considered topmost devotees, since they do not always see the Lord everywhere.' The SAC is as corrupt and deviant as the ISKCON leadership. Bharata das in 2014: 'The SAC has in the very short time of its existence become thoroughly corrupted. It needs to be completely overhauled and the tainted members removed, or it will be the same as leaving a trace of yogurt in a pot and filling it with new milk- you will get more yogurt. The SAC is supposed to be a neutral, apolitical committee of senior devotees noted for sagacity, knowledge of shastra and realization. (But) it has become a political instrument to push forward at any cost Female Diksha Guru.' About the SAC opinion on female diksha gurus: "... if it is moreover subject to sudden and drastic changes without notice, and if member participation requires bending truth to fit the majority opinion--as has now become the SAC policy..., I sense the current SAC and its recent paper are both contaminated by partisan interests... the GBC has to be informed of SAC wrongdoings. Any decisions following from such tainted papers are likewise tainted... why my input was excluded from our recent paper on female diksha-gurus?... all the rest are unknown devotees who have been especially chosen (for) the SAC for the simple reason that they pass the pro-Female Diksha Guru litmus test, no other qualification required. The list of shame... of corrupt SAC membership..." (END)

FEMALE DIKSHA GURUS

Some conditions and restrictions for when female diksha gurus are approved in ISKCON are: they can only accept female disciples, they must be under the care of an adult son or brother, they must be 50+ years of age. Is this in Srila Prabhupada's books? More inventions and good-sounding addendums to another unshastric, unauthorized concoction. The female diksha guru was approved by a narrow GBC margin in 2012, and several women approved, including Urmila and Narayani, but actual implementation was held up amid ferocious opposition from some individual GBCs and all Indian ISKCON temples, who threaten secession from ISKCON. The matter is thus still stuck in limbo as of 2022 and is unlikely to be resolved anytime soon.

DEVIATIONS ADDRESSED IN OTHER CHAPTERS

(1) Non-liberated persons can give diksha to their disciples (Ch. 152) (2) Changes in the way Srila Prabhupada taught to worship the deities (Ch. 118) (3) Bona fide gurus can be self-appointed or approved by vote (Ch. 152) (4) Srila Prabhupada's books can be improved by endless, ongoing changes by "editors" (Ch. 148) (5) Kirtan has been changed (Ch. 120) (6) Re-initiations, black magic, rasika bhakti siksha gurus.

UNNECESSARY INTERPRETATION IS A DEVIATION

Unnecessary and materially-motivated interpretation of Krishna's or Srila Prabhupada's philosophical instructions results in deviation from the path of going back to Godhead. E.g., some say that Srila Prabhupada's system for officiating acharya initiations after his departure is unprecedented and untraditional, and it was "understood" to be only a temporary measure anyway, and Srila Prabhupada actually forgot to make any arrangements for initiations and the paramapara's continuation. And that therefore the GBC had to fill the gap and devise a no-objection vote method for approving new living initiating gurus. That is, after the lie about 11 appointed zonal acharyas was exposed after 10 years of insanity as a total hoax. However, Srila Prabhupada's instructions were actually very clear on May 28, 1977: SATSVARUPA: Then our next question concerns initiations in the future, particularly at that time when you're no longer with us. We want to know how first and second initiations would be conducted. PRABHUPADA: Yes; I shall recommend some of you. After this is settled up, I shall recommend some of you to act as officiating acharyas.

So, the GBC has interpreted unnecessarily and concocted a different, indirect understanding (just like the mayavadis like to do), reinforcing their interpretation by reference to their "authority," unrelated shastric quotes, how “everyone at the time understood” this, it would be unprecedented, it “is only logical,” and so on. Dishonest persons with an agenda and conflicts of interest can make an argument for almost anything. It is quite similar to the moving of goalposts in the fraudulent corrupt COVID containment medical tyranny. (1) “...all these books should be studied from the direct meaning. Don't try to interpret. [...] Two lawyers are fighting on the principle of one clause or section in the lawbook. One is interpreting in a different way, one is interpreting in a different way, and the judges give their judgment. Now, the opportunity for interpretation is there when the meaning is not clear. A very good example is given by the grammarians, or Sanskrit scholars, that gangayam ghosapali, that ‘There is a neighborhood which is called Ghosapali on the Ganges.’ [...] So there is interpretation required. So somebody says, ‘On the Ganges means on the bank of the Ganges.’ That makes it clear. ‘On the Ganges’ does not mean that in the middle water there is a, I mean to say, residential quarter.” (2) “So when there is such doubt, one can interpret. But when there is no doubt—everyone can understand clearly the meaning—there is no question of interpreting. That is Chaitanya Mahaprabhu's stressing, that gauna-vrttye a bhasya karila acharya. Therefore each and every aphorism and verse of Vedanta-sutra has been indirectly interpreted by the Sariraka-bhasya. Such interpretation, if somebody hears, then his future is doomed. Just like our Gandhi, he wanted to prove, from BGita, nonviolence. The Bgita is being preached in the battlefield, and it is completely violence. How he can prove? Therefore he is dragging the meaning out of his own con... It is very troublesome, and anyone who will read such interpretation, he is doomed.” (SPLecture Feb. 20, 1970) (3) “But, unfortunately, people want to show their scholarship, that ‘I understand BGita from this angle of vision.’ Why should you try to understand BGita from a different angle of vision? The first preference should be given to the author [Krishna]. The author has given you some knowledge, so he has got some particular aim and objective. So why should you change that? You have no right to change that. If you want to speak something from your side, you write your own book. Why should you take advantage of the popular book of BGita and misrepresent it? [...] There are about 600 different types of editions commenting on BGita. But [...] they are all absurd and nonsense. It is very difficult. People have been misled [...] There is no need of unnecessarily commenting on certain things. There is no necessity. Commentary or interpretation required when things are not very clear. Then you can suggest, “The meaning may be like this.” But when the things are clear, why should you comment?” (SPLecture Apr. 14, 1972) (4) “Satisfaction of the spiritual master is the secret of advancement in spiritual life. The Lord is the original spiritual master, and a person in the disciplic succession can convey the message of the Lord as it is to his sincere disciple. We cannot manufacture our own process, therefore mental speculation does not at all help us in spiritual life. One simply has to surrender himself to his guru and everything will be revealed to him.” (SPL Nov. 7, 1974)

"THAT'S YOUR INTERPRETATION" ARGUMENT DISSOLVED by Krsnacandra das

How many times have we heard this? Are we are reading and following the same Srila Prabhupada? Srila Prabhupada's absolute genius was to take the highly sophisticated and spiritually elevated subject matter of the esoteric Vedic shastra and condense it into very simple language for the degraded, fallen and ‘dumbed down’ people of the Kali yuga. Srila Prabhupada's words must be taken ‘as it is’ to understand and appreciate the ideas he is conveying to us. The words and terms he uses are not cryptic nor do they possess some esoteric, hidden meaning, thus his instructions are clear, concise and very nicely illuminate the otherwise bewildering Vedic injunctions. There isn't the question of importation or the ‘exegesis’ of other meanings into the text, nor is there the question of seeking a meaning that underlies the text. The text is to be taken ‘as it is’ without interpretation or bias. When Srila Prabhupada states ‘first you become pure,’ it is self-explanatory. It is not up to anyone to break that text down in an attempt to elicit hidden or esoteric meaning or inference. His words are to be understood on their own terms, nothing added or nothing taken away.

Of course, in a mind polluted with impersonalist thought, that has been trained and subsequently attached to religious hermeneutics or their religious background, one may not be able to appreciate or accept the simple truth. E.g., in the attempts of Abrahamic religious denominations to explain various inconsistencies and lack of scriptural clarity there has arisen a science of 'Hermeneutics' which is a text analysis system for those who believe text has the ability to reveal or conceal the truth and they cannot accept the text at face value. The idea that textual reference can be interpreted in ways other than intended by the author places ambiguity in the textual reference which creates doubt in one's mind. To allow text to be speculatively analysed other than the literal (direct) meaning suggests the 'author' does not know what they mean or the author is writing for an esoteric audience who has a textual analysis system that can interpret their writings. However, indirect interpretations suggests the interpreter is either an idiot or they are purposefully twisting the meaning to suit their needs. This type of textual analysis has no place in the Vaishnava community as Srila Prabhupada teaches us to interpret his texts as it is. To suggest that Srila Prabhupada's textual references are other than what he is presenting is more akin to the Kabbalistic, Christian or dialectical philosophical traditions that use hermeneutics to bypass its direct, literal meaning. To the Vaishnava, there is no need for interpretation; there is only a need for understanding the text. The application of an interpretative system enables one to interpret according to their whim which easily lends itself to manipulating the meaning to align with their ideology, plan, or motive. The problem with exegesis interpretation is that the person interprets with connotations and inferences not literally present in the text. Or they make you think that what you are reading or hearing is not what it seems; that they have another meaning [to cover rather than understand it.]

"One thing is that you have to become intelligent. Just like BGita it is said, dharma-ksetre kuru-ksetre samaveta yuyutsavah Now why I shall accept interpretation on these plain words? That is my foolishness. If somebody says dharma-ksetra means this body and Pandava means the five senses, why this nonsense interpretation? If you are not intelligent, then you will accept such rascals interpreting unnecessarily. Interpretation is required when things are not very clear. But when the things are clear, why you should accept interpretation? [...] There is such rascals interpreting unnecessarily. [...] There is no need of interpretation. [...] Kuruksetra is still there. There is no difficulty to understand. And if somebody interprets... [...] in the BGita it is said that as soon as you interpret, the whole thing is lost." (SPConv Dec. 22, 1976)

Srila Prabhupada often used the terms direct and indirect interpretation when describing how a text must be understood. He wanted us to use the direct or literal method of interpretation, explaining how the indirect interpretation leads to the meaning being lost. Those of us who have been reading Srila Prabhupada's books for years and who do not have allegiances to the fraudulent ISKCON GBC or rubber stamped gurus, do not have this doubt nor ambiguity. However, as Sir Walter Scott says "Oh what a tangled web we weave, when first we practice to deceive," they are filled with lies and deceit, and will seek ways to distort the self-evident truth of Srila Prabhupada's word for their own advantage. We must make a careful study of Srila Prabhupada's instructions to be able to discern the diversionary tactics of the criminal misleaders in ISKCON. This is more so for devotees who hail from countries where English is their second language. There the ISKCON false gurus are wreaking the most serious damage. Most devotees from South America, Europe and Russia have very little knowledge of Srila Prabhupada and have very disturbing misunderstandings of Srila Prabhupada's instructions. They are bewildered and confused due to misinterpretations and misrepresentations by their rubber-stamped gurus, whose disciples are confused and bewildered and cannot connect with the older and wise devotees who have a more clear understanding of Srila Prabhupada's role within ISKCON. The ISKCON gurus have intentionally kept their 'flock' ignorant of the truth regarding Srila Prabhupada, his instructions, and his role in our Sampradaya. There is also amazing ignorance of the actual history of our movement. ISKCON gurus say they do not wish to disturb the faith of the faithful. This is the rationale they use as to why they continue, year after year, to lie and cheat these innocent devotees. They do not want to disturb them with the truth that they are cheating those who only desire to take diksha and siksha initiation from a bonafide guru.

“It is the spiritual master who delivers the disciple from the clutches of maya by initiating him into the chanting of the Hare Krsna maha-mantra. In this way, a sleeping human being can revive his consciousness by chanting Hare Krsna, Hare Krsna, Krsna Krsna, Hare Hare/ Hare Rama, Hare Rama, Rama Rama, Hare Hare. In other words, the spiritual master awakens the sleeping living entity to his original consciousness so that he can worship Lord Vishnu. This is the purpose of diksha, or initiation. Initiation means receiving the pure knowledge of spiritual consciousness.” (CC Mad 9.61) When Srila Prabhupada says that diksha initiation means ‘receiving the pure knowledge of spiritual consciousness’ somehow we must interpret this to mean something concocted by the GBC-guru cartel? Srila Prabhupada makes the position of diksha and siksha guru abundantly clear. There is only one diksha guru who is bonafide in ISKCON and has the authority to give spiritual knowledge (initiation)- that is Srila Prabhupada. Many advanced souls have taken or will take Srila Prabhupada as their ‘diksha’ guru. He alone can actually assist them with their spiritual lives. He did not appoint any ‘initiating gurus/ acharyas.’ They appointed themselves to these fictitious ISKCON positions. They themselves know this; that they have not achieved Krishna prema or even the brahma bhuta platform; that they cannot give what they don’t have. They have not done the sadhana to achieve sadhana siddha status. To achieve kripa siddha status they should not have disobeyed Srila Prabhupada by posing to be on the same platform as he. They have only proven that they are aparadhis or offenders of ISKCON’s Acharya His Divine Grace AC Bhaktivedanta Swami Srila Prabhupada.

Yet they cling to their lies and deceit praying they won’t be exposed, as long as they can. As long as their hapless disciples don’t find out that Srila Prabhupada did not sanction their position of being a guru who is allowed to make disciples of their own, they keep lying. They hope their disciples will not find out the original 11 Zonal Acharyas were never appointed by Srila Prabhupada, that they created this hoax mere months after Srila Prabhupada departed. They hope they will never find out how the fifty-man committee opened up the position of being a ‘disciple making guru’ to more envious disciples. They want you to believe that they have the right to appoint themselves as initiating diksa gurus, even though they know that Srila Prabhupada did not appoint them nor did Srila Prabhupada make allowances for the position of an initiating Spiritual Master who can take disciples of their own within ISKCON. They hope that so long as they keep hiding the truth and keep on acting as if there is nothing wrong that they will be able to get away with their terrible lies. This is why we are now in doubt as a worldwide devotional community; we have mixed loyalties. This doubt must and will be cleared up as devotees begin to study Srila Prabhupada’s books from all different angles so they will no longer be confused by the spin doctoring of the ISKCON GBC-guru club.

Srila Prabhupada’s words are clear, self-evident. When anyone says ‘That is your interpretation’ -don’t listen to them. They want to instill doubt into your mind and heart. Find out for yourself from Srila Prabhupada in his unchanged books and instructions. Take what Srila Prabhupada is explaining ‘as it is’. At face value. If in further doubt, Srila Prabhupada lovingly explains the very same points you are doubting about over and over again throughout his legacy. Srila Prabhupada has many loyal followers who have accepted him as their initiating guru who can help you understand his instructions. Otherwise you will be deviated. (END)

PHILOSOPHICAL DEVIATION IS PROMOTED VIA DOMINANT THEMES

Many ISKCON leaders are self-appointed, vote-approved false gurus. They decided to be a guru, and campaigned to get approved through the GBC vote methodology. They promote various deviant memes or dominant themes to maintain their influence and power in the ISKCON institution, and to answer to their critics who interpret Srila Prabhupada’s instructions differently (directly). Some of their dominant themes are: (1) Beware those who advocate ending the disciplic succession with Srila Prabhupada, and those who claim Srila Prabhupada was the last spiritual master (2) Beware of insidious deviant philosophical interpretations which can destroy one’s spiritual life and are more dangerous than impersonalism, such as the idea that the disciplic succession sometimes has gaps in “living” gurus (3) Beware those opposed to ISKCON policies and the authority of the GBC and who are secretly envious troublemakers and agents of Kali (4) It is basic Vaishnava tradition that one must receive diksha from a physically living guru, even if he is a conditioned soul.

Via “dominant themes” the true siddhanta or correct understanding becomes re-interpreted and deviated. Over 4 decades after Srila Prabhupada’s disappearance, we are confronted with an institutional membership thoroughly brainwashed and indoctrinated with the GBC’s dominant themes or deviations of philosophy. Devotees must question ISKCON’s deviant doctrines to determine their validity. Everything represented by ISKCON and its vested guru interests ought to be looked at with suspicion, as much of it has already been proven a fraud, and yet these untruths are still promoted. This includes ISKCON’s insistent denials that Srila Prabhupada was poisoned, dismissing the irrefutable evidence as concoctions of evil enemies. The ISKCON misleaders demand total subservience and acquiescence without intelligent understanding, and this has resulted in a society of lesser qualified persons who worship cheap, vote-approved gurus while becoming infected with the desire to become one themselves. Every logical fallacy is at work in ISKCON through its apologists, driven by the master of illusory energies, Mayadevi herself. Non Sequitur, Appeal to Force, Personal Attack, Strawman, Red Herring, Argumentum ad Populum, Appeal to Popular Authority, Appeal to Tradition, Appeal to Improper Authority, Appeal to Emotion, Appeal to Adverse Consequences, Appeal to Personal Incredulity, Petitio Principii (begging the question), Hasty Generalization, False Cause (Post Hoc ergo Propter Hoc) and Irrelevant Conclusion are rampant and part of the false information, foregone conclusions, and dominant memes being foisted upon the unfortunate, bewildered, and cheated membership and participants.

DEVIATION LEADS TO DOWNFALL (from “INITIATIONS AFTER 1977” by ISKM)

Undoubtedly, Maya is very strong. Therefore, a sannyasi may also fall down. But a bona fide spiritual master can never fall down. It is important to remember that a bona fide spiritual master is both qualified and authorized by his spiritual master. In ISKCON history since 1977, there have been scores of gurus who have fallen from grace. If they are falling down, they are obviously third-class devotees. How can they be gurus? If they really are empowered and authorized by Srila Prabhupada to become his successors in the sacred disciplic succession, why would they fall down? Some of them have officially, publicly been exposed and labeled as fallen but many others, although exposed as fallen, are not officially labelled as such because in ISKCON a downfall has is only associated with inappropriate sexual behavior. A downfall from devotional service can mean that an offender ends up either as a sense gratifier and/or as an impersonalist. Saubhari Muni offended Garuda, the great carrier of Lord Vishnu, and he therefore became a sense gratifier by marrying fifty princesses even after having been situated on a mature platform of yogic practice. Ramachandra Puri, a disciple of the great acharya Madhavendra Puri, became a Mayavadi impersonalist by offending his spiritual master. Both these results are being observed in ISKCON today but impersonalism is somehow not recognized as a deviation or downfall. Moreover, since Srila Prabhupada never gave the authority to anyone to become a diksha guru, just by taking up such a position whimsically or by the recommendation of the disillusioned GBC, one is already considered to have sown the seed of offence at the lotus feet of Srila Prabhupada and time will reveal the fruit. These are the natural consequences of offending the Founder-Acharya of ISKCON. Here are some of the behavioral regulations for the renounced order that have been transgressed by many of the current so-called gurus, owing to their offences and deviations towards Srila Prabhupada.

(1) “A saintly person should never touch a young girl. In fact, he should not even let his foot touch a wooden doll in the shape of a woman. By bodily contact with a woman he will surely be captured by illusion...” (SBhag 11.8.13) (2) “Those who are not married— sannyasis, vanaprasthas and brahmacharis— should never associate with women by glancing, touching, conversing, joking or sporting. Neither should they ever associate with any living entity engaged in sexual activities.” (SBhag 11.17.33) (3) “By a false display of religious sentiments, they present a show of devotional service while indulging in all sorts of immoral activities. In this way they pass as spiritual masters and devotees of God. Such violators of religious principles have no respect for the authoritative acharyas, the holy teachers in the strict disciplic succession. They ignore the Vedic injunction acharyopasana —“One must worship the acharya” —and Krishna's statement in the BGita (4.2) evam parampara-praptam, “This supreme science of God is received through the disciplic succession.” Instead, to mislead the people in general they themselves become so-called acharyas, but they do not even follow the principles of the acharyas. These rogues are the most dangerous elements in human society. Because there is no religious government, they escape punishment by the law of the state. They cannot, however, escape the law of the Supreme, who has clearly declared in the BGita that envious demons in the garb of religious propagandists shall be thrown into the darkest regions of hell (BGita 16.19-20). Sri Isopanisad confirms that these pseudo religionists are heading toward the most obnoxious place in the universe after the completion of their spiritual master business, which they conduct simply for sense gratification.” (Sri Isopanisad 12 purport (4) “Devotional service of the Lord that ignores the authorized Vedic literatures like the Upanisads, Puranas, Narada-pancaratra, etc., is simply an unnecessary disturbance in society.” (Nectar of Devotion)

What will eventually be the fate of those who follow such offenders? “Leaders who have fallen into ignorance and who mislead people by directing them to the path of destruction [as in the previous verse] are, in effect, boarding a stone boat, and so too are those who blindly follow them. A stone boat would be unable to float and would sink in the water with its passengers. Similarly, those who mislead people go to hell, and their followers go with them.” (SBhag 6.7.14) (END)

FALLDOWN COMES FROM PRIDE AND FALSE PROMOTION BEYOND ONE’S ADIKARA

Bhaktyaloka by Bhaktivinod Thakur on progressive levels in spiritual advancement: “Each and every gradual step has different prescriptions and prohibitions. Whenever a living entity steps to one level and stays there, he is obliged to follow the prescriptions and prohibitions of that step. By following those enjoined prescriptions and prohibitions, one becomes eligible to attain the next step. If one is unable to attain the next step, he falls down to a lower step. This is called degradation.”

Universally, when one acts beyond one’s level of advancement (or adhikara) the result is degradation. This degradation commonly manifests as two formidable enemies— pride and envy. Pride manifests as an inflated, overly-exalted conception of oneself. Envy, pride’s companion, directs negative thoughts and criticism toward others who are factually exalted. Both will result in offenses to other devotees. One who commits Vaishnava aparadha quickly loses taste for chanting or any other devotional service. The natural question is “What is the cure?” Recognizing there is a problem is the first step to a cure. This can be done by strong introspection. The root cause is that one is acting beyond one’s adhikara. Similarly, many devotees are rushing to sit on the seat of Vyasadeva and pretend to have the power of granting divya-jnana directly into the hearts of others, a positioning of themselves far beyond their station and capabilities. It is just cheating, plain and simple. Thus they fall down from their presumptive status as a supposed guru who can deliver disciples.

DEVIATIONS IN PRACTICE ARISE FROM ANARTHAS, UNWANTED THINGS IN THE HEART

CC Madhya 19.160: TEXT: “If one does not distinguish between the bhakti-lata creeper and the other creepers, the sprinkling of water is misused because the other creepers are nourished while the bhakti-lata creeper is curtailed. PURPORT: If one chants the Hare Krishna mantra while committing offenses, these unwanted creepers will grow. One should not take advantage of chanting the Hare Krishna mantra for some material profit. As mentioned in verse 159: 'nisiddhacara', 'kutinati', 'jiva-himsana' 'labha', 'puja', 'pratisthadi' yata upasakha-gana... The unwanted creepers have been described by Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakura. He states that if one hears and chants without trying to give up offenses, one becomes materially attached to sense gratification. One may also desire freedom from material bondage like the Mayavadis, or one may become attached to the yoga-siddhis and desire wonderful yogic powers. If one is attached to wonderful material activities, one is called siddhi-lobhi, greedy for material perfection. One may also be victimized by diplomatic or crooked behavior, or one may associate with women for illicit sex. Others may make a show of devotional service like the prakṛta-sahajiyas, or one may try to support his philosophy by joining some caste or identifying himself with a certain dynasty, claiming a monopoly on spiritual advancement. Thus with the support of family tradition, one may become a pseudo guru or so-called spiritual master. One may become attached to the four sinful activities—illicit sex, intoxication, gambling and meat eating, or one may consider a Vaishnava to belong to a mundane caste or creed. One may think, "This is a Hindu Vaishnava, and this is a European Vaishnava. A European Vaishnava is not allowed to enter the temples." In other words, one may consider Vaishnavas in terms of birth, thinking one a brahmana Vaishnava, a sudra Vaishnava, a mleccha Vaishnava and so on. One may also try to carry out a professional business while chanting the Hare Krishna mantra or reading Srimad-Bhagavatam, or one may try to increase his monetary strength by illegal means. One may also try to be a cheap Vaishnava by chanting in a secluded place for material adoration, or one may desire mundane reputation by making compromises with nondevotees, compromising one's philosophy or spiritual life, or one may become a supporter of a hereditary caste system. (END)

EXAMPLES: Some ISKCON leaders and gurus seek out "mundane reputation by making compromises with nondevotees" such as by adopting mundane government curriculum in so-called gurukulas, by encouraging homosexual relationships, by abandoning the Vaishnava dress and practices given us by Srila Prabhupada, by adding demigods in the temples, by disguising our Hare Krishna status with the appearance of hathayoga or silent meditation, or promoting medical tyranny for governmental appreciation. Unless a devotee is extremely cautious in his self-examination to recognize his own material desires, there is a great danger that the unwanted desires or anarthas in the heart will drive us to make deviations to our spiritual practices and philosophy. This is the cheating process—utilizing transcendence for our mundane goals.

DEVIATION FROM OUR STRICT SADHANA AND SIMPLE PROGRAM

In 1971-72 Vishnujana and Kirtanananda Swamis collaborated on an innovative bus-tour preaching program called the "Road Show." It is described in Radha Damodar Vilasa, and ended with Srila Prabhupada's attendance at the show's performance at the Syrian Mosque in Pittsburgh on Sept. 8, 1972. Srila Prabhupada at first liked the show, full of hippie scenes, rock music, tie-die backgrounds, light show, and costumes. Kirtan and prasadam were included and 800 Gitas were sold to the 2500 attendees. However, as the show was discussed in the following weeks, Srila Prabhupada dramatically changed his mind. "So far the Road Show and this Yoga Village are concerned, these things should be stopped. Simply perform our kirtan. If we divert our attention in this way, the whole thing will gradually deteriorate. He is going far away. All these things are nonsense inventions. Such inventing spirit will ruin our this movement. People may come to see, some will become devotees, but such devotees will not stay because they are attracted by some show and not by the real thing or spiritual life according to the standard of Lord Chaitanya. Our standard is to have kirtan, start temples. What is this 'Road Show' and 'Yoga Village?' It will be another hippie edition. Gradually the Krishna Consciousness idea will evaporate: another change, another change, every day another change. Stop all this. Simply have kirtana, nothing else. Don't manufacture ideas." (SPL Sudama Nov. 5, 1972)

The innovative and creative spirit of Vishnujana Swami had gone too far, and Srila Prabhupada brought the focus back again to our simple formula of kirtan and prasadam. Thereafter, the Road Show was no more. Another very common deviation, perhaps the most serious one, that manifests regularly any time there is an opening for maya to enter, is the slackening of our sadhana and adherence to the basic principles (no meat, illicit sex, gambling, intoxication). Those who do not follow will deviate, and even those who do follow may easily deviate due to some weakness. From early on, Srila Prabhupada was aware that his senior men were not rising early, attending the morning program, chanting their 16 rounds, or following the principles. He continuously emphasized the importance of these things as our basic medicine to counteract the influences of the material energy. Especially the leaders should set a prime example for others to follow.

CONCLUSION

In the policies, philosophical positions, and resolutions of the ISKCON GBC-guru cartel leadership there are innumerable deviations from the teachings of Srila Prabhupada and the shastras. Those deviations related to the “guru and initiations” issues are very well pinpointed and exposed in the IRM website for anyone who wants a deeper view than this short chapter has given. The deviations in ISKCON philosophy and practice arise from the desire to get something that is not there in Srila Prabhupada’s teachings. The duplicity, cunning, and insidiousness of it is that rather than go elsewhere and make up one’s own philosophy to suit his business or material ambitions, the dishonest ISKCON misleadership has adulterated Srila Prabhupada’s teachings with their own unnecessary interpretations. Better they start their own missions rather than steal Srila Prabhupada’s assets for themselves. Srila Prabhupada criticized those who interpreted Krishna’s words in BGita, advising them to be decent and write their own book rather than adulterate God’s instructions. Better the guru-wannabees go elsewhere with their unauthorized guru business. Unfortunately, they are hardly aware of what they are doing; maya’s cheating energy is so subtly deluding, powerful, and bewildering.

“So I am traveling all over the world. I am going to see how things are going in Dallas or New Vrindaban and another... So my touring is natural. I have started this movement. I want to see that it is going on nicely. So you kindly help me. Don't deviate. That is my only request. (starts to cry) Then you will remain solid. Thank you very much.” (SPDeparture Address July 15, 1974) It is the responsibility of each devotee to become very sure that they are on the right track and have not been hoodwinked by silver-tongued, slick-talking unauthorised gurus pushing their selfish business model. One may wonder why senior devotees, leaders, and especially GBCs are found deviating from Srila Prabhupada’s instructions. The answer is given:

“...The puzzled people who visited Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu were actually seeing Lord Krishna, but they were mistaken in thinking that Lord Krishna had come to Kaliya Lake. They all said that they had seen Krishna directly performing His pastimes on the hood of the serpent Kaliya and that the jewels on Kaliya’s hoods were blazing brilliantly. Because they were speculating with their imperfect knowledge, they saw Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu as an ordinary human being and a boatman’s light in the lake as Krishna. One must see things as they are through the mercy of a spiritual master; otherwise if one tries to see Krishna directly, he may mistake an ordinary man for Krishna or Krishna for an ordinary man. Everyone has to see Krishna according to the verdict of Vedic literatures presented by the self-realized spiritual master. A sincere person is able to see Krishna through the transparent via medium of Sri Gurudeva, the spiritual master. Unless one is enlightened by the knowledge given by the spiritual master, he cannot see things as they are, even though he remains constantly with the spiritual master. This incident at Kaliya-daha is very instructive for those eager to advance in Krishna consciousness...” (CC Madhya 18.99) The following chapters elaborate on the many kinds of deviations that have entered into the Hare Krishna movement, those introduced by the misleaders or because of their apathy or non-vigilance in preventing them. Either way, they are fully responsible.

CHAPTER 151: ISKCON’S GURUCRATIC RAVANA REGIME

GUROCRACY: A regime ruled and controlled by a group of unauthorised gurus for their own benefit.

INTRODUCTION

In ISKCON, there is actually no independent GBC; the GBC is actually an acharya board, and the interests of the gurus rule the whole society. The GBC body is mostly gurus and aspiring gurus, and is a self electing entity (its members decide who can join and stay in the club), which is inherently self-corrupting. The GBC body is not accountable to anyone else. There are no checks and balances, no answering even to ISKCON membership. GBC men are never judged by an external and independent panel of senior devotees. They face no elections and they are GBCs for life. The current closed circle system has drained Srila Prabhupada's movement of its former purity, justice, objectivity and strength. By lack of GBC transparency and integrity, ISKCON is losing all credibility. The GBCs have made themselves unchallengeable with assumption of a "blank-check" of ultimate authority. They claim to be non-different from Srila Prabhupada himself. The result of this dictatorial tyranny has been many internal scandals and cover-ups, embezzlement, exploitation, and disenfranchisement of 95% Srila Prabhupada's direct disciples, most of whom left ISKCON in disgust.

The non-elected GBC has misrepresented Srila Prabhupada's intent and instructions for independent, decentralized temple presidents and temples by delegating itself superpowers and forcing a centralization of all temples under full legal GBC control. Srila Prabhupada's desire that ISKCON be an organization to spread Krishna consciousness has been replaced by the GBC-guru elite club's use of ISKCON to gather disciples, wealth, temples, and glory in their franchised guru kingdoms. Their "big lie" is that their guru business is spreading Krishna consciousness and is per Srila Prabhupada's instruction. This falsehood is so enmeshed into the workings of the Society that no one questions ISKCON's actual dark purpose. ISKCON has been gurojacked and is no longer what Srila Prabhupada created. Most cannot see the gurocracy behind the phony façade.

THE GBC IS NOW "GBC SOCIETY OF WEST BENGAL"

Srila Prabhupada created the GBC in 1970, and for 7 years he personally supervised it. He created it as an unincorporated association and not as a registered, incorporated society with its own legal identity. However, for the temples he did want registered corporations with officers. As Srila Prabhupada created it, the GBC did not and could not have any legal control over the temples or their presidents. An unincorporated association of persons has some legal rights but they are few. Since 1977, ISKCON and the GBC has lost its credibility by increasingly deviating from Srila Prabhupada's instructions while its powerful elite leaders expand their guru businesses. As a result, ISKCON has experienced through schisms the wholesale defection of members, middle-tier leaders, and even entire temples and congregations. The dissent and lack of trust has caused the GBC to feel threatened and they began to solidify their control over the ISKCON society and temples. Examples of the breakaways are Bangalore (1998), Calcutta (1999), Long Island, NY (2004), Latin American temples, and Christchurch, NZ; a main reason was rebellion against GBC policies. In 1990, a GBC resolution reveals their desire to increase their control of the movement:

70.{90} That the GBC Body authorizes further investigation into the advantages and disadvantages of incorporating itself for the purposes of: (a) protecting itself from liability for debts of or claims against individual ISKCON temples or other related organizations; (b) for improving its ability to prevent temples from deviating from ISKCON's basic philosophical and ecclesiastical tenets; (c) for holding and protecting rights to the various ISKCON trademarks, licensing them to authorized ISKCON centers and projects...

Whatever their investigation's results, in 1993 the "GBC Society of West Bengal" was registered in India by Jayapataka Maharaja. This was an innovation and a deviation. Annual GBC resolutions and minutes are displayed on GBC Society of West Bengal letterhead with their registration number. All of ISKCON's GBC members are a part of the GBC corporation, which is a legal religious society with its bylaws and charter. Their bylaws are very different than the ones the GBC imposed upon the North American and other temples around the world in 2009. ISKCON's GBC is now totally different from what Srila Prabhupada created in 1970 and oversaw to 1977. One reason the GBC incorporated themselves was to protect themselves from lawsuits, but the principle reason was for the legal power to own and control temples and assets through the legal system. Also, after the Bangalore and Calcutta disaffiliations, the GBC was worried how to prevent further losses of ISKCON temples, and wanted to strengthen their legal control over temples. Thus all of ISKCON is now owned/controlled by the GBC corporation, which is very contrary to Srila Prabhupada's arrangements.

From the 2004 Long Island vs ISKCON court case, a deposition of the GBC member Ravindra Svarupa reveals the GBC realization that they wanted more control: ATTORNEY: And after that the GBC reviewed all the bylaws of all the temples? RAVINDRA SVARUPA The GBC asked the different members of the GBC or sometimes from their regional governing bodies if they could make sure that if push came to shove, the GBC had the legal power to at least minimally remove or change the board of directors or the officers of the corporation, depending on the case. ATTORNEY: The sentence goes on, "it was the North American GBC members and temple presidents alike who, in 2004, saw the need for regularizing the bylaws of the ISKCON temples. It had become clear that many temples had bylaws or articles of incorporation that did not embody Srila Prabhupada's chain of authority nor formally give the GBC the minimum powers of oversight needed to maintain the temples' spiritual and managerial standards - the crucial responsibilities that Srila Prabhupada held the GBC accountable for." RAVINDRA SVARUPA: Srila Prabhupada had not set up ISKCON temples under the legal control of the GBC, but in recent decades it has evolved in that direction. As a registered Society, the GBC wanted legal control over the temples, as confirmed in their minutes and resolutions. They thought that unless the GBC has full legal powers of control and authority, the organization cannot be effective. The GBC collects oaths of allegiance from temple presidents and officers, modifies temple charters and bylaws to accept legal control by the GBC Society of West Bengal, and otherwise solidifies GBC control over the society. All temple presidents are appointed or removed by the local GBC person. (END)

GBC INCORPORATION IS DEVIATION AND DISOBEDIENCE

The first question that arises is that why did Srila Prabhupada not already do this if it is what he wanted? He did so many things: he organized many legal entities like ISKCON Inc. (NewYork), BBT, MVT, ISKCON Juhu, Bhaktivedanta Charity Trust- so why did he not incorporate a GBC to legally control all temples? He told us that his spiritual master's mission failed as the leading disciples did not form a GBC. Would he not have thought carefully about its needed powers to do its job? If we argue that Srila Prabhupada did not know about legal matters, then we go into dangerous territory. He did know about legalities very well because he registered the various temples as corporations, the BBT as a separate trust, and he made legal documents like the DOM, Mayapur-Vrindaban Trust, BBT, his Last Will, the July 9 Order, and various contracts like with Macmillan, Juhu property, Raman Reti property, etc. The conclusion is Srila Prabhupada did not want the GBC to be a legally registered body, nor to be able to assert legal control over individual temples by memorializing its control in the temples' bylaws. Srila Prabhupada, instead, gave the GBC a very limited and restricted role with supervisory management and spiritual advice. This was an ecclesiastical role and not a legal role. Srila Prabhupada wanted three GBC property trustees to safeguard against the sale or mortgaging of each temple, but not more legal control than that. It was only to prevent a temple's sale or mortgaging, nothing else. Effectively, ISKCON leaders, led by Mr. ISKCON Lawbook Jayapataka Swami, believe that Srila Prabhupada failed to properly organize ISKCON's legal structure and so therefore they must do so. But, Srila Prabhupada flatly stated in his June 1977 Last Will that there was no need to change from the way ISKCON was being managed at that time. Maintain, not change. That system included an unincorporated GBC, so why did the GBC incorporate itself and then take legal control of all the temples, against Srila Prabhupada's instructions, design, and arrangements? This is disobedience, lack of faith in Srila Prabhupada, and a major deviation.

When ISKCON Bangalore disaffiliated with ISKCON in 1998, ISKCON filed lawsuits hoping to reassert legal control over Bangalore via its Bombay corporation, but as of 2022 had not succeeded. ISKCON has spent millions US$ to regain control over breakaway Bangalore ISKCON, when the only issue is their conflicting guru philosophies. ISKCON Bombay promotes successor initiating gurus to replace Srila Prabhupada's role in devotees' lives, and ISKCON Bangalore holds that Srila Prabhupada made arrangements before his departure for a system of initiations by himself via proxies called “officiating acharyas.” The very successful Bangalore ISKCON has grown to a group of 30 temples worldwide and ISKCON’s guru monopoly regime feels threatened.

In 1972 Srila Prabhupada temporarily suspended the GBC body entirely and instructed the temples to go on as usual and disregard the GBC. This clearly shows that Srila Prabhupada did not see any necessity for the GBC to control the temples legally. His GBC suspension chastisement was specifically because the GBC had tried to legalize, bureaucratize, and centralize ISKCON! This incident confirms the GBC was to have primarily an ecclesiastical function, to simply execute their limited duties on the strength of loyalty to His Divine Grace’s will and instructions. There is the famous 1972 letter to Karandhar where Srila Prabhupada speaks against centralization in ISKCON. Full legal control was not introduced by Srila Prabhupada, so why does the GBC think they should? By the authority of spiritual knowledge and inspiring devotees to voluntarily surrender to Srila Prabhupada, the GBC was to maintain the standards, not legally centralize. These GBC actions are such serious deviations and disobedience, that this in itself disqualifies them to lead the spiritual mission. They covered-up Srila Prabhupada’s proven poisoning, gurujacked the movement in 1978 with the lie of being appointed as successor acharyas, adulterated his sacred books, drove away his disciples, abused the children and devotees, changed the system of management as taught by the Founder-Acharya, and as unauthorised gurus they exploited the resources and assets of the Founder-Acharya. And they churchified the ISKCON institution.

Srila Prabhupada often said ISKCON is a voluntary organization. None of the temple members were to sign a work contract, receive a salary (generally speaking), or pay a bond; they were all volunteer workers. Often devotees would voluntarily leave the association of ISKCON, and that was their right, for better or for worse. Love, trust, spiritual guidance, cooperative spirit, voluntary surrender: these were the considerations on which ISKCON thrived under Srila Prabhupada’s arrangement. This is very different from the corporate method. Corporations can move the material energy with the most optimum utilization of resources, which the movement also requires, but what they cannot do is create critical thinking, independent thought, volunteer motive, and development of love of God. The Krishna consciousness movement needs brahminical leaders who can guide others; it does not need centralized corporatism. The new ISKCON corporatism is not Srila Prabhupada’s vision and thus it is miserably failing with regards to fulfilling the actual purpose and essence of Srila Prabhupada’s mission. ISKCON has evolved into a corporate, corrupt, institutionalized church.

The legal powers that Srila Prabhupada chose to give the GBC were limited strictly as property trustees to protect ISKCON properties from sale or embumberment, as a defense in case the temple management went rogue. GBC supervision was to see that a temple president was not grossly misusing funds, and that, as spiritual guides and preachers, they would maintain the spiritual standards of all the devotees. The GBC could not remove temple presidents or become involved in temple management, although Srila Prabhupada had some variations on these management policies for his large Indian temple projects, such as himself personally being involved like a battlefield commander, to manage the very challenging and difficult affairs in India.

CONFLICTS OF INTEREST ARE UNAVOIDABLE IN THE ISKCON GURU SYSTEM

Please note that recently about 19 out of 31 members of the ISKCON GBC body were initiating "gurus." (See lists below, now outdated.) But being an initiating "guru" and a GBC member is a conflict of interest. E. g., what if there is a conflict between two devotees in his zone, and one of them is his "disciple?" Or ISKCON's male "gurus" could consider a female "guru" to be "unfair competition"? Why? Because many prospective female disciples will take initiation from a woman rather than from a man who might “appreciate” their womanliness. (Young women are sensitive about such things.) Therefore, the majority male guru GBC body is strongly motivated to reject all female diksha guru candidates. And the greatest problem is the conflict between Srila Prabhupada’s instructions and the desire to be an initiating guru. Below, the gurus outnumber:

GBCs who are initiating gurus: (1) Devamrita Swami (2) Bhakti Chaitanya Swami (3) Bhakticharu Swami (4) Bhakti Purusottama Swami (5) Bhakti Vaibhava Swami (6) Bhakti Vijnana Goswami (7) Bhakti-bhusana Swami (8) Bhaktimarga Swami (9) Bir Krishna Das Goswami (10) Bhakti Bhrnga Govinda Swami (11) Gopal Krishna Goswami (12) Guru Prasad Swami (13) Jayapataka Swami (14) Kavicandra Swami (15) Niranjana Swami (16) Radhanatha Swami (17) Romapada Swami (18) Shivarama Swami (19) Virabahu Das

GBCs who are not initiating gurus: (1) Anuttama Das (2) Badrinarayana Swami (3) Bhanu Swami (4) Dina Sharana Dasi (5) Hari Vilas Das (6) Hridaya Chaitanya Das (7). Madhusevita Das (8) Malati Dasi (9) Praghosa Das (10) Ramai Swami (11) Sesa Das (12) Tamohara Das

NEW 2009 ISKCON TEMPLE BYLAWS ARE CENTRALIZATION OF ISKCON

Ravindra Svarupa das disagreed that the new ISKCON bylaws have centralized ISKCON: “No honest, well-informed person can find any such attempt at centralization in the current undertaking. We all understand and accept Prabhupada principles of management and fully realize the need for local empowerment and autonomy. At the same time, we also understand that Prabhupada ordered the GBC to exercise certain spiritual and managerial authority over the temples. He obviously did not see these two—local autonomy and GBC authority—as mutually exclusive.” The local autonomy Ravindra Svarupa speaks of is conditionally granted by the GBC and any non-cooperation with GBC edicts will result in dismissal. What kind of autonomy is that? It is slavery, not autonomy, plain and simple. Look at some extracts from the new bylaws as proof of this fact.

(2.3): GBC... is ISKCON’s highest ecclesiastical authority. The GBC is a distinct body, independent of this corporation, and operates under its own rules, regulations, and principles. The GBC is registered in West Bengal, India, under the Societies Registration Act, 1961, registration number S/74662... (2.4): It is the responsibility of the GBC rep assigned to the geographic area to provide ecclesiastical guidance, oversight and, as defined in these Bylaws, to participate in the corporate activities of this corporation. (2.6): The GBC is vested with exclusive authority to determine whether a director, officer or member of the corporation is in “good standing” within ISKCON... The GBC or its delegated agents may add standards for determining whether a devotee is in “good standing” as may be required. (4.2): Srila Prabhupada, throughout his instructions ... designated the GBC and the laws of ISKCON as the final ecclesiastical authority for ...ISKCON. (4.3): Although ISKCON of [location], Inc. is legally, financially, and managerially independent, all activities and powers of the corporation shall be carried out and executed in accordance with the teachings and instructions of Srila Prabhupada, as construed and applied by the GBC. The corporation shall not conduct itself in any way contrary to the ecclesiastical policies of the GBC. (4.4): With respect to any ecclesiastical dispute between the corporation and the GBC pertaining to the spiritual standards and activities of the corporation, the GBC shall be the sole and final authority for resolving such disputes, and the corporation shall conform its activities, practices and religious standards to any relevant instructions given to it by the GBC. (4.5): Although the corporation is incorporated under the laws of the State of [name] the corporation recognizes that all of its assets are held in trust for the GBC, which has a beneficial ownership in said assets. In the event that the GBC makes an ecclesiastical decision that the corporation has deviated from the teachings of Srila Prabhupada and/or the ecclesiastical pronouncements of the GBC, the real and personal property of the corporation shall revert to the exclusive control of the GBC until such time as the GBC appoints a new Board of Directors of the corporation. (4.6): The corporation shall at all times remain loyal to the teachings of Srila Prabhupada, as well as to the ecclesiastical edicts and instructions of the GBC. The corporation shall insure that all of its provisions and Bylaws, and all of its activities, goals, mission, and purposes shall remain in fidelity, loyalty and obedience to Srila Prabhupada and the GBC. This provision (Article 4) shall remain in perpetuity and may not be amended... In the event, however, that the non-amendability of this article shall be rendered invalid or unenforceable by... law, then amendment of this article shall be permissible by unanimous vote of the Board of Directors, and express written approval by GBC.

(5): Title: SUBORDINATED POWERS AND LIMITATIONS (6.1): The corporation shall make no provisions for members that are eligible to elect directors or officers. (6.2): ...any action that would otherwise, under the law... require approval of a majority of all members or approval by the members, shall only require the approval of the Board of Directors. (6.3): Nothing in these Bylaws shall be construed as limiting the right of the corporation to refer to persons associated with it as “members,” even though such persons are not members, and such reference shall not constitute voting membership in the corporation. (7.2): The corporation shall have five (5) directors... known as the Board of Directors... shall consist of the following: (a) Two members elected by the Board of Directors; (b) Two members appointed by the GBC Rep for the corporation, or ...by the GBC; and (c) the Temple President. (7.3): Must annually sign the ISKCON Oath of Allegiance prescribed by the GBC and must uphold the ecclesiastical rules, policies, resolutions and guidelines for ISKCON as determined by the GBC. (7.4.1): It shall be the duty of the directors to: Perform any and all duties, both ecclesiastical and legal, imposed on them collectively or individually by the GBC laws, the Articles of Incorporation of this corporation, by these Bylaws, or by law. (7.6): At the Annual Meeting... the current directors shall elect two directors... and the local GBC representative shall appoint two directors of the corporation. The local GBC representative can appoint himself as one of the two GBC appointed directors... Temple President shall constitute the fifth director. Vacancies on the Board among the GBC-appointed directors are filled by the local GBC rep or by GBC. (7.6.1): A “Quorum Vote” means a vote in which at least four directors participated which included the Temple President and the two GBC-appointed Board members. (7.8): Director Discipline And Removal: Any Director... may be disciplined for failing to maintain the minimum qualifications of a director (Article 7.3). Such discipline may include censure, probation, suspension, or removal ...by the procedures outlined (below). (7.8.2): Notwithstanding the actions of the Board to discipline a director, the GBC shall have the power to suspend or remove a director if, in its discretion, the director has failed to maintain the minimum ecclesiastical qualifications for being a director. Such action may be taken with or without the consent/ participation of Board of Directors. (8.3.a): The local GBC rep... will recommend a candidate as President to conduct the spiritual and managerial business and... such other duties as ...delegated to him by the Board of Directors, the local GBC rep, and the GBC. If the Board and local GBC cannot agree, the local Board may also recommend a candidate to the North American GBC Executive Committee, (who) will make the selection and their decision... shall be considered final. (8.4.d): Removal of a Temple President in emergency situations: ...the GBC Executive Committee, in conjunction with the local GBC rep, are authorized to summarily remove the President of the corporation. An urgent situation is defined as: (a) Severe spiritual, philosophical or moral deviation, as defined and construed by ISKCON and the GBC; (b) Rebellion against the authority of Srila Prabhupada or the ecclesiastical authority of the GBC...

(8.6): The authority to appoint officers, other than the President, in the event of a vacancy rests with the Board of Directors. However ...the GBC... has the right to cancel any such appointment if in its sole and final ecclesiastical judgment the appointed officer does not [qualify]... (8.7): Via a process to be determined by the local GBC, and by ISKCON laws, guidelines, and standards, there should be periodic review/assessment of the Temple President’s performance. (10): [this section provides for participation of congregational “members” or others only as “advisory” committees whose decisions are not binding on the corporation] (14): Except for those clauses that are non-amendable... these Articles and/or Bylaws, or any of them, may be... amended... or repealed and new [ones] adopted by a four-fifth (4/5) vote of the Board of Directors.

COMMENTS: So, the GBC always controls 60% of the temple board, temple devotees are not members and have no say except as advisors, all GBC policies must be followed subject to removal for any reason, the GBC corporation owns the temples which are operated for their benefit, and so on. The GBC have secured absolute loyalty and control: ISKCON is a centralized GUROCRACY. The gurus control the GBC body, the GBC body controls the temple boards of directors. There is no more love and trust, it is all about power and control, as described in Divine or Demonic? By Dhanesvara das (2020). These bylaws are being implemented all across the ISKCON world, in every country, city, temple, farm or restaurant they can ram it through. Total control.

CENTRALIZATION OF ISKCON CONTRARY TO THE DOM PRINCIPLES

In Ch. 161 the Direction of Management, a document made and signed by Srila Prabhupada in 1970 which also created the GBC body itself, is fully examined. The GBC has deviated from the DOM with ISKCON bylaws and ISKCON Lawbook which increase the powers and control of the GBC, manifesting in various ways: (1) By banning of certain devotees from ISKCON temples and programs if they hold opinions or beliefs contrary to the ecclesiastical policies of ISKCON. Anyone who wishes to discuss the poison or guru issues will be notified verbally, physically, or in writing that they are not welcome and banned from ISKCON premises. (2) ISKCON management assures all their local leaders' true allegiances via the signing of an oath of allegiance to the GBC corporation and their policies imposed on ISKCON, which in part reads: "I will abide by all the ISKCON bylaws as defined by the 'ISKCON LAWBOOK' including any resolutions passed by the GBC..." (3) Armarendra das, ISKCON's perennial in-house attorney, drafted new bylaws, now approved by the GBC and implemented by ISKCON leaders. Its purposes are ostensibly to strengthen and protect ISKCON's policies, properties, and principles as given by Srila Prabhupada. However, they actually increase GBC control over temples, local officers, how devotees think, what they speak, what they can discuss or write about, creating a GUROCRACY OF TYRANNY. Any reversal or reforms by challenging the existing entrenched regime will now be difficult to achieve. (4) Although temples may retain some token of independence, their management boards are now majority GBC controlled, ensured by the new ISKCON bylaws prescribing each temple have 5 directors, 2 appointed by the GBC, 2 elected by local members, and a temple president selected by the GBC. The GBC controls everything with 60% of the vote.

(5) All temple officers are required to legally sign an Oath of Allegiance to uphold all ISKCON policies and bylaws, lest they be removed and replaced. Thus ISKCON temple presidents are forced to follow the GBC policies, although they may in fact be opposed and have different convictions. It is the classic conflict between conscience of faith and church corruption. (6) The GBC is consolidating their political control on the institution, taking this power to ensure that whatever they decide cannot be checked or ignored by lesser leaders. It is a tyranny of thought, policy, management, and makes for a cheating religion. (7) Srila Prabhupada did not want a centralized ISKCON, and the 1972 whimsical GBC meeting with attempts to centralize ISKCON resulted in his suspending the GBC entirely. Now the GBC again is offending Srila Prabhupada by their ISKCON centralization. Again they should be suspended. (8) The GBC, far from unifying ISKCON, has deviated in so many ways from Srila Prabhupada's teachings. The purposes and role of the GBC as it was designed and instructed by Srila Prabhupada is elaborated and discussed in Ch. 162.

CRONYISM AND MUNDANE HIERARCHY BECOME ENTRENCHED IN ISKCON

CRONYISM: The appointment of friends/associates to positions of authority, regardless of qualification or objectivity. The appointer needs support in his own position of authority, and appoints those who will not oppose his position and policies, vote against his interests, or express contrary views. Politically, "cronyism" derogatorily refers to buying/selling favors, such as: votes in legislative bodies, doing favors for organizations, and giving desirable posts such as sannyas or guruship to those who have proven their loyalty. Anyone who does not abide by and uphold the policies and bylaws of ISKCON, will soon find himself removed from any position or influence in ISKCON. Countless devotees were pushed out after Srila Prabhupada's physical departure, starting with Pradyumna das, then Gurukripa, Yasodanandana, and thousands of others. The zonal acharyas' policy was "My way or the highway." All resistance was purged. Loyalists were rewarded. Gradually the GBC increased their powers, and those that cooperate with the GBC-guru elite have all facilities available and those who do not are excluded and denied facilities with ultimatums, intrigue, expulsion. This "cronyism" is a facet of political corruption, very deeply rooted in ISKCON. The spiritual and social costs of ISKCON cronyism are paid by the devotees, as reduced opportunity for spiritual advancement, reduced purity of devotional service, increased mundane considerations, decreased enthusiasm, rampant mismanagement, reduced motivation for personal sacrifice, and a fading away of active participation. Cronyism is self-perpetuating and spreads corruption throughout the institution.

ECCLESIASTICAL HIERARCHY: The layers of leadership (rank and authority) in an organized church institution. The GBC thinks they have guaranteed their own elite positions as powerful masters, namely gurus and “ultimate-authority” leaders, by embedding many policies and laws into a bureaucratized, centralized institution. But just as Hiranyakashipu’s plans to become immortal failed, so the GBC will soon have to face their destinies for failure to execute and uphold Srila Prabhupada’s instructions and designs for the structure and management of ISKCON. Their ecclesiastical hierarchical tyranny will fail and the history of those dark days will be remembered well, future custodians guarding ISKCON from ever again being taken over by poisoners, book changers, and pretentious false gurus. “But our point is that Krishna Consciousness is lacking. In spite of all arrangement, if people lost faith in God, so simply by hierarchy, what is the benefit there? There is no benefit. You see? Bambarambhe laghu-kriya, in the Sanskrit word, that you can make a very high-grade arrangement, but the result is zero. So that hierarchical arrangement is exactly not in Krishna Consciousness.” (SP Interview, Sept. 24, 1968) But the GBC’s ecclesiastic authority has become legal-control authority, not just spiritual guidance (see Ch. 163). They have replaced Srila Prabhupada’s instructions with concocted deviations and revisions; their ecclesiastic hierarchy is zero, with no spiritual potency. The disciple’s life and soul is Srila Prabhupada’s orders, and if he disobeys them, he spiritually suffers. With the GBC, then everyone suffers.

CHAIN OR LINE OF AUTHORITY: The deviated GBC management arrangements may be “very high grade” in terms of modern legalistic, corporatist control mechanisms, but without the GBC following their role and purposes as was defined in the DOM and elsewhere by Srila Prabhupada (Ch. 161-3), the result is less than zero, a deficit, a negative. The GBC proposes their idea that supposedly Srila Prabhupada wanted a line or chain of absolute control authority from the GBC down to common devotees where the GBC dictates their defective doctrines (see Part 20) and that all must surrender to them. But Srila Prabhupada never forced anyone to serve Krishna; he always said it was voluntary, and he induced loyalty with his divine mercy and love, not with a complex hierarchical methodology of legal domination. He inspired loyalty, and the legal enforcement he introduced was minimal, such as in having property trustees. If the GBC does not remain faithful to Srila Prabhupada’s teachings and arrangements, then they have no longer any spiritual authority, even with their complex, multi-layered bureaucratization. Their spiritual authority derives from following Srila Prabhupada’s instructions, but the GBC/guru cartel has greatly deviated from those instructions.

Actually Srila Prabhupada is the original spiritual authority of his mission, as the Founder-Acharya, the irreplaceable and perfect authority whose instructions and vision cannot accommodate whimsical changes or innovations. The DOM establishes that Srila Prabhupada’s sense of “power” is from the bottom up, not from the top down. Those who wish to justify their desire for totalitarian power over others always explain that they are doing this “for the good of the people,” or the good of ISKCON, in the face of imagined enemies. It is the GBC’s sacred duty to represent Srila Prabhupada as the Absolute Authority that he is and always will be, and to obey his vani, without adding or subtracting anything. Then ISKCON will thrive and the GBC will be gloriously successful; their opinion and preaching will be automatically followed without need for legal control.

The current non-elected GBC (Ch. 161) has centralized ISKCON far beyond the 1972 GBC suspension episode (Ch. 163). This is seen in the new 2009 ISKCON Bylaws, which outrageously claim: (1) the GBC is the “ultimate ecclesiastical authority” of ISKCON (No, SP is...) (2) the GBC owns all the assets of ISKCON (No, Lord Krishna does) (3) the GBC is a separate corporation independent of ISKCON and registered in West Bengal (Srila Prabhupada never organized the GBC like this) (4) each GBC must sign its annual “Oath of Allegiance” to the GBC body, but which is not the Oath of Allegiance written by Srila Prabhupada (5) that all this is to protect ISKCON (actually it is to consolidate GBC control). Prominent GBC Ravindra Svarupa cites a “line of authority,” but he misses how the DOM established an incorruptible system of checks and balances that allows no man to control another. The real “authority” in ISKCON is Srila Prabhupada, to whom all others are subservient, and all devotees are equal to one another, regardless of position or service. This was the overwhelming reality of Srila Prabhupada’s preaching during his manifest presence 1966-1977. To select only certain of Srila Prabhupada’s phrases to upset the entire “applecart” of his clear intent for ISKCON is fraud, unsustainable in a law court or in the court of Vaishnava open discussion and debate. “Actually in our movement there is no such thing as big or small. Everyone is a devotee.” (SPL Sept. 19, 1974)

THE GBC IS A SECRET SOCIETY WITH SECRET BYLAWS

From the 2009 ISKCON temple incorporation Bylaws: “The GBC is a distinct body, independent of this corporation, and operates under its own rules, regulations, and principles. The GBC Society of West Bengal has its own secret Bylaws as a secret society that general devotees are not privileged to know about (Srila Prabhupada never told us to do this). Maybe the GBC arranged for their separate legal existence to shield itself from lawsuits against their individual members. But we don’t know about their reasonings which are hidden in secret discussions and “unpublished” resolutions. We don’t know about their Bylaws, rules, principles, raison d’etre, regulations, charter- these things are not shared with ISKCON members. Members (who are not real members) are only “advisors” to be easily ignored. This makes the GBC similar to Skull and Bones, Freemasons, Illuminati, etc. Their bizarre secret society is transparency? Or is the Vatican their new model? If we don’t even know what the GBC is, how can we trust them? They are incorrigibly unaccountable to everyone in ISKCON- politically, financially, institutionally, organizationally, legally. They are masters to themselves only.

From their GBC Society charter: “...To hold and protect title to the marks, copyrights, names, patents, and other intangible assets of Srila Prabhupada as his natural legal and spiritual successor, (with exception of Srila Prabhupada’s writings to be held by the BBT)... to collect donations and subscriptions... the power to admit members is the sole and absolute power of the Full Members (GBCs) [whjo] may refuse to admit any person as a member without giving any reason... Expulsion or Removal: A member [...] may be censured, placed on probation, or removed by the vote of [GBCs]... specifically assigned powers of the Executive Committee [...] to accept donations and subscriptions of money or moveable assets of the society... to control the funds of the society... the minute books [of meetings] shall be kept under lock and key... operate bank accounts...” Tirtharaj das used the GBC bank account to launder criminal monies for years; this was covered-up. The founding signatures of the 1993GBC Society included Madhu Pandit das (Bangalore), who stated in 2021 that his signature was forged by Bhaktarupa das, and he filed this fact in Indian High Court and could file a criminal complaint in Calcutta to vacate the GBC Society’s registration. The GBC is a criminal enterprise.

UNPUBLISHED GBC RESOLUTIONS

Another gurucratic practice that developed after Srila Prabhupada’s departure was the introduction of “unpublished GBC resolutions.” Many sensitive or embarrassing decisions and resolutions by the GBC at their annual Mayapur meetings have been kept secret (unpublished) from all others. Can you imagine a government legislature like the US Senate doing this? It would never be tolerated by the people, yet the devotees have allowed this practice with misplaced blind faith in the GBC. Some examples of “unpublished” resolutions that were leaked or deduced indirectly: (1) Tamal and Hansadutta’s guru suspensions are lifted after Tamal goes public with how Srila Prabhupada never appointed gurus, but only ritviks. (1981) (2) Tamal, Satsvarupa, Dhanurdhara, Shivarama, Giriraja, others are banned from Vrindaban for two years and their guruships temporarily suspended (1995) (3) Srila Prabhupada letters and other sensitive documents will not be available to devotees and were hidden at the BBT. (4) Occasions wherein ISKCON gurus had been embarrassingly punished for misbehavior. /It is antithetical to transparency and the fostering of societal love and trust when ISKCON misleaders make secret decisions no one can know about. This practice is due to absolute power feeding the corruption of ISKCON’s misleaders. On the GBC website, some annual resolutions will show “Unpublished,” meaning we are unfit to know what it is. In later years, the GBC simply keeps their secrets among themselves without even being published or unpublished. It is “an old boys club” where influence, power-plays, implicit extortion, who and what you know, etc runs the day.

SECESSION OF ISKCON LONG ISLAND TEMPLE CHALLENGES GBC TYRANNY

ISKCON Long Island, a temple and congregation which disaffiliated with ISKCON in 2004 and accepts Srila Prabhupada as their sole diksha guru, is entangled with the GBC in a twin countervailing set of lawsuits wherein ISKCON seeks to regain control of the property. A minor temple with a congregation of about 30-40 members, the Long Island temple has defended itself since 2004 from many attacks such as physical invasions and fraudulent court claims. The court cases continue into 2022, as the GBC will attempt to prove that Srila Prabhupada had effectively discarded many DOM provisions, and that the GBC should now be accepted as having self-granted powers to appoint and remove temple presidents. Even if the court were to decide unfavorably for the brave secessionists in Long Island, the Direction of Management will remain as the Srila Prabhupada’s predominant instruction for the future as to how the movement with temples, presidents, and GBC should be managed. Mundane courts cannot legislate the value of the Acharya’s instructions. Had the DOM been implemented as Srila Prabhupada wanted, no saffron criminals could have gotten away with molesting a child. One infraction and he would be immediately removed. Instead, the unaccountable GBC caused, almost ensured, many hundreds of Hare Krishna children would be molested and abused in the decades after Srila Prabhupada departed. Why? With unaccountability from lifelong posts with no elections.

DID SRILA PRABHUPADA WANT THE GBC TO MAKE ISKCON A GUROCRACY?

In 2007 GBC/guru Ravindra Svarupa defended the new ISKCON temple bylaws: “It had become clear that many temples had bylaws or articles of incorporation that did not embody Srila Prabhupada’s chain of authority nor formally give the GBC the minimum powers of oversight needed to maintain the temples’ spiritual and managerial standards—the crucial responsibilities that Srila Prabhupada held the GBC accountable for.”

He cited the GBC’s problems when the Calcutta, Bangalore, and Long Island ISKCON temples adopted the “July 9th” officiating acharya system: “When the GBC had attempted to remove a philosophically deviant temple president in India, exercising the responsibility placed on it by Srila Prabhupada, that president used Krishna’s money to hire lawyers and go to the civil courts. Then another ritvik proponent in India, by manipulating and twisting legal technicalities, managed to take a temple out of ISKCON. And then it happened right here in North America. Mundane legal technicalities had become suddenly important.”

COMMENT: Unfortunately the GBC secret society unilaterally decides, in the face of all opposition from its membership, who is philosophically deviant. This would be anyone who protests their absolute power and program of gurus plundering Srila Prabhupada’s assets. An account from a member of ISKCON’s Child Protection Office about a woman devotee who: “...was terribly mistreated in the ISKCON Baltimore temple under the supervision of Ravindra Svarupa das. The competent investigation by our office revealed how the GBC man Ravindra Svarupa utilized the temple structures and devotees for various personal schemes. The devotees and congregation wanted the GBC and his cronies out so that the temple could again sincerely follow Srila Prabhupada’s mission. But it was a top-down authoritarian system, and the GBC did not care at all about the devotees and followers of Srila Prabhupada. The report is about 40 pages long...”

Ravindra spoke of the GBC’s need to have the legal power to ensure all temples would submit to GBC interpretations of Srila Prabhupada’s teachings: “Prabhupada wanted the GBC to exercise only limited managerial power over the temple yet at the same time he wanted the GBC to retain sufficient powers of oversight and supervision as to insure that temples remained faithful to the basic teachings and practices of Krishna consciousness. Now it had become necessary for that balance to be expressed in legal documents... Prabhupada wanted a clear descending line of authority, with the GBC

having power to safeguard the integrity of the teaching and practicing of Krishna consciousness in his temples. At the same time, Prabhupada made it clear that such a line of authority did not at all entail centralized, remote bureaucratic control. He saw no incompatibility between descending authority and the empowerment of local devotees. He also insisted on local empowerment, and several times he stopped efforts at excessive centralization, as in 1972."

There are a number of problems with Ravindra Svarupa's above arguments, to justify the new bylaws that have effectively transformed ISKCON into a gurocracy (heavily-controlled, Vatican-style institution): (1) Srila Prabhupada DID NOT want the GBC to have legal enforcement powers to ensure their policies were followed, however questionable, unpopular, or deviant they might be. (2) Srila Prabhupada NEVER spoke of nor arranged for the GBC to have these legal powers, other than simple property trustees to prevent the sale or encumbrance of ISKCON properties. (3) Maintaining the temples' spiritual standards and management was to be done by GBC preaching, inspiration, being true leaders, and example. There was NO provision to ensure their beneficial interests via airtight legal controls by majority control of the ISKCON corporation's boards of directors, and privileges to appoint corporate officers that were UNAMENDABLE! This amounts to legal ownership of all ISKCON temples by the GBC. (4) It is deliberately misleading and dishonest in not describing the temples' revolts as fundamental disagreements over who is deviant: the GBC or the devotees? (5) With the new bylaws, the GBC's new "sufficient powers of oversight" have gone far beyond the 1972 attempt to create a fully centralized ISKCON or an umbrella corporation. The new ISKCON is now an international corporate conglomerate controlled and owned by the West Bengal GBC corporation. (6) There is no temple independence in ISKCON. True, the GBC is not directly carrying on daily management, but it can appoint and remove directors and presidents at any time it chooses and for any reason it deems "necessary" to fulfill its "responsibilities." Thus the GBC manages the temples indirectly with the local leaders nothing more than puppets and executors. (7) What Krishna consciousness teachings did the GBC find it difficult to uphold? That as gurus they have the right to collect disciples and funds? Their corrupt plunder of ISKCON? (8) Obviously, the GBC has replaced commanding respect with demanding it via legal rights and control.

Ravindra Svarupa insists the GBC needs far greater legal controls over ISKCON temples than existed during Srila Prabhupada's physical presence. So Srila Prabhupada made a grave error in not instructing the GBC about the high levels of corporate controls they needed to enforce their constantly-updated policies and philosophical interpretations? Srila Prabhupada was quite happy with his DOM and a few GBC election clarifications he had made by 1977 when he said: "The system of management will continue as it is now and there is no need of any change." In 1985 ISKCON scholar and academic Steven Gelberg (Subhananda das) wrote in the ISKCON Review 1.1: "...Prabhupada's demise did not create a serious crisis for the movement [...] nearly all of its members were accustomed to functioning on a day-to-day basis without the guru's immediate, personal supervision. His departure, thus, did not create any significant functional change in the daily lives of all but a few disciples. [...] Prabhupada had transmitted a well-defined theology and set explicit institutional goal orientations and administrative policy." Only because the GBC has concocted unauthorized policies and grossly deviated by making a gurocracy out of a genuine spiritual movement, do they need legal protection. Their spiritual authority is lost. Due to spiritual bankruptcy, they resort to legal controls.

E.g., now the GBC appoints the temple presidents in each temple. But Srila Prabhupada spoke strongly against this, and specified only a few conditions when the GBC could replace temple presidents. Philosophical differences over the guru system was not one of them. It is not that the GBC has the right to replace temple presidents whenever they like or declare a "deviancy." Yet, now they appoint ALL temple presidents to prevent deviancy that might come later. They have adopted a tyranny to prevent potential future threats, rather than respond to a problem after it arises. If the GBC are following Srila Prabhupada, why do they need tyrannical legal corporate powers to ENFORCE their will? The answer is that they are spiritually corrupted by a guru system based on material ambitions, with some senior leaders poisoning Srila Prabhupada to take his place. All the rest of them have now also drunk from the same vessel of the attempted murder of the Founder-Acharya, Srila Prabhupada. They are all aiders and abettors, and they have all become implicated in this crime by sharing in the spoils. (see Ch. 82, Book One)

GUROCRACY: ISKCON TYRANNY AS ABSOLUTE POWER CORRUPTS ABSOLUTELY

Excerpts from Books One & Two: CH. 10: "The GBC respects no judicature or jurisprudence beyond itself, not even the intervention of the Civil Court, what to speak of its members' pleas and concerns. Tyranny is the word that comes to mind; silence the opposition by threats of force; by intimidation; or by economic, political, or deceitful means." CH. 99: "It was an era of absolute tyranny in ISKCON, and to write about any doubts or ask any questions about the new inheritors to Srila Prabhupada's position would be met very harshly." CH. 105: "Once the GBC had sanctioned it and once the lie that Srila Prabhupada had appointed the eleven was boldly announced, the way was cleared for a tyranny of unqualified men who were quick to cement their ambitious programs of absolute dominion. By mid-1978, the eleven were well entrenched as a result of the unquestioning compliance and assistance of their own Godbrothers." CH. 109: "The reaction by the ISKCON GBC and the eleven new gurus was a distinct shift to tyranny, repression, heavy-handedness, obfuscation and obscurement, and religious fanaticism." CH. 159: "However, they actually aim to increase GBC control over temples, local officers, and how devotees think, what they read, what they can discuss or write about, thereby creating a gurocracy of tyranny... Their ecclesiastical hierarchy of tyranny will soon fall and the general devotees in the future will long remember the history of those dark days, diligently guarding ISKCON from being taken over by poisoners, book changers, and pretentious would-be gurus ever again... The GBC assumed these powers to ensure that whatever they decide cannot be checked and balanced by lesser leaders. It is a recipe for increased tyranny of thought, policy, management, and makes for a cheating religion." CH. 161: "They regularly concealed guru falldowns and their policies of tyranny disallowed the process of understanding transcendental knowledge through open discussion and debate. They politicized ISKCON with mundane considerations and philosophical deviations. They mismanaged and stole the assets of the society. They changed Srila Prabhupada's books, kirtan, and the deity worship. They cheated everyone with their unauthorised gurus while denying sincere devotees access to Srila Prabhupada. They oversaw the abuse of all the devotees and focused on their own benefits rather than protecting their dependents... As more of Srila Prabhupada's sincere followers become enlightened as to the real history of ISKCON, and understand the evidence that Srila Prabhupada was poisoned and that senior men hijacked his mission for their own personal ambitions, the reign of tyranny moves closer to its end." CH. 162: "Tyranny by corrupt leaders and false policies cannot survive the irrepressible passion of the general devotees for the truth in all matters." CH. 163: "No more banning of certain topics and no more 'just unquestioningly do what the leaders say'- the tyranny must stop... The GBC does not like Srila Prabhupada's arrangements for managing ISKCON because that would spell the end of their self-serving, self-perpetuating tyranny."

The GBC's pattern of abuse followed the typical pattern of abuse in "rogue states," where dictatorships and oligarchies are not answerable to the constituents. It would have been almost impossible for the molestations of the Gurukula children to have taken place if Srila Prabhupada's DIRECTION OF MANAGEMENT had been followed. SP: "Yes. This was the system, that one must retire. Just like at the present moment, although people are asking the president that 'You retire, you resign,' he is not resigning, obstinate. Because he knows, 'This is the first and last chance. I am not going to be elected again. So stick to the post and take as much money as possible.' That's all." (SP Lecture Dec. 17, 1973) SP: Don't fight amongst yourselves. I have given the explanation, my will. Execute like that. TAMAL: Yes, Srila Prabhupada. (SP Conv Oct. 8, 1977)

"THE SYSTEM OF MANAGEMENT WILL CONTINUE AS IT IS NOW AND THERE IS NO NEED OF ANY CHANGE." (SP's Final Will, June 1977) "You are singing every day, guru-mukha-padma-vakya, cittete koriya aikya, ar na koriho mane asa. This is life. This is life. Guru-mukha-pad... You accept the bona fide guru, and what he orders you, carry out. Then your life is successful. Ar na koriho mane asa. You rascal, you do not desire anything else.” (SPLecture July 12, 1975) “Your material legal formula cannot help us. Only our spiritual life can help us.” (SPL Apr. 9, 1972) “Srila Prabhupada gave great freedom to his disciples. He had faith in his disciples. He accepted they were intelligent; he wanted them to use their ‘American brains’ in Krishna’s service. Srila Prabhupada usually only gave the broad idea of what he wanted and left the details to his disciples. Even his book publishing work was delegated almost completely to his disciples.” (Madhuhvisa das, younger, 1995)

CHAPTER 152: UNAUTHORIZED BOGUS GURUS

(1) UNAUTHORIZED: unordained, uncertified, unapproved, unsanctioned, unpermitted, unallowed, illegitimate, forbidden, underhanded, prohibited, unwarranted, wildcat. (2) BOGUS: cheaters, exploiters, self-servers, fraudulent, deluded, swindlers, ruse, dishonest, deceivers, hoax, charlatans, pretentious, cheap, hypocrits, liars. (3) “The attempts at importance by unauthorized gurus are likened to Rahu’s short eclipse of the Moon.” (unknown) (5) “But by the influence of maya, illusion, a different idea soon evolved — that Srila Prabhupada had appointed eleven ‘pure devotees’ to serve as the only gurus after him. [...] This zonal guru system, as it came to be called, prevailed in ISKCON for about ten years, until its falseness became clear.” (Jayadvaita Swami, “An Apology,” BTG #25-01-1991) (6) “Is this an outright fabrication or not? That Srila Prabhupada ‘personally detailed the procedure for increasing the number of initiating guru[s]’ is something we can only wish. Or falsely tell the Society he did.” (Jayadvaita Swami, GBC email Dec. 13, 2000) (7) “It is clear in Srila Prabhupada’s teachings that a conditioned soul, one who is not a self-realized pure devotee, cannot give diksha or transmit transcendental knowledge into the heart or soul of another person. Yet this is EXACTLY what ISKCON GBC doctrines advocate, claiming Srila Prabhupada taught this. But it is a lie, meant only to facilitate their ambitions to falsely pose themselves as good as God diksha gurus. They are unauthorized, cheating, bogus gurus, the ones that Srila Prabhupada warned us so often about in his books.” (Naveen Krishna, 2017)

Some pertinent quotes about the ISKCON unauthorized bogus guru. (1) “It is a fact however that the great sinister movement is within our society.” (SPL 1970) (2) “Everyone wants to become spiritual master.” (SPLecture Sept. 8, 1972) (3) “Actually Prabhupada never appointed any gurus. He appointed eleven ritviks... Myself and the other GBC have done the greatest disservice to this movement the last three years because we interpreted the appointment of ritviks as the appointment of gurus.” (Tamal Dec. 3, 1980) (4) “As for your next question, can only a few pure devotees deliver others, anyone, if he is a pure devotee he can deliver others, he can become Spiritual Master. But unless he is on that platform he should not attempt it. Then both of them will go to hell, like blind men leading the blind.” (SPL Tusta Krishna Dec. 14, 1972) (5) “Unfortunately, due to ambition which blinded them from recognizing their own neophyte status, the eleven had foolishly erected a house built upon sand...” (ENE p. 80) (6) “As soon as a foolish disciple tries to overtake his spiritual master and becomes ambitious to occupy his post, he immediately falls down.” (SBhag 5.12.12 purport)

ISKCON leadership’s real concern should have been to execute Srila Prabhupada’s instructions as covered in Parts 17-19, not to presume the right to manufacture a false process for creating new acharyas. The GBC is meant to implement the Founder-Acharya’s teachings, not to presume that the real Acharya failed to give some essential instructions and then speculatively create what they felt was missing. The missing instructions, they explained, were those that Srila Prabhupada did not give for what to do about future initiations in ISKCON after his physical departure. Actually, Srila Prabhupada did make it clear, but, blinded by personal ambition, they poisoned him, hijacked the movement through political conspiracy, ignored his instructions, and through philosophical misinterpretations justified their assumption of the authority to do as they wanted for fulfilling their guru ambitions. This self-serving fraud is a temporary material concoction that has disrupted millions of spiritual lives, foisting pretentious and ineffective conditioned souls as bogus spiritual masters upon the innocent. They say maybe there are pure devotees amongst the ISKCON gurus, but even if true, still they are not authorized by Srila Prabhupada. Introducing unauthorized false gurus to give meaningless, ineffective “initiations” was the greatest of all the philosophical deviations by disobedient disciples. Most other deviations followed from this initial, colossal fraud of cheating and exploitation.

From International Sri Krishna Mandir's Initiations After 1977, the very vital topic of deviations in spiritual life is discussed: “Keeping the Founder-Acharya, Srila Prabhupada, in the centre means to keep his instruction in the centre. Then only can we cooperate together to push this Krishna consciousness movement forward. The past 40+ years, though, has been a history of enormous amounts of deviation, cheating, mistrust, frustration, factions, jealousy and even violence. It is prudent to objectively identify the cause and implement the solution to these problems. As Srila Prabhupada told us, ‘There is no external force in this world that can stop our movement. It can only be destroyed from within.’ It all started with disobedience towards the order of Srila Prabhupada. The instructions of Srila Prabhupada are the thread that holds the beautiful pearl necklace of our movement. If they are disobeyed, the thread would snap and the necklace would be lost. That is exactly what happened especially with regards to initiations after Srila Prabhupada’s departure.”

SINGLEMOST DAMAGING POLICY TO POISON SRILA PRABHUPADA’S MISSION

The most significant manner in which Srila Prabhupada’s mission and ISKCON has been poisoned, aside from Srila Prabhupada’s physical poisoning, is the policy and practice of having self-appointed and ecclesiastically-approved, so-called initiating gurus mislead sincere devotees with their ineffective DIKSHA, being unable to deliver or awaken transcendental knowledge in the heart of a disciple. Illegal, unauthorized, and materially motivated persons who cannot actually perform as a bona fide guru are offered to the membership, and this fraud is an extremely damaging, deviant policy, a grandiose deception called bait and switch, such as in selling gold-plated jewelry as though it were solid gold jewelry. It is cheating of the worst kind, far more worse than betrayal in business, marriage, exams, treason, espionage, or in any other area.

Cheating is always discovered sooner or later. Even if the unauthorised guru manages to apparently remain in “good standing” his whole life, this in itself does not enable him to deliver his disciples, and it is dubious as to what benefit (if any) is derived from accepting, worshipping, and serving such a guru. To the extent false gurus actually pass on Srila Prabhupada’s teachings, there is real benefit, but the lie they tell is that Srila Prabhupada is not available except through them. Over half of ISKCON gurus have exhibited faulty behavior, wreaking havoc amongst their followers. Some devotees go from one unauthorised guru to another, reinitiated multiple times. All of them will eventually become spiritually damaged or long-term mentally disturbed. There can be no substitute for the real thing. No one wins against the casino; it’s rigged.

TWO STORIES: THE NAKED EMPEROR AND THE BLUE JACKAL

(1) “The eleven zonal acharyas were, in many respects, similar to the main character in the Hans Christian Andersen tale, The Emperor’s New Clothes, in which a Medieval king, deceived by two shrewd and dishonest traveling cloth merchants, boldly paraded throughout his capital city completely naked while the gullible citizens pretended that he was wearing invisible royal garments. The farce was exposed when a small child shouted out, ‘The king is naked!’ In the ISKCON farce, how long would it take before large numbers of perceptive and fearless devotees began to shout, ‘The zonal acharyas are fake!’ for all to hear?” (ENE p. 74) (2) Once a jackal who was living in a forest fell into a bucket of blue dye and ran away frightened. When the other animals saw him, they were amazed at the sight and the clever jackal proclaimed God had sent him as their new king. The animals all accepted this and he was worshiped and served royally. However, when the full moon came, the blue jackal began to howl just like jackals do. The forest animals recognized him as a fraud and chased him away. Similarly, the eleven original ISKCON gurus claimed they had been appointed by Srila Prabhupada and later the GBC proclaimed they had Srila Prabhupada's authority to approve gurus, all of which were worshiped as good as God. But when they began to fall down like the conditioned souls they actually were, it became apparent to devotees that the guru appointment and approval claims were hoaxes and lies.

THE GBC IS NOT MEANT NOR AUTHORIZED TO AUTHORIZE GURUS

"Besides recognizing the zonal acharyas as diksha gurus and permitting their extravagant worship, the GBC made another big mistake in 1978 when they insisted that a [new] candidate for guru needed a three-quarters vote of approval. Prabhupada would have undoubtedly called such a guru authorized by an ecclesiastical body a 'rubber-stamp' guru. Prabhupada explained, 'Mundane votes have no jurisdiction to elect a Vaishnava acharya. A Vaishnava acharya is self-effulgent....'" (ENE p. 194) To enable their takeover coup of ISKCON, senior leaders in 1977-78 concealed Srila Prabhupada's instructions for the future (Book One Ch. 84-5) and then gave their own self-serving interpretation of "clear" instructions from Srila Prabhupada. They claimed 11 had been appointed as successor acharyas to initiate after Srila Prabhupada's departure. After a decade of this fraud, it took more years before any partial apology came for "excesses" with the zonal acharya system, but the GBC never admitted their fraud or lie, preferring to pin blame on "inexperience" and "weaknesses." Audaciously, the GBC claimed to have authority to decide how new gurus could be approved in ISKCON, and new gurus were then created by votes and by the dozen. Within a few years, half of them were exposed as "fallen." But Srila Prabhupada never gave the GBC any authority to manufacture methods for approving conditioned souls as initiating gurus. There is a huge misunderstanding about this matter. The discussion of what Srila Prabhupada's intentions were for the GBC comes in Ch. 162, but suffice it to say here that the GBC has no mandate or authority to concoct methods of approving initiating gurus, something which Srila Prabhupada not only never told them to do, but he also taught that such a thing could NOT be done anywhere, or anytime. He specifically preached against "rubber-stamp" gurus! Therefore any gurus created by such concocted methods in ISKCON are not authorized because the GBC is not authorized to approve them. ISKCON gurus are therefore like illegitimate children and unwanted offspring. (credit to Jadurani dasi, early 1980's).

The summary conclusion is that Srila Prabhupada has already given us everything we need to carry on the mission by his instructions, and that the GBC should implement Srila Prabhupada's instructions, not concoct voting procedures for electing new diksha gurus about which Srila Prabhupada never spoke. Actually Srila Prabhupada severely criticized the Gaudiya Math and his own godbrothers for unauthorizedly making diksha gurus when Bhaktisiddhanta never gave any instructions to do so. Yet the GBC, in illusion as to the nature and parameters of their duties, has incredibly done exactly what Srila Prabhupada criticized to such a great extent. This shows their thoroughly dishonest, corrupted, and hypocritical condition. Cheaters and liars.

ENVY, FIGHTING, ILL WILL AMONGST THE "PURE DEVOTEE" GURUS IN ISKCON

(1) "When we got the [11] gurus [in 1978], we got 11 different ISKCONs," Ravindra-Svarupa confirmed. "There were some real unfriendly tensions between the gurus right from the start. They propped each other up because if the power of one guru was threatened, they all felt threatened. But when somebody finally fell, they turned on him and destroyed him." (Monkey On A Stick, p. 391) (2) "As for Kirtanananda Swami, he was only too glad to see the other ISKCON gurus fall down one by one. Eventually, he hoped, only he would remain as the sole authority and spiritual master for ISKCON. One New Vrindaban resident remembered: 'After Jayatirtha got kicked out [of ISKCON] for LSD and sex, Kirtanananda Swami said: "Ten little, nine little, eight little Indians," you know, thinking he would be the only one left in the end.'" (Sulochan das, Guru Business, 1985) (3) "A society of devotees in which proper Vaishnava relations is not yet the norm is called a kanistha adhikari society. Its distinguishing characteristic is contentiousness because of envy. Envy is a product of false ego. Because of envy the members are no longer able to establish spiritual friendships among themselves. Instead they vie with each other, compete with each other for prestige, power and prerequisites. Intensely desiring the honor and respect of others, the contentious neophyte pretends to be more advanced than he actually is. He tries to conceal his shortcomings and fall down and in so doing he develops a secretive mentality and holds himself back from entering into open and honest relationships with his godbrothers. Because he cannot reveal his mind in confidence he remains aloof from real fellowship. He strays from the path of devotional service but his peers do not help him, for he thinks if he allows someone to preach to him he implicitly admits his own subordination. Therefore, he cuts himself off from hearing and becomes impervious to instruction or good advice. Because he has many secret misgivings about himself he becomes eager to find the faults of others. In this way he reassures himself of his own superiority in spite of his many unacknowledged weaknesses.” (Ending the Fratricidal War, Ravindra Svarupa, 1985, before he became one of the gurus he is criticizing here.)

UNAUTHORISED GURUS ARE DANGEROUS- THEY AND FOLLOWERS MAY GO TO HELL

(1) “A serpent, you know some serpent has got jewels on the head. Does it mean a serpent with jewel on hood is not ferocious because he has got jewel? He's as ferocious as ordinary serpent.” (SPLecture July 28, 1971) COMMENT: Scholarship, big guru seats, charisma, these things are decorations, and if they decorate unauthorized gurus, they become even more dangerous. (2) “Unless one is perfectly anxious to inquire about the way of perfection, there is no necessity of approaching a Spiritual Master. A Spiritual Master is not a kind of decoration for a householder. Generally a fashionable materialist engages a so-called Spiritual Master without any profit. The pseudo Spiritual Master flatters the so-called disciple, and thereby both the master and his ward go to hell without a doubt.” (SBhag 1.19.37 purport) (3) “Leaders who have fallen into ignorance and who mislead people by directing them to the path of destruction are, in effect, boarding a stone boat, and so too are those who blindly follow them. A stone boat would be unable to float and would sink in the water with its passengers. Similarly, those who mislead people go to hell, and their followers go with them.” (SBhag 6.7.14 purport) (4) “Therefore you have got Spiritual Master. Why he is there? Therefore you have to accept Spiritual Master who will give you direction. You cannot do it. If you manufacture your own... then go to hell. Yasya deve para bhaktir yatha deve tatha gurau [...]. Krishna is there; guru is there. Why should you manufacture your own way? If you are sincere, Krishna will dictate from within. Tesam satata-yuktanam bhajatam priti-purvakam. [...] Krishna is ready to give you instruction. The Spiritual Master is ready. Why should you do at your whims, and do something wrong and go to hell? Yes?” (SPLecture Hawaii 1974) (5) Isopanisad 12: “...The pseudo religionists have neither knowledge nor detachment from material affairs, for most of them want to live in the golden shackles of material bondage under the shadow of philanthropic activities disguised as religious principles. By a false display of religious sentiments, they present a show of devotional service while indulging in all sorts of immoral activities. In this way they pass as spiritual masters and devotees of God. Such violators of religious principles have no respect for the authoritative acharyas, the holy teachers in the strict disciplic succession. They ignore the Vedic injunction acaryopasana- “One must worship the acharya”- and Krishna’s statement [...] evam parampara-praptam, “This supreme science of God is received through the disciplic succession.” Instead, to mislead the people in general they themselves become so-called acharyas, but they do not even follow the principles of the acharyas. These rogues are the most dangerous elements in human society. Because there is no religious government, they escape punishment by the law of the state. They cannot, however, escape the law of the Supreme, who has clearly declared in the BGita that envious demons in the garb of religious propagandists shall be thrown into the darkest regions of hell. Sri Isopanisad confirms that these pseudo religionists are heading toward the most obnoxious place in the universe after the completion of their spiritual master business, which they conduct simply for sense gratification.” (6) “As for your next question, can only a few pure devotees deliver others, anyone, if he is a pure devotee he can deliver others, he can become spiritual master. But unless he on that platform he should not attempt it. Then both of them will to go to hell, like blind men leading the blind.” (SPL Tusta Krishna Dec. 14, 1972)

IT IS BEST NOT TO ACCEPT DISCIPLES / AMARA AJNAYA GURU HANA

*“The cult of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu is explained here very nicely. One who surrenders to Him and is ready to follow Him with heart and soul does not need to change his location. Nor is it necessary for one to change status. One may remain a householder, a medical practitioner, an engineer or whatever. It doesn't matter. One only has to follow the instruction of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, chant the Hare Krishna maha-mantra and instruct relatives and friends in the teachings of the Bhagavad-gita and Srimad-Bhagavatam. One has to learn humility and meekness at home, following the instructions of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, and in that way one's life will be spiritually successful. One should not try to be an artificially advanced devotee, thinking, ‘I am a first-class devotee.’ Such thinking should be avoided. It is best not to accept any disciples. One has to become purified at home by chanting the Hare Krishna maha-mantra and preaching the principles enunciated by Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. Thus one can become a spiritual master and be freed from the contamination of material life.” (CC Mad 7.130) ISKCON guru apologists always quote Chaitanya Mahaprabhu's order to become a guru: “Amara ajnaya guru hana.” But isn't it clear that Chaitanya Mahaprabhu asked everyone to become siksha guru and preach as far as their ability allowed, without taking disciples, and by staying at home by chanting, kirtan, prasadam, and inviting family and friends? ISKCON has grossly misinterpreted this preaching principle to mean that everyone should become a diksha guru, but this is contradictory to the shastric advice and teachings. Really, everyone should be an initiating guru? “If a spiritual master is not properly authorized and only on his own initiative becomes a spiritual master, he may be carried away by an accumulation of wealth and large numbers of disciples. His is not a very high grade of devotional service. If a person is carried away by such achievements, then his devotional service becomes slackened. One should therefore strictly adhere to the principles of disciplic succession.” (Nectar of Devotion, Ch. 14)*

NO BENEFIT IF THE GURU IS NOT INFALLIBLE

Often ISKCON apologists will argue that the diksha guru need not be a liberated person, or conversely, that their gurus are actually liberated persons simply because they are in “good standing” by following a basic sadhana program. But Srila Prabhupada says a guru must be infallible or else he is bogus. (1) “Sisyas te ‘ham sadhi mam prapannam: ‘Now, Krishna, I accept You as my guru. Not as friend.’ Because friendly talking is useless waste of time. He accepted Him as guru. When guru speaks, you cannot argue. That is not the process. You should accept a guru who is infallible. Otherwise it is useless. He accepted guru Krishna because Krishna is infallible. If we accept guru, a unauthorised guru, then it is no benefit. Guru means Krishna's representative. Not that everyone can be guru.” (SP Lecture Oct. 3, 1976) (2) “So one must find out a guru who is paramahansa. Neither kriticaka, nor bahudaka, nor parivrajakacharya. Paramahansa... Then our strong desire to enjoy this material world in different way, that will be slackened. That is wanted.” (SP Lecture Nov. 1, 1976) (3) “So Krishna's present by His words, by His representative. Why don't you take? You have to take guru. Why do you go to the pseudo guru who will mislead you? Why don't you take to the real guru? That is your mistake. Therefore you are now disappointed. Now you are in doubt whether guru is needed. Yes, guru is needed, but you go to the real guru.” (SP Conv June 28, 1976) (5) “Now, to take such guidance means the spiritual master should also be a very perfect man. Otherwise, how can he guide? ...Therefore one has to select a spiritual master whose order, carrying, you'll not commit a mistake. You see? Now, suppose if you accept a wrong person as spiritual master, and if you, if he guides you wrongly, then your whole life is spoiled. So one has to accept a spiritual master whose guidance will make his life perfect. That is the relation between spiritual master and disciple. It is not a formality. It is a great responsibility both for the disciple and for the spiritual master.” (SP Lecture March 2, 1966)

EXPERT AT REMOVING DISCIPLES' WEALTH BUT NOT THEIR SUFFERING

(1) Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati: although the attitude of giving to the guru was correct, acquisitiveness by the guru was not: “Everything should be offered to the guru. Yet taking even a morsel for his own sake, a guru becomes disqualified and a thief.” (2) “Many gurus are expert in removing their disciples wealth, but rare is the genuine guru who can remove their suffering.” (Sri Guru

Gita, Uttara Kanda, Skanda Purana/ SBV.2.86) (3) “The entire world is now full of many asuras in the guise of politicians, gurus, sadhus, yogis and incarnations, and they are misleading the general public away from Krishna consciousness, which can offer true benefit to human society...” (SBhag 10.3.21)

GBC MANUFACTURING THEIR OWN WAY IS SIMPLY CHEATING (SBHAG 5.14.13)

Translation: Sometimes, to mitigate distresses in this forest of the material world, the conditioned soul receives cheap blessings from atheists. He then loses all intelligence in their association. This is exactly like jumping in a shallow river. As a result one simply breaks his head. He is not able to mitigate his sufferings from the heat, and in both ways he suffers. The misguided conditioned soul also approaches so-called sadhus and svamis who preach against the principles of the Vedas. He does not receive benefit from them, either in the present or in the future. Purport: Cheaters are always there to manufacture their own way of spiritual realization. To get some material benefit, the conditioned soul approaches these pseudo sannyasis and yogis for cheap blessings, but he does not receive any benefit from them, either spiritual or material. In this age there are many cheaters [...] One should approach a guru who can extinguish the blazing fire of this material world, the struggle for existence. [...] therefore one should [...] sincerely approach a devotee like Jada Bharata. Jada Bharata instructed Rahugana Maharaja so well that the King was relieved from the bodily conception. One cannot become happy by accepting a false guru. [...] One should approach a bona fide guru to inquire about the highest benefit of life. Such a guru is described as follows: sabde pare ca nisnatam. Such a guru does not manufacture gold or juggle words. He is well versed in the conclusions of Vedic knowledge [...]. He is freed from all material contamination and is fully engaged in Krishna’s service. If one is able to obtain the dust of the lotus feet of such a guru, his life becomes successful. Otherwise he is baffled both in this life and in the next.

WHERE IS THE ISKCON PAPER ON VALIDITY OF THEIR GURU APPROVAL PROCESS?

Years ago the GBC passed a resolution which as of 2022 has still not been fulfilled. What is the problem, and why has this paper not been produced? Is there a difficulty with validating their process?

307. Guru Paper (concerning the validity of the current ISKCON process of approving diksha-gurus) Whereas the GBC has received inquiries concerning the validity of the current ISKCON process of approving diksha-gurus: RESOLVED: “The GBC hereby commissions the production of a paper presenting the reasons and supporting evidence for the validity of the current process. The Guru Services Committee shall take responsibility for this paper to be finalized latest by December 31, 2012.” We note that by 2012 the GBC had already issued many edicts and papers re: their guru/initiations policy, which were inconclusive even to them! In Part 20, Ch. 197 to 214, we review the major GBC doctrinal papers from 1977 through 2012. Not enough. One ISKCON guru advised: “Is this an outright fabrication or not? That Srila Prabhupada ‘personally detailed the procedure for increasing the number of initiating gurus’ is something we can only wish. Or falsely tell the Society he did.” (Jayadvaita Swami email to GBC Shastric Advisory Committee, Dec. 13, 2003)

REQUIRED SEMINARS FOR NEW ISKCON GURUS

The GBC passed a 2008 resolution requiring a seminar training program for its initiating gurus:

317. GURU SEMINAR: Whereas there is a need for devotees who serve as initiating spiritual masters to understand clearly their role within [ISKCON] as well as the need to work cooperatively within the society and the GBC leadership; Whereas there is a need to build stronger bonds of association among the spiritual masters of ISKCON for their mutual benefit and the benefit of the society; RESOLVED: That all devotees of ISKCON who, in the future take up service to the society as initiating spiritual masters, must first attend the ISKCON Guru Seminar, prior to initiating disciples. That seminar shall be offered at least once per year, in Ujjain, India, or another location as determined by the GBC Guru Services Committee. All devotees currently serving as initiating spiritual masters in ISKCON are strongly recommended to attend this Guru Seminar. Also all initiating spiritual masters, now and in the future, are strongly recommended to attend the 4-day Guru Retreat on an annual basis, or at least bi-annually. The Retreat shall be organized by the Guru Services Committee and held in Ujjain or other locations as determined by the committee.

COMMENTS: Guru seminars for diksha gurus who are capable of leading their disciples back to Godhead? That is ridiculous- what kind of guru is ISKCON producing who needs “training” with institutional seminars? A friend wrote in Nov. 2017 the following shocking revelations: “Their entire institutional concept is that you just climb the institutional ladder and at some point presto! You become guru! I took the ISKCON ‘guru course’ to see what they are teaching prospective gurus, and NOT ONCE did they mention qualification! Not even vaco vegam manasa krodha vegam. It’s getting hard for me to avoid offenses as I find increasing contempt for them.” As time passes, the vote approval process for becoming an ISKCON guru is padded with more requirements. Vote campaigning, oath of allegiance, seminars, annual guru retreats, committees, etc.

SINCERITY DETERMINES IF ONE GETS A BONAFIDE GURU

(1) Devotee: Srila Prabhupada, why has it taken so long for a pure devotee to come to the West? Has the West been so sinful that no pure devotee has come before Your Divine Grace? SP: Don't be sorry. At that time, you were so sinful that you could not receive a pure devotee. Devotee: Yes. Once in a lecture a lady asked you why hadn't you come sooner, and you just said, "Well, you weren't ready for me." SP: Yes, "Because you were not ready." Yes, I told. Yes. Now the Western boys, the descendant of the Western people, they are fortunate; therefore they receive Krishna. Kona bhagyavan jiva (CC Mad 19.151). It is Krishna's desire that "These people are suffering so much; let some devotees come here." So you are all devotees. You have come to join together. (SPConv Dec. 7, 1973) (2) Devotee: If someone is actually sincere, can he be cheated, or will he always get a bona fide guru? SP: No, if he is sincere, he'll get. Devotee: Bona fide. SP: Yes. Guru-krishna-krpaya paya bhakti-lata-bija (CC Mad 19.151). Guru and Krishna. Krishna is within you. As soon as He sees that you are sincere, He'll give you the right person. Devotee: So if you are not completely sincere, you might get a Guru Maharaj-ji. [...] SP: Yes. Because you want to be cheated, you go to the cheater. That's all. Ye yatha mam prapadyante tams tathaiva bhajamy aham (BGita 4.11). Krishna is intelligent, superintelligent. If you are a cheater, He'll cheat you. He'll cheat you. First-class cheat, Krishna. But if you're actually sincere, then He'll give you the right thing. [...] mattah smrtir jnanam apohanam ca... "Everything is coming from Me: smrtih, remembrance, and forgetfulness." If you are a cheater, Krishna will give you such intelligence, you'll forget Krishna forever. Dr. Wolfe: Srila Prabhupada, so it is so, "Birds of a feather flock together." The cheaters flock together. SP: Yes. "Birds of the same feather flock together." (SPConv Dec. 7, 1973)

ECCLESIASTICAL “GURUS” VS. ETERNAL GURUS By Narasimha das

Srila Prabhupada describes who is a genuine disciple and who is a genuine spiritual master (SBhag 2.9.43 purport). The original guru is Lord Sri Krishna and the original disciple is Lord Brahma. Devotees in the Brahma Sampradaya receive transcendental knowledge through the paramapara coming through Narada Muni, Vyasadeva, Sukadeva Goswami—and other great paramahansas in this line of succession. QUALIFICATIONS OF GENUINE DISCIPLES AND GURUS: Those who attempt to understand Vedic knowledge through grammar alone are not allowed access into the pure transcendental knowledge of bhakti-yoga. Such jnanis, yogis, karmis, and even prakrita-bhaktas, generally try to capture Vedic knowledge through scholarship, or under the tutorship of institutional leaders or professional clerics or pundits. Because they have not surrendered to a “realized person,” a pure devotee, they remain on the mundane plane. “One who is now the disciple is the next spiritual master. And one cannot be a bona fide and authorized spiritual master unless one has been strictly obedient to his spiritual master.” (SBhag 2.9.43 purport) ARE ECCLESIASTICAL GURUS GENUINE? Those who are disobedient, or those who never surrender to the real acharya, cannot be counted as disciples in the eternal paramapara. They can never be real gurus or disciples but are, at best, veda-vada-ratas—according to Srila Prabhupada’s purports. The veda-vada-ratas sometimes criticize the bona fide spiritual master (for initiating non-Brahmins or initiating through ritviks) that they think is against Vedic principles. They adjudge such actions for preaching to be apa-siddhanta. They claim that only “living” ecclesiastical gurus can offer diksha through formal Vedic ceremonies authorized by clerics and institutional leaders. Or they say only born Brahmins can receive diksha. They often claim to be equal to Vedic acharyas, or they say great acharyas are subservient to Vedic procedures and regulations. “Therefore the so-called formal spiritual master and disciple are not facsimiles of Brahma and Narada or Narada and Vyasa. The relationship between Brahma and Narada is reality, while so-called formality is the relation between the cheater and cheated.” (SBhag 2.9.43 purport) “Sri Jiva Goswami advises that one not accept a spiritual master in terms of hereditary or customary social and ecclesiastical conventions. One should simply try to find a genuinely qualified spiritual master for actual advancement in spiritual understanding.” (CC Adi 1.35 purport) Followers of various teachers often claim their guru is the only guru and the only way, or they say, like some Christians do, that there will never be another real teacher in the guru-paramapara. This reactionary stance is another unauthorized point of view. REAL GURUS ARE ETERNAL: On the other hand, without sectarianism, we can understand that real gurus are eternal. Thus there is no need to replace them every few years with updated upstarts. Nor do we need to wait for another maha-bhagavata to appear or reappear. Great devotees are eternal and still living in sound. (1) “One should not think of Brahmaji as a dead great-grandfather... He is the oldest great-grandfather, and he is still living, and Narada is also living.” (2) “The spiritual master is not a question of [living or dead]... The spiritual master is eternal—the spiritual master is eternal.” (Conv. Oct. 2, 1968, Seattle) (3) “A nitya-siddha devotee comes from Vaikuntha upon the order of the Supreme Personality of Godhead and shows by his example how to become a pure devotee... A pure devotee, therefore, is a practical example for all living entities, including Lord Brahma.” (SBhag 7.10.3 purport) All glories to Srila Prabhupada, the eternal living link in the Brahma Sampradaya and Spiritual Master of the Universe! (END)

SENTIMENTAL VAGUENESS TO JUSTIFY NEW GURUS

Sometimes ISKCON apologists will resort to sentimental, vague arguments to defend ISKCON’s guru approval system. They may also mix in some good measure of glorification of Srila Prabhupada, such as how he must always be seen as the Founder-Acharya of ISKCON or that he is exceptional and cannot be imitated. This quote from Jayadvaita Swami (ISKCON guru) is an example of how the deviant guru system is defended: “Some people, it seems, suppose that any guru, to be bona fide, must come up to the same level, or nearly the same, as Srila Prabhupada. But that is neither necessary nor possible. It is not necessary because Srila Prabhupada far excelled the qualifications every bona fide guru must have. There may be many fragrant flowers, but among them there is extraordinary excellence in the campaka or the rose; there may be many birds, but among them special excellence in the peacock or the swan; many stars, but among them special excellence in the moon. Among gurus, Srila Prabhupada shines with extraordinary brilliance. To expect that sort of brilliance from every guru is to expect the impossible- and to lose sight of how extraordinary Srila Prabhupada is. Then again, if by virtue of serving as guru one thinks one has become as good as Prabhupada, or nearly so, again one has lost one’s vision. We’ve had our experience: the little mice who became tigers and cast hungry eyes on the yogi turned into little mice again.” (Vyasa-puja Offering By Jayadvaita Swami, 1995)

These apologies invariably are strawman arguments just to encourage the ISKCON members that their initiating gurus, despite decades of havoc, hell, and falldowns are bona fide after all, especially now that some details have been corrected, such as moderating the level of worship rather than abolishing the deviant system altogether. But Srila Prabhupada never specifically gave any order or instruction for ISKCON devotees to become initiating gurus, regardless of their qualifications. Although probably none of them are qualified, the real issue is AUTHORIZATION. There is no authorization from Srila Prabhupada for anyone to become diksha guru, otherwise why did the GBC have to devise an ashastric system via votes to approve them?

Ironically, from 1978-87 the GBC was promoting their eleven “appointed” successor acharyas that were supposed to be worshiped just like Srila Prabhupada was worshiped, because they were “empowered successors.” Then that hoax and lie was exposed, and another system by voting-in gurus was adopted. And in 1995 Jayadawaita Swami (above) says it is not necessary to be on Srila Prabhupada’s level, something ISKCON had vehemently insisted for a decade just a few years earlier. Besides, who wants a crow when he can have a swan, who wants a star when he can have the Moon, who wants a dandelion when he can have a rose? And it is not just that ISKCON gurus are less special than Srila Prabhupada. They have no right to take his place. They are bogus gurus, going to hell, offenders, unauthorized, rascals, cheaters. Srila Prabhupada makes this clear.

A SUCCESSION OF ALL IS A SUCCESSION OF NONE

From Tamal’s 1996 essay “The Perils of Succession,” he wrote: “Lord Chaitanya had given an open order for all to ‘become a spiritual master and try to liberate everyone in this land.’ But a succession of ‘all’ is a succession of none. Yet, anarchy was certainly not Prabhupada’s intention.”

Even Tamal doubted that Lord Chaitanya could have meant that anyone or everyone would become a diksha guru. There are many kinds of spiritual masters, only one of which is the diksha guru, the transmitter of transcendental knowledge into the heart, and it should be clear (although it is not, unfortunately) that Lord Chaitanya was not instructing everyone to become an initiating guru, but to simply preach as instructing gurus. Thus Tamal notes the difficulties in “a succession of all is a succession of none.” At the heart of this misunderstanding of what a guru is, is the hidden aversion to being “only” an instructor guru and not a “diksha” guru who is as good as God and receives exalted treatment with worship, respect, facilitations, acceptance as an absolute authority, etc. Those with the curse of guru ambitions will be inclined to twist the meaning of what is a guru, just so they can supposedly become a diksha guru. This cheating mechanism pervades the entire paradigm of ISKCON policies. As the years have passed and ISKCON has experienced the inevitable “falldowns” of many initiating gurus, members and leaders alike have stretched their imaginations how to solve this problem. And it is a serious problem, as faith in their guru system has plummeted to an all-time low. Satsvarupa’s autobiography (2012, p.225): we read of the search for solutions to ISKCON’s problems with major disruptions due to “falldowns” of gurus who had hundreds or even thousands of disciples: “He spoke with the Chairman of the ‘New Guru’ committee who proposes there should be thousands of gurus with just a few disciples, instead of a few gurus with thousands of disciples.” A final solution?

So, rather than examine their basic, initial error of failing to use Srila Prabhupada’s own plan for officiating deputy initiations in the future, ISKCON leaders go on inventing “band-aid” solutions in their futile efforts to improve their fatally flawed program of promoting unauthorised gurus. Often Srila Prabhupada cautioned that quantitative expansion tends to sacrifice quality. Similarly, more and more bad gurus will never add up to even one bona fide guru. Some ISKCON leaders are thinking that if they have many small gurus with a only few disciples each, and that if they fall away, this will be a lesser problem. But percentage-wise, the gurus will still bite the dust, so is it better to die from a sword to the heart or from a thousand little cuts? It will be essentially the same thing, and this is no solution to the ISKCON guru system crisis. Better to stick with Srila Prabhupada and have no such problems (but then ISKCON bogus gurus would be cut out...) See Part 18-19.

HOW CAN AN ISKCON UNAUTHORISED GURU ACCEPT THE KARMA OF HIS DISCIPLES?

From Satsvarupa’s Srila Prabhupada Smaranam (p. 36) he praises Srila Prabhupada’s qualifications as a bona fide guru. Unfortunately, he and others pose as having the same shakti by which to initiate and liberate their disciples. Just as everyone sees others aging and dying and he thinks that he himself will never die, it is also amazing that once infected by the guru-desire, one thinks he can actually deliver his disciples. This delusion is due to the action of maya, the covering potency of the Supreme Lord. “By accepting a disciple and handing him his beads, Prabhupada is establishing an eternal bond with the person. He or she gets a new spiritual name and is released from previous lives of sinful karma. It is like pulling the plug out from an electric fan. The blades may revolve a few times as they slow down- the disciple may suffer some reactions- but the connection to karma input is stopped.” (SP Smaranam, p. 36) It must be frankly questioned what benefit one can achieve by accepting a unauthorised guru who is not capable to accept and nullify the karma of his disciples. Satsvarupa was not even able to stop his falldown with a Godsister in 2002. Sri Isopanisad indicates that both of these parties go to hell. At best, the disciple makes little or no spiritual progress and the false guru enjoys the mundane services of the disciples at the expense of his own future punishment. Cheating the Supreme Lord's order is always punished. We must be very reluctant to accept so-called "prasadam" or "initiation" from one who is not an uttama adhikari pure devotee, lest he become contaminated by "bhoga" sin-food and participates in the offensive charade of an unauthorized guru. E.g., if one goes to ISKCON temples and the food was offered to an ISKCON guru (if at all), is the food now prasadam, spiritual and non-different to Krishna? How did that happen? As one should be careful to avoid infected hospital patients, one should be very careful to take only food which has been properly offered to Lord Krishna by the authorized process given by Srila Prabhupada. Offering food to an unauthorized, false guru will never be Krishna prasadam, and it surely will have very negative effects on one's spiritual advancement. That food will be infected and still sinful.

Who is relieving the ISKCON gurus' disciples of their past karma? This can only be done by the bona fide guru, Srila Prabhupada, and cannot be done by conditioned souls which ISKCON gurus admit to being. ISKCON gurus cannot liberate disciples nor transform food into prasadam, so unless Srila Prabhupada mercifully intervenes on behalf of innocent and cheated disciples, they will keep their karma and eat bhoga. Do ISKCON devotees even think about these things? Exactly how does their ISKCON guru take their past karma? Unfortunately, most of them never dare to ask about this. Someone has been a devotee for 10 years and he decides he wants to become a diksha guru himself. He gets the GBC votes and is approved. Where in this process did he get the ability to absorb his future "disciple's" karma? And if they say that Srila Prabhupada will take their karma, why bother with the phony guru who cannot, who is not a pure medium?

"You see, Krishna says that aham tvam sarva-papebhyo moksaisyami... So Krishna is so powerful that He can immediately take up all the sins of others and immediately make it gone. But when a living entity plays the part on behalf of Krishna, he also takes the responsibility of these sinful activities of his devotee. So to become a guru is not an easy task. You see? He has to take all the poisons and absorb. So sometimes, because he's not Krishna, so sometimes there is some trouble. Therefore Chaitanya Mahaprabhu forbidden that, 'Don't make many sishyas, many disciples.' But for preaching work we have to accept many disciples, for expanding preaching. Never mind we suffer. But that's a fact. The spiritual master has to take the responsibility of all the sinful activities of his disciples. So to make many disciples is a risky job unless he's able to assimilate all the sins. [break]... patitanam pavanebhyo. He takes responsibility for all the fallen souls... That idea is in Bible. Just like Jesus Christ takes all the sinful reaction of all people and sacrificed his life. That is the responsibility of spiritual master. Because he's Krishna's representative. So Krishna takes all responsibility. Krishna is Krishna, apapa-viddham. He cannot be attacked by any sinful reaction. But a living entity may be subjected sometimes, because he's small. Big fire, small fire. On a small fire if you put some big things, (chuckling) then the fire itself may be extinguished. In the big fire, whatever you put, that's all right. Finished. The big fire can consume anything." (SPConv Feb. 27-29, 1972)

HOW CAN A BOGUS, UNAUTHORIZED GURU GIVE ACTUAL DIKSHA?

A conditioned soul who is not a perfectly self-realized and a fully Krishna conscious person has no ability or power to transcendently transmit spiritual knowledge into the soul or heart of a follower. The ISKCON gurus are surely unable to meet this essential responsibility of the diksha guru, and thus any spiritual advancement that develops in the followers must be coming from Srila Prabhupada instead. And even if one or more of those in ISKCON become pure devotees with these kinds of spiritual prowess, they would never presume to act as initiating guru without a direct order from Srila Prabhupada, ISKCON's one founder-Acharya.

SO IF THE GURU IS NOT PERFECT, THEN WHO IS GOING TO DELIVER HIS DISCIPLES?

“Of course, sometimes the smoke and mirrors reply to the ISKCON gurus’ defects is something like, ‘Oh, no. I’m just a humble servant of Srila Prabhupada, not a pure devotee. I’ve got anarthas and I struggle, and I’m just trying to do service and represent Srila Prabhupada, like the postman.’ [...] Ok, then, so, if it’s not you, then who is ‘the guru’ for these disciples? ‘The guru,’ who is the current link to the parampara, in whom one aspires to cultivate absolute faith, who is meditated on as ‘The spiritual master who is always eager to hear and chant about the unlimited conjugal pastimes of Radhika and Madhava.... expert in assisting the gopis...’? ‘The guru’ must be completely pure, with no tint of influence by the material gunas. Your strong and unwavering stance is that Srila Prabhupada is not available to be ‘the guru’ for these devotees, whom you refer to as your ‘disciples.’ So, if Srila Prabhupada isn’t ‘the guru,’ and if you, even for a few moments, are absorbed in the Army-Navy game, and thus not qualified for the service of ‘the guru,’ then who is the qualified current and direct link to the parampara for these devotees?” (Dhira Govinda das, 2017)

ISKCON FACING AN INTERNAL SPLIT OVER FEMALE DIKSHA GURUS

Another controversy faces ISKCON: whether women should be certified as diksha gurus by the GBC vote process. A rundown on this history from Urmila dasi, who has herself applied as a female guru: “The primary opposition comes from Western-bodied devotees, not Indians or Indian temples:

2002: Urmila devi dasi is approved by a local committee but gets 3 objections on GBC email conference. 2003: Instead of having the GBC body discuss Urmila devi dasi’s possible approval to initiate (which is the next step in the process), GBC asks their Shastric Advisory Committee to write a paper about women diksha gurus. 2005: GBC accepts the SAC research paper allowing for women diksha gurus, but defers implementation. 2009: GBC authorizes both males & females to go through local area committees for approval to initiate. 2010: Urmila takes the last step in the approval process by requesting to address the GBC body. Although the GBC chair and others promised she could address the body personally, she was prevented from even entering the room during the closed confidential session/ discussion in which they did not approve her to initiate.

2011: Narayani dasi is approved by a local committee but gets 3 objections on GBC email conference. 2013: Instead of having the GBC body discuss Narayani devi dasi’s possible approval to initiate (which is the next step in the process), the GBC postpones the subject of women initiating until the main Mayapur meeting of 2014, and plans to commission a paper on women gurus which will be written by a committee. Requested by the GBC, the SAC writes a paper answering questions about implementing women diksha gurus in ISKCON. The SAC understands that these are practical questions on the basis of the resolutions in 2005 and 2009 allowing women to initiate. However, some GBC members understand that the SAC was asked to write a re-examination of whether or not women can initiate. The paper is discussed on the GBC email conference, but not discussed in the physical meetings, and not published so no one outside the GBC knows what is going on. 2014: Mayapur meetings: the topic is delayed until mid-term 2014 meetings. A committee of “devotees who have no pre-determined view on the topic” will gather, sort, and present all documents on the topic, do further research, and present this to the GBC. At the mid-term meeting, there are three days of discussion, without reaching a conclusion. 2015: The GBC want research on how siksha and diksha gurus will work in ISKCON, but do not provide for any specific plan to undertake such research. An indefinite moratorium is put in place regarding all resolutions that allow for women to initiate or for disciples to initiate in the presence of their guru, with a dedication to review that moratorium annually. 2016: The North American temple presidents present the GBC with a survey, along with a resolution, calling for revocation of the moratorium. That proposal does not go past the deputies and therefore never reaches the GBC body. 2021: There have been many developments since 2016; the bottom line is that after years of GBC meetings, writing, researching, no woman can go through the approval process. Krishnanandini tried to, but she has passed from this world from cancer. My own interest in this topic has waned and I’m not keen to get into it further. It just goes... nowhere.”

COMMENTS: This very divisive, controversial issue of female diksha gurus, a first in Vedic history and culture, is a GBC-killer. Did Srila Prabhupada not already make this issue clear?

THE QUALIFICATION DISTRACTION

In 1978, the original zonal acharyas in ISKCON challenged others to prove that they were not qualified or empowered by Srila Prabhupada as pure devotees. Their claim of appointment was their qualification. Of course, when they fell from their spiritual standards and were exposed as being still conditioned souls, they even ridiculously tried to portray this as transcendental pastimes (See Ch. 199, GBC policy paper Aug. 1980). However, whether one is qualified or not is less important to the guru issue than commonly believed. The issue is about who is the current link in the disciplic succession. (see Ch. 182-183) From Dhira Govinda das:

“Srila Prabhupada being the current and direct link to the parampara for members of his movement, of all generations, is relevant and valid regardless of how pure, qualified, and empowered, or not, his followers are. My belief is that if a follower of Srila Prabhupada were fully pure and empowered, he would enthusiastically guide and inspire others to connect with Srila Prabhupada as their direct and current link to the Vaishnava disciplic succession. If one isn’t enthusiastic to do that, then it seems to me that they are living and perpetuating a spiritual (or not) movement other than Srila Prabhupada’s. SBhag 2.9.4-8: ‘One has to receive the transcendental sound from the right source and accept it as a reality and prosecute the direction without any hesitation, and the secret of success is to receive the sound from the right source of a bona fide spiritual master. Mundane manufactured sound has no potency, and as such, seemingly transcendental sound received from an unauthorized person also has no potency. One should be qualified enough to discern such transcendental potency, and either by discriminating or by fortunate chance, if one is able to...” (END)

PAUNDRAKA GURUS

In KRISHNA Book, Ch. 65, is the story of King Paundraka who could not properly estimate his own position and he falsely thought himself to be Vasudeva or Krishna. He decorated himself with all the paraphernalia of the Supreme Lord Krishna, including the conchshell, disc, lotus, club, Sarnga bow, Srivatsa insignia, Kaustubha jewel, yellow garments, flag of Garuda, and swordfish earrings. It was all an imitation, just as unauthorised gurus falsely assume all the mannerisms, paraphernalia, and trappings of the bona fide acharya. The false ISKCON gurus sit on huge Vyasasanas, receive elaborate guru puja (worship), have their book of disciple’s names, insert their own name into Srila Prabhupada’s pranam mantra, put their photo on altars of Radha Krishna next to Srila Prabhupada, and pretend to accept food offerings which they pretend to convert into prasadam. ISKCON gurus are Paundraka gurus, phony imitations. Just as Paundraka was quickly disposed of by Lord Krishna, so these false gurus will simply be a disturbance to the devotees and will have no legacy in the parampara. They will all be forgotten in the passage of time due to their pretentious activities. As Paundraka had to decorate himself with two additional fake arms to match Lord Vishnu’s four arms, so the unauthorised gurus imitate Srila Prabhupada and claim to be something they are. Pathetic.

RUBBER STAMP VOTE SYSTEM IS TOTALLY BOGUS AND UNAUTHORIZED

“You cannot create mahatma by rubber stamp or by votes. Mahatma’s symptom is that he is fully surrendered unto the Supreme Personality of Godhead...” (SPecture 1969) The ISKCON GBC has concocted a system which has been in operation since 1987 whereby any devotee in good standing for at least 5 years and with the required recommendations, local clearance, and “no-objection” GBC vote, becomes an approved ISKCON diksha guru. He must also take a seminar course on guruship and take an oath of loyalty, etc. This ecclesiastical system is unprecedented, unauthorized by Srila Prabhupada or any shastra, and totally bogus, concocted, and defective. Many GBC members privately agree on this, but are trapped in no man’s land. A guru cannot be appointed by voting or by a mundane bureaucratic committee. So all ISKCON GBC vote appointed gurus are unauthorized, self-appointed, bogus gurus. They are the bogus gurus Srila Prabhupada spoke of so much. “Mundane votes have no jurisdiction to elect a Vaishnava acharya. A Vaishnava acharya is self-effulgent. And there is no need for any court judgment.” [CC Mad 1.220 purport]

ESSAY: THE GURU IS A PURE DEVOTEE by Madhudvisa das, July 4, 2016 (Abbreviated)

During Srila Prabhupada’s physical presence there was no confusion in ISKCON over the qualifications and qualities of a bona fide guru. Srila Prabhupada was personally present and he exhibited all the qualities perfectly and all the devotees understood the spiritual master was a pure devotee. Srila Prabhupada demonstrated this by his actions, that’s what he wrote in his books and he preached in his classes. The spiritual master is a transparent via-medium to Krishna. His words are non-different from Krishna’s, hearing him is just as good as hearing Krishna personally. His words are absolute and perfect because he is not presenting his own ideas, he is simply repeating what Krishna and the previous acharyas have said in a way suitable for the understanding of the audience. He’s not changing the message, adulterating it or adding anything of his own, he’s presenting Krishna’s words and philosophy as it is. (1) Devotee: Before you came, many gurus came, but they did not make any pure devotee of Krishna. SP: How they can? He is not pure devotee of Krishna. How can he do? Krishna-sakti vina nahe nama pracara: “Without being empowered by Krishna nobody can turn a person to become devotee of Krishna.” It is not... artificially, you cannot make. He may make a show of gold manufacturing, but he cannot make a devotee of Krishna. That is not possible. (SPConv Feb. 3, 1975) (2) “...Because one who has understood Krishna perfectly... this is the qualification of guru. [...] Don’t make addition, alteration. Then you become rascal. Immediately ...” (SPLecture Aug. 10, 1974)

A bona fide guru is free from all material desires and always relishing transcendental bliss on the spiritual platform. He no longer has any attachment to the material world. He is enjoying a higher, spiritual taste. He’s always thinking of Krishna and Krishna’s pastimes, he’s always chanting Hare Krishna. He does not like to waste even a second without thinking of Krishna and doing practical service for Krishna. He does not sleep or eat very much. He considers sleeping a great waste of time and he respects Krishna’s prasadam, but he relishes seeing his disciples and conditioned souls enjoying Krishna’s prasadam more. (1) “...therefore real, steady bhava is definitely displayed in the matter of cessation of material desires (ksanti), utilisation of every moment in the transcendental loving service of the Lord (avyartha-kalatvam), eagerness for glorifying the Lord constantly (nama-gane sada ruci), attraction for living in the land of the Lord (pritis tad-vasati sthale), complete detachment from material happiness (virakti), and pridelessness (mana-sunyata). One who has developed all these transcendental qualities is really possessed of the bhava stage, as distinguished from the stonehearted imitator or mundane devotee.” (SBhag 2.3.24) (2) “This is the injunction, Vedic. If you want to know things which is beyond your conception, beyond your sense perception, then you must approach a bona fide spiritual master.” (SPLecture Sept. 8, 1972) (3) “A sober person who can tolerate the urge to speak, the mind’s demands, the actions of anger, and the urges of the tongue, belly, and genitals is qualified to make disciples all over the world.’ [...] so many pushings [...] that the body is a kind of pushing machine. Rupa Gosvami therefore tells us that one can become a spiritual master only when he can control all these urges.” (NOI 5) (4) “A person who has full control over the senses and mind is called a Gosvami or Gosani. One who does not have such [sense] control is called godasa, or a servant of the senses, and cannot become a spiritual master. A spiritual master who actually has control over the mind and senses is called Gosvami.” (CC Adi 7.13)

After Srila Prabhupada’s disappearance the GBC concocted the “zonal acharya system,” claiming Srila Prabhupada appointed eleven successor acharyas. They preached the same “guru-tattva” Srila Prabhupada had taught and showed by his personal example, but claimed they were on the same level of spiritual advancement as him. Unfortunately, they could not live their lives according to the philosophy or exhibit the symptoms of a pure devotee, so it was a farce. Anyone who spoke out was branded an “envious snake,” an offender of the “pure devotee” and bashed, sometimes killed, blasphemed, thrown out, or banned from all temples. Intelligent persons saw these men were not at all the acharyas and pure devotees described in Srila Prabhupada’s books. Some may have been sincere devotees, but they falsely elevated themselves to a very high position without any authority and without the necessary purity, realization or spiritual advancement and they violently suppressed any objecting Godbrothers. It's human nature that when one is elevated to a very high post he thinks he's qualified to accept it. "The jailkeeper could not deny that he was a learned scholar because when one is elevated to an exalted position, one thinks oneself fit for that position..." (CC Mad 20.6)

"So, these are to be practiced. Etan vegan yo visaheta dhirah: 'one who has become successful in controlling the urges of all these things,' prthivim sa sisyat, 'now he's free to make disciples all over the world.' and they're not, that... I cannot control even my tongue and control my genital, and I become spiritual master? This is nonsense. This is nonsense. You learn first of all. Try to control. Become first-class controller, dhirah. [...] not disturbed by any urges. [...] Unless you become dhirah, you cannot understand what is spiritual life. That is not possible. Therefore, Krishna says in the BGita, [...] Dhiras tatra na muhyati." (SPLecture Jan. 16, 1974)

In 1978 the GBC sought advice from Sridhara Maharaja, Srila Prabhupada's Godbrother.

"...in the latter days of my Guru Maharaja he was very disgusted. Actually, he left this world earlier, otherwise he would have continued to live for more years. Still he requested his disciples to form a strong governing body for preaching the cult of Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. He never recommended anyone to be acharya of the Gaudiya Math. But Sridhara Maharaja is responsible for disobeying this order of Guru Maharaja, and he and others who are already dead unnecessarily thought that there must be one acharya. If Guru Maharaja could have seen someone who was qualified at that time to be acharya he would have mentioned... so Sridhara Maharaja and his two associate gentlemen unauthorizedly selected one acharya and later it proved a failure. The result is now everyone is claiming to be acharya even though they may be kanistha adhikari with no ability to preach. In some of the camps the acharya is being changed three times a year. Therefore we may not commit the same mistake in our ISKCON camp..." (SPL Rupanuga Apr. 8, 1974)

But the GBC did not care to follow Srila Prabhupada's clear instructions and immediately after his disappearance they were off to the same Sridhara Maharaja for "advice" on how the initiations for new devotees should go on. They were advised to wear the uniform and make an acharya board above the GBC. The result of the "zonal acharya" system was tens of thousands of innocent devotees were fooled into thinking these men were appointed by Srila Prabhupada as his successors and if one did not surrender to and serve the "zonal acharya" he was disobeying Srila Prabhupada. These acharyas collected disciples, not on the strength of their own preaching and purity, but on the strength and purity of Srila Prabhupada. Prabhupada attracts and convinces new devotees by their reading of his books and by the association and preaching of sincere devotees who are following Srila Prabhupada. Once they were attracted by Srila Prabhupada, the zonal acharyas took over and forced them to direct their worship to them instead. But they were not transparent via-mediums to Krishna as Srila Prabhupada is.

"Otherwise don't try to become guru. [...] Therefore, first of all try to understand Krishna. [...] Otherwise you cannot become a guru. Guru is not so teeny thing or trifle thing that everyone becomes Guru Maharaja, no. That is not guru. (SPLecture Jan. 28, 1975) "One who cannot deliver his dependents from the path of repeated birth and death should never become a spiritual master, a father, a husband, a mother or a worshipable demigod." (SPConv Feb. 17, 1977) "...A conditioned soul should not imitate the activities of liberated souls..." (SBhag 2.7.53) "...so many pushing. Rupa gosvami says one who has control over all this pushing machine, he can become spiritual master. Not that spiritual master is manufactured. [...] One who can control over these pushings and remain dhirah, steady, prthivim sa sisyat: he can make disciples all over the world." (SPLecture Feb. 18, 1969)

Sincere devotees were fooled that Srila Prabhupada wanted them to surrender to these men and serve them, and that they were serving Srila Prabhupada and Krishna by serving them, but they did not get the results they expected from their supposed "devotional service." The result of serving a materially interested person is not the same as serving a pure devotee. One is the path to hell and the other is the path back home, back to Godhead... Those serving Srila Prabhupada's "successors" found, even though they were sincerely following the process of Krishna consciousness to their best ability, their material desires were increasing rather than decreasing... for that is the result of serving someone who has material desires... Most devotees blamed themselves for their inability to follow the process and principles and gradually fell down from the regulative principles and left the movement disappointed, frustrated and bewildered, not really understanding what went wrong in their spiritual life at all. Gradually it became obvious the "zonal acharyas" were not qualified and the system collapsed. The "solution" was to invent a new type of "guru," one who would be under the jurisdiction of the GBC, who was not absolute, who could break the regulative principles, yet still remain a "bona fide ISKCON guru," who didn't have to chant 16 rounds, or get up early, and above all- ISKCON would no longer take responsibility for these "gurus." There was to be no guarantee to devotees... This is the current ISKCON guru system... Under this system the GBC is quite happy to approve any disciple of Srila Prabhupada as a "guru" as long as they have some "aspiring disciples" and there are no serious objections from the temple presidents or the GBC... there is apparently no other qualification...

ISKCON has ignored the point of the gurus qualifications and advertised so many unqualified men as "bona fide ISKCON gurus" ... the only "qualification" they have is approval by the GBC... their argument is "Srila Prabhupada wanted his disciples to become gurus, we are Srila Prabhupada's disciples therefore we must be the gurus!" ISKCON has never checked to see if their "gurus" actually possess the qualifications of a bona fide guru, and they are busy concocting a watered-down "guru tattva" to accommodate this... "...you can thin milk by adding water and you can make it thick by boiling. Now is the time for us to begin the boiling process. Now you know everything how to be a Vaishnava brahmana, now you must practice these things or the whole thing will be a show only. Better to develop the small number of devotees we have, make them truly Krishna conscious boys and girls than to go on getting many followers who do not understand and practice the real principles. Better one moon than many stars." (SPlecture May 9, 1972) "This is instruction, that anyone who has become competent to control the tongue, to control the mind, to control the anger, to control the belly and control the genital..., if six kind of control is there, he is fit for becoming spiritual master; he can make disciples all over the world. And if you cannot control your tongue, if you cannot control your anger, control your mental concoction, then how you can become even a spiritual master? That is not possible." (SPlecture Aug. 4, 1973)

This nonsense watered-down ISKCON philosophy has spoiled everything. They're making sentimental followers of unqualified gurus, maybe a few twinkling stars. But what will a few stars do? It's completely useless. The real guru is a pure devotee... Srila Prabhupada said it all already so many times... why not listen to him and follow his instructions? That is the path of true auspiciousness and the success of every disciple's life... (1) "It is said that a single pure devotee of the Lord can deliver all the fallen souls of the world. Thus, one who is actually in the confidence of a pure devotee like Narada or Sukadeva Gosvami and thus is empowered by one's spiritual master, as Narada was by Brahmaji, can not only deliver himself from the clutches of maya, or illusion, but can deliver the whole world by his pure and empowered devotional strength..." (SBhag 2.8.5) Noted is that more important than qualification is the order from the previous guru to act as diksha guru. (2) "I want one student who follows my instruction. I don't want millions. Ekas candras tamo hanti na ca tara-sahasrasah. If there is one moon in the sky, that is sufficient for illumination. There is no need of millions of stars. So, my position is that I want to see that at least one disciple has become pure devotee. Of course, I have got many sincere and pure devotees. That is my good luck. But I would have been satisfied if I could find out one only. There is no need of so-called millions of stars." (SPConv July 15, 1975)

We have all seen what the current watered-down unauthorized "non-liberated guru system" has done to ISKCON. Everyone knows these 100+ "bona fide" ISKCON gurus are not all "bona fide" and serving them is NOT the same as serving Srila Prabhupada. They're just not self-effulgent pure devotee Vaishnava acharyas capable of taking themselves and their disciples back home, back to Godhead.

Such a great soul is very, very rare. For ISKCON to present them as such and force innocent bhaktas to take initiation from them knowing well they are not capable of taking them back home, back to Godhead, is the most heinous type of fraud, the greatest criminal activity. Thus ISKCON is a criminal enterprise. (1) “One also has to associate with such a mahatma who has accepted Krishna as the supreme source of the entire creation. Without being a mahatma, one cannot understand Krishna’s absolute position. A mahatma is rare and transcendental, and he is a pure devotee of Lord Krishna. [...] We should take shelter of such a mahatma and ask for his causeless mercy. Only by his benediction can one be relieved from attachment to a materialistic way of life. When one is thus relieved, he can engage in the Lord’s transcendental loving service through the mercy of the mahatma.” (CC Mad 22.51) (2) “The perfection of transcendental life can be achieved simply by touching the holy dust of the lotus feet of a holy man. [...] Unless one is fortunate enough to have the dust of the lotus feet of a mahatma on one’s head, there is no possibility of perfection in spiritual life.” (SBhag 3.22.6)

Accepting a bogus guru is generally the end of one’s spiritual life. If one is fooled into surrendering to an unqualified person and is cheated by him, it will be very difficult to surrender again even when the bona fide guru is found. The heart is broken, and the spiritual damage done is not measurable in material terms. But since the fall of the zonal acharyas, many ISKCON gurus say they are not on Srila Prabhupada’s level as a pure devotee, but because they are steadily engaged on the transcendental platform, they are liberated and thus qualified to act as a via medium to the parampara. But this applies to their disciples as well and is not a unique qualification to be a diksha guru. Does the parampara’s divine mercy flow through self-appointed, conditioned-soul “gurus” who are “rightly situated for the time being”? Can the current link in the parampara be other than a fully self-realized person like the previous acharyas are known to be? No, no, and no.

Compare the one-man effort of what Srila Prabhupada did from 1966-77 in 12 years to the results of his 100+ “successors” preaching four times as long. Even combined together, have they done as much as Srila Prabhupada? No, actually they have undone almost all the good work done by Srila Prabhupada! They have turned his society, ISKCON, into a completely mundane watered-down religious organization and driven out anyone at all who is seriously interested in strictly following Srila Prabhupada’s instructions. And they are offensive toward anyone who wants to seriously follow Srila Prabhupada. “...in this verse, yogesvara-upasana means to render service to a pure devotee. Thus Narottama dasa Thakura says, chadiya Vaishnava-seva nistara payeche keba: Without serving a pure devotee, one cannot advance in spiritual life.” (SBhag 4.22.22)

ISKCON devotees should wake up and rectify everything by returning it to the way it was in Srila Prabhupada’s physical presence, it’s the last chance really, otherwise ISKCON will no longer exist and Srila Prabhupada’s mission will have to spread in other ways. But somehow it will go on. There’s no stopping it. Even “ISKCON” cannot stop Srila Prabhupada’s mission or his sincere followers, no matter how hard they try. In summary, since 1977 ISKCON has forced new devotees to give up their relationship with Srila Prabhupada, to stop worshiping and offering food to Srila Prabhupada directly, to stop chanting Srila Prabhupada’s pranam mantras, and take initiation and offer everything to the institutionalized “ISKCON living gurus” who ISKCON quite openly admits are not pure devotees at all. The result of conditioned souls taking the post of acharya and guru is plain and clear for all to see. These non-liberated ISKCON gurus have not been able to deliver pure devotional service to Krishna to their disciples and thus Srila Prabhupada’s ISKCON has been destroyed and so many sincere followers of Srila Prabhupada have been banned as “heretics.”

“...in the Garuda Purana it is said to be more rare to be a famous devotee of the Supreme Lord in the age of Kali than to be a demigod such as Brahma or Lord Siva...” (TLC 32) “...all scriptures stress association with pure devotees of the Godhead. The opportunity to associate with a pure devotee of the Supreme Lord is the beginning of one’s complete perfection. This is also confirmed in SBhag (1.18.13) where it is said that the facilities and benedictions which one achieves by association with a pure devotee are incomparable. They cannot be compared to anything—neither elevation to the heavenly kingdom nor liberation from material energy. Lord Krishna also confirms this in the most confidential instruction in Bhagavad-gita..." (TLC 11)

The result is countless millions of spiritual lives have been severely damaged and misdirected, and ISKCON is institutionally restricting the world from association with the ultra-rare pure devotee His Divine Grace Srila Prabhupada. This ongoing crime of heinous proportion must be ended. (END)

CONCLUSION

Sulochan das wrote that Kirtanananda Swami was a "rogue... pseudo-religionist... nothing but a sense gratifier." Although a devotee who had deep affection for Srila Prabhupada and who done much preaching in Srila Prabhupada's service, he foolishly and pretentiously took the position of an advanced pure devotee, as an acharya. Also he also thought himself to be a great spiritual prophet and religious innovator/pioneer who could transform the world with his novel methods of "preaching." Cities of God. Prabhupada Rex. Eternal Order of the Holy Name. Cathedral of Light. But all these grandiose delusions were juxtaposed upon prostitution, drug dealing, murders, insurance fraud, copyright infringement, sex with children, prisonable offenses, and ruination of many devotees' lives. This happens when an unqualified and unauthorized person assumes the exalted post of diksha guru. Kirtanananda led the way in this deviation; he was first in many things, including being the pioneer of all imposter ISKCON gurus. So many more fools have followed him, and fallen down openly or secretly. Even today, although in a somewhat more subdued manner due to everyone being so jaded with scandal-overload, ISKCON continues to be a parade of unauthorised gurus who are cheating their disciples and the world. "The first thing, I warn Acyutananda, do not try to initiate. You are not in proper position to initiate anyone... Don't be allured by such maya." (SPL Achyutananda Aug. 21, 1968)

"Shastra says that you should not become a guru, because you have no power to save your disciple from the clutches of imminent death. We will not cheat others." (TransD 5 p.321, Nov. 6, 1976)

CHAPTER 153: ULTIMATE SNARE OF ILLUSION

(1) "Wanting to be God is the last snare of maya. Guru is to be worshiped as non-different than God. I think that this is a vital aspect of the psychology of wanting to be 'guru.'" (Dhira Govinda das, 2016) (2) "Once having eaten the forbidden fruit of posing as perfected guru, one's heart is poisoned with the ambition to be as good as God, the most cursed disease of the soul that lasts almost forever." (Mahasrnga das, 2017)

THE ORIGINAL SIN IS FALSE AMBITION

Devotees often ask, "Why is it that even senior devotees who had many years of physical association with Srila Prabhupada are incapable of understanding essential aspects of Krishna consciousness philosophy?" Truth be told, ISKCON's misleaders have all too often misunderstood Srila Prabhupada's teachings, and this has led to many blatant practical and philosophical deviations. So, what is the reason for this ruination of the movement? Srila Prabhupada warns us about the dangers of false ambition, or personal motivations, and this is why the Hare Krishna movement has deviated and why the "Vaikuntha Express" has gone "off the rails." (1) "As soon as personal motivation comes in, it is not possible for one to understand our Krishna Consciousness philosophy." (SPL Sept. 21, 1970) (2) "The Krishna consciousness movement is not meant for fulfilling one's personal ambition, but it is a serious movement for the whole world..." (SPL July 31, 1970) (3) "I wanted you all my experienced disciples should manage the whole institution very cleverly without any personal ambition like ordinary materialistic men. The Gaudiya Math institution has become smashed--at least stopped its program of preaching work--on account of personal ambitions..." (SPL Oct. 8, 1974)

THE DESIRE TO BE DIKSHA GURU IS HIS DISQUALIFICATION

Anyone can preach Krishna consciousness if they simply repeat the message of Godhead as heard from the bona fide guru, Srila Prabhupada. He is thus a siksha or instructing guru. Preaching does not require anyone to become a diksha or initiating guru, taking disciples. Neither are they allowed to do so if they were not so specifically ordered and empowered by their bona fide guru. Neither a GBC rubber stamp vote nor self-appointment makes one a bona fide diksha guru. In addition, one must be qualified by having attained the topmost platform of Krishna consciousness, and even if one has accomplished this, still one requires Srila Prabhupada's order to act as initiating diksha guru. Interestingly and as far as is known, no one claims to have received this order directly from Srila Prabhupada, and we doubt anyone has attained the necessary qualifications either. Actually, Jayapataka and Radha Govinda swamis did claim they got a direct order from Srila Prabhupada prior to 1977, but there is no corroboration. Better we just take shelter of Srila Prabhupada as the "current link" in his Hare Krishna movement. To do so guarantees that one will have a bona fide guru. When one is confronted with a truth in opposition to one's own dearly held desires and aspirations, there are but two options: surrender to that truth, or cheat (selectively interpreting Srila Prabhupada's instructions). Each devotee is advised to deal with the truth of who can/cannot be diksha guru. Unfortunately we have seen so many ambitious persons rush in where angels fear to tread, declaring themselves as guru as soon as they can pull together enough votes by politics. The desire to be guru can be very strong in the conditioned soul, as then one is respected, worshiped, served, given far more than all the necessities and conveniences of life, becoming the most important person in society. SP: That is the difficulty. Everyone sees that "Some way or other, I become guru. Then so many persons will offer me respect. Somehow or other, create some situation. Then I become guru." This is going on. Not bona fide guru. Bona fide guru is indicated by Chaitanya, amara ajnaya guruna: "Become guru." Why ambition? Actually become guru... What is meaning of guru, they do not know. Somehow or other become popular and become guru. This is going on. So with maya you can attract these foolish rascals very easily. If you can manufacture... You cannot, but if you can show some jugglery, then you become guru. (SPConv May 2, 1976)

A pure devotee NEVER wants to be an initiating guru. Jesus Christ prayed to Krishna to remove the cup chosen for him. But ambitious persons are consumed with their desires instead of pure bhakti, which is why they can only appoint themselves as unauthorised and bogus gurus. Srila Prabhupada made it clear that one should not want to be a diksha guru, as that desire itself would disqualify him.

PROFIT, ADORATION, AND DISTINCTION

The conditioned soul has the deep-rooted desire to enjoy separately from the Supreme Lord in three primary ways: with wealth, women, and followers, described in the Shikshastaka, verse 4:

"Oh Almighty Lord, I have no desire for accumulating wealth, nor I have any desire to enjoy beautiful women neither I want any number of followers..." These three things are also characterized as profit, adoration, and distinction. Srila Prabhupada: "The grossest type of anartha which binds the conditioned soul in material existence is sex desire, and this sex desire gradually develops in the union of the male and female. When the male and female are united, the sex desire is further aggravated by the accumulation of buildings, children, friends, relatives and wealth. When all these are acquired, the conditioned soul becomes overwhelmed by such entanglements, and the false sense of egoism, or the sense of "myself" and "mine," becomes prominent, and the sex desire expands to various political, social, altruistic, philanthropic and many other unwanted engagements, resembling the foam of the sea waves, which becomes very prominent at one time and at the next moment vanishes as quickly as a cloud in the sky. The conditioned soul is encircled by such products, as well as products of sex desire, and therefore bhakti-yoga leads to gradual evaporation of the sex desire, which is summarized in three headings, namely profit, adoration and distinction. All conditioned souls are mad after these different forms of sex desire, and one shall see for himself how much he has been freed from such material hankerings based primarily on the sex desire." (SBhag 2.2.12 purport)

In Chaitanya Charitamrita (Mad 19.159) Srila Prabhupada gives elaborations on these three afflictions. Labha is profit according to material calculations; puja is adoration achieved by satisfying mundane people; pratistha is becoming an important man in material calculations. There is no greater opportunity for achieving profit, adoration, and distinction than by assuming the penultimate post in the Vedic system, namely diksha guru. This is especially true in the ISKCON culture. Ironically, as the new gurus were awarded or chose their titles which ended in pada, such as Gurupada or Bhaktipada, it was quickly noted that PADA stood for Profit, Adoration, and Distinction Addiction. Srila Prabhupada helps us to understand the material disease which culminates in the “last snare of illusion” that plagues those who falsely assume the post of guru: (1) “Everyone wants some prestigious position, labha puja pratistha, some material profit, labha, and prestigious position so that people will give him salaam, minister, president, and to become very famous, historically very famous. These are material hankerings. But Chaitanya Mahaprabhu says, ‘No.’ Na dhanam na janam na sundarim kavitam va jagadisha kamaye [CC Ant 20.29]. We don't want. This is animitta bhakti. Nimitta, for some certain reason, if you become a bhakta, then you are not a suddha-bhakta. You are a viddha(?) -bhakta, a polluted bhakta. Pure bhakti is anyabhilasita-sunyam ...” (SP Lecture Dec. 2, 1974) (2) “So the Supersoul, Supreme Personality of Godhead, gives him intelligence: ‘Now you wanted to execute this plan. Now you have got a suitable body and you can do it.’ So therefore we find that somebody is great scientist. Or a very nice mechanic. This means that in the last life he was mechanic, he was making some plan, and this life he gets chance, and he fulfills his desire. He discovers something and becomes very reputed, famous man. Because karmis, they want three things: labha-puja-pratistha. They want some material profit and they want some material adoration, and labha-puja-pratistha, and stability. This is material life. So one after another, we are trying to have some material profit, some material adoration, material reputation.” (SP Lecture Nov 25, 1972) Elsewhere Srila Prabhupada explains how the conditioned souls are busy with dharma, artha, kama, and moksha, or religiosity, economic development, sense gratification, and then, in frustration, liberation. “They are taking this. Dharma, artha, kama. And somebody is trying moksha, being baffled or dissatisfied.” (SP Conv April 9, 1976) Becoming a false guru is undertaken due to the lure of very subtle material desires.

ONE EXAMPLE OF “PADA”: HANSADUTTA ARRIVES IN HIS ZONE, EARLY 1978

When Hansadutta arrived back in San Francisco as one of the eleven ISKCON gurus in early 1978, the scene was later described in Monkey On A Stick (p. 212):

“From every direction, devotees rushed toward their new guru. Airport security guards tried to hold them back, but there were too many. And they were too eager. They pushed past the metal detectors, chanting, singing, crying with joy, and throwing flower petals... ‘We love you, Hansadutta!’ a devotee shouted... ‘Krishna’s mercy has brought you to us!’ another devotee yelled, tears streaming down her face... Hansadutta raised his hand above his head, calling for quiet. The flashbulbs popped.... Hansadutta felt a rush of power when the crowd fell silent... ‘Is it true you’re a terrific dancer?’ Hansadutta smiled becomingly. ‘My name means swanlike, elegant. Judge for yourself.’ With that,

Hansadutta began to chant and twirl... ‘What does it mean to be a guru?’ asked a San Francisco Chronicle reporter. Hansadutta thought for a moment, then smiled- a smile that charmed the devotees. ‘To get to see a big man, you first have to see his secretary. I am a kind of secretary for God.’”

Left: SIRENS LURE SHIPS TO THEIR DESTRUCTION

A great many of the older Srila Prabhupada disciples could see right through the pretense of the new gurus, and they were disturbed how these “gurus” indulged in gratifying their egos by acceptance of lavish worship and selfless service from innocent young devotees. These new students could not see that their gurus were frauds. Hansadutta soon began taking intoxication, sleeping with his women disciples, collecting guns and arsenals, devising money collection scams. Eventually it became apparent to all that he was never a guru, but a cheater, a conditioned soul with labha, puja, and pratistha. Maya snared him with the ultimate trap: being a guru. It was the call of the legendary Sirens from Greek mythology, bringing total ruination by chasing the illusory attraction of becoming guru or God. “For one who desires to advance in spiritual life, attachment to material opulence and attachment to a beautiful wife (women) are two great impediments. Such attachments are condemned even more than suicide. Therefore anyone desiring to cross beyond material nescience must, by the grace of Krishna, be freed from attachment to women and money.” (SBhag 5.1.38 prpt)

ANOTHER EXAMPLE: “WORSHIPED JUST LIKE SRILA PRABHUPADA WAS”

From 1978 the 11 new ISKCON gurus were completely deluded, intoxicated with the idea of having taken Srila Prabhupada’s place, as they promoted themselves and encouraged disciples and Godbrothers alike to worship them even more than Srila Prabhupada had been worshiped. It was preposterous, but it was the reality of the times. They lied about being appointed by Srila Prabhupada as initiating gurus, that they were pure devotees and self-realized by Srila Prabhupada’s special mercy, and they insisted it was an offense against Srila Prabhupada if they were not worshiped on Srila Prabhupada’s level. The naïve devotees generally followed their script, satisfying their gurus in fulfilling their ambitions for profit, adoration, and distinction. It was the cheaters and the cheated, that’s all. Tamal wrote Narottamananda, Sept 17, 1978: “It is really wonderful to see how the new gurus are being fully accepted and worshiped just like Srila Prabhupada was when he was present... Surely I am not worthy of all of this service [and worship] but I am accepting it on behalf of my Spiritual Master and the guru parampara. Quite often I hear my Godbrothers say that ‘Now Srila Prabhupada is no longer present with us but he is giving us a second chance to associate with him through Goswami Maharaja [Tamal].’... If my Godbrothers are feeling like Prabhupada is still present then it means that there is some success in our humble attempt. My short visit to London as well as to New York was also very satisfying and there was very good reception from all of the devotees. Jayatirtha Maharaja personally bathed my feet upon my arrival in London and acted as a perfectly humble Vaishnava, although he is worshiped by all of the devotees there, Godbrothers as well as disciples, as absolute and fully competent Spiritual Master.”

What conceit Tamal had. Humble attempt? And Jayatirtha- fully competent LSD tripper.

POWER, FAME, ABSOLUTE AUTHORITY, RELIGIOUS GENIUS ARE ALL MATERIAL DESIRES

The last snare of maya or illusion is the temptation to become a “good as God” guru and enjoy power, fame, absolute authority, religious innovation, many followers and wealth, affections from women, and being worshiped as the most exalted person. These things are extremely intoxicating to the conditioned soul who is steeped in the material enjoyment mood, and is the motivation behind becoming a guru in ISKCON. Even if there were someone capable of responsibility for taking disciples in ISKCON, why would they disregard Srila Prabhupada’s position to do so as Founder-Acharya? “Many [...] may have been blissfully ignorant of Tamal-Krishna Goswami’s deception; which he probably kept only between himself and Kirtanananda Swami (who was also possessed by the same driving ambition to become Prabhupada’s successor). (Some) might have actually believed that Prabhupada had appointed them to serve as diksha gurus after his death. But thinking that they had, by the grace of Prabhupada, advanced to the perfect stage of uttama-adhikari? That is a far stretch of the imagination and strong evidence that they were all blinded by illusion.” (ENE, p. 94)

ESSAY: “THE ORIGINAL SIN: FALSE AMBITION” By Narasimha das

How living entities become conditioned: It will be difficult to properly understand the controversy in ISKCON regarding spiritual initiations and the bona fide spiritual master unless we first carefully consider the fundamentals of guru-tattva and authorized explanations regarding the cause of conditioned consciousness. “In the beginning, from clear consciousness, or the pure state of Krishna consciousness, the first contamination sprang up. This is called false ego, or identification of the body as self. The living entity exists in the natural state of Krishna consciousness, but he has marginal independence, and this allows him to forget Krishna. Originally, pure Krishna consciousness exists, but because of misuse of marginal independence, there is a chance of forgetting Krishna. This is exhibited in actual life; there are many instances in which someone acting in Krishna consciousness suddenly changes." (SBhag 3.23-24 prpt) In an attempt to understand why a living being in the spiritual world falls under the influence of material nature and material time, some devotees have resorted to logic and philosophical speculation. Logic and philosophical speculation are not bad as long as we carefully hear the conclusions the self-realized acharya, one who is undisturbed by the actions and reactions of the modes of material nature (Iti shushruma dhiranam.) Basically two groups of pundits fall into this category of speculator who indulge in what Srila Prabhupada calls, "crow-and-tal-fruit logic."

One group preaches that the fallen conditioned soul was never in direct contact with Krishna but only in contact with His brahmajyoti at the threshold of Vaikuntha Dhama. There is some evidence in shastras that seems to support this idea. For instance, in his SBhag purports, Srila Prabhupada comments that Jaya and Vijay were at the gates of Vaikuntha and did not fall from positions on a Vaikuntha planet. Nor were they actually forced to fall down, due to a curse of Brahmin rishis. Srila Prabhupada concludes in his purports to this pastime that the whole incident was arranged by the Supreme Lord as a prelude to His lila in the material world. Jaya and Vijaya descended to help in the Supreme Lord's pastimes. In the siddhanta presented by Srila Prabhupada and our param-guru, Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati, it is admitted that living beings fall from the platform of Brahman at the threshold of Vaikuntha, but the conclusion they have given is that before that fall, the living being was with Krishna Himself. This conclusion is given throughout Srila Prabhupada's books and in Bhaktisiddhanta's purports in Sri Brahma-samhita. "Because he falls down from Brahma-sayuja, he thinks that this may be his origin, but he does not remember that before that even, he was with Krishna." (SPL June 1972) Another group of pundits say that the conditioned soul was put into the material world only to help fulfill the lila of the Supreme Lord, Who descends to the world of mahamaya to exhibit His compassion for the fallen souls. Unless there existed fallen souls, they reason, how would Krishna exhibit His most wonderful quality of compassion? There is also some shastric evidence to support this view. For instance: "It is stated in the previous verse that the material energy was accepted by the Supreme Personality of Godhead in order that He might exhibit pastimes for the living entities who wanted to enjoy and lord it over the material energy. Why this material world was created for the sufferings of conditioned souls is a very intricate question. There is a hint in the previous verse in the word 'lilaya', which means 'for the pastimes of the Lord.'" (SBhag 3.26 purport) Nonetheless, Srila Prabhupada and Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati have given emphasis to the idea that the fallen jivatma, due to his minute independence, has fallen under the covering of maya because of his desire to enjoy independently. "Even with Krishna the desire for sense gratification [in the jiva] is there. There is a dormant attitude for forgetting Krishna and creating an atmosphere for enjoying independently." (SPL June, 1972)

Although it may not be very useful to argue about why the jiva fell into material consciousness, we should clearly understand, in principle, the cause of material consciousness. Sometimes Srila Prabhupada explains that a soul's fall was due to his desire to imitate the all-attractive position of Krishna, and sometimes He explains that it is simply due to the jiva's marginal nature and misuse of his minute independence. Evidence also supports the idea that the material world was created for the Supreme Lord's pastimes, and that the fall of the jivatma never really happened but is rather is a momentary dream. "The living entity's condition is simply the influence of the material energy; actually he has not fallen. ...the living entity, because he is a spark of the Supreme, has not fallen. But he is thinking, 'I am fallen. I am material. I am this body.'" (SPLecture Apr. 20, 1972) In all cases, Srila Prabhupada gives emphasis to the understanding that the cause of a jiva's suffering in material consciousness began with his false ambition to enjoy independently. Unless the jiva is marginal and able to exist either in illusory consciousness or in Krishna consciousness, there would be no meaning to his independence and free choice to love Krishna. Without freedom, or free will, Srila Prabhupada explains, we could have no true loving relationship with the Supreme Lord. In this way, to satisfy the logical and philosophical minds of his disciples, Srila Prabhupada has explained the inconceivable, as far as is possible for us to understand in our present state. "This falldown is due to false ego. From the status of pure consciousness, the false ego is born because of misuse of independence. We cannot argue about why false ego arises from pure consciousness. Factually there is always the chance that this will happen, and therefore one has to be very careful." (SBhag 3.23.24 prt)

Hear from authority or learn the hard way: Unless we accept responsibility for our sufferings under the modes of material nature, there is danger we will take lightly our free will and the concomitant responsibility it entails, including our neglect of Krishna's direct service and our consequent suffering in material consciousness. Unless we are repentant about our mistake of accepting a platform of false enjoyment and our longtime avoidance of devotional service to Krishna, advancement on the path of self-realization is troublesome and slow. The best course is to accept the conclusions and remedies offered by the self-realized acharya, Srila Prabhupada. He knows what is best for us all, and he knows exactly how to administer just the right medicine for our cure from the disease of material consciousness. As SBhag aptly notes, in the name of establishing the truth, various pundits argue as proponents and counter-proponents without coming to any real conclusion and forget the welfare of their own eternal souls. To acquire perfect knowledge there is no alternative but to hear carefully from the undisturbed authorities who have clearly explained the Absolute Truth. Iti shushruma dhiranam, ye nas tad vicacaksire. (Sri Isopanishad, Mantra 13) And we must carefully chant Krishna's holy names in a humble state of mind.

The difficult thing for conditioned souls to grasp is how a pure living being who was with Krishna became covered by maya due to envy of Krishna's exalted status. Srila Prabhupada has explained that the jiva has a dormant, minute propensity to be a supreme enjoyer in imitation of Krishna, and therefore this propensity sometimes becomes manifest in a very minute minority of spiritual beings. He said that material consciousness begins due to two things: the desire to enjoy independently in imitation of Krishna and envy of Krishna's supreme position. "These two things: desire to be the Lord and envy of the Lord are the beginning cause of material bondage." (SBhag 3.27.20 purport) Both things are due to false ambition for a position that is apart from our constitutional nature. But why would the Vaikuntha jiva become maliciously envious towards Krishna, the most lovable Person, the very Self of his own self? There is, in fact, no evidence to suggest that the first beginnings of the soul's fall into material consciousness was due to malicious envy or aversion to Krishna's service. It may, in fact, have been due to some very subtle, seemingly innocent curiosity: "What would it be like to be Krishna, the supreme enjoyer?" When such a thought arises, the jivatma begins his descent into the dream world of mahamaya. Srila Prabhupada has explained that in the hearts of the pure devotees of Vaikuntha or Goloka even a hint of an illusory spirit of enjoyment cannot exist. In the spiritual world there is nothing false, even in imagination, and Krishna has no competitor. Srila Prabhupada has further explained that Krishna three times asks the jivatma not to leave Vaikuntha Dhama or Goloka Dhama, but if he insists, Krishna allows him to fulfill his curiosity. Srila Prabhupada tells a simple story to illustrate this point using the example of his own small child who wanted to touch a moving fan blade. Srila Prabhupada told him not to do it several times, but because the child was insistent, Srila Prabhupada reduced the speed of the fan and finally agreed to let him touch it. When the child was thus startled by the mild pain of touching the slowly moving fan blade, he learned by direct experience that he should never desire to touch the moving blades of fans.

No one falls from Vaikuntha: Jaya and Vijaya, the gatekeepers who were cursed by the four Kumaras at a gate to Vaikuntha, became immensely powerful demons to assist Krishna in His pastimes in the material world. Their births as demons were due to their specific desire to return quickly to Vaikuntha and due to a special arrangement of the Supreme Lord. Ordinarily, however, the first birth of the jivatma in the material world is as Lord Brahma, an exalted demigod servant of Lord Vishnu or Krishna. In this way, the jiva gets the opportunity to play the part of supreme lord without becoming degraded by the Lord's material energy. Krishna's allowing the jiva to come to the material world as Lord Brahma is similar to Srila Prabhupada letting his son touch the slowing fan blade. As Lord Brahma, the non-envious jivatma has the opportunity to be the lord of the universe under Krishna's direct supervision and empowerment. From this somewhat safe position, Lord Brahma gets the opportunity to witness firsthand the miseries of material existence without becoming contaminated. If, however, Lord Brahma becomes falsely ambitious, he comes under the influence of the modes of nature and material time. In this way he falls from his position above the modes of nature and is born again in the material world in a lesser position. Thus it may be understood that the jivatma first descends to the material world in a capacity of service to the Lord as Lord Brahma; he does not actually fall from Vaikuntha. The real fall of the jiva is from the level of Brahma, or from a position on the level of Brahman realization. This is due to false ambition and its immediate reaction: forgetfulness of one's constitutional position as menial servant of Krishna. Unless he is rectified by Lord Krishna, as was Brahma in at least two lilas related in Krishna Book, or Tenth Canto Srimad-Bhagavatam, Brahma may fall from his exalted status.

Lord Brahma is considered almost on the level of the Supreme Personality of Godhead because Brahma is Krishna's empowered direct representative and is above the modes of nature and the influences of even kala, time itself. "The influences of time, which manifests as past, present and future, cannot touch higher personalities like Brahma and other demigods. Sometimes demigods and great sages who have attained such perfection are called tri-kala-jna." (SBhag 3.15.3 prt) "The pure status of consciousness, or Krishna consciousness, exists in the beginning; just after creation, consciousness is not polluted." (SBhag 3.26.22 prt)

In spite of being given all opportunities to be lord of the universe as servant of Krishna, some Lord Brahmas do not return immediately to the spiritual world after the final cosmic dissolution. Some fall to lower positions in the material world and thus become subservient to kala and the modes of material nature. Due to the all-powerful influence of kala, the original innocence of the Vaikuntha soul is covered, and he gradually becomes degraded to the level of a lesser demigod, a demon, a human, an animal, or even an insect. "So, even Lord Brahma is still material and wants to lord it over the material world. He may come to down to become a germ, but then he may rise up to become Krishna conscious and go back home, back to Godhead." (SPL June 1972) This degradation begins with false ambition, which arises from the desire to imitate Krishna's position as supreme enjoyer, but such degradation cannot take place in Vaikuntha Dhama. Therefore the jiva who is curious about the position of Supreme Lord, or has some slight desire to imitate Krishna, as a child may desire to imitate his father, descends as an avatar in the service of Krishna. In most cases Lord Brahma and most other exalted residents of Brahmaloka are promoted back to the spiritual world after their lives in Brahmaloka and are not degraded by material existence. This is the verdict of SBhag. Their only misery is their feelings of compassion for fallen conditioned souls. Nonetheless, unlike the residents of Vaikuntha, the inhabitants of Brahmaloka must eventually suffer tribulations and die. They may even fall to lower forms in material existence. As Lord Krishna warns in BGita Brahmaloka is not the eternal abode of complete bliss and knowledge. "The conclusion is that no one falls from the spiritual world, or Vaikuntha planet, because it is the eternal abode." (SBhag 3.16.26 purport) (END)

CONCLUSION

The conditioned souls in the material world all envy Lord Krishna, and this defect manifests as various material desires such as profit, adoration, and distinction. These things were evident even during Srila Prabhupada's manifest presence for those who could see them. "Srila Prabhupada praised Hamsaduta for expressing feelings of unworthiness and surrender in his letter. And he told him he could remain pure and always protected by Krishna if he maintained this attitude. He advised him; 'Always follow my instructions and my example. This should be your life and soul.' But another issue had raised the concern of many of Hamsaduta's godbrothers. Especially in Germany, but also in England, Hamsaduta had a band of followers who regarded him as almost equal to Srila Prabhupada.

Many accepted him as their sole link to Prabhupada. Whenever they came into his presence, and again when they left, they offered obeisances to him, a sign of respect generally reserved for Srila Prabhupada. They did his bidding without question. Once, at Schloss Rettershof, Hamsaduta walked around for days with dark sunglasses just to test the loyalty of the devotees. His confidants reported anyone who questioned his behaviour. When Srila Prabhupada received several letters of complaint, he asked Hamsaduta to lower his profile." (Srila Prabhupada With His German Disciples, Vedavyasa das) "Pride goes before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall." (Proverbs 16.18)

CHAPTER 154: WATERING WEEDS OF PERSONAL AMBITION

(1) "Regarding the action of Bon Maharaja: We shall discuss the matter when we meet. For the present, you may know that this gentleman is very much materially ambitious. He wants to utilize Krishna Consciousness for his material name and fame. Sometimes he greatly offended our Guru Maharaja, and it so happened that at the last stage, practically Guru Maharaja rejected him. And the result, we can find that instead of becoming a great preacher of Krishna Consciousness, this gentleman has become artificially a head of a mundane institution." (SPL Janardana, Apr. 26, 1968) (2) "The rare person who has completely adopted unalloyed devotional service can uproot all the weeds of sinful activities simply by discharging that service, and there is no possibility that the weeds will grow again. His devotional service is just like the sun, which can immediately dissipate fog simply by its rays." (SP books) (3) "Sri Krishna, the Personality of Godhead, who is the Paramatma [Supersoul] in everyone's heart and the benefactor of the truthful devotee, cleanses desire for material enjoyment from the heart of the devotee who has developed the urge to hear His messages, which are in themselves virtuous when properly heard and chanted." (SBhag 1.2.17)

REAL EFFORT REQUIRED TO CLEAN OUT ALL WEEDS AND REACH PERFECTION

Although the pure bhaktiyoga process cleanses the heart, the cultivation of devotional service also can cultivate weeds or anarthas. Srila Prabhupada wrote about how we must be very vigilant to deal with weeds that are also watered by our bhakti process. Conditioned souls remain full of dormant inclinations for material enjoyment, sense gratification, and personal ambitions, which manifest as unwanted weeds which must be uprooted. "There are three stages in chanting the holy name of the Lord. The first stage is the offensive chanting of the holy name, and the second is the reflective stage of chanting the holy name. The third stage is the offenseless chanting of the holy name of the Lord. In the second stage only, the stage of reflection, between the offensive and offenseless stages, one automatically attains the stage of emancipation. And in the offenseless stage, one actually enters into the kingdom of God, although physically he may apparently be within the material world. To attain the offenseless stage, one must be on guard in the following manner.

“Above all of them is Krishnaloka, or Goloka Vrindavana, wherein the growing creeper enters and takes repose at the lotus feet of Lord Sri Krishna, the original Personality of Godhead. When one reaches the lotus feet of Lord Krishna at Goloka Vrindavana, the watering process of hearing and reading, as also chanting of the holy name in the pure devotional stage, fructifies, and the fruits grown there in the form of love of God are tangibly tasted by the devotee, even though he is here in this material world. The ripe fruits of love of God are relished only by the devotees constantly engaged in the watering process as described above. But the working devotee must always be mindful so that the creeper which has so grown will not be cut off. Therefore he should be mindful of the following considerations: (1) Offense by one at the feet of a pure devotee may be likened to the mad elephant who devastates a very good garden if it enters. (2) One must be very careful to guard himself against such offenses at the feet of pure devotees, just as one protects a creeper by all-around fencing. (3) It so happens that by the watering process some weeds are also grown, and unless such weeds are uprooted, the nurturing of the main creeper, or the creeper of bhakti-yoga, may be hampered. (4) Actually these weeds are material enjoyment, merging of the self in the Absolute without separate individuality, and many other desires in the field of religion, economic development, sense enjoyment and emancipation. (5) There are many other weeds, like disobedience to the tenets of the revered scriptures, unnecessary engagements, killing animals, and hankering after material gain, prestige and adoration. (6) If sufficient care is not taken, then the watering process may only help to breed the weeds, stunting the healthy growth of the main creeper and resulting in no fructification of the ultimate requirement: love of God. (7) The devotee must therefore be very careful to uproot the different weeds in the very beginning. Only then will the healthy growth of the main creeper not be stunted. (8) And by so doing, the devotee is able to relish the fruit of love of God and thus live practically with Lord Krishna, even in this life, and be able to see the Lord in every step. The highest perfection of life is to enjoy life constantly in the association of the Lord, and one who can relish this does not aspire after any temporary enjoyment of the material world via other media.” (SBhag 2.2.30)

PERSONAL AMBITION QUOTES FROM SRILA PRABHUPADA

(1) “Our life is very short. The Krishna consciousness movement is not meant for fulfilling one’s personal ambition, but it is a serious movement for the whole world.” (SPL Satsvarupa July 31, 1970) (2) “I have tried to present BGita as it is, without adulteration. Before my presentation of BGita As It Is, almost all the English editions of BGita were introduced to fulfill someone’s personal ambition. But our attempt, in presenting

BGita As It Is, is to present the mission of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Krishna. Our business is to present the will of Krishna...” (Preface, BGita) (3) “Emperor Yudhisthira administered generously to everyone during his reign. He was exactly like his father. He had no personal ambition and was freed from all sorts of sense gratification because of his continuous service unto the lotus feet of the Lord Sri Krishna.” (SBhag 1.12.4) (4) “I am just trying to organize a worldwide movement not for any personal ambition but to execute superior orders, and by the grace of Krishna we are getting good encouragement. So I request my students to cooperate fully.” (SPL Jayapataka July 26, 1970) (5) “I am fervently appealing to you all not to create fracture in the solid body of the Society. Please work conjointly, without any personal ambition. That will help the cause.” (SPL Brahmananda July 31, 1970) (6) “So these two things are always side by side--Maya and Krishna--Krishna is service and Maya is sense gratification, so every moment we are prone to be subjugated by either of them. Our duty is therefore to be very, very careful. The poison is personal ambition. So everyone has the chance, therefore one should not be complacent.” (SPL Nov. 1, 1970) (7) “I wanted you all my experienced disciples should manage the whole institution very cleverly without any personal ambition like ordinary materialistic men. The Gaudiya Math institution has become smashed, at least stopped its program of preaching work on account of personal ambitions. What is done is done. I shall request you all not to be personally ambitious. I shall do everything in my power to fulfill your personal ambitions, but that will be done in due course of time when you are fully trained up and following the regulative principles and chanting 16 rounds.” (SPL Karandhar Oct. 8, 1974) (8) “We have no other business. We want to see people live, eating very nicely nutritious food, keeping good health. But unnecessarily artificial things, bothering, that we don't want. Keep your health very nice, live for as many years as possible, and be Krishna conscious. Then, next life, you go back to home, back to Godhead, permanent life. Yad gatva na nivartante. This we want to give. There is no cheating. There is no politics, no personal ambition fulfilling. This is our mission. Try to convince them. There is not a little tinge of personal sense gratification.” (SPConv May 27, 1977) (9) “The karmis who desire sense gratification, the jnanis who aspire for the liberation of merging into the existence of the Supreme, and the yogis who seek material success in mystic power are all restless, and ultimately they are baffled. But the devotee, who does not expect any personal benefit and whose only ambition is to spread the glories of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, is blessed with all the auspicious results of bhakti-yoga, without hard labor.” (SBhag 8.9.28) (10) “In my books I have tried to explain clearly this simultaneously one and different philosophy acinta beda beda tattva propounded by Lord Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. But sometimes it happens that this philosophy is given a self-interested interpretation. As soon as personal motivation comes in it is not possible for one to understand our Krishna Consciousness philosophy.” (SPL Ishana, Vibhavati Sept. 21, 1970) (11) “...I am confident that this mission of Lord Chaitanya's will be successful if only we continue to push on this great movement, without any personal motivation.” (SPL Sept. 19, 1970) (12) “Neglect of following the regulative activities and so-called advancement on the basis of self-motivation are both offensive. One should sincerely try to bring himself to the stage of devotional service motivated by pure love of Krishna, and our personal example must set a guide for them...” (SPL Nov. 25, 1970) (13) “We should lay out the subject matter as nicely as possible to our intelligence and capacity, and without any ambition that it must attract customers. They may attract or not attract, it doesn't matter...” (SPL Feb. 22, 1969) (14) “I pray to Krishna that you all may use your intelligence for Krishna's service and not for any personal ambition. We have worked very hard and established a great institution, but if we think for our personal benefit, then it will become ruined. This is my only concern.” (SPL Jan. 11, 1974)

CHEAP IMITATION OF THE PURE DEVOTEE

In Tamal's Vyasa Puja book of his disciple's offering him birthday glorifications, we find amazing laudatory statements: “Even if I had millions of tongues, still I would not be able to glorify you fully... Just a glance from your lotus face can save one from the greatest danger... By your appearance, maya disappears... You are the most magnanimous Vaishnava... Apart from you, there is no hope for us... You are a great genius!... You are the most confidential servant of Sri Sri Radha Damodara.” There is no doubt that the disciples of ISKCON gurus look upon their guru as being on the same level as Srila Prabhupada, and they are not corrected.

WATERING UNWANTED WEEDS

In CC Madya Lila, Ch. 19, it is explained how by chanting the Hare Krishna Maha Mantra the plant of devotional service is nourished in the heart. However, this watering process may easily also water the weeds of personal ambitions. One who is serious about success in spiritual life must be careful to recognize and uproot these unwanted weeds lest they choke out the creeper of bhakti. Practiced and mature devotees become experienced in preventing the growth of weeds in their gardens. These personal ambitions have commonly manifested in ISKCON misleaders as the desire to become an initiating guru by false pretenses. “Our mission is to serve, bhakta vishesha, and live with devotees. not that you take the place of guru. That is all nonsense. Very dangerous, then everything will be spoiled. As soon as you become ambitious to take the place of guru- gurusu narah matih. that is material disease.” (SPConv Apr. 21, 1977)

Senior devotees, while not being attentive or adequately sincere, will often actually be cultivating their weeds of personal ambition while their creeper of devotion becomes impaired and choked by those weeds. The illusory energy then facilitates these prominent desires for personal ambition and sense gratification, and in attempting for spiritual advancement they will be of the more subtle varieties, and the victim cannot understand his condition. One may mistake the satisfaction derived from fulfilling these dirty desires as spiritual happiness, and he becomes sidetracked and stuck in an invisible web of subtle attachments. This pitfall befalls most spiritual practitioners and it is only by deep sincerity of purpose that one can succeed in the proper cultivation of his spiritual garden by controlling the weeds that are simultaneously watered. CC Mad. 19.156-61: we should carefully note the dangers of these insidious weeds, excerpted in part only:

#156-TRANSLATION: If the devotee commits an offense at the feet of a Vaishnava while cultivating the creeper of devotional service in the material world, his offense is compared to a mad elephant that uproots the creeper and breaks it. In this way the leaves of the creeper are dried up. PURPORT: In this way the bhakti-lata shrivels up. Such an offense is especially created when one disobeys the instructions of the spiritual master. This is called guru-avajna. The devotee must therefore be very careful not to commit offenses against the spiritual master by disobeying his instructions. As soon as one is deviated from the instructions of the spiritual master, the uprooting of the bhakti-lata begins, and gradually all the leaves dry up.

#157-TRANSLATION: The gardener must defend the creeper by fencing it all around so that the powerful elephant of offenses may not enter. PURPORT: While the bhakti-lata creeper is growing, the devotee must protect it by fencing it all around. The neophyte devotee must be protected by being surrounded by pure devotees. In this way he will not give the maddened elephant a chance to uproot his bhakti-lata creeper. When one associates with nondevotees, the maddened elephant is set loose. Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu has said: asat-sanga-tyaga, ei vaishnava-acara The first business of a Vaishnava is to give up the company of nondevotees. A so-called mature devotee, however, commits a great offense by giving up the company of pure devotees. The living entity is a social animal, and if one gives up the society of pure devotees, he must associate with nondevotees (asat-sanga). By contacting nondevotees and engaging in nondevotional activities, a so-called mature devotee will fall victim to the mad elephant offense. Whatever growth has taken place is quickly uprooted by such an offense. One should therefore be very careful to defend the creeper by fencing it in- by following the regulative principles and associating with pure devotees. If one thinks that there are many pseudo devotees or nondevotees in the Krishna Consciousness Society, one can keep direct company with the spiritual master, and if there is any doubt, one should consult the spiritual master. However, unless one follows the spiritual master's instructions and the regulative principles governing chanting and hearing the holy name of the Lord, one cannot become a pure devotee. By one's mental concoctions, one falls down. By associating with nondevotees, one breaks the regulative principles and is thereby lost...

#158-TRANSLATION: Sometimes unwanted creepers, such as the creepers of desires for material enjoyment and liberation from the material world, grow along with the creeper of devotional service. The varieties of such unwanted creepers are unlimited. NO PURPORT

#159-TRANSLATION: Some unnecessary creepers growing with the bhakti creeper are the creepers of behavior unacceptable for those trying to attain perfection, diplomatic behavior, animal killing, mundane profiteering, mundane adoration and mundane importance. All these are unwanted creepers. PURPORT (partial): There is a certain pattern of behavior prescribed for those actually trying to become perfect... Kutinati, or diplomatic behavior, cannot satisfy the atma, the soul. It cannot even satisfy the body or the mind. The culprit mind is always suspicious; therefore our dealings should always be straightforward and approved by Vedic authorities. If we treat people diplomatically or duplicitously, our spiritual advancement is obstructed [...] As far as material profits are concerned, one should know that whatever material profit one has must be abandoned at the time of death. Unfortunately people do not know that there is life after death; therefore mundane people waste their time amassing material profit which has to be left behind at the time of death. Such profit has no eternal benefit. Similarly, adoration by mundane people is valueless because after death one has to accept another body. Material adoration and title are decorations that cannot be carried over to the next body. [...] All these obstructions have been described in this verse as unwanted creepers. They simply present obstacles for the real creeper, bhakti-lata-bija. One should be very careful to avoid all these unwanted things. Sometimes these unwanted creepers look exactly like the bhakti-lata creeper. They appear to be of the same size and the same species when they are packed together with the bhakti-lata creeper, but in spite of this, the creepers are called upasakha. A pure devotee can distinguish between the bhakti-lata creeper and a mundane creeper, and he is very alert to distinguish them and keep them separate.

#160-TRANSLATION: If one does not distinguish between the bhakti-lata creeper and the other creepers, the sprinkling of water is misused because the other creepers are nourished while the bhakti-lata creeper is curtailed. PURPORT (partial): If one chants the Hare Krishna mantra while committing offenses, these unwanted creepers will grow. One should not take advantage of chanting the Hare Krishna mantra for some material profit. As mentioned in verse 159: nisiddhacara, kutinati, jiva-himsana, labha, puja, pratisthadi, yata upasakha-gana. The unwanted creepers have been described by Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakura. He states that if one hears and chants without trying to give up offenses, one becomes materially attached to sense gratification [...] One may also be victimized by diplomatic or crooked behavior, or one may associate with women for illicit sex. Others may make a show of devotional service like the prakṛta-sahajiyas, or one may [...] joining some caste or identifying himself with a certain dynasty, claiming a monopoly on spiritual advancement. Thus with the support of family tradition, one may become a pseudo guru or so-called spiritual master [...] One may also try to carry out a professional business while chanting the Hare Krishna mantra or reading Srimad-Bhagavatam, or one may try to increase his monetary strength by illegal means. One may also try to be a cheap Vaishnava by chanting in a secluded place for material adoration, or one may desire mundane reputation by making compromises with nondevotees, compromising one's philosophy or spiritual life, or one may become a supporter of a hereditary caste system. All these are pitfalls of personal sense gratification. Just to cheat some innocent people, one makes a show of advanced spiritual life and becomes known as a sadhu, mahatma or religious person. All this means that the so-called devotee has become victimized by all these unwanted creepers and that the real creeper of bhakti-lata-bija has been stunted.

#161-TRANSLATION: As soon as an intelligent devotee sees an unwanted creeper growing beside the original creeper, he must cut it down instantly. Then the real creeper of bhakti-lata-bija grows nicely, returns home, back to Godhead, and seeks shelter under the lotus feet of Krishna. PURPORT: If one is misled by unwanted creepers and is victimized, he cannot make progress back to Godhead. Rather, he remains within the material world and engages in activities having nothing to do with pure devotional service. Such a person may be elevated to the higher planetary systems, but because he remains within the material world, he is subjected to the threefold material miseries.

ISKCON HISTORY AND SRILA PRABHUPADA'S WARNINGS

Correlations are made below between some of the highlighted sections from the above CC verses and purports to illustrate how personal ambition has negatively affected ISKCON and its members.

(1) "The devotee must therefore be very careful not to commit offenses against the spiritual master by disobeying his instructions..." Senior disciples concealed, lied, and falsely interpreted Srila Prabhupada's actual instructions and intentions for how ISKCON should continue after his physical departure. Those senior disciples and others who have followed in their footsteps since, in pursuit of their own personal ambition, have disobeyed the acharya very deliberately, while conveniently disguising their hidden intentions under their masks of guru bhakti (Ch. 124) and deviant interpretations (Ch. 150). (2) “By contacting nondevotees and engaging in nondevotional activities, a so-called mature devotee will fall victim to the mad elephant offense. Whatever growth has taken place is quickly uprooted by such an offense.” Disobedient devotees have been compromised by personal ambition, which is karma or fruitive activity. Then, by the principle of association, as new members associate with them, mixed devotion spreads. Pure devotional service has become a rarity in ISKCON rather than the standard. The entire institution is now pervaded and steeped in a mixture of Krishna bhakti and the pursuit of material goals. ISKCON’s corrupt guru business has become so institutionalized that sincere spiritualists are no longer attracted to participate and the general quality of the membership in ISKCON has plummeted since Srila Prabhupada’s departure. By association with this corruption and engaging in the pursuit of material benefits, ISKCON members’ spiritual advancement suffers greatly.

(3) “If one thinks that there are many pseudo devotees or nondevotees in the Kṛṣṇa Consciousness Society, one can keep direct company with the spiritual master, and if there is any doubt, one should consult the spiritual master.” ISKCON has been populated with mixed devotees, not “pure devotees” engaged in pure devotional service. (See Ch. 59, 77 re: non-devotees in the movement.) Thus the new ISKCON constitutes mixed or non-devotees, and those who wish to pursue pure devotion are forced to go elsewhere lest they be impeded by bad association. Many persons have quit or left ISKCON for this reason, and have made alternative arrangements to maintain proper association individually or in small groups. Srila Prabhupada recommends that if one finds no proper association of devotees, then they may associate with him directly, through his books, sound recordings, service, and sincere followers. We should consult Srila Prabhupada through prayer, deep contemplation, and a sincerity of purpose. But if we prematurely want disciples as a false guru, then there is the ISKCON program which allows anyone to be voted in as a guru.

(4) “...diplomatic behavior, animal killing, mundane profiteering, mundane adoration and mundane importance. All these are unwanted creepers.”

Diplomatic behavior is defined as tactful and sensitive. However, tactful indicates a hidden agenda in securing one’s interests. Discreet, shrewd, skillful, clever, suave, polished, and savvy also relate to being tactful. Diplomacy is not good for devotional service where one has to surrender their interests to Lord Krishna. ISKCON’s evolving policies and doctrines come from a leadership manufacturing deviant methodologies for preserving their status quo of corrupt activities in pursuit of their personal ambitions. They use fraud, lies, half-truths, diversionary tactics, irrelevancies, and smoke and mirrors to confuse innocents into acquiescence. An example is their fierce denial of the poisoning evidence. Their gradual, symbolic evolution towards the ritvik system over several decades is another example. But their diplomacy is actually dishonesty and circumvention of truth. Untruthfulness is when one is not straightforward in his dealings with other devotees. This is condemned: “There is nothing more sinful than untruthfulness. Because of this, mother earth once said, ‘I can bear any heavy thing except a person who is a liar.’” (SBhag 8.20.4) Mundane profiteering is rampant in ISKCON: gurus do not declare their secretly accumulated many millions of dollars in private accounts. Mundane adoration and importance of course is synonymous with being an ISKCON guru. (5) “...adoration by mundane people is valueless because after death one has to accept another body. Material adoration and title are decorations that cannot be carried over to the next body.” To pretend to be a deliverer from the cycle of birth and death so one can achieve mundane adoration is cheating, and Sri Isopanisad indicates that this is a very risky business; such false spiritual masters can be severely punished for misleading innocent souls. It was easy to see the intense ambitions of some ISKCON gurus for being worshiped and having many disciples. Now, decades later, ISKCON gurus have refined their charismatic styles and profiles to hide their pretensions, but a close look reveals their real purposes. Follow the money. (6) “Sometimes these unwanted creepers look exactly like the bhakti-lata creeper. They appear to be of the same size and the same species when they are packed together with the bhakti-lata creeper.” ISKCON gurus famously claim they are serving Srila Prabhupada by preaching, but preaching is not dependent on being a guru. They confuse their personal ambitions with serving Srila Prabhupada, but Srila Prabhupada did not give authorization or any order to be diksha guru. Therefore their preaching is based on a deviation from authority. As Tamal himself frankly writes in his “The Perils of Succession” (1997): “...leaders would [not] cease jockeying for position and control, desires that seem at the heart of each heresy. Indeed, every religion's history is chequered with dark moments of ambition, in which personal desire is seen as divine empowerment.”

(7) “...the sprinkling of water is misused because the other creepers are nourished...” ISKCON and many of its yatras have struggled while its flourishing guru franchises siphoned off the assets. (8) “One may also be victimized by diplomatic or crooked behaviour...” Some of Srila Prabhupada’s most senior disciples engaged in poisoning their guru and then, by diplomacy and crooked behaviour, took over the movement for the fulfilment of their own personal ambitions. (9) “...claiming a monopoly on spiritual advancement. Thus with the support of family tradition, one may become a pseudo guru or so-called spiritual master.” ISKCON leaders, especially as the ISKCON GBC, have consistently maintained that they alone are authorized and empowered to understand and execute Srila Prabhupada’s will and instructions. With their “Vedic tradition” argument, the GBC has a monopoly on interpreting guru-tattva and Srila Prabhupada siddhanta, while actually they are disobedient offenders. (10) “...one may try to increase his monetary strength by illegal means. One may also try to be a cheap Vaishnava by chanting in a secluded place for material adoration, or one may desire mundane reputation by making compromises with nondevotees, compromising one's philosophy or spiritual life.” ISKCON gurus have resorted to the establishment of clinics, hospitals, orphanages, and social welfare activities to attract recognition from the mundane, demoniac society. These are compromises of Srila Prabhupada’s high standards that he set for ISKCON. Many gurus seek the association and endorsements of movie stars, politicians, and sahajiyas for increasing their own standing, and as sannyasis, they engage in large business and investment enterprises for monetary gains. Some ISKCON gurus linger in Vrindaban, Govardhan, or Radha Kunda with their disciples to chant, have kirtan, discuss elevated topics, and neglect Srila Prabhupada’s example of preaching to the lost souls around the world. For the sake of material adoration and false reputation, the bhajanandini mood thus replaces Srila Prabhupada’s preaching spirit. (11) “If one is misled by unwanted creepers and is victimized, he cannot make progress back to Godhead. Rather, he remains within the material world...” Unfortunately one who is not attentive to uproot the unwanted weeds of material desires will not be able to progress to the ultimate goal, nor can they deliver their disciples back to Godhead. Such gurus actually infect their followers with their own impure desires.

THE WEEDS OF DIPLOMACY AND DUPLICITY

The above mentioned weeds flourish when open discussion and debate about Krishna consciousness is restricted in the assembly of devotees. ISKCON has banned the mere discussion of topics such as Srila Prabhupada’s poisoning and the various systems for initiations. ISKCON members are advised not to avail of the internet lest they become infected by blasphemy and offenses. This repressive atmosphere develops because one falsity requires another falsity to defend it. Without istagosthi, Srila Prabhupada’s followers are denied an important tool for helping each other root out the various weeds of material enjoyment. (1) “As for actual advancement in spiritual science, one should have a test to see how far he is progressing. He can judge by these items: Humility;

pridelessness; nonviolence; tolerance; simplicity; etc... Simplicity means that without diplomacy one should be so straightforward that he can disclose the real truth even to an enemy." (BGita 13.8-12 purport) (2) "The mind should be devoid of duplicity, and one should think of the welfare of all... One should be straightforward in his dealings and thereby purify his existence." (BGita 17.16 purport) (3) "The materialistic man creates diplomacy and conspiracy for sense gratification. Everyone wants in the material world some reputation, profit, and some adoration. But so far we are concerned we are being trained up by following the footsteps of Lord Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu: na dhanam na janam na sundarim [...] 'My Lord I do not want any monetary gain, neither any number of followers, or wife, but simply I want to be engaged in Your causeless devotional service, which means I do not even want salvation.'" (SPL Karandhar Oct 8, 1974)

CROOKEDNESS IN DEVOTIONAL SERVICE: By Srila Jiva Goswami

"Due to the presence of many offenses, the Lord does not accept service from the crooked, even if they offer him many valuable items. This was seen when Krishna went to the capital of Duryodhana as a messenger on behalf of the Pandavas. Although Duryodhana tried to win Krishna over with a royal reception and great opulence, Krishna rejected Duryodhana's hospitality because of Duryodhana's offensive attitude towards Krishna's devotees. At present, there are many people who make a show of devotion and who, in spite of having studied the scriptures, maintain an offensive mentality which causes them to disrespect the Lord, the spiritual master, and other devotees. The external worship offered by such persons is nothing but crookedness.

"Therefore, shastra describes that even foolish people who are nonetheless free from crookedness attain perfection even by a semblance of bhakti, whereas the crooked cannot even practice bhakti. This is evidenced in a statement by the great sage Parashara from the Skanda-Purana... In this world, impious, foolish and crooked people do not attain devotion to Lord Govinda, and they cannot chant about or remember the Lord... The attempt of such crooked people to become truthful is obstructed by a hundred impediments, whereas their attempts to perform penances is obstructed by a thousand, and their attempts to perform loving devotional service to Lord Govinda is obstructed by ten thousand impediments." (Bhakti-Sandarbha, 153-4, Satya Narayana das) /Note: To assume the post of a diksha guru while being unauthorized and unqualified to do so constitutes an act of great crookedness. In this connection, see Ch. 146-7.

GURUSHIP IN ISKCON FACILITATES DIFFERENT KINDS OF MUNDANE AMBITIONS

In the case of Satsvarupa das we very clearly see a strong ambition to become a super-creative, recognized "free-writer" and artist. This is understood by reading his books as he repeatedly confesses his ambitions. It is not good enough for Satsvarupa to simply employ his creative abilities in the glorification of Srila Prabhupada or the honest elaboration of Srila Prabhupada's teachings. No, he found it necessary to digress to the immersive study of various kinds of mundane music (jazz, blues, classical), mundane literature (Emily Dickinson, Thoreau, etc), and mundane art (Picasso, abstract)... and he genuinely believes, in his delusion, he should spend his life being supported by his remaining "faithful" disciples while he indulges in evermore desperate attempts to perfect his confessional free-writing. He is corrupted by mundane ambitions while chanting Hare Krishna silently and he reciprocates with disciples begrudgingly. He appears at the edge of sanity, as though tormented by lurking demons looking to break free of his conscience.

It is not only worship, power, wealth, and followers that ISKCON gurus desire. Guruship is a means by which any wacky desire can be fulfilled. Satsvarupa brags how his artwork was featured in a Washington, DC gallery and received a favorable review. Also, Hansadutta was intoxicated that his guru song (about himself) hit the top of the charts somewhere in the Phillipines. Tamal wanted to be number one. Bhakticharu wanted wealth and fame through business investments and directing films. Satsvarupa wants personal satisfaction in exercising his "mind-dump" free-writing and bizarre art creations. Jayadvaita Swami wants to endlessly improve on Srila Prabhupada's books as "the acharya's editor-in-chief" and improver of Srila Prabhupada's true philosophical intentions and poetic style. Some mundane ambitions: (1) TO BECOME VERY WEALTHY: Bhakticharu Swami (2) TO BECOME NUMBER ONE IN ISKCON: Tamal (3) TO BECOME A ROCK STAR MUSICIAN: Hansadutta (4) TO BECOME AN ACCOMPLISHED, CREATIVE AUTHOR AND ARTIST: Satsvarupa (5) TO BECOME A GREAT RELIGIOUS INNOVATOR AND PROPHET: Kirtanananda (6) TO HAVE THE MOST DISCIPLES: Jayapataka Maharaja (7) TO BECOME A RELIGIOUS SCHOLAR AND CELEBRATED INTELLECTUAL: Hridayananda, Ravindra Svarupa (8) TO HAVE SEX WITH DISCIPLES: Umapati, Bhavananda, Hansadutta, Kirtanananda, many others (9) TO GO TO BANGKOK FOR "REST & RECUPERATION": Prabhavishnu and others (10) SUPERIORITY BY FOREVER REVISING, RE-EDITING PRABHUPADA'S BOOKS: Jayadvaita Swami (11) TO BE A CHARISMATIC, BELOVED HERO: Indradyumna Swami (12) TO USE LSD AND ECSTASY AS A SHORTCUT TO SPIRITUAL BLISS: Jayatirtha (13) TO BECOME AN ULTIMATE AUTHORITY: Ramevara, Kirtanananda, Tamal, most of them (14) TO BASK IN MUNDANE APPRECIATIONS AS A MODERN SAINT: Radhanatha Swami (14) INTOXICATING THRILL OF BEING AS GOOD AS GOD: All of them

"...the tigress of ambition for material name and fame has appeared..." Srila Prabhupada, 1958

2008 GBC RESOLUTION 308: "THE GARDEN OF INSPIRATION"

"...504. 1. THAT the following guidelines are accepted for those who want their samadhi in the Sri Mayapur master plan area for all Srila Prabhupada disciple-gurus in good standing: (a) they are to be located near Srila Prabhupada's puspa samadhi, (b) their size is to be 3x3 feet floor space and 4x5 feet high. 2. Non-guru Srila Prabhupada disciples are to have a memorial wall with plaques. ISKCON Mayapur management has expressed that the current area designated for samadhis near Srila Prabhupada's Puspa Samadhi is already insufficient to adequately house the remains of any future exalted disciples of Srila Prabhupada; Whereas there is presently no cohesive plan to properly commemorate those disciples of Srila Prabhupada who are not ISKCON gurus; RESOLVED: That GBC resolution 504, 1997 is hereby superseded by: 1. A two-acre plot of land should be designated in coordination with the ISKCON Mayapur Management to serve as a memorial garden for all disciples of His Divine Grace A. C. Bhaktivedanta Prabhupada. 2. The memorial garden will include full samadhis, puspa samadhis, and memorial plaques in the form of a columbarium, in an inspiring, serene setting. 3. The ISKCON Mayapur Management is to present a proposal at the GBC AGM 2009 as to the location of the assigned plot, the landscaping design draft, standardized samadhi and plaque sizes and designs, and cost calculations. 4. The GBC Commemoration Committee is to decide which of the departed disciples of Srila Prabhupada will be interred in full or puspa samadhi or honored with a plaque."

Saddam Hussein and Josef Stalin also erected statues of himself. "Don't be allured by cheap disciples. Go on steadfastly to render service first. If you immediately become guru, then the service activities will be stopped; and as there are so many cheap gurus and cheap disciples, without any substantial knowledge, and manufacturing new sampradayas, and with service activities stopped, and all spiritual progress choked up." (SPL Aug. 17, 1968)

CONCLUSION: CC MADHYA LILA 12.135 (excerpts, bold added)

Srila Prabhupada explains material contamination and the hankering for popularity:

TRANSLATION: Outside the gateway of the temple, all the roads were also cleansed, and no one could tell exactly how this was done. PURPORT: [...] If one wants to see Krishna seated in his heart, he must first cleanse the heart [...] In this age, everyone's heart is especially unclean [...] To wash away all dirty things accumulated within the heart, Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu advised everyone to chant the Hare Krishna mantra. The first result will be that the heart is cleansed (ceto-darpana-marjanam). [...] [SBhag 1.2.17] confirms this statement: [...] If a devotee at all wants to cleanse his heart, he must chant and hear the glories of the Lord [...] This is a simple process. Krishna Himself will help cleanse the heart because He is already seated there. Krishna wants to continue living within the heart, and the Lord wants to give directions, but one has to keep his heart as clean as Lord Chaitanya Mahaprabhu kept the Gundica temple. The devotee therefore has to cleanse his heart just as the Lord cleansed the Gundica temple. In this way one can be pacified and enriched in devotional service. If the heart is filled with straw, grains of sand, weeds or dust (in other words, anyabhilasa-purna), one cannot enthrone the Supreme Personality of Godhead there. The heart must be cleansed of all material motives [...] The heart must be cleansed without ulterior motive. As Srila Rupa Gosvami says: anyabhilasita-sunyam jnana-karmady-anavrtam. In other words, there should not be any external motive. One should not attempt material upliftment, understanding the Supreme by speculative knowledge, fruitive activity, severe austerity and penance, and so on. All these activities are against the natural growth of spontaneous love of Godhead. As soon as these are present within the heart, the heart should be understood to be unclean and therefore unfit to serve as Krishna's sitting place. We cannot perceive the Lord's presence in our hearts unless our hearts are cleansed.

A material desire is explained as a desire to enjoy the material world to its fullest extent. In modern language, this is called economic development. An inordinate desire for economic development is considered to be like straws and grains of sand within the heart. If one is overly engaged in material activity, the heart will always remain disturbed. [...] endeavor for material opulence is against the principle of devotional service. Material enjoyment includes activities such as great sacrifices for auspicious activity, charity, austerity, elevation to the higher planetary system, and even living happily within the material world. Modernized material benefits are like the dust of material contamination. When this dust is agitated by the whirlwind of fruitive activity, it overcomes the heart. Thus the mirror of the heart is covered with dust. There are many desires for performing auspicious and inauspicious activities, but people do not know how life after life they are keeping their hearts unclean. One who cannot give up the desire for fruitive activity is understood to be covered by the dust of material contamination. [...] The sufferings of human society cannot be counteracted by material plans. The only way suffering can be mitigated is by Krishna consciousness. When one takes to Krishna consciousness and engages himself in the devotional service of the Lord- beginning with chanting and hearing the glories of the Lord- the cleansing of the heart begins. When the heart is actually cleansed, one can clearly see the Lord sitting there without any disturbance. [...]

By His practical example, Chaitanya Mahaprabhu has shown us that all the grains of sand must be picked up thoroughly and thrown outside. Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu also cleansed the outside of the temple, fearing that the grains of sand would again come within. Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakura explains that even though one may become free from the desire for fruitive activity, sometimes the subtle desire for fruitive activity again comes into being within the heart. One often thinks of conducting business to improve devotional activity. But the contamination is so strong that it may later develop into misunderstanding, described as kuti-nati (faultfinding) and pratisthasa (the desire for name and fame and for high position), jiva-himsa (envy of other living entities), nisiddhacara (accepting things forbidden in the shastra), kama (desire for material gain) and puja (hankering for popularity). The word kuti-nati means "duplicity." As an example of pratisthasa, one may attempt to imitate Haridasa Thakura by living in a solitary place. One's real desire may be for name and fame- in other words, one thinks that fools will accept one to be as good as Haridasa Thakura just because one lives in a solitary place. These are all material desires. A neophyte devotee is certain to be attacked by other material desires as well, namely desires for women and money. In this way the heart is again filled with dirty things and becomes harder and harder, like that of a materialist. Gradually one desires to become a reputed devotee or an avatara (incarnation). (END)

NOTES ON THE ABOVE VERSE AND PURPORT

Although a conditioned soul is practicing devotional service under the instructions of the bona fide guru Srila Prabhupada, with some degree of sincerity, he may still be plagued with many ulterior motivations and desires that have resided in his heart since time immemorial. These persistent desires may enter into his life even though they are contradictory to his spiritual advancement. Faultfinding, duplicity, desire for name, fame and position, envy of others, desiring material gains of all kinds, hankering for popularity or enjoyment with the opposite sex, desire for wealth, and more- any imperfect devotee can be attacked by these illicit desires. To be safe rather than sorry, one should only surrender to validated self-realized souls. Srila Prabhupada is such a rare soul who was sent by Lord Krishna to rescue us from material illusions.

THE REAL NATURE OF A DISCIPLE IS REVEALED AFTER THE GURU DEPARTS

"Independence from, or disobeying the order of Sri Guru is the cause of so many difficulties. But it is not always easy to detect during the physical presence of Sri Guru... Only at the time of Sri Gurudeva's disappearance can one recognise the actual identity of his disciples. One can then understand who has approached Sri Guru with what intention. Even after taking shelter of a sad-guru's lotus feet, some disciples secretly strive to occupy the seat of Sri Gurudeva at the time of his disappearance. Their acceptance of the shelter of Sri Guru's feet was merely deceit. They are, in fact, hostile and inimical to guru. Moreover, some disciples try to misappropriate the opulence and paraphernalia intended for the service of Sri Guru-Gauranga. This is not understood while Sri Gurudeva is still present, but after he has disappeared from this world, it assumes a terrible form. Know these disciples to be hypocrites, enjoyers and offenders. Even at the time of Sri Gurudeva's manifest presence, some try to control their Godbrothers instead of regarding them as worshipable. Thus they become severe offenders of the Vaishnavas. Those who have been appointed to the position of temple-manager, but who do not serve in mutual cooperation with others and are reluctant to give due respect to their Godbrothers, are sense enjoyers, that is, enjoyers of the Matha. Instead of serving Bhagavan they are greedy to enjoy His property. They are a disgrace to the title 'disciple.' Many, who are disciples in name only, even try to destroy the institution when Sri Gurudeva disappears because the honour they receive decreases at that time. These people are most inimical to guru and most certainly condemned to hell. Those disciples who deviate and engage in numerous acts of malice against Sri Guru when he disappears were undoubtedly hidden deceivers at the time of his manifest presence." (Bhakti Sri Rupa Siddhanti Maharaja, Bhaktisiddhanta disciple)

This interesting passage seems applicable to many senior disciples of Srila Prabhupada as well.

"Our mission is to serve, bhakta vishesha, and live with devotees. Not that you take the place of guru. That is all nonsense. Very dangerous, then everything will be spoiled. As soon as you become ambitious to take the place of guru- gurusu narah matih. That is material disease." (SP Apr. 21, 1977)

"DADS:" DREADED ACHARYA DISEASE

The DADS was coined in 1989 by VVR editor Karnamrita das, similar to the insidiously difficult-to-cure disease AIDS. Once infected with DADS, the victim suffers a deepening of his original sin, the desire to become God, or as good as God. The personality who best represents this disease is Ravana. He thought he had stolen Sita, but he actually destroyed himself and all who took shelter of him. Similarly, those who falsely steal the faith and worship of innocent persons for themselves which is actually meant for Srila Prabhupada, will soon fall from the path of spiritual life and again become entangled in maya and sense gratification. Unauthorised gurus and their followers cannot maintain their pretense for long, and soon destroy themselves by being misled into illusion. Kamsa, as His uncle, and Putana, as His mother, who were supposedly protectors and benefactors, were actually dangerous cheaters in disguise, and both wanted to kill Krishna. By the desire to replace God with ourselves as a "good-as-God" unauthorised guru, we become like Kamsa and Putana. Kill guru, then "become" guru. It is instructive to study actual examples of DADS in post-1977 ISKCON. After the theoretical and philosophical analysis of previous chapters on this subject, one may go on a field trip to see the actual manifestation and symptoms of this disease. It is sobering and frightening, especially for those who lost good friends and Godbrothers to this scourge, the final attack of the illusory energy on those who have misused their free will by coming to the material world. Forget COVID, the Black Death, horrible plagues. But fear DADS. Distasteful as it is, we must take lessons from those who have fallen from the path of spiritual purity, those who became victimised by the allurements of the last snare of illusion, lest we do so also.

AMBITION LEADS TO FALLDOWN

(1) "It is now evident that some of our top men are very much ambitious and there has been so many fall-downs." (SPL Jan. 27, 1975) (2) "However, one should not imitate the behavior of an advanced devotee or maha-bhagavata without being self-realized, for by such imitation one will eventually become degraded." (NOI 5) (3) "As soon as a foolish disciple tries to overtake his spiritual master and becomes ambitious to occupy his post, he immediately falls down. Yasya prasada bhagavat-prasado..." (SBhag 5.12.14)

TO EAT SOMEONE'S SALT

"To eat someone's salt" or "eating their salt" means to partake of someone's hospitality. In The Life of Arthur, Duke of Wellington we read: "I have eaten the King's salt... and consider myself bound to go where I am sent, and to do as I am ordered." This was how Duryodhana won the allegiance of Bhishma, Drona, Karna, Salya and others whose honesty and integrity was thus compromised by indebtedness to his hospitality and resulted in entanglement with his sinful, devious acts. Similarly, once one enters the association of those who are cheating and enjoying as a unauthorised guru, he very soon becomes infected by the envy that underlies that pretension. Devotees must always be very cautious with whom they associate, or whose "salt" they eat. GBC member Naveen Krishna das: "I speak from a lot of personal experience as well as noting the condition of hundreds that I associated with for decades, but I was pulled out of that association by the grace of Srila Prabhupada. Awakening and clarity comes quickly when that uttama aparadhi (ultimate betrayal) association is rejected in total and for good. Krishna is in the heart; if they want to serve Srila Prabhupada without compromise they will be led out of their mess. We do not have to eat their salt or relish their association in the slightest manner as that simply pollutes the mind and intelligence with the most insidious disease."

EXAMPLES OF EATING THE GBC SALT

Prahladananda Swami was threatened and blackmailed by Tamal in 2001 into silence on the poison issue and to withdraw support for a neutral investigation by responsible senior devotees (see Ch. 21). He soon thereafter became an ISKCON initiating guru and a participant in the institutional corruptions. Thus he was compromised and unable to any longer act in the interest of truth. Privately, he was convinced that Srila Prabhupada was poisoned by a group of senior devotees so that they could become full gurus, but his compromise led him into a partnership with the poisoners approving his guruship. In bed with the devil.

In the mid-nineties Naveen Krishna was a GBC member and chairman of the ISKCON Foundation, which specialized in fund-raising with the Indian congregations. He attended an annual Mayapur GBC meeting and one of the urgent issues was to find someone as ISKCON Minister of Fundraising and Life Membership. Naveen solicited Sridhar Swami of Bombay, speaking with him at length about what the post entailed, the need, the challenge, the difficulties, the methods, etc. The next day Sridhar Swami agreed to take the service, but only on one condition. He wanted approval by the GBC as an ISKCON initiating guru simultaneous to approval as Minister for Fundraising. Naveen agreed to campaign on Sridhar Swami's behalf and the GBC passed both resolutions together. This is the reality of ISKCON "spiritual" politics behind the scenes.

Naveen Krishna das also remembered another incident one year in Mayapur when he was a GBC member. He was staying in his personal room (#51) in the Conch Building, and one evening an Indian-bodied sannyasi came to his door, explaining his name would come up at the GBC meeting the next day for approval vote as an ISKCON initiating guru, and asked for "blessings" and support. The sannyasi was approved. The ISKCON system for "becoming" guru is very much like campaigning for political office, soliciting for votes. In 1981 Naveen Krishna attended Jayatirtha's Vyasa Puja day celebrations at the London Manor. A huge and exquisite lotus Vyasasana had been built for the occasion, perhaps 12 feet wide and 6 feet tall. Bhagavan das Goswami, ISKCON guru for France, would also attend, so a second identical Vyasasana was built for him. As the two sat on their gigantic lotus seats, at one point Bhagavan spoke about how he had thought that Srila Prabhupada had created just one special, empowered son, but, as he looked over at Jayatirtha, that he then understood there were two empowered sons. Such pompous arrogance was standard fare those days.

Even after he had resigned from the GBC in 2000, Naveen Krishna stayed in touch with his friend Gunagrahi Swami, who shared how he was pressured to become an ISKCON guru, and Naveen would caution him against it. In their discussions, Maharaja explained how difficult it was to carry on his responsibilities and programs in South America without his own disciples, funding, and guruship. Although Maharaja acknowledged it was not Srila Prabhupada's desire for ISKCON to approve new initiating gurus, he said that to work in ISKCON, one practically could get nowhere without being a guru. Once he admitted that he was bothered that if he was not a guru, he would not get a samadhi in Mayapur, and Naveen could understand the guru disease had infected him. Finally Gunagrahi was approved as a guru. Then in 2016 Gunagrahi learned he had stage four prostate cancer. He publicly admitted his fallen condition with a lifelong addiction for pornography, and resigned as guru, GBC, sannyasi, everything. He apologized to Naveen for not heeding his advice. He explained how he had been surrounded by other gurus, and the lure for disciples, power, money, became too much. He had been too weak to resist the allurements and succumbed. He told Naveen that in ISKCON, the distinct first-tier leaders were gurus, and all others were second tier or lower, and about the ISKCON sub-culture of how to get the votes for guru approval. (Ch. 145)

In 1982 at the Toronto Rathayatra, Bhakticharu Swami told Naveen that Tamal several times asked Srila Prabhupada in mid-1977 who would lead the movement or who would be the next acharya after his departure. Srila Prabhupada told Tamal to meet with the GBC and discuss the matter as to what should be done. Asked later as to what the GBC decided, Tamal said that nothing was decided. When Tamal again left the room, Srila Prabhupada spoke to Bhakticharu Swami: “Just see, they cannot wait for me to die so they can become guru. They have not even learned how to serve and please their guru yet.” Naveen asked Bhakticharu again about this incident at the 1995 GBC meetings. But Bhakticharu, now an ISKCON guru, claimed that he had not been speaking of Tamal, but of Kirtanananda, who had been expelled from ISKCON in 1987. Naveen was amazed at Bhakticharu's blatant dishonesty and lie. DADS corrupts all good qualities.

Naveen Krishna knew Kalakantha das very well, as they had both served in Texas, Naveen in Dallas and Kalakantha as Houston temple president. They had a very good relationship and Kalakantha was dedicated and hard working. They both later moved to Alachua. Once Naveen mused with Kalakantha about how he had made no arrangements for his future retirement. Kalakantha responded, “Oh, I'm not worried about that. I'll just become a guru and my disciples will take care of me.” Naveen was aghast. Today Kalakantha has his own preaching center in Gainesville and has been an authorized vote-approved ISKCON guru since 2008.

After the “fall-down” of Jayatirtha in 1982, Naveen Krishna welcomed the new ISKCON guru at the Detroit ISKCON temple, where Naveen was temple president. Ramevara gave him a chilling look, with the subtle message that “I am guru, you are nothing.” Many devotees have experienced this unique look from various ISKCON gurus in the early eighties when the “zonals” were on their roll. Later, during that same visit, in Naveen's office, Ramevara proudly stated: “Now my zone goes coast to coast. You had better understand that!” It was very clear to Naveen that Ramevara was quite enamored by his power and kingdom.

From Yasodanandana's 1977 diary when he was the Vrindaban Gurukula headmaster: BHAV: On behalf of Prabhupada. We'll initiate while he is in this condition. YAS: What about after? BHAV: I guess we don't know yet. YAS: (changing the topic) So it should be a nice fire sacrifice. BHAV: You take care of this. You put on a good show. (Bhavananda all of sudden exclaimed:) BHAV: I can't wait till we start to do this. I can't wait! Bhavananda's enthusiasm to take disciples was just bubbling over.

"In order to focus more fully on Srila Prabhupada and every devotee's special relationship with him, an ISKCON siksha or diksha guru may accept public guru-puja (arati and/or foot bathing) in person once a year on ISKCON property on his or her Vyasa-puja." (GBC Resolution 316, 2009) The GBC mildly tried to restrict the burgeoning Vyasapuja ceremonies in ISKCON to one each a year. However, for one of these GBC voted-in "successor" diksha gurus, this restriction on his worship (to increase the focus on Srila Prabhupada) is too much to bear: "this is not my first Vyasa-puja this year. I think it's number 11 or something like that. You're only supposed to have one according to the GBC, so we call these 'guru-disciple meetings.'" (Photo: HH Indradyumna Swami ("IDS") 'Vyasa-puja', Silicon Valley, 10/6/17) Hence, IDS is openly flouting the GBC resolution so that more focus can be placed on Srila Prabhupada. He admits to using a cheating tactic of calling such worship celebrations "guru-disciple meetings" to circumvent the GBC ruling against multiple Vyasa-puja ceremonies, so eager is IDS to be worshipped rather than have extra focus be put on Srila Prabhupada. And it is only through the GBC authority and votes that he became a GBC diksa guru, able to take such worship in ISKCON, in the first place. (www.iskconirm.com)

THE DADS DISEASE IS AN ADDICTION

The dreaded acharya disease is an addiction for profit, adoration, distinction, some or all of these. Wealth, adulating women, worshiping followers-to taste these material enjoyments rapidly leads to addiction wherein the victim cannot get enough of these things. He lives only to enjoy these subtle pleasures. The addiction of being a guru is one that is very difficult to break. Similar to drug addictions to fentanyl, oxycontin, or heroin, the false guru cannot survive without the worship and service of his surrendered disciples. For example, Shivarama Swami regularly luxuriates at resorts, in the pool with floating breakfast, silver slippers, luxury massages, and doting disciples. An addict cannot be trusted. To feed their addictions they can lie, cheat, pretend, perfectly mimic a sincerity of purpose, and fool everyone around them. This is what makes addicts so dangerous, especially when one threatens to disrupt their "fix." This is why they are so fiercely opposed to any review of ISKCON's weird guru and initiation system. They worry about their guru business and will outlaw any dissent or controversial debate. It takes Alcoholics Anonymous and drug rehab centers to help those addicts who WANT to give up their addiction. Unfortunately, the historical record of fallen ISKCON gurus shows that very few willingly gave up their positions or take the help of others to cure their addiction. Kirtanananda went on posing as a great guru even after being exposed as a child molester and implicated with devotee murders, insurance fraud, copyright infringement, and more. There was no way he could stop posing as a guru because he was addicted to the intoxication of guruship. He left New Vrindaban and went to India, starting all over by accumulating new disciples again. It is very hard to get out of the mob once you get in. It is also very hard to give up the "guru business" once one tastes its subtle pleasures that feed the soul's original sin. Think of Adam's temptation in the Garden of Eden, of the temptation by the evil snake of envy.

THEY WERE AFRAID OF THEIR PRIESTLY PROFESSION

"Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, when He started this movement, He preached that simply by chanting you'll get all perfection, and the brahmanas of Navadvipa, they rebelled against Him, that

'This boy...' He was boy of twenty years or less than that. This boy is preaching something against the Vedic religious system. So in other words, they were afraid of their priestly profession. Because if everyone takes to simply chanting Hare Krishna and forgets all ritualistic activities, then how they will live? They were priestly class, they were getting some money by their followers. But Chaitanya Mahaprabhu had no such desire. He simplified the whole thing." (SP Lecture Dec. 16, 1968) If the ISKCON gurus had no private bank accounts, personal property, and automatically turned all their dakshina (donation income) over to the local temple, they might have some credibility. However, they promote their bogus system of vote-approved diksha gurus because their livelihood and income depends upon it. Whenever someone is adamantly promoting something, the intelligent person tries to understand what is his motive. Cui bono? Yet, the innocent and trusting common people do not see that these gurus are engaged in business affairs for their own account. Money, followers, admiration, worship, prestige, distinction. "...But, the underlying philosophy motivating his activities is wrong. He is not working for his spiritual master and Krishna, He doesn't necessarily have strong faith in his spiritual master. His motivation is completely selfish. He is thinking that if I study all these books, get up early, chant and dance enthusiastically in the association of the other devotees, I will be a very advanced devotee. I can become the temple president and I will control all the devotees in the temple. ...the temple president is the representative of Krishna... he's non-different from Krishna... he should be worshiped like Krishna. I can become GBC, then so many will worship me. Then I can be Guru of the whole universe, everybody will worship me! Thus the desires for fame, adoration, profit and distinction increases. Ultimately he may desire to become the supreme controller, and believes he has become Krishna and perhaps he can attract a band of like-minded 'disciples' who worship him as God. To a sane man this sounds ridiculous. How could people be so foolish to worship an ordinary mundane man as God, full of ordinary mundane faults? But it happens in ISKCON all the time." (Madhudhiva das)

THE DREADED ACHARYA DISEASE IS THE DESIRE FOR FOLLOWERS

In Tamal's 1978 Srila Prabhupada Vyasa-Puja book offering we see the desire for followers: "Here at Hare Krishna Land we are trying to both maintain and expand. Take, for example, the 'morning walk,' practically a Prabhupada institution itself. Prabhupada's walks on Juhu Beach symbolized to Bombay-ites our movement's continued strength. Therefore, we have continued it, and as we pass our members and friends on the beach, they nod their heads appreciatively... As we would follow closely behind Srila Prabhupada's footsteps, now an ever-growing number of young men follow us [me]." Those who lack divine qualities will be prone to DADS, the desire for followers: "...freedom from envy and the passion for honor -these transcendental qualities, O son of Bharata, belong to godly men endowed with divine nature." (BGita 16.1-3)

PSEUDO RELIGIONISTS FALL DOWN (Sri Isopanisad purport)

(1) "The veda-vada-ratas give their own explanations of the Vedas, neglecting the authority of great teachers... The so-called students of the Vedas are condemned herein because they are ignorant of the actual purpose of the Vedas on account of their disobeying the acharyas." (2) "There are many pseudo worshipers who become religionists only for the sake of name and fame. Such pseudo religionists do not wish to get out of this universe and reach the spiritual sky. They only want to maintain the status quo in the material world under the garb of worshiping the Lord..." (3) "The pseudo religionists have neither knowledge nor detachment from material affairs, for most of them want to live in the golden shackles of material bondage under the shadow of philanthropic activities disguised as religious principles. By a false display of religious sentiments, they present a show of devotional service while indulging in all sorts of immoral activities. In this way they pass as spiritual masters and devotees of God." (4) "Sri Isopanisad confirms that these pseudo religionists are heading toward the most obnoxious place in the universe after the completion of their spiritual master business, which they conduct simply for sense gratification."

CONCLUSION: "Bhagavad-gita (7.27) states, iccha-dvesa-samutthena. Two kinds of propensities arise in the living entity. One propensity is iccha, which means desire to lord it over material nature or to be as great as the Supreme Lord. Everyone desires to be the greatest personality in this material world. Dvesa means 'envy.' When one becomes envious of Krishna, or the Supreme Personality of Godhead, one thinks, 'Why should Krishna be the all and all? I'm as good as Krishna.' These two items, desire to be the Lord and envy of the Lord, are the beginning cause of material bondage." (SBhag 3.27.20) This explains the start of the materially diseased condition, which sometimes, when the opportunity presents itself, leads to the dreaded acharya disease wherein the envy is aimed at the Lord's pure devotee representative instead of the Lord directly.

CHAPTER 155: ISKCON GURU BUSINESS

(1) "In the manner of businessmen you increase your disciples." (Srla Prabhupada, 1961) (2) "Kirtanananda has not been purified by his career in Krishna consciousness. This is because his motive was not to serve Srla Prabhupada, but to use Srla Prabhupada's legacy to further his own guru business. Eventually everyone has got to pay." (Sulochan das, 1986) (3) "Pedophiles are attracted to schools, scammers to politics. Flunky lawyers are attracted to government posts. Lazy and ambitious sannyasis are attracted to cheating guruship. All of them hide their real purpose." (unknown)

Business is an activity for personal profit. "Guru business" is when unauthorised gurus who have personal ambitions for wealth, women, power, and followers have posed as renounced benefactors of humanity while discreetly (or even semi-consciously) hiding their true motivations. Of course, sometimes a misdirected "guru" may have some genuine intentions to preach for the highest spiritual benefit of others, but if he is not an authorized bona fide guru, his efforts will not bear satisfactory results. Furthermore, those efforts more often than not result in ruination to himself and his followers. One should not foolishly go where even angels fear to tread. True, there is a great need in the world for spiritual upliftment, but this does not require unauthorized, impotent initiating gurus who will create havoc instead. The self-serving proposition they make is that we need more gurus as the benefactors of mankind to save more souls. In actuality, they are cheaters taking an opportunity to fulfill material desires while posing as Srla Prabhupada's replacement. It would be better for these cheaters to engage in fruitive activities and then give something to Lord Krishna. At least then they will continue to make spiritual advancement and the common people will not be confused and misled by exploitative cheaters. Modern gurus naturally convince themselves and then others that they are sincere and making a great sacrifice by assuming the post of an initiating guru. Secretly, they know they have no power to remove the karma of their followers, and thus they do not worry about those reactions that stay with their followers. However, they overlook the sinful reaction they will incur for cheating innocent persons. If unauthorised gurus really had to suffer their followers' karma and then on top of that they did not get any material gains like wealth, worship, distinction, and so on, no one would be interested in being a guru. Therefore we can understand that it is the cheating motives that are of primary consideration to them.

Unfortunately, ISKCON's successes and the momentum it achieved by Srla Prabhupada's hard work was an attractive opportunity for those harboring desires of being a guru and the material rewards that guruship brings. One sees millions sweat and give their life for but a few dollars, and a guru has millions dumped at his feet. ISKCON was taken over by senior ambitious students who then invited other unfit men to share in the exploitation of Srla Prabhupada's assets for gross and subtle sense enjoyment. ISKCON history has fully validated this analysis. "Guru business" is rascals posing as gurus, collecting wealth for themselves, relishing adoration, distinction, profit, and pretending to be spiritualists far beyond their capacity. These rascals try to cheat the innocent people who cannot discern the true guru from the pretenders. The world is overrun with unauthorised gurus. It lies with Srla P:rabhupada's strict followers to correct the situation by giving the spiritual knowledge necessary for avoiding the cheaters and finding shelter at the pure devotee's feet. When Srila Prabhupada constantly spoke about bogus gurus, it was as much about inside ISKCON as out.

SRILA PRABHUPADA CHASTISES THOSE IN THE GURU BUSINESS

Srila Prabhupada's Vaisistastaka (1961): (1) "If everyone just initiates then there will only be a contradictory result. As long as it goes on, there will be only failure." (2) "O shame! My dear brothers, aren't you embarrassed? In the manner of businessmen you increase your disciples." (3) "The one who renounces the guru's order (guru-tyagi) and the one who tries to enjoy the assets of his spiritual master (guru-bhogi) are two kinds of useless persons. First become a servant of your spiritual master (guru-sevi) and then you will understand things clearly." Srila Prabhupada, Viraha Astaka (1958) how his guru's mission was corrupted and spoiled: (1) "Those disciples who were irresolute in performing devotional service according to your instructions have now divided your mission in many factions. It appears that the tigress of ambition for material name and fame has appeared and personally provoked this upheaval." (2) "The essential purport of your message obviously did not enter their ears. O where will I get the strength to perform this harinam sankirtan?"

THE WHOLE MISSION DISRUPTED, THE CHEATERS AND THE CHEATED

interpreted in a manner dovetailing one's own sense gratification. I have got this personal experience in my Guru Maharaja's institution. Different Godbrothers took the words of Guru Maharaja in different interpretations for sense gratification and the whole mission disrupted." Similarly, ISKCON misleaders have selectively and wrongly interpreted the instructions of Srila Prabhupada to support their deviant claims to guruship, but their motive is sense gratification and the result is disruption and ruination of the whole mission. In ISKCON there are many useless persons, both guru-tyagi and guru-bhogi. Srila Prabhupada told the story of rascals who sometimes dress as a holy sadhu, and go to a public place for meditation. Also some foolish women who think it very auspicious to have a son fathered by a sadhu may go to these places looking for a sadhu to seduce. The rascal sadhu is expecting to be seduced, and the rascal woman is expecting to seduce a sadhu. This is the classic example of the cheaters and the cheated. Similarly, in the marketplace of the ISKCON institution, the business of the unauthorised gurus is going on by canvassing and competing for disciples. Unfortunately many of the cheated are innocent souls who are being taken advantage of by senior devotees who have become infected with personal ambition. Exiled by the GBC to Vrindaban, Hansadutta wrote Aug. 25, 1980 to his disciples in Berkeley, CA: "The Gurus were trying to present themselves to ISKCON as Pure devotees, infallible and perfect. As you know I would and could not act that part. This was a fly in their ointment, so first chance they got, they removed me, but what have I done? I never said or tried to play the part of being perfect. Whatever I was doing in my zone was never a secret- I did not hide my shortcomings, no one was forced to worship me. But all along Hridayananda and Rameswara tried to make some big secret thing out of my activities. But I have nothing to hide, even the diary, the devotees should see it, and they can leave me or whatever they want, they are free. But these two men keep the devotees in fear and confusion."

HOW TO BE A SUCCESSFUL GURU

6.5 Guidelines

6.5.1 Rejection of a Fallen "Guru"

N.B.: The following laws are based on Sri Kṛṣṇa-bhājanāmaya by Śrī Nārāyaṇa Śārkara (an associate of Śrī Caitanya), Śhakti-saṅghaṅgā by Śrī Jīva Gosvāmī, and Jīva-dharma by Śrī Bhakṣinoda Thākura, in addition to the writings of Śrī A.C. Bhaktivedānta Swāmī Prabhupāda.

6.5.1.1 When a Fallen Guru May Be Rejected

If it is ascertained either by the admission of the guru, or by the testimony of irrefutably reliable witness(es) that the guru was fallen at the time of initiation, then the disciple has a legitimate reason to reject him and take re-initiation from a bona fide spiritual master.

6.5.1.2 When a Fallen Guru Must Be Rejected

6.5.1.2.1 Hopelessly Entangled in Sense Gratification

If a guru has become hopelessly entangled in sense gratification, and it has been established by reliable testimony or by his own admissions that he has been regularly violating the regulative principles of Kṛṣṇa consciousness, and if there is virtually no hope for his rectification, then the disciple should reject him and may accept re-initiation.

6.5.1.2.2 Takes on Demonic Qualities

If the spiritual master takes on demonic qualities and becomes inimical to ISKCON, he should be rejected and the disciple may take re-initiation.

6.5.1.3 When Not to Reject a Fallen Guru

If a guru is engaged in sense gratification, violating one or more of the regulative principles, but there is hope that he can be rectified, then his disciples should not reject him but should allow time for such rectification to take place, and they should take shelter of Śrī Prabhupāda and senior Vaiṣṇavas as dikṣa-gurus.

Success in the guru business is to collect more disciples and money, polish one's charisma to attract attention, appear broad-minded, learn how to make people feel good, publish your own books, travel widely in search of new students, meet and commiserate with important politicians and mayavadis, practice the standard cult dynamics of baby holding, cookie throws, samskara functions, new car, home, and pet blessings, and learn how to look spiritual, grave, blissful, and wise. Just as a businessman is always taking good care of his existing customers and always working hard to get new and more customers to expand his enterprise, an unauthorised guru flatters his followers and tries to recruit new ones by various means. At left we see the ISKCON guidelines on its gurus who become fallen, "demoniac," hopelessly entangled... what kind of gurus are these to be later rejected?

THE FAILURE OF GAUDIYA MATHA AND ISKCON by Prabhupada Anugas

Srila Prabhupada: "Why this Gaudiya Matha failed? Because they tried to become more than guru." In the following quotes, we find Srila Prabhupada's clear condemnation of acharya/guru by GBC appointment or no objection vote. Srila Prabhupada's clear instruction that the appointment of gurus not be done in ISKCON. Thus we must conclude that all the GBC appointed diksha-gurus and the GBC themselves are disobedient to Srila Prabhupada. Their eventual gross falldown is practically unavoidable, because their initial assumption of "diksha-guruship by GBC appointment" is in itself the falldown of disregarding the spiritual master's order, the third offence against the Holy Name. Srila Prabhupada wrote Rupanuga Apr. 28, 1974: "In the latter days of my Guru Maharaja he was very disgusted. Actually, he left this world earlier, otherwise he would have continued to live for more years. Still he requested his disciples to form a strong Governing body for preaching the cult of Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. He never recommended anyone to be acharya of the Gaudiya Math. But Sridhara Maharaja is responsible for disobeying this order of Guru Maharaja, and he and others who are already dead unnecessarily thought that there must be one acharya. If Guru Maharaja could have seen someone who was qualified at that time to be acharya, he would have mentioned, because on the night before he passed away he talked of so many things, but never mentioned an acharya. His idea was acharya was NOT to be nominated amongst the governing body. He said openly you make a GBC and conduct the mission. So his idea was amongst the members of GBC who would come out successful and self-effulgent acharya would be automatically selected. So Sridhara Maharaja and his two associate gentlemen unauthorizedly selected one acharya and later it proved a failure. The result is now everyone is claiming to be acharya even though they may be kanistha adhikari with no ability to preach. In some of the camps, the acharya is being changed three times a year. THEREFORE, WE MAY NOT COMMIT THE SAME MISTAKE IN OUR ISKCON CAMP. Actually amongst my Godbrothers no one is qualified to become acharya. So it is better not to mix with my Godbrothers..."

Thus Srila Prabhupada clearly explains the reasons for ISKCON's decline after his own departure. Though Srila Prabhupada was speaking about the failure of the Gaudiya Matha, it perfectly matches ISKCON's own history, line for line. Seven sentences below are directly compared to ISKCON's failure. (1) "Why this Gaudiya Matha failed? Because they tried to become more than guru. He (Bhaktisiddhanta), before passing away, he gave all direction and never said that 'This man should be the next acharya.' But these people, just after his passing away they began to fight, who shall be acharya. That is the failure. They never thought, 'Why Guru Maharaja gave us instruction in so many things, why he did not say that this man should be acharya?' They wanted to create artificially somebody acharya and everything failed. They did not consider even with common sense that if Guru Maharaja wanted to appoint somebody as acharya, why did he not say? He said so many things, and this point he missed? The real point? And they insist upon it. They declared some unfit person to become acharya. Then another man came, then another, acharya, another acharya. So better remain a foolish person perpetually to be directed by Guru Maharaja. That is perfection." (SPConv Aug. 16, 1976) "Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakura, at the time of his departure, requested all his disciples to form a governing body and conduct missionary activities cooperatively. He did not instruct a particular man to become the next acharya. But just after his passing away, his leading secretaries made plans, without authority, to occupy the post of acharya, and they split in two factions over who the next acharya would be. Consequently, both factions were asara, or useless, because they had no authority, having disobeyed the order of the spiritual master. Despite the spiritual master's order to form a governing body and execute the missionary activities of the Gaudiya Matha, the two unauthorized factions began litigation that is still going on after forty years with no decision.... The members of the self-appointed acharya's party who occupied the property of the Gaudiya Matha are satisfied, but they could make no progress in preaching. Therefore, by the result of their actions, one should know that they are asara, or useless." (CC Adi 12.8-10 purport)

We note how history repeats itself. Now, if we modify the above conversation with word substitutions: "Why this ISKCON failed? Because they tried to become more than guru. He (Srila Prabhupada), before passing away, he gave all direction and never said that 'These 11 men should be the next acharyas.' But these people, (the GBC) just after his passing away they began to fight, who shall be acharya. That is the failure. They never thought, 'Why Guru Maharaja gave us instruction in so many things, why he did not say that these eleven men should be acharyas?' The GBC wanted to create artificially eleven paramhansa-acharyas and everything failed. The GBC did not consider even with common sense that if Srila Prabhupada wanted to appoint eleven devotees as paramhansa-zonal-acharyas, why did he not say? Srila Prabhupada said so many things, and this point he missed? The real point? And still to this day, the GBC insist on appointing diksha-gurus. They declared 11 unfit persons to become acharyas. Then another man came, then another, acharya, another acharya. So better remain a foolish person perpetually to be directed by Srila Prabhupada. That is perfection."

Srila Prabhupada has stated in CC Adi 12.9 purport: "When disciples do not stick to the principle of accepting the order of their spiritual master, immediately there are two opinions. Any opinion different from the opinion of the spiritual master is useless. One cannot infiltrate materially concocted ideas into spiritual advancement. That is deviation. There is no scope for adjusting spiritual advancement to material ideas.... Persons who strictly follow the orders of the spiritual master are useful in executing the will of the Supreme, whereas persons who deviate from the strict order of the spiritual master are useless."

These quotes show that the GBC's voting on diksha-gurus is a deviation from Srila Prabhupada's instructions, which clearly condemn this. All the appointed ISKCON 'gurus' are "useless" due to deviation from the order of the spiritual master. This is a hard truth to swallow, but true. ISKCON has failed horribly since Srila Prabhupada's departure. The reason is simple: the ISKCON leaders tried to be more than their guru by manufacturing so many things (zonal acharyas, voted in acharyas, successor acharyas, suspended acharyas, fallen acharyas, etc.) Srila Prabhupada established a system whereby his unique position as founder-acharya (samsthapaka-acharya) was highlighted through his own worship in every ISKCON temple. Srila Prabhupada did this by installing his Vyasasana in all temples, installing his deity for worship, having his photo on all ISKCON altars, and having all disciples worship him daily by "guru-puja." Upon Srila Prabhupada's departure, the new "gurus" competed with him, installing their own Vyasasanas and photos, and instituting mandatory daily worship of themselves in all ISKCON temples. There are no instructions by Srila Prabhupada for any of this in his institution; he specifically taught how worship and sadhana in his movement should be done. Every detail was given by Srila Prabhupada for all ISKCON devotees. Yet, ISKCON leaders decided they were more than their guru, and made all sorts of unauthorized changes to his movement.

(2) "He, before passing away, he gave all direction and never said that 'This man should be the next acharya.' But these people, just after his passing away they began to fight, who shall be acharya. That is the failure." Srila Prabhupada gave full instructions before departing, and he never said "this person will be next acharya" or "these people will be the next diksha gurus." Despite the fact that he never authorized anyone to be the next diksha guru, immediately after his departure his disciples conspired for position of acharya, throwing out anyone who did not accept their chosen 11 leaders as equal to Srila Prabhupada.

(3) "They never thought, 'Why Guru Maharaja gave us instruction so many things, why he did not say that this man should be acharya?'" ISKCON leaders never thought "Why did Srila Prabhupada not say that these men should be acharyas?" Srila Prabhupada gave so many instructions, yet he never specifically authorized anyone to be the next ISKCON acharya or diksha guru. Instead of understanding the reason he never authorized or appointed anyone, ISKCON leaders immediately conspired to succeed Srila Prabhupada as acharya. Srila Prabhupada did not say that the 11 zonal-gurus should be acharya. Srila Prabhupada did not say that any of the following 100 mini-acharyas should be mini-acharya. "So why did he not say that this man, [insert name], should be acharya?" That is Srila Prabhupada's own question. Tamal KM, one of the 11, explained the mood of the successor acharya's: "They immediately... these 11 people are the selected gurus. I can say definitely for myself, and for which I humbly beg forgiveness from everybody, that there was definitely some degree of trying to control. There's a degree of this in most GBCs... This is the conditioned nature, and it came out in the highest position of all. 'Guru, oh wonderful! Now I'm a guru, and there is only 11 of us'."

(4) "They wanted to create artificially somebody acharya and everything failed." ISKCON leaders wanted to artificially appoint themselves as acharya, and it was due to their conditioned nature and their desire to become gurus (to be worshiped as good as God). Once the 11 zonal acharya's were artificially created to replace Srila Prabhupada, everything in ISKCON failed. The embarrassing history since that time has been one disgrace after another. Srila Prabhupada's assets, meant for Krishna's service, have been looted; many wonderful temples were lost; and worst of all, thousands have been exploited and abandoned by fallen "gurus." What ISKCON gurus have done is not much different than the invasion of India by Muslim kings who then plundered everything in sight, wreaking havoc upon the Vedic culture with their sinful deviations.

(5) "They did not consider even with common sense that if Guru Maharaja wanted to appoint somebody as acharya, why did he not say? He said so many things, and this point he missed? The real point? And they insist upon it." ISKCON leaders still do not consider this point with common sense. If Srila Prabhupada wanted to appoint someone as acharya, why didn't he say so? He taught so many things, yet he missed this simple point, forgetting to specify who will be acharya and diksha guru after him? Srila Prabhupada's use of the phrase "and they insist upon it" is amazingly relevant to ISKCON today. The ISKCON leaders insist that he failed to specify who would be the next diksha guru. They insist upon it tyrannically.

(6) "They declared some unfit person to become acharya. Then another man came, then another, acharya, another acharya." This is the perfect summary of ISKCON's history after 1977. First they conspired and appointed unfit people as successor acharyas. As they began to fall, in order to make it less noticeable, they tried to dilute the guru list by adding even more unfit successor acharyas. One of the original zonal acharyas said, "If you take all the gurus in ISKCON and calculate how many have fallen, it isn't a very high percentage." But 50%+ is very high. Over time, more will fall. This is inevitable, as going against the order of the Acharya will, without fail, lead to falldown. Now the GBC has passed a new resolution calling for all of Srila Prabhupada's disciples to come forward and be "diksha gurus" -the final dilution to cover their original mistake of appointing unfit people as zonal acharyas. But violating the instructions of the Acharya is spiritual poison. No matter how much dilution they do, it will always remain poison. Srila Prabhupada's conclusion:

(7) "So better remain a foolish person perpetually to be directed by Guru Maharaja. That is perfection." Srila Prabhupada has outlined (above) the six mistakes that the Gaudiya Matha and subsequently ISKCON made upon the departure of the Acharya. Now his solution to those mistakes is to simply follow the directions of the Acharya, which if done, then ISKCON will again rise from its present state of failure and spread throughout the world. The Acharya's instruction on this matter is: "I wish that each and every Branch shall keep their independent identity and cooperate keeping the Acharya in the centre. On this principle we can open any number of Branches all over the world. The Ramakrishna mission works on this principle and thus as organization they have done wonderfully."

(SPL Kirtanananda Feb. 11, 1967) Srila Prabhupada wanted to remain as the ISKCON Acharya, and he never said, "Once I depart, replace me with 11 zonal acharya's because I am dead. Or obscure me by 11 zonal acharyas, nor 100 mini-acharya, nor 1,000 micro-acharyas." Manufacture false acharyas and have everything fail (as has happened since Srila Prabhupada departed), or keep Srila Prabhupada in the center as the Acharya and have ISKCON do "wonderfully" as an organization? The GBC refuses to hear this and is the greatest block for the advancement of ISKCON today.

1980 Topanga Confessions: Tamal KM, a zonal acharya, stated: "Actually Prabhupada never appointed any gurus. He appointed eleven ritviks. He never appointed them gurus. [...] This is a myth."

It is very clear Srila Prabhupada never appointed anyone as diksha guru or successor acharya. If Srila Prabhupada had wanted to appoint somebody as acharya, why didn't he say so? Yet, ISKCON leaders have, against Srila Prabhupada's desire, appointed 100+ of them. On Nov. 2, 1977, just before his disappearance, Srila Prabhupada was asked by Indian guests who would succeed him as acharya. When the devotees came back in the room: SP: "[They asked] ...after you, who will take the leadership?" And [I replied] "Everyone will take, all my disciples. If you want, you can take also. (laughter) But if you follow. They are prepared to sacrifice everything, so they'll take the leadership. I may, one, go away, but there will be hundreds, and they'll preach. If you want, you can also become a leader. We have no such thing that 'here is leader.'" Anyone who follows the previous leadership, he's a leader. 'Indian,' we have no such distinction, 'Indian,' 'European.' " Q: "They wanted an Indian to be the leader?" SP: "Yes. 'Everyone, all my disciples, they are leaders. If you want to follow, you can become a leader. You are Indian. But you don't want.' I told them that."

Clearly with, "We have no such thing, that 'Here is leader.'" Srila Prabhupada did not intend to appoint a successor acharya, or have such a GBC appointment system institutionalized within ISKCON. Srila Prabhupada followed in the footsteps of his own Guru Maharaja. He states, "As purely as they follow, they become leader." Clearly, this is a restatement of the eternal principle of guru-parampara: One must be a perfect disciple-that is the basis of any spiritual qualification, particularly the qualification to be 'guru'. This restates Srila Prabhupada's position on those qualified to be gurus after his departure, given in the May 28th GBC conversation: "And Chaitanya Mahaprabhu says, amara ajnaya guru hana. One can understand the order of Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, he can become guru. Or one who understands his guru's order, the same parampara, he can become guru." The GBC refuses to accept their guru-appointment system is a deviation from Vedic shastra and Srila Prabhupada, and ISKCON is no longer a bona fide branch of the Brahma-Madhva-Gaudiya Parampara. Until the GBC start to obey Srila Prabhupada and stop "rubber-stamping" "diksha-gurus" and instead present the parampara-shastra AS IT IS, then we may be assured the big diksha-guru-mess in ISKCON will continue. Certainly the GBC appointed persons can never be true representatives of Srila Prabhupada and our sampradaya until they realize their mistake and desist this "useless" deviation. If, as the ISKCON leaders claim, one automatically becomes diksha guru and successor acharya when the guru departs (and even without any authorization from the previous guru!), then why did top leader Tamal consider what they have done to have been "the greatest disservice to the movement"? The GBC claims there is an unwritten, assumed Timeless Order by which all disciples automatically become diksha gurus upon the departure of their guru. But: SP: What is the use of producing some rascal guru? TAMAL: Well, I have studied myself and all of your disciples, and it's clear fact that we are all conditioned souls, so we cannot be guru. Maybe one day it may be possible... SP: Hm. TAMAL:...but not now. SP: Yes. I shall produce some gurus. I shall say who is guru, 'Now you become acharya. You become authorized.' I am waiting for that. You become, all, acharya. I retire completely. But the training must be complete. TAMAL: The process of purification must be there. SP: Oh, yes, must be there. Chaitanya Mahaprabhu wants that. Amara ajnaya guru hana. "You become guru." (laughs) But be qualified. Little thing, strictly follower... TAMAL: Not rubber stamp. SP: Then you'll not be effective. You can cheat, but it will not be effective. Just see our Gaudiya Matha. Everyone wanted to become guru, and a small temple and "guru." What kind of guru? (SPConv Apr. 22, 1977)

Clearly he was not about to authorize unqualified "rascal gurus." The ISKCON gurus proved themselves to be the very rascal gurus Srila Prabhupada was saying he would not authorize. These false gurus were not authorized by Srila Prabhupada. What would it mean if Srila Prabhupada said "I am not about to authorize rascal gurus," and then a few months later, did just that, authorizing a big list of fallen conditioned souls to be his successors? This was the GBC hoax in 1978. It is clear Srila Prabhupada never authorized the original 11 diksha gurus, so the GBC's latest hoax to invoke a mysterious unwritten "Timeless Order" by which everyone automatically becomes a successor acharya when the guru departs is very suspect. Srila Prabhupada states he will say who will be guru, not that there is any Timeless General Guru Order, which if really a universally understood truth, then why didn't Srila Prabhupada speak about it? Why didn't Srila Prabhupada say, "There is no need for me to say who is guru, the Timeless Order will automatically appoint successor diksha gurus." Instead Srila Prabhupada specifically said "I shall say who is guru," and only after he has said who is guru does that person "become acharya" and "become authorized."

Since Srila Prabhupada said that "he would say who is guru," a natural question is, can anyone show an order from Srila Prabhupada where he actually does this, authorizing them to be a successor ISKCON acharya? Did he say, "Such and such will be guru" or "Now, Mr. XYZ, you become Acharya, you are authorized"? When Prabhupada has specifically stated that he would tell us who will be the guru(s), and that he would specifically tell us who is authorized, why does the GBC claim a "Timeless Order" by which all disciples automatically become diksha guru successor acharya's for ISKCON? Does any of the GBC rubber-stamped gurus have an order from Srila Prabhupada? No, not a single one has any statement from Srila Prabhupada authorizing them to become diksha gurus after his departure. The ISKCON gurus say that the GBC was empowered by Srila Prabhupada to be the ultimate managing authority in ISKCON, and because he did not personally make any arrangements for initiations after his departure, the GBC then had to do so. They say the GBC has authorized the ISKCON guru selection and approval process, which is as good as if Srila Prabhupada himself had done it. The GBC is the representative of Srila Prabhupada. See Ch. 161-3. Srila Prabhupada's conclusion is quite a prophecy: "Then you'll not be effective. You can cheat, but it will not be effective."

"Why this Gaudiya Matha (ISKCON) failed? Because they tried to become more than guru."

CHAPTER 156: ISKCON COVER-UPS AND DISHONESTY

"...and by too much lying propaganda, truthfulness is spoiled." (SBhag, 1.17.25 purport) "No lie can live forever." (ML King) "The truth is not for all men, but only for those who seek it." (Ayn Rand)

ISKCON has covered up many scandals. Their misleaders are not devoted to truth. They devise ways to cover the truth, searching for obscure material which they twist to appear supportive of their sly arguments. This is dishonesty. In politics the cover-up is often worse than the crime itself. It was his role in the Watergate cover-up that took Richard Nixon down, not the actual crime. ISKCON's repeated cover-ups, disinformation campaigns, and adherence to lies, dishonesty, and denials show little difference between this corrupted institution and the "global elite" who are also engaged in various campaigns of lies and tyranny. It almost seems ISKCON has become part of the dishonest and demonic regime. See Part 7, Ch. 51 in Book One.

POISONING: ISKCON has for over 25 years resorted to all conceivable devices of cover-up to forestall the growing recognition by its members and congregations of the overwhelming and convincing evidence that Srila Prabhupada was poisoned, most likely by those who have held the reins of power in ISKCON since 1977. The GBC cover-ups are assemblages of doubts to obscure the mountain of poisoning evidence. The series of carefully orchestrated cover-ups on the factual, scientific poisoning evidence reveals how very corrupted the institution, for which Srila Prabhupada had such high hopes, has become. ISKCON's response to the poison issue is nothing less than criminal obstruction of justice. Prime suspects Bhakticharu and Tamal issued several books to cover-up the poison evidence, using fraud, lies, dishonesty, and deceit. When someone tries to change historical events and recorded words, as these two have done, it is a strong indication they are trying to hide what really happened because they are guilty of doing something very wrong. Their words are a maze of bewildering contradictions. The GBC has and will continue to cover-up and obstruct the truth of Srila Prabhupada's disappearance pastimes. Such cover-ups are damning evidence in themselves.

Just after the appearance of the "poison issue" in late 1997, ISKCON adopted a cover-up, suppression policy on the poisoning evidence. Their first big cover-up campaign was in early 1998 as a response to a "Poison CD" which was stolen and secretly bought by ISKCON guru/GBC Harikesha. After SHPM was published in 1999 with the poisoning evidence, the GBC elite and the suspects themselves organized and financed a second fraudulent, deceitful cover-up of the poisoning evidence with NTIAP, full of fallacious claims and unscientific assertions. ISKCON made deliberately defective denials of the evidence. They even said there was no evidence at all, twisting His Divine Grace's words out of context, rewriting them, and labelling those who felt something was a foul as being troublemaking, "wounded" agents of Kali (destroyers of religion).

After the 2017 book Kill Guru Become Guru and the six associated YouTube films with new scientific evidence, a secret GBC committee masterminded their third major poison cover-up, headed by Bir Krishna Maharaja and included prime suspect Bhakticharu Swami. Balavanta had been invited to join their committee but he declined when he saw how they had misled their own "poison expert" Dr. VV Pillay. Many GBCs participated in discussions how the resurrected poison issue could be buried once and for all. They came up with various ideas to explain the cadmium in Dr. Morris' test results on Srila Prabhupada's hair. They did research for contrary "evidence" and searched for "experts" to refute "PTC's experts." They anointed Mayeswara das, a feisty "independent" devotee eager for brownie points, to do a pseudo-scientific rebuttal, who finally released the confusingly illegible book Deception: Poison Conspiracy Fraud with his hour video as the sarcastic, fiery defender of truth. Bir Krishna Maharaja denied any role by the GBC or himself in Mayeswara's book or film, disproven by leaked Gunagrahi emails. Deception is filled with off-the-wall lies, distortions, and crooked deception. ISKCON has engaged in obstruction of justice by covering up the crime of Srila Prabhupada's poisoning by spreading misinformation, false narratives, fake facts, while suppressing and censoring the factual truths, and, we believe, by destroying evidence. For this the entire GBC should be tried in criminal court as aiders and abettors after the crime. Why don't they just do one or two honest scientific tests instead of so much denying. Let the evidence speak for itself? Fearing truth, they resort to dishonesty.

CHILD ABUSE: Dhira Govinda das, chairman of the Child Protection Office, stated in 2015: "In places like Mayapur, where the most egregious abuse took place, the abuses were covered up again and again. There is a culture of cover-up." The full scale of child abuse in ISKCON is still not uncovered and largely unpunished.

MISSING TAPES: Tamal's excuses for missing tapes are a feeble cover-up for his disappearing essential and vital instructions that Srila Prabhupada imparted. See Ch. 63 for the full history.

FALLEN GURUS: Harikesha Swami became attached to his female therapist, and the same happened to Satsvarupa. With both, the truth was hidden as long as possible. In a 2004 letter to his followers Satsvarupa admitted he was 'physically intimate' with his married therapist Godsister and what finally prompted him to publicly confess what took place a full year and a half previously: "An anonymous letter was sent to the Sannyas Minister, who began an investigation. Dissatisfied with the pace of the inquiry, the anonymous author posted his story on the internet." So he was compelled to come clean, not that he thought he should come clean. He rationalized his cover up: "We did not see the need for [public disclosure] since the relationship had been completely closed. My disciples and many others could suffer because of just one incident. To broadcast it all over would simply cause more harm than good." In other words, better to cover it up. It did not occur to Satsvarupa (or the GBC who aided and abetted the cover up) that once the story got out, he would look even worse, since then not only did he have the illicit affair, but he had continued posturing as a guru and sannyasi whilst lying about it. We see how all cover-ups are eventually uncovered. The truth always leaks out.

Part 15 details the unscrupulous rascal gurus in ISKCON history, including how the GBC and the guru cartel concealed and covered up many guru scandals for even decades. Prabhavishnu was known to the GBC to be visiting prostitutes in Bangkok almost 20 years before they were forced to suspend him after a leading disciple caught him on the streets of Thailand, hand in hand with his favorite lady. ISKCON guru Balabhadra das was known to be sexually fallen for at least 3 years before the GBC finally suspended him, delayed during prolonged “negotiations” with him. Harikesha’s mental problems were known years before he fell publicly.

When an ISKCON guru falls down, the disciples are told it is their fault! “You feel extremely distraught because XX Swami was advertised as being so great. It’s natural that you feel cheated, you have put all your faith and hopes in someone and they can’t control their senses. But it doesn’t help you to feel anger. So just get over it! This has happened, ‘It’s my great misfortune.’ The Vaishnava outlook is, ‘If I’m suffering or I have to go through some unwanted situation, I’m also the cause of that. I simply can’t blame it on others.’ We live in a ‘Blame Culture.’ But the Vaishnava outlook is, as Krishna says in the BGita, we ourselves, due to our activities, are the cause of our own suffering and distress. So better get over it and move on.” (Bhakti Vikasa Swami)

ISKCON HISTORY: Not only does Satsvarupa's "biography" portray Srila Prabhupada as a conditioned soul struggling to maintain his Krishna consciousness, but the book audaciously fabricates evidence and shamelessly desecrates the actual words of his spiritual master to support the Great Guru Hoax by rewriting the famous May 28, 1977 conversation. Also GBC Ravindra Svarupa reveals: “the first and major crisis was a crisis involving Kirtanananda. This happened towards the end of 1967. This is not in Prabhupada-Lilamrta, here is a problem with writing history, Satsvarupa Maharaja, this was Prabhupada's first major crisis when Kirtanananda tried to take his place, is really what happened in 1967. [ ...] It is not in the Lilamrta because [...] Kirtanananda didn't want it in there, and he was at that time one of the major acharyas and Satsvarupa Maharaja had no recourse but to bow to this kind of pressure and leave it out. Similarly all the scandals of ISKCON are not discussed [...] it's the problem of writing history when people are around, so [only] some things are in there. What Prabhupada called the fratricidal war 1975/76 is in Prabhupada-Lilamrta, also in some ways it is soft -pedaled.” (1999 lecture) In sum, Lilamrta is heavily censored to protect those who had a stake in the Great Guru Hoax, and thus it has no credibility as a source of authoritative ISKCON history. It is a whitewash.

CONCEALED INSTRUCTIONS: Part 9, Ch. 64, 84, 85, 86 describes ISKCON history where the GBC and Srila Prabhupada’s poisoners concealed Srila Prabhupada’s instructions for the future re: gurus, initiations, by which they were able to hijack the movement as a criminal takeover and turn it into a criminal enterprise.

CONCLUSION: ISKCON’s GBC has used dishonesty and cover-ups for decades to hide their scandals, hoping time will make them go away. Srila Prabhupada is not at all amused with this.

CHAPTER 157: THE MOVEMENT AND THE INSTITUTION

(1) “From Blazing Sadhus by Achyutananda das, when Srila Prabhupada started the ISKCON Society in 1966 he said: ‘ISKCON is a great tool we can use to spread our Hare Krishna chanting. If it is not helpful, we can dissolve it.’ This firmly established that the institution is not the mission. It is merely a tool of the mission. The mission is not dependent upon it. The ISKCON institution and the Hare Krishna movement are not synonymous even though both are under Srila Prabhupada’s jurisdiction. The movement is far greater than the institution, as Srila Prabhupada has a vast number of sincere followers that are not in the institution.” (Advaita das, 2016) (2) “Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu’s sankirtana movement is the main branch of the effort to promote Krishna consciousness in the world.

Srila Prabhupada and his followers constitute the most powerful force in spreading the sankirtana movement. Srila Prabhupada founded ISKCON as the prime vehicle for promoting Krishna consciousness. Followers of Srila Prabhupada are propagating the sankirtana movement within ISKCON, and some are doing this outside of ISKCON." (ISKCON Alachua Board of Directors Minutes, April 2001) (3) "There is an old saw: God turns to the Devil and says, 'I've got this really great idea. I think I'll call it religion.' The Devil thinks for a minute and then says, 'That is a good idea. Let me organize it for you.' As soon as something becomes institutionalized- be it a faith community or a physics laboratory- it becomes problematic: in need of financing, administration, differentiation from other institutions, etc. The institutional dimension of Prabhupada's mission led some people to misunderstand Krishna consciousness as a new religious movement, transplanted from India. There is certainly a historical dimension to Prabhupada's movement, but its origins are not Indian." (Swami in a Strange Land, Joshua Greene/Yogeswara das) (4) When Srila Prabhupada appointed Hansadutta as BBT trustee in 1974, Hansadutta asked him why he had chosen him. He answered, "The temples may fail, the devotees may fail, but my books will live forever."

The Hare Krishna movement exists wherever Srila Prabhupada's instructions are being followed, whether it be inside or outside the ISKCON institution. Thousands of sincere devotees have been forced to make a choice in the years since 1978: (1) stay within the ISKCON institution and accept, promote, and participate in its deviations, or (2) find a way to stay in the Hare Krishna movement outside of ISKCON and be true to the principles and instructions that Srila Prabhupada gave us. (3) A third choice is the other Gaudiya Vaishnava institutions descended from Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati and maybe some others that are less known, but we find that in general their purity and potency was lost in deviations before the appearance of ISKCON, leaving just Srila Prabhupada's revival of the Hare Krishna movement to be a viable option. We do not explore this subject very much but focus on the possibilities with Srila Prabhupada's teachings.

Unfortunately, many devotees became discouraged by the anomalies in ISKCON, and left not only ISKCON but the movement as well, not having the strength or vision how to carry on with their spiritual lives in Srila Prabhupada's service. Too many Godbrothers have been lost to maya when they were forced to reject the institution which formerly had given them shelter at Srila Prabhupada's lotus feet, or when they were forced out by ambitious rascal misleaders. It has been a great struggle for these alienated devotees to become properly re-situated in pure devotional service without the support of the ISKCON institution. This was essentially a diaspora of devotees who gradually gathered in new places or made new associations, carrying on with chanting, studying the books, taking prasadam, preaching a little here and there, and exploring alternatives to ISKCON. Many drifted to the Gaudiya Math, many again went into hibernation in the material world, but some made their own independent lives in Krishna consciousness while being faithful to Srila Prabhupada. Others did what they could to reform ISKCON from inside, which got nowhere, and some tried to start programs or new centers by cooperating with other "outside" devotees. The collective realization was that the Hare Krishna movement is much more than the ISKCON institution. Determined devotees were able to progress in spiritual life outside ISKCON, which they recognized as now corrupted and diseased. They found that ISKCON did not have a monopoly on Krishna consciousness, Srila Prabhupada, or pure devotional service, and that Srila Prabhupada's mercy was available to anyone, anywhere, simply by following his instructions. The Hare Krishna movement is far more more than the ISKCON institution.

SRIILA PRABHUPADA DOES NOT REQUIRE ISKCON

Srila Prabhupada was disturbed by the 1970 New Vrindaban "Prabhupada is God" incident. "He called Karandhar in and said, 'There is a conspiracy happening. They are trying to take control of ISKCON and take it out of my control.' Then Prabhupada paused and said, 'Alright, I will leave and you may have ISKCON. I will go sit under a tree and preach, because I do not require this organization to preach. So you may have the organization and I will leave.' Karandhar said, 'Oh, no, Srila Prabhupada. What good would the organization be without you?'" (Radha Damodara Vilasa, p. 302) In the book

Swamiji (p. 117): “That’s when he told us he was leaving the movement... The devotees were stunned. Prabhupada announced that he was dissatisfied with ISKCON and, more, that there was a conspiracy against him- so he was going to leave...” (Revatinandana das)

Due to the massive offenses against Srila Prabhupada in ISKCON since 1977, practically all sincere followers and most of the original disciples of Srila Prabhupada have been forced out of ISKCON or in good conscience could not stay lest they become implicated in those offenses. So we ask, is Srila Prabhupada still in ISKCON? It is doubtful, as it has become so thoroughly corrupted by self-interested and self-appointed bogus (unauthorized) gurus, so where is there any place left for Srila Prabhupada? Everyone is obstructed and prevented from becoming his disciple. All the temples give primary emphasis to the “living gurus” and not to the transcendental knowledge (diksha) that actually comes from Srila Prabhupada. All the activities are aimed at canvassing new disciples for the service of non-liberated madhyama adhikaris (at best). Just as Duryodhana chose Lord Krishna’s army and Arjuna chose Lord Krishna Himself, so we must choose Srila Prabhupada over the corrupted ISKCON, in purity of purpose with loyalty and faith in his instructions, including (especially) those regarding the future of his mission. If the institution has become corrupted beyond reasonable hope of reformation, as it may be, then we have no choice but to give up the institution and stay true to Srila Prabhupada. If Srila Prabhupada did not need ISKCON, we also do not absolutely require ISKCON. Actually, the real ISKCON is wherever Srila Prabhupada is being served by sincere followers faithful to his instructions.

If Srila Prabhupada was unattached to ISKCON if it proved contrary, so we must be. Our real concern is the transcendental mission and unadulterated teachings of Srila Prabhupada; we must focus on the mission, with or without ISKCON. ISKCON may have gone irreversibly too far off track for any reformatory method of letters, discussions, appeals, petitions, and meetings to be effective in restoring it as Srila Prabhupada wanted it. Attachment and habit keeps many thinking that the mission is ISKCON. Srila Prabhupada is still directing his actual mission and time will show whether ISKCON remains part of it, or having deviated too much, will either die outright or morph into another ineffective, pseudo-spiritual organization. Some quotes:

(1) Devotee: We have to appraise that if Your Divine Grace leaves us, what will be the result both to ISKCON society, to each of your disciples individually, and to the entire planet. SP: That I am thinking, that such a big society, the aims and object may be dismantled. I am thinking from that vision. (SPConv Oct. 26, 1977) (2) Hari Sauri: Practically speaking, that’s what we’ve done. By your establishing these temples, it’s given us someplace to go where we can get out of Kali-yuga. SP: Therefore, our temples should be very carefully managed. It may not become again another pandemonium. (SPConv 1977) (3) “... Now I have set up the GBC to handle management, questions of philosophy, and personal problems. These things are too much botheration for me, I simply want time to write books to satisfy my Guru Maharaja. ...If we work hard for Krishna without personal consideration or ambition, then we are assured of success...” (SPL Aug. 6, 1970)

THE BIG QUESTION FOR THE REFORMERS

Ever since the takeover of ISKCON by a cadre of self-appointed gurus in 1978, sincere devotees have tried, fought, died, and struggled to revive and restore the institution as Srila Prabhupada wanted it. There is the quote where Srila Prabhupada supposedly said, “ISKCON is my body,” and many reformers erroneously assumed that a rescue of the mission could only mean a rescue of ISKCON. Some reformatory progress has been made by exposing ISKCON deviations and corruptions. For example, the child abuse has been exposed and reduced, and the supposed appointment of successor gurus by Srila Prabhupada was exposed as a lie. But the deviate GBC-guru club is still firmly entrenched and in control, despite all reform efforts. Most reformers have long since given up on ISKCON or simply faded away due to frustration, old age, death. Srila Prabhupada gave his everything for ISKCON to be successful, but its condition now appears hopeless. The big quandary for all reformers is : (1) to restore the existing ISKCON or (2) rebuild a new organization or affiliation of devotees and centers. It may be best to rebuild a new ISKCON and compel the old ISKCON into reform by the competitive and superior example of success and purity. There's nothing like spiritual competition to force out corruption. Why else is ISKCON India so worried about the secessionist ISKCON Bangalore's success?

Waiting for a restored ISKCON may take centuries, or it may never come, so it only makes good sense to stay positively engaged on the outside. Since we do not want to contribute to a deviant, offensive ISKCON, whatever preaching and Prabhupada service we do should be directed towards a new society of devotees with Srila Prabhupada in the center, even if just locally. This is now actually happening worldwide in many places.

SHOULD WE BE DETERMINED TO NEVER LEAVE ISKCON?

From Prabhupada Memories, Vol. One, one devotee recalled: "So we have this movement. It's Prabhupada's movement. We have the good, the bad, and the ugly. But we just have to always try to push it forward. If there's a problem, push it forward. Because when you leave ISKCON, you make Prabhupada cry. So let's make Prabhupada happy and push on Krishna consciousness to every town and village." Unfortunately, under the present circumstances, this is a sentimental impracticality. Should we push on a corrupted movement that has been hijacked by self-interested pretenders who deny others direct access to Srila Prabhupada, the life of the movement? Devotees have lost their enthusiasm in the face of the deviations that have entered ISKCON. Many were thrown out, mistreated, abused, excommunicated, or otherwise alienated from ISKCON; they are not or do not feel welcome in ISKCON. Srila Prabhupada would be more happy if ISKCON were restored properly than for a corrupted ISKCON to be promoted by mindless, blind followers of cheating gurus (who may look distinguished and charismatic, but they are unable to deliver their disciples). They cannot even deliver themselves due to their offenses in disobeying Srila Prabhupada's instructions...

Because ISKCON has deviated so severely, we should not join or participate in it, but search out other options where Srila Prabhupada is properly worshipped and followed. There are many Prabhupada devotees and centers around the world. Srila Prabhupada resides wherever his instructions are being followed. It is not that Srila Prabhupada only resides in ISKCON. Many are of the opinion that he has already left ISKCON. And most outside devotees cannot rationalize contributing to the offenses in ISKCON by supporting it in any way, and many Srila Prabhupada followers refuse to go to ISKCON centers. And they only use the unchanged books.

DOES THE MISSION NEED AN INSTITUTION?

Those who remember what ISKCON was like during Srila Prabhupada's manifest presence have no doubts about the utility of a purely spiritual organization and why Srila Prabhupada created ISKCON, which provided two things: cooperation for preaching Krishna consciousness to the fallen souls, and shelter for the devotees from maya. ISKCON thrived until late 1977, but afterwards the institutional principles Srila Prabhupada had established were altered, and those who knew better became too disturbed to remain in the institution. It became like a prison or an insane asylum run by tyrannical corrupt men. Most of Srila Prabhupada's original disciples left ISKCON, but remember "the good old days." Institutional preaching was introduced into our sampradaya in modern times by Bhaktivinode Thakura and Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati Thakur. Previously, the tradition was independent temples, each run by its acharya as head of the "matha." (ENE p. 7-8): "The informal organization of the Gaudiya-Vaishnava movement was, however, radically changed by... Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati Thakura (1874-1937). In Calcutta in 1920 at the age of 46, he founded a preaching mission- the Gaudiya Math, which expanded into a confederation of 67 temples and ashrams in India, including England, Germany and Burma. (He was) the first acharya in the Gaudiya-Vaishnava line to advocate modern corporate methods of organization. (He made) a united confederation (of temples.) ...He also broke from the past... (and) did not name a successor in his will. Instead he ordered his disciples to jointly manage his mission in his absence, expecting that qualified leaders would naturally emerge..."

Stoka Krishna das (Bangalore ISKCON): “Even though we may be nicely situated, at any time we may fall down from our spiritual position ... Due to our past conditioning, sometimes we may neglect to be under the protection of the Lord... and for that Prabhupada says that Lord Chaitanya entrusted His missionary work to His devotees and assured them of His protection against the onslaught of material affection... Even in doing devotional service, an independent effort at doing some devotional service is very dangerous. That is why Prabhupada, Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakura, Bhaktivinoda Thakura- they created institution(s) in which (to) engage in devotional service. [...] within the framework of an institution there are many standards established (for our) practice and duties (in) Krishna consciousness. Sometimes devotees think this institutional arrangement is a botheration, but it is necessary because an institution (helps) that we may not deviate from a certain standard. (Otherwise) it is not so easy to follow the scriptural injunctions. So a spiritual master like [...] Srila Prabhupada is very rare in this world. They may make arrangement that as many conditioned souls can take shelter and perfect their life and go back to Godhead. For this age, (our recent) acharyas have created an institution. In this institution there is the exact guidance available to practice devotional service. Otherwise on our own we will be completely lost in this world. [...] Prabhupada is a spiritual master who is giving directions. He will continue to give directions through this system of institutional arrangement. Simply we practice our own spiritual life and we preach to further the mission of Lord Chaitanya and go back to Godhead. Within the institution we follow the directions both for practice and for preaching and we don't make an independent effort or endeavour to follow our own program of either practicing or preaching Krishna consciousness because if we try to do that then there is always the danger of falldown. [...] Everyone who is engaged in spiritual advancement requires this protection in this material world.”

So: if ISKCON is lost, does the mission need another institution? Well, a spiritual institution is most valuable if it adheres to Srila Prabhupada's wishes and is reasonably-well managed, and that is why Srila Prabhupada established ISKCON. However, it is not absolutely needed; a corrupted institution where serious offenses to the pure devotee are being committed is much worse than no institution at all. In the face of an almost hopelessly corrupted institution, one must then do the best they can on their own or if possible associate with other like-minded devotees. And this has been the struggle for thousands of devotees since 1978: where to find shelter, now that the pure ISKCON we had when Srila Prabhupada was with us is lost? The answer is that even outside of ISKCON, Srila Prabhupada resides wherever his instructions are being followed. Anyone can have the protection of Srila Prabhupada, and by staying together, another chapter of the mission appears, whether it is called ISKCON, Hare Krishna Society, Sri Krishna Mandir, Vedic Village Society, or... Srila Prabhupada expects his intelligent and faithful followers to do the needful: namely, carry on with the mission independently of the corrupted ISKCON, and if possible try to restore the original ISKCON as well.

BUT IN ANY CASE WE ALL MUST KEEP PROPER ASSOCIATION

We all must be very serious in spiritual life, which means to strictly follow Srila Prabhupada's instructions as best as we can. This includes keeping good association. If association of other sincere devotees is not available, then we must keep strict association with Srila Prabhupada. “If one thinks that there are many pseudo devotees or nondevotees in the Krishna Consciousness society, one can keep direct company with the spiritual master, and if there is any doubt, one should consult the spiritual master. However, unless one follows the spiritual master's instructions and the regulative principles governing chanting and hearing the holy name of the Lord, one cannot become a pure devotee. By one's mental concoctions, one falls down. By associating with nondevotees, one breaks the regulative principles and is thereby lost.” (CC Mad 19.157 purport)

As stated before, Srila Prabhupada's direct and personal association (vani) is available to anyone, anywhere, anytime, simply by following his teachings. Srila Prabhupada is available now.

DIFFICULTY IN FINDING LIKE-MINDED ASSOCIATION OUTSIDE CORRUPTED ISKCON

DEVOTEE: I'm not afraid of the aloneness, but simply wonder how we can make it without living with like-minded Vaishnava company. DHIRA GOVINDA: This is definitely a challenge. I wish I had more satisfying answers. I reside in a rural community where more than 2000 people identify themselves as devotees. But there are very few I consider to be like-minded association. Of course, I'm glad to be friendly to practically everyone, and interact and associate, and appreciate. But as far as closely sharing and discussing, in the understanding of Srila Prabhupada as current link to the parampara- very few. I consider that it is an important part of my service to create such association, and we endeavor to do that, through various structures and programs, including mantra-yoga programs, morning devotional programs aligned with Srila Prabhupada's guidance, evening enlightenment programs, and of course the seminars and trainings of Satvatove Institute, including courses such as Nectar of Instruction and Bhagavad-gita: The Source of Transformative Communication. In these endeavors I've found that many people become eager to accept the principles and practices of bhakti-yoga into their life, as an organic integration of the self-realization and personal development efforts in which they're already engaged, and many, who already identify as devotees of Krishna, get to take a look, to examine paradigms that were previously unquestioned, often including opening up to, and embracing, Srila Prabhupada as their current link to the parampara. Jaya Prabhupada! (END)

PREDICTION: THE CORRUPTED INSTITUTION WILL NOT FLUORISH

All the false propaganda and pressure of intimidation about political correctness in ISKCON will ultimately, probably sooner rather than later, cause their insane and corrupt system to collapse or at worst, slowly fade away into oblivion (although we hope such a collapse will lead to a restoration). Srila Prabhupada's contribution in his books and teachings are simply too powerful to be covered by the deviant doctrines in ISKCON, and gradually more sincere devotees understand from Srila Prabhupada himself what is wrong in ISKCON. Eventually too many will see the light, and the fraud and corruption will be forced out by those sincere devotees who will insist on following Srila Prabhupada's actual instructions. All that needs be done is to continue the discussions, debates, sharing of Srila Prabhupada's gifts from his books, lectures, letters, and movies, and the hypocrisy and false propaganda will evaporate like the fog upon the rising of the Sun in the morning. SP: Similarly, sometimes after, he [Mao Tse Tung] will not be accepted. That is my proposition. As Russia is not accepted now, some days after, he will not be accepted. Similarly, your also theory will fail. That is my proposition. Because I challenge that your theory is not perfect. Because Russia's theory was not perfect, it has failed. Similarly, I say your theory is also imperfect, therefore it will fail. Anything imperfect will fail. That is my proposition. Revatinandana: His propaganda is that it is perfect because it has made the Chinese people... SP: Propaganda, by propaganda you can do anything. That is different thing. But fact is fact. If your theory is not perfect, you make however propaganda, it will fail. (Dialectic Spiritualism) "By propaganda you cannot suppress the truth. You cannot suppress fire by propaganda. [...] It is a fight, do not be afraid." (SPL Tamal Oct. 30, 1976) If sincere followers do what is in their power to simply repeat Srila Prabhupada's instructions and try to implement them according to their abilities, then Srila Prabhupada's mission will flourish, and those who do not will fade away in due course of time.

CHAPTER 158: DISOBEDIENCE, OFFENSES, NO AUTHORITY

(1) "A person who cannot keep his faith in the words of his spiritual master but acts independently never receives the authority to chant the holy name of the Lord. It is said in the Vedas (Svetasvatara Upanisad 6.23): yasya deve para bhaktir yatha deve tatha gurau tasyaite kathita hy arthah prakasante mahatmanah... 'Only unto those great souls who have implicit faith in both the Lord and the spiritual master are all the imports of Vedic knowledge automatically revealed.' This Vedic injunction is very important, and Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu supported it by His personal behavior.” (CC Adi 7.95-6 purport) (2) “A foolish person who manufactures his own ways and means through mental speculation and does not recognize the authority of the sages who lay down unimpeachable directions is simply unsuccessful again and again in his attempts. PURPORT: At the present moment it has become fashionable to disobey the unimpeachable directions given by the acaryas and liberated souls of the past. Presently people are so fallen that they cannot distinguish between a liberated soul and a conditioned soul. A conditioned soul is hampered by four defects: he is sure to commit mistakes, he is sure to become illusioned, he has a tendency to cheat others, and his senses are imperfect. Consequently we have to take direction from liberated persons. This Krishna consciousness movement directly receives instructions from the Supreme Personality of Godhead via persons who are strictly following His instructions.” (SBhag 4.18.5) (3) “So, when you change, then the authority is lost. Just like in our society, sometimes they do something nonsense and they say, ‘Prabhupada said.’ (laughter) They are doing that. We know that. It is deteriorated like that. [...] Now after my departure, if you do not do this, then it is lost. If you go on as you are doing now, then it will go on. But if you stop...” (SPConv May 9, 1975)

AUTHORITY IS LOST BY DISOBEDIENCE

The ISKCON GBC holds that they are the ultimate managerial and spiritual authority in ISKCON, deputed by Srila Prabhupada to fill his shoes and take his place in running the movement. They take it that the total GBC is identical to Srila Prabhupada and therefore authorized to modify what Srila Prabhupada gave us, and even to introduce those things that Srila Prabhupada specifically spoke against. The GBC is, in their estimation, the highest authority to decide all matters in lieu of Srila Prabhupada himself, even by innovative introductions, such as adulterative, unending book changes and vote approval methods of certifying diksha gurus, both of which Srila Prabhupada sternly warned against. As such they have not faithfully followed Srila Prabhupada’s instructions, but have disobeyed them with an idea that whatever they do is the same as if Srila Prabhupada did it. This is almost the same as thinking that I am God with absolute authority. What sheer foolishness. This attitude on the part of ISKCON’s misleaders has led to practically all of ISKCON’s problems today. The phrase “ultimate managing authority” from Srila Prabhupada’s Last Will has been grossly abused and misinterpreted. Rather than catch the essence of Srila Prabhupada’s instructions not to change anything, that “the management system shall go on as it is now,” the GBC decided, in a stupor of delusion, to tamper with the books, the deity worship, the method of parampara continuance, all unsupported by any specific instructions from His Divine Grace. They have spoiled everything and brazenly betrayed Srila Prabhupada’s trust, hopes, and expectations. And even after four decades of chaos and disasters, the GBC has still not come to realize the errors of their ways, and they continue to destroy more, little by little, of what is left, with their disobedience, offenses, and thus losing whatever authority they started with. Actually there are some indications of a “pause” in their march to doom, as some more conservative GBCs are now hesitant to adopt more innovations, such as approving female diksha gurus, having become weary of continual deviations.

The authority which Srila Prabhupada imparted to the GBC and his senior leaders was given in faith and trust, in the hope that it would not be misused. But it was misused, and their mandate was re-interpreted and stretched far beyond its limits. Tamal wrote about this: “Guru, sadhu, and shastra check and balance each other. But when the guru departs, sadhu and shastra can take on a new import, as those who succeed him become the new interpreters of past precedents, scriptural law, and the new set of circumstances.” Led by Tamal, the GBC has committed great offenses against Srila Prabhupada with many misdeeds of gross disobedience. Srila Prabhupada, with the authority that he gave in trust having been abused and betrayed, cannot at all be pleased. The consequences for displeasing the Acharya are ruination of one’s spiritual life and a halt to spiritual advancement. By imposing their disobedience and deviations upon all the devotees with a regime of repressive tyranny, the GBC has thwarted their spiritual advancement as well by entangling them in the society-wide offenses and deviations that they have imposed. These misleaders have failed the test of their responsibility, yet continue to make things worse with ever more new concoctions and disobedience.

DISOBEDIENCE OF THE BONAFIDE SPIRITUAL MASTER'S ORDERS

(1) “Regarding Kirtanananda, he is undoubtedly a good soul, but lately he has been attacked by maya; he thinks too much of himself— even at the risk of disobeying his spiritual master and talking nonsense about Krishna. As a man haunted by a ghost talks so much nonsense, so also when a man is overpowered by the illusory energy— maya, also talks all sorts of nonsense. The last attack of maya upon the conditioned souls is impersonalism. There are 4 stages of attack of maya; viz.: 1) [...] a protagonist of religion, 2) is that man neglects religiosity and tries to improve his economic development, 3) is to be protagonist of sense enjoyment & when a man is frustrated in all the above mentioned stages he comes to, 4) which is impersonalism, and thinks himself one with the Supreme. This last attack is very serious and fatal. Kirtanananda has very recently developed the 4th stage malady on account of his negligence and disobedience to his spiritual master. Sometimes a foolish patient when he is out of feverish attack by the grace of the physician, thinks that he is cured and does not take precaution against relapse. Kirtanananda's position is like that. Because he helped the society in starting the Montreal center I thought he is now able to start other branches and when he asked me to give him sannyasa I agreed taking the opportunity of his presence in Vrndavana. Simply by his Sannyas dress he thought himself as cured of all material diseases and all mistakes but under the influence of maya, he thought himself a liberated patient, just as the foolish patient thinks himself cured from the disease. Under the spell of maya, he deliberately disobeyed me by not going to London and consequently his disease has relapsed. Now in N.Y. he has began to dictate nonsense in my name— such as giving up robes, flags etc. Instead of opening new centers he has began to deliver his nonsense sermons amongst his Godbrothers which are all against our principles. For the present he should simply chant Hare Krishna and cease to deliver lectures because he has not understood the whole philosophy very nicely.” (SPL Pradyumna Oct. 17, 1967)

(2) “I saw a little tendency of being turned by foolish Kirtanananda. but I was confident that Kirtanananda was not so strong as he would be able to defeat you. I was completely confident of your sincerity of service and my choice of your being president of the society is right. I may disclose herewith that I never took Kirtanananda into complete confidence but I was trying to improve his position because he has also rendered much personal service to me. I am very much obliged to him for the service as I am to my other disciples and I am very sorry that Maya has taken advantage of his disobedience & he has fallen to Maya's illusion—but he should not continue for a very long time as I will always pray to Krishna for his recovery. For the time being he should simply chant Hare Krishna without any attempt at lecturing. The impersonalist cannot render any service to Krishna because he is a great offender. Under the circumstances, Krishna will not accept food prepared by Kirtanananda in his present diseased condition. If he at all wants to render service to Krishna he may be engaged at washing dishes and this will improve his condition.” (SPL Brahmananda Oct. 19, 1967)

(3) “So this is the process. That is the... You sing every day. Guru-mukha-padma-vakya, cittete koriya aikya. That is the process. Wherever you live, if you follow strictly the instruction of guru, then you remain perfect. But if we create, concoct ideas against the instruction of guru, then we are doomed, hell. Yasya prasada bhagavat-prasado yasyaprasadan na gatih kuto 'pi. There is no more shelter, finished. [...] If guru thinks that 'This person, I wanted to take him back to home, back to Godhead. Now he is going against me. He is not following,' aprasadat, he is displeased, then everything is finished.” (SPConv Feb. 3, 1975) (4) *“You have to carry out his order. That's all. God's representative is guru. So he's asking you to do this, to do that. If you do that, that is pleasing. [...] If you displease him, then you are nowhere. Therefore we worship guru... A guru should be accepted as God. That is the injunction of all sastras. (SPConv Feb. 27, 1972) (5) *“If he displeases Krishna's representative he has no entrance to Krishna's kingdom, however learned or whatever he may be. Immediately rejected. In a business office, suppose a secretary is there. A clerk does not accept the order of the secretary. Immediately he should be dismissed. In my personal experience, when I was young manager in a big chemical concern, one correspondent clerk, he disobeyed me. I reported to the head boss. He immediately came and he said, 'Get out immediately from the office.' And he wanted to plead in so many ways. Said, 'No, if you don't go out, then I shall call my doorman. He will forcibly get you out. Get out.' I was sorry because this man is dismissed immediately, but he took. Disobedient... 'Obedience is first discipline.' So if Krishna's representative is disobeyed- 'Get out immediately.' Krishna is very strict." (SPConv Dec. 12, 1970)

(6) "As soon as the disciple thinks independently, not caring for the instructions of the spiritual master, he is a failure." (SBhag 8.17.1 purport) "Somebody says that "Krishna appeared five thousand years ago. He's no longer present. Then how we shall execute Krishna's order?" Krishna's order can be executed by executing the order of the spiritual master. [...] We cannot disobey. [...] This is the process. In CC it has been very extensively explained what is the position of the spiritual master." (SPLecture Oct. 29, 1972) (7) "But when you accept a spiritual master, that is not allowed. Unless you cent percent agree with the spiritual master's opinion or philosophy, there is no need of accepting a spiritual master. There is no need." (SPLecture Nov. 27, 1968) (8) "A bona fide spiritual master is in the disciplic succession from time eternal, and he does not deviate at all from the instructions of the Supreme Lord as they were imparted millions of years ago to the Sun-god, from whom the instructions of Bhagavad-gita have come down to the earthly kingdom. One should, therefore, follow the path of BGita as it is expressed in the Gita itself and beware of self-interested people after personal aggrandizement who deviate others from the actual path..." (BGita 4.42)

Probably most Srila Prabhupada followers today believe the GBC has forfeited their claim and rights to the responsibility that Srila Prabhupada gave them, due to the total mismanagement and ruination they have effected upon ISKCON in their disobedience to his instructions. An ordinary temple president could have done much better, whereas even an entire body of thirty, supposedly senior men have caused such a horrible state of affairs in Srila Prabhupada's mission. This has now become an emergency crisis that the rank and file devotees MUST rebel against and correct themselves. "From now on unless I order you do something change or in addition, go on with the usual standard way. You manufacture ideas and then I have to waste my time. I have given you everything already, there is no need for you to add anything or change anything. Why you are asking these things? Who has given you such freedom?" (SPL Dhruvananda Jan. 4, 1973)

OFFENSES AND DISOBEDIENCE LEAD TO LOSS OF A DISCIPLE'S AUTHORITY

Srila Prabhupada speaks about disobedience to the guru, which causes one to lose his "authority." "Authority is your spiritual master. You do not know who is authority? Why this question is there? If one is initiated, then he accepted the authority. And if he does not follow the instruction of spiritual master, he is a rascal. He is defying the authority. That's all. [...] A siksha-guru who instructs against the instruction of spiritual, he is not a siksha guru. He is a demon. Siksha guru, diksha guru means... Sometimes a diksha guru is not present always. Therefore one can take learning, instruction, from an advanced devotee. That is called the siksha guru. Siksha guru does not mean he is speaking something against the teachings of the diksha guru. He is not a siksha guru. He is a rascal. Because that is offense. Guror avajna. [...] defying the authority of guru. This is the first offense. So one who is offensive, how he can make advance in chanting? He cannot make. Then everything is finished in the beginning. [...] If one is disobeying the spiritual master, he cannot remain in the pure status of life. He cannot be siksha guru or anything else. He is finished, immediately. Guror avajna sruti-shastra-nindanam, namno balad yasya hi... You do not study all these things. You become initiated. There are ten kinds of offenses. Do you have any regard for these things or not? You must avoid these ten kinds of offenses. The first offense is to disobey the orders of guru. [...] So if you are offensive, how you can become advanced by chanting? That is also not possible." (SPConv July 4, 1974)

Clearly, spiritual advancement is checked by disobeying the guru, which is offensive. One who instructs contrary to Srila Prabhupada's instructions is not a siksha but a demon. So much for anyone's sentimental ideas that the GBC means well despite their imperfections. They are broadly teaching the members of the Hare Krishna movement contrary to what Srila Prabhupada taught. This is demoniac, offensive, and blocks everyone's spiritual advancement. "Kirtanananda may be eager to address in the Harvard University but recently he has lost his link on account of disobedience. You sing every day morning that by the mercy of the Spiritual master one can please the Lord and one who has not pleased the spiritual master cannot have any access in the realm of Krishna Consciousness. [he] has developed a different consciousness of Maya which is called misuse of one's minute independence offered by Krishna. [...] becomes a victim of Maya and thus he loses all importance in Krishna Consciousness. So it is my definite opinion that his lecture anywhere now will bear no spiritual sequence. He must rectify his mistake before he can play in our Society any important role. By lips he says that he is a surrendered soul but by action he is thinking differently." (SPL, Oct 6, 1967)

Here we see that anything a disciple does after he seriously disobeys the guru's orders cannot be beneficial because he "loses all importance in Krishna consciousness." If we displease Srila Prabhupada then one cannot have "any access to the spiritual realm." "So long as one is engaged in devotional service, he is immune to the reactions of his past sinful activities, but if he chooses to give up this devotional service, then he has to undergo all these reactions" (SPL Nityananda Nov. 12, 1971) If one gives up devotional service, such as by disobeying the guru, he is no longer protected from his previous karma, meaning he becomes entangled again in the material world. "One may understand or not understand; if he is actually engaged in Krishna's service, under the direction of spiritual master, he is liberated. But if he voluntarily accepts again maya's service, then he is become conditioned. This is the secret." (Plotinus, discussed with Hayagriva, 1972)

"In pure devotional service, the only motive should be to please the Supreme Personality of Godhead. That is not actually a motive; that is the pure condition of the living entity. In the conditioned stage, when one engages in devotional service, he should follow the instruction of the bona fide spiritual master in full surrender. The spiritual master is the manifested representation of the Supreme Lord because he receives and presents the instructions of the Lord, as they are, by disciplic succession. [...] the teachings ...should be received by disciplic succession, otherwise there is adulteration. To act under the direction of a bona fide spiritual master with a motive to satisfy the Supreme Personality of Godhead is pure devotional service. But if one has a motive for personal sense gratification, his devotional service is manifested differently. Such a man may be violent, proud, envious and angry, and his interests are separate from the Lord's." (SBhag 3.29.8 purport) When one does not act under Srila Prabhupada's directions or has a motive for sense gratification (both of which apply to ISKCON's guru system), he becomes conditioned again, and then his service deteriorates, with pride, envy, anger, personal ambition, etc. This is the description of ISKCON's condition where the general quality of participants declines as the institution becomes increasingly disobedient.

"Yes. If you don't follow the instruction of guru, then you are fallen down immediately. That is the way. Otherwise why you sing, yasya praadad bhagavat-prasado. It is my duty to satisfy guru. Otherwise I am nowhere. So if you prefer to be nowhere, then you disobey as you like. But if you want to be steady in your position, then you have to follow strictly the instruction of guru." (SP Feb. 3, 1975)

In ISKCON it is commonly stated that one who is following properly the orders of Srila Prabhupada, then he is considered on the liberated platform and can act as an initiating guru. But Srila Prabhupada never said that. Is ISKCON's guru system following Srila Prabhupada's instructions? The answer is no. One who has deliberately disobeyed the wishes and intent of his spiritual master is simply cheating. ISKCON leaders have cheated their membership with deviations for four decades. "Brahma praises Kardama because he carried out the orders of the spiritual master in toto and without cheating. A conditioned soul in the material world has [...] four disqualifications: he is sure to commit mistakes, he is sure to be illusioned, he is prone to cheat others, and his senses are imperfect. But if one carries out the order of the spiritual master by disciplic succession, or the parampara system, he overcomes the four defects. Therefore, knowledge received from the bona fide spiritual master is not cheating. Any other knowledge which is manufactured by the conditioned soul is cheating only.” (SBhag 3.24.12 purport) “If you can please your spiritual master, then you know that God, or Krishna, is pleased. [...] And if you cannot please your spiritual master, then you must know that you do not know your whereabouts. You do not know where you are going.” (SPL Sept. 25, 1968)

Disobedience to Srila Prabhupada’s orders results in a “whereabouts unknown” status. This is the actual condition of everyone in ISKCON, both misleaders and their following. Srila Prabhupada gives a great warning to those who would pose themselves as initiating spiritual masters. He never gave any order nor specific instruction for disciples to take on the role of initiating new disciples. This is all maya. The quotes below reveal the presence in the Hare Krishna Movement of those who pose as devotees, yet are simply persons meant to destroy the works of Srila Prabhupada. There are different types of “devotees.” Some use Srila Prabhupada’s assets for their own selfish purposes, and others want to serve Srila Prabhupada’s purposes. These two kinds of devotees are in the Hare Krishna Movement. (1) “...It is also said, phalena paricyate one’s success or defeat in any activity is understood by its result. There are many karmis in the dress of devotees, but the Supreme Personality of Godhead can detect their purpose. The karmis want to use the property of the Lord for their selfish sense gratification, but a devotee endeavors to use the Lord’s property for God’s service. Therefore a devotee is always distinct from the karmis, although the karmis may dress like devotees... A karmi, however, although externally working like a devotee, is entangled in his nondevotional activity, and thus he suffers the tribulations of material existence. Thus from the results achieved by the karmis and devotees, one can understand the presence of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, who acts differently for the karmis and jnanis than for the devotees.” (CC Mad 19.157 purport) (2) “An actual Vaishnava is very pleased to accept another Vaishnava who is bestowing the Lord’s mercy. A mundane person in the dress of a Vaishnava should not be respected but rejected. This is enjoined in the shastra (upeksha). The word upeksha means neglect. One should neglect an envious person. A preacher’s duty is to love the Supreme Personality of Godhead, make friendships with Vaishnavas, show mercy to the innocent and reject or neglect those who are envious or jealous. There are many jealous people in the dress of Vaishnavas in this Krishna consciousness movement, and they should be completely neglected. There is no need to serve a jealous person who is in the dress of a Vaishnava. When Narottama dasa Thakura say chadiya vaishnava seva [...] he is indicating an actual Vaishnava, not an envious or jealous person in the dress of a Vaishnava.” (SBhag 8.9.28 purport)

From these statements by Srila Prabhupada the conclusion is that anything anybody does has value if it is connected to the parampara through loving devotional service under Srila Prabhupada’s order, and if Srila Prabhupada is pleased with it. If Srila Prabhupada is not pleased, then there is no progress. It is very doubtful whether ISKCON participants are making spiritual advancement, any at all, because of the offenses, disobedience, deviations, and abuse of authority which takes place in the institution, inspite of chanting Hare Krishna and reading Srila Prabhupada’s books. Of course, if a devotee is sincerely trying without ulterior motives, nothing can obstruct his devotional progress. But this is very difficult to accomplish under the heavy, miasmatic ISKCON atmosphere. It is no wonder so many thousands prefer to pursue their Krishna consciousness outside ISKCON, carefully choosing their association. If the ISKCON leadership wants to have spiritual authority, they must understand and accept that Srila Prabhupada remains the supreme authority in all matters in ISKCON, and give up their deviated interpretations and concoctions which are not supported nor authorized in Srila Prabhupada’s teachings. The GBC cannot act as the new Srila Prabhupada; they are but managers, trustees, and executors of His Divine Grace’s will, not the “new interpreters.”

OFFENSES AND DISOBEDIENCE ARE RAMPANT IN ISKCON TODAY

Srila Prabhupada warned his senior men to be vigilant and strong to avoid deviations. SP: Just now everything is going on, but after my demise it may be taken away from your hand. I understood it long ago... So how are you going to guard yourself? That is the problem. Bhavananda: There will be men, I know. There will be men who want to try to pose themselves as guru. SP: Very strong management is required and vigilant observation. [Ironic that Bhavananda posed as one of those false gurus just a few months later.]

“They say that this movement is run on the basis of GBC authority, but Prabhupada says it is on authority of Bhagavad Gita and Bhagwatam. Now everything has become degenerated in politics, material development, expansion.” (Gurukripa das, 2009) What are the deviations/ disobediences in ISKCON today? (see Ch. 118-145) Some examples: (1) Providing for initiations in the future with several evolving, concocted systems, the last being a vote-approval process with seminars and retreats to approve volunteers as a new guru (2) Thousands of ongoing changes to Srila Prabhupada’s books with no end in sight, often changing the changes too (3) Changing the deity worship and watching as the kirtans morph into sahajiya nonsense (4) Subjugation of Srila Prabhupada’s authority and teachings to speculative GBC concoctions (5) Srila Prabhupada is dead and gone, we now need new interpreters of shastra and parampara and physically alive diksha gurus.

A TIME OF DIFFICULTY AND STRUGGLE IS AHEAD

It appears that a time of great difficulty and struggle for truth lies ahead for the Hare Krishna movement. The powerful GBC-guru cartel that controls ISKCON will not give up their positions without resistance to the very end. Part 17 studies the restoration or “house-cleaning” of Srila Prabhupada’s mission. Demonic authoritarianism and repression are increasing in the current times. Modern technology is being used to deprive people of truth, knowledge, and history and we face a period of chaos and great difficulties as the struggle between truth and evil intensifies in the world. This will be reflected in the corrupted ISKCON as well. Over the next several decades we may see a gradual purification of the Hare Krishna movement as prominent gurus pass away and the general devotees become more educated and experienced in their understanding of Srila Prabhupada’s instructions and intentions, and they become more focused on how to implement them. The movement may polarize further into two prominent camps: one ISKCON with vote-approved, self-appointed gurus, and another ISKCON with Srila Prabhupada as the sole diksha and current link guru. Eventually one will wither and the other will thrive, which we suspect will be the latter.

Most devotees are readily equipped to recognize evil when they see it directly. What they are not equipped for and must learn from experience and realization is how to recognize evil in some disguise, even disguised as spirituality. This requires devotees to seriously study and discuss Srila Prabhupada’s teachings. If someone is blessed by the parampara and Srila Prabhupada, he will succeed and prosper in Krishna consciousness. If someone is deviated, disobedient to Srila Prabhupada’s instructions and intentions, he will dwindle and fade away. Many cheaters may be able to variously interpret Srila Prabhupada’s instructions, but sincerity is required to understand the actual intentions and true purposes. For example, one can find many quotes that Srila Prabhupada seemingly wanted his followers to become gurus and make disciples themselves, and if one is ambitious in this regard, he will gloss over the clear requirement of getting “the order” before assuming the post of an initiating guru, and that a diksha guru must be a fully liberated pure devotee.

WE DO NOT CONDONE VIOLENCE IN CHANGING THE OLD ORDER

The question arises about how the ISKCON power-elite will cede their positions without use of force. After all, the dreaded acharya disease is not cured by good reason or spiritual arguments.

“So without revolution... you cannot change old order. ‘Old orders changes giving place to new.’ That old order changes. Everywhere it is by violence. The Mahabharata also, the battle of Kuruksetra. Krishna was there. He tried to settle up. But it was not settled without violence... Krishna also comes... for killing the demons.” (SPConv Dec. 30, 1973) It is a fact that historically most of the time the entrenched systems and regimes of corruption and decadence only give way to reformation and change for the better via the agency of force and violence. The world is full of constant wars and the exercise of great force in search of victory for one’s purposes. It must be admitted that a full restoration of Srila Prabhupada’s mission could very well only come about by these means. Although we do not condone or promote violence or force, we recognize that likely it will unavoidably come to that, even if no one wants it. Sulochan and others lost their lives in the struggle for truth, and it is unlikely they will be the only ones to do so. The preferred method for exacting positive changes in the spiritual mission is by preaching and “truth-telling,” and these books are an attempt to do that. Force to remove the previous regime usually leads to another repressive regime, but by appealing to the goodness and intelligence of sincere spiritual seekers, a revolution of consciousness can be achieved. Srila Prabhupada did it, with his style of determination, hard work, and loving kindness, and so this is our preferred path forward. History also has examples of non-violent revolution, like the fall of the Iron Curtain in 1989.

TAMAL’S ESSAY: PERILS OF SUCCESSION (excerpt)

“The departure of ISKCON's charismatic founder traumatised the Society's entire membership and [...] inaugurated an extended struggle to resolve the issue of authority. His death was not sudden, but followed a protracted illness lasting a year. Though devotees had enough time to prepare themselves for the inevitable conclusion, their total dependence upon Prabhupada left them deeply shaken by his absence. The aftershocks were felt [...] individually and on ISKCON as a whole. Prabhupada had warned that the acharya's departure is a great loss to the world; the spiritual vacuum thus created would be the cause of havoc in his institution, a view confirmed by the history of the Gaudiya Matha. But despite such warnings, ISKCON's leaders acted hastily to fill the void created by Prabhupada's departure. No doubt they were motivated by one of Prabhupada's final requests that they at least maintain what he had left them. Yet immaturity and, on the part of some, desire and ambition, led to the establishment of a zonal acharya system in the 1980s which threatened to leave ISKCON as divided as the Gaudiya Matha. [...] all the heresies of continuity concern the problems of preservation of tradition- whether during the founder's time (between his predecessors and himself) and during the time of his disciples (between the founder and themselves). Though the tradition's beliefs are at the forefront of these issues, the question of authority is no less an issue here than it was with the previous heresies, for arbiters must be there to decide exactly how traditions are to continue.”

With amazing aloofness, an unaccountable Tamal muses about the chaos after Srila Prabhupada’s departure as though he himself had little to do with it- “immaturity” in self-declared acharyas? “Some” desire and ambition, as though this is in the past? Srila Prabhupada had made very clear how things were to go on, but Tamal and his band of ambitious poisoners of the Acharya completely neglected those instructions and established their own private guru enterprises. They disregarded the Acharya’s authority and instructions and substituted their own concocted idea that the composite GBC was now the new authority to re-interpret parampara continuity as they liked. The heresy was within, from Tamal and company’s deviation from the standard instructions Srila Prabhupada had made so clear, and not the deviations that the GBC had to confront from the outside. As IRM’s Krishnakant characterized: “Tamal, the master at peril.”

Tamal continues: “...We have seen that much of the debate over authority and continuity has focused on this issue: namely, whether current GBC members and gurus are spiritually qualified. This same question will undoubtedly continue to be raised when considering ongoing succession. As the present generation of gurus expires, how will each of their disciplic lines be perpetuated? [...] Though the GBC is now well established as the legitimate successors to the founder-acharya, Srila Prabhupada, the mechanics of further succession, if left unresolved, are potentially schismatic. [...] ISKCON will continue to wrestle with knotty philosophical issues. Splinter organisations, which began as Gaudiya Matha grafts, offer nuanced understandings of Prabhupada's teachings. [...] scriptural statements are broad enough, no matter how carefully they are translated to allow for a wide spectrum of interpretation. No provision, no matter how carefully prepared, can avoid diversity of opinion, as the history of every religion testifies. A quick perusal of the heresies in this brief survey illustrates the well-known truth that history repeats itself. Whatever heretical issue Prabhupada resolved had to be dealt with again after his departure. There is nothing to suggest that the future will be different.”

Spiritual qualification begins with obedience to Srila Prabhupada's instructions, which Tamal admitted in 1980 that the GBC had not followed. Tamal nor the GBC need worry about the mechanics of succession- these issues arise from their disobedience in concocting unnecessary methodologies of parampara continuance. If the Acharya's orders are followed, there is no need of interpretation, provision, or risk of heresy. Tamal's bloviations try to hide their deviations, and he speculates uselessly how to solve the problems that he thinks naturally follow the disappearance of the Acharya. However, he and the GBC, by their deviations and disobedience, are the real problem that derailed the mission from Srila Prabhupada's charted path for the ISKCON institution and the Hare Krishna movement.

CHAPTER 159: POLITICS, FORCE, AND VIOLENCE

The zonal acharya decade 1978-1987 bred an atmosphere of "anything goes" wherein the gurus and their loyal followers were engaged in all types of legal or illegal activities "for Krishna." The use of "politics" became almost universal in the movement, whereby ISKCON gurus and their followers used duplicity, betrayal, heavy-handedness, and deceit to get their way in overcoming all opposition. ISKCON had become a cult in the derogatory sense where fanaticism prevailed and the Krishna consciousness that Srila Prabhupada had taught was covered and obscured by all manner of irregularities and anomalies. Below only touches upon some of what happened and still goes on in the ISKCON society today. Since the zonal acharya era, the politics, force, and violence in ISKCON has become increasingly subtle and hidden, but still fully present. These things are now systemic, institutional, legalized, and formalized. "You all should co-operate and then things will go on very nicely. We should not bring in politics. That is a very nasty thing." (SPL Sukadeva Sept. 18, 1975)

MURDERS OF DEVOTEES

In New Vrindaban there were a series of murders, including missing persons who were never found. Confirmed and suspected murders included: Sulochan (Ch. 99), Chakradhari, Randall Gorby, Tarudas, and at least three others (1980-1986). This is partly documented in Monkey On A Stick by Hubner & Gruson, 1988. Besides the conviction of Tirtha das for two murders as the unofficial "enforcer" of New Vrindaban's administration headed by Kirtanananda, several other New Vrindaban devotees in the administration at that time were sentenced to jail, or received reduced sentences or immunity, including Dharmatma, Kuladri, Dulal Chandra, and Tapopunjab. Radhanath Swami was never charged, although deeply involved in Sulochan's murder arrangements, according to multiple testimonies. Hayagriva evaded prosecution when he died in 1989. Kirtanananda was jailed 1996-2004 after Tirtha das decided to testify against him. And (p. 259): "Taru disappeared during the winter of 1980. ...Devotees were told not to mention his name. Sargeant Westfall heard the rumors and quietly made inquiries. But he couldn't get a lead on what had happened to Taru. 'I have had a revelation,' Kirtanananda announced one day, 'I dreamed that Taru has gone to India and jumped into the confluence of the three holy rivers. He has drowned.' Taru was never seen or heard from again."

Also there was the unsolved murder of Jiva das, the leader of Hansadutta's women's collection party around 1979. He was found in a California river after many years of illegal activities and abuse of women devotees, all with the knowledge of the local ISKCON authorities. Caturbahu das from New Orleans temple in 1986 was tied to a chair at his French Quarter art gallery at night and murdered by knife. The police said it was clearly an inside job. Rumors pointed to a German tough-guy "devotee" who had been in New Orleans that day and who was known as an "enforcer" agent of some of the zonal acharyas. It was said Caturbahu uncovered a drug importing operation by some gurus, using his business as a front, and his murder remains unsolved.

"The further a society drifts from the truth, the more it will hate those that speak it."
-George Orwell

SOME INCIDENTS OF VIOLENCE, ARSON, FRAUD, AND FORCE

(1) Jadurani was badly beaten in New Vrindaban by fanatical followers of Kirtanananda (with his consent) because they felt she was offensive to their pure devotee guru. This was months after she had been forcibly kidnapped and driven out of Los Angeles by Ramevara's men (1980). (2) Various scams were developed by some of the zonal gurus to collect large amounts of money through fraud or copyright infringements. The FBI raided New Vrindaban in late 1986. (3) In New Vrindaban there were many unexplained house fires, some set by local hoodlums, but most were for insurance claims or attempted murder. The community leadership including Kirtanananda was involved. Nityananda das from the Mississippi farm openly heard about the insurance fires. The full range of illegalities in New Vrindaban is chronicled in a book series by Henry Doktorski. (4) Rival devotee collecting parties travelling in vans would sometimes cross paths, such as those sent out by Kirtanananda, Ramevara, or Hansadutta, and the result was often slashed tires, raided warehouses, harsh threats, and physical fights. There was no brotherly love between some of the parties involved. (5) Jayapataka's followers have been implicated in incidents of violence, under the influence or instruction of their guru. Bomb explosion in Mayapur, mysterious poisoning in Malaysia to take over valuable property, suspicious suicide in a Bengal prison, and more. (6) Other incidents in North Carolina circa 1997-98 are described in Ch. 49: Bearing False Witness. (7) The dirty politics, force, duplicity in ISKCON continues to this day, but the open violence and murders have been left behind while the movement has "matured." The history of these irregularities would require volumes to do even partial justice, so widespread were the irregularities in the Society by those who had hijacked the mission. (8) "In the Phillipines a fanatic Hansadutta follower (Ripughna) tried to kill me for preaching against his so-called guru. I barely escaped with my life. Ripughna chased me out of the temple, running after me, madly wielding a bush-knife (Bolo), myself escaping to the main road, flagging down a car which brought me to Cebu City where I hid in a guest house for three days. I was told that Uthal das was ordered to liquidate Jitarati (who funded the Cebu Temple) and have his corpse disposed of into the ocean near Cebu City. But Uthal's helper refused to do this." (Urdhvaga das, 2000)

Jitarati's planned murder by roadside rifle fire was confirmed by many local Phillipines devotees.

POISONING SRILA PRABHUPADA SHOWS THEY WILL DO ANYTHING

Now that the poisoning of Srila Prabhupada has been established beyond doubt with scientific and forensic evidence, it can be understood what kind of men have taken over the Hare Krishna movement; some are murderers, and some are demons who are prepared to commit the worst of all crimes. After the poisoning of their spiritual master, the hijacked movement witnessed all types of mayhem: physical and sexual abuse of the children, abuse of women (including prostitution and virtual slavery), insurance fraud, murders, beatings, theft, adulterating Srila Prabhupada's sacred books, etc. Let no one doubt the evil nature of some of those who have taken over Srila Prabhupada's mission. While Duryodhana was evil, Bishma and Drona were complicit.

REMOVING A TEMPLE PRESIDENT AND THE FLOATING VYASASANA

In Nov. 1983, Rupanuga das, co-GBC for ISKCON's New Talavan farm, asked Nityananda das (temple president who started the farm in 1974) to help the Tennessee Murari Sevak farm project by taking 70 of their cows which they could not care for. The reply was "not over my dead body." New Talavan already had 80 cows, and was short of pasture and manpower. Why not help the Tennessee farm so they could meet their own responsibilities instead of weakening another project and rewarding the limited success of New Talavan with the disincentive of forced burdens shifted from irresponsible others who had mismanaged and failed?

In late Dec., co-GBC Jayapataka Swami called Nityananda das to New Orleans for a meeting. Avoiding eye contact, mesmerized by the first laptop computer in ISKCON, he explained that the farm project had not been expanding very well, that two of the farm men had appealed to him, and that he thought the New Orleans temple president Vrikodara das should also be responsible for managing the farm. Under one leadership, both projects could develop nicely, he said. Shocked, Nityananda protested that the two projects had originally been under his joint supervision, and he had started them both, but that a former GBC had insisted they be run separately, resulting in the farm being isolated and cut off from the city temple for the last 8 years. New Talavan had struggled, with no interaction from New Orleans temple except for an annual swim party. All these years, Vrikodara das, who Nityananda had trained and installed in New Orleans, had isolated and shunned the farm project. Now he was cleverly colluding with Jayapataka to depose Nityananda and take over the farm too. It was a variation of the same disease: kill guru, become guru, but it was remove president, become president. Vrikodara's hero was Kirtanananda and he had drunk of the ambitiousness that was prevalent amongst ISKCON leaders. Jayapataka wanted Vrikodara in charge of the farm because Nityananda had an "open guru" policy that allowed the farm devotees to choose a guru other than he. It was a political coup. Nityananda was not Jayapataka's man whereas Vrikodara was his man.

Nityananda appealed to co-GBC Rupanuga, who remained "neutral," saying: "See no evil, hear no evil, speak no evil." He accepted the betrayal- a rejection of his 13 years in New Orleans and New Talavan- with a depressed, angry mind. The GBCs urged him to focus on his incense business to support the farm financially while it would be better managed by an ambitious protégé whom he had recruited 12 years earlier. There was no discussion, no sympathy, just a cold notice of being replaced. This was what happened to Godbrothers who were not sold-out supporters of the new gurus. Then late one night in early Feb. 1984, a huge two-level cattle truck secretly unloaded 70 cows from ISKCON's Tennessee farm into New Talavan's north pastures. Tattva Darshan called to explain he had been engaged by Jayapataka Swami in arranging the moving of cows. He apologized; he was just doing his service. Nityananda das was furious, and arranged the hire of another cattle truck to take the cows back to Tennessee. However, when the truck arrived, Vamanadeva das was waiting with his pickup truck blocking the pasture gate, and he claimed to have GBC authority to physically prevent the reloading of the cows. He could do nothing- he had been effectively removed as temple president, undercut by the New Orleans temple president's coup, and sidelined by the two co-GBC men Jayapataka Swami and Rupanuga das. The bewildered devotees made no protest to the GBC decision.

How could these leaders do this? They were using ruthless, dirty politics with long time, pioneering temple presidents. They wanted only "yes" men or their disciples in all positions. Nityananda had a policy of using several gurus to initiate farm devotees so no one of them could become too powerful. Angry, he could not restrain himself. During the noon worship, he backed up his Volvo station wagon to the temple door. Offering obeisances to Srila Prabhupada and the deities, with a rush of adrenaline he picked up the monstrous, new guru's Vyasasana, dragged it out the door, and pushed it into the back of his Volvo, driving off down the road with devotees staring aghast and the hatchback door bouncing. Ten miles away, on the Bogalusa River bridge, he stopped. Shouting "Hare Krishna!" and "Haribol!" he tossed the red velvet chair of the zonal acharyas into the dark, murky river. He watched as it floated right side up into the vast, forbidding cypress swamps of the Louisiana bayou country. Unfortunately, it was only a symbolic. No one dared speak about this incident, but he freely admitted to all what he had done. Two weeks later he was driving east into the rising sun, and an epiphany inspired him to leave ISKCON and start all over. He began planning a new project and future without the GBC or gurus, their blind followers, being loyal only to Srila Prabhupada.

THE WAREHOUSE AND HOME BREAK-INS AND THE STOLEN VOLVO

During the first half of 1984, Nityananda das made plans for a new farm property to restart his service to Srila Prabhupada by developing another rural devotee community. While still residing on the New Talavan farm, he rented a storage unit in the nearby town and went there daily to pack and ship incense orders he had gotten by phone calls. He made the mortgage payments and covered the New Talavan farm expenses, but kept aside excess profits for a new project. No GBC nor Vrikodara from New Orleans came to see him or phone him. Not sure what to do, Nityananda called Vrikodara several times, who said they were waiting for him to turn over the incense business, checkbooks, and bank accounts. Stalling, Nityananda was in no mood to lose his incense business, developed since 1971- he considered it was his to use in Krishna's service, and he was very upset about the slick coup by which he had been sidelined. Soon he had a down payment ready and began to go out looking at properties west of New Talavan. The word reached Vrikodara and the GBC. One morning Nityananda found his town warehouse had been broken into and cleaned out. The cost of stolen goods was $10,000, and he soon ascertained the work to be that of an unstable farm devotee, Tarachandra das, and a GBC "enforcer" and heavy-guy who had been in New Talavan that week. The theft was reported to the police but to no avail. Vrikodara claimed to know nothing. Then his residence was broken into and many items taken: ham radio, photocopier, TV and so on. He left with his family on July 9, 1984.

He was finally pushed out. Three hours away, Nityananda rented an apartment in Louisiana and resumed his incense sales from home. The savings were slowly increasing. He felt bad about abandoning the farm mortgages, which were high due to purchase of about 1000 acres over the past few years. But they wanted the farm without him, so they now would have to face the responsibility that had been yanked away from him. Around 3 AM one morning, the Volvo, full of merchandise, ready for a road sales trip, disappeared from in front of the apartment. The GBC enforcers had struck again. The merchandise: $5000. Nityananda bought a new vehicle and found Tarachandra selling the stolen goods to his clients. New Talavan went into competition with Nityananda, with Vrikodara, making phone calls to the same customers. With not even a discussion or meeting; it was break-in, theft, instant enemies, dirty politics, power grabbing, and undercutting competition.

Within a year Vrikodara and New Talavan were out of the incense business due to their own mismanagement. An anonymous call informed that the stolen Volvo was at a local parking lot. The insurance company took it. A year later, the Mississippi New Jaipur farm project was begun, lasting from 1985 to 1992. It became the first Prabhupada Anuga community of devotees who accepted Srila Prabhupada as the sole diksha guru for the Hare Krishna movement. Vrikodara accused in a newspaper article that Nityananda das had left New Talavan with a large sum of embezzled cash, which was untrue. All funds were earned from his own incense sales after the break-in. Vrikodara das, who had the backing of the GBCs Jayapataka, Kirtanananda, and Hridayananda, was the real thief. He in turn was ousted by devotees two years later. Later Nityananda came to see how he had escaped the polluting association of Srila Prabhupada's poisoners and their ambitious supporters. He took the entire episode as Krishna's mercy on him.

PARTNERS IN CRIME AND THE CODE OF SILENCE

One thing common across the criminal dimension (to which we assert and qualify ISKCON to be a part of) is the use of an implicit or explicit oath which exacts cultural, institutional, or group pressure to ensure members remain loyal, remain silent, and do not reveal "company" secrets. For example, the Sicilian Mafia, having existed for centuries, has one of the most powerful oaths, that perhaps has contributed to its survival despite attempts by several governments to eradicate it. The oath is known as OMERTÀ- a code of silence and secrecy that forbids members from betraying their 'brothers' to authorities or rivals. The penalty for breaking this oath is death. That, however, does not end there, as family members of the traitor are also punished by death. And if a betrayal is grave, his entire kinsmen may be wiped out. What are the 5 codes of Omertà? 1). A Code of Silence: never to "rat out" any Mafia members. Never to divulge any mafia secrets. 2). Complete obedience to the boss and his orders, no matter what. 3). To provide any necessary assistance to any other respected or befriended Mafia faction. 4). Any attacks on family members must go avenged. "An attack on one, is an attack on all." 5). Avoid contact with the authorities. In their strongholds, the group imposes the oath on the whole population. Residents are expected to remain silent, or be punished by death. A Sicilian proverb: "He who is deaf, blind, and silent will live a hundred years in peace."

In ISKCON, in lieu of the threat of death, there are effective substitutes employed: Disgrace before all your friends, fear-mongering of spiritual catastrophes (e.g., blasphemy), the principle that only those in "good standing" may avail of institutional benefits such as social life, salaries, positions and prestige, and ultimately the promise and reward of guruship (this is no small thing and the ultimate Siren song). This is why none of the original 11 zonal acharyas have spoken out about their offenses and deviations if one inattentively fails to conform to institutional directives and policies rather than his own conscience and intelligence (3) Fear of loss of friendship, social life, salary, prestige and position if one fails to conform in this way. In compiling this book we were met with countless instances of devotees who were intimidated and fearful of speaking their minds or giving historical facts as they experienced them. LIES: ISKCON is a network of lies and contradictions, of half-truths and make-believe, as the general membership adjusts their inclinations to honesty and straightforwardness to the hypocrisies of the institutional management that serves its ruling elite of self-made unauthorised gurus. As an example of the lies in ISKCON, there is the GBC endorsed book NTIAP denying there is ANY evidence that Srila Prabhupada was poisoned, discouraging any further investigation or discussion with the threat of expulsion. OPPRESSION: The threat is always there-locally and societywise- as soon as one does not officially conform to institutional policies, one may be expelled, losing all facilities of residence, maintenance, association, position and devotional service, and even one's good name. One is not allowed to discuss edict-forbidden philosophical issues. This is a cult tyranny. Everything in ISKCON is for the benefit of their unauthorised guru. Srila Prabhupada is minimized in deference to the "new links in the parampara."

ABUSIVE CO-DEPENDENCY AND STOCKHOLM SYNDROME

"It is very shocking how normally sober devotees are so attached in their co-dependency with the corrupted and abusive GBC, despite so much chaos, deviation, and pain. I remember a meeting with the Board of Directors in Alachua. A lady who had supported the resolution regarding The Humble Guru, and the Statement of No Confidence, started to feel pressure from the community. So, we were discussing issues, particularly related to Srila Prabhupada as fully available as the current link to the parampara, for anyone in his movement for all generations in his movement. And, suddenly, in a rush of fear, she just blurted out, 'I just trust the GBC more than I trust us.' And that was her final statement. Her stance became, essentially, 'Whatever comes down from the international GBC regarding guru issues, I'm sure they got it right, and let's just follow. Let's trust them.' Good sense does not prevail over blind fear and negative emotions." (Dhira Govinda das)

It is also curious that even after countless traumatic experiences at the hands of ISKCON's GBC and misleaders, some devotees, particularly those still in the institution, develop characteristics of "Stockholm Syndrome." Easily recognized in ISKCON, Wikipedia describes: "Stockholm syndrome, or capture-bonding, is a psychological phenomenon in which hostages express empathy and sympathy with positive feelings toward their captors, sometimes to the point of defending and identifying with the captors. These feelings are generally considered irrational in light of the danger, risk, or abuse endured by the victims, who essentially mistake a lack of abuse from their captors for an act of kindness. ...roughly 8% of victims show evidence of Stockholm syndrome. It can be seen as a form of traumatic bonding, which does not necessarily require a hostage scenario, but which describes 'strong emotional ties that develop between two persons where one person intermittently harasses, beats, threatens, abuses, or intimidates the other.' ...the bonding is the individual's response to trauma in becoming a victim. Identifying with the aggressor is one way that the ego defends itself. When a victim believes the same values as the aggressor, they cease to be perceived as a threat."

Co-dependency and Stockholm Syndrome require the support of neutral persons to assist the victim in breaking their psychological attachment and dependency towards their abusers. Devotees who have been thus traumatized require gentle affection and patience to help them return to reality. In this way everyone should be kind to those who have been thus conditioned by ISKCON's 45 years of crazy misleadership, abuse, tyranny, and chaos. Devotees trapped in an abusive relationship with the corrupted and deviant GBC often unreasonably support that leadership, but may be freed if given positive alternatives and are shown kindness and spiritual love by other devotees. Sharing the facts and truth is essential. It also can take 5-15 years out of ISKCON before a devotee is able to shed the conditioning and indoctrinations received while in ISKCON.

THE DEVOTEES ARE FIGHTING BACK, DOWN UNDER (AUSTRALIA)

Subhalaksmi dasi in Nov. 2016 wrote of the Australian devotees confronting the Australian GBC and leaders, wanting to remove them by use of the voting rights provided in the DOM (Ch. 161).

"The fight is going well. I am now in Adelaide and networking. As stated, I will have the media, police, Member of Parliament, Women's Organizations, Lawyers, etc all lined up BEFORE we release a video publicly. In the process of networking, many different informations of ISKCON corruption are coming to our attention. Our aim is not just to force the removal of the present Adelaide temple president but also the long serving GBC man Ramai Swami. Great focus and determination is required from me. Ramai Swami has long history of supporting abusers and banning those who speak in favour of victims of abuse. I am compiling a comprehensive, detailed and factual report stating his crimes against humanity. This report, fully documented and referenced, will go to the police and other agencies. It is my belief that if all the local devotees stay united and strong, and simply refuse to cooperate with the GBC decision to have a sex offender as Temple President, and indeed manage their own local temple without interference from corrupt and bullying outsiders, then this will be a great victory. It will inspire the devotees of other temples to stand up and be proactive in defending their communities from those who endorse sex offenders. I wish the Adelaide matter could be dealt with internally. But I have exhausted all internal methods of complaint. I was informed by a friend associated with Adelaide Temple that young women had suffered prolonged and traumatising sexual harrasment by the son of the Temple President. The Temple President who did nothing to stop it and indeed tried to punish the victims by forbidding them to perform their usual temple service. Abuse of women continued and indeed escalated. I spent many hours talking to distressed young women, their angry family members and indeed many members of the community who were extremely disturbed that the higher authorities had retained the Temple President, Adi Purusa Krishna das, in his position, despite the fact he had not acted to protect women who came to him complaining of being abused. It is worth noting that neither of the GBC men, Ramai Swami or Devamrta Swami, visited Adelaide to speak to the community members. Actually both of them have visited Adelaide for a matter of days only in the last 10 years. I joined the Hare Krishna Temple in 1973 when I was 17 years old. Within a short time I had experienced sexual harrasment, sexual assault and violent rape. If at all possible, I would like to be able to prevent other young women from suffering in these shocking ways.

"I have been campaigning to convince the decision makers of our organization that a man who fails to protect women from sexual abuse, even after being informed of their distress, is not fit to be the temple leader. Srila Prabhupada emphasized the need to protect women, and it is also contrary to the expectations of secular Australian society. I have written repeatedly to the Secretary of the ISKCON Australian National Council, Aniruddha das, to the Minister of Communications Bhakta das, to the Representative for Women on the ISKCON National Council, Krishna Rupa devi, to the Director of the Child Protection Office Damodara Pandit das, and to the entire National Council as a whole. I have personally spoken to 2 members of the Executive Council, Ajit and Mathura. All these people have ignored me or trivialised the complaints at Adelaide Temple or, even if sympathetic, have been unable to bring about a positive outcome. I have repeatedly asked for professional mediation, through ISKCON Resolve with Ramai Swami, the GBC man. He has flatly refused to participate. I have spoken to other members of the National Council who are concerned but feel powerless to act in ways contrary to the decision of Ramai Swami in particular for fear of reprisals. I wrote to the National Secretary requesting their minutes or other documentation to prove Ramai Swami's claim that the decision to retain Adi Purusa Krishna as Temple President was unanimous by the 5 Executive Council members. In line with the secret methods used by sinister organizations, I was denied permission to see the minutes. Getting nowhere with the Australian managers, I wrote to members of the International GBC. Again I was ignored or fobbed off. In the meantime pressure was put on the Director of Govinda Valley to move me on. He had no choice but to comply. In Australia, if you publicly disagree with Ramai Swami, you soon find yourself the victim of bullying, intimidation and character assasination. In addition, you can have all your service taken away from you and be expelled from the very project you established. We have seen this for 40 years. In the days of the bogus Zonal Acharyas, Jayadharma was expelled from his country temple at Colo River for refusing to worship Bhavananda. This pattern continues. There are no other options but the media and other organisations I have mentioned.

“Why don’t the victims just go to the police and let abusers be taken care of directly? The problem is many of these survivors have already told their stories many times and received little in the way of compassion or empathy from ISKCON ‘leaders,’ who are cold hearted with no concern for their spiritual or emotional welfare. They are preoccupied with denials and are in protection mode of the abusers and ISKCON, not those who have been mistreated. These survivors want to get on with their lives. Generally, it is advised that they get professional counselling to aid in their recovery. Unfortunately, if they DO take these matters to court, they will be subject to more trauma as their abuser’s lawyers do everything they can to discredit their testimony, question every detail and, in line with what we have seen so many times before, attempt to shift the blame of the sexual misconduct onto the person who experienced the abuse. It is no wonder that many choose NOT to go through the courts. And even if they do, this could take a very long time. Everything is being triple fact-checked. There is full documentation, nothing is rumour or exaggerated. All the legal and spiritual names of the main players are on the record. Immediately remove Adi Purusa Krishna das as Temple President of Adelaide. Let the devotees manage their own temple as per Srila Prabhupada’s Direction of Management. Let disappointment be replaced with hope, bewilderment be replaced with clarity. Let those who have come to the Hare Krishna Temple to experience a harmonious and peaceful environment, be relieved of their anxieties. Let Srila Prabhupada’s directions be implemented. There is currently an Australian Royal Commission into Institutional Responses to Allegations of Child Sexual Abuse. Yesterday I had my first official interview. This will force the criminal issues to court. Witnesses can be subpoenaed. I feel confident ALL the allegations will be made public. ‘Leaders’ will be jailed or forced to step down. We will not accept more GBC appointed goons. Local devotees will run local temples electing their own president every 3 years. In March in Adelaide we will have seminar on these topics of management. This is the goal of my campaign. YS, Subhalaksmi devi dasi.” (Nov. 22, 2016)

STARVE THE CORRUPT ISKCON INSTITUTION OF MONEY

By financial boycotting of ISKCON, their GBC members, sannyasis, millionaire gurus, regional initiatives, and temples, anyone can apply serious pressure and resistance to the corrupt ISKCON regime, and assist in bringing about the inevitable positive changes that will come to Srila Prabhupada’s movement. Most of the money that comes into ISKCON is siphoned off by donations to gurus, bureaucracy salaries, undocumented destinations, unreported expenditures, secret bank accounts, and perpetuating a tyranny that is unresponsive to the devotees who are sycophants of the local guru. At best, the funding maintains institutional operations which are used largely to benefit the gurus who collect worship and disciples for their self aggrandizement. In every location, a campaign should be undertaken to discourage and disrupt the financing of ISKCON and its programs. Money will be much better used in Krishna’s service simply by preparing and distributing prasadam and holding programs at devotee homes of kirtan, classes, open discussions. Boycott the corrupt ISKCON.

CAN RESTORING THE MISSION BE NEGATIVE?

No, because the corrupted ISKCON misleads people AWAY from Srila Prabhupada, and confuses their intelligence and mind with deviations that interfere with their spiritual welfare. It is not the purpose of restorationists to harm the corrupted ISKCON, but if in their efforts to purify it of the cheaters, exploiters, and deviations, it happens to collapse of its own disease, it will still have been far better to have tried to rescue it rather than ignore its deep corruptions. No one should fear what might happen in trying to restore the mission. We stand for Srila Prabhupada siddhanta and against corruption. American revolutionaries fought against the British monarch’s tyranny and the result gave hope to the world with the birth of a nation filled with positive ideals. The attempt to restore ISKCON is not to be feared as dangerous or vain, but has created positive, flourishing alternatives, such as ISKCON Bangalore and Prabhupada centers worldwide. In the event that ISKCON cannot be cured or restored, this will actually be a return towards a healthy condition of the Hare Krishna movement, just as a cancerous tumor is removed to save the whole body from being eaten away by a parasitic disease that ends in an early death. Some questions about restoring the mission are:

(1) "If we do not accept the present GBC, then who will dictate our direction, provide stability and unity?" ANSWER: The present GBC has not represented Srila Prabhupada and his instructions for decades; in one survey their approval rating was 19%. Their misleadership and misdirection is actually causing disunity and instability. How many schisms and defections have occurred under their watch? Even without a GBC, local leaders can do much better independently until a competent GBC is established. (2) "In the void left by rejecting the GBC, there is a danger that various extremists could assume control, causing a worse situation than before." ANSWER: With or without the GBC, local leaders must always be responsible to protect their community from deviant philosophy and groups. Local leaders are not creating a void by rejecting the corrupt GBC. They are disconnecting from a misleadership, and that will be a positive development. Local ISKCON leaders fulfill their protective function by continuing an alignment with a dysfunctional and corrupted GBC body. (3) "Naturally there will always be some tension between local devotees and the GBC, but Srila Prabhupada made this system and we should try to cooperate as he requested. Disagreements are to be expected; we should be patient and tolerant." ANSWER: Cooperation requires two willing parties, not that one enforces its will on the other. Who will tolerate the GBC ruining the movement? The long list of disasters include denials of Srila Prabhupada's poisoning despite so much evidence, and their blind eye to children, women, and devotee abuse all over the movement for many decades. One must act upon seeing Srila Prabhupada's hard work being spoiled. (4) "Actually, there are signs of improvements in the GBC body with new policies, procedures, structuring, and training. We should be patient." ANSWER: Hope springs eternal, but finally must be fully convinced of the incorrigibility of the GBC. As this book substantiates, the GBC's time is long past and we need a radical revolution with new men, not a cosmetic facelift meant to keep the corruption in place. As long as their evasive, deceptive, irrelevant, and senseless behavior continues, we are forced to resist them for the sake of our sanity, principles, and spiritual lives. Patience has its limits, and that limit was reached long ago.

(5) "The blunders of the past should not be dwelt upon, but rather we must look to the future. When presented with workable solutions, the GBC will accept them." ANSWER: Those who neglect the lessons of the past are doomed to repeat the same mistakes. (6) "If we are not willing to help rectify the GBC, then we have no right to complain." ANSWER: If, after 40+ years of horrible disasters under GBC management, we, the local leaders and the general devotees, must "help" the GBC do their job properly, it might be better that we simply take their job and do it properly ourselves, since they have proven themselves incapable of doing it. Will our help really be effective now when the GBC has so far rejected our help, complaints, advice, petitions, and cries all these years? (7) "Srila Prabhupada would want us to always be loyal to ISKCON, no matter what." ANSWER: Loyalty to Srila Prabhupada's mission is wanted, not loyalty to an incorrigible regime that has resisted the pleas of common devotees for decades. Our loyalty to Srila Prabhupada must include the strength and desire to bring proper leadership to his society. (8) "Rather than reject the GBC we should work together to complete an ISKCON Constitution which will guide the GBC to manage the society properly." ANSWER: Thinking the GBC needs a guidance document to do their job properly is naïve. The character and agenda of GBC power brokers is the cause of its dysfunction. There is already a basic Constitution in the DOM and Srila Prabhupada's Principles which the GBC have neglected. The corrupt GBC does not want a broad Constitution or why have they not made one yet? The GBC only knows how to maintain their guru regime over all other interests. (9) "If some GBC members are at serious fault, then target them for removal, but do not reject the entire GBC." This may seem reasonable, but the problem is that every GBC has betrayed Srila Prabhupada with their political culture-paradigm of offenses against the Acharya and the promotion/ facilitation of bogus unauthorized gurus who take Srila Prabhupada's seat. This underlying philosophical deviation leads to endless other deviations and anomalies that will never be solved by replacing individual GBC men. The false doctrines that have stained the ISKCON societal fabric must be recognized, isolated, refuted, and rejected before any future leadership can do better than the old regime. It is not just bad leaders, it is the disease of personal ambition that has spoiled the mission. It started in 1977 with the poisoning of Srila Prabhupada by senior men wanting his assets. (10) “By rejecting the GBC, the new order should give their constituents a Constitution and a bill of rights first.” The GBC has deviated in many ways, abused the devotees, extensively changed Srila Prabhupada’s books, behaved recklessly, unaccountably, corruptly, and has created the nagging problems in the society. The GBC has not proposed any Constitution or bill of rights. The GBC needs to be removed and the society undertake a period of healing, cleansing, and enlightenment, to restore the mission as Srila Prabhupada left it to us. Only then will every member get their spiritual rights.

ISKCON REFUSES ADVERTISEMENTS FOR THE MAHABHARATA

“In early 1999 I published a summary study of the Mahabharata by Purnaprajna das in an 800 page paperback edition. It was from an old typed copy done in the early Vrindaban gurukula days, and I was inspired to share it because it was such an excellent and readable version. At that time there were no other Mahabharatas in ISKCON. I submitted an ad to the primary ISKCON media of the day, ISKCON WORLD REVIEW, a monthly newspaper which carried ads from those in or out of ISKCON, from reiki training to marriage matching. My ad was refused. I called each of the three editors to convince them to run the ad so devotees might have a bona fide, affordable Mahabharata. Ravindra Svarupa, Badrinarayan, and Mukunda Swami wouldn’t budge. They referred to my excommunication almost a decade earlier for promoting the officiating acharya initiation system, that I had not recanted, apologized, nor made amends for damages to ISKCON. They said there was no way they would facilitate any money coming my way. They all agreed that if anyone else had done the book, no problem. In hindsight, I should have put someone else’s name on the book. Soon another ISKCON party republished the same book and I still have my copies in storage 18 years later. I was a pariah and rejected by most former friends, acquaintances, and associates in ISKCON.” (Nityananda das, 2017)

GBC PASSES RESOLUTION ALLOWING TEMPLES TO BAN THOSE WITH OPPOSING VIEWS

In recent years the ISKCON GBC has resolved to authorize local leadership to use their own discretion in forcibly banning and restricting the behavior or activities of anyone deemed to be against institutional policies. Even Srila Prabhupada’s books for distribution were withheld from those banned by the temple. “In the late 90’s, I was selling books to individuals in the UK from the US because they were denied access to wholesale prices due to their philosophical persuasions.” (Nityananda das, 2017)

FEAR AND REPRESSION, NO OPEN DISCOURSE: FROM PROMINENT LINK, 2002

“We’d appreciate hearing personally from the members of the GBC body regarding their views on the ideas expressed in PL. Based on what we’ve already heard from some of them, there is far from agreement with the mood and content of the official GBC statement. We suggest that the culture of organizational fear and repression, as contrasted with a Vaishnava culture of civil, open discourse, is active here, and we encourage ISKCON leaders to voice their genuine views on the issues raised in PL.” (Dhira Govinda das, 2002)

ESSAY: THE CRIMINAL CULTURAL MILIEU IN ISKCON by Krishnachandra das (abbreviated)

Many have strongly advised me to be careful about my security due to the subject matter in our publications. They cite incidents of murder, tantra, physical assault, verbal abuse, legal action, and threats by institutional members to those who have spoken out about wrongdoing of gurus and ISKCON GBC. What kind of society is it where it is acceptable to support an immoral leader while it is also acceptable to vilify the victim, the reporter/whistleblower. This criminal cultural milieu is the result of the GBC rejecting Śrīla Prabhupāda as the supreme authority of ISKCON to impose their ‘criminal’ bogus Rubber Stamped Guru system. Also they ignore Śrīla Prabhupāda’s Direction of Management by imposing their own concocted system where criminals, charlatans or immoralists can be a GBC, guru or an official of the institution and those loyal to Śrīla Prabhupāda are alienated, abused, and vilified. The institution’s leaders are where the followers should look to for spiritual, moral, and ethical managerial leadership, but it is filled with corrupt GBC, bogus Rubber Stamped Gurus, Temple Presidents and senior institutional officials who fiercely defend their perceived right to be above suspicion or accountability from members of their respective communities. Thus supporters of the leadership and/or a guru will actively intimidate, vilify, threaten and abuse any devotee who dares to bear witness or mentions a leader or guru's wrongdoing. Devotees fear going to public law enforcement, welfare or other agencies to report any incident for fear of reprisals and threat of alienation from the community. The situation is worse when living in second and third world countries where bribes buy the law. The other 'conditioning' idea in our Vaishnava society is 'don't air our dirty laundry in public.' If the institution itself refuses to deal with the disease within the organization then what options does one have except to go public? After four decades of their corrupted rule, the GBC and Rubber Stamped Gurus have proven themselves impervious to rational reasoning and accountability, so how can they expect that sincere intelligent devotees, having exhausted themselves in reasoning, will not use the only practical medium to deal with these issues? Going public is a situation that the institution itself has created; why blame the whistleblowers?

Yet their own 'privileged' elite are never reported to the police for any of their crimes, they are never threatened with violence or kicked out of our society should they disgrace our Vaishnava society and Srila Prabhupada's good name, by their heinous behavior and philosophical deviations. In fact the institutional members 'hush up' and support the offending member while vilifying the whistleblower or victim. The ignorant disciples and followers of these errant GBC-Gurus are willing to lie for, fight for, commit crimes for and if necessary die for –whatever the moral, criminal or philosophical deviations. The unhealthy dynamic acculturated into our ISKCON Vaishnava society is that no matter how criminally, philosophically, morally or ethically deviant a leader may be they are always considered ISKCON members and in the right; whereas we on the other hand are considered to be always in the wrong and to be 'outside' of ISKCON or to have left ISKCON –when we have never left and are loyal to Srila Prabhupada, but simply refuse to be a part of an illegal corrupt institution. To the ISKCON, gurus, and their disciples, anyone who speaks out about their wrongdoings is a demon and therefore not a member of ISKCON. Yet the leadership comprises of some of the most morally, criminally, ethically, philosophically and spiritually deviant individuals whose level of Kṛṣṇa consciousness is in many cases far less than their disciples. These individuals, who have rejected Śrīla Prabhupāda and only pay lip service to him when they need to cite their bona fides and who have lusted after and claimed everything that they can lay their greedy ambitious offensive hands on, are considered by their disciples to be the most advanced humans who walk mother earth. However the institution has faced many incidents where they cannot deny their members are criminally negligent or responsible for crimes what to speak of being morally and ethically abhorrent. The Turley Law Suit brought the fact that child abuse was not only rampant in our society but it was actively covered up by the very same leaders that are 'still' being brought into question by those loyal to Srila Prabhupada. The Institution responded by allowing those most guilty of abuse and neglect [principals and teachers] to establish 'showbottle' agencies that only deal with damage control, petty issues, procrastinate or cover up any serious incident or criminal activity.

The leaders and their supporters demand forensically verifiable evidence when they control the information and evidence gathering roles within the society and the functionaries of the above mentioned departments have a vested interest in damage control or withholding evidence as they are usually unqualified, inexperienced and dependent salaried workers. Yet they eagerly accept pathetic denials by the guilty party who merely has to deny any involvement or knowledge of the incident or issue and the whole institution swings into action to support them. Needless to say devotees in general are rightfully distrustful of such agencies as serious issues are kept "in house." Unfortunately the institution has indoctrinated the devotees that the internet is 'bad' and one should use it only to visit websites that are sanctioned. There is a culture of 'ignorance' in the rank and file devotee who is privy only to the censured and sanitized version of ISKCON history and the wrongdoings of the leaders.

They challenge: what have you done and look at what he has done! These so-called gurus only “initiated” the devotee and took the glory and credit. Once initiated, they forget who converted them and who put in the long hours to teach them what they know about Krishna consciousness and give all credit to their newly found guru along with adoration and money.

This denial and aggression towards whistleblowers arises when the truth about their guru’s cheating nature is exposed, and is certainly a sight to behold, however what is more incredulous is that none of this rage or aggression is aimed at the Guru who betrayed and cheated not only them but also Srila Prabhupada and his loyal followers. The institution speaks of ‘unity in diversity’ and ‘co-operate’ in order to reinforce their leadership and authority. Why should anyone co-operate with a thief and not report them to the police? Or why is it that those who reject the Rubber Stamped Guru system or refuse to support the errant GBC are not included in the ‘diversity’ aspect of their institution? The fact is that they, the institution, know they are in the wrong and have no support from Srila Prabhupada’s teachings and instructions so they cannot answer our challenges with the truth but can only use word jugglery that cheats sincere but naïve neophytes.

So they cooperate with murderers, child abusers, rapists, pedophiles, mayavadis, New Agers, Apasampradaya –Sahajiyas –but no way on earth will they cooperate with a whistleblower or a Prabhupada loyalist. The end result is that there is the social milieu that has been acculturated into our ISKCON society by those original sinful GBC hijackers who subverted Srila Prabhupada’s instructions and took control of our society; where the general devotee lives in fear and ignorance of the truth. They are being cheated by leaders who preach an extremely sanitized version of Krishna consciousness and have created a criminal non-brahminical culture from what should be the most spiritually advanced culture on earth. The only solution to living in fear is speaking out. Call a spade a spade and a thief a thief. We must stand truthful witness to the many crimes that the so called leaders of our Vaishnava society have and are committing. Report sexual falldown or philosophical deviations of the “gurus” and sannyasis to authorities and websites that are seeking positive change in our society, allowing the police to prosecute rapists, child molesters, embezzlers, frauds, poisoners, and sexual deviants. Speak up and their sinister empire inside our Vaishnava society will crumble.
