They cannot deal with mass exposure by hundreds of devotees speaking out together. There is no other way. The dribs and drabs method only drags out the issues and serves to give the institution time to do damage control and cover ups but if all those who desire to see change begin to speak up truthfully and openly against this sinister empire that has arisen in our ISKCON society, then the GBC and rubber stamped gurus will lose their power and positions. There has to develop a sense of brother and sisterhood in those who oppose the illegal rule of the ISKCON GBC-guru club. We must learn to support each other to truthfully report to websites and relevant authorities. We must not fear speaking truth about unauthorised gurus as if we are the ones at fault or committing offenses. For too long have we had to give way to pressure, lies and deceit from these rascals who act under the protection of their ignorant disciples and various ISKCON apologists. Remember we are not dealing with isolated cases of abuse and crime; we are dealing with a GBC that rejected Srila Prabhupada and his instructions as soon as he entered into Samadhi in 1977, and who have spent the last 40+ years destroying Srila Prabhupada’s ISKCON, ruining its truthfulness and spirituality. Their power rests in their positions, not in themselves, as they lack any true spiritual acumen, personal integrity or good character to be able to withstand the truth. Their power comes from their disciples and Indian donors who, once educated on the facts, will have to face the ugly truth that they have been wasting their time, energy, dedication, love, trust, and money on self interested frauds who are actually the ones who have left Srila Prabhupada’s ISKCON, yet still lay claim to it and who use it to lure unsuspecting and innocent aspiring Vaishnavas to fund and support their personal plans and projects. It is entirely possible to turn this around. We have to unite and fight them. We should never accept that our Vaishnava society should have a social milieu which condones and supports criminality and criminals and punishes the victims and whistleblowers. (END)

CHEATERS REPRESSING SRILA PRABHUPADA'S INSTRUCTIONS, IMPLANTING MISCONCEPTIONS

We have earlier discussed Tamal's repression of Srila Prabhupada's instructions (Ch. 63-64), and how the GBC under Ramesvara hid the 6500 Srila Prabhupada letters and major fundamental documents (Ch. 84-85). "Around 1984 I was friends with Rajendranath, who was running the BBT, and Rabindranath, who worked at BBT Archives. Rabindranath loaned me a stack of about 500 Prabhupada letters from the archives, all about how the GBC should manage ISKCON. I never got through them. But one letter was to Karandhar and a breath of fresh air. NOT AT ALL the way they were managing; it was so refreshing to see that Srila Prabhupada actually wanted it much different. Srila Prabhupad said that GBC is not to dictate, you do this, you do that, but they are to engage one in the beginning with sadhana, engage them in prescribed services. But, as soon as one comes to raganuga bhakti, and one spontaneously wants to do some specific service for Krishna, then the GBC should not restrict that person, but their service is to then give all facility to that devotee to assist them in the service they want to do. There was more, but that part I recall most, because under Ramevara it was so supressive.

"For our Doll Museum project, he just dictated. He and Bhavananda, Kirtanananda, Harikesh, and Bhagavan; I worked with all of them. You express something you want to do, they shot it down and threw it out. So supressive, depressive, discouraging, anti-creative. So I took the letters to the BBT copier. I had no idea the GBC had banned Prabhupada's letters and did not want us to see them. Rajendranath blew up and told me that it was GBC resolution, NO ONE was to have access to Srila Prabhupada's letters, NO ONE. What? Why? I asked. He said they were private and personal letters, they were personal instructions to only the person it was sent to, and were not general instructions. (Perhaps a very few do fall in that category.) I assured him these specific letters were for all devotees, regarding how ISKCON was to be managed. Rajendranath hit the roof, and grabbed all the letters and copies, and said, "Especially these letters, the GBC does not want any one reading them!" He told me the reason was that if the karmis found out how ISKCON was to be managed, they could use it to figure out ways of destroying our mission. I didn't buy it; I am Srila Prabhupada's direct disciple and I have a right to know how he wanted his mission to be ran. Rajendranath then said Ramevara told him the real reason was that, and this was not to be repeated to anyone else, in these letters Srila Prabhupada told the GBC to do things that they are not yet doing. The GBC were having so many problems, having such a hard time as it was, just managing the centers that they just could not follow certain things he told them to do. If those letters were to be made public, he said, the masses of devotees would turn against the GBC and fault them for not following those instructions, and that would destroy ISKCON, everyone would then rebel against the GBC. So, he had his explicit orders from Ramesvara, which came from the GBC resolutions, and he took everything away from me." (Ameyatma das, Mar. 20, 2009)

Each devotee must eventually reconcile his own conscience with institutional tyranny. This may take time and a serious effort of personal struggle, as it is not easy to beak free from unrighteous forces and finally embark on the high road of honest personal choices rather than further submission to the tyranny of deviant misleadership. See Ch. 188: Inheritance Rights, Ch. 132: False Prophets.

CONCEALMENT OF PRABHUPADA'S LETTERS WAS ANOTHER GBC POLICY

In early 1985 Sulochan das obtained through Bhaktadas a set of all Srila Prabhupada's letters to devotees, a resource that had been carefully guarded at the BBT: "Sulochan was also very excited because just before he had left Los Angeles he had purchased a 'pirated microfiche copy' of all of Srila Prabhupada's letters. He said, 'We are going to bring the GBC's gurus down with these letters.' That is because the letters offer a stark view of how Srila Prabhupada had wanted the GBC to manage; how he distrusted some key GBC members who were now allegedly gurus; how he did not want the GBC to consult with the Gaudiya Math... When we read some of the letters it was very much evident why the GBC had wanted them to be suppressed and hidden. Sulochan informed me, 'Ramesvara called to threaten me. He wants me to return the letters microfiche and not publish any of these letters—or else.' 'Or else what?' I asked. 'Or else I will be dead meat on the hook' Sulochan replied... We knew immediately that these letters must therefore be very, very important and they must contain information that the GBC is trying to hide.” (Puranjana das, PADA History of ISKCON)

Also, why was it necessary for a rogue, ultra-covert operation undertaken by Niscintya das to get the Srila Prabhupada letters published in 1987? Why did the BBT not do it themselves? They sold very well and financially viable. The VVR itself sold at least 100 of the 500 sets printed. Why were Srila Prabhupada's letters suppressed and unavailable until secretly published? The letters had been gathered and compiled in the Archives since 1978, but were stashed safely away somewhere. Sometimes bribes were paid to get copies. Sulochan das got his set in this way. The letters' history further confirms the GBC policies of concealing Srila Prabhupada's instructions from the devotees, an unforgiveable act. A 1985 GBC resolution gave special permission to a committee to research Srila Prabhupada's letters at the Archives to compile a GBC report. Unless one received special GBC permission, the letters were not available to the devotees. In the Preface to the Letters Books (1987): “Although the BBT initiated a program to gather and preserve a complete collection of letters, no attempt was made to make them widely available. Almost ten years later, this has remained the BBT policy.” BBT policy was to conceal the letters from the general devotees as long as possible. Satsvarupa, one of the 11 “successor gurus,” simply went to Los Angeles and: “I think then I should go to L.A. and get all the letters.” The letters were only available to the top leaders. It is to be noted that the 1974 Topmost Urgency letter, July 9, 1977 Order, Last Will, and the Direction of Management are also not found in the 1987 letters books because they had been separately sequestered from the stockpile of letters, being concealed from the devotees in the GBC's office safe.

WHERE IS THE OUTRAGE ? by Anuttama dasi

I spoke with a dear godsister I've known for over four decades. She is a sincere, dedicated devotee who performs valuable deity service and assists in putting on ISKCON festivals. She has good sadhana, admirable morals and works hard. I asked her if she was aware it had been proven conclusively that Srila Prabhupada was poisoned with cadmium. Yes, she was aware, but this had no relevance to her: it was 40 years ago and what can be done about it now? The attitude that the murder of Srila Prabhupada is an unfortunate historical fact that has no bearing on the present situation is not only inaccurate, but it is also a symptom of a crime that is even greater than the poisoning of Srila Prabhupada's physical body; the greater crime of poisoning Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON institution. What better way to destroy the most important institution in the world than to gradually add just enough poison that it is almost undetectable, just as they did to Srila Prabhupada's physical body? “Following such conclusions, the demoniac, who are lost to themselves and who have no intelligence, engage in unbeneficial, horrible works meant to destroy the world.” (BGita 16.9)

Kill Guru, Become Guru gives a detailed timeline of SP's last months, including naming those who had constant access to him. Because the poisoning was done over many months, it was done by someone in the inner circle, who are the same people who lied when they told us that Srila Prabhupada had appointed them as pure devotee acharyas. They are the same people whose philosophy and policies have poisoned our spiritual master's institution. Srila Prabhupada warned us that there are demons in the dress of Vaishnavas that we need to avoid. “Bhaktivinoda Thakura says, Kali-cela. He indicates that there are other Vaishnavas, pseudo-Vaishnavas, with tilaka on their nose and kunti beads around their neck. Such a pseudo-Vaishnava associates with money and women and is jealous of successful Vaishnavas. Although passing for a Vaishnava, his only business is earning money in the dress of a Vaishnava.” (CC.Mad 1.218-20) So let's ask, what would a demon, dressed as a Vaishnava do if he wanted to poison Srila Prabhupada's pure spiritual mission? An obvious answer is that the demon would: (1) change the philosophy, just slightly so that it was still a beautiful philosophy, but no longer potent. (2) change the books (3) cause dissent among the disciples (divide and conquer) (4) change the mission goals. Have any of these things happened? Yes, all of them, yet they happened so gradually that it was almost like the cliché of boiling frogs: if you put frogs in a pot of water and raise the temperature gradually, some will never jump out because they gradually get accustomed to the changes. Similarly devotees within ISKCON gradually accepted philosophical and policy changes that, had they been implemented in 1978 would have horrified everyone.

CHANGE THE PHILOSOPHY: The most important part of the pure philosophy given to us by Srila Prabhupada is the concept that the soul can make spiritual advancement and attain perfection only by the grace of the spiritual master: “By the mercy of the spiritual master one receives the benediction of Krishna. Without the grace of the spiritual master, one cannot make any advancement. Therefore, I should always remember and praise the spiritual master. At least three times a day I should offer my respectful obeisances unto the lotus feet of my spiritual master.” (Samsara Prayers, 8) In 1978 we all knew that grabbing hold of Srila Prabhupada's lotus feet was our only way back to Godhead. So the demons introduced the BIG LIE: we were told that Srila Prabhupada had appointed 11 disciples that he had recognized as being pure devotees, capable of delivering fallen conditioned souls. Most of the devotees, myself included, couldn't imagine that our most senior, trusted godbrothers would outright lie about something so colossal, and we accepted the lie as the truth. The heat under the frog has just been turned on. After a few years, it became apparent to most in ISKCON these 11 were NOT pure devotees. I was one of the frogs that jumped out of the pot at that point. The poor frogs left in the pot didn't have the strength to jump out, and so accepted the concocted philosophy and deviations of the GBC. These frogs were so acclimated to the boiling pot that even when presented with the “ritvik” evidence and with Srila Prabhupada on tape saying he was being poisoned, they still accepted the “authority” of the GBC liars. The new GBC philosophy, not found in Srila Prabhupada's books, is that if a soul wants to go back to Godhead, he needs to take shelter of a “living guru.” In this concoction, if the soul takes shelter of a GBC authorized “living guru” and that guru turns out to be a fallen conditioned soul ( as half of them were seen to be), never mind, that good sadhana will send you back to the spiritual world. But don't ever think someone introduced to Krishna consciousness after 1977, could ever possibly have a direct connection with Srila Prabhupada. No, the new philosophy is that you must go through a “direct disciple” of Srila Prabhupada because Srila Prabhupada is dead and gone. By this point the frogs' still in the pot were toast.

CHANGE THE BOOKS: Changing Srila Prabhupada's books is a slap in the face of our spiritual master who told the leaders not to change one word, and goes against all Vaishnava etiquette. What could be the possible purpose in changing the words of the pure devotee? Could it be to set a precedent? Could these demons have the long term plan to remove any remaining potency from what is left of ISKCON? Why do this?? DIVIDE AND CONQUER: When the zonal acharya system was first implemented, any dissent among the Godbrothers was met with a swift kick out the door, sanctioned by the “pure devotee” liars. For myself, when I first moved to the Seattle area in the late 90's, I ran into devotees at the airport and even gave them a ride back to the temple. They made it very clear that because I was disciple of Srila Prabhupada they were not at liberty to associate with me and that I was not welcome at the temple. I know of many Godsiblings who, if they expressed a different understanding of Srila Prabhupada's instructions than the understanding sanctioned by the GBC, were forcibly expelled. But, if devotees have different understandings of philosophical issues, didn't Srila Prabhupada show us how to work these issues out? Wasn't that what istaghostis were for? Why didn't the management address the philosophical questions in an open, loving manner by letting devotees express their understandings of Srila Prabhupada's instructions based on Srila Prabhupada's books? Why were devotees forcibly booted who believed that a prospective disciple should be careful to accept only an uttama adhikari as a spiritual master? Why does any devotee, including managers, tell a Godbrother how to understand or interpret Srila Prabhupada's instructions? For myself, every time I read something in the books, new layers of understanding open up. This is a matter to be discussed among disciples with relish, not condemned. Instead, we are forced to accept a “GBC” sanctioned interpretation! “Divide and conquer” is one of the oldest strategies employed by demons to force others to do as they want. CHANGE THE MISSION: It also appears that the demons in the dress of Vaishnavas have been working on changing the original mission of ISKCON as defined in the 1966 articles of incorporation. As an outsider, it appears ISKCON has become primarily a fund-raising institution, collecting money from Hindus. When I lived in the Seattle temple we did service for free from early morning to night. The current Seattle Temple has a sign that reads "The Vedic Cultural Center" and doesn't mention Srila Prabhupada. I'm told that cooking and altar service is a service for dollars rather than a service for bhakti. It seems like the books and even the Deities have become more or less props for the fund-raising efforts. Article 6 of the 1966 articles of incorporation reads: "To bring the members closer together for the purpose of teaching a simpler and more natural way of life." Yet 51 years after that document was written there is no serious simple living project. ISKCON sanctioned cow protection projects rescue cows from the meat eaters and use the cows as props for their fund-raising. Devotees are not encouraged or facilitated to form communities where they produce their own necessities and cows are protected as valuable contributors to the community.

HOW TO FIGHT THE KALI-CHELAS: The GBC relies on having financial, social and emotional power over their subjects. The first way to fight them is to arm yourself with the truth. Listen to Prabhupada Truth Commission's videos online and read the books. Psychologists call it cognitive dissonance when someone is confronted with facts/data that is contrary to a deep seated belief, like the GBC will help you in spiritual life. Any sweet words about how they are simply trying to please Srila Prabhupada is drowned out by their policies and behavior of cover-ups and deceit regarding many in-house scandals, such as Srila Prabhupada's poisoning, guru falldowns, and book changes. This information may be disturbing if one's sub-consciousness has accepted a series of GBC lies and one believes he needs to continue accepting those lies and to minimize the truth. If you accept the truth, you will be outraged: They poisoned Srila Prabhupada! And they're still in charge!

STEPS TO DETHRONING THE KALI-CHELAS: "The truth is light and nescience is darkness:" the first step is to embrace the truth and accept the spiritual outrage over what they've done to Srila Prabhupada and his mission. Then you could discuss the the truth and facts with as many devotees and congregationals as you can. If the management of the temple tries to stop your efforts, please refer to the Direction of Management, a legal document where Srila Prabhupada states that the temple president is to be elected by the congregation. If enough of the congregation is aware of the truth, a manager will be unable to sustain demonic policies such as suppressing the truth because he/she will face losing his/her position by Srila Prabhupada's authority. The truth has some punch. As the truth starts to awaken in the hearts of the sincere devotees, congregations can require that any manager or officer in an ISKCON corporation swear an Oath of Allegiance, as directed by Srila Prabhupada. SP was murdered and his mission has been poisoned, but the poison is reversible. All we have to do is to stop allowing the Kali-chelas to divide us and get back to the real mission goals! (END)

CONCLUSION: Since the ISKCON leadership will not, and cannot be trusted to, rectify themselves by following Srila Prabhupada's teachings, they must be rejected, removed, and expelled for good. Call it GBC EXIT. Then a period of healing must take place as devotees learn how to live their spiritual lives without the constant weight of institutional tyranny, fear, lies, and oppression. The checks and balances Srila Prabhupada wanted in ISKCON via the DOM's elections of GBC and temple presidents will provide a sound, basic structure in which devotees may make advancement in spiritual life without being oppressed and fearful. Meanwhile, with each passing day, the repressive regime of lies, defective doctrines, and cover-ups continued to be undermined simply by the force of the truth being spoken and repeated by truth lovers around the world.

---

PART 17: RESTORE PRABHUPADA'S FRAMEWORK

(1) "Only Lord Chaitanya can take my place. He will take care of the movement." (Hindi SPConv Nov. 2, 1977) (2) "The secret of freedom lies in educating people, whereas the secret of tyranny is in keeping them ignorant.” (Maximilien Robespierre, French Revolution) (3) “So many wrong things are going on in the name of nationalism, in the name of scientific advancement, and people are suffering. Everybody has bluffed so long. Now we have to stop them. This is our movement. [...] The rascals are flourishing by cheating and bluffing. This should be stopped. How much important is your movement, just try to understand. Their whole program is to defy God. And our program is to declare war against these rascals.” (SPConv Dec. 9, 1973) This quote, by the substitution of a few words, becomes a fitting description of the program to restore Srila Prabhupada’s mission: “So many things are going on in the name of the GBC’s ultimate authority, in the name of ISKCON and service to Srila Prabhupada, and the devotees are suffering. The misleaders have bluffed for forty years and now we must stop them. This is our responsibility, it is our movement they have hijacked. These rascal leaders are maintaining themselves by cheating and bluffing with authority they have already lost. This should be stopped. We should all understand how sacred Srila Prabhupada’s mission is. Their whole program is to defy Srila Prabhupada. And our program is to declare war against these rascals.”

Srila Prabhupada spoke about success: “As soon as you become successful, there will be many enemies. That is natural. That is the sign of success.” (SPConv Nov. 3, 1973) Similarly, the movement to restore Srila Prabhupada’s mission to its proper condition of following his instructions properly, especially in regards to the guru issue, has been so far somewhat successful and has been met by ferocious resistance from ISKCON. The future of Srila Prabhupada’s mission belongs to those who are faithful to his instructions, not those who exploit his assets for their self-interests and who, being corrupted with their material motivations, refuse to accept the mountain of evidence that Srila Prabhupada was homicidally poisoned in 1977.

“Although the movement Chaitanya founded eventually had many gurus, disciples and temples, its organizational structure was informal. Each temple and guru was for mostly independent; there was no corporate or ecclesiastical organization and no charters or bylaws. Each guru followed the instructions of Chaitanya Mahaprabhu according to his own interpretation... Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati Thakur—the first acharya in the Gaudiya-Vaishnava line to advocate modern corporate methods of organization—created his mission not in the traditional system of independent temples as in the past but as a united confederation. The founder and acharya of the Gaudiya Math also broke from the past regarding the assigning of a successor. In many bhakti traditions, the acharya of a religious order or institution, upon writing his will, designated a single disciple to succeed him. After the death of the acharya, the newly-appointed successor acharya would become the absolute and uncontested head of the institution and only he would be permitted to initiate new disciples into the lineage... Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati, on the other hand, did not name a successor in his will. Instead he ordered his disciples to jointly manage his mission in his absence. He expected that qualified leaders would naturally emerge on the strength of their personal merit.” (ENE p. 7-8)

It may not be possible to rescue the ISKCON institution from the grip of those attached to unauthorizedly taking the seat of the Acharya, so alternative plans and actions to rebuild Srila Prabhupada’s mission must be pursued. Still, while advancing Srila Prabhupada’s mission outside ISKCON, restoration of ISKCON can also be attempted at the same time, as Srila Prabhupada said in CC Adi 9.18 purport: “Our International Society for Krishna Consciousness is one of the branches of the Chaitanya tree.” Also in SBhag 10.3, the last portion Srila Prabhupada translated, he spoke about the wider Hare Krishna movement: “The Hare Krishna movement is also an incarnation of Krishna...” and “...although the Krishna consciousness movement and Krishna are not different...” So, by following Srila Prabhupada strictly, even outside of ISKCON, we can be part of the Hare Krishna movement, and our hope is that the original institution will not become a dead branch of the Chaitanya tree. But if it is not restored to its healthy condition, and remains poisoned by deviations, as seen in Parts 14-15, it will surely fade away. A very appropriate memory by Yamuna dasi: “After settling in Oregon with my Godsister Dinatarine, Srila Prabhupada, while pronouncing us ‘independent’ to a concerned Godbrother, at the same time twice rebuked us when we approached him to leave. ‘You westerners are so restless,' he admonished. 'Why can't you remain in the same place? Stay where you are.' We questioned, 'But Srila Prabhupada, they are saying that if we aren't in ISKCON, we lose your blessings and cannot make advancement.' Prabhupada replied, 'ISKCON is where you are chanting the holy name—that is ISKCON.' We rejoined: 'They are saying we don't have any association here and are therefore in maya.' He replied: 'Association can be two or 200. If you are 2 and compatible, you can become perfect in Krishna consciousness. If you are 200 and are not, then no one will make advancement.'" (Unalloyed Devotion, Yamuna dasi)

DO NOT TRY TO BECOME A TIGER AND KILL THE GURU

"Srila Prabhupada has also warned against a disciple becoming 'over-intelligent.' He told of the mouse who requested the blessing of a sage to make him a cat in order to protect him from being harassed by a cat. Later he asked to become a dog to save him from the unwanted attacks of a dog. Finally he desired to become a tiger to avoid being chased by tigers. Upon receiving this final blessing he approached the sage who had bestowed the benedictions and boldly declared that he now wanted to eat the very benefactor who had blessed him in the first place. So the sage cursed him, punar musiko bhava: 'Again you become a mouse.' Here we learn not to bite the hand that feeds us. Almost every Vaishnava and aspiring Vaishnava in the Western world is indebted to Srila Prabhupada who made the ultimate sacrifice for us all. We might not always understand everything Srila Prabhupada has said or done, but at least we can afford him the honor and dignity which Prabhupada so rightly earned for his selfless service and dedication to the spiritual upliftment of all souls. That alone is worthy of our undying respect. (Padmapani das, 2016)

CHAPTER 161: DIRECTION OF MANAGEMENT & GBC ELECTIONS

A legal, foundational ISKCON document, dated July 28, 1970 and signed by Srila Prabhupada and three witnesses, that deserves great attention is the Direction of Management (DOM). This document prescribed the system of management for ISKCON and created the ISKCON's GBC. But even many ISKCON leaders and members know little of it or even that it created the GBC. An ignorant member of Shastric Advisory Committee (2009): "I don't believe [the DOM] is used at all, but I really do not know the whole history of the DOM."

DIRECTION OF MANAGEMENT: PART ONE, THE GBC

I, the undersigned, A. C. Bhaktivedanta Swami, disciple of Om Visnupad Paramhansa 108 Sri Srimad Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Goswami Maharaja Prabhupada, came in the United States in 1965 on Sept. 18th for the purpose of starting Krishna Consciousness Movement. For one year I had no shelter. I was travelling in many parts of this country. Then in 1966, July, I incorporated the Society under the name and style the International Society for Krishna Consciousness, briefly ISKCON. The lawyer was Mr. J. Goldsmith. Gradually the Society increased, and one after another branches were opened. Now we have got thirty-four (34) branches enlisted herewith: [list omitted] As we have increased our volume of activities, now I think a Governing Body Commission (GBC) should be established. I am getting old, 75 years old, therefore at any time I may be out of the scene, therefore I think it is necessary to give instruction to my disciples how they shall manage the whole institution. They are already managing individual centers represented by one president, one secretary and one treasurer, and in my opinion they are doing nice. But we want still more improvement in the standard of Temple management, propaganda for Krishna Consciousness, distribution of books and literatures, opening of new centers and educating devotees to the right standard. Therefore, I have decided to adopt the following principles and I hope my beloved disciples will kindly accept them. There was a meeting in San Francisco during the Ratha Yatra festival 1970 and many presidents of the centers were present. In that meeting it was resolved that an ad hoc committee be set up to form the constitution which is taken into consideration. My duty was to first appoint 12 persons to my free choice amongst my disciples and I do it now and their names are as follows:

(1) Rupanuga das (2) Bhagavan das (3) Shyamsundar das (4) Satsvarupa das (5) Karandhar das (6) Hansadutta das (7) Tamala Krishna das (8) Bali Mardan das (9) Sudama das (10) Jagadisa das (11) Hayagriva das (12) Krishnadas /These personalities are now considered as my direct representatives. While I am living they will act as my zonal secretaries and after my demise they will be known as Executors. I have already awarded Sannyas or the renounced order of life to some of my students and they have also got very important duties to perform in this connection. The Sannyasis will travel to our different centers for preaching purpose as well as enlightening the members of the center for spiritual advancement. The Sannyasis will suggest for opening new centers in suitable places and the GBC will take action on it. As was stipulated by the ad hoc committee, the function of the GBC will be as follows with particulars:

DIRECTION OF MANAGEMENT: PART TWO, ELECTIONS & TRUSTEES

The purpose of the Governing Body Commission is to act as the instrument for the execution of the Will of His Divine Grace. And further, (1) The GBC oversees all operations and management of ISKCON, as it receives direction from Srila Prabhupada and His Divine Grace has the final approval in all matters. (2) His Divine Grace will select the initial 12 members of the GBC. In the succeeding years the GBC will be elected by a vote of all Temple presidents who will vote for 8 from a ballot of all Temple presidents, which may also include any secretary who is in charge of a Temple. Those 8 with the greatest number of votes will be members for the next term of GBC. Srila Prabhupada will choose to retain four commissioners. In the event of Srila Prabhupada's absence, the retiring members will decide which four will remain. (3) The commissioners will serve for a period of 3 years, and they may be re-elected at the end of this period.

(4) The chairman is elected by the GBC for each meeting. He has no veto power, but in event of a vote tie, his vote will decide. The same will apply for votes cast by mail between regular meetings. (5) Throughout the year, each of the commissioners will stay with His Divine Grace for one month at a time and keep the other commissioners informed of His Divine Grace's instructions. (6) The primary objective of the GBC is to organize the opening of new Temples and to maintain the established Temples. (7) Advice will be given by the GBC in cases of real property purchases, which will be in the name of ISKCON, INC. (Trucks or other vehicles will be purchased in the name of the local president). (8) Removal of a Temple president by the GBC requires support by the local Temple members. (9) The GBC has no jurisdiction in the publication of manuscripts, which will be handled by a separate committee; profits to be returned to Srila Prabhupada."

So far my books are concerned, I am setting up a different body of management known as the BHAKTIVEDANTA BOOK TRUST. The trustees of this body are also members of the GBC, but their function is not dependent on the GBC. ISKCON Press was created for the exclusive publication of my books and literatures and should be continued in that way. During my absence no one shall live in my apartment. ACB: A. C. Bhaktivedanta Swami: Witnessed by: Date July 28th 1970
(signed by Rupanuga das, Bhagavan das, Karandhar das, At the World Head Quarters: Los Angeles, CA)

ANALYSIS OF DIRECTION OF MANAGEMENT'S PRIMARY FEATURES

Srila Prabhupada's Direction Of Management is very interesting for a number of reasons:

(1) TEMPLE PRESIDENTS CAN ONLY BE REMOVED WITH THE CONSENT OF TEMPLE DEVOTEES: This is a severe limitation on the powers of the GBC. This DOM instruction is not followed by ISKCON today; temple presidents are appointed and removed by the local GBC regardless of the desires of temple members. (See next chapter) (2) GBC'S TO BE ELECTED BY TEMPLE PRESIDENTS: "In the succeeding years the GBC will be elected by a vote of all Temple presidents who will vote for 8 from a ballot of all Temple presidents, which may also include any secretary who is in charge of a Temple." This very unique system designed by Srila Prabhupada prescribes the election of 2/3 of the new GBC men by the temple presidents to a 3 year term. In his later letters he also instructed that temple presidents be elected by their congregations. From 1970-77 there were no GBC elections because Srila Prabhupada personally chose them. Since 1978 the GBC body exclusively votes (temple presidents do not) on adding or removing their own members (self-perpetuating). Many GBCs have held their post almost 50 years. The problems ensuing from not following this DOM clause is discussed below.

(3) "THE PRIMARY OBJECTIVE OF THE GBC IS TO ORGANIZE THE OPENING OF NEW TEMPLES and to maintain the established Temples." The GBC's main function is to simply maintain and spread what has already been given, not to introduce new management systems or deviate from what was given by Srila Prabhupada. (4) NO BOOKS APART FROM SRILA PRABHUPADA'S TO BE PRINTED IN ISKCON: "...I am setting up a different body of management known as the BHAKTIVEDANTA BOOK TRUST... ISKCON Press was created for the exclusive publication of my books and literatures and should be continued in that way." The BBT was formed in 1972. After Srila Prabhupada's departure, however, its functions and operations were transferred to a non-trust corporation, his books were dramatically adulterated ("edited"), and the BBT (BBTI) now prints many books by ISKCON gurus and authors, which is a blatant disobedience of Srila Prabhupada's direct order.

(5) SRILA PRABHUPADA REFERS TO HIS LEAVING BUT MAKES NO MENTION OF GURU SUCCESSORS:

"I am getting old, 75 years old, therefore at any time I may be out of the scene, therefore I think it is necessary to give instruction to my disciples how they shall manage the whole institution." Although concerned about the ISKCON institution after his departure, Srila Prabhupada does not instruct who would succeed him as guru (there is not even a hint on this) and instead he arranges for ISKCON's future management. ISKCON can go on nicely as long as it is managed according to his will (DOM), but the issue of successor diksha gurus is not mentioned. All the documents Srila Prabhupada gave us for managing ISKCON after his departure- namely the DOM, Last Will, July 9th Order... none hint at any new diksha gurus. And neither do any of his books mention anything about him being replaced as the "bona fide spiritual master" for ISKCON. There is no order that his disciples should initiate their own disciples. These documents give instructions only for ISKCON's management. Not only has ISKCON concocted an unprecedented initiations/guru system that was never even hinted at by Srila Prabhupada, but the GBC also did not continue to manage as he instructed in the DOM. Double disobedience. (6) "DURING MY ABSENCE NO ONE SHALL LIVE IN MY APARTMENT." See Part 9 how Tamal converted Srila Prabhupada's rooms into his own quarters in Dallas and Bombay, without no action or protest by the GBC. (7) SRILA PRABHUPADA CREATED THE ISKCON GBC AS AN UNINCORPORATED ASSOCIATION. Some GBCs in 1993 incorporated a GBC Society in India and have since fooled ISKCON temple presidents and devotees that this corporation is actually Srila Prabhupada's original GBC, but this is completely false and a scam deviation.

WHY DOES ISKCON NOT USE THE DOM TODAY?

Actually, much of the DOM IS being integrally used in ISKCON, but just some key DOM provisions are not used. The DOM parts which are honored by the GBC are: (1) The existence and operation of the GBC itself (2) Enrolling GBC property trustees on all ISKCON real estate (although there is substantial evidence that newer properties are owned/controlled by ISKCON gurus, not ISKCON) (3) The maintenance and opening of temples (although they have taken legal control of them, violating Srila Prabhupada's clear instructions for their independence) (4) They rotationally had a GBC travel with Srila Prabhupada monthly (done 1974-77). The reason some DOM provisions are not used in ISKCON today, in spite of Srila Prabhupada's clear desire for this, is simply that this would seriously reduce the GBC's power. The DOM was not the only instruction from Srila Prabhupada that was not followed, as discussed later. The DOM clauses that the GBC does NOT follow are: (1) Having the GBC elect 1/3 of the GBCs from their own ranks every 3 years (2) Having 2/3 of the GBC elected every 3 years by temple presidents from their ranks (3) Not removing temple presidents without local consent (4) Printing books other than Srila Prabhupada's books (5) Not violating the independence of the BBT (they transferred its operations and copyrights to a non-trust corporation managed by GBC chosen/puppet directors). (6) Allowing Tamal to live in Srila Prabhupada's apartments.

Most notably, DOM's GBC election provisions are not practiced in ISKCON today; the GBC claims their elections were "effectively amended" by Srila Prabhupada in 1975 and 1977. We examine their evidence below and conclude it is weak and convenient to their continued corruption. The GBC explains they must appoint and control all temple presidents and reserve the power to remove them at will, because they require the legal power to prevent temple defections from ISKCON and what they consider philosophical heresies (e.g., "ritvik-ism"). The GBC (a guru majority) refuses to fully implement the DOM because it would severely undermine their self-serving guru system, including the collection of money and disciples from the ISKCON temples.

An ISKCON member who thinks the DOM was rejected and neglected by Srila Prabhupada, and therefore it was never implemented: "As much as I myself would agree that the DOM is a very nice paper and should have been implemented in 1970, it was not. So apparently Srila Prabhupada didn't implement it or force the GBC to implement it either, though he had seven more years to do so. This does not make a good case that he actually wanted it later on. Personally I am all for GBC term limits and popular (by temple presidents) elections however Srila Prabhupada told them in 1977 they were elected for life. Look it up. I have to acquiesce to Srila Prabhupada's instructions in this regard." [Srila Prabhupada himself selected GBCs for life (only 2 remain today); but whether there should be elections after he departed is discussed below.]

SRILA PRABHUPADA'S SEPARATION OF POWERS IN ISKCON MANAGEMENT

Srila Prabhupada knew how absolute power corrupts absolutely. He envisioned a separation of powers in ISKCON to provide checks and balances to prevent authoritarianism, corruption, and tyranny. Similar to the idea of America's Founding Fathers separating the powers of government into three independent branches, namely legislative, executive, and judicial, with the DOM, many letters, and other instructions, Srila Prabhupada separated ISKCON powers into GBC, temple presidents, and BBT. He wanted decentralization and anticipated the tendency towards institutional corruption. (1) Control of his books were invested with the BBT without any GBC interference. (2) Temple presidents would be elected by local congregations without GBC meddling. (3) 2/3 GBC men were to be elected by temple presidents, and 1/3 by the GBC itself. (4) The GBC's function was restricted to advice, preaching, upholding standards, without the power to change temple presidents or create new doctrines not taught by Srila Prabhupada (see Part 16).

THE DOM'S PURPOSE WAS NEVER CHANGED

Srila Prabhupada called the DOM the "Constitution" of ISKCON, and it still is ISKCON's constitutional document. It is important to understand why Srila Prabhupada created the DOM and the GBC in 1970. In the DOM he wrote: "As we have increased our volume of activities, now I think a [GBC] should be established. I am getting old, 75 years old, therefore at any time I may be out of the scene, therefore I think it is necessary to give instruction to my disciples how they shall manage the whole institution." Ameyatma das explained, 2011: "The GBC was set up, via the DOM, to provide a basis for how Srila Prabhupada wanted his mission to be managed after he would 'be out of the scene.' So the DOM's primary purpose was to provide the basis for the mission's management AFTER Srila Prabhupada had physically departed. In Item 2 it is stated Srila Prabhupada will 'select' the initial 12 members. In the 'succeeding' years the GBC will be 'elected' by a vote of all temple presidents. Krishna das left the movement and Srila Prabhupada chose a replacement, and then he added new GBC members. In early 1974 there were over 12 GBCs and Karandhar had resigned. Srila Prabhupada replaced him with Jayatirtha. When Karandhar came back temporarily Srila Prabhupada made him a GBC in India for a short period. Srila Prabhupada did all this on his own. [...] Changes or appointments made by Srila Prabhupada did not nullify any part of the DOM. The DOM system of management was never changed." "Succeeding years" obviously was effectively postponed by Srila Prabhupada until after his departure., and not cancelled.

DOM WAS HIGHLIGHTED AGAIN BY THE TOPMOST URGENCY NOTICE IN 1974

Srila Prabhupada created the DOM in 1970 and reinforced its importance many times thereafter, and he never said or wrote that it should be changed or neglected (still, with very weak evidence, the GBC says he did). On July 22, 1974 Srila Prabhupada sent a signed TOPMOST URGENCY notice to all temples. It ordered that trustees must be enlisted on all properties and gave two clauses to be added to all official temple registration and incorporation documents, referring to the DOM as his will. In 1974 Srila Prabhupada obviously was still insisting the DOM to be implemented, and he resorted to the dramatic title of TOPMOST URGENCY to emphasize that reference to the DOM be amended into all ISKCON documents, charters, etc. The DOM stated about the GBC, “after my demise they will be known as Executors,” and “Execution of the will of His Divine Grace” in the 1974 notice clearly means implementing the DOM. The 1975 GBC resolutions (further below) approved by Srila Prabhupada also confirmed the GBC was to execute Srila Prabhupada’s will. The DOM was his will. Srila Prabhupada did not negate or change the DOM. “TOPMOST URGENCY”

AMENDMENTS TO BE IMMEDIATELY ADDED TO ALL OFFICIAL REGISTRATION DOCUMENTS, CONSTITUTIONS, INCORPORATION PAPERS, ETC.” (1) It is

CONSTITUTIONS, INCORPORATION PAPERS, ETC.” (1) It is declared that His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada is the Founder-Acharya of (ISKCON) International Society for Krishna Consciousness. He is the supreme authority in all matters of the society. His position cannot be occupied by anyone else, and his name and title must appear on all documents, letterheads, publications, and buildings of the Society. In particular it shall be clearly understood that no real estate may be purchased or sold by any officer of the Society without the express permission of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada, the Founder-Acharya of ISKCON. (2) There shall be a Governing Board Committee of trustees appointed by the Founder-Acharya His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada according to the document Direction of Management dated July 28, 1970. The GBC is to act as the instrument for the execution of the will of His Divine Grace Srila Prabhupada. /Dated at New York, July 22, 1974. Approved: A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami, Founder-Acharya/ Signed: Brahmananda Swami, GBC Zonal Sec/Balimardan das Goswami, GBC Zonal Sec

DOM RECONFIRMED IN 1974, 1975, 1976, 1977

Srila Prabhupada had experienced the disobedience and deviant tendencies of his senior disciples and he had stressed many times the key to their success in Krishna consciousness: keep His Divine Grace as their ISKCON Founder-Acharya, as the diksha guru, as the supreme authority for the future of his mission through his vani in his books and lectures, as the indispensable active spiritual ingredient in their lives. Srila Prabhupada kindly helped us understand and not to forget his true position and stature. He wanted to add this to all incorporation, constitution, and registration documents. This was not an ego crisis typical to conditioned souls. It was for our eternal benefit and salvation. May Srila Prabhupada be fully in the center of his mission of spreading Krishna consciousness. There are examples of this fundamental DOM principle being inserted in temple corporate registration documents during Srila Prabhupada’s presence. Nara Narayana (“Chronology of the Direction of Management” and “DOM and May 28 Conversation”) wrote: “When in Los Angeles, Srila Prabhupada insisted the DOM be added to the Los Angeles temple bylaws, and it was fully added in 1975 to ISKCON California bylaws [for] Los Angeles, San Diego, Laguna Beach. In 1976, when ISKCON was registered in Bay Area, Srila Prabhupada also arranged that DOM was fully added in its bylaws.

Strictly speaking, all ISKCON centers were obliged (and still are) to do the same, as required by the Topmost Urgency Directive of 1974." The ISKCON Bay Area, CA Incorporation Certificate, Jan. 12, 1976, reads: "He shall be the supreme power with respect to all matters of the Society, and that status shall not be occupied by or shared with any other individual, either during his lifetime, or after his death..." Scans of ISKCON of California bylaws, Nov. 14, 1975, here: <https://www.iskcon-truth.com/california-incorporation.html> Nara Narayana das, Ameyatma das, and others claim this was done at Srila Prabhupada's specific insistence.

Also, the 1975 GBC resolutions verified the GBC must execute Srila Prabhupada's will [the DOM is his will]. Srila Prabhupada's secretary Tamal wrote: "In the DOM, Prabhupad states, 'I have already awarded sannyasa or the renounced order of life to some of my students and they have also got very important duties to perform in this connection. The sannyasis will travel to our different centers for preaching purpose as well as enlightening the members of the center for spiritual advancement.' A servant is judged by how faithfully he carries out the order of his master. We shall be judged as disciples by how faithfully we maintain the principles and the orders of our Spiritual Master." (Letter, Adi Kesava, Tripurari, Dhirstadyumna Maharajas, July 13, 1977)

These confirmations of the DOM in 1974, 1975, 1976, and 1977 further discount the notion that any part of the DOM was forgotten, canceled, or abolished. Also, Srila Prabhupada's June 4, 1977 Last Will was legally attested and recorded, stating in #2: "Each Temple will be an ISKCON property and will be managed by three executive directors. The system of management will continue as it is now and there is no need of any change." The 1977 Last Will cross-references the 1970 DOM wherein properties must be in ISKCON's name, and reinforces the 1974 Topmost Urgency notice requiring registered trustees on all property titles to protect them from being improperly sold. Further, Srila Prabhupada's 1977 Will decrees that there should be no change to the management system, which had been originally defined in writing in the 1970 DOM, prescribing elections of GBCs who cannot remove temple presidents. Srila Prabhupada never changed his mind about implementing any part of the DOM. Written, documented support for DOM (with the principle of bottom-up election of GBC) includes: (1) Direction of Management itself (1970) (2) GBC suspension order (1972) by Srila Prabhupada (see below) (3) Topmost Urgency letter (1974): Srila Prabhupada wanted reference to the DOM be amended into all ISKCON legal documents, corporate charters, etc (4) Many Srila Prabhupada letters up to 1976 referring to temple president elections or removals, which is addressed in the DOM (also see next chapter) (5) Various ISKCON incorporation charters after 1970 included provisions from the DOM (see above) (6) Srila Prabhupada's 1977 Last Will which prescribed no changes to the system or direction of management.

DIRECTION OF MANAGEMENT HARDLY KNOWN UNTIL 1990'S

When the DOM was created in 1970, a few Xerox copies were circulated. Then DOM was almost forgotten. GBC leadership simply ignored it as though it was an outdated irrelevancy of the "early days." The DOM and Topmost Urgency notice were not included in Srila Prabhupada's Letters in 1987. These and fundamental, institutional documents were sequestered into secrecy. In the early 1980's the GBC passed a secret resolution that these essential documents must be denied to the devotees, and they became classified, top secret materials. This was a great crime by the GBC, no less than concealment, treachery, and conspiracy. (See Ch. 64, 84, 85) This was done to cheat the devotees. The fewer who knew of Srila Prabhupada's instructions for the future management of ISKCON, the easier it was to hijack and exploit Srila Prabhupada's institutional assets. In the mid 1990's, with the advent of the internet, the DOM resurfaced and became somewhat more known. By then the GBC had already entrenched and solidified their deviant, centralized management system and they made a few arguments against the DOM's validity when put on the spot.

1972 GBC SUSPENSION BY SRILA PRABHUPADA

Although Srila Prabhupada created the GBC in 1970 with the intention that he would train them how to lead the devotees and the movement, they have failed miserably even after 50+ years of experience. Some fanatics think that the GBC must be followed at all costs and in all circumstances. However, Srila Prabhupada himself suspended the GBC in 1972 to show that the highest principle for the GBC is not self-perpetuation but adherence to his instructions. Since the GBC has deviated so seriously (see Parts 11, 12-16) from his instructions, this precedent of GBC suspension encourages the same action again to rectify GBC disobedience and mismanagement. Under the present circumstances, the GBC should be suspended by any feasible means again. In this emergency, it is the devotees' collective right to remove the GBC as their leaders. When those that are misled will revolt, the leaders will fall. The devotees, represented by the temple presidents, must suspend and cancel the GBC's authority and retire them, moving forward with a restoration of the mission (see Ch. 164). Srila Prabhupada personally suspended the entire deviant GBC and he often rejected GBC decisions which were not proper. A SUSPEND notice was sent to all ISKCON temples on Apr. 8, 1972:

"I ALSO UNDERSTAND THAT IMMEDIATE ACTIONS ARE GOING TO TAKE PLACE EVEN PRIOR TO MY PERMISSION, AND THAT ALSO, 'WITHOUT DIVULGING TO THE DEVOTEES!' ...UNDER THESE CIRCUMSTANCES, I AUTHORIZE YOU TO DISREGARD FOR THE TIME BEING ANY DECISION FROM THE GBC MEN UNTIL MY FURTHER INSTRUCTION... FINALLY, I BEG TO REPEAT THAT ALL GBC ORDERS ARE SUSPENDED HEREWITH BY ME UNTIL FURTHER NOTICE. YOUR EVER WELL-WISHER, A. C. BHAKTIVEDANTA SWAMI."

"There was to be immediate action without divulging the matter to the devotees. And I am surprised that none of the GBC members detected the defects in the procedure. It was detected only when it came to me. What will happen when I am not here, shall everything be spoiled by GBC? So for the time being, let the GBC activities be suspended until I thoroughly revise the whole procedure..." (SPL Hansadutta Apr. 11, 1972) Srila Prabhupada was especially disturbed that the GBC decisions were kept secret from the devotees. He instituted the democratic principle that the general devotees elected their temple presidents and the temple presidents elected the GBC men, as discussed in this chapter and the next. Srila Prabhupada approved of GBC authority only so long as they were acting properly. He only gave them conditional authority, not unconditional.

SPOTTY IMPLEMENTATION OF THE DOM

From 1970 the DOM was poorly implemented and not taken seriously by the GBC as to how ISKCON should be managed. The GBC does not like the DOM's GBC election provisions. They fear being voted out of their lifelong positions and power. Elections would mean new leaders and they do not want to be removed, so they suppressed and neglected the DOM. It was OK if temples were in ISKCON's name and sometimes there were temple elections of officers. That part of the DOM was always fine with the GBC. But the idea of GBCs having terms of office and facing re-election by temple presidents was not OK. The GBC were intent on keeping their positions of power and prestige indefinitely. Decades after Srila Prabhupada departed, the DOM again came to light and societal awareness, rescued from GBC suppression. In response to the uproar about its provisions being ignored by the GBC, only then did the GBC rationalize their unwritten policy since 1978 on the GBC electing themselves. "The DOM was proposed for adoption at the GBC Mayapur meetings around 1996 by Sridham das, who was enthusiastic about its great value in solving ISKCON's problems. But it was attacked and savaged by Jayapataka, Tamal, and Ravindra Svarupa. The proposal was dead upon arrival- the GBC had no interest in it whatsoever. It was a serious threat to the status quo." (Naranarayana das, 2006) The evolution of ISKCON management since 1977 is totally anathemic to the DOM provisions for GBC and temple president elections. The GBC has a legal, corporate vision for ISKCON that severely differs from Srila Prabhupada's DOM.

If the GBC had fully implemented the 1974 Topmost Urgency instruction, then the DOM would have been referenced in every ISKCON temple's corporate papers. But the GBC widely neglected this even after Srila Prabhupada's legal, written notice. Then, after the GBC were already self-electing themselves, in 1983 the GBC required each GBC to add three GBC property trustees to all ISKCON properties under threat of dismissal.

GBC CLAIMS DOM WAS “EFFECTIVELY AMENDED” TO CANCEL ELECTIONS

The GBC claims on their website (2016): (1) That since Srila Prabhupada up to 1977 personally appointed GBC men for life, and he never actually had GBCs elected by temple presidents as stated in DOM, this means he had rejected the DOM’s GBC election provision. [Not so, it only means that while he was here that he wanted to choose them himself. He always emphasized the GBC should execute his will, and the DOM is his will]. (2) Also that the DOM election provisions were “effectively amended” in 1975 and 1977 by Srila Prabhupada himself. [But we strongly disagree with this defective argument as faulty, misleading, tenuous, and most of all, self-serving to their corruption as unaccountable lifelong tyrants - more on this below]. (3) That Srila Prabhupada did not talk about the DOM from 1975-77, a silence which means the DOM fell away as ISKCON grew, and in his last years he abandoned the idea of elections. [But silence is not a revocation.]

The GBC’s “evidence” for no GBC elections by temple presidents may sound plausible, but it collapses when examined. Since 1978 the GBC has rebuilt ISKCON as a bureaucratic, corporatized entity, owned and controlled by a GBC corporate society registered in 1993 with secret bylaws. Since 1978 the GBC body, rather than use the DOM election provisions, votes to add or remove its members, similar to the former Soviet Communist Politburo. They elect and protect themselves perpetually without any review process or chance of voter rejection. The GBC has absolute power that is unchecked and unbalanced by the temple presidents, general membership, brahmana advisors, or anything at all. When the GBC finally approved a shastric advisory council (SAC) in 2012, they made sure it was purely advisory. Except in fully liberated souls, absolute power corrupts absolutely and ISKCON has become a guru dictatorship of a good-old-boys club of unaccountable members-for-life. The DOM’s checks and balances are absent. The GBC is an untouchable elite who rule and control the members and institution as a gurocracy, an autocratic guru regime. Only when a GBC member becomes too embarrassing or defiant is there a censure, suspension, probation, or dismissal. Having been “snowed” and outright cheated by the GBC so many times already, we should closely vet their “evidence” and the real history before accepting their “effectively amended” theory.

First, what is sure is Srila Prabhupada never specifically sidelined or negated any part of the DOM, so any assumption of such is just an assumption, a total speculation. If ISKCON had actually gone on nicely under the GBC’s care and management since 1978, maybe there would be no issue today. But, things have gone very horribly wrong and the GBC’s management has been a catastrophe. Change is a screaming necessity, and the obvious remedy is Srila Prabhupada’s full DOM used as he intended. Failure to re-emphasize is not conclusive. “The GBC insist Srila Prabhupada had long before his final year abandoned the DOM, doing away with its elections, and it was just Srila Prabhupada’s preliminary idea, he changed his mind and never implemented it. If he really wanted it, he had ample opportunity to establish elections, demanding they be held by the Temple Presidents in his presence, and the fact he did not do this is proof he no longer wanted that system followed. The GBC labels those who push for it’s acceptance as being deviants, fallen, rebellious or misguided. Not so. We are concerned for the long term future of Srila Prabhupada’s mission. We are just as sincere in our heart as they claim to be. But we have reached a very different conclusion.” (Ameyatma das, 2011)

GBC EVIDENCE FROM 1975 GBC RESOLUTIONS

ISKCON GBC’s website, 2016, cites their “evidence” for GBC self-elections: “...the first [...] Meeting of ISKCON’s GBC took place in Mayapur in 1975. Srila Prabhupada himself attended and guided [...] how such meetings should be conducted [and] a significant decision was made regarding the appointment of GBC members. ISKCON’s DOM states that in the future, temple presidents would elect GBC members. However, this was never implemented, and in 1975 a resolution was passed effectively amending the original DOM so that temple presidents would not elect GBC members. The resolution, approved and signed by Srila Prabhupada reads: (5) The selection of GBC members is that Srila Prabhupada will nominate, and if there is a discrepancy, His Divine Grace will change him. There will be no elections, and the present GBC members will remain.”

This resolution does not even refer to the DOM, nor does it restrict future elections, especially after Srila Prabhupada would no longer be here to select GBCs himself. This only acknowledges that in the future he himself would select GBCs and meanwhile there need be no elections. It clarifies that Srila Prabhupada was reserving his right to personally select and approve all changes to the GBC. ("Srila Prabhupada will nominate... [and] will change him.") This only delays the GBC elections by temple presidents until after Srila Prabhupada would no longer be personally selecting them. The GBC interpretation is stretched, an argument to increase their power. Cui bono? Prior to Srila Prabhupada's departure there were no elections of GBCs either by temple presidents or by the existing GBC members. That the GBC would elect its own members is nowhere indicated in the 1975 resolution, either during or after Srila Prabhupada's presence; this idea is a speculative presumption. The GBC offers no testimony or memories from 1975 as to insights on the resolution. Tapes also do not confirm the GBC's interpretation. Twenty years later the GBC was compelled by DOM advocates to look back in their minutes for something to justify their post-1977 self-elections. If the 1975 resolution meant that after Srila Prabhupada departed there would be no elections of GBC by temple presidents, as per the DOM, and that the GBC would elect themselves for life, then why does the resolution NOT SAY ANYTHING ABOUT THIS? It does not support their claim and it is but a minor clarification.

Obviously, after Srila Prabhupada's departure, elections would have to start somehow, by either temple presidents or the GBC themselves. So there ARE elections after 1977. "No elections" was only while Srila Prabhupada was himself selecting the GBCs. "Had it been Srila Prabhupada's intention that this 1975 resolution was to have made the 'succeeding years' election aspect of the DOM null and void, as the GBC claim, he would have discussed how he then wanted the GBC to be maintained after he departed, otherwise it would have left no system at all. He wrote the DOM expressly to define how he wanted his mission to be managed after he left." (Ameyatma das, 2011) The DOM was NEVER specifically changed or negated, and was always Srila Prabhupada's only prescription. "Direct, direct instruction is important. Just like Krishna. In the books He has given many instructions [...] The direct instruction is important." (SP Mar. 27, 1975) "I may say many things to you, but when I say something directly, 'Do it,' your first duty is to do that. You cannot argue [...] that is your business. The master says like that, and the servant's business is to accept it as it is, without any argument." (SP Apr. 1975)

GBC EVIDENCE FOR SELF-ELECTIONS FROM MAY 28, 1977 TALKS

The second evidence the GBC cites for no GBC elections by temple presidents is a short conversation in 1977 which also makes no mention of the DOM. ISKCON GBC website 2016: "Two years later on May 28, 1977 an official delegation of GBC members asked Srila Prabhupada for further direction regarding the future operation of the GBC. On the subject of a GBC member's term of office, Srila Prabhupada replied that a GBC member should 'remain for good' and that a 'GBC is not to be changed.' Srila Prabhupada further clarifies 'So there is no question of changing GBC. Rather, one who is competent, he can be selected to act by the board of the GBC.' The GBC continues to follow Srila Prabhupada's instructions today, maintaining lifelong positions and appointing new members through an election process within the governing body." The actual talks transcript:

SATS: These are the members of the original GBC as you first made it up. So our first question is about the GBC members. We want to know how long should they remain in office? SP: They should remain for good. Tamal: They should remain for good. SP: Selected men are chosen, so they cannot be changed. Rather, if some competent man comes, he should be added. I shall recommend that Vasudeva become one of the GBC. So add him. GBC is not to be changed. SATS: But then, in the event that some present GBC member leaves, either leaves... SP: Another should be elected. SATS: (Quietly, under his breath) By the votes of the present GBC. (He goes quickly to the next question; Srila Prabhupada did not confirm GBC would elect its own future members.) SP: So there is no question of changing GBC. SATS: No. SP: Rather, one who is competent, he can be selected to act by the board of the GBC. Then, later: SP: They must be all ideal acharya-like. In the beginning we have done for working. Now we should be very cautious. Anyone who is deviating, he can be replaced.

THE MAY 28 EVIDENCE IS AMBIGUOUS

The GBC says that during Srila Prabhupada's lifetime, no GBC elections were held, and this means he did not ever want them, and so the GBC has been a self-electing body since 1978. The GBC claims Srila Prabhupada overruled the DOM's provision for the election of the GBC (1/3 by existing GBC, 2/3 by temple presidents) with this a new instruction that all GBCs be appointed for life by the vote of the existing GBC members. However, this is not at all clear in the May 28 conversation, as there is no mention of the DOM, nor of GBC elections by temple presidents. How can something be amended without referring to it? Did he create the DOM to later whimsically cancel its election provisions without even saying that was what he was doing?

Further comments: (1) Satsvarupa's statement, "By the votes of the present GBC," which he speaks quietly under his breath and before Srila Prabhupada even had time to reply to it, was immediately followed by the important question about future initiations. With the rumbling AC unit Srila Prabhupada may not have heard Satsvarupa's half-audible comment, neither did he affirm it, so we do not know if he agreed with it. And it was not discussed further. (2) Perhaps Srila Prabhupada's "by the board of the GBC" meant "on the board of the GBC" with a very different meaning. Would Srila Prabhupada amend a critical part of the DOM with one word, and do so without even referring to the DOM? We need some solid confirmation that the DOM was thus "effectively amended" before making such an interpretation based on so little. (3) It is likely in 1977 Srila Prabhupada spoke more on these subjects in the 200+ missing 1977 tapes. How convenient these tapes are missing. (4) Possibly, since the GBC had given Srila Prabhupada so much headache after 1970, he avoided giving them direct orders (disobeying the pure devotee's orders has severe reactions), lest he inadvertently harm them by increasing their offenses in disobeying those orders. Srila Prabhupada knew his ambitious senior men, and knowing his departure was coming, he wanted to induce their affection for him rather than give hard orders they would disobey. This can explain why he did not dwell on the election, initiation, and guru issues any more than he did. Maybe he deliberately chose not to give more orders. (5) The DOM cannot be changed without a clear instruction from Srila Prabhupada. Second-guessing his intentions on a signed, fundamental document like DOM is dangerously speculative. (6) Also, "selected to act by the board of the GBC" would refer (at least) to the DOM's provision for 1/3 of GBCs to be elected by existing GBCs, and this is actually a confirmation of the DOM, not a negation. That the GBC was to 3/3 or exclusively elect themselves in the future, rather than 1/3, is not the correct or logical take-away from these talks. The GBC disagree.

There is no "effective" elections amendment. This is a GBC bluff. Their "evidence" does not even mention the DOM or temple presidents... Obviously, after Srila Prabhupada departs, vacancies must be filled and additions made by some kind of elections, so will it be as per the DOM or as per GBC speculation? Which has the stronger evidence? Of course the GBC says their interpretation must be honored. Conspicuously (as far as we know), no one ever asked Srila Prabhupada anything more about the DOM's elections provisions. We recognize the GBC's motive in making their case, because with GBC elections by the temple presidents, they would not retain their posts nor control of the institutional policies which safeguard their guru businesses. The elections issue is all or nothing for them. They honor the DOM provisions they find agreeable, such as properties in ISKCON's name (though now gurus operate outside ISKCON), and the DOM creation of the GBC itself. They ignore the DOM's elections provision because that would end their guru regime and their uncheckable authority. Why did the GBC never ask Srila Prabhupada proper questions such as: (1) "After your departure, how will the GBC's be elected and how long should they remain in office?" (2) "Are you amending the DOM's provisions for 2/3 of the GBC to be elected every three years by the temple presidents?"

The ISKCON hijackers feared for their future GBC posts and Satsvarupa with others asked loaded questions very carefully phrased. They deliberately did not seek proper clarification. The whole short May 28 conversation was interpreted to suit their agenda. The import of the 1975 GBC resolutions and the May 28, 1977 talks amounts only to minor GBC election clarifications (listed below). By a half sentence in a vague conversation (“he can be selected to act by the board of the GBC”), the DOM’s 2/3 GBC elections by temple presidents is not amended. It is an untenable and rejected conclusion that a few vague words, interpreted by a self-serving GBC, changed the DOM, a signed, legal, witnessed official document. The DOM has far greater philosophical, legal weight than the GBC’s convenient interpretation to maintain their gurocracy. DOM already has a self-electing process for GBC’s- but only 1/3 for another 3 year term. DOM says: “In the event of Srila Prabhupada’s absence, the retiring members will decide which four will remain.” On May 28 Srila Prabhupada likely was talking about this 1/3 election, not any changes. Judging from the GBC’s suppression of the July 9 Order, May 28 talks, for all disciples to come to see Srila Prabhupada in Oct. 1977, outright lies about Srila Prabhupada appointing 11 successor acharyas, cover-ups on child abuse, guru falldowns, and the poisoning- we cannot trust anything the GBC says, especially when their evidence is so speculative and interpretative. There is no change to ISKCON’s Constitution (DOM). Srila Prabhupada never amended the DOM’s elections of 2/3 of the GBC by temple presidents nor negated any part of it.

FIVE MINOR CLARIFICATIONS TO GBC ELECTIONS

Rather than an “effective amendment” which negated the DOM’s GBC elections by temple presidents, what we have from the 1975 GBC resolution and the May 28 talks are FIVE minor GBC election clarifications, which do not change the DOM: (1) “No changes” to the GBC meant only Srila Prabhupada would make changes. (2) Those GBCs that Srila Prabhupada selected would “remain” for life, if competent and “acharya-like.” By 2021 only two GBCs appointed by Srila Prabhupada remained (Gopal Krishna, Jayapataka Swamis), so they are “for good.” But if they “deviated” in the last 45 years, this is a criteria to evaluate their fitness for office. “Post-Prabhupada” GBCs must face re-election as per the DOM. (3) While Srila Prabhupada selected GBCs himself, there would be no elections, but this does not mean no elections at all after he departed, or how would the GBC survive? (4) Competent candidates for GBC “can be selected to act by the board of the GBC” refers to 1/3 of GBC’s elected by the GBC as per the DOM. This does not change the DOM’s 2/3 of GBCs elected by temple presidents. (5) Elections were only DELAYED until Srila Prabhupada departed, then DOM elections would become effective, not “ineffective.”

A LEGAL DOCUMENT MUST BE AMENDED BY ANOTHER LEGAL DOCUMENT

Srila Prabhupada never even discussed changing the DOM’s provisions, and he maintained from 1970 onwards that this was his desired program for ISKCON management, and in his 1977 Final Will said that there should be no change to the management system in place, which was the DOM. There were 5 minor clarifications to the GBC elections but no DOM amendments. Here are three examples how Srila Prabhupada would legally amend a document (and not just say a few ambiguous words): (1) In his last days he made a legal, court-filed Last Will Codicil making a minor amendment to his former family’s stipend amount. (2) His 1974 Topmost Urgency notice to all temples and GBCs gave a hard order to amend all ISKCON property deed titles. (3) He suspended the GBC in 1972 with official mailed, signed notices to all ISKCON temple presidents.

Srila Prabhupada did not legally change the DOM, so it remains legally in effect, regardless of self-serving contrary claims. Ameyatma das (2006, 2012): “Srila Prabhupada never wavered from his original intent and expectation that the GBC be bound to the mandates of the DOM, [which] is among documents he clearly expected our society to adhere to. As in U.S., when a law is passed, the only way to rescind or modify it is by formally, explicitly amending it or passing a new law. The DOM was written and signed by Srila Prabhupada in a legal, official manner. It stands not only as the original, founding document, but also as the only document Srila Prabhupada authored and signed to instruct how he wanted his society managed. The only way to rescind or change DOM would be for Srila Prabhupada to sign and execute another document that explicitly rescinds, replaces, or amends it. This was never done. The DOM’s GBC elections must stand. In 1974-76 he wrote to various GBCs stating they must adhere to various DOM provisions, and there are no letters at any time rescinding those requests. [...] Would Srila Prabhupada have wanted to change such a vital and important aspect of the DOM by this one short question and short reply? [May 28 1977] This is not consistent with how he had written the DOM, and later how he sent a letter to be added to ISKCON's legal deeds for all temples."

WHY WERE THERE NO GBC ELECTIONS BETWEEN 1970-1977?

This has a simple answer. Starting with the first 12 in 1970, all GBCs were appointed or approved only by Srila Prabhupada, so there was no need for elections due to Srila Prabhupada SELECTING them himself. He was training a leadership team he hoped would carry on his mission after his physical departure and he wanted continuity to be free to write his books rather than re-training new men with every election. He wanted the training he had invested in his best men to be "for good," for the future. There is all reason to understand he always intended the DOM elections to come in "succeeding years." He replaced Krishnadas with Jayatirtha and restored the same GBC after a 2 month suspension in 1972. The GBC was increased to 14 in 1975 and to 26 in mid-1977, all of them selected by Srila Prabhupada. He added Vasudeva May 28, 1977 and Bhakti Chaitanya Swami July 1977. When he departed, DOM's GBC elections should have kicked in as legally prescribed. As we see in the DOM, Srila Prabhupada hoped that GBC elections would be done in his presence, but he instead continued to select them himself, delaying the start of elections because of:

(1) the 1972 incident when Srila Prabhupada was forced to suspend GBC activities for a their serious wrongdoing (2) the repeated "falldowns" of GBCs from the devotional standards: "Regarding the GBC meeting to be held in Mayapur 1975 [...] it will be held in my presence. As far as your proposals are concerned the real thing is that we must make broader constitution of the management by GBC. But the difficulty is that our GBC men are falling victim to maya. Today I trust this GBC and tomorrow he will fall down. That is the difficulty. If the GBC men are so flickering then what to speak of the others. Unless this problem is solved whatever we may resolve it will not be very useful. We shall discuss this at our meeting. If the GBC men can ever manage properly then I shall get some time for writing my books." (SPL Jayatirtha Dec. 16, 1974) (3) the obvious reluctance of ISKCON leaders to bring the DOM to the attention of devotees and implement its provisions that limited GBC powers: "After the first 1971 GBC meeting in New Vrindaban, the DOM should have been distributed to each temple president... All Srila Prabhupada's disciples should have gotten a copy so that they could understand the organization they had joined. [...] the GBC was treating the DOM as a secret document [...] In 1975, when I asked to see the DOM, Jayatirtha, GBC and president of New Dwarka, snarled at me and said, 'It is locked in a safe, and you will never get to see it.'" (4) the GBC's failure in the "execution of the will of His Divine Grace," as prescribed in item 2 of the 1974 Topmost Urgency Notice re: the DOM.

The performance of the GBC after 1970 compelled Srila Prabhupada to postpone elections and be sure to select good men himself. The postponement of GBC elections does not amend or negate anything. The GBC rejects what they don't like (GBC elections by TPs, BBT printing only SP's books).

SRILA PRABHUPADA DID NOT ELIMINATE THE DOM'S GBC ELECTIONS

(1) The GBC says there never were GBC elections so the DOM was "effectively" invalid. So why did they uphold the DOM in NY State Court July 19, 2004 to establish GBC authority over Long Island temple? GBC Badrinarayan das (Robert Morrill) entered the "DIRECTION OF MANAGEMENT" as evidence into court, as it is the only document that legitimizes the ISKCON GBC. "Your Honor, this is the Direction of Management that establishes the GBC and talks about its authority... I should mention that this document is quoted, it is referenced, it is well-known. It's the basis of the decisions, the basis of our authority." (2) There is no conversation, letter, order, or anything that negates or changes the DOM or any of its provisions, except for minor clarifications. (3) Srila Prabhupada sent many letters about removal or election of temple presidents (next chapter), confirming the DOM's provisions for temple president's elections and protection from GBC removal was still desired by Srila Prabhupada, even long after the 1975 GBC resolutions. (4) Srila Prabhupada's delaying GBC elections by temple presidents while he was present does not negate them for after his departure. (5) The 1975 GBC resolutions do not negate GBC elections by temple presidents in the future. (6) In 1975-76 the DOM was included in some USA ISKCON centers' bylaws, at Srila Prabhupada's specific request.

THE 1975 OATH OF ALLEGIANCE AND TWO OPTIONS

DOM describes two options: either Srila Prabhupada personally appoints the GBCs, or there will be elections by the 1/3 - 2/3 method. The 1975 GBC resolutions states no elections will occur, because Srila Prabhupada was selecting GBCs himself. After his departure, only one option remained, GBC elections by temple presidents, which Srila Prabhupada never canceled. Also on Mar. 27, 1975 the GBC held a partially recorded discussion with Srila Prabhupada about the Oath of Allegiance, a legally binding document, that he asked be drafted for review. It was decided all temple presidents and GBCs would sign it to curb abuse of power as had occurred in several cases. Srila Prabhupada thought this oath would protect ISKCON from schism, loss of property, philosophical deviations by leaders, etc, so why does the GBC today want the total bureaucratic centralized control structure that Srila Prabhupada rejected with the 1972 GBC suspension? With the DOM, temple president elections, and the Oath of Allegiance, Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON management system is perfect and complete. (Om purnam...) The Oath was read to Srila Prabhupada, discussed, and GBC resolution #6 was passed: "An annual oath of allegiance should be signed by each GBC and Temple President." [...] "I state I have been elected or nominated a member of GBC, under the recommendation of [...] His Divine Grace A. C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada..." We see two options: "elected or nominated."

"ANYONE WHO IS DEVIATING, HE CAN BE REPLACED"

"Anyone who is deviating, he can be replaced." (SPConv May 28, 1977) The entire GBC body is responsible for having deviated ISKCON to where it is today, more so than could have ever been imagined. Whether Srila Prabhupada actually still wanted GBCs elected by temple presidents or not, he specified that GBCs who deviated could be replaced. In light of profound and ongoing GBC deviations, as chronicled herein, the entire GBC must be suspended and replaced anyway. This is further discussed in Ch. 164: "No Confidence, Disaffiliation, Removal." "What will happen when I am not here, shall everything be spoiled by GBC? So for the time being, let the GBC activities be suspended..." (Apr. 11, 1972) "Do not try to innovate or create anything or manufacture anything, that will ruin everything." (SPL Bali Mardan Sept. 18, 1972) The GBC finds flimsy "evidence" to disregard some of the DOM, and demands allegiance to the rest of it. Cherry-picking cheaters. Why don't they take Srila Prabhupada's May 28 advice that since they have deviated, they should be replaced? The GBC misinterprets the letter of the law (DOM) while ignoring the spirit of the law (DOM).

JUDGE BY THE RESULT: TIME TO CHANGE THE FAILED REGIME

Judge by the result. After 45 years of the GBC making a disaster out of ISKCON, we now need to find a practical solution to arrive at the results Srila Prabhupada desired. Now it is time to try something else. There are very convincing arguments that GBC elections as prescribed in DOM should be adopted in ISKCON. Better late than never. Many devotees believe the full DOM must be implemented in ISKCON. The DOM's GBC elections will end the cronyism, corruption, unaccountability, and misleadership. Otherwise, the mess in ISKCON will continue to worsen. Full implementation of the DOM is the best alternative because it was given by Srila Prabhupada. The GBC's interpretations as to which parts of the DOM should be used simply perpetuates their failed system. Rather than ISKCON becoming a failed institution similar to the failed states of Africa and Asia, we must be practical and judge from the results, and do what is necessary, as Srila Prabhupada often said. This book reviews the results of a self-elected GBC, and we need a change. If Srila Prabhupada came back and saw the GBC's degraded ISKCON, he would definitely end their self-elections, as the resulting corruption and personal ambition has ruined the spiritual institution. The GBC's policies and mismanagement have made a sad mess of ISKCON; we have seen what happens when a GBC elects its own members for life, with no input from the devotees or temple presidents. The institution has been corrupted by unaccountable men with near absolute power. Spiritual sincerity and pure service is lost to political expediencies. Arguably, the lack of GBC elections has resulted in all ISKCON's troubles after 1978 due to compounding corruption. Disband the GBC due to its deviations and failures (see next chapters), implement GBC and the temple president elections (Ch.162), and end the self-serving, unaccountable regime of tyranny. IT IS TIME FOR A MAJOR CHANGE TO THE GBC'S FAILED REGIME.

"So phalena pariciyate. You have to consider the case, suppose a man was very good, now he has stolen something, still he is a good man? Present consideration is the judgement." (SPConv Oct. 8, 1972) Some additional thoughts: (1) Srila Prabhupada said, "Another should be elected." But by whom? The 1/3 or the 2/3? (2) Srila Prabhupada wanted the DOM expanded into a broader ISKCON Constitution. The DOM, given to us by Srila Prabhupada himself, should be the basis for ISKCON. (3) We have learned from ISKCON's history the hard way: speculative ways of managing ISKCON while neglecting Srila Prabhupada's instructions will not be successful. (4) Srila Prabhupada wrote many letters supporting elections of temple presidents by local members, and this reveals his faith in representational elections. (5) The weightiest evidence how to manage ISKCON is the signed, written, witnessed DOM document, repeatedly advocated by Srila Prabhupada, who in later years clarified only some minor details. (6) We reject the GBC 100% self-electing with no checks or balances. Regular elections restricts corrupt, unaccountable career politicians who have no performance review.

"THE SYSTEM OF MANAGEMENT WILL CONTINUE AS IT IS NOW"

We earlier described the "sinister movement" which had entered into ISKCON, a combination of influences from the Gaudiya Math and senior ISKCON leaders who became infected with personal ambitions. Srila Prabhupada was so disturbed he even offered to leave ISKCON to preach elsewhere. In reaction to being sidelined, minimized, and his mission undermined, he created the DOM and BBT to safeguard the movement. The DOM created the GBC, provided for checks and balances to wayward leadership: bottom up GBC elections who could not remove temple presidents without local support. He separated his books and copyrights from ISKCON, vesting them with trusted men as a book trust. This was his ingenuity of responding to the threats facing his mission. He did not legalize the society with a top down, ironclad control system with a corporatist, bureaucratic structure as the GBC has put in place today. The GBC must honor his choices and implement the DOM's GBC election provisions. The sad truth is that the GBC-guru cartel in ISKCON is interested only in protecting their guru businesses. Dishonestly, to serve their guru franchises operation, the GBC/guru elite cherry-picks and misinterprets minor evidence to discredit whatever threatens their guru regime- e.g., their election by temple presidents. "The system of management will continue as it is now and there is no need of any change." (SP Final Will June 4, 1977) That system was the DOM and it still is. In April 1977 Srila Prabhupada stated: "...even if I die suddenly, you can manage..." He had given everything already.

SRILA PRABHUPADA MAY HAVE CHOSEN NOT TO PRESS THE ISSUE

Sometimes Srila Prabhupada was hard as a thunderbolt and sometimes softer than a rose. He took all of Tamal's power and authority away and banished him to China, and two months later graciously rescinded it all when presented with a broken, depressed Tamal in Hawaii. He chose to give independence, broad leeway to his Western disciples in managing his American and European temples (but in India, his "home turf," he almost managed everything himself). He often did not press an issue too much, apparently because this might undermine his disciples' enthusiasm, and lead to more disobedience. He even gave no answer when asked who had poisoned him. He had very specific plans for the expansion and management of his transcendental movement. However, he was dismayed by the maya that entered his mission in 1970 when senior leaders tried to sideline him and take his place. He was exasperated by the GBC's inability to perform their basic duties. The quotes are numerous. He responded by creating DOM, GBC, elections, sannyasi preachers, BBT, and Oath of Allegiance. But resistance and neglect of his instructions regarding his desired management system persisted. Examples: (1) The 1972 unannounced NY GBC meeting which planned to centralize the temples legally, financially, and managerially, so he suspended the GBC. (2) Repeated difficulties with Western disciples who had stubborn personalities, complicated by ambitions for power, authority, and later, guruship. (3) It was necessary to issue a Topmost Urgency notice to reference the DOM by amendment to all temple legal documents. (4) It was necessary in many letters to uphold the temple presidents' being elected or removed only by the local members and not by the GBC. (5) Asked on May 28, 1977 by his GBC men about GBC tenure and their election, showing that his senior men still were not amenable to the DOM's principles of GBC elections. (6) He frustratingly told Puri Maharaja in his last days, "What can I do?" after being warned his disciples will fight and deviate after his departure. In the West he had kept an arm's length distance from management. After the 1970 "sinister" conspiracy, his 1972 suspension of the GBC, the continuous quarrelling and falldowns of his senior men, and the neglect of his Topmost Urgency order, Srila Prabhupada must have been discouraged and frustrated with his men, and he sometimes said so very plainly.

He had a keen understanding of his Western disciple's mentality, their independent-mindedness, needing a long rope so not to choke their enthusiasm for preaching. He was very aware of their nature, limitations, and ambitions. He knew the differences in Western culture and Vedic India where authority was naturally accepted. Out of great kindness and affection for his disciples, he did not want to increase their offenses against him by giving them too many firm orders that they would likely disobey anyway. This explains why Srila Prabhupada did not harp over and over in his last years that DOM be fully implemented. "I have decided to adopt the following principles and I hope my beloved disciples will kindly accept them." (DOM) He saw his "beloved disciple's" ambitions and their aversion to DOM's checks and balances for the ISKCON managers and having elections of temple presidents and GBCs by temple presidents. He saw his previous orders neglected and disregarded, so what more could he do? He hoped they would eventually take his desires seriously, and meanwhile he would try to engage them in the purificatory process of devotional service to make spiritual advancement. He said Krishna had only sent him 4th and 5th class men, and there was only so much he could expect from them. "My only grievance is that I appointed GBC to give me relief from the management but, on the contrary, complaints and counter-complaints are coming to me." (SPL Jayatirtha Oct. 16, 1975) The flawed GBC claim that by 1977 Srila Prabhupada no longer favored the DOM or elections should be seen instead as his quiet frustration with his leaders' ambitions and disobedience. He implored his senior men, as his health faded, not to spoil the mission and at least maintain what he had established. He was prescient of his movement's future. What more could he do to keep them on the right track? After all, he could not force them. He also knew they were poisoning him and waiting for him to die. (see Book One) He tried to increase their affection for him and his instructions, hoping "my beloved disciples will kindly accept them." But they continued to poison him and as unauthorised gurus they hijacked the movement and spoiled everything. Now only the DOM and its prescribed elections will remedy this dire situation.

THE SALE OF THE NEW ORLEANS APARTMENTS

Srila Prabhupada arrived in New Orleans July 31, 1975 to visit the New Talavan farm an hour outside the city. Nityananda das saw how Srila Prabhupada did not push his Western disciples against their independent, obstinate natures. "Srila Prabhupada had just awoken from his afternoon rest and sat behind a low table in his sitting room. He was slightly shaking and leaned forward to accept the cooling effect of the sandalwood paste I dabbed onto his forehead and temples with a marigold. The New Orleans summer was hot and humid and we had no AC. I placed a rose garland around his neck, and he slightly nodded in appreciation. I was taken aback when he began speaking to me: 'You know, I have come here especially to see your farm.' He tried to initiate discussion about our New Talavan farm project, but I went blank and all I could manage to reply was, 'Oh.' Then he asked, 'Why you are selling this building?' Brahmananda Swami must have informed him we owned the building with four apartments and that it was listed for sale. I was confronted and defensive at this unexpected question. It never occurred to me that I should have asked Srila Prabhupada. I explained we were moving our devotee families to live on the farm, we were building large cow feed silos, so we would use the apartment building sale proceeds for that. I saw Srila Prabhupada look away and then downwards, awkwardly, as though frustrated and wanting to say something, and years later I understood he did not approve but reserved further comment. He was not impressed by my rationale, but he said no more. It did not sink in that I should have asked his opinion. Years later, I saw again the 1974 Topmost Urgency notice, which said: 'In particular it shall be clearly understood that no real estate may be purchased or sold by any officer of the Society without the express permission of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada, the Founder-Acharya of ISKCON.' So Srila Prabhupada was wondering why I was disobeying this instruction, why I was oblivious to it. I had discussed my plan to expand the farm project with our GBC man, but we were both deficient in complying with those instructions about selling properties. I realized Srila Prabhupada had doubted the logic and sense of the apartment sale, but that he dropped the subject after sensing my stubbornness and attachment to 'my' farm plans. And the sale was a big mistake, and soon another building had to be rented and a smaller home purchased nearby at a higher cost for the married couples. I was 26, impulsive, ignorant; it was my first real estate deal. A year earlier I had received Srila Prabhupada's Topmost Urgency letter ordering GBC trustees to be listed on properties, but I had no idea what property trustees were and it was not taken seriously by me or my GBC, and we ignored it. New Orleans was informally using the New York ISKCON incorporation and we had no local corporation. I could not understand Srila Prabhupada's hint and now I wish he would have just told me what to do. I am also deeply moved he was more concerned about me and my immature enthusiasm as his local leader than he was about the building." (Nityananda das, 2018)

OTHER PASTIMES SUPPORTING THIS UNDERSTANDING

In What Is The Difficulty (Sruti Kirti, p. 8, 213) there are two instances where Srila Prabhupada was thinking how his disciples could avoid making offenses towards him. (1) "'Swamiji,' the gentleman continued. 'We want you to give us your blessings, to ask us to make the temple. We want the benediction.' Srila Prabhupada, still smiling and laughing said, 'No, no. If I ask you to do it and you do not do it, then it will be offensive. If you do not comply, that will be your fall down. That is very bad. If you do it on your own that is good, but if you do not do it there is no harm done because I haven't told you to do it.'" (2) "Srila Prabhupada received a letter from a devotee asking sanction to divorce his wife and permission to marry another... I was shocked when he gave permission. It bothered me throughout the day... My most merciful spiritual master replied with compassion in his voice, 'Well, actually whether I give him permission or not, he is going to get the divorce. So if I tell him, "No, you can't get it" and he does it that will be a serious offence. If I say, "Yes, you can do it" because he is going to do it anyway, then the offense is not so great.'" Srutakirti das wrote Nityananda das in 2018 and confirmed: "I do know Srila Prabhupada often dealt with me by saying things in a general way rather than giving me an order." Many memories of Srila Prabhupada concur, that since his instructions were often ignored, he avoided giving specific orders because he did not want to lead his disciples into more acts of disobedience and serious offenses. He was more concerned with their advancement than with giving instructions or orders that might not be followed and thus would prove detrimental to them. Srila Prabhupada in his last years declined to make further clear orders about the DOM, future initiations, or gurus, lest he actually end up harming his "beloved disciples."

FIRST USE OF SRILA PRABHUPADA'S MANAGEMENT FORMULA

Except for those who have implicit faith in Srila Prabhupada's transcendental genius, expertise, and divine authority, few have understood that the DOM, GBC and temple president elections, Oath of Allegiance- this is the management system that will work for ISKCON. Unfortunately it was never fully applied in ISKCON and after 1978 the GBC went down the Deviations Highway with hellish outcomes. Would it really work in practice today? With a bottom-up system of the DOM and elections, could the spiritual institution be safeguarded from schisms, secessions, attacks, philosophical differences, and function properly? Thus Srila Prabhupada's management formula remained a theoretical idea until it was implemented in the fundamentalist, breakaway ISKCON Bangalore Group of temples. They had seceded from ISKCON in 1998 by installing Srila Prabhupada as their sole diksha guru. By 2022 they still faced lawsuits from ISKCON even as their numbers and centers increased by Srila Prabhupada's grace. Leader Madhu Pandit das stated in 2018:

“When our total strength of full time devotees was about 200, we invited all of them as the General body of our group to come to Bangalore and participate in a 'referendum' through secret ballot which confirmed the appointment of all the 21 temple presidents whom I had appointed. Same day, the new temple president body elected a GBC body of 10 GBC members. This was around 2006. Referendum was only the first time. When GBC is not formed how the temple presidents came about? To solve this we came up with the idea of a one-time referendum across the group. After that every three years, the outgoing GBC body elects 1/3 current GBC members to continue for another three years. Rest of the new 2/3 GBC members are freshly elected for a period of next three years by the temple presidents from among themselves. So every three years, the election of GBC is happening; we have gone through four elections so far. Today our general body of full time devotees is about 500 and 27 temples. Each temple is a separate legal entity by the name of Hare Krishna Movement (Jaipur, Vrindaban, etc.) The GBC through a resolution is the author who creates and is the founder of these institutions. The deed accedes control to follow directives of the GBC. All these trusts must have at least majority trustees who are GBC members. This way the properties are protected. But the management is fully in the hands of the executive council headed by the president with vice president, secretary, and treasurer. The GBC is not involved in daily management. Even if in defiance of GBC body the local trust decides to alienate property it requires 3/4 majority of the trustees as per trust deed, but since the majority in the trust board is GBC members, it is not possible to alienate the property. So far, temple presidents are appointed by the GBC body with recommendation of the local GBC representative. There are no written rules as of now for appointment or removal. Generally, the qualification is he should be a missionary with sound philosophical foundation and experienced in managing services of other missionary devotees. He should have proved his ability to be a good follower as well as in lower level leadership roles from the time he joined the ashram. Our GBC did remove a senior man as temple president. We followed a very detailed procedure. Show cause notice. Investigation. Concurrence of temple devotees. On proven financial impropriety we removed him.”

Bangalore Group also uses Srila Prabhupada's Oath of Allegiance. ISKCON Bangalore group of centers practically applied the DOM with advice from NY Long Island temple president Nimai Pandit das, who participated in their leader's discussions and decisions: “We also thought, how will a Temple President in Siberia know a Temple President in Peru to make an informed decision whether any of them is qualified to be GBC? It is much more natural for local Temple Presidents in a geographical region to know each other and vote for their natural leader. Otherwise we may fall into a situation of protracted election campaign around the world by 'rich' Temple Presidents. In addition, a Temple President in a region, culture, economy- how can he really do an adequate job in a different region, culture, economy? Hence we thought it is common sense to hold elections region by region.” The DOM has been implemented in the “Bangalore Group” of 30 worldwide temples, and any removal of temple presidents requires congregational approval. Properties are protected with trustees. The GBC is elected by the DOM formula of one-third, two-thirds. This is working well and is proof of its practical application. It is the management system Srila Prabhupada designed and wanted, and it has blessed their temples to greatly expand their preaching successes. A case of an irresponsible president was handled judiciously, removed with local devotee consent.

WE MUST MAKE A BROADER CONSTITUTION (see Ch. 169)

The Topmost Urgency Order was given in July 1974. Then, preparing for the official Mayapur GBC meeting in March 1975, Srila Prabhupada wrote to Jayatirtha das, Dec. 14, 1974: “Regarding the GBC meeting to be held in Mayapur 1975, the meeting should [...] held in my presence. As far as your proposals are concerned, the real thing is that we must make broader constitution of the management by GBC. But the difficulty is that our GBC men are falling victim to maya. Today I trust this GBC and tomorrow he will fall down. That is the difficulty. If the GBC men are so flickering then what to speak of the others. Unless this problem is solved whatever we may resolve it will not be very useful. We shall discuss this at our meeting. If the GBC men can ever manage properly then I shall get some time for writing my books.” Clearly Srila Prabhupada was deeply affected by the GBC “falldowns,” “flickering” nature, their becoming a “victim of maya,” and that therefore “whatever we may resolve it will not be very useful.” Sounds hopeless, doesn’t it? But rather than Srila Prabhupada turning away from the DOM, he recognized that any instructions, expanded constitution, or arrangements that was made, unless his senior men became more Krishna conscious, less quarrelsome and less ambitious, no formula could prevent the deterioration of his society in the future. And that is exactly what happened after his late 1977 departure, as we all know only too well. He DID NOT RESCIND the DOM election provisions nor the 1974 Topmost Urgency Order. He said: “...we must make broader constitution of the management by GBC.” Broader means adding to the basic constitution of the DOM and expanding from there. Legally and philosophically the DOM remains binding as the will of the Founder-Acharya; the DOM is the original ISKCON Constitution which still needs to be expanded upon. But ISKCON has instead shored up their centralized power structure, and today it may be called a GUROCRACY, a guru regime (Ch. 151).

DOM ELECTIONS AND TERM LIMITS ARE EFFECTIVE CHECKS AND BALANCES

Ameyatma das, 2011: “Would GBC elections and term limits from Srila Prabhupada’s DOM be beneficial to ISKCON? If so, it should be implemented. The current ISKCON system has no checks and balances whereas the DOM does, without which the GBC will select only members who support their bad decisions, and over time the mission will wander further astray. The DOM elections will be vitally beneficial, and without it will lead to the end of the mission. This is not about the guru issue, fallen gurus, the order of worship in aratik, changes to Srila Prabhupada’s books, or any specific sub-issue. DOM is the fundamental issue. Without a GBC in check, the mission will fail. Once the DOM elections are in place, then all issues can, over time, be resolved. If the GBC is on the wrong path, new members will be voted in from among the temple presidents, and real change will take place to resolve all issues. This is not a new idea. Holding the GBC to 3 year terms, allowing current GBC members to select 1/3 to remain, with 2/3 up for re-election by temple presidents, voting new members from among themselves. This is not ‘demon-crazy’ democracy where lower class masses will select the lowest among them to lead them, but this is an organization with qualified, initiated Vaishnava members selecting who among them is most qualified. This system of elections and term limits for the GBC was devised by Srila Prabhupada himself in the DOM that he instructed us to follow. [...] it is his plan.. It is not some concocted idea to save ISKCON. [...] The DOM elections are an absolutely brilliant, ideal, simple, very effective and fair means to keep the leadership in check. It can eventually resolve the major issues and conflicts facing our society, lest the totalitarian nature of GBC authority slowly destroy the mission.”

News story, Feb. 21, 2017: Christopher Duntsch, a neurosurgeon, had 34 surgeries “gone wrong,” leaving two dead and several crippled. Although he spent 17 years in training, his skills were later determined as that of a 1st year medical resident. The local DA said, “He obviously knew at some point that what he was doing was criminal.” He was convicted of first-degree felony injury. This case compares to the ISKCON misleaders who have made a horrible mess of things while they, without conscience or understanding of their mismanagement, continue destroying the mission. They don’t see the harm they are doing or don’t care? It never occurs to them there is something very fundamentally wrong with their leadership? Rather than step down in the face of their colossal failures (Parts 14-16) they insist on doing more damage. As with Dr. Duntsch, they assumed great responsibility, and upon failure, should admit failure and resign. Dr. Duntsch continued with one botched surgery after another, betraying those who trusted him. ISKCON misleaders keep botching their management of the mission, resulting in ever more problems and a degenerating institution. The spiritual lives of millions of trusting souls have been harmed, yet they cannot see they are the cause? One not fit for nor successful in his leadership must recognize their own failure, and then resign. But because the GBC are “for-life” with no accountability, gradually only rascals, Duntsches, and cheaters fill their ranks. The DOM was Srila Prabhupada’s management formula and includes GBC elections.

Since they cannot recognize how they have deviated from Srila Prabhupada's intentions, the devotees must remove them and elect a fresh slate.

Only those GBCs will be re-elected that devotees see are properly meeting their responsibilities in serving the devotees and Srila Prabhupada by following his instructions, nicely maintaining the mission. (1) "You can cheat for some time everyone, but you cannot be allowed to cheat everyone for all the time. That is not possible." (SPConv Dec. 9, 1973) (2) "In the dress of a police if he is a thief, that is very dangerous. [...] Just like this dress of sannyasi, saffron cloth, one will respect that 'Here is a sannyasi.' But if he is a thief in a dress of a sannyasi, that is dangerous." (SPConv Jan. 17, 1974) (3) "Tamal was a Machiavellian politician. He knew that in the society of devotees nobody could imagine so many lies and premeditated intrigues by someone who appeared to be a devotee. No one can imagine someone to be like that. These people take advantage of devotee naivety to do all kinds of intrigues with impunity. When someone intelligent denounces them, then they expel, eliminate him. They are willing to do anything before losing their power and personal gratification, wrapping all this with supposed philosophical arguments." (Chaitanya Priya das, 2017)

CONCLUSION

How ISKCON is to be managed is a critical issue, perhaps even more than the guru-initiation issue because if an elected, honest GBC comes about, all issues will be properly reviewed and Srila Prabhupada's instructions honored. We must study and have faith in how Srila Prabhupada instructed us how to manage his ISKCON, and restore it accordingly, without introducing corporate centralizations which he strongly rejected. ISKCON leadership has disobeyed and deviated from his instructions not to change the system of management. They have changed ISKCON so much that it is no longer ISKCON; rather, call it GURUSTAN, GBC means Guru Business Corporation. Lawbook legislations, centralization, bureaucracy, corporatism, salaries, and bribes by promotions, makes today's ISKCON a place Srila Prabhupada's instructions are no longer followed, where innovations and deviations prevail instead. We can assume that Srila Prabhupada has already left ISKCON.

Devotees yearn for new leadership to restore Srila Prabhupada's Mission. We should each carefully study His Divine Grace's legacy, have open discussion, and try to fulfill Srila Prabhupada's desires. The situation simply gets worse as long as we do not come to Srila Prabhupada's assistance in rectifying these anomalies. ISKCON has been led far astray by its deviant leadership and a continuation of the status quo is not acceptable. Implementing Srila Prabhupada's DOM (and instructions in his letters- Ch. 162) for GBC elections by temple presidents and temple presidents by local members will definitely end the unaccountable, corrupt ISKCON leadership. There is no other viable alternative to ISKCON's totally dysfunctional and corrupted leadership. The Vatican/ Politburo style hierarchy created by the GBC after Srila Prabhupada's departure has no resemblance to the "lowerarchy" he wanted for the continuance and management of his movement. Seeking to build a society of "independent philosophers," he gave power to the congregations, with temple presidents and GBC acting as their elected leader representatives. GBC spokesman Ravindra Svarupa das says the DOM is not a "silver bullet" or "magic solution," but he has no faith in Srila Prabhupada's formula. It is Srila Prabhupada's specific instruction as a signed document for our movement's management system. Then we can work on expanding the DOM (ISKCON's Constitution) and build on Srila Prabhupada's foundational framework. The unelected GBC circumvented the DOM that plainly states their purpose as elected executors of the Acharya's will. From the DOM: "The GBC oversees all operations and management of ISKCON, as it receives direction from Srila Prabhupada..." So why not accept his DOM?

Elections for new GBCs is urgent because the ISKCON misleadership has become so dysfunctionally compromised by disobedient deviation from Srila Prabhupada and his teachings. Whether Srila Prabhupada wanted GBC and temple president elections or not, the fact of such deep corruption, as ISKCON leaders themselves bemoan, should convince us that such elections is the remedy. The ISKCON misleadership is a corrupt guru elite with illegal life terms, and it must be replaced with fresh men via regular elections. How else will Srila Prabhupada's institution be rectified?

The temple presidents do not yet understand they were personally empowered by Srila Prabhupada to control the GBC via the DOM, that their duty is to vote in the GBC, and re-evaluate their performance each 3 years, and that they are entitled to have independent temples and expand the Krishna Consciousness movement without fear of the GBC kicking them out and installing their own “yes-men.” We pray for enlightened temple presidents and congregations to support Srila Prabhupada’s DOM, taking their empowerment to heart, and elect a fresh GBC, ending the ISKCON gurocracy. Deviations exist in ISKCON because of the non-elected, non-representational GBC that chooses to perpetuate their self-serving guru business rather than be faithful to Srila Prabhupada teachings. If their system is authorized, then why has it failed to produce the desired result? Judge by the results. Srila Prabhupada’s direct orders in his DOM are a fundamental institutional directive necessary for the welfare of ISKCON and its members. (1) DOM: “I have decided to adopt the following principles and I hope my beloved disciples will kindly accept them.” (2) LAST WILL: “The system of management will continue as it is now and there is no need of any change.” Why does the unelected GBC say Srila Prabhupada did not want elections?

CHAPTER 162: SRILA PRABHUPADA’S TEMPLE PRESIDENTS

ELECTIONS AND APPOINTMENTS OF TEMPLE PRESIDENTS

Srila Prabhupada gave ample instructions in letters that temple presidents were to be elected by local members, and many are listed below. There were some temple president elections in the 1970’s but today everything is tightly controlled by the GBC body who appoints (and removes) officers regardless of the congregation. Srila Prabhupada was very supportive of temple presidents, famously exemplified when they complained to him in 1976 about Tamal, who was exiled to China. The temple presidents were to be chosen by a vote of the “temple members.” Srila Prabhupada expected, wanted elections of the temple presidents: (1) “...I am so glad to learn that you have been elected president for this year. In India, when there was congress election among the executive members, each year a person was elected president. I think this system may be followed in our institutions also. Of course it will depend on the local situation, but in a round if each person is given the chance of managing the whole affairs, that means everyone becomes responsible officer.” (SPL Gurudas Mar. 2, 1970)

(2) “And who has been appointed treasurer and secretary? The president, secretary and treasurer elected by the members of the center cannot be changed at least for one year; better to continue it for three years.” (SPL Jayapataka Aug. 24, 1971) (3) “Regarding Madhavananda being the president, if he received the vote, why you have opposed? You must be impartial. My recommendation is that he must be the president. He has been chosen by the vote, and I am giving the casting vote for him.” (SPL Hansadutta Sept. 12, 1974) (4) “Regarding Sydney, that the President has left, if one does not follow the regulative principles, then he will leave. That is a fact. Has somebody else been elected? This is the function of the GBC, to see that one may not be taken away by maya...” (SPL Madhuhvisa Aug. 4, 1975) (5) From Kurma das’ Transcendental Adventure: “In early August, 1972, Mohanananda voluntarily relinquished his position as the president of the Sydney temple and GBC assistant, agreeing to spend more time on the printing press. An election was held and devotees unanimously elected Caru as the new president.” (6) First elections were held in ISKCON New York in Oct. 1966: “You should hold elections,” Swamiji tells us. “We require one temple president, one treasurer, a secretary and temple commander.” Then: “I think that Brahmananda should be our president, Gargamuni the treasurer, Satsvarupa the secretary, and Kirtanananda the temple commander.” Although we agree with Swamiji’s choices, we hold ‘elections’ anyway, and our new officers begin their duties. (Hare Krishna Explosion, Hayagriva das, Ch. 6) (7) Elections of TP were held in the second ISKCON center (San Francisco) in 1967: “I congratulate you on your being elected as president of ISKCON San Francisco branch. Your election as president is a recognition by Krishna and therefore I have got full support for you. Mukunda and other members have rightly selected you as president.” (SPL Jayananda Sept. 29, 1967) (8) Markandeya Rsi: [...] What I wanted to know is if an authority could be recommended for the new temple being started, to give that particular temple a basic foundation in living up to brahminical standards. SP: Yes. Select among yourselves one who is most competent. Elect him as president. Markandeya Rsi: So that would be bona fide? SP: Select a man who is initiated. The president must maintain the discipline. Without discipline there cannot be obedience. The president is the spiritual master’s representative. Since the spiritual master is not present, one man is selected as president to look after the business of the temple on behalf of the spiritual master. (BTG #49, 1972) (9) Svarupa Damodar: Because they need law and order. SP: Yes, there must be. In our organization... Just like in each temple we elect a president. Then we get GBC. Then above all, I am... (SP Dec. 16, 1973)

It is clear that Srila Prabhupada wanted local congregations to elect their temple presidents.

REMOVAL OF TEMPLE PRESIDENTS

In the DOM and in his letters Srila Prabhupada prescribed that removal of temple presidents be confirmed by a vote of the temple members. Today the GBC body removes temple presidents at will. Srila Prabhupada sometimes intervened on the side of a temple president when he was removed by the GBC. The instructions below clearly show how Srila Prabhupada wanted ISKCON temple presidents to be removed: (1) From DOM (ISKCON’s Constitution): “8 “Removal of a Temple president by the GBC requires support by the local Temple members.” (2) “Regarding the election of President, a president can only be changed by vote. If no vote was taken, then the president cannot be changed. Neither Hamsaduta can change the president whimsically or can anybody else change the president. According the ‘Direction of Management’ the GBC cannot change the President but only by vote can it be done. The GBC’s business is to see that the President and the members are doing nicely, following the regulative principles, and chanting 16 rounds and that other things are going on nicely. If it was decided by vote that Hamsaduta would select the president then Hamsaduta is right. Without authority Hamsaduta cannot change the election. If the vote was in favor of Madhavananda, then Hamsaduta cannot whimsically change the vote. But, if by vote he was authorized to select the president, then whomever he selects is right... so many contradictions, so in the presence of all members you may take the vote again and decide finally.” (SPL Mukunda Sept. 29, 1974)

(3) “Regarding Miami that you want to replace Abhiram, yes a capable man must be there, what can be done... N.B. Regarding replacing Abhiram and Damodara I refer to the ‘Direction of Management’ as follows: ‘Removal of a Temple President by GBC requires support by the local Temple members.’ Therefore you should take a vote of the Temple members and do the needful.” (SPL Rupanuga Nov. 7, 1974) (4) “Regarding Abhiram, in your letter you mention that in Miami it is so important center, 65 devotees, growing each day, ideal location. So Abhiram has done this. He has done much service. He cannot be removed whimsically. ...Anyway I have already written you that the local members must agree for him to be removed by you, according to the “Direction of Management.” (SPL Rupanuga Nov. 8, 1974) (5) “If the GBC undermines the efforts of the temple presidents how will things go on smoothly... I do not want that Sukadeva be removed from his position as I can see that he is sincerely following the principles at present. The GBC cannot whimsically change the temple president, there is a resolution to this effect. Why have you threatened to remove him and unnecessarily created this situation? Please be very sober in your dealings with these temple presidents, they are undoubtedly rendering a valuable service and are worthy of respect and encouragement.” (SPL Gurukripa May 18, 1976) Here Srila Prabhupada is referring to the 1975 GBC resolutions. (6) “Regarding the agitation to remove Tejas: No, Tejas must not be removed. Stop this. This is a clique. I don’t want this. Why has Subala Maharaja gone there. He is an outsider, why are they interfering. Subala left India now why has he returned without permission? This removal of the president is very unconstitutional. The devotees who do not like to work with Tejas should immediately go away from the temple. But he may not. Those who feel against him can go away. Devotees come from the outside and interfere. No, they cannot change the president. Who sent Janmanjoya there? Why is he taking to politics? So your opinion is also mine, that Tejas is the most sincere worker of the lot. Please stop this.” (SPL Tamal Krishna Jan. 11, 1974) (the word ‘unconstitutional’ refers to DOM) (7) “What happened to Jagat Purusa in Bombay? He is an experienced man so why he should be changed to Delhi? This change of Presidents is to be made in the GBC meeting. In the middle of the year there is no question of change. Tejyas can continue as President. Three times changing president is not good. It should first be conjointly considered by the GBC.” (SPL July 11, 1976) This adds another protection of the temple president’s position: if the full GBC will initiate the removal of a temple president, it needs confirmation by a local member vote.

It is very clear temple presidents could only be changed by a vote of the local congregation.

INDEPENDENCE OF TEMPLE PRESIDENTS

(1) “GBC does not mean to control a center. GBC means to see that the activities of a center go on nicely. I do not know why Tamal is exercising his absolute authority. That is not the business of GBC. The president, treasurer, and secretary are responsible for managing the center. GBC is to see that things are going nicely but not to exert absolute authority. That is not in the power of GBC. Tamal should not do like that. The GBC men cannot impose anything on the men of a center without consulting all of the GBC members first. A GBC member cannot go beyond the jurisdiction of his power. We are in the experimental stage but in the next meeting of the GBC members they should form a constitution how the GBC members manage the whole affair. But it is a fact that the local president is not under the control of the GBC. Yes, for improvement of situations such as this I must be informed of everything.” (SPL Giriraja Aug. 12, 1971) (2) “So I request you to relieve me of management responsibilities more and more so that I can complete the SBhag translation. If I am always having to manage, then I cannot do my work on the books... So this task will not be finished without the cooperation of my appointed assistants, the GBC, temple presidents, and sannyasis. I have chosen my best men to be GBC and I do not want that the GBC should be disrespectful to the temple presidents.” SPL to All GBC May 19, 1976) (3) “The formula for ISKCON organization is very simple and can be understood by everyone. The world is divided into 12 zones. For each zone there is one zonal secretary. His duty is to see that the spiritual principles are being upheld very nicely in all the temples of his zone. Otherwise each temple shall be independent and self-supporting. Let every temple president work according to his own capacity to improve the Krishna consciousness of his centre. So far the practical management is concerned, that is required, but not that we shall become too much absorbed in fancy organization. Our business is spiritual life, so whatever organization needs to be done, the presidents may handle and take advice and assistance from their GBC. In this way let the Society's work go on and everyone increase their service at their own creative rate. [...] We request that everyone take these formulas to heart and execute them very conscientiously. In this way we shall certainly be successful in pushing on this movement.” (SPL Karandhar das, Apr. 22, 1972) (4) On Apr. 8, 1972 Srila Prabhupada notified all temple presidents that he had suspended the GBC and they should manage their affairs peacefully and independently. “Under these circumstances, I authorize you to disregard for the time being any decision from the GBC men until my further instruction. You manage your affairs peacefully and independently, and try to improve the spiritual atmosphere of the centers more carefully. I shall be very glad to know the names of your assistants such as Secretary, Treasurer and Accountant. Finally, I beg to repeat that ALL GBC ORDERS ARE SUSPENDED HEREWITH BY ME UNTIL FURTHER NOTICE.” (5) “I want that the GBC men should leave the management of the individual centres to the local presidents and concentrate themselves upon preaching work. They should be constantly travelling...” (SPL Madhudvisa das June 12, 1972)

NO MUTINIES OR TEMPLE COUPS

Also there should be no coups or whimsical mutinies to change a temple president. “I am forwarding the copy of your letter, along with my reply, to Satsvarupa... he is the GBC man in that zone, and he is the best man to come there immediately and see what is the situation and do the needful. Of course I do not know what are the facts, but I have seen that you have done very nicely there, so far I know. And no one has made complaint to me. So maybe there is a little fighting amongst yourselves, that is natural, but you are advanced disciple, don't be disturbed by these things. Actually I want that householders shall manage in the temples, because they have got propensity to manage things and they want to take responsibility and they will not go away. Brahmachari, householder, it doesn't matter, but householders are doing nicely all over the world, why the others shall resent householders in your temple? That is not reason. This attitude of changing this, changing that, if there is some small thing to make it something very great, changing the leaders three every week- these things are going on, I know. This is not at all good attitude, that if by adjustment, this and that, changing everything, I may create the perfect combination and everything will be all right. I am more impressed if someone has opened one centre and that he has stayed there tightly and developed nicely, not going away whimsically. So you have been leader at New Orleans temple for long time, you are the pioneer there, so why you should be whimsically discharged? Only the GBC man shall be able to make these changes, not any so-called secret meeting of devotees. Why they have misunderstood these things? If they have objection they must lodge it with their GBC, and differences must be discussed openly amongst ourselves, not secret meetings. We are Vaishnava devotees, not politicians. So these things must be stopped, plotting. Your merit stands far above theirs, you have done some tangible work to please me by spreading this Krishna Consciousness message in New Orleans, that is the test. Let them do something first, then we shall see what is their criticism. Simply criticizing and no work, that is the business of inferior men. So do not be disturbed by them, go on with your work, increasing more and more. Never mind the jackals howl." (SPL Nityananda Nov. 25, 1972)

THE 1975 GBC RESOLUTION DID NOT NEGATE TEMPLE PRESIDENT ELECTIONS

The first official annual Mayapur GBC meetings in 1975 were supervised by Srila Prabhupada. GBC resolution #4 passed Mar. 26, 1975: "There should be no change of Presidents but difficulties should be worked out. In the case of an incorrigible President who (1) doesn't submit reports or submits false reports (2) who mis-spends money (3) who doesn't follow regulative principles he must be changed. Three GBC men may decide on this in an urgent case and in a non-urgent case it may be done by majority vote of GBC by letter." This resolution was regarding extreme cases and provided for the removal of a temple president by three GBCs only in 3 specific dire and urgent circumstances, when a temple president was "incorrigible." If not urgent, a majority of the GBC body was needed. The precaution was "difficulties should be worked out," presumably by preaching, discussions, and meetings, but otherwise no change of presidents by the GBC was allowed. This Srila Prabhupada-approved clarification to the DOM addressed only emergency situations, but it did not negate the basic principle of the GBC not changing temple presidents, which was left to temple members by vote and elections. This is reinforced in many Srila Prabhupada letters, many of which were AFTER these 1975 GBC meetings. Yet the ISKCON GBC now has assumed the power to appoint or remove temple presidents without elections by temple members. This goes against Srila Prabhupada's DOM and many letters. Nowhere in Srila Prabhupada's instructions or the 1975 GBC resolutions is there anything to support that the temple president is appointed or removed at will by the "whims" of the GBC. The DOM election mandate: "Removal of a temple president requires support from the local temple members," never rescinded by Srila Prabhupada in word or document, means it remains valid and must be followed in ISKCON.

If a TP has deviated and is not wanted by GBC members and/or local devotees, the issue must be voted upon. This is important to preserve the balance of powers in ISKCON and to minimize corruption and abuse, but, unfortunately, is not done in ISKCON. This is Srila Prabhupada's instruction and this standard should be restored. No temple president can be whimsically changed by a GBC member unless confirmed by a vote of the local congregation. This DOM provision was not changed or abolished in 1975 GBC resolutions as is dishonestly claimed by the self-serving, corrupted GBC. The 1975 GBC resolution #4 actually confirms the DOM's item #6. Srila Prabhupada created a system of checks and balances: in case of deviations, abuse of power, mis-spending of finances- the TP can be dismissed at the general meeting /istagosthi of community members. When GBC members are also elected by temple presidents, then the highest executive power in ISKCON is limited, subject to elections by the second tier managers, the temple presidents, who are meant to have great independence.

1972 MEMO SUSPENDING THE GBC

A dramatic history lesson is the 1972 suspension of the GBC after a bare majority of the 12 GBCs met in New York and, spearheaded by Hansadutta and Atryeya Rsi (not a GBC, an accountant at a top NYC firm), decided to centralize ISKCON financially, politically, and bureaucratically. They did this without notice to devotees, the other GBCs, or Srila Prabhupada. From Australia, Srila Prabhupada reacted strongly by directly notifying all ISKCON temple presidents of his complete suspension of the GBC, telling the temple presidents: "You manage your affairs peacefully and independently..."

APRIL 8, 1972

SYDNEY

MEMO TO ALL ISKCON TEMPLE PRESIDENTS:

My dear ___; Please accept my blessings. I beg to inform you that recently some of the Governing Body Commission members held a meeting at New York on 25th through 28th March, 1972, and they have sent me a big big minutes, duplicated, for my consideration and approval, but in the meantime they have decided some appointments without consulting me. One of the items which struck me very much is as follows:

Atreya Rsi das was selected to be the Secretary for GBC and receive all correspondence including monthly reports. I never appointed Atreya Rsi member of the GBC, and I do not know how he can be appointed Secretary to GBC without my sanction. "He was also appointed to be on the Management Committee with Karandhar for the purpose of supervising ISKCON business and implementing the decisions reached by GBC." This has very much disturbed me. Sriman Atreya Rsi das may be very expert, but without my say he has been given so much power and this has upset my brain. I also understand that immediate actions are going to take place even prior to my permission, and that, also, "without divulging to the devotees (!)" I do not follow exactly what is the motive of the so-called GBC meeting, therefore I have sent the telegram which you will find attached herewith, and I have received the replies as well.

Under these circumstances, I AUTHORIZE YOU TO DISREGARD FOR THE TIME BEING ANY DECISION FROM THE GBC MEN UNTIL MY FURTHER INSTRUCTION. You manage your affairs peacefully and independently, and try to improve the spiritual atmosphere of the centers more carefully. I shall be very glad to know the names of your assistants such as Secretary, Treasurer and Accountant. Finally, I beg to repeat that ALL GBC ORDERS ARE SUSPENDED HEREWITH BY ME UNTIL FURTHER NOTICE. You may reply me at ISKCON Tokyo. Hoping this meets you in very good health and advanced spiritual mood. Your ever well-wisher, A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami ACBS/sda

Letter To: All ISKCON Temple Presidents

The degree of centralization and bureaucratization in ISKCON today far exceeds what the GBC was simply proposing in 1972, and for this alone the entire GBC should be suspended by the temple presidents. Srila Prabhupada put great trust in his frontline preachers, showing clearly their mandated independence. However, the centralization idea did not die easily. Srila Prabhupada made it more clear 8 months later how to manage the society (and why) by sending a classic Dec. 22, 1972 letter to GBC member Karandhar das about centralization and the independence of the temples and presidents, a letter which we should all study carefully. Karandhar at that time was perhaps Srila Prabhupada's leading GBC and manager.

CLASSIC 1972 LETTER ABOUT CENTRALIZATION, BUREAUCRACY

"Regarding your points about taxation, corporate status, etc., I have heard from Jayatirtha you want to make big plan for centralization of management, taxes, monies, corporate status, bookkeeping, credit, like that. I do not at all approve of such plan. Do not centralize anything. Each temple must remain independent and self-sufficient. That was my plan from the very beginning, why you are thinking otherwise? Once before you wanted to do something centralizing with your GBC meeting, and if I did not interfere the whole thing would have been killed. Do not think in this way of big corporation, big credits, centralization--these are all nonsense proposals. Only thing I wanted was that books printing and distribution should be centralized, therefore I appointed you and Bali Mardan to do it. Otherwise, management, everything, should be done locally by local men. Accounts must be kept, things must be in order and lawfully done, but that should be each temple's concern, not yours. Krishna Consciousness Movement is for training men to be independently thoughtful and competent in all types of departments of knowledge and action, not for making bureaucracy. Once there is bureaucracy the whole thing will be spoiled. There must be always individual striving and work and responsibility, competitive spirit, not that one shall dominate and distribute benefits to the others and they do nothing but beg from you and you provide. No. Never mind there may be botheration to register each centre, take tax certificate each, become separate corporations in each state. That will train men how to do these things, and they shall develop reliability and responsibility, that is the point.

"I am little observing now, especially in your country, that our men are losing their enthusiasm for spreading on our programmes of Krishna Consciousness movement. Otherwise, why so many letters of problems are coming, dissatisfied? That is not a very good sign. The whole problem is they are not following the regulative principles, that I can detect. Without this, enthusiasm will be lacking. Even mechanically following, and if he gets gradually understanding from the class, he will come to the point of spontaneous enthusiasm. This spontaneous loving devotional service is not so easy matter, but if one simply sticks strictly to the rules and regulations, like rising early, chanting 16 rounds, chanting gayatri, keeping always clean--then his enthusiasm will grow more and more, and if there is also patience and determination, one day he will come to the platform of spontaneous devotion, then his life will be perfect. All of this I have told you in Nectar of Devotion. So I do not think the leaders are themselves following, nor they are seeing the others are following strictly. That must be rectified at once. Each centre remain independent, that's all right, but the president and other officers must themselves follow and see the others are following the regulative principles carefully, and giving them good instruction so they may understand nicely why this tapasya is necessary. And GBC and Sannyasis will travel and see the officers are doing this, and if they observe anything lowering of the standard, they must reform and advise, or if there is some discrepancy I shall remove it. ...I want to see a few sincere devotees, not many false devotees or pretenders. (...) the regulative principles must be followed by everyone. Otherwise their enthusiasm dwindles and they again think of sex and become restless, and so many problems are there... The point is to be engaged in doing something for Krishna, never mind what is that job, but being so engaged in doing something very much satisfying to the devotee that he remains always enthusiastic. He will automatically follow the regulative principles because they are part of his occupational duty- by applying them practically as his occupational duty, he realises the happy result of regulative principles. So the future of this Krishna Consciousness movement is very bright, so long the managers remain vigilant that 16 rounds are being chanted by everyone without fail, that they are all rising before four morning, attending mangal arati- our leaders shall be careful not to kill the spirit of enthusiastic service, which is individual and spontaneous and voluntary. They should try always to generate some atmosphere of fresh challenge to the devotees, so that they will agree enthusiastically to rise and meet it. That is the art of management: to draw out spontaneous loving spirit of sacrificing some energy for Krishna. But where are so many expert managers? All of us should become expert managers and preachers. We should not be very much after comforts and become complacent or self-contented. There must be always some tapasya, strictly observing the regulative principles- Krishna Consciousness movement must be always a challenge, a great achievement to be gained by voluntary desire to do it, and that will keep it healthy. So you big managers now try to train up more and more some competent preachers and managers like yourselves. Forget this centralizing and bureaucracy." (END)

This powerful letter reveals Srila Prabhupada's vision and divine plan for ISKCON as a spiritual institution. We should have faith that this formula for ISKCON management will work wonders and be successful beyond imagination. This is how the Hare Krishna “explosion” happened in the 1970’s. Srila Prabhupada rejected the legalistic, corporate, centralization ideas that the GBC has now implemented while neglecting the DOM’s elections provisions. Ravindra Svarupa das said the GBC needed “the necessary powers to protect ISKCON from its adversaries.” However, the GBC’s misunderstanding is that force is needed, when it is the philosophical and management deviations by the present ISKCON GBC that have created the devotee protests from which they want to be “protected.” Better to trust in the judgment of the general body of sincere, practicing devotees than in a corrupted, for-life, self-elected, guru-businessmen GBC body. That is why Srila Prabhupada saw wisdom in the election of 2/3 of GBC by the temple presidents, and so should we.

“Srila Prabhupada didn't want to control everything himself. He encouraged his disciples to take responsibility and use their intelligence in devising ways to spread Krishna consciousness. He wanted his disciples to become competent in all areas of practical work and management as well as being learned in the philosophy as expert preachers. He didn't like centralization or bureaucracy. His management program was always for independent and self-supporting centres not dependant on other centres. The exceptions to this were his Indian projects. He also centralized the BBT so not to have every temple printing books. There had to be a central body to coordinate book publication. He wanted a confederation of independent ISKCON centres, each with TP, Secretary and Treasurer. He wanted each Temple President to develop the preaching in his area at his own creative rate. He wanted to give his disciples all opportunities to preach without being burdened by bureaucracy and mundane organization. Even the GBC was not meant to be a managing body as such; they were to travel and preach in their zones and enliven the devotees spiritually, to ensure that devotees were strictly following the 4 regulative principles and chanting their 16 rounds daily, that all routine work in the temples was to the proper standard, including cleanliness, the Deity worship, etc. They were to advise and assist the temple presidents with no power to remove the temple president. The temple president could only be changed by vote of the members of the temple.” (Madhudhvisa das, 1995)

The GBC had to get the approval vote of the temple congregation to remove a defective temple president, and Srila Prabhupada also expected the GBC to protect temple presidents from any unfair trouble or intrigue that took place inside the temple. In 1972 Nityananda das was confronted by two brahmacharis who thought it better that one of them should be in charge of the temple, not a householder. Early on when ISKCON had only a couple temples, Srila Prabhupada gave his formula: “I wish that each and every center shall keep the Acharya in the center and keep their separate identity” (SPL 1967) Today ISKCON is centrally controlled, temples have no independence, and the GBC is their absolute authority.

CENTRALIZED ISKCON BUREAU OF INDIA

The “ISKCON Bureau,” which is the legal body that runs the whole of ISKCON in India, is unlike the rest of the world, where each temple is an independent non profit corporation. In India they are all legally governed by one society, called the ISKCON Bureau, which is registered in Bombay. There are 18 members on the Bureau headed by Gopal Krishna Swami and including all India temple presidents. The GBC claims this is how Srila Prabhupada wanted India to be set up. However, ISKCON Bangalore in 1978 was registered as a separate society, which was confirmed in court when challenged by ISKCON Bombay, and Srila Prabhupada sent Gargamuni a letter in 1970 to register Calcutta as a separate society, although it never was. It appears Srila Prabhupada was intent on managing India by himself as he thought only he could manage the maze of Indian complexities, but not that he wanted a centralized structure to own and manage all of India’s temples. The India Bureau is simply the directors of ISKCON Bombay, and has become a rival force to the ISKCON GBC. One major contentious issue is the still unfinalized female diksha guru issue that will compell the Bureau, as it has made it very clear, to secede from ISKCON if it is implemented in India, as it opposes this idea vehemently. Although the GBC narrowly approved female gurus theoretically, it has not yet approved of any to initiate. Another splitting issue in 2021 was the Lokanath Swami child sexual abuse incident.

SPECIAL CONSIDERATIONS ON TEMPLE PRESIDENT ELECTIONS

(1) Srila Prabhupada did not like concentration of powers. "...if the GBC and the president is the same man, that is not good. That is not good. The president should be separate." (SPConv 1975)

(2) Actually Srila Prabhupada liked a Temple President to stick for their whole life if possible. "This constantly changing managers is not good. We shall develop more progressively by sticking in one place and working, not that one week we have three presidents, that is not good. Our managers should be very responsible for developing their centre to the topmost standard, why this restlessness? It is just like one man is holding government post by getting votes, so today or tomorrow or next day, but he will have to go out, then another man comes, then another, another- in this way, democratic system, no one becomes responsible for the welfare of the citizens, only they want to take for themselves as much as they can before they have to get out, so they do not take real interest in their duty. It is a little like that. My idea is that the leaders must agree to stick at one place, even they may have to remain there life-long, that is the ideal leader, one who is conscious of his duty." (SPL Hrdayananda Nov. 5, 1972) Hrdayananda was Houston temple president and had asked to leave for another service. (3) "But if the local situation demanded, then the local devotees could choose to elect the Temple President regularly too. It should be left to the local situation. Many house temples, developed by a householder, for example, do not need a regular election. Similarly, in a temple developed by an individual from scratch, who has been there since then with most of the devotees in that locality being his siksha disciples. In both cases, any other Temple President will not be appropriate, as long as the original Temple President continues to follow the standards and is keeping the devotees happy." (Nimai Pandit das, 2010) (4) Only Temple Presidents who had signed the 1975 GBC resolution-mandated Oath of Allegiance to Srila Prabhupada would be allowed on the ballot.

(5) As per the 1975 GBC/Prabhupada resolutions, the measures for removing a Temple President in case of serious violations was that the GBC body makes a resolution to remove him with the local GBC calling a meeting with local members, presenting the case for removal. Then the local members, as per DOM and as per Srila Prabhupada's instruction re: Abhirama das and Goverdhan das, etc. in 1974, will decide yes or no by vote. (6) As he always did with the GBC, Srila Prabhupada sometimes searched for and appointed a temple president himself, for example, in Vrindaban, but this is the exception to temple president elections. (7) In the case of new temples that had no members yet, a devotee would simply go out and start his own temple as the leader and president, being sent by a GBC, by another temple, or as a travelling sannyasi who stopped for awhile to open a center, such as Brahmananda Swami did in Gainesville in 1970. In the 1975 GBC meetings Jayatirtha said to Srila Prabhupada regarding the appointment of temple presidents in new temples: "[...] this is discussing the responsibilities of the GBC men in their zones. So we've already said to organize opening new temples, to appoint temple presidents for new temples, to be responsible for training all temple presidents and ensuring spiritual standards." DOM also states: "The Sannyasis will suggest for opening new centers in suitable places and the GBC will take action on it. [...]" 6. The primary objective of the GBC is to organize the opening of new Temples and to maintain the established Temples." GBC members were to plan how to spread ISKCON activities in new places. They can advise who to send and where, to open new centers. Naturally, the president will be the one who opened the new center (e.g., a married couple opens a center in their home), or if a team of several people participate in this, then the president can be determined in consultation with the GBC. (8) The local board of directors should not remove a temple president without local elections; the corporate charter will include DOM which prescribes elections.

ISKCON GBC NOW APPOINT AND REMOVE TEMPLE PRESIDENTS AT WILL

In ISKCON today, there are no elections of temple presidents and individual GBC men have the power to appoint or change temple presidents in their zones (ISKCON Lawbook): 5.6.2.1 Appointment of Temple President: The GBC Zonal Secretary/s shall be the authority to appoint or approve a new Temple President to fill in a vacancy of the post in an existing temple or in a newly established temple. If the candidate is holding such a position for the first time then he shall be appointed only as an acting Temple President for a trial period of one year. A preaching center shall not have the post of a President but shall have the post of a Manager. In all such appointments the Zonal Secretary (GBC) shall give due considerations to the recommendations of the Divisional Council.” The GBC has set up this system to ensure their control. This is one of many bureaucratic laws the GBC keeps adding to the ISKCON Lawbook to cement their control of the society. If any temple president would fail to cooperate with GBC policies and doctrines, or even if he simply proposed or discussed an opposing policy or opinion, that temple president would be promptly removed. Within two decades after Srila Prabhupada’s departure, all temples had ISKCON guru disciples or yes-men as the temple president. Most zones have a GBC who is also a guru, and naturally that GBC/guru will not want any temple presidents in “his” zone who do not serve his guru interests with full enthusiasm and conviction. The result is that gurus have developed their own kingdoms, with their own disciples as temple presidents and leaders, which are loosely confederated under the ISKCON flag. How can ISKCON have “independent” centers (as Srila Prabhupada wanted) if the GBC/gurus choose and control all the temple presidents? Where are the checks and balances to avoid the gurocracy that now exists in ISKCON? It would be best for ISKCON to follow Srila Prabhupada’s clear instructions regarding elections of temple presidents by the temple congregations. Of course, most temples are now strongholds of a particular guru’s disciples who will always support his desire, so ISKCON’s guru-initiation issue will need to be resolved simultaneous to the implementation of elections.

THERE IS NO PARTNERSHIP WITH TEMPLE PRESIDENTS

The GBC website ridiculously claims they have a partnership with their temple presidents today, as was seen in 1977, when the GBC formally received feedback on its resolutions from the temple presidents. Satsvarupa: After all the days’ meetings of the GBC are finished, then we’ll have a meeting of the temple presidents. If, at their meeting, by a two-thirds majority vote, they suggest any amendments to the resolutions or make new resolutions, these will be sent back to the GBC, who will meet again and who will again vote. Tamal: The presidents will meet and they will give any changes to the GBC, and on the afternoon of the fourth the GBC will consider all changes. SP: Decide. Decide. (SPConv Mar. 1, 1977) Today’s reality is that temple presidents have no independence and must conform to the political policies and deviation doctrines lest they be removed by their own GBC man. They are partners in crime as the GBC has disobeyed Srila Prabhupada.

CHAPTER 163: ROLE AND PURPOSES OF THE GBC

WHAT ARE THE FUNCTIONS, PURPOSES AND DUTIES OF THE GBC?

“Actually you may be misunderstanding the present position or policy of the GBC. I have instructed all of our GBC men to give up their staying in one place and to remain always constantly travelling throughout their zones from temple to temple... So being sannyasi is no hindrance for being also GBC. In fact, the duties of the GBC men are now to be just like the duties of the sannyasis. I want that the GBC men should leave the management of the individual centres to the local presidents and concentrate themselves upon preaching work. They should be constantly travelling from one centre to another centre to see how the students are learning and to give whatever advice is necessary for improving the temple standards. In addition, the GBC men will open new centres, distribute literature and they should always be travelling with a sankirtana party to accompany them.” (SPL Madhudvisa das June 12, 1972) From Srila Prabhupada’s instructions, we see the GBC was only given authority to inspect and advise on accounting, temple standards, etc., and their main duty was to act as siksha gurus to the local devotees and the temple president. Of course, any senior devotees and traveling preachers could also point out discrepancies and preach appropriately. We see that the GBC has seriously deviated from their actual role and purposes as instructed by Srila Prabhupada from 1970-77, and this must be rectified. Some quotes on the function, responsibilities, and authority of the GBC:

(1) Prabhupada's Declaration of Last Will: "The Governing Body Commission (GBC) will be the ultimate managing authority of the entire International Society for Krishna Consciousness." (June 4, 1977) (2) "I have formed this GBC for that purpose, to keep the devotional standards at the highest level and at the same time to manage a world-wide organization." (SPL Rupanuga Nov. 4, 1970) (3) "I want that the GBC relieve me of all management which means they have to manage the way I manage. I do not want to see things deteriorate by their management." (SPL Jayatirtha Sept. 7, 1975) (4) "Regarding your dealings with Bhagavan dasa, when two GBC's are concerned, the whole GBC must consider. What can I do? I have appointed the GBC not to fight amongst yourselves but to manage. If there is fighting then how will you manage? So the whole GBC committee must decide if there is fighting." (SPL Hansaduta Sept. 29, 1975) (5) "Now I have set up the Governing Body Commission to handle management, questions of philosophy, and personal problems." (SPL Upendra Aug. 6, 1970) (6) Direction of Management: PARTICULARS OF THE GOVERNING BODY COMMISSION: "The purpose of the Governing Body Commission is to act as the instrument for the execution of the Will of His Divine Grace. And further, (1) The GBC oversees all operations and management of ISKCON, as it receives direction from Srila Prabhupada and His Divine Grace has the final approval in all matters."

(7) "The GBC has been established by His Divine Grace A. C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada to represent Him in carrying out the responsibility of managing the International Society for Krishna Consciousness of which He is the Founder-Acharya and supreme authority. The GBC accepts as its life and soul His divine instructions and recognizes that it is completely dependent on His mercy in all respects. The GBC has no other function or purpose other than to execute the instructions so kindly given by His Divine Grace and preserve and spread his Teachings to the world in their pure form." (GBC Res. #1, 1975; approved, Srila Prabhupada) (8) "GBC members are simply to see that things are going on. Other centers have got president, secretary, etc. and they are managing separately. That is the formula. So how is it that the GBC are the final authority? They are simply to examine that things are going on nicely, that is all." (SPL Umapati July 9, 1971) (9) "GBC does not mean to control a center. GBC means to see that the activities of a center go on nicely. I do not know why Tamal is exercising his absolute authority. That is not the business of GBC. [...] GBC is to see that things are going nicely but not to exert absolute authority. That is not in the power of GBC. Tamal should not do like that [...] A GBC member cannot go beyond the jurisdiction of his power." (SPL Giriraja Aug. 12, 1971)

(10) "GBC men should not dictate very much, simply supervise and see that the standards are maintained." (SPL Feb. 14, 1972) (11) "The GBC should all be the instructor gurus. I am the initiator guru, and you should be the instructor guru by teaching what I am teaching and doing what I am doing. This is not a title, but you must actually come to this platform. This I want." (SPL Madhudhvisa Swami Aug. 4, 1975) (12) "Now has the GBC become more than Guru Maharaja? As if simply GBC is meant for looking after pounds, shilling, pence. The GBC does not look after spiritual life. That is a defect." (SPL Nov. 10, 1975) (13) "It is the duty of the GBC to maintain the devotees, keep them in the highest standard of Krishna Consciousness, and give them all good instruction, and let them go out and preach for making more devotees." (SPL Satsvarupa June 16, 1972) (14) "So you GBC men are my selected few for insuring that what I am doing will be carried on very nicely for the pleasure of Lord Chaitanya Mahaprabhu." (SPL Madhudhvisa June 16, 1972)

CONCLUSION: the GBC is an advisory and supervisory body to travel and preach the standards as given by Srila Prabhupada. They are not to interfere too much in local affairs. They cannot invent things not already given by Srila Prabhupada on the plea that his instructions were incomplete, nor introduce policies and doctrines not spoken of by Srila Prabhupada. The GBC themselves must be held accountable, that they are properly representing Srila Prabhupada's siddhanta and personally maintaining the spiritual standards.

WHAT DOES "ULTIMATE MANAGING AUTHORITY" MEAN?

Srila Prabhupada's Final Will describes the GBC as the "ultimate managing authority" for ISKCON, so does that mean the "ultimate spiritual authority" after 1977? No, according to letters from Srila Prabhupada. This critical distinction is also discussed with quotes in Ch. 151, ISKCON'S GURUCRATIC REGIME -regarding what is the role, purpose, and function of the GBC according to Srila Prabhupada's vision and instructions. Unfortunately the ISKCON GBC today describe themselves in a different way: (1) As the ultimate managerial and spiritual or ecclesiastical authority in ISKCON (2) As the highest and final authority in ISKCON, by interpreting Srila Prabhupada's intentions, instructions, and doing what they feel is necessary.

The GBC has stolen the role of the ultimate spiritual authority from the Founder-Acharya, Srila Prabhupada. The GBC does not see themselves simply as managers to implement what Srila Prabhupada instructed and gave us, but now they make whatever novel changes and arrangements they believe are necessary, missing, or prudent, even if not instructed or taught by the Founder-Acharya. For example, although Srila Prabhupada gave no instructions for initiating gurus after his departure, the GBC concocted an unprecedented and novel method to create gurus by a rubber-stamp vote approval process. "The GBC has no other function or purpose other than to execute the instructions so kindly given by His Divine Grace..." (GBC Resolutions, 1975) Absurdly, the GBC claims Srila Prabhupada did not leave us with a final management formula for his mission and that their job is to come up with revisions and adjustments, as they see necessary, to supplant or change Srila Prabhupada's basic framework. This major deviation of disobedience has undermined and ruined the divine mission. Contrary to the GBC claim that they are the "ultimate ecclesiastical authority" of ISKCON, it is Srila Prabhupada who must retain this role, and the GBC simply manage on his behalf without change, addition, subtraction, or motivated interpretations.

Srila Prabhupada told us to fill in the basic skeleton structure that he had built, without destroying what he had already built and then rebuilding it in another way, nor building upon the basis in ways contrary to his teachings or purpose. If we change anything, we will ruin his divine plan and spoil everything. The GBC violates this principle due to their corruption with ulterior and incompatible motives. Srila Prabhupada must remain the Acharya in his Mission, not replaced by others, and he must remain as the spiritual authority in ISKCON with his perfect and complete instructions on how to expand the mission. For example, the unknown history of how ISKCON was hijacked by ambitious senior disciples in 1978 and how they introduced a BIG LIE that 11 of them had been appointed as zonal successor acharyas, and then a decade later, how they were authorized to concoct a vote-approval system for creating diksha gurus- shows how the GBC has gone far beyond their role and purposes as outlined above. Ultimate managing authority does not include responsibility for devising new methodologies or doctrines not given nor approved of by Srila Prabhupada. This offense of overriding the Acharya's arrangements cannot be excused. Ultimate managing authority means simply to implement Srila Prabhupada's instructions and signed documents such as Direction of Management and it does not give ANY authority to deviate from them. The DOM clearly defines the GBC's roles, functions, and purposes. The GBC must conform accordingly. They must stick to Srila Prabhupada's instructions, which are complete, and which do not require any addition of concocted ideas.

One GBC member (Trivikram Swami) actually said: "We tried it Srila Prabhupada's way, and it did not work," as though to justify GBC inventions that Srila Prabhupada never approved of. "Did not work" was the result of their acting contrary to Srila Prabhupada's instructions to start with; no wonder it did not work. The GBC does not like or appreciate Srila Prabhupada's arrangements for managing ISKCON because this would end their self-serving, self-perpetuating tyranny of gurocracy. Rather than look to change Srila Prabhupada's arrangements for ISKCON, they should look at how they failed to implement them as being the cause of their problems. Also, ultimate managerial authority only means whatever authority was actually given by Srila Prabhupada, as defined in the DOM, in many letters, with the GBC maintaining what was established. The GBC was not meant to control ISKCON as an oligarchy, but as an elected body to give advice and uphold standards.

In an interview with Ramevara das in 2012 or so, he recalled how the Last Will was drawn up and the discussions with Srila Prabhupada about it in early June 1977. At first Srila Prabhupada described the GBC as ISKCON's "trustees," and he also considered calling them "executors." Then the phrase "ultimate managers" was settled upon. However, the GBC ultimate managers were supposed to act just like trustees or executors, just as a trust manages the deceased's assets. Ultimate managers does not mean that the GBC shall replace or supersede the authority of the Founder-Acharya Srila Prabhupada himself by introducing things which Srila Prabhupada never taught us or even warned us not to do, such as making "rubber-stamp" gurus. The GBC's management should be trustworthy (trustees) to execute (executors) Srila Prabhupada's will, instructions, and vision, and they should not stupidly become the maker of new "precedents" as Tamal wrote in 1996.

GBC HAS LOST THEIR AUTHORITY, AND NOW THERE IS AN EMERGENCY CRISIS

The GBC say their ultimate managing authority extends to all material and spiritual issues, and thus they are authorized to make (1) diksha gurus by vote approval (2) unrestricted revisions to his transcendental books, etc. Srila Prabhupada's spiritual instructions were complete ("I have given everything...") and there is no need to "manage" them through changes, concoctions, or new interpretations. "Manage" refers to material considerations, such as implementing the existing instructions he gave, not to take Srila Prabhupada's place by improvising and manufacturing spiritual policies and doctrines not found in his teachings. We refer to their changes in the deity worship, kirtan, and endless "editing" adulterations to rewrite Srila Prabhupada's already perfect and sacred books. The GBC has seriously overstepped the boundaries of their limited authority, and therefore they have LOST THEIR AUTHORITY. "...therefore any instruction given by him is unauthorized and should at once be rejected. He has no right to dictate as he has without my sanction..." (SPL Oct. 1967)

GBC DELINEATES THEIR DUTIES AND RESPONSIBILITIES

In 2017 the GBC finally produced a 22 page "fluff" document defining their responsibilities, identity, duties, powers. We excerpt parts with comments discussing how they have misunderstood.

"Global Duties & Responsibilities of the Governing Body Commission (GBC): This document describes the collective service of the [GBC of ISKCON]. The listed functions derive primarily from Srila Prabhupada's direct instructions. Some details have been shaped, however, by insights gained over decades of observation and experience. The GBC members collaborate to fulfill their various global responsibilities and individually contribute according to their capacity [...] absorption in and loyalty to the core elements of Srila Prabhupada's mood and mission are expected from every GBC member. [...] The list of functions is as follows:

"(1) Executing Srila Prabhupada's Will: On July 28, 1970, in the DOM, the document establishing the GBC [...] Srila Prabhupada wrote: 'These personalities are now considered as my direct representatives. While I am living they will act as my zonal secretaries and after my demise they will be known as Executors.' Executors are responsible of ensuring that [Srila Prabhupada's] wishes [...] are granted with regards to the management of his properties and legacy, the protection and guidance of ISKCON. The GBC has been entrusted with this fiduciary duty of caring for the whole of ISKCON on behalf of the Founder-Acharya. [...] 'Perhaps you know I have already formed a Governing Body Commission, so in my absence they will manage the affairs of the Society.' (SPL Umapati Aug. 23, 1970) [Also]: 'The future hope of solid standing of our mission is on the proper management of our governing body.' (SPL Bhagavan Feb. 16, 1971) 'For better management of the whole institution, the GBC is responsible.' (SPL Satsvarupa Feb. 26, 1971) Within this broad, inclusive mandate we can identify three distinct areas. FIRST, the aspects for which Srila Prabhupada provided clear and detailed instructions, instructions that are universal and ongoing. These should be treated as fundamental, immovable principles – one such principle is the collegial governance of ISKCON. For instance, in CC Adi-lila 12.8 purport, Srila Prabhupada links the history of the Gaudiya Matha to ISKCON: 'Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakura, at the time of his departure, requested all his disciples to form a governing body and conduct missionary activities cooperatively. He did not instruct a particular man to become the next acharya” COMMENT: Incredible gaslighting, a brazen perverse posturing that the GBC has not done the same as Bhaktisiddhanta’s disciples did, unauthorizedly creating over a hundred false gurus, something which Srila Prabhupada never instructed. Amazingly the GBC pretends they have not “become the next acharya(s)”? Srila Prabhupada gave “clear and detailed instructions” for the initiation/ guru system used in ISKCON? The GBC only makes absurd declarations since ISKCON has no one who can challenge their tyranny.

“SECOND, the aspects for which Srila Prabhupada offered only general directions but no firm details. For instance, Srila Prabhupada expressed the desire to create a global legal structure for ISKCON: ‘Now I want to make an International Trust Board for the whole Society’ (Letter to Bali Mardana, August 14, 1974); but the particulars of this overall legal entity need to be defined. In fact, Srila Prabhupada himself wrote to a GBC member: ‘I have built the skeleton of the building, but there is so much more work remaining before us. The GBC men are there, the world is divided into 12 zones for gradual development by these, my chosen right hand men. So however you manage it, that you know best.’ (SPL Hamsaduta Jan. 2, 1973) COMMENT: The 1972 letter to Karandhar in the previous chapter made very clear that Srila Prabhupada did NOT want a global legal structure for ISKCON. The above letter to Bali Mardana about a “trust board” refers to the GBC itself, and the 1975 GBC meetings produced clarifications to the DOM election process, not to a legal structure as the GBC has done with ISKCON’s Lawbook. The GBC justifications of their bureaucratization, centralization, and legalization of ISKCON as an asset of the West Bengal Society with secret bylaws facilitates their guru businesses, and it has very little to do with anything even remotely resembling what Srila Prabhupada wanted.

“THIRD, aspects Srila Prabhupada did not delve into or discuss; either because they did not exist at the time (such as the Internet) or because they became prominent only at a certain stage of ISKCON’s development. How initiating spiritual masters should relate with local managers is an example. Given these three categories of themes, this document will offer varying degrees of direct evidence from Srila Prabhupada’s words. COMMENT: Due to experiences and new circumstances that Srila Prabhupada never anticipated, the GBC claims they must invent responses to a new reality. “Guru, sadhu, and shastra check and balance each other. But when the guru departs, sadhu and shastra can take on a new import, as those who succeed him become the new interpreters of past precedents, scriptural law, and the new set of circumstances.” (Tamal, Perils of Succession, 1996)

“One thing is certain: in his “Declaration of Will,” signed on June 4, 1977, Srila Prabhupada stated: “The [GBC] will be the ultimate managing authority of the entire [ISKCON].” Throughout the years, Srila Prabhupada repeated and confirmed the same idea; even in the last recorded mentions of “GBC”: “The institution depends on the GBC.” (SPConv Nov. 5, 1977) “I wish that you GBC manage very nicely.” (SPConv Nov. 8, 1977) COMMENT: Srila Prabhupada’s mandate for the GBC to be ISKCON’s “ultimate managing authority” means they must implement only what he instructed, not invent new doctrines, which is what they have done for 45 years. Very little remains in ISKCON that conforms to Srila Prabhupada’s teachings. See Parts 14-16.

Guarding & Representing Srila Prabhupada’s Teachings: [...] Part of this teaching function is to judge whether Srila Prabhupada’s teachings are being properly applied according to time, place, and circumstance, translating the Founder-Acharya’s instructions and desires within changing conditions and environments. [...] The stewardship of Srila Prabhupada’s instructions includes acting as guardians of the Seven Purposes of ISKCON and thus preventing deviation from and neglect of the foundational aims Srila Prabhupada enshrined. COMMENT: The GBC “stewardship” of Srila Prabhupada’s teachings are that they are now outdated due to cultural evolution, the internet, etc and must be “updated” or purged of Srila Prabhupada’s “colonial” outlook. Time place circumstance does not mean changing his books, or compromising with sahajiyas, etc. (Parts 14-16) The proof that the GBC is not “preventing deviation” is how badly they have rendered the Mission. “Guarding” his teachings changing his books?

“Preserving Srila Prabhupada’s Position as the Founder-Acharya: Srila Prabhupada was very concerned that his status as Founder-Acharya be established and perpetuated. [in the DOM] Srila Prabhupada: "During my absence no one shall live in my apartment." The GBC should preserve Srila Prabhupada's position as the Founder-Acharya of ISKCON throughout the generations. COMMENT: The GBC did ZERO (1978-2002) to prevent Tamal from living in Srila Prabhupada's personal apartments (Part 9). Their "defense" of Srila Prabhupada as "Founder-Acharya" is only lip service and empty talk.

"Maintaining Srila Prabhupada's Standards Worldwide: ... "Now I have invested the GBC for maintaining the standard of our Krishna Consciousness Society, so keep the GBC very vigilant. I have already given you full directions in my books." (SPL Satsvarupa Sept. 5, 1970) "I have formed this GBC for that purpose, to keep the devotional standards at the highest level and at the same time to manage a world-wide organization." (SPL Rupanuga Nov. 4, 1970) [...] COMMENT: Associate with sahaiyas, allow my kirtan or books to be changed, introduce bogus gurus in my place, propagate defective speculative doctrines, turn my disciples away from ISKCON, start social welfare activities, Hindu-ize the mission, neglect Varnashrama, etc... the scorecard for the GBC on maintaining ISKCON's pure standards is pathetic. "Providing Spiritual Leadership & Guidance: COMMENT: The GBC has provided only misleadership. "Encouraging & Nurturing the Devotees: [...] need to supervise and ensure that devotees everywhere receive spiritual shelter and guidance, and the GBC needs to make sure that such care is offered worldwide. [...] COMMENT: When one submits to their deviation policies, one gets shelter of fallen so-called gurus. Devotees are led into the hands of bogus, conditioned-soul gurus, not the pure devotee Srila Prabhupada.

"Communicating Effectively: The GBC should regularly and effectively communicate to all devotees the vision, decisions, and initiatives meant to improve the Hare Krishna movement. To this end, GBC members may use any and all means of communication. Effective communication includes the thorough explanation of resolutions and policies [...] COMMENT: As seen in Part 20, the GBC defective doctrines are a patchwork of band-aids to cure the anomalies of their own contradictory disobediences, confusing innocent devotees.

"Establishing ISKCON Legislation: The GBC should produce ISKCON's legislation and [...] restricting themselves from the arbitrary exercise of power and instead acting according to the rule of law – the principle that all individuals are subject and accountable to a set of legitimately established rules. "We require to hold this important meeting of the GBC to formulate the rules and regulations how things will be worked on." (SPL Tamal Krishna Aug. 14, 1971). Later: "As far as your proposals are concerned the real thing is that we must make broader constitution of the management by GBC." (SPL Jayatirtha, Dec. 16, 1974) It's therefore the duty of the GBC to generate fair legislation and for its members to be exemplary in their observance of the law. Legislation includes the development of policies, procedures, systems, and structures that promote ISKCON's functionality and growth and ensure legal compliance throughout the world, both to internal and external laws, through regular audits and other means. COMMENT: Srila Prabhupada never spoke of "legislation." The GBC has created a centralized, bureaucratic, politicized regime where no debate or discussion is allowed.

"Establishing Checks & Balances: "...in the next meeting of the GBC members they should form a constitution how the GBC members manage the whole affair." (SPL Giriraja Aug. 12, 1971) The constitution will enshrine the underlying fundamental principles on which all ISKCON laws should be based. Srila Prabhupada established the GBC as the "ultimate managing authority" for ISKCON. A structure that gives final, ultimate, and supreme authority to the GBC may raise concerns about the possibility of a dictatorial or oppressive governance. But "ultimate" does not mean the GBC has "absolute" authority. In fact, an essential element of Srila Prabhupada's teachings is that ISKCON leaders, including the GBC and its members, must recognize and respect the dignity and rights of the individuals and communities. [...] The GBC is studying practical ways for ensuring that decisions be made in consideration of the rightful concerns of its constituencies after comprehensive dialogue. A proper system of checks and balances would provide some measure of influence over the deliberations of the GBC and will prevent unwarranted arbitrariness. For instance, the GBC stipulated that it will not override the case decisions of the Child Protection Office. COMMENT: ISKCON has no checks and balances and all power has been assumed by the GBC, in contradiction to Srila Prabhupada's instructions. Implement elections of the GBC by temple presidents for checks and balances. Their sole instance of ceding power to the CPO was only after decades of scandals and mass rebellion.

"Establishing Prerequisites & Oversight for Spiritual Leadership: Srila Prabhupada also indicated that spiritual knowledge be formally tested as a requirement for serving as diksha-guru and that the GBC establish this and other examination processes in ISKCON: "Another examination will be held sometimes in 1971 . . . One who will pass this examination will be awarded with the title of Bhaktivedanta. I want that all of my spiritual sons and daughters will inherit this title of Bhaktivedanta, so that the family transcendental diploma will continue through the generations. Those possessing the title of Bhaktivedanta will be allowed to initiate disciples." (Letter to Hamsaduta, January 3, 1969) [...] This principle applies to determining standards and requirements for serving as initiating and instructing gurus, sannyasis, etc. COMMENT: Perhaps Srila Prabhupada intended that those passing exams would initiate disciples on his behalf? Where in shastra are initiating gurus "trained in seminars" and rubber-stamped by votes? This is GBC propaganda.

"Protecting ISKCON's Assets & Ensuring Legal and Financial Compliance: The GBC needs to ensure that ISKCON's soft and hard assets [...] are protected. [...] "All our property should be well protected, and I think in every document my name as Founder-Acharya should be mentioned. Special care should be taken that no property can be sold or mortgaged by local managers as was done by Gaurasundara. This is my only concern." (SPL Bali Mardan Sept. 5, 1974) COMMENT: Many properties are controlled by ISKCON gurus and not the GBC, yet this is conveniently not mentioned. As for finances, most funds are siphoned off into the guru private accounts and projects, leaving very little funds left over to be "compliant." "Strategizing & Leading ISKCON's Qualitative & Quantitative Growth: COMMENT: Since 1978 almost all of Srila Prabhupada's direct disciples have been alienated and the temples in Europe and North America are empty except for Hindus on festivals. And the quality of growth in India, Russia, Poland etc is questionable. "Ensuring that Srila Prabhupada's Books Are Distributed, Studied and Assimilated: [...] Srila Prabhupada did not want devotees to only distribute his books; he often stressed the importance for devotees to study his books both regularly and scrutinizingly. COMMENT: The GBC tolerates no discussion on GBC performance, Srila Prabhupada's poisoning, or the guru-initiations issues. ISKCON only permits that which is conformative to institutionally established policies and doctrines. Repressive regime.

"Maintaining the Principle of Unity in Diversity: [...] the need for ongoing dialogue between the GBC and other senior ISKCON spiritual leaders to find harmony and collaboration. [...] Implementing unity in diversity requires maintaining the delicate balance between the need of the Society to conserve its fundamental principles and practices, and the need to encourage creativity, individuality, and innovation. [...] COMMENT: Unity in ISKCON is artificial due to the repressive, heavy-handed regime which forces all its members to submit to the GBC's set of defective doctrines or else be excommunicated as a blasphemous and troublemaker.

"Protecting the Reputation & Ensuring the Endurance of ISKCON: COMMENTS: ISKCON's reputation has been immeasurably damaged by its own policy of approving conditioned souls to act as initiating gurus within the institution. Half of these gurus have had embarrassing "falldowns" and most of the rest are secretly fallen as well, yet the GBC has constantly covered up and glossed over these scandals. "Ensuring Accountability among Its Commissioners and throughout the Society: Preventing neglect and entropy requires constant vigilance. [...] Therefore Srila Prabhupada established the system of temple presidents regularly reporting to their GBC Zonal Secretaries. Srila Prabhupada wanted to institute a culture of accountability and transparency... COMMENTS: The problem is GBC corruption, not temple president malfeasance. See Ch. 123 about ISKCON's GBC and guru system unaccountability and abject corruption.

"Cooperating with the BBT: In the document establishing the GBC, Srila Prabhupada wrote: "So far my books are concerned, I am setting up a different body of management known as the

BHAKTIVEDANTA BOOK TRUST. The trustees of this body are also members of the GBC, but their function is not dependent on the GBC.” (Direction of Management, July 28, 1970) The next day, in the BBT founding document, Srila Prabhupada described that the BBT and ISKCON were indissolubly connected but legally separated: “PURPOSE OF TRUST – This trust is created and shall be operated exclusively for the benefit of the ISKCON [...] This trust shall exist independently of the International Society for Krishna Consciousness and the Trustees’ functions and duties stated herein shall be separate and not dependent on the Governing Body Commission of the International Society for Krishna Consciousness [...] This trust shall be irrevocable. In the event of [...] dissolution of the trust, the entire Trust Fund shall, in that event, be distributed to the International Society for Krishna Consciousness.” COMMENTS: Irrevocable? The GBC bypassed the original BBT trust and it has been inactive since Srila Prabhupada departed. The GBC formed a non-trust corporation and there is no accountability for management or finances with rumors of theft and illegalities covered-up. The GBC did nothing to prevent or rectify the endless, unnecessary changes to Srila Prabhupada’s books which they still endorse to this day. The GBC has failed miserably to follow Srila Prabhupada’s instructions on the BBT or his books. “Performing Individual Global Duties & Responsibilities: [...] The spiritual qualification to serve as a member of the GBC, therefore, isn’t some extraordinarily elevated inner realization but tangible following. [...] The GBC as a group can only be effective if each of its members is effective in: Abiding by the GBC Code of Honor. (like the Mafia) Cooperating with one another with the aim to benefit ISKCON. (ISKCON is now for the benefit of its gurus) Implementing the GBC’s decisions, even those with which one might not fully agree. (Go along to get along) Doing his or her homework – reading documents in advance of deliberations etc (GBC does not even know the facts in Srila Prabhupada’s proven poisoning) Being exemplary devotees. (Until exposed as not exemplary) In conclusion, Srila Prabhupada always stressed purity of purpose and of motivation as an essential ingredient for serving as a GBC. (see Ch. 151, 156, 157, 158)

MORE FROM SRILA PRABHUPADA ABOUT THE GBC

(1) “That is the business of ISKCON Press. [...] so please see that everything gets done with the cooperation of GBC. Everything must be done cooperatively.” (SPL Advaita Jan. 21, 1971) (2) “As soon as I see that you GBC members are managing everything very nicely I shall completely retire for writing my books only and I am thinking of staying in Mayapur for six months and in your camp, L.A., for six months” (SPL Karandhara Oct. 16, 1971) (3) “So as GBC you must see to it that the highest standards of routine work are maintained throughout all the centers, and that chanting, rising early, cleansing, and all other aspects of our regular program may not be neglected. That is our first business. GBC men should not dictate very much, simply supervise and see that the standards are maintained. The individual presidents should be more managerial, more individual, and you can supervise, and if some defect is detected, you can make suggestions how to correct it. But if we lose individuality and simply become mechanical, what is the point?” (SPL Hamsaduta Feb. 14, 1972) (4) “...the GBC men may be consulted in all such matters of temple management and affairs. I have given them everything, so they shall be able to answer all questions, and if they cannot answer from their experience, then I have given answer in my books— and still if they cannot answer, they may ask me. But now we are expanding very rapidly with so many centers throughout the world, and every day I am receiving not less than ten to fifteen important letters. I am always very much encouraged to hear from my disciples and to reply them, but now I am old man and I have inclination for philosophy and translating, and if all day and night I am reading and answering and signing letters then I cannot utilize this, the fag end of my life, to give you so many nice literatures [...] So if the GBC which I have appointed for this task will kindly now assist me in this way, by handling very expertly and with all good consideration all matters of managing, I shall devote my full time to giving you further nice books.” (SPL Kirtika Feb. 16, 1972) (5) “Although there is no GBC man for Far East for addressing your questions, still, as I am now old man and inclined for philosophy and translating, I am asking my disciples to kindly give me some relief from so much administrative work and asking questions. I have appointed this GBC for that purpose, and you are also senior member, and I have given you already everything, so you please consult among yourselves if you have questions.” (SPL Upendra Feb. 19, 1972)

(6) “...your GBC meeting of nine men in New York, and I have cabled Rupanuga the following message: ‘GBC Meeting irregular. My strong disapproval, Make no changes. Inform others. Letter follows.’ [...] I am very much perplexed why you have done these things without consulting me in the matter. If every time someone feels something they call for changing everything, then all that I have done will very quickly be lost...” (SPL Hamsaduta Apr. 2, 1972) (7) “I had no intimation that you all GBC members have met and decided such big big issues without consulting me. [...] both the meeting and the resolution is irregular and immediately there should be no change... But if you all, my right-hand men, are doing things without consulting me and making such big big changes within our society without getting my opinion and the opinion of all the GBC members then what can I do? [...] but simply by agreement you have changed everything, so what is this, I don't know.” (SPL Rupanuga Apr. 4, 1972) (8) “But I have been very much disturbed recently by the meeting... wherein you have passed so many resolutions and elected Atreya Rsi to GBC Secretary, and made so many other changes. [...] I have temporarily suspended the GBC... how is it that Hamsaduta and Atreya Rsi were able to persuade you all senior leaders of the Society to follow their foolish activities?” (SPL Satsvarupa Apr. 10, 1972) (9) “The meeting of the GBC appeared to be very unconstitutional, because all the men were not informed or invited. [...] You cannot hold meeting of 8 persons without inviting the others. Seven may be a quorum, that's all right, but you cannot convene without a general announcement to all the members and myself, giving a proposed agenda, like that, the topics to be discussed, why the meeting is being called, etc. Then there is correspondence for deciding these things, and if there is great necessity, then meeting may be called, but not whimsically, only after much thought is given and there is clear intimation of all the members plus myself. Anything whatever is done is done, but the whole thing appeared to be giving all power to Atreya Rsi. I cannot understand why, instead of one GBC man, a person outside the Commission was given so much power, and there was to be immediate action without divulging the matter to the devotees. [...] What will happen when I am not here, shall everything be spoiled by GBC? So for the time being, let the GBC activities be suspended until I thoroughly revise the whole procedure.” (SPL Hamsaduta Apr. 11, 1972)

(10) “...I wanted that the GBC would be a chosen body of men for that purpose, to see how the students are learning and reporting to me as my secretaries. I do not know how you could have missed these points, as they are clearly spelled out in my original constitution [DOM].” (SPL Satsv May 2, 1972)

CHAPTER 164: NO CONFIDENCE, DISAFFILIATION, REMOVAL

From here through Ch. 176 we examine various ideas for how to restore Srila Prabhupada's mission, meant to provoke deeper thought and possible actions for accomplishing this most worthy and urgent objective. Hopefully these discussions will lead to improved conditions.

The GBC has embraced many major deviations in order to facilitate their guru franchise regime. As a result, book distribution, public chanting, and membership have greatly declined since Srila Prabhupada's manifest presence (with exceptions). With changed books, “non-Prabhupada” kirtans, and no elections, ISKCON is a sinking ship lost at sea with misleaders demanding loyalty in their hallucinations as gurus and guardians of the “legacy.” Personal ambitions drive many of them into a kind of insanity due to their offenses to Srila Prabhupada. The greatest offenses are the book adulterations, abuse of the devotees, and the poisoning of Srila Prabhupada's body. The combined offenses have stymied worldwide preaching on a scale which can delight only the demoniac. The magic of spreading pure Krishna consciousness seen 1966-1977 is lost and gone. With ISKCON leaders introducing ashastric doctrines, with Srila Prabhupada's sacred books having been fecklessly adulterated, with most of Srila Prabhupada's direct disciples lost or alienated, with his physical poisoning now scientifically proven, and with so much destruction to the Mission that cannot be summarized here, the faithful followers of Srila Prabhupada must rise up to remove the misleaders, and the elite guru club that controls ISKCON must be abolished. There must be no more repression, fear, or force from any anti-Srila Prabhupada doctrines. After such a horrible tyranny, Srila Prabhupada's mission must be started afresh from square one, as though it were Nov. 15, 1977, inaugurating an interregnum of enlightenment with open discussion and healing. Respected, independent brahmanas should moderate open debate, istagosthi, and research on restoring ISKCON, even if the process takes years. No more intimidation, fraud, corrupt politics. The unwanted false indoctrinations of the previous gurucracy should be cleared away. This catastrophe was inaugurated by the demoniac poisoners of Srila Prabhupada's body and Mission.

The corrupted GBC is able to maintain its policies and their control of ISKCON only because the general membership acquiesces. Once the membership loses their trust in the leadership, their power and control evaporates, and their leadership will fall soon thereafter. This catalytic point approaches as more devotees are no longer duped by their false propaganda and deviated doctrines. The internet and a rising tide of truth-seeking and enlightenment amongst devotees is slowly pushing the GBC into a tight corner. They cannot give satisfactory answers to the questions that arise, and their history of corruption, lies, and cheating is more understood each day. The rank and file devotees, inside and outside the institution, are losing confidence in the ISKCON misleaders and that ISKCON is on the right track. Devotees and entire temples have been disaffiliating from ISKCON as a result of this growing awakening. Dedication to Srila Prabhupada and his teachings is increasing. The result will be a triumph of truth and Srila Prabhupada's uncheckable transcendental mercy. Srila Prabhupada's mission will somehow succeed in unexpected ways by Krishna's plan.

VOTE OF NO CONFIDENCE IN THE GBC BODY

The remedy for the ills in the Hare Krishna movement is simple: change the leadership to devotees not infected with the dreaded acharya disease. ISKCON needs a new leadership. However, a corrupted leadership rarely cooperates with their own demise, due to their fierce resistance as they cling to their status quo. The present guru-controlled GBC will never reform itself; it will fight tooth and nail to continue their corrupt system even to the death of Srila Prabhupada's mission. This is the nature of parasites: they kill their host. The GBC-guru cartel is the cause of ISKCON's problems. A fresh start can only take place by total removal of the old leadership, otherwise the corruption continues and just gets worse. The entire GBC must be fired and retired with a vote of no confidence from a membership uprising. Most devotees have no more faith in them already. This occurred in 1985-86 with the so-called guru reforms, which were unfortunately subverted and rechanneled into further deviations with the old leaders remaining in place and the members duped into a pseudo-reform. (Ch. 98) Next time the full GBC body and assistants must be completely removed from all positions and influence due to their miserable failures, having been totally corrupted by the "sinister movement" disease of disobedience and envy of the pure devotee.

The GBC's cronyism is self-perpetuating and begets an institutional culture of cronyism. This can only be corrected by speaking the truth about the situation to awaken devotees in sufficient numbers to revolt and throw out their misleaders. Misleaders will never quit on their own; they must be dislodged by force. Reasoning, compromise, pseudo-reforms, and patience only result in strengthening their entrenched positions. Radical surgery, not blowing on the boil, is needed to remove the cancerous tumor. Hare Krishna devotees, outside the restrictive and censoring confines of the institution, must become fully informed and educated with full knowledge of the facts, issues, and actual ISKCON history. From the membership's grass roots, a vote of no-confidence should be held. Tyranny by corrupt leaders and repressive policies cannot survive the the common devotees' irrepressible passion for truth, siddhanta, and tattva in spiritual life. Every year, the ISKCON misleaders simultaneously increase their repression and token, symbolic, phony concessions in reaction to the growing enlightenment. Modern technology and the internet has made facts, hard evidence, and open discussions available to all truth seekers and inquisitive souls, despite censorship and repression.

AN EXAMPLE OF A NO CONFIDENCE VOTE

Dhira Govinda das wrote (2016) about a Declaration of Inheritance Rights (see Appendix 16): "Reading it I am remembering our Statement of No Confidence, from 2000. I was at the time Chairman of the Board of Directors of the New Raman-reti Vaishnava community, which, as now, was the largest devotee community in North America. The Board officially resolved to accept a Statement of No Confidence in the ISKCON Governing Body Commission. As you might imagine, it caused quite a stir in the community, and internationally." That statement was unanimously accepted by the ISKCON Alachua Board of Directors and is a notable precedent for a first step- disaffiliation alone does not remove the corrupted ISKCON leadership:

VOTE OF NO CONFIDENCE IN GBC BY ALACHUA BOARD OF DIRECTORS, JULY 20, 2000

"Srila Prabhupada wanted his movement to be led by a GBC that possesses integrity and commands respect. At present, despite the sincere efforts of the members of the GBC body, this does not exist. Though the New Raman-reti board of directors fully supports the principle of the GBC as Srila Prabhupada envisioned it, we herein express our lack of confidence in the GBC body in its current state to lead the movement and to adequately represent Srila Prabhupada. In order to avoid particulars obscuring the broader view of dysfunction, this short statement does not delineate specific reasons for discontent. However, general categories of misconduct of the GBC body that are far below acceptable standards include areas such as accountability, managerial competence, responsiveness, and representation. This board is willing and eager to participate in efforts towards constructive change concerning the GBC body, and some such efforts are currently being discussed. We believe it is essential that any new structure include a GBC body that is accountable to a group or constituency external to itself, since it is clear that the GBC body is unable to evaluate and discipline itself. This board views this statement as a service to the GBC body, and hopes that these comments will contribute to a positive reconstruction that will restore moral authority to the GBC body. The views expressed herein are those of the elected members of the New Raman-reti board of directors. We realize that these views do not necessarily represent the opinions of the members of the New Raman-reti community. Regarding feedback to leadership, the board of directors wishes to hear from community members on the issues described herein, and the board would also like to hear views from community members concerning the performance and functioning of the New Raman-reti management. Your servants, Sukhada dasi, Nagaraja das, Nanda dasi, Raghupati Pran das, Kesihanta das, Isvara Puri das, Dhira Govinda das"

HISTORICAL BACKGROUND ON ALACHUA VOTE OF NO CONFIDENCE

As early as 1992-93 there were discussions in the Alachua Florida devotee community about having local devotees instead of the GBC select the Board of Directors. Representatives of the Alachua community drafted a paper called: Proposed Management System for the New Raman Reti Devotional Community. The Alachua GBC was Hrdayananda Swami, who protested the endorsement of local elections of the community leaders or board. Excerpts from his letter (26.8.93): "...I have some doubts about this proposal... the authority to choose those who will represent Prabhupada as Directors emanates almost exclusively from the mass of devotees... this is [not] the way Srila Prabhupada actually conducted his movement... [no] role is given to the GBC representative... I am surprised that you have twice mentioned that the Board is the 'ultimate judicial authority for the community'... Apart from helping to choose a temple president when necessary, it seems that there is no explicit role for the GBC representative... He is merely to stand to the side as a type of spiritual referee and blow the whistle when a person or project is spiritually "out-of-bounds"... Srila Prabhupada strongly encouraged me personally and many other GBC... to provide positive spiritual leadership and to take initiative in spreading the movement, but this role is virtually eliminated by your proposed system of management..."

We the undersigned urge the members of the NRR board to vote in favor of disconnecting ISKCON of Alachua from the GBC.

Evidently the GBC is corrupt and has proven incapable of restructuring itself based on qualities of principle, performance and accountability.

The GBC can be reformed with the assistance and pressure created by the mass of people rejecting the authority of the current " Governing Body."

We trust this progressive measure will generate a snowball effect worldwide and save this movement from demise. This action will hopefully encourage many members of the youth to involve themselves in a meaningful way.

|   |   |   |
|---|---|---|
|  |  |  |
|  |  |  |
|  |  |  |
|  |  |  |
|  |  |  |
|  |  |  |
|  |  |  |
|  |  |  |
|  |  |  |

The 1986 Florida incorporation papers for Alachua ISKCON had no reference to the GBC, but much about Srila Prabhupada as Founder-Acharya and his principles for the Hare Krishna movement. There was no legal obligation to or involvement by the GBC, so Articles of Amendment of ISKCON of Alachua were filed in July 1994 wherein these "deficiencies" were remedied. Excerpts: "The corporation agrees to follow the ecclesiastical doctrine of the ISKCON GBC, a West Bengal, India Association... All Officers... must have signed the prescribed Oath of Loyalty to ISKCON... For real property assets, the Corporation agrees to allow the GBC Body... to have veto power over any proposed sale, mortgage, transfer... without the expressed written consent of the GBC Body... The Corporation grants the GBC Body the right to remove any of the Directors or Officers of the Corporation if the GBC finds, in its sole discretion and judgment..." In two pages, the "GBC" and allegiance to ISKCON was mentioned 30 times. The GBC had quickly moved to prevent any further disloyalty or independence. Or so they thought. From the mid-nineties the Alachua Board of Directors was elected by the wider community members, not just the temple residents. The Board then selected the temple president, and the GBC was ignored. Dhira Govinda was Chairman 1997-2001.

In late 1998 the Alachua Board endorsed Dhira Govinda's paper "The Humble Guru" and requested the GBC body to implement it as a measure of guru reforms. At the same time an ISKCON leadership meeting took place at ISKCON Brooklyn wherein a resolution was passed (14 agrees, 1 disagree, 16 need more info) which also endorsed "The Humble Guru." Bhakti Marg Swami endorsed the paper enthusiastically but many GBC's did not welcome its propositions and criticized it as "ritvik" propaganda (it was not). Other meetings occurred around ISKCON in 1998 regarding the ISKCON guru system, including in Bombay where mostly second level ISKCON leaders expressed extreme dissatisfaction with the GBC, specifically how it had handled the "guru/ continuation of the parampara" issue. With the "The Humble Guru" resonating with its widespread audience and the spectacular falldown of ISKCON's leading guru Harikesh Swami in 1998, by early 1999 the GBC was compelled to adopt a series of resolutions which temporarily incorporated "The Humble Guru" principles. The red-hot coals of discontent around the movement compelled the GBC to respond, albeit with token, symbolic concessions. This indicates that the ISKCON power structure is not nearly as strong or stable as many would think. It will not take much for it to crumble into the dust since it is constructed upon disobedience to Srila Prabhupada and on the material ambitions of an elite class of bogus gurus who exploit the membership.

GBC APOLOGISTS SAY WE SHOULD HELP REFORM THE GBC

Hardcore ISKCON loyalists often insist that the GBC is trying their best and that devotees should be always ready to help them improve in their services to the society. This sounds nice but has erroneous assumptions. Devotees have been giving feedback and advice to the GBC for decades and the severe crisis of a GBC culture of unaccountability simply worsens. If devotees must always help the GBC because of their shortcomings (a GBC that does not want their help), then the devotees should remove that incompetent, corrupt GBC body to directly improve the situation. That the GBC will respond positively to feedback is a illusion. The idea that the GBC is a work in progress, one that is accessible to devotees, is also an illusion. The idea that regardless of the GBC's level of accountability, it is Srila Prabhupada's legacy to us all- this is sentimental, impractical wishful thinking (diehard patriotism). That after 45 years the GBC cannot even keep a 25% approval rating is indicative they are a hopeless failure- we cannot delude ourselves further by thinking our “help” will make any difference. No one should be naïve about the GBC’s true colors: they are a repressive bureaucracy that only serves the interests of ISKCON’s guru system. For any sane person, the histories and evidences given in this book should be sufficiently convincing of the GBC’s incorrigible nature. The GBC has made fools out of many sincere devotees who tried, despite all difficulties, to be cooperative and helpful. Suggestions that this should continue are an insult to the intelligence of those who have sacrificed their lives for ISKCON and who were trashed, neglected, rejected, exploited, abused, and ridiculed, and for the most part, unjustly. The GBC has proven itself unreasonable, unaccountable, tyrannical, self-serving, and to think that we should waste more time uselessly supporting such a corrupt system is simply ridiculous. The clear proof that Srila Prabhupada was poisoned with heavy metals in 1977 and that the GBC and ISKCON gurus have been deviously, dishonestly covering up this fact, this alone makes them an unacceptable leadership. The GBC has hidden Srila Prabhupada’s poisoning and his poisoners for 45 years, yet we are to go on submitting to their guru tyranny? No. Enough is enough. Their days in power have run out and they must go.

LOCAL TEMPLES CAN ELECT THEIR OWN GBC REPRESENTATIVE

The Alachua community membership re-elected their own board every year with minor changes, showing solid support for the board’s vote of no confidence in the GBC. It was not a renegade board of directors. In 1999 and 2000 the same board discussed amongst themselves and also in public meetings that the community would select its own GBC representative and reject the one assigned by the GBC. From Board Meeting Minutes, Sept. 29, 1999: “Resolved: Attendees at the temple community meeting this Spring indicated that our community would like to be involved in selecting its own GBC representative. Consequently, the board will discuss and vote on the following proposal at its next meeting: Proposal: Whereas New Raman Reti Alachua is the largest ISKCON community in the West; Whereas the community leaders feel a strong need to communicate more effectively with the GBC body; Whereas the NRR community members, at a public meeting convened to discuss the matter, concluded that more direct representation is preferable; It is hereby resolved that: Beginning in 2000, the Board of Directors of ISKCON New Raman Reti shall select a representative to serve as GBC for the community and attend the annual GBC meeting in Mayapur. Although it hopes the representative will have the fullest possible degree of participation with the GBC body...”

Again, Jan. 28, 2000, the Board minutes included: “Topics discussed: Presentation to the GBC body in Mayapur of the ISKCON of Alachua resolution that ISKCON of Alachua select its own GBC...”

Board Chairman Dhira Govinda noted: “News about the Board-accepted Statement of No Confidence in the GBC, from the Alachua community, got around, and had quite some effect on devotee communities around the world. In mid-2000 I was invited to an ISKCON conference in Radhadesh, where I also attended meetings with members of ISKCON leadership, including some GBCs and Bhakti Tirtha Maharaja, and perhaps 12-15 second-level leaders, including regional secretaries or deputies, etc. Saunaka Rsi, from Ireland, who helped start the Oxford Centre for Vaishnava and Hindu Studies, led some of these meetings. He, I, and others formulated various resolutions which were unanimously accepted. One resolution was that all GBCs who served prior to 1991, would resign, as a step forward to create a new GBC body and culture. The late 1970’s till 1991 were the years of the most severe child maltreatment in ISKCON, and 1991 was selected. All of the GBCs there also expressed agreement with this. My services involving the ISKCON Alachua Board of Directors, International Child Protection Office, writing papers on guru-tattva, (and also, beginning in 2001- involvement with committees on the “poison issue”) were causing quite some disturbance for ISKCON leadership. So, my guess is that Ravindra Svarupa das, and maybe also Sesa das, who were not at the Radhadesh meetings, met with Saunaka Rsi das, and influenced him to see the ‘light.’” Thus, within a few months the momentum generated had subsided, and Saunaka Rsi wrote to Dhira Govinda that everything was now reformed, so there was no longer need for their proposals. The GBC quickly exerted their influence over all those who had been involved in questioning them, quelling dissent by behind-the-scenes pressure, and it was GBC business as usual again. Alachua never elected their own GBC representative, but the idea is there for those who would actually do it.

ALACHUA ISKCON'S RESOLUTION OF DISAFFILIATION FROM THE CORRUPT GBC IN 2001

In 2001 the makeup of the Alachua Board of Directors consisted of experienced devotees: Dhira Govinda das: former TP Israel, author Prominent Link and Humble Guru, Satvatove Institute; Nagaraja das: editor BTG magazine; Sukhada dasi: ISKCON children's education for decades; Isvara Puri das: Vaishnava youth, Vice President; Raghupati Pran das: leader in the Spanish Vaishnava regional community; Kesihanti das: accountant, cow protection, temple management. Dhira Govinda explained: "The LETTER OF DISAFFILIATION was meant as a clear expression that we don't accept the authority of what went in the name of the 'ISKCON GBC.' We had extensive documentation of specific reasons, incidents- it wasn't challenging to find specifics, rather it was, 'Which to choose from?' In practically every situation where we had contact with the GBC body or members, we were greeted with a festival of corruption, apathy, manipulation, disgraceful incompetence, etc. After the Statement of No Confidence (in 2000), we moved forward to draft, propose and resolve a Statement of Disaffiliation from the ISKCON GBC. It wasn't just symbolic. The letter, April 19, 2001, is the board expressing that it does not accept the authority of the ISKCON GBC. It was clear that, legally, the GBC had no power. So the Board decided to stop giving the GBC power. It had no legal authority, and we didn't want to any longer support the pretense that it had even moral authority. Excerpts from the LETTER OF DISAFFILIATION are:"

"Srla Prabhupada established the GBC as an integral part of ISKCON, to lead and guide the society of devotees. The board of directors of ISKCON of Alachua does not accept the GBC body because the GBC is not, and has not been, fulfilling its function at even a minimally acceptable standard. ISKCON Alachua is not leaving ISKCON, and is as enthusiastic as ever to contribute to Lord Chaitanya's sankirtana movement. As Srila Prabhupada instructed temples to do when he suspended the authority of the GBC April 8, 1972, ISKCON Alachua will conduct itself peacefully and independently from the GBC. We will endeavor to enhance the Krishna conscious atmosphere in the Alachua Vaishnava community, while maintaining and promoting friendly relations with all of Srila Prabhupada's followers and their temples and projects, including an amicable relationship with the GBC. We will gladly participate in collaborative efforts with the GBC body to serve the mission of Srila Prabhupada, including efforts to restore credibility to the GBC body itself, provided these enterprises demonstrate a reasonable possibility for effecting positive change.

"This statement is an exercise of the self-determination that Srila Prabhupada expected his followers to utilize in leading the movement and discharging their services. One gets the behavior that one tolerates, and we believe it is time to no longer tolerate the behavior of the GBC, as its conduct is largely a discredit to Srila Prabhupada. Based on communications with other devotees, we estimate that the vast majority of Srila Prabhupada's followers would agree with this assessment. Further, we believe that most of the devotees serving in positions of ISKCON leadership would agree with this evaluation of the state of the GBC, and more than half of the GBC members themselves would concur. By tolerating unhealthy behavior we also tend to be influenced by it. With this in mind we encourage the members of the GBC who perceive the chaos that the body has become, to speak out clearly and publicly in this regard, and, as efforts to meaningfully change the body have proven ineffectual, to resign from the body, lest their personal integrity becomes compromised.

"...We prefer not to persist with a pretense of allegiance. Our loyalty is to Srila Prabhupada, and we believe he would have revoked the authority of the GBC body years ago. We understand that all organizations contain some irrationality, dysfunction and vitiation. To lend concreteness to our perspective, we herein provide a numerical, albeit subjective, formulation. Srila Prabhupada wanted all parts of his movement to function at a standard of excellence. We'll designate this standard as 95-100. Practically speaking, we consider an acceptable standard of operation to be in the range of 60-70. That is, even though an organization, such as the GBC, may evince only a mediocre caliber of performance, it may still be accepted if it is at least at a 60-70 level. Such a passable score includes genuine efforts to achieve a standard of excellence. We approximate the score of the GBC to be in the 20-30 range. ...devotees not in ISKCON leadership, and who have been involved with the movement for more than about 7 years, consider 25 to be a generous score for the GBC. It may be asserted that the GBC has improved from a 20 to a 30 in recent years... 30 is still well below an acceptable level.

"Herein we have expressed doubts and perceptions about the GBC, and have withdrawn our support of the body as a result of our understanding... We have shared these doubts with many others, and till now have not heard anything to alleviate our misgivings or dissuade us from this course of action. Conversely, it seems that our experience and observations are shared by many others, and our resolve has strengthened. ...Rationale dictates that there is a line, beyond which Srila Prabhupada would want devotees and devotional entities to conduct themselves with expressed independence from the GBC. The contrary position, which to us seems untenable, would be that no matter how the GBC conducts itself, and regardless of the body's degree of irresponsibility, ineptitude and insensitivity, we should accept the authority of the body. For us, the GBC crossed the line a while ago, and this statement is overdue. People are constantly approached to join or retain their memberships in organizations. Naturally they evaluate whether the organization is one with which they want to be associated, and whether the sacrifices required are worth the benefits. This statement, and we invite other Vaishnava associations and individuals to make similar declarations, provides an opportunity for the GBC to understand that it must perform at a certain level if it expects Srila Prabhupada's followers to choose to affiliate as a supporter and follower of the body. It is already obvious to most members of the movement that being a follower of Srila Prabhupada is not synonymous with being a follower of the GBC. The GBC needs to drastically raise its standard of conduct in order to inspire devotees to want to follow and support the body. Without a decent standard of performance from the GBC, there will be insufficient incentive for devotees to affiliate with it. GBC members speak frankly about the body being irrational, lacking integrity and common sense, and unwilling to be accountable for the words and actions of its members. It is not uncommon for members of the body to actively disrespect the authority of the body. A palpable question then, is whether a devotee would want to follow or claim to follow an organization that lacks integrity, acts irrationally with regularity, and refuses to be accountable. As thinking devotees are asking such questions, the movement is increasingly becoming a loose-knit federation with no recognized governing body. By its actions, or in many cases lack of them, the body has to a great extent lost the respect of the devotees, and most GBCs are aware of this. We believe the members of the GBC body are sincere, and we have full respect for their Vaishnava qualities and dedicated efforts to serve Srila Prabhupada. Good intentions, however, are not sufficient to inspire loyalty towards or trust in the body.

"Sometimes [...] it is mentioned that there are many problems in many areas of ISKCON. Clearly this is true. However, if the discussion is about the GBC, then it is unproductive to divert the conversation. If a different discussion addresses the temple presidents, or Alachua community, or a particular ministry, then that discussion should focus on the issues of those entities, without distraction. As with the July 20, 2000, statement of no confidence, this statement avoids explication of specific instances of indiscretion. It is not that it is difficult to identify specifics. To the contrary, examples are so numerous as to form an ubiquitous pattern, and we don't want the presentation of a few particulars distracting from the pattern of dysfunction that characterizes the GBC body. There is no single issue, or even group of issues, that form the focus of our concern in this statement. Rather, it is, from our perception and evaluation, the consistently unprincipled and apparently senseless way with which the GBC conducts itself that have moved us to distance ourselves from the body. Not accepting the authority of the GBC does not mean blind rejection of its issuances. In using our intelligence for Srila Prabhupada's service we may sometimes accept a position or policy set forth by the GBC. As elected representatives of the ISKCON Alachua community we believe that this statement represents a sizable majority of the community, though we know that it does not represent everyone. ...Srila

Prabhupada wanted a principled and effective GBC body. Perhaps statements such as this will lead to that, though we confess to having serious doubts about whether the present members of the GBC body will effectuate significant change. We hope to see noteworthy, positive change in the body, and we will advocate for ISKCON Alachua to become a GBC-community if the GBC body's performance improves to a minimum standard."

DEVOTEE ENDORSEMENTS OF ALACHUA DISAFFILIATION

Although the Board resolution to disaffiliate from the GBC was never officially passed by the Board, its effect was immense, and it shook much of the ISKCON world. Endorsements of the Alachua Board's No Confidence and Disaffiliation from the GBC show deep and broad support. (1) AMBARISHA DAS (ALFRED FORD): "I do believe that the CURRENT GBC is corrupted... I mean this in the sense that the organization has become corrupted by its entrenched inability to reform itself. Due to excessive attachment, patronage, etc., this unwieldy body has extinguished any effectiveness, influence or authority over the organization it was created to supervise. The current situation is a farce." (2) BRAJA BIHARI DAS: "I really appreciated your statement, and thought it was the kind of letter that many (most) ISKCON devotees would agree with." (3) TOSHAN KRISHNA DAS: "I agree with the views expressed which include the understanding that the GBC members are not performing the minimum duties required of this important office. ISKCON, the organization, and its members have suffered gravely for lack of GBC related attention. This is old news and there is nothing radical about acknowledging this. Unfortunately, it is necessary to say these things. The challenge is to not merely stop there..." (4) MANU DAS (ISKCON Youth Minister): "I am in favor of a statement of disaffiliation until a workable system is instituted for the management of a global ISKCON. Alachua can be a pioneer in this regard." (5) LAXMIMONI DAS (senior ISKCON educator): "I agree that the GBC body as it is presently functioning, is inadequate and poorly organized. It is therefore unable to meet its mandate to guide and inspire the devotees of ISKCON. Despite repeated and sincere suggestions for restructuring and offers of help from senior devotees to address these shortcomings, the GBC Body ...have displayed insensitivity to the voice and needs of ISKCON and have repeatedly made decisions which appear to be illogical and even unethical. Due to lack of accountability... there is no perceived need on the part of the GBC to explain these apparent illogical and/or unethical decisions. Furthermore there isn't any functioning system to question these decisions and effect positive change... I agree with the idea of disaffiliating with GBC, not in principle but as it currently exists, until such time as it becomes accountable to, and representative of, the Vaishnava community." (6) NANDA DAS (ISKCON Alachua temple president): In a March 20, 2001 letter To the ISKCON Alachua Board of Directors: "I propose that the Board accepts and ratifies that statement. I vote in favor of the proposal (Statement of Disaffiliation from the GBC) ...I feel that it is the logical 'next step' from our previous statement of no confidence in the GBC that was previously ratified... For me it's a matter of acting in a religious, moral, and sane way. If the Board does not resolve to accept this proposal, then I do not want to continue as temple president after Oct. 1, 2001... it's high time that I stand up for what's right. I disagree with the whole upper level management but I keep on going, which although my service is insignificant, just perpetuates their illusion that everything's just fine... For years we have tolerated a standard that is far below what we know Srila Prabhupada would be proud of, and by that tolerance we give our approval, and become implicated in the reactions of these activities..."

(7) PETITION: 30 Vaishnavas, Youth Community: "We the undersigned urge the Alachua Board members to vote in favor of disconnecting ISKCON Alachua from the GBC... Evidently the GBC is corrupt and has proven incapable of restructuring itself based on qualities of principle, performance and accountability." (8) GOVINDA DAS, International Leader of Vaishnava Youth: "This letter is to express my support of the proposed idea regarding the GBC and to urge you to see it through without fear of reprisal... Attached is a description of a relatively recent lame attempt by GBC members (some of the 'best') to accomplish clearly recommended and required investigations and reformations... It is my hope that this can serve as examples of how reforms dwindle into the oblivion at the touch of the GBC's 'expertise'... The Alachua endeavor may save other temples from experiencing similar hellish treatment under such unjust rule..." (he describes corruption in Baltimore ISKCON under GBC Ravindra Svarupa) (9) RUPANUGA DAS: April 5, 2001: "...The current GBC is unable to lead the Hare Krishna movement because Srila Prabhupada no longer authorizes them to do so; although they inherited the bricks and stones, they do not have the authority to spread Krishna consciousness...."

AFTERMATH: by Dhira Govinda das "Well, we just did it, without much consideration of legal concerns or technicalities. It was after this period of No Confidence and Disaffiliation, that the GBC, in North America and around the world, became much more stringent and emphatic about ISKCON leaders giving oaths of allegiance to the GBC. As we were going forward with this, the GBC mobilized its troops. There were some legal threats. The GBC, through Sesa das (in background) and Kalakantha das (in active foreground) -arranged for various senior community devotees to write letters and speak up about the dangers of separating from and not accepting the GBC- spiritual dangers, legal dangers-threats and accusations that to even think of such things was disloyalty to Srila Prabhupada. At one meeting, Sesa and Kalakantha brought in Balavanta to speak to the Board. His presentation was, 'Well, the GBC has its shortcomings, but we must be loyal and follow them anyway.' Also they created agitation amongst some other community sectors and board members or their families received various threats. So, the members of the Board were becoming shaky in regards to voting in favor of the Statement of Disaffiliation. Still, my sense at that time was that, if I continued strongly, and fought the battles that needed to be fought, we (the devotee community) would have succeeded to fully disaffiliate. My understanding is that, even with the 1994 amendments, legally it still would have been possible to disaffiliate from the GBC corporation in West Bengal. I decided at that time, though, that such battles were not the best way I could serve Srila Prabhupada. I voted in favor of the Statement of Disaffiliation from the GBC, though I didn't push the issue further, and in Nov. 2001 I resigned from the Alachua Board (Chairman at the time). To succeed in the effort would have required a lot of increased time, dealing with very nasty politics from the GBC, etc. Rather than take that on, I decided to focus more fully on my academic preaching and also I was still serving as Child Protection Office director, and much more. Community support for the full disaffiliation was quite strong- at least, in private, one-on-one or small group conversations it was strong- though, amongst the Board members, there was increasing fear to stand up for it. It was a similar process in 2004, when I resigned as director of the ISKCON Central Office of Child Protection. I could have continued there, in spite of the ISKCON leadership that really wanted me out since 1998, but, parents, youth, and many devotees worldwide were quite supportive. During those years, in order for our CPO adjudication decisions to be enforced, it was increasingly a matter of dealing with GBC cover-ups and politics in the worst sense of the term. I didn't want to do that anymore. My most fulfilling services there were developing healing and development programs for the youth, and parents, and serving as a resource and training center for issues related to child protection. After 6 years I determined that I was complete in that service, and so I resigned and moved on."

SUSPEND ALL GBC AND GURUS

"So for the time being, let the GBC activities be suspended until I thoroughly revise the whole procedure." (SPL Hansadutta Apr. 11, 1972) Therefore, due to the dark history of misleadership by the GBC since 1977, and their failure to rectify themselves, and due to the continuing and deepening corruption of ISKCON as a field for exploitation by false gurus, the GBC must be suspended and retired. The precedent is there and it is the only sensible first-step to an enduring, long term solution of ISKCON's condition. Srila Prabhupada stated on May 28, 1977: "Anyone who is deviating, he can be replaced." That would be all of them, not just some, and only a total new and fresh leadership will be acceptable. "But the difficulty is that our GBC men are falling victim to maya. Today I trust this GBC and tomorrow he will fall down. That is the difficulty. If the GBC men are so flickering then what to speak of the others. Unless this problem is solved whatever we may resolve it will not be very useful." (SPL Dec. 16, 1974) The totally deviancy of the GBC necessitates that we follow Srila Prabhupada without a GBC, at least temporarily. ISKCON and the movement will greatly benefit by being freed of this GBC's corrupting influence. It is high time for serious house-cleaning. An interim caretaker leadership is discussed in the next chapter, as devotees are not anarchists. It is an emergency situation, and although it may be said that we must always have a GBC, a corrupted GBC is much worse than no GBC for awhile. It is perfectly possible to go on without a GBC during the time that it takes to restore the mission. Srila Prabhupada suspended the GBC once before, so it can be done again if necessary. In What Is The Difficulty? p. 80, we read: "SiddhaSvarup did have a great deal of association with Srila Prabhupada, however, and His Divine Grace encouraged him to spread Lord Chaitanya's sankirtana movement. 'Work under the direction of the GBC,' Srila Prabhupada told him. 'But, if you cannot do that, then work directly under me.'"

TRIBUNAL TO IMPEACH AND REVIEW DEVIANT LEADERS

GBC IMPEACHMENT: To charge the GBC body with misconduct, wrongdoing, "failure to act," and severe offenses against Srila Prabhupada, his mission, and his followers; to conduct an open investigation and review of their activities since 1978 before a tribunal of devotees, and decide on any punishments. Going beyond a vote of no confidence and disaffiliation, the body of Srila Prabhupada's followers have the right to publicly examine, collectively and individually, through investigation, deposition, inquiry, and debate whether the GBC has abused their managerial authority. Have they mismanaged the Hare Krishna movement by deliberate disobedience to Srila Prabhupada's instructions? Whether the GBC members agree to cooperate or not, examination of their record should result in a considered verdict and assessment. The devotees must hold the GBC accountable for their actions. Let the chips fall where they will. No more fear of the primary offenders who have presided over ISKCON's ruination. The GBC must undergo impeachment proceedings by a tribunal.

TRIBUNAL REVIEW: To assess, define, correct, punish, and publish the wrongdoings of ISKCON leaders since 1978 in the court of shastric law and Srila Prabhupada siddhanta. First they should be impeached and removed, then judged for their past activities, and history will take note for the benefit of posterity. A tribunal of devotees must review the crimes of the poisoning of Srila Prabhupada's body and mission.

For too long have the GBC, gurus, and other leaders committed serious crimes and offenses against the devotees, disciplic succession, Srila Prabhupada and his mission, and now the sincere followers' duty is to rectify the situation. An important part of mission rectification is holding past leaders responsible for their actions, punish them appropriately (including secular crimes such as poisoning, child abuse, etc by secular authorities), so the movement learns from the past deviations and they may not be repeated in the future.

ALLIANCE TO REMOVE THE ISKCON GBC

There are various groups in Srila Prabhupada's movement that should work together for achieving a common goal of removing the ISKCON misleaders. (1) Gurukulis (second generation devotees): who suffered greatly under the corrupt GBC. An elected leadership will stop the devotee/child abuse which continues even today. (2) Those wanting a proper internal investigation into Srila Prabhupada's poisoning, something that will never happen and will continue to be covered up until the present GBC is removed. (3) Those who question ISKCON's guru and initiation policies. (4) Those who believe ISKCON leadership should become responsible, honest, accountable. (5) Those wanting the return of only Srila Prabhupada's original unchanged books, kirtans, deity worship. (6) Others wanting ISKCON leadership removed due to their deviations.

CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE MOVEMENT- NON-VIOLENT CONFRONTATION

"The Muslim Magistrate of Nabadwipa took the complaints of the Brahmins seriously, and at first he warned the followers of Nimai Pandit (Lord Chaitanya) not to chant the Name of Hari loudly. But Lord Chaitanya asked His followers to disobey the orders of the Kazi and they went on with their Samkirtan party as usual. The Magistrate then sent constables and broke some of the Mridangas (drums) which were being used in Kirtan. When Nimai Pandit heard this, he organized a civil disobedience movement at Nabadwipa. He is the pioneer of the civil disobedience movement in India for the right cause. He organized a procession of one hundred thousand men with thousands of Mridangas, and the procession passed over the roads of Nabadwipa without any fear of the Kazi who had issued the order. At last the party reached the house of the Kazi, who went upstairs out of fear of the mass movement. The men, assembled there at the house of the Kazi, showed a haughty disposition, but the Lord asked them to be peaceful.” (Intro, Bhagwatam)

The principle of civil disobedience also applies to resisting the corrupted misleadership of Srila Prabhupada’s institution. ISKCON was illegally and fraudulently hijacked, taken over by a band of ambitious pretender gurus, led by Srila Prabhupada’s poisoners. Has the GBC’s misleadership mismanaged and covered-up their scandals, which includes the poisoning of the Founder-Acharya by some of its own elite? Has this misleadership responded adequately to the calls from membership to become accountable or to properly respond to the serious and critical issues? So, yes, of course, civil obedience is appropriate to counter the GBC’s corruption and deviations.

QUESTION: How would civil disobedience be applied in these circumstances?

ANSWER: By non-cooperation in all ways possible. Peaceful, non-violent, but very bold and dramatic, just as the 100,000 sankirtaneers led by Lord Chaitanya must have been. Dissidence with ISKCON’s corruption is not limited to one or two “renegades.” It is estimated that 80-90% of all devotees outside ISKCON and at least 50% within are convinced the GBC must be removed. Some ideas for civil disobedience: (1) Complaints to local authorities about the gurus taking money from the local ISKCON temple unaccountably and not paying taxes on their “guru business.” (2) Visitors to temple programs can pointedly ask in classes embarrassing and difficult questions about Srila Prabhupada’s poisoning and the ISKCON coverup, or why does ISKCON promote gurus of which over half have had falldowns or deviations? (3) Hold protest kirtans against ISKCON’s GBC outside each local temple, inviting the news media. (4) Public demands for GBC to resign, with signatures on a “demand notice” (not a petition). (5) Active resistance and disruption of unauthorised guru programs, such as targeting congregational members with educational materials and philosophical tracts. (6) Rallies, meetings, to energize and motivate participation. (7) Non-violent physical confrontation by coordinated mass convergence demonstrations at Mayapur, Vrindaban, Bombay, Los Angeles, or any ISKCON temple or festival like Rathayatras. (8) Temple takeovers (see Ch. 167) (9) Maintain the “back to Prabhupada” theme. (10) Forging links with ISKCON devotees and temples that may have the requisites for disenfranchisement from ISKCON, focusing on realistic candidates for implementation of reform maneuvers.

GOVERNMENT IN EXILE

(A government moved to or formed in a foreign land by exiles who hope to establish that government in their native country after its liberation, such as when its corrupt leaders fall.)

Are the devotees who have been alienated, abused, banned, disenfranchised, and estranged from ISKCON not actually exiles from their promised society, especially since they continue their spiritual practices faithfully in Srila Prabhupada’s service? And is not the government in their spiritual home of ISKCON not totally corrupted, philosophically, morally, financially, and otherwise? Therefore it makes good sense to establish a government in exile, a leadership outside ISKCON which stands ready to guide the institution towards obedience of Srila Prabhupada’s instructions when the proper time presents itself, and meanwhile to represent the correct and pure Srila Prabhupada siddhanta.

FIFTY MAN COMMITTEE

In the “guru reform” era of 1984-1987, a 50 man committee was formed, comprised of senior Srila Prabhupada disciples and leaders including temple presidents and sannyasis. This committee challenged the actions and very authority of the GBC, even suspending the entire GBC body in March 1987, although out of weakness and sentimentality, the same GBC was reinstated after an open, critical evaluation, individually and collectively. The power of this 50 man committee checked the GBC in their tracks, although unfortunately at that time it was not understood how to restore the situation to what Srila Prabhupada wanted. With an interregnum of enlightenment, a period of open study and free discussion, a new 50 man committee could change the course of ISKCON and rescue it from its present corrupted condition. (See Ch. 98) A 50 man committee is already evolving and will soon challenge the GBC, declaring their regime defunct, remove them, and inaugurate a time of healing, reflection, debate, and ascertaining the truth and siddhanta.

VARIOUS MEANS TO REMOVE MISLEADERS

Corruption and criminality are deeply entrenched and pervasive in ISKCON, hidden behind smiling faces in orange robes just like Ravana lured Sita. These cheaters have legal control of the institution, and they have put themselves beyond reach with their secret bylaws and West Bengal society. Nothing short of a real revolution can “drain the swamp.” When will we confront this corrupted, self-serving hierarchy of deceit, and overturn the leadership structure by force from the bottom up? These are some strategies to restore the mission of Srila Prabhupada: (1) vote of NO CONFIDENCE (2) SUSPENSION of entire GBC body or at least the local GBC (3) CHOOSE ONE’S OWN local GBC representative (4) local or regional DISAFFILIATION from GBC body (5) IMPEACHMENT locally or globally (6) local or global TRIBUNAL to try the GBC for their wrongs (7) ALLIANCE OF DEVOTEES (8) CONFRONTATION, non-cooperation (9) GOVERNMENT IN EXILE local, regional, global (10) FIFTY MAN COMMITTEE

In Appendix 16 is a declaration of inheritance rights, and in coming chapters we also discuss other measures. Any one, combination, or all these measures may be used depending on local conditions. Those yearning for Srila Prabhupada’s mission to be restored to its healthy condition as Srila Prabhupada wanted it, may determine which measures are effective. Generally, the restoration revolution should arise locally with communication and support from other locales. Success requires serious commitment, participation, and cooperation with other like-minded devotees. It will not happen by watching the latest movies etc. When enough devotees realize the depths of corruption in ISKCON, an incident or event will precipitate the revolution which brings Srila Prabhupada back to the center of his movement. It cannot be predicted, but each sincere follower of Srila Prabhupada should be prepared to assertively and determinedly participate at that time. Further, we should be alert to take advantage of all situations which could become the catalyst for the collapse of the ISKCON gurocracy. We must make truthful propaganda and remain ready and alert for the impending collapse. We must be fixed up in our sadhana, strong for the revolution when it is triggered. We should do our part locally to restore the Mission, not simply wait for others to do what is our duty.

Organizers and dedicated followers of Srila Prabhupada can make it happen. Ask Srila Prabhupada how you can help rescue his mission from its failed condition. We can listen to our heart and the Supersoul- what can each of us do? Any Krishna-given opportunity or sincere inspiration should be taken to save Srila Prabhupada’s Sankirtana Movement. The need is now. It must be done. The miscreants must be removed, by demand, pressure, legal means, mass protest, non-cooperation, neglect, confrontation, or any means. (1) “Anyone who deviates can be replaced.” (SPConv March 1975) (2) “No learned man should be willing to hear a person who does not represent the original acharya...” (SBhag 1.4.1) [Similarly, the GBC that does not follow Srila Prabhupada should be rejected] (3) “The GBC ceased to exist in 1978 because they all disqualified themselves at that time by their massive disobedience and offences. There has been no GBC linked to Srila Prabhupada since then.” (Naveen Krishna das, who resigned from GBC in 2000)

By now we have seen enough to clearly understand that the problems in the Hare Krishna movement have come about because of ISKCON’s GBC misleadership, due to the corrupting poison of ambition from the 1978 gurujackers and their followers since then. ISKCON’s false gurus have controlled the GBC since Srila Prabhupada departed and they have introduced institutional policies to facilitate their guru franchises. Srila Prabhupada did not make any arrangements, nor give any instructions, for all this nonsense. The GBC has since 1978 wrapped all organizational policies and philosophical positions around the principle of allowing conditioned souls as diksha gurus, which is opposed to Srila Prabhupada's teachings. The July 9 Order was deceitfully "interpreted" as only a temporary, 4 month program. Then the GBC dishonestly "interpreted" that Srila Prabhupada neglected to make arrangements for initiations after his departure. To "save the disciplic succession," they lied about 11 acharyas being appointed, and when that was exposed as a hoax, they claimed they needed to manufacture a guru vote approval system in ISKCON for future initiations. Their system is not described anywhere in shastra. The ISKCON GBC thus created all of ISKCON's problems.

ISKCON LEADERSHIP FAILURE

Let us not cling to sentimentalities of mercy, compassion, or leniency for the GBC, remembering that those with the disease of addiction cannot be trusted. One account about this:

"When I first joined the movement, we spent 10 hours a day chanting in the street. These present GBC's do not spend that in a year. Hari nama eva kevalam, in this age only the Holy Name, only the Holy Name. Your bureaucracy and your management is not the process. The elitism being shown by the GBCs putting themselves up on a platform, above all their Godbrothers is absolute arrogance and the greatest sin of pride, the opposite of the humble blade of grass. Krishna is the one giving all directions for those who can hear Him. Most of us are now hitting 60 or more... We have been excluded from Srila Prabhupada's movement, it started in the GBC meeting of 1978. Still today, the people who have appointed themselves for life have had very little result. Rabindra Svarupa, the GBC of Hawaii, has come once in 6 years, and he will not give up the position. Kavicandra in Japan has done nothing there in 25 years. Even one of these GBC gurus does not wear neck beads, tilak, sikh, or have any faith in the Name and is still a member in good standing. In the west, most of the temples have more deities than devotees. Most of the devotees, pujaris, cooks, temple presidents are being paid, bringing Indian devotees just to keep the minimum going. I have witnessed over all these years how the elitist mentality of the GBC and gurus has excluded all their Godbrothers. They have put themselves on a high pedestal. They have no taste for staying in the holy dharmas, and they run back to their comfort zones as soon as they finish their meetings. They have taken the position as our leaders. Whistles and bells with no substance. My view of seeing this organization, it is cronyism. Most of the leaders, their hearts are still steel framed, they are self-interested, not self-less. They have stopped somewhere on this road back to Godhead; they are satisfied with their easy lifestyle, food, respect, honor, traveling, all at the expense of the community. It's a long way from chant, dance and be happy. They do not invite their Godbrothers to participate. They come to Vrindaban and hide up in Goverdhan with their little programs. They say, 'All year we have people talking to us, and now we need a break.' I never heard Srila Prabhupada say this." (Gurukripa das, interview 2009)

The GBC's long list of misdeeds is unforgivable, as the devotees of the Hare Krishna movement have suffered so greatly during their dark regime. Their misleadership was not a best effort, it was deliberate, based on self-aggrandizement, to hell with Srila Prabhupada, his instructions, his mercy and availability.

GBC'S SPOILING OF ISKCON WAS PREDICTED

*"What will happen when I am not here, shall everything be spoiled by GBC? So for the time being, let the GBC activities be suspended until I thoroughly revise the whole procedure." (SPL Apr. 11, 1972) "I made the GBC to give me relief, but if you do like this, then where is the relief. It is anxiety for me. This is the difficulty, that as soon as one gets power, he becomes whimsical and spoils everything." (SPL Sept. 12, 1974) "I am training some of my experienced disciples how to manage after my departure. So if instead of taking the training, if in my lifetime you people say I am the Lord of all I survey, that is dangerous conspiracy." (SPL Oct. 8, 1974) Over four decades after Srila Prabhupada's departure, many older devotees both in and out of ISKCON deeply ponder whether ISKCON leadership is adhering to the mandates and instructions of Srila Prabhupada with proper management of his Society; or have they replaced Srila Prabhupada's management system with something else?

Elsewhere we have quoted from notable ISKCON leaders such as Rupanuga, Naveen Krishna, Ravindra Svarup, Badrinarayan Swami, Bhakti Vikas Swami, Bhakticaru Swami and others about this subject.

SENTIMENTAL, USELESS PROPOSALS

Sometimes sentimental proposals are made for so-called “reforms” in ISKCON: “Here is a proposal for solving all the problems in our society. It is based on the understanding that pure devotional service brings immediate relief from all kinds of material distress, and is the beginning of all auspiciousness (NOD Ch. 1). All devotees should: (1) Read Srila Prabhupada's books 1-2 hours daily; (2) Chant and dance together in kirtan; (3) Chant the holy names very carefully, with great attention. Then we will all quickly become pure devotees, drown in the ocean of bliss, and find all our problems drowned also. Even if difficulties remain (after all, this world is meant to be problematic), when Krishna is pleased with our sincere efforts to serve Him, surely He will bless us with the realization to overcome problems, or at least to learn how to live with them. As Srila Prabhupada said: Purity is the force.” This formula from Bhakti Vikas Swami is sincere, but misses the simple point that there have already been so many devotees who followed this spiritual standard but were still confronted with a corrupted leadership who exploited the movement as a facility for fulfilling material ambitions of gurus, followers, wealth, fame, etc (in which he is a participant). We must recognize the real obstacle to solving the problems in ISKCON, which is the misleadership which disallows it. Improving our personal standards is nice, but will not end the misleadership. GBC corruption will not end if I become a better devotee. Cooperation with Srila Prabhupada is not brainless submission to corruption, otherwise why did Srila Prabhupada himself not work within the Gaudiya Math that his Guru Maharaja worked so hard to establish? Srila Prabhupada wanted us to surrender with our intelligence, not surrender our intelligence. The intelligent thing is to end the corruption by removing the GBC. Part 17 looks at how this can be done. ISKCON needs leaders who are not aspiring to be diksha gurus nor interested in using Srila Prabhupada’s movement to fulfill their personal ambitions, as these are catastrophic conflicts of interest. The unauthorised guru system in ISKCON is at the heart of all its problems. Remove the GBC and dismantle their bogus guru system and then it will be possible to reconcile the anomalies and discrepancies in the Movement.

ISKCON GBC HAS UTTERLY FAILED SRILA PRABHUPADA (from Krsnacandra das essay)

ISKCON has been fraught with schisms, controversies, and leader ‘falldowns’ due to sexual, criminal, moral, ethical and philosophical deviance. The GBC has pushed ahead with its plans to fully corporatize and centralize the institution contrary to Srila Prabhupada’s desire. The lack of consultation, heeding advice, and transparency has eroded faith in the GBC to an all-time low. ISKCON devotees are disempowered, alienated, and disenfranchised by their elitist uncheckable misleaders. ISKCON bureaucracy does not respond to the concerns of devotees or serve their spiritual needs. Frustration due to the corruption in ISKCON’s leadership has led to a mass exodus of tens of thousands of devotees including most of the pre-1978 devotees, and the Gaudiya Math and sahajiya babajis have benefitted as a result. ISKCON leadership focuses on new laws, policies and programs whose aims are to control the member base, prosecute them when necessary, and protect their guru franchises. Many believe ISKCON no longer serves its existing members as it pursues new recruits who are easily duped with no experience of ISKCON’s history. American and European ISKCON centers, amongst others, are funds collection points for various gurus who post their immigrant manpower to run the programs. In Srila Prabhupada’s 1977 Last Will, point #3: “The executive directors who have herein been designated are appointed for life. In the event of death or failure to act for any reason of any of the said directors, a successor director may be appointed by the remaining directors, provided the new director is my initiated disciple following strictly all the rules and regulations of the ISKCON as detailed in my books...” Of interest is the phrase “failure to act,” meaning failure to properly discharge his duty of representing Srila Prabhupada and following his instructions. Similarly, the entire present GBC of ISKCON must be changed because of their collective failure to act as Srila Prabhupada wanted. It is on these grounds that it is justified to remove the entire GBC- only because of their extreme deviations and mismanagement does this become necessary. This necessity is further reinforced by the GBC's hard hearted rejection of all advice from the innumerable Godbrothers who have expressed serious reservations and objections to their policies.

GBC APPROVAL SURVEY HITS NEW LOWS AT 19% IN 1998

At the 1998 Vancouver Rathayatra festival, Partha das took a survey revealing great dissatisfaction and disgust with the GBC in relation to guru-tattva issues. The survey included 54 devotees representing 1168 years of devotional service experience, and the overall rating of the GBC on "the guru system" was 18.9%- quite dismal. Out of 540 possible points, the GBC earned 102 with 24 persons giving ZERO points. Partha das wrote to GBC Bir Krishna Swami Aug. 28, 1998: "The recent pastimes of Harikesh das and Badrinarayana's letter, where he said that such occurrences were the result of following in the footsteps of the acharyas, totally pushed me over the edge... Such a statement is totally against the conclusion of Srila Prabhupada's books! ...I decided to do a survey of the devotees' feelings on the guru issue and how they rated the GBC in dealing with the guru issue. The first question: 'Regarding the current state of the guru system, are you satisfied, very satisfied, no opinion, dissatisfied, very dissatisfied?' Imagine asking this question when Srila Prabhupada was on the planet? The second question: 'How would you rate the GBC body in its handling of the guru tattva issue and related problems.' Devotees have lost faith in the GBC... Srila Prabhupada's movement is being turned into a laughing stock. Many devotees feel the entire GBC should be dissolved and reformed... At several istaghostis the following suggestions were common- no more pada names, srilas, guru pictures on altars, all food offered to Srila Prabhupada... We at Saranagati personally witnessed Jagadish das short circuit... His disciples became so incredibly dependent on his 'counsel' that he snapped. Also, Srila Prabhupada did not want GBCs to dictate to temples or to centralize management... The devotees have had it with the current state of affairs! Srila Prabhupada said: 'They declared some unfit person to become acharya. Then another came, then another, then another acharya, another acharya...' History has certainly repeated itself... Srila Prabhupada never appointed any one to become acharya!... An attempt was made to improve the situation by allowing so many more devotees to become guru but all that has done is to decentralize the corruption. Now instead of big zonal acharyas we have so many little acharyas. Is the GBC so dull that they think the devotees do not know what is going on? Do they think they can dismiss and cover up... Worse is muzzling complaints about these horrific abuses of position as fault finding. ...we cannot tolerate a situation where innocent people are legislated to worship a 'guru', as good as God, as assisting the gopis... and the guru has sex with disciples, homo sex, molests 12 year olds, masturbates, takes drugs, etc. What is it going to take for the GBC to wake up? How many governments would stand with an approval rating of 18%? This is a movement of the heart. It is being clouded by minds filled with deceit, hate, greed, pride and envy... If our guru Godbrothers are reluctant to make change out of fear their standard of living will be jeopardized, how will history view them?"

GBC CORRUPTION DETAILED

"If you go along with the corrupt GBC, you can remain a guru and sannyasi even if you are engaged in illicit activity. But if you happen to think Srila Prabhupada is the primary spiritual master of all devotees, you are banned, beaten, and thrown out of ISKCON forever. How long will everyone keep pretending things are getting better? The GBC is corrupt from top to bottom. They hide the fall of their small and big gurus. How many disciples really know who their guru actually is, what type of person is he? You see them for one day a year as they come to receive their yearly worship and dakshina from you and your temple. Do you have any idea how your guru lives, what he does, or anything about him? No. You may see him for an hour a year, and you only see the big guru show they put on as they pass through. All the big gurus do not live in ISKCON temples, but have private houses where they stay with a few servants to take care of them. Most high profile ISKCON gurus are multi-millionaires. Bhakticharu Swami pledged a million USD to the GBC for the child abuse court case. Where does he get $1,000,000? Actually he has far more. Gaudiya sannyasis are traditionally known as 'Tridandi Bhikshu,' which literally means 'street beggar,' and several ISKCON millionaire sannyasis even print this title on their letterheads. It is time for us to see that these gurus are looting Srila Prabhupada's movement of all it's finances. Why are the temples throughout the world struggling to stay open and pay the bills? It is because the local money is siphoned off by rich gurus. They initiate the local devotees, and the temple loses its donation base as the money goes to millionaire gurus with Swiss bank accounts. Money that should be going to build up Srila Prabhupada's temples locally is instead being sent to false Swamis who use it to continue their lives of sense gratification in private luxury homes with luxury lifestyles." (Navadvipchandra das)

PETITIONS, REASONING, APPEALS, AND INTERACTION WITH GBC ARE ALL USELESS

Since 1977, efforts to correct the GBC misleadership and deviations have mostly been via petitions, letters, appeals, meetings, debate, arguments, patience, gentle influencing, canvassing, submission of essays, or complaints in writing, etc., all with the same GBC in place. All of this totally failed, and there certainly was a lot of it. Petitioning will never effect a full restoration of Srila Prabhupada's mission. In 1990 the Vedic Village Review collected 500 signatures challenging the GBC to adopt the July 9 Order initiating system. The reply was excommunication and a one issue ISKCON Journal. In 2000 Harinam das organized an online petition to pressure the GBC to implement the DOM. No reply. In 2003 the book JFY made demands for redress from the GBC for lies and omissions in their poison investigation. This was ignored. A petition is only a request: "Please listen to us." They are not obligated by petitions, and their concern is self-preservation, accomplished by pretending there is no opposition to their actions and policies. Only they can remove themselves as GBC members, and they have lifetime positions as long as they follow their party line. It is utterly useless to waste further time trying to reason with the GBC as if they would respond in an honest manner, if at all. They are beholden to no one except their own elite GBC/guru club members. The GBC ignored the hard evidence presented to them four times that Srila Prabhupada was poisoned, in 1999, 2000, 2003, 2017. Their response was denial, lies, fraud, deceit, ridicule. Nothing could interest them in an honest dialogue. They are unresponsive and inalcitrant. What is required is a completely different approach.

The GBC has NO legitimacy or authority. They are deviated so far off from Srila Prabhupada's standards and instructions that they are Deviant Misrepresentatives Of His Divine Grace. Truth, evidence, logic, love, and trust has failed. There is only one recourse in dealing with a corrupt leadership body with super low credibility or interest in reforming themselves. OUST THEM from their positions!- no negotiations or ultimatums. One way to oust them is simply to ignore, sideline, boycott, and neglect them as though they were a disease to be quarantined. When they give a lecture... no one attends. When they speak to you... walk away and do not answer. Convince others to do the same. Their days of phony glory are over, they are useless and we do not want or need them. Non-cooperation. Go on with one's alternative, positive programs for serving and pleasing Srila Prabhupada. It may take a while longer, but the tide is moving against these rascal leaders. As more of Srila Prabhupada's sincere followers come to know the real history of ISKCON, and understand the evidence that Srila Prabhupada was poisoned, and that senior men hijacked his mission for their own personal ambitions, the reign of tyranny moves closer to its end. No more Mr. Nice Guy, no more Mr. Sentimental, no more let's talking while they patronize us. We are done with them. For what they have done and let happen, they are, or may as well be, enemies of Srila Prabhupada's transcendental Mission. Another way to oust them is via elections by an enlightened membership (Ch. 166).

CAN THE GBC MISLEADERS BE REHABILITATED?

We must remember that many or most of these ISKCON misleaders are very sick people, infected with the disease of material ambition (DADS: dreaded acharya disease syndrome). Their honesty and conscience cannot be trusted due to their decades-long addictions to guruship, being worshipped, gaining easy wealth from adulant followers, and entanglements in a corrupt institution. No more leeway. Their history of failures, frauds, lies, coverups, corruption, and incompetence can only have one outcome: FIRE THEM! If 45 years is not enough of a chance to prove themselves good, then no amount of time will do any better. They will never willingly reform themselves due to their corruption, addiction, and disease. They are like alcoholics in denial; they are incapable of doing the right thing. They are dangerous, with suave and practiced charisma, jugglery of philosophical catch-words and phrases, orange robes (hey, show me your bank balance!) Their hearts are diseased. Everyone is sick of them, and they deserve no more chances. Once, twice, thrice, finished. They had thousands of chances and have continued to fail Srila Prabhupada and the devotees. How can they be trusted? They only know how to go in the wrong direction. The only program of healing and purification for them is to become menial servants. Let them beg forgiveness and serve those they have abused and misled, as Jagai and Madhai did (they built a bathing ghat on the Ganges and all who came, they begged their forgiveness with tears and personal service). There is no justification for loyalty to a deviated, corrupted GBC. The ISKCON GBC must be rejected without compromise. No more pseudo-reforms, no more deals, no more putting it off. They must go, one and all, game over, good bye forever. Having identified and discussed the problems in the Mission and having rejected the corrupt ISKCON GBC, now our choices in moving forward in Srila Prabhupada's service are: (1) Restore the mission (ISKCON) by correcting its major flaws and setting it on the right course, (2) Start over separately and rebuild Srila Prabhupada's mission, with many lessons learned, (3) Or work on both of these at the same time, and see what Krishna desires. We are sure to achieve progress on at least one front. Part 17 presents strategies, options, and principles to restore the Mission. It is up to each devotee to decide on his own course of action.

CAPITULATION OF THE OLD ORDER

We call for the general membership to revolt. A bottom up revolution to remove the ruling elite will be effective. A spiritual revolution in ISKCON will be accomplished by a mass show or vote of no confidence whereby the majority of devotees reject the misleaders to go on without them. How exactly this could take place is not clear. An overwhelming dismissal by the majority of devotees would be an unstoppable phenom. Otherwise a powerful representative group, such as a 50 man committee or a large group of temple presidents, either present or former, regionally or globally, would simply declare the GBC removed. This may happen in India if the GBC approves female diksha gurus or a new investigation into Lokanath Swami. A major problem arises with the sheer number of ISKCON guru disciples that may resist a capitulation of the old order.

License revoked, all powers and positions cancelled. The GBC is no longer relevant and are totally rejected. The Berlin Wall and the Soviet Union collapsed when there was insufficient support to continue. Similarly, the GBC's collapse is near. When the Sun rises, darkness is dispelled. They only have power over others when that power is agreed to. When we withdraw our support, they are nobodies. As the Hare Krishna societal awareness and enlightenment increases, this collective awakened consciousness will reach a tipping point. The weak leaders will capitulate and step aside to comply with the will of the devotees. Some obstinate gurus will retreat to their own safety zones (or luxury apartments) and try to rally their confused followers. Meanwhile a time of free thought and collective debate will ensue: an interregnum of enlightenment.

UPDATE JANUARY 2022: ICC REJECTS THE ISKCON GBC

From Satsvarupa's autobiography, Vol. 1 (p. 225) re: continuing ISKCON crises in 2012: "There was a big commotion at the meetings this year as the group that represents India GBC secretaries, which is very right-wing conservative, demanded a number of its proposals be passed on threat of their seceding from ISKCON and taking the properties with them." This refers to the ICC, a body of second level managers in India.

After 10 years of discussions, debates, communications, meetings, the ISKCON ICC finally passed their resolution in January 2022 of "non-cooperation" with ISKCON's GBC. The final straw was the GBC's approval of female diksha gurus in ISKCON. "ISKCON ICC: Whereas, the ICC members feel that their resolution on FDG has not been represented properly by the Indian GBCs to the GBC body, Whereas, it is evident that the Indian GBCs have chosen to represent their own views over the mood of the Indian Yatra as a whole, Whereas, the mood of the Indian Yatra is that the current introduction of Female Diksha Gurus is divisive and deviant and a misrepresentation of Srila Prabhupada's teachings, Whereas, Indian Leaders will not support having parallel standards on such an important issue as initiation and specifically FDG and therefore rejects the GBC resolution authorizing FDGs, Whereas, the ICC appreciates the efforts that Bureau members have made to convince the GBC to withdraw their resolution authorizing FDGs, but regrets that they have been unable to succeed in this matter, Whereas, the Indian GBC met directly with the GBC EC and by-passing the Bureau and therefore weakening the Bureau authority structure, by undermining its position, Therefore, it is resolved that: Until the GBC resolution on FDG is withdrawn by the GBC body, the ICC will not accept the GBC as authority and will protest with non co-operation. Yours, ICC Team" (ICC body of 150 temple presidents + 50 senior men)

Then on Jan. 7, 2022 the ISKCON India Bureau passed a resolution in response to the GBC's recent decision on approval of Vaishnavi Diksha gurus. Apparently the entire GBC system of initiating diksha gurus is also being questioned by the entire group of India temples, temple presidents, sannyasis, congregations, and secondary leaders. As predicted, the GBC's false, problematic, insane, and shastrically unfounded guru system is about to collapse with an outbreak, finally, of intelligent and independent minded devotees. Perhaps this will force an open discussion and discourse as we described in the next chapter. Hare Krishna!

RESOLUTION ON THE PRESENT DIKSHA GURU SYSTEM AND MORATORIUM ON NEW GURUS

The Bureau hereby takes cognizance of the GBC's resolution of December 2021, authorizing Female Diksha Gurus (FDGs) in ISKCON, Whereas, the Bureau had expressed it's "strong opposition" to this imposition in its resolution adopted during November 2019,

Whereas, more recently the Indian Continental Committee has by an overwhelming majority has also expressed their disapproval of the December 2021 resolution of the GBC body regarding FDGs, Whereas, the ICC has rejected in principle, having the FDG system operate outside India, but not within India, Whereas, recently the ICC has passed a resolution asking that the GBC rescind their FDG resolution, Whereas, the FDG issue can be discussed from two different sastric perspectives depending on whether we emphasize the "female" part or the "diksha guru" part: (1) One with respect to the role of Vaishnavis in our society as per Krishna Conscious Vedic standards, and (2) The other with respect to the nature of the current Diksha guru system the GBC has in place and the role of the Diksha guru as per that system in ISKCON,

Whereas, the diksha guru system the GBC body has currently in place is not clear on many fronts, such as: the meaning of 1st and second initiations; the relation of the two initiations to the process of giving divya jnana defining diksha as per Srila Prabhupada who quotes Srila Jiva Goswami; the place and the role of the Diksha guru as per that system in ISKCON; the qualifications of the diksha guru; the relation of this system to the larger context of Guru tatva itself as per our Siddhanta,

Whereas there is a broad feeling within the movement, internationally and in India, that the GBC installed guru system needs full clarification, Whereas Brahmaturtha das in his discussions with the Bureau on 4 January, 2022, repeatedly mentioned that the GBC also accepts that the 'diksha guru in ISKCON' is an issue that needs more discussion, clarity and understanding, Whereas it makes no good sense to extend the present unclear male diksha guru (MDG) system to include FDGs, which can only further compound the difficulties the movement is already experiencing in this regard, Whereas clarity on the generic diksha guru issue will also naturally bring clarity to the FDG issue, Whereas the ICC has approached the FDG issue from the perspective of the role of Vaishnavis in our society as per Krishna Conscious Vedic standards,

Whereas the Bureau is desirous to also approach the issue from the perspective of the unclear male Diksha guru system the GBC has in place presently, Whereas the project of properly clarifying the initiation system that Srila Prabhupada wants for ISKCON, although has been attempted from various quarters within the movement, still undoubtedly requires even more effort, Whereas already the leaders and rank and file devotees all have developed their own understanding in this matter in the meanwhile, due to the lack of the correct understanding put in the place by the GBC body, Whereas it is not clear whether there is any common core understanding within the movement, and what it is, with respect to the diksha guru system, even with respect basic terminologies and concepts (that may be a part of common understanding of all devotees),

The Bureau hereby resolves to commission a systematic survey to try and determine whether there is a common core of understanding amongst members of ISKCON regarding the current diksha guru system and the role of the diksha guru in ISKCON, and what this common core comprises of, with respect to even basic terminologies and concepts. Whereas, for the start, the Bureau wants to commence this survey with Bureau members, and other leaders in India, and later extend it to other devotees, Whereas the Bureau expects the above initial study to take a maximum of one year to complete, by Gaur Purnima 2023,

The Bureau also resolves to call, for this period, a moratorium on FDGs and approving all new gurus, male or female, The India Bureau hereby calls upon the GBC body to likewise call a moratorium on FDGs, and approving of any new gurus, male or female, and conduct a similar study amongst its own members and other leaders around the world. The Bureau shall present the results of its study on the common core of understanding about the present diksha guru system amongst Indian leaders to the GBC body for discussion, and the moratorium on the FDGs shall continue until a full resolution of the diksha guru system. ISKCON Juhu Mumbai Meeting Jan 6, 2022

From: Bhakti Caitanya Swami, Bhanu Swami, Revati Raman Das, GBC Executive Committee

[COMMENTS: A survey will only give all sorts of different deviant ideas, not the siddhantic guru tattva. Most in ISKCON are confused. The fight over female diksha gurus is a case in point; there no consensus. After all, ISKCON's membership has been indoctrinated with false philosophy for over 4 decades. But yes, it is a good idea to clarify what is really a diksha guru before we add women to this mess... The GBC's 100 rubber stamped, conditioned pretenders are crashing left, right, or in secret. But let the interregnum of enlightenment begin with debate and open discussion, study of Srila Prabhupada's teachings. Gradually the truth will become apparent with a consensus.] Go ISKCON Bureau! Or will the GBC tyranny manage to prevail?

CHAPTER 165: INTERREGNUM OF ENLIGHTENMENT

(1) “And to pin our staunch faith in Vishnu, we should discuss about Vishnu-tattva and not Vishnu-tattva (?). That is called siddhanta. Siddhanta boliya citte na kara alasa: ‘Don’t be lazy to discuss about siddhanta.’ Iha haite krishne lage sudrdha manasa: ‘The more you discuss the thesis-not thesis; the factual presentation of Vishnu-tattva, maya, and jiva-tattva, shakti-tattva—then it will be clear what is Krishna.’ [...] If you become Krishna conscious, then your all other duties automatically [...] There is no question of separate attempt-philanthropy, philosophy and nationalism, this ‘ism,’ that ‘ism.’ We have discovered so many things and diversion of the real duty. That we shall have to concentrate. That is siddhanta.” (SPConv Jan. 15, 1977) (2) “This means that now you all leaders, especially the GBC members, must become very much responsible and do the work that I am doing to the same standard. So I want you leaders especially to become very much absorbed in the philosophy of BGita, SBhag, and become yourselves completely convinced and free from all doubt. On this platform you shall be able to carry on the work satisfactorily, but if there is lack of knowledge, or if there is forgetfulness, everything will be spoiled in time. So especially you must encourage the students to read our books throughout the day as much as possible, and give them all good advice how to understand the books, and inspire them to study the things from every point of view. In this way, by constantly engaging our tongues in the service of the Lord, either by discussing His philosophy or by chanting Hare Krishna, the truth is that Krishna Himself will reveal Himself to us and we shall understand how to do everything properly. [...] but I am fearful that if we expand too much in this way that we shall become weakened and gradually the whole thing will become lost. Just like milk. We may thin it more and more with water for cheating the customer, but in the end it will cease to be any longer milk. Better to boil the milk now very vigorously and make it thick and sweet, that is the best process. So let us concentrate on training our devotees very thoroughly in the knowledge of Krishna Consciousness from our books, from tapes, by discussing always, and in so many ways instruct them in the right propositions.” (SPL Hamsaduta June 22, 1972)

What is self-evident to one devotee is often not self-evident to another. This may be due to some blockage of the proper understanding, in that something is only partially evident. Proper understanding means concurrent with the Absolute Truth, but this is a challenge to achieve in the material realm's contaminated atmosphere where the modes of nature are acting everywhere. Because the spirit soul is so small, he is easily influenced by the modes of nature. It is not by willpower, intelligence, good looks or luck, wealth, or education that one can rise above the modes. Even great yogis who have practiced austerities for thousands of lifetimes are still bewildered by material nature, with material desires and the cheating tendency. So how can the simple followers of Srila Prabhupada hope to know what is actually the Truth, or the correct siddhanta, as it applies to restoring the Mission and resolving conflicting opinions in various doctrinal or philosophic issues?

MOTIVES TAINT ONE'S UNDERSTANDING OF THE TRUTH

As Srila Prabhupada is the Person Bhagwat, his instructions and statements are as perfect as the Vedic shastra, but the problem arises when one tries to interpret those instructions to suit or fit into their ideas or vested interests. Various interpretations (mostly flawed) make for disagreements amongst those on the spiritual path. Those practitioners who have not yet achieved perfect purity, being still conditioned souls, will have some mundane motivations to interpret Srila Prabhupada's instructions and statements in a way to favor their conditioned desires. This, of course, conflicts with serving Krishna's desire. Thus we find many varieties of institutions, groups, sects, –isms, schools of thought, and interpretations. In the world of Srila Prabhupada's followers, there is a wide variety of understandings only 45 years since his departure. It is increasingly difficult for a newcomer to ascertain the correct Srila Prabhupada siddhanta. This also happened in Christianity, complicated by the fact that Christ's teachings were not accurately recorded. However, Srila Prabhupada's teachings are exactly recorded and yet, still there is so much confusion. This is due to various motives.

In the Hare Krishna movement there are many siddhantic interpretations, and many camps banter over their differences. Clearly most have misunderstood the actual siddhanta due to subtle material coverings of which they are unaware, compounded by a lack of open debate as they shelter in their safety zones. Most devotees in the Srila Prabhupada universe of followers have misinterpretations, caused by attachment for power, wealth, fame, sense gratification, and thus they are influenced by their unique configuration of the material modes. A careful study confirms this. Some are affected by propaganda from their leaders. Others compensate in reaction to past traumatic incidents, others focus on doctrinal details. Some adjust their spiritual principles and “siddhanta” to accommodate economic necessities. The topmost siddhanta is only understood by careful study and application of Srila Prabhupada's teachings, which deliver the Absolute Truth.

SPECULATION THROUGH IMPERFECT SENSES CANNOT DISCOVER THE TRUTH

Some quotes from Srila Prabhupada and shastra about how to understand truth or siddhanta:

(1) TEXT: The manifestations of the mode of goodness can be experienced when all the gates of the body are illuminated by knowledge. PURPORT: There are nine gates in the body: two eyes, two ears, two nostrils, the mouth, the genital and the anus. In every gate, when the symptom of goodness is illuminated, it should be understood that one has developed the mode of goodness. In the mode of goodness, one can see things in the right position, one can hear things in the right position, and one can taste things in the right position. One becomes cleansed inside and outside. In every gate there is development of the symptoms of happiness, and that is the position of goodness. (BGita 14.11) Here

Srila Prabhupada tells us that one in the mode of goodness can hear things in the right position, and he does not hear that which is not there. Below, he says "an illusion is a misunderstanding that arises from inattention while hearing." If we are inattentive while chanting Hare Krishna, we will have illusions. Not accepting Srila Prabhupada's words verbatim produces various conclusions, which may also be due to not following the 4 regulative principles, one of which is no gambling or speculation.

(2) TEXT: The material defects of mistakes, illusions, cheating and sensory inefficiency do not exist in the words of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. PURPORT: A mistake is the acceptance of an object to be different than what it is or the acceptance of false knowledge. For example, one may see a rope in the dark and think it to be a serpent, or one may see a glittering oyster shell and think it to be gold. These are mistakes. Similarly, an illusion is a misunderstanding that arises from inattention while hearing, and cheating is the transmission of such defective knowledge to others. Materialistic scientists and philosophers generally use such words as "maybe" and "perhaps" because they do not have actual knowledge of complete facts. Therefore their instructing others is an example of cheating. The final defect of the materialistic person is his inefficient senses. Although our eyes, for example, have the power to see, they cannot see [...] at a distance [...] The ears are equally imperfect. We cannot hear a sound vibrated a long distance away unless we put a telephone to our ear. Similarly, if we analyze all our senses in this way, we will find them all to be imperfect. Therefore it is useless to acquire knowledge through the senses. The Vedic process is to hear from authority. In the Bhagavad-gita (4.2) the Lord says, evam parampara-praptam imam rajarsayo viduh: "The supreme science was thus received through the chain of disciplic succession, and the saintly kings understood it in that way." We have to hear not from a telephone but from an authorized person, for it is he who has real knowledge. (CC Adi 7.107)/ This verse is very instructive for conditioned souls. Most of us are conditioned, because to be liberated means we do not have the above mentioned sensory defects. We are either conditioned or liberated, as there is no half way position. When Krishna tells Maya devi to release us from her clutches, then we are liberated, not before. Srila Prabhupada defines a mistake as the acceptance of something different than what it is, or the acceptance of false knowledge. For example, if we accept somebody as a bona fide spiritual master and he is not a liberated person, then we made a huge mistake. The next verse explains this mental concoction activity.

(3) TEXT: The Absolute Truth is described by the Upanisads and Brahma-sutra, but one must understand the verses as they are. That is the supreme glory in understanding. PURPORT: It has become fashionable since the time of Sankaracharya to explain everything regarding the shastras in an indirect way. Scholars take pride in explaining everything in their own way, and they declare that one can understand the Vedic scriptures in any way he likes. This "any way you like" method is foolishness, and it has created havoc in the Vedic culture. One cannot accept scientific knowledge in his own whimsical way. In the science of mathematics, for example,  $2+2=4$ , and one cannot make it equal 3 or 5. Yet although it is not possible to alter real knowledge, people have taken to the fashion of understanding Vedic knowledge in any way they like. It is for this reason that we have presented BGita As It Is. We do not create meanings by concoction. Sometimes commentators say that the word kuruksetra in the first verse of the BGita refers to one's body, but we do not accept this. [...] In this way they distort the meaning, and people are misled. Here Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu confirms that all Vedic literature, including Upanisads [...] whether sruti, smṛti or nyaya, must be understood according to their original statements. To describe the direct meaning of the Vedic scriptures is glorious, but to describe them in one's own way, using imperfect senses and imperfect knowledge, is a disastrous blunder. Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu fully deprecated the attempt to describe the Vedas in this way. (CC Adi 7.108) SP says "we do not create meanings by concoction," as has become "fashionable."

(4) TEXT: Sankaracharya is not at fault, for he has thus covered the real purpose of the Vedas under the order of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. PURPORT: The Vedic literature is to be considered a source of real knowledge, but if one does not take it as it is, one will be misled. For example, the Bhagavad-gita is an important book of Vedic literature that has been taught for many years, but because it was commented upon by unscrupulous rascals, people derived no benefit from it, and no one came to the conclusion of Krishna consciousness. Since the purpose of the Bhagavad-gita is now being presented as it is, however, within four or five short years thousands of people all over the world have become Krishna conscious. That is the difference between direct and indirect explanations of the Vedic literature. Therefore Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu said, mukhya-vrttye sei artha parama mahattva: "To teach the Vedic literature according to its direct meaning, without false commentary, is glorious. (Adi 7.110) We should accept Srila Prabhupada's words verbatim, without change, addition or alterations, otherwise we open the door to deviations in the parampara.

(5) "Yes, if it is any credit for me, that is what you have written that I tried to give aural reception to the words of my Spiritual Master, Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Goswami Maharaja, and thus I tried to engage my tongue in repeating the same words without any change." (SPL May 6, 1970) (6) "Actually I cannot claim any credit for myself, but I say if any credit is due, it is due to the fact that I have not deviated from the original instructions. Whatever I have learned from my spiritual master I have presented before you and similarly whatever success you are having only it is due to the purity of the message which you are carrying." (SPL Dec. 1, 1970) (7) "Unless one is under the shelter of a realized spiritual master, his understanding of the Supreme is simply foolishness." (TLC) (8) "Unless one is prepared that 'I am accepting somebody as my spiritual master. I must accept whatever he says,' if there is any doubt, that 'I cannot accept his words verbatim,' then one should not accept him as spiritual master. That is hypocrisy." (SPConv July 13, 1971) (9) "The Vedic statements are self-evident. Whatever is stated there must be accepted. If we interpret according to our own imagination, the authority of the Vedas is immediately lost." (CC Mad 6.137 purport) (10) "At root, eternal religion must be only one. Why have many religions then arisen? The correct answer is that the religion or dharma of man is one when the soul is in a pure condition. When the soul becomes conditioned, the dharma takes two forms: conditional and unconditional. Unconditional dharma does not differ no matter what country it is found in. When the soul takes on material designation and consequently different place, time and body, due to variety in matter, conditional dharma makes its appearance in different countries and at different times. Conditional dharma takes on different forms and names in different countries. The dharma of the soul becomes unconditioned to the extent that the soul becomes freed from material conceptions. When the jivas reach the unconditioned state, they have only one dharma." (Dasa Mula Tattva, Bhaktivinoda Thakura by Bhanu Swami)

THE BASIS FOR ATTAINING THE CORRECT SIDDHANTA

Many devotees claim to understand the correct siddhanta of Srila Prabhupada's teachings on various subjects. Some will privately admit they are confused in an issue, such as the guru-initiation issue. To whatever degree one does understand Srila Prabhupada's siddhanta, it is because of the degree of their faith in and surrender to the pure devotee, Srila Prabhupada. They have listened to him carefully and not filtered their understanding through predispositions, speculations, conditioning from institutional indoctrinations, etc. Shastra confirms that success in spiritual realization comes from implicit faith and surrender to the pure devotee of Lord Krishna. This may be called "Srila Prabhupada siddhanta," or the clear understandings that Srila Prabhupada gave us in his books, letters, and lectures. An advanced devotee is fixed in his conviction that Srila Prabhupada is the Acharya, the teacher of all truths. This basic principle of surrender to Srila Prabhupada entails the serious and rigorous application of a spiritual formula of regulative principles in one's life that will gradually elevate one to a firm positioning in the correct, topmost siddhanta of Srila Prabhupada's teachings. Unfortunately many Vaishnavas today do not regard SP's teachings as their sole or even primary guide, but hopefully these mixed followers will gradually be elevated by his books and teachings.

(1) "The monkeylike conditioned soul first becomes attached to sex, and when intercourse actually takes place he becomes more attached. He then requires some material comforts—apartment, house, food, friends, wealth and so on. In order to acquire these things he has to cheat others, and this creates enmity even among the most intimate friends. Sometimes this enmity is created between the conditioned soul and the father or spiritual master. Unless one is firmly fixed in the regulative principles, one may perform mischievous acts, [like poisoning?] even if one is a member of the Krishna consciousness movement. We therefore advise our disciples to strictly follow the regulative principles; otherwise the most important movement for the upliftment of humanity will be hampered due to dissension among its members. Those who are serious about pushing forward this Krishna consciousness movement should remember this and strictly follow the regulative principles so that their minds will not be disturbed." (SBhag 5.14.35 purport) (2) "If anyone strictly follows the regulative principles of Krishna Consciousness then he will always remain enthusiastic and dynamic. So if there are any defects within our Society it is only symptom that the instructions of the Spiritual Master are being neglected. Follow my instructions strictly and always think for giving this gift of Krishna Consciousness wherever you go and to whomever you meet, this is the advice of Lord Chaitanya." (SPL Karandhara Feb. 2, 1973) (3) "Thank you for reading my books and appreciating them. Please continue to do so. That will help you advance nicely in spiritual life. By reading my books and chanting Hare Krishna, your life will become perfect." (SPL Mar. 14, 1975) (4) "I am so much grateful that you have enjoyed studying my books. [...] Actually, anyone who tries to understand these books will become a great realized devotee of Lord Krishna gradually. The original potency of the shastra remains in these books because I have not added or opinionated anything of my own. I have simply presented the scriptures such as BGita and SBhag as they are. Therefore, just see the effect they have on the world." (SPL Mar. 19, 1975) (5) "Krishna is very kind. As soon as he begins reading Krishna book with a little faith and adherence, Krishna will be very much pleased [...] so when you read BGita or Krishna book with little seriousness, then Krishna understands, 'Now he is serious to understand me.' [...] Simply you have to become little serious. 'Krishna, kindly give me knowledge so that I can understand.'" (SPLecture Mar. 29, 1974) (6) "[...] everything is very clearly explained in this Nectar of Devotion. So, each chapter you should read very carefully. And if you cannot understand, read it repeatedly. [...] Go on reading, and the answers will automatically come. [...]" (SPLecture June 23, 1970)

Srila Prabhupada explains how one must see things as they are: "...One must see things as they are through the mercy of a spiritual master; otherwise if one tries to see Krishna directly, he may mistake an ordinary man for Krishna or Krishna for an ordinary man. Everyone has to see Krishna according to the verdict of Vedic literatures presented by the self-realized spiritual master. A sincere person is able to see Krishna through the transparent via medium of Sri Gurudeva, the spiritual master. Unless one is enlightened by the knowledge given by the spiritual master, he cannot see things as they are, even though he remains constantly with the spiritual master. [...] instructive for those eager to advance in Krishna consciousness..." (CC Mad 18.99)

FORMULA FOR ATTAINING THE CORRECT SIDDHANTA, SEEING THINGS AS THEY ARE

The formula of regulated bhaktiyoga practice that Srila Prabhupada taught his disciples, by which transcendental realization of the Absolute Truth and philosophic siddhanta is achieved, includes: (1) FOUR BASIC RULES: No gambling, illicit sex, intoxication, or eating meat, fish, and eggs. SADHANA: Sixteen rounds Hare Krishna japa daily, attend early morning program, observe Ekadasi, festivals. (2) SIMPLE LIVING: Minimize unnecessary sense gratification, live simply and earn an honest livelihood. (3) STUDY OF HIS TEACHINGS: Daily study his books, practical application of his instructions, hear his lectures. (4) REGULAR PREACHING: Engage in some type of sankirtan to preach Krishna consciousness to others. (5) ASSOCIATION WITH LIKEMINDED DEVOTEES, avoid non-devotees, make friends with bona fide devotees. (6) OPEN DISCUSSIONS: Regular classes in Bhagwatam, Gita, Nectar of Devotion, and discuss openly. (7) GOOD MANAGEMENT: Find a peaceful and favorable situation to practice spiritual life.

Another ingredient is for one to have a good measure of practical sanity with common sense and an ability to practically apply transcendental knowledge in one's life. All too often in Kali yuga people have intellectual defects, personality disorders, or mental derangements due to drugs or karma, making it more difficult to attain the topmost siddhanta. Actually most devotees would be best off in following good leaders fixed in Srila Prabhupada siddhanta. We hope this book assists others in studying, discussing, and realizing the Srila Prabhupada siddhanta in all things, especially in regards to the poisoning of his body and his mission. “It’s nice to remind and encourage devotees to chant at least sixteen rounds per day, and hear directly from Srila Prabhupada, and follow ekadasi, and share Krishna consciousness with others- all, clearly, good transcendental guidance. But more emphasis should be given, that to absorb and realize the correct siddhanta, one should hear directly from Srila Prabhupada as much as possible. That is, ultimately, let’s not be dependent for authorized siddhanta on whether it’s from this group or that, or this devotee or that one- let’s primarily encourage each other to directly hear from Srila Prabhupada, especially by reading his books, and also of course, hearing his lectures, reading his conversations, and then discussing, etc.” (Dhira Govinda das, 2020)

A TIME FOR DEVOTEE ENLIGHTENMENT

After the removal of the ISKCON GBC, in whichever manner that would be accomplished, an interim caretaker administration should be arranged, discussed below. Then a time of reflection, cleansing of false indoctrinations, and general enlightenment should be undertaken with open study and discussion. This will clear the misunderstandings caused by the previous repressive regime, and allow everyone to reach higher levels of spiritual and siddhantic realizations. This resting time is called an INTERREGNUM: An interval of temporary suspension of the usual functions of a regime, between the end of one reign of power and the accession of the successor administration. This could effectively restore ISKCON that Srila Prabhupada intended for it, as a first step, by facilitating the enlightenment of devotees through an atmosphere of open, collective discussion. The internet and modern communications with personal computers, voice/video calls, and digital memory has enabled an information culture and the delivery of knowledge and truths previously unimagined. This unusual technological phenomenon is part of Lord Chaitanya’s plan for the Golden Age of 10,000 years, and atheistic attempts to control the world with this technology has backfired. Thus ISKCON’s repression is failing to maintain loyalty and compliance, as the general devotees become enlightened by the abundance of readily available discussions, evidences, research, and facts in cyberspace. It has become increasingly difficult in the Hare Krishna movement to convincingly propagate self-serving interpretations because the truth of all issues are being revealed, debated, researched, and disseminated on the “web.” It is the service and duty of Srila Prabhupada’s followers who want to rectify the Hare Krishna movement to do what they can with free discussions and orderly debates to assist in the gradual enlightenment of all devotees. Via the internet, devotees worldwide are researching and understanding the truths as to what are Srila Prabhupada’s actual intentions for his Mission, regarding future initiations, the guru issue, Srila Prabhupada’s poisoning, and the ISKCON leaders’ deviations. Based on informal surveys, collective experiences, and anecdotal evidence, it is calculated that ISKCON’s GBC cannot continue its charade for much longer. Most devotees outside ISKCON, and a large number inside, already favor a radical change of ISKCON leadership. The existing corrupted leadership will try to push their corruptions deeper into the fabric of the Vaishnava society with more phony reforms. Their coercion, legal controls, deceit, coverups, politics, fearmongering will no longer be effective.

COGNITIVE DISSONANCE AND THREATS TO OUR EXISTING PARADIGM

Often when complex, controversial subjects are raised for discussion, such as the poisoning of Srila Prabhupada, the reply is, “From what I’ve heard or read, I don’t think there’s anything to it, so it’s just another one of those crazy theories out there.” Naveen Krishna commented on this phenomenon: “From the ‘little’ he has heard or read... Very, very little I can assure you. The way it works is: Decide what you believe. Pretend you have looked into it and your beliefs were proven right. But the true and only process with any merit is: (1) Hear attentively from the bonafide spiritual master. (2) Obey his orders rigidly. (3) Have firm faith in his words. (4) The truth then emerges to verify the words of the pure devotee. We are dealing with masters at manipulation and deception, described by Srila Prabhupada as ‘Ravana.’ Thousands of devotees were no match for Ravana’s deceptive powers. Even Rama, Lakshman were affected by the deceptive powers of Ravana, although that is a higher purpose pastime. Krishna Lila also shows many pastimes of pure devotees, Krishna's associates and even Krishna Himself seemingly tricked and deceived by demons disguised in some way or other." Those disabled by cognitive dissonance, fear, attachment to their existing paradigms and views, brainwashed with 45 years of false propaganda, will definitely take some years and effort to clear this up.

TEMPLE PRESIDENT ELECTIONS, REST PERIOD OVERSEEN BY CARETAKER COMMITTEE

Soon after the dismissal and suspension of the GBC (Ch. 164), the following should be done:

(A) All ISKCON and Srila Prabhupada centers and temples hold local elections for temple presidents by their membership. This is what Srila Prabhupada wanted (Ch. 162) and is also important in light of the GBC appointed temple presidents that the members must have the right to confirm or change to their preference. Although it was the unelected temple presidents who likely had removed the GBC, elections of temple presidents will be a first step in shifting the power back to the devotees, away from a corrupt gurocracy. (B) Then these new temple presidents must elect an interim administrative body of about 20-30 members from amongst themselves and other senior devotees, but excluding members of the previous GBC-guru regime. Each region or former GBC zone will choose their representative to the "ICC," the interim caretaker committee, and this secondary level of managers will "hold the fort" during the enlightenment interregnum that follows and until a new GBC body is elected. A caretaker council of mostly temple presidents has a recognized history of reformatory function. Srila Prabhupada designed ISKCON as a decentralized and locally sovereign movement wherein each center elected their own leader or temple president who was then given guidance, not governance, by senior and mobile GBC advisors. But since 1978 the GBC has become an elite and fraudulent guru cartel which effectively runs ISKCON as their franchise for the collection of disciples and wealth. There is a false and hollow show of unity and dedication to Srila Prabhupada's cause, but this is simply a cover and front for the elite's exploitation of Srila Prabhupada's assets. Since the GBC has proven itself dysfunctional and deviant, for now the leadership should go to the custody of the next lower level of leadership, namely the temple presidents. History has proven its worth in 1972, 1976, and 1986. (C) Or the 50 man committee of second tier leaders may directly administrate the enlightenment.

A fresh new start cannot be realistically accomplished without a rest and healing period when the misconceptions and prejudices of the previous regime are uplifted by open discussions and an atmosphere of group study and research. In the late 1980's Gorbachev introduced the policy of "glasnost," an openness and discussion of all issues. It led to some chaos but ultimately a better Russia. In Fiji many years of racist and divisive politics resulted in an unhealthy situation. After a coup to end all coups in 2006, a time of healing and discussion led to a new country without endemic corruption, ethnic and racist biases, privilege, and favoritism. After 8 years, fair elections were held and many say Fiji is now better situated. These imperfect mundane examples support the need for an ISKCON transitional healing period, a time for reflection, unwinding, and awakening to realign with Srila Prabhupada's instructions and teachings for a better future.

It has been 45 years of deviation as of 2022, and a pause is desperately needed. We all want another chance to get it right, without this present guracratic tyranny. Then the general membership will quickly become better informed, increasing their understanding of Srila Prabhupada's instructions on all the crucial issues, shedding their conditioning of errant indoctrinations, and will be able to choose the right direction for Srila Prabhupada's Mission. In previous ages there were qualified godly monarchs who ruled the people, but in Kali Yuga the sincere and educated devotees must choose their best leaders. In 1985-87 the pseudo guru reform movement was spearheaded by a "50 man committee" comprised mostly of temple presidents and senior devotees (excluding the gurus or GBCs). Also in 1976 Srila Prabhupada entertained the pleas and complaints of a group of temple presidents against Tamal and his bus parties. In both cases the corrupted GBC was checked in their tracks by the unified temple presidents, who are the real power in ISKCON. This is actual history. With a GBC suspension, leadership will naturally default to them for a transition period while the primary issues facing the movement are properly researched, discussed, debated, and resolved. To reach a sufficiently strong consensus of how to go forward, it may require several years, maybe more quickly. We are in no rush until a mature and thorough re-assessment of the path forward is completed.

WITHOUT A GBC, WHO WILL GUIDE US?

The GBC has practically destroyed Srila Prabhupada's mission with their innumerable deviations and disasters, and the situation has long ago reached the point where it is better (at least temporarily) to NOT have that kind of GBC. While some will quote, "England, with all of thy faults, I love thee still," there is a point beyond which one cannot be tolerant, as that only encourages further mayhem. Once Sesa das (GBC) wrote: "But authority is integral to our philosophy; I wonder where we are headed when we begin to reject authority indiscriminately." The answer: We very discriminately reject the deviant GBC, not the principle of having a GBC, and we must not accept authority indiscriminately either. Some wonder, without a GBC, who will guide us? Well, the whole issue is that the GBC has misguided, cheated, abused, and mistreated the devotees, proving themselves incapable rascals. We must surrender by using our intelligence but not surrender our intelligence. The Alachua Board of Directors Chairman wrote in 2001: "Last year's GBC chairman published in an article, 'ISKCON- I will put it starkly- has no brain.' He freely acknowledged to me that the GBC acts irrationally and without accountability. Also I spoke last year with the North American GBC chairman who said the GBC body, due to absence of accountability, is in a spiraling nose-dive, if it hasn't already crashed. The GBC is far below any 'passing score.' There are hundreds of experiences and observations, surveys, scholarly articles, statements from those close to the GBC body, and so on to support this conclusion." After removing the corrupted GBC, then the ICC must initiate a time of healing and open discourse. Devotees will seek and take guidance from Srila Prabhupada's books and discuss in groups, excluding participation from the previous GBCs and gurus. We need to fear the present corrupted GBC, and not fear being without them. In 1972 Srila Prabhupada simply told the temple presidents to carry on after he had suspended the GBC.

GURUS SUSPENDED AS WELL AS THE GBC

There might be intelligent and sincere individual GBC members. However, the group as a whole functions at a very low level of intelligence, proficiency, accountability, and success. There is a serious defect in the GBC, as is very apparent in Parts 14-16. They have hijacked ISKCON for their guru businesses, and until the vampire-like guru business model in ISKCON is suspended, any reconstituted GBC will have the same underlying diseased condition, namely to function for the benefit of a guru cartel rather than for Srila Prabhupada and his followers. It has proven hopeless and futile to reform the GBC (Ch. 164), as decades of fruitless attempts have proven. The agenda is not to reform the GBC; it is to determine from the bottom up what Srila Prabhupada wanted for his movement. It is no use to simply replace the present GBC with other diseased persons who will not improve things. Only an interregnum of enlightenment based on free discussions, debate, and realization of Srila Prabhupada's teachings can save ISKCON. Suspension of the corrupt ISKCON GBC includes suspension of ISKCON's guru system because they are one and the same. Clearly the ISKCON gurus will for the most part strongly oppose their being suspended and they will have support from most of their followers. As such, ISKCON will split into two parts: those who have had enough of the present ISKCON corruption, and the ISKCON gurus. But the reformers must proceed nevertheless. It will be impossible to avoid this confrontation. A major societal revelation or enlightenment, such as from a major government investigation into ISKCON corruption or SP's poisoning, would give immense credibility and empowerment to the temple presidents to take control away from the GBC-guru regime.

A GRAND ISTAGOSTHI IS NOT A REJECTION OF ISKCON

Wherever devotees are chanting Hare Krishna and faithfully following Srila Prabhupada's instructions, that is ISKCON. ISKCON or Srila Prabhupada's mission is much more than the legal institution (see Ch. 157). The GBC will try very hard to discourage sincere devotees from trying to salvage/restore Srila Prabhupada's mission by accusing them of treason, disloyalty, rejecting spiritual authority, deviation, and offenses. But they are the problem, not us. The unholy GBC and unauthorised guru alliance has ruined the movement; we must put a halt to this corrupt system until a bottom up consensus is reached on the future of Srila Prabhupada's mission. It will not be possible to rectify ISKCON without addressing the guru, initiations, and poison issues, say, simply with new rascals, some accountability seminars, or band-aid solutions. Without a society-wide grand istagosthi and time of enlightenment, the institutional cancer of guru parasites will return worse than ever.

SRILA PRABHUPADA'S FOLLOWERS

The grand istagosthi of general enlightenment will lead to a restoration of Srila Prabhupada's Mission. The participants in this restoration are not to be restricted to "residents," "full-timers," or only those "in institutional good standing." Any actual Srila Prabhupada follower has the right to a voice and role in the mission's future. Input from all stakeholders should be respected and incorporated. The ICC may define who a Srila Prabhupada follower actually is; some suggestions: (1) ISKCON is but a part of Srila Prabhupada's Mission (2) All serious followers of Srila Prabhupada should be accepted as participants (3) Definitions for Srila Prabhupada's followers should be established. E.g., what of those who accept a Gaudiya Math "guru" as their primary connection to the parampara? ISKCON must be for those seriously committed to Srila Prabhupada and his teachings. (4) Only those who have taken Srila Prabhupada as their diksha guru (or intend to), or as their primary siksha guru are actually a member of Srila Prabhupada's Mission. Cross-breeds and those with mixed loyalties should found their own institutions. This axiom is critical in Srila Prabhupada's mission; only a follower of Srila Prabhupada has their loyalties and interests fully aligned with Srila Prabhupada's vision and teachings. Who is the Founder-Acharya? This will be a painful but necessary clarification.

TO REACH SIDDHANTIC CONSENSUS: OPEN DISCUSSION, BRAHMANA COUNCIL

Upon the GBC's removal, we assume leadership would naturally default to second level managers, the temple presidents, in the organic revolution to restore Srila Prabhupada's mission. (But it may unfold in many ways.) The Hare Krishna movement's transition to a healthy condition should be supervised by an interim temple presidents caretaker council. Their first business will be to organize a society-wide forum (or convention) for discussions, chaired by respected brahmana devotees, with orderly, moderated online or physical debates with evidence, open participation, aiming to resolve the major key issues facing the devotee society. False assumptions typically underpin false conclusions, and serious debate exposes those falsities for all to see. Siddhantic conclusions must be based upon and in accordance with Srila Prabhupada's teachings and vision. We are to restore Srila Prabhupada's mission, not modify or adapt it according to influences other than Srila Prabhupada himself. After all, he is our Founder-Acharya and he has given us everything we need for the duration of his movement on this planet. We have to carefully study what his intentions are by the "istagoshti" process, namely regular meetings of local and global devotees, to civilly resolve all misunderstandings.

The Vedic debate and discussion tradition is the process whereby truths may be revealed, understood, and embraced by participants. Also, apparent contradictions are resolved. The common man is generally by nature good, honest, and sincere and will understand and accept truths when openly, honestly discussed in the light of shastra and intelligence. They can most often distinguish truth from falsity or deviation. Devotees will readily understand Srila Prabhupada's teachings when it is taken at face value without super-imposition of deviated interpretations. This was Srila Prabhupada's style of preaching: light will dispel darkness, knowledge will dispel ignorance, truth and siddhanta will dispel false doctrines. The ICC agenda would be to maintain the basic affairs of the society, with the GBC removed and the gurus on hold, to foster a time of general enlightenment after decades of repression and falsehood. ISKCON guru approvals and initiations must be paused. A "super-convention" must be organized with virtual and actual forums for open discourse, discussions, venting, questioning, and invitations to all Srila Prabhupada followers to participate. The more discussion, the better- locally, home programs, in temples, in cyberspace, with committees, meetings, events, festivals, regionally, globally, on all levels and jurisdictions. With no fear of repercussions from a repressive institutional leadership, devotees will be able to associate openly, share, listen, speak, query, and think freely. This atmosphere will lead to quantum leaps in spiritual realizations, as everyone will use Srila Prabhupada's original books as their foundation. The GBC's defective doctrines will fall away and evaporate (Part 20).

WHITE PAPERS, ESSAYS, DEBATES, DISCUSSIONS

"White papers" or analysis essays on ISKCON's persistent and troubling issues should be respectfully solicited from all Srila Prabhupada followers to reach proper understandings, solve problems, or make decisions. Srila Prabhupada greatly encouraged writing and essays based on his teachings and shastra. It is our conviction that an open discussion scenario, wherein the authoritative basis is Srila Prabhupada's teachings and if properly moderated by the standards of Vedic etiquette and debate, will make the truth in all issues become increasingly obvious and understood. Also, devotees are generally sincere and when given the chance, will quickly learn critical thinking and be able to understand siddhanta from Srila Prabhupada's teachings as long as there is no coercion or pressure from a corrupt misleadership. Allowing all parties to submit their written position, presenting their best and considered arguments for consideration, things such as personal attacks, name-calling, insults, anger, etc will not be tolerated. Analytical viewpoints should be concisely presented just as Srila Prabhupada expounds upon Lord Krishna's teachings in Bhagavad Gita, logically, clearly, philosophically, and with supporting references. Submissions will be posted publicly for evaluation as to its siddhanta. The exchange of essays and white papers with ensuing discussions may go on for years, as the various philosophic interpretations on how Srila Prabhupada's Mission should be conducted will be studied and evaluated by discriminating devotees, who will extract and distill the truths therein. As long as this process continues and the parties discuss by the rules, gradually a majority consensus will be reached and the differences of views will be dramatically narrowed. But trying to "win" and arrogant argumentativeness must be curtailed with thoughtful, rational, intelligent, and friendly discussions, with humility in pursuit of truth. BGita 10.9: "...and they derive great satisfaction and bliss enlightening one another and conversing about me."

SIX STEPS AND BRAHMANA COUNCIL

After (1) the GBC's removal, (2) local temple president elections, (3) formation of the ICC, and (4) while enlightening discussions are ongoing, (5) the ICC can register qualified Srila Prabhupada followers for future referendums, the first of which should be for (6) a council of brahmanas, perhaps about 20 senior devotees known for their honesty, austerity, shastric knowledge, critical thinking, and purity. Each region can choose one from the devotees in that area known for their brahminical qualities and their deep studies of Srila Prabhupada's teachings. They must be politically disassociated, without conflicts of interest, aloof from all compromising influences, and materially unambitious. They would meet online or in person to discuss and assess all the white papers and essays, to boil down the opinions and analyses into an essential Srila Prabhupada siddhanta book on what he wanted for his movement's future. The GBC's SAC of "brahmanas" was a farce, with members chosen by the GBC simply to support their policies with no objectivity. Sadhu-brahmanas must be uncompromised by mundane ambition, salaries, or political allegiances.

RATIFICATION OF SIDDHANTA BY THE MEMBERS AND THE PRABHUPADA CODEX

A high quality, society-wide consensus can be achieved for each siddhantic issue that has caused widespread confusion. This will provide a solid foundation upon which to rebuild Srila Prabhupada's Mission. It will be ineffective if everyone simply does what they want by their differing understandings and if there is no istagosthi to work towards a common realization of true siddhanta. We want a unified Hare Krishna movement. Everything in ISKCON since 1978 has been a disaster, and so we must go back to square one and re-assess, start over as though it were Nov. 14, 1977. The answers are all there in Srila Prabhupada's instructions. Study and open discussions will build a consensus. Truth has a way of irrepressibly rising up, if given half a chance. Srila Prabhupada's teachings are so transcendently powerful and clear that, if studied, most sincere, intelligent persons will understand how ISKCON should be re-organized.

After sufficient public discussion of each issue, the leading interpretations, with commentary and conclusions by the Brahmana Council, should be made known and they can be ratified in local or global referendums of vetted Srila Prabhupada followers. Those conclusions supported by both Srila Prabhupada's followers and the Brahmana Council, say, at a threshold of 80% or better, will comprise "The Prabhupada Codex," or the authorized conclusions in key issues- diksha guru, future initiations, book changes, institutional management, Srila Prabhupada's poisoning, etc. After the Brahmana Council has reviewed all white papers on an issue, and studied them carefully, discussed them privately and publicly, and with all interested parties, and narrowed down the submissions and positions by applying the test of conformity to Srila Prabhupada's teachings, a conclusion will be determined on each issue, and expressed in writing, with full explanation and references, even as a book, so that all may understand the strengths and weaknesses of various arguments, with their validities and defects, as a future reference source. Just as Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati established by debate and scriptural references that a Vaishnava is automatically a brahmana, so all the divisive issues in the Hare Krishna movement can and should be resolved in a Prabhupada Codex, distilled from his books, lectures, letters, pastimes. These conclusions can also be ratified by referendum.

This suggested process to ascertain Srila Prabhupada's siddhanta for ISKCON's future combines direct democracy (Swiss style, with individual referendums on specific issues) and the authority of Srila Prabhupada's teachings as understood by learned devotees (Brahmana Council). Without a general enlightenment and a prolonged istagosthi process to unveil the actual Srila Prabhupada siddhanta for the future of his mission, it will be of no use to prematurely elect a new GBC. This was Srila Prabhupada's idea for devotee istagosthi: to resolve differences. Enlightenment of the devotee community through healthy skepticism and open debate, in a time of healing, is far superior than a cynical refusal to participate in discussions. "The mood was very sober, but Srila Prabhupada wanted to hear from everyone. He went around the room and asked each devotee what they thought was wrong in the temple. And each person gave their realization, and everyone else listened to that realization. And then Srila Prabhupada spoke." (Yamuna dasi, Unalloyed Devotion) The considered and popularly ratified Brahmana Council's siddhantic conclusions, or Prabhupada Codex, may also be included or referenced in an ISKCON Constitution, which the GBC was never able to complete due to their unresolvable doctrinal conundrums. An ISKCON Constitution is to be based on Srila Prabhupada's 1966 "Purposes of ISKCON" and expanded with fundamental documents, e.g., DOM etc. (see Ch. 169)

PROCEDURAL METHOD AND RULES OF DEBATE OR DISCUSSION

Procedures must be adopted by the ICC so Vaishnava etiquette and the rules of debate always prevail. After open discussions over a lengthy time, there should be a methodology for coming to shastric, philosophic, and policy conclusions. Advocates may even debate with and be cross-examined in person by the Brahmana Council. We note how ISKCON never defended its policies and siddhantic misinterpretations in public nor allowed an "open court" appeals avenue for those with questions or alternative opinions. ISKCON issued their defective doctrines as unchallengeable decrees without stakeholder consultation and demanded blind obedience and compliance. This is not the way to generate love and trust, nor to arrive at any siddhanta.

THE ISSUES MUST BE CONFRONTED, NOT BANNED

A restored ISKCON must have no banning of controversies and issues, and no "unquestioningly do what the corrupted leaders say"- this tyranny in Srila Prabhupada's movement must never happen again. The issues to be studied include: (1) Is the GBC authorized to determine ISKCON's diksha guru approvals and initiations process? (2) What arrangements did Srila Prabhupada make for future initiations and diksha gurus? (3) What is the function, duties, and role of the GBC? (4) Should Srila Prabhupada's books be edited and changed? Or in what limited ways? (5) If Srila Prabhupada is ISKCON's sole diksha guru, then what of the vote-approved gurus, their disciples and temples? (6)

How should ISKCON arrange for a new leadership? (7) How can the various camps work together in Srila Prabhupada's restored ISKCON? (8) Does Srila Prabhupada's poisoning evidence justify a true and independent investigation? (9) Should the temple president elections (as per Srila Prabhupada's letters) and the DOM's GBC elections be implemented? (10) What of the vast wealth in banks, properties, and temples accumulated by the ISKCON gurus, such as Giriraj Swami's $50 million?

AND THOSE WHO DO NOT AGREE?

Those who do not take Srila Prabhupada as their primary source of inspiration would not be qualified as a Srila Prabhupada follower or to participate in Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON restoration.

How can one take Srila Prabhupada as the ISKCON Founder-Acharya while following other acharyas or initiating gurus? This juxtaposition of conflicting loyalties in ISKCON has been the source of all its problems; ISKCON always was meant to be Srila Prabhupada's institution. The GBC has been diverting devotees AWAY from Srila Prabhupada for 45 years and this must end. Perhaps the most pressing and pivotal issue is whether those who select other than Srila Prabhupada as their current link and diksha guru will need to move to a different institution to accommodate their non-Prabhupada siddhanta. Should they avail themselves of Srila Prabhupada's Mission and facilities if they do not accept and practice that Srila Prabhupada is the only Acharya of his own mission? Of course, Srila Prabhupada can be a siksha guru to anyone even if they choose another diksha guru. These issues will be at the top of the list for the debate process and Brahmana Council to sort out and establish as the new ISKCON siddhanta. It may take a few years of patience during a time of enlightenment with a lot in limbo, but the attempt, if undertaken, should reset ISKCON in the proper direction, although it will not be an easy task. We should remember that if given a chance, the truth/siddhanta will prevail.

Those who do not participate in the enlightenment process may have already decided to exist outside a restored ISKCON. Many ISKCON gurus and their "disciples" will go their own way and will not be a part of a new ISKCON that is for Srila Prabhupada's teachings and his followers, and that is OK since their differing conclusions require a separate organization. Many will part ways to continue with their understandings separate from ISKCON. That is their prerogative. Lord Chaitanya will bless those whom He will and His movement will thrive where and as He wants. Time will show Lord Chaitanya's preferences for the future of the Hare Krishna movement. Our duty as gentlemen is to try to resolve issues with intelligence and fairness, with open debate, to restore Srila Prabhupada's institution and mission without fatal compromises. If ISKCON retains its former policies, leaders, or doctrines as before, then the "reformers" should forget about "restoring" ISKCON, and take up "Plan B" or starting a new ISKCON separately (Ch. 167). After an interregnum of enlightenment and healing, there may still be insufficient consensus amongst those of various convictions for all to agree to a new course for ISKCON, with some still not satisfied despite all concerted efforts to resolve different interpretations. Of course they will be at liberty to practice and operate separately as they choose. Fatal siddhantic compromise is no solution. An historical example was the lengthy but unsuccessful negotiations in the secession dispute between ISKCON Bangalore and ISKCON Bombay about 10 years ago. The issues were too deep and fundamental to resolve. Of course, these were confidential discussions between two sets of leaders, with ISKCON corrupted GBC on one side, and was not an open society-wide istagosthi. In contrast, an interregnum of open discussion and healing would create maximum resolution and unity. Most ISKCON members would likely return to SP's ISKCON at a later date.

Ultimately, competition of varying interpretations, put to the test of time, will weed out those which are defective or ineffective. In this age of quarrel, parties defeated in logic, discussion, and truth will often cling to their path, due to vested interests, stubbornness, etc. Everyone must follow their choices and conscience, according to their realizations. May everyone find some way to please Srila Prabhupada, the Founder-Acharya of ISKCON, to the best of their abilities with honesty and humility, even if just to chant Hare Krishna. Those who choose other gurus and other teachings (Gaudiya Math, mayavadi babajis, whatever), should be wished well. ISKCON is the place for Srila Prabhupada's followers, not meant, as it is now, to be a conglomerate of various bogus gurus plundering Srila Prabhupada's assets like parasites to build their own empires.

Majority support of a doctrinal interpretation does not establish its veracity. E.g., 99% believe they are the material body. Consensus in some critical issues could be incorrect. Still, the enlightenment process as described would be auspicious and beneficial. Srila Prabhupada told us to hold Srimad Bhagwatam class each morning: devotees take turns to speak from their realizations and everyone can hear, discuss, add their realizations, and ask questions. It is an enlightening process for everyone. "My way or the highway" is not an acceptable norm any longer. Those with contesting interpretations on issues such as gurus, management, book changes, etc., should have faith, if their understanding is foundationally valid, that the healthy process of istagosthi will verify, strengthen, broaden, or modify their understanding. Each party should be respectful and ready to learn more from other Vaishnavas, without a condescending attitude of sectarianism or superiority. The principle of voluntary participation and choice as how to serve Lord Krishna and Srila Prabhupada must be there. But ISKCON should be for Srila Prabhupada's followers only. It is not meant for would-be prophets or innovators like Kirtanananda, Radhanath, Indradyumna, et. al. Let them make their own institutions. Let ISKCON be for Srila Prabhupada. As such, given an interim period for the reconciliation of disparities via the enlightening Vedic process of discussions and debate, a major reunification of realized Srila Prabhupada followers is possible although not certain.

CONCLUSION

"Therefore we have created these GBC. So they should be very responsible men. Otherwise, they will be punished. They will be punished to become a sudra. Although Yamaraja is a GBC, but he made a little mistake. He was punished to become a sudra. So those who are GBCs, they should be very, very careful to administer the business of ISKCON. Otherwise they will be punished. As the post is very great, similarly, the punishment is also very great."(SPLecture June 4, 1974) Anyone who has failed to properly administer their responsibilities in ISKCON leadership will be punished by higher authorities. The devotees must hold the corrupt leadership fully accountable. Some (or all) may be banished for life to preach on a remote island and be stripped of their guru or sannyasi titles. First, the GBC misleaders must be removed and not allowed to create further trouble. Then legally recover their stolen wealth and correct their false propaganda and defective doctrines.

(1) "The primary objective of the GBC is to organize the opening of new Temples and to maintain the established Temples." (DOM, 1970) (2) "Just like milk -- we may thin it more and more with water for cheating the customer, but in the end it will cease any longer to be milk. Thus the devotees' spiritual life would be thinned out more and more. Better to boil the milk very vigorously and make it thick and sweet. That is the best process. So let us concentrate on training our devotees very thoroughly in the knowledge of Krishna consciousness from our books, from tapes, by discussing always, and in so many ways instruct them in the right propositions..." (SPL 1972) (3) Srila Prabhupada sent letters to several GBCs in mid-1972, introducing the ISKCON Srimad-Bhagavatam class, describing how devotees should each day read aloud one Sanskrit sloka, repeat the transliteration, chant the sloka several times, and then discuss the subject matter. "I am very much stressing at this point that all my students shall be very much conversant with the philosophy of Krishna consciousness and that they should read our books very diligently, at least one or two hours daily, and try to understand the subject matter from varieties of angles." (SPL Madhudvisa June 1972)

Srila Prabhupada's followers are the most intelligent people, and should study relevant issues by using their independent thinking and critical analysis. From Dhira Govinda das Oct. 28, 2016:

"With regards to guidance for devotees, after the removal of ISKCON's misleaders, of more primary importance than international re-organization, is the individual, community, temple dimension of consideration, such as being fixed up in our sadhana and austerity, qualified to participate in the revolution when it is triggered. ...wherever we are, that is where we must be engaged to do our part to restore the mission. We should be emphasizing a lot more Srila Prabhupada's guidance and principle that it's vital that his followers are independently thoughtful. '...Krishna Consciousness Movement is for training men to be independently thoughtful and competent in all types of departments of knowledge and action, not for making bureaucracy. Once there is bureaucracy the whole thing will be spoiled. There must be always individual striving and work and responsibility...' (SPL Karandhara Dec. 22, 1972) Also, the GBC suspension letter Apr. 8, 1972: 'You manage your affairs peacefully and independently...' We don't minimize that Srila Prabhupada wanted a coordinated, highly effective, international organization. Also we don't want to overemphasize it; it's not the main, most important thing. What seems essential is to provide guidance to existing, potential, aspiring and future members of Srila Prabhupada's movement to be independently thoughtful as individuals, families, communities, and temples. Independent thoughtfulness within the context of Srila Prabhupada's vani is steadily achieved through regularly taking shelter of Srila Prabhupada's books, lectures, following his instructions, associating with similarly sincere followers of Srila Prabhupada, etc. We should also guide devotees to concretely understand what it means to serve and worship Srila Prabhupada as their current link to the parampara, as the Nine Principles and Practices listed in Current and Direct Link. (see Ch. 182) These nine points are crucial in helping the reader translate abstract philosophical precept to praxis. With independent thoughtfulness and being strong in Srila Prabhupada's vani, whatever internationally organized structure emerges is very likely to be auspicious and pleasing to Srila Prabhupada. We can suggest possibilities of such structures, and not be attached to the external forms they may take, provided the essential point is that the inhabitants of those structures are independently thoughtful followers of Srila Prabhupada. Persons lacking independent thoughtfulness tend towards dependency on others to do their thinking for them. That attracts persons who seek to fulfill perceived needs for power through gaining positions, and exploiting those who are eager for someone else to do their thinking for them. Thus, without a culture that really emphasizes independent thoughtfulness, the current ISKCON dynamic, or something similar to it, will again emerge.

"Persons or entities who are needy, not sufficiently independent and autonomous, are not really capable to enter into synergistic relationships. Rather, they form needy relationships of perverse dependency that quickly become toxic, where the whole is less than the sum of the parts, or even less. Whatever new structures evolve, emerge- eg., a new GBC or Interim Managing Council, it should be clearly communicated that participation, membership are voluntary. Yatheccyasi tatha kuru- based on voluntary choice, with no tinge of overt or covert fear and repression. Suppose, for example, a new GBC forms, whose members have the proper understanding of Srila Prabhupada's siddhanta (current link to the parampara, or his disappearance pastime). So, such a GBC is so attractive that temples and individual devotees will naturally want to be a member of the organization that this international committee guides. No force; just genuine inspiration. Also, with regards to those who currently ISKCON leaders, we should remember the transformative nature of Krishna consciousness. That is, whatever outrages they may have perpetrated, we are open to the possibility that they will create genuine transformation of heart- not simply of giving lip-service, with some political agenda, but authentic transformation of consciousness. Now, even if such change of heart is real, that doesn't mean such persons should ever again serve in positions of leadership in Srila Prabhupada's movement. Still, we can highlight the transformational potency of Srila Prabhupada's grace."

Each devotee, according to his modes of nature and progress in the purification process, will "understand" things in slightly different ways. Spiritual revelation is based upon the mercy of Lord Krishna and Srila Prabhupada. Realizations cannot be legislated. However, we should have strong faith that Srila Prabhupada's instructions are so powerful and clear that all who sincerely study them will come to a standard, common understanding of "Srila Prabhupada siddhanta" with but minor variations in details. It is on this basis that Srila Prabhupada's mission can and will be restored. Nothing ventured, nothing gained.

---

CHAPTER 166: PLAN A: ELECTIONS OF RESPONSIBLE LEADERS

ELECTIONS: A democratic process intended to increase transparency and curb corruption.

"You never change things by fighting the existing reality. To change something, build a new model that makes the existing model obsolete." (Buckminster Fuller) "The devotees have the power, all we have to do is awaken that power in the devotees. They are unaware and uneducated to realize that they have power. ISKCON is so geared that everyone believes that ISKCON leaders will fix everything. But we are ISKCON." (modified John Lennon quote)

After the corrupt ISKCON leadership is removed and an interregnum for open discussions and general enlightenment of the devotees, a new and qualified leadership should be installed. Srila Prabhupada's DOM and many of his letters prescribe regular GBC elections by the temple presidents who are elected by local congregations, and this is being done in bona fide Srila Prabhupada centers outside of ISKCON, such as Bangalore Group, Jaipur Hare Krishna Community, Singapore's ISKM, etc. Sincere followers of Srila Prabhupada presently outside the ISKCON institution cannot be excluded from voting for a new GBC body in a more inclusive ISKCON. This chapter advocates GBC elections with many Srila Prabhupada instructions re: the GBC. By studying these carefully we can be prepared to choose those who are properly qualified for the task. This will be a major step in the restoration of the Hare Krishna movement and ISKCON. If we do not get this step right, another chance to avoid repeat episodes of disaster and chaos such as the last 45 years may be far off.

DEVOTEES MUST HOLD ELECTIONS FOR A NEW GBC by Urdhvaga das, 2000 (abbreviated)

"All devotees world wide are called upon to reject ISKCON's bogus GBC/Guru leadership and elect a new GBC as outlined by Srila Prabhupada in his DOM for a GBC elected from the body of temple presidents, every three years, either re-electing existing GBCs or electing new GBCs from the body of Temple Presidents. The GBC would have practically no authority over the temples. Devotees should understand the full extent of their spiritual rights, that by the DOM, the members may elect a new leadership or impeach that leadership, as per Srila Prabhupada's order. Devotees have perpetuated ISKCON corruption by not voting these leaders out. That should be corrected. By illegally assuming dictatorial powers not provided in the DOM or elsewhere, the GBC 'covered up' crimes committed by their own members, and terrorized the temple presidents and devotees by threatening to 'kick them out' for insubordination. This is typical of abuse in rogue states, dictatorships, and oligarchies not answerable to anyone. If the DOM had been followed, the Gurukula abuse problem would have been almost impossible. The GBC carefully hid the DOM, but it became public in the 1990's. By then, the DOM was not part of temple legal documents, if they ever were. Still, the devotees should assert their spiritual rights and call for elections to subject the deviant GBC to be accountable to the devotees. This can save Srila Prabhupada's legacy from total destruction. The pressure of devotee public opinion can and should prevail.

"Srila Prabhupada: 'Yes. This was the system, that one must retire. Just like at the present moment, although people are asking the president [Nixon] that "You retire, you resign," he is not resigning, obstinate. Because he knows, "This is the first and last chance. I am not going to be elected again. So stick to the post and take as much money as possible."' (SPLecture Dec. 17, 1973) But the GBC-guru cartel will not resign, they will stick to their posts and steal assets from Srila Prabhupada as long as they possibly can. Their actions will destroy ISKCON entirely. The best chance to protect Srila Prabhupada's movement is a general rebellion by vote of the members of ISKCON against the GBC. They have frustrated Srila Prabhupada's orders by mismanagement, defective doctrines, changing his books, preaching bogus philosophy, and in countless other ways. They have driven away thousands of Srila Prabhupada's disciples and failed to maintain ISKCON. Now they deserve to be impeached. In most cases the membership of a nonprofit religious corporation, which most ISKCON temples are, has the legal right to change its leadership because nonprofits are meant to serve community needs.

Therefore, a constituent assembly of the members of ISKCON (anyone following Srila Prabhupada's instructions) should be arranged for electing a new GBC body. A petition organized by Harinama das in Hawaii was attempted but failed. It demanded the GBC hold elections as per the DOM. Demands presented to the GBC are useless. Only by mass revolution in great numbers can the devotees succeed." (END)

FINALLY, IMPLEMENT THE DIRECTION OF MANAGEMENT AND ELECT A NEW GBC

The good old boy's club or cronyism in ISKCON's misleadership has corrupted the movement, as false gurus operate in overlapping territories where they compete for fame, wealth, and followers. The common devotee can easily end this system of corruption by exerting his right to vote for qualified ISKCON temple presidents who will then elect qualified, honest, and responsible GBC men. This was Srila Prabhupada's divine inspiration in 1970 for the proper management of ISKCON, and he drafted this principle and others into the DOM, which also established the GBC itself. The DOM must be fully implemented in ISKCON, not just partially as has been until now. This is how ISKCON can be "reset" or "rebooted." Instead of inventing something new which Srila Prabhupada did not instruct, and which would simply increase ISKCON's problems, implementing the full DOM is the best solution because it was given to us by Srila Prabhupada. It was his plan for ISKCON's management. Without these prescribed GBC elections there has been great damage to the Mission, so they should now be finally adopted, without adding or subtracting portions deemed outdated or whatever. With no changes to it, the DOM as it is will work best. We are the point of having nothing left to lose anyway!

During the "enlightenment interregnum" of open debate, discussion, research, and consensus-building, the temple congregations should elect new and qualified temple presidents who they will give the chance to responsibly serve Srila Prabhupada and his Mission. Then later, those temple presidents will elect 2/3 of a new GBC body from amongst themselves whom they will entrust for 3 years to serve Srila Prabhupada's interests responsibly. The era of self-perpetuating cronyism and corruption will end. The check and balances of upcoming re-elections every 3 years will force office holders to meet the expectations of their constituencies for being a good leader, or they will not be re-elected. The life-long GBCs have failed miserably but have never faced any risk of removal, regardless of their record or performance.

TEARING DOWN ISKCON IS NOT RESTORATION

These vital discussions about how to restore ISKCON and especially its leadership are critical because without a suitable replacement to the old order, who knows what will take its place? It may be even worse. We need a definite positive alternative to the present state of affairs. It is wise to be prepared with foresight. During the Alachua community disaffiliation episode (Ch. 164), Toshana Krishna das wrote: "To only tear down is entirely incomplete. Breaking down must be part of ushering in the positive alternative. This means to inspire numerous faithful devotees and ISKCON well-wishers with the good news that the GBC is being rejuvenated. [...] welcome positive adjustments should be quoted as part of the leadership solution. [...] To criticize only will put us in the ranks of unsavory bed fellows. [...] It is how you do a thing that is so very vital to success. Srila Prabhupada told us many times there is no void anywhere in God's creation. We must not underestimate the principle that when you take something away, something else will fill it. Who has the real authority will be the issue." Phani Bhusan das stated very pertinently: "Your effort will be an exemplary act of assertion... you may rest assured that the result will ultimately prove beneficial for everyone. Apathy should be immediately and deliberately discarded along with all apprehensions and uncertainties. Act with full determination on behalf of righteousness." Rupanuga das gave sage advice: "Any plans to correct the situation must be IDENTICAL with Srila Prabhupada's plans for the organization and leadership of the movement."

Unlike the GBC's actions since 1978, in restoring Srila Prabhupada's mission, we must not speculate or innovate solutions. Srila Prabhupada has given us the reform plans already: the DOM, his final will, the July 9 letter, his legacy of teachings. The GBC has failed for 45 years, and now the devotees must fix the situation.

COURAGEOUS AUSTRALIAN DEVOTEE FACES OFF AGAINST CORRUPTION

From Oct. 2016 Subhalaksmi dasi organized a campaign to remove the longtime GBC Ramai Swami and other corrupt Australian leaders, some accused of sheltering known sexual abusers of devotees. She has connected with a Royal Commission of inquiry and made allies with many devotees, politicians, media, and law enforcement. Subhalaxmi obtained copies of legal documents for all Australian ISKCON corporations and entities, revealing Ramai Swami and Aniruddha had consolidated everything under their legal control. Temple presidents were powerless and yes-men as the Australiam yatra is now solidly under legal control of the GBC. Again, ISKCON has deviated from Srila Prabhupada's instructions for independent centers and a guiding GBC.

The group of disenfranchised devotees in Australia were studying and discussing the DOM as a proper solution to the endless problems of leadership corruption "down under." They held an educational DOM seminar in spring of 2017. This development illustrates that often revolt and positive change is initiated with a flashpoint, such as revelations of child abuse, or the proof that Srila Prabhupada was poisoned by heavy metals in 1977, leading to the gurujacking of his movement and the subsequent suffering of thousands of devotees.

GBC SHOULD TAKE ULTIMATE RESPONSIBILITY, NOT ULTIMATE AUTHORITY

Mar. 17, 1999 By Gadadhar das: "The GBC is once again claiming all authority while refusing to be accountable and responsible for what they do and do not do. They continue their once a year impersonal false and empty propaganda like 'Uniting Srila Prabhupada's Family' or 'we are sorry, we made mistakes for 20 years but now we are on track'. But Srila Prabhupada actually gave the GBC very little authority but lots of responsibility. Taking responsibility as authority has reaked havoc. E.g., each temple was incorporated as a separate entity and was to be managed by Temple President, Secretary, Treasurer, and Temple Commander. GBCs and sannyasis were to supervise and guide. Ritviks were given one more function than the GBCs and that was to chant on beads and give names on behalf of the Acharya. Temple Presidents performed the fire yajna for initiation ceremonies. Practically all operational control was given to local temple officers. Guiding and supervising responsibility was given to GBCs and sannyasis. However, for the past 21 years, the GBC has taken control of every thing in the name of being the 'Ultimate Managing Authority.' What was given as the responsibility to guide, supervise, and set a good example changed to 'total GBC control' even when they miserably fell short of any Vaishnava standard. (1) Why doesn't the GBC take the ultimate responsibility for what has gone wrong? (2) Why doesn't the GBC take the responsibility for 90% of Srila Prabhupada's disciples who have left or have been kicked out by them and by their mismanagement? (3) Where were the responsible GBCs when 100s of children and women were abused and raped? (4) Where are the GBC when BTG sales have gone from 1 million in 1976 to less than 10k now? (5) In 1970s, North American Temples were flourishing and were filled with 100s of enthusiastic devotees. Most of these temples are now like dead Christian churches.

"So where are the responsible GBCs? Just making pronouncements every year that 'we are sorry, we made a mistake' is not enough. Nobody buys this propaganda. Whoever was responsible to kick out a devotee has to go to them and ask forgiveness for his mistake. They talk of 'Uniting Srila Prabhupada's Family,' but what is accomplished? Hardly any have come back, and most that did were bribed with some post. Meanwhile the GBC has kicked out 100s more devotees within the last 5 years. This charade of lies, dishonesty, heavy handedness, and tactics of hang the victims and protect the criminals has destroyed everything and yet they claim to be 'humble and bona fide'? Who can be more shameless than you? The recent 'GBC's message states: 'In particular the body agreed to the following conclusions: 1) That the creation of the "Zonal Acharya" system after the departure of Srila Prabhupada deviated from the principle of the ultimate management authority of the GBC, introducing a tendency to view our society as a confederation of independent guru-disciple groups rather than an integrated union of devotees. 2) That the true guiding principle for ISKCON governance must be that, in every respect, the authority to accept disciples, or to act as a manager and/or officer of ISKCON must be firmly understood as derived from the sanction of the GBC body. 3) That the principle of division of work according to compatible modes of work based on training and individual propensity should be utilized to reform and improve the GBC.' (end quote) This shows that the GBC still claims all authority but when questions are raised about your accountability and responsibility you say, 'Do not commit Vaishnava aparadha.'" (END) COMMENT: Since 1999 ISKCON has increasingly become "a confederation of independent guru-disciple groups" and the illusion of unity waits for the next big schism and exit of one of the prominent ISKCON gurus.

SRILA PRABHUPADA'S PROVISIONS FOR ELECTIONS WORKS WELL IN MANY PLACES

There are the case studies of Bangalore, Jaipur, Long Island, ISKM, and Christchurch ISKCONs. In all these cases we find that there were senior devotees involved with the management who clearly understood the philosophy and practices of Krishna consciousness and were willing to take risks and make sacrifices for their convictions. They broke away from the corrupted institution to be able to better follow Srila Prabhupada's instructions, following their intelligence rather than blind obedience to the GBC. In these places the elections prescribed in the DOM have been implemented, and everything is going on nicely as proof of Srila Prabhupada's management system's perfect applicability in today's world.

SRILA PRABHUPADA WANTED INDEPENDENT TEMPLES WITH LOCAL CONTROL

In addition to the DOM's GBC elections, giving great power to the local temples by allowing them to select their own GBCs, there are a number of letters from Srila Prabhupada where he describes the principle of local control by temples, their presidents, and their local congregations.

(1) "I have seen the agenda of your president's meeting. One thing should be followed, however, as your countrymen are more or less independent spirited and lovers of democracy. So everything should be done very carefully so that their sentiments may not be hurt. According to Sanskrit moral principles, everything has to be acted, taking consideration of the place, audience, and time. As far as possible the centers should act freely, but conjointly. They must look forward to the common development." (SPL Oct. 13, 1969) (2) "Regarding your points about taxation, corporate status, etc., I have heard from Jayatirtha you want to make big plan for centralization of management, taxes, monies, corporate status, bookkeeping, credit, like that. I do not at all approve of such plan. Do not centralize anything. Each temple must remain independent and self-sufficient." (SPL Karandhar Dec. 22, 1972) (3) "I wish that each and every Branch shall keep their independent identity and cooperate keeping the Acharya in the centre. On this principle we can open any number of Branches all over the world. The Ramakrishna mission works on this principle and thus as organization they have done wonderfully." (SPL Bali Mardan Sept. 18, 1972) (4) "You manage your affairs peacefully and independently, and try to improve the spiritual atmosphere of the centers more carefully." (SPL temples, Apr. 8, 1972) (5) In Tamal's 1997 "The Perils of Succession," we read again of local control: "Prabhupada's formula for preventing such hegemony was to ensure each temple's autonomy within a loose-knit framework supervised by the GBC. Local temples were to be financially and legally autonomous though spiritually answerable to the GBC. Yet in 1976 Prabhupada again encountered an attempt at centralisation, this time under the prompting of lawyers who suggested that all ISKCON temples in the US should be sheltered under a single 'umbrella corporation'. Prabhupada again stubbornly opposed this, insisting that it would make all ISKCON temples vulnerable to any litigation filed against one. Time proved Prabhupada's wisdom [...] By suspending the GBC temporarily, Prabhupada indicated that this highest body was neither infallible nor autonomous. As long as he was present, it was answerable to him, but in his absence how would its mistakes be rectified? Ideally, it would correct itself, but events following Prabhupada's departure proved otherwise."

The answer how the GBC can be rectified is: THEY MUST BE ELECTED BY TEMPLE PRESIDENTS.

SUMMARY OF PLAN A TO RESTORE THE MISSION

The preceding chapters discussed a plan with ideas and means for effecting a restoration of the existing GBC-corrupted ISKCON. A summary: (1) Remove the corrupted ISKCON GBC by (a) Non-cooperation, neglect, shunning, ignore, bypass them, vote of no confidence (b) Boycott, interference, sabotage, confrontation (c) Impeachment in absentia or in person (d) Local devotees elect temple presidents (e) Locally disaffiliate from the GBC and ISKCON, and go on peacefully, independently (f) Temple takeovers, constituent lawsuits against the GBC (Ch.167) (g) Open and maintain independent centers which are not GBC controlled- (Ch. 167) (2) Consensus and progressive realizations are increasing as the falsehoods and corruption of the GBC regime are exposed. Initiate discussion, discovery, and enlightenment by devotees outside ISKCON censorship. Truth-seeking will prevail. (3) An interim caretaker council be selected by the temple presidents. (4) This ICC will announce the removal of the GBC and will manage ISKCON affairs during a rehabilitation period wherein a society-wide super-istagosthi will be organized to discuss, debate, research, realize, and resolve a list of key issues that face ISKCON. A solid consensus mandate based on Srila Prabhupada's desires for the future of his mission will be built up gradually. (5) Full DOM implemented in ISKCON. (6) Srila Prabhupada's poisoning properly investigated in ISKCON and also by law enforcement. The poisoners must be rooted out, and the profound ramifications for ISKCON dealt with. (7) What Srila Prabhupada wanted for future initiations in ISKCON must be ascertained calmly, thoroughly, by open discussion, research, debate, and realization. The guru issue as a whole is the most important crisis facing ISKCON and it must be resolved by studious enlightenment, not by fraud, lies, repression, and corrupt authority, which produces confusion. (8) After an interregnum of enlightenment and consensus-building of years, temple presidents will elect a new GBC body for a 3 year term as per the DOM. (9) The new GBC will deal with vote-approved gurus who will not accede to the new consensus.. If the assimilation of ISKCON's former gurus and followers into the restored ISKCON is not possible, then they must go their own way elsewhere outside Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON.

"Srila Prabhupada's movement could unfold and continue to manifest in various ways and structures. One possibility is a 50 man committee, interregnum period, etc. We should try to bring enlightenment to many members of Srila Prabhupada's movement, regarding the truth about his Disappearance Pastime, and this should have seismic effects that we cannot foresee. Still, based on careful study and understanding of Srila Prabhupada's teachings, we can entertain a possible scenario in which Srila Prabhupada's movement can auspiciously continue. The emphasis should always be about individuals, temples and communities being independently thoughtful, managing their affairs peacefully and independently." (Dhira Govinda das, 2016)

Another important point regarding the attempted restoration of the corrupted ISKCON institution: if some parties decline to be part of a rfeSTORED ISKCON, then they naturally will go their own ways. All independent thinkers need to decide for themselves what they will do, and time will determine which factions have the blessings of Srila Prabhupada and Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. We should try to save and restore Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON institution, and also be simultaneously busy rebuilding the Mission as it was with Srila Prabhupada before 1978. Trying not to waste our time or energy, we can follow the parallel tracks of restore the original ISKCON while building a new ISKCON. One of the most powerful quotes from Srila Prabhupada, issued in a letter Apr. 22, 1974 after he had suspended the GBC, is: "The formula for ISKCON organization is very simple and can be understood by everyone. The world is divided into twelve zones. For each zone there is one zonal secretary appointed by Srila Prabhupada. The zonal secretaries duty is to see that the spiritual principles are being upheld very nicely in all the Temples of his zone. Otherwise each Temple shall be independent and self-supporting. Let every Temple President work according to his own capacity to improve the Krishna Consciousness of his center. So far the practical management is concerned, that is required, but not that we should become too much absorbed in fancy organization. Our business is spiritual life, so whatever organization needs to be done, the Presidents may handle and take advice and assistance from their GBC representative. In this way let the Societies [plural] work go on and everyone increase their service at their own creative rate." (SPL to all Temple Presidents, Apr. 22, 1972)

---

CHAPTER 167: PLAN B: RESCUE AND REBUILD THE MISSION

We examined how the corrupt ISKCON might be “restored.” But it may not happen anytime soon. Perhaps the maya ISKCON is Krishna’s arrangement to engage those who are not ready to give up their material ambitions, and Lord Chaitanya’s divine sankirtan Movement will transcendently sublimate elsewhere. The mission of the acharyas migrated from Srila Bhaktisiddhanta’s institution in 1936 to Srila Prabhupada’s ISKCON in 1966, a gap of 30 years in the Gaudiya Math’s sad history. Now that ISKCON has been almost lost to unauthorised gurus who deny Srila Prabhupada his transcendental position, the mission appears to have migrated again, this time to the Prabhupada Anugas and where Srila Prabhupada is the Acharya. This is “Srila Prabhupada’s ISKCON,” in contrast to the original institution where Srila Prabhupada is now only a “previous acharya.” Most of Srila Prabhupada’s disciples were alienated from ISKCON, leaving it to the GBC-facilitated, hijacker gurus and their cheated followers. But starting in 1998, a new phenomenon appeared whereby entire ISKCON temples or congregations seceded and defected, lock, stock, and barrel. Also, starting with New Jaipur community in Mississippi in 1985, new Srila Prabhupada centers and farms have begun to appear outside the control of the corrupt ISKCON. This is “Plan B” to rescue and rebuild the Mission.

ISKCON BANGALORE SECEDES FROM ISKCON

In 1996 a friend slipped a copy of the July 9 letter from Srila Prabhupada under the door of Madhu Pandit das, Bangalore ISKCON temple president. He read it and was shaken. As a 15 year Jayapataka Swami disciple, the “final order” from Srila Prabhupada affected him deeply, and he began to discuss it with others. For two years he underwent a see-saw process of unraveling the complicated layers of indoctrinations of ISKCON’s guru and initiations philosophy. At one point, he recanted and again fell at JPS’s feet. Yet, he formed a committee of top men in the temple to regularly discuss and study these key issues, and finally they all became solidly convinced Srila Prabhupada wanted an officiating acharya system, not what was practiced in ISKCON. They had long classes and discussions with the entire temple body, and in 1998 they voted to secede from ISKCON. Krishnakant (IRM) played a major role in this educative process of understanding the siddhanta.

In 2000 the GBC established a “Ritvik Committee” to deal with lawsuits and protect properties from “ritviks.” Each GBC had to pay US$500 into a “Ritvik Case Fund.” This was in response to the secession of Bangalore temple from the GBC-controlled ISKCON. As advocates of Srila Prabhupada being the current diksha link for his followers increase in number, many of whom are “moles” and closet adherents amongst the rank and file ISKCON members, the GBC became concerned about losing more temples. This is rightly so, as conviction amongst devotees gradually increases that Srila Prabhupada’s assets should be returned to the service of His Divine Grace rather than the ISKCON “gurus,” half of which have already been publicly exposed as “fallen.” Jayapataka Swami and ISKCON in India countered with lawsuits, physical invasions, media attacks, and attempted bribery (Madhu Pandit was offered ISKCON guruship). The legal case has stalled in Supreme Court for 23 years; it may be unresolved for decades. Bangalore ISKCON has prospered, expanding into 30 temples in India and the world, with over 1000 initiated ashram (and 3000 initiated congregational) devotees, and a daily prasadam hot lunch program for 2 million Indian school children. Millions have been spent on legal proceedings. Bangalore ISKCON uses the officiating acharya or ritvik representative method of initiations, the DOM for elections of its own GBC, the unchanged books, and has successfully expanded recruitment of intelligent new devotees from the college student and graduate sector. In Bangalore, the new temple is massive and attracts huge crowds daily, also developing another temple-theme park project called Krishna Land. In Vrindaban their large new temple complex lies up the road from ISKCON’s Krishna Balaram Mandir, and they are constructing a 22 acre project with apartment subdivision and the world’s tallest temple at 700 feet where a glass elevator will reach the top for a visual tour of the holy dhama of Vraja.

Bangalore ISKCON is an excellent example of how sincere devotees, who come to understand what Srila Prabhupada actually wanted for the future of ISKCON, can separate from ISKCON, properties and all, to serve Srila Prabhupada without the crazy deviations in the corrupted institution. Bangalore ISKCON was easily able to do so because they were fully and independently incorporated. Many ISKCON temples have recently been legally prevented from secession by new, implanted bylaws, but any ISKCON temple that decides to secede may still do so, with or without the buildings. If necessary, leave the empty bricks and mortar structures to the GBC, as the really invaluable property is the souls of the devotees who no longer want to be cut off from Srila Prabhupada and his divine mercy. By political bribes or corruption (India, after all), if ISKCON Bangalore were in the future to be legally reclaimed by the corrupted ISKCON, the Bangalore devotees would vacate and relocate elsewhere, leaving the glass and steel temple building to the clueless ISKCON Bombay men who would surely be hard pressed to utilize it due to their own lack of manpower and spiritual vision.

ISKCON OF LONG ISLAND SECEDES IN 2004

In 2004 Nimai Pandit das came to the ISKCON Long Island temple in the New York suburbs to help an old friend who was the temple president there. Soon the temple was turned over to him and he found himself in charge of an ISKCON center, building, congregation, and incorporation, which, he discovered, was the original ISKCON 1966 corporation which ostensibly "owned" the BBT and the copyrights to Srila Prabhupada's books. He took it as Krishna's arrangement and declared independence from ISKCON. Lawsuits back and forth ensued, and court struggles continue as ISKCON has not been able to dislodge Nimai Pandit and other Prabhupada Anugas from the Freeport ISKCON temple property and board of directors. Nimai Pandit ambitiously sought to gain legal control of the BBT and Srila Prabhupada's book copyrights by suing ISKCON in court. ISKCON New York organized several physical invasions of the temple building, resulting in police intervention and a protective restraining order. As in Bangalore, much hinged on legal documentation and corporate records. An account from 2006: "...the judge examined the by laws of the Freeport Temple, which just happened to be Srila Prabhupada's original incorporation papers of New York, which created Iskcon Inc. The judge did not find any reference in the bylaws of the existence or authority of the GBC, nor did the bylaws reference the Direction of Management which the GBC had brought with them as proof of their Absolute Authority!...For that reason, the judge said, 'I do not know if you have any authority over any other Iskcon temple, but you clearly have no legal authority over THIS one...' (Nara Narayana das)

It is uncertain what will come of these legal cases. If not for the possibility to rescue the BBT and book copyrights from the corrupted ISKCON, the mediocre temple building in Freeport, NY may not have been worth all the trouble that has ensued, and the seceding congregation could have just relocated. Recently the Long Island devotees expanded with a farm project up the Hudson River valley and continue with their legal ordeal.

MASS DEFECTION IN CHISTCHURCH ISKCON IN NEW ZEALAND

The account of the defection of the bulk of the Christchurch, New Zealand ISKCON temple back to Srila Prabhupada in 2006 is told by Hanuman das, the former temple president: "I first joined ISKCON in 1988, just after Bhavananda was exposed. New Zealand was his zone, and re-initiation was introduced; multiple new gurus came. Soon most devotees were re-initiated. I married and in 1996 became Temple President of ISKCON Christchurch. I witnessed things the general devotees remain unaware of. I became increasingly concerned with the misbehavior and fall down of many new gurus and openly expressed those concerns. I also witnessed a general lacking in devotional practices among our local senior community members. To be honest, I found that even after many years I just couldn't put my heart into my service. At this time I had also begun questioning the need to have anyone between Srila Prabhupada and myself. This became so acute that I stopped putting the picture of my "guru" on the altar when I performed arati (as is the custom in ISKCON temples). Later our temple set up a management committee, and although I remained TP I had more freedom to concentrate my energies on preaching, which was really where my heart was. Unfortunately preaching meant bringing people to ISKCON, which I now considered a dysfunctional society. Myself and Gokulachandra then set up an independent preaching centre alongside our temple. After some time we took over our Govinda's Restaurant, which was in the heart of the city, turning the upstairs into a preaching centre.

"Quickly new devotees began to join and I was personally responsible for their spiritual lives. Naturally after time some wanted to take initiation. I was perplexed, as Temple President I was obligated to write a letter of recommendation to the particular ISKCON guru on behalf of the aspiring disciple! I consulted the former Temple President and he suggested I could write a 'no-objection letter,' rather than a letter of 'recommendation.' I was working with Devamrita Swami for years, since his return to ISKCON. Later he became an ISKCON guru and relocated many of his frontline men to our temple, who we learned, were intent on turning our preaching centre and temple into his disciple factory. When I objected, Devamrita Swami turned on me. Through his disciples he began to take control of the temple and created a lot of friction. I had my team of loyal devotees and we weren't about to have all our hard work snatched from us. Devamrita Swami withdrew from our temple taking his disciples with him. These were tough times, but nonetheless we were determined to push on. But the Swami didn't leave us alone, he seemed determined to finish us off. We didn't have time for politics. We were running everything, the puja, sadhana program, all aspects of the temple, restaurant and preaching centre. The end of my time in ISKCON is the saddest event of my life and convinced me to leave the movement never to return. In 2006 my wife was diagnosed with terminal cancer and passed in six weeks. Just then Devamrita and Ramai Swamis teamed up to remove me from my position. Of course I was in a weak state and they knew it. Our crew of ten devotees held a meeting, and chose to abandon ship.

"Somehow we secured the restaurant and preaching centre and cut our connection with the temple and ISKCON. Gokulachandra and I started our research on ISKCON's history and were surprised how little we knew of the events after Srila Prabhupada's departure. We were looking for direction for our team. Without being in ISKCON anymore we felt somewhat insecure. I attended some local Narayan Maharaja programs and I saw they were also trying to replace Srila Prabhupada. One day Gokulachandra found the website of Srila Prabhupada's Hare Krishna Society. We were both impressed with the maturity of the presentation and the devotees involved. I wrote to Yasodanandana and he encouraged us to realign ourselves with Srila Prabhupada. About one year after leaving ISKCON we saw the July 9th letter for the first time, it was like we had been living in the dark. We were convinced and wrote letters to our respective so-called gurus, rejecting them based on Srila Prabhupada's teachings. We hoped to start some businesses in the city and financially support ourselves. We opened several cafes, a Health Store and Yoga Centre. But after time we decided that it would be better to live on the land and raise our children away from the madness of city life. The father of one of our devotees offered to purchase and then lease us some land with the idea that we would eventually purchase it. We condensed down to the original restaurant and health store. We were struggling just to stay afloat when someone offered to purchase the restaurant. The sale of the restaurant would leave us virtually debt free and ready to move onto the new farm. Unfortunately just two days before the sale went through a massive earthquake killing 180 people hit Christchurch. The restaurant was destroyed and we had cancelled our insurance. Salvaging whatever we could from the restaurant we relocated here to Motueka near Nelson." / The Prabhupada Anuga farm project continues there today and Hanuman has branched out to start a temple in nearby Nelson. He is remarried, preaching, and happy in Srila Prabhupada's service with ISKM.

RESTORE OR REBUILD SRILA PRABHUPADA'S ISKCON?

We have discussed the necessity and means of restoring Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON institution, with a removal of the GBC misleadership and a time of enlightenment. Of course, efforts to enlighten one another is always possible in so many ways, but the removal of the corrupted "power elite" may not be possible in the foreseeable future. After all, the GBC and gurus have been solidifying their entrenched positions for decades. Despite all good efforts and intentions, it may simply not be Krishna's plan to restore the original ISKCON. Two quotes on this: (1) "If you are working for Krishna, it is Krishna's desire if you be successful or not successful. Here it is, the word is used, asiddhau. That means don't think that because you are Krishna conscious, you will be always successful. No. It doesn't matter. Even if you are unsuccessful, you must know it firmly that without Krishna's desire nothing can happen. If you are unsuccessful, then you should... That is Krishna conscious... You should know also that 'It is Krishna's desire.' [...] So there is no question of being depressed because you are unsuccessful. A devotee is never depressed in the horrible condition of life..." (SP Lecture Apr 11, 1974) (2) "So don't be depressed. Try to please Krishna. That's all. That is our only business. That is our only business, whether Krishna is satisfied or not. Then it is, everything, all right." (SP Lecture Apr. 7 1976)

ISKCON's restoration might have had its last chance in 1986 when the guru reform movement was subverted by Tamal and other successor acharyas who saw that the times were changing, and adapted themselves to the coming changes such that their guru regime could continue, although modified. That was 35 years ago. Today almost all second level managers and leaders in ISKCON are loyal disciples of the ISKCON gurus. How many are there in ISKCON that would see the need for deposing the corrupt GBC-guru power elite structure? This is the key question facing any attempt to restore ISKCON as it should be. But just as the UK surprised everyone by leaving the European Union, and the brash Donald Trump surprised everyone by winning as US president, similarly, we should not underestimate the sincerity and intelligence of the rank and file devotees, whether in or out of ISKCON. If we keep the flame of truth burning, the faithful will respond. "So many of us have been jaded now for so many decades we inherently feel that things will never change for the better, but get only worse in ISKCON. For the most part, those who are already there in ISKCON are the cheaters and the cheated, so how can we expect quality leadership and proper understanding from this group? If they were sincere, they would have left already. This is a very difficult problem- getting rid of the mismanagers and shifting to an interim system. ISKCON could not get away with what they have been doing without a lot of local help in the form of second level yes-men. Then the same problems will occur again. The entire management needs to be cleaned out. This will be a very complicated business." (Damaghosh das, 2016)

"I believe there are real difficulties in reforming the maya-iskcon. Main problem: It is full of so many who have tolerated and become complicit in many offenses and apa-siddhanta deviations. As in early ISKCON, many leaders try to keep the devotees as busy as possible so they can do more 'service' and don't have time to read Srila Prabhupada's books or hear his tapes. Or, if they get some time, they are encouraged to read the books or hear the tapes of other iskcon leaders. The current TPs and GBC in maya-iskcon may be mostly just yes-men for their gurus. Most of them, even old-time 'Prabhupada men' have become complicit, or 'on the take' -just to try to squeeze what ever money or followers they can get out of the dying, materialistic iskcon institution. The problem with restoration of the current ISKCON is that most temple presidents are disciples of current Iskurus and many also are on salary. Maya-iskcon is rotten to the core, and may need to be totally rejected. Who can reform them? It seems they are beyond hope. Preaching to them may even constitute the offense of 'preaching the glories of the Holy Name to the faithless...' All of them need to be cleaned out of Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON, and how can that be achieved? What would be left to reform?" (Narasimha das, 2016)

If ISKCON is reformable or not, meantime, there is the two prong strategy that Srila Prabhupada's followers can adopt in the restoration of the Mission: (1) Take back any ISKCON temples for Srila Prabhupada (2) Establish new SP centers, temples, congregations, farms, home programs.

SEARCH AND RESCUE OPERATIONS FOR THE NEW ISKCON

Many devotees believe the restoration of Srila Prabhupada's mission is already taking place with the emergence of increasing Prabhupada Anuga devotees and temples. Narasimha das, 2016:

*"Some devotees in ISKCON Bangalore who wanted to drink the GBC Kool Aid left and went over to the maya-iskcon. That housecleaning has already happened. Those who knew siddhanta well enough stayed on. Simple sifting process. So it may be better to take ISKCON Bangalore and other Prabhupada Anugas as the restored ISKCON. There may be minor details to polish up here and there, but at least no necessity of revamping from top to bottom. Compared to the Ravana-sabha maya-iskcon, Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON Bangalore Group and other Prabhupada Anugas are a bright beacon of hope. At some point these groups will begin to attract sincere devotees still in and around maya-iskcon. That would be the restoration everyone's been hoping for, and it's already happening by Krishna's arrangement. But in iskcon India as well as pockets in the West, there are those who understand Srila Prabhupada is the guru, keeping their heads down and somehow avoiding offenses. Prabhupada Anugas need to rescue them, and give them shelter in Prabhupada's ISKCON. But hope of finding survivors at this late date is getting scarce. On perhaps an even bleaker note: In this day and computer age most people don't have the focus to read anything carefully. Even professional media writers have a hard time writing anything coherent. People don't even read the news anymore but watch little video clips. Thoughtful devotees are scarce these days. Almost everyone is distracted. Few will study a 1500 pg history book. This book may be more valuable in the future. Am I too pessimistic?"

SRILA PRABHUPADA IS CALLING: "KINDLY HELP ME"

For those still participating in the "maya ISKCON," it is encouraged they closely study the issues of the times (poisoning, gurus, initiation, abuse, book changes...) to arrive at a considered evaluation by which to decide their own futures. The atmosphere of fear and oppression in ISKCON that has prevailed for many decades has stunted its members' spiritual growth and held them back from understanding Srila Prabhupada's siddhanta. However, anyone can privately research these issues through Facebook, YouTube, devotee discussions on many websites, and email communications. Are those still in or around ISKCON sure that they have not been misled, confused by deviations and offenses? They should judge for themselves by using their own powers of intelligence and discrimination, and not be kept in the dark, fed the manure of deviant doctrines. For those who left the maya ISKCON it is now strenuously encouraged to consider the alternatives available in the many Prabhupada Anuga groups around the world. Foremost is the ISKCON Bangalore Group of 30 temples and 1000 resident initiated devotees, with congregations in the tens of thousands (3000 initiated by Srila Prabhupada), but there are also other groups in Jaipur, Malaysia, London, Alachua, Singapore, Canada, USA, etc. Correspond or visit with a group of choice for affiliation and collaborate in the restoration of Srila Prabhupada's Mission. Move closer to one of these groups, or sponsor/assist them to come to your area to develop new centers. There is no more need for exile or retirement. A very bright light at the end of the tunnel beckons the diaspora of disenfranchised and scattered followers of Srila Prabhupada to become reactivated in Krishna's pure devotional service by associating with others who have surrendered to the instructions of the pure devotee. These Prabhupada Anuga groups such as Bangalore ISKCON can be visited in person or online. Make connections with the growing family in a restored ISKCON worldwide (see Ch. 194).

STARTING YOUR OWN HARE KRISHNA CENTER FOR SRILA PRABHUPADA

In 1967 Mukunda and Janaki left the first New York temple for the West Coast with a request from Srila Prabhupada to start a new center there. Srila Prabhupada's desire was realized as the San Francisco temple manifested with great success. Thereafter devotees courageously went all over the world to start temples. In a few years, new centers were worldwide: Montreal (Hanuman), Buffalo (Rupanuga), Santa Fe (Subal), Los Angeles (Dayananda), London (Shyamasundar, Mukunda, Gurudas and wives), Hamburg (Krishna das), Boston (Satsvarupa), Detroit (Bhagavan), New Orleans (Nityananda), Toronto (Jagadish), Miami (Sridam), South Africa (Ksuddhi), Sydney (Bali Mardan), Fiji (Upendra), Hong Kong (Bhurijana), Hawaii (Govinda dasi).

In Radha Damodar Vilasa, Vaiyasaki describes how Visnujana Swami peppered Texas with new centers by going alone and simply sitting down in public to chant Hare Krishna mantra, give a short talk, sell some of Srila Prabhupada's books, and distribute prasadam. Houston, Austin, San Antonio. This early-days spirit of preaching for Srila Prabhupada was immensely successful because of the simple faith these devotees had in Srila Prabhupada and Lord Krishna. This can happen again, anywhere, if we try to establish new centers for Srila Prabhupada. In this endeavor there is no diminution or loss. The prescription is basic, easy to execute. Kirtan, some philosophy, prasadam, the original books. It does not require one be a sannyasi, charismatic, or a good speaker. Srila Prabhupada said that people will be attracted by our sincerity. We can neglect our economic development, our material comforts, and enjoyments if necessary, but usually it is not necessary to neglect these things. Only we must make a determined effort to please Srila Prabhupada by bringing lost souls to his lotus feet. We can read about how ISKCON expanded in the early days and become inspired. We can at least invite friends and neighbors to our homes and have kirtan, reading, and prasadam, as a starting point. This is Nama Hatta, or Bhaktivinode Thakur's idea of Krishna consciousness spreading out from the homes of devotees. Just do it. If one is more adventurous and bold, he may go somewhere and start a center, just as was done by Srila Prabhupada when he went to New York in 1965, or like Chitsukananda going to Mexico City. For those with the courage to go and open new centers, following in the footsteps of previous devotees, the rewards and blessings are very great. The world is full of untouched countries, cities, towns, and villages where few have yet heard the Holy Names. The field is still wide open. Srila Prabhupada said that if we do not take the credit by preaching Krishna consciousness, then someone else will, because it is the desire of Lord Chaitanya that this be spread all over the world. Bali Mardan described going to Tokyo in 1970:

"Japan: our imagination gave way to reality. Wandering through narrow Tokyo lanes, we searched for a room at various Japanese inns, one that would fit into our frugal budget. Communication with the Japanese was difficult, but we finally made some headway and moved into a small tatami mat room with futons. Having found a temporary base of operations, we proceeded to gather as much information as we could about our environment. Shinjuku, Shibuya and Ginza were three areas that we suspected would be very important to our preaching work. [...] divided into different precincts, each with its own special characteristics and qualities."

Srila Prabhupada wrote Bali Mardan who pioneered the Pacific Rim: (1) "May Krishna bless you for your growing enterprise to broadcast this Movement. This kind of transcendental enthusiasm is the basic impetus for Krishna Consciousness. My Guru Maharaja used to say, 'One who has got life, he can preach.'" (2) "But I do not think you should spend your time at this stage of life in trying to learn so many different local languages. That is not practical for us. Our most successful program is to begin preaching with the help of an interpreter from the local people and later train up some intelligent men who speak English. When they are conversant with our philosophy, they can preach to the general public. The Hare Krishna Mantra is international mantra. Simply try to induce people to chant and they will understand everything. Externally, English language is understood everywhere. Your enthusiasm for starting centres for educating the people of the world in this sublime Krishna Consciousness process is very good. You are actually the authorized agent of my Guru Maharaja and through him, Lord Chaitanya, who predicted that in every town and village of the world His Name will be well known, and you are trying for fulfilling His mission- certainly He will give you all strength and blessings. We simply have to work sincerely and automatically all other things will come." (3) "It is for your daring and active nature that I have chosen you [...] as GBC man for the Southeast Asia zone, and I can see from your latest words that my choice has not been wrong. I think that Singapore and Hong Kong are English-speaking places, so that you will not find much difficulty there. So just open two nice centres immediately and that will link-up our chain of centres around the world. The basic principle of our actions should be that they are all meant for pleasing Krishna. If we act always in this consciousness automatically everyone will be attracted to devotional service, and this is the secret of our preaching work. If you simply practice the regulative principles which I have introduced, you will remain pure. Factually this is our only strength."

AFFILIATE WITH A SRILA PRABHUPADA FOCUSED ORGANIZATION

Some Prabhupada Anugas organized the Hare Krishna Society in 2001 as an alternative organization to the corrupted ISKCON. Upon receiving the mission statement, a devotee wrote: "It has a purity of intent to carry it for 10,000 years. Besides love for Srila Prabhupada and his precepts, we see a gathering of minds that walked away from the illegal 'inheritance' in preference for the eternal Acharya. Is this the real ISKCON, amongst exiles, those who chose the wilderness? Sages say the truth lives in the introspective, as those who don't remember (or don't know) the past are condemned to repeat it." HKS welcomes affiliation with anyone agreeing to a short list, e.g., Srila Prabhupada being the current link and no changes to his books. Guidance and advice is available by email/website those who wish to serve Srila Prabhupada with a home program, center, farm, or temple. There are now HKS chapters worldwide, and it is hoped this affiliation principle wherein local devotees remain independent but have good association will become widespread.

CONCLUSION: PLAN B FOR ISKCON RESTORATION

Devaki dasi Sept. 3, 2019: "90% of Srila Prabhupada's disciples left 'ISKCON' for good reasons. Only a handful are left who have been given so called authoritative positions, one of which I had in the late 80's and gave it up for a very good reason! I tried to use my position to make changes because I could feel and see what was going on. Believe me, it was not good. And I could not do much to stop it so I left. Or should I say, escaped! Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON is now beginning to flourish outside of 'ISKCON.' There are lots of de-institutionalized centers who are carrying on the mission as Srila Prabhupada wanted it. The original institution has manipulative leaders who are polluting ISKCON and its members. The sincere will eventually see this; others want to be cheated. Outside, thousands are carrying on properly. There will always be this Kuruksetra battle. Study Srila Prabhupadas books and then decide which side you want to be on. The truth or deception? 'After the time of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, those faithful to Him kept apart from non devotees, to avoid contamination. Seeing this, the personality of Kali sent his representatives in disguise to pollute the Vaishnava sampradaya. Posing as Vaishnavas, they spread their wicked doctrines, and appeared so intelligent and devoted that only pure devotees could detect their real identity.'" (Bhaktisiddhanta: Sajana Toshani 18.2.13-4)

The corrupted ISKCON may very well careen into the future as the confederated deviant guru franchise that it is. Krishna may allow ISKCON as a place for the materially motivated to make-believe themselves diksha gurus and fulfill their perverted desires, while their chanting purifies them eventually. At least the misguided persons in ISKCON are engaged somewhat in the process of bhaktiyoga, even though they have deviated. Krishna makes arrangements to facilitate all sorts of desires in this material world, including the desire to be a false guru. It may be best to recognize corrupted ISKCON as a facility for the gradual progress of these persons.

So we should try to establish new Hare Krishna centers based on Srila Prabhupada's siddhanta. Whether we use our homes to invite others for spiritual programs of kirtan, reading Srila Prabhupada's books, and prasadam, or we start dedicated centers, we should try to spread Lord Chaitanya's teachings and Srila Prabhupada's mercy to others. We cannot simply lament that the temple we used to visit is now lost to a corrupted institution, as though there were no recourse. In the early days of ISKCON, as soon as a devotee had been trained for a year or less, they were sent out to a new city to start preaching and establish another temple for Srila Prabhupada. Those days were very ecstatic and spiritually rewarding. There is no reason why those transcendental adventures cannot happen today. In any condition or status of life, a devotee who has become a little fixed in the philosophy and teachings of Srila Prabhupada, can start a new center. This is how to rebuild and restore the lost mission. There are billions of lost human souls who need Krishna consciousness. And if the old ISKCON is somehow restored, then all these efforts and successes will be part of its expansion. Even where there are already ISKCON centers, there is plenty of space and population to support new centers. E.g., in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, there are three separate Bangalore ISKCON centers and three different Jayapataka ISKCON centers, plus other Gaudiya Vaishnava centers as well, all well-attended. "Srila Prabhupada was always enthusiastic to push his disciples forward and to see them advance in Krishna consciousness. Hearing and chanting are the two most important processes in advancing in Krishna consciousness. He wanted his disciples to hear from him, but then he wanted them to take the responsibility and preach by repeating what they had heard. Even if devotees were not very advanced or philosophically realized he wanted them to give classes and speak their realizations of Krishna consciousness. He would encourage quite new devotees to go off to another city or country to establish a temple there.” (Madhudhvisa das, younger, 1995)

Due to the uncertainty of ISKCON’s restoration, we should move forward on the parallel tracks of (1) saving ISKCON and (2) building a new mission. These are some practical reflections upon the restoration of Srila Prabhupada’s Mission. No one knows what is Krishna’s plan. Discussions on this issue should inspire and energize devotees to serve Srila Prabhupada.

---

CHAPTER 168: LEGALITIES AND PRACTICALITIES

One very practical consideration always in the background of any situation, act, or speech (like this set of two books) is legal liability. We have already been threatened with legal recourse for supposed libel. Rights of free speech do not always protect. Our two books follow common sense and the available evidence, and do not whimsically accuse anyone nor intend to libel anyone. Speaking truth bluntly may appear like libel as we interpolate what seems obvious from the evidence. Of course, almost everything in these books, aside from the unique forensic tests and some interviews, is already public and online. Any libel suit brought by someone who does not like what they read in our two books would necessarily be deposed and cross-examined under oath to disclose the truth in all matters. E.g., if the GBC, Gopal Krishna, Jayapataka, or Bhavananda thought they should take to legal avenues against Prabhupada Truth Committee, this would become a legal forum for their interrogation as parties of interest in Srila Prabhupada’s poisoning. While proclaiming their innocence, they would be under oath and penalty of perjury to tell the truth of their involvement in or knowledge of the poisoning of His Divine Grace, if any. Their coverups and ardent denials would unravel if they should initiate any legal action. Nevertheless, we proceed cautiously, careful not to make mistaken accusations in a litigious world without being prepared to defend them in court. It is a big jump from establishing the crime, which we have done, to a legal conviction, which is done in the secular arena. Hopefully that will happen soon.

LEGAL AVENUES VS THE ENLIGHTENED AVENUE

Many think of an investigation into Srila Prabhupada’s poisoning as a legal matter, that the evidence be developed and fed into either criminal or civil court actions, to prosecute and convict the poisoners, etc. Whether this actually happens remains to be seen. When mundane courts move to uphold spiritual justice, that is great, although rare. It is unpredictable how mundane courts and law enforcement would handle the massive circumstantial evidence against Tamal or Bhakticharu if they were still living. But other key persons of interest remain alive as of 2022. However, our primary aim is not mundane justice. Rather, it is that all devotees may know the factual poisoning evidence to understand ISKCON history and how the poisoners hijacked ISKCON which resulted in its present corrupted condition as a gurocracy. Meanwhile, it is logical to try and discuss Srila Prabhupada’s poisoning and other fundamental issues in the court of public or devotee opinion, regardless of and in addition to any legal actions. Mundane courts of law are ill-equipped and perhaps inappropriate venues for realizing the type of full justice that is required in these spiritual issues. Poisoners may be convicted, but what about restoring the mission to spiritual purity or understanding who is the diksha guru? Beyond legal convictions, far more important is the purification and restoration of the Mission, which courts cannot accomplish. Putting too much weight on a mundane court’s ruling would risk leaving the real justice that the Movement needs unserved. Even in mundane cases, justice is 50-50, as we often see the guilty go free or the innocent falsely convicted due to the legal and technical maneuvers of clever and expensive lawyers. In the poisoning “issue,” there are considerations of far greater import than simply convicting the poisoners. The greater need in spiritual justice is that the damage wrought upon Srila Prabhupada's mission is corrected, and the Hare Krishna Movement be restored to its healthy spiritual condition as it was during Prabhupada's physical presence. Mundane courts cannot help with this very much, as we see in the Bangalore vs Mumbai ISKCON case where the India Supreme Court is stumped with the religious dispute.

The first step is always to discover the truth, the next is to disseminate it. Was the crime committed, how was it done, and by whom? What is the evidence, who are the suspects? Who aided, abetted, and covered-up the crime? Why do the denials and coverups continue: what is at stake? Not only cleanse Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON of the poisoners, but also all the deviations introduced by the poisoners since 1977. How to restore the mission to its proper spiritual health effectively and properly? As we cannot expect to expand Krishna consciousness by legal means and through court cases, neither we will be able to achieve the restoration of Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON in that way. It will require a spiritual revolution by enlightened devotees who are inspired to honestly serve Srila Prabhupada's desires. This is examined in Ch. 175.

WHAT ABOUT THE LEGALITIES OF REJECTING GBC CONTROL?

"My sense in 2001 was, if I continued strongly, and fought the battles that needed to be fought, we (the Alachua devotee community) would have succeeded to fully disaffiliate from the GBC. My understanding is that, even with the 1994 GBC amendments to the Alachua incorporation documents, legally it would have still been possible to disaffiliate from the GBC corporation in West Bengal." (Dhira Govinda das, 2017) Each temple situation may have unique circumstances, and local devotees will need to ascertain the legalities of their local disaffiliation from the GBC. We should keep in mind that the ISKCON leadership cannot possibly afford nor handle more than a couple of legal actions at a time in blocking a widespread revolt against its leadership and legal authority. No one should be intimidated by their threats or by their supposed legal arrangements intended to thwart our overthrow of their tyrannical regime. They are pushing on a string.

DO WE AIM FOR GOING TO COURT TO TRY THE POISONING SUSPECTS?

"As for us going to court... the poisoning issue going to court is unlikely and probably unproductive, problematic, exhaustively expensive. The Gaudiya Math went to court and what happened? Any victories? How can the mundane legal system give us a restoration of Prabhupada's Mission? It can only be accomplished by pure preaching and faithful following. Go to court to prove that Prabhupada was poisoned? We cannot convict a dead Tamal. But if India's law enforcement does an investigation, that will be very different." (Anonymous)

We know there were poisoners, but who were they all, for sure? We highly suspect some, have plenty circumstantial evidence, and even if some of these suspects were somehow convicted and sent to jail, others will then carry on ISKCON just as it has been since 1977. So what will be gained? We are not on a crusade after certain individuals. We want a restoration of the Mission. The full truth of Srila Prabhupada's poisoning can be achieved with an honest investigation, and the results could provoke a full house cleaning of ISKCON through a collapse of the repressive GBC tyranny and a profound institutional soul-searching process. A class-action civil suit may be also feasible, but in itself is unlikely to restore Srila Prabhupada's Mission. It may be a waste of time to overly belabor legal procedures. We are an enlightenment campaign to dislodge the hijackers and purify the movement. However, if the Indian government undertook a criminal investigation into Srila Prabhupada's poisoning, as they should, since that is their responsibility, the crime would be confirmed by secular authorities and methods and no one could any longer deny the crime. The culprits may be identified and apprehended. A secular confirmation would be very welcome and be very favorable for positive outcomes in restoring ISKCON. These two books are meant to cover everything factual, evidential, and philosophical about Srila Prabhupada's disappearance pastimes, and tie that in to what happened to ISKCON after 1977. The aim is to awaken and educate devotees, facilitate a spiritual reformation and restoration, but not go to mundane courts unnecessarily. These books are also meant to be a theological and historical work. Our fight with the deviated ISKCON is mostly a propaganda war, to establish facts and truths against lies and deception. Although many prefer to “feel” the truth rather than undertake a deep analysis of all issues, with our thorough, straightforward, and simple presentation, anyone can easily understand the facts and evidence.

ARE SRILA PRABHUPADA’S INSTRUCTIONS LEGALLY BINDING?

Mrigendra das wrote in Dec. 2010 on the Sampradaya Sun about a strictly mundane, legalistic point of view how the DOM was probably not legally binding under the laws of the US. (Devotees refer to it as a “legal document.”) Ameyatma das responded in 2012: “Srla Prabhupada, and his teachings, his books, have jurisdiction over his followers. The laws of the US, written by materialistic and conditioned souls who are caught up in the throngs of maya and sense enjoyment, have authority by means of physical force via law enforcement who administer punitive measures levied by the courts. Srla Prabhupada, on the other hand, has the right to administer justice, via his teachings, to discern what is actually right and wrong in accordance with the divine law, Sanatan Dharma, which is legislated by the Supreme Personality of Godhead and His representatives, the Manus (Manu Samhita) and saintly acharyas. Ultimately, Divine Law is enforced by demigods such as Yamaraja, Durgadevi, etc. Srla Prabhupada is given such Divine Authority by the Supreme Godhead Himself. For those who have the proper understanding, we are not wrong or naive when we refer to Srla Prabhupada’s formal writings such as the DOM or July 9 Order as being ‘legal’ documents.

“At some point in the future, Srla Prabhupada’s teachings, his books especially, shall become the law books for this world. Yet, Srla Prabhupada’s followers have, at the present time, accepted Srla Prabhupada’s teachings, his books, written and verbal instructions, as the laws that govern our lives. Srla Prabhupada’s teachings definitely have full jurisdiction over those who follow him. Mrigendra’s opinion is that such documents are not viewed as ‘legal’ within the jurisdiction of modern US law and its court system. However, as followers of Srla Prabhupada we must understand that this concept is superfluous to our lives. The current legal system may rule as they please. It may be that Srla Prabhupada’s instructions do not have ‘authority’ in US Courts, nor would a judicial court rule on the basis of his teachings (but that day will come). Yet, we must not lose sight that Srla Prabhupada’s teachings do hold full authority over our lives and over the ISKCON mission that he founded. Just as Manu is the law giver of mankind, Srla Prabhupada is the law giver for his followers and ISKCON. Within the circle of Srla Prabhupada’s followers and movement, we must accept Srla Prabhupada’s teachings as our LAW. Thus, the DOM most certainly is an ISKCON ‘legal’ document, as is the ‘Topmost Urgency’ and July 9 documents. Also, to refer to the DOM or Topmost Urgency documents as ‘letters’ has the effect of reducing their importance from an official binding document or signed order/decreed by the Founder-Acharya, to just an important letter of personal correspondence. Srla Prabhupada fully intended and expected us to accept the mandates in these documents as binding. They are Divine Decree, Divine Law, given by His Divine Grace, the Founder-Acharya of ISKCON. These are documents he clearly expected our society and its system of governance to adhere to without fail and without minimizing their significance. Courts may rule Srla Prabhupada’s teachings have no authority in their courts, but, in OUR Lives, and in Srla Prabhupada’s ISKCON mission His Divine Grace’s teachings are the only laws his followers accept as valid. This highlights the inherent flaw of taking our internal ISKCON issues, or controversies, to the modern non-devotee courts of law to decide what is right or binding etc. The flaws are many, and deep, and thus decisions made by the modern courts concerning our internal affairs, especially in regards to Srla Prabhupada and his teachings, can be destructive to our society and to the future of the world.

“Courts of mundane law, manned by non-devotees, have no qualifications to pass judgement on Srla Prabhupada or even remotely attempt to define the limits of his authority. Are we to look to modern US or World ‘Law’ to determine how ISKCON is to be managed, or are we to turn to Srla Prabhupada’s teachings, especially those formally written documents intended by him for how his society is to be managed? It is dangerous to try and settle the internal controversies of the ISKCON mission in the modern courts. The judges and attorneys do not follow the principles of religious life. They are conditioned souls firmly caught in the grips of illusion. Many are atheists, and certainly they are not Krishna conscious. Taking our internal issues to such courts is wrong, useless. What is sad is when the GBC will not allow or engage in open discussions with many of Srila Prabhupad's senior disciples. They engage in their private meetings and make their final decisions and then declare all other opinion as deviant and coming from bitter, envious fallen rascals, to be disdained.” (END)

COMMENTS ABOUT LEGALITIES FROM RUPANUGA DAS, FORMER GBC

“Regarding the book change issue, which has been around for decades, and still not a single leader in Iskcon has spoken against them in public, although BEHIND THE SCENES a number of them are against it. Similarly, in your case, some ‘leaders’ have intimated to you that they are favorable to your cause, which is air-tight forensically, but they remain BEHIND THE SCENES. That is the problem, vested interests run very deep in Iskcon, which has become an infrastructure for many in earning a means of livelihood. And there are many thousands of brain-washed new devotees, who are dedicated to supporting a corrupt system presented to them as the real thing. Pragmatically put, Iskcon has completely morphed from the one we joined. There will be no justice inside the Iskcon society in this matter any more than there has been regarding the abuse and loss of a generation and the defacing of Srila Prabhupada's books. All these issues, including Srila Prabhupada's disappearance, have been going on for decades without justice in sight. Even the Turley suit only netted the 750 victims a few thousand dollars each, hardly expected to mend the psychological damage, and that was forced upon Iskcon from an outside source! But I believe there is enough evidence to make a case in Indian courts. There is no statute of limitations on murder. Srila Prabhupada has become famous in India since 1977, more than ever. Indian government, unlike the US, has a courts history of getting involved with religious traditions, temple management, sadhus, festivals which attract tourists, etc. Of course, Iskcon has its life member connections deep in the Indian society and Jayapataka Swami has many followers and connections, and bribery is rife. But I believe, at least there could be a tremendous upheaval that you could not get outside of India. Even if justice is incomplete as far as the culprits are concerned, getting the truth out is in itself a major victory, if Krishna so desires. It could even add to the popularity of Srila Prabhupada and his books to the point of questioning the morality of changing the writings of such a great soul after his passing. In any case, I don't expect the new Iskcon rank and file to get riled up about it and so far, the majority of Srila Prabhupada's disciples are looking the other way. But a big blow-up in India could change the dynamics, to a point we may not be able to imagine now. At this point, I think any game-changing support expected from devotees, without an external impetus of some kind it is a naive expectation to expect any kind of revolt internally. Krishna acted once through the courts in a major way with the case won against BBT(i), with a mandated license to publish the pre-1978 books, which are proving to be the vehicle of the parampara, in spite of a morphed Iskcon. It may be possible to get some kind of an intervention from the Indian government. Go for it.” (July, 2017)

COMING COLLAPSE OF CORRUPTED ISKCON

As has been seen in the history of societies and civilizations in Kali Yuga, empires and regimes rise and fall. Although the final stages can be rapid and violent, the collapse is gradual and occurs over years and decades. Because of gradualism, the collapse is usually imperceptible to the people. Only a handful observe the increasing degeneration leading to the end of a regime like the ISKCON GBC-guru elite cartel. There are parallels in the collapse of the Western countries led by America and the collapse of the ISKCON institution that was corrupted and exploited by those who poisoned Srila Prabhupada and their followers, supporters, and imitators. Stratfor, the globalist think tank for multinational corporations, cited The Rise and Fall of the Great Powers, pointing out that all western powers since 1500 AD fell after being drawn into foreign entanglements that consumed their wealth. This created underinvestment in domestic needs, sending the country into an economic and social decline that emboldened enemies, with a cycle of more war and oppression. Similarly, ISKCON has evolved into a confederation of guru franchises, each being quite alienated and “foreign” to each other, with the primary focus on recruiting of disciples and funds while neglecting the instructions of Srila Prabhupada and the cultivation of Krishna consciousness with deviant doctrines. This has weakened the spiritual strength of the members as the misleaders develop private estates, and ISKCON is gradually deprived of its health, life, assets, and vitality, canvassing for new sychophants and future wannabee gurus. This will lead to an eventual collapse of ISKCON due to spiritual decline.

In The Collapse of Complex Societies, author Joseph Tainter suggested that empires collapse following a loss of confidence in the ruling elite and traditional institutions. This idea was echoed in the book, Empire and Civilization by Niall Ferguson. There is a direct connection between debauching of the currency and the moral and social breakdown of society. America is experiencing all three simultaneously: engagement in multiple foreign entanglements (wars), loss of confidence in the ruling elite and traditional institutions, and debasement of the currency. Similarly ISKCON members are experiencing a loss of confidence in their ruling elite, the GBC-guru cartel, due to scandals, corruption, and deviations, to the point where faith in the institution is lost. The watering down of the philosophy, the slackening of spiritual standards, and minimization of Srila Prabhupada into the background as an irrelevant previous acharya- all this corresponds to the currency debasement, the degradation of morality, and the relegation of the US Constitution into oblivion with dishonest interpretations. Eventually corrupted societies like the US and ISKCON collapse in a revolution. This book has documented ISKCON’s horrendous history and how it became corrupted. Upon maya-ISKCON’s eventual collapse, the transcendental Mission will be greatly relieved and enabled.

Today’s devaluation of the currency is undeclared war between government and the people, all under the umbrella of patriotism and benevolence. When central banks create trillions of dollars called “quantitative easing,” this dilutes and reduces the value of all currency in circulation, transferring wealth to the government. This is stealth warfare against the common people, impoverishes the middle class, and leads to economic collapse. Many see the chaos and feel the economic oppression, but they refuse to believe the cause and thus sanction their own enslavement while in the middle of decadence masquerading as civilization. Social and economic oppression closes in, but we accept it under all manner of rationalization and indoctrination.

Similarly, ISKCON’s mission drift and rampant disobedience of the Founder-Acharya is the exploitation of the membership by self-aggrandizing misleaders, all done under the umbrella of preaching and unity. As almost everyone hopes to become a diksha guru, this dilutes the value of the true mahabhagawata and cheapens the role of the spiritual master (guru devaluation). Finally everyone declares themselves an initiating guru, no one is attracted to such a devalued institution, and ISKCON collapses as the guru Ponzi scheme implodes. ISKCON members cannot recognize these trends and will continue to rely on the miscreant GBC until late in the game, when they will revolt, reject them or worse. Meanwhile the purity and philosophic siddhanta that Srila Prabhupada imparted becomes compromised to facilitate the stealth of the institutional assets by the increasing numbers of privileged elite until they themselves finally become the common membership. Misleadership always results in ruination for the people. Leading up to the final collapse of ISKCON, as is taking place in the decline of Western civilization, the ruling elite increasingly uses fear, oppression, manufactured enemies, and psychological warfare to prolong their control and exploitation. The war in ISKCON between truths and falsehoods will intensify as more devotees come to understand what is actually taking place. The elites respond with more polarizing propaganda and demonization of their perceived opponents who are the spiritual fundamentalists and reformers of the mission. The elite’s veneer of authority erodes in the face of the facts and truth. The decline is driven by the loss of message control due to the rise of “alternative media” which challenges the politically-correct institutional wisdom. Then in desperation the elite will resort to extreme measures, destroying the function and unity of ISKCON as gurus secede with their remaining fanatical followers. This progression of events can be seen clearly in the history of Kirtanananda in Ch. 134.

Thus the world devolves into war, economic decline, and misery, and similarly ISKCON will follow with debasement of its philosophy and principles, while the sincere work towards a Mission restoration by faithfully adhering to Srila Prabhupada's instructions, unchanged books, and vision for Lord Chaitanya's movement. Better times are coming for the Hare Krishna Movement, but the test of the firestorm comes first.

CONCLUSION: SPIRITUAL LAW IS THE HIGHEST

Regardless of mundane legalities, the order of the bona fide spiritual master is the highest priority and authority for the disciple. Srila Prabhupada made it very clear that he did not want any changes made to his books or movement; the leadership was to simply maintain everything nicely, expand the same programs if possible, but not to make changes. His prescriptions for the future were perfect and complete, and did not need modifications or improvisations for any reason, least of all because someone would think Srila Prabhupada did not give us everything. Two instances of this: the supposed need for a rasika bhakti guru, and devising a system of approving diksha gurus, thinking Srila Prabhupada neglected to give us a current link.

About not making any changes to what Srila Prabhupada left us with: (1) *"One thing, I received one letter from Gurukula regarding the Krishna Bowl contests, and I want you to know that nothing new should be added. Whatever I have introduced should remain. Nothing new should be added. New things means their brain is not clear. Carefully manage things what I have established." (SPL Rupanuga 1974) (2) "The system of management will continue as it is now and there is no need of any change." (Last Will June 1977) This highest spiritual principle of obedience to the orders of the bona fide spiritual master, rather than any legal or practical consideration, is our life and soul. Our greatest concern is the rectification of Srila Prabhupada's movement, which may likely occur once Srila Prabhupada's poisoning has been understood and integrated into the thinking of all devotees, who will then react to correct the takeover of the movement by poisoner false gurus.*

CHAPTER 169: EXPANDED CONSTITUTION

The DOM was referred to by Srila Prabhupada as ISKCON's charter and Constitution, but he wanted to expand it further for the future benefit of ISKCON, something that has as of 2022 ISKCON has been "working" on for decades. The difficulty with a broader ISKCON Constitution is the many conundrums and irresolvable dilemmas created by ISKCON's underlying defective doctrines (see Part 20). The female diksha guru issue has further complicated matters. Meanwhile, the 2009 New Bylaws For Temples and the ISKCON Lawbook, the collection of GBC policy rulings since 1978, is considered ISKCON's effective Constitution. "Constitution" is defined by Webster's: (1) the basic principles and laws of a nation, state, or social group that determine the powers and duties of the government and guarantee certain rights to the people in it, (2) a written instrument embodying the rules of a political or social organization. The history of Srila Prabhupada's interest in and instructions for an ISKCON Constitution: (1966): The original incorporation certificate of ISKCON in New York had an associated document called the Founding Document of ISKCON and Constitution of Association (shown below.) (1968): Srila Prabhupada: "regarding the meeting for constitutional form of our society, actually it is now needed..." He makes referral to "constitution" in his letters to Rayarama das, and he wants to see the final copy before distributing it to devotees. "The basic principle of our preaching work, methods and management must be the same... you must do it strictly on the principles of our society as we are doing in the US... when you actually register, the full name, the aims and objectives as they are stated in our prospectus, must be mentioned." (SPL Mukunda Oct. 1, 1968) (1969): Srila Prabhupada wanted constitutional notes sent to him, which he received, and later he thinks of making a constitutional will.

(1970): Srila Prabhupada refers to the July 1970 Direction of Management as ISKCON's Constitution. (1971): "We are in the experimental stage but in the next meeting of the GBC members they should form a constitution how the GBC members manage the whole affair. But it is a fact that the local president is not under the control of the GBC.” (SPL Giriraja Aug. 12, 1971) (1972): “That is our real work, to educate people in spiritual life by giving them the practical example, so I wanted that the GBC would be a chosen body of men for that purpose, to see how the students are learning and reporting to me as my secretaries. I do not know how you could have missed these points, as they are clearly spelled out in my original constitution.” (DOM is the original constitution; SPL Satsvarupa May 2, 1972) (1973): Srila Prabhupada variously states about a constitution that it cannot be changed, it must be taken seriously because it is declared, and it should be done very scientifically and philosophically. (1974): “As far as your proposals are concerned the real thing is that we must make broader constitution of the management by GBC. But the difficulty is that our GBC men are falling victim to maya. Today I trust this GBC and tomorrow he will fall down. That is the difficulty. If the GBC men are so flickering then what to speak of the others. Unless this problem is solved whatever we may resolve it will not be very useful. We shall discuss this at our meeting.” (SPL Jayatirtha Dec. 16, 1974) Also Srila Prabhupada refers to the constitution for our society as “the legal registered papers.” With his Topmost Urgency Letter, he had ordered the DOM to be part of all temple’s legal papers.

(1975): Srila Prabhupada again refers to legal registered papers as the constitution of our society. (1976): Srila Prabhupada refers to the Fiji legal registered papers as the constitution of our society. (1976): Rupanuga says that in 1976, Srila Prabhupada again called for a constitution. (1977): Srila Prabhupada discusses amending our constitution to facilitate tax exemption in India. In discussion, Srila Prabhupada said: “No, no. We have to study the Indian constitution. It is defective because by the same constitution our present Prime Minister was put into custody for nineteen months. And we are working on the same constitution.” Thus Indian politics dictated making a broader ISKCON constitution, expanded from the DOM. Also he said: “In that paper he wrote, ‘In case I die, these three men will be trustees, and the majority will be effective.’ So that scrap of paper, Tirtha Maharaja kept it. And later on, Guru Maharaja wanted to make a constitution, but he avoided. But actually after his demise, that scrap of paper was presented in the high-court, and property was given.”

SUMMARY ON SRILA PRABHUPADA RE: CONSTITUTION FOR ISKCON

Srila Prabhupada saw these three documents as the Constitution of ISKCON: (1) Constitution of Association (1966), which gives the basic principles of ISKCON (see below), (2) the Direction of Management (1970), the only document written and signed by Srila Prabhupada on the duties and powers of the GBC and Temple Presidents and also the rights of the Temple Members, (3) the legal registered papers of the society (e.g., New York ISKCON 1966 incorporation documents). In 1974 he said “we must make broader constitution of the management by GBC” which indicates starting with these three documents as a basis and expanding it “broader,” including further detailed description of the duties and powers of the GBC’s and temple presidents, based upon Srila Prabhupada’s instructions, to form a final ISKCON Constitution. All followers of Srila Prabhupada should accept these documents signed by Srila Prabhupada and counter-signed by his disciples as the starting basis of an ISKCON Constitution. Thus an ISKCON Constitution would define the “Basic Principles of ISKCON,” “Duties and Powers of GBC and Temple Presidents,” and “Basic Rights of the Temple Members.”

Also there should be a written instrument embodying these rules. The idea is that everywhere in Srila Prabhupada’s mission, all devotees and centers will be aligned both philosophically and organizationally. After the ISKCON New York incorporation in July 1966, Srila Prabhupada engaged an attorney, Steven Goldsmith, to send a letter to the IRS regarding ISKCON’s tax exempt purposes, who attached a Constitution of Association which was signed by Srila Prabhupada on Nov. 14, 1966. This is another fundamental ISKCON document.

CONSTITUTION OF ASSOCIATION Nov. 14, 1966

(1) The name of the society is International Society for Krishna Consciousness. (2) The headquarters of the Society are located at Radhakrishna Temple, 26 Second Ave, New York, 10003, USA (3) The objectives for which the Society is being established are: (A) To educate the greater human society in the techniques of spiritual life as the basis for a balanced psychic and biological development, and thereby achieve for the first time in human society a real peace and unity among the contending forces in the world today. (B) To propagate the Sense of Godhead, the all attractive Personality of primal and eternal Form, as He Himself revealed in His own words in the Bhagavad Gita, the Holy Scripture of the Lord Sri Krishna, the Godhead. (C) To bring together individuals in a Society, regardless of nationality and irrespective of creed or caste, in order to develop a nearness to the Godhead and thereby the idea that within the members and humanity-at-large there is an infinitesimal soul-spirit that is part and parcel in quality with the Godhead, and that all life is meant for the satisfaction of said Godhead, the Supreme Soul. (D) To encourage the teachings of Lord Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu who demonstrated practically the transcendental process of approaching the absolute Personality of Godhead by His acts of congregational chanting of the holy name of God, a process known as Samkirtan. (E) To prove by active work and preaching that Lord Sri Krishna is the only enjoyer of all the outcomes of individual and collective sacrifice, penance, meditation, arts, culture, science, because He is the Supreme Proprietor of the whole universe, eternally apart of Him everyone knows Him as a friend. Real peace can be attained when this is realized, in fact. (F) To assist whenever and wherever possible in the building of a social structure on the real foundation of spiritual progress and establishment of peace and unity between men throughout the world. (G) To attempt to save men individually from the chain of victimization the ongoing trend in modern civilization operates by, in the name of ideologies of false sentiment, so that Man may again be a free soul, to act and live freely with spiritual vision. This is possible by individual spiritual initiation, Diksha, when a man can see everything in Godhead and Godhead in everything.

(H) To further toward realization this highest truth as revealed by Lord Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu and the six Goswamins headed by Srila Rupa and Sanatana Goswamins. (I) To have for its objectives amongst the others four principles which the Goswamins had in view. They are the following: (1) To erect a holy place of transcendental pastimes as well as a place where members of the Lord Sri Krishna can flourish. (2) To propagate all over the world in the form of missionaries the process of devotion, the transcendental service to the Godhead, and to make known that this devotional service is the main function of the human being. (3) In order to accomplish this, to adopt proselytizing methods of peaceful means and to establish a broader society of association for all members, including scholars and admirers, to engage in this service as put forth in the Srimad Bhagwatam. (4) To install, wherever it is possible, the worship and temple of Radhakrishna and that of Sri Chaitanya, and to give facility to everyone to become trained in the modes of Archan or preparatory principles of devotional service. (J) To introduce to the members of the Society and humanity-at-large a simpler and more natural purpose in life by means suitable to the particular place and time, and as enjoined in the Bhagavad Gita. (K) To organize educational programs, such as classes and lecture tours, and to institute services, such as mailing, for the benefit of the members of the Society and humanity-at-large. (L) To publish periodicals, books and/or pamphlets in all important languages in order to reach human society and give an opportunity to same to communicate with the Society. (M) To invoke the quality of goodness particularly in every member of the Society, individually by the process of Diksha and by establishing one in the status of a Brahmin (good and intelligent man) on the basis of truthfulness, knowledge and faith in the transcendental service of the Lord. (N) Among the secondary objectives of the Society, it shall undertake the following activities: (1) To revive the scientific system of social orders of classification based on intelligence, martial spirit, productivity and common assistance, generally known as the four castes with reference to quality and worth for the common cause of world society. (2) To discharge as a matter of course the vitiated system of supremacy of one man over another by false prestige of birthright or vested interests. (3) To popularize the vegetable-grain diet under approved methods in order that full value of protein, carbohydrate, fat and vitamin benefit may be derived therefrom. (4) To discourage intoxicating or addicting habits of all descriptions and dimensions and to expose such persons thus afflicted to approved methods of spiritual realization. /(SIGNED) A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami, Acharya

THE EIGHT BASIC CONVICTIONS OF THE KRISHNA CONSCIOUSNESS MOVEMENT

This is another early document from the 1960's, and is also very appropriate to incorporate into a broader ISKCON Constitution: (1) The Absolute Truth is contained in all the great scriptures of the world. However, the oldest known revealed scriptures in existence are the Vedic literatures, most notably Bhagavad-gita, which is the literal record of God's words. (2) God, or Krishna, is eternal, all-knowing, omnipresent, all-powerful, and all-attractive, the seed-giving father of man and all living entities. He is the sustaining energy of all life, nature, and the cosmic situation. (3) Man is actually not his body but spirit soul, part and parcel of God, and therefore eternal. (4) That all men are brothers can be practiced only when we realize God as our common father. (5) All our actions should be performed as a sacrifice to the Supreme Lord: "All that you do, all that you eat, all that you offer and give away, as well as all austerities that you may perform, should be done as an offering unto Me." (BGita 9.27) (6) The food that sustains us should always be offered to the Lord before eating. In this way He becomes the offering, and such eating purifies us. (7) We can, by sincere cultivation of bona fide spiritual science, attain to the stage of pure, unendingly blissful consciousness, free from anxiety, in this very lifetime. (8) The recommended means to attain the mature stage of love of God in the present age of Kali, or quarrel, is to chant the holy name of the Lord. The easiest method for most people is to chant the Hare Krishna mantra: Hare Krishna, Hare Krishna, Krishna Krishna, Hare Hare...

SEVEN PURPOSES OF ISKCON

July 1966: Srila Prabhupada incorporated the International Society for Krishna Consciousness, Inc in New York City. This was the first ISKCON temple at 26 Second Ave. In the incorporation document, he listed ISKCON's seven purposes, which should be included in an ISKCON Constitution. In the years that followed, Srila Prabhupada expanded ISKCON's mission and activities beyond some of the details listed in the incorporation document, while remaining consistent with its principles. ISKCON has established many more than one "holy place of transcendental pastimes dedicated to the personality of Krishna," with temples in major cities around the world. "To bring the members closer together for the purpose of teaching a simpler, more natural way of life" has inspired the development of self-sufficient farm communities, ashrams and spiritual retreat centers. Srila Prabhupada's plan to re-spiritualize society through the distribution of sanctified food was not listed, yet he established Food For Life and Govinda's vegetarian restaurants, and the weekly Sunday Feast at temples.

"(1) To systematically propagate spiritual knowledge to society at large and to educate all people in the techniques of spiritual life in order to check the imbalance of values in life and to achieve real unity and peace in the world. (2) To propagate a consciousness of Krishna (God), as it is revealed in the great scriptures of India, Bhagavad-gita and Srimad-Bhagavatam. (3) To bring the members of the Society together with each other and nearer to Krishna, the prime entity, thus developing the idea within the members, and humanity at large, that each soul is part and parcel of the quality of Godhead (Krishna). (4) To teach and encourage the sankirtana movement, congregational chanting of the holy name of God, as revealed in the teachings of Lord Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. (5) To erect for the members and for society at large a holy place of transcendental pastimes dedicated to the personality of Krishna. (6) To bring the members closer together for the purpose of teaching a simpler, more natural way of life. (7) With a view towards achieving the aforementioned purposes, to publish and distribute periodicals, magazines, books and other writings."

INGREDIENTS FOR A "HKM" BROADER CONSTITUTION

The ISKCON GBC has a committee working on a broader ISKCON Constitution since at least 2006. Although it has been progressing slowly, if it is completed and adopted by whatever methods they will use, it would further enshrine their deviations from Srila Prabhupada's siddhanta and instructions, with their corrupt interpretations and motivations to perpetuate their system of unauthorised gurus. There is a need for drafting a general Hare Krishna Movement (HKM) Constitution that Srila Prabhupada's followers outside the corrupt institution may use as the mission is restored and as legal incorporation papers. Included should be at least:

(1) DOM, (2) Constitution of Association, (3) Topmost Urgency Notice, (4) Eight Convictions of the Hare Krishna Movement, (5) ISKCON's seven purposes, (6) Extracts from Final Will, (7) Elections of GBC by 1/3 and 2/3 formula as per DOM, GBC elections clarifications (Ch. 161), (8) Elections of temple presidents as per Srila Prabhupada letters, TP elections clarifications (Ch. 162) (9) Define the role, purpose, and limits of the GBC (Ch. 163) (10) July 9 Order, (11) Lessons from 1972 GBC suspension and letter to Karandhar re: centralization, (12) Extracts from Prospectus for League of Devotees (1954), (13) Specify HKM's legal distinction from the corrupted ISKCON, (14) HKM is for Srila Prabhupada followers and initiates- those initiating their own diksha disciples must have separate institutions, although they may affiliate and cooperate with HKM, (15) Full financial accountability by all leaders and sannyasis, (16) A Child Protection Office must be facilitated but independent, (17) Selected portions from the ISKCON Lawbook may be included, but a legalized, rule-based bureaucracy is not wanted, (18) Srila Prabhupada's poisoning evidence and investigative results to be addressed honestly and the ramifications of this crime and the history of ISKCON after 1978 be memorialized, (19) Delineate the siddhanta of the guru-initiation issue with Srila Prabhupada as the current, direct link, the sole diksha guru and Founder-Acharya, (20) Add siddhantic conclusions from a Prabhupada Codex (Ch. 165), (21) Srila Prabhupada's Oath of allegiance, (22) A set of basic by-laws describing officers, meetings, members and voting rights, financial reports, etc. By-laws are usually separate from the Constitution or Charter, but they should be difficult to whimsically amend./ Consult a lawyer expert in non-profits and do it right from the start.

FURTHER COMMENTS

The maxim that power corrupts conditioned souls is an absolute truth. As James Madison, author of the Bill of Rights, proclaimed, "All men having power ought to be distrusted to a certain degree." Our leaders must be subject to periodic review by elections as per the DOM. The devotees can change the leadership when they fail or deviate. The leaders' basic job is to safeguard devotees' spiritual rights and spiritual life. They must be held to Srila Prabhupada's teachings, and cannot manufacture their own methods or change what Srila Prabhupada has given us, such as his sacred books, kirtans, deity worship. The rank and file devotees must ensure that their leaders represent Srila Prabhupada and his instructions. Unfortunately, ISKCON leaders today are unconcerned with the real spiritual welfare of devotees and only worry about their guru business. This is a tyranny or gurocracy. ISKCON misleaders have almost absolute authority, re-interpreting Srila Prabhupada's instructions, and coverup their scandals, guru falldowns, and undeniable evidence that Srila Prabhupada was poisoned by some amongst themselves. Devotees are intimidated, trained not to ask questions, not to think or use their intelligence, and contrary opinions are deemed offensive. ISKCON leaders have become an entrenched and privileged class rather than the servants of the society they are meant to be.

Separation of powers are necessary to ensure an honest leadership in Kali Yuga. Only Srila Prabhupada is capable of properly exerting absolute authority, and his position of authority should not be taken by anyone else: neither GBC, bogus gurus, or false prophets. Leaders must convince the mass of devotees that they are representing Srila Prabhupada's teachings by their pure preaching and submit to periodic re-election. Authority is entrusted to guru (Srila Prabhupada), sadhu (those who follow Srila Prabhupada), and shastra (Srila Prabhupada's unchanged books). But in today's ISKCON all authority lies with the GBC-guru club who makes the rules to suit their own interests, even by obvious transgression of Srila Prabhupada's teachings. Checks and balances are necessary if Srila Prabhupada's mission is to succeed. 1/3 of new GBC members are to be selected by the GBC themselves while 2/3 are elected by the temple presidents, who are themselves elected by each temple's stakeholders or constituents. Power is thus divided between temple presidents, GBC, and devotees. GBC cannot remove temple presidents except in certain extreme circumstances. Properties cannot be mortgaged or sold without the consent of property trustees. A truly independent Brahmana Council would act as “judicial reviewers” on philosophical issues, acting as impartial judges of shastra, with confirmatory referendums. The GBC is limited to the functions defined by Srila Prabhupada. These checks and balances ensure an uncorrupted spiritual society and organization, unlike the ISKCON today.

ISKCON was not meant by Srila Prabhupada to be a centrally-controlled, legally bound organization headed by a secret GBC society with secret bylaws and as the beneficial owners of all temples and assets. He wanted independent centers that kept the Acharya in the center, and the GBC to preach and maintain spiritual standards without involvement in management. ISKCON members have lost their enthusiasm and innovative preaching spirit, focused on collecting their salaries and moving up in the power structure. Under the weight of an overly authoritarian GBC, devotees no longer think analytically or are inspired to take up the responsibilities and challenges of preaching Krishna consciousness to please Srila Prabhupada. Eventually, devotees lose interest in ISKCON and return to the materialistic society again. Thus the preaching spirit is diluted and lost.

It is imperative that ISKCON’s actual hidden history, including how senior and ambitious men poisoned their ever well-wisher just to more quickly sit on his seat and enjoy the illusions of worship, wealth, power, and supposed spiritual authority, is made known. We must recognize these crimes and injustices and take back Srila Prabhupada’s movement from the usurpers and pretenders. We need a devotee revolution that starts locally and spreads upwards. Once a certain level of interest and participation is reached, a spiritual rejuvenation of ISKCON will happen quickly and unstoppably. The challenge is in educating, awakening, and motivating enough devotees to organize locally and exert their rights as the inheritors of Srila Prabhupada’s legacy and mercy. Reject the cheater leaders and bogus gurus. Refuse to be misrepresented any longer by a corrupted leadership only concerned about their worship, dakshina, authority, and facilities. Employ mass civil disobedience against them. We must hold fast to Srila Prabhupada’s instructions and defy them without fear. Those faithful to Srila Prabhupada’s teachings are the real ISKCON. The false leaders and false doctrines are maya. Srila Prabhupada confirmed that his teachings will last for 10,000 years, and so he will be the Guru of ISKCON through that time. Srila Prabhupada is always accessible even after his physical disappearance.

DIRECTION OF MANAGEMENT OR GUROCRACY?

The management system that Srila Prabhupada established was primarily an election procedure. The Temple Presidents were elected or removed only by the members of the local devotional community. GBCs were elected, 2/3 by Temple Presidents from amongst their ranks and 1/3 by GBC re-electing themselves. GBCs were elected on a three year basis. Srila Prabhupada gave no restriction to the number of terms of office, and so long as the GBC and Temple President was voted in each term, someone could occupy the position for life. This naturally assured continuity, accountability, and honesty in the leadership.

ISKCON-truth.com, Jan. 27, 2013: “The DOM restricts the GBC to little more than a rotating group of elected officials who simply oversee the growth and maintenance of the Movement, and to implement Srila Prabhupada’s Will and his instructions during the length of their tenure. The present GBC is self-appointed, non-elected, and some have held their positions for decades. The DOM procedure of election by Temple Presidents for a temporary GBC term has never been enacted, and the power structure of ISKCON is such that all control is in GBC hands, rather than the hands of the millions of congregational members worldwide. This centralized structure is against Srila Prabhupada’s wishes, who specifically wrote of his desire for independent, autonomous, self-governed ISKCON Temples with only mild oversight by the GBC in ensuring the standards and principles set by Srila Prabhupada. He stressed repeatedly the limitations of GBC jurisdiction, that they should simply make sure things are going on nicely, but they assumed a position far beyond what was authorized. Instead of a loose supervisory board, the GBC has illegally assumed dictatorial powers, consolidating and centralizing ISKCON’s assets. They are a dictatorship, even changing Srila Prabhupada’s Books via stolen copyrights and false attribution. When enough voices begin to call out for the immediate enactment of Srila

Prabhupada's vital DOM, the sooner we can have ISKCON as it was intended to be by Srila Prabhupada, not what it has been unauthorizably reduced to by the self-interested deviant GBC. Today's GBC is not actually a GBC. The GBC left ISKCON in 1993 and began their own corporation in India: 'GBC Society of West Bengal.' This is not Srila Prabhupada's GBC, founded by the 1970 DOM, and are not related to ISKCON. ISKCON does not have a GBC, but some now unauthorizably control ISKCON, utilizing their stolen power to enact Book changes, property transfers, kirtan changes, and deity worship changes with no sanction from Srila Prabhupada. The first step to reclaiming ISKCON is to implement the DOM, our constitutional rights from Srila Prabhupada, and electing a true GBC. Such a GBC will act as the servants of the Temple Presidents, who will act as the servants of the congregations, rather than the other way around. ISKCON by the DOM means a system of checks and balances, giving autonomy and self-rule to each Temple and in fact to every individual comprising the ISKCON body. In this way ISKCON can spread unlimitedly without threat or corruption, giving its members the freedom to work cooperatively together to expand the Movement and gradually take over the world with Daiva Varnasrama Dharma, Srila Prabhupada's Vision for the world in this Golden Age of Kali Yuga. This is our first step to a Krishna Conscious world, and the deliverance of mankind from this world of illusion. By the DOM, we can and will pave the path to a perfect world, through the total prevention of corruption and deviation found only where one man believes himself to be inferior to another. We have the responsibility to liberate ourselves from such a material conception of life via the implementation of Srila Prabhupada's DOM order."

---

CHAPTER 170: REWARDS FOR THE TRUTH

Because there are so many incentives to cooperate with the dark side of the universe, by participating in corruption and falsehoods, sometimes it is more effective to offer rewards for secret information about improprieties than it is to simply appeal to people's sense of duty or righteousness. Money is God in the modern materialistic civilization, but money can also be employed in the service of Krishna and in the pursuit and upholding of truth. In 1993 Hansadutta das offered a reward of $108,000 to anyone who could prove by audio tape, documents, or otherwise that Srila Prabhupada had authorized initiating gurus from amongst conditioned souls. No one ever collected on that. There is a saying: "Put your money where your mouth is." In other words, if you believe in what you stand for, then use your money to back that up. Therefore Prabhupada Truth Commission has decided to offer various rewards to those who can come forward with information that will establish the truth of various matters, in particular those who poisoned Srila Prabhupada. This is perfectly legal, and commonly done, as shown in the following examples.

LARRY FLYNT OFFERS $10 M REWARD FOR IMPEACHMENT INFORMATION

In Oct. 2017, the political landscape in the USA was very polarized between supporters and detractors of the new president Donald Trump. Unpredictable and controversial, Trump was seen by many as dangerous, especially in light of the extraordinary powers that he now wielded. The Deep State tried to discredit him with accusations of collusion with Russia and the media mercilessly disparaged everything he did or said. Congress even impeached him. Larry Flynt, paralyzed by a bullet in the back, porn-king, and owner of Penthouse magazine, offered a $10 million reward for information which would lead to his impeachment and removal as president. He claimed it was his patriotic duty to help save the country and world from the disaster of a Trump presidency. In modern democracies, it is acceptable to offer payments to those with "secrets" or shocking news if they sell their "stories." It is legal to solicit information which will be legally used against someone.

JULIAN ASSANGE OFFERS €20,000 REWARD TO CONVICT JOURNALIST'S ASSASSINS

On Oct. 16, 2017, a car bomb killed journalist Daphne Galizia who ran the hugely popular 'Running Commentary' blog which led Malta's "Panama Papers" investigation and highlighted several other corruption scandals in the island nation. The blog's revelations took aim at PM Joseph Muscat and two of his closest aides. Galizia's son accused Muscat of complicity in his mother's murder and having corrupted the government, judiciary, and law enforcement with his loyalist followers. Julian Assange offered a €20,000 reward "to anyone providing information leading to the conviction of the killers," expressing his horror at such a blatant and obvious assassination in Europe, no less. The US news outlet Politico described Caruana Galizia as a "one-woman WikiLeaks." Matthew Galizia, Daphne's son, posted on FB: "My mother was assassinated because she stood between the rule of law and those who sought to violate it, like many strong journalists. But she was also targeted because she was the only person doing so. This is what happens when the institutions of the state are incapacitated: the last person left standing is often a journalist. Which makes her the first person left dead. I am never going to forget, running around the inferno in the field, trying to figure out a way to open the door, the horn of the car still blaring, screaming at two policemen who turned up with a single fire extinguisher [...] This was no ordinary murder and it was not tragic. Tragic is someone being run over by a bus. When there is blood and fire all around you, that's war. We are a people at war against the state and organised crime, which have become indistinguishable. ...that clown of a PM [...] Joseph Muscat, Keith Schembri, Chris Cardona, Konrad Mizzi, the AG and the long list of police commissioners who took no action: you are complicit."

The same corruption that exists in the outside world has infiltrated the previously spiritual ISKCON institution. The parallels in Galizia's death and ISKCON's cover-up of Srila Prabhupada's poisoning are striking. ISKCON is a tyranny run by corrupted pseudo-spiritualists for their guru franchises. Those who oppose their corruption and deviations are excommunicated, vilified, demonized, mocked, ostracized, and sometimes killed. Sulochan das was assassinated and likely Aindra das as well. As a result, most everyone is intimidated into silence or complicity with the ISKCON misleadership's criminal regime. Yes, criminal, as in protecting and hiding the poisoners of Srila Prabhupada and still reaping the benefits of ISKCON's hijacking by those poisoners.

TRUTH COMMISSION OFFERS $50,000 FOR INFO ON PRABHUPADA'S POISONERS

On Oct. 5, 2017, Prabhupada Truth Commission released "In Pursuit of Prabhupada's Poisoners," which announced the hunt for the poisoners and colluders. The film narrative:

"But in all fairness, a last chance should be given to all ISKCON first and second tier leaders to disassociate yourselves from Srila Prabhupada's poisoners. Maybe you really did not believe that Srila Prabhupada could have been poisoned and maybe you thought it was necessary for the good of the institution to join in with the dishonest cover-up and the blocking of any real investigation into the matter. Maybe that's why you voted for or did not protest in 2000 the GBC declaration that there is no evidence at all to support Srila Prabhupada's poisoning. Maybe you really don't know anything about what happened in 1977. But hopefully, maybe, out of your duty as an ISKCON leader and as an obligation to Srila Prabhupada, you have now studied the evidence that has been clearly presented in our book and films, and you can appreciate that there IS scientific proof and no further doubt that, yes, Srila Prabhupada was poisoned, maliciously, homicidally, and practically 100% for certain by Tamal and his assistants. So here is the final chance of amnesty before the sugar cane field is burnt clean. All GBC members, ISKCON sannyasis, temple presidents, heads of ministries, deputies, regional secretaries, and other ISKCON managers: You have until the start of 2018 to publicly declare where you stand. Either declare that you are extremely concerned, if not convinced, about the evidence of Srila Prabhupada's poisoning and its ramifications and effects on the health and welfare of Srila Prabhupada's Krishna consciousness movement, or you will be marked as complicit in Srila Prabhupada's poisoning. For your own and everyone's good, you are highly advised to end your silence and complicity. Prabhupada Truth Commission, a private investigative body, on behalf of all concerned parties, hereby issues an ultimatum to an initial list of persons of interest and those possibly having relevant information in the matter of Srila Prabhupada's proven cadmium poisoning, namely: Bhakticharu Swami, Jayapataka Swami, Bhavananda das, Satadanya das, Satsvarupa Goswami, and Bir Krishna Swami: ...that by the start of 2018, you either agree publicly or privately that you are amenable to interviews, depositions, truth tests such as polygraph and voice stress analysis, and other measures in the pursuit of identifying those who poisoned Srila Prabhupada, or it will be clear that you are still a non-cooperator and have something to hide in this matter. [...] The hunt for exactly who was involved or who knows about Srila Prabhupada's poisoning... is now on. And since the truth always prevails, why not be open and truthful? Prabhupada Truth Commission hereby offers a reward of $50,000 in cold hard cash- for information, testimonies, or documents that leads to the first felony conviction in a court of law related to Srila Prabhupada's death, including conspiracy to murder. Informants and information will be kept strictly confidential except to share with law enforcement agencies, who also will maintain confidentiality. Poisoners beware: How's it feel to have a price on your head? We're coming for you; so start sweating, and be careful what you say and do that might give yourself away or betray your dark secrets..."

CHAPTER 171: AVOID THE OFFENDERS

(1) "Better associate with sense enjoyers for in this world there is no worse association than the dharmadvaji. The deceitful dharmadvajis accept the external signs of dharma with a desire to cheat the world, and to fulfill their crooked desires they cheat the foolish by helping them in their rascaldom. Some of them become gurus and others become disciples, and by trickery they accumulate wealth, women, false prestige and material assets. If one gives up the association of such crooked hypocrites, then he can honestly engage in devotional service. Honest worship is the only way to obtain Krishna's mercy." (Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakura: "Bhaktyaloka" Jana-Sanga p. 21) (2) "A devotee should have intelligence to know who is deviating. Surrender by your intelligence but don't surrender your intelligence." (SPL Bali Mardana 1974) (3) "The only duty of sadhus is to cut away all the accumulated wicked propensities of every individual. This alone is the causeless natural desire of all the sadhus. Worldly people possess a double nature. They express one kind of sentiment but internally cherish a different purpose. Moreover, they want to advertise this duplicity as a mark of liberalism or love of harmony. Those who are unwilling to show any duplicity, wish to be frank and straightforward, or in other words to exercise unambiguously the function of the soul; such really sincere persons are called sectarian and orthodox by those who practice duplicity. We will cultivate the society only of those who are straightforward. We will not keep company with any person who is not so. We must by all means avoid bad company. We are advised to keep at a distance of a hundred cubits from animals of the horned species. We should observe the same caution in regard to all insincere persons." ("Search For Truth" by Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakur) (4) The poisoners who hijacked ISKCON used temptations, bribes, positions, threats, lies, etc to deviate enough ISKCON leaders to prevail with their colossal scam of appointed successor acharyas. We focus on the initial Ravanas and allow their followers a chance to rectify themselves.

WE SHOULD NOT ASSOCIATE WITH THE OFFENDERS

"This is the root of the ISKCON offenses committed against Srila Prabhupada. They take everything from him but do not acknowledge his true position, his role in their lives, his living influence and shakti in raising them out of the modes and into Krishna consciousness. It is like an unfaithful wife who uses her legal husband to maintain her but then gives her time and affections to another man as though her husband were dead and gone. How much tolerance and patience does Srila Prabhupada have in these circumstances? When will Srila Prabhupada become disgusted and cut off such offenders?" (unknown)

Quotes which give good reason why one should not associate with offenders of Srila Prabhupada or those who participate in ISKCON's offensive unauthorised guru system: (1) "If one thinks that there are many pseudo devotees or nondevotees in the Krishna Consciousness Society, one can keep direct company with the spiritual master, and if there is any doubt, one should consult the spiritual master. However, unless one follows the spiritual master's instructions and the regulative principles governing chanting and hearing the holy name of the Lord, one cannot become a pure devotee. By one's mental concoctions, one falls down." (CC Mad 19.157 purport) (2) "When a mad elephant enters a garden, it ruins all the creepers, flowers and trees. Similarly, if a devotee properly executing his devotional service becomes an offender at the lotus feet of his spiritual master or another Vaishnava, his devotional service is spoiled." (CC Antya 3.213) (3) SP: ...So that separation... Crows will not like to live with the ducks and white swans. And white swans will not like to live with the crows. That is natural division. Birds of the same feather flock together. Jagadish: And honest men don't like to associate with thieves and criminals. SP: Yes, that is natural. We are not interested even with these daily newspapers. We are interested Bhagavad-gita. We don't keep any news. We know the dogs are barking. That's all. But that does not mean we have to mix with the dogs. Jagadish: If you know that someone is committing criminal activities, then if you associate with them, you'll also become implicated. SP: Yes. Sangat sanjayate kamah. (SPConv Jan. 11, 1977) (4) "Religious principles have certainly been violated in this assembly. One should not remain for even a moment in a place where irreligion is flourishing. A wise person should not enter an assembly if he knows the participants there are committing acts of impropriety. And if, having entered such an assembly, he fails to speak the truth, speaks falsely or pleads ignorance, he will certainly incur sin." (SBhag 10.44.9-10) (5) "Friendship should be cemented between persons with mutual interests and understanding. Such persons are said to be sva jati, 'of the same caste.' The devotee should avoid a person whose character is not fixed in the standard understanding; even though he may be a Vaishnava, or a devotee of Krishna, if his character is not correctly representative, then he should be avoided. One should steadily control the senses and the mind and strictly follow the rules and regulations, and he should make friendship with persons of the same standard." (SBhag 3.29.17 purport) (6) "If ISKCON festivals attract people to ISKCON gurus, then to give support to an ISKCON which is superbly offensive to Prabhupada, this seems service of the offenders. Maybe there is lots of kirtan and books sold, but that should be done somewhere else, not for the benefit of cheaters. We already have seen that there is no way to change ISKCON, reform it; we tried for decades; we must rebuild it by separating ourselves and starting all over. Some are aiding and abetting the enemies of Srila Prabhupada out of sentimentality, out of soft hearts, like Arjuna did at the start of the Gita." (Damaghosh das)

(7) "It boils down to associating and working with like-minded devotees; each one of us must remain true to our convictions. It was Krishna's special mercy to be excommunicated from ISKCON in 1991. I am convinced I must totally boycott the deviated ISKCON for my own good, and work with others to rebuild Srila Prabhupada's mission. ISKCON is a dying branch. The remaining sincere members of ISKCON can be saved by leaving ISKCON and joining with Prabhupada Anugas to establish centers, preaching, book printing and selling. These two illusions will not help: I can mix with the supreme offenders and remain unaffected, or I have done my part and now let me retire and chant in peace." (Nityananda das) (8) "(...and many other Godbrothers are beloved friends, but my path is different. I am convinced ISKCON is terminally ill, with no hope for recovery, because it is filled with ambitious cheaters. I will have nothing to do with ISKCON, but will try to give hope and shelter to sincere devotees who want to follow Prabhupada strictly. I would rather die failing in this way than thrive in supporting the serious offenses against the shaktyavesha avatara, Srila Prabhupada." (Narasimha das) (9) "We should befriend and offer special respect to persons who are developed in Krishna consciousness. Other living entities are undoubtedly part and parcel of the Supreme Lord, but because their consciousness is still covered and not developed in Krishna consciousness, we should renounce their association. It is said by Visvanatha Cakravarti Thakura that even if one is a Vaishnava, if he is not of good character his company should be avoided, although he may be offered the respect of a Vaishnava.” (SBhag 3.29.16 purport) (10) “Srila Vishvanatha Chakravarti Thakura advises that a Vaishnava who is not of good character should be avoided. A Vaishnava is one who has taken the Supreme Personality of Godhead as the ultimate goal of life, but if one is not pure and still has motives, then he is not a Vaishnava of the first order of good character. One may offer his respects to such a Vaishnava because he has accepted the Supreme Lord as the ultimate goal of life, but one should not keep company with a Vaishnava who is in the mode of ignorance.” ( SBhag 3.29.8 purport)

UTTAMA APARADHIS: SUPREME OFFENDERS

The demons want to obstruct the mission of the Lord and there is no doubt they have infiltrated ISKCON. “It is a fact however that the great sinister movement is within our society.” (SPL 1970) Those who have offended Srila Prabhupada by taking his place and seat, adulterating his books, disobeying his clear instructions, calling him dead and gone, they may be called uttama aparadhis, or supreme offenders. (1) “These rogues are the most dangerous elements in human society. Because there is no religious government, they escape punishment by the law of the state. They cannot, however, escape the law of the supreme, who has clearly declared in the Bhagavad-gita that envious demons in the garb of religious propagandists shall be thrown into the darkest regions of hell (BGita 16.19-20). Sri isopanisad confirms that these pseudo religionists are heading toward the most obnoxious place in the universe after the completion of their spiritual master business, which they conduct simply for sense gratification.” (Iso 12) (2) “But we should not create such position, dangerous. It is already dangerous. Because Chaitanya Mahaprabhu was also very cautious about spiritual life. [...] Others may violate the laws, and so many sinful activities they are doing, but nobody takes very serious care. But when a religious group or a sannyasi commits little offense, it is magnified a thousand times.” (SPLecture Mar. 8, 1975)

SRILA PRABHUPADA: ON STAYING SEPARATE

“But I was a rotten grhastha. I did not join any one of them. (laughs) I was rotting in my household life. That's all. But I was planning [...] how to make this. That was my desire from the very beginning, since I heard it. But I was never with them, either this party or that party. And Guru Maharaja also recommended [...] ‘When there will be need, he will do himself. There is no need of living with you. It is better to live apart from you.’ When I was recommended by Goswami Maharaja to live in the Matha, that ‘He is so nice.’ [...] He (Guru Maharaja) said ‘Yes, he is very expert. He can do. So it is better to live apart from you. And he will do everything when there is need.’ He said. I could not understand. Although I was apart from them, a grhastha.”

BEING OSTRACIZED BY THE OFFENDERS IS A BLESSING

QUESTION: “Once we fully embrace that Srila Prabhupada is our current and direct link- there is no going back, and we will truly be on our own. We already have no association and no kirtan, no devotees with whom we can come together and speak like this with, really reveal our minds... this, openly accepting Srila Prabhupada as our current link, would cement that for us... Despite the fact that we've given a lot of energy to ISKCON over the years, we haven't received an invitation to the grand opening ceremony... Already we are seeing that there's a price to pay for taking this kind of stand.”

DHIRA GOVINDA DAS: “I'm sorry to hear that you're going through this difficult process of rejection. For sure, there is a price to pay. I've experienced that. Upton Sinclair once said, ‘It is difficult to get a man to understand something, when his salary depends upon his not understanding it!’ Salary can mean monetary reimbursement, or it could mean chapattis and a place to stay, or a sense of belonging, being approved of, not rejected, being treated as a member of the club. I have found that even if members of Srila Prabhupada's movement have an attachment to ‘spiritual’ things, like the kirtana, prasadam, or association, in places where the paradigm of ‘Srila Prabhupada is not available’ is present, overtly or subtly, it is practically impossible for them to genuinely grasp the principles of Srila Prabhupada as the direct and current link to the disciplic succession. So, in that sense, such rejection, as referred to above, is a great blessing, freeing us to serve Srila Prabhupada, without attachment to institutionalization that is for so many a barrier. I enthusiastically identify myself as an aspiring follower of Srila Prabhupada. I would be embarrassed to identify myself as a member of what is going in ISKCON, or to refer people there. I am definitely not prepared to support its culture of toxicity. Also, I've experienced that the more I distance myself from ISKCON, practice sadhana, and create association for sadhana, and engage in my services to Srila Prabhupada, apart from any connection with the corrupted institution, the more joyful and free I become. Those who came to Srila Prabhupada's movement outside of the corrupted ISKCON, they don't have twisted cognitive and emotional threads to untangle, in this area."

DISTINGUISHING THE INNOCENT FROM AMONGST THE OFFENDERS

Generally the innocent masses of devotees participating in ISKCON are bewildered by the pretenses of ISKCON misleaders and their mask of guru bhakti, the ruse and hoax that their ISKCON gurus are liberated, self-realized souls. If they are receptive, we can tactfully share the truths of ISKCON history and Srila Prabhupada's siddhanta. If not, we wish them well. However, an arm's length distance should be kept from the ISKCON offenders who have offended and exploited Srila Prabhupada, as is being done throughout ISKCON by its defective doctrines. Srila Prabhupada was livid with anger at some mayavadis who were speaking about Krishna being ultimately an impersonal force, later explaining it is a great insult to tell someone he has no body. Similarly, in ISKCON they adhere to the idea that Srila Prabhupada is dead and gone, which is a great insult and not at all true. For our own spiritual health, we must avoid these offenders and their mentality. One should similarly disregard and neglect those who are envious of a pure devotee like Srila Prabhupada.

(1) "A wise person should not enter an assembly if he knows the participants there are committing acts of impropriety. And if, having entered such an assembly, he fails to speak the truth, speaks falsely or pleads ignorance, he will certainly incur sin." (SBhag 10.44.10) (2) "Anyone who fails to immediately leave the place where he hears criticism of the Supreme Lord or His faithful devotee will certainly fall down, bereft of his pious credit." (SBhag 10.74.40) (3) "An intermediate or second-class devotee, called madhyama-adhikari, offers his love to the Supreme Personality of Godhead, is a sincere friend to all the devotees of the Lord, shows mercy to ignorant people who are innocent and disregards those who are envious of the Supreme Personality of Godhead." (SBhag 11.2.46) (4) "The pure devotee should execute devotional service by giving the greatest respect to the spiritual master and the acharyas. He should be compassionate to the poor and make friendship with persons who are his equals, but all his activities should be executed under regulation and with control of the senses." (SBhag 3.29.17) (5) "The devotee should avoid a person whose character is not fixed in the standard understanding; even though he may be a Vaishnava, or a devotee of Krishna, if his character is not correctly representative, then he should be avoided." (SBhag 3.29.17 purport)

However, even after good instructions, if one still does not have faith in Srila Prabhupada's instructions and wilfully disobeys those, the Bhagavad-gita reveals their fate. (1) "But ignorant and faithless persons who doubt the revealed scriptures do not attain God consciousness. For the doubting soul there is happiness neither in this world nor in the next." (BGita 4.40) (2) "But he who discards scriptural injunctions and acts according to his own whims attains neither perfection, nor happiness, nor the supreme destination." (BGita 16.23)

HATE THE SIN NOT THE SINNER

"Avoiding offenders" means to limit, without unnecessary animosity, the association and intimacy so not to be influenced or obligated through mutual dealings. The material world is an entanglement where one becomes entangled and compromised by love, business, society, and friendship. ISKCON misleaders, who are very contaminated with their cheating and exploiting innocent souls for their subtle material ambitions, should not be hated, but simply avoided. This advice also applies to the deviations of ISKCON leaders. (1) "All these leaders, all these rascals, they are all rascals. At least you must know. You may behave gentlemanly. That is your duty. But you should know that he is a rascal number one. We don't hate anyone. Otherwise there will be no preaching. And Lord Jesus Christ said that you hate the disease, not the man who is suffering from disease. That is very nice. So we shall hate this influence of maya but not the man who is now under the influence. Then how we can preach? That is our business.” (SPLecture Apr. 4, 1972)

(2) “The highest truth is reality distinguished from illusion for the welfare of all...” (SBhag 1.1.2)

UNITY IN DIVERSITY

Of course, just because another devotee does not perfectly agree with everything we think we have understood, does not mean that we should conclude they are offenders to the pure devotee. (1) “...In Krishna Consciousness there is variety but there is no discord. We may fight with one another on the point of serving but that is not a discord. We must stick to the service of the Lord very seriously and that will help us make progress...” (SPL Nov. 12, 1967) (2) “...individualism is the cause of personal misunderstanding. When such individualism is employed in the center of Krishna there is no harm even if there is personal misunderstanding. Personal misunderstanding exists even in the higher levels...” (SPL Nov. 18, 1967) (3) “...If you have any specific grievance, please let me know, but don't be disturbed by any sort of disagreement with your Godbrothers and sisters. Each and every living entity is an individual soul and as such disagreement is quite possible in our dealings with one another but we have to consider the central point of interest...” (SPL Jan. 15, 1968) (4) “...Of course, as individuals, we have sometimes disagreements, but that should be adjusted keeping our central attention to Krishna...” (SPL March 23, 1969) (5) “...So we shall not expect that anywhere there is any Utopia. Rather, that is impersonalism. People should not expect that even in the Krishna Consciousness Society there will be Utopia. Because devotees are persons, therefore there will always be some lacking— but the difference is that their lacking, because they have given up everything to serve Krishna— money, jobs, reputation, wealth, big educations, everything— their lackings have become transcendental because, despite everything they may do, their topmost intention is to serve Krishna...” (SPL Feb. 1972)

CONCLUSION

For the sake of our own spiritual health, sincere followers of Srila Prabhupada must be careful to avoid the intimate association of those implicated in the severe offences taking place in corrupted ISKCON. We must avoid the offenders lest we become implicated or infected with their disease. Srila Prabhupada recommends we seek out like-minded devotees for company. Many devotees once part of the diseased institution were somehow extricated by Krishna's mercy. We must be cautious we do not again become compromised. “So it is very difficult. Therefore Chaitanya Mahaprabhu has given one line of Vaishnava behavior: asat-sanga tyaga ei Vaishnava acara [CC Mad 22.87]. Simply to give up these rascals' association. The rascal means the Mayavadi, karmi, jnani, yogi, all they are rascals. It is our open declaration. So we have to give up the company of these rascals. If we actually are serious about advancing in Krishna consciousness, we should not mix with them. We should not even invite them. Neither we shall take their foodstuff, accept their foodstuff.” (SPLecture 1973) Regarding guru offenses, Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati states: “I do not want to see the faces of vile persons who criticize my Gurudeva, or who support those who criticize him. They are the cause of all inauspiciousness. May I never see the wicked face of that evil person who maligns the lotus feet of my Sri Gurudeva or anyone who countenances (supports) such a slanderer.” Live by principle, not in the shadows.

CHAPTER 172: SINCERITY AND DUTY

(1) “This whole science is understood through service only. Everything becomes revealed. Sevonmukhe hijihvadau svayam eva sphuraty adah [BS 1.2.234]. Revelation. Everything is revelation. Unless one is very sincere servant, there is no revelation.” (SPLecture June 27, 1976) (2) “So, if you are strong enough to preach Krishna consciousness there, that is very good; that as long as you chant your 16 rounds and follow the four regulative principles, then you will get the strength. The process is that you should memorize the purports of my books and then speak them in your own words. Do not adulterate or change anything. Then you will be the perfect preacher. You should also distribute our books as far as possible. If you do this sincerely, then you will be successful.” (SPL Janajanmadhih das Nov. 15, 1975) (3) “Most people prefer to believe that their leaders are just and fair, even in the face of evidence to the contrary, because once a citizen acknowledges the government under which he lives is lying and corrupt, the citizen has to choose what he or she will do about it. To take action in the face of corrupt government entails risks of harm to life and loved ones. To choose to do nothing is to surrender one’s self-image of standing for principles. Most people do not have the courage to face that choice. Hence, most propaganda is not designed to fool the critical thinker but only to give moral cowards an excuse not to think at all.” (Michael Rivero) (4) “So there is no possibility of cooperation with them [Gaudiya Math]. They are not after preaching but material gain and reputation and adoration. Otherwise, why they are non cooperating with me? Do not think or indulge in loose talks. Be careful always. Let us do our duty of propagation sincerely and seriously on our own principles.” (SPL Achyutananda Maharaja June 8, 1974)

SRILA PRABHUPADA ALSO FACED THE DILEMMA OF A DEVIATED INSTITUTION

When Srila Prabhupada finally became free of his family obligations and was prepared to preach Bhaktisiddhanta’s mission in the West, he faced the prospect of how to fit into a broken, deviated Gaudiya Math. After coming to New York, he tried to get cooperation or assistance from Godbrothers in India, but failed, and then he carried on by himself. Similarly, we who accept understand ISKCON to be disobedient, deviated, and corrupt, are reluctant to participate in the institution that Srila Prabhupada created. So how do we serve Srila Prabhupada and his mission? Somehow we must sincerely perform our spiritual duty by serving Srila Prabhupada in the best way we can. The failure and disarray in the Gaudiya Math did not prevent Srila Prabhupada from doing wonders in service to his Guru Maharaja. Similarly the deviation and corruption in ISKCON does not prevent us from successfully serving Srila Prabhupada’s mission. Yes, it is a great shame and cause for sadness that his ISKCON institution was hijacked and is now in the control of bogus gurus, used as a criminal enterprise. However, we must somehow execute our duty to Srila Prabhupada. For the sincere disciple, there are no material obstacles to devotional service. Now, 45 years after Srila Prabhupada’s physical departure, growing numbers of followers of Srila Prabhupada have understood what happened to ISKCON and are finding alternatives to the corrupted ISKCON. Purity is the force, utility is the principle, books are the basis, and preaching is the essence. They are Prabhupada Anugas, and a fresh spiritual movement based on Srila Prabhupada’s vision and teachings is rising out of the ashes of the ruined ISKCON. These devotees are working together with enthusiasm to restore the Mission by hard work, sacrifice, austerity, and sincere endeavor.

If we choose to remain comfortable and make excuses why we cannot do much to save the situation, then we will lose a rare opportunity to greatly please Srila Prabhupada, and others will take that credit. There is no doubt that Lord Chaitanya’s mission will be successful by the sincere performance of duty by those implementing Srila Prabhupada’s instructions and directions. Srila Prabhupada was wonderfully aloof and determined to preach, even in the face of great opposition: “We have heard that Srila Prabhupada was dealt with similarly (harshly) by his Gaudiya Math Godbrothers. Indeed, two of his Godbrothers still alive today have informed us that Srila Prabhupada’s name was erased from the list of Gaudiya Math members by the manager at that time, a powerful, manipulative sannyasi who had received much personal association with Srila Bhaktisiddhanta.” (Remembering Srila Prabhupada, 1978, by Yasodanandana, Kailash Chandra, p. 27)

“This is amazingly sad truth about Srila Prabhupada’s poisoning. Kali yuga is raging inside and outside of Srila Prabhupada’s ISKCON. In regards to the poisoning their karma will come back full circle, that’s a fact. But what to do? I’m torn in many ways. Who am I? I can’t change them, but can only continue to serve Srila Prabhupada, the guru who, if you think of him, he is there. Serve the guru who is non-different from his mission, and pray we can defeat the crazy book changes so these books can fulfill his mission. I've seen 69 falldowns from their guru system, and the line to become guru is getting longer every year. I'll fight for Srila Prabhupada's original books to be re-established. I'm a fly and pray for the truth to prevail and this movement to be completely purified so that the mission to bestow benedictions upon all can be completed, Kali yuga gets cancelled, and the material world is liberated with no soul left behind." (Punyatama das, 2017)

COMMENTS: What good will be 1000s of "temples" where the poisoners of the pure devotee, their collaborators and followers, and imposter conditioned soul gurus are worshipped instead of Srila Prabhupada? They cleverly use Srila Prabhupada as a gloss of bona fidity on their cheating charade.

LEARNING TO COOPERATE WILL BRING SUCCESS

Srila Prabhupada always emphasized the importance of cooperation amongst his followers, as this would bring success in all transcendental endeavors. Since the Acharya's Mission has been undermined so much by the deviations since Srila Prabhupada's departure, cooperation is all the more essential. Amazingly, ISKCON is still surviving as an international organization, in spite of its serious internal weaknesses and anomalies, only because of the cooperation amongst its various guru camps. As Srila Prabhupada's original disciples were alienated and driven away from the society in the late 70's and 80's, they were forced to integrate again with the outside world and seek means and employment for maintaining their families. Without the support of temple morning programs and the association of devotees, Srila Prabhupada's disciples found themselves alone and they had to rebuild their lives as disenfranchised former ISKCON members. The cooperation in love and trust that Srila Prabhupada had inspired in them was no longer relevant in the cutthroat world of karmis. When the opportunity to cooperate with devotees sometimes arose, it was difficult. Disputed details, false ego, suspicion, bitterness, weakness and so on made it hard to work together. Where did the love and trust go? Would they be disappointed and hurt again, like when leaving ISKCON's chaos years earlier? Once burnt, twice shy. Devotees outside ISKCON had an uphill battle just to chant their rounds.

There are, as Srila Prabhupada clearly explains in Raja Vidya, great demons and demoniac forces on this planet Earth who oppose this Hare Krishna movement. We should not be naïve and think that it was an unfortunate accident that ISKCON went astray. These powerful enemies of Srila Prabhupada are a feature of maya, and sincere devotees must be strong to overcome the obstacles they meet while trying to "rectify the situation" of chaos that ensues after the Acharya disappears. This requires us to be fixed in our personal Krishna consciousness and to develop the skills and ability for cooperation with other like-minded devotees. Rather than focus on differences in details and dwell on a person's faults, we must learn to emphasize and utilize our commonalities with other devotees, and make sincere and deliberate efforts to work together. This will not be easy, but we know Srila Prabhupada wants us to cooperate together for his service and transcendental satisfaction. First of all, anyone who has accepted Srila Prabhupada as their direct inspiration in Krishna consciousness is to be seen as a brother or sister, and any differences between them should be seen as minor. Everyone will not think like I do, and we must see the love for Srila Prabhupada in our spiritual family, and we should try to encourage each other. Unfortunately, it seems that the independent, anti-authoritarian, and competitive mindset of many western devotees makes cooperation especially difficult. There are many ways to dovetail this mentality with working together for restoring Srila Prabhupada's mission. Patience, tolerance, compassion, humility, holding one's tongue, controlling the mind, senses and anger, and commitment to truly understand each other will enable cooperation and success. Following Srila Prabhupada's sadhana program helps us to develop these qualities. Pleasing Srila Prabhupada begins with chanting 16 rounds daily, following the four basic rules, studying his books regularly, associating with likeminded devotees, and worshipping the Lord's deity. Thus purified and spiritually-minded, we will be able to cooperate together. Otherwise quarrels and negative emotions may prevail. Over the last four decades, devotees outside of ISKCON have experienced many disappointments in trying to cooperate together, even in simple things like a morning program or weekly kirtans. But we must not be discouraged. Who said this was going to be easy?

TEXT: "O best of kings, please get up! Get up! Just see this world surrounded by water and infested with rogues and so-called kings. This world is very much afraid, and it is your duty to protect her." PURPORT: Whenever an acharya comes, following the superior orders of the Supreme Personality of Godhead or His representative, he establishes the principles of religion, as enunciated in Bhagavad-gita... It is the acharya's duty to spread a bona fide religious system... Unfortunately, when the acharya disappears, rogues and nondevotees take advantage and immediately begin to introduce unauthorized principles in the name of so-called swamis, yogis, philanthropists, welfare workers and so on... The acharya, the authorized representative of the Supreme Lord, establishes these principles, but when he disappears, things once again become disordered. The perfect disciples of the acharya try to relieve the situation by sincerely following the instructions of the spiritual master. At the present moment practically the entire world is afraid of rogues and nondevotees; therefore this Krishna consciousness movement is started to save the world from irreligious principles. Everyone should cooperate with this movement in order to bring about actual peace and happiness in the world." (SBhag 4.28.48)

TESTIMONIES: FROM THE HEART

"To take a firm stand for the truth and against cheating is not possible for all persons, for whatever reasons. It is always the "extremists," the hardcore revolutionaries that bring about the major changes, not those who mix with the corrupted order. We need a major change, not another wishy washy so-called partial reform. Everyone will choose to work in their own way, that's what always happens, good luck to the accommodaters, we will see eventually if it does anything to restore Prabhupada's mission. I like the comparison to the Gaudiya Math- Prabhupada severely warned us not to associate with his Godbrothers lest we become confused and then we are finished, and ISKCON has deviated in an almost carbon copy manner, so how can we associate with ISKCON people? Why risk becoming confused? Why support in any way an ISKCON that is severely offending Srila Prabhupada? If it is not clear yet that ISKCON leaders are all rascals who have cheated on the guru and poison issues to continue their guru business, then it will never be clear. It requires a certain clarity of intelligence to understand these basic things, and association with ISKCON is very detrimental to clarity of consciousness and intelligence, just like it is to eat food cooked by karmis." (Narasimha das, 2017)

"Writing on the truth of the situation is necessary for success. Establishing centers, farms, printing unchanged books, counseling devotees on quitting bad association, giving friendship, shelter or encouragement to recruit more soldiers for the war, using our wealth and time productively... We should make plans and allies who are of the same mind. Find them, befriend them, work to restore the mission. Emphasize our commonalities, not our minute differences." (Naveen Krishna das, 2018)

"The big war lies ahead of us. We must gather the devotees to fight against the cheaters while simultaneously rebuilding the mission. We must use our TIME, MONEY, INTELLIGENCE, all our assets to help Srila Prabhupada save his mission, not to remain comfortable and alone, safe. Prabhupada's mission is in great danger of extinction. Who will help him? Prabhupada is calling to us to be loyal, stand up for him and do whatever we each can to set things right, to restore order amidst the chaos brought upon us by ambitious pretenders who stole His Divine Grace's accomplishments and squandered his hard work." (Nityasiddha das)

"Sometimes Srila Prabhupada's followers, having experienced 'everything that can happen, has happened' during years of association with ISKCON, become cynical about chances of positive change in ISKCON. We may think, what's the use of restoring ISKCON? Very difficult to recreate the authority of the original ISKCON. It's the Humpty Dumpty syndrome. Once fallen off the wall, hard to put it back together. Nor do I find much in Srila Prabhupada's books that reforming or recreating ISKCON-like institutions is a foremost duty for His disciples. Local preaching using Srila Prabhupada's books is the basis." (Narasimha das, 2016)

Some will find they have opportunities to restore the original ISKCON or assist those still trapped inside that corrupted institution. Others will not, but find opportunities to preach Krishna consciousness locally, independent of ISKCON. One or the other... but please do something positive to help Srila Prabhupada. We should just do our duty sincerely to please Srila Prabhupada.

APOLOGIES FROM FORMER PARTICIPANTS IN ISKCON CORRUPTION

For those who were once a part of ISKCON's corruption by supporting the unauthorised gurus' exploitation of Srila Prabhupada's assets, by misdirecting devotees to take shelter of conditioned souls, and who regret this past, a simple apology can be amazingly healing. E.g., Balarama das in Australia was part of Bhavananda's regime for years; he wrote in 2012: "Dear devotees: I, out of ignorance and being a neophyte myself, helped in the continuation of the false GBC created zonal acharya system by also promoting the original 11 ritviks as initiating gurus, as they received worship only reserved for the nitya-siddha mahabhagawata. For my part in this I offer my sincere apologies to all devotees during the late 70's and 80's who came to the temple where I was in charge, and who were unfortunately misdirected and may have spiritually suffered."

Balarama das also made personal apologies to many individual devotees and his life is now dedicated to promoting the truth of what Srila Prabhupada taught us. By these sincere apologies and working together for Srila Prabhupada, we can remove the deviated GBC and restore/rebuild ISKCON.

SRILA PRABHUPADA MADE ORDER OUT OF CHAOS

"Sri Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati Goswami, at the time of his passing away, ordered all his disciples to work conjointly to preach the mission of Chaitanya Mahaprabhu all over the world. Later, however, some self-interested, foolish disciples disobeyed his orders. Each one of them wanted to become head of the mission, and they fought in the courts, neglecting the order of the spiritual master, and the entire mission was defeated. We are not proud of this; however, the truth must be explained. We believed in the words of our spiritual master and started in a humble way –in a helpless way –but due to the spiritual force of the order of the supreme authority, this movement has become successful." (CC Adi 7.95 purport)

"Such disagreement among the disciples of one acharya is also found among the members of the Gaudiya Matha. In the beginning, during the presence of [...] Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati Thakura Prabhupada, all the disciples worked in agreement; but just after his disappearance, they disagreed. One party strictly followed the instructions of Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati Thakura, but another group created their own concoction about executing his desires. Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati Thakur, at the time of his departure, requested all his disciples to form a governing body and conduct missionary activities cooperatively. He did not instruct a particular man to become the next acharya. But just after his passing away his leading secretaries made plans, without authority, to occupy the post of acharya, and they split in two factions over who the next acharya would be. Consequently, both factions were asara, or useless, because they had no authority, having disobeyed the order of the spiritual master. Despite the spiritual master's order to form a governing body and execute the missionary activities of the Gaudiya Matha, the two unauthorized factions began litigation that is still going on after forty years with no decision. Therefore, we do not belong to any faction. But because the two parties, busy dividing the material assets of the Gaudiya Matha institution, stopped the preaching work, we took up the mission of Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati Thakura and Bhaktivinode Thakura to preach the cult of Chaitanya Mahaprabhu all over the world, under the protection of all the predecessor acharyas, and we find that our humble attempt has been successful..." (CC Adi 12.8 purport)

The similarities are striking and remarkable between the histories of Gaudiya Math and ISKCON. Much is to be learned from the above purport. The parallels serve as practical guidance for the situation today in the Hare Krishna Movement. We must perform our duty sincerely, following Srila Prabhupada's instructions without deviation. (1) "Do not be depressed. All along my godbrothers gave me only depression, repression, compression- but I continued strong in my duty. So never mind there is some discouragement, continue with your work in full enthusiastic Krishna Consciousness attitude of service." (SPL Gurudas Aug. 29, 1972) (2) "Anyway, the business which we have taken to work together is neither your business nor my business as far we are personally concerned, but it is the business of Lord Chaitanya and His bona fide servants like my Guru Maharaja. Therefore it is the duty of all of us to execute it as nicely as far as possible within our capacity. In other words, we shall just try to discharge our responsible duties faithfully and seriously, then all facilities will come for our help." (SPL Jan. 1, 1970) (3) "We cannot stop this movement. It is actually a fight against Maya. So Maya may also sometimes cause casualties in our camp. So, we must only thank Krishna and seriously dedicate everything for Him." (SPL June 14, 1973)

CHAPTER 173: LOVE AND TRUST

"The days of love and trust are now gone. Sadly this is so." (Jnanagamyas das, 2001)

(1) "I can only suggest, and wherever possible that can be applied, but I do not force anyone. After all, you are working so hard to please Krishna only out of love for me, so there can be no question of force if love is there. We should not ever try to force anyone or reduce our Society to an impersonal business exchange. This will kill everything. Our only purpose in every endeavor is simply to make advancement in spiritual life or in pleasing Krishna." (SPL Apr. 9, 1972) (2) "You have got some bit of love for me, therefore you carry my order. Otherwise it is not possible. And I cannot also. You are foreigners. You are Americans. I came from another country, I have no account. I cannot also order you: 'You must do it, otherwise I will chastise you.' Because there is love. It is a connection of love. I can also become bold enough to chastise you, but you also, in whatever condition, you carry my order due to the basic principle of love. And our whole philosophy is love. We are just trying to learn how to love Krishna, that's all. So without the basic principle of love, these things cannot be conceived." (Dialectic Spiritualism, Ch. 7) (3) "The whole system was that. Love exchange. I give you some service; you give me something out of your love. dadati pratigrhñati. Love means six symptoms. I give you something, you give me something. I give you something for eating, you also give me something for eating. [...]. If I am in trouble, I express my open mind before you, and you also try to help me. These are the six signs of love. That is Vedic civilization. Everything exchange of love. No business, mercantile." (SPLecture June 22, 1972) (4) "Differences should be discussed openly amongst ourselves, not secret meetings. We are Vaishnava devotees, not politicians. So these things must be stopped, plotting." (SPL Nityananda Nov. 25, 1972) (5) "Regarding your question should force be used on children, no, there shall be no forcing the children to do anything. Child should not be forced. This is all nonsense. Who has devised these things? If we want them to become great devotees, then we must educate the children with love, not in a negative way." (SPL Dec. 10, 1972) (6) "Even though a person is rejected by the Supreme Personality of Godhead, the devotees of the Lord do not reject him; therefore the Lord's devotees are more merciful than the Lord Himself. [...] chadiya vaisnava-seva nistara payeche keba: one cannot be relieved from the material clutches without engaging in the service of pure devotees. The Lord Himself may sometimes be very hard, but the devotees are always kind." (CC Mad 10.67 purport) (7) "Preaching is our first-class engagement, including sankirtana party, selling books, speaking, like that. But if for some reason a devotee is unable to do these things, then I say that they are allowed to live outside and work as a concession. Our service for Krishna is voluntary and can never be forced. And whatever position in life one holds he can serve Krishna in that way." (SPL Vamanadeva Dec. 8, 1971) (8) "Of course, our serving Krishna is voluntary affair, so what can I say? If you think that is the best choice, I must agree, otherwise you might go away altogether." (SPL 1972)

(9) "So the future of this Krishna consciousness movement is very bright [...] our leaders shall be careful not to kill the spirit of enthusiastic service, which is individual and spontaneous and voluntary. They should try always to generate some atmosphere of fresh challenge to the devotees, so that they will agree enthusiastically to rise and meet it. That is the art of management: to draw out spontaneous loving spirit of sacrificing some energy for Krishna. But where are so many expert managers? All of us should become expert managers and preachers. We should not be very much after comforts and become complacent or self-contented. There must be always some tapasya, strictly observing the regulative principles--Krishna Consciousness movement must be always a challenge, a great achievement to be gained by voluntary desire to do it, and that will keep it healthy." (SPL Karandhar Dec. 22, 1972) (10) "Try to pacify him if he is offended. Everyone comes to us to offer voluntary service, so amongst ourselves there must be good behavior. One may not feel sorry. So the leaders must take precautions as far as possible. (SPL Acyutananda Nov. 1, 1973) (11) "...both of you had some hot conversation on the points of management, but I request both of you not to become agitated on any controversial point. A Vaishnava is supposed to be more tolerant than the tree and more forbearing than the grass. Besides that we have taken a great mission of the cult of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, so everything should be done very diligently and soberly so that our missionary activity may not be hampered. All of our members are giving voluntary service, so they should always be encouraged in their service attitude." (SPL Bali Mardan Aug. 14, 1974) (12) "Our movement is based on love and trust, so if we do not co-operate, then how is that love and trust? Follow all of the rules and regulations very strictly without deviation, chant 16 rounds, attend class and mangala arati and then everything will be alright. (SPL Krishnavesa Jan. 16, 1975) (13) "You all should co-operate and then things will go on very nicely. We should not bring in politics. That is a very nasty thing." (SPL Sukadeva Sept. 18, 1975) (14) "...there is some disturbance among you, but that is not to be taken very seriously. Real business is preaching work, and if there is full attention on this matter only, all other businesses will be automatically successful. Fighting amongst ourselves is not at all good, but if our preaching work is neglected, or if we fall down in following the regulative principles such as rising before four, chanting 16 rounds [...] then maya will enter and spoil everything. [...] We should not criticize each other, as Vaishnavas, because there is fault in everyone and we may be ourselves subject to criticism. Best thing is to be above suspicion ourselves, then if we see discrepancies and make suggestion the others will automatically respect and take action to rectify the matters. That is cooperation. [...] otherwise the whole thing is doomed if we simply go on fighting over some small thing. So try to organize things and preach together in this spirit, and that will please me very, very much." (SPL Madhumangala Nov. 18, 1972)

(15) "We are giving Krishna consciousness. That is loving, real loving. We are giving him eternal life, eternal bliss. Unless we love them, why we are taking so much trouble? The preacher must love the people. Otherwise why he is taking? He can do it for himself at home. Why he is taking so much trouble? Why in eighty years old I have come here if I do not love? So who can love better than a preacher?" (SPConv May 17, 1975) (16) "...why you big leaders do not understand it? You should take it to heart as a guiding principle that somehow or other we always please Krishna by doing what is practical and necessary, according to time and place. Not that we should be whimsical. But one test is that all the devotees should be satisfied. They have given their lives to Krishna, so we should see they are always happy. Their service is voluntary. It is not that we can force anyone to do anything. If we do they will go away and that is a great loss. Everyone must be encouraged to do what he likes to do for Krishna..." (SPL Nov. 20, 1971) (17) "Brahmana means perfect gentleman. A rogue, thief, cannot become brahmana. Brahmana is perfect gentleman. Who feels for others, that is gentleman. Who does not feel for others, for his sense gratification, he is a rogue." (SPConv Apr. 9, 1976)

(18) "Affection for God-brothers is nice, it is a good sign. Affection for God-brothers as well as for all other living entities, even they are not God-brothers, these signs are seen in the advanced devotees." (SPL July 29, 1968) (19) "Our philosophy is to educate people how to love God. That is real religion. Sa vai pumsam [...]. That is first-class religion which teaches the follower how to love God. And as soon he becomes a lover of God... Just like I am Indian, but I have come to western countries to teach love of God. It is not that I am satisfied only in myself that I love God [...] But due to my love to God I love others also, because I am trying to teach them to love God, the same philosophy. So if people take seriously this movement, how to love God, then human society will be first-rate." (SPConv Sept. 5, 1971) (20) "You cannot survive without my mercy and I cannot survive without your mercy. It is reciprocal. This mutual dependence is based on love -Krishna Consciousness." (SPL Jan. 22, 1976) (21) "...children should not be beaten at all, that I have told. [...] If a child is trained properly in Krishna Consciousness, he will never go away. That means he must have two things, love and education. So if there is beating of child, that will be difficult for him to accept in loving spirit, and when he is old enough he may want to go away- that is the danger. So why these things are going on -marching and chanting japa, insufficient milk, too strict enforcement of time schedules, hitting the small children? Why these things are being imposed? [...] They should run and play when they are small children, not forced to chant japa, that is not the way." (SPL Nov. 18, 1972) (22) "Now all my disciples must work combinedly and with cooperation to spread this Sankirtana Movement. If you cannot work together then my work is stopped up. Our Society is like one big family and our relationships should be based on love and trust. We must give up the fighting spirit and use our intelligence to push ahead. You should accept help from your Godbrothers." (SPL Upendra Aug. 6, 1970)

HOW THE GBC WENT TO THE DARK SIDE BY USING FORCE

When the desire to eliminate Srila Prabhupada arose in the hearts of key senior men, and they decided to poison him to quicken his departure so they could take his place, these men resorted to secretive force to fulfill their private ambitions. Contrary to their ardent claims of love of Srila Prabhupada, some of them, undoubtedly headed by Tamal (Ch. 74), were very envious and made plans for a gurujacking of the movement (Part 11). Thus the love and trust that Srila Prabhupada had nurtured in his society was also poisoned, and the deviant GBC from 1978 onwards has increasingly employed force and distrust to maintain its control. This leads to the ISKCON membership's loyalty being increasingly superficial and fear-based, not love-based.

The GBC deviations increased exponentially after the poisoning, and the guru disease of DADS spread throughout the institution. Schisms, devotee abuse, dissatisfaction, defections, and spiritual catastrophe with falling bogus gurus gradually eroding Srila Prabhupada's mood of love and trust. Party spirit and legal institutional controls became the new leadership methodology. ISKCON became a church with corporate and legalistic bureaucracy; the GBC-gurus became the power-elite. The underlying society-wide principle was the facilitation of guru franchises. Under the façade of paying lip service to Srila Prabhupada's greatness and glories, it is just a guru business, as Sulochan das wrote in 1984. Due to innumerable deviations and mismanagement, while 90% of the institution's energy goes to the unauthorised gurus' competitive canvassing and building of separate, franchised kingdoms, many structural weaknesses have developed to further sap ISKCON strength and purity. Opportunism by the Gaudiya Math have also thinned the ranks of ISKCON members. Discord amongst various factions developed in confusion of philosophy and siddhanta. ISKCON responded with excommunication, fear-mongering, repression, heavy-handedness, intimidation, and outright lies. Internal discord came from the 100+ competing gurus who all smiled in public. The pretenses of harmony has caused corrosion of love and trust amongst Srila Prabhupada's followers. Some devotees remember the days of "love and trust" before Srila Prabhupada departed, but today, after ISKCON has been so devastated, this term means little except as a ploy to exploit or cheat others.

WITHOUT TOTAL LEGAL CONTROL BY THE GBC, WHAT MIGHT HAPPEN?

In the famous 1972 "decentralize" letter to Karandhar das we see Srila Prabhupada never wanted the authority structure of ISKCON to be centralized and corporatized. ISKCON was not to become a bureaucratic organization where each is beholden to one's boss by legal controls. Each temple should remain independent. Would that risk the danger of some temples deviating or separating from ISKCON? There is the history of Sai (SiddhaSvarupananda) and his followers in Hawaii who developed deep animosities for the ISKCON GBC and leaders with disagreements over book distribution methods and GBC authority. Srila Prabhupada consistently maintained his instructions regarding shaved heads, chanting 16 rounds, and the four basic regulations, but ultimately he encouraged Siddha's group, even if separate from ISKCON, as long as they followed his basic instructions. He never rejected them nor initiated legal measures to control their properties or bank accounts. Sai's group fully disaffiliated from ISKCON in 1977, and 45 years later they still have kirtans, Srila Prabhupada's unchanged books, Sunday feasts, and follow the basic principles. What Is The Difficulty (p. 78-9): "By 1975, Siddha already had a splinter group, the first one in ISKCON. The tendency to be separate was there from the start. When Siddha came, he already had a following. Srila Prabhupada always tried to get them to cooperate with the GBC but knew they wouldn't. Therefore he gave them sufficient opportunity to get his personal association and instructions... Srila Prabhupada invited them both [Tusta Krishna as well] to travel with him in India... Srila Prabhupada... wanted them [Siddha's group] to be fixed up in Krishna consciousness so that they could help spread Lord Chaitanya's movement, even if they were going to do it independently."

Govinda dasi, an original Hawaii devotee: "Siddhasvaraupa's preaching is as authentic as anybody else who teaches people to chant Hare Krishna, read Prabhupada's books, and follow the regulative principles. I think Prabhupada sees little difference. It's the sincerity of heart that matters, the bhakti. During his fire sacrifice initiation, he was given sannyas, Srila Prabhupada said that he is a siddha yogi who has come from Siddha Loka to preach Lord Chaitanya's movement here. As he was so charismatic, many godbrothers became jealous and he was more or less forced to leave the political institution part of ISKCON. But he never left Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON, his Vahana for preaching on this planet, in this universe. I think there is a misconception that ISKCON is a mundane corporation, a group of managers, which may exist in temporary space, however, the real ISKCON is completely spiritual, and is Srila Prabhupada's creation. Look at the fruit of Siddhasvarupa's preaching work. He has students all over the world, a thriving movement in Hawaii, gurukulas in the Phillipines, and they read Prabhupada's original books and chant Hare Krishna, and most of them follow very strictly. Their society is less 'Indianized' because Siddha knows how to preach in the West. Look at Tulsi Gabbard, who was a US congresswoman/presidential candidate glorifying Lord Krishna on TV and YouTube. She met with India's PM Modi many times, and even helped get the visa restrictions eased. She was trained and protected her whole life by her parents who are Siddha's followers. (Her father is a state senator in Hawaii.). Siddhasvarupa did gradually 'clean up' the long hair hippy types, yogi types. A memoir by Abhiram das describes how Siddha wrote Prabhupada a letter, saying, 'Please bless me and remember me sometimes.' Abhiram was reading the letter to Prabhupada, who had tears coming down his cheeks: 'I am always remembering him.'"

Of course, on the plea of avoiding the "loss" of a temple or two (which could surely be brought back over time with nice preaching and careful attention to excellence in devotee relations), the GBC has created a gurocracy where there are no more independent temples nor free thinking devotees engaged in voluntary service. Only by salaries, the allure of becoming a guru, and by force does ISKCON go on today. Salaried temple presidents will agree to all GBC stipulations. E.g., New Vrindaban was expelled in 1987 for deviant leadership, but returned to ISKCON by 1994 as the deviations self-corrected. If ISKCON, with clean hands, had preached nicely about Kirtanananda's deviations, most would have rejected him for ISKCON. Corporate control is not what Srila Prabhupada had in mind when he designed a management system for ISKCON; it is not a viable manner in which to manage a spiritual organization. We should have more faith in Srila Prabhupada's vision and design for ISKCON. Our own culturally-conditioned and modern ideas of unnecessary bureaucracy and centralization should not push aside Srila Prabhupada's perfect organizational plans and instructions.

If a temple develops by its own strength, then the organization does not lose any investment if that chapter were to disaffiliate later. The properties should already be protected by trustees as per the DOM and "Urgent Notice" of 1974, so a disaffiliating chapter would mean only a loss of some members who would relocate elsewhere. This happened in Christchurch, New Zealand when the temple president defected with many temple devotees due to disagreement with ISKCON guru policies. Consciousness cannot be changed by force and legalities. Krishna consciousness is ultimately a voluntary surrendering process. The capitalist organizational model of top-down legal control ready for every contingency may be the modus operandi for global elitists and other materialists, but it is not the path that Srila Prabhupada wanted for his mission. Srila Prabhupada wanted the training of independently thoughtful leaders and managers, having the freedom to make mistakes if not able to take advice from guiding leaders. Some devotees may not learn right away, but most would come back to a clean ISKCON in due course of time, by love, and not by force.

INFIGHTING AND QUARRELLING SHOULD BE TRANSCENDED

Increasingly we see the Hare Krishna movement being divided into alienated camps who are wary, distrustful, and unfriendly with the other camps. Civility and Vaishnava etiquette is lost to name calling, ridicule, unnecessary criticisms, even violence. "Devotees" want others with whom they disagree to be shamed and discredited. Insinuations of various improprieties are widespread even with no evidence. Meanwhile the GBC simply ignores all criticism of itself and discontent in its members, pretending all is well. Rational debate and fair discussion is replaced by condescending attitudes and sectarianism, then walking away in a show of righteous disgust. Innumerable previous participants now reject ISKCON and its leaders, having been abused, disappointed, neglected, cheated, or handled roughly.

(1) "Best not to presume someone's ideology and go on attack mode. That is not istagoshti or friendly threadbare discussion. Just present the complete philosophy as it applies to a certain factual situation; in this case those connected to the Ravana Iskcon and hoping and trying to connect with Srila Prabhupada and his mission all over the world where Iskcon dominates. That is the philosophy that applies to these people, whether they are kids, life members, congregation, sometimes visitors, or misguided temple devotees." (Naveen Krishna das) (2) "This is the pin pointed question to address the complicated reality of devotees out there, which is not black and white. The answer obviously depends upon the relationship of each devotee with Srila Prabhupada in that camp. To say that many innocent devotees who are ignorant of being cheated and have gone to ISKCON gurus, but hear from Srila Prabhupada and read his books, that they will lose their direct connection with Srila Prabhupada and will get no spiritual benefit just because they have an imposter, so called guru- is perhaps fanatical. To whatever degree of genuine faith, devotion and love anyone has directly for Srila Prabhupada and chants 16 rounds he will benefit. That benefit may be lost due to association with offenses in corrupted ISKCON. It is a bag of mixed fruits for them, which we are not interested in. Many quotes that are often used show how different types of devotees with different types of Prabhupada consciousness can benefit or even go to hell. That discussion will make sense. To say all of them will go to hell is total misunderstanding of the philosophy Srila Prabhupada taught us. How can all the benefits of their different degrees of genuine faith in Srila Prabhupada be nullified because they are being cheated by bogus leaders who do not have the power to counter the spiritual mercy Srila Prabhupada bestows in heart to heart relationships with devotees who take him as siksha guru and who worship him in daily guru puja. The poison given to them will not counter everything one receives from Srila Prabhupada for his direct devotion and connection with him. That there are demons in the movement does not mean all in the physical institution are demons. Srila Prabhupada will find ways to pull out his genuine bhaktas from that association just as he did for the Bangalore group of devotees.

"I feel clearly even now that Srila Prabhupada is watching and is in control of ISKCON with many independent thinking agents that will rise up in time. Again, there are different types of devotee consciousness vis a vis Srila Prabhupada out there. Just like Krishna, Srila Prabhupada will reciprocate with each soul as they surrender to him. ISKCON camp is also his movement though deviant. We may not associate with them but we cannot know if Srila Prabhupada has abandoned ISKCON entirely. Time will tell. Srila Prabhupada wisely introduced structural practices (like his daily worship) that it is impossible for ISKCON gurus to insulate their flock completely from Srila Prabhupada. Over the years by the Lord's arrangements they had to formally declare the direct siksha connection with Prabhupada. One cannot stop the rising Sun." (Madhu Pandit das)

(3) "After settling in Oregon with Dinatarine, Srila Prabhupada, while pronouncing us 'independent' to a concerned Godbrother, also twice rebuked us when we approached him to leave.

'You westerners are so restless,' he admonished. 'Why can't you remain in the same place? Stay where you are.' We questioned, 'But they are saying that if we aren't in ISKCON, we lose your blessings and cannot make advancement.' Prabhupada replied, 'ISKCON is where you are chanting the holy name—that is ISKCON.' We rejoined: 'They are saying we don't have any association here and are therefore in maya.' He replied: 'Association can be two or two hundred. If you are two and compatible, you can become perfect in Krishna consciousness. If you are 200 and are not, then no one will make advancement.'" (Unalloyed Devotion, Yamuna dasi)

TRUSTING THE SANNYASIS (by unknown)

"Sannyasis must not interact with women. Srila Prabhupada did not even spend time alone with his old, fat sister, just to set the example for us. Sannyasis should not be managers. When somebody wants to become guru or sannyasi, this is suspicious. The very desire to be a guru or sannyasi can itself be a disqualification. Sannyas is not necessary to preach, so what is the motivation? Many have misunderstood the position of sannyas. Today, a successful sannyasi in ISKCON has more power, fame, adoration, prestige and less accountability than most karmi prime ministers. No wonder everyone wants to join the club. A successful swami can have a fabulous career full of material benefits. Where is the austere madhukari (daily begging for food), the traditional role of a sannyasi? To uplift the consciousness of society, a sannyasi must renounce worldly possessions and travel, his duty being to serve society, not to be served. No sannyasi should have a personal bank account. Is it appropriate that sannyasis have millions of dollars? Sannyas should be defined properly. Candidates should donate their personal money to the society, and walk into the sannyas asrama completely dependant on Krishna and the Vaishnavas. Fewer would rush to get on board, and the relationship between the sannyasis and the rest of the Vaishnava community would be much more friendly and respectful. Money and political power is better placed with grihastas without vested interests: devotees who are spiritually, financially and morally accomplished, with a proven track record."

BRING BACK THE LOVE AND TRUST

Srila Prabhupada arranged for property trustees on all ISKCON fixed real estate to protect them from mismanagement, such as unnecessary mortgages or sales. He required oaths of allegiance to himself and his teachings from all leaders. He gave the DOM, the July 9 Directive, his Final Will. He gave us his voluminous teachings in books, letters, recorded conversations and lectures. He inspired his disciples and followers with his policy of love and trust, voluntary service, and independent thinking. He did not initiate lawsuits against Siddha Svarupananda or require oaths of allegiance to the GBC's future deviant policies, nor did he ask that the GBC be the legal beneficial owners of the temples as they now are. He did not ask that devotees blindly accept future GBC ecclesiastic edicts, nor did he nullify the principle of elections of temple presidents by local members, and the GBC by temple presidents (albeit with some minor clarifications). These things would have run counter to his way of inspiring voluntary participation and attracting loving surrender to his instructions and divine mercy. If ISKCON, locally or globally, returns to Srila Prabhupada's mood of love and trust, there will be no need for the force, fear, lies, and repression that exists in ISKCON today. The GBC have found these things necessary because they promote deviant policies that can only survive through an administration of threats, bribery, corruption, and force. These deviancies must be cleared away (Ch. 165).

There is no need of fear, intimidation, repression, or forcing any siddhanta or interpretation upon anyone. Krishna consciousness is voluntary, and it is based on love of Srila Prabhupada and Lord Krishna.

---

CHAPTER 174: BRING BACK THE DEVOTEES

(1) "Everyone should be friendly for the service of the Lord. Everyone should praise another's service to the Lord and not be proud of his own service. This is the way of Vaishnava thinking, Vaikuntha thinking. There may be rivalries and apparent competition between servants in performing service, but in the Vaikuntha planets the service of another servant is appreciated, not condemned. This is Vaikuntha competition. There is no question of enmity between servants. Everyone should be allowed to render service to the Lord to his best ability, and everyone should appreciate the service of others. Such are the activities of Vaikuntha. Since everyone is a servant, everyone is on the same platform and is allowed to serve the Lord according to his ability." (SBhag 7.5.12 purport) (2) "We can reject anyone, that is very easy, but to reform him that requires great skill and tact and if you can reform him by kind words and dealings that is best." (SPL Madhudvisa Aug. 24, 1972) (3) "Our policy should be to keep members as much as possible. We should not flatly say 'You must leave'. That is not our policy." (SPL Jayapataka Dec. 8, 1969) (4) "It is our purpose to respiritualize the whole world, socially and politically. Of course, this is just our ideal. At least if we individually take up this respiritualization process, our lives become perfect." (unknown devotee)

SRILA PRABHUPADA'S GREAT LOVE AND COMPASSION

(1) "I personally observed that Srila Prabhupada would always try to engage all his Godbrothers. Even Puri Maharaja told me that Prabhupada wanted him to go to America with him on the boat. He's a Vaishnava. No devotee wants to be alone. We are all Krishna's servants, part of the spiritual family. So I asked Puri Maharaja why he didn't go. He said he thought about it many times and finally concluded that Krishna must have wanted Prabhupada to take all the credit. In 1975, Srila Prabhupada wanted to go to the Big Island of Hawaii. There was a farm that the temple owned. [But] That wasn't his motive to go there. He didn't care about this farm. So just Prabhupada and I got on a plane to the Big Island. When we landed, Narasimha das who was in charge of the temple farm property came to take us there. But Prabhupada said to me, 'Where's Gaurasundar?' I said that I don't know, that he's got some farm with some goats or something. Prabhupada said, 'Can we find out?' Later I gave Prabhupada a massage and I asked him, 'Why are you after this Gaurasundar?' And he said, 'I like that rascal.' Two weeks later Gaurasundar showed up in the Honolulu temple while Srila Prabhupada was still there. He had heard that Prabhupada was looking for him. I snuck up to the room to hear their conversation. Prabhupada was sitting out on the veranda area [and] with tears in his eyes, said, 'Why have you left? What did I do, it must be me. I cannot figure out what you have done wrong. It has to be me. Please forgive me'. Prabhupada was crying and begging him to please come back. Now, today's GBC, do they want anybody to come back? Do they care? Prabhupada was crying for this one devotee, blaming himself that he had left. This is a Vaishnava. He is only thinking what he can do. 'I must have made some aparadha', Prabhupada said, 'Please forgive my offenses' and the tears came out of his eyes. When I saw this my faith increased. I understood what is a real devotee [...] So my advice to this present GBC, 'Go get the Godbrothers,' with a straw in your teeth. They are not envious. That will please Srila Prabhupada very much." (Gurukripa das, 2010) (2) "Our only tie is love of Godhead. It should be our definite policy that nobody is ill-treated that he may go away. We recruit a person to join us after spending gallons of blood. Everyone comes for reformation, you cannot expect everyone to be perfect, rather it is our duty to make everyone perfect as far as possible. So we shall be very much cautious and careful in this matter." (SPL Tamal Aug. 23, 1973)

WE ARE SRILA PRABHUPADA'S FAMILY

All the followers of Srila Prabhupada are members of one spiritual family. We will eventually go back to Godhead and live with our divine master and assist him in his pure devotional service to Lord Krishna. We are closely related as Godbrothers and Godsisters. There should be no envy, party spirit, rivalry, just lots of kirtan. E.g., there are four different but bona fide Vaishnava sampradayas: although there are significant differences in rituals, names, culture, etc, all those in one sampradaya highly respect those in the other sampardayas, because they are all closely related in philosophy and practices. Srila Prabhupada stated: "All the sampradayas are related with one another because the conclusion is the same: that Lord Krishna is the Supreme Personality of Godhead and the living entities are His eternal servants.” (SPL Nityananda das Nov. 12, 1971) Similarly, the heart-initiated disciples of Srila Prabhupada, who are in the millions on this planet alone, should not quarrel over details. With a proper leadership, the Hare Krishna movement will inspire devotees to work together, love each other, and cooperate. Differences will be respectfully and appropriately discussed and tolerated, if this one basic principle is accepted: Srila Prabhupada’s instructions and teachings are our life and soul, we need not change them, deviate from them, add to them, falsely interpret them, or neglect them.

EVERYONE WILL COME TO SRILA PRABHUPADA ON THEIR OWN

Srila Prabhupada’s books and vani are so powerful and perfect that practically nothing in contradiction can stand before them. All the deviations in the mission are gradually being understood and exposed for what they are- but only by those who seriously study Srila Prabhupada’s teachings, which have the mystical, spiritual potency to dissolve all illusory energies and coverings over the soul’s original Krishna consciousness. There is an interesting phenomenon: the evolution of devotees in Srila Prabhupada’s influence: “Madhu Pandit at Bangalore ISKCON told me that once an ISKCON devotee in India reaches about the 10 year mark, they start to lose faith in their so-called ISKCON guru, and then don’t even call him by his name or title anymore. It takes about 10 years before they start waking up and so the ‘iskgurus’ need to continually make new ‘disciples,’ to keep their show going. Devotees start to question things after some time and gradually take more shelter of Srila Prabhupada. So, amongst older ISKCON devotees, there may be a high percentage of closet Prabhupada Anugas, especially in India, who are just biding their time to follow their advancing convictions that Srila Prabhupada is the real diksha guru. We should just provide basic, factual information to all we can, trusting Srila Prabhupada will eventually attract everyone away from the cheaters to his own lotus feet. This is almost an unavoidable choice that all devotees are naturally confronted with.” (Narasimha das, 2017)

CAN A BROKEN HEART BE HEALED?

So many devotees, especially those who came during Srila Prabhupada’s presence or shortly thereafter, had their hearts broken by tragic experiences in ISKCON. Many call ISKCON as ITS GONE, meaning that the transcendental society Srila Prabhupada gave us no longer exists. Largely due to the insanity, deviations, and fallen nature of the misleaders, almost all of Srila Prabhupada’s “original” disciples have left the institution and maintain Krishna consciousness elsewhere. Their experiences included sexual abuse, exploitation, neglect, violence, arrogance, heavy-handedness, hypocrisy, rape, beatings, threats, insults, and everything under the Sun one would never expect to find in a community for love and devotion to the Supreme Lord and His children. Many see ISKCON as having been taken over by demoniac persons and as a mundane institution. “Sadly, after going through so much abuse and the aftermath of ISKCON, I wonder about my heart. It USED to be very sweet, but I think it is now bitter-sour. I find myself praying to Srila Prabhupada to help me to turn that now bitter heart, into the heart it USED to be, but will it ever return to what it once was? Srila Prabhupada said somewhere in a CC purport that ‘the heart is like a clay pot, and once broken, it is very difficult to mend,’ what to speak if it was so many times smashed to bits.” (Mahamegavati dasi, 2000)

URDHVAGA DAS: “We have to struggle and keep going on. We must expose ITS GON crooks and helping others to relieve their pain. Srila Prabhupada himself suffered and complained that they had given poison to him. Why did he say: ‘My only request is that you do not torture me and put me to death’? They wanted so bad to sit in his seat. Srila Prabhupada had to endure all of this, and us little souls too. The homosexual mentality amongst our ISKCON leadership has perverted everything: the purity was lost, it was normal for Rakshasa leaders to abuse women, mothers, and children. They dovetailed their perverted activities with our spotless philosophy and adulterated Srila Prabhupada’s original books. These GBC-perverts claimed their Homo-Leaders are guru successors, links in a chain of pure devotees, gopi assistants. It is disgusting. They openly preach bogus philosophy, such as the ‘voted in successor acharyas,’ with a ‘less than liberated guru thesis,’ and a ‘minimum qualification theory,’ for adapting their ‘homosexual pedophile guru lineage’ of conditioned souls into the pure guru-parampara. The karmis show more emotions dealing with each other. I have never seen so many artificial and zombied-out people like in ISKCON, perverted and emotionally crippled, full of inferiority complexes, guilt feelings, and they talk of Bhakti -unbelievable. Many of them urgently need a psychiatrist, are psychopaths, or belong in a mental institution. That is the reality. Many ISKCON devotees adopt artificial Vaishnava-identities -or as Bhaktivinoda says: kali-chelas -and deceive themselves and others. The problem is hypocrisy, dishonesty, upholding an IMAGE, rather than be real humble people who are struggling and striving like so many others to develop their Krishna consciousness. A major problem in ISKCON is the pretentiousness and conceit, starting from the leaders, downwards. They are trying to live up to some false image of being 'advanced.' My personal bad experience with ISKCON bogus successor-gurus has similarly affected my soul. I used to be a nice innocent devotee, but after going through that hell of the guru-successor era after Srila Prabhupada's disappearance, I lost so much, many good qualities; I know I will not recover in this life. My heart was like a beautiful vase, smashed to the ground, the pieces glued together, broken and scarred, I try to go on. There are many devotees with broken hearts, which turned to bitter-sour and sarcastic like me. They broke the hearts of the gurukulis. Some committed suicide. Still, these ISKCON cheating gurus are worshipped today with their perverted philosophy. I do not want such association and live on my own. No more hypocrites, artificial ISKCON. I would rather be a fallen stray dog and remain truthful to Srila Prabhupada. It is all so crazy. Speak the truth, and these demons try to kill you. Their followers are as crazy or worse. Fanatics. What remains now is disappointment, resentment and bitter feelings. That I did not end up in the mental hospital is really Srila Prabhupada's causeless mercy on me." (My Experience in ISKCON, Aug. 2000)

These sad testimonies are too numerous, and many devotees have suffered spiritually, privately, alone and forlorn somewhere. For those of us with the strength, it is our duty to Srila Prabhupada to try to help these lost brothers and sisters by sharing Srila Prabhupada's mercy. "One night I awoke from a sound sleep at 1:30 am to the ring of Prabhupada's bell. Entering his room, dark except for a small light, he was sitting reading from a large red Bhagavatam. He motioned for me to sit down. His voice cracking and tears forming in his eyes, he began talking to me about the glories of Prahlaḍ Maharaja and the true meaning of being a Vaishnava, about how Prahlaḍ's only desire was for others to be rescued from this world of birth and death. He described the compassion of the Vaishnava for the fallen souls and, seeing how hard he worked to spread Krishna Consciousness, I could feel his heart overflowing with this form of intense Vaishnava love. I could only think: why me? I did not deserve such intimacy. If only the world could know Prabhupada's glory, a Mahabhagavata, a nitya-siddha, eternally liberated soul, whose thoughts day and night focused on how to free the conditioned souls from their bondage. Para duḥka duḥki, Prabhupada uttered softly while contemplating the incomparable qualities of a true Vaishnava, which he exemplified perfectly. If there is another person living with these attributes, I have not met him." (Journey to the Pacific Rim by Bali Mardān das, 1996)

"I agree, it is best to have an istagoshti with all persons concerned about cooperating to serve Srila Prabhupada in the way he desired. That istagoshti should be conducted in a very harmonious setting, with full access to Srila Prabhupada's teachings, directions and orders so that every issue can be discussed and we can all then benefit. Getting angry and walking out and feeling insulted is something that we should avoid by dealing with each other in friendly and loving ways. In such a discussion, we should come with an open mind to deepen our understandings." (Bharata das, 2017, on resolving misunderstandings)

Every devotee deserves to be heard and have the loving association of his Godsiblings. Meetings for discussion are part of Srila Prabhupada's system for devotees to communicate and learn to work together. This is called istagoshti. We should not criticize behind other's backs nor harbor ill will towards our family members. We should learn to meet, discuss, have kirtan together, give and take gifts and prasadam, and share our thoughts for the service of Srila Prabhupada. In this way, we should try to heal, and bring Srila Prabhupada's followers back into our family with love and trust.

Reach out to someone you know and share some Krishna consciousness, just as Srila Prabhupada would do. Listen, be kind, try to help, chant together.

CHAPTER 175: RESTORE THE MISSION

If we are to restore Srila Prabhupada's mission, ideally inclusive of ISKCON too, first we as individuals must be restored to proper spiritual health. We will need purity, strength, intelligence to effect a restoration revolution in the Hare Krishna movement. 16 rounds of japa daily, the 4 regulative principles, eating only Krishna prasadam, studying Srila Prabhupada's books daily, associating with strict and honest devotees, and leading a clean, healthy lifestyle are prerequisites for successfully meeting the great challenge of restoring Srila Prabhupada's Hare Krishna movement back to the proper standard. "Physician, heal thyself!" Next, we must learn to work together with like-minded devotees; learn how to cooperate and work together with mutual goals. We cannot simply argue about details and expect everyone to agree with all our opinions. There are a few basic, foundational principles which are unalterable and around which we can rally as sufficient grounds to work in concert, which is what make us "likeminded." As long as these basic principles are there amongst us, then the (to-be-expected) minor differences will not prevent our cooperation for realizing our common aim of restoring the mission as Srila Prabhupada wanted it, as determined by his instructions and not by our speculation or motivated interpretations. Together, Srila Prabhupada's followers can remove ISKCON's corrupt leadership just as the Iron Curtain and communism fell in the face of the people's desire for freedom. Tyranny has an expiration date. Meanwhile, the struggle lies in the brave dissemination of truth in the face of criticism.

(1) "Revolutions dawn when an appreciable number of the ruled realize their rulers are intellectual and moral inferiors. And those who fail to timely undertake peaceful revolution against tyranny will eventually make violent revolution inevitable." (unknown) (2) "Chaitanya Mahaprabhu did massive kirtan for six hours a day and then distributed prasadam to the masses. He only spoke philosophy to His most confidential associates. Who would understand other than Them? We see the same thing today- everybody has his own philosophy, guru, or 'spiritual' club, and the only common ground or point of overlap for all of them is public kirtan. So let's emphasize kirtan, prasadam, friendly dealings, and speak about Srila Prabhupada siddhanta with those who are interested to hear. Lord Chaitanya will do the rest." (Damaghosh das, 2016) (3) Devotee: Anyway, a great shame there are these anomalies in Srila Prabhupada's institution. Very difficult, unfortunate situation. Bhakti Vikas Swami: Is it rectifiable? Seems it would take "an act of God." (4) One account in 2018 described this situation: 'I had two meetings this morning with 'gurukulis' who are now over 40. Neither had any concept that one could accept Srila Prabhupada as guru. All their influences and training around ISKCON for the last 40 years, and their own peer association, leads them to think that Srila Prabhupada lived long ago, and is no longer relevant in their lives or ISKCON today. They talk about finding their way with the help of this person, that temple, counseling, etc. But I don't detect any bhakti in them to Srila Prabhupada as a living spiritual experience. I've been seeing this with the younger devotee generation for 25 years now. As such I'm more sure than ever that we will find new and better followers of Srila Prabhupada outside of ISKCON circles, and that attempts at internal reform are besides the point. If we want to just associate with ourselves and keep our devotion to Srila Prabhupada strong, with like-minded association, fine. The older devotees still in ISKCON, and their kids, are out of reach for bringing back to Srila Prabhupada. To me, it is hopeless to expect any change now; things are too far-gone. The youth in general, at least here, have no respect for senior devotees' opinions on the guru topic. They are not philosophers, they are engaged in the struggle for existence, and Krishna West or Radhanath Swami is as cool to them as anybody elses' approach.'

IS THERE ANY HOPE FOR RESTORING THE MISSION? By Nityasiddha das

“Many may find talk about restoring Srila Prabhupada’s mission to be an abstract concept, as they joined the movement after Srila Prabhupada’s departure, and they know nothing else. They may think, ‘Yes, there is always some imperfection, but what’s the big problem?’ Most see no urgency or crisis in the movement, and neither are they very well informed of the issues facing ISKCON. They have perhaps heard a bit about the guru, initiation, or poison issues. They avoid controversy, disagreement, tension, or discord, but focus on a peaceful, meaningful life with their family and friends. ISKCON and a guru may be more of a social status part of life than a revolutionary or spiritual one. For Hindus it is piety, for Westerners it is hip to meditate.

“The 6000 Srila Prabhupada pre-1978 disciples are mostly lost in the wilderness, scattered and disconnected, discouraged about Srila Prabhupada’s Mission and its condition. They remember ISKCON when Srila Prabhupada toured the world and the temples, the Rathayatras, the kirtans. But now they feel very isolated and alone, and cannot relate to today’s ISKCON. They remember the 60’s and 70’s with nostalgia, and they have no hopes of restoring the Hare Krishna Movement to what it was in those ‘early days.’ A devotee wrote in Dec. 2016 about this dilemma: ‘The problem that I see is that our whole movement has been adversely affected by sahajiya philosophies and deviant behaviors, based on the nonsense idea that Srila Prabhupada, the current acharya, is dead and non-available [guru mara vidya]. It is spread like a worldwide poison...’

“We must be respectful to the Vaishnavas, but not be blind to the many forms of maya that proliferate today in ISKCON and the greater movement. Srila Prabhupada’s poisoning, the endless book changes, devotee abuse, defective doctrines, and minimization of Srila Prabhupada’s true stature as the Jagat Guru for the Golden Age- these things must be corrected. Why did Bhaktivinode Thakur write extensively about all the apasampradayas if there was no need to point out their serious defects? He was very kind to do so. Let us not blindly assume all Vaishnava sangas are bona fide or without serious faults simply because they are chanting Hare Krishna. Avoiding offenses against devotees, keeping cool, and learning how to communicate amicably is great, but is everyone following Srila Prabhupada’s instructions without any deviation? If we determine with our intelligence that someone is not properly situated, we should be calm, respectful, polite. But the issues (not the persons) should be discussed and cleared up with mature realizations. The primary anomaly in today’s Hare Krishna world is minimization of Srila Prabhupada. The idea he is dead and gone and his mercy no longer available to us in his teachings, that he is now replaced by others... this will be fatal to our spiritual success. The odds do not look good for a meaningful restoration of Srila Prabhupada’s original mission, so we have to keep open two options: restoration or rebuilding. Restoring the mission or rebuilding it will be done one step, one dollar, one brick, one devotee at a time, starting with ourselves.” (END)

RESTORE THE ASSETS AND TEMPLES TO SRILA PRABHUPADA

When the devotees in Bangalore discovered the truth of Srila Prabhupada’s instructions for the future of his movement, they returned everything to the glorification of the pure devotee rather than pretentious imitators. The same will happen everywhere there are sincere followers of Srila Prabhupada. The rank and file common devotees have the power to take back what belongs to Srila Prabhupada, liberating his assets from exploitation by the cult of robbers posing as Srila Prabhupada’s inheritors. A practical plan of action must be made to clean away the web of lies, deceit, and errant philosophy spun by maya-cheaters, to remove the tyrants and their oppressive regime wherein no open debate, questions, or discussions are tolerated. By discussions under the rules of Vaishnava etiquette and debate, the false indoctrination will be undone and the devotees educated in the self-evident truths of Srila Prabhupada’s teachings. “This happened in New Vrindaban in 1970 when the new sannyasis preached that Srila Prabhupada was God. Gradually, by discussions, study of the books, things were cleared up and everyone became stronger.” (Nityasiddha das) Devotees, congregations, local leaders, and defectors from the GBC corrupt leadership will remove the misleaders and openly celebrate a new era of freedom of study, thought, and service with the true Acharya in the center. Srila Prabhupada’s DOM elections for the GBC will be implemented and the tyranny will end. Srila Prabhupada's precious temples and deities will be returned to the service of the Yuga Acharya, and the bogus pretenders will be denied further use of ISKCON for their guru businesses.

RESTORE SRILA PRABHUPADA TO HIS RIGHTFUL POSITION

From time to time, sincere devotees still in ISKCON have tried to partly restore Srila Prabhupada to his rightful position in ISKCON, such as mandating Srila Prabhupada's picture on the temple altar be larger than any ISKCON guru's picture or by having only Srila Prabhupada's guru pranam mantras sung in temple kirtans, and so on. But these band-aid, symbolic measures do little to cure the ISKCON disease of minimizing Srila Prabhupada (Ch. 146). A 2013 GBC resolution requiring Srila Prabhupada's photo to be prominent on all ISKCON temple websites, with obvious links to his life biography, books, videos, and kirtans, has not, for the most part, been complied with. The GBC passes more resolutions every year but nothing really changes and everyone becomes numb to the farce of it all. The problem is not that the GBC needs to better enforce its resolutions. The entire institution has been POISONED with an array of deviant policies and a general consciousness that allows diseased men to pose as the next link in the sampradaya after Srila Prabhupada. Access to Srila Prabhupada is through THEM? How does that work? Only by make-believe or wishful thinking. The poison is institutionalized personal ambition. The GBC, mostly already ISKCON gurus, beholden to them, or aspiring to that post, have foremost in their hearts to promote themselves, not Srila Prabhupada, unless it enhances their devotional profile, credibility, and prestige. "Oh, Maharaja is so dedicated to Srila Prabhupada... (while taking all the money and disciples for himself...)" Slick con-artists. As discussed, the ISKCON misleadership, for the sake of the future of Srila Prabhupada's movement, its devotees, and the world, must BE REMOVED, fully, permanently, irrevocably. They have proved themselves to be incapable, rascals, incompetent, and corrupt. Parts 7, 11, 14, 15 have established this fact beyond doubt.

The conflict of interest that is hidden in plain view and most often missed is that most ISKCON GBC and sannyasis already are or intend to become GURUS, worshipped as spiritually effective next links in the disciplic succession from the Supreme Lord Sri Krishna. Why do the gurus protest anything which might threaten their guru businesses? They rant about detractors "jumping over" and destroying the parampara when it is THEY that destroy the parampara. Hypocrites. The primary qualification for the new set of leaders in a restored ISKCON must be their complete lack of interest in becoming false diksha gurus. Elect new leaders.

NO GURUS EXCEPT SRILA PRABHUPADA IN ISKCON

ISKCON has adopted a policy of Srila Prabhupada being only the primary siksha guru, that he cannot give diksha, or the enlightenment of the soul, because he is dead and gone. This is the GBC's living-guru philosophy. However, gradually the realization that Srila Prabhupada is the siksha and diksha guru for his followers has spread through the ranks, and this realization deepens in spite of all attempts to prevent it. It is a natural conclusion that develops over time when one takes Srila Prabhupada's mercy and studies his teachings. If someone insists on being in the guru business, let him do it somewhere else than in Srila Prabhupada's mission and institution, where Srila Prabhupada is the Founder-Acharya, the current link. ISKCON is HIS society, HIS institution, and HIS mission. "One thing for sure, though, is that for those who do wish to follow Srila Prabhupada exclusively and be counted as his followers or disciples, they need their own society where everyone agrees that Srila Prabhupada is the current, real acharya for this age." (Narasimha das, 2016) It will take time and a concerted enlightenment program to undo the misconceptions, lies, frauds, concealments, and false indoctrinations that have been foisted upon devotees for the last 45 years. Each devotee may choose his study program, with free discussions and debates, and the unfettered siddhanta will slowly rise to the top of it all. As darkness can not stand in front of the Sun, when the repressive GBC regime is swept aside, the falsities will evaporate as sincere devotees see through them. While in the forest, one cannot see the forest for the trees. Tyranny and gurocracy will end as one devotee at a time will become blissful in directly experiencing the vani, mercy, and ecstasy of Srila Prabhupada, the Yuga Acharya and saviour of the whole planet.

EMPHASIZE THE TEACHINGS, NOT DEATH

Srila Prabhupada remarked that Christians emphasize Christ's death but do pay enough attention to his teachings. In some ways modern Christianity is like a death cult. But the investigation into Srila Prabhupada's poisoning is not an unnecessary dwelling on death, but is, rather, to establish a historical truth which will restore the Hare Krishna Movement to purity of potency and purpose. Srila Prabhupada was poisoned due to unholy ambition to take the seat and assets of the acharya. To expose Srila Prabhupada's poisoning is to expose how his imitators have contaminated the Mission with their desire to be "as good as God" and by institutionalizing their bogus guru system. This dreaded acharya disease has spoiled the Mission. Restoration of the Mission entails a thorough cleansing of the ISKCON institution and a restructuring according to Srila Prabhupada's written guidelines (DOM), or at least a complete discreditation of ISKCON's defective doctrines. All GBC policies and "ISKCON law" not supported by Srila Prabhupada's instructions must be discarded. All leadership corrupted by the acharya disease must be removed and disallowed from ever resuming leadership roles again. Those who acted prominently in the contaminating of Srila Prabhupada's Mission, must be permanently banned from any post of leadership and should wash devotee's feet until death. Those implicated in illegal activities must face the penalty of the laws of the state as well.

ISKCON MUST BE RESTORED, NOT DESTROYED

Usually ISKCON is equated to its corrupt, deviant leadership, and the feeling may be to do away with ISKCON rather than its GBC. E.g., someone wrote that if tape doctoring could be proven, "ISKCON will be finished." In response to this, one devotee wrote: "We are not out to finish ISKCON or hurt ISKCON in any way. I have many times said I believe our fight is with the GBC and their puppets. ISKCON is a transcendental mission, according to a couple of Srila Prabhupada's purports. Although it may be hard to prove, as some suggest, that the guru-parampara now depends solely on ISKCON's rectification, ISKCON may be in fact the destined main branch of Lord Chaitanya's tree. At least we should be hoping to revive the real ISKCON- and not be out to finish it. The phony, failed GBC is what needs to be finished. Even the maya-iskcon should be respected. It's not that Hanuman ever thought, 'This can only be a maya Sita, therefore let Ravana have her.' He even chastised himself for thinking, at first, that he might find the maya Sita among Ravana's sleeping harem. So let us try to restore Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON to please Srila Prabhupada. Anyway, I always call them maya-iskcon or iskcon in small letters so as not to make any offense toward the real ISKCON." (Narasimha das, 2016)

"When local devotees have had enough-they will finally take some action. Tyranny can only exist when good people do nothing to stop it. When upset devotees finally reach a critical mass, then something changes. Otherwise devotees just go along to get along, as most of the time nobody wants to get involved because that would mean they have to study an issue, get well informed, and come out of their comfort zones and do something. Most devotees usually give only knee jerk reactions to problems so obvious even karmis are repulsed by them. They still have not understood the real problem of why ISKCON went downhill so fast after Srila Prabhupada left. Somehow we need to fill that lack of understanding. It is going to take a while before things return to even a semblance of what was there in ISKCON before 1977." (Damaghosh das, 2017)

ISKCON IS A TRANSCENDENTAL MOVEMENT

(1) "Everyone should use his money to spread the great transcendental movement of Krishna consciousness. If one does not spend money for this purpose but accumulates more..." (SBhag 5.26.36 purport) (2) "The Krishna consciousness movement is not based upon bodily designations. It is a transcendental movement on the platform of spiritual understanding." (CC Mad 25.193) (3) "I shall invite all responsible guardians of this country to understand this transcendental movement and then give us all honest facilities to spread it for everyone's benefit." (SSR 3) (4) "...and His transcendental movement embraced all varieties of people beginning from the most erudite scholar brahmanas to the one..." (SPL R. Prakash June 22, 1951) (5) "...am very much hopeful of your future glories in the matter of propagating this transcendental movement. ..." (SPL Feb. 8, 1968) (6) "...Lord Chaitanya taught us to surrender unto Krishna. His transcendental movement of chanting the Holy name of Krishna and Rama is the sublime movement..." (SPL Feb 25, 1968) (7) "I think Krishna is giving you the required intelligence how to spread our transcendental movement. This is the right way, as you have adopted." (SPL Hansadutta June 21, 1968) (8) "...pleased to see it, because our little Sarasvati is also taking part in our transcendental movement. That is the practical proof how great is this movement." (SPL Mukunda Feb 17, 1969) (9) "...if we can convince them even a very little of our transcendental movement, it will be a great stride..." (SPL Damodara Aug 16, 1969) (10) "...young men and girls may take advantage of this transcendental movement for their ultimate welfare and highest education..." (SPL Vishnujana Jan 8, 1971) (11) "I beg to thank you for your nice appreciations of this transcendental movement which I have been trying to present to you on request of my Guru Maharaja..." (SPL Jan 10, 1971) (12) "...but if we can remain pure, nothing will be able to stop this great transcendental movement from spreading God consciousness all over the world." (SPL Sridama May 5, 1972) (13) "Our movement is the greatest gift to the human race. They may not immediately appreciate it, but time will come and history will give evidence that this movement saved the human society from being fallen into barbarianism." (SPL Nov. 13, 1969)

However, a different point of view: "It is amazing that some of our godsiblings still support the fetid institution that remains. Hansadutta recently pointed out to me that never in history has an institution become corrupted and then cleaned up. [maybe this is not accurate?] The old, rotting structure has to be removed and the real ISKCON needs to be reborn like a Phoenix of truth." (Anuttama dasi, 2017)

HOW SHOULD SRILA PRABHUPADA'S MISSION BE RESTORED?

Srila Prabhupada gave us the DOM, his transcendental books, letters, lectures, conversations, July 9 Order, his Final Will, his pastimes memorialized by followers who had his personal association, a morning spiritual program, deity worship, daily guru-puja where he is present in his own deity, and the Hare Krishna Mantra. Simply by making Srila Prabhupada and his gifts fully available to all sincere souls (not force or repression, fear or politics), the Hare Krishna movement will be restored to flourish again. If we simply protect Srila Prabhupada's legacy from changes, deviations, obscurity, then it will act on its own for spiritual success. The minimization of Srila Prabhupada is denying the fallen souls their spiritual good fortune, and should be corrected. "Yes it has come down to this- after so much evidence of what the rurus have done- how can ISKCON be fixed? We can come up with different scenarios, but only one formula will work: Obedience to God and Guru. It comes down to that. Historically, after Chaitanya Mahaprabhu disappeared with all His empowered associates, the whole affair collapsed for 300 years and devolved into a sahajiya movement until Bhaktivinode Thakur came. It is now time for faithful disciples to remove the misleaders. On account of minimization, impudent imitation, disobedience of the acharya's orders and instructions, the iskcon gurus are doomed just like the demigods who disrespected their guru. Srila Prabhupada told Nanda Kumar das that after him there will be no more acharyas and that only Chaitanya Mahaprabhu can help this movement. So it really boils down to obedience to God and Guru." (Damaghosa das, 2016)

SRIMAD-BHAGAVATAM: 6.7.21: INDRA OFFENDS HIS SPIRITUAL MASTER

TRANSLATION: Lord Brahma said: O best of the demigods, unfortunately, because of madness resulting from your material opulence, you failed to receive Brhaspati properly when he came to your assembly. Because he is aware of the Supreme Brahman and fully in control of his senses, he is the best of the brahmanas. Therefore it is very astonishing that you have acted impudently toward him. PURPORT: [...] Lord Brahma wanted to impress upon the demigods that one's guru should not be disrespected under any circumstances. When Brhaspati entered the assembly of the demigods, they and their king, Indra, took him for granted. Since he came every day, they thought, they did not need to show him special respect. As it is said, familiarity breeds contempt. Being very much displeased, Brhaspati immediately left Indra's palace. Thus all the demigods, headed by Indra, became offenders at the lotus feet of Brhaspati, and Lord Brahma, being aware of this, condemned their neglect. In a song we sing every day, Narottama dasa Thakura says, cakshu-dana dila yei, janme janme prabhu sei: the guru gives spiritual insight to the disciple, and therefore the guru should be considered his master, life after life. Under no circumstances should the guru be disrespected, but the demigods, being puffed up by their material possessions, were disrespectful to their guru. Therefore SBhag (11.17.27) advises, acharyam mam vijaniyan [...] the acharya should always be offered respectful obeisances; one should never envy the acharya, considering him an ordinary human being.

One wonders if Srila Prabhupada has left ISKCON, as Brhaspati, offended, left the demigods.

RESTORATION REVOLUTION

As ISKCON history has shown, if the devotees have poor knowledge of Srila Prabhupada's instructions regarding key issues on the future of the movement, then the leadership becomes corrupted. ISKCON leaders can only be held accountable by an enlightened body of sincere devotees. However, devotees (1) are distracted by the materialistic civilization of the demons, (2) they do not know their spiritual rights (App. 16), (3) are handicapped because their misleaders no longer represent them, (4) have been led to believe they are powerless to effect any change, (5) don't know how to hold their leaders accountable to Srila Prabhupada's teachings, (6) and tend to be slack in studying Srila Prabhupada's teachings- all this results in a continued apathy amongst devotees for working together to rescue and restore Srila Prabhupada's pure movement.

The ISKCON institution is sliding ever deeper into authoritarianism and this tyranny has resulted in a no-discussion organization where one must go along or get out. The organization is pervaded by hypocrisy and pretense where honesty has a high price tag. Everything facilitates the exclusive guru club; they have all the protection and the devotees little remaining rights or power. Members can choose from amongst any ISKCON guru but if someone wants Srila Prabhupada, he is thrown out as a dangerous and shamed heretic.

With a time of enlightenment, of awakening from the darkness of soul-corrupting indoctrinations, with the GBC disbanded, and ISKCON under an interim temple presidents council, a comprehensive ISKCON Constitution must be compiled and approved by the members. This can be done by an open convention to generate realized conclusions from the study, debate, and discussion of Srila Prabhupada's teachings. A restoration revolution will be completed with inauguration of a Constitution and regular GBC elections.

THE STRUGGLE AGAINST IMITATORS

"The imitators have been trying to create a disturbance in the teachings of Sri Chaitanya for the last 450 years. Almost immediately after the disappearance of Sri Chaitanya, the weeds of imitation began to sprout up and choke the creeper of pure devotion. By the time of Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakura, the imitators had almost completely ruined the reputation of the Gaudiya Vaishnavas. By his untiring service and uncompromising dedication to the pure precepts of Sri Chaitanya, Bhaktivinoda Thakura, after much difficulty, brought dignity and respect once again to the Gaudiya Vaishnavas. He wrote many books, commentaries, and songs eliminating false conceptions and establishing the proper conclusions. After the disappearance of Bhaktivinoda Thakura, the imitators, with a concocted concept of siddha-pranali, entered the line of Bhaktivinoda, but fortunately were detected and exposed by Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati." (unknown)

The guru imitators that have hijacked ISKCON are thus not a new phenomenon. Perhaps just as the conflict between the demigods and demons is ongoing, so also is the struggle against bogus gurus. In Monkey On A Stick (1988) is a remarkable early assessment of ISKCON: "...there are hundreds of sincere, gentle devotees who are chanting Hare Krishna in countries around the world. The gurus who succeeded Prabhupada theoretically accepted the premise that to find God, the ego must be defeated. And yet with few exceptions they had huge egos. Religious scholars say that a crisis occurs when the charismatic leader of a new religious movement dies. The success or failure of the movement depends upon how the successors spread the teachings of the founder. To a large degree, Krishna consciousness is in shambles because too many gurus did not want to spread Prabhupada's teachings; they wanted to BE Prabhupada. Because of that, the Hare Krishna movement degenerated into a number of competing cults that have known murder, the abuse of women and children, drug dealing, and swindles... Since 1987, reformers in the movement have worked to purge ISKCON of the horrors... They hope to restore the spiritually powerful principles on which the movement was founded. But this is the story of... how gurus claiming to embody Krishna's mercy behaved with no mercy. And no power, as we will discover, corrupts as absolutely as fanatical religious power."

The 1987 pseudo-reforms (Ch. 98) eliminated some of the overt criminal corruption, which then became institutionalized and formalized as hidden disobedience and deviation from Srila Prabhupada's instructions. Before, the zonal gurus individually self-destructed in their wild insanity. Then ISKCON polished its show and the problems became more esoteric and philosophical. Cleaning up the mess of deviations will require educating devotees in what Srila Prabhupada instructed for ISKCON's management, initiations, gurus, book editing, etc. If the original ISKCON institution can be restored, purified and cleansed of all serious deviations, and once again become the vehicle for delivering Srila Prabhupada's unrevised original books and direct mercy to the fallen souls on this planet, that would be wonderful. But the jury is still out on that verdict. So, Srila Prabhupada's followers should continue to serve the mission outside the corrupted ISKCON until ISKCON might be restored. Home programs, local association with like-minded devotees, and all else in Srila Prabhupada's service and in furtherance of spiritual advancement should continue. It may be wise to soon write off the corrupted ISKCON, stop hoping for its restoration, and focus on institutions as Srila Prabhupada's true mission. By invitation to affiliate or associate, eventually a new GBC can be elected. ISKCON Bangalore already did this. One day a new worldwide institution, truly representative of Srila Prabhupada's mission, may amalgamate from many groups with the blessings of Lord Krishna, Srila Prabhupada, and the devotees.

RESTORATION SUCCESS STORY

A group of Srila Prabhupada's followers known as Hare Krishna Community (HKC) in India (its main center is Jaipur) has implemented the DOM provisions, including the regular elections of its managers: "HKC is a charitable trust whose aim is to fulfill the same objectives for which His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada founded ISKCON. It is registered under IT act 12 AA (order number 24/3-09-10/2009-10/48) All donations are exempted under IT act of 80G. The trust deed was executed as per DOM given by Srila Prabhupada as how to run ISKCON. According to our trust deed each center will have three office bearers- President, Secretary, Treasurer. The full time dedicated devotees are general members of each center. There will be general election every 3 years where general members will elect office bearers of each center. GBC will be elected from the body of temple presidents and every 3 years the GBC will be re-elected. There are many other clauses like this which are inbuilt in the legal trust deed of HKC which are according to DOM. The following clause is also in the trust deed of HKC: 'This trust shall be dissolved and merged with ISKCON whenever ISKCON starts following the ritvik system and the "Direction of Management" given by His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada, who is the Founder & Acharya of ISKCON. Ritvik system of initiation is mentioned in a letter dated 9th July 1977 and "DOM" is mentioned in a document signed by Srila Prabhupada himself in 1970.' (Source: <http://www.harekrishncommunity.org/aboutus>)

THE ULTIMATE SOCIETAL RESTORATION

Interesting: Srila Prabhupada spoke strongly about restoring the Vedic civilization, about destroying the materialistic civilization, just a day before his acute poisoning episode on Feb. 26, 1977.

Tamal: Gradually some of the people are beginning to understand what you're up to, Srila Prabhupada. Some of these big demons in America especially, they are beginning to understand that you are the most dangerous personality in the world to them. SP: To kill "demon-crazy," LSD. (laughs) Yes, that is my mission. That is Krishna's mission, paritranaya sadhunam vinasaya ca duskrtam, to kill all these demons, crazy demons. I have no such power; otherwise I would have killed them. Either establish Krishna conscious government or kill them—bas, finish. I would have done that, violence. Tamal: Yes, when good argument fails... SP: Kill them. Finish. Just like Parasurama did. Kill all them, 21 times. [...] No consideration. Kill them. Due to Parasurama, the ksatriyas went to European side, fled away. From India either they were driven away or killed when they become inconsistent with Vedic rules. So these ksatriyas and associates... These parts of the world were resided by aborigines, means uncivilized class. So for so many years associated with them, they have learned killing the an [imals]... Otherwise they're Aryans. Tamal: Fallen Aryan culture. (SPConv Feb. 25, 1977)

CHAPTER 176: CALL TO ARMS AGAINST A CRIMINAL ENTERPRISE

"The world is a dangerous place to live - not because of the people who are evil, but because of the people who don't do anything about it." (Albert Einstein)

AINDRA'S CALL TO ARMS

Aindra das was an ardent, decades-long, practicing kirtaneer living in Vrindaban's ISKCON temple, and he attracted large crowds of locals as well as foreign devotees in all-night or 24 hour kirtans. He became a celebrity of sorts, very popular, especially with ISKCON's younger devotees, and he was extremely, pointedly critical of the ISKCON situation with its phony gurus and bureaucratic bloat. He often clearly elucidated his assessment of the state of affairs with ISKCON and its misleaders, and one day he was presumed murdered, locked in his room with a mysterious gas leak. ISKCON has claimed it was an accident. He once stated:

"Let the over-intelligent, doggedly resorting to materially contrived managerial stratagems, injudiciously undermine the essential principle of keeping single-minded confidence in the lucid instructions of the institutional Founder-Acharya; they'll have to learn the hard way—as will the attendant implicated! Let hundreds of heedless sannyasis and guru-figureheads plunge from their pompous pedestals owing to their often sentimentally justified, inappropriately frequent, and overextended proximity in dealings with their female disciples and so on. Why should we lament or bother ourselves to in any way condemn or condone; these things are going on -and on -and will continue to go on and on and on... Trust no future however pleasant. Let the upper-organizational oligarchy essay to save face by repeatedly rehashing their clandestine attempts to cloak the pitiable transgressions of the institutionally rubberstamped guru-figureheads.

"ISKCON's RELIGIO-INSTITUTIONAL PSYWAR AGAINST ITS MEMBERS- Principles of psychological disempowerment: (1) Convince the enemy [us, the laity] that there is no war -so we see no cause for alarm. (2) Make us believe that they [the institutional power elite] are stronger than they really are, and make us believe that we [the grassroots contingency] are weaker than we really are. (3) Hide the truth -cover-up, distort, lie, confuse, falsify, divert, pervert, put down, and demonize the truth-to manipulate the history, present and future of society. (4) Quell the resistance before it has a chance to raise its ugly head. Slander, scorn, and/or eliminate dissenters [the audacious few who break the code of silence] to demoralize further potential protests. (5) Intimidation -compel by unilateral communication of increasingly ever-constraining institutional law. (6) Supplant multi-angular philosophical discussion with sophisticated dogma.

"The institutional power elites are small in number [potentially weak] but at present considerably organized and dominant -though not very popular. We, the unvoiced majority, are potentially powerful but presently misinformed, under-educated, apathetic, obsequious, disarrayed, and disorganized -too busy with our dumbed-down pursuit of our daily fare to think very deeply about anything. The power elites, by exercising their political leverage, have quite a handle on the temporal institutional facilities [men, money, social and organizational infrastructure, media or spin control, etc.] They are parasitic in behavior, fat, corrupt, speculative, deceitful, increasingly sluggish, and paranoid.

We the laity control very little of the institutional hardware. It will be very difficult for us to erect a power structure as they have to counter their political advantage within the context of 'their' establishment. Yet those of us who are awake to the power elite's misguided agenda to stealthily hijack, dysfunctionalize, and derail, from within, the Krishna consciousness movement by incremental trans-sectarian interfaith homogenization can and must assiduously acquaint ourselves and others with the true principles of sampradaya as per the gaudiya-siddhanta according to the statements of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada and the previous acharyas.

"Wake up prabhus! Everyone wake up! Everything is not alright. We have been and are being purposely steered off course. Do not acquiesce to any so-called leader's [or any group thereof] deviant philosophical misconstructions. Understand the issues: errant material control systems, corporatization, centralization, bureaucratization, social liberalization, rubber-stamped guruship, psychologically coerced communal compliance, marginalization of nama-sankirtana, contractual institutional commitment, etc. Understand the ramifications: guru-avajna; crippling of individual striving, creativity, and expression; decline of pure devotional ethos into obscurity, vulnerability to broad-scope multi-level globalist infiltration. They rely on our ease-loving ignorance, our tendency to gravitate through the supposed path of least resistance, and our lazy disinclination to stand up against all odds to fight for truth on behalf of our predecessor acharyas. We cannot blame anyone except ourselves for our lack of Krishna consciousness. We must think with our own minds - not with theirs. Understand their tactics. Increased awareness of the truth brings with it increased spiritual power. Increased spiritual power puts time on our side. That is our strength. Temporal institutional might does not make right. Even if the clandestine manipulators of institutional affairs are able to nefariously usurp the external institutional set-up, they can neither usurp our souls nor will they ever win our heartfelt comradeship. It is time for revolution - a revolution of consciousness. Let the institutional power brokers beware. The increasing numbers of us who are on to their antics will have revolution with or without their consent or cooperation. The biggest bubble of maya can doubtlessly be burst by the minutest pinprick of genuine Krishna consciousness. The critical mass of our spark-like grass-roots Krishna consciousness will ultimately prevail and conflagrate their insinuating billowing-cotton-like mayic institutional tyranny. A CALL TO ARMS: (1) Intelligently fight institutional maya with the most powerful weapon of the Holy Name. (2) Form local daily nama-sankirtana cells world-wide. (3) Regularly congregate for prolonged mass hari-nama-sankirtan demonstrations. (4) Start chanting a minimum of Holy Names daily. (5) Confront local, regional, and zonal institutional authorities and convince them to do the same - its either shape up or ship out. (6) Organize a grass roots signature campaign to express the general lack of confidence in the current institutional leadership. (7) Transition from the problem-think to the solution-think mind-set. (8) Be Krishna conscious in all circumstantial success or failure. If we are not part of the solution - we're part of the problem. The solution is simple [for the simple]: Harer-namaiva-kevalam. Take shelter of the Holy Name as your only business. Nothing to lose - everything to gain." (END)

TESTIMONIES

Panchadravida Swami, ISKCON GBC/ guru, his parting statement as he left ISKCON in 1986: "The entire GBC should resign because it has served detrimentally for the last 9 years. Anyone involved with so much of the politics that went on shouldn't be in that position in the future. We need an entirely new GBC without any of the former members. One cannot know about everything that goes on behind the scenes, right? Godbrothers may choose an individual to be reconfirmed who is implicated in a lot of the things that went wrong in the society. Rather than run that risk, it would be much better to start out with an entirely new group of leaders. We have a lot of godbrothers in this society who are qualified spiritually. I don't see where they'll commit the same mistakes that we did... I feel the whole position established by the gurus over the last nine years is a complete deviation from the philosophy that Prabhupada presents in his books... We have to take some very positive action—and quickly—to keep this movement from deviating from what Prabhupada intended..."

Tamal's Perils of Succession: "And they [zonal acharyas] were not the only ones to be humbled. The GBC itself, 'ultimate managing authority,' had its own authority collapse, only to be resurrected by a 'lower house' of temple presidents. Assuming extraordinary powers, the temple presidents made the GBC submit to the judgement of its own committee of 50 non-GBC godbrothers, thus in effect temporarily suspending itself, something that only Prabhupada while alive could have done. This action put the GBC and everyone in ISKCON on notice that no individual or group was beyond scrutiny. Even 'ultimate authorities' have limits."

Rasamanjari dasi, Fiji, wrote: "Srila Prabhupada had not been well in 1977. It was rather sudden. But no one thought he would depart. We thought he would always be with us: our undefeatable hero, our perfect guide, our supremely lovable personality. He had given us a prayer to say, 'My dear Lord Krishna, if You desire, please cure Srila Prabhupada.' We waited to see him again. One morning I was in our apartment, in New Dwaraka. My husband, Mithiladhisa das, had gone to the Temple for guru-puja but I was readying my two young sons. Suddenly Mithiladhisa came back. The look on his face said everything without saying a word. He was stricken to the core of his heart, and I knew Srila Prabhupada was gone. I felt so empty, like I had lost everything that mattered. He told us the sad news. Quickly we went across the street to the Temple. I saw numerous devotees crying individually in various places around the Temple yard, literally folded over, melted in grief, like some odd Salvador Dali painting. The guru-puja kirtan was a familiar, led by Jai Sachinandan das, which most of us cried through. I don't remember much after that. Seems like the crying went on everywhere for most of the day. Then later I remember 11 leading men gathering in New Dwaraka, sitting on 11 red velvet Vyasasanas in the Temple room, being offered the guru-puja and telling us that now our Father, Srila Prabhupada, is gone, so we have to listen and obey them, our older brothers. Realizing the sad truth of our loss and the depth of that loss, put me into an ocean of grief all over again. Through the years I, and many who never even had the fortune to see his physical form, have realized that Srila Prabhupada is not dead and gone, but is very much present with all those who simply want him to be, by instructions, by teachings, by unchanged books, by his Sri Murthi, by photo, video and audio. And especially by prayer and by heart." (2017)

WEAK CONFESSION BY HANSADUTTA

In 2017 Hansadutta spoke (https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=WVcjM\_MxSU) about the 1977 guru takeover of ISKCON. He made a very weak confession of what happened, and we are sure there was much more to tell than what he admitted to. It was not a bunch of innocent immature devotees who bungled trying to serve Srila Prabhupada. It was a conspiracy by little Ravanas who poisoned and tortured Srila Prabhupada in order to criminally takeover the movement for their own personal material benefit. Hansadutta at least admitted that the eleven were to be only ritviks, but he does not let on anything about how it really went down. Hansadutta: The real point is that Prabhupada gave prescription for what's to be done when he leaves this planet, which is to act as ritvik representative of the acharya... We don't see, we don't find any last letter where Prabhupada tells, "These persons shall be my acharyas, or they shall act as diksha-gurus." He doesn't write that. Mataji: So how all the gurus and yourself, how did you all decide to be gurus? Hansadutta: It was a kind of... It's just like a young boy wants to be like his father. So one day he walks into the living room and he has his father's shoes on, and he is only 3 years old, and he has his hat on, and everyone has a good laugh... Child is IMITATING his father... (see Ch. 83) [But ISKCON history was not child's play.]

CRIMINAL HISTORY OF ISKCON'S POST-1978 GBC LEADERS

A solid legal case can be made that since 1978 ISKCON has been run as a criminal enterprise, engaged in various illegalities, akin to the Mafia or organized crime, with murders, illicit business, drugs, prostitution, embezzling of charitable funds, charity scams, tax evasion, money laundering, coverups, aiding and abetting sex abuse and the poisoning of the society's Founder-Acharya. Under the guise of a religious organization, ISKCON's leaders and gurus have been alienating assets and siphoning off funds, as racketeering and embezzlement, to benefit private individuals and their secret accounts. An estimated $250 million has been taken under false pretenses, cheating the religious institution's members in a colossal fraud. In reaction to a mountain of forensic and circumstantial evidence, ISKCON misleaders have covered up (1) the poisoning of its own Founder-Acharya, with prominent leaders as the main suspects, (2) as well as the scandals and illegalities of its own managers club which includes child sexual/physical molestation and abuse, (3) rewriting Srila Prabhupada's books, and (4) the illegal takeover coup of the institution itself in 1978.

There is no financial accountability for the ruling elite gurus, who accumulate millions of dollars and thousands of disciples in their fraud. Financial scandals are hidden, e.g., the millions lost into secret bank accounts by Harikesha, Nareswara, Tamal, Giriraja, Gopal Krishna, Kirtanananda, Radhanath, etc. The guru regime forced out their Godsiblings and filled back in with their own disciples. Over half of them have been publicly disgraced in "falldowns" while many others disregard the standards, making ISKCON a farce. These ISKCON gurus make false representations to their congregations, as their plundering become more polished, sophisticated, and concealed. However, private or government investigators would quickly discover the broad parameters of ISKCON's complex corruptions, hypocrisy, embezzlement, fraud, and religious scam operations.

ISKCON is a criminal guru business enterprise which must be exposed and cleaned up.

RESTORE THE MISSION WITH A CALL TO ARMS BY TRUTH-TELLING

"It appears that our Guru Maharaja being fed poison has become very widely accepted and will be seen as history in the future. Of course it is evident from seeing the final videos of His Divine Grace, and hearing how it affected his voice. Apart from your scientific evidence, the talk Srila Prabhupada had with Abhirama's wife when she found him so weak and he asked her to cook with the instruction that 'no man should assist you even in shopping.' Also, in the last films of His Divine Grace, his dark complexion and changed voice, point to poison that you have identified as cadmium. Jahnava Nitai das of Orissa and Madras was also told by a mystic with divya drishti, 'Did you know Prabhupada was poisoned?'" [Patita Pavana dasa & Abhaya Mudra Dasi, 2021]

PART 18: PHYSICALLY DEPARTED, SPIRITUALLY PRESENT

Throughout Book One and up to here in Book Two, we have largely refrained from expounding very much on the guru-initiation issues that will now be discussed in Parts 18-19. We recognize that many will have distinct opinions on this, and so we did not want to distract from the evidence of Srila Prabhupada's being poisoned or the history of ISKCON where its fundamental principles and mission have been poisoned as well. Those who do not wish to go into the discussion on Srila Prabhupada being available today as the diksha guru may skip ahead, although these discussions are sound, and philosophically and intellectually invigorating.

"Let's simply acknowledge that Srila Prabhupada is available as the current link to the parampara. This simple and obvious stance threatens those who oppose it. If they allow that Srila Prabhupada is available as the current and direct link, they will need to make the choice of Srila Prabhupada available to initiates. Once Srila Prabhupada is clearly available, other choices may be less appealing, or perhaps even absurd, in comparison. So, they need to maintain a position of Srila Prabhupada's lack of availability, and lack of qualification, as the guru in the absolute position for persons coming to his movement." (Dhira Govinda das, 2004)

This explains the corruption in ISKCON today- ambitious men who are eager to sit on the seat of the guru will actually deny Srila Prabhupada's availability. What a colossal disservice to sincere seekers, that they are being directed away from Srila Prabhupada and pointed instead towards those who are vote approved. Pretenders can continue their foolish charade outside ISKCON, but they must end their selfish opposition to allowing others to choose Srila Prabhupada as their diksha guru.

From SBhag 4.28.48 purport: "Whenever an acharya comes, following the superior orders of the Supreme Personality of Godhead or His representative, he establishes the principles of religion, as enunciated in Bhagavad-gita. Religion means abiding by the orders of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Religious principles begin from the time one surrenders to the Supreme Personality of Godhead. It is the acharya's duty to spread a bona fide religious system and induce everyone to bow down before the Supreme Lord. One executes the religious principles by rendering devotional service, specifically the nine items like hearing, chanting and remembering. Unfortunately, when the acharya disappears, rogues and nondevotees take advantage and immediately begin to introduce unauthorized principles in the name of so-called swamis, yogis, philanthropists, welfare workers and so on. Actually, human life is meant for executing the orders of the Supreme Lord, and this is stated in Bhagavad-gita (9.34): 'Engage your mind always in thinking of Me and become My devotee. Offer obeisances and worship Me. Being completely absorbed in Me, surely you will come to Me.' The main business of human society is to think of the Supreme Personality of Godhead at all times, to become His devotees, to worship the Supreme Lord and to bow down before Him. The acharya, the authorized representative of the Supreme Lord, establishes these principles, but when he disappears, things once again become disordered. The perfect disciples of the acharya try to relieve the situation by sincerely following the instructions of the spiritual master. At the present moment practically the entire world is afraid of rogues and nondevotees; therefore this Krishna consciousness movement is started to save the world from irreligious principles. Everyone should cooperate with this movement in order to bring about actual peace and happiness in the world."

Unfortunately rogues and non-devotees also introduced irreligious principles into ISKCON.

FOUR TYPES OF GURUS

Although the principle of guru, or spiritual master, is one, gurus are technically divided into four types. All of them help the conditioned soul attain shelter at the lotus feet of Krishna. (1) Vartma-pradarshaka guru: The spiritual master who first gives information about spiritual life. (2) Diksha guru: The spiritual master who initiates according to the regulations of the shastras is called the diksha guru (or initiator guru). He is also considered the external manifestation of the chaitya guru. One can have only one diksha guru. (3) Siksha guru: The spiritual master who gives instructions for elevation based on the instructions of the diksha guru is called the siksha guru (one can have many siksha gurus). (4)

Chaitya guru: The supreme spiritual master Paramatma, or Supersoul, is an expansion of the Supreme Personality of Godhead who guides from within.

The most important is the diksha guru. Among the other three types of gurus, the siksha guru and the vartma-pradarshaka guru sincerely carry out their prescribed duty of preaching Krishna consciousness on the order of the diksha guru. They themselves may or may not be pure devotees. The diksha guru position demands the most responsibility as he must be a pure devotee of Lord Krishna and be empowered by his spiritual master in order to become a diksha guru or the initiator spiritual master. (Ch. 191)

IF THE GBC, GURUS ARE CONFUSED ABOUT GURU TATTVA, WHY NOT ADMIT IT?

“The GBC doctrine is very confused on guru tattva. Clearly the GBC does not represent Srila Prabhupada, who is not confused on this issue, who made clear, simple instructions.” (Sundar Gopal das) This fact highlights the GBC’s hypocrisy: they officially want to enforce their ever-changing guru policies, while they are themselves unsure of what they should be. “There is no instruction from Srila Prabhupada that the ritviks he appointed were to be converted into acharya or diksha-gurus on his passing. Nor did he once mention or is it stated in any Vedic shastra that a neophyte devotee could fill that role. Yet the GBC claims their guru system is not only bona-fide but was put in place by Srila Prabhupada himself.” (Krishnachandra das, Dec. 2016) “However, one should not imitate the behavior of an advanced devotee or maha-bhagavata without being self-realized, for by such imitation one will eventually become degraded.” (NOI 5 purport)

“In this way there was, Chaitanya’s Mahaprabhu’s time, this Krishna consciousness movement was going nicely, very. And after Him, there was six Gosvamis. They also managed. Then, as it is the rule of this material world that you start something very good but in due course of time the things deteriorate, so this Vaishnava, Krishna consciousness movement, also deteriorated in due course of time. Say, after the disappearance of the Gosvamins, about 250 years after, the things became most ridiculous. The so-called devotees... Their representatives still are continuing. They are called prakrtasahajiya. Prakrtasahajiya means taking things very easily.” (SP Lecture Feb. 7, 1969)

A few quotes from ISKCON leaders about the disarray in ISKCON due to the guru and initiations mess of defective doctrines: (1) “...It’s obvious that we are going in the wrong direction... So for the time being, let’s stop giving initiation.” (Bhakticharu Swami 2003) (2) “If current trends within ISKCON are not addressed, we are already on our way down the path to a slow death of assimilation and irrelevance.” (Badrinarayana Swami) (3) “However, the facts of the matter are that repeatedly, and with disastrous consequences, the combination of the spiritual role of guru in the context of a temporally powerful organization is proving to be incompatible.” (Kripamoya das 2007) (4) “The only recourse for responsible members of ISKCON is to take the matter to gutter level, i.e. the internet... it might at least create an awareness of deviations and warn devotees not to get sidelined into weird cults going on in the name of ISKCON.” (Bhakti Vikas Swami, guru 2003) (5) “The body of the society is unwell. The illness many, the symptoms complex, diagnosis difficult, and proper prognosis evades even the most experienced devotees... while others lunatically insist there’s no problem. How I long for the Vaikuntha atmosphere you, Srila Prabhupada, so wonderfully created by your mere presence... I, and a legion of others, disenfranchised, marginalized members of your movement, look skeptically at the present-day reality ...how I wish things were different.” (Ananda Svarupa Swami 1991)

---

CHAPTER 177: JAGAT GURU FOR THE GOLDEN AGE

SPIRITUAL MASTER OF THE WHOLE WORLD

“I am the Spiritual Master of this institution, and all the members of the Society, they’re supposed to be my disciples. They follow the rules and regulations which I ask them to follow, and they are initiated by me spiritually.” (SP Interview Dec. 34, 1968) “The Krishna consciousness movement is started for this purpose, so that hundreds of ISKCON centers may give people a chance to hear and chant, to accept the spiritual master and to disassociate themselves from persons who are materially interested, for in this way one can make solid advancement in going back home, back to Godhead.” (SBhag 4.22.23)

His Divine Grace AC Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada is the foremost Vedic scholar of modern and recent times, and he astonished religious scholars worldwide with his deeply insightful translations of the topmost scriptures of India. He was the true representative of Indian culture and history as he glorified India’s spiritual heritage with millions of books distributed in dozens of languages all over the world. He was the greatest advocate of the best that India has to offer humanity. As the Founder-Acharya of ISKCON, he wrote and translated with extensive commentary over 60 volumes of devotional classics such as Bhagavad-Gita, Srimad-Bhagavatam, and Sri Chaitanya-charitamrita in English. He is an authentic spiritual master revered by millions of sincere souls around the world for the invaluable gift of spiritual life, in whom he continues to cultivate Krishna consciousness even after his physical departure. His spiritual mission must be rectified.

From CC Mad 24.330 purport, The Sixty-One Explanations of the Atmarama Verse: “The guru must be situated on the topmost platform of devotional service. There are three classes of devotees, and the guru must be accepted from the topmost class. The first-class devotee is the spiritual master for all kinds of people. It is said: gurur nram. The word nram means ‘of all human beings.’ The guru is not limited to a particular group. It is stated in the Upadesamrta of Rupa Gosvami that a guru is a gosvami, a controller of the senses and the mind. Such a guru can accept disciples from all over the world. Prthivim sa sisyat. This is the test of the guru. In India there are many so-called gurus, and they are limited to a certain district or a province. They do not even travel about India, yet they declare themselves to be jagad-guru, gurus of the whole world. Such cheating gurus should not be accepted. Anyone can see how the bona fide spiritual master accepts disciples from all over the world. The guru is a qualified brahmana; therefore he knows Brahman and Parabrahman. He thus devotes his life for the service of Parabrahman. The bona fide spiritual master who accepts disciples from all over the world is also worshiped all over the world because of his qualities. Lokanam asau pujoya yatha harih: the people of the world worship him just as they worship the Supreme Personality of Godhead. All these honors are offered to him because he strictly follows the brahminical principles and teaches these principles to his disciples. Such a person is called an acharya because he knows the principles of devotional service, he behaves in that way himself, and he teaches his disciples to follow in his footsteps. Thus he is an acharya or jagad-guru [...] When one has attained the topmost position of maha-bhagavata, he is to be accepted as a guru and worshiped exactly like Hari, the Personality of Godhead. Only such a person is eligible to occupy the post of a guru.”

ISKCON DOES NOT HAVE SRILA PRABHUPADA IN THE CENTER

Sadly, ISKCON does not actually keep Srila Prabhupada in the center. On a sentimental basis there is still some feeling for Srila Prabhupada’s “unique” and “historical” contribution, but effectively he has been 90% sidelined and replaced. Although ISKCON officially fully endorses taking Srila Prabhupada’s siksha, they deny that this can lead to diksha as is their principle in all other situations. Anyone with natural attraction and love for Srila Prabhupada will be confronted with the “sinister movement” in ISKCON (this refers to an episode of marginalization of Srila Prabhupada in 1970) that minimizes Srila Prabhupada’s exalted position and instead emphasizes the conditioned, imperfect, but “living gurus” offered by ISKCON as their center point of focus. As a result ISKCON has become a loose federation of cultish franchises centered around their particular ISKCON guru. There is the Radhanath Swami group, the Bhakticaru group, the Jayapataka group, and on down to the smaller and smaller gurus. Some anecdotes shed some light on this ISKCON phenomenon.

A visit by Bir Krishna Maharaja to Savusavu, Fiji in late 2016 with his prominent disciples and his regional secretary resulted one morning in an unexpected, uninvited visit to a local devotee’s home. Everyone knew she was fixed on Srila Prabhupada and his books as her guru and guidance. After taking darshan of her little deities, the regional secretary loudly declared, "Mataji, we can't be stuck on Srila Prabhupada anymore because he left his body, and now it is our duty to carry on his work. Just look at these disciples of Bir Krishna Maharaja! One is a lawyer, one is a businessman, one is a millionaire, and they are taking time to travel with their guru and serve him in person..." An earlier correspondence from this Fiji regional secretary, who was initiated by Tamal, began by saying, "All Glories to your spiritual master, Srila Prabhupada!" In other words, Srila Prabhupada is not his guru, and he made a point of it too. Further, from Dhira Govinda das in 2017:

"I recently heard from a mataji who came to Srila Prabhupada's movement in the mid-1990s. She became a formally initiated disciple of Bir Krishna Maharaja... She said that, in those days, which, as we know, are post-1987 'reform,' during guru-puja, Bir Krishna Maharaja would stand in front of Srila Prabhupada's murti. The members of the project, including this mataji, would offer flowers to Bir Krishna Maharaja, and sing the song Sri Guru Carana Padma from Srila Narottama dasa Thakura while Bir Krishna Maharaja faced them in front of Srila Prabhupada. The idea was that they could only approach Srila Prabhupada through their guru, Bir Krishna Maharaja. I also am reminded of a phone conversation I had in the mid-2000s... This woman had been part of the ISKCON community.... At one point during our discussion she became emotional, crying. She exclaimed, 'My girlfriends all have spiritual masters, and I only have Srila Prabhupada!' We ourselves might certainly be emotionally impacted to hear such a statement... She had been indoctrinated by the ISKCON organization, that her Krishna conscious life was woefully incomplete, with 'only' Srila Prabhupada as her guru, till she gets a 'living guru', as her cohorts had fortunately gotten."

In 2016 the ISKCON Bangalore leaders were meeting with ISKCON Bombay leaders in one of their mediation conferences meant to settle their legal and guru issue differences. Chancalapati das recounted: "But the senior members of ISKCON GBC contended that Srila Prabhupada is (only) one of the transcendental agents and not the single agent. They argued that the present ISKCON gurus, the shastras, the Holy Name, Srila Prabhupada, the previous acharyas –all of them play a role; and ultimately Lord Krishna is the one who delivers all devotees. Hence it is inappropriate, they reasoned, to ascribe this deliverer position to Srila Prabhupada alone." So, with that unique understanding: "...let's go and get some mercy from the Gaudiya Math, Lord Shiva, and Guru Ma too. We need all we can get because Srila Prabhupada is not here anymore." Sadly, these misled souls cannot understand that without Srila Prabhupada's mercy, everything else- the Holy Name, the Deities, the transcendental knowledge from the shastras- would be ineffective. They are missing the essence due to taking part in offenses against the exalted pure devotee. Srila Prabhupada, for them, is now just another quaint previous acharya, dead and gone, nice to read his books, but where's my living guru?

SRILA PRABHUPADA: THE UNIQUE, SAMPRADAYA ACHARYA by Yasodanandana das

The unique position of His Divine Grace Srila Prabhupada in the Gaudiya Vaishnava sampradaya is supported as follows: (1) As the Acharya of his movement-"I wish that each and every center shall keep the Acharya in the center and keep their separate identity" (SPL 1967). (2) His unique position as the foremost spiritual authority for the golden age-"My books will be the law books for the next ten thousand years." (SPConv 1976). (3) Prediction by Locana das Thakura (mid-1500's) in the Chaitanya Mangala, the future appearance of a great senapati bhakta who would preach Krishna consciousness all over the world. (4) Chaitanya Mahaprabhu in CC predicts "Prthivite ache yadi nagaradi grama, sarvatra pracara hoibe more nama" ("My holy name will be chanted in every town and village"). Srila Prabhupada fulfilled that prediction by his accomplishments. (5) Predicted by Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakura (mid-19th century)- in his Sajjana-tosani regarding the future appearance of a great personality who would come to the West and preach the message of Lord Gauranga and fulfill the prediction of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. (6) Statement by Srila Prabhupada in New York in 1968:- "After me there will be no more Acharyas." (cited by Rohini Kumar das, who heard this himself in 1968, told to Yasodanandana das in July 1989, Nov. 1991, Feb. 1993).

Srila Prabhupada was to be the prominent acharya for the next 10,000 years. From the definition of shakti-avesha avatar (divinely empowered personality) we see he was such a person. Only a super-empowered personality could do what he has done. Examples of the lives of the great Acharyas: Shankaracharya took sannyasa at 8 years old and travelled by foot throughout the whole of India and re-established Vedic principles while chasing Buddhism out of India. Sri Madhvacharya wrote 38 books and commentaries and established 8 major monasteries in Udupi, and also made 1000's disciples. He also travelled throughout India and preached strongly against the Mayavadi philosophy. He established Vaishnava philosophy in many places throughout India. Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu personally preached throughout South India. He started a spiritual revolution that is still felt today. However, all these acharyas stayed in India. Their literature and temples were confined to the Indian subcontinent. Srila Prabhupada is the first acharya of the Vedic lineage who has ever travelled out of India and made so many Vaishnavas. He has presented in his numerous purports the true essence of the teachings of all the Vaishnava sampradayas. Thus in one sense he is the greatest acharya, since he did what no one else has done, in a most difficult environment and very tenuous circumstances.

What Ramanuja is to the Sri sampradaya; what Madhvacharya is to the Brahma sampradaya; what Nimbarkacharya is to the Kumara sampradaya; what Vishnusvami is to the Rudra sampradaya; what Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu is to the Gaudiya sampradaya and to all sampradayas; what Rupa, Sanatana, and Jiva Goswamis were in their times after the departure of Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, by their literary and devotional accomplishments; what Vishvanatha Chakravarti Thakura and Sri Baladeva Vidyabhusana were in the 1700s; Srila Prabhupada is today their bona fide representative preaching the glories of Vaishnava philosophy all over the world through his books and teachings, and through his bona fide disciples and followers. But most of these acharyas took decades, if not their entire lifetimes, to accomplish their mission. Yet Srila Prabhupada in a short span of 11 years accomplished what no one else in the entire history of India had accomplished. He has fulfilled the prediction of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. The position of the Adi-Guru of the sampradaya (Harinama-Chintamani by Bhaktivinode Thakura, 6.22) "sadhu sampradaye acharya sakala siksha guru pratistha, adyacharya yini guru siromani puji'tanra yathocita/ Within the community of saintly persons, all are teachers and established as siksha gurus or instructing gurus (sakala guru pratistha). He who is the original guru (adi-acharya) of the sampradaya is the crest jewel amongst all gurus (guru siromani). Thus it is proper to give him worship." Bhaktivinode's footnote: "A community of Vaishnavas is a community of saintly persons. They are able to give instructions about the disciplic succession mantra, the absolute truth, and the practice of sadhus. One should choose a worthy guru from the Vaishnava sampradaya if he wants to escape from such unbonafide sampradayas such as mayavada, etc. The explanation of the first guru of the sampradaya should be respected for his particular instructions. Srila Ramanujacharya, Srila Nimbarka and Sri Vishnusvami- they are the first acharyas of their sampradayas. Madhvacharya is our original acharya."

Just as the above-mentioned acharyas are the Adi-acharyas of their respective sampradayas, Srila Prabhupada is the Adi-acharya of the Bhaktivedanta sampradaya for the worldwide community of Vaishnavas. He is not merely another acharya. HE IS THE CURRENT ACHARYA OF THE GAUDIYA SAMPRADAYA. He has proven it and established it especially in three ways: (1) His numerous and voluminous bhasyas and tikas and profuse practical arrangements to distribute these literatures all over the world in all kinds of languages. (2) By his powerful preaching and immaculate purity he has made thousands of Vaishnavas worldwide. (3) He has practically created the framework for a universal house of worship and sanctuary in Kali-yuga by establishing 108 temples, ashrams, farms, gurukulas, and given practical directions on how to manage these institutions for preaching the message of Lord Chaitanya. Srila Prabhupada is the actual sampradaya acharya. A South Indian Ramanuja guru remarked in 1976 after viewing one of Srila Prabhupada's books and witnessing the preaching of some of his young disciples: "This person is the summum bonum of all acharyas." Thus it is the foremost duty of any sincere disciple and follower of Srila Prabhupada to emphasize the unique and distinct position and accomplishment of Srila Prabhupada as the vishva acharya, or the world acharya, the Jagat Guru, by his accomplishments, and not merely by a self-given title. He is the actual sampradaya acharya to be surrendered to and fully served by all Vaishnavas and all preachers and preceptors in the future. He lives forever by his divine instructions and the follower lives with him. (END)

SRILA PRABHUPADA'S UNIQUE EXALTED STATURE

The understanding of Srila Prabhupada's exalted stature and essentiality to spiritual life was once the common understanding among serious and mature devotees in the mission. Many of us, if not most, took it for granted that Srila Prabhupada was an avatar sent by Krishna, that he was omniscient, perfect, above any influence of material body, mind, or material existence. We had a clear philosophical understanding of how and why Srila Prabhupada is the truly Unique Acharya, the Jagat Guru, and Sad Guru for the Golden Age. The theology for the Golden Age was revealed to us based on acceptance of Srila Prabhupada as the Real Acharya for this Age. In the early days of the movement, sincere devotees seemed to have gotten some special mercy for understanding the ultimate siddhanta, more or less blindly or by simple faith, just seeing Srila Prabhupada and associating with advanced devotees like Vishnujana Swami, Jayananda Prabhu, and others who were advanced in service and study. However, the level of understanding that many or most devotees nowadays have regarding Srila Prabhupada is much different. Statements, policies and attitudes now common in ISKCON would have previously been considered outrageous. Outsiders, friends, scholars, historians, students and new devotees today all think Srila Prabhupada followers are fanatics, whereas the ISKCON leadership is more practical and realistic by assigning Srila Prabhupada a humble place in the history of the world or the Gaudiya Sampradaya. Times have obviously changed, and one would be remiss to try to understand Srila Prabhupada in ISKCON. We should not take for granted any understanding regarding Srila Prabhupada's status, and everything needs to be clearly proven by: (1) Shastric predictions, (2) Srila Prabhupada's statements about himself, (3) Testimony from those who met Srila Prabhupada re: his omniscience and mystic devotional power, (4) Logical analysis of his character and symptoms, (5) Other proofs.

A summary in quotes is as follows: (1) "Those who are eternally liberated are always awake to Krishna consciousness, and they render transcendental loving service at the feet of Lord Krishna. They are to be considered eternal associates of Krishna, and they are eternally enjoying the transcendental bliss of serving Krishna." (CC Mad 22.11) (2) "The nitya-baddhas are always conditioned by the external energy, and the nitya-muktas never come in contact with the external energy. Sometimes an ever-liberated personal associate of the Supreme Personality of Godhead descends into this universe just as the Lord descends. Although working for the liberation of conditioned souls, the messenger of the Supreme Lord remains untouched by the material energy. Generally ever-liberated personalities live in the spiritual world as associates of Lord Krishna, and they are known as krishna-parisada, associates of the Lord. Their only business is enjoying Lord Krishna's company, and even though such eternally liberated persons come within this material world to serve the Lord's purpose, they enjoy Lord Krishna's company without stoppage. The ever-liberated person who works on Krishna's behalf enjoys Lord Krishna's company through his engagement." (CC Mad 22.15) (3) "O my Lord! Transcendental poets and experts in spiritual science could not fully express their indebtedness to You, even if they were endowed with the prolonged lifetime of Brahma, for You appear in two features-externally as the acharya and internally as the Supersoul-to deliver the embodied living being by directing him how to come to You." (CC Mad 22.48) (4) "Unless human society accepts the dust of the lotus feet of great mahatmas- devotees who have nothing to do with material possessions- mankind cannot turn its attention to the lotus feet of Krishna. Those lotus feet vanquish all the unwanted miserable conditions of material life." (CC Mad 22.53) (5) VERSE: "The value of a moment's association with a devotee of the Lord cannot even be compared to the attainment of heavenly planets or liberation from matter, and what to speak of worldly benedictions in the form of material prosperity, which is for those who are meant for death." PURPORT: "This is a quotation from Srimad-Bhagavatam (1.18.13). This verse concerns the Vedic rites and sacrifices performed by the great sages of Naimisaranya, headed by Saunaka Rsi. The sages pointed out that association with a devotee for even less than a second is beyond comparison to a thousand Vedic rituals and sacrifices, elevation to heavenly planets or merging into the existence of the Supreme.” (CC Mad 22.55)

SRILA PRABHUPADA WAS SENT BY LORD KRISHNA TO RESCUE US FROM ILLUSION

(1) “...So either Krishna or His representative who come on this planet or in this world just to show example how you should live, how you should utilize your human form of life, they have nothing to gain. They are complete. Those who are coming from spiritual kingdom or kingdom of, they have no want. They haven't got to do anything. They are all perfect...” (SPLecture Dec. 30, 1968) (2) “...the Lord descends to reclaim all of these fallen, conditioned souls to call them back to the sanatana eternal sky so that the sanatana living entities may regain their eternal sanatana positions in eternal association with the Lord. The Lord comes Himself in different incarnations, or He sends His confidential servants as sons or His associates or acharyas to reclaim the conditioned souls..” (BGita Intro) (3) “Due to the growth of the asuras, the mass of people who are generally devoted to the Lord by nature and the pure devotees of the Lord, including the demigods in higher planets, pray to the Lord for relief, and the Lord either descends personally from His abode or deposes some of His devotees to remodel the fallen condition of human society, or even animal society.” (SBhag 1.13.50) (4) “He also gives them the chance to receive His mercy through His pure devotees who are engaged in missionary activities. Sometimes the Lord Himself descends for missionary activities, as He did in the form of Lord Chaitanya, but mostly He sends His bona fide representatives, and thus He shows His causeless mercy towards the non-devotees. The Lord is so satisfied with His pure devotees that He wants to give them the credit for missionary success, although he could do the work personally.” (SBhag 3.9.12) (5) “...Krishna comes like an ordinary human being, He comes as a devotee like Lord Chaitanya, or He sends His representative, the spiritual master, or pure devotee. [...] They come to canvass and educate, and thus a person in the illusory energy of the Supreme Lord gets a chance to mix with them, talk with them and take lessons from them, and somehow or other if a conditioned soul surrenders to such personalities and by intimate association with them chances to become Krishna conscious, he is saved from the material conditions of life...” (SBhag 4.21.27)

SRILA PRABHUPADA IS AN ETERNALLY LIBERATED ASSOCIATE OF LORD KRISHNA

(1) “So far I am concerned, I cannot say what I was in my previous life, but one great astrologer calculated that I was previously a physician and my life was sinless. Besides that, to corroborate the statement of Bhagavad-gita “sucinam srimatam gehe yogabhrasta samyayate” which means an unfinished yogi takes birth in rich family or born of a suci or pious father. By the grace of Krishna I got these two opportunities in the present life to be born of a pious father and brought up in one of the richest, aristocratic families of Calcutta (Kasinath Mullick). The Radha Krishna Deity in this family called me to meet Him, and therefore last time when I was in Calcutta, I stayed in that temple... Although I had immense opportunities to indulge in the four principles of sinful life because I was connected with a very aristocratic family, Krishna always saved me, and throughout my whole life I do not know what is illicit sex, intoxication, meat-eating or gambling. So far my present life is concerned, I do not remember any part of my life when I was forgetful of Krishna.” (SPL Tamal June 21, 1970)

(2) Bhagavat das recorded his memories of hearing Srila Prabhupada describe how Lord Krishna asked Srila Prabhupada to come to the material world to write books, and he agreed to do so. Srila Prabhupada was no doubt a nitya-siddha, or eternally liberated soul who came to deliver fallen souls. (3) Prthu-putra: This was all in the dream. But when I came to that person sitting on the elevated seat in that forest, surrounded by many, many devotees, that person looked at me and proved to me that he was the representative of God. But after, I forgot. Maybe... One or two years after... SP: So there is no doubt about it that I am the representative of God. Prthu-putra: Yes. But when I was... SP: Either you dream or not dream, I claim. (SPConv Jan. 28, 1977) (4) “Sometimes an ever-liberated personal associate of the Supreme Personality of Godhead descends into this universe just as the Lord descends. Although working for the liberation of conditioned souls, the messenger of the Supreme Lord remains untouched by the material energy..." (CC Mad 22.14.15 purport) (5) "Nitya-siddha devotees come from Vaikuntha to this material world to teach, by their personal example [...] The living entities in this material world can take lessons from such nitya-siddha devotees and thus become inclined to return home, back to Godhead. A nitya-siddha devotee comes from Vaikuntha upon the order of the Supreme Personality of Godhead and shows by his example how to become a pure devotee (anyabhilasita-sunyam). [...] the nitya-siddha devotee is never attracted by the allurements of material enjoyment." (SBhag 7.10.3) (6) "...An advanced devotee, therefore, does not live within the material body but within his spiritual body, just as a dry coconut lives detached from the coconut husk, even though within the husk. The pure devotee's body is therefore called cin-maya-sarira ('spiritualized body'). In other words, a devotee's body is not connected with material activities, and as such, a devotee is always liberated (brahma-bhuyaya kalpate), as confirmed in Bhagavad-gita. Srila Rupa Gosvami also confirms this..." (SBhag 4.22.26 purport)

GREAT VAISHNAVAS ARE ETERNALLY TRANSCENDENTAL

Unless we carefully understand scriptural conclusions regarding great devotees in the guru-paramapara, we can never understand the highest path of liberation, as taught by Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. Without understanding the position of Srila Prabhupada specifically, no one in this dark age of Kali can make real progress towards ultimate liberation in pure God consciousness. One wonders why Srila Prabhupada's glories have been so thoroughly suppressed and diminished? In India and elsewhere, many kinds of men are known as gurus. The great devotees of the Lord in the line of Lord Chaitanya, however, are not ordinary gurus. They teach the highest example of pure devotion by personal example. They do this for the benefit of all fallen conditioned souls in this dark world. Their every word and action is for the benefit of others, and they are not at all concerned for their own welfare, safety or profit. As Lord Krishna descends to this world for our benefit, so does His empowered representative—just to teach us how we should live to serve the mission of the Lord. Pure devotees are complete and have nothing to gain from doing this. The worst blunder anyone can make is to minimize, neglect, defy or assault the representative of the Supreme Lord, who delivers the messages of God for the benefit of all conditional souls in this world. There can be no greater sin than this. This is fully applicable to Srila Prabhupada. (1) "Neither the Lord Himself nor His specific devotees who come to this earth are ordinary living entities like us..." (SBhag 3.13.47 purport) (2) "The Lord unwillingly creates this material world, but He descends in His personal form or sends one of His reliable sons or a servant or a reliable author like Vyasadeva to give instruction." (SBhag 3.21.20 purport) (3) "The Supreme Lord Sri Krishna personally descends to teach people that their position in the material world is a mistaken one... The Lord also empowers a special devotee to teach people their constitutional position..." (CC Mad 19.114 purport)

In the history of the world, no great teacher has come under such constant scrutiny, as was Srila Prabhupada, both during his manifest preaching mission and after his departure. He constantly met not only disciples and followers but critics, impersonalists, pretenders, false teachers, reporters, curiosity seekers, government leaders, celebrities, and sincere but often confused spiritual aspirants. Most of his meetings, conversations, and lectures were recorded and almost all who met him were satisfied and humbled by his realizations, scriptural knowledge, philosophical acumen, and practical logic. Sincere persons coming into his divine presence were impressed with his humility and lack of pretention. Srila Prabhupada repeatedly demonstrated his position as the preacher-avatar of God, and all who met him could appreciate his deep devotion and selfless desire to spread the teachings of Lord Krishna and Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. Modern so-called gurus surround themselves with naïve or blind followers and keep their lives private and shielded from public view. Srila Prabhupada never did this. He had no private life and never acted in any way for prestige or profit. This was understood by everyone who observed him carefully. "The devotee does not do anything not sanctioned by [Krishna]. As it is said, vaisnavera kriya mudra vijneha na bujhaya. Even the most learned or experienced person cannot understand the movements of a Vaishnava, a pure devotee. No one, therefore, should criticize a pure Vaishnava. A Vaishnava knows his own business; whatever he does is precisely right because he is always guided by the Supreme Personality of Godhead." (SBhag 9.4.68 purport)

SRILA PRABHUPADA'S UNIQUE POWER

(1) "..It is said that a single pure devotee of the Lord can deliver all the fallen souls of the world..." (SBhag 2.8.5) (2) "The pure devotee ignites Krishna consciousness in the hearts of the conditioned souls, and thus the blazing fire of the spiritual world becomes manifest even within this material world..." (Krishna Book) (3) "...Ordinary yogis can exhibit wonderful material activities, known as asta-siddhi, eight kinds of perfection, but a pure devotee of the Lord can surpass these perfections by performing activities which can make the whole universe tremble..." (SBhag 4.8.78) (4) "...how do we know of the spiritual abodes since once going there no one returns, you should know that the great liberated souls and incarnations who appear from time to time in this material world are not actually coming back, because they are never subject to material contamination or the laws of material nature. For the purpose of delivering the fallen living entities they come here temporarily and then go back when their business is finished, and this is all under the direct order of the Lord. [...] When Narada Muni was talking to Vyasadeva, as you may have read in first volume of our Srimad-Bhagavatam, he was in a spiritual body, but he remembered his previous life and explained it to Vyasadeva." (SPL Vrndavanesvari dasi June 6, 1969) (5) "...When a pure Vaishnava speaks, he speaks perfectly. How is this? His speech is managed by Krishna Himself from within the heart..." (CC Mad 8.200) (6) "... A pure devotee always engages in the service of the Lord, taking shelter of His lotus feet, and therefore he has a direct connection with the saffron mercy-particles that are strewn over the lotus feet of the Lord. Although when a pure devotee speaks the articulation of his voice may resemble the sound of this material sky, the voice is spiritually very powerful because it touches the particles of saffron dust on the lotus feet of the Lord. As soon as a sleeping living entity hears the powerful voice emanating from the mouth of a pure devotee, he immediately remembers his eternal relationship with the Lord, although up until that moment he had forgotten everything..." (SBhag 4.20.25) (7) "...Similarly Narada Muni in his transcendental position stayed with the young woman without fear of deviation. Narada Muni, Haridas Thakura, and similar acharyas especially empowered to broadcast the glories of the Lord cannot be brought down to the material platform. Therefore one is strictly forbidden to think that the acharya is an ordinary human being. gurusu nara-matih..." (SBhag 7.7.13 purport)

THE REAL ACHARYA IS SELF-EFFULGENT

Srila Prabhupada's constant, tireless preaching and devotion were unique in world history, particularly with regards to his publication and massive distribution of translations and explanations of the "cream" of all Vedic scriptures. In addition to his scholarly work, he wrote 7,000 letters to disciples and others, and he was daily lecturing and conversing with people from all walks of life. His doors were always open to sincere seekers. Srila Prabhupada pointed out that a fully liberated teacher, or acharya, is self-effulgent. This means that even ordinary materialists, secularists, and neophyte spiritualists can appreciate, to some extent, the liberated status and perfect character of great teachers like Christ, Buddha, Mohammed, Ramanujacharya, Madhvacharya, or Rupa Goswami. Srila Prabhupada's devotional life displayed all the classic characteristics of a self-realized soul, as elaborately described in the scriptures. His superhuman preaching work further proved his status as a great devotee. No one can imitate the perfect humility, knowledge and constant devotion shown by great devotees in the line of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. They can be appreciated by even the most fallen and foolish persons, as long as they are without jealousy or evil ambitions. Real acharyas are thus said to be "self-effulgent." "Through his inconceivable energy, a pure devotee can perform tasks that are supposed to be very, very difficult. He can perform tasks not even previously performed by the Lord Himself." (CC Mad 16.6) Guest: I know one of your Godsisters in Vrndavana. She is very old. She is staying in [...] matha. So she told me she took her initiation when she was about sixteen year old and still she stays in the temple and she... [...] say you're the most pious person on this planet. SP: Yes. Hare Krishna. (SPConv Nov. 2, 1975)

THE PREDICTED SHAKTAVESHA AVATAR AND UNIQUE STATUS OF SRILA PRABHUPADA

For the benefit of all us dull persons residing in this dark, confused and chaotic age, highly recognized liberated souls, as well as the Supreme Lord Himself, predicted Srila Prabhupada and his preaching mission. E.g., the great Bhaktivinoda Thakura predicted that somebody will deliver the Krishna consciousness movement all over the world. (1) "I am simply messenger. Mercy is of Bhaktivinoda Thakura and Srila Prabhupada [Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati]. They predicted that 'somebody will bring.' Maybe that somebody I am. Bhaktivinoda predicted." (SPConv Mar. 23, 1975) (2) *"So perhaps my Guru Maharaja, Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakura, attempted to fulfill the desire of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. And sometimes in the year 1918, he was brahmachari, and Bhaktivinoda Thakura, his material father, he wanted.... Of course, everyone wanted. But he wrote one small book [...] Teachings and Precepts of Lord Chaitanya, in 1896. And he presented that book to the McGill University in Canada. And he very much desired that the foreigners, especially Americans, would join this movement. That was his desire in 1896. And then, in 1918, my Guru Maharaja started with this mission--one institution known as Gaudiya Math... And he was trying to spread this message of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, and by chance or by prediction as you think, I was taken to Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakura by one of my friends. (SPLecture Mar. 2, 1975) (3) "It is the desire of Bhaktivinoda Thakura to preach the Chaitanya cult all over the world, and in 1875 he predicted that someone would come very soon who would individually preach this cult all over the world. So if His benediction is there and my Guru Maharaja's blessings are there, we can go ahead without any impediment but all of us must be very sincere and serious...." (SPL Feb. 23, 1971) (4) "In 1896 Bhaktivinoda Thakura was the first origin of this movement. But he simply thought of it. And he was expecting some others that willing to take up the work. Well, somebody says that I am the same man. And I was born in 1896..." (SPConv Mar. 17, 1975) (5) Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakura made specific statements regarding the future appearance of a great personality who would come to the West and preach the message of Lord Gauranga and fulfill the prediction of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu: (Sajjana Tosani 4.3, 1885): "Very soon the unparalleled path of hari-nama sankirtana will be propagated all over the world. Oh, for that day when the fortunate English, French, Russian, German, and American people will take up banners, mridangas, and karatalas and raise kirtana through their streets and towns! When will that day come?" (6) "I offer my respectful obeisances unto HDG A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada, who is very dear to Lord Krishna, having taken shelter at his lotus feet. Our respectful obeisances are unto you, O spiritual master, servant of Sarasvati Gosvami. You are kindly preaching the message of Chaitanya-deva and delivering the Western countries which are filled with impersonalism and voidism." (7) "My books will be the law books for the next ten thousand years." (SPConv 1976)*

(8) Devotee: Prabhupada, they said that if Chaitanya Mahaprabhu wanted Krishna consciousness in the Western countries, why didn't He go there Himself? That's what they told us. SP So He left the credit for me. (Laughter). (SPConv Jan. 4, 1976) (9) "Only Lord Chaitanya can take my place. He will take care of the movement." (SPConv 1977) (10) Reporter: Have you named your successor? SP "My success is always there. Yes. Just like the sun is there always. It may come before your vision or not—the sun is there. But if you are fortunate you come before the sun. The sun is open to everyone." (SPConv Feb. 12, 1975) (11) "idam sthanam parityajya videsam gamyate maya" (I will leave this place [Vrndaban] and travel to foreign lands...) Bhakti Devi speaking to Narada, Srimad Bhagavata Mahatmyam [part of Padma Purana], translated by Satyanarayana das. It tells the story of how Bhakti can be revived in Kali-yuga through recital of Srimad-Bhagavatam. When Srila Prabhupada left Vrndaban and came to America, it is significant that his only possession was a trunk containing the first volumes of his Srimad-Bhagavatam, which he considered his most important work. It is also significant that he instituted daily recitation of the Bhagavatam as the foundation of the temple program, and that Srimad-Bhagavatam (in the form of Krishna Book) was the first of Srila Prabhupada's books to be distributed in large quantities. Until Srila Prabhupada came West, devotional service (Bhakti) had never been successfully introduced in foreign lands. (12) "Just like Thakura Bhaktivinoda. In 1896 he sent the Chaitanya Mahaprabhu's message to McGill University. That book you have seen. The letter was there. And these are coincidence. Now, after so many years, a servant of that disciplic succession has come here again to preach. So these things are significant." (SP Lecture Mar. 18, 1967) (13) "...in 1896. Bhaktivinoda Thakura was the first origin of this movement. But he simply thought of it. And he was expecting some others that willing to take up the work. Well, somebody says that I am the same man. And I was born in 1896." (SP Conv Canadian Ambassador to Iran Mar. 13, 1975) (14) SP: And in my horoscope there was written there, "After seventieth year this man will go outside India and establish so many temples." Tamal: Really? SP: I could not understand. "What is this, that I have to go outside India? That is not..." And Guru Maharaja foretold. He told my Godbrothers, Sridhara Maharaja and others, that "He'll do the needful when time comes. Nobody requires to help him." He told in 1935. And after all, this was true. Guru Maharaja told. And in the beginning, first sight, he told, "You have to do this." (SP Conv June 17, 1977) (15) "He (Srila Prabhupada) seemed to know that he would have temples filled up with devotees. He would look out and say, 'I am not a poor man, I am rich. There are temples and books, they are existing, they are there, but the time is separating us from them.'" (Mr. Ruben, subway conductor who met SP in 1965)

(16) "You have spread the sankirtana movement of Krishna consciousness. Therefore it is evident that You have been empowered by Lord Krishna. There is no question about it." (CC Antya 7.12) (17) "... in the age of Kali one can satisfy and worship the Supreme Personality of Godhead Hari simply by chanting His holy name." Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakura explains that unless one is directly empowered by the causeless mercy of Krishna, one cannot become the spiritual master of the entire world (jagad-guru). One cannot become an acharya simply by mental speculation. The true acharya presents Krishna to everyone by preaching the holy name of the Lord throughout the world. Thus the conditioned souls, purified by chanting the holy name, are liberated from the blazing fire of material existence. In this way, spiritual benefit grows increasingly full, like the waxing moon in the sky. The true acharya, the spiritual master of the entire world, must be considered an incarnation of Krishna's mercy. Indeed, he is personally embracing Krishna. He is therefore the spiritual master of all the varnas (brahmana, ksatriya, vaisya and sudra) and all the asramas (brahmacharya, grhastha, vanaprastha and sannyasa). Since he is understood to be the most advanced devotee, he is called paramahamsa-thakura. Thakura is a title of honor offered to the paramahamsa. Therefore one who acts as an acharya, directly presenting Lord Krishna by spreading his name and fame, is also to be called paramahamsa-thakura. (CC Antya 7.12 purport) (18) "So his idea was amongst the members of GBC who would come out successful and self effulgent acharya would be automatically selected." (SPL Apr 28, 1974) (19) "...Sometimes they come, however, by the order of the Lord [...] to propagate the message of God in human society. Such empowered representative are called saktayavesha-avatars, or incarnations invested with transcendental power of attorney..." (SBhag 3.5.21) (20) "The mlecchas who are born from mixed countries ruled by descendants of Kasyapa (demons) and the sudras will become brahmanas by initiation. They will wear sikhas and brahmana threads and will become well versed in the uncontaminated fruit of the Vedas (Srimad Bhagavatam). They will worship Me by the Yajna prescribed by the Lord of Lords, the protector of Sacidevi, Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu." (Bhavisya Purana, Pratisarga Ch. 20. 71-3) (21) Prediction by Caitanya Mahaprabhu: ebe nama sankirtana tiksna khadga lana/ antara asura jivera pheliba katiya/ yadi papi chadi dharma dura dese yaya/ mora senapati-bhakta yaibe tathaya/ "Taking the sharp sword of the congregational chanting of the Holy Name, I will root out and destroy the demoniac mentality in the hearts of the conditioned souls. If some sinful people escape and giving up religious principles go to far off countries, then My commander in chief (Senapati Bhakta) will appear to chase them and distribute Krsna consciousness." (Caitanya Mangala, Sutra-khanda, song 12. 564-5) (22) "prthivite ache yata nagaradi grama/ sarvatra pracara haibe mora nama: In every town and village, the chanting of my name will be heard." (Caitanya Bhagavata, Antya 4.126) (23) Prediction by Sri Vishnuchitta/ Perialvar: "There will come a race which will tread the Earth with raised hands and vertical tilaka on their foreheads, who will chant

the names of Hari; this will destroy the influence of Kali." (Divya Prabandha 1.10) (24) Prediction by Srila Madhvacharya: "The real knowledge of the difference between jiva and Sri Hari and the service of Sri Hari will spread all over the world very shortly." (Sumadhwa Vijaya, Last Ch.) (25) Prediction by Sri Ramanujacharya: "The pure devotion to Sri Hari devoid of karma and jnana will grow and grow like a banyan tree covering the whole world, teaching everyone who takes shelter." (Prapannamrta Tarpana, Last Ch.) (26) Predictions by Sri Nammalvar: "Victory! Victory! Victory! I behold something wonderful: all the inauspiciousness of the living entities is destroyed, no one is going to hell, Yamaraja has no more any work, and the effects of Kaliyuga ceased to exist. This is because all over the world an increasing number of Lord Vishnu's devotees sing his names while dancing and playing musical instruments." (Divya Prabandha, Tiruvaymoli 5.2.1) (27) Prediction by Bhaktivinoda Thakura: "In a short time, there will be only one sampradaya and that will be the Brahma sampradaya. All other sampradayas will find their conclusions in this sampradaya." (Sajjana Tosani 4.3, 'Nityadharmas Suryodoy') (28) "A personality will soon appear to preach the teachings of Lord Chaitanya and move unrestrictedly over the whole world with His message." (Sajjana Tosani, 'Nityadharmas Suryodoy')

(29) Prediction by Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati: "Bhaktisiddhanta lectured to a crowd that had assembled for a parikrama or walking tour of Mayapur, the birthplace of Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. Guru Maharaj was looking out at the large crowd of devotees," Nayananda Das Babaji recalled. "Then he turned his head toward the left side where I was standing. He was looking intently at someone behind me and became silent for a long moment. I turned and saw that the person with whom he was making eye contact was Abhay Charanaravinda Prabhu." "I have a prediction," Bhaktisiddhanta announced. "However long in the future it may be, one of my disciples will cross the ocean. That devotee will bring back the whole world." (Our Srila Prabhupada, A Friend to All) (30) "A religion from the East will move the West" (Nostradamus, 1500's)

PRAISE FROM SRILA PRABHUPADA'S GODBROTHERS

These prophecies were confirmed by Srila Prabhupada's Godbrothers: (1) "This return back to homeland of Srila Prabhupada, is particularly significant, because this time he comes back with a host of his Western disciples. This signifies to me the meeting of the East and the West, or at least the beginning of such a meeting. This signifies the victory of spiritualism over materialism, of good over evil. This is really a rare moment in history, for the first time in the history of the world, for the first time at least in living memory, Vaishnavism, the message of Vaishnavism, the message of Mahaprabhu, the message of devotion and of pure devotion has been carried to the West and carried so successfully. I am sure that historians of the future will have a lot to say about Prabhupada and his movement, and they will be even envious of us for living in a time when this movement was begun and for participating in it." (Dr. O.B.L. Kapoor Oct. 15, 1972) (2) "And what about the qualities he had? All devotional qualities he possess. And that we can know him that he is great only by preaching. Less than 10 years. There is no history, no recording anywhere. Preaching in 10 years he has established this divine name everywhere. As is told in Mahaprabhu's future [prediction]." (HH BV Puri Maharaja Memories of Srila Prabhupada) (3) "Sridhara Maharaja also appreciated my service. He said that Chaitanya Mahaprabhu's prediction: prthivite ache yata nagaradi grama/ sarvatra pracara haibe mora nama, would remain a dream only, but he congratulated me that I have done it practically." (SPL 1975)

SRILA PRABHUPADA IS ESPECIALLY EMPOWERED

(1) Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati, the great authority, pointed out that Srila Prabhupada even as a married family man, was greater than many yogis. He was always the topmost yogi and devotee. He was never under material nature's control; nor was he ever diverted, depressed, or bewildered by obstacles or adversaries. (2) "Ordinary yogis can exhibit wonderful material activities, known as astasiddhi, eight kinds of perfection, but a pure devotee of the Lord can surpass these perfections by performing activities which can make the whole universe tremble..." (SBhag 4.8.78 purport). (3) "It is said that a single pure devotee of the Lord can deliver all the fallen souls of the world..." (SBhag 2.8.5 purport) (4) "The pure devotee ignites Krishna consciousness in the hearts of the conditioned souls, and thus the blazing fire of the spiritual world becomes manifest even within this material world..." (Krishna Book, Prayers of the Personified Vedas) (5) "When a pure Vaishnava speaks, he speaks perfectly. How is this? His speech is managed by Krishna Himself from within the heart." (CC Mad 8.200 purport) (6) "The power of devotional service is so great that a pure devotee can electrify another person by his transcendental instruction on crossing over the ocean of nescience..." (Krishna Book) (7) Reporter: "Do you know how many followers there are in the United States?" SP: "Unlimited. Some of them admit and some of them do not admit. That's all. Everyone is eternally servant of God, but some of them admit and some of them do not admit. That is the difficulty." (8) SP: No, not necessarily, Krishna will tell directly. A devotee always consults Krishna and Krishna tells him, "Do like this." Not figuratively. Q: Does that apply then to other kinds of decisions and other kinds of activities as well? SP: Everything. Because a devotee does not do anything without consulting Krishna. Bali Mardan: But that applies to a very greatly elevated soul, that is not an ordinary person. SP: That is, therefore the minor devotees, they consult the spiritual master. That is our process. (9) "...the spiritually developed person is able to have the television of the kingdom of God always reflected within his heart. That is the mystery of knowledge of the Personality of Godhead." (SBhag 2.9.35)

Srila Prabhupada's life and activities clearly illustrate that he is the real acharya for this age, the predicted shaktavesha-avatara and sad-guru for the golden age of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu.

SRILA PRABHUPADA'S BODY IS SPIRITUAL

(1) "Influenced by an envious temperament and dissatisfied because of an attitude of sense gratification, mundaners criticize a real acharya. In fact, however, a bona fide acharya is non-different from the Personality of Godhead, and therefore to envy such an acharya is to envy the Personality of Godhead Himself. This will produce an effect subversive of transcendental realization." (CC Adi 1.46 purport) (2) "It is therefore enjoined, gurusu nara-matih: one should stop thinking of the spiritual master as an ordinary human being with a material body. Arcye visnau sila-dhiih: everyone knows that the Deity in the temple is made of stone, but to think that the Deity is merely stone is an offense. Similarly, to think that the body of the spiritual master consists of material ingredients is offensive. Atheists think that devotees foolishly worship a stone statue as God and an ordinary man as the guru. The fact is, however, that by the grace of Krishna's omnipotence, the so-called stone statue of the Deity is directly the Supreme Personality of Godhead, and the body of the spiritual master is directly spiritual." (SBhag 8.3.2 purport)

PROOFS THAT SRILA PRABHUPADA IS A PURE DEVOTEE

So many pretenders and cheaters today falsely claim the status of a bona fide spiritual master, but if they do not have the qualifications, they cannot be considered pure devotees of the Lord and therefore not qualified to initiate anyone into the transcendental science of bhakti yoga, or devotional service. "Unless one is under the shelter of a realized spiritual master, his understanding of the supreme is simply foolishness." (TLC) "When a devotee is perfectly qualified in chanting the transcendental vibration of the Holy Names, he is quite fit to become spiritual master and deliver all the people of the world." (TLC)

Srila Prabhupada is a pure devotee: (1) Guest: So, Srila Prabhupada, have you realized God? SP: What do you think? What is your opinion? Guest: I can't say. SP: Then if I say, "yes," then what you will understand? If you are not yourself expert, then even if I say, "Yes, I am God realized," how you will take it as truth? If you do not know what is God realization, then how you can ask this question and how you will be satisfied by the answer? You do not know. Guest: Well, what is God realization? SP: Then you were asking, "Are you God realized?" If I say, "Yes," then how you'll believe it? You do not know what is God realization. Then why do you put this question? [...] It has no value. You do not know yourself what is God realization. Now, just like a medical man, if he asks another man, medical man, so if he says, "Yes," then medical man will understand him by technical terms whether he is medical man. [...] Unless you are prepared to take the answer whatever I give. Are you prepared? Guest: Yes. SP: Then it is all right. I am. I am seeing God every moment. (2) "Taking the sharp sword of the congregational chanting of the Hare Krishna mantra, I will root out and destroy the demoniac mentality in the hearts of all the conditioned souls... If some sinful people escape and, giving up religious principles, go to far-off countries, then my senapati bhakta [great devotee general] will come at that time to give them Krishna consciousness." (Lord Chaitanya as cited in Sri Chaitanya Mangala, Locana das Thakur) Srila Prabhupada never claimed any personal credit for his preaching work or books. For our benefit, he helped us understand his unique status as the foremost spiritual authority for the golden age of Lord Chaitanya, Who will will empower His own devotee to spread Krishna consciousness around the world. This was a prediction of the appearance of Srila Prabhupada and his worldwide preaching activities where he would travel the world over, open 108 temples, and initiate millions into the chanting of the Holy Names of the Lord. (3) "Yes, whoever you tell the chant to, it is effective. You have heard it from me and my disciples, similarly I have heard it from my Guru Maharaja, and so on, and on. Because you have heard it from a pure devotee of the Lord, therefore it is transmitted from you to another. Just as an aerial message, is transmitted from one place to another, similarly, this Guru parampara system is working. My disciples are my agents, my representatives, so by hearing it from them, you are receiving it from me. And because you are a sincere soul, those who are hearing the Mantra from you are receiving it in disciplic succession, from Lord Chaitanya and from Lord Krishna." (SPL Andrea Temple Mar. 6, 1968) (4) "When I left your country on the 22nd of July, I had very little hope to come back again. But Krishna informed me that I'm not going to die immediately; therefore, I have come back again to get inspiration of Krishna Consciousness from you all good souls. Although officially I am your Spiritual Master, I consider you all students as my Spiritual Master because your love for Krishna and service for Krishna teach me how to become a sincere Krishna conscious person." (SPL Dec. 16, 1967) (5) "Yes the spiritual master is also present in his picture, though more importantly he is present in his teachings. I think this is explained in one letter that has already been distributed. Thank you very much for assisting me in this way." (SPL Sukadeva Jan. 29, 1973) (6) "But Maharaja Pariksit was more than that because he had been a great devotee of the Lord since his previous birth, and as such he took his birth in an imperial family of the Kurus, and especially that of the Pandavas. So from the very beginning of his childhood he had the chance to know intimately the devotional service of Lord Krishna in his own family. The Pandavas, all being devotees of the Lord, certainly venerated family Deities in the royal palace for worship. Children who appear in such families fortunately generally imitate such worship of the Deities, even in the way of childhood play. By the grace of Lord Sri Krishna, we had the chance of being born in a Vaishnava family, and in our childhood we imitated the worship of Lord Krishna by imitating our father. Our father encouraged us in all respects to observe all functions such as the Ratha-yatra and Dola-yatra ceremonies, and he used to spend money liberally for distributing prasada to us children and our friends. Our spiritual master, who also took his birth in a Vaishnava family, got all inspirations from his great Vaishnava father, Thakura Bhaktivinoda. That is the way of all lucky Vaishnava families. The celebrated Mira Bai was a staunch devotee of Lord Krishna as the great lifter of Govardhana Hill. The life history of many such devotees is almost the same because there is always symmetry between the early lives of all great devotees of the Lord. According to Jiva Gosvami, Maharaja Pariksit must have heard about the childhood pastimes of Lord Krishna at Vrndaban, for he used to imitate the pastimes with his young playmates. According to Sridhara Svami, Maharaja Pariksit used to imitate the worship of the family Deity by elderly members. Srila Visvanatha Cakravarti also confirms the viewpoint of Jiva Gosvami. So accepting either of them, Maharaja Pariksit was naturally inclined to Lord Krishna from his very childhood. He might have imitated either of the above-mentioned activities, and all of them establish his great devotion from his very childhood, a symptom of a maha-bhagavata. Such maha-bhagavatas are called nitya-siddhas, or souls liberated from birth." (SB 2.3.15 Purport) (7) TEXT: A foolish person who manufactures his own ways and means through mental speculation and does not recognize the authority of the sages who lay down unimpeachable directions is simply unsuccessful again and again in his attempts. PURPORT: At the present moment it has become fashionable to disobey the unimpeachable directions given by the acharyas and liberated souls of the past. Presently people are so fallen that they cannot distinguish between a liberated soul and a conditioned soul. A conditioned soul is hampered by four defects: he is sure to commit mistakes, he is sure to become illusioned, he has a tendency to cheat others, and his senses are imperfect. Consequently we have to take direction from liberated persons. This Krishna consciousness movement directly receives instructions from the Supreme Personality of Godhead via persons [Srila Prabhupada] who are strictly following His instructions. [...] (SBhag 4.18.5)

SUMMARY: In #1 Prabhupada tells us he is seeing God at every moment. #2-The divine appearance and activities of Srila Prabhupada, a sakyavesh avatar, is predicted in the 16th century by a great devotee of Lord Gauranga. In #3 he tells us that when we hear his messages we are hearing them from a pure devotee of the Lord. In #4 he tells us that Lord Krishna directly spoke to him about how long he had to live. In #5 he tells us that he is actually present in his picture or photograph. Only a pure devotee has this power. In #7 he tells us that there is always some kind of symmetry in the early lives of pure devotees and their later lives. This means they are born into very pious pure devotee families. In #8 he tells us that this Krishna consciousness movement (including all of us) is directly getting instructions from the Supreme Lord through him, Srila Prabhupada. Just like the demigods got instructions for their work through Lord Brahma, when they all went to Svetadvipa and Lord Vishnu spoke instructions thru the heart of Lord Brahma who gave those instructions to all the attending demigods present. So if anyone is aspiring to have a bonafide spiritual master, the above qualifications (and there are many more) must be met, or one can be sure to have a "counterfeit guru."

SRILA PRABHUPADA WAS MORE RARE THAN ONE IN 100 MILLION

Srila Prabhupada's true glories are often not well understood within the Hare Krishna movement, but Harvey Cox, a mundane religious scholar, once expressed his deep insight: "The fact that there is now in the West a vigorous, disciplined, and seemingly well-organized [religious] movement- not merely a philosophical movement or a yoga or meditation movement... is a stunning accomplishment. The more I came to know about the movement, the more I came to find there was a striking similarity between what [Prabhupada] was saying and my understanding of the original core of Christianity: Live simply, do not try to accumulate worldly goods or profit; live with compassion toward all creatures; live joyfully... When I say [Prabhupada was] 'one in a million,' I think that is in some ways an underestimate. Perhaps he was one in a hundred million." (END)

"This is called the paramahansa stage. Hansas, or swans, accept only milk out of a mixture of milk and water. Similarly, those who accept the service of the Lord instead of māyā's service are called the paramahansas. They are naturally qualified with all the good attributes, such as pridelessness, freedom from vanity, nonviolence, tolerance, simplicity, respectability, worship, devotion and sincerity. All these godly qualities exist in the devotee of the Lord spontaneously. Such paramahansas, who are completely given up to the service of the Lord, are very rare. They are very rare even amongst the liberated souls. Real nonviolence means freedom from envy. In this world everyone is envious of his fellow being. But a perfect paramahansa, being completely given up to the service of the Lord, is perfectly nonenvious. He loves every living being in relation with the Supreme Lord." (SBhag 1.18.22)

HEARING FROM SRILA PRABHUPADA IS THE KEY TO REAL KNOWLEDGE

In his Sri Isopanisad Srila Prabhupada explains the way to achieve transcendental knowledge, or freedom from illusion: by ardent hearing from bona fide authorities: iti shushruma dhiranam. (1) "It is said that one result is achieved by worshiping the Supreme Cause of all causes, and that another is obtained by worshiping what is not supreme. All this was heard from the undisturbed authorities who clearly explained it." (Sri Isopanisad, 13) (2) Srila Prabhupada's purport to this verse, "Unless one hears from the bona fide acharya, who is never disturbed by the changes of the material world, one cannot have the real key to transcendental knowledge." (3) "The position of a person in the higher or lower status of life does not hamper one in the path of self-realization. The only thing one has to do is to hear from a self-realized soul with a routine program." (SBhag Introduction) (4) "My dear Lord, You are glorified by the selected verses uttered by great personalities. Such glorification of Your lotus feet is just like saffron particles. When the transcendental vibration from the mouths of great devotees carries the aroma of the saffron dust of Your lotus feet, the forgetful living entity gradually remembers his eternal relationship with You. Devotees thus gradually come to the right conclusion about the value of life. My dear Lord, I therefore do not need any other benediction but the opportunity to hear from the mouth of Your pure devotee." (SBhag) (5) "But one thing I may inform you, that the three books which I have already prepared, namely the Bhagavad-Gita As It Is, Teachings of Lord chaitanya and Srimad Bhagwatam, all these books are the ultimate source of knowledge." (SPL Devananda Sept. 1968) (6) "These are not my books. I am simply translating. They are written by Vyasadeva, the original Vedic scholar." (SPConv Feb. 26, 1973) [In his humility he did not mention how his purports were a major expansion of the Vedic scriptures.]

THE EXALTED STATUS OF SRILA PRABHUPADA AS FOUNDER-ACHARYA by Atmatattva das

The Founder-Acharya is distinguished from all other acharyas and by his qualities and activities:

(1) 'tabhyas sarvajana trata sarvasrestatamo dhruvam/ dina abhaya pradanartham visadikrtya bhutale': "Among all acharyas, certainly he who is the deliverer of all people, who appears in this world for the purpose of removing the fears of the fallen souls (dina-abhaya) is the most perfect." (2) 'gitacaryokta tatvartha caramartha prakasanam/ rishiproktapramananam krtva vyakhyanamuttamam': "He sheds light on the ultimate meaning of the philosophical conclusions spoken by Krishna, Who speaks Bhagavad-gita. He also gives perfect purports to the evidences given by the rishis." (3) 'divyaprabandhan lokebhya sarakopadibhi paryantam/arthopadesa paryantam vardhayaitva ca sasvatah': "He propagates everywhere the meanings and purports of the songs of the previous acharyas." (4) 'natharyadi gurunam ca satakopadi yoginam/ ahrtiya vyasa sutranam artham lokahitaya ca/ sribhasyadi mahagrantham vidhaya karunarnaya/ nirjitya sarvasamayana vadena sataso'subhan': "He, the ocean of mercy, contributes great books for the welfare of the people that explain the meaning of Vedanta strictly in line with the previous Vaishnava acharyas and devotees. In this way he conquers all, defeating hundreds of different kinds of inauspicious philosophies by his arguments." (5) 'ityadibhir yatisresta karye lokahite rata/ nathadidesike tebhya pradhano bhavati dhruvam': "Because of engaging in the welfare of the people of the world, that perfect and topmost mendicant is certainly the most important Founder-Acharya/pradhana." (P. Tarpana 62.47)

Srila Prabhupada -Founder-Acharya of the Golden Age: The Founder-Acharya has a special position for all time to come within the organised mission. In the Vaishnava line the previous acharyas selected and severely tested the earnestness and qualifications of their disciples. But among the special characteristics of the Founder-Acharya is his infinite compassion. He accepts all those who come and commands his disciples to do the same. Harinama is the dharma of the Golden Age - 'kali kaler dharma nama sankirtana', and one who preaches that dharma all over the world is the empowered Acharya - 'krsna sakti vina nahi tara pravatana'. Srila Prabhupada exercised the basic principle of Krishna consciousness, as envisioned by Srila Rupa Goswami, to engage everyone in the Hare Krishna movement. The extent of his efforts are unprecedented in the history of Vaishnavism. Thus he is the Founder-Acharya who has accomplished the objectives of the 'visva vaishnava rajya sabha', following in the footsteps of Srila Rupa Goswami. In the Sri Chaitanya Mangal by Locana das Thakur, Lord Chaitanya speaks of a 'senapati' (great general), who will come after Him to accomplish His mission. Lord Chaitanya's teachings were a preparation by Himself for the use of another preacher, personally empowered by Him, who would launch His Sankirtana Movement on a global scale.

Srila Bhaktivinode Thakur yearned to see the day when fortunate non-Indian Vaishnavas would perform Harinama Sankirtan in different cities of the world (Sajjana tosoni 4\3,'nityadharmasuryodoy'). In this article he announced that Mahaprabhu's prediction would shortly be fulfilled. He foresaw that all the Vaishnava sampradayas will be unified. "In a short time, there will be only one sampradaya and that will be the Brahma sampradaya. All other sampradayas will find their conclusions in this sampradaya." "All smaller dharmas will enter like rivers into the ocean of Hari Nama and there will be only one religion - chanting the Holy Name of Krishna." (Vani Vaibhava Ch. 6). Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakur spoke of the arising of a self-effulgent acharya from among his disciples who would demonstrate his prominence by preaching in a grand style. It is obvious from the predictions of the previous acharyas mentioned above that [...] HDG AC Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada is that self-effulgent Founder-Acharya.

The Acharya: If one saw the personal characteristics and activities of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, one would certainly be convinced that He was the Supreme Personality of Godhead. One can ascertain this by following in the footsteps of the sastric injunctions. This sincere study and appreciation of Chaitanya Mahaprabhu is also applicable to His authorized devotees, and it is clearly stated in the CC Antya 7.11:

kali-kalera dharma - krsna-nama-sankirtana/ krsna-sakti vina nahe tara pravartana

In this age of Kali, real religious propaganda should induce people to chant the Hare Krishna maha-mantra, possible for someone especially empowered by Krishna. No one can do this without being especially favored by Krishna. Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakura, in his Anubhasya, quotes from Narayana-samhita: dvapariyair janair visnuh - pancaratrais tu kevalaih/ kalau tu nama-matrena - pujate bhagavan harih: "In Dvapara-yuga, devotees of Lord Vishnu and Krishna rendered devotional service according to the principles of pancaratrika. In this age of Kali, the Supreme Personality of Godhead is worshiped simply by the chanting of His holy names." Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakura then comments: "Without being empowered by the direct potency of Lord Krishna to fulfill His desire and without being specifically favored by the Lord, no human being can become the spiritual master of the whole world. He certainly cannot succeed by mental concoction, which is not meant for devotees or religious people. Only an empowered personality can distribute the holy name of the Lord and enjoin all the fallen souls to worship Krishna. By distributing the holy name of the Lord, he cleanses the hearts of the most fallen people; therefore he extinguishes the blazing fire of the material world. Not only that, he broadcasts the shining brightness of Krishna's effulgence throughout the world. Such an acharya, or spiritual master, should be considered nondifferent from Krishna - that is, he should be considered the incarnation of Lord Krishna's potency. Such a personality is krsnalingita-vigraha - that is, he is always embraced by the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Krishna. Such a person is above the considerations of the varnasrama institution. He is guru or spiritual master for the entire world, a devotee of the topmost platform, the maha-bhagavata stage, and a paramahansa-thakura, a spiritual form only fit to be addressed as paramahansa or thakura." AND: lohake yavat sparsi hema nahi kare/ tavat sparsa-mani keha cinite na pare "One cannot understand the value of touchstone until it turns iron into gold." (CC Mad 6.279) When teaching Sanatana Goswami, the Lord said (CC Mad 22.65): "If one is expert in Vedic literature and has full faith in the Supreme Lord, then he is an uttama-adhikari, a first-class Vaishnava who can deliver the whole world and turn everyone to Krishna consciousness." [Then Atmatattva das quotes a number of passages from CC Mad 16.74, Adi 3.97-8, Adi 7.31, 32, 37, Adi 7.148, Mad 5.76, Mad 16.65, Mad 17.48-9, which we have omitted.]

"In this age of Kali, the fame of one who is known as a great devotee is very rare. However, such a position is superior to that of the great demigods like Brahma and Mahadeva. This is the opinion of all spiritual masters. [...] out of thousands of brahmanas, one is qualified to perform sacrifices, and out of thousands of such qualified brahmanas expert in sacrificial offerings, one learned brahmana may have passed beyond all Vedic knowledge. He is considered the best of all these brahmanas. And yet, out of thousands of such brahmanas who have surpassed Vedic knowledge, one person may be a vishnu-bhakta, and he is most famous. Out of many thousands of Vaishnavas, one completely fixed in the service of Lord Krishna is most famous. Indeed, a person who is completely devoted to the service of the Lord certainly returns home, back to Godhead." (Garuda Purana)

"For Ten Thousand Years My Books Will Guide the World": Srila Prabhupada is not just an acharya; not just the founder of a society; he is the Founder-Acharya of the Krishna Consciousness Movement, which is a dynamic spiritual reality -the Yuga Dharma. Therefore, Srila Prabhupada is to be appreciated not merely as the acharya of a few intimate servants or even the acharya of a single generation of disciples. Rather, as the Founder-Acharya of ISKCON, he established the standard of Krishna consciousness to be practiced by all sincere followers for ten thousand years to come. The scriptures predict that although the present age is continually becoming more inauspicious, unfortunate and degraded, a 'Golden Age' of Krishna consciousness will appear for a period of ten thousand years, following the advent of Sri Chaitanya, despite the force of Kali Yuga. Srila Prabhupada should not be limited by describing him as a founder within the drama or the one who started or only started the ISKCON. He was empowered by Krishna to do what no other spiritual master has ever done, or would ever do in the future -'na ca bhuto na bhavisyati sa ca pujoy' He is the Founder-Acharya for spreading Lord Chaitanya's sankirtana movement worldwide, for 10,000 years within the midst of Kali.

Importantly, Srila Prabhupada himself repeatedly emphasised that he was Founder-Acharya. In the Lilamrta (IV-p93): he became deeply annoyed when an ISKCON publication described him as "acharya of ISKCON," even though at that time there was no question of another acharya. There have been many acharyas and there will be many more after him, but His Divine Grace Srila Prabhupada is the sole Founder-Acharya of the Golden Age, known synonymously as ISKCON. In his discussion with historian Arnold Toynbee, in London, Srila Prabhupada said; "I have started this Krishna Conscious Movement among the Indians and Americans and for the next ten thousand years it will increase. Then there will be a gloomy picture of Kali-Yuga. Ten thousand years is not a short time. It is our duty on behalf of Krishna." (SPLila V Ch. 6 p161). Anyone can have shelter from the evil effects of the present Godless age by taking to devotional service under the guidance of Lord Chaitanya's teachings, as given in Srila Prabhupada's books. His dynamic preaching and realisations reveal the sublime teachings of Lord Chaitanya, which otherwise have been neglected, misused or kept secret within the confines of India. Srila Prabhupada prepared his translations and Bhaktivedanta purports on the essential Vaishnava scriptures - Bhagavad-gita, Srimad Bhagavatam, Chaitanya-charitamrta and Bhakti-rasamrta-sindhu - with the plan for forming the foundation of the Krishna Consciousness Movement for the next ten thousand years; (Books Are The Basis). He says in the Chaitanya-charitamrta; "In our Krishna Conscious Movement we have limited our study of Vedic literatures to Bhagavad-gita, Srimad Bhagavatam, Chaitanya-charitamrta and Bhakti-rasamrta-sindhu. These four works are sufficient for all preaching purposes. They are adequate for understanding the philosophy and spreading the missionary activities all over the world. That is the principle."

"Krishna Has Taken Shelter in the Womb of the Krishna Consciousness Movement": (SBhag 10.2.20). Srila Prabhupada met C. Rajagopal Acharya (Rajaji) in Madras, the first Governor General of 'free India' and a famous religious politician and friend of Gandhi, and he had a doubt: "Srila Prabhupada has created such a huge institution that now his disciples might identify with ISKCON rather than Krishna. If that were to happen, then by identifying with ISKCON they would fall into the same type of materialism or false identification as before." Srila Prabhupada replied, "Because Krishna is absolute, Krishna and ISKCON are non-different. To identify with Krishna's ISKCON was to identify with Krishna directly." Rajaji was satisfied. (SPLila Vol. V Ch.2)

ISKCON -the Golden Age: Predictions Revealed in the Shastras: In the Pratisarga part of the Bhavisyas Purana, Ch. 20.71-3; is the following prediction: "Lord Jagannath, the Supreme Lord Sri Hari Himself, spoke these attractive words for the welfare of all: The mlecchas who are born from mixed countries ruled by descendants of Kashyapa (demons) and the shudras will become brahmanas by initiation. They will wear shikas and brahmana threads and will become well versed in the uncontaminated fruit of the Vedas (SBhag). They will worship Me by the Yajna prescribed by the Lord of Lords, the protector of Sachi (Sri Chaitanya)."

Forty-six years before the beginning of Kali-yuga, Vishnuchittha, one of the 12 great Vaishnava Sri Sampradaya saints predicted: "There will come a race which will tread the Earth with raised hands and vertical tilaka on their foreheads, who will chant the names of Hari; this will destroy the influence of Kali." (Divyaprabhanda 1:10). And Sri Ramanuja predicted: "The pure devotion to Sri Hari devoid of karma and jnana will grow and grow like a banyan tree covering the whole world, teaching everyone who takes shelter." (Prapannamrta tarpana, last chapter.). It is interesting how Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON is preaching 'jnana karmadya anavrtam' to 'jare dekho tare' in every town and village! Sri Madhvacharya predicted: "The real knowledge of the difference between jiva and Sri Hari and the service of Sri Hari will spread all over the world very shortly." (Anu madhva vijaya - last chapter). Srila Prabhupada roared, "I am not God! You are not God! We are all servants of God, Krishna!"

Srila Prabhupada's System for the Golden Age: "If the conditioned soul becomes Krishna conscious by the mercy of saintly persons, who voluntarily preach scriptural injunctions and help him become Krishna conscious, he becomes liberated from the clutches of Maya, who voluntarily gives him up." (CC Mad 20.120) And: "This is the test by which one can tell whether he is advancing in devotional service. One must be detached from material enjoyment. Such detachment means that Maya has actually given the conditioned soul liberation from illusory enjoyment." (SBhag 11.2.42 quoted in TLC) We ordinarily understand 'maya' as illusion, but the spiritual master reveals its more confidential meaning as also 'mercy'. (SBhag 1.13.25). Thus Srila Prabhupada gave shelter to those who joined by establishing –(1) Sambandha - their relationship as servants of Krishna; (2) Abidheya - their materially conditioned senses engaged in pure devotional service; (3) Prayojana - the resultant transformation of material consciousness into Krishna consciousness, leading them back to Godhead.

The actual essence of all the esoteric knowledge of the vast body of Vedic literature has been rendered in a simple term by Srila Rupa Goswami as 'yukta vairagya'. Srila Prabhupada's system is strictly in that line - 'Utility is the Principle'. His books teach this as follows: Bhagavad-gita As It Is - yukta vairagya in Upanisadic form. Srimad Bhagavatam - yukta vairagya in Puranic and Vedantic form. Nectar of Devotion - yukta vairagya in Pancaratric form (rules). Chaitanya Charitamrta - yukta vairagya in Final Perfection (prema).

Chaitanya Mahaprabhu gives paramount importance to 5 out of 64 principles of devotional service: a) Associating with devotees -sadhu sanga b) Chanting the Holy Names -nama kirtana c) Hearing Srimad Bhagavatam d) Living in a Holy Place -mathura vasa e) Worshiping the Deity -sri murtira sraddhaya sevana./ These five items were also given by Srila Prabhupada to his followers.

Pastimes illustrating Srila Prabhupada's greatness, Kumbha Mela 1977: (1) One Ekadasi during the Kumbha-mela in Allahabad, Prabhupada was sitting back with his eyes closed, his legs stretched under his desk, talking about Ekadasi. Prabhupada said, "Lotus pods fried in ghee are very good on Ekadasi." Somebody immediately ran to the market to arrange for lotus pods, but just two minutes later a Ramanandi brahmana and his 9 year-old son arrived, both of them wearing Ramanandi tilaka. They paid their obeisances, and the father put a cloth bag from his shoulder on Prabhupada's desk. Prabhupada put his hand in it and said, "Just see, it has come." It was lotus pods fried in ghee. He looked at the Ramanandi and said, "How are you?" This man happened to be the priest of a Bengali family in Firozabad, U.P., where Prabhupada used to stay. Even though this person was a Ramanandi, he did the Gaura-Nitai Deity worship for this family. Prabhupada ate some of the pods, distributed the rest and said to the Ramanandi, "You haven't taken bath in the confluence, the sangam?" The Ramanandi said, "Swamiji, I have come to take bath in the sangam," and he put a plate under Prabhupada's feet. Prabhupada adjusted his feet on the plate and this man bathed Prabhupada's feet in sangam water from his pot while he chanted mantras. Prabhupada looked at him, smiling. During that time, Dec. 1976, it was rare to get Prabhupada's charanamrita and all of us desired it. This Ramanandi sprinkled that water on his head, drank some, and then sprinkled some on all of us. He said to Prabhupada, "Your feet are the actual sangam. What will we get in bathing that sangam? Your feet will purify the Ganges and since you are not going to the Ganges, I brought the Ganga here. I will mix some of this charanamrita in the Ganga." Prabhupada smiled. (2) I had a KRISHNA book and on the back cover was a picture of Prabhupada looking at a champak flower he was holding. I showed the man this picture and said, "This is our Guru Maharaj, he has translated these books." The man looked at that picture and then brought some thread and things from a little box and for ten or fifteen minutes measured Prabhupada's forehead, ears and so on. Then he said, "This person's features show me that all the four Vaishnava acharyas are present in him. I wish you had a picture of his full form." I showed him a photo of Prabhupada's full form and he studied again, this time with a lens. Then he said, "I was not wrong. They are all working through this person. You are very fortunate to be with him. I would like to be part of a movement like that in my next life." I said, "But I thought your ultimate goal is to go to Kailash," because he was a Shaivite. He said, "Yes, if I go there I can tell Lord Shiva that I want to join some movement like this, and I want to spread dharma everywhere." He said, "Please give this book to me. It has given me the highest experience of studying a person's features. I want to keep this book." So I gave it. (END)

CONCLUSION

Srila Prabhupada himself advises us that his teachings are so complete and perfect that nothing else is required, not even the writings of previous acharyas. Of course, in other places, Srila Prabhupada encouraged his followers to study the works of previous acharyas, but there is no need to do so to achieve anything that might be missing from what Srila Prabhupada gave us. What he gave is complete for going back to the spiritual world. Someone should write a book on this subject, that Srila Prabhupada is the Jagat Guru for the Golden Age, to counteract the mistaken ideas that unfortunately are all too common regarding the need to supplement or even replace Srila Prabhupada's legacy with "living" gurus, other teacher's writings, mercy from other sadhus, and so on.

All we need is Srila Prabhupada, period. All Glories to Srila Prabhupada!

CHAPTER 178: THE LIVING GURU FRAUD

QUOTES FROM SRILA PRABHUPADA

(1) "So that is called prakata, physically present. And there is another phrase, which is called aprakata, not physically present. But that does not mean, Krishna is dead or God is dead. That does not mean, prakata or aprakata, physically present or not present, it does not matter." (SPLecture Dec. 11, 1973) (2) "So, spiritually, there is no question of separation, even physically we may be in far distant place." (SPL Syama dasi Aug. 30, 1968) (3) "I shall remain your personal guidance, physically present or not Physically present, as I am getting guidance from my Guru Maharaja." (SPConv July 14, 1977) (4) "I am always with you. Never mind if I am physically absent." (SPL Jayananda Sept. 16, 1967) (5) *"Anyone who has developed unflinching faith in the Lord and the Spiritual Master can understand the revealed scripture unfolding before him'. So continue your present aptitude and you will be successful in your spiritual progress. I am sure that even if I am not physically present before you, still you will be able to execute all spiritual duties in the matter of Krishna Consciousness, if you follow the above principles." (SPL Subala Sept. 29, 1967) (6) "I went to your country for spreading this information of Krishna Consciousness and you are helping me in my mission, although I am not physically present there but spiritually I am always with you." (SPL Nandarani, et al, Oct. 3, 1967) (7) "I shall remain your personal guidance, physically present or not physically, as I am getting personal guidance from my Guru Maharaja." (SPConv July 14, 1977) (8) "You write that you have desire to avail of my association again, but why do you forget that you are always in association with me? When you are helping my missionary activities I am always thinking of you and you are always thinking of me. That is real association. Just like I always think of my Guru Maharaja every moment, although He is not physically present, and because I am trying to serve Him to my best capacity, I am sure He is helping me by His spiritual blessings. So there are two kinds of association: physical and preceptorial. Physical association is not so important as preceptorial association." (SPL Govinda dasi Aug. 17, 1969) (9) Narayana: So those disciples who don't have opportunity to see you or speak with you... SP: That he was speaking, vani and vapuh. Even if you don't see his body, you take his word, vani. Narayana: But* how do they know they're pleasing you, Srila Prabhupada? SP: If you actually follow the words of guru, that means he is pleased. And if you do not follow, how he can be pleased? [...] SP: Yes. My Guru Maharaja passed in 1936, and I started this movement in 1965, thirty years after. Then? I am getting the mercy of guru. This is vani. Even the guru is not physically present, if you follow the vani, then you are getting help. Sudama: So there's no question of ever separation as long as the disciple follows the instruction of guru. SP: No. Cakhu-dan dilo jei... [...] Janme janme prabhu sei. So where there is separation? Who has opened your eyes, he is birth after birth your prabhu. (SPConv July 21, 1975) (10) "...it is described here that one has to associate with liberated persons not directly, physically, but by understanding, through philosophy and logic, the problems of life." (SBhag 3.31.48 purport) (11) "Although the physical body is not present, the vibration should be accepted as the presence of the spiritual master. Vibration--what we have heard from the spiritual master --that is 'living'." (SPLecture Jan. 13, 1969) (12) "In the absolute world there is no distinction as me, or he, and I. Krishna and His representative is the same. Just like Krishna can be present simultaneously in millions of places. Similarly, the Spiritual Master also can be present wherever the disciple wants. A Spiritual Master is the principle, not the body. Just like a television can be seen in thousands of places by the principle of relay monitoring." (SPL Malati May 28, 1968) (13) "So he (Bhaktisiddhanta) wanted this, and he is not... It is not that he is dead and gone. That is not spiritual understanding. Even ordinary living being, he does not die. [...] And what to speak of such exalted, authorized personality like Bhaktisiddhanta. He is seeing. I never feel that I am alone." (SPLecture Mar. 2, 1975) (14) "He reasons ill who tells that Vaishnavas die, While thou art living still in sound." (Bhaktivinode Thakur)

CONTRADICTIONS AND ANOMALIES

"Prabhupada many times said that the spiritual master can accept disciples while he is living, but after he passes away, he can't accept any more disciples. How is it possible? How can he train them, enthuse them, inspire them in Krishna consciousness? We need the living representative." (Indradyumna Lecture 1998) But Srila Prabhupada did not say this even once, never mind "many times." This is totally false. Where Srila Prabhupada said that "after a spiritual master passes away he can't accept any more disciples"? How was it possible that Indradyumna Swami is himself trained, enthused and inspired in Krishna consciousness, when he has had no "living representative himself" since 1977? He is hypocritically proposing that we need him as a "living guru" even though he himself does not need one? Yet the very next year (1999) Indradyumna then took the opposite position: "...there is a misconception here in guru-disciple relationship. It is certainly nice if one can have some personal instruction or direction in one's life from the spiritual master. But one's success in Krishna consciousness is not necessarily based on that. Srila Prabhupada personally interacted with his spiritual master maybe 3, 4 times. He wrote two letters to him and received one reply. If one's advancement in Krishna Consciousness depends upon personal association of the spiritual master to direct one's daily activities, then what are my chances of perfecting my Krishna consciousness since I haven't seen Srila Prabhupada for 20 years. I had the liberty in 1 or 2 occasions to ask from Prabhupada for some personal instruction, but now, if I need to understand something, I read the books or I can solve it with my godbrothers. That's [...] my relationship with Prabhupada, my spiritual master. So then I ask the disciples to do the same." Does he mean that his disciples should also associate with Srila Prabhupada through his books? So why the need for a living guru?

"We would run into ISKCON devotees in Fiji, and I would, as always, raise my arms and exclaim, 'All Glories to Srila Prabhupada!' Invariably the response was a blank face, as apparently they had never heard that phrase, and they didn't know how to respond. I felt like a stranger in the society started by Srila Prabhupada and to which I had devoted the last four decades." (Nityananda das, 2015)

SRILA PRABHUPADA NEVER USED THE TERM "LIVING GURU" (Dhira Govinda das)

It's interesting to study Srila Prabhupada's usage of the two terms, "living guru", and "living spiritual master". If we research how Srila Prabhupada used both of these terms, we'll find..... nothing. He never used either of these terms- "living guru" or "living spiritual master". Not once. Ever.

On Oct. 2, 1968 a disciple says to Srila Prabhupada about Christians and Jesus, "I was referring to a living spiritual master." Srila Prabhupada responds, "Spiritual master is not the question of... Spiritual master is eternal. Spiritual master is eternal. So your question is without spiritual master. Without spiritual master you cannot be, at any stage of your life. You may accept this spiritual master or that spiritual master. That is a different thing. But you have to accept." So, Srila Prabhupada doesn't even relate to the question. The disciple's consciousness was, like, "Well, the Christians have Jesus, but, he's dead. What about a living spiritual master?" So, the whole "living guru," "living spiritual master" paradigm isn't Srila Prabhupada's. It's a concoction that is now quite prevalent, insidiously pervasive, in ISKCON. "Living guru" means there's something like a "dead guru." But Srila Prabhupada understandably didn't relate to that paradigm. So, a question that could be productive for beginning (just beginning) to get at the roots of the ubiquitous societal, collective weeds, could be, how come this "living guru" paradigm is so nonchalantly, practically without question, accepted, even though it's clearly not Srila Prabhupada's paradigm, language, or consciousness?

ISKCON policy, as I understand it, is that ISKCON authorized gurus are available to be the current link to the parampara, and Srila Prabhupada is not available to be the current link to the parampara (unless one's ISKCON authorized guru gets caught having illicit relations with a disciple, or a prostitute, etc- then, Srila Prabhupada, magically, becomes available in their strange system). ISKCON authorized gurus are, from the ISKCON perspective, "living gurus." Srila Prabhupada, according to ISKCON, is not a "living guru." They might not often say outright that he's dead, but, they are clearly saying that Srila Prabhupada is not available as one's direct or current link to the parampara. [...] Of course, that Srila Prabhupada is the current link, in essence and form, is openly accepted for ISKCON members who got formal initiation from Srila Prabhupada prior to Nov. 14, 1977, or for those whose ISKCON guru is no longer authorized. This leads to scenarios like, "His ISKCON guru got caught and is no longer authorized, so now he is taking shelter of Srila Prabhupada. But my guru's still in good standing, so, if I want to take shelter of Srila Prabhupada, then my ISKCON guru would also need to fall down. Meantime, I must hide my realizations re: Srila Prabhupada as my current link. What hypocrisy." (END) (May 14, 2021 letter from Dhira Govinda das)

LIVING GURU HYPOCRISY

"That's right, they've been preaching to devotees that the Maha mantra is dead with out a living Guru. This nonsense is being quoted online on FB by a sankirtan devotee in New Zealand, a disciple of Bhavananda. He also says he is not a disciple of Srila Prabhupada nor does he want to be. These are his exact words. And Bhavananda does not correct his 'disciple'." (Lani Doss, Nov. 2017)

The deviant ISKCON GBC-guru leadership has created havoc, using propaganda that Srila Prabhupada is not any longer available and therefore one has to accept their rubber-stamped "gurus" to replace Srila Prabhupada as the bona fide diksha guru. They say the diksha guru must be physically present. But, this is not what Srila Prabhupada taught and has the insidious effect of pushing Srila Prabhupada aside as a "has-been" who is now a "previous acharya." Although Srila Prabhupada insisted on being the ISKCON Founder-Acharya permanently, the GBC has made that title meaningless while their initiating gurus who are self-appointed and vote-approved are everything in their disciples' lives. Srila Prabhupada is now just a complementary resource for the "living spiritual masters" -in most cases their books and lectures are priority over Srila Prabhupada's.

The false, official ISKCON doctrine (and in the Gaudiya Math) is that a spiritual aspirant needs a living, physically-present, embodied guru to give him the necessary guidance, counseling, and awakening of transcendental knowledge in the heart/soul to succeed in spiritual life. Since Srila Prabhupada physically departed, ISKCON has adopted this as a philosophical axiom upon which they base their evolutionary, concocted guru and diksha initiation systems. ISKCON is insistent that although Srila Prabhupada may be many things, such as Founder-Acharya, shaktyavesha avatar, and preeminent siksha guru, yet, because he is no longer physically present, those desiring to progress in Krishna consciousness MUST be initiated by a living ISKCON spiritual master who are supposed to be the next link in the parampara. This is a great hypocrisy. It is a cheating of innocent souls by those who stand to gain disciples by such a. Those who wish to be guru are always anxious to undercut their competitors for disciples. The living guru philosophy perfectly serves their purposes and motives by steering seekers away from Srila Prabhupada and to lie. Naturally, if Srila Prabhupada was available for diksha initiation, all others would soon be out of the guru business themselves. Thieves.

Of course, they still use Srila Prabhupada, memories of him, his books and teachings, his institution and temples (that he struggled to establish), his followers, and his divine mercy to promote themselves, not Srila Prabhupada, as the new parampara links. They are like Vasudeva Paundraka decorated with the arms and insignias of Krishna, but are simply pretenders. They have little to nothing to add to Srila Prabhupada's matchless gifts, and yet, they insert themselves between newcomers and Srila Prabhupada. They insist that their living status enables them to function as doorways to Srila Prabhupada and his mercy (after paying homage, money, fealty, service, etc). But this teaching is defective, insidious, destructive, illogical, a fraud, deception, cheating, and a hoax. Actually Sri Isopanisad warns that those in the spiritual master business who are neither authorized nor qualified are destined for the darkest regions (hell). They are hardly "living," with a dead consciousness and a dead realization level. The living guru hypocrisy and fraud unravels upon study of Srila Prabhupada's instructions as well as common sense. Vedaguhya das: "The difference between the bogus ISKCON 'gurus' and the rest of us, is that they think Prabhupada is dead and we think Prabhupada is alive."

SELF-SERVING UNAUTHORISED GURUS SAY WE NEED A LIVING GURU

BTG magazine Vol. 13-6, July 1978, stated how Srila Prabhupada's [supposedly] appointed successor gurus were starting to accept their own initiated disciples: "According to the Vedic system, a spiritual student has to take initiation from a guru still physically present on earth..." One of the successor gurus reinforced this "living guru" principle even in a letter of apology to the movement where he regretted accepting worship far beyond what he deserved: "...although one can approach an uttama-adhikari (Srila Prabhupada) through his vani (his siksha), to advance in spiritual life it is still required that one take initiation from a living guru- a connection that facilitates proper, guided approach to Srila Prabhupada's siksha." (1980 Ramesvara essay) An Aug. 1980 a GBC doctrinal paper: "To deny the need for the living acharya, as the living representative of Srila Prabhupada, is simply to dilute Prabhupada's movement and make it like Christianity... Srila Prabhupada said that Christianity is useless because they only pretend to keep Christ in the center but they do not strictly follow his messages because they do not have the example of a bona fide living acharya in disciplic succession." COMMENT: Srila Prabhupada never said such a thing! The GBC author, Hrdayananda, knew better, but cheated. This was a lie, as was their claim of having been appointed as full gurus.

This was the same falsehood given by followers of Narayan Maharaja: that one does not know how to read Srila Prabhupada's books or listen to his lectures without the hand-holding guidance of a physically present, living guru (rasika guru, no less). But Srila Prabhupada just told us to read his books again and again, that everything was in his books, and everything would be thus revealed. He never said we needed a living guru to be able to understand his books. If we had any questions, he told us to find the answers in his books by reading them again. "I have given everything in my books." Are Srila Prabhupada's books not good enough in themselves and we need a conditioned soul, self-appointed, ISKCON vote-approved so-called guru to help us understand what Srila Prabhupada is saying in his books and lectures? Unfortunately, on the contrary, those who propose this erroneous living guru philosophy are very dangerous in that they obscure the proper understanding of what Srila Prabhupada is clearly saying in his books and lectures! Srila Prabhupada, as the empowered representative of the Supreme Lord, is as much available today as when he was physically present. His teachings are self-evident; there is no need for a bogus guru to explain them. "I am pleased to hear that you are chanting 16 rounds daily and reading my books regularly and following the four rules. In my books the philosophy of Krishna consciousness is explained fully so if there is anything which you do *not understand, then you simply have to read again and again. By reading daily the knowledge will be revealed to you and by this process your spiritual life will develop." (SPL Bahurupa Nov. 22, 1974)

Srila Prabhupada completely shoots down this deviant doctrine of ISKCON "living" gurus. No one needs them to explain the Vedic knowledge and secrets of bhaktiyoga because Srila Prabhupada has already done that in his perfect books. Srila Prabhupada said about his books: "Distribute books, distribute books, distribute books!" He never told that we need vote-approved gurus after he left to be able to connect to the parampara or succeed in spiritual life. Rubbish and nonsense proposals such as these should be quickly discarded as bunk. SP: [break] ...to study from a medical man, I never said you have to study from the author. Or one who understood the author's purpose. Just like we are explaining Bhagavad-gita as it is. Not that one has to learn directly from Krishna. One who has understood Krishna, from him. That is parampara system. (SPConv May 21, 1975) ISKCON "gurus" claim new devotees can only understand Srila Prabhupada's teachings through them.

DEAD ZOMBIE GURU COVERED BY SALT (Back To Prabhupada # 57, Vol. 1, 2018)

GBC-elected guru Trivikrama Swami (TKS) put forward arguments against Srila Prabhupada being the diksha guru of ISKCON. For the GBC gurus, this is a desperate fight for their survival. Accepting that Srila Prabhupada is still ISKCON's diksha guru directly threatens their positions. Unfortunately, this desperation has devolved into an attack on Srila Prabhupada's spiritual position. TKS recommended a video which engaged in insults, claiming that accepting Srila Prabhupada as ISKCON's diksha guru is "dead guru-tattva" and "zombie guru nonsense." The video claims: (a) That after Srila Prabhupada physically disappeared, he became a "dead guru," and thus was unable to continue acting as a diksha guru; (b) Stating that Srila Prabhupada continues as a diksha guru following his physical disappearance would mean that, since he is a "dead guru," he would be no different to a "zombie" guru. Because zombies arise after dead humans are "raised" to do nothing more than act as mindless cannibals, and similarly Srila Prabhupada would be a "dead guru" who is "raised" to only appear to be fully alive again. Too many ISKCON participants think Srila Prabhupada died like an ordinary human being and became spiritually impotent upon his physical disappearance. But, not true:

(1) Srila Prabhupada explains about his diksha guru that: "So my Guru Maharaja [...] It is not that he is dead and gone. That is not spiritual understanding. [...] He is seeing." (SPLecture Feb. 3, 1975) Hence, clearly the diksha guru does not die (spiritually) even after his physical disappearance, and is still "seeing." Therefore, after his physical disappearance, Srila Prabhupada continued to act as a diksha guru for his pre-1977 disciples, and thus he is not dead, but "seeing." (2) Additionally, it is accepted by all parties that after his physical disappearance Srila Prabhupada continued to act as the diksha guru of everyone in ISKCON (GBC Resolution 409, 1994). Which also proves he did not die like an ordinary human being, but remained spiritually active. Thus, the video's claim that Srila Prabhupada acting as ISKCON's diksha guru means he is a "zombie guru" would apply equally to Srila Prabhupada's status as diksha guru for his pre-1977 disciples and diksha guru for everyone in ISKCON. For those activities would also not be possible if Srila Prabhupada were a "dead guru," and would mean that everyone in ISKCON today is worshipping Srila Prabhupada as a "zombie guru."

Hence, ironically, after falsely claiming in the video we are "trying to kill" Srila Prabhupada, the video's author himself actually has "killed" Srila Prabhupada by declaring him "dead." The video's attack on "dead guru-tattva" and "zombie guru nonsense" is actually a direct, vicious attack on Srila Prabhupada's spiritual position, as it claims that Srila Prabhupada died in 1977 just like any ordinary human being. "...one who sees a Vaishnava guru as an ordinary human being, or one who materially conceives of a Vaishnava as belonging to a particular caste is naraki, a resident of hell." (SBhag 10.3.46) And TKS recommended this attack video? TKS's tolerance of this materialistic hellish thinking is supplemented by him concluding in regards to Srila Prabhupada's refusal to perform an initiation ceremony: SP: "I may not be pressed in this condition to initiate." (SPConv Oct. 18, 1977) TKS email to BTP (believe it or not!): *"From common sense point if Srila Prabhupada is not willing to initiate because his body is sick how can we conclude that he would be willing to initiate when his body is in samadhi covered by heaps of salt?" (TKS Sept. 23, 2017) Hence, seeing diksha as a physical process depending on the physical body, TKS is not able to see that Srila Prabhupada's physical ailments only prevented him from engaging in a physical activity— personally conducting the initiation ceremony— rather than prevent him from engaging in the transcendental process that diksha accomplishes: "Diksha is the process by which one can awaken his transcendental knowledge and vanquish all reactions caused by sinful activity." (CC Mad15.108) Therefore, TKS reasons, when Srila Prabhupada is sick, when he is covered in "heaps of salt"— how can he possibly give diksha? And this is the practical consequence of the guru hoax. One's consciousness becomes so covered by the desire to prevent Srila Prabhupada from continuing to give diksha, that one will even attack Srila Prabhupada's spiritual position to try to achieve it. An attack which assumes that Srila Prabhupada is a "dead zombie guru," instead of a transcendental guru." (END)

CANNOT UNDERSTAND SRILA PRABHUPADA'S BOOKS WITHOUT THEM?

ISKCON GURU UMAPATI SWAMI: I have seen in my preaching that though Prabhupada speaks clearly in his books, people cannot understand them without instructions from a guru who is present in this world. DHIRA GOVINDA: That's quite a bold statement in assuming what all people are, and are not capable of, in their relationship with Srila Prabhupada. So, Umapati Swami is saying that after he leaves his body, you'll no longer be able to understand much if anything about spiritual life, because you don't have a "guru who is present in this world." Of course, I appreciate the tremendous value of physical association with Vaishnava devotee sanga. I host programs at my home, and attend programs at the homes of others, 7-15 times per week, for the benefit and inspiration of Vaishnava association. Srila Prabhupada is fully available as the current link to the parampara, for whoever sincerely takes shelter of him and his instructions in that capacity, and that in no way minimizes the tremendous importance of association in-person with other followers of Srila Prabhupada, to support each other in enhancing and enriching our understanding of Srila Prabhupada's instructions.

I'm not able to understand Umapati Swami's philosophy. So, are Tamal Krishna Goswami's disciples not able to understand or advance in Krishna consciousness because they don't have a "guru who is present in this world"? What about those who joined the movement before 1978, never saw Srila Prabhupada, never received a letter from him? Srila Prabhupada didn't conduct their initiation

"Regarding the poisonous effect in our Society, it is a fact and I know where from this poison tree has sprung up and how it affected practically the whole Society in a very dangerous form. But it does not matter. Prahlada Maharaja was administered poison, but it did not act. Similarly Lord Krsna and the Pandavas were administered poison and it did not act. I think in the same parampara system that the poison administered to our Society will not act if some of our students are as good as Prahlada Maharaja. I have therefore given the administrative power to the Governing Body Commission. (GBC) .... You are also one of the members of the GBC, so you can think over very deeply how to save the situation. It is a fact however that the great sinister movement is within our Society. .... I have not heard anything from Krsna das or Syamasundara., so all of you may try to save the Society from this dangerous position." [Srila Prabhupada Letter to: Hamsaduta 2 September, 1970]

Srila Prabhupada is very precise with his usage of words and he says the word "movement" which is not just one or two individuals. In fact not just a movement but THE GREAT SINISTER MOVEMENT. Srila Prabhupada herein says, that there is another movement within our movement. That means there is another IskCon within Iskcon. So, Srila Prabhupada clearly differentiates between two types of Iskcon (another movement within our movement) So we actually have two Iskcons, but the other Iskcon is the great sinister movement, as Srila Prabhupada stated. And He again says: THAT IS A FACT.

ceremony, or chant on their initiation beads, or even select their spiritual name. So, did they then, or do they now, have access to divya-jnana? Because... they don't have a "guru who is "living." And neither does Umapati Swami either. Anyhow, transmission of spiritual knowledge is in no way dependent on anything physical or material, including geography, physical distance, or anything material. To retain this misconception is to mix up spirit and matter- some form of mayavada or sahajiya. Sahajijya, for example- to think that Srila Prabhupada's vani is not available, not spiritual, and you can only get divya-jnana, from "living" material lips and lungs. Mixing up matter and spirit. So, let's say that Srila Prabhupada is on a different planet now, preaching there... is he powerful enough to transmit his vani to us from there? What is the distance that Srila Prabhupada's vani can effectively travel? Only 12,500 miles, half the Earth's circumference? These are absurd questions that naturally arise when attempting to make sense of what Umapati

Swami is saying. According to Srila Prabhupada's teachings, vani, not vapu, is the vital, real association. (Ch. 181) Of course we have many gurus who have inspired and taught us in Krishna consciousness. "The" guru, in the singular, is that guru [who will deliver us from this material world.] That's Srila Prabhupada, and I strongly sense that you know that that's true for you too. So, when saying or writing "the" guru, in the singular, that's no doubt Srila Prabhupada. But I am not minimizing the special role that other Vaishnavas have played and continue to play, in my life.

ABOUT ISKCON'S "PHYSICALLY PRESENT" REQUIREMENT by Dhira Govinda das

What defines "personally present"? Geographically, with respect to distance? For the not very elevated disciple, does the guru need to be in the same room? What if it's a football stadium? Does that still count? What if the guru is in California, and the disciple is in Florida? Is that "personally present"? What if the guru is on the Moon and the disciple is in Nebraska? Does that count? If the answer to the California/Florida question is "yes," and the answer to the Moon/Nebraska question is "no," then the distance that defines personal presence is somewhere between a few thousand miles, and a few hundred thousand miles (by Western astronomy). Wouldn't it be vitally important that we precisely define the distance? So, if the radius within which the disciple can receive instructions from the guru is the circumference of the Earth, or 23,433.05 miles, then disciples should know that. Otherwise, if that distance is exceeded, they're not going to receive divya-jnana. We must research the radius in which the guru can transmit transcendental knowledge, and the radius beyond which the empowered guru cannot do so.

ISKCON guru Gaura Govinda Maharaja (GGM) stated in his "The Worship of Sri Guru" (Ch. 3): "Physical contact is required... Sabda-brahma will never descend through a tape." But Srila Prabhupada said: "The potency of transcendental sound is never minimised because the vibrator is apparently absent." (SBhag 2.9.8 purport) And "You should have a fire sacrifice and the second initiates should hear through the right ear the mantra on my recorded tape." (SPL Nov. 13, 1975) There are numerous other quotes from Srila Prabhupada explaining these points, about physical presence not being necessary, and vani being vital. "Sabda-brahma will never descend through a tape"? Do GGM disciples listen to his tapes? What of Srila Prabhupada disciples who never saw Srila Prabhupada or received a letter from him? They were never 'personally present' with Srila Prabhupada. They haven't really received instructions or divya-jnana from Srila Prabhupada? If ISKCON gurus were asked to philosophically justify their position, would their disciples go into ecstasy as they hear them explain: "These are very difficult questions, but we trust the GBC and their Shastric Advisory Committee"? (END) [COMMENT: After the above exchange took place, Umapati Swami was suspended as a guru and sanniyasi, so is he now "living-dead"? Silly as it is, this mis-idea that devotees need the present ISKCON gurus to give diksha and that without their help, no one can understand Srila Prabhupada's books or teachings, is total bunk.]

ISKCON GURUS ADMIT SRILA PRABHUPADA'S PRESENCE (BUT NOT FOR DIKSHA?)

Amazingly, various ISKCON self-appointed "gurus" readily admit that Srila Prabhupada is a shaktyavesa avatara, he is very much spiritually present with his followers, he answers our sincere prayers, his mercy is available to anyone who wants it, he guides us on the right path if we listen carefully, he appears to us in dreams, he has no material limitations on his spiritual presence, he knows our hearts and spiritual condition, he is non-different from his deity, etc (of course, it is some of them, not all, that admit these things; ISKCON is a fragmented and discordant doctrinal miasma). Yet, without so much as an explanation or even a pause, they in their next breath flat-footedly insist that Srila Prabhupada cannot, would not, does not, will not, and is not empowered to give spiritual diksha after his physical departure. Why is it that this one thing, namely giving initiation, is not possible, when he can do so many other things that seem to be equally difficult? Of course, they think initiation is just a formal ceremony and don't like to talk about what initiation really is (Ch. 180). But if they were consistent in their appreciations of SP's abilities as a maha-bhagawata pure devotee, then they would be out of the guru business... From an ISKCON guru ferociously opposed to Srila Prabhupada as the current link: "I know that Srila Prabhupada is still here watching over us. As much as we turn to him, that much as he reciprocates with us. He is personally present, not intangibly. But I am a fool, unable to properly perceive how Srila Prabhupada is still fully with us." (Bhakti Vikas Swami, memories)

LIVING GURU THEORY CONFUSES SPIRIT AND MATTER (Dhira Govinda das)

"It seems to be an amalgamation of mayavada and sahajiya, in that both of those mentalities confuse matter and spirit, mayavada attempting to bring spirit- eg., Krishna's body- to the material platform, and sahajiyas wanting to conceive of matter as spirit- eg., their material bodies being enjoyable by Krishna. Their version... seems to contend, overtly or subtly, that Srila Prabhupada's spiritual, eternal, vani and presence, is not available (mistaking spirit for matter), and the material lungs, lips, ribcage, etc., of the 'physically present gurus' are absolutely necessary for the transmission of divya-jnana (misapprehending matter for spirit)."

SRILA PRABHUPADA'S BOOKS WON'T HELP YOU? By Dhira Govinda das

Someone reminded me how Gaura Govinda Maharaja (GGM) stated that sabda-brahma will never descend through Srila Prabhupada's tapes. Also GGM stated, "Oh I have read their books, I have their association.' That won't help you... You are thinking, 'We need only to read books. There is no need of association with a sadhu who is physically present...'" Maybe GGM is not saying Srila Prabhupada's books are not spiritual, but asserting that, essentially, it won't help his followers, or by extension, the followers of ISKCON gurus, to read Srila Prabhupada's books. They (we) won't understand Srila Prabhupada's meaning. They need these intermediaries to comprehend Srila Prabhupada's meaning. To directly approach Srila Prabhupada through his books won't be helpful.

I appreciate hearing this viewpoint stated in such a direct manner. It is refreshingly distinct from covert, slippery approaches that we are accustomed to hear, couched in phraseology such as "Well, Srila Prabhupada is your preeminent siksha guru," "Of course Srila Prabhupada is the founder/acharya, and he can give siksha, but not diksha..." (See Terms of Relegation). GGM, from what I perceive, is directly asserting "I am your guru. Srila Prabhupada is my guru. You understand him, including his books, through me." I understand Srila Prabhupada as essentially making a similar statement, with regard to our relationship with Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati. We understand Srila Bhaktisiddhanta through him, Srila Prabhupada. That doesn't mean that it's not permissible to sometimes directly read a book by Srila Bhaktisiddhanta. Still, we basically understand Srila Bhaktisiddhanta through Srila Prabhupada. And, according to GGM, we understand Srila Prabhupada, including Srila Prabhupada's books, through GGM.

The CDL Model (Ch. 182) is diametrically opposed to this stance expressed by GGM. [...] The relationship of anyone who connects with Srila Prabhupada or his movement, regardless of when they joined, is that Srila Prabhupada is their direct and current link to the parampara. One of the ways that manifests is that there is no limit or restriction to the extent to which a follower of Srila Prabhupada, whenever they contacted his movement, should be encouraged to directly read Srila Prabhupada's books and hear his tapes. The more the better. Our role, and that of all aspiring followers of Srila Prabhupada, is to facilitate others in their direct connection with Srila Prabhupada. It is not that the role of Srila Prabhupada's followers is to be the link through which others relate with Srila Prabhupada. Rather it is to inspire them to directly link with Srila Prabhupada. Of course our direct, personal relationship will be enhanced by the association of other Vaishnavas who are sincerely dedicated to Srila Prabhupada's mission. I do appreciate the clarity of GGM's standpoint, which sharply contrasts the smoke and mirrors from others advocating a "physical presence" position. But his point of view is harmful for Srila Prabhupada's movement. How inspired can GGM's followers now be to closely study Srila Prabhupada's books, if the person they trust most has stated that Srila Prabhupada's books "...won't help you."

DO WE NEED A LIVING GURU? from Dhira Govinda das, 2010

QUESTION: Based on my understanding, separation from the guru appears when there was presence beforehand, association with the guru. How can I claim to be Srila Prabhupada's disciple if I had no direct contact with him, nor if I didn't receive initiation from him, which requires some contact? The letters you quote come from disciples who had a connection with him by physical initiation. ANSWER: I think this understanding is inaccurate. While Srila Prabhupada was physically present he established a system wherein he had no contact with disciples who received initiation from him. So, please consider someone who connected with Srila Prabhupada's movement in, say, 1976. This devotee received initiation from Srila Prabhupada, though he never saw him or received a letter from him. In many instances Srila Prabhupada didn't even select the spiritually initiated name, nor did Srila Prabhupada chant on the japa beads of this person. Still, there is no question in the mind of this devotee that Srila Prabhupada is his direct and current link to the parampara. Simultaneously, the devotee described above served in Srila Prabhupada's movement. In that service and capacity he accepted others, such as, for example, the temple president, the visiting sannyasi, and the bhakta leader, as his "gurus in the plural." But, Srila Prabhupada is the current and direct link to the parampara for this person. These gurus in the plural represented Srila Prabhupada, though they, regardless of their level of spiritual advancement, did not serve in the capacity of "33" in the discipic succession. With regard to the phrase "living guru," there is a well-known Feb. 10, 1968 conversation referencing the phrase "living spiritual master," wherein Srila Prabhupada comments on Jesus and the principle of discipic succession. I agree that one needs a "living guru." Srila Prabhupada is, without any doubt, a living guru. (END)

INNER CONTRADICTIONS WITH THE LIVING GURU IDEA (Nityananda das)

The idea of needing a living guru to be factually connected to the parampara has some serious inner contradictions and logical problems. Q1: Do we need a living guru to give personal guidance and answer our questions, lest we go astray? A1: Many devotees who were directly initiated by Srila Prabhupada before Nov. 1977 never saw him in person or received letters from him, or if they saw him in person, they never spoke with him or asked him questions. Actually, Srila Prabhupada would routinely advise his disciples to associate with him by reading his books, which he said were non-different from himself. "I will live forever in my books, and you will utilize." He assured us that everything was in his books, and any question or doubt would be answered simply by reading his books, again and again, as needed. Srila Prabhupada's books are so complete and spiritually surcharged that we can have his association (and the full benefit thereof) through his books, which can be reprinted and distributed. Srila Prabhupada lives in his books, and we do not require his physical association to have our questions asked, or to receive full, proper guidance. If we sincerely study his books, follow his instructions, serve his mission, how can we go astray? All instruction and guidance is given in his books and nothing is missing for complete success in Krishna consciousness. Srila Prabhupada was so empowered that he has made himself available not just to those who could associate with him in person for a few years, but to the whole world for 1000s of years through the distribution of his amazingly potent books. There is no need to replace Srila Prabhupada with a "living guru." His guidance was already available through his books and senior representatives, a system which worked in 1975 as well as it will today, in 2075 or 7775 AD. Below is an excerpt from Hansadutta and three other GBCs to the other GBC members (Feb. 2, 1975): *"His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada Grace has requested that the following points be made clear to all GBC members: No one should write to Srila Prabhupada with any problem or question unless he has first of all consulted with his GBC representative. If he is not satisfied with the answer given by his GBC man then he should consult with another GBC man for clarification. Not that Srila Prabhupada should be bothered with every unimportant detail. The devotees should understand that His Divine Grace generally turns such questions back to the GBC for answering anyway, therefore they should stop writing directly. Recently SP told one devotee 'I am not a machine that you can ask any question and get the answer. I am an old man. Please allow me some time to write my books.' Also GBC men should not make proposals to Srila Prabhupada until they have been discussed with several other GBC men."

Q2: Doesn't the initiating guru need to agree to accept one as a disciple while alive and physically present? A2: Yes, that has been the common way of doing things in Vedic culture, but Srila Prabhupada set up an ingenious system whereby he would have his older disciples vet and officiate, on his behalf, the initiation of new candidates as his own disciples, granting them both formal and essential initiation. This system was increasingly implemented from 1969 onwards and immemorialized in the July 9, 1977 Order. Thus Srila Prabhupada, on the spiritual platform, graciously arranged to take any number of disciples in the future, after his physical departure, via what he called "ritvik representatives."

"We should consider what Srila Prabhupada said about terms and concepts like, 'living guru,' 'living spiritual master,' and 're-initiation.' We will find that... he didn't say anything about them. His references to them are conspicuous by their absence. Such a concept was and is contradictory to Srila Prabhupada's paradigm of thought and realization. 'Living guru' implies there is such as thing as 'dead guru.' The term 'living guru' is a concoction, not based on Srila Prabhupada's teachings, and clearly is deviant from Srila Prabhupada's teachings." (Dhira Govinda das, Nov. 2017)

Q3: Why are the disciples of "deceased" persons like Srila Prabhupada, Sridhar Swami, Svarupa Damodar Swami, Tamal, Suhotra Swami, Bhakticaru Swami and others not advised that it is necessary to find a new living guru? A3: This is a contradiction in their living guru idea. Tamal disciples and also Srila Prabhupada direct initiates must now find a new living guru to enable them to advance in Krishna consciousness? But ISKCON doctrine does not recommend this, even though it follows from their doctrines. When pressed, they say that the initiate received "initiation" while the guru was physically present (or in good standing), so therefore the initiation is "valid" even after the departure of the initiator (or his "falldown"). Ecclesiastically valid? Yet ISKCON encourages re-initiations in the case of ISKCON gurus who deviate from institutional doctrines or who "falldown." ISKCON will also invalidate initiations after some sort of a "red line" date in the history of a guru even when they know he had fallen years or decades before that date. We see this in the cases of Bhavananda, Prabhavishnu, Umapati, and others. Thus, in some circumstances, ISKCON dictates that a disciple needs a new initiating guru, and in other cases decrees that they do not (e.g., Satsvarupa), but without really explaining their illogical decisions. Can ISKCON gurus awaken transcendental knowledge in the heart and soul of their initiates? Why do they never talk about this? What is their spiritual power to deliver disciples? A4: Why is Srila Prabhupada still alive in his books, and why do they worship Srila Prabhupada's murti in ISKCON if he is dead and gone? Q4: These are contradictions in the ISKCON doctrines and practices. How can Srila Prabhupada be alive in one way but not another? Either he is or isn't, but that wouldn't support ISKCON's doctrinal contentions that one needs a physically embodied and present guru to give initiation and the guidance required for spiritual advancement, would it? ISKCON is cheating its members by denying them direct diksha from the Founder-Acharya, Srila Prabhupada. Often ISKCON-ites say Srila Prabhupada is the real force behind devotees' spiritual advancement, yet they deny him the ability to "initiate" (to open one's eyes with the torchlight of transcendental knowledge.) They say we should follow Srila Prabhupada, but we cannot receive transcendental knowledge from him, which is what diksha initiation is. Is this kind of "following" just a show as opposed to a deep spiritual surrender to that person's dynamic living instructions? The "living guru" camp sees initiation as a formal ceremony and ritual, after which their guru can die and which will not affect the initiate's living connection with the parampara? Why don't they see the contradictions? They do not understand what diksha is. They think in terms of formalities, not the process of receiving mercy in the heart as the bona fide guru implants and nourishes the seed of pure devotion to Lord Krishna, the "bhaktilata bija" described in CC. "Zombie guru is when you take initiation from someone who is dead." "You must first of all agree to give up all these sinful activities. Then I can accept you. I can initiate you. This is our process." (SP Lecture Sept. 5, 1976) "They follow the rules and regulations which I ask them to follow, and they are initiated by me spiritually." (SP Interview Mar. 12, 1968) (See Ch. 180) (END)

"I KNEW I WAS RIGHT!"

Naveen Krishna das and his wife went to see Tamal in his quarters in Dallas one day in 1987. She explained to Tamal how she had already been initiated by Jayatirtha, and then after he "fell-down," she was again re-initiated by Bhavananda, who had later also been removed as an ISKCON guru. She described how she sometimes felt that she needed a personal guru- all her lady friends had their guru, and although she had taken shelter of Srila Prabhupada and his books, she still felt awkward sometimes with her devotee friends, as though without a guru, like the other devotees. Tamal was reclining in his Lazyboy chair. He was reflective, leaned back, stabbing his finger in the air. "Ahha! I knew I was right! We all need a living guru!" Naveen thought that this was about Tamal's own internal debate over whether Srila Prabhupada could be the guru even after departure, or if a "living guru" was required for devotees to succeed in spiritual life. Tamal thought that he knew better than Srila Prabhupada's plans for future initiations. Naveen's wife officially took Srila Prabhupada as her diksha guru 15 years later at a fire sacrifice in Bangalore ISKCON, receiving the name Madhavi dasi, giving up the names given before by unauthorized ISKCON gurus. Tamal was "dead" wrong.

NOBEL PRIZE AWARDS STILL GOING AFTER A CENTURY

Alfred Nobel accumulated a fortune from the oil industry in the late 1800's and established a foundation which would distribute 12% of his wealth to those who were found to have made major contributions to humanity in various areas. Every year a representative trust committee chooses worthy recipients and awards them a prestigious gold medal, a large sum of money, and recognition (the Nobel Prize). This is mundane philanthropy, but we use it as a crude example of how a "great" person sometimes makes arrangements in his will for after his death where he can continue to benefit others. If Mr. Nobel could make a simple provision for awarding a prize and rewards to scientists, authors, etc on a material level, even a century after his death, why is it so hard to conceive that a great liberated person like Srila Prabhupada is capable of making, and would actually make, provisions to continue his spiritual benedictions on humanity by having representatives discriminately accept disciples on his behalf? Srila Prabhupada thus is awarding these new followers spiritual mercy, divine love, and transcendental knowledge directly into the soul from wherever he is in the spiritual dimension. Again, diksha is not simply a formality, it is the transmission of DIVYA-JNANA into the heart of the sincere disciple, a divine phenomenon which is formalized by a priest's ceremony.

LIVING GURU AND DEAD GURU by Dhira Govinda das

This stance that one's current link to the parampara needs to be physically present on the planet at the time of formal initiation seems to me to lack consistency and sound basis in Vaishnava philosophy. What about disciples of deceased ISKCON gurus, where their disciples don't have their current link to the parampara physically present anymore- do they need to find another Vaishnava to be their current and direct link to the parampara? (1) "No, deceased gurus are present through vani, and so those whom they initiated don't need to find another current and direct link." (2) "Okay, so deceased gurus are able to be present by their vani and serve as the direct link to the parampara, and Srila Prabhupada is not capable of that?" (3) "No, you don't understand- deceased gurus are the direct link to the parampara because they conducted a formal initiation for their disciples while they were physically present." (4) "Oh... so, for a devotee to serve as the current and direct link it is necessary that that devotee conducts the initiation ceremony of the Vaishnava initiate?" (5) "Right." (6) "Interesting. It seems to me that if we look at the list of 32 acharyas of our disciplic succession, we understand that the current and direct link for the acharya listed at any particular number, is the acharya listed in the preceding number, and we find that there are examples of current and direct link relationships who were never on this planet at the same time, what to speak of examples of acharyas who didn't conduct any formal initiation ceremony for the Vaishnavas for whom they serve as the direct link to the disciplic succession. This illustrates that for a Vaishnava to serve as the current and direct link to the parampara, it is not dependent on physical presence on the same planet as the disciple, and not dependent on conducting any formal ceremony. This is consistent with the principle of the pure devotee being present through vani."

Based on the false principle that the direct link to the disciplic succession needs to be a devotee who is physically present on the planet, then those who received formal initiation from "deceased gurus" would need to take re-initiation. And the idea that one's direct link to the parampara needs to be the devotee who conducts the initiation ceremony, is patently false, with reference to philosophy, logic, Vaishnava precedent, common sense, and the experience of thousands of devotees. "Living guru" is an absurd concept. Srila Prabhupada is living. If it is maintained that he is not physically present, then the same argument can be applied, or will be able to be applied, to all the current initiating gurus in the near future. These gurus, say, will initiate disciples and die when they're 80 years old or so. When a guru is 79 he initiates 18-year-old disciples. These disciples will then live the next 65 years without a "living guru." How will they be inspired? How are those who took formal initiation from Srila Prabhupada inspired now, although they don't have a "living guru"? Guru is eternal. If we are properly connected we will never feel uninspired. In the essential sense, Srila Prabhupada is the actual initiator and the initiate is Srila Prabhupada's disciple. (END)

OUR COMMENT: ISKCON's idea re: if your diksha guru gave you diksha when both he and his disciple were physically present on Earth at the same time of the initiation ceremony, this makes the initiation valid and lasting even after the guru departs- is never explained satisfactorily. All they can say is this is tradition or customary. Their limited understanding of initiation is that it is only an event, a ceremony, and not a process of transmission of transcendental knowledge into the disciple's heart. Coincidentally, this defective doctrine also conveniently denies devotees from taking initiation from Srila Prabhupada and gives ISKCON gurus a monopoly on new devotees who MUST take initiation from them. How corrupt, devious, and evil, actually. Cheaters.

MUST THE GURU BE PHYSICALLY ALIVE TO ACCEPT DISCIPLES? (Initiations After 1977, ISKM)

There are many other quotes of Srila Prabhupada to this effect but the point here is very clear. It is not necessary for the body of the spiritual master to be physically present to disseminate knowledge, especially when his books are doing this. Even when Srila Prabhupada was physically present, he did not personally initiate many of his disciples and neither did they get much of his personal association, if any. Srila Prabhupada set up the initiation system so that the temple leaders and GBC are his representatives, acting as the siksha guru, instructing as per Srila Prabhupada's teachings and everyone would become Srila Prabhupada's disciples. They would also conduct initiations based on the same ritvik system which is now under contention. BGita 4.2: evam parampara-praptam imam rajarsayo viduh/ sa kaleneha mahata yogo nastah parantapa

"This supreme science was thus received through the chain of disciplic succession, and the saintly kings understood it in that way. But in course of time the succession was broken, and therefore the science as it is appears to be lost." From this verse, we can clearly understand that a parampara, or disciplic succession, is considered broken when the science of one's relationship with the Supreme is lost. The exact words used here are yogah nastah, which means the science being lost; it is not mentioned sarira nastah, or the body of the guru being lost. So the parampara is considered broken when the science of bhakti-yoga is lost, not when the body of the spiritual master is lost. In the context of ISKCON, the books of Srila Prabhupada are very much there and millions are becoming devotees by reading these books. So the science of devotional service is not lost. Therefore, the parampara is not broken. (1) "These are not ordinary books. It is recorded chanting. Anyone who reads, he is hearing." (SPL Rupanuga Oct 19, 1974) (2) "The potency of transcendental sound is never minimized because the vibrator is apparently absent." (SBhag 2.9.8 purport) (3) "When we feel separation from Krishna or the spiritual master, we should just try to remember their words of instructions, and we will no longer feel that separation. Such association with Krishna and the spiritual master should be association by vibration, not physical presence. That is real association. We put so much stress on seeing, but when Krishna was present on this earth, so many people saw Him and did not realize that He is God; so what is the advantage of seeing? By seeing Krishna, we will not understand Him, but by listening carefully to His teachings, we can come to the platform of understanding. We can touch Krishna immediately by sound vibration; therefore we should give more stress to the sound vibration of Krishna and of the spiritual master—then we'll feel happy and won't feel separation." (Elevation to Kṛṣṇa Consciousness, p.57-58)

These quotes point to the fact that by reading Srila Prabhupada's books, we can directly be initiated by him by receiving transcendental knowledge. How can we be sure that Srila Prabhupada is pleased with our service since he does not physically reciprocate with us? The answer is that if the spiritual master is pleased, then the Supreme Lord is pleased. Yasya prasada bhagavat-prasada. And once the Lord is pleased, he will bestow the disciple with genuine spiritual advancement. [...] "Devotion, direct experience of the Supreme Lord, and detachment from other things —these three occur simultaneously for one who has taken shelter of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, in the same way that pleasure, nourishment and relief from hunger come simultaneously and increasingly, with each bite, for a person engaged in eating." (SBhag 11.2.42)

Genuine spiritual advancement means these three things. If one progressively feels genuine unmotivated devotion, has direct realizations of the Supreme Lord and especially feels progressive detachment from sinful life, it is to be understood that Srila Prabhupada is pleased. (END)

THE GBC AND ST. AQUINAS OF THE CATHOLIC CHURCH

From Diet For Transcendence by Satyaraj das (1997): "Christians of the medieval period were assured by St. Thomas Aquinas (AD 1225-1274) that killing animals was sanctioned by divine providence. Perhaps Aquinas's personal habits had an effect on his opinions, for although he was a genius and an ascetic in many ways, his biographers also describe him as a glutton. Aquinas, of course, was also famous for his doctrine on the various kinds of souls a body may possess. Beasts, he taught, did not have a soul." Although he also claimed that women had no soul either, St. Aquinas finally agreed with the church when it was decided that women did have a soul, although he still insisted that women only had a soul which was a step above that of the beasts. So, historically, prominent church leaders have prejudiced philosophical doctrines with their own personal preferences. St. Aquinas likely adopted the idea of animals having no souls just so that he would have no impediment to continuing his feasting on their flesh. Sad, but true. Similarly, the GBC-guru cartel in ISKCON has insisted since 1978 that new devotees will need a living diksha guru to make proper spiritual advancement, and that no one can take diksha from Srila Prabhupada after his physical departure in 1977. Obviously, they have an overwhelming motivation to adopt this philosophical stance, as it gives them a monopoly on new disciples by excluding their primary competition, Srila Prabhupada. Sad, but true.

CONVERSATIONS WITH AN ISKCON GURU (By Vikramasingha das, 2015)

ISKCON leaders sometimes argue that new devotees can't receive ritvik representative initiation from Srila Prabhupada because this would somehow deny Srila Prabhupada the right to reject a candidate. I thought this ridiculous argument had been put to rest many years ago. Alas, it is hard to awaken those who pretend to sleep. Recently a new devotee who had been attending our classes in BGita As It Is asked me for some advice regarding initiation. I was surprised to hear that he was thinking to approach an ISKCON guru for initiation- someone others were promoting. I had not yet discussed the so-called "guru issue" in class. I reminded Bhakta Daniel that Lord Krishna says in the Gita that one must learn the truth from a self-realized soul, as we were doing in our BGita classes. It was time to discuss with this intelligent young man the main points of guru-tattva found in Srila Prabhupada's books and lectures. This new devotee understood the essential points of guru-tattva with ease. Srila Prabhupada said, "Krishna consciousness is simple for the simple." Yet he also has several times explained: "Krishna consciousness is not for the less-intelligent." For one who is both simple and intelligent, there is no problem understanding the basic truths and fine points of Krishna consciousness. I decided now was also the time to show Bhakta Daniel all the video footage I had of Srila Prabhupada and prescribe for him a regimen of hearing, by topic, Srila Prabhupada's recorded classes. A few months later, Bhakta Daniel decided (against my advice) to go meet a visiting ISKCON guru. I asked him to tape the conversation. Before he went, I explained some of the fallacious arguments he would likely hear to dissuade him from accepting Srila Prabhupada as his diksha guru and sad-guru. (The taped conversation is edited below.)

Bhakta Daniel: I want to take initiation in the Krishna consciousness movement. I follow the principles Srila Prabhupada prescribed, chant at least 16 rounds daily and follow the four regulative principles. ISKCON-guru: Very good. The devotees here have recommended you as being serious about spiritual life. We can offer you initiation. It is not a prerequisite, but are you willing to live with our ISKCON mission fulltime? BD: When I graduate college next year I may go to India to live in an ISKCON temple... maybe for a year. I was thinking to try to join the mission at Bangalore. I hear they are doing wonderful things in India. ISKURU: I am conducting an initiation ceremony next month for a few disciples. You are welcome to accept initiation into Krishna consciousness at that time. I would advise you to associate with devotees here for a couple of years and become trained up. India is no cup of tea! BD: Are you initiating on behalf of Srila Prabhupada as his representative? Would I be considered his disciple or your disciple? ISKURU: You would become my disciple with Srila Prabhupada as your param-guru. BD: If you don't mind my asking, are you a self-realized soul? ISKURU: Yes, and you can be too, just like these devotees here who follow the principles. BD: So these devotees are self-realized souls; they can see Krishna face to face? ISKURU: Yes, in our position at this time we see Krishna in His Deity form. BD: Can you speak with Krishna directly? Does He speak to you? ISKURU: Well, uh, he speaks to us, but we don't always pay attention." (laughter) BD: So, you are not actually fully Krishna conscious? ISKURU: No one is ever fully Krishna conscious. It is always ever-increasing. BD: I want to accept Srila Prabhupada as my eternal guru. I follow his instructions for spiritual life. I may or may not join your institution, but I would like to get formally initiated according to the sadhana Prabhupada prescribed. I believe ritvik representative initiation is what I would hope to accept. I want to accept only Srila Prabhupada himself as my diksha-guru. Is that possible in ISKCON? ISKURU: Not possible in ISKCON or anywhere else. How can you be initiated by Srila Prabhupada? He is not present physically. You need a guru who is living, present. BD: Where is that stated in the scriptures? ISKURU: Uh, well, it is implied. You see, it's the parampara Vaishnava tradition we follow. You need to accept a current guru who is physically present--who can accept you as his initiated disciple. BD: But isn't this why Prabhupada deputed representatives? Didn't he say that the formalities of initiation are not as important as accepting and following a fully self-realized soul? ISKURU: Not exactly. But who will decide who is a self-realized soul? You will decide? Who are you to decide? BD: I didn't decide. I believe millions of good souls have accepted Prabhupada as being perfect. He was predicted by great sages. Many good souls, and even ordinary people, have given testimony to his greatness and perfection. His many books and tapes are more proof. I know he is perfect, just like I know that about Jesus Christ. ISKURU: Ok, ok. So you can ask Jesus to accept you? Anyway, there may be others who are pure devotees. BD: May be others? So, then, how far do I need to look and study various ISKCON gurus? According to you they are perfect, but not everyone agrees about others who are supposed to be perfect. Everyone agrees that Srila Prabhupada is a perfect pure devotee and guru of the whole world ISKURU: But how will we know if Srila Prabhupada accepts you? Previously Srila Prabhupada would personally approve every new devotee. He wanted senior disciples to take up the service of diksha gurus by initiating new devotees and guiding them without his personal botheration. BD: I saw a letter dated July 9, 1977 wherein Srila Prabhupada appointed ritvik priests to conduct the formalities of initiation on his behalf. After that, he said that the ritviks could decide who was ready for initiation without consulting him directly. I also saw other letters and conversations confirming this. ISKURU: Well, that letter was meant for then. This is now, and the GBC has decided that various senior devotees should become regular gurus and initiate new generations of disciples, just as Prabhupada indicated they should. Prabhupada can't be made to automatically accept every new devotee forever. BD: What do you mean by saying, 'automatically.' Isn't it true that the restrictions and requirements to become an initiated disciple in the Krishna consciousness movement have been prescribed by Prabhupada? Did he ever reject someone willing to follow his instructions? ISKURU: But in the final analysis, how will you know if Prabhupada has accepted you personally? It is all very personal. We can no longer consult him personally, as we used to do. Therefore he delegated the responsibilities of accepting new disciples to some of his senior disciples.

BD: Did he do this through some written instruction that I can see? ISKURU: You can see everything in due course. You can't come here and demand to see God face to face! BD: Well... I don't demand, but would like to see some documentation because I have discussed with some of your Godbrothers many of these things, and they say Prabhupada appointed no one as guru and never authorized voted-in, self-appointed, or ecclesiastical gurus. ISKURU: You can't expect to come here and challenge the opinions of senior devotees and ISKCON leaders. They all agree that new students of Krishna consciousness must accept initiation from an authorized ISKCON guru. Srila Prabhupada is not the current diksha-guru for ISKCON. BD: OK, let me see if I understand. You admit that you are unable to consult Prabhupada directly because he is not physically present. You are not able to even say if he would accept me as his disciple- even though I have accepted him and follow his instructions. ISKURU: In our line, we aspire to become servant of the servant of Krishna. BD: I got that. So, you admit that you have not seen or been able to fully accept Krishna or hear the words of Krishna or the Supersoul or even Prabhupada. Yet you want me to accept you as guru instead of Srila Prabhupada, who is an all-knowing and fully conscious soul? ISKURU: Not instead of but because of.

BD: What is the point of my becoming your disciple if you don't even know whether Srila Prabhupada would accept me? ISKURU: He will accept you if you follow the process, but you must first be initiated by a living guru. BD: So, you think Prabhupada is inaccessible? ISKURU: No, no. I didn't say that. BD: You admit you can't consult Prabhupada or Krishna directly, so I am wondering what kind of spiritual initiation you can actually offer if... ISKURU: I do my service of accepting disciples by the authority of the GBC, as the representative of ISKCON's GBC. I am not acting independently. BD: I think I understand you now. You admit you are dependent- you are a representative of an ecclesiastical board. But you can't be a ritvik for Prabhupada. You are a physical guru or, in other words, a material guru with a material body but without full realization. ISKURU: You can't jump over all the present gurus and claim a connection with a previous acharya. BD: I believe Srila Prabhupada is the present living acharya. How did you become authorized to become his replacement? ISKURU: We are authorized by the GBC. Prabhupada set up the GBC as the final authority in ISKCON. Actually Lord Chaitanya has authorized me, and the GBC has only confirmed my status as diksha-guru. BD: I would rather follow the advice of the great teachers who advise accepting only a spiritual master who is infallible, who can see Krishna face to face. I want to take spiritual initiation from Srila Prabhupada according to ritvik formalities. [...a lot of people talking and arguing at the same time.]

We wondered, "What kind of sannyasi would deliberately try to create doubts in the mind of a new devotee about whether Srila Prabhupada would be willing to accept him as a disciple?" Srila Prabhupada traveled around the world 12 times and met people from all walks of life and repeatedly preached the siddhanta that anyone could become Krishna's devotee by becoming a disciple of his pure devotee. His whole mission is based on this truth. He never rejected anyone who was willing to follow his instructions. His only lamentation was that very few people were willing to accept the principles of sadhana-bhakti he prescribed. For ISKCON leaders to deliberately create doubts in the minds of rare and precious aspiring bhaktas about whether Srila Prabhupada would accept them as his disciples is outrageously evil. Such foolish talk is typical of the phony "guru" businesses promoted by the ISKCON GBC, Gaudiya Math, and others. (END)

CONCLUSION

"Vaishnavas never die. They continue to live in sound. And those who want Prabhupada dead have miscalculated. Srila Prabhupada has made himself immortal in the form of his transcendental books and the audio/video recordings of his classes, conversations, walks, interviews, etc. We are in uncharted territories. Never before has a Vaishnava acharya been able to make the transcendental vibrations coming from his lotus mouth permanent. We can all experience the transcendental vibrations from Srila Prabhupada's lotus mouth now in such clarity; he is living still in sound, in such a real, tangible and dynamic way that cannot be compared to any other Vaishnava acharya before him. Srila Prabhupada has taken the technology of printing, and audio/video recording to become truly permanent in a way no one could even imagine. So please realize that Srila Prabhupada is still living in his books, audio, and video recordings, and associate him, a pure devotee of Krishna, through his transcendental instructions.”(Madhudhvisa das, younger, 2011)

Yasodanandana called the ISKCON guru policies as the “living guru experiment.” This experiment has been ongoing for 45 years, and the results clearly prove the system does not work. Thousands of devotees have been betrayed by their so-called spiritual masters, or have lost them to maya, and only those who choose not to understand are oblivious to the obvious truth that ISKCON’s policy of authorizing self-appointed and rubber-stamped souls still subject to the four defects as diksha gurus has failed horribly. The history of ISKCON guru falldowns is a shameful one. Yet they still insist on it. Why? Might not a new experiment be the intelligent thing to do? Why not try the alternative of accepting the mahabhagavat devotee Srila Prabhupada as the diksha guru? But those who harbor guru ambitions in their hearts will never agree to give up the last snare of maya, which is so tempting and attractive, so intoxicating and satisfying to the original sin deep within us. That sin is the lust to be God or as good as God, which the guru is supposed to be.

Their system has been totally unworkable and destructive, yet they protest: “The idea that Srila Prabhupada can now be the diksha guru will ruin the movement!” Of course, they have already ruined it, so what is the use of their fear-mongering? What they really mean is, “This idea will ruin our guru careers!”

---

CHAPTER 179: SRILA PRABHUPADA GURU TATTVA

“Srila Prabhupada guru tattva” means the full truth about what Srila Prabhupada taught and wanted for the guru and initiation systems in his mission after his physical departure. It requires honest study, discussion, and purity of heart as well as a certain detachment and purification, otherwise one’s understanding may be clouded by ambitions, conditioning, indoctrination, and misconceptions. In the Hare Krishna movement there has been much wrangling and disagreement over the issue due to the truth of Srila Prabhupada’s instructions having been concealed and misinterpreted by the GBC and ISKCON gurus ever since Srila Prabhupada’s departure. The established, self-interested ISKCON GBC-guru elite want to continue their guru franchises, and they have created terrible and unforgiveable confusion by their false propaganda. However, that there is widespread confusion does not mean there is no guru tattva as taught and instructed by Srila Prabhupada, which has been obscured by ISKCON’s defective doctrines and repressive regime. Those with the disease of guru ambitions cannot understand it properly. So many devotees in the institution are compromised and cannot appreciate the rather simple truths of Srila Prabhupada’s guru tattva.

DOES ISKCON HAVE THEIR “GURU TATTVA” FINALIZED YET?

As has been amply documented in these two books and many other places, such as IRM’s website, ISKCON’s guru and initiation system has been an evolving, speculative, and complex phenomenon. It has undergone many adjustments and sometimes major changes. Many doubts have arisen just due to its history of patchwork policies as new edicts replace old ones. No wonder even those in ISKCON are confused as to what their guru tattva actually is. In 1999, the GBC resolved to create another committee to research answers to questions about guru-tattva, the guru and initiations issue. “Resolution 410. TASK FORCE FOR SPIRITUAL LEADERSHIP:... to work with a research team to answers questions about guru-tattva...” Later the GBC resolved to issue a paper justifying the current vote selection process for ISKCON gurus by end of 2012. By 2022, no paper was in sight. These initiatives have been ongoing for decades, but the GBC cannot produce even heavily twisted shastric evidence or any rationale for their concocted guru-approval by votes system. Their credibility is almost zero, as is membership confidence that ISKCON is correctly situated. It is a matter of time before the critics and doubters storm the ISKCON walls and dispense with the useless misleadership which is only a puppet mechanism for ISKCON gurus to perpetuate their guru business as long as possible. No, the ISKCON GBC cannot even provide a cohesive summary of their guru and initiation philosophy and justifications. Since ISKCON has no cohesive guru tattva, whereby even various gurus will have very different explanations of it, and since we have addressed many of the major flaws in their patchwork, false guru tattva, we will examine two clear analyses below by Naveen Krishna das and Harinama das. Most devotees are familiar with the IRM's book "The Final Order," which is another excellent analysis worthy of careful study.

SRILA PRABHUPADA GURU-TATTVA by Harinama das, Hawaii (July 17, 2004)

It is widely known that Srila Prabhupada instituted a ritvik or representative (proxy) initiation system in ISKCON as early as 1970 in order to meet the growing need to initiate his disciples worldwide. However what is not widely known is that he instructed his disciples to continue initiating new disciples on his behalf even after his physical disappearance. He called those disciples who performed the initiation ceremonies ritvik representatives of the acharya (officiating acharyas). Below are quotes from Srila Prabhupada to evidence these instructions, as well as explanations, philosophical insights, and historical background. My notes are in [ ].

(I) Direct Evidence For Continuance Of Ritvik System After Physical Disappearance

(A) MAY 28, 1977 CONVERSATION: SATS: Then our next question concerns initiations in the future, particularly at that time when you're no longer with us. We want to know how first and second initiation would be conducted. SP: Yes. I shall recommend some of you. After this is settled up, I shall recommend some of you to act as officiating acharyas. [He did not state "diksha-guru" nor "acharya" which is a direct repudiation of the successor diksha-guru accepting their own disciples scenario in ISKCON.] Tamal: Is that called ritvik-acharya? SP: Ritvik, yes. [He equates "officiating acharya" with "ritvik" which is the second direct repudiation of the successor diksha-guru scenario in ISKCON.] SATS: Then what is the relationship of that person who gives the initiation and the... SP: He's guru. He's guru. SATS: But he does it on your behalf. SP: Yes. That is formality. Because in my presence one should not become guru, so on my behalf, on my order... Amara ajnaya guru haia. Be actually guru, but by my order. [This is the third direct repudiation of Srila Prabhupada's disciples accepting their own disciples in ISKCON.] SATS: So they may also be considered your disciples. SP: Yes, they are disciples. Why consider? Who? [This is the 4th direct repudiation of the successor diksha-guru idea in reply to Satsvarupa's question.] Tamal: No, he's asking that these ritvik-acharyas, they're officiating, giving diksha. Their... The people who they give diksha to, whose disciple are they?

[Srila Prabhupada ends his conversation with Satsvarupa and replies to Tamal's misunderstanding, which is clearly evident as he repeats Satvarupa's same question which was already clearly answered by Srila Prabhupada. Further, Tamal's misunderstanding is clear in his saying that ritviks and officiating acharyas give diksha which they clearly don't, as they merely are representing the uttama-adhikari diksha-guru. Tamal's misconception of "diksha" and "diksha-guru" is that both diksha-guru and disciple must be physically present for diksha which clearly contradicts Srila Prabhupada's teachings as pointed out in Part III "Philosophical Basis."] SP: They're his disciple. Tamal: They're his disciple. SP: Who is initiating. He is grand-disciple. SATS: Yes. Tamal: That's clear. [Tamal draws his own conclusion and foolishly accepts only the sentence ("There're his disciple.") which he likes or understands. He ignores Srila Prabhupada's clear answers to Satvarupa's previous questions which repudiated the "disciples accepting their own disciples" scenario in ISKCON four times and thus Tamal misses Prabhupada's concluding statement as follows.]

SATS: Then we have a question concer... SP: When I order, "You become guru," he becomes regular guru. That's all. He becomes disciple of my disciple. That's it. [Srila Prabhupada clearly concludes his reply to Tamal and says that his disciples can become regular guru and accept their own disciples only when he orders them to. This clearly indicates that he did not yet give the specific order for his disciples to become regular (diksha) gurus and accept their own disciples in ISKCON in this meeting. He already repeatedly confirmed this fact with his prior repudiation (four times) in reply to Satsvarupa's original question on what the GBC were to do for 1st and 2nd initiations "when you no longer are with us" as already pointed out. So it is inconceivable that he changes his mind in replying to what is essentially the same question from Tamal vis-a vis, "Whose disciples are they?" Tamal's misunderstanding of this crucial meeting was later confirmed in the 1980 Topanga Canyon guru meeting detailed in subsection II.A. Unfortunately, as secretary, his deviation was also written into the minutes of the May 28, 1977 meeting.] Srila Prabhupada's use of "when" means he did not yet give that order. In his July 9 Directive he gave his final orders on future initiations, naming 11 disciples to act as "ritvik representatives of the acharya" to initiate future disciples on his behalf "henceforward."

(B) Section 3 Of June 4, 1977 Last Will: "The executive directors who have herein been designated are appointed for life. In the event of death or failure to act for any reason of any of the said directors, a successor director or directors may be appointed by the remaining directors, provided the new director is my initiated disciple following strictly all the rules and regulations of the International Society for Krishna Consciousness as detailed in my books, and provided that there are never less than three (3) or more than five (5) executive directors acting at one time." [In order to carry out this section of Srila Prabhupada's will, there must be his initiated disciples present for as long as Iskcon exists, thus necessitating a ritvik system initiating new disciples on his behalf henceforward which was stated in his July 9, 1977 letter to all GBC and temple presidents. This will also confirm the no change status of the ritvik system for after his physical disappearance in his use of the word "henceforward" meaning from now on].

(C) July 9, 1977 Worldwide Final Order To All Gbc And Tp's: (See Ch. 189 for full document)

"Recently when all of the GBC members were with His Divine Grace in Vrndavana, Srila Prabhupada indicated that soon He would appoint some of His senior disciples to act as "ritvik"-representative of the acharya, for the purpose of performing initiations, both first initiation and second initiation. His Divine Grace has so far given a list of eleven disciples who will act in that capacity: (list of men) In the past Temple Presidents have written to Srila Prabhupada recommending a particular devotee's initiation. Now that Srila Prabhupada has named these representatives, Temple Presidents may henceforward send recommendation for first and second initiation to whichever of these eleven representatives are nearest their temple. After considering the recommendation, these representatives may accept the devotee as an initiated disciple of Srila Prabhupada by giving a spiritual name, or in the case of second initiation, by chanting on the Gayatri thread, just as Srila Prabhupada has done. The newly initiated devotees are disciples of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada, the above eleven senior devotees acting as His representative. After the Temple President receives a letter from these representatives giving the spiritual name or the thread, he can perform the fire yajna in the temple as was being done before. The name of a newly initiated disciple should be sent by the representative who has accepted him or her to Srila Prabhupada, to be included in His Divine Grace's "Initiated Disciples" book. Hoping this finds you all well. Your servant, Tamala Krishna Goswami Secretary to Srila Prabhupada Approved: A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami [Srila Prabhupada's signature]

[Note the reference to the May 28, 1977 meeting when Srila Prabhupada replied to a GBC question on what to do for initiations after his physical disappearance. "After this is settled up, I shall recommend some of you to act as officiating acharyas." This July 9, 1977 worldwide order sent to all GBCs and temples presidents IS that order of recommendation. Also note Srila Prabhupada states 3X that the new initiates are his disciples and there is no future contingency to modify, countermand or terminate this order whatsoever. "Henceforward" means from now on. This is the only order that actually names individual disciples to officiate the initiation ceremony, gives them their title, tells whose disciples the initiates are, and when they would begin their service.]

Srila Prabhupada's letters to his ritvik representatives up until his physical disappearance also do not indicate any change in this ritvik instruction. ("Make your own field and continue to become ritvik and act on my behalf." July 31, 1977). This July 9, 1977 worldwide order to all GBCs and temple presidents specifically on future initiations in ISKCON is the only one given by Srila Prabhupada. Thus it is rightfully called the Final Order.

(II) Other Direct Evidence: (A) Topanga Canyon Confessions Dec. 1980: Tamal Krishna confirmed the misconceptions: "Actually, Prabhupada never appointed any gurus. He didn't appoint eleven gurus. He appointed eleven ritviks. He never appointed them gurus. Myself and the other GBC have done the greatest disservice to this movement the last three years because we interpreted the appointment of ritviks as the appointment of gurus." (ISKCON Journal 1990 p. 53). [...] (B) Pita das, Gauridas Pandit das and Bhaktisiddhanta das personally witnessed Srila Prabhupada explaining his ritvik system for after his physical disappearance. (C) Yasodanandana's July 1977 diary quotes Tamal Krishna and Gauridas Pandit stating they had just heard Srila Prabhupada explaining his ritvik system for future initiations. (D) HH BV Puri Maharaja recollected a conversation (memories #26) where Srila Prabhupada declared to him that he had appointed 11 ritviks. HH BV Puri Maharaja said, "You should have appointed only one... when You are gone, they will not be satisfied as ritviks, and will declare themselves as "regular" gurus, and they will fight." Srila Prabhupada replied: "What can I do... it is up to Krishna!" (E) Some of the 11 ritviks (Hamsadutta, Kirtanananda, Ramesvara, Tamal) also have said they were appointed as ritviks only. These instances were documented in early VVR's.

(III) Philosophical Basis Of July 9, 1977 Final Worldwide Order

(A) Definition Of Diksha Does Not Require Physical Presence Of The Diksha-Guru: (1) SP's definition of diksha: (a) "Diksha actually means initiating the disciple with transcendental knowledge by which all material contamination is destroyed." CC Mad 4:111 purport) (b) "In other words, the spiritual master awakens the sleeping living entity to his original consciousness so that he can worship Lord Visnu. This is the purpose of diksha, or initiation. Initiation MEANS receiving the pure knowledge of spiritual consciousness." (CC Mad 9.61, purport) (c) "The spiritual master can be compared to the lower kindling stick, the disciple to the upper kindling stick, and the instruction given by the guru to the third stick placed in between. The transcendental knowledge communicated from guru to disciple is compared to the fire arising from the contact of these, which burns the darkness of ignorance to ashes, bringing great happiness both to guru and disciple." (SBhag 11.10.12) (2) Jiva Goswami's definition of diksha: "Diksha is the process by which one can awaken his transcendental knowledge and vanquish all reactions caused by sinful activity. A person expert in the study of the revealed scriptures knows this process as diksha." (CC Mad 15.108 purport) (3) Sri Krishna's explanation for approaching a bona fide spiritual master is to acquire transcendental knowledge. (BGita 4.33-39) [...] (4) Srila Prabhupada's ritvik system was used worldwide from about 1970 to 1977 without him ever physically seeing many of his disciples, which proves that his physical presence is not necessary for him to give diksha to his disciple even after his physical disappearance. "...Just now I have received some more requests for giving first initiation... and now I am receiving weekly not less than 10-15 such requests from new students. So it is becoming very expensive to send so many sets of beads such a long distance, and it has become a little bothersome for me also, so I think now you may be appointed by me to give first initiations to new disciples by chanting on their beads on my behalf. In America [Disciple] is doing that. So now if there are two of you, that will give me great relief. [Disciple] will chant on the beads for new devotees in America, Canada, like that; you can chant on the beads for the European continent, new disciples. They shall, of course, still be considered as my disciples, not that they shall become your disciples, but you will be empowered by me to chant their beads and that is the same effect of binding master and disciple as if I were personally chanting." (SPL Jan. 4, 1973) (5) Diksha or transcendental knowledge by which all sin is destroyed can be acquired from reading Srila Prabhupada's books and following his sadhana-bhakti program: (a) "So utilize whatever time you find to make a thorough study of my books. Then all your questions will be answered." (SPL Upendra July 1, 1976) (b) "...In conjunction with this you should always read my books daily and all your questions will be answered and you will have a firm basis of Krishna Consciousness. In this way your life will be perfect.” (SPL Hugo Salemon Nov. 22, 1974) (c) “All questions will be clarified if you simply read our books very thoroughly and follow the simple process of devotional service as we have given it to chant regularly and rigidly observe the rules and regulations. This is our principle that the spiritual science becomes revealed to the devotee from within the heart according to the degree of his surrender to Krishna.” (SPL July 25, 1970) (d) “There is nothing new to be said. Whatever I had to say, I have already said in my books. Now you must try to understand it and continue with your endeavours. Whether I am present or not does not matter.” (SPConv May 17, 1977) (e) “His (Brahma’s) acceptance of the sound was due to his pure vision of the absolute nature of the Lord. And due to his correct vision, he made no distinction between the Lord and the Lord’s instruction. There is no difference between the Lord and sound vibration coming from Him, even though He is not personally present. The best way of understanding is to accept such divine instruction, and Brahma, the prime spiritual master of everyone, is the living example of this process of receiving transcendental knowledge. The potency of transcendental sound is never minimized because the vibrator is apparently absent. Therefore Srimad-Bhagavatam or Bhagavad-gita or any revealed scripture in the world is never to be accepted as an ordinary mundane sound without transcendental potency.” (SBhag 2.9.8 purport)

(6) Reading his spoken (audio taped) translations and purports is equal to hearing him directly: (a) “Why distinguish between chanting and book distribution? These books I have recorded and chanted, and they are transcribed. It is spoken kirtanas. So book distribution is also chanting. These are not ordinary books. It is recorded chanting. Anyone who reads, he is hearing.” (SPL Oct. 19, 1974) (b) “That is the difference, hearing from devotees, the sound vibration coming from the realized person. Reading the book is the same thing [...] tattva-darsana—hearing from one who has seen the truth. Reading or hearing from the realized person there is no difference, but hearing the sound vibration from the realized soul is still more effective, better.” (SPL Apr. 16, 1974) (c) Paramahansa: My question is, a pure devotee, when he comments on Bhagavad Gita, someone who never sees him physically, but he just comes in contact with the commentary, explanation, is this the same thing? SP: Yes. You can associate with Krishna by reading Bhagavad-Gita. And these saintly persons, they have given their explanations, comments. So where is the difficulty? (SPConv Nov. 6, 1974) (d) “We can have all the transcendental light of the Supreme Brahman, Sri Krishna, from the recitation of Srimad-Bhagavatam, provided it is received through the medium of the transparent spiritual master. Lord Chaitanya’s private secretary SrilaSvarup Damodara Goswami advised all intending visitors who came to see the Lord at Puri to make a study of the Bhagavatam from the person Bhagavatam. Person Bhagavatam is the self-realized bona fide spiritual master, and through him only can one understand the lessons of Bhagavatam in order to receive the desired result. One can derive from the study of the Bhagavatam all benefits that are possible to be derived from the personal presence of the Lord. It carries with it all the transcendental blessings of Lord Sri Krishna that we can expect from His personal contact.” (SBhag 1.3.40 purport)

(7) Understanding Srila Prabhupada’s books (Vedanta-sruti) is more important than having his physical presence: (a) “I thank you very much and all the devotees for offering me a garland daily as you were doing when I was physically present. If a disciple is constantly engaged in carrying out the instructions of the Spiritual Master he is supposed to be constantly in company with his Spiritual Master. This is called Vaniseva. So there are two kinds of service to the Spiritual Master One is called vaniseva and the other is called vapuseva. Vaniseva means as above mentioned, executing the instructions, and vapuseva means physically or personally rendering service. So in the absence of physical presentation of the Spiritual Master the vaniseva is more important. My Spiritual Master, Sarasvati Goswami Thakura, may appear to be physically not present, but still because I try to serve His instruction I never feel separated from Him. I expect that all of you should follow these instructions.” (SPL Aug. 22, 1970) (b) “I understand that you are feeling my absence. Krishna will give you strength.

Physical presence is immaterial; presence of the transcendental sound received from the spiritual master should be the guidance of life. That will make our spiritual life successful. If you feel very strongly about my absence you may place my pictures on my sitting places and this will be source of inspiration for you.” (SPL Brahmananda et al Jan.19, 1967) (c) “So although a physical body is not present, the vibration should be accepted as the presence of the Spiritual Master, vibration. What we have heard from the Spiritual Master, that is living.” (SP Lecture Jan. 13, 1969) (d) “Such association with Krishna and the Spiritual Master should be association by vibration not physical presence. That is real association.” (Elevation to Krishna Consciousness, p. 57) (e) “If there is no chance to serve the spiritual master directly, a devotee should serve him by remembering his instructions. There is no difference between the spiritual master’s instructions and the spiritual master himself. In his absence, therefore, his words of direction should be the pride of the disciple.” (CC Adi 1.35 purport) (f) “There are two ways of association-by vani and by vapu. Vani means words, and vapu means physical presence. Physical presence is sometimes appreciable and sometimes not, but vani continues to exist eternally. Therefore we must take advantage of the vani, not the physical presence. Bhagavad-gita, for example, is the vani of Lord Krishna. Although Krishna was personally present five thousand years ago and is no longer physically present from the materialistic point of view, Bhagavad-gita continues.” (CC Antya 5 Conclusion) (g) “To answer this argument, it is described here that one has to associate with liberated persons not directly, physically, but by understanding, through philosophy and logic, the problems of life.” (SBhag 3.31.48) (h) “Just Krishna can be present simultaneously in millions of places. Similarly, the spiritual master can be present wherever the disciple wants. A spiritual master is the principle, not the body. Just like a television can be seen in thousands of places by the principle of relay monitoring.” (SPL Malati May 28, 1968)

(IV) Historical Basis: Receiving Diksha From Prabhupada Via Ritvik Representatives

(A) Other Vaishnava Acharyas Support The Ritvik System: (1) Sri Bannanje Govindacharya: “You have a temple of Prabhupada, and before Prabhupada himself, no others can give diksha and these people provide name and mala. The diksha should be in the presence of Prabhupada’s vigraha. That will be better. That would be better. There will be no problem. Just to avoid problems, see so many gurus, they will leave peeta (the sacred seat), they are falling down. Just to avoid this, you take initiation before Prabhupada’s vigraha.” www.vnn.org/world/WD9901/WD28-2924.html (2) HH Rangapriya Swami: “By this system we do not have to fear that the parampara may stop. The rtviks belong to his parampara. The new disciples also belong to his parampara. Who ever follows his instructions also belong to his parampara. His books will represent him; his peeta (the sacred seat) will represent him; his sandals will represent him; his murtis will represent him.” www.vnn.org/world/WD9901/WD28-2925.html (3) Lakshmi Tatachar: “Again I have to stress that the letter makes it amply clear that the disciples thus initiated by the representatives of Srila Prabhupada are only the disciples of Srila Prabhupada only, not of the representatives. I also want to confirm that this system can continue perpetually even in the physical absence of HH Srila Prabhupadaji as it has continued in Ramanujas tradition as any person initiated by any acharya has dasyanama like Lakshmittathacharya Ramanuja Dasa though Ramanuja passed away long ago.” www.vnn.org/world/WD9902/WD09-2979.html

(B) Due To Over One Hundred Years’ Separation, there was no physical meeting between Narottama das Thakura and Vishvanath Chakravarty Thakura in our disciplic line. “Regarding parampara system: there is nothing to wonder for big gaps [...] we find in the Bhagavad-gita that the Gita was taught to the sun-god, some millions of years ago, but Krishna has mentioned only three names in this parampara system – namely, Vivasvan, Manu, and Iksvaku; and so these gaps do not hamper from understanding the parampara system. We have to pick up the prominent acharyas, and follow from him [...] We have to pick up from the authority of the acharya in whatever sampradaya we belong to.” (SPL Dayananda Dec. 4, 1968) (C) Note: First time in known history the complete Vedanta-sruti (BGita, SBhag, CC, NOD) of an uttama-adhikari in Lord Chaitanya’s disciplic succession was tape recorded in English (and translated into other languages), making the knowledge by which all sin is destroyed (diksha) available at any time anywhere. Thus there is no need for any other translator nor translation of the original Sanskrit verses. (D) Invention of the printing press allowed words to be mass duplicated on paper and distributed worldwide for anyone to read (hear) which practically necessitates a ritvik system for initiations to keep up with demand. (E) Invention of the audio tape recorder allowed the spoken words of the uttama adhikari diksha-guru to be recorded live directly (no misinterpretation) which does not necessitate his physical presence for hearing the Vedanta-sruti from the diksha-guru and thus the transference of transcendental knowledge (diksha). (F) In this most fallen age of Kali-yuga, the uttama adhikari diksha-guru is very rare thus the presence of the above technological inventions makes the ritvik system most practical in a worldwide sankirtan organization, which allows the uttama adhikari diksha-guru's comprehensive instructions (vedanta-sruti) to be uniformly present everywhere in the world for all time, as opposed to the ever changing physically present diksha-guru system. The continuity of keeping the founder-acharya in the center via the ritvik system saves time, labor, and money in the organization.

(V) Qualifications Of The Diksha-Guru

(1) "In this verse Srila Rupa Goswami advises the devotee to be intelligent enough to distinguish between the kanistha-adhikari, madhyama-adhikari and uttama-adhikari. The devotee should also know his own position and should not try to imitate a devotee situated on a higher platform. Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakura has given some practical hints to the effect that an uttama-adhikari Vaishnava can be recognized by his ability to convert many fallen souls to Vaisnavism. One should not become a spiritual master unless he has attained the platform of uttama-adhikari. A neophyte Vaishnava or a Vaishnava situated on the intermediate platform can also accept disciples, but such disciples must be on the same platform, and it should be understood that they cannot advance very well toward the ultimate goal of life under his insufficient guidance. Therefore a disciple should be careful to accept an uttama-adhikari as a spiritual master." (NOI 5 purport) (2) "When one HAS attained the topmost position of maha-bhagavata, he is to be accepted as a guru and worshiped exactly like Hari, the Personality of Godhead. Only such a person is eligible to occupy the post of a guru." (CC Mad 24.330 purport) (3) "The guru must be situated on the topmost platform of devotional service. There are three classes of devotees, and the guru must be accepted from the topmost class. The first-class devotee is the spiritual master for all kinds of people. It is said: gurur nram. The word nram means "of all human beings." The guru is not limited to a particular group." (CC Mad 24.330)

(Vi) Premonitions For A Ritvik System For As Long As Iskcon Exists

(1) "Because on the night before he passed away he (Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati) talked of so many things, but never mentioned an acharya. His idea was acharya was not to be nominated amongst the governing body. He said openly you make a GBC and conduct the mission. So his idea was amongst the members of GBC who would come out successful and self-effulgent acharya would be automatically ... and his two associate gentlemen unauthorizedly selected one acharya and later it proved a failure. The result is now everyone is claiming to be acharya even though they may be kanistha adhikari with no ability to preach. In some of the camps the acharya is being changed three times a year. Therefore, we may not commit the same mistake in our ISKCON camp." (SPL Rupanuga Apr. 28, 1974) (2) "I wish that each and every Branch shall keep their independent identity and cooperate keeping the Acharya in the centre. On this principle we can open any number of Branches all over the world. The Ramakrishna mission works on this principle and thus as organization they have done wonderfully." (SPL Kirtanananda Feb. 2, 1967) (3) Reporter: What will happen to the movement in the United States when you die? SP: I will never die. I shall live from my books and you will utilize. (SPConv July 1975) (4) "I am the Spiritual Master of this institution, and ALL the members of the Society, they're supposed to be MY disciples. They follow the rules and regulations which I ask them to follow, and they are INITIATED BY ME spiritually." (SP Interview Mar. 12, 1968) (5) Tamal: Well, I have studied myself and all of your disciples, and it's clear fact that we are all conditioned souls, so we cannot be guru. Maybe one day it may be possible ...but not now. SP: Yes. I shall choose some guru. I shall say, "Now you become acharya. You become authorized." I am waiting for that. You become all acharya. I retire completely. But the training must be complete. Tamal: The process of purification must be there. SP: Oh, yes, must be there. Chaitanya Mahaprabhu wants that. Amara ajnaya guru hana. "You become guru." (laughs) But be qualified. Little thing, strictly follower... Tamal: Not rubber stamp. SP: Then you'll not be effective. You can cheat, but it will not be effective. Just see our Gaudiya Matha. Everyone wanted to become guru, and a small temple and "guru." What kind of guru? No publication, no preaching, simply bring some foodstuff... My Guru Maharaja used to say, "Joint mess," a place for eating and sleeping. Amar amar ara takana: "Joint mess." He said this. (SPConv Apr. 22, 1977) [Note – Did this fact change in one month when Srila Prabhupada spoke on May 28?]

(Vii) The Result Of Disobeying The Uttama-Adhikari Pure Devotee

The desire for disciples and enjoying service/worship attracted the 11 original ritvik representatives appointed by Srila Prabhupada. Their ambition to imitate the diksha-guru/uttama-adhikari caused them to disobey their spiritual master's order to continue the ritvik system henceforward in ISKCON. This soon led to the corruption of ISKCON's pure guru-tattva, the GBC mismanagement and the spiritual difficulties of the entire society. SP: "Our mission is to serve, bhakta vishesha, and live with devotees. Not that you take the place of guru. That is all nonsense. Very dangerous, then everything will be spoiled. As soon as you become ambitious to take the place of guru- gurusu narah matih. That is material disease." (SPConv Apr. 21, 1977)

As the absolute central authority of guru-tattva became contaminated, the pure transcendental knowledge was gradually replaced by false philosophy and deviation from Srila Prabhupada's pure teachings. They are as follows: (1) zonal acharyas, the 2/3 voted in or out rubber-stamped (uttama-adhikari) diksha-gurus (2) the "fallen diksha-guru" syndrome (that SP appointed 11 fallen souls to be diksha-gurus or it is okay for the diksha-guru to be fallen) (3) re-initiations or the acceptance of more than one diksha/initiating spiritual master (4) definition of diksha as a formal ceremony performed by the physically present diksha-guru, not the knowledge by which all sin is destroyed (5) minimizing the words of the pure devotee (vedanta-sruti) as insufficient for transmitting transcendental knowledge by which all sin is destroyed (diksha) and minimizing the authority of the spiritual master and the Vedas (sruti and smriti shastras) (6) neglecting the orders of the spiritual master. [These are deviations from Srila Prabhupada's teachings and Vaishnava philosophy manufactured by those wanting the title and worship as diksha-guru which is the cheating propensity. There can be no pure manifestation of Srila Prabhupada's mission without following his guru-tattva.]

(VIII) Benefits Of The Ritvik System: (A) The worldwide sankirtan movement grows exponentially under the guidance of the uttama-adhikari spiritual master and founder-acharya (pure via media to the parampara). Worldwide sankirtan is not hampered by the temporary physical presence of the diksha-guru. (B) The ritvik system allows Srila Prabhupada's disciples to advance harmoniously from kanistha to madhyam and finally uttama-adhikari with no discrepancy in qualifications due to posing as guru immaturely; and, the resulting corruption, division, and chaos within the society on the ontological question of who is a pure devotee.

(IX) Conclusion: Srila Prabhupada's specific instructions for carrying out initiations in ISKCON after his physical disappearance as asked directly of him by his GBCs on May 28, 1977 was that he would soon recommend some of his disciples to act as officiating acharyas or ritviks representatives. The next week on June 4 he wrote in his will that ISKCON directors would have to be his duly initiated disciples. This confirms his no change "henceforward" order sent to all GBCs and temple presidents on July 9 proclaiming his 11 chosen ritvik representatives that would initiate future disciples on his behalf even after his physical disappearance. These three separate instructions are Srila Prabhupada's actual replies to the direct question from his GBC disciples in charge of ISKCON management on how they should carry on initiations. In his Direction Of Management Srila Prabhupada instructed how ISKCON should be managed. Over the next 4 months until his physical disappearance, Srila Prabhupada never changed these orders, either written or spoken. (END)

SIXTEEN POINTS TO CONSIDER REGARDING THE RITVIK ISSUE

By Pratyatosh das Aug. 30, 1998 (Updated: Mar. 2, 2014)

Concerning the "ritvik issue" (initiation on Srila Prabhupada's behalf by aritvik representative of the Acharya), please consider the following sixteen points: (1) FOLLOW THE LATEST ORDER: "I may say many things to you, but when I say something directly, 'Do it', your first duty is to do that. You cannot argue, 'Sir, you said me like this before.' No, that is not your duty. What I say now, you do it. That is obedience. If the captain of the ship says '5 starboard' and the first mate replies, 'But captain, before you told me "10 port,'" then it can be understood that the first mate has gone insane." (SPLecture Apr. 15, 1975) (2) THE JULY 9TH ORDER: Letter from Srila Prabhupada to all GBC's and temple presidents. Note that the above is the last formal instruction Srila Prabhupada gave on initiations within his beloved ISKCON before his physical departure on Nov. 14, 1977. If someone quotes Srila Prabhupada as having said, "My disciples should become gurus.," then this obviously does not mean diksha (initiating) gurus within ISKCON, because his last instruction (See point #1 above) for ISKCON was to have ritviks (priests) initiate on his behalf "henceforward." If you search the Vedabase for "henceforward," you will see that Srila Prabhupada always meant "from this time forth; from now on," which, according to the dictionary, is the only literal meaning that the word "henceforward" can have. (3) TAMAL TESTIFIES: Tamal Krishna, one of the 11 original, ritvik representatives of the acharya (See point #2 above) said on Dec. 3, 1980: "Actually Prabhupada never appointed any gurus. He appointed eleven ritviks. He never appointed them gurus. Myself and the other GBC have done the greatest disservice to this movement the last three years because we [falsely] interpreted the appointment of ritviks as the appointment of gurus."

(4) HANSADUTTA TESTIFIES: Srila Prabhupada wrote in signed letters to Hansadutta das, one of the 11 original, ritvik - representatives of the acharya (See point #2 above): "You are a suitable person and you can give initiation to those that are ready for it. I have selected you among eleven men as "Ritvik" representative of the Acharya, to give initiations, both first and second initiation, on my behalf." (SPL July 10, 1977) "Make your own field and continue to be ritvik and act on my behalf." (SPL July 31, 1977) "...It was clear that Srila Prabhupada had officially introduced the concept of 'Ritvik representative of the Acharya' as the arrangement for initiations by his disciples for the future of ISKCON. Had there been anything more to clarify certainly Srila Prabhupada would have written another letter to amend what was already so clear. But he never did, other than reinforce what he had already written: 'Continue to act as ritvik representative of the Acharya.'" (Letter Hansadutta to Veda Guhya das) (5) SRILA PRABHUPADA'S WILL: From Srila Prabhupada's "DECLARATION OF WILL," June 6, 1977: "...The Governing Body Commission (GBC) will be the ultimate managing authority of the entire International Society for Krishna Consciousness... The system of management will continue as it is now and there is no need of any change... Each new executive director for the ISKCON properties must be my initiated disciple..." A person's "will" is a legal document which goes into effect after the person "dies." What is to prevent a lawsuit from being filed the second an attempt is made to make someone such as a "grand-disciple" a "new executive director for the ISKCON properties" because he is not Srila Prabhupada's "initiated disciple?" He said that his books would be the "law books for the next 10,000 years." How is this possible unless Srila Prabhupada intended for initiations "on my behalf" to continue for the next 10,000 years?

(6) CHRISTIAN EXAMPLE: The following morning walk conversation, recorded in Seattle on Feb. 10, 1968, shows that Srila Prabhupada approved of the highly successful Christian system of encouraging their followers to accept Lord Jesus Christ as their spiritual authority through the agency of a ritvik representative (priest or minister). Madhudvisa: Is there any way for a Christian to, without the help of a spiritual master, to reach the spiritual sky through believing in the words of Jesus Christ and trying to follow his teachings? SP: I don't follow. Tamal: Can a Christian in this age, without a spiritual master, but by reading the Bible and following Jesus's words, reach the... SP: When you read Bible, you follow spiritual master. How can you say without? As soon as you read Bible, that means you are following the instruction of Lord Jesus Christ, that means you are following spiritual master. So where is the opportunity of being without spiritual master? Madhudvisa: I was referring to a living spiritual master. SP: Spiritual master is not the question of... Spiritual master is eternal. Spiritual master is eternal. So your question is without spiritual master. Without spiritual master you cannot be, at any stage of your life. You may accept this spiritual master or that spiritual master. That is a different thing. But you have to accept. As you say that "by reading Bible," when you read Bible that means you are following the spiritual master represented by some priest or some clergyman in the line of Lord Jesus Christ. (7) RAMAKRISHNA MISSION EXAMPLE: "I wish that each and every Branch shall keep their independent identity and cooperate keeping the Acharya in the centre. On this principle we can open any number of Branches all over the world. The Ramakrishna mission works on this principle and thus as organization they have done wonderfully." (SPL Kirtanananda Feb. 11, 1967) NOTE: The Ramakrishna mission achieves "this principle" that Srila Prabhupada wants to be followed in ISKCON through a ritvik system.

(8) MISTAKE IN OUR ISKCON CAMP: "[Bhaktisiddhanta] never recommended anyone to be acharya of the Gaudiya Math. ... If Guru Maharaja could have seen someone who was qualified at that time to be acharya he would have mentioned. Because on the night before he passed away he talked of so many things, but never mentioned an acharya. ... Therefore we may not commit the same mistake in our ISKCON camp. ... [The members of the Gaudiya Math] cannot help us in our movement, but they are very competent to harm our natural progress. So we must be very careful about them." (SPL Rupanuga Apr. 28, 1974) (9) "RTVIK. YES." SATS: Then our next question concerns initiations in the future, particularly at that time when you are no longer with us. We want to know how first and second initiations will be conducted. SP: Yes. I shall recommend some of you. After this is settled up. I shall recommend some of you to act as officiating acharya. TAMAL: Is that called ritvik-acharya? SP: Ritvik. Yes. (SPConv May 28, 1977) "Ritvik" is not a word which was part of the devotee lexicon at that time. Therefore, it is obvious that Srila Prabhupada had been talking about "ritviks" on previous occasions which were never recorded, or the recordings were hidden or destroyed, otherwise how would Tamal KG think to ask this question? (10) UNPRECEDENTED TECHNOLOGY: One thing that sets Srila Prabhupada apart from all of the other great saints of history is the fact that he left us not only his books, but also, audio and video recordings of his exact words. These recordings are carefully transcribed into digital form. All of Srila Prabhupada's books, lectures, conversations, letters, etc. can be digitally copied in a few minutes with no possibility of changes being made. This is certainly a great boon for this planet for the next 10,000 years, which, Srila Prabhupada said, will be a "golden age."

(11) UNPRECEDENTED POLICIES: If authorizing ritvik initiations on his behalf, after his physical departure, is unprecedented in our line of Vaishnavas and cannot be supported by quotes from shastra (scriptures), so what? Srila Prabhupada also did many other things that are unprecedented in our Brahma-Gaudiya Vaishnava line of disciplic succession: (a) Crossing over the ocean as a sannyasi. (b) Allowing his disciples to chant only 16 rounds a day instead of 64. (c) Authorizing ritvik initiations on his behalf before his physical departure. (d) Performing marriage ceremonies as a sannyasi. (e) Giving Gayatri mantra initiation to women. (f) Traveling by air as a sannyasi. (g) Allowing men and women to live together in the temple building. (h) Allowing women to lead kirtanas. (i) Allowing women to give the Bhagavatam class. (j) Allowing women to hold responsible positions of leadership within the movement. (12) WITNESS TESTIMONY: BV Puri Maharaja confirms in a film interview only ritviks were appointed. (13) IT'S OFFENSIVE TO DISCIPLINE A REAL GURU: Posted on www.hindu-religion.net, Sept. 17, 2003, by "Guest": "The bottom line of the [ISKCON guru] issue is whether or not any guru is subjected to the dictates and discipline of the GBC. The fact that Prabhupada established the GBC as the Governing Authority for ISKCON, to regulate and restrict the activities of the ISKCON gurus, rules out the possibility of any diksha gurus in ISKCON except him. Prabhupada ruled out the diksha guru system in ISKCON by saying that a bona-fide spiritual master is never subjected to the discipline or restrictions of a GBC or anyone else, and shows that indeed there can be no gurus in ISKCON except Prabhupada. A real guru is never subjected to the control and discipline of any committee, Godbrother, disciple or anyone. ISKCON clearly has a whole set of rules and laws that regulate, discipline and restrict all the diksha gurus in ISKCON. This is clearly in violation of the teachings of Srila Prabhupada. In NOI (6 purport): "It is also an offense to consider an empowered Vaishnava an object of disciplinary action. It is offensive to try to give him advice or to correct him... The spiritual master must not be subjected to the advice of a disciple, nor should a spiritual master be obliged to take instructions from those who are not his disciples. This is the sum and substance of Srila Rupa Goswami's advice...." A real spiritual master is not subjected to the discipline or regulations of any committee, individual or group of individuals. Therefore, by establishing the GBC as the managing authority of ISKCON, Srila Prabhupada ruled out the possibility of a multiplicity of gurus in ISKCON by instead making the GBC the functioning authority over all ISKCON affairs. In ISKCON today there is a class of spiritual masters who are all subjected to the regulation and discipline of the GBC. Prabhupada said it is an offense to try and discipline or regulate a spiritual master. Therefore either the regulating of ISKCON spiritual masters by the GBC must stop or [the ISKCON] diksha guru system must stop." [This points out another clear anomaly in ISKCON.]

(14) IT'S OFFENSIVE TO SAY THAT PRABHUPADA LEFT THINGS UNCLEAR: "When Srila Prabhupada was here, if the temple president recommended you to be initiated, then you got initiated. If he didn't, then you didn't. It was as simple as that. This is the way it should be today." ("Srila Prabhupada Left Things Unclear? No!!!" <http://www.pratyatosa.com/?P=t>): "...to say that Srila Prabhupada was negligent in regards to making it extremely clear how initiations were to be continued in post-samadhi ISKCON is a great offense against Srila Prabhupada!" ("The GBC Can't Have It Both Ways" www.pratyatosa.com/?P=y) (15) I SHALL NEVER DIE: "He reasons ill who tells that Vaishnavas die, when thou are living still in sound." (Bhaktivinode Thakur) "I shall never die. I shall live forever in my books." (SPConv July 1975) Anytime one of Srila Prabhupada's disciples would ask him for permission to initiate, Prabhupada would tell him that as a matter of etiquette, he should wait until he was no longer present. Because Srila Prabhupada is always present, I take this as a polite way of telling him "I don't want anyone else taking on disciples on his own behalf in my institution." Also, if ambitious disciples would initiate, what could be done?

(16) SELF MOTIVATION AND BAD ASSOCIATION: Any honest person can quickly understand that Srila Prabhupada prescribed ritvik initiations for the future of ISKCON. It's crystal clear. It's all there in signed, written documents (See #2 and #5 above). After reading the above 15 points, if someone still tries to make Srila Prabhupada's own terminology (ritvik) into a dirty word, or tries to say that Srila Prabhupada left things unclear or subject to debate, or tries to vilify the proponents of Srila Prabhupada's own idea, the ritvik system of initiations, then he can be understood to: (a) have the "I wanna be a guru" disease, or he is influenced by those who have the disease. In other words, he is self-motivated, (b) have disobeyed Srila Prabhupada under the influence of the Gaudiya Math or their living guru misconception. [...] CONCLUSION: From a lecture by Srila Prabhupada, Dec. 26, 1969: "[Krishna consciousness] is simple for the simple, but it is very hard for the crooked." I firmly believe that the simple, straightforward logic of the above will easily stand up in any court of law in the world, what to speak of the court of public opinion. If a disciple of Srila Prabhupada is actually qualified to be an independent diksha (initiating) guru, and he has that desire, then he can start his own institution, like Srila Prabhupada did, so what's the problem? (END)

SRILA PRABHUPADA GURU TATVA SUMMARY (by Naveen Krishna das, 2016)

"As far as Srila Prabhupada's system of initiation, or call it by any other name, he without question set up from the late 1960's a system of initiations to accept his own disciples within his own ISKCON institution that increasingly had representatives conducting the initiation ceremony without Srila Prabhupada's physical presence. Rather, more and more, he was present in his pictures and murtis on the altars and Vyasasana during those ceremonies. He increasingly gave more responsibilities to his representatives. In mid-1977 he increased the delegated authority by one final level, that his representatives don't have to consult with him to initiate on his behalf, as stated in the July 9th letter. Srila Prabhupada very carefully, thoughtfully set up an initiations system using representatives with himself being present only in his deity or picture form. He never hinted at any other initiation system. The fact is everyone agrees there is no other system of initiation that Srila Prabhupada authorized. Re: the May 28, 1977 meeting where some GBCs spoke with Srila Prabhupada about this matter, there are several points to be considered. (a) When Srila Prabhupada was asked how initiations would go on, 'especially when you are no longer with us,' Srila Prabhupada's reply was that he would appoint some officiating acharyas, that would initiate on his behalf. (b) When some of the GBCs, who were clearly ambitious persons, including some who were engaged in the criminal poisoning of His Divine Grace, continued that conversation, because they were not satisfied with Srila Prabhupada's clear and direct answer, but had personal desires to fulfill; who were very much, as time has proven, conditioned souls replete with the four defects, then Prabhupada addressed that ambition of theirs, by saying 3 times that, yes, one can become "regular guru" with their own disciples, but "only when I order." And that order to become "regular guru" was never given verbally or in writing. Rupanuga Prabhu, who attended the May 28 talks, confirmed this. If there had been such an order, it would have required all kinds of accompanying details regarding his disciples having their own disciples, i.e., pranam mantras, offering of bhoga, pictures on the altar, guru pujas, Vyasapujas, etc. Instead the GBC went to the Gaudiya Matha, whom Srila Prabhupada called the greatest offenders to his spiritual master, the ones that in his words had destroyed "a very great mission," to get advice how to set up the same kind of renegade system of "acharyas" that they had set up as their disobedience to Srila Bhaktisiddhanta's instructions. "Why this Gaudiya Matha failed? Because they tried to become more than guru." (SPConv Aug. 16, 1976) (c) The GBC's supposed understanding that some of them were meant to be gurus with their own disciples is a faulty understanding to be expected from those Srila Prabhupada identified as the 'Ravanas that would kill him,' when he was being poisoned! Can we trust the unimaginably offensive poisoners' claims? We can only expect the worst kind of misinformation, manipulation and misguidance from this kind of people! (d) Those who had no such ambitions to become guru were victims of the poisoners' manipulation. They were not aware, like the rest of us, of Srila Prabhupada's poisoning. Similarly, these well-intended and innocent GBC members, as well as most of the rest of us were manipulated and misled repeatedly as we have also experienced in the unauthorized massive changes to his books and to the Deity worship, criminal abuse of the children, disobeying Srila Prabhupada's request that all of his disciples come to India to be with him in Oct. 1977, refusing to take him on parikrama in Nov. 1977, which he said would cure him, and finally his revealing that he was being poisoned by his caretakers. There were countless other acts of concealment, deception and abuse that have been repeatedly conducted by this group of deviants and some of their staunch supporters. (e) Finally, that Srila Prabhupada appointed such devious, demonic persons to be the next authorized, bona fide diksha gurus in our parampara, is beyond belief."

THE TRADITION ARGUMENT

The ISKCON GBC's official doctrine is that "ritvik-ism" is historically "untraditional," never having been done before in any Vaishnava sampradaya, and that Srila Prabhupada would not do something historically unprecedented. "...the problem with the Ritvik system is, in the past we never see a precedence of that practice." (Bhakticharu Swami June 8, 2000) But actually this is exactly how initiations are done in the Madhva and Ramanuja lines for 800-1000 years. However, GBC member Praghosh das said Nov. 18, 2020: "...historically the guru was the head of their own organization and the head of their own Matha [...] for the very first time in history of Gaudiya Vaishnavism [...] Srila Prabhupada said, 'That's not going to happen anymore. That may be the historical reality for thousands of years. I'm changing it. [...] What's happening in ISKCON is we're having a governing board [which] is the final authority in my movement.'" In this way, the GBC shoots down their own "no historical precedence" argument, as they admit that Srila Prabhupada, the authorized acharya, did indeed make historic adjustments to Vaishnava practices, such the brahmacharini ashrama, a GBC, training Westerners as brahmanas (and diksha initiations through deputies after departure). By 1977 Srila Prabhupada gave representatives full discretionary rights to decide whether a new devotee should be given initiation (SPConv July 19, 1977). Such practical adjustments can be made by great acharyas, keeping in line with the essence of the principles of devotional service and in accordance with time, place and circumstance. Srila Prabhupada explains this many times in his teachings.

(1) "So acharya means, just like Goswamis, they would read all the scriptures and take the essence of it and give it to his disciples that, 'You act like this.' Because he knows what to give, how to manipulate, so that his ekantatah sreyas will be achieved. Ultimate goal. Therefore the acharya knows how to adjust things, at the same time keep pace with the spiritual interest (?) That is acharya. It is not that the same thing to be applied everywhere. He is eager to engage actually the people in the real benefit of life, but the means may be different. Just like my Guru Maharaja. He is the first time that he allowed the sannyasis to drive in a motorcar. [...] This is adjustment. The acharya knows how to adjust things. The real purpose is how one will take to spiritual consciousness, or Krishna consciousness. Keeping one's aim to that point some concession may be given. As far as possible, keeping pace with the time, circumstances." (SPecture Feb. 20, 1973) (2) "Srimad Viraraghava Acharya, an acharya in the disciplic succession of the Ramanuja-sampradaya, has remarked in his commentary that chandalas, or conditioned souls who are born in lower than sudra families, can also be initiated according to circumstances. The formalities may be slightly changed here and there to make them Vaishnavas." (SBhag 4.8.5 purport) (3) "Vaishnava who is preaching, it may be in a different way, according to time and place and the party--they have to change something, desa-kala-patra: but we have to see the essence." (SPecture Oct. 18, 1974)

From ISKM's Initiations After 1977: "There is a contention that Srila Prabhupada came into this world to present the authorized disciplic conclusion of the Gaudiya Vaishnava sampradaya. But never before was a ritvik system of initiation set up by any predecessor acharya in our sampradaya. How can he do something that is against the tradition of our sampradaya? Thus they say the ritvik system is not authorized by Srila Prabhupada after his manifest presence. We note the tradition of disciplic succession is to preach the pure Krishna conscious philosophy to the conditioned souls. How a particular spiritual master does this as per the time, place and circumstances is a transcendental technical detail that may vary from one spiritual master to another but the principle remains intact of preaching Krishna consciousness, which is what constitutes the disciplic tradition. Srila Prabhupada made many adjustments for time, place and circumstance. A prominent example was that he ordered his disciples to chant 16 rounds of Hare Krishna maha-mantra daily on the beads. But the actual standard of chanting is 64 rounds a day: Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati said that if one chants less than 64 rounds a day, he is not even considered to be a human being. But Srila Prabhupada observed that the modern candidate is unfit to chant 64 rounds and therefore he gave us 16 rounds-per-day stipulation. SBhag 10.2.31 TEXT: 'O Lord, who resemble the shining sun, You are always ready to fulfill the desire of Your devotee, and therefore You are known as a desire tree [vancha-kalpataru]. When acharyas completely take shelter under Your lotus feet in order to cross the fierce ocean of nescience, they leave behind on earth the method by which they cross, and because You are very merciful to Your other devotees, You accept this method to help them. PURPORT: In our Krishna consciousness movement ...the devotees have been advised to refrain from four sinful activities —illicit sex, intoxication, meat-eating and gambling —and to chant 16 rounds a day. These are bona fide instructions. ...The acharya gives the suitable method for crossing the ocean of nescience by accepting the boat of the Lord's lotus feet, and if this method is strictly followed, the followers will ultimately reach the destination, by the grace of the Lord. This method is called acharya-sampradaya. It is therefore said, sampradaya-vihina ye mantras te nisphala matah (Padma Purana). The acharya-sampradaya is strictly bona fide. Therefore one must accept the acharya-sampradaya; otherwise one's endeavor will be futile.'

The stipulation of 16-rounds-a-day is certainly unconventional but Srila Prabhupada mentions in this purport above that it is a strictly bona fide instruction. This is the transcendental authority of the acharya to preach according to the time, place and circumstance. The principle of Krishna consciousness is not compromised but the minor technical details are adjusted by the acharya (acharya-sampradaya) to suit the particular situation. So, if the unconventional 16-rounds-a-day stipulation is bona fide, then why not his unconventional (ritvik) initiations system? If one is not ready to accept his system of initiations because it is unconventional, then one should also chant 64 rounds as was the original prescription by predecessor acharyas. But that is practically not possible in today's context. So the only bona fide and practical process is to follow Srila Prabhupada's prescription of 16 rounds and hence, his system of (ritvik) initiations also." (END)

Jagannivasa das, 2016, ISKM (abbreviated): "There is a process and procedure that Srila Prabhupada has set into operation in his mission and which he directed to continue for posterity. Siddhanta, not tradition, is the basis of following spiritual life, and it tells us to take shelter of a bona fide spiritual master, take instructions and training from him and serve him as he decrees. Srila Prabhupada has stated how this is to be done for his followers, many of whom did not get a chance to personally serve his vapuh or be with him or even meet him. We can't take some quote from shastra given by acharya and then impose on him how it is to be done only in the way we want it to be. He has already told us how to do it. And tradition is merely the adoption of a modus operandi to realize the siddhanta, not siddhanta itself. All acharyas have formulated their own traditions."

ARE THERE OTHER PURE DEVOTEES IN SRILA PRABHUPADA'S MOVEMENT?

Are there pure devotees on the planet now? Srila Prabhupada's followers are not too concerned about this. All we need in our spiritual life is to take full advantage of Srila Prabhupada's association or vani, through his books, instructions, service, deity, followers, etc. Srila Prabhupada gave his followers and disciples everything they need to develop their full Krishna consciousness; they do not need to supplement with anything from outside of Srila Prabhupada's legacy. It would be very nice if there were pure devotees in the Hare Krishna movement, and we think they would all point everyone to Srila Prabhupada's vani and reinforce that Srila Prabhupada is the Acharya and diksha guru for the life of his divine mission. On Nov. 12, 1972 Nityananda das got a letter from Srila Prabhupada in reply to a foolish question, whether there were other pure devotees in India that we should associate with: "It is a basic principle that one must accept a bona fide spiritual master in order to achieve the highest perfection of life, love of God. I thank all of you very much for accepting me as your spiritual master, and I promise that I will take you back to home, back to Godhead. I ask you all to promise me to always chant at least 16 rounds, follow the regulative principles, read our books and try to preach this Krishna Consciousness Movement all over the world."

Dhira Govinda das, 2016: "I do know for certain that however many pure Vaishnavas are in Srila Prabhupada's movement, Srila Prabhupada remains qualified and available to serve as the current and direct link to the parampara for persons who sincerely want to accept him in that capacity. In fact, I strongly believe that if there are pure devotees in the movement, they would wholeheartedly encourage everyone who connects with Srila Prabhupada's movement to relate to Srila Prabhupada as the current and direct link to the parampara. So, Srila Prabhupada as the direct link is not dependent on how many ISKCON leaders have fallen, etc. If over the past 33 years there had been no ISKCON leaders involved in any scandals, still, the foundational philosophical principles of Srila Prabhupada as the current link to parampara for all generations of his movement still stand. Of course, the facts of the continual and pervasive scandals certainly indicate philosophical inconsistencies in the ISKCON system, and thus discussing such incidents has its place."

Narasimha das, 2017: "Srila Prabhupada's system for initiations in ISKCON was not a temporary contingency program due to the of the lack any pure devotees. Nor should any efforts to reform ISKCON rely on theories that there are or can never be other pure devotees. These kind of discussions are a distraction involving speculation and conjecture. Srila Prabhupada expected his disciples to be or to become pure devotees by following strictly as his bona fide representatives and by cooperating, which will surely reveal everything best for preaching. Any pure devotees, now and in the future, will support Srila Prabhupada's system of ritvik representative initiations. They would never deride it. The term ritvik, or ritvija, is transcendental, found in scripture, and was used by Srila Prabhupada with regards to initiations. Just because maya-iskcon has tried to make it a pejorative doesn't mean we should be afraid to use the term Srila Prabhupada used. Nor should we fear that we are giving too much importance to the bona fide ritvik representative simply through terminology. In the early days of the movement, newer devotees sometimes idolized senior preachers, but the protocol was only for worship of Srila Prabhupada. Because the protocol and procedure was correct, small fan clubs and followers were not an issue. Leadership was not based on false positions and attitudes."

EX-DISCIPLE: My former ISKCON guru wrote me: "Do you simply want to pretend that you are being instructed directly by Srila Prabhupada so that you can follow the whims of your own mind?"

DHIRA GOVINDA: That's a valid concern- that, in the name of "Srila Prabhupada is my current link," one could, influenced by self-deception, avoid actual responsibility to be a genuine disciple of Srila Prabhupada. One could use the philosophy of "Srila Prabhupada as the direct link" as an escape hatch, escaping from rigorously following sadhana, from serving cooperatively with other followers of Srila Prabhupada. So, certainly we want to be vigilant to avoid such hazards on the path of serving Srila Prabhupada and his mission with heart and soul. This discussion points to the importance of creating sanga, where there is safe space to caringly, and with skill, share honest feedback, and hear sincerely from sincere well-wishers. Thus we're assisted to see our blind spots and dark corners of ahankara.

Some quotes which ISKCON gurus falsely apply to themselves as though they were bona fide gurus: (1) "The lotus feet of our spiritual master are the only way by which we can attain pure devotional service. I bow to his lotus feet with great awe and reverence. By his grace one can cross the ocean of material suffering and obtain the mercy of Krishna." (Sri Guru-vandana Verse 1, Srila Narottama dasa Thakura) (2) "The dust of the feet of a devotee, the water that has washed the feet of a devotee, and the remnants of food left by a devotee are three very powerful substances. By rendering service to these three, one attains the supreme goal of ecstatic love for Krishna. In all the revealed scriptures this is loudly declared again and again. Therefore, my dear devotees, please hear from me, for I insist again and again: please keep faith in these three and render service to them without hesitation. From these three one achieves the highest goal of life—ecstatic love of Krishna. This is the greatest mercy of Lord Krishna." (CC Ant 16.60-3) (3) "In the neophyte stage, in the intermediate stage, or in the fully advanced perfected stage, one can make the function of the head perfect by bowing down before the Lord or His representative. Similarly, he can perfect the function of the eyes by seeing the Lord and His representative. In this way, everyone can elevate the functions of the different parts of his body to the highest perfectional stage simply by engaging them in the service of the Lord or His representative. If one is able to do nothing more, he can simply bow down before the Lord and His representative and drink the caranamrta, the water which has washed the lotus feet of the Lord or His devotee." (Krishna Book, Ch. 80)

AFTER THE APPOINTMENT HOAX FAILED, GBC CONCOCTED A VOTE SYSTEM

In March 1978 the GBC claimed that Srila Prabhupada had appointed eleven senior devotees as full gurus effective after his departure, that from July 9, 1977 they were only ritviks but they were then "empowered" as pure devotees "to continue the parampara as successor acharyas." This zonal successor acharya hoax lasted until 1986, after the May 28 tape leaked out and the gross misbehavior of the 11 gurus prompted a revolt by the second tier leaders of temple presidents in the USA and Canada. Their legitimacy undermined, the GBC, under the guidance of Tamal, devised a "guru reform." The door was opened to more gurus, effectively "buying off" some of the protestor leaders, and initially 17 new gurus were approved by a newly improvised process of no-objection votes of the GBC. The Multiple AcharyaS System (MASS) was an historically unprecedented invention, ratified in 1987. "The entire zonal acharya dispensation, however, deviated from Prabhupada's standards and teachings. The idea that an ecclesiastical guru could be appointed by a 3/4 majority vote of an ecclesiastical body was condemned by Prabhupada, who cited Jiva Goswami (c.1513-98): 'It is imperative that a serious person accept a bona fide spiritual master in terms of the shastric injunctions. Sri Jiva Goswami advises that one not accept a spiritual master in terms of hereditary or customary social and ecclesiastical conventions. One should simply try to find a genuinely qualified spiritual master for actual advancement in spiritual understanding.' (CC Adi 1.35 purport) The ISKCON gurus had been authorized by a 3/4 vote by the GBC, or, by 'ecclesiastical conventions'; therefore they were not bona fide. Prabhupada many times had stated, 'On my order, become guru.' 'You cannot create a mahatma,' Prabhupada insisted, 'by rubber-stamp or by votes.' (SP Lecture Sept. 15, 1969)" (ENE)

The most prominent of the 11 original ISKCON gurus, Kirtanananda Swami, often criticized the GBC, saying they had no authority to certify or recognize new ISKCON diksha gurus. "No one can rubber stamp the guru. GBC cannot rubber stamp who is guru... One is guru because he becomes transparent to Krishna... It's just like when the sun comes up." (NV News, Oct. 8, 1985) Jayadvaita Swami added, "When the GBC tried to certify certain persons as 'pure devotees,' 'maha-bhagavatas,' and 'uttama-adhikaris,' we saw what happened—some of the chosen fell down, and the GBC got egg all over its face." (Guru Reform Notebook, 1986) Even Satsvarupa, one of these 11, had written soon after Srila Prabhupada's departure, "You cannot simply elect a person to the post of the most exalted sainthood." (Satsvarupa, BTG 13.1/2, 1978) [Although that is exactly what they did 9 years later]. In 2016 the Chairman of the GBC's Shastric Advisory Council (Urmila dasi) wrote on Facebook a scathing critique of the GBC voting system, calling it hypocritical and a farce. She pointed out that the GBC calls it a no-objection process, but that it involves voting nevertheless, a clear violation of Srila Prabhupada's teachings. It is thought that she favors a system with very few or no institutional controls at all. ISKCON's guru tattva is a work in progress with endless changes (which is speculation).

CONCLUSION

Sometimes devotees think Srila Prabhupada failed to better explain what should be done with initiations after his departure. Bhagavan das: "Having recently reread the Will of June 4, 1977 of which I signed as a witness and the Will codicil of Nov. 5, 1977, I stand amazed that more space, detail and clarity was given to issues of property and how 1,000 Rs ($75) was to be divided amongst potentially dissident family members than how to perform initiations and have multiple gurus in the face of a potentially large number of dissident members of the ISKCON family. How we allowed these final moments of his personal presence to slip by without milking more detailed answers to quintessential questions needed for the future peace of his spiritual corporation, will always haunt me."

Yes, there are no instructions for "multiple gurus." So why do it? Without the defective indoctrinations by an ulteriorly-motivated ISKCON guru cartel, it is clear Srila Prabhupada made a very simple arrangement for the future via his July 9 Order that finalizes a system already in place. For those with the guru disease, it is hard to understand. There were no elaborate instructions and discussions in Srila Prabhupada's last months because he had already given his simple formula of continuing with ritvik representatives. This system he gradually set up since 1969. "Actually, Prabhupada never appointed any gurus. He didn't appoint eleven gurus. He appointed eleven ritviks. He never appointed them gurus. Myself and the other GBC have done the greatest disservice to this movement the last three years because we interpreted the appointment of ritviks as the appointment of gurus. [...] And that's all that it was, and it was never any more than that. If it had been more than that, you can bet your bottom dollar that Prabhupada would have spoken for days and hours and weeks on end about how to set up this thing with the gurus, but he didn't because he already had said it a million times." (Tamal's Confessions Dec. 12, 1980)

(1) Q: Who will succeed you when you die? SP: I will never die! I will live forever from my books and you will utilise. (2) "There was one doubt that was plaguing me... I had always been taught when I was first joining that the parampara is like a link, a chain. If you don't have the perfect link, if you are not initiated- You really cannot go back to Godhead... I presented this question to Prabhupada. I followed Srila Prabhupada from Rupa Goswami's Samadhi back into the courtyard, and just before Srila Prabhupada took the steps, in the courtyard, I said 'We are distributing so many books but if people who read them aren't initiated then they can't go back to Godhead.' And Prabhupada turned and looked at me right in the eyes and he said 'Just by reading my books they are initiated'" (Prabhupada Memories #31 Vaikunthanatha das, re: Vrindaban, 1972)

WHAT IS THE DEFINITION OF DIKSHA INITIATION?

Is there a difference between the initiation ceremony conducted by an officiating or deputy priest and the actual diksha spiritual initiation of a sincere disciple by a qualified diksha guru? Yes, the ceremony and actual initiation are very different, but this is not usually understood. Diksha, or formal initiation into the sampradaya, is the sacred spiritual contract between the guru and the disciple in which the guru accepts the disciple as his student and the disciple accepts the guru as his master. Although diksha occurs in the heart, it is usually, but not always, marked by a ceremonial ritual where the disciple participates in an agnihotra yajna (fire sacrifice) and makes certain vows. Dhira Govinda das described the essence of the process of diksha:

"...One's current link to the disciplic succession, as delineated by Srila Prabhupada at the end of his Introduction to Bhagavad-gita As It Is, is understood in terms of reception of transcendental knowledge, divya-jnana. To summarize this point, the most important aspect of the initiation process is the transmission of divya-jnana, transcendental knowledge. Transmission of divya-jnana is in no way whatsoever dependent on anything physical, including geographical proximity, or physical presence on the same planet at the same time. Srila Prabhupada gives divya-jnana, as we sing every morning, Divya-jnan hrde prokasito. For those who receive divya-jnana from Srila Prabhupada, Srila Prabhupada is their direct link to the disciplic succession. This fact is not dependent on date of formal initiation. Srila Prabhupada is the giver of divya-jnana for so many sincere devotees who never had physical interface, in the ordinary sense, with him. To deny or attempt to obscure this fact, is violence and ignorance in the name of "spirituality".

Too often, in the Hare Krishna movement, "initiation" has come to be understood, albeit implicitly, or even defined, as primarily about an "event" rather than a process. The conceptualizations and practices surrounding the event, and the term "initiation," have often largely obscured and interfered with the relationship between Srila Prabhupada and the initiate. This is actually very sad and unfortunate, a tragedy. The proper understanding of the siddhanta on diksha initiation and actual conclusion in Srila Prabhupada's teachings, with respect to shastric precedent, parampara history, logic, the personal experiences, and common sense- has evaded many devotees.

Quotes from Srila Prabhupada about DIKSHA or INITIATION: (1) "Diksha is the process by which one can awaken his transcendental knowledge and vanquish all reactions caused by sinful activity." (CC Mad 15.108 purport) (2) "Diksha actually means initiating a disciple with transcendental knowledge by which he becomes freed from all material contamination." (CC Mad 4.111 purport) (3) "Initiation means receiving the pure knowledge of spiritual consciousness." (CC Mad 9.61 purport) (4) "The disciple and Spiritual Master are never separated because the Spiritual Master always keeps company with the disciple as long as the disciple follows strictly the instructions of the Spiritual Master." (SBhag 4:28:47 purport) (5) "Initiation is a formality. If you are serious, that is real initiation. If you have understood this Krishna philosophy and if you have decided that you will take Krishna consciousness seriously and preach the philosophy to others, my touch is simply a formality. It is your determination. That is initiation." (The Search for the Divine, BTG #49) (6) "This is the process of initiation. [...] He promises to execute the order of the spiritual master. Then, the spiritual master takes care of him and elevates him to spiritual emancipation." (CC Mad 24.256 purport) (7) "The chanting Hare Krishna is our main business, that is real initiation. And as you are all following my instruction, in that matter, the initiator is already there. Now the next initiation will be performed as a ceremony officially, of course that ceremony has value because the name, Holy Name, will be delivered to the student from the disciplic succession, it has got value, but in spite of that, as you are going on chanting." (SPL Aug. 19, 1968) (8) "So diksha means the initiation to begin transcendental activities. That is called initiation. Therefore we take promise from the disciple that 'You chant so many times,' 'Yes, sir.' 'You observe these rules and regulations,' 'Yes, sir.' That is initiation. He has to observe; he has to chant. Then everything comes automatically." (SP Lecture Feb. 22, 1973) (9) "In my books the philosophy of Krishna Consciousness is explained fully so if there is anything you do not understand, then you simply have to read again and again. By reading daily the knowledge will be revealed to you and by this process your spiritual life will develop." (SPL Nov. 22, 1974) Srila Prabhupada directly states that reading his books acts as the process of transcendental knowledge being revealed and developing one's spiritual life (making one "eligible"). This is the diksha process, the awakening of transcendental knowledge, which requires the spiritual mercy and power of a pure devotee.

THE PROCESS OF INITIATION (from Prominent Link by Dhira Govinda das)

Srila Prabhupada described initiation as a process, with the essence of this process being the delivery of divya-jnana, or transcendental knowledge, from the spiritual master to the disciple. When we refer to the spiritual master giving transcendental knowledge to the disciple, it is understood that transcendental knowledge originates with Sri Krishna and comes through the guru. (yatha kancanatam yati kamsyam rasa-vidhanatah/ tatha diksha-vidhanena dvijatvam jayate nrinam) "As bell metal, when mixed with mercury, is transformed to gold, a person, even though not golden pure, can be transformed into a brahmana, or dvija, simply by the initiation process." (SBhag 4:31:10 purport). On June 17, 1976, Srila Prabhupada described initiation as follows: "So initiation means, the Sanskrit word is diksha. Diksha, divya jnana knapayati iti diksha. Divya-jnana." Though in the following quotes Srila Prabhupada describes "diksha," the fundamental premise of this paper is not dependent on terminologies such as "diksha," "siksha," and "diksha guru." This will be further explained later in this section. In CC Mad 15:108 purport, Srila Prabhupada quotes Srila Jiva Goswami as follows. "Diksha is the process by which one can awaken his transcendental knowledge and vanquish all reactions caused by sinful activity. A person expert in the study of the revealed scriptures knows this process as diksha." Also Srila Prabhupada writes: "Diksha actually means initiating a disciple with transcendental knowledge by which he becomes freed from all material contamination." (CC Mad 4:111 purport) On July 29, 1968, Srila Prabhupada lectured: "This is called initiation. Or initiation from the very beginning. This is called diksha. The Sanskrit term is called diksha. Diksha means... Di, divya-jnanam, transcendental knowledge, and kna, ikna. Ikna means darshana, to see, or knapayati, explain. That is called diksha." On Feb. 22, 1973, Srila Prabhupada lectured "There are two words, divya-jnana. Divya-jnana means transcendental, spiritual knowledge. So divya is di, and jnanam, knapayati, explaining, that is kna, de-kna. This is called diksha,...So diksha means the initiation to begin transcendental activities. That is called initiation." On Dec. 29, 1973, Srila Prabhupada confirmed "Diksha means initiation." From Srila Prabhupada's lecture on July 11, 1976: "Divya-jnana hade prokacito. What is that divya-jnana? Divya-jnana is that we are all servant of Krishna, and our only business is to serve Krishna...This is divya-jnana. Diksha. Diksha means from this divya-jnana."

Initiation, as described above, is a process. Components of this process include receiving and implementing the instructions to wear kanti mala and Vaishnava tilak, and receiving a Vaishnava name. The most essential aspect of initiation is receiving transcendental knowledge from a realized spiritual master. Ch. 4 BGita begins "I instructed this imperishable science of yoga to the sun-god, Vivasvan, and Vivasvan instructed it to Manu, the father of mankind, and Manu in turn instructed it to Ikshvaku." Clearly, instructing the disciple in transcendental knowledge, rather than any formal element of the process of initiation, is the essence of the disciplic succession. Further, in BGita (4:34), the meaning of the word "upadeksyanti" is given as "they will initiate," and in the verse this process of initiation consists of imparting knowledge from the spiritual master to the disciple. Srila Prabhupada is giving transcendental knowledge, and thus he is performing the most important element of the process of initiation. [...] While it may be asserted that others are also imparting divya-jnana, even this divya-jnana may be understood as coming indirectly from Srila Prabhupada, though some may opine that that transcendental knowledge is also Srila Prabhupada's direct mercy. Leaving aside that issue, it is incontestably true that many devotees, including many who were officially initiated after Srila Prabhupada's departure, and many for whom the Vaishnava who performed the initiation ceremony is in good standing in ISKCON, receive more direct divya-jnana (by the most narrow definition of the term "direct") from Srila Prabhupada than any other Vaishnava, through Srila Prabhupada's books, tapes, and murti. For these devotees Srila Prabhupada is performing the most essential [and vital] part of the initiation process [...]

Someone may assert "If transcendental knowledge is given by someone other than the Vaishnava who performs the initiation ceremony, then that transcendental knowledge can only be called siksha, not diksha. Therefore, it cannot rightly be said that Srila Prabhupada is giving diksha. He is giving siksha." In the PL framework, the essential focus is on the process of initiation, which is founded on the transmission of transcendental knowledge. Terminology and labeling is not a chief concern. [...] For devotees who are receiving divya-jnana directly from Srila Prabhupada, [...] it can rightly be said that Srila Prabhupada is their direct, current, and prominent link to the parampara, with "direct, current, and prominent link" defined as "the Vaishnava who directly gives transcendental knowledge more than any other devotee."

Many Vaishnavas transmit transcendental knowledge to others. [...] If we examine a typical scenario in Srila Prabhupada's movement we find that many of the aspects of the initiation process, such as the instructions to wear tilak and neck beads, and to chant the Hare Krishna Maha-Mantra a prescribed number of times every day, are often provided by a devotee other than the Vaishnava who conducts the initiation ceremony. The Vaishnava who conducts the initiation ceremony gives the spiritual name, and at the ceremony the initiate declares vows. These are important aspects of the initiation process, though they are by no means the entire process, and therefore in many instances it is questionable whether the devotee performing the initiation ceremony can unambiguously be termed the "diksha guru." Even if "diksha guru" is defined solely in terms of the performance of the initiation ceremony, one's current and direct link to the disciplic succession, as delineated by Srila Prabhupada at the beginning of BGita As It Is, is understood in terms of reception of transcendental knowledge. To summarize this point, the most important aspect of the initiation process is the transmission of divya-jnana, transcendental knowledge, and this function is performed for members of Srila Prabhupada's movement by Srila Prabhupada. For those in his movement, regardless of when they received formal initiation, Srila Prabhupada is the direct link to the parampara. We contend that Srila Prabhupada will continue to serve as the current and direct link at least for the duration of his movement. Also, we suggest that all who contact his movement should arrive at the point where they do experience Srila Prabhupada as the giver of direct divya-jnana in their spiritual lives, or we say he is not ready to be formally initiated.

When someone first contacts ISKCON, at least in most parts of the organization, for a few months he is encouraged to directly accept Srila Prabhupada as his guru. We suggest that once someone has done this, as evidenced by accepting Srila Prabhupada in his heart as his spiritual master and following Srila Prabhupada's instructions, the newcomer does not need to search for another Vaishnava to connect him with Srila Prabhupada. The newcomer is already directly connected with Srila Prabhupada, who is his current link to the parampara. Of course, many Vaishnavas have inspired the devotee, and will continue to do so. These Vaishnavas are also serving as his guru because they are helping him to understand Krishna consciousness and Srila Prabhupada's instructions, and to apply those instructions to his life. Still, by virtue of being the giver of direct divya-jnana, Srila Prabhupada is the devotee's link to the disciplic succession. The formal initiation ceremony is an official acknowledgement the devotee has established a direct link with Srila Prabhupada, which is not made at the time of the ceremony. If the devotee has not already directly linked with Srila Prabhupada at the time of the formal initiation, then he shouldn't be participating in the initiation ceremony. The Vaishnava conducting the initiation ceremony does not become the connection between the initiate and Srila Prabhupada. The direct link between the initiate and Srila Prabhupada already exists. The connection does not [suddenly] become indirect at the time of the ceremony. In a lecture Dec. 10, 1976, Srila Prabhupada said: "...from 1922 to 1933 practically I was not initiated, but I got the impression of preaching Chaitanya Mahaprabhu's cult. That I was thinking. And that was the initiation by my Guru Maharaja. Then officially I was initiated in 1933 because in 1923 I left Calcutta." Thus, it seems that the essence of initiation is the acceptance of divya-jnana, and not the formal ceremony. In The NOD's Introduction Srila Prabhupada explains, "The connection with the spiritual master is called initiation." This connection is what links the disciple with the parampara and with Krishna. Srila Prabhupada is transmitting transcendental knowledge, and we are confident he will do so for many generations. In this essential sense, Srila Prabhupada is initiating sincere followers. In fact, we propose that accepting divya-jnana, or initiation, from Srila Prabhupada, and thereby directly connecting with him, is the qualification for one to become formally initiated in Srila Prabhupada's movement. Again, the official initiation ceremony is a formal acknowledgement that the devotee has directly connected with Srila Prabhupada. In the essential sense of the term "initiated," Srila Prabhupada is initiating the devotee by directly delivering to him transcendental knowledge. The initiate is a student and disciple of Srila Prabhupada, in that he is embracing and assisting to spread the teachings of Srila Prabhupada. Through submissive service to Srila Prabhupada and Srila Prabhupada's followers the devotee receives transcendental knowledge. The devotee may also simultaneously be a student of other Vaishnavas to the extent that these other Vaishnavas are instrumental in the Krishna conscious educational process of the initiate. (END)

Editor's note: The author explains that as a result of enriched realization of the nuances of Srila Prabhupada's teachings, example and use of language, in the years after 2001 he has come to favor the terms 'current link' and 'direct link', rather than 'prominent link'. We see in PL's ending remarks: "Srila Prabhupada writes 'There are different levels of acquired knowledge—direct knowledge, knowledge received from authorities, transcendental knowledge, knowledge beyond the senses, and finally spiritual knowledge.' (SBhag 4:12:19 purport) Deeper understanding of these types of knowledge could enhance our appreciation of the kinds of pramanas potentially available from spiritual masters at differing levels of realization. [...] Our purpose in this philosophical project is to gain a deeper and more precise understanding of the essence of the guru-disciple relationship, and a better grasp on Srila Prabhupada's personal relationship, in practice and ideal, with all members of his movement." It is clear that PL's goal was to tactfully and gradually introduce philosophical concepts to stimulate thoughtful, honest discussions in the ISKCON institution, hoping to generate a healthier devotee society where truth and istagosthi are encouraged rather than blind adherence to doctrines issued by a self-serving guru regime. This was an approach to avoid directly debating whether ISKCON gurus are authentic, and to simply establish Srila Prabhupada as available for diksha. Nevertheless, the GBC-guru cartel and the SAC "ruled" that PL was deviant philosophy and the conversation was effectively suppressed. But the way in which Dhira Govinda wrote has brought and continues to bring, many sincere souls to Srila Prabhupada, who otherwise would likely not come to realize Srila Prabhupada as their current link to the parampara- at least, not for many years, decades or lifetimes.

MADHVAS AND RAMANUJAS ONLY GIVE DIKSHA VIA OFFICIATING REPRESENTATIVES

By Chancalapati das, ISKCON Bangalore, Sept. 1, 2016

Recently I had the opportunity of interacting with a few scholars of Madhva sampradaya in Bangalore and Udipi. One of them was an elderly Sanskrit scholar, a 70 year old retired university professor, a respected teacher and follower of Madhva philosophy in Bangalore. The discussion with him led to the subject of the theological differences between ISKCON Bangalore and ISKCON Mumbai.

In the course of the discussion, I asked the scholar: “In your sampradaya when upanayana is performed, as it is the practice, one may receive the Gayatri mantra from one’s father, uncle or grandfather –in such cases who is considered to be the deliverer of the candidate undergoing upanayana?” He emphatically and proudly declared, “We are Madhvas! For all Madhvas, the deliverer is Sri Madhvacharya. He is our mula guru. We follow his siddhanta, his understanding, his teachings, his practices and hence he is our deliverer.” I continued: “In case if one receives the Gayatri mantra from one of sannyasis of the Madhva sampradaya, the head pontiff of a Matha, then who is considered to be the deliverer?” He was still emphatic in his reply, “Even then the deliverer is Sri Madhvacharya alone.”

“Even if one has received the mantra from a sannyasi...?” I quizzed. “Deliverance from the material world,” he continued, “and admittance to Vaikuntha is not a small matter. It requires exceptional spiritual qualifications and special blessings of the Lord. And for all Madhvas, Sri Madhvacharya is the one who has such powers from the Lord to deliver.” “If Sri Madhvacharya is the deliverer,” I asked, “then what is the role played by the giver of the Gayatri mantra – maybe the father, grandfather or even a sannyasi of the Madhva Matha?” “All of them are acting as agents or representatives of Sri Madhvacharya.”

“Is this your own understanding or do all Madhvas hold this view?” was my next question. “This is the correct understanding of all Madhvas for nearly eight centuries.” And he added further, “This is so not only for the Madhvas, it is so for all the followers of Sri Ramanujacharya –their deliverer is Sri Ramanuja. Even for the followers of Sri Shankara, the understanding is that one who gives them brahma sayujya is Shankaracharya. There is no doubt about this.” Next he went on to address our situation in ISKCON, “And for all the devotees of ISKCON since you follow the teachings of Srila Prabhupada, read his books, practice what he has taught, Srila Prabhupada is the deliverer for all ISKCON devotees.” This discussion with the Madhva scholar was soon after one of the mediation meetings some of us representing the ISKCON Bangalore group had in Mumbai with some of the senior members of the International GBC body of ISKCON Mumbai group. One of the important points of discussion was this: Is Srila Prabhupada the deliverer of every devotee of ISKCON?

We, from the ISKCON Bangalore group, had argued that Srila Prabhupada is and shall be the deliverer of all devotees of ISKCON and for all generations of ISKCON devotees in the future too. And we had urged that this fact should be emphasized and celebrated all over ISKCON. But the senior members of ISKCON GBC contended that Srila Prabhupada is (only) one of the transcendental agents and not the single agent. They had argued that the holy name, the Deities, the transcendental knowledge from the shastras, the present ISKCON gurus –all of them play a role; and ultimately Lord Krishna is the one who delivers all devotees. Hence it is inappropriate, they reasoned, to ascribe this deliverer position to Srila Prabhupada alone. It was ironical that here was a Madhva scholar who was willing to recognize the position of Srila Prabhupada as the deliverer of all ISKCON devotees, and which even the senior members of the GBC were unwilling to accept. During the course of our discussions with the GBC members, we shared the following quotes of Srila Prabhupada to substantiate our arguments: (1) guru-rupe krishna kripa karena bhakta-gane: Lord Krishna in the form of the spiritual master delivers His devotees. (CC Adi 1.45) This quote is particularly important. Even if one says that Lord Sri Krishna is the ultimate deliverer of all devotees, this verse says how Lord Krishna delivers his devotees: in the form of the spiritual master, Lord Krishna delivers. (2) “Samsara-dava. You are singing daily. Samsara-davanala-lidha-loka-tranaya karunya-ghanaghanatvam. One who can deliver from this entanglement of material, miserable condition of life, he is guru. That is the first definition of guru.” (SPConv Nov. 14, 1975)

(3) “Yahara prasade bhai, e bhava toriya yai. If one is favored by guru, then the path to cross over the nescience is clear. And krishna-prapti hoy yaha hoite: by the favor of guru, one gets Krishna.

...This is bhagavad-bhakti-yoga.” (SPecture July 24, 1974) (4) “It is the spiritual master who delivers the disciple from the clutches of maya by initiating him into the chanting of the Hare Krishna maha-mantra. In this way a sleeping human being can revive his consciousness by chanting [the Hare Krishna mantra]. In other words, the spiritual master awakens the sleeping living entity to his original consciousness so that he can worship Lord Vishnu. This is the purpose of diksha, or initiation. Initiation means receiving the pure knowledge of spiritual consciousness.” (CC Mad 9.61) (5) “The spiritual master is therefore worshipped as one who delivers the disciple from the mire of ignorance with the light of the torch of knowledge. The word paragam is very significant. Paragam refers to one who can take the disciple to the other side.” (SBhag 3.25.8)

Continuing my discussion with the Madhva scholar, my next question to him was about diksha and diksha guru. I asked, “What is the understanding of diksha or initiation in the Madhva sampradaya?” His instant reply came in the form of another question to me: “What diksha do you mean?” “There are....” I stammered. “Yes, there are many kinds of diksha in Vedic culture and also in our Madhva sampradaya,” he continued. “We have the Brahma Gayatri diksha, when one receives the Gayatri mantra from the guru. The sannyasa ashrama diksha, when one enters sannyasa ashrama. The Vaishnava diksha, when one receives a Vaishnava mantra with mudra dharana and so on. The matha diksha, when one is formally initiated into one of the Madhva mathas. A vrata diksha when one takes up a certain vrata. About which diksha are you asking?” Prabhupada Lilamrita (Vol 2) describes in great detail how Srila Prabhupada explained what diksha is when he first introduced initiation in his first storefront ISKCON New York temple in 1966: “And now, I will tell you what is meant by initiation. Initiation means that the spiritual master accepts the student and agrees to take charge, and the student accepts the spiritual master and agrees to worship him as God.” The young Western students who were frequenting the storefront temple were shocked and needed more explanation. Some of them went up to Swamiji's apartment and asked: “Does what you told us this morning mean we are supposed to accept the spiritual master to be God?” “That means he is due the same respect as God, being God's representative,” Swamiji had replied, calmly. “Then he is not God?” “No,” Swamiji said, “God is God. The spiritual master is His representative. Therefore, he is as good as God because he can deliver God to the sincere disciple.”

In other words, initiation is a formal agreement by the spiritual master to deliver the disciple and a reciprocal obligation of the disciple to offer the same respect to the spiritual master that is due to God, as the spiritual master is God's representative and he can deliver God to the sincere disciple. Keeping this definition of initiation in mind, I informed the Madhva scholar, “Initiation that Srila Prabhupada introduced in ISKCON means that the spiritual master agrees to deliver the disciple from the material world and take him back home, back to the spiritual world.” “Oh, that kind of initiation!” he exclaimed, “In our sampradaya, that is done only by Madhvacharya.” “What about the others who give the Gayatri mantra, teach the shastras, etc.?” “They are all acting as his representatives. But the deliverance of the devotee is done by Madhvacharya alone.” He gave an analogy from his university experience. “There may be many colleges that teach so many subjects to the students, but the degree is awarded to the student by the university alone. No one else can award the degree.”

It is important to appreciate the definition or the form of initiation that Srila Prabhupada introduced in ISKCON. To appreciate this, we must understand what was happening in the Gaudiya sampradaya and what Srila Prabhupada's own spiritual master Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakura did during his time. The initiation or diksha that was prevalent in Gaudiya Vaishnava sects was the siddha-pranali diksha. This diksha involved the revelation of the siddha deha of the candidate in the spiritual world. However, Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakura rejected this practice as it was applicable only to liberated souls. He radically revised the concept of initiation in the Gaudiya Math institution. Following in his footsteps, Srila Prabhupada introduced initiation in ISKCON and he defined it as the acceptance of the spiritual master to deliver the disciple and acceptance of the disciple to regard the spiritual master as good as God. Hence it is the obligation of all followers of Srila Prabhupada to accept and practice this understanding of initiation in ISKCON.

In the next few weeks, I met another renowned Madhva scholar from Udupi. The discussion went on with him also on the same lines. He too asserted emphatically that Sri Madhvacharya alone is the deliverer for all the Madhvas. And he also confirmed that all devotees of ISKCON should regard Srila Prabhupada as the deliverer of all the ISKCON devotees, even if he is not physically present. The next discussion was with one of the renowned pontiffs of a Madhva Matha. The discussion was on the same lines, but this sannyasi raised an important question: “If you accept Srila Prabhupada as the deliverer for all ISKCON devotees, then are you saying Srila Prabhupada is what Madhvacharya is for the Madhvas?” His question implied whether we regard Srila Prabhupada in the same way that Madhvas regard Madhvacharya. “Precisely,” I said, “the devotees of ISKCON regard Srila Prabhupada as their deliverer just as Madhvas regard Sri Madhvacharya as their deliverer.” I paid my respects to the pontiff of the Madhva Matha and as I walked out of His Holiness’ presence I recalled several instructions where Srila Prabhupada has assured that he would deliver his disciples. He has repeatedly given the assurance that if we follow his instructions strictly –chant the holy names without offences, study his books, follow the daily program chalked out by him, serve his mission – he will deliver us.

“It is a basic principle that one must accept a bona fide spiritual master in order to achieve the highest perfection of life, love of God. I thank all of you very much for accepting me as your spiritual master, and I promise that I will take you back to home, back to Godhead. I ask you all to promise me to always chant at least 16 rounds, follow the regulative principles, read our books and try to preach this Krishna Consciousness Movement all over the world.” (SPL Nityananda das Nov. 12, 1971) In fact, Srila Prabhupada defined initiation as the assurance of the spiritual master to deliver the disciple if the disciple agrees to follow his instructions seriously and regard the spiritual master as good as God. The song that is sung by all ISKCON devotees during the daily guru puja to Srila Prabhupada vigraha (deity) asserts this position of Srila Prabhupada: yahara prasade bhai, e bhava tariya yai, krishna-prapti haya yaha haite– by the mercy of the spiritual master one can cross over the material existence and attain Krishna. In fact, Srila Prabhupada has taught that all the great acharyas of the guru parampara are deliverers and they are of the same category: “The spiritual master, being in the disciplic succession stemming from Narada Muni, is in the same category with Narada Muni.” (CC Mad 24.258 purport) Srila Prabhupada is part of the guru parampara as is Madhvacharya. They are in the same category. They are deliverers of their followers, as are all the great acharyas in the guru parampara. (END)

COMMENTS: ISKCON claims this system of initiation is NOT practiced anywhere in any Vaishnava sampradaya, but this is another of their lying bluffs. Yet, regardless of what the Madhvas do, Srila Prabhupada is fully authorized and empowered as a shaktyavesha avatar to create and install a ritvik representative system for initiations after his physical departure, regardless of precedents, tradition, shastra, history, others’ opinions, etc. Srila Prabhupada made himself available for diksha initiation via his officiating acharyas.

SRILA PRABHUPADA IS THE EFFECTIVE DIKSHA GURU

Even though ISKCON insists it is not possible for anyone to take diksha initiation from Srila Prabhupada after his physical departure in 1977, the fact is he remains the effective diksha guru for everyone in his movement, and this is nothing they can do to change this. ISKCON insists all new devotees must take diksha initiation from one of their conditioned soul, rubber-stamped gurus, but what can these unauthorised gurus give to their cheated disciples? Can they give actual diksha, or transcendental knowledge in the spiritual heart? Can they really remove the illusion of their disciples by the torchlight of spiritual knowledge? They can only do so by deference to Srila Prabhupada’s worship, books, service, and mercy. They themselves have little to nothing to give their disciples except Srila Prabhupada, who do not need their unauthorised guru to avail themselves of Srila Prabhupada’s mercy and diksha. Srila Prabhupada clearly confirmed this arrangement for his mercy in his July 9 Order. Anyone who follows Srila Prabhupada’s instructions by chanting Hare Krishna, worshipping the deity, honoring only prasadam, abiding by the rules of spiritual life, studying his books, listening to his lectures and bhajans, having kirtan as he taught us, and so on- is taking Srila Prabhupada as their guru and will get diksha or mercy from him. The diksha process will go on in this way for a lifetime and Srila Prabhupada was the diksha guru all along, and their ISKCON "guru" was, at best, a siksha guru who helped one surrender to Srila Prabhupada. Although ISKCON says Srila Prabhupada is today only the primary siksha guru, in reality he is the diksha guru for everyone who comes into contact with his mercy. This is an unescapable reality because there is little to no spiritual substance anywhere other than Srila Prabhupada's mercy and legacy. ISKCON gurus are diksha gurus only in name and in their dreams- a pretense and charade.

So the offenses then come in at least 3 ways: (1) No appreciation or credit to the actual source of benefit: similar to mayavadis declaring the Absolute Truth has no arms, legs, name, body, etc, a serious offense to Lord Krishna. Taking Srila Prabhupada's gifts of transcendental knowledge, spiritual advancement, bhakti, going back to Godhead, and instead worship and glorify an imposter, is very offensive. (2) Interfering, distracting, and blocking devotees from giving their full faith and attention to the actual giver of divine grace is perhaps the greatest crime of all, to kidnap persons and hold them hostage, blocking their rights and opportunity to receive the mercy of a pure devotee of the Lord. It is like denying their spiritual welfare. (3) Diluting Srila Prabhupada's mercy with their book changes and doctrinal deviations. They cheapen the position of the real uttama adhikari by falsely assuming that position themselves, a great offense.

"Since diksha is the transmission of transcendental knowledge from the self-realized person directly into the heart or soul of a sincere disciple, something which cannot be done by a non-self-realized and unauthorized guru, then any and all diksha taking place in the Hare Krishna movement is actually coming from Srila Prabhupada, even if the formalities of yajna, name-giving, and handing of beads is performed by those who pretend to be the diksha-giver. In reality, they are only conducting the rituals. They are smarta brahmanas. In ISKCON, where everyone more or less follows Srila Prabhupada's basic teachings, Srila Prabhupada is the actual initiator or bestower of Krishna, regardless of the institutional doctrines, proclamations, and mistaken beliefs. This will be true as long as Srila Prabhupada's books, instructions, recordings, photos, deity, etc. are utilized in ISKCON. Srila Prabhupada said: Some admit, some do not. These shameless ISKCON guru imposters are claiming Srila Prabhupada's mercy as their own. Such criminals- parasitic thieves." (Nityasiddha das, 2017)

THEY ADMIT SRILA PRABHUPADA CAN DO SO MANY THINGS, BUT HE CANNOT INITIATE?

If anyone is at all interested in being a devotee of Lord Krishna, it is practically impossible not to end up availing oneself of Srila Prabhupada's amazing mercy in the form of his books, teachings, followers, temples, or so many other reaches of influence. So, keeping in mind the real definition of initiation, we see increasingly over the years since Srila Prabhupada departed that ISKCON leaders and so-called gurus praise Srila Prabhupada in many ways, much of it with good spiritual understanding. Even the various Gaudiya Math branches also are very appreciative of Srila Prabhupada's massive contribution to Lord Chaitanya's movement and Gaudiya Vaishnava tradition and culture. The GBC since 1978 has gradually reinforced and safeguarded Srila Prabhupada's preeminent position in ISKCON, as the primary siksha guru, the yuga acharya, the sampradaya acharya, the preeminent guide, the center, the Founder-Acharya forever, and so on. Through all of ISKCON's turmoil and controversy, Srila Prabhupada's guru puja was never affected- it remains today a major means for anyone to connect directly with him. In Satsvarupa's Srila Prabhupada Smaranam, we find more ways to appreciate SP's greatness. "Memories of Prabhupada are nectar... Prabhupada consciousness... he is non-different from Krishna... Through Srila Prabhupada Lord Krishna bestows mercy on us... 'If you want to know me, read my books...' Many second generation disciples have developed relationships equal and even greater than first-generation disciples... He is still living and open to reciprocate with those who want to serve him... You have many forms now like lecture form and book form... You are now The Authority who is quoted for everything... and even today (you are) the head of the ISKCON institution... Your unknown capacity to be there for me... Vani, or the sound record of your books, means also a living presence in the heart... You are almighty, and you can free me of my faults... Let me be silent and try to hear back from you... Some devotees are always living with you by virtue of their dedication to your mission... If we think of you, we go to you, I hope you'll take me at death... "

Yet, even after acknowledging the super-empowerment that makes Srila Prabhupada unquestionably a prominent shaktavesha avatara of Lord Krishna, the ISKCON GBC-guru cartel flatly denies Srila Prabhupada can accept new disciples after his physical departure. Incredible... What is so hard to understand about this? He can do all these other things but not this? Those who deny Srila Prabhupada's abilities and clear arrangements for the future initiation of his followers are simply protecting their own guru businesses. If Srila Prabhupada can initiate disciples, then who would want them? These unauthorized initiators would soon be out of business, like Betamax videos or fax machines are now outdated technologies. Their cherished desire of being a guru, and attachment to worship, facilities, servants, wealth, prestige, etc. is the motive for their denial of Srila Prabhupada as the current diksha guru (couched in their standard double-talk and word jugglery).

HE EMPOWERED HIS REPRESENTATIVES TO OFFICIATE THE DIKSHA PROCESS

QUESTION: How can you receive diksha mantras from a departed guru? When did the guru chant on your beads and give you the diksha mantras in your ear to hear? Why not take harinama and diksha from Mahaprabhu as well? We are not Christians... (Oct. 16, 2016) REPLY: Srila Prabhupada has explained what essential diksha is and he has deputized his leaders to carry out the formalities of the process while he remains the essential link. Who are we to say that he cannot continue to empower the process? What is our right to limit him? Has he limited himself? There is not a single pramana in any scripture to say that this cannot be done. And the physical living process is also still there. It's only a matter of what is the officiator's role. He does not usurp the initiator's role, which does not require physical presence. Srila Prabhupada has instructed his leaders to supervise the procedure and do the needful even without his physical presence. This was going on years before July 1977 and he cemented the same for thereafter, "henceforward." Even acharya in other Vaishnava lines have endorsed this process. One follows what the current empowered acharya tells us to do. That's the culture of parampara. Currency is not mere bodily baton passing. It's the transmission of divya jnana by adherence to the acharya's directives. It's based on empowerment and authorization by one's own guru to take that position, which can cut across time and time gaps. Each acharya devises a system as per time, place and circumstances to continue the parampara and the method of one acharya may differ from another. Srila Prabhupada has said this clearly. He has said in so many places that whether he is physically present or otherwise, the essential empowerment is there if the disciple agrees to follow the process as he has given to his followers through the delegation he has given to his leaders. That is the essential initiation or diksha.

Quotes have been given ad nauseum and yet people are so rooted in some regimented idea and formality rather than the essence of the matter. What can be done? We don't go cherry picking what the poorvacharyas did. It is not the poorvacharyas who have given the directive to follow the officiating acharya system to formalize the initiation. It is not they who adjusted the current conditions to make Krishna consciousness a global reality. It is Srila Prabhupada whom they have empowered to do so. And as a unique acharya in the parampara who gave a worldwide shape, it is his prerogative and approach to the parampara that we who have accepted him will primarily follow. It is his books that have given and continue to give us the divya jnanam kshapayati, i.e. deliverance by injecting transcendental knowledge based on which we have to come to Krishna Consciousness and are doing everything else. And by this, I am referring to those who have come to Krishna Consciousness through his mercy and who have accepted him as their ultimate guide. If others come through other channels, let them follow what they wish. We have no issues with them. But please leave Srila Prabhupada's specific mission to his own instructions and approach. If we wish to highlight what the poorvacharyas did by way of sadhana and initiation and if we go by that standard, then shouldn't we be doing all the other things they did instead of following what Srila Prabhupada has taught? How can we choose only what suits us? Also, although they have done xyz, is there an explicit directive on their part to say that this is the only way that it's to be done and this is the axiomatic principle at the crux of the matter? Furthermore, many of those poorvacharyas themselves were criticized during their own time on the same basis that they were not adhering to the then tradition and were bringing in changes. This has nothing to do with Christianity, Catholicism or churchianity. One should follow the acharya's directives and not start whimsically comparing across religions to get a cop out. Srila Prabhupada did not tell us to make comparisons. Srila Prabhupada has actually explained that the priest in the church is representing Christ and can do the needful while Christ remains the guru. So where is the question of no guidance or physical non-functionality in diksha formalization? [...] No, there is a process and procedure that Srila Prabhupada has set into operation in his mission and which he directed to continue for posterity. Siddhanta, not tradition, is the basis of following spiritual life, and it tells us to take shelter, instructions, and training from a bona fide spiritual master, and serve him as he decrees. Srila Prabhupada has stated how this is to be done for his followers, many of whom did not get a chance to personally serve his vapuh, be with him, or even meet him. We can't take some quote from shastra how it is to be done, only in the way we want it to be. He has already told us how to do it.

And tradition is merely the adoption of a modus operandi to realize the siddhanta, not siddhanta itself. All acharyas have formulated their own traditions. What is diksha ultimately? A fire sacrifice? Giving of beads or a name? No, these are formalities related to diksha which sadly gets passed off as diksha or essential initiation. Initiation means the transcendental knowledge he gives and to follow his directives and that is already there from the first day one accepts and follows Srila Prabhupada. Many Srila Prabhupada's disciples prior to 1977 got their initiation via letter or his appointed officiators. Often names were given by the zonal representative. Does it mean Srila Prabhupada rejected them? When did he give instructions to disband this system? In fact, he reconfirmed this modus operandi for his worldwide movement beyond his physical disappearance. If there is already no more Srila Prabhupada, what then is a devotee doing in ISKCON? What then are you getting when you read Srila Prabhupada's books, follow his process and sing prayers to him in the temple during guru puja? Puri Maharaja admits to what Srila Prabhupada has said, then says it's not possible. That is imprisoning an acharya in a very limited understanding of the past tradition. If we go by past traditions, let us not forget that every past had an earlier past from which it diverted. Bhaktisiddhanta was also faulted like this. The Goswamis had a different methodology to what the previous Madhva sadhus followed, although in the same line. And the Madhvas diverted their modus operandi from the times prior to Madhvacharya, and even the Brahmas per each kalpa had different ways of accepting initiation from the Lord as well. It's not past and present that matters. It's how the person we have accepted as our acharya instructs us and what we need to do to follow his set up to continue the line. That's the key. (END)

A QUESTION OF TERMINOLOGY by Dhira Govinda das

When Srila Prabhupada was physically present until late 1977, there was no name for the system of initiation he used. Everyone just called it initiation by Srila Prabhupada. Everything was simple. After Srila Prabhupada departed, everything could have still been simple, and it could have also just gone on being called initiation by Srila Prabhupada. Actually he gave no instructions as to any changes in the way things would go on. The July 9, 1977 letter (Ch.189) relieved Srila Prabhupada of any further physical involvement in his initiating of disciples in the future. He would no longer need to be consulted for initiation approvals, nor give the names, or anything, actually. Little by little he had been deputing the different parts of the process over the years to some senior men, until after July 9, 1977 it was completely on "auto-pilot" as others would handle all the affairs of the initiation process. Srila Prabhupada was spiritually still fully involved in the transmission of transcendental knowledge and his mercy into the hearts of his disciples on the spiritual non-dual platform, beyond the space-time material limitations, but externally he appeared totally uninvolved and even unaware. Of course, on the spiritual platform, Srila Prabhupada has an eternal relationship with each disciple, which must include from many planets and universes as well. Will anyone dispute he was not thus empowered?

Whether Srila Prabhupada was physically present or not, his initiations could go on with the system he had started in the late 1960's when he had senior men chanting on new initiates' beads and performing their fire sacrifice ceremonies. Whether Srila Prabhupada, until Nov. 14, 1977, was half a planet distant in India or Sweden and far from where new initiates were getting their beads and ceremonies, or whether, after his departure, he was half a universe away, preaching on another planet, new ISKCON initiates would still be getting their beads, names, and ceremonies. Nothing changed except Srila Prabhupada's physical location, which is not relevant since Srila Prabhupada makes himself spiritually present wherever his followers follow his instructions. Srila Prabhupada's system of initiation was not limited to his physicality either before or after his manifest presence on planet Earth. From ISKM's Initiations After 1977: *"In order for Srila Prabhupada to accept disciples even after his physical departure, he set up a system of initiation wherein his representatives, called ritviks (or priests) would officiate the initiation on his behalf and the transcendental movement would thus continue on and on. But in ISKCON today, the word ritvik is intolerable. They have completely demonized the word. [like anti-vaxxer, terrorist, etc] Anyone who identifies himself as a ritvik is considered the worst offender. Yet it was the very word used by Srila Prabhupada: Satsvarupa: Then our next question concerns initiations in the future, particularly at that time when you are no longer with us. We want to know how first and second initiations will be conducted. SP: Yes. I shall recommend some of you. After this is settled up. I shall recommend some of you to act as officiating acharya. Tamal: Is that called ritvik-acharya? Prabhupada: Ritvik. Yes. (SPConv May 28, 1977) This ritvik system of initiations is not a concoction of some disgruntled devotees but is the authorized method so mercifully given to us by Srila Prabhupada for the benefit of all of us." (END)*

However, when the 11 officiating acharyas or ritvik representatives that Srila Prabhupada had deputed to initiate on his behalf "henceforward" declared themselves instead as full successor acharyas who would initiate their own disciples, everything became confusing. Dualities of nomenclatures immediately became front and center as the question arose of who is your guru? Many devotees challenged the new ISKCON initiations as unauthorized, and the new "acharyas" charged the dissidents as dangerous deviants. Thus Srila Prabhupada's initiation system now had to be distinguished from the experimental, evolving ISKCON system. Since Srila Prabhupada had used the terms "ritvik," "ritvik representative," and "officiating acharya" in May and July 1977, those who held Srila Prabhupada as the sole diksha guru in his institution after his departure were called "ritviks." ISKCON also call "ritviks" as "posthumous initiation advocates." But "ritvik" means the priest who performs the rituals of initiation on behalf of Srila Prabhupada, not the one initiated or those who believe this was the manner in which initiations were meant to be done after Srila Prabhupada's departure. With regard to a phrase such as "ritvik initiation," this actually names the event based on the title of the devotee who is conducting the ceremony. Thus, the name seems to indicate a consciousness that, in some sense, places the devotee who performs the ceremony in the center. Thus to call the initiation a "Prabhupada initiation," "Current link initiation," or simply "Vaishnava initiation ceremony," indicates that in the center of the process of initiation is Srila Prabhupada, who is the current link to the parampara for the initiate. Even the term "harinama diksha" was not used by Srila Prabhupada. But Srila Prabhupada used the term ritvik, so why does the ISKCON GBC misleaders make "ritvik" to be a label with extremely negative connotations?

The word "ritvik" now is equivalent to a diseased zombie. Think how the American revolutionaries were called "traitors" in England but "patriots" at home- they had two different labels in a struggle for independence. Due to labeling hyperbolization, "ritviks" look for a "clean" label to distinguish themselves from those who think the disciplic succession always requires a living initiating guru. The labels are evolving. By 2022, perhaps the most common nomenclature for those who accept Srila Prabhupada as the sole diksha guru for the future is "Prabhupada Anuga." "Ritviks" are called Prabhupada Anugas, current-linkers, adherents to Prabhupada's initiation system, Prabhupadacharyas, Bhaktivedantas, or whatever. "Some minor terminology additions or adjustments, such a "Prabhupada Anuga," are not a bad thing if they serve to illustrate (rather than deny or obscure) the terms and meanings Srila Prabhupada taught. Any society will need to evolve and expand in various ways, so some new terms may be required." (Narasimha das, 2016)

"The ISKCON temples that follow the system of unauthorized self-proclaimed gurus find it difficult to manage the institution when gurus try to have control over the management affairs. When one tries to short-circuit the process given by Srila Prabhupada, invariably the system will eject him. That is what is happening now. If there is a problem in the institution, immediately the GBC will meet together and pass a resolution to stop something. Suppose a devotee serving in the temple wants a change of service and the temple president rejects his demand. If this devotee is an important disciple of his guru, the guru will call the president and compel him to change the service of the devotee. Or the disciple will go out and make a propaganda that the temple president does not respect their guru. Then there is whole politics. All of the devotees gang up against the temple president. So, GBC passes a resolution that gurus have no authority to instruct their disciples regarding their service. They end up passing this kind of resolutions to eject the gurus. Thus the gurus are unwillingly following the ritvik system. They have no authority. They are forced to do it. Either the institution system should be there or guru system should be there. When Prabhupada was there, both were one. Srila Prabhupada has blessed us and we are very fortunate that we have a wonderful, open, freely followed Prabhupadacharya system. In fact we shouldn't even call this a ritvik system. We are just like Madhvacharya and Ramanujacharya sampradayas. We are following Prabhupadacharya system." (Madhu Pandit das, 2016)

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ON INITIATION (Dhira Govinda das)

Q1: We are taught that our ISKCON initiating guru is as good as God, he should be worshiped, we must surrender to him unconditionally, and his instructions are absolute. Are you telling us that all those things are not true? If that is the case, then is he just a person that merely conducts an initiation ceremony and gives siksha? In that case his importance is negligible. A1: There is an expansive range of healthy, spiritually productive relationships between the devotee who conducts the initiation and the initiate. [...] The point is that Srila Prabhupada is available as the direct and current link to the parampara. This doesn't negate that non-diksha gurus may be elevated souls and have a positive role in our spiritual life.// Q2: Initiation is more than a name giving ceremony. It is when you are formally linked to the parampara. But if you are already linked to the parampara through Srila Prabhupada, then why do you need to go through the initiation ceremony at all? A2: [The acharyas] set up a system that includes a formal initiation ceremony, so it is important. But it is not the most important part of the initiation process. The most essential aspect of the process is reception of transcendental knowledge, etc. Yes, a follower of Srila Prabhupada is linked to the parampara through Srila Prabhupada, even before the formal ceremony. This doesn't mean that the formal ceremony is unimportant, but the most essential aspect of the process of initiation has at least substantially begun to occur before the ceremony due to connection to Srila Prabhupada by hearing, etc.

Q3: How can you say that you are not minimizing the guru if you are saying that his picture should not be on the altar, you should not chant his pranam-mantra, etc? A3: The pictures of many exalted Vaishnavas like Sukadeva Goswami are not on our altars. This doesn't mean that we are minimizing them. If someone chooses to worship the altar that Srila Prabhupada gave us, without change, that should be honored in Srila Prabhupada's organization. If we acknowledge that Srila Prabhupada can continue to give transcendental knowledge to those whom he formally initiated despite the fact that he is not present in his physical form (though he is present in his murti form), then what prevents Srila Prabhupada from directly giving transcendental knowledge, and thus "initiating" in the essential sense of the term, to those who have accepted him as their spiritual master and who did not receive formal initiation from him? If someone is fully surrendered to Srila Prabhupada as his/her direct link to the parampara, and manifests this surrender by humbly serving the Vaishnavas and the mission of Srila Prabhupada, what is the problem there?

Q4: You rightly point out that in our parampara there are many instances of disciplic successions or connections where no official initiation took place. Is there another explanation, except that it has been done before? A4: There is the evidence of shastra, philosophy, and logic. What more do we need that such an understanding is legitimate? If we need more, we have experience. Many experience Srila Prabhupada as the direct giver of transcendental knowledge, and thus the link to the parampara. This experience is backed by precedent, shastra, and philosophy. What then is the argument that such experiences should be invalidated in ISKCON? Srila Prabhupada should not be categorically closed out of serving in this role in his movement.

DEVOTEE TO ISKCON GURU: "...he establishes philosophically that Srila Prabhupada is the direct, current link for all ISKCON members to the parampara and can be the diksha guru for all members of ISKCON." REPLY FROM ISKCON GURU: "Dhira Govinda's statement about everyone taking diksha from Prabhupada has no basis in Prabhupada's instructions or in any precedent in our disciplic succession." DHIRA GOVINDA REPLY: Terminology, its uses and potential pitfalls, and all language, is ideally meant to enhance genuine dialogue, deepen understanding. It can also be used to obscure clarity and comprehension. So, in my essays I tried to use functional, behavioral terms rather than terms which for some might be a barrier to lucidity. E.g., since terms such as "siksha guru" and "diksha guru" have different meanings for different people, likely as a result of Srila Prabhupada's varying use of words such as "initiation" and "diksha," I used phrases such as "The devotee who conducts the initiation ceremony." Discussions about "Whose disciple are you?" can degenerate into hollow, perhaps politicized, as opposed to philosophical, conversations related to designations, upadhis, that may distract from profound grasp of essential principles. Srila Prabhupada emphasized that the essence of the process of diksha or initiation is the delivery of divya-jnana, or transcendental knowledge, from the spiritual master to the heart of the disciple. [...] [COMMENT: In ISKCON, where devotees still largely follow Srila Prabhupada's basic teachings like chanting and reading his books, etc., divya-jnana will come from Srila Prabhupada as his divine grace. Whether others are capable of awakening spiritual knowledge in the hearts of people is highly dubious.]

My advice to anyone is to cultivate your direct and personal relationship with Srila Prabhupada, who is fully available to anyone who follows his teachings. Certainly, we may study and serve under the care of many inspiring Vaishnavas. Our parampara, as delineated by Srila Prabhupada in his BGita Introduction, is defined by the Vaishnavas who directly gave divya-jnana. It's not defined by performance of an initiation ceremony, or even by presence on the same planet. Srila Prabhupada is "32" on that list. Are ISKCON gurus "33"? To fully take shelter of Srila Prabhupada is not "jumping over." Rather, it's intelligently taking shelter of the pure devotee, Srila Prabhupada, who is fully available as your direct and current link to the parampara. If someone says, "Well, my direct and current link is someone else"- that's up to you. [COMMENT: ...but not honoring that ISKCON is Srila Prabhupada's institution]. But if you say Srila Prabhupada is not available to serve as anyone's direct and current link to the parampara, then you've really gotten yourself into some difficulties with offenses- to Srila Prabhupada and his many sincere followers. If you say that you're aware that Srila Prabhupada is fully available as your current link, but you're choosing someone else as your supposed direct, current link... (END)

WHOSE DISCIPLE ARE YOU?

Going to a new temple, a regional festival, or Mayapur, and making acquaintances with new devotees, inevitably the question comes up, "Who is your guru?" This is actually a very strange and awkward question, as it reveals misunderstanding of who Srila Prabhupada is and what the various types of gurus are. Which guru are they asking about? Supersoul? Siksha? Diksha? Priest? "Consider the scenario for many who came to Srila Prabhupada's movement in, say, 1976. They never saw Srila Prabhupada, received a letter from him, and Srila Prabhupada didn't conduct his initiation ceremony, choose his name, or chant on his beads. If asked 'Who's your guru,' that devotee would respond in full truth, "Srila Prabhupada." In fact, the question might seem ludicrous. And, in that question and response, there wouldn't be need to cloud the consciousness with "siksha," "diksha," etc. For sure, that devotee will naturally be inspired by many Vaishnavas, and naturally he accepts them as gurus, devotees who inspire him on the path of devotional service- guru in the plural. But Srila Prabhupada is his "guru in the singular," his current and direct link to the parampara, even though the devotee was never in the physical presence of Srila Prabhupada, etc. So, what is the difference between that 1976 scenario, and today, or 100, or 1000 years from now?" (Dhira Govinda das)

THE REAL ISSUE (by Nityananda das)

ISKCON today presents their own rubber-stamped gurus as the diksha and siksha sources for their disciples, and although Srila Prabhupada is the "primary siksha guru for everyone," they even say that Srila Prabhupada's siksha can only be understood/appreciated/received via their fallible ISKCON diksha gurus. Make any sense? No, it does not. But this is what they feel is necessary to preserve their concocted guru system. As a result, the ISKCON culture has developed an identification label: Srila Prabhupada's pre-1978 disciples have the suffix ACBSP, Bhakticharu Swami disciples use BCS, Satsvarupa disciples use SDG, and so on. Whenever meeting new persons, the first question is: "Who is your guru?" For one who understands that Srila Prabhupada is THE diksha guru for ISKCON and for all followers of Srila Prabhupada's mission, this question is as strange as it is awkward. If one is not old enough to have been at least a teenager during Srila Prabhupada's physical presence, or if one became a Hare Krishna devotee after 1977, and you say that Srila Prabhupada is your guru, then the ISKCON-ite will assume you are a "ritvik," and do one of the following things: (1) Politely disengage and go away, thinking you are crazy and dangerous (2) Nervously say something about not getting involved in "politics" (3) Get a distressed look on their face as though coming upon a Nazi skinhead or an alien from Mars... Sadly, many ISKCON members do not read Srila Prabhupada's books, listen to his lectures, or even chant their rounds, although they would be hesitant to admit this. This is a fact in many localities around the world that Srila Prabhupada is simply not a real part of their program. They identify with ISKCON and their so-called guru, but with no idea how their guru became a guru, if he is a pure devotee, or what a pure devotee is.

The real issue in ISKCON is, whose disciple are you? Most everyone in ISKCON is availing themselves of Srila Prabhupada's mercy: his books, hopefully worshipping his deity form, following his instructions to chant Hare Krishna, with kirtan, regulative principles, observing Ekadasi and Vaishnava festivals, and attending a morning program. In so doing, they are following Srila Prabhupada as his student. Yet they give their heart, children, wealth, worship, and allegiance to their ISKCON vote-approved, conditioned guru instead. They may think they are disciples of Tamal or Bhakticharu, but in reality they are living and breathing as Srila Prabhupada's defacto disciple. Some admit it, some do not. They take Srila Prabhupada's mercy and worship someone else. This the nature of the offenses against Srila Prabhupada committed in ISKCON. They take everything from him but do not acknowledge his true position, his role in their lives, his living influence, and his shakti in raising them out of the modes and into Krishna consciousness. It is like an unfaithful wife who uses her lawfully married husband to maintain her but then prostitutes her time and affection to another man as though her husband were irrelevant, dead and gone. How much tolerance and patience does Srila Prabhupada have for this? At what point will Srila Prabhupada become disgusted and cut such offenders off? When he does so, these offenders will already be in so much illusion that the loss of His Divine Grace will go unnoticed. (END)

OBSCURING SRILA PRABHUPADA TO MAINTAIN THEIR OWN DIKSHA GURU STATUS

DEC. 2002 Back To Prabhupada/IRM essay: Satsvarupa das Goswami's (SDG) recent paper: "How All Generations Can Stay With Srila Prabhupada" begins with all the usual platitudes one has heard 1000 times from him and his associates. For example (1) "It was Srila Prabhupada who set the standards of sadhana and cleanliness, of purity and association. Whoever follows these basic practices and recognizes Srila Prabhupada as Krishna's direct representative is his follower." (2) "Whatever relationship we can imagine with Srila Prabhupada as a beloved spiritual master can be experienced by all devotees regardless of what year they joined because the relationship with Srila Prabhupada is eternal." (3) "Why shouldn't anyone anywhere in the world feel that if he took up Prabhupada's instructions, he could become Srila Prabhupada's follower?" (4) "If we simply use our intelligence to claim our relationship with Prabhupada by practicing Krishna consciousness in the mood in which he taught it, we will inherit the most wonderful relationship with Krishna's pure devotee, Srila Prabhupada." (5) "No follower of Srila Prabhupada is being denied his shelter. Srila Prabhupada can appear in their hearts, in their dreams, in their minds, and he can imbue their following of him with his own special quality of mercy." (6) "That was the purpose of the Srila Prabhupada-lilamrita, and if anyone reads it and opens himself to the possibility of a deep relationship with Srila Prabhupada, he will not only become a Prabhupadanuga, but he will taste the sweetness of Prabhupada's association."

So we can all follow Srila Prabhupada, thanks very much, but can we become his direct disciples? After all, according to SDG, it is Srila Prabhupada who is doing all the work: (a) "Srila Prabhupada's books are nondifferent from himself, people still come to Krishna consciousness through Srila Prabhupada's preaching." Yes, it is Srila Prabhupada who is doing most of the preaching, imparting transcendental knowledge via his books. (b) "People still make the commitment to chant the holy name because they have been convinced by Srila Prabhupada's encouragement." Yes, it is Srila Prabhupada who inspires new devotees to chant. (c) "Even though they are joining after Srila Prabhupada's disappearance, their attraction to Srila Prabhupada and their desire to follow him are what give them solidity in their attempts to practice spiritual life." Yes, it is also Srila Prabhupada who inspires the commitment new devotees have for practicing spiritual life.

One can ask what there is left for SDG and his 'guru' associates to do? ...given that Srila Prabhupada has already done everything. Surely if SDG is correct in his analysis it would be decent and honourable for him to step aside completely and allow Srila Prabhupada to continue initiating as he instructed in his July 9th directive. Especially since he claims: "Srila Prabhupada is just as accessible now as he was before his disappearance." If SDG believes this, then is he finally admitting that Srila Prabhupada can resume his rightful function as ISKCON's sole diksha guru, as he was before he physically departed? Unfortunately, not on your life: "Part of ISKCON's mood in following Prabhupada is that even though such persons must take diksha from one of Prabhupada's disciples and cannot receive diksha from Srila Prabhupada himself, Srila Prabhupada is ever the founder-acharya and thus the central focus of our branch of the sampradaya."

Above SDG has simply assumed that which needs to be proven, namely that for some reason Srila Prabhupada cannot remain the initiating guru for his movement via instructions he personally issued to his entire leadership. In order to convince us that the ritvik system is wrong SDG misrepresents Lord Chaitanya's 'amara' verse, along with Srila Prabhupada's many general orders quoting this verse, as a call for everyone to become diksha guru: "Instruct everyone to follow the orders of Lord Sri Krishna as they are given in Bhagavad-gita and Srimad-Bhagavatam. In this way become a spiritual master and try to liberate everyone in this land." (CC Mad 7.128) Surprisingly, SDG's erudition does not extend to the purports following this verse where it is stated: "It is best not to accept any disciples." (CC Mad 7.130 purport) So clearly, Lord Chaitanya's order, as conveyed to us by Srila Prabhupada, was not meant to refer to diksha as far as we, his followers, are concerned. The Final Order (1994) explained all this many years ago. Strangely SDG avoids all mention of this paper, even though it was commissioned by the GBC to correctly represent the ritvik position. Instead he cites an early flawed paper by Karnamrta das as a straw man to attack, even though it is not accepted by most pro-ritviks: "The first essay to appear on this topic was by Karnamrta das in VVR. His subtitle was telling and true to the experience of the times: "A Pragmatic Approach." Pragmatism means that truth is determined by whatever works best. In that essay he admitted that Srila Prabhupada had established a system, but because we were unqualified to follow that system, it would be more practical to follow something we could do." The Final Order [nor any "ritviks"] says anything like this, and what 'system' could SDG be alluding to? The old zonal acharya system he supported for a decade until forced to change by the North American rebellion? At least that original zonal system had some sort of basis, in that Srila Prabhupada selected the 11 names. The only problem was that they (including SDG) were only selected to act as ritviks. SDG says with regards the ritvik system: "The question more is, 'Did Srila Prabhupada teach in his books, lectures, or letters, that the ritvik system was what he wanted to establish after his disappearance?' I will not discuss the intricacies of this question here, but I will say here that Srila Prabhupada's main teaching was that the disciple becomes the next spiritual master." It is understandable that SDG should not want to go into the 'intricacies' since the ritvik system was the ONLY system left in place by Srila Prabhupada. There was no other 'system.' There was no mention of the zonal system, as practised by SDG for ten years, nor of the current multiple acharya successor system (rubber-stamped) in any of his books, lectures, etc. Even the GBC does not accept that a disciple can automatically initiate after the departure of his guru, since they themselves have an elaborate system for authorising ISKCON gurus to begin initiating. Their system is also not mentioned in any part of Srila Prabhupada's teachings, but that does not seem to trouble SDG. The only thing that troubles him is when people question his right to steal Srila Prabhupada's disciples. Then he says: "The GBC should also be open to discussing reform. But the process will not be effective in an environment of rebellion or anarchy."

If there is anarchy he only has himself to blame for stifling any real discussion, and supporting the banning, beating and intimidation of anyone who dares point to Srila Prabhupada's signed directive on how initiation was meant to run within ISKCON. He was only forced out of his zonal acharya position by a rebellion, and it is SDG and the GBC's continued insubordination over the ritvik issue that may lead to the same thing happening again. This rebellion is growing in force and strength, and SDG must be praying it does not overwhelm the GBC just as the previous one did. [But it looks like he will not be around much longer.] (END)

From SBhag we see how giving actual diksha is not just a cheap ritual or ceremony, it is a profound spiritual act: Verse: Thereafter, accompanied by plenary expansions, the fully opulent Supreme Personality of Godhead, who is all-auspicious for the entire universe, was transferred from the mind of Vasudeva to the mind of Devaki. Devaki, having thus been initiated by Vasudeva, became beautiful by carrying Lord Krishna, the original consciousness for everyone, the cause of all causes, within the core of her heart, just as the east becomes beautiful by carrying the rising moon. Purport: As indicated here by the word manastau, the Supreme Personality of Godhead was transferred from the core of Vasudeva's mind or heart to the core of the heart of Devaki. We should note carefully that the Lord was transferred to Devaki not by the ordinary way for a human being, but by diksha, initiation. Thus the importance of initiation is mentioned here. Unless one is initiated by the right person, who always carries within his heart the Supreme Personality of Godhead, one cannot acquire the power to carry the Supreme Godhead within the core of one's own heart. "Regarding the disciplic succession coming from Arjuna, disciplic succession does not always mean that one has to be initiated officially. Disciplic succession means to accept the disciplic conclusion" (SPL Oct. 1969)

CHAPTER 181: VAPU, VANI, AND MURTI

(1) "A child could ask, 'Why did Srila Prabhupada insist on putting his Murti form in every temple to be worshiped twice in the morning by Samsara prayers and guru puja even while he was physically present? Why?' Because he of course knew what unqualified conditioned souls would do once the master leaves. They would put 11 Vyasasanas next to his and ask cheated souls to allow themselves to be cheated." (Naratna das, 2009) (2) "In the absolute world there is no distinction as me, or he, and I. Krishna and His representative is the same. Just like Krishna can be present simultaneously in millions of places. Similarly, the Spiritual Master also can be present wherever the disciple wants. A Spiritual Master is the principle, not the body. Just like a television can be seen in thousands of places by the principle of relay monitoring.” (SPL Malati May 28, 1968)

For many devotees, the understanding of Srila Prabhupada’s exalted and absolute position is natural and easy, and it may be hard to imagine that many in the Hare Krishna Movement think differently. Unfortunately, due to the ISKCON misleaders’ last 45 years of deviations in doctrine and philosophy, many now consider Srila Prabhupada to be just a previous acharya, dead and gone, lovable but fallible, and no longer directly, personally available to us. As one put it: “We have devotees inviting us to kirtanas with altars full of guru photos and Srila Prabhupada just another one of them.”

PRESENT IN: Photo, Deity, Service, Books, Tapes, Films, Followers, Name, Teachings

It is a transcendental fact that Srila Prabhupada is present in all these above items. This is the accurate spiritual understanding. But, many ISKCON GBC/gurus do not accept that Srila Prabhupada is present in his murti and picture. For many ISKCON leaders and members it is not a given fact that Srila Prabhupada is absolute, infallible, or personally present in his deity form and instructions. Worse are those who pretend to recognize Srila Prabhupada’s spiritual stature yet practice and legislate otherwise (GBC). For those whom Srila Prabhupada’s divinity is not immediately understood, the best proofs are the predictions, his achievements and the vast amounts of personal testimony from those who saw and knew him (Ch. 177). Great devotees may appear to struggle with maya, to show us by their example how to become liberated, and they also show the highest example of pure devotional service for the benefit of everyone. They often hide their real status, or at least don’t openly reveal it. Just as the Supreme Person Lord Krishna is absolutely non-different from His name, pastimes, entourage, paraphernalia, service, and so on, so Srila Prabhupada, being a fully realized pure devotee, is absolutely non-different from his name, service, deity, photo, remembrance, instructions, books, tapes, sincere followers, name, etc. There are so many ways to directly associate with SPrabhupada.

WE CAN DIRECTLY ASSOCIATE WITH SRILA PRABHUPADA BY READING HIS BOOKS

(1) *“But in this life, if we develop Krishna consciousness by association of devotees... As Narottama dasa Thakura has sung, tandra carana-sevi-bhakta-sane vasa. One’s aim of life should be to serve the acharyas. Acharya upasanam. So our acharya in the Gaudiya Vaishnava Sampradaya [...] the Six Goswamins, and if we associate with them... This book, Nectar of Devotion, [...] if you read regularly, try to understand, this means you are associating with Srila Rupa Goswami directly. And if you act accordingly, then you are serving their lotus feet.” (SP Lecture Oct. 20, 1972) (2) “Just follow his order. Spiritual master is along with you by his words. Just like my spiritual master is not physically present, but I am associating with him by his words.” (SP Lecture Aug. 18, 1971) (3) “Although according to material vision HDG Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Sarsavati Thakur Prabhupada passed away from this material world on the last day of Dec. 1936, I still consider his Divine Grace to be always present with me by his vani, his words. There are two ways of association - by vani and by vapuh. Vani means words and vapuh means physical presence. Physical presence is sometimes appreciable and sometimes not, but Vani continues to exist eternally. Therefore, one must take advantage of the Vani, not the physical presence.” (CC Antya 5 Conclusion) (4) SP: So in my absence you read the books. What I talk, I have written in the books. That’s all. GUEST: Personally, we think more greater. SP: That’s all right. But still, you can associate with me by reading my books. (SP Conv Aug. 7, 1975) (5) *“Yes I am glad that your centre is doing so well and all the devotees are now appreciating the presence of their spiritual master by following his instructions, although he is no longer present. This is the right spirit.” (SPL Sept. 13, 1970)

QUOTES RE: SRILA PRABHUPADA’S INSTRUCTIONS AND BOOKS

(1) “Never think that I am absent from you. Physical presence is not essential; presence by message (or hearing) is real touch. Lord Krishna is present by His message which was delivered 5,000 years ago. We feel always the presence of our past Acharyas simply by their immutable instructions.” (SPL Aug. 2, 1967) (2) “If there is no chance to serve the spiritual master directly, a devotee should serve him by remembering his instructions. There is no difference between the spiritual master's instructions and the spiritual master himself. In his absence, therefore, his words of direction should be the pride of the disciple. If one thinks that he is above consulting anyone else, including a spiritual master, he is at once an offender at the lotus feet of the Lord. Such an offender can never go back to Godhead." (CC Adi 1.35 purport) (3) "Physical presence is immaterial. Presence of the transcendental sound received from the Spiritual Master should be the guidance of life. That will make our spiritual life successful. If you feel very strongly about my absence you may place my pictures on my sitting places and this will be source of inspiration for you." (SPL Brahmananda Jan. 19, 1967)

(4) "We are not separated actually. There are two -Vani or Vapu -so Vapu is physical presence and Vani is presence by the vibration, but they are all the same." (SPL Hansadutta June 22, 1970) (5) "There are two conceptions, the physical conception and the vibrational conception. The physical conception is temporary. The vibrational conception is eternal... When we feel separation from Krishna or the Spiritual Master, we should just try to remember their words or instructions, and we will no longer feel that separation. Such association with Krishna and the Spiritual Master should be association by vibration not physical presence. That is real association." (Elevation to Krishna Con p. 57) (6) "...one has to associate with liberated persons not directly, physically, but by understanding, through philosophy and logic, the problems of life." (SBhag 3.31.48) (7) Paramananda: We're always feeling your presence very strongly, Srila Prabhupada, simply by your teachings and your instructions. We're always meditating on your instructions. SP: Thank you. That is the real presence. Physical presence is not important. (SPConv Oct. 6, 1977) (8) "So although a physical body is not present, the vibration should be accepted as the presence of the Spiritual Master, vibration. What we have heard from the Spiritual Master, that is living." (SPLecture Jan. 13, 1969) (9) Q: ...so sometimes the Spiritual Master is far away. He may be in Los Angeles. Somebody is coming to Hamburg Temple. He thinks "How will the Spiritual Master be pleased?" SP: Just follow his order, Spiritual Master is along with you by his words. Just like my Spiritual Master is not physically present, but I am associating with him by his words." (SPLecture Aug. 1971)

SRILA PRABHUPADA'S DEITY FORM OR MURTI

Brahmananda: In your lecture you said that someone who offers food to a statue of yourself... SP: He is not statue, but people think statue. He is Krishna Himself. But because we cannot see Krishna at the present moment, therefore He appears like a statue. Brahmananda: His question... You stated that a statue of yourself is not the same as you, and yet in some of our temples, such as Vrindaban, the murti of Your Divine Grace has been installed and they are offering prasadam. So is it the same, that the prasadam is accepted by the guru? SP: Yes. Saksad-dharitvena samasta-shastraih. Guru is nondifferent from Krishna. That is accepted by all the shastra... Saksad-dharitvena samasta-shastraih uktah: It is said, tatha bhavyata eva sadbhih, and those who are advanced devotees, they accept it like that. Kintu prabhor yah priya eva tasya: But the guru's position is the most confidential servant. So guru is the servant God, and Krishna is the master God. Both of them are God, servant God and master God. Guru krishna krpaya paya bhakti-lata-bija [CC Mad 19.151]. So we have to serve both the servant and the master. Through the servant, we go to the master. (SPLecture Oct. 27, 1975)

SRILA PRABHUPADA'S PHOTOS AND SERVICE

(1) Woman: You say you worship the deity photograph of someone who has gone. But the photograph of a spiritual teacher can be very helpful to teach them to love him because the photograph of a spiritual master is not material value, but it symbolizes the truth from which he has come. SP: Yes. Those who are spiritually advanced, their photograph and ordinary photograph is different. Just like here is a statue of Krishna. He's not different from Krishna. The original person Krishna and this statue of Krishna is the same. Similarly, a spiritually perfect person and his photograph is the same. Because it is in the absolute stage. (SPLecture Sept. 16, 1966) (2) "Next you ask if I am present in my picture and form? Yes. In form as well as in teachings. To carry out the teachings of guru is more important than to worship the form, but none of them should be neglected.

Form is called vapu and teachings is called vani. Both should be worshiped. Vani is more important than vapu." (SPL Tushta Krishna das Dec. 14, 1972) (3) "There is no difference between me and my picture. Therefore we should honor and keep pictures in that spirit. If we throw pictures this way and that way, that is offence. The name and picture are as good as the person in spiritual world. In the material world either picture or person, everything is illusion." (SPL Jadurani dasi Apr. 9, 1972) (4) "As far as my blessing is concerned, it does not require my physical presence. If you are chanting Hare Krishna there, and following my instructions, reading the books, taking only Krishna prasadam etc., then there is no question of your not receiving the blessings of Lord Chaitanya, whose mission I am humbly trying to push on." (SPL Bala Krishna June 30, 1974) (5) "Just like I am working, so my Guru Maharaja is there, Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati. Physically he may not be, but in every action he is there. To serve master's word is more important than to serve physically." (SP{Conv May 2, 1977) (6) "I also do not feel separation from my Guru Maharaja. When I am engaged in his service, his pictures give me sufficient strength. To serve master's word is more important than to serve him physically." (SPL Syamasundara July 19, 1970) (7) "So in the absence of physical presentation of the spiritual master, the Van iseva is more important. My Spiritual Master Sarsavati Goswami, may appear to be physically not present, but still because I try to serve his instruction, I never feel separated from him." (SPL Karandhara Aug. 22., 1970) (8) "...you are helping me in my mission although I am not physically present there but spiritually I am always with you." (SPL Nandarani, et al Oct. 3, 1967) (9) "Therefore we should take advantage of the Vani, not the physical presence." (SPL Suci devi dasi Nov. 4, 1975)

SRILA PRABHUPADA'S REMEMBRANCE

(1) "But always remember that I am always with you. As you are always thinking of me, I am always thinking of you also. Although physically we are not together, we are not separated spiritually. So we should be concerned only with this spiritual connection." (SPL Gaurasundara Nov. 13, 1969) (2) "The service of the spiritual master is essential. If there is no chance to serve the spiritual master directly, a devotee should serve him by remembering his instructions. There is no difference between the spiritual master's instructions and the spiritual master himself. In his absence, therefore, his words of direction should be the pride of the disciple." (CC Adi 1.35) (3) "You write that you have desire to avail of my association again, but why do you forget that you are always in association with me? When you are helping my missionary activities I am always thinking of you, and you are always thinking of me . That is real association. Just like I am always thinking of my Guru Maharaja at every moment, although he is not physically present, and because I am trying to serve him to my best capacity, I am sure he is helping me by his spiritual blessings. So there are two kinds of association: physical and preceptorial. Physical association is not so important as preceptorial association." (SPL Govinda 1969)

SRILA PRABHUPADA AUTHORIZED HIS DEITY WORSHIP

Hari Sauri das describes in his memoirs how in Vrindaban Srila Prabhupada in 1975 authorized the worship of a murti deity of himself. Also in Satsvarupa's ISKCON in the 1970's (p. 305) we read how Srila Prabhupada authorized his own murti or deity to be worshipped: "He gave permission for putting his murti on the Ratha cart and a full-size murti of him on a Vyasasana, while another may be put on the altar. It can be treated as we treat his picture." Just as Srila Prabhupada's picture is non-different from himself, thus his deity (murti) is also non-different from himself. Yet, some think Srila Prabhupada's deity is but a material object.

ISKCON'S SHASTRIC ADVISORY COUNCIL MEMBER SAYS IT IS "A NOVEL THEORY"

Around 2002 Dhira Govinda das corresponded with SAC members, who give their "brahmana" opinions (though often contradicting Srila Prabhupada's teachings) to the ISKCON GBC. The SAC was evaluating the philosophical "correctness" of the book Prominent Link, and unexpected by the author, a basic premise he had assumed was shared by all devotees, turned out to be not shared by all. Many devotees and ISKCON misleaders and supposedly learned Vaishnavas do not accept Srila Prabhupada as being present in his instructions, books, service, photos, or deity form (murti).

Dhira Govinda das wrote to the SAC: “Srila Prabhupada, as the spiritual master without whose mercy we do not receive the benediction of Krishna, the guru in whom we must have implicit faith, and the direct connection to the disciplic succession, is delivering his followers from material bondage, regardless of when they received formal initiation. To accomplish this necessitates that he is living and present. He is present in his vani, and in his murti form. [...] Many followers of Srila Prabhupada, including this author, believe that Srila Prabhupada is fully living and present in his murti form. It is important that the GBC and SAC clarify this issue for themselves and members of ISKCON.”

The SAC quoted from Dhira Govinda’s writing: “Just as Sri Krishna, Srimati Radharani, and Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu are non-different from Their Deity forms, and are fully capable to act and relate in Their Deity forms, the murtis and pictures of the parampara acharyas, such as Srila Prabhupada and Srila Bhaktisiddhanta, can similarly act non-differently from the acharyas. Obviously this requires special empowerment from the Supreme Lord. Ordinary persons, or even aspiring Vaishnavas, are not able to reciprocate in their picture form in the way that the great acharyas do.”

Gopiparanadhana das, Sanskrit scholar, BBT editor, longtime/ prominent SAC member, replied: “This is a novel theory, or at least one I am not familiar with, that the murtis and pictures of specially empowered acharyas are equally potent to the murtis of the Supreme Lord and His internal potency, while the images of less empowered Vaishnavas are impotent. The archa-murti of the Personality of Godhead is a special incarnation, nondifferent from His original self, and manifests all His potencies to those who worship Him with love. The murti or picture of one's guru is recognized as the proper place to make offerings in worship, but as far as I know the Vaishnava shastras do not identify the guru's image as the same kind of archa-murti.”

Dhira Govinda remarked: “Thus, I was shocked when the GBC’s SAC stated with regards to the idea that Srila Prabhupada is present in his murti form, ‘This is a novel theory, or at least one I am not familiar with...’ It was difficult for me to conceive that this was even an issue, a topic for discussion. I’m reminded of the quote, ‘No matter how cynical I become, I can’t keep up.’ Other members of the committee included Drutakarma, Urmila, Krishna Kshetra, and Purnachandra.”

It is uncertain as to who on the ISKCON GBC and the SAC does not accept that Srila Prabhupada is present in his murti and picture. As is most often the case, the hierarchy of ISKCON is divisively split on many philosophical issues, including this one. Does this mean that they believe that Srila Prabhupada engaged us in idol worship? Or that our daily worship of Srila Prabhupada in guru-puja ceremonies is simply a symbolic ritual wherein Srila Prabhupada is not personally present nor accepting the worship to him? Those who think like this are obviously covered by the deluding energy of the Supreme Lord, otherwise how can we read the exact same things from the exact same texts as they do and come to a different yet clear and concise understanding? Or maybe they just don’t read Prabhupada’s books? This has to be the effect of Maya herself. As Krishna is hidden to many by maya, so also is Srila Prabhupada.

GBC DECEPTION AGENT GIVES “EMOTIONAL” DEFENSE

From PL, p.27: “Ordinary persons, or even ordinary aspiring Vaishnavas, are not able to reciprocate in their picture form in the way that the great acharyas do.” Mayesvara das, author Deception (Ch. 51 Book One): “This is a reasonable opinion... but just your opinion. [...] xxx gets great satisfaction whenever she sees photos of Jayapataka Swami. When I worked for the Navy it was very common for people to have family photos at their workplace or in their wallet. Why do people do that if there is not some strong bonding reason to explain for it? We can't flood the altar with photos of every guru in the movement and that is not being done... but why make the respect for one's guru in the form of a photograph taboo? What I have seen is those who object to this most are usually just envious that nobody is respecting them to that degree.”

Dhira Govinda das: “For sure, of course, we all have in us the conception that the form, the body, is non-different from the person. In what I wrote I included, “in the way that the great acaryas do...” So, no doubt, there is affectionate reciprocation with grandmother through her picture. And, grandmother might not be reciprocating on the same level as, for example, Srila Prabhupada, or Srila Rupa Gosvami.” SPL to Jadurani Sept. 4, 1972: “There is no difference between me and my picture. Therefore we should honor and keep pictures in that spirit. If we throw pictures this way and that way, that is offense. The name and picture are as good as the person in spiritual world. In the material world either picture or person, everything is illusion.” SPLecture Sept. 16, 1966: “Yes. Those who are spiritually advanced, their photograph and ordinary photograph is different. Just like here is a statue of Krishna. He’s not different from Krishna. The original person Krishna and this statue of Krishna is the same. Similarly, a spiritually perfect person and his photograph is the same. Because it is in the absolute stage.” My understanding, then, is that someone whose consciousness is tainted with the material modes, is not non-different from their photo. Sure, we might reciprocate with them through their picture, in some exchange of affection, but that doesn’t mean that the person is identical with the picture. Completely transcendental personalities on the other hand, are non-different from their picture. [...] A friend, a member of ISKCON and formally initiated by an ISKCON guru, in Nov. 2020, wrote me: ‘During the class you gave on Srila Prabhupada’s Disappearance day you mentioned that the Vapu of Srila Prabhupada is still present in his Deity form. This was a major epiphany moment for me. [...] yesterday was the first time in 31 years when I went in front of Srila Prabhupada’s murti and really communicated to Him as a person, as a living Master. I cannot thank you enough for this.’ This letter was very inspiring for me to read.”

SRILA PRABHUPADA’S MURTI TAKES AWAY ALL OUR SUFFERING

“This is an inspirational about a private conversation between Srila Prabhupada and Sampat Kumar Bhattacharya, a Pancaratrici Pandit. The story was told by Atma Tattva das in a class in Los Angeles on March 20, 1993. I have it on tape. Atma Tattva was not there when the private conversation took place, but a tape recording was made, which he heard but was later lost. Also Sampat Kumar told him what happened straight afterwards. It was 1977 and Prabhupada was in Bombay temple. He was very sick and he had stopped all food intake –he was taking 1/4 cup orange juice a day. His body had only bones left –there was no flesh. [This appears to be in late Sept. 1977.] The doctors had given up responsibility. At this time, Sampat Kumar Bhattacharya from Bangalore came to know about Srila Prabhupada’s situation. So, he flew from Bangalore to Bombay, which in those days was a huge thing for a Brahmin priest, and asked for a private meeting. Generally, nobody was allowed a private meeting, but when he said that he specially came by plane from Bangalore to meet Srila Prabhupada, he was allowed a private meeting. So, everybody was asked to go out, and they talked. The conversation was like this: Sampat Kumar: Swamiji, I am feeling very pained that you are suffering like this. SP: (laying down, in weak words): The whole world is meant for suffering. Dukhalayam asavatam. Sampat Kumar: But still Swamiji, there are so many people depending on you. So when you suffer, they suffer. SP: What can I do? Bhattacharya: Swamiji, I want to tell you something. In Vrindavan temple, they are having your deity on the altar. And all kinds of people are coming and praying to it, and offering flowers to it, and you are still living. According to Pancharatra, when the Acharya is living, if he puts his deity on the altar, then all the sufferings people are having come to his body through the deity. So you please tell your disciples to worship your deity only after you leave your body. He spoke as if he was giving some information to Prabhupada. SP: I know. I came here to take their suffering. Bhattacharya was shocked. He was not giving any new information. This was well known to Prabhupada; and he was determined to suffer for others. SP: Do you have anything else to say? Bhattacharya: Swamiji, if that is your wish, what can I say? I am only a priest. SP: Even when I leave, I will keep continuing taking their suffering, and make them free so they can keep chanting Hare Krishna. So for 10,000 years, Prabhupada’s deity is going to be sitting in temples around the world, and taking all our sufferings, and making us free so we can chant Hare Krishna. He is not fibreglass; he is really there, accepting our prayers, obeisances, and suffering. This account reminds us, and may doubts never creep into our minds.”

As confirmation, another memory of this incident is from Rajendranandana das: “When the deities were installed in the Hyderabad temple, some South Indian brahmins came. Srila Prabhupada had told Yasodanandan and Achyutananda Swamis that these were real brahmins and must be treated nicely and given anything they wanted. Generally, when the spiritual master is on the planet, his murti is not installed in the temple, and when the South Indian brahmin, Sampat Kumar Bhattacharya, heard that Srila Prabhupada's murtis were going to be installed in Bombay, in Vrindavan, and in different temples around the world, he traveled from Hyderabad to Bombay at his personal expense to give Srila Prabhupada shastric evidence that this practice was not encouraged. Why? Because when they see his murti, people will feel that they're meeting Srila Prabhupada. They will think that he's sitting on the Vyasasana, as he truly is, they will talk to his murti, say prayers, bow down to him, worship his murti, and touch the murti's lotus feet. And as a result, Srila Prabhupada will suffer from taking on their karma. Out of affection for Srila Prabhupada, the learned Bhattacharya gave many shastric references. He wanted to serve in this way so he gave his best presentation. Prabhupada listened to him patiently, and finally said, "Don't you understand that's why I've come?" When Bhattacharya heard that, he immediately stopped speaking, folded his hands, circumambulated Srila Prabhupada three times, and then left. He finally understood who Srila Prabhupada was.”

WHO SAYS SRILA PRABHUPADA WILL INITIATE THROUGH HIS MURTI?

This claim is falsely attributed by the GBC to those advocating Srila Prabhupada's initiation system. It is a straw-man argument; Srila Prabhupada gave no instructions to this effect. A discussion on this: PARTY A: “We do not agree that Srila Prabhupada can initiate through his deity form. Each form has certain functions and neither of us agree that Srila Prabhupada ever intended that his deity form would be the initiating or diksha guru.” PARTY B: “My point is NOT that the deity can initiate or that Prabhupada wanted his deity to initiate. I never said that nor did I intend that. The point is that, just like there is no difference between Krishna and His Deity, in any functional capacity, similarly, there is no difference between the deity of Srila Prabhupada and his vapu form. In a conversation with Brahmananda about the installation of his deity in Vrindaban, Srila Prabhupada makes it clear that his deity is non-different from himself, just like the Deity of Krishna is non-different from Krishna. In that conversation he quotes, ‘Saksad-dhari vena samasta shastrer,’ to explain that his deity functions just as the Deity of Krishna functions. This is the only point that I have been trying to make.”

Srila Prabhupada did not arrange for initiations by his murti and no one is proposing this, so why does the GBC bring that up? But if Srila Prabhupada today is present in his deity to accept our worship, love, service, and prayers, then why would he himself, in his spiritual capacity that is present wherever his instructions are followed, not be able to give diksha initiation? Even while not physically perceived by our eyes and ears? Incarnating into and accepting worship as a deity form is possible only for exalted acharyas. Accepting diksha disciples post-departure is also possible for them, as they have the power of God at their disposal, and we know that Srila Prabhupada has agreed to do so from his July 9 Order. Srila Prabhupada authorized his deity form, and authorized the proxy-representative system for initiations. Very great devotees can do these things.

SOUND AND PRESENCE by Dhira Govinda das, 2006

The disciplic succession in the line of Srila Prabhupada and Srila Bhaktisiddhanta is based on sound vibration, not on the formal initiation ceremony. Through sound vibration transcendental knowledge is conveyed. This is the essential aspect of the process of initiation, and it is not dependent on formal initiation, though the processes of formal initiation are meant to serve and support the essential component of the initiation process, receiving transcendental knowledge. This knowledge of course inspires and drives devotional service. The process of formal initiation is generally recommended for conditioned souls and should not be minimized or avoided. At the same time we don't want to confuse the essence with externals that are meant to serve the spirit of the process.

We receive mercy from the parampara in the opportunity to hear from the members of the parampara. Hearing from the disciplic succession intrinsically implies transcendental sound vibration.

"Anyone who reads the books, that is also chanting and hearing. Why distinguish between chanting and book distribution? These books I have recorded and chanted, and they are transcribed. It is spoken kirtanas. So book distribution is also chanting. These are not ordinary books. It is recorded chanting. Anyone who reads, he is hearing." (SPL Rupanuga das Oct. 19, 1974) Rupanuga das wrote in 2017: "Srila Prabhupada has completely invested himself in his books and lectures and I always tell others that hearing an audio from him is just as good as sitting in front of him at 26 Second Ave. There is absolutely (the right word) no difference, because I can attest to both experiences."

In Vaishnava societies the question has arisen whether the relationship between spiritual master and disciple necessitates physical presence. Of course there are numerous quotes from Srila Prabhupada regarding the primary importance of vani compared to vapu. Still, the controversy is there, with regards to the continuation of the disciplic succession, regarding the role of physical presence. "Persons who are learned and who have true knowledge define sound as that which conveys the idea of an object, indicates the presence of a speaker screened from our view and constitutes the subtle form of ether." (SBhag 3.26.33) Let us consider this verse with respect to the question of presence. Sound vibration indicates the presence of a speaker screened from view. Hearing Srila Prabhupada's sound vibration, we understand that he is, as per the above definition, present and screened from our view. This screening is a reflection of our limitations, not of Srila Prabhupada's lack of full presence.

Lord Brahma received knowledge, was initiated into knowledge, from a Speaker screened from view. Does that indicate that the initiation was not valid, because the speaker remained concealed? Did Lord Brahma not have a living spiritual master, because the Speaker was screened from view? We understand from Srila Prabhupada that Lord Brahma received knowledge from within the heart. It's important to realize this is the case not just with Brahma. In any authentic relationship between guru and disciple, knowledge is received within the heart. "Divya jnan hrde prokashito." Genuine disciplic succession is based on sound, and it is also based on presence, though this presence is not mundane. Even if the spiritual master, in the common sense of the term, is "physically present," still he is screened from the view of conditioned souls. That is, his transcendental position is not seen, or understood. And, transcendental knowledge is conveyed through the heart. In a consciousness of receiving this knowledge, we open a direct relationship with the guru. His presence is manifest, and the essential process of diksha is alive within us. This consciousness that allows us to enter this relationship entails a conscious choice to serve our spiritual master. (END)

SRILA PRABHUPADA CAN EXIST SIMULTANEOUSLY IN DIFFERENT PLACES

Although Srila Prabhupada may have left his physical body in which he resided on this planet 1896-1977, and he returned to Krishnaloka or another venue of service somewhere else, he simultaneously still resides with us in the form of his books, instructions, sincere followers, service, photo, deity and so on. From SBhag 7.4.34 purport we read that pure devotees may reside both in the spiritual world and in the material world simultaneously. With this ability, what is the difficulty for Srila Prabhupada to give initiation or diksha via his ritvik representatives arrangement? "From authoritative scripture it is learned that Prahlad Maharaja still lives in Vaikunthaloka as well as within this material world on the planet Sutala. This transcendental quality of existing simultaneously in different places is another qualification of the Supreme Personality of Godhead... A devotee acquires qualities almost the same as those of the Lord because of unalloyed devotional service. Ordinary living beings cannot be so qualified, but a devotee can be qualified like the Supreme Personality of Godhead, not in full but partially." In Chaitanya lila we also see some descriptions of "partial" incarnations, such as Lord Brahma coming as Haridas Thakur. Other of the Lord's associates were combinations of two persons from the spiritual world. So there is no inability for Srila Prabhupada to accept disciples via the arrangements he finalized with the July 9 Order. He is not limited by time and space restrictions. His Divine Grace flows freely out of his boundless compassion and mercy. May the rascals not obstruct this mercy artificially with their false declarations about "it is necessary to have a 'living' guru."

AN UNAUTHORIZED ISKCON GURU WORSHIPS HIS PRABHUPADA DEITY

From The Story of My Life, Vol. One, p. 300, Satsvarupa speaks about his mental doubts and struggles in reinforcing his proper understanding of his relationship to his Srila Prabhupada deity. We note that even an unauthorized, self-appointed guru such as Satsvarupa, one of the original 11 ISKCON hijackers, accepts Srila Prabhupada's presence in his murti. This is interesting; even those who vehemently deny Srila Prabhupada's ritvik-representative system for initiations post-1977 and insist on the need for a living guru, are worshipping Srila Prabhupada's deity. This implies Satsvarupa and other ISKCON false initiators understand that although Srila Prabhupada has physically departed from the body in which we knew him until 1977, he accepts our worship via a deity form, in which he is very much spiritually present, like Krishna is present in His deity form. Yet they insist Srila Prabhupada cannot give initiation via proxy representatives, assumedly because of physical limitations. But it seems that if he can do one thing, he could also do the other? Satsvarupa's thoughts: "...he approved the making of a marble murti in Vrindaban... I obtained the first 12 inch murti made by Lochana das. I massaged and bathed that Deity daily at noon, changed his clothes to fresh pressed ones, and bowed down before him to offer prasadam. In the evening I laid him down to rest in blankets. It was a new relationship I kept up... talked to him... worshiping Prabhupada... Because the murti is somehow him, therefore it is absolutely him. Now I am keeping the deity, but service is reduced. I don't daily massage and bathe him, although I put him to rest. He looks at me and chants on his beads. Too many chores? Not enough devotion? He wears his knit cap because the weather is so cold... I don't point my feet at him. He is still real to me and if I do something offensive to him I lie awake in bed disturbed until I get up and offer him some milk. I don't feel peace. What did I do? Ignore his presence? Take a sweet from his plate...? There are so many ways you can misbehave in your relationship with the murti... You haven't changed his clothes in months? Be careful or he may be taken away... Be true to your murti. Worship, even if it's reduced. Keep him close to you... He's the worshippable deity."

These are the frank thoughts of one of the original eleven... "What did I do?" Well, let's start with unauthorized assumption of Srila Prabhupada's seat, wholesale destruction of his movement with so many deviations, taking a superior position of unaccountability by listening to jazz, blues, and classical music while reading all kinds of nonsense, and emulating Picasso and "free" writers. And denying devotees' access to Srila Prabhupada except through your own wonderful self. Srila Prabhupada doesn't like your demented artwork?

VANI OR VAPU: BOTH JUST AS GOOD

Madhudvisa: ...cannot become a medical practitioner by simply reading the books. He must study under a medical practitioner. So in the case of your books, is it possible to become a devotee without actually having personal association with you? Just by reading your books? SP: No, it is not that you have to associate with the author. But one who knows, if you cannot understand you have to take lesson from him. Not necessarily that you have to contact with the author always. [...] Devotee: Usually you don't even meet the author. SP: Simply one who knows the subject matter, he can explain. Madhudvisa: But can your, would your purports, would that serve as explanation besides... SP: No, no, anyone who knows the subject matter, he will be able to explain. Not necessarily the author is required to be present there. [break] ...to study from a medical man, I never said you have to study from the author. Or one who understood the author's purpose. Just like we are explaining BGita as it is. Not that one has to learn directly from Krishna. One who has understood Krishna, from him. That is parampara system. (SPConv May 21, 1975) It is common place for ISKCON gurus to claim that newcomer devotees can only understand Srila Prabhupada and his books by being initiated by them. This claim is completely false, as we can see in the above May 1975 conversation.

IDOLATRY IN ISKCON? (by Narasimha das)

We saw a picture in an Iskcon temple room of a Vyasasana on which was mounted a large picture of an "Iskcon guru," who was physically absent, and it appears there is a proxy (ritvik) initiation ceremony going on –but without Srila Prabhupada. Apparently the GBC accepts ritvik initiations as long as Srila Prabhupada is not the diksha guru. These photos indicate idolatry in Iskcon. Idol worship is condemned in every scripture, defined as the unauthorized worship or adoration of a material object or person as if it (or he) were super potent, super cognizant, fully divine and capable of reciprocating with devotional offerings. "If one tries to mingle the worship of yogamaya with mahamaya, considering them one and the same, he does not really show high intelligence." (CC Mad 8.90 purport) One reason idolatry is sinful is because simple persons who are pious and naturally attracted to offer worship to the Supreme Lord sometimes become diverted from authorized devotional service to the Lord's Deity form and are bewildered instead by showy displays of idolatrous rituals based on concocted traditions. Sometimes in imitation of Deity worship, tribals, fallen dvijas, misguided sudras and others offer incense, flowers, fruits, ghee lamps and meat to murtis of goddesses associated with Ma Kali, other minor devatas, yaksas, raksasas, bogus "avatars," bogus "gurus," and even political leaders. All such unauthorized ritual is useless. "Presently people are so fallen that they cannot distinguish between a liberated soul and a conditioned soul." (SBhag 4.18.5 purport)

Arcana-marga and sri guru-puja are completely different from idol worship because both the Deity and Sri Guru are fully divine, omniscient, omnipotent and fully capable of reciprocating all devotional offerings. Furthermore, such worship has been going on since time immemorial and is authorized in the Vedic scriptures and by all Vedic acharyas. Sometimes great Vaishnavas, nitya-siddha parishadas of the Supreme Lord, are worshipped in the same manner as Lord Krishna Himself, either as a painting, picture or murti made of earth, stone or wood. In Vedic history it is generally seen that, apart from Sri Lakshmi Devi and other direct expansions of the Supreme Lord, only a few great devotees like Sri Hanuman and Sri Garuda are worshiped regularly in Vaishnava temples. If a devotee follows the rules of arcana-marga with devotion, the representational form of the Supreme Lord or great Vaishnava becomes identical with the divine personality Himself, Who accepts all sincere offerings and prayers and speaks to advanced worshippers. In true Vedic culture, even Lord Brahma and Lord Shiva are not worshipped on the same level as the Supreme Lord and His nitya-siddha parishadas. Authorized worship of the Supreme Lord and His empowered devotees is true spiritual action. It is not a mere "festival of flowers," a Hindu custom, demigod worship, or an ecclesiastical ritual. Rather, it is the essence of pure spiritual activity, "the character of the living force in immortality." Arcana-marga, particularly the pancaratriki-vidhi enunciated by our param guru, Sri Narada Muni, is sanatana-dharma. Sanatana-dharma means that activity which is eternal, common to all living beings and directly enunciated by the Supreme Lord Himself or His empowered expansions such as Narada Muni, Asita, Vyasadeva, the Six Goswamis, Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakura, Srila Bhaktisiddhanta and Srila Prabhupada.

Srila Prabhupada introduced the full practice of sri guru-vandana-puja as described in the revealed scriptures and by great acharyas like Srila Visvanatha Chakravarti Thakura. Even Rupa Goswami and great preachers like Narottama das Thakura never instituted daily guru-puja in their temples and perhaps never once accepted guru-puja in a temple room. There is no such history easily found. Pure Vaishnavas are always meek, humble, and do not like to admit their exalted status. They accept formal guru-puja, or vyasa-puja, for the benefit of their disciples, usually only once a year, usually without a public show, not in the temple, and on behalf of the sampradaya acharya. This is has been the tradition in our Madhva-Gaudiya line for a long time.

Nonetheless, for the benefit of us fallen souls of Kali Yuga, Srila Prabhupada instituted elaborate sri guru-puja in his temples in front of the Deities, in public, all over the world. He has made all necessary arrangements to remain fully available for everyone through his books, his murtis, his mission, his institutions, and his representatives. This is his causeless mercy. He made it as easy as possible for conditioned souls of this age to approach him and accept him as spiritual master. By his mercy, he has prescribed an easy minimum sadhana to guarantee anyone's quick return back to Godhead. Only an empowered maha-bhagavata can offer this supreme boon to everyone in the world on behalf of Lord Krishna and Lord Chaitanya. "The Lord empowers a special devotee to teach people their constitutional position.” (CC Mad 19.114 purport)

“Without being empowered by the direct potency of Lord Krishna to fulfill His desire, and without being specifically favored by the Lord, no human being can become spiritual master for the whole world... Only an empowered personality can distribute the holy name of the Lord and enjoin all fallen souls to worship Krishna. By distributing the holy name of the Lord, he cleanses the hearts of the most fallen people; therefore he extinguishes the blazing fire of the material world. Not only that, he broadcasts the shining brightness of Krishna's effulgence throughout the world... Such a person is... guru or spiritual master for the entire world, a devotee of the topmost platform, the maha-bhagavata stage.” (Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati prediction, Cited in CC Mad 25.9 purport) When imperfect preachers imitate Srila Prabhupada by allowing their followers to offer worship to their own pictures or put their pictures on the altar with nitya-siddha acharyas, such a farce is an offense. Such concocted rituals are never authorized and should never be allowed in Srila Prabhupada's temples. It betrays a paucity of real knowledge on the part of the so-called guru and his followers, who never seem to consider: “Who will accept offerings to this picture? How can this ritual offering to a picture of an imperfect person be the same as our offerings to Srila Prabhupada? Why do we need a so-called 'living guru' who is not self-realized and seldom present?”

“But if everyone simply imitates your exalted status, there will be only a contradictory result. As long as this pretense continues, there will only be utter failure.” (Vaisistya-Astaka, Srila Prabhupada, 1961) “However, one should not imitate the behavior of an advanced devotee or maha-bhagavata without being self-realized, for by such imitation one will eventually become degraded.” (NOI Text 5 purport) Srila Prabhupada is absolutely perfect and always fully present in his vani, his installed murti, his worshiped picture, and his mission. Devotees also have access to mercy and guidance from our great nitya-siddha param gurus: their songs, their stories, their examples, their pranams, their prayers, their murtis, their pictures, their poems, their books and their instructions. We have all this association, sadhu-sanga of the highest level, in Srila Prabhupada's books and mission. Why should Srila Prabhupada's followers feel that they need an immature, upstart “guru”? The reason is ignorance—a poor fund of knowledge and misinformation.

Regarding our eternally living gurus, Srila Prabhupada comments: “But in this life, if we develop Krishna consciousness by association of devotees... [...] One's aim of life should be to serve the acharyas. Acharya upasanam. So our acharya in the Gaudiya Vaishnava Sampradaya [...] the Six Goswamins, and if we associate with them... this book, Nectar of Devotion, Bhakti-rasamrta-sindhu, if you read regularly, try to understand, this means you are associating with Srila Rupa Goswami directly. And if you act accordingly, then you are serving their lotus feet. Tandra carana-sevi-bhakta-sane vasa.” I asked an Iskcon official why the GBC allows ritvik initiations for iskurus and their followers but condemns ritvik initiations for Srila Prabhupada and his followers. Here's the answer I got: “Srila Prabhupada cannot posthumously accept devotees for initiation. You can't write to him and get a reply. Therefore some of his disciples accept devotees joining Iskcon as their own disciples. These new devotees cannot be Srila Prabhupada's disciples because Prabhupada is not here to accept them. How will we know if Prabhupada accepts them? They must first be accepted by an Iskcon guru. To jump over all the present gurus in Iskcon is an offense.” These fallacious arguments were defeated by the questions of two matajis at a gathering in 1998 when a GBC iskuru was answering questions after an istaghosti. They read the following: “What is the value of accepting an immature or imperfect devotee as one's diksha-guru? Don't Srila Prabhupada's books recommend that a student accept only an uttama-adhikari as guru? Shouldn't we all accept Srila Prabhupada and his instructions and rely on his acceptance alone? Didn't he say that he will live forever in his vani? Didn't Srila Prabhupada repeatedly and concisely describe the conditions for being accepted as his initiated disciple? Did he ever reject anyone willing to follow his instructions? Didn't he ask representatives to offer formal initiations on his behalf? Why did the GBC end the system of ritvik representative initiations instituted by Srila Prabhupada? When did Prabhupada authorize the GBC to sanction diksha-gurus to take his place? Why do you think Srila Prabhupada is dead?" This GBC man could only stutter incoherently in response, so he quickly ended the meeting. (Stonewalling is a typical GBC tactic.)

Many second-generation disciples of Srila Prabhupada see through the GBC's smoke screens and, in spite of the politics and chaos generated by misguided clerics, accept Srila Prabhupada as their eternal guru. Responding to the same question repeated twice, "Who will be your successor?" Srila Prabhupada replied, "My success is always there. Yes. Just like the sun is there always. It may come before your vision or not -- the sun is there. But if you are fortunate, you come before the sun... The sun is open to everyone." (SPConv July 1975) "These initiations -I have deputed my disciples. Is it clear or not?" (SPConv Oct. 18, 1977)

ADDITIONAL REFERENCES: "The spiritual master is not a question of ['living' or 'dead']... The spiritual master is eternal." (SPLecture Oct. 2, 1968) "When one has attained the topmost position of maha-bhagavata, He is to be accepted as guru and worshiped exactly like Hari, the Personality of Godhead. Only such a person is eligible to occupy the post of guru." (CC Mad 24.330 purport) "Srila Jiva Goswami advised that one not accept a spiritual master in terms of hereditary or customary social and ecclesiastical conventions. One should simply try to find a genuinely qualified spiritual master for actual advancement in spiritual understanding." (CC Adi 1.35 purport) "As soon as a foolish disciple tries to overtake his spiritual master and becomes ambitious to occupy his post, he immediately falls down." (SBhag 5.12.14 purport) "And as soon as he learns that Guru Maharaja is dead, 'Now I am so advanced that I can kill my guru and I become guru'... then he is finished." (SPConv Aug. 16, 1976) "Intermingling the spiritual with the material causes one to look on transcendence as material and the mundane as spiritual. This is all due to a poor fund of knowledge." (CC Mad 16.72 purport) "Therefore a disciple should be careful to accept an uttama-adhikari as spiritual master." (NOI 5 purport) (END)

SRILA PRABHUPADA IS IN HIS BOOKS

Srila Prabhupada established a system where we surrender to and serve him, through his instructions, through his books, through the structures that he established, through his representatives. That system was put in place from 1970-77, and it is still available today. Paramahansa: Srila Prabhupada, when you are not present with us, how is it possible to receive instructions, for example, on questions that may arise? SP: Well, the questions... Answers are there in my books. (SPConv May 13, 1973) And on Nov. 22, 1974, in a letter from Srila Prabhupada: "In my books the philosophy of Krishna Consciousness is explained fully so if there is anything which you do not understand, then you simply have to read again and again. By reading daily the knowledge will be revealed to you and by this process your spiritual life will develop. Krishna Consciousness is not a hackneyed thing but it is something which is our natural and original consciousness." Mar. 4, 1972, in another letter from Srila Prabhupada: "...utilize your time for advancing in Krishna consciousness by reading our books. We have got sufficient stock, and if you simply go on reading them, chanting regularly 16 rounds, engaging yourself 24 hours in Krishna's business, then all of your questions will be answered automatically."

PERHAPS THE BEST EXPLANATION OF ALL ABOUT VAPU AND VANI

"...So he wanted this, and he is not... It is not that he is dead and gone. That is not spiritual understanding. Even ordinary living being, he does not die. Na hanyate hanyamane sarire. And what to speak of such exalted, authorized personality like Bhaktisiddhanta. He is seeing. I never feel that I am alone. Of course, when I came to your country without any friend, without any means... Practically, just like a vagabond I came. But I had full faith that 'my guru maharaja is with me.' I never lost this faith, and that is fact. There are two words, vani and vapuh. Vani means words, and vapuh means this physical body. So vani is more important than the vapuh. Vapuh will be finished. This is material body. It will be finished. That is the nature. But if we keep to the vani, to the words of spiritual master, then we remain very fixed up. It doesn't matter. Just like Bhagavad-gita. It was spoken 5000 years ago. But if you keep to the words of Krishna, then it is always fresh and guiding. Not that because Arjuna personally listened to Krishna about the instruction of Bhagavad-gita, therefore he knew it. That is not the fact. If you accept Bhagavad-gita as it is, then you should know that Krishna is present before you in his words in the Bhagavad-gita. This is called spiritual realization. It is not mundane historical incidences. If we keep 'evam parampara-praptam, imam rajarsayo viduh, sa kaleneha (mahata), yogo nastah parantapa...' If you don't keep in touch with the original link, then it will be lost. And if you keep touch with the original link, then you are directly hearing Krishna. Similarly, Krishna and Krishna's representative, spiritual master, if you keep always intact, in link with the words and instruction of the superior authorities, then you are always fresh. This is spiritual understanding." (SPLecture Mar. 2, 1975)

---

CHAPTER 182: THE CURRENT AND DIRECT LINK

---

(1) "As already stated, Brahma is the original spiritual master for the universe, and since he was initiated by the Lord Himself, the message of Srimad-Bhagavatam is coming down by disciplic succession, and in order to receive the real message of Srimad-Bhagavatam one should approach the current link, or spiritual master, in the chain of disciplic succession." (SBhag 2.9.7) (2) Regarding your question about the disciplic succession coming down from Arjuna, it is just like I have got my disciples, so in the future these many disciples may have many branches of disciplic succession. So in one line of disciples we may not see another name coming from a different line. But this does not mean that person whose name does not appear was not in the disciplic succession. Narada was the Spiritual Master of Vyasadeva, and Arjuna was Vyasadeva's disciple, not as initiated disciple but there was some blood relation between them. So there is connection in this way and it is not possible to list all such relationships in the short description given in Bhagavad-gita As It Is. Another point is that disciplic succession does not mean one has to be directly a disciple of a particular person. The conclusions which we have tried to explain in our Bhagavad-gita As It Is is the same as those conclusions of Arjuna. Arjuna accepted Krishna as the Supreme Personality of Godhead, and we also accept the same truth under the disciplic succession of Chaitanya Mahaprabhu." (SPL Kirtanananda Jan. 25, 1969)

---

SRILA PRABHUPADA: THE PROMINENT LINK by Dhira Govinda das (2001)

[The following are key, abbreviated extracts of this book. The author later renamed the theme as "Current and Direct Link (CDL)," and minor edits were included to reflect this revision.]

ABSTRACT: Many members of Srila Prabhupada's movement who did not receive formal initiation from him experience Srila Prabhupada as the giver of direct transcendental knowledge. This empirical reality forms the basis of recognizing Srila Prabhupada as the current, direct, and prominent link to the parampara. Such a conception is supported by shastric descriptions of the essence of the initiation process, and by the delineation of the parampara described by Srila Prabhupada and Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakura. [...]

INTRODUCTION: This paper presents a framework for understanding Srila Prabhupada's position that is derived from a comprehension of Srila Prabhupada's direct and personal relationship with the members of his movement. The central idea is that Srila Prabhupada is the current, direct, and prominent link to the parampara by virtue of being the deliverer of transcendental knowledge. We present these ideas in a mood of open-minded discussion and ask that the reader approach the material with a fresh perspective and a willingness to reexamine the issues. [...] It is important to recognize that Srila Prabhupada is serving as the primary guru for his followers, including many who received formal initiation after Srila Prabhupada physically departed. [...] The fact that Srila Prabhupada is factually serving as the direct and preeminent spiritual master obviates the need to establish that he is capable of performing this function. Still, herein we will philosophically support the assertion that he is the current, direct, and prominent link to the parampara for those who contact his movement. Of central importance in this discussion is that Srila Prabhupada is, or at least is meant to be, the spiritual master for all members of his movement. In realizing this it is important not to become distracted by appellations such as “diksha guru,” “initiator,” and “officiating acharya,” though of course for communicative purposes such designations are sometimes necessary. In establishing Srila Prabhupada’s position we do not wish to imply that no one other than Srila Prabhupada is serving as a spiritual teacher. All who instruct others in the tenets of bhakti-yoga are spiritual teachers. In this sense each devotee has many gurus who are inspiring him to progress in Krishna consciousness. These gurus are directly guiding devotees and establishing important, direct relationships with them that are invaluable in helping the devotees on their path back to Godhead. [But] Srila Prabhupada is the main spiritual master who gives direct transcendental knowledge as defined in Srila Prabhupada’s books.

ADDITIONAL PERSPECTIVES ON SRILA PRABHUPADA’S POSITION

Srila Prabhupada is of course present and living through his vani. [quotes, see Ch.180, 181.]

Sometimes it is asserted that one needs a “living guru.” This is true, and Srila Prabhupada is a living guru. He lives through his vani. Even with regards to his body, Srila Prabhupada never had a material body (NOI 6). “...[T]he spiritual master, those who are acharyas, their body is not considered as material.” (SPLecture Jan. 13, 1969) Srila Prabhupada is available to fully and directly reciprocate with his sincere followers through his vani and murti. Transmission of divya-jnana, and not physical presence, is the defining characteristic of the parampara, as described in Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati’s song Sri Guru Parampara. Srila Prabhupada stated: “I shall never die, I shall live forever in my books.” (July 1975, SSR) Thus, shastrically and philosophically it is possible for a devotee to directly connect with Srila Prabhupada as the link to the disciplic succession, and this is factually happening for devotees who contact the sankirtana movement. Vishvanatha Chakravarti Thakur wrote “yasya prasadam bhagavat-prasado yasya prasadan na gati kuto ‘pi...” which translates as “By the mercy of the spiritual master one receives the benediction of Krishna. Without the grace of the spiritual master, one cannot make any advancement.” Devotees have many gurus, or teachers on the path of Krishna consciousness. For a devotee who comes to the movement Srila Prabhupada is the “primary” spiritual master, the Vaishnava to whom the devotee fully and unconditionally devotes his life. This can be understood in the “yasya prasadam...” verse. Devotees receive mercy from many Vaishnavas, who all, in a sense, are serving as his “guru.” Gurun is plural in number because anyone who gives spiritual instructions based on the revealed scriptures is accepted as a “spiritual master” (CC Adi 1:34 purport) For devotees in Srila Prabhupada’s movement, however, the Vaishnava whose mercy without which we would not receive the benediction of Krishna and would not make advancement, is Srila Prabhupada. [...] other Vaishnavas may be withdrawn, and [...] Srila Prabhupada continues to bestow his mercy and grace, and also appreciated in: yasya deve para bhaktir/yatha deve tatha gurau/tasyaite kathita hy arthau/prakasante mahatmanau “Unto those great souls who have implicit faith in both the Lord and the spiritual master, all the imports of Vedic knowledge are automatically revealed” (Shvetashvatara Upanishad 6.23)

Of all the gurus in Srila Prabhupada’s movement, Srila Prabhupada is the one in whom implicit faith must exist in order for the imports of Vedic knowledge to be automatically revealed. As the direct link, Srila Prabhupada is the person to whom the devotee surrenders absolutely. Many devotees in Srila Prabhupada’s movement, including many who were formally initiated after Srila Prabhupada’s physical departure, experience him in this capacity, as the “primary” guru who inspires full surrender. Srila Prabhupada’s followers who assist him by helping to connect a devotee directly to him, are not the point of unconditional surrender. [E.g.] the book distributor is serving as a type of guru for the newcomer, as is the senior devotee giving Srimad-Bhagavatam class. We don’t expect that the newcomer will fully surrender his life to all of these Vaishnavas, though of course they should always have a place in his heart. Srila Prabhupada, as the Vaishnava to whom all members of his movement are expected to unconditionally surrender, is the guru center as described in the verse yasya deve... Srila Prabhupada is serving as the [...] point of unconditional surrender for many Vaishnavas. This demonstrates that he is capable of doing this although he is not physically present. When a new devotee joins Srila Prabhupada's society he is expected to take direct shelter of Srila Prabhupada. Many Vaishnavas who did not receive formal initiation from Srila Prabhupada take direct and primary shelter of him. We maintain that Srila Prabhupada will continue to be the direct link to the parampara for his sincere followers for the duration of his movement. Thus far it has been established that for many devotees in Srila Prabhupada's movement, regardless of when or whether they have taken formal initiation, Srila Prabhupada is the deliverer of divya-jnana, both directly and indirectly. He is the Vaishnava whose mercy is essential to advance in Krishna consciousness [...] These attributes also establish Srila Prabhupada as the Vaishnava to whom the initiate must absolutely, unconditionally, and directly surrender. In this sense SP serves as the direct and current link to the parampara. [...]

SRILA PRABHUPADA IS QUALIFIED TO BE WORSHIPPED

The title of this section surely seems obvious, and one might wonder why it needs to be stated. It has been chosen to illustrate that when discussing a guru's qualification and position, the focus often turns to the qualifications and status of devotees who conduct initiation ceremonies in ISKCON. For the purpose of this model, discussion of that point is not relevant. Of importance are Srila Prabhupada's qualifications, position, and relationship with the members of his institution. Specifically, just as Srila Prabhupada is qualified to be the object of absolute surrender, and to directly give divya-jnana for the duration of his movement, he is similarly fully capable to be the Vaishnava to be worshipped as the [direct] link to the parampara by all of his movement's devotees for the duration of his movement. [...] No one else needs to be worshipped as the link to the parampara, because Srila Prabhupada completely fills this role, though of course he accepts assistance from his followers. [Those who] who accept Srila Prabhupada as the guru to be worshipped as the current link to the parampara must be permitted to do so. As the main connection with the parampara, as the giver of transcendental knowledge, and the Vaishnava whose mercy is essential to progress in spiritual life, Srila Prabhupada is naturally the guru worshipable as the link to the parampara. Accepting Srila Prabhupada in this role may have many benefits in terms of unity for the movement and parsimony, in regards to future worship practices in the organization. Consider, for example, this hypothetical dialogue: [...] Devotee B: The picture of my spiritual master will remain on the altar. Devotee A: And 30 generations from now? When an ISKCON pujari goes on the altar he'll need a wheelbarrow to cart all the pictures of the links to the parampara. This seems very impractical. Why not just stick with the ISKCON altar that Srila Prabhupada gave us?

A similar analysis could be presented in relation to pranam mantras and other aspects of worship. Our paradigm should be that Srila Prabhupada, as the deliverer of divya-jnana for all members of his movement, is naturally the object of worship as the direct connection to the parampara. [...] Srila Prabhupada is the correct person to be worshipped as the direct link to the parampara. This is not a position of negativity. There may be Vaishnavas in Srila Prabhupada's movement who are pure devotees and worthy of worship. Regardless of the level of advancement of others, [...] Srila Prabhupada [is] the current link to the parampara. Worship of him in this capacity, regardless of when or by whom the worshipper was officially initiated, should be honored and respected in Srila Prabhupada's institution. [...] to not formally worship the devotee who performs the initiation ceremony is not an inherent minimization of that devotee. We contend that worship of Srila Prabhupada as the direct connection to the disciplic succession, without worship of anyone else as the link to Srila Prabhupada, should be accepted as a valid practice in Srila Prabhupada's movement [...].

Even if one conceives of the devotee who conducts the initiation ceremony to be in the absolute position and the current link to the parampara, that devotee could legitimately instruct the initiate to worship Srila Prabhupada rather than himself. For the sake of unity of the movement it would seem that such directives from devotees who perform initiations would be warranted. Many observers have commented that overemphasis by the initiate on the Vaishnava performing the initiation ceremony, in terms of worship, celebration of Vyasa-puja, and other practices, at the expense of an appreciation of Srila Prabhupada's proper place in the life of the initiate, has caused the movement to degrade to a matha mentality. If worship practices were returned to the form when Srila Prabhupada was present, this may help restore unity to the sankirtana movement. Such practices include restoring the ISKCON altar, for offerings and aratis, to include only those pictures that Srila Prabhupada established [...] Srila Prabhupada, as the direct and current link to the parampara by dint of being the deliverer of divya-jnana, is the natural guru to be worshipped as the connection to the disciplic succession. No other Vaishnava need be worshipped as a link to Srila Prabhupada. [...] By retaining the worship practices that Srila Prabhupada established, no one in Srila Prabhupada's movement will ever experience that the Vaishnava perceived and worshipped as the current link to the parampara will experience difficulties in spiritual life. Such difficulties have caused much disturbance, and to re-establish Srila Prabhupada's system of worship, with regards to the altar he instituted, and to recognize Srila Prabhupada as the point of unconditional surrender and the current link to the disciplic succession, would avert the possibility of such disturbances in the future. This will be a great burden lifted from the institution. Of course it is a loss and disappointment when any Vaishnava, especially one who has mentored others in Krishna consciousness, deviates from the path of bhakti-yoga, but if that Vaishnava is perceived to be the link to the parampara and the object of absolute surrender, then the effects can be devastating. There is no need for any devotee to experience such calamitous effects. Srila Prabhupada is qualified to receive worship through his picture and murti from all followers who have received transcendental knowledge from him. He is already doing this, in the capacity of the [current, direct] link to the disciplic succession, for many devotees who did not receive formal initiation from him. This confirms that he can do it, and we recommend that the movement establishes Srila Prabhupada as the guru to be worshipped as the current link to the parampara.

Some comments regarding worship of pictures and murtis are appropriate herein. Just as Sri Krishna, Srimati Radharani, and Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu are non-different from Their Deity forms, and are fully capable to act and relate in Their Deity forms, the murtis and pictures of the parampara acharyas, such as Srila Prabhupada and Srila Bhaktisiddhanta, can similarly act non-differently from the acharyas. Obviously this requires special empowerment from the Supreme Lord. Ordinary persons, or even ordinary aspiring Vaishnavas, are not able to reciprocate in their picture form in the way that the great acharyas do. [Are any] Vaishnavas in Srila Prabhupada's movement are capable of this [?...]. By retaining the ISKCON altar that Srila Prabhupada gave, without adding other pictures, we can be assured that all Vaishnavas whose worship is institutionally approved are fully on the transcendental platform. A caveat in presenting this is that all devotees should be honored, glorified and respected according to their actual stature. [Further,] to not formally worship a Vaishnava [that Srila Prabhupada did not ask us to], does not intrinsically minimize him.

TERMS OF RELEGATION

In recent GBC resolutions they have described Srila Prabhupada with expressions such as "foundational siksha guru for all ISKCON devotees" (1994), "pre-eminent siksha guru for every member of the institution" (1999), and "pre-eminent and compulsory siksha-guru for all Vaishnavas (gurus and disciples) in the Society" (1999). We suggest that terms such as these actually depreciate Srila Prabhupada's position, rather than genuinely acknowledge and glorify it. Srila Prabhupada is the [current link] for everyone in his movement. If we need to identify "the spiritual master," that Vaishnava is clearly Srila Prabhupada. The scriptures sometimes refer to "gurus" in the plural, substantiating that we have many spiritual masters, and they also sometimes refer to "guru" in the singular. Using qualifying terms, such as "pre-eminent siksha guru," to describe Srila Prabhupada's standing in his movement and the role he plays in the life of the members of his movement, distracts from Srila Prabhupada's status as "the spiritual master," the guru who is referred to when we refer to the singular spiritual master. It also muddles the understanding of the direct [...] role that Srila Prabhupada plays in the life of all members of his society. There are many definitions of "guru" and "spiritual master" and, by some definitions, all members of Srila Prabhupada's movement have many gurus. Qualifying appellations for Srila Prabhupada convey the perception of relegating him to something less than [he is.]

In 1999, just after the GBC passed a resolution designating Srila Prabhupada with terms such as “the pre-eminent siksha guru for every member of the institution” and “the pre-eminent and compulsory siksha-guru,” the GBC body discussed the idea that Srila Prabhupada would be the sole object of worship in ISKCON. A prominent GBC who conducts initiation ceremonies emphatically declared “But disciples must be able to worship their guru! They have to be allowed to worship their guru!” Clear from his statement was that, despite the resolutions from moments before that all members of Srila Prabhupada’s movement must place their faith, trust and allegiance first and foremost in Srila Prabhupada, who is the pre-eminent siksha guru for every member of the institution, the conception that continued to be maintained by this GBC, and most of the leaders present, was that the real guru, notwithstanding whatever official glorification may be afforded to Srila Prabhupada in resolutions, is the Vaishnava who performs the formal initiation ceremony. In support of this minimization of Srila Prabhupada’s role in his movement, one of the themes of a keynote speech at the 1999 GBC meetings was specifically that Srila Prabhupada is not the direct and current link to the disciplic succession for devotees who did not receive formal initiation from him. Then, shortly after the 1999 GBC meetings, a prominent GBC who conducts initiation ceremonies was giving class, and a question arose about guru worship that, according to the 1999 resolutions, continue to be permitted for the follower of Srila Prabhupada who conducts formal initiations. The GBC exclaimed, “Yes, in ISKCON it is still permissible to worship one’s guru!” Clearly, despite whatever qualified position statements were formally applied by the GBC to Srila Prabhupada’s status, the unquestioned conception of the formal initiator as the predominant and actual guru remained.

It is important that Srila Prabhupada is recognized as the prominent, direct and current link to the parampara for all members of his movement who receive direct divya-jnana from him. By not acknowledging Srila Prabhupada’s role as the direct link, his relationship with many members of his movement is organizationally invalidated. This will cause many of Srila Prabhupada’s followers to distance themselves from the institution. At its year 2000 meetings the GBC resolved “A duly initiated disciple in ISKCON can accept Srila Prabhupada, the founder-acharya of ISKCON, as his principal siksha-guru. During his devotional life, he may experience that he derives more spiritual inspiration from Srila Prabhupada’s books and vani than from his own diksha-guru.” The wording of this resolution implies that the default position for a duly initiated disciple is to derive more spiritual inspiration from “his own diksha-guru” than from Srila Prabhupada’s books and vani, though it is acknowledged that the disciple “can” accept Srila Prabhupada as his principle siksha-guru, and “may” experience more spiritual inspiration from Srila Prabhupada’s books and vani than from his diksha-guru. This resolution appears to be a regression from the 1999 GBC descriptions of Srila Prabhupada as “the pre-eminent and compulsory siksha-guru for all Vaishnavas (gurus and disciples) in the Society,” “the pre-eminent siksha guru for every member of the institution,” and the first and foremost object of faith, trust and allegiance for every member of ISKCON. Thus, we can see that describing Srila Prabhupada with qualifying terms such as “pre-eminent siksha guru” obfuscates his position as the [...] most essential, active spiritual force for all members of his movement. This relegation of Srila Prabhupada is conspicuous in the contradictory connotations of the 1999 and 2000 resolutions. As a result, SP’s rightful and natural place in the society of Vaishnavas is arrogated (taken unrightfully) by others, as evidenced in the practices and conceptualizations of devotees in many sectors of the organization.

RESPONSIBILITY

Srila Prabhupada continues to accept disciples who sincerely dedicate their lives to following his instructions and who willingly receive the transcendental knowledge that he imparts. Accepting these disciples means that Srila Prabhupada takes responsibility to guide these souls back to Godhead. There may be concern that if Srila Prabhupada accepts this responsibility, then others, including those who conduct initiation ceremonies, could be disinclined to take responsibility for the spiritual advancement of the new initiate. [...] Knowing that Srila Prabhupada takes responsibility for a sincere newcomer should increase our determination to help persons in their Krishna consciousness throughout their devotional lives, to constantly be attentive in our personal practice of bhakti-yoga, and to set an inspiring example. Additionally, each devotee is responsible to feel and demonstrate proper gratitude towards all the Vaishnavas who have assisted him in developing Krishna consciousness, the eternal gift of the soul. Devotees in Srila Prabhupada's movement who conduct initiation ceremonies have made tremendous sacrifices to guide and direct others in Krishna consciousness. These devotees deserve great commendation for their efforts to take responsibility for the spiritual advancement of others. All members of our Vaishnava communities, according to their capacity, should make similar efforts in the service of Srila Prabhupada. Without such endeavors to take responsibility for others on Srila Prabhupada's behalf, instituting Srila Prabhupada as the direct and current link to the parampara can be an excuse for neglecting our own responsibilities to care for and nourish the Krishna consciousness of others.

We are not concerned with titles and designations. Our interest is in understanding the process of advancement for members of Srila Prabhupada's movement. By accepting Srila Prabhupada as his prime spiritual authority and serving in Srila Prabhupada's society, a devotee advances in Krishna consciousness. Even within the model currently popular in ISKCON, when an initiating guru has difficulties, the society directs the initiate to take direct shelter of Srila Prabhupada. Also, when a devotee first contacts the movement he is encouraged to directly connect with Srila Prabhupada. Clearly there already is an understanding that Srila Prabhupada can and does take responsibility for sincere followers, although Srila Prabhupada physically departed decades ago. For followers of Srila Prabhupada, for the duration of his movement, there is profound security in knowing that the mahabhagavata A. C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Srila Prabhupada, a spiritual master at the topmost stage of Krishna conscious realization, is taking responsibility for their spiritual life, though this does not nullify the individual responsibility for one's advancement in Krishna consciousness. With this understanding of Srila Prabhupada's absolute position and the relative position of other members of his movement, there will be less disturbance caused, on an individual and institutional level, when devotees who serve as guides and mentors have difficulties. Such disturbances will be decreased because it will be clearly understood that Srila Prabhupada is the direct link to the disciplic succession, and thus to Krishna, and this fact has not been altered by anyone's deviation.

SCENARIOS

[...] a devotee contacts the movement and directly connects with Srila Prabhupada. Srila Prabhupada imparts divya-jnana to him, and the devotee accepts Srila Prabhupada as his spiritual master. This relationship is formalized with an initiation ceremony, which acknowledges that the initiate has directly connected with Srila Prabhupada and the disciplic succession. Throughout his devotional life the devotee develops close relationships with many of Srila Prabhupada's followers who assist the devotee to deepen his direct relationship with Srila Prabhupada. In this section we analyze other scenarios in relation to this model.

A devotee adheres to the beginning part of the scenario described in the paragraph above. After the formal initiation ceremony, however, the initiate regards the devotee who conducted the initiation, who has been Srila Prabhupada's primary assistant for the initiate, as the link to Srila Prabhupada, and as the absolute point of surrender. This seems a bit peculiar for the initiate, because for more than a year he had cultivated a direct relationship with Srila Prabhupada, worshipping Srila Prabhupada's picture and reciting Srila Prabhupada's pranam mantras, and celebrating Srila Prabhupada's Vyasa-puja [...]. Now, the initiate no longer directly worships Srila Prabhupada's picture, and Srila Prabhupada is no longer considered his direct connection to the parampara. [...] the initiate in the above scenario may actually be connected with Srila Prabhupada and the parampara, and thus initiated in the essential sense. That is, despite post-formal initiation external manifestations, the link with Srila Prabhupada may be established. Effective, albeit unfortunate, means by which this could be determined would be if the Vaishnava who conducted the official initiation deviated from the path of bhakti-yoga, and the initiate was required to again take direct shelter of Srila Prabhupada. The extent to which the initiate is successful in this, as evidenced by continuing in devotional service, would determine the degree to which direct connection with Srila Prabhupada had occurred. [...]

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(1) Does the CDL model assume that there are no pure devotees in Srila Prabhupada's movement? No. [...] Being a pure devotee does not mean that he is the current link to the parampara. Regardless of the level of spiritual advancement of any member of the movement, [...] Srila Prabhupada is [...] the direct and current link to the parampara and the deliverer of divya-jnana for all devotees in his society. Pure devotees will naturally be very pleased to help establish others in their direct relationship with Srila Prabhupada. (2) Will there be no further current links to the parampara? The CDL model asserts that Srila Prabhupada is qualified to be the current and prominent link to the disciplic succession for the duration of his movement. Apart from philosophic and shastric justification for this, the prime evidence is that he is doing it, even for devotees whom he did not officially initiate. [Regardless of future divine arrangements] What is clear is that Srila Prabhupada is doing this at present, and there is no need for others to aspire for this role. (3) What if someone receives [inspiration] from another Vaishnava, more than from Srila Prabhupada? Then that Vaishnava should guide and instruct his charge so that the dependent becomes directly linked to Srila Prabhupada. Till the ward has directly connected with Srila Prabhupada as his current link to the disciplic succession, he is not yet properly situated in the parampara, and shouldn't accept formal initiation in Srila Prabhupada's movement. [...] Anyone who joins Srila Prabhupada's movement should be encouraged to accept Srila Prabhupada as the link to the parampara. [...] (4) Surely it's accurate to say that Srila Prabhupada is giving siksha to all devotees, but is it correct to say that he is giving diksha? In CC Mad 4:111 purport: "Diksha actually means initiating a disciple with transcendental knowledge by which he becomes freed from all material contamination." Also, in CC Mad 15:108 purport, Srila Prabhupada defines diksha as a "...process by which one can awaken his transcendental knowledge and vanquish all reactions caused by sinful activity. A person expert in the study of the revealed scriptures knows this process as diksha." Srila Prabhupada is directly giving transcendental knowledge to members of his movement, regardless of when they joined or who performed their initiation ceremony. Therefore, it may be asserted that he is giving diksha, in the essential sense of the term. [...] (5) Does the CDL model assert that the formal initiation ceremony is unimportant, or unnecessary? The process of initiation is given to us by Krishna. Thus, all components of that process contain potency and are transcendental. The most essential part of the process is the transmission of divya-jnana. Srila Prabhupada is performing this most important part of the initiation process.

(6) Aren't the Vaishnavas in the movement other than Srila Prabhupada also giving divya-jnana? Srila Prabhupada's followers serve as his assistants. In this capacity they help Srila Prabhupada who gives transcendental knowledge to others. [...] other assistants, helps the devotee to directly link with Srila Prabhupada. This does not negate the fact that the devotee in the role of student also has an important relationship with the follower of Srila Prabhupada who is serving in the role of teacher. (7) Isn't the devotee who performs the initiation ceremony the link to the parampara? Conducting the formal initiation ceremony [does not make one] the link to the parampara. There are many examples in our parampara where a Vaishnava who did not conduct the initiation ceremony is the point of absolute surrender and the link to the disciplic succession. Such examples include Vyasadeva who, as far as we are aware, did not conduct the initiation ceremony for Madhvacharya. Narottama dasa Thakura did not perform an initiation ceremony for Vishvanatha Chakravarti Thakura. Jagannatha dasa Babaji did not formally initiate Bhaktivinoda Thakura, and Bhaktivinoda Thakura did not officially initiate Gaurakishora dasa Babaji. (8) In the CDL model, how will the initiate know how to manage his devotional life? Srila Prabhupada [has given his clear and complete instructions on this and] there are the sadhus in Srila Prabhupada's movement from whom the initiate will naturally accept guidance.

The initiate can choose where in Srila Prabhupada's movement he wants to serve. He is expected to cooperatively, submissively serve within the authority structure set up by Srila Prabhupada.

Consider the situation in the mid-1970s, when Srila Prabhupada was physically present. A devotee who joined at that time accepted Srila Prabhupada as his spiritual master and link to the parampara, though he did not expect to receive personal training from Srila Prabhupada. Srila Prabhupada's assistants personally guided and instructed the new devotee. Upon joining ISKCON the devotee chose where in Srila Prabhupada's organization to serve. Once choosing, he was expected to cooperate with the authority structure that Srila Prabhupada set up in that particular temple and to appropriately respect and serve all the devotees with whom he associated. Many of these devotees actively assisted him in spiritual life. In a sense they were his gurus, though he understood that Srila Prabhupada was his connection to the parampara. [...] Many have commented over the years how the present system, with the devotee who performs the initiation ceremony intrinsically involved in the managerial mix, has caused much disturbance. The CDL model proposes that we return to the system of management that was in effect when Srila Prabhupada was physically present on the planet. A devotee will naturally consult senior devotees whom he respects when making important decisions such as which temple to serve in and what service to perform. [But] there is no managerial control explicitly or implicitly assumed by the Vaishnava conducting the initiation ceremony over the Vaishnava being formally initiated, though there may be a managerial relationship, depending on the volition of the involved parties. [...] though none of them replace Srila Prabhupada as the most current, direct link to the disciplic succession. [...]

(9) Srila Prabhupada is not physically present and the CDL model claims that he can be the direct link to the parampara. Would it be acceptable, then, if a devotee accepted Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati as the direct link to the parampara? In the verse yasya deve para bhaktir yatha deve tatha gurau tasyaite kathia hy arthau prakasante mahatmanau, Sri Krishna specifies a two-center system, with the Lord as one center and the spiritual master as the other center. The spiritual master center must be the current link to the parampara. We maintain that Srila Prabhupada is the current link and suggest that he can remain in that role for the duration of his movement. [...] "We have to pick up from the prominent acharya and follow from him." (SPL Apr. 12, 1968) Srila Prabhupada's followers know Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati, and the others who constitute the parampara, through Srila Prabhupada. [...] All members of Srila Prabhupada's movement do have direct relationships with Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati, Bhaktivinoda Thakura, Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, other transcendental personalities. These relationships, however, are primarily through Srila Prabhupada. [...]. What if someone claims "By the definition given above, the direct link for me is Srila Rupa Goswami"? But if someone actually did originally connect with the Hare Krishna movement through the books of Rupa Goswami, then Rupa Goswami would arrange to connect that person to Srila Prabhupada, because Srila Prabhupada is the current link for the present time. [...] Srila Prabhupada's organization is for those who are directly connected with the parampara through Srila Prabhupada. Someone may be linked to the parampara through someone else, [...] however, that linkage is not necessarily part of Srila Prabhupada's institution. E.g., if someone is in the Sri-sampradaya line, Srila Prabhupada's followers honor that, but recognize it's not in Srila Prabhupada's line.

(10) What about the relationship between the Vaishnava who performs the initiation ceremony and the initiate? As we practically experience in Srila Prabhupada's movement, there is an expansive range of healthy, spiritually productive relationships between the devotee who performs the initiation ceremony and the initiate, the litmus test being whether the relationship assists the initiate to strengthen his direct link with Srila Prabhupada. Srila Prabhupada, not the devotee who conducted the initiation ceremony, should be the center of the relationship. While not minimizing the importance of the relationship between the devotee who conducts the initiation ceremony and the initiate, [we] concentrate on Srila Prabhupada's position and role in his movement, and most importantly Srila Prabhupada's direct, personal relationship with all in his movement. (11) Isn't it sufficient to acknowledge that Srila Prabhupada is the Founder-Acharya of ISKCON? "Founder-Acharya" describes Srila Prabhupada's position, role and title in his institution. CDL emphasizes the personal relationship that exists between Srila Prabhupada and all of his followers. In this context, it is important to understand Srila Prabhupada not only as the Founder-Acharya of his organization, but also as the active, primary spiritual master and the current, prominent link to the disciplic succession for his followers, regardless of when and from whom they formally received initiation. (END)

"GURU" IN THE SINGULAR: CLARITY ABOUT "FALL DOWN" (By Dhira Govinda das)

We need a guru in whom we have absolute faith and whom we are willing to follow unconditionally in order to spiritually progress to the realm of pure devotion to Sri Krishna. This statement is made with reference to the point that each of us has many gurus, with "gurus" used in the sense of "teacher," or "person who inspires and guides us." It is understood we generally don't consider these many gurus to be on the absolute platform. [...] That said, we need at least one guru who is on that absolute platform and in whom our trust is implicit and absolute. His sincere followers agree that Srila Prabhupada exists on that absolute platform and is fully qualified as a shelter for the unconditional surrender of conditioned souls. As we assert in our essays, when a person contacts Srila Prabhupada's movement, that person has found a guru, one completely worthy of their absolute faith. In that sense, the person no longer needs to seek a guru, because he has found one. Of course, that person will naturally have so many other devotees to guide, instruct and mentor him during their spiritual lives. [...] it is not necessary [...] those guides, mentors be on that platform, because Srila Prabhupada is perfectly serving in that capacity for the aspiring devotee. Srila Prabhupada flawlessly fills the role of guru, in the singular sense of the term, for all who contact his movement.

There is a game going on in the ISKCON organization, something like "Now that you've been in the movement for six months, or whatever, you should find a guru." In the context of the presentation in the paragraph above, the absurdity of that game should be apparent; to justify the game, ISKCON's leadership needs to dance in amusing ways. Essentially they seem to need to passively convince that Srila Prabhupada is not available to play that role. For example, they may say that one needs a living guru, implying that Srila Prabhupada is not living, despite so much contrary evidence. They may say one needs a guru who is physically present on this planet, or something to that effect. Then one may wonder about those who received formal initiation from someone who is "deceased." [Tamal, etc] Do they need to search for a [new] guru, with "guru" used in the singular sense? [...] It may be asserted that the initiate's physically departed guru [...] continues to live in sound and instruction. Then, [...] it would seem that Srila Prabhupada could also do that. Thus, in looking for a guru in the absolute position, there seems to be no basis for searching for a Vaishnava other than Srila Prabhupada. Of course, at all stages of our devotional lives we seek devotees who will guide and inspire us, though, it seems to me, there is no reason, at any stage of our devotional lives after we've encountered Srila Prabhupada's vani, to search for a[nother] guru in the absolute position.

ISKCON leadership tends to obscure the issue by asserting things like "Srila Prabhupada can be the siksha guru, but not the diksha guru," and various similar statements. Essentially, they're asserting that Srila Prabhupada is not available to be the guru in the absolute position. Herein we won't discuss the meaning of "diksha," which is discussed earlier (Ch.180). Even if we consider "diksha" in terms of the formal ceremony of initiation, as ISKCON leadership is often inclined to do, our parampara teaches that the guru in the absolute position, who is the reservoir of implicit faith for the disciple, is not intrinsically the devotee who conducts the ceremony of initiation. This is clearly evident from the list of the parampara found in the BGita Introduction. This is separate though related to the discussion about the essence of the process of diksha being in no way dependent on the formal ceremony of initiation. From what I am able to perceive, the position of the ISKCON leadership is that Srila Prabhupada, for some reason that I've not yet comprehended, is not available to be that guru in the absolute position, and thus a person who contacts Srila Prabhupada's movement must search for a guru from amongst members of the list of gurus approved by ISKCON. Apart from the difficulties of establishing Srila Prabhupada's unavailability, this stance also encounters serious problems in relation to the concept of "fall down," which connotes an obvious deviance from the regulative principles. This understanding of the term possesses value in our dealings and relationships with each other. However, if we are speaking of a guru who is the [current] link to the parampara for disciples, who is the reservoir of absolute trust, and who is the point of absolute surrender for the disciple, then "fall down" has a meaning more profound. In BGita, Ch. 12, Sri Krishna describes one who is equipoised in honor/dishonor, happiness/distress, who is free from false ego, etc. From that perspective, "fall down" indicates any departure from pure goodness. That is the standard of "fall down" if we're speaking about the primary, current, and direct link to the disciplic [...]. When "guru fall downs" are spoken of in ISKCON, it refers to those being caught in blatant violations of regulative principles. But that is not the standard to be applied if we're discussing gurus in the absolute position.

Sometimes the dance takes the form of stating "Well, he is not claiming to be absolute or infallible. He is simply doing his best..." We need to recognize the smokescreen surrounding the humble-sounding tap dance. A person aspiring to advance in spiritual life needs a guru who is the direct link to the parampara who is qualified to receive unconditional surrender. For the disciples of ISKCON gurus let us ask "Who is that guru in the absolute position?" If it is the Vaishnava who performed the formal initiation ceremony, then let that be clearly stated. And if so, then that conductor of the ceremony should be held to the standard of "fall down" that is there for the pillars of the parampara such as Bhaktivinode Thakur, Jagannatha dasa Babaji, and Srila Prabhupada. If out of sincere or a show of humility they claim that they are not the direct link to the parampara who is the point of ultimate surrender, then let us ask, who is? Is it Srila Prabhupada? If so, then let's celebrate that and state it clearly. But they won't state it clearly, at least not consistently, or in writing, as far as I know. Rather, ISKCON leadership tends to claim, albeit implicitly and with humble-sounding words, that ISKCON gurus are the point of ultimate surrender for the disciple, while at the same time wanting to hold themselves to a shallow understanding of "fall down." If they are gurus in the sense that we each have so many gurus, then that conception of fall down has its place. If they are saying that they are the primary links to the parampara, as listed at in the Introduction to BGita, then the standard of fall down is any deviation from pure goodness, including any personal ambition, any personally motivated thoughts or behavior, any tinge of attraction for profit, adoration, or distinction. If they are saying that they are not the current link, then let's openly ask who is the current, direct, and prominent link, the guru in the absolute position, for the initiate.

At some level, ISKCON leadership knows that the standard for fall down for a guru at the level that they are claiming is the highest standard. E.g., in the "Qualifications of the Candidate" section of a recent nominating letter for someone to be an authorized ISKCON initiating guru, one of the qualifications is stated as: "He is free from kamini-kancana, pratistha, nisiddhacara, kuti-nati, puja, and labha." How is such a thing determined by the GBC? That such a statement is asserted indicates that they know, at some level, that they are claiming, despite humble-sounding smokescreens to the contrary, to be gurus at that absolute level.

Another dilemma of the system being promoted by the ISKCON leadership is the fact that if there is any fall down then that is a clear indication that the system is not authorized. For example in NOD Srila Prabhupada writes: "...if a spiritual master is not properly authorized and only on his own initiative becomes a spiritual master, he may be carried away by an accumulation of wealth and large numbers of disciples. His is not a very high grade of devotional service. If a person is carried away by such achievements, then his devotional service becomes slackened. One should therefore strictly adhere to the principles of disciplic succession." Because at some level they know this, fall downs of gurus, even blatant ones, are routinely covered up and denied, unless and until it becomes futile to do so. They know that the fact that any one of them has deviated, even slightly from pure goodness, what to speak of blatantly from even ordinary standards, indicates that the guru system they are promoting and following, and which serves them personally, is not authorized. Recently there are gurus whose fall downs are blatant and exposed. Still, they remain ISKCON gurus. Perhaps the reasoning behind this is simply that declaring them no longer ISKCON gurus will cause too much damage to the organization. Thus, as in many other instances, so-called philosophy is determined based on supposed needs for organizational preservation. For the guru who has blatantly fallen and been exposed (I state this explicitly because many have blatantly fallen and have not yet been widely exposed), he is still holding that position which implies absoluteness. So, should the disciples of that guru consider this person to be the point of ultimate surrender? Should they consider Srila Prabhupada to be that guru in the absolute position? If SP is available to them or to anyone in that capacity, then it seems he is available to everyone in that capacity- at least everyone who sincerely devotes their life to him and his mission.

It is commonly known throughout the movement that many in the position of "absolute guru" are blatantly fallen, though this has not yet been revealed, and thus they continue in their posts as "ISKCON guru." And each of us can determine for ourselves what percentage of "ISKCON gurus" are fallen with reference to the standard of being free from any tinges of the modes of material nature. This presentation is not about finding fault in those who are assuming the position of "ISKCON guru." Rather, I present this to generate deliberation about why someone who contacts Srila Prabhupada's movement should need in any way to take chances about the devotee they choose to be the guru who is the direct link to the parampara. It is 100% sure that Srila Prabhupada is qualified for this role. And, I and many others assert, he is fully available for that service. So, by connecting with Srila Prabhupada as the infallible guru, all members of Srila Prabhupada's movement for all generations are fully secure in their link to the disciplic succession. Even if there were some doubt that even one of the ISKCON gurus were influenced by some tinge of the lower modes, it would seem to me that it would not be responsible to set up a system where the potential initiate needs to take any chances whatsoever, considering that Srila Prabhupada is available to be the primary, current, direct link to the parampara. Beyond that [...] even if all who serve in the capacity of ISKCON initiating guru were to be mahabhagavatas, my conviction is that they would embrace the CDL model. Srila Prabhupada is available to serve as the guru, in the singular sense. Therefore, why would anyone, especially an advanced Vaishnava, want to try to fill a position that is already filled by Srila Prabhupada? (END)

CURRENT AND DIRECT LINK (CDL): NINE PRINCIPLES AND PRACTICES

By Dhira Govinda das: In 2001 I wrote Srila Prabhupada: The Prominent Link (PL), and therein described the PL model, which, according to our understanding of Srila Prabhupada's teachings, is consistent with his vision and guidance for continuance of the disciplic succession. The purpose of this article is to delineate specific principles and practices that indicate alignment with the PL model. This is necessary because over the years I have frequently heard from or about persons who claim to agree with the PL model, but whose actions and statements, given in other contexts, are distinctly contrary to PL model principles. My hope and intention is to provide well-defined guidelines to determine whether or to what extent someone, ourselves included, is in genuine agreement with the PL model.

TERMS: I first heard the term "prominent link" at an initiation lecture in 2001 and I decided to use the term in Srila Prabhupada: The Prominent Link. The Vaishnava conducting the initiation ceremony described the relationship between Srila Prabhupada and the initiates, as "prominent link"- that is, Srila Prabhupada was the prominent link to the parampara for the initiates. A few weeks later the devotee who performed the initiation ceremony expressed to me in-person in Mayapur that he is not in agreement with the PL model, though he acknowledged he hadn't read the book PL. The above illustrates that the term "prominent link" may be used in a manner that might to some persons indicate adherence to the principles in the PL book, but that actually does not align with what genuine supporters of the PL Model consider to be a Srila Prabhupada-centered approach. Other such terms include describing Srila Prabhupada as the pre-eminent siksha guru, or primary/ main guru, or the "universal permanent Siksha-guru of ISKCON," or the Founder-acharya, or the "foundational siksha guru for all ISKCON devotees." Also there are longer phrases, such as "...everything in ISKCON, even all the devotees, belongs to Srila Prabhupada" and "SP is the proprietor of ISKCON," which similarly serve to sometimes mislead listeners, or readers, to believe that the speaker, or writer, is aligned with the precepts of the PL model. We're not minimizing or criticizing these terms and phrases. [...]

This paper highlights terms and practices that clearly distinguish the authentic PL model from spurious appearances. Two terms that I've found almost always represent a genuine consciousness and understanding of the PL principles are "current link" and "direct link." When these terms are used to describe Srila Prabhupada's relationship with the initiate, and with all members of his movement, whether or whenever they've participated in a formal initiation ceremony, it usually indicates, from my perception, that the speaker or writer is undeniably aligned with PL principles. To clarify and emphasize this point- describing Srila Prabhupada as the "current link" and "direct link" is much more indicative of a fully Prabhupada-centered approach than terms such as "main guru," "primary connection," "preeminent siksha guru," "prominent link," or other terms. Thus, what has till now been called the Prominent Link model will now be called the Current and Direct Link model (CDL).

I've even seen "current link" used in slippery ways. Not long ago I was sent a link to a video of an initiation ceremony. I watched it and noticed that during the lecture the conductor of the ceremony expressed that Srila Prabhupada is the current link "within our society," and I've heard Srila Prabhupada described as the current or direct link for ISKCON or the institution. This is substantially different than asserting that Srila Prabhupada is the direct link and current link for the person who is receiving formal initiation, and for any individual who has contacted Srila Prabhupada's movement.

"Current link" indicates full presence, including presence through vani, and in the form of murti. I mention this because there are places in Vaishnava society where Srila Prabhupada is regarded as a "previous acharya," and where Srila Prabhupada's presence in his murti form is denied. These conceptions are opposed to the CDL model, wherein Srila Prabhupada is understood and realized as the present acharya and fully present in his murti form. [Description of exchange with the GBC's SAC about whether Srila Prabhupada is present in his murti like Krishna is present in His deity form. See Ch. 181] Many Srila Prabhupada followers, including this author, possess full conviction that Srila Prabhupada is living and present in his murti form, and this conviction is essential in the Current and Direct Link (CDL) model. The terms "direct link" and "current link" also signify particular practices.

PRACTICES: Followers of the CDL model, of the understanding that Srila Prabhupada is their current link and direct link to the parampara, recite Srila Prabhupada's pranam mantras, and they don't recite the pranam mantras of others as their link to Srila Prabhupada. Also, they worship the picture of Srila Prabhupada, and they don't worship the pictures of others as their link to Srila Prabhupada. In addition, when such a follower of Srila Prabhupada refers to "my guru's Vyasa-puja," he is referring to the Vyasa-puja celebration of Srila Prabhupada. He does not celebrate a Vyasa-puja event for anyone else, as his link to Srila Prabhupada, because Srila Prabhupada is his direct and current link to the parampara. The above practices [...] clearly indicate that the devotee regards Srila Prabhupada as his current and direct link to the parampara. These three practices, and their accompanying proscriptions, are essential in the CDL model. Whatever an initiate or a devotee who performs an initiation ceremony, or anyone, may state verbally, these practices are vital in walking the walk of realizing Srila Prabhupada as the current and direct link to the disciplic succession. Another practice is use of the term "My guru," to refer to Srila Prabhupada.

'32': With reference to the list of acharyas in the Introduction to BGita As It Is, one who recognizes and realizes Srila Prabhupada as the current and direct link to the parampara relates to Srila Prabhupada as "32," without a "33." Naturally the devotee who regards Srila Prabhupada as his direct and current link to the parampara gets inspiration and guidance from other Vaishnavas. These Vaishnavas support him in directly connecting to Srila Prabhupada, and in directly cultivating his relationship with Srila Prabhupada. That is different than becoming the link to Srila Prabhupada. The below excerpts reference the concepts of "guru in the singular" and "guru in the plural." "Guru in the singular" refers to the guru in whom we have absolute and unconditional faith, with full conviction that he is not in any way influenced by the gunas. "Guru in the plural" refers to the fact that devotees naturally have many Vaishnavas who inspire them in Krishna consciousness, and in that sense they are gurus. [...] (1) At the start of BGita is a list of 32 Vaishnavas. My understanding is: the Vaishnava preceding is the current, direct and primary link to the parampara for the Vaishnava succeeding. E.g., #26, Narottama dasa Thakur is the current, direct and primary link to the parampara for #27, Visvanatha Chakravarti Thakur. (2) A study of the history of this parampara reveals that not all of the current and direct links were on the planet at the same time as their successors. Also, we'll find that in several instances no formal initiation ceremony happened between these links. (3) Therefore, based on the disciplic succession as given to us by Srila Prabhupada and Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati, neither a formal initiation ceremony nor simultaneous presence on the same planet is required for one Vaishnava to serve as the current, direct and primary link to the parampara for another Vaishnava.

(4) Based on these references to logic and parampara precedent, my understanding is that Srila Prabhupada is available as the direct, current and primary link to the parampara for those who sincerely follow his guidance. There is an abundance of additional sastraic evidence to support this. In addition there are the experiences of thousands of Vaishnavas to support this. (5) Can this model, of accepting Srila Prabhupada as one's current and direct link to the parampara, be misused? Yes, of course it could. [...] Herein I wish to focus on siddhanta, a deepening of our understanding of philosophical truth. (6) ...please consider someone who connected with Srila Prabhupada's movement in, say, 1976. This devotee received initiation from Srila Prabhupada, though he never saw him or received a letter from him. In many instances Srila Prabhupada didn't even select the spiritually initiated name, nor did Srila Prabhupada chant on the japa beads of this person. Still, there is no question in the mind of this devotee that Srila Prabhupada is his direct, current and primary link to the parampara... (7) Simultaneously, the devotee described above served in Srila Prabhupada's movement, and he accepted the temple president, the visiting sannyasi, etc as his "gurus in the plural." [...] Srila Prabhupada is the current and direct link to the parampara for this person. These gurus in the plural represented Srila Prabhupada, though they did not serve in the capacity of '33'." (8) The listings of the pillars of the parampara, as listed at the start of BGita, may stop with Srila Prabhupada for the duration of his movement. But the parampara continues. When you explain to someone transcendental knowledge about Krishna and the soul, as learned from BGita, you are continuing the parampara. When that person absorbs the knowledge and explains it to someone else, that person is continuing the parampara. Simultaneously, Srila Prabhupada is the direct and current link to the parampara for all who receive the knowledge within the umbrella of his movement and his teachings. Srila Prabhupada is alive through his teachings and he can continue to personally give knowledge through his teachings. Once someone has genuinely accepted Srila Prabhupada as his spiritual master, and has become situated in the transcendental process of initiation with SP as the primary link to the parampara, then that person need not look for another devotee to be the prime link to the parampara, or to be the infallible spiritual master described in the scriptures.

VERSES: Vishvanatha Chakravarti Thakura wrote: [...] "By the mercy of the spiritual master one receives the benediction of Krishna. Without the grace of the spiritual master, one cannot make any advancement. Therefore, I should always remember and praise the spiritual master. At least three times a day I should offer my respectful obeisances unto the lotus feet of my spiritual master." The above verse refers to "guru in the singular." One who genuinely accepts Srila Prabhupada as his personal, direct and current link to the parampara meditates on Srila Prabhupada when chanting or singing the above verse. Devotees receive mercy from many Vaishnavas, who all, in a sense, are serving as his guru. "Gurun is plural in number because anyone who gives spiritual instructions based on the revealed scriptures is accepted as a spiritual master" (CC Adi 1:34 purport). For devotees in Srila Prabhupada's movement, however, the Vaishnava whose mercy without which we would not receive the benediction of Krishna and would not make advancement is Srila Prabhupada. This is evidenced by the fact that the [spiritual influence] of other Vaishnavas may be withdrawn, and the former recipient continues to make advancement in Krishna consciousness and to receive benedictions from Krishna. This is possible because Srila Prabhupada continues to bestow his mercy and grace. This can also be appreciated in relation to the verse: [...] “Unto those great souls who have implicit faith in both the Lord and the spiritual master, all the imports of Vedic knowledge are automatically revealed” Again, “guru in the singular” is referenced. Srila Prabhupada is the one in whom implicit faith must exist in order for the imports of Vedic knowledge to be automatically revealed. As the direct link, Srila Prabhupada is the person to whom the devotee surrenders absolutely. These verses [support] one’s claims of putting Srila Prabhupada in the center. On whom does one meditate when considering these verses? If a devotee conducts a ceremony of formal initiation, whom does he expect the initiate to consider the “guru in the singular,” as in these verses?

STRAW MEN: Over the years I’ve heard the CDL model misrepresented [...] Some have asserted that the CDL model implies, or directly states, that there are no pure devotees in Srila Prabhupada’s movement, and this line of thought goes on to question the supposed CDL assumption that he didn’t create pure devotees. The understanding that Srila Prabhupada is the current link and direct link to the parampara does not assume or imply that there are no pure devotees in Srila Prabhupada’s movement. [...] The existence or nonexistence of pure devotees does not affect the CDL model’s principles. [...] if there are [...] they would enthusiastically encourage everyone to connect with Srila Prabhupada as the direct, current link to the parampara, and they would fully support and live by the principles and practices described in this paper. Often we hear that the CDL model minimizes the importance of Vaishnava association. That is not the case. [...] the precepts of the model itself fully encourage devotees to serve, associate with and receive guidance from other Vaishnavas who will inspire them in cultivating their direct relationship with Srila Prabhupada. [...]

Other issues and straw men are addressed in [PL to] assist the reader to distinguish this understanding from words and statements that present a thin veneer of apparent “Prabhupada-centered” dedication, concealing, perhaps less than consciously, something quite contrary to principles and practices actually aligned with realizing Srila Prabhupada as the current and direct link to the disciplic succession. We [...] assert that it is philosophically valid, and it is experienced as true by thousands of Vaishnavas. We humbly request that the worldwide community of Vaishnavas at least respects and honors this understanding of Srila Prabhupada as the current and direct link to the disciplic succession for members of his movement who sincerely approach him in that capacity, regardless of whether or when they participated in a formal initiation ceremony. My hope and intention with this effort is to enrich philosophical conversation and understanding around these important topics, to enhance appreciation for Srila Prabhupada, and to inspire implementation of the principles and practices of CDL, Srila Prabhupada’s model for continuing the parampara. (END)

SUMMARY OF NINE PRINCIPLES AND PRACTICES *By Dhira Govinda das

Here are the nine principles and practices described in the CDL essay, for supporting us in identifying whether and to what degree someone is genuinely and actively aligned the Current Direct Link (CDL) model, with Srila Prabhupada as the current and direct link to the parampara. We can apply these precepts and guidelines to ourselves, in determining the extent to which we truly accept Srila Prabhupada in the capacity as direct and current link to the disciplic succession. Also these principles and practices can be utilized to evaluate suitability for accepting roles in a formal initiation ceremony. In that regard, it is important that the initiate and the devotee conducting the ceremony are philosophically on the same page. Suppose that the initiate is interested in a formal initiation ceremony that is fully aligned with [the PL/] CDL model. He can use the guidelines herein to formulate questions for the devotee performing the ceremony, to determine whether there is full agreement with fundamental and vital issues. ONE: [The question should be raised] “After the ceremony, who will be my current link to the disciplic succession?” The principles of the CDL model would mean that all parties in the initiation ceremony clearly understand that Srila Prabhupada is the current link, and will remain the current link for the initiate after the formal ceremony. TWO: Referring to Srila Prabhupada as the direct link to the parampara. (A relevant question would be the same as in #1 above, with “direct link” rather than “current link.” Note, as emphasized earlier, “primary link,” “prominent link,” “main guru,” or other such terms are not equivalent substitutes for “direct link” and “current link,” in establishing the genuine Prabhupada-centeredness of someone, including a devotee who conducts initiation ceremonies.) THREE: Pranam mantras for Srila Prabhupada, and not for anyone else as a link to Srila Prabhupada. FOUR: Worship of Srila Prabhupada’s picture, and not worshipping the picture of anyone else as a link to Srila Prabhupada. FIVE: The term “My guru” refers to Srila Prabhupada. SIX: Celebrating Srila Prabhupada’s Vyasa-puja, and not that of others as the link to Srila Prabhupada. [...] SEVEN: 32: The devotee regards and relates to Srila Prabhupada as “32,” with respect to the disciplic succession listed in the Introduction to BGita As It Is. There is no 33. That doesn’t mean that there won’t ever be a “33” somewhere, sometime, for some devotees. A Vaishnava who accepts Srila Prabhupada as the direct and current link to the parampara accepts Srila Prabhupada as “32.” For such a devotee, whose consciousness is aligned with CDL, there is no “33.” [...] EIGHT: Srila Prabhupada is the Vaishnava referred to and meditated on by the verse “yasya prasada bhagavat-prasado...” NINE: Srila Prabhupada is the Vaishnava referred to and meditated on by the verse “yasya deve para bhaktir...” (END)

DISCUSSION: IS SRILA PRABHUPADA THE EXCLUSIVE SOURCE OF DIVYA-JNANA?

Many devotees who are philosophically convinced that Srila Prabhupada is the current link to the parampara may find some issues with a few terms or characterizations made in Dhira Govinda’s earlier writings up to 2001, such as: “Srila Prabhupada as the direct and primary guru...” “Srila Prabhupada is factually serving as the direct and preeminent spiritual master...” “...he is the primary link to the parampara for those who contact his movement.” “Srila Prabhupada is [...] the primary spiritual master for all members of his movement.” However, as explained above, this author has revised and updated these terms in his CDL essays.

“Some devotees may insist on being initiated by another than Srila Prabhupada. What can be done? They should do so in another institution, not in Srila Prabhupada’s ISKCON, where Srila Prabhupada should be accepted as available for giving divya-jnana, which he imparts to those who follow him. PL and CDL do not endorse other initiation systems. But in reality they will exist, valid or not. Invalidating other systems is not directly in the scope of the CDL author’s present purpose. Instead, he focuses on validating Srila Prabhupada as the current link to the parampara. Also we note from the history of Dhira Govinda’s writings, such as from The Humble Guru, to Prominent Link, and finally to Current and Direct Link: Nine Principles and Practices, that there has been something of an evolution of thought and realization from 1998 and on.” (Nityasiddha das, 2021)]

As one reader put it: “The issue that comes up in my mind is where Srila Prabhupada is being described as the major or primary influence, rather than being the exclusive source of transcendental knowledge. Isn’t Srila Prabhupada the ONLY initiator?” Another reader wrote: “‘Primary’ spiritual master- but isn’t Srila Prabhupada our one and only guru? By the phrase ‘prominent or primary’ link, one could assume or speculate that there may be also many other not-so primary links in the parampara. Srila Prabhupada used ‘current link’ which means specifically only one, namely the only one we are using now and will be using for who knows how long. There is only one system meant to be followed in Srila Prabhupada’s movement.”

From Narasimha das: “I liked his presentation as a way to bridge a gap to those who have been severely misled. [...] The key point is that Srila Prabhupada is the only fully transcendental link to the guru param para and to Krishna. He is not only the prominent link, he is the only link. There is the appearance of trying to appease [...] the real path and long-range way of preaching success may be more along the lines of shouting from the roof tops, ‘My dear friends, you have accepted a poser as your guru, but by so doing you miss the unique chance accept the real Acharya for this Age! Wake up!’ Not all can understand or accept this message, particularly those who have been poisoned with false ideas regarding posers acting as diksha-gurus. It will take some devotees a long time to get it, so why appease them? Better to preach to the innocent... I don’t say that PL is speculative or compromising in its conclusions, but some parts may be viewed as compromising, particularly in suggesting there may be more than one valid way of understanding Srila Prabhupada's relationship with devotees in His movement. In defense of this approach I will suggest that in the academic ways of presentation, understatement and allowing readers to form their own conclusions based on consistent logic devoid of emotionalism and politics is considered most effective, particularly in sociological and psychological presentations. In preaching this called 'going in like a needle.' Perhaps Dhira Govinda das deftly used his academic training and self help expertise in a presentation that can be understood by almost any intelligent, rational person, even those adversely influenced by iskcon misleaders. I thought it was particularly effective how he described their rationale for 'changing Srila Prabhupada words' regarding the initiation of Bhaktvinoda Thakura and Gaura Kishore Das Babaji. He effectively showed the absurdity of their upstart attitude without himself having to directly condemn them as offensive rascals. Of course, this can also be done effectively by directly quoting Srila Prabhupada and always giving emphasis to his words, position and character. [...] I believe PL, through sound logic devoid of shrillness and disdain, likely helped many innocent avoid the pitfalls of minimizations of Srila Prabhupada. At the end of day, all issues are easy for those who understand who and what Srila Prabhupada is and difficult for those who don't. Sometimes devotees get offended with our 'hard line' preaching. In fact it is us who have been ostracized. As soon as we say, "No change, no compromise!" they run away. On the other hand, it seems we are always the ones chasing after devotees to discuss siddhanta. Maybe we should try CDL as a new approach." (Narasimha das)

Dhira Govinda das responded to the above comments: "A few years after writing PL, and Response to the SAC, and related writings, I wrote Current and Direct Link: Nine Principles and Practices (CDL), to provide practical guidelines, regarding what it means to philosophically and experientially accept and relate to Srila Prabhupada as one's current and direct link to the disciplic succession. [...] With regard to comments connected with the term 'Prominent Link,' I tend to agree with them. That's why in later years and writings [...] I use 'current link' and 'direct link.' Srila Prabhupada of course uses 'current link' in the purport to SBhag 2.9.7. I particularly like the term 'current link.' If I were to write Srila Prabhupada: The Prominent Link now, I think [...] "Current link" and "Direct link" are preferable. I've found that many who are attached to the false idea that Srila Prabhupada is not available to serve as the current link to the parampara for members of his movement, will be open to say that Srila Prabhupada is the 'prominent link,' though not open to use the terms 'current link' and 'direct link' to describe Srila Prabhupada's role and relationship with members of his movement who primarily and directly receive divya-jnana from Srila Prabhupada. 'Current link' is a much better litmus test than 'prominent link,' to determine whether someone really grasps the principles that relate to Srila Prabhupada, divya-jnana, and the relationship between Srila Prabhupada and the members of his movement.

"From 'The Humble Guru' (1998) till The Prominent Link (PL) (2001), my philosophical understanding and realizations definitely evolved. [...] Since 2001, and PL [...] I'd say that my thought and understandings about the fundamental principles of guru-tattva have deepened, and my capacity to communicate the principles has been refined. In [...] early in 2002 in Mayapur, the GBC was concerned about Srila Prabhupada: The Prominent Link, and the effect it was having on devotees around the world. Some GBC members asked to speak with me, and I agreed. Radhanatha Swami, Ravindra Svarupa, Badrinarayana, Svavas, and Anuttama Prabhus participated in that meeting. So, the four GBCs endeavored to request me, or tell me, to stop distributing PL, to retract what I had written, because it was causing disturbance in the movement. I attempted to focus on philosophical principles. I asked Radhanatha Swami: 'During your recent initiation lecture in Alachua, you used the term "prominent link" to describe the relationship between SP and the initiates in the ceremony you conducted. In what sense is the way that you use the term, "prominent link," philosophically valid, and in what sense is the way I use the term, "prominent link," philosophically deviant?'

“He seemed clearly at a loss for words and said, ‘I didn’t actually read your book’. So, I thought to myself, ‘He’s taking a strong stand that what I wrote shouldn’t be shared with the devotees in ISKCON, and that I should retract what I wrote, but he didn’t actually read it.’ I was stunned. Then I attempted to again discuss fundamental principles (eg., that vani is not dependent on geography). At another point when Radhanatha Swami appeared to be stumped by a statement I presented, Badrinarayana Prabhu intervened, ‘Look, this isn’t about philosophy!’ I appreciated his honesty. He confirmed that devotees in the movement were disturbed, and so I should just stop distributing my booklet. Radhanatha Swami said he heard from ‘senior devotees,’ mentioning specific localities, that PL was causing disturbance- therefore, I should stop distributing PL. So, I expressed, using his exact words, that I had heard from ‘senior ISKCON devotees,’ and I mentioned the same localities, that they were so enlivened by PL, and they encouraged me to share PL with as many devotees as possible, that PL was what they knew in their hearts to be true for more than 20 years, and they appreciated so much that I had put it clearly into words. So, I used his same argument to support the opposite conclusion. Radhanatha Swami simply stated, ‘You’re not advanced enough to write this.’ I thought, ‘Well, I’m not advanced enough to do much of anything. Still, there are the philosophical principles that I’ve understood from Srila Prabhupada, and that make sense to me, and that are contrary to what is happening in the ISKCON organization- so, what am I supposed to do with that?’ Hare Krishna.”

CONCLUSION by Nityananda das

Discussion of guru tattva philosophy is healthy and supportive of broadening our realizations and spiritual perspective. Srila Prabhupada encouraged his followers to express in writing their realizations to stimulate philosophic contemplation and advance our understanding of siddhanta, both in the writer and readers. We should always encourage free discussion and thought in an adventurous mood of discovery and fostering societal upliftment. Otherwise we face the danger fanaticism and tyranny, as seen in ISKCON today. The honest and sincere persons will be helped by the Supersoul and Srila Prabhupada to come to the right conclusions, and even dishonest persons will gradually be benefited by their well-wishers and the association of those who have realized siddhantic conclusions. “The thoughts of My pure devotees dwell in Me, their lives are surrendered to Me, and they derive great satisfaction and bliss enlightening one another and conversing about me.” (BGita 10.9) Srila Prabhupada advised us to write our realizations for preaching and our own personal edification and advancement. Writing, discussing, speaking, debate brings better understanding of the philosophy and stimulates realizations. Some of what I wrote in VVRs 1988-92 are now embarrassing for me today, since my realizations have evolved. Of course, just reading and discussing directly from Srila Prabhupada’s books, we are always safe. Yet, we have also been told by Srila Prabhupada to write in our own words and from our present level of realization, so obviously our writing will reflect our level of understanding at that time, and it will mature over time as we continue on the path of Krishna consciousness. And this is especially applicable to areas of philosophy which are complex and profound, such as the “guru issue” and sampradaya siddhanta. Some quotes on this: (1) “Everything is there in our books; so learn it and put in your own way by reproducing. You are also materially well-educated so reproduce what I have taught in your own language. These things are new thoughts in your western countries, everyone will be interested. Writing is also required.” (SPL May 1, 1973) (2) “Chant Hare Krishna Mantra day and night, read books and expressing the philosophy in your own words write articles for publishing. The process is that you should memorize the purports of my books and then speak them in your own words. By writing according to our realization we become more and more convinced and all doubts are destroyed.” (SPL Nov. 15, 1975) (3) “Realization means you should write, every one of you, what is your realization. What for this Back to Godhead is? You write your realization, what you have realized about Krishna. That is required. It is not passive. Always you should be active. Whenever you find time, you write.” (SPL) (4) “The points of Bhagavad-gita, though they are simple and complete, can be understood from unlimited angles of vision. So our philosophy is not dry, like mental speculation. The proper function of the brain or psychological activity is to understand everything through Krishna's perspective or point-of-view, and so there is no limit to that understanding because Krishna is unlimited, and even though it can be said that the devotee who knows Krishna, he knows everything (Ch. 15), still, the philosophical process never stops and the devotee continues to increase his knowledge even though he knows everything." (SPL Jan. 21, 1972)

CHAPTER 183: EMPIRE STRIKES BACK (WEAKLY)

"Not merely the validity of experience, but the very existence of external reality was tacitly denied by their philosophy. The heresy of heresies was common sense." (George Orwell in 1984)

The 2001 30 page PL essay shook the foundation of ISKCON philosophical deviations like an earthquake because their policies and siddhanta are based on shaky and deviant understandings.

SRILA PRABHUPADA IS A PREVIOUS OR PRESENT ACHARYA? (Dhira Govinda das)

"When I published PL in 2001, I had many positions in ISKCON, including Director of the ISKCON Child Protection Office, Chairman of the Board of Directors of ISKCON Alachua, various roles related to educational efforts in ISKCON, etc. So, the GBC was quite concerned that someone with these positions was writing and publishing papers, booklets, not approved by them. In the early 2000s I had extensive correspondence with the GBC's Shastric Advisory Committee (SAC) and other devotees. [...] The SAC insisted that Srila Prabhupada is a "previous acharya," not available as a current acharya. Excerpt from my response paper: 'In correspondence, SAC members would refer to Srila Prabhupada as a "previous acharya," a term with which this author is not comfortable in reference to Srila Prabhupada. We maintain that Srila Prabhupada is living in his instructions and murti form, and is a present acharya.'"

DO SRILA PRABHUPADA'S PURPORTS REQUIRE OUTSIDE REFERENCE TO UNDERSTAND?

"Also the SAC, in their correspondence with me [...] would cite various previous acharyas, in order to try to get confirmation for a particular conclusion. In my response paper, I wrote: 'The SAC cited authorities such as Sanatana Goswami, Narahari Sarakara, and Jiva Goswami [regarding re-initiation]. As a general principle we refer to Srila Prabhupada to understand previous acharyas, not vice versa. We suggest that Srila Prabhupada's meaning in the cited purports of Madhya-lila are clear, and do not demand reference elsewhere for understanding. The SAC's linguistic analysis of the Goswamis' literature may justify a reminder: "The original purpose of the text must be maintained. No obscure meaning should be screwed out of it." (SBhag 1:4:1 purport) There are many other aspects [...] how 'SAC has been guiding ISKCON with deviant policies for quite some time.' The SAC members at that time included Urmila, Gopiparanadhana, Purnachandra, Krishna Ksetra, and Drutakarma, and the latter three men were in the process of applying to the GBC to be 'ISKCON Gurus.' Shortly after their response paper to PL, these three were approved as 'gurus.' (Dhira Govinda das)

COMMENT: This is a classic conflict of interest; the "sages" bend philosophy to suit themselves.

RESPONSE TO THE SAC (GBC'S SHASTRIC ADVISORY COMMITTEE) by Dhira Govinda das

[In 2002 the GBC's SAC devoted extensive time to the study and critique of Dhira Govinda's PL essays, including lengthy communications with him. They wrote: "We can agree without hesitation that Srila Prabhupada is the most prominent link to the sampradaya for all of his followers," and confirmed that Srila Prabhupada being the prominent link to the parampara "is something few will disagree with." However, the SAC had distinct misunderstandings about Srila Prabhupada's presence in his vani and murti, initiation as a process, the term diksha, and Srila Prabhupada as our medium to understand previous acharyas, etc. Their idea of "prominent link" does not translate into Srila Prabhupada being available to his followers for diksha. In the following excerpts, we can see the philosophical circles and dead-ends they undertake to avoid siddhanta.]

THE INITIATION PROCESS: PL/CDL asserts that the most essential aspect of the process of initiation is the delivery of divya-jnana, transcendental knowledge, from the spiritual master to the disciple. "Initiation means receiving the pure knowledge of spiritual consciousness" (CCMad 9:63 purport). Understanding this clarifies Srila Prabhupada's role and relationship with the members of his movement. The formal initiation ceremony is an important, transcendental component of the process of initiation. However, it is not the most fundamental element of initiation. Srila Prabhupada stated, "From 1922 to 1933 practically I was not initiated, but I got the impression of preaching Chaitanya Mahaprabhu's cult... And that was the initiation by my Guru Maharaja. Then officially I was initiated in 1933..." (SPlecture Dec. 10, 1970). Our disciplic succession, as delineated by Srila Prabhupada, is characterized by transmission of divya-jnana. On p. 1 of an earlier edition of CC, Srila Prabhupada even uses the term "initiated" to describe parampara relationships where no formal initiation ceremony occurred. "Srila Visvanatha Cakravarti Thakura accepted Srila Jagannatha dasa Babaji, who initiated Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakura, who in turn initiated Srila Gaurakisora dasa Babaji." (CC Adi p. 1). In the new edition of CC the words "initiated" in the above excerpt are deleted. According to a representative from the BBT, the main reason for this book change is that Srila Prabhupada's usage of the term implies something other than the usage of the term "as we know it in ISKCON." This, I believe, reflects a consciousness that may prevent fresh, unfiltered study of Srila Prabhupada's instructions, free from unexamined and perhaps unfounded assumptions that may have entered ISKCON and become part of its culture.

[However] The SAC's paper did not address this change of Srila Prabhupada's words, the import and impact of that change, and the ramifications of that modification on the ethos of the organization and its members. I believe it would be fruitful for the GBC, through the SAC or otherwise, straightforwardly to discuss this topic. In discussions about the process of initiation, Srila Prabhupada sometimes refers to the essential aspect of initiation, as on p. 1 of CC, and sometimes to the formal ceremony of initiation. In the purport to CC Mad 15:111 Srila Prabhupada employs both usages. When he writes, "An advanced devotee should respect a person who has been initiated by a bona fide spiritual master and who is situated on the transcendental platform," he refers to the essence of the process. When Srila Prabhupada writes, "Whether a Vaishnava is properly initiated or not is not a subject for consideration. One may be initiated and yet contaminated by the Mayavada philosophy," he refers to the official ceremony. The SAC contests the claim that transmission of transcendental knowledge is the essence of the process of initiation. In correspondence with the SAC, I wrote that initiation is a process ordained by Sri Krishna, and that the initiation ceremony is a part of that process. I concluded, "[The official ceremony] contains transcendental potency. Still, it is not the most essential aspect of the process of initiation." A SAC member replied, "You are wrong about that." The SAC's paper describes divya-jnana as a "secondary characteristic" of the initiation process. The disciplic succession as established by Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati's song Sri Guru Parampara and Srila Prabhupada's list at the end of his Gita's Introduction describes a parampara based upon spiritual teachers giving spiritual knowledge to disciples, just as Sri Krishna describes in Ch. 4.34 where the word upadeksyanti means "they will initiate," and this process of initiation consists of imparting spiritual knowledge. Similarly, Sri Krishna opens Ch. 4 by declaring "I instructed this imperishable science of yoga to the sun-god, Vivasvan, and Vivasvan instructed it to Manu, the father of mankind, and Manu in turn instructed it to Iksvaku." Revealing divya-jnana to the student, rather than any formal element of the process, is the essence of the disciplic succession. I suggest that the SAC's focus on the formal ceremony of initiation at the possible expense of realizing the primary role of delivery of transcendental knowledge, is a legitimate cause for concern, especially in light of the damage caused in recent decades by over-emphasis on the formalities of initiation. SP presented a disciplic succession grounded in the essential principles of Krishna consciousness. We need to adjust the imbalance that has arisen since his disappearance to avoid degeneration to a hollow, ritualistic religion.

The SAC also wrote: "We do not make formal offerings to Sukadeva in our regular puja because he is not in the line of initiators of the Brahma-Madhva-Gaudiya sampradaya. The diksha-guru of a properly initiated devotee in ISKCON, however, is the immediate link in the diksha-parampara for his disciple." This seems to imply that being in the line of formal initiators is the criterion for being formally worshiped, in ways such as pictures on the altar and pranam mantras, in Srila Prabhupada's movement. If we consider, however, the altar that Srila Prabhupada gave us, and the way he defined the parampara, we see that worship is not based on performance of initiation ceremonies. [Thus] the organizational culture of accentuating the ceremonial aspects of the initiation process may cloud our understanding of the legacy that Srila Prabhupada has given. Srila Prabhupada did not emphasize the diksha-parampara. We mentioned Sukadeva Goswami to illustrate that lack of formal worship for a Vaishnava does not indicate neglect or disrespect. As another instance of supposition that has perhaps been insufficiently questioned influencing the organizational culture, the SAC wrote, "Since this is the formal pancaratrika method, the guru who is given the offering first is normally the pancaratrika diksha-guru. There may be exceptions; the guru-parampara given to us by Srila Prabhupada for worship in ISKCON, for example, includes Bhaktivinoda Thakura's siksha-guru, Srila Jagannatha dasa Babaji, rather than his diksha-guru. Nonetheless, offering puja first to one's diksha-guru is the norm practiced in all Vaishnava sampradayas." This apparently suggests that it is an exception for links in the parampara not to include a relationship involving a formal initiation ceremony. From the time of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, however, most of the disciplic succession connections do not involve formal initiation. Thus, what we have come to accept in ISKCON as the "standard" parampara system is perhaps not actually standard.

DEFINITIONS OF DIKSHA: PL/CDL maintains that Srila Prabhupada is the direct link to the parampara [...] By presenting several quotes from Srila Prabhupada illustrating that diksha is a process for awakening transcendental knowledge, we hope to broaden the perspective of devotees and to inspire deep thought on the significance of spiritual life. [...] "Diksha is the process by which one can awaken his transcendental knowledge and vanquish all reactions caused by sinful activity." (CC Mad 15.108 purport). In CC Mad 4.111 purport: "Diksha actually means initiating a disciple with transcendental knowledge by which he becomes freed from all material contamination." These statements are unambiguous, not requiring interpretation. The SAC quoted from my essay: "Srila Prabhupada described initiation as a process, with the essence of this process being the delivery of divya-jnana, or transcendental knowledge, from the spiritual master to the disciple... Initiation, as described above, is a process. Components of this process include receiving and implementing the instructions to wear kanthi mala and Vaishnava tilaka, and receiving a Vaishnava name. The most essential aspect of initiation is receiving transcendental knowledge from a realized spiritual master." The SAC paper then provides pages of analysis on these Madhya-lila quotes above, concluding: "Of course, the properly observed vows of initiation do lead to the gain of spiritual knowledge and defeat of ignorance, but these are secondary characteristics." In that section the SAC cites authorities such as Sanatana Goswami, Narahari Sarakara, and Jiva Goswami. As a general principle we refer to Srila Prabhupada to understand previous acharyas, not vice versa. We suggest that Srila Prabhupada's meaning in these Madhya-lila purports are clear, and do not demand reference elsewhere for understanding. [Ironically, the] SAC cited: "The original purpose of the text must be maintained. No obscure meaning should be screwed out of it." (SBhag 1.4:1 purport)

SRILA PRABHUPADA IS LIVING AND PRESENT: Transmission of divya-jnana, and not physical presence, is the defining characteristic of the parampara. "Although a physical body is not present, the vibration should be accepted as the presence of the spiritual master." (SPLecture Jan. 13, 1969). As a present and living guru, Srila Prabhupada is fully capable to perform the functions of the direct link to the parampara for his followers, regardless of when they received formal initiation. This does not minimize the important roles played by Srila Prabhupada's followers in helping others to connect with him. The SAC also accepts that Srila Prabhupada can be considered the direct and current link to the disciplic succession, though qualifying: "This makes sense if we understand 'current and direct link' to mean the universal, permanent Siksha-guru of ISKCON." Considering the defining characteristic of the parampara, Srila Prabhupada should be considered the current and direct link to the disciplic succession, without qualifying terms, by all who directly receive transcendental knowledge primarily from him. The SAC wrote, "If there can only be one guru in ISKCON, and he cannot be categorized as guru in any specific sense, then yes, we should choose Srila Prabhupada." The understanding of Srila Prabhupada as the guru, the spiritual master referred to when members of his movement refer to the singular spiritual master, has been obscured for many in ISKCON. When Srila Prabhupada writes, "Lord Krishna originally made Vivasvan His first disciple" (BGita 4.1 purport), we accept simply that Lord Krishna was Vivasvan's spiritual master. Our natural response is not to attempt to demarcate the limits of how and in what sense Lord Krishna is Vivasvan's spiritual master. Similarly, with the listing of gurus in the parampara, it is not Srila Prabhupada's mood to be chiefly concerned with whether the preceding guru is the guru of the successive spiritual master in terms of diksha, siksha, pancaratrika marga or bhagavata marga. He lists gurus in terms of the most prominent spiritual master in the disciple's life. In that sense it is imperative that we educate all who contact Srila Prabhupada's movement that he is, or at least is available to be, their most prominent guru. This does not negate the fact that there are other spiritual teachers, as there were with Vivasvan and in all ages.

From our perspective, the tenor of the SAC paper overly accentuates terms and concepts, such as siksha-guru, diksha-guru and pancaratrika, at the expense of focusing on Srila Prabhupada's primacy as the main guru who is personally available for members of his movement. In listing the disciplic succession in his Gita, Srila Prabhupada did not qualify Narottama das Thakur's relationship with Krishnadasa Kaviraja Goswami, or Jagannatha dasa Babaji's relationship with Visvanatha Cakravarti Thakur. If asked who is the link to the disciplic succession for Bhaktivinode Thakur, we reply "Jagannatha dasa Babaji," without need to explain that he is only a certain type of guru for Srila Bhaktivinode. Such explanations of varieties of gurus and different margas of devotional service may be helpful in some circumstances. However, such discussions should not obscure the plain understanding of Srila Prabhupada as the primary guru and [current] link to the parampara.

Srila Prabhupada, as a living, eternal spiritual master, is the guru in whom implicit faith must exist in order for the imports of Vedic knowledge to be revealed to the disciple. The disciple naturally will have other teachers, including the Vaishnava who conducts the initiation ceremony, whom he reveres and profoundly respects. He might not, however, have implicit, unconditional faith in these instructors. He may consider one or more of them infallible, on the absolute platform of realization, but that is not necessary. It is essential that a devotee have at least one guru in whom such implicit faith exists. Srila Prabhupada is fully capable to fulfill that role for all who take shelter in his movement. Similarly, Srila Prabhupada is the primary guru in the sense that, without his mercy, members of his movement could not advance in Krishna consciousness. Thus, he is the spiritual master described in the verse, "By the mercy of the spiritual master one receives the benediction of Krishna. Without the grace of the spiritual master, one cannot make any advancement." We have each received the mercy of many Vaishnavas. Some from whom we have received mercy and blessings are, for whatever reason, no longer active and present in our lives, and some may even have left the practice of Vaishnavism. Still, we are able to receive the benediction of Krishna because Srila Prabhupada's mercy is constantly available. This is another sense in which Srila Prabhupada, in a personal and living way, is the main spiritual master, in the most important sense of the term, for devotees in his mission.

Srila Prabhupada, as the spiritual master without whose mercy we do not receive the benediction of Krishna, the guru in whom we must have implicit faith, and the direct and prominent connection to the disciplic succession, is delivering his followers from material bondage, regardless of when they received formal initiation. To accomplish this necessitates that he is living and present. [...] Many followers of Srila Prabhupada, including this author, believe that Srila Prabhupada is fully living and present in his murti form. It is important that the GBC and SAC clarify this issue for themselves and members of ISKCON. We receive transcendental knowledge through sound. [...] A person contacts Srila Prabhupada's movement and primarily hears from him, and therefore Srila Prabhupada is his direct link to the disciplic succession. SAC members would refer to Srila Prabhupada as a "previous acharya," a term with which this author is not comfortable in reference to Srila Prabhupada. We maintain that Srila Prabhupada is living in his instructions and murti form, and is a present acharya. Even with regard to the concept of "physical presence," we're not sure that we can support the SAC's contention that "he is not physically present." Srila Prabhupada installed his murti before his disappearance, and it will be valuable to consider the meaning of that action in terms of Srila Prabhupada's physical presence.

CLARIFICATION OF PL PRINCIPLES AND DIALOGUE WITH SAC: We would like to clarify some points in PL that may not have been accurately represented in the SAC's paper. The Prologue to PL's Second Printing explains that the principles of serving, honoring, and glorifying Vaishnavas, including the devotee who conducts the initiation ceremony, are presented about 20X in PL. "Still," the Prologue continues, "some readers perceived that this point was not sufficiently emphasized in the essay, or even that the PL model is opposed to these principles. Herein we reiterate the essentiality for devotees in Srila Prabhupada's movement to submissively and cooperatively serve other devotees, and to learn from and take shelter in senior and advanced devotees. These principles are completely consistent with accepting Srila Prabhupada as the prominent link to the disciplic succession." In some places the SAC paper gives an impression that PL is averse to respecting and venerating Vaishnavas other than Srila Prabhupada. The SAC states that the initiator should be allowed the honor of being considered one's guru. This is clearly stated in PL, though PL also emphasizes that Srila Prabhupada is, for many and perhaps most members of his movement, the main guru, directly, and this must be recognized. The SAC paper states that ISKCON gurus deserve "the respect of his disciples," apparently implying PL opposes this. A reader of PL can ascertain that PL fully supports this concept.

The SAC writes, "Whatever may have been the actual relationship between Srila Bhaktivinoda and his diksha-guru (and we hear different stories about this from different sources), it is known that Srila Bhaktivinoda never behaved disrespectfully toward him." This seems to imply that PL advocates disrespectful behavior, which it doesn't. The SAC rhetorically asks, "If we think Srila Prabhupada cannot empower his disciples despite their imperfections, how strong is our faith in him?" Obviously Srila Prabhupada is empowering his followers in amazing ways. This is consistent with the principles in PL. In correspondence with the SAC, this author wrote, "I, and probably each of us, have many gurus, in the sense of devotees who have inspired and guided us in Krishna consciousness. Srila Prabhupada is not my only guru, although, as described in PL, if I had to identify one person as my main spiritual master, that would certainly be Srila Prabhupada." On the same topic of plurality of spiritual teachers, I expressed to the SAC: "There is the telescope analogy, wherein we understand that, just as the more finely crafted lenses possessed by a telescope, the more our eye has a direct relationship with the stellar bodies, so similarly, the more transparent servants between us and Krishna or the spiritual master, the more our direct relationship with Krishna and the spiritual master is enhanced. We all accept this important point about the acintya-bheda-bheda-tattva mystery of the disciplic succession. Still, there is another point about our direct relationship with Srila Prabhupada. That is, all members of Srila Prabhupada's movement have, or should have, a direct relationship with him not mediated by other followers of Srila Prabhupada. That direct relationship is the prime focus of PL. This is not to minimize the extent to which the direct relationship with Srila Prabhupada is enriched and enhanced through the process of serving the servants of Srila Prabhupada. But there is also the unmediated direct relationship, and PL proposes that that unmediated direct relationship is for many, including those who did not receive formal initiation from Srila Prabhupada, the most prime and essential unmediated direct relationship in their spiritual life."

The SAC article states: "Dhira Govinda himself is in the position of having received his initiations after Srila Prabhupada's departure. When asked by a SAC member to identify his one diksha-guru, Dhira Govinda said that if he were to answer according to the PL understanding, he would have to say that Srila Prabhupada was his one diksha-guru." What I wrote to the SAC is: "If initiator is defined in terms of the conductor of the first initiation ceremony, then my initiator is Bhagavan Prabhu. If initiator is defined in terms of the conductor of the second initiation ceremony, then my initiator is Danavir Maharaja. If initiator is defined in terms of the prime giver of transcendental knowledge (as Srila Prabhupada uses the term on p. 1 of CC), then my initiator is Srila Prabhupada. Whatever definition you are comfortable with, that's okay with me (not that acceptance by me need be relevant to the SAC members). The assertions in the essay are not dependent on this discussion of terminology, which isn't to say that this discussion of terminology isn't important (it is important)."

Many concepts in this response article, about which readers may have questions, are addressed in PL, especially in the Q & A chapter. Issues addressed include: Pure devotees in Srila Prabhupada's movement; discussion of how initiates will practically conduct their spiritual life in the PL model; the question of acceptance of acharyas such as Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakura as the direct link to the parampara; and the topic of "Whose disciples are they?" After the 2002 GBC meetings I contacted the SAC Chairman as the GBC requested. We had a friendly conversation and touched on some of the points in PL. He said that the SAC would contact me when they were ready to discuss PL in detail. That took a few months, and, in July 2002, the SAC and I began email correspondence. We corresponded for more than three months. [...] in early November 2002, a GBC member asked if I would include the full correspondence between the SAC and I in the upcoming second printing of PL. I readily agreed, though I cautioned him I was doubtful that the SAC would consent. A few days later, this GBC member and the SAC Chairman both confirmed by email that the SAC wanted to keep our correspondence confidential and not public. I remain eager for that correspondence to be made available, and for anything I've written therein to be scrutinized. I wrote to the SAC on Aug. 31, 2002: "I am appreciating and absorbing the comments and reflections of the members of the SAC, and, whatever further realizations you have to share, I'll be glad to hear and study. If the SAC wants me to contribute to a paper (probably primarily exploratory rather than conclusive) in collaboration with the committee members, that sounds like a productive, albeit long-term, project. More immediately, perhaps the SAC can make some specific recommendations and proposals to the GBC, based on our discussions. I'll help out with this if you'd like."

CONCLUSION: When a person contacts Srila Prabhupada's movement, he has found a spiritual master. He doesn't need to continue looking for a guru, in the sense of the guru who is his primary link to the parampara and main inspiration in spiritual life. By establishing a connection with Srila Prabhupada he has linked with a bona fide spiritual master on the absolute platform in whom he can place unconditional faith and to whom he can securely and completely surrender and render service. Naturally, during the course of his devotional life, other Vaishnavas will inspire, guide and teach him. The relationships with and depth of faith in these devotees will be varied, though all will be characterized by respect and gratitude. The formal initiation ceremony is a transcendental event that officially acknowledges that the initiate has already connected with the parampara via a direct service relationship with Srila Prabhupada. That relationship does not become indirect at the time of the official initiation, though of course the initiate's connection with Srila Prabhupada will continually be enriched by the mentoring of many devotees. We suggest that throughout Srila Prabhupada's movement initiations based on the understanding that Srila Prabhupada is the direct link to the disciplic succession for the initiate be made available.

SECOND EDITION FOREWORD TO PL By Ambarisha das, 2001

"I [...] am not well-versed in shastric injunction. Also, it is easy in this age of quarrel, especially within ISKCON, to be labeled as belonging to one camp or another, or to ignite controversy and hostility. It is clear to me that this is not the intent or spirit behind this paper, and it is surely not my purpose. I have many friends and associates throughout this movement, many of whom are ISKCON gurus or disciples of ISKCON gurus. [...] by establishing the preeminent position of the father, all faithful sons are honored. There are many members of ISKCON, including myself, who are interested in trying to heal the rifts that have injured our society since 1977. In some instances, the mistakes of the past have not adequately been addressed or explained. Many are unsure about the resolution of certain issues, and are seeking clarity to increase their faith. I believe that ISKCON is going through a process of purification after which we will emerge more unified and effective. Many of us have no axes to grind or causes to champion. Our only concern and responsibility is to strengthen and preserve what Srila Prabhupada struggled so hard to establish. By addressing problems and controversies now, within the purview of SP's direct presence, we are laying the groundwork for the far-flung future of ISKCON.

"That Srila Prabhupada holds a unique, preeminent, and prominent position within ISKCON and our parampara is beyond dispute. This will always be so. The farther we recede from the physical departure of Srila Prabhupada, the more his irreplaceable position will rise in prominence. [...] when I first read this paper, it just seems like 'common sense' to me. [...] read this booklet [...] with an open mind, and readiness for investigation and discussion. We have to ask ourselves honestly as we say over and over, 'All glories to Srila Prabhupada,' are we understanding the meaning? Are we meaning what we are saying? Are we willing to put this into practice? [...] further honor Srila Prabhupada's unique position. In the spirit of accepting wisdom wherever we may find it, here is a relevant quote from the British philosopher Herbert Spencer. 'There is a principle which is a bar against all information, which is proof against all information, which is proof against all arguments, and which cannot fail to keep a man in everlasting ignorance. That is contempt prior to investigation.'"

SECOND EDITION PREFACE TO PL by Balavanta das, former GBC chairman

"The question may be asked: Why another paper on the process of initiation when the GBC has already spoken definitively on the matter? Isn't this now a non-issue in ISKCON? The answer is that the GBC has spoken definitively on the process of initiation on so many occasions that we cannot rationally conclude that its voice on such matters is absolute. The GBC is a managerial body. Spiritual matters of the Society must be resolved by conscious consensus of conscience by reference to Srila Prabhupada's books. This is accomplished only by broad-based, open and frank discussions amongst mature devotees whose voices are not suppressed. Perhaps no single question has disturbed ISKCON in the last 20 some years more than how initiations are to be conducted. That a sober devotee such as Dhira Govinda has seen fit to put his energy into such a paper attests to the fact that the issue is indeed alive and well, i.e. not fully resolved. If a spiritual matter is not resolved, it must be discussed, not only by those members of the society currently on the GBC, but by all concerned. ISKCON will not flourish unless it attracts intelligent people. We won't attract intelligent people by asking them to discard their intelligence once in the Society. Intelligence is for reaching transcendence. [...] Faith is required, but not blind faith. Intelligence means free thought and open discussion. If this is suppressed then intelligence is suppressed. [...] ISKCON will not attract intelligent people and will not flourish. [...] welcome Dhira Govinda's paper. [...] The product is a position that cannot be ignored. There are clearly people making spiritual advancement in ISKCON without being formally initiated. [...] There are others making advancement even after the person by whom they have been formally initiated has ceased the practices of Krishna Consciousness. How is this possible? [...] Only through Krishna's pure devotee can He be reached. Thus, they have contacted Krishna through the mercy of SP [...] This is a simple, obvious point, but we need to hear it openly. Sometimes, intelligence means to state the obvious clearly.

"How can we forget that vani and vapu are the same? 'He reasons ill who says that Vaishnavas die, when thou are living still in sound.' Srila Prabhupada often said he was never alone, because his spiritual master was always with him. How was that possible when Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati apparently passed away in 1936? [...] Who will deny that Srila Prabhupada is still present spiritually? But, how can those who are not formally initiated by him take advantage of his spiritual presence? One obvious way is through his books. [...] Srila Prabhupada's reference to George Harrison as his 'uninitiated disciple.' If this was true then, why not now? Real initiation is to tread the path that Srila Prabhupada has laid out. One may follow Srila Prabhupada by taking formal initiation from one of his disciples. This is a formality. The substantial connection is to accept Srila Prabhupada's teachings and follow them. Then one is a disciple, whether formally initiated or not.

"I am always struck by the fact that Srila Prabhupada did not give much stress or detail to the matter of how initiation was to be conducted after his physical departure. In fact, he never initiated such discussions. He only replied to questions raised by the then members of the GBC, such as 'What will we do for initiation if you leave?' He then answered but did not go on and on in detailed elaboration. Could the reason have been that the process and application of it is really very simple, sweet and pure? Could it be that we have unnecessarily blown the whole thing into an unrecognizable, controversial fog by missing the obvious? We are all followers of Srila Prabhupada, who is still present in his transcendental books and teachings. Formal initiations are conducted as a matter of course as convenient and reasonable, but Srila Prabhupada lives eternally as our acharya and transcendental shelter. 'He lives forever and his disciple lives with him.' As he used to frequently say, 'What is the difficulty?' Actually, there is no difficulty. Merely, the need is for Krishna Consciousness. Whatever one's position on the issue of initiation, we may all thank Dhira Govinda Prabhu for bringing some good old-fashioned common sense to the discussion."

PROLOGUE TO THE SECOND PRINTING OF PL By Dhira Govinda das (excerpts)

Let us celebrate the fact that Srila Prabhupada can and is giving initiation in the essential sense of the term. This reality should be proclaimed and publicized throughout Srila Prabhupada's movement. PL emphasizes the essential component of initiation and the parampara, which is transmission of transcendental knowledge. [From] Srila Prabhupada's description of his own initiation from Srila Bhaktisiddhanta, Srila Prabhupada's usage of the term "initiation" on p. 1 of CC, and many other references from shastra and Srila Prabhupada's writings and statements, it is clear that SP is capable of giving initiation in the fundamental sense and is doing so. This is very wonderful and should in no way be minimized or concealed from anyone who contacts Srila Prabhupada's movement.

SERVING THE VAISHNAVAS: Concerning the relationship between the initiate and the Vaishnava conducting the initiation ceremony: [...] It is natural that Vaishnavas who are inspired by a potent devotee may form a sort of family with that devotee as the leader. PL supports such spiritual families, as sub-families within Srila Prabhupada's family of followers, although participation in such a sub-family is not required for constructive involvement in Srila Prabhupada's mission and personal progress in Krishna consciousness. Sometimes the leader of a sub-family will be the devotee who performed the initiation ceremony for the family members. Or it will be someone else. In some cases a devotee will find strong inspiration, throughout his lifetime, from the Vaishnava who performed his initiation ceremony, and sometimes the strongest inspiration might come from a different Vaishnava, at least for some periods of the initiate's life. From the PL perspective, all of these scenarios are fine, provided they enhance the devotee's relationship with Srila Prabhupada and encourage the devotee's progress in bhakti-yoga. [...] Without properly understanding Srila Prabhupada's role and relationship, it will be difficult or impossible to grasp the role and relationship of others.

[...] SUPPORT FOR PL AND APPREHENSION TO EXPRESS IT: Typical comments that I've received, [...] from devotees serving in all capacities within Srila Prabhupada's movement, including top-level leaders in ISKCON, include statements, delivered in hushed tones, such as "I really liked the PL. You wrote just what I've been thinking for many years." Concurring with the statements of Ambarish and Balavanta in the Foreword and Preface, many emphasize the straightforward common sense of these concepts. These concepts include realization of Srila Prabhupada as the prime transcendental initiator, and the practical efficiency for spreading the movement of the practice of all members of the movement accepting Srila Prabhupada as the object of worship as the prominent and direct link to the parampara. [...] Tones tend to be hushed in such talks due to an apprehension that expression of such views is discouraged in the organization, and that such expressions would incur the disfavor of members and leaders of the institution. There is a perceived culture of fear and repression in the ISKCON organization, masked by a pretense of openness to frank discussion of issues.

Ostensibly ISKCON wants innovative, thoughtful members who boldly apply their intelligence, within the framework of guru, shastra and sadhu, for gaining a deeper understanding of devotional principles. In practice, as experienced by many, if one does not conform to the organizational line on [various] issues [...], then the institutional leadership, without rational discussion or genuine attempt at understanding, often condemns the dissenter and discourages members of the organization to honestly look at issues from unorthodox perspectives. The implied message is "We have already thoroughly considered these issues. So you needn't apply your intelligence here, because we've thought it through for you." Such a stance is unlikely to attract and retain independently thoughtful members. There is in the organization a veneer of broad-mindedness, accompanied by an implicit assertion that views such as [PL] are not to be found amongst persons in good-standing in the organization. If someone in the organization advocates such convictions, they are then branded and condemned, and pressured to leave the institution. Once they have left, it is again safe for the leadership to declare to the members that no one in good-standing would hold such views [...] and anyone who thinks that way is deviant, and so you'd do better to not even consider thinking in that way. Authoritarian dynamics, wherein the leadership is fearful of permitting subordinates to analyze and discern for themselves, may be somewhat prevalent in today's religious institutions, but they are not conducive for Vaishnava society or relationships. Such reluctance to allow members to fully utilize their cognitive faculties may stem to a substantial degree from a benevolent desire to protect. The ISKCON organization may also benefit, however, from introspectively looking at other motivations for this authoritarianism, such as fear that members, upon analysis of facts from an alternative perspective, may realize that they are being, in some ways, misled.

[...] this imperious leadership style is [...] is manifest with sufficient regularity and pervasiveness that many, perhaps most, of Srila Prabhupada's followers, both inside and outside the institution, feel alienated and stifled. Thus, for the purpose of attracting and maintaining satisfied, intelligent members, it is, we believe, imperative for ISKCON leadership, especially at the top levels, to seriously assess its mode of addressing issues and concerns. As Balavanta writes in the Preface, spiritual matters in Srila Prabhupada's society must be resolved via "open and frank discussion amongst mature devotees whose voices are not suppressed." [...] an opportunity for the movement to integrate and incorporate a new, attractive, and shastrically sound paradigm for carrying Srila Prabhupada's legacy deep into the future. [...] ISKCON needs to reexamine its paradigms, with fearless detachment, on issues including the guru issue, to avoid remaining a relatively insignificant cult, and to become a substantial player in the institutions of society at large. We understand that there are many fears, ranging from loss of important personal relationships to loss of legal battles, associated with implementation of the PL model. We contend with confidence that Srila Prabhupada's movement possesses the strength to handle the challenges that will arise [...], and that the movement will undoubtedly be strengthened [...].

HISTORY OF DIALOGUE WITH THE GOVERNING BODY COMMISSION (GBC): On Mar. 7th, 2002, four GBC members met with this author and we discussed some of the PL, and the effect the essay is and may continue to have on ISKCON members. During the meeting they presented a draft of A Preliminary Statement from ISKCON's GBC. [...] The GBC was concerned about further distribution of PL, with regards to a potentially disrupting effect it could have on the movement's members and on GBC members. I agreed that, under certain conditions, I would be willing not to distribute or reprint PL at least for 4 months. I offered if the GBC would engage in meaningful discussion on the ideas addressed in PL, I'd postpone plans for further distribution. My thinking was that, through such discussion my thoughts on the matters might be enriched, and thus I didn't object to holding off for a few months of productive discussion. Also, I asked that the GBC write a response letter to me, similar to a suggested draft I gave them as follows: "The GBC expresses its appreciation to Dhira Govinda das for his contribution to the understanding of the guru issue through his essay entitled PL. We look forward to further discussions with him on the ideas in his booklet and on other topics connected with guru-tattva." (to be signed by GBC Exec Comm) This letter's purpose was for the GBC to honor and welcome the contribution of the PL's ideas. I'd have been glad to postpone further PL distribution in favor of ongoing, reasonably timely, discussion with the GBC, on topics actually raised in PL (as opposed to topics ascribed to PL, but not actually contained therein). But their reply was as follows:

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT FROM ISKCON'S GBC: (1) PL by Dhira Govinda Prabhu has fundamental inconsistencies with Srila Prabhupada's teachings. Although the work encourages Srila Prabhupada's pre-eminence in ISKCON, it does so in a concocted way. As disciples of Srila Prabhupada, we cannot endorse anything different from what he taught, no matter how it may appeal to sentiment. (2) Out of respect for the author, the GBC Body requests its SAC to review the paper and comment on it more deeply. For now, to protect devotees from being misled, the GBC Body offers these specific examples of how PL deviates from Srila Prabhupada's teachings and instructions. (3) The paper begins by improperly dismissing the standard terminology of siksha and diksha guru – terminology established by Lord Chaitanya Himself and followed by all prominent acharyas. Srila Prabhupada uses siksha and diksha as essential words to define functions of specific gurus. The author, by contrast, calls them "appellations" and "labels" and discards them. (4) Having discarded the terms, the author attempts to merge the functions of siksha and diksha gurus. Noting that Srila Prabhupada is ISKCON's pre-eminent instructing guru, he writes, "it is questionable whether the devotee performing the initiation ceremony can unambiguously be termed 'the diksha guru.'" Srila Prabhupada, by contrast, states unambiguously in the Krishna book, Ch. 80, and elsewhere: "Siksha gurus may be many, but diksha guru is always one." (5) Srila Prabhupada exhorted his disciples 100's of times to be the next gurus in disciplic succession by simply repeating what they heard and avoiding concoctions. Why would he do so if he intended to be directly responsible for initiating future generations? Srila Prabhupada explains, "One's guide must be a spiritual master who is... strictly following the instructions of the previous acharya..." (CC Mad 10.17 purport) (6) PL specifically contradicts Srila Prabhupada's own description of his relationship with initiates of those he initiated. On May 28, 1977, in a conversation with the GBC in Vrindavan, he said those devotees would be his "grand-disciples" and "the disciples of my disciples." Disciples of Srila Prabhupada's disciples are in fact directly connected to him through initiation as his grand-disciples. Srila Prabhupada commented that the grandfather is more kind to his grandchildren than is their father. There is nothing lacking in the connection between Srila Prabhupada and his grand-disciples. Some may choose to emphasize their diksha guru and others their siksha guru. Such affairs of the heart cannot be legislated by anyone. (7) In the same conversation Srila Prabhupada described those who would be taking on the service of initiating disciples as "regular gurus." PL terms them "Vaishnavas who perform the initiation ceremony." Further, the work fails to offer a single statement by Srila Prabhupada to support that His Divine Grace would serve, in any respect, as a diksha guru in posthumous initiations. (8) PL suggests that if every member of ISKCON makes Srila Prabhupada the "sole object of unconditional surrender," ISKCON will be more united. Srila Prabhupada's teachings suggest that ISKCON will be more united – and Srila Prabhupada more pleased [...] "This is called parampara system. You have to learn how to become servant of the servant of Krishna. The more you become in the lower position -- servant, servant, servant, servant, hundreds times servant, servant -- the more you are advanced. [...]" (SP Lecture Aug. 3, 1973) (9) ISKCON Law establishes Srila Prabhupada as the "pre-eminent and compulsory siksha guru for all members of ISKCON." Further, it says that any grand-disciple may find more inspiration from Srila Prabhupada than from their diksha guru. PL asserts that such understandings of Srila Prabhupada are offensive to His Divine Grace (p. 26). The GBC finds such remarks and their public circulation wanting in scholarship, philosophy, and Vaishnava etiquette. (10) Since Srila Prabhupada entered samadhi, his disciples have struggled to properly establish guru-tattva in ISKCON, and there is more to be done. In that respect the GBC acknowledges the overt intent of PL. Unfortunately, the paper fails in its attempt to glorify Srila Prabhupada owing to an incomplete consideration of his teachings or, worse, a willingness to take a little from here, and little from there, and create something new. The result is avidhi-purvakam – an improper method of worshipping Srila Prabhupada. (11) The GBC acknowledges with appreciation the clarification offered by Dhira Govinda

[...] in which he states that he did not intend [...] to support the ritvik agenda [...]. He also expressed his eagerness to enter into further discussion with the GBC and SAC. (12) Thus the GBC encourages him to give serious consideration to the discrepancies mentioned here (and others that can be raised) and discuss them with its SAC. (Drutakarma, Hrdayananda Swami, Kalakantha, Ravindra-Svp) (END SAC)

DHIRA GOVINDA RESPONSE: [...] Thus, the conditions of my proposed agreement were not met. Still, I was and am eager to converse with the SAC. [...] we wonder how many and which members of the GBC actually endorsed the statement. [...] Based on what we heard from some of them, there is far from agreement with the mood and content of the official GBC statement. We suggest that the culture of organizational fear and repression, as contrasted with a Vaishnava culture of civil, open discourse, is active here, and we encourage ISKCON leaders to voice their genuine views on the issues raised... The issue of whether a devotee is Srila Prabhupada's disciple or the disciple of Srila Prabhupada's disciple is [asked] "Can someone be called 'Srila Prabhupada's disciple' if he didn't receive formal initiation from Srila Prabhupada?" The GBC response to this, based on its policy that Srila Prabhupada is the pre-eminent siksha guru for every member of the institution (GBC resolutions, 1999), would seem to be [...] "yes" by stating that everyone is Srila Prabhupada's siksha disciple, but not his diksha disciple. [...] If we focus on delivery of transcendental knowledge from guru to disciple, then all members of the movement may be considered direct disciples of Srila Prabhupada, and if we focus on the formal initiation ceremony, then perhaps the terminology "disciple of the disciple" is applicable. [...] A substantial issue is whether Srila Prabhupada can and is giving initiation in the fundamental sense of the term. The PL model unequivocally asserts that Srila Prabhupada can and is initiating in the essential sense of the term "initiate." Another substantial issue raised in PL that we believe thoughtful devotees ought to gravely consider is a change to p. 1 of CC. This change carries philosophical implications related to guru-tattva and the principle of initiation. [...] (END)

APPRECIATIONS OF PROMINENT LINK

BHUSHAYA DAS: [...] an honest, non-offensive, well-documented work. His approach is positive and hopeful- not negative and faultfinding. He gives respect and appreciation for the contributions of all Vaishnavas. [...] builds a strong case that Srila Prabhupada continues to be the person directly giving divya-jnana (transcendental knowledge) to his followers, and therefore is still initiating conditioned souls into Krishna Consciousness. Dhira Govinda has accurately described the point and time of actual initiation into the line of bhakti- as that time when the spiritual aspirant receives divya-jnana from his or her guru. The guru is the person transferring spiritual realization to the new devotee, who then becomes the guru's disciple. As he points out, Srila Prabhupada refers to this exchange of giving and receiving transcendental knowledge as the actual time of initiation. The fire sacrifice and initiation ceremony are an important formality that come later. Many people read Srila Prabhupada's books, become devotees and followed his teachings without ever physically coming into contact with Srila Prabhupada. Srila Prabhupada said, "I will live forever in my books." We see he has continued to transmit transcendental knowledge through his books and instructions. He always stressed his vani (words) as much more important than his vapu (physical presence). He said he would always remain present in his teachings, and his sincere follower would live with him. Just months after Srila Prabhupada physically left us, Jayatirtha told us how Harikesha had joked, "Now, what's going to happen to a disciple when his guru bleeps?" Sadly, this became a new dilemma for our movement. Our society can resolve this situation, however, when every new disciple who experiences Srila Prabhupada as his prominent link to transcendental knowledge, is officially encouraged to accept him directly as his eternal guru. Several years later in Detroit, three of our "zonal acharyas" fell down and left ISKCON in rapid succession. Some of the newer devotees had the bewildering experience of being initiated and reinitiated by all three! Many left ISKCON, disappointed and heartbroken. Yet others have continued their sadhana and service to this day, years after their "guru" left them. What is the force that kept them advancing on the path of bhakti?

Certainly, the "guru" who left was not the link who kept the disciple spiritually enthused and connected to the parampara. Obviously the disciple was anchored in devotional service by a greater, more prominent link- Srila Prabhupada. This is the foundation in this writing. Srila Prabhupada is the unifying central figure for all members of the Hare Krishna Movement. When Srila Prabhupada is given his rightful place in the center, the rest of his spiritual family automatically flourishes. Just like watering the root of the tree! We cannot begin to measure the confidence and enthusiasm all devotees would experience by being able to bring the conditioned souls directly to Srila Prabhupada's shelter. Time and again, we have seen that when we connect with Srila Prabhupada, transcendental bliss and realization follow. Devotees experience their natural brotherhood under the shelter of Srila Prabhupada, their eternal spiritual father. "He built a house in which the whole world can live." As his followers, we should present Srila Prabhupada to the rest of the world as he is. [...] Srila Prabhupada continues to be directly available to guide generations back to Godhead. PL is a workable model that could rejuvenate ISKCON by having Srila Prabhupada directly accessible to spiritual seekers for the duration of the movement. As a spiritual family, I humbly request ISKCON to study this presentation to determine its merit and long-term value to our society. I doubt there is anyone who can say with complete confidence that the "guru issue" has been resolved within ISKCON. We all knew Srila Prabhupada's position when he was physically present. There was no question that he was our eternal guru, the source of our spiritual realization and enthusiasm. Now, we need to come to a clear understanding of Srila Prabhupada's actual position within ISKCON since his physical departure. What is Srila Prabhupada's actual relationship with new initiates? We must work together to get this right. Our spiritual advancement requires our heads (jnana) and our hearts (bhakti). I humbly plea that we open our heads and hearts to this presentation.

PARTHA DAS: [...] Krishna says it is directly experienced and understood, and to execute it makes one happy. This "proposal" has been, a reality for many devotees initiated by current ISKCON gurus. [...] As a "proposal" you give the GBC an opportunity to save face. When I did that 1998 survey, many disciples of current gurus revealed to me in confidence that this was their feeling, and there are many who offer their food to Srila Prabhupada. [...] all these devotees just poured their hearts out. Today they have all progressed in Krishna consciousness. [...] if one is not able to understand and make that connection with Srila Prabhupada as the prominent link, then he is not fit for initiation (and not fit to initiate). [...] there have been four instances when we read an edited passage and became confused; the original edition would be immediately clear. I gave Bhagwatam class the day before Janmastami. The verse and purport are amazing, describes the transference of Krishna from the mind of Vasudeva to the mind of Devaki as "initiation." [...] To many people the discussion of diksha in your paper will seem paradoxical due to the conditioning of material definitions and perceptions. [...] If Srila Prabhupada's position is not fully appreciated his movement could be lost in a few generations.

HARI-DHAMA DAS (Henry Dom, Ph.D): I am about to re-read PL for the 3rd time in a row. It is quite frankly brilliant in its common sense and clarity. For me there is no debate and nothing new on the subject, with all due respect to the author. What Dhira Govinda researched and wrote is what Srila Prabhupada introduced and intended. So what's the booha? Another hidden agenda by those pitiful souls seeing a storm in a teacup? I guess those who have an issue with the PL are potentially exposing their own internal struggles because of their possible deviation from the process instilled by Srila Prabhupada. Shame and guilt are poisons that make you see blind. [...] ISKCON is not known for having a broadbase [...] or attracting an intellectual fraternity even though all and sundry seem to be commenting on subjects which from time to time demand an intellectual grasp, especially when it comes to the subtleties of philosophy and practical applications thereof. It is also known that those in the know who are making decisions based upon philosophical nuances like those perused in PL are, at best, not always honest in their analytical approach, and at worst, lacking the intellectual capacity demanded by the subject matter. Not to mention the usual hidden agendas which inevitably cloud their judgements. I have come to learn over the last 20 years that it is a waste of time and a dead end to entertain the selected leaders on matters of a perceived controversial philosophical nature. It is apparent that they lack a basic humility to even admit when they got/get it wrong. For those of us who have the propensity to express our independent thinking and opinions (even if we are wrong from time to time) on any matter, including philosophy, are either ostracized, blacklisted, banned or labelled as disloyal to SP and ISKCON. This trend is not new. [...]no easy answer to this "political" malaise. Best we remain true to ourselves and continue serving according to our best realisations based upon guru, sadhu and sastra. [...] Keep writing, keep preaching, keep teaching, keep going...

CLARIFICATION ABOUT THE PROMINENT LINK MODEL By Dhira Govinda das

In Kaunteya das' essay "As Srila Prabhupada Said: 'Physician Heal Thyself'" he asks me to examine my knowledge filters and biases. Certainly it is fair to ask me to turn the mirror on myself [...] Kaunteya writes: "The blatant omissions I am referring to concern direct, explicit statements by Srila Prabhupada himself on the specifics of disciplic succession in ISKCON, which Dhira Govinda appears to purposefully and consistently avoid or even discredit. When asked on May 28, 1977 about 'initiations in the future, particularly at that time when you're no longer with us,' Srila Prabhupada replied using expressions such as 'regular gurus' (to indicate the future initiating spiritual masters), as well as 'grand-disciple' and 'disciple of my disciple' (indicating those who will take initiation from the future gurus). These instructions are highly disagreeable with Dhira Govinda..."

The principles stated above are not contrary, or disagreeable [...] In PL I mentioned neither the May 28, 1977 conversation nor the July 9, 1977 letter. All of Srila Prabhupada's words are important, so of course the May 28 conversation and July 9 letter are very important. An implicit assertion in PL is: "Whatever your views regarding that conversation or that letter, here are sastrically-based, logical philosophical principles that stand, and that serve as a platform for synthesis and resolution in Srila Prabhupada's movement." In this way PL endeavors to create a platform for synergistic resolution of this issue. Regarding the conversation itself, Kaunteya asserts that it constitutes "weighty, conclusive documentation." I assume that he means that this conversation represents conclusive documentation supporting the current guru and initiation system in ISKCON. I've studied the conversation, including the commentaries of several learned devotees on the conversation. Honestly, and this may reflect my shortcomings in discernment more than anything else, the content of the conversation in itself doesn't appear definitive to me. The only section of it that, from my viewpoint, seems reasonably conclusive is the beginning, wherein Satsvarupa Maharaja expresses: "Then our next question concerns initiations in the future, particularly at that time when you're no longer with us. We want to know how first and second initiation would be conducted." Srila Prabhupada responds: "Yes. I shall recommend some of you. After this is settled up, I shall recommend some of you to act as officiating acharyas." It seems clear Srila Prabhupada wanted the Vaishnavas in his movement who conduct formal initiation ceremonies after his disappearance to be referred to as "officiating acharyas." I find it interesting this term is not in wide usage within Srila Prabhupada's movement, including ISKCON, to designate the devotees who conduct initiation ceremonies. [...] In PL I utilize functionalist terminology, such as "the Vaishnava who performs the initiation ceremony." Again, similar to the discussion about discipleship above, the purpose is to convey that whatever terminology one prefers, the principles of PL consistently and solidly apply. CONCLUSION: "Power is in tearing human minds to pieces and putting them together again in new shapes of your own choosing." (George Orwell in 1984) If the GBC-guru cartel can force us to abandon our judgment in favor of their defective doctrines, then they have total control over our reality. Their contradictory philosophies aren't meant to make sense, they are meant to be obeyed. This is maya at work in this material realm. Without SP we would not be connected to the parampara. End of story. (END)

---

CHAPTER 184: CONTINUANCE OF THE PARAMPARA

THE PARAMPARA CONTINUES WITH SRILA PRABHUPADA AS THE GURU

By Bharatarsabha das, ISKCON Bangalore

What is parampara –disciplic succession? This question was raised repeatedly in a discussion which I had with one of the followers of the self-appointed gurus of ISKCON. This follower was always glorifying their crop of self-made gurus and even went on to say these “gurus” are indeed the next in the parampara after Srila Prabhupada and that those who do not accept them are displeasing Srila Prabhupada. I tried my best to explain to him in my own limited impure ways about how the parampara works and how actually by accepting Srila Prabhupada as the spiritual master, one is in no way cut off from the parampara as the fanatic disciples of self-made gurus claim. Srila Prabhupada explained when parampara actually breaks. “...When it was not handed down. Simply understood by speculation. Or if it is not handed down as it is. They might have made some changes. Or they did not hand it down. Suppose I handed it down to you, but if you do not do that, then it is lost. Now the Krishna consciousness movement is going on in my presence. Now after my departure, if you do not do this, then it is lost. If you go on as you are doing now, then it will go on. But if you stop...” (SPConv May 10, 1975) So it is clear that parampara breaks when the knowledge given by the spiritual master: (1) Is not handed down (2) Is understood by speculation (3) Is not handed down as it is (4) Is changed by the disseminator (5) And when the disseminator does not follow the instructions.

Srila Prabhupada is the true representative of Brahma Madhva Gaudiya sampradaya and he is the current link who brought down the pure teachings of Krishna. He wanted that his disciples continue this parampara by spreading this transcendental science for future generations. “...Then make them. That is your duty. I am talking to you, and you talk to them. That is parampara system. Alone, I cannot go everywhere. Now you learn and you speak...” (SPConv Dec 9, 1973) So it is very important to strictly practice the principles as given by Srila Prabhupada. One should not try to understand his teachings by speculation; instead hear from him in sincere and submissive manner. It is also important for his disciples to hand down the knowledge given by him to others. It is also important that it should be handed down as it is, and that no changes should be made to Srila Prabhupada’s teachings. The follower of the current self-made ISKCON guru argued with me that how can the parampara continue without another person taking over the baton, so to say. He said it is imperative there should be someone after Srila Prabhupada from whom we take spiritual knowledge, such as the sincere disciples who have been authorized, and that they are next after Srila Prabhupada in parampara and I would be doomed if I did not accept them. We have to accept a bona fide representative he said. It is imperative that one receives the knowledge about the science of bhakti from a bona fide representative of the disciplic succession coming all the way from Krishna as Srila Prabhupada taught us: “...We have to accept perfect knowledge which comes down, as is stated in Bhagavad-gita, by the parampara (disciplic succession). We have to receive knowledge from the proper source in disciplic succession beginning with the supreme spiritual master, the Lord Himself, and handed down to a succession of spiritual masters.” (BGita Preface) “...The first condition of devotional service to the Lord is therefore to be a servant of a pure devotee, and this condition is fulfilled by the statement ‘reception of the dust of the lotus feet of a pure devotee who has also served another pure devotee.’ That is the way of pure disciplic succession, or devotional parampara.” (SBhag 2.3.23) In fact in one of the conversations with an academic in Detroit, Srila Prabhupada even states that his disciples are being trained to be future spiritual masters.

Mohsin Hassan: Now this movement must have structure. Will you please tell us about the structure of the (indistinct) from the hierarchy on the top, and all the way down. SP: Yes, it is, this movement is started from Krishna. Mohsin Hassan: Yes. SP: Then, from Krishna, Narada. From Narada, Vyasadeva. From Vyasadeva to Madhvacharya, from Madhvacharya to Isvara Puri, Madhavendra Puri, then Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, then His disciples, the six Goswamis, then Krishna dasa Kaviraja, then Baladeva Vidyabhushana. So we are taking account very rigidly from Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, and I am the tenth generation from Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. Mohsin Hassan: Yeah, the tenth. After you, is it any decision has been made who will take over? SP: Yes. All of them will take over. These students, who are initiated from me, all of them will act as I am doing. Just like I have got many Godbrothers, they are all acting. Similarly, all these disciples which I am making, initiating, they are being trained to become future spiritual masters. Mohsin Hassan: How many swamis do you initiated, American? I'm speaking just on... SP: About ten. Mohsin Hassan: You have ten swamis. And outside of swamis, what's the lower... SP: Now, they're competent. They can, not only the swamis, even the grihasthas, they are called dasa adhikari, and brahmachari, everyone can, whoever is initiated, he is competent to make disciples. But as a matter of etiquette they do not do so in the presence of their spiritual master. This is the etiquette. Otherwise, they are competent. They can make disciples and spread. They can recruit more members in this. They do, but they are being trained up. Just like here in this meeting, one of my disciples, he is acting as priest. It is not myself; he is acting. So some of my students, they are acting as priests, some of them are swamis, so they are competent to make disciples. (SP July 8, 1971)

Q: Disciples for them or Srila Prabhupada? A: Trained as priests, as swamis, as future gurus.

So does that mean all disciples of Srila Prabhupada who had the great fortune of being initiated by him can initiate immediately after his physical departure and take disciples on their own right as the acharya and continue the parampara? As claimed by these self-made gurus? Definitely not. Yes, all of them were blessed to be initiated by Srila Prabhupada and had the great fortune personal guidance by him. Srila Prabhupada wanted all of them to lead the movement as his representatives. Just as a father wants to see his son do more than himself he wanted his disciple to do more than him in a transcendental sense of relationship. But he wanted to empower them to act as siksha gurus not as the next acharyas of the disciplic succession. By spreading the teachings as his representatives, Srila Prabhupada wanted them to bring prospective disciples to be initiated by him. He wanted them to practice strictly and preach all over the world but not accept disciples, but to bring them to him. This desire of SP is revealed in his conversation with the GBC on May 28, 1977.

SATS Then our next question concerns initiations in the future, particularly at that time when you're no longer with us. We want to know how first and second initiation would be conducted. SP: Yes. I shall recommend some of you. After this is settled up, I shall recommend some of you to act as officiating acharyas. Tamal: Is that called ritvik-acharya? SP: Ritvik, yes. SATS: Then what is the relationship of that person who gives the initiation and the... SP: He's guru. He's guru. SATS: But he does it on your behalf. SP: Yes. That is formality. Because in my presence one should not become guru, so on my behalf, on my order... amara ajnaya guru hana. [CC Mad 7.128] Be actually guru, but by my order. SATS: So they may also be considered your disciples. SP: Yes, they are disciples. Why consider? Who? Tamal: No, he's asking that these ritvik-acharyas, they're officiating, giving diksha. Their... The people who they give diksha to, whose disciple are they? SP: They're his disciple. Tamal: They're his disciple. SP: Who is initiating. He is grand-disciple. SATS: Yes. Tamal: That's clear. SATS: Then we have a question concern... SP: When I order, "You become guru," he becomes regular guru. That's all. He becomes disciple of my disciple. That's it...

In this conversation it is clear that Srila Prabhupada wanted to set up a system of initiation in which he wanted some of his disciples to act as ritvik – officiating acharya, not the next acharyas in the line of disciplic succession. The self-made gurus have tried their best to distort Srila Prabhupada's desire in this matter and cheated the devotees and occupied his position by misinterpretations of a few words out of context, such as: "They are his disciple, Who is initiating, He is grand-disciple, He is Guru." However much these self-made gurus try to obfuscate Srila Prabhupada's intent in this conversation, following facts are direct and obvious: He wanted his disciples only to be officiating acharyas – ritviks. He did not want them to be acharyas next in the line of disciplic succession. These facts are obvious when we read the last statement wherein Srila Prabhupada says, "When I order you become guru, that's all." Meaning that this is indeed not an authorization for making anyone guru, one has to wait till Srila Prabhupada orders. Nor did Srila Prabhupada give an authorization to GBC to set up system of successor acharyas. They had to wait till he orders. But they did not wait.

Unfortunately, these self-made gurus use this as “Appointment Tape” and claim that somehow he did intend his disciples to be next in the line and he did hand over the baton to them through this exchange, how much more in illusion can one be! In the first statement Srila Prabhupada made it clear they are officiating acharyas but still they claim they are the next after him! Srila Prabhupada knew very well that some of his disciples were over ambitious and wanted to be next in line in the parampara and wanted to misuse the institution for their ulterior motives. To prevent this and to make clear his true intention on July 9th 1977, he setup in place within ISKCON a formal system of ritvik representative initiation wherein new disciples would be initiated as his disciples and his senior disciples, 11 of whom he named to act as his representatives or ritviks.

“...The newly initiated devotees are disciples of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada, the above eleven senior devotees acting as His representative. After the Temple President receives a letter from these representatives giving the spiritual name or the thread, he can perform the fire yajna in the temple as was being done before. The name of a newly initiated disciple should be sent by the representative who has accepted him or her to Srila Prabhupada, to be included in His Divine Grace’s “Initiated Disciples” book.” (SP Order July 9, 1977) Thus it is obvious that Srila Prabhupada wanted his disciples to carry on the parampara by teaching as he taught and by practicing as he set the example. He wanted them to be siksha gurus who would spread his teachings by being role models and his true representatives, he did not want them to be the acharyas in their “own” right but he wanted them to be preachers in their “own” right. But unfortunately these self-made gurus missed Srila Prabhupada’s instructions, claiming to be next in the line after him, distorting his teachings and wreaking havoc in the wonderful movement created by him.

They were empowered as siksha gurus, bring disciples to Srila Prabhupada and spread the Krishna consciousness movement the world over. But instead they chose to replace him and tried to accept the position for which they were not authorized. If they had continued to do as they were supposed to, they would have been empowered to spread Krishna consciousness the world over but instead they have reduced ISKCON to mathas of 90± self-made gurus. ISKCON is splintered, broken apart due to inner factions, due to struggle of these 90 gurus to protect their own fiefdom. Due to Srila Prabhupada’s forceful instruction of setting up a GBC as the ultimate managing authority and putting in place a system of independently administered, virtually autonomous centers, ISKCON has not disintegrated into 90 odd mathas. It has somehow at least externally remained as one unit. Internally because of the cross fighting between these gurus, it has lost the cohesiveness which it had before Srila Prabhupada’s physical departure. Each center has by force of the successor guru system current within ISKCON become a matha of the guru(s). Srila Prabhupada explained what the real core aspect of the parampara is. “...There is a gulf of difference between the two qualities of sound, namely prakrita and aprakrita. The physicist can deal only with the prakrita sound, or sound vibrated in the material sky, and therefore we must know that the Vedic sounds recorded in symbolic expressions cannot be understood by anyone within the universe unless and until one is inspired by the vibration of supernatural (aprakrita) sound, which descends in the chain of disciplic succession from the Lord to Brahma, from Brahma to Narada, from Narada to Vyasa and so on. No mundane scholar can translate or reveal the true import of the Vedic mantras (hymns). They cannot be understood unless one is inspired or initiated by the authorized spiritual master. The original spiritual master is the Lord Himself, and the succession comes down through the sources of parampara, as clearly stated in the 4th Ch. of the BGita. So unless one receives the transcendental knowledge from the authorized parampara, one should be considered useless (viphalā matau), even though one may be greatly qualified in the mundane advancements of arts or science.” (SBhag 2.4.22) The spiritual knowledge descends in the chain of disciplic succession. It has to be bestowed by the predecessor spiritual master to the disciple. It cannot be claimed by just self-anointing oneself as the successor. One cannot force oneself into this position. May these self-appointed gurus come to their senses and give up their false claim to the acharya’s seat and play the true role which SP wanted for them. Parampara continues through Srila

Prabhupada's transcendental books. He is speaking to 1000s of sincere disciples, giving shelter to them even now; the parampara is already continuing. It is up to us as disciples to strictly follow his teachings and become his true representatives and represent the parampara as per his wish. (END)

OUR BRAHMA-MADHVA-GAUDIYA SAMPRADAYA: FROM BGITA AS IT IS

1) Krishna 2) Brahma 3) Narada 4) Vyasa 5) Madhva 6) Padmanabha 7) Nrhari 8) Madhava 9) Akshobhya 10) Jayatirtha 11) Jnanasindhu 12) Dayanidhi 13) Vidyanidhi 14) Rajendra 15) Jayadharm 16) Purushottama 17) Brahmanyatirtha 18) Vyasatirtha 19) Lakshmiapati 20) Madhavendra Puri 21) Ishvara Puri (Nityananda, Advaita) 22) Lord Chaitanya 23) Rupa (Svarupa, Sanatana) 24) Raghunatha, Jiva 25) Krishnadasa 26) Narottama 27) Vishvanatha 28) (Baladeva) Jagannatha 29) Bhaktivinoda 30) Gaurakishora 31) Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati 32) His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada. NOTE: Thus we are 32 links from Lord Krishna, as per Srila Prabhupada's list in front of his BGita. In a 1968 letter to Upendra, Srila Prabhupada gave a list of 30 only: #11 and 12 above were substituted with Purushottama, and #17 above was omitted. We will refer to the list from the Gita.

GAPS IN THE DISCIPIC SUCCESSION

Often ISKCON apologists and their GBC accuse "ritvik-vadis" of wanting to break the discipic succession, which might be considered the greatest crime of all. Their argument is something like this: "Since Srila Prabhupada has departed, we now need new living gurus from amongst his disciples to connect people to the discipic succession, lest the discipic succession be broken!" However, this argument is flawed. Srila Prabhupada said that there is nothing to worry about with so-called GAPS in the discipic succession. Actually the Brahma-Madhva-Gaudiya discipic succession has a number of significant time gaps that contradict the GBC's fear-porn. Transcendence is not limited by material time or space. This should be pretty easy to understand, so we must assume the GBC men are either dull-headed or are deliberately confusing their followers with nonsense simply to defend their fraudulent positions as bogus-gurus. It is more likely the latter. Four letters regarding apparent GAPS in the discipic succession: (1) "Regarding your third question—"Why are there apparent time-gaps in the line of discipic succession as listed in the Bhagavad-gita? Is Arjuna an instructor Spiritual Master and not an initiator Spiritual Master and therefore not listed?" The time gap mentioned by you is inevitable, because the discipic succession sometimes becomes disconnected, as we find from the Bhagavad-gita. This is the influence of material energy, and to link it up again, it takes some time. That some time may appear to our calculation a big gap, but in relation with the eternal time, it is not even as instant. So this big gap or small gap of time is relative. Just like our 24 hours and Brahma's 24 hours, there is much difference. Our 24 hours is not even a fraction of his second." (SPL Rupanuga Mar. 14, 1969) (2) "Regarding parampara system: there is nothing to wonder for big gaps. Just like we belong to the Brahma Sampradaya, so we accept it from Krishna to Brahma, Brahma to Narada, Narada to Vyasadeva, Vyasadeva to Madhva, and between Vyasadeva and Madhva there is a big gap. But it is sometimes said that Vyasadeva is still living, and Madhva was fortunate enough to meet him directly. In a similar way, we find in the Bhagavad-gita that the Gita was taught to the sungod, some millions of years ago, but Krishna has mentioned only three names in this parampara system—namely, Vivasvan, Manu, and Ikshvaku; and so these gaps do not hamper from understanding the parampara system. We have to pick up the prominent acharya, and follow from him. There are many branches also from the parampara system, and it is not possible to record all the branches and sub-branches in the discipic succession. We have to pick up from the authority of the acharya in whatever sampradaya we belong to." (SPL Dayananda Apr. 12, 1968) (3) "Narada was the Spiritual Master of Vyasadeva, and Arjuna was Vyasadeva's disciple, not as initiated disciple but there was some blood relation between them. So there is connection in this way, and it is not possible to list all such relationships in the short description given in Bhagavad-gita As It Is. Another point is that discipic succession does not mean one has to be directly a disciple of a particular person. The conclusions which we have tried to explain in our Bhagavad-gita As It Is is the same as those conclusions of Arjuna. Arjuna accepted Krishna as the Supreme Personality of Godhead, and we also accept the same truth under the discipic succession of Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. Things equal to the same thing are equal to one another. This is an axiomatic truth. So there is no difference of opinion of understanding Krishna between ourselves and Arjuna. Another example is that a tree has many branches, and you will find one leaf here and another leaf there. But if you take this leaf and the other leaf and you press them both, you will see that the taste is the same. The taste is the conclusion, and from the taste you can understand that both leaves are from the same tree." (SPL Jan. 25, 1969) (4) "Regarding the disciplic succession coming from Arjuna, disciplic succession does not always mean that one has to be initiated officially. Disciplic succession means to accept the disciplic conclusion. Arjuna was a disciple of Krishna and Brahma was also a disciple of Krishna. Thus there is no disagreement between the conclusions of Brahma and Arjuna. Vyasadeva is in the disciplic succession of Brahma. The teachings to Arjuna was recorded by Vyasadeva verbatim. So according to the axiomatic truth, things equal to one another are equal to each other. We are not exactly directly from Vyasadeva, but our Gurudeva is a representative of Vyasadeva. Because Vyasadeva and Arjuna are of equal status, being students of Krishna, therefore we are in the disciplic succession of Arjuna. Things equal to the same thing are equal to one another." (SPL Oct. 31, 1969)

Also in the Gaudiya parampara coming from Lord Chaitanya, Srila Prabhupada always presents: Narottama Dasa Thakura, Visvanatha Cakravati, and Jagganatha Dasa Babaji as the sequence in the parampara, yet there are hundreds of years separating the last two links, between the early 1600's and the late 1800's. Yet, Srila Prabhupada teaches us that this is the parampara, without any additional clarification regarding siksha, diksha, gaps, or the need for a living guru. Rather he calls it a "clear line of disciplic succession" (SPLecture June 11, 1969). Srila Prabhupada never stated a need for a living guru to avoid breaking the disciplic succession. "These gaps do not hamper... There is nothing to wonder..." Vyasadeva has not been seen for 5000 years, so how did Madhvacharya take him as his diksha guru 1200 years ago? Vyasadeva came to him on the spiritual platform during one of his travels to the Himalayas. As this "apparent" gap did not affect the continuity of our parampara, similarly, thousands of years from now, devotees who take diksha from Srila Prabhupada through his books and teachings will also be connected to the current link of the disciplic succession, namely Srila Prabhupada. The ISKCON gurus and leaders are again propagating philosophical misconceptions to deliberately confuse us and to prop up their sagging bogus-guru system. The crime is theirs.

THE JUMPING OVER AND PREVIOUS ACHARYA ISSUES by Nityananda das

Another argument given by the GBC as why one cannot take Srila Prabhupada as his diksha or primary spiritual master after his disappearance is that this would be "jumping over," which is prohibited in shastra. They say that the current links in the disciplic succession are their vote-approved ISKCON gurus and for one to go directly to Srila Prabhupada without going through their new gurus is an offense called "jumping over." They like to ask, "So, then why can't we just take diksha from Arjuna or Bhaktivinode Thakura or Bhaktisiddhanta?" The GBC thus portrays taking Srila Prabhupada as one's bona fide guru today as whimsical, meaningless, and an illegitimate exercise in futility and delusion. They insist one must connect to the disciplic succession through a "living guru" who is they declare is the next link in the disciplic succession after Srila Prabhupada. But ISKCON vote-approved "gurus" are simply political, ecclesiastic appointees. Cronyism.

Yasodanandana das: "The GBC argument is a straw man argument. Srila Prabhupada has never stated anywhere, especially in the last few months of his manifested presence, that he was setting up a system where new initiates could accept initiation from Narottama dasa Thakura or Rupa Goswami. This is a flimsy and nonsensical argument out of desperation. This is a frivolous and vexatious argument. But who is there to jump over? One cannot simply appoint himself as acharya and then say 'now you cannot jump over me.' This is the logic of the self-appointed acharya sabha. They were never appointed as acharyas or diksha gurus." ISKCON, their GBC, Shastric Advisory Council, gurus, sannyasis, and members- they all refer to Srila Prabhupada as a "previous acharya," which clearly implies that a current acharya has come afterwards. So who would the current acharya be today? Satsvarupa das with his crazy artwork? Tamal is deceased, so do we go to one of his disciples, say in Fiji? Or to Hridayananda who has not been in Vaishnava attire in 18 years? ISKCON really thinks that their 100 vote-approved and self-appointed gurus are the next link of acharyas in the disciplic succession? Yes, they do. Amazing, but true story. This is not a jumping problem, it is a dumping problem... they have dumped Srila Prabhupada for themselves! Good luck with that...

To fully take shelter of Srila Prabhupada is not "jumping over," as who is there to bypass to reach Srila Prabhupada? The self-appointed, vote-approved bogus ISKCON gurus? They need to be side-stepped, as there is no question of "jumping over" those who are not part of the parampara anyway. Rather, it's intelligently taking shelter of the pure devotee of Sri Krishna, Srila Prabhupada, who is fully available to serve as your direct and current link to the parampara. Don't be fooled by these jumping over intimidations. More questions on "jumping over" comes from Tamal himself:

"Indeed, it is not entirely uncommon for disciples of the ISKCON gurus to repose their faith primarily in Prabhupada, something quite unthinkable with regard to Prabhupada's disciples and Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati. Prabhupada once corrected his servant for 'jumping over the spiritual master' to pray directly to Bhaktisiddhanta [...] But now, new converts are trained to first accept Prabhupada's shelter exclusively for at least six months before being advised to select that initiating guru who reminds them most of Prabhupada. In fact, Prabhupada is more widely available now than ever before (through audio, video, print and electronic reproduction)." (Perils of Succession, 1996)

We see that ISKCON, and this was back in 1997, is fully accepting of the principle that Srila Prabhupada is the primary giver of transcendental knowledge, which is the actual definition of diksha. The defect in ISKCON's practices and thought is that they see the diksha process as an event and formal ceremony, which they insist must be performed by one of their own living diksha gurus. Try as they have, they have not been able to push Srila Prabhupada aside completely- they need his enormous and incomparable legacy of books, teachings, and divine grace. They are forced to use Srila Prabhupada to give the transcendental knowledge and mercy that they cannot give, but, being the rascals that they are, they then still insist on being the diksha guru on the basis of their formal ceremony, name-giving, handing over of beads, charisma, and fire sacrifice.

In reality, looking past all the external trappings, this makes them at best nothing more than officiating acharyas, and this is why there is still some life in ISKCON. To whatever degree ISKCON utilizes Srila Prabhupada teachings, books, and mercy, to that degree they will actually make spiritual advancement (although offset by their offenses). The problem is the deviations that mix in. These deviations water down and poison their practice of Krishna consciousness and the Mission. The offenses made in their abominating of Srila Prabhupada's movement may soon become so serious as to stop their spiritual progress completely, if not the fact already, and then push them backwards. Why else would so-called advanced devotees who went overboard in the pretentious role of diksha guru go insane or fall down so ridiculously? Think about it.

Initiations After 1977, ISKM: "If we can associate and take initiation from an acharya just by reading his books, then why can't we jump the disciplic succession and be initiated by Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati or any predecessor acharya higher up in the disciplic succession? The answer is given by Srila Prabhupada: "... in order to receive the real message of Srimad-Bhagavatam one should approach the current link, or spiritual master, in the chain of disciplic succession. After being initiated by the proper spiritual master in that chain of succession, one should engage himself in the discharge of tapasya in the execution of devotional service." (SBhag 2.9.7 purport) The current link in the disciplic succession is that spiritual master who is actively disseminating the transcendental disciplic conclusion to the public at large. Srila Prabhupada is doing that by way of his books. Therefore, Srila Prabhupada is the authorized diksha guru of ISKCON." Q: "If the argument is raised that one can receive post-samadhi diksha from AC Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada, why should one not apply the same reasoning and logic to any of Srila Prabhupada's predecessors? When did they state that they would no longer be giving diksha? Consequently, why can I not take diksha from Bhaktivinoda Thakur or

Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati, or anyone I want?" A: To get diksha from Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakura constitutes jumping over the prominent Acharya, Srila Prabhupada. (END)

WHO IS LIKE CHRISTIANITY?

Comparing Srila Prabhupada's original system of proxy representative initiations to Christianity, Bhakti Vikas Swami, an ISKCON rubber-stamp "guru," gave a lecture titled "ritvikism is self-defeating" in 2010: "Well, Christianity, it's a good example of what happens when you don't have a proper parampara. [...] But then Martin Luther and others, they came up with the ritvik philosophy..." From Bhakti Vikas Swami's former disciple Chaitanya das: "This objection to being 'Christian' is ironic, since the current guru system in ISKCON has itself adopted certain Christian procedures: The theology behind the GBC voting in gurus is similar to the system of the College of Cardinals voting in Popes in the Catholic Church." From GBC Resolutions we see: "Voting procedures [...] for guru candidate [...] who will be established by the voting members [...] voting for guru process [...] by a 2/3 vote of the GBC [...] all GBCs are candidates for appointment as guru."

Similarly the GBC calls itself "the highest ecclesiastical body guiding ISKCON" (BTG 1990-91): again this is "Christian" terminology. These particular "Christian" practices were never taught by Jesus, and were totally condemned by Srila Prabhupada: "Mundane votes have no jurisdiction to elect a Vaishnava acharya. A Vaishnava acharya is self effulgent, and there is no need for any court judgement." (CC Mad 1.220 purport) "Srila Jiva Gosvami advises that one not accept a spiritual master in terms of hereditary or customary social, and ecclesiastical conventions." (CC Adi 1.35 purport)

SRILA PRABHUPADA GAVE US EVERYTHING FOR HIS MOVEMENT'S FUTURE

ISKCON has concocted a number of very deviant policies, such as: (1) their self-appointed, rubber-stamp, no objection vote approved so-called diksha gurus (2) their re-initiation of disciples from fallen guru comrades (3) constant and unending revisions, editing, and philosophical changes to Srila Prabhupada's books (4) changing the substance and style of kirtans and deity worship, and much more (see Part 15-16). But sane devotees understand correctly that Srila Prabhupada, as an exceptional shaktyavesa avatara with a specific mission to push Lord Chaitanya's movement all over the world, did actually establish and leave us a perfectly complete program for the indefinite future. Nothing needs to be added, subtracted, changed. He warned us about this many times. Naveen Krishna das said: "...the decision of the parampara acharyas is that Srila Prabhupada will be their representative for the next 10,000 years through his books and personal, spiritual presence, and they are all working through him. That is why the altar Srila Prabhupada set up for his society and followers is very specific, as is his system of initiations, and all that goes with it. There is no room for anything else. It is airtight, although the envious 'devotees' who want guruship will always seek a way around it. The lure of being a guru is the same as the lure of being God; that's why we are in the material prison."

SRILA PRABHUPADA AS FOUNDER-ACHARYA IS THE CURRENT LINK

"When I was a young devotee, I heard stories about Srila Prabhupada becoming upset that his title of Founder-Acharya was sometimes omitted, and I had a hard time understanding the significance of that title. Probably all devotees did not understand at that time, and even today, only some do. Not only did Srila Prabhupada FOUND his ISKCON institution, but he wanted it clear that he was the ACHARYA, for as long as ISKCON was there. Otherwise, why put that title on the temple signboards, letterheads, and on his books? These things would last well after his physical departure, so he would still be the Acharya after he departed. He is the current link by his own choice; he is making himself available. The meaning of things Srila Prabhupada would do and say were not always obvious. He expected us to come to the right understanding, but knew we were full of material desires, which can also be accommodated by tricky choosing of selected quotes. It is almost as though Srila Prabhupada wanted to engage all parties without being too restrictive, allowing us to follow the easy road or the long, hard road. His style was not of force or legislation, saying you must do this... he used love to attract free-will driven surrender." (Nityasiddha das)

QUESTION: " BTP 57 exposed a video by a Croatian devotee named Hanuman Das (Hrvoje Marjanovic), showing how he committed a great blasphemy against Srila Prabhupada by declaring that accepting Srila Prabhupada as guru is "dead guru-tattva" and "zombie guru nonsense." He now claims: "Christians claim that Jesus is the only guru, rtviks, who are nothing more than new-age Christians, are trying to destroy the parampara by claiming Srila Prabhupada is the only diksha guru." [Hanuman died in 2021 at a young age.]

ANSWER: (1) Actually Srila Prabhupada approved of Christians accepting Jesus as their only guru: (a) "The spiritual master has to take the responsibility for all the sinful activities of his disciples. Therefore to make many disciples is a risky job unless one is able to assimilate all the sins. [...] He takes responsibility for all the fallen souls. That idea is also in the Bible. Jesus Christ took all the sinful reactions of the people and sacrificed his life. That is the responsibility of a spiritual master. [...] Actually, one who is guided by Jesus Christ will certainly get liberation." (Perfect Questions, Perfect Answers) (b) "When you read the Bible, you follow the spiritual master. How can you say without? As soon as you read the Bible, that means you are following the instruction of Lord Jesus Christ. That means that you are following the spiritual master. [...] Spiritual master is eternal [...] As you say that "by reading Bible," when you read Bible that means you are following the Spiritual Master represented by some priest or some clergyman in the line of Lord Jesus Christ." (SP Lecture Feb. 10, 1968) (c) "You must follow one acharya, like Christians, they follow Christ, acharya. [...] You must follow some acharya [...] Evam parampara-praptam." (SP Conv May 20, 1975) There is no statement from Srila Prabhupada contradicting the above, or that instead of following Jesus as the spiritual master, Christians should be following a "living" successor spiritual master to Jesus Christ.

(2) If one claims that Srila Prabhupada remaining as the diksha guru can "destroy the parampara (disciplic succession)," one would need to support this claim with a quote from Srila Prabhupada teaching this. But Srila Prabhupada has never taught that the presence of a bona fide guru such as himself as the current link in the parampara causes it to be destroyed. On the contrary, he has taught that it is the presence of false gurus in the parampara that causes it to become broken: Lokanatha: ...five thousand years back, until now, there's only thirty acharyas... SP: Chain is broken when there are false spiritual masters. Otherwise it is not broken. Chain is broken if a so-called spiritual master speaks something manufactured. Then the chain is broken. Otherwise, chain is not broken. (SP Conv Feb. 9, 1976) Srila Prabhupada directly responds to the point that there are "only" 30 links in the parampara chain, stating this does not matter, since the chain is only broken if there is a false spiritual master. "Otherwise it is not broken." Therefore, Srila Prabhupada remaining the current link for ISKCON's lifetime would not cause the parampara to be "destroyed," since he is not a false spiritual master. It is very easy to claim anything, but the test is whether the claim can be directly supported by a quote from Srila Prabhupada. Thus, some people simply make claims that are supported by nothing other than insults, such as "zombie," "new-age Christian," etc. Such insults do not make one's claims true.

WHY THE GBC INSISTS SRILA PRABHUPADA IS NOT AVAILABLE

Srila Prabhupada's mandate for the GBC to be ISKCON's "ultimate managing authority" did not include authorizing or blessing gurus, or recommending novices in a particular geographic region to accept as spiritual master one of ISKCON's "approved" gurus. The ISKCON GBC has prohibited devotees from taking diksha initiation from Srila Prabhupada, which is a process of transmission of transcendental knowledge into the heart, because, given the choice, almost everyone would do so. As soon as Srila Prabhupada is recognized as being available as the diksha guru for anyone who wants to follow his teachings, through the initiations system that he himself designed, set-up, and finalized with the July 9 Order, the ISKCON guru franchise operation will collapse. Almost everyone will choose Srila Prabhupada. Those that want another than Srila Prabhupada as their "guru," must do so outside Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON institution wherein he has very graciously made himself fully available "henceforward," even after his physical departure.

SRILA PRABHUPADA'S SYSTEM FOR INITIATIONS IN ISKCON by Narasimha das

Srila Prabhupada never hesitated to offer spiritual initiation to anyone who agreed to follow his instructions. He initiated persons not born in brahmin families or families that follow Vedic culture. Srila Prabhupada accepted both men and women from all backgrounds as his initiated disciples and promised he would take them back to Godhead if they followed his instructions. What's especially unusual about the system of initiations Srila Prabhupada arranged was that it requires no physical contact between Srila Prabhupada and his new student. In fact, many devotees were initiated by Srila Prabhupada without ever meeting him. Such initiations would have been impractical had Srila Prabhupada not authorized senior disciples to accept and train new students on his behalf. To expand Lord Chaitanya's transcendental mission, Srila Prabhupada made many arrangements to help sincere souls approach him, inquire from him, and accept him as sad-guru. By making himself available in the form of his books, murtis, movement, and representatives, he greatly expanded opportunities for devotees to get the fully potent association of a paramahansa Vaishnava. As the movement expanded, the facilities for innocent persons to take shelter of Srila Prabhupada also expanded. Near the time of Srila Prabhupada's departure, the Movement was growing more quickly than ever. Therefore on July 9, 1977 he formally established an initiation system that had already been in practice in ISKCON. By this final order, Srila Prabhupada authorized deputies to accept disciples on his behalf, yet without writing to him for confirmation, as was done before. By this order, Srila Prabhupada authorized representatives to decide who would be accepted for initiation in ISKCON. Srila Prabhupada had already clearly established the standards (see CC Adi 17.265 and C Mad 24.330 purports) for being accepted as his initiated disciple, therefore he trusted the discretion of senior disciples to manage this system on his behalf.

Srila Prabhupada never authorized anyone to initiate their own disciples in his movement, and he never gave the GBC authority to select or approve diksha-gurus. What Srila Prabhupada did do was set up a system to continue initiations in ISKCON according to the standards he had already established. His final order on initiations simply confirms the system Srila Prabhupada had already set up in ISKCON. The only adjustment Srila Prabhupada made by his final directive was to eliminate the need for representatives (such as temple presidents) to write to him for approval. Rather, students were instructed to write to the local ritvik, the representative of the acharya. In this way, Srila Prabhupada authorized ritviks to accept disciples on his behalf.

The GBC has no authority to discontinue devotional practices or management systems His Divine Grace Srila Prabhupada personally arranged. The GBC has no authority to sanction diksha-gurus. In fact, the entire arrangement of gurus and initiations in ISKCON today is a concoction. Srila Prabhupada never ordained diksha-gurus, nor did he empower the GBC to do so. Yet the GBC insists on defending their concocted guru system, which has caused division and chaos in ISKCON for more than 20 years. [45 years now] Q1: Are you saying that the GBC has no authority to regulate who initiates in ISKCON? A1: Srila Prabhupada initiates in ISKCON. His words and example inspire us all to join Lord Chaitanya's movement. The GBC has authority to preserve what Srila Prabhupada established, not to create something new. Srila Prabhupada never approved the idea of self-appointed gurus or gurus by the appointment or approval of an ecclesiastical board. He several times criticized his Godbrothers for trying artificially to create posts of diksha-guru, or acharya, in the Gaudiya Matha. Q2: Must Srila Prabhupada always remain the initiating guru in ISKCON? A2: We must follow the order we have. The entire Hare Krishna movement follows Srila Prabhupada. He's the spiritual master of the universe. What's wrong with that idea? Q3: How do we know that Srila Prabhupada won't order someone to become diksha-guru, the initiating spiritual master. Maybe he already has. A3: Srila Prabhupada's arrangement for initiations in ISKCON is clear. We can't change this arrangement, which is based on Srila Prabhupada and his authority, just because someone claims that Srila Prabhupada told him he could initiate his own disciples. Who is making such claims? Q4: What if a new devotee wants to accept one of Srila Prabhupada's disciples as the spiritual master rather than trying to develop a direct relationship with Srila Prabhupada? Could he do that? A4: Not in ISKCON. Srila Prabhupada made himself fully available in the form of his extensive vani and also as his divine murti. Daily attendance of his guru-puja, his mangala-arati prayers, and careful study of his books is essential for all ISKCON devotees. Yet devotees may naturally follow senior advanced disciples who inspire them in their devotion to Sri Guru and Sri Gauranga. Srila Prabhupada encouraged such practical training and teacher-student relationships. Yet he never authorized any disciple to post himself as the initiating spiritual master in ISKCON. He never authorized any of his disciples to act as the sad-guru, who must be worshipped like the Supreme Lord. Q5: But sannyasis receive worship from others. A5: Genuine Vaishnavas are certainly worthy of worship. To be a faithful disciple of Srila Prabhupada is an exalted status. But no regular worship or formal status as diksha-guru was ever authorized by Srila Prabhupada for any of his disciples in ISKCON. Srila Prabhupada wanted faithful disciples, not self-appointed pretenders. If a new devotee hasn't developed faith in Srila Prabhupada as his guru, he should not accept initiation in ISKCON. Similarly, if a disciple wants to appoint himself as guru, he has no right to use ISKCON for his enterprise.

Q6: But doesn't the law of disciplic succession prohibit jumping over the current guru in favor of the previous acharya? A6: Srila Prabhupada is still the current acharya. Who can deny this? Do we need a candle to see the full moon? Bhaktivinode Thakur said, "He reasons ill who tells that Vaishnavas die, when thou art living still in sound." Who is that guru we jump over by accepting Srila Prabhupada? If someone says new devotees need to surrender heart and soul to unauthorized or mixed devotees, such ignorant persons should be jumped over or ignored. Q7: Doesn't the sincere disciple automatically become the guru and then serve his own disciples by helping them become Krishna conscious? A7: The disciple follows the order of the Acharya, and serves in that way. Srila Prabhupada created many posts for his disciples (such as sannyasa, GBC, and temple president), but he never created posts of diksha-guru. Nor did he tell the GBC to do so. Srila Prabhupada is both the siksha-guru and diksha-guru in ISKCON. Advanced devotees should train new disciples to associate with Srila Prabhupada constantly by hearing from him repeatedly with rapt attention. In this way, everyone gets the same benefit and guarantee in their cultivation of pure devotional service. Q8: But don't Srila Prabhupada's books talk often of his disciples becoming diksha-gurus and accepting their own disciples? A8: No. Srila Prabhupada asks everyone to become guru by preaching and training others in the philosophy and practices of Krishna consciousness. He never asked anyone to begin initiating their own disciples in ISKCON. We find no such instruction. Not all pure devotees initiate disciples and accept worship from other Vaishnavas. It's not automatic that pure devotees will initiate. A pure devotee accepts the post of spiritual master when the Supreme Lord or His empowered representative orders him. (See SBhag 4.8.54, purport)

Q9: Don't Srila Prabhupada's books say that everyone should become guru and help others? Isn't this Lord Chaitanya's mission? A9: Lord Chaitanya's mission is to give pure chanting of Hare Krishna and pure devotional service. Srila Prabhupada warns that no one should be accepted as a pure devotee if he is not properly authorized. Please consider this passage: "Vallabha Bhatta wanted to be initiated by Gadadhara Pandita, but Gadadhara Pandita refused, saying, 'The work of acting as a spiritual master is not possible for me. I am completely dependent. My Lord is Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. I cannot do anything independently, without His order.'" (CC Ant 7.150-1) Pure devotees never think they are independent. All work in ISKCON is created by Srila Prabhupada. The post of "ISKCON guru" is a GBC concoction. Unfortunately, due to this concoction, many preachers have been polluted by false ambition. Q10: But Lord Chaitanya gave a blanket order for everyone to become guru. Why do you say such gurus can't initiate their own disciples? A10: They may initiate when they get an order to initiate. Sri Gadadhara Pandit himself said he needed a direct order to initiate! Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu wanted everyone to become Krishna conscious and preach. He never said all devotees must initiate their own disciples. In fact, Srila Prabhupada specifically warns, "It is better not to accept any disciples." Srila Prabhupada said, "A guru can become guru when he's ordered by his guru. That's all. Otherwise nobody can become guru." (SP Lecture 1975) Q11: By preaching and practicing Krishna consciousness, isn't one automatically qualified to become an initiating guru? A11: Not necessarily. But qualification is a separate issue. We may have qualifications, but an order is still required. For instance, I may be qualified for the order of sannyasa, but in ISKCON I will need authorization to be accepted as a sannyasi. The position of Gaudiya Vaishnava guru, or acharya, is equal to that of the Supreme Personality of Godhead. (CC Adi 1.46) Sri Gadadhara Pandita said he was unable to initiate without the direct order of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. Why speak of others!?

Q12: How is it possible that Srila Prabhupada can accept disciples after his departure? And how do we know he wants to? A12: You think there's something that's impossible for Srila Prabhupada? He set up a ritvik system for this. He established ISKCON to train devotees to be his steady disciples and preach. It used to be common knowledge among devotees that His Divine Grace was willing to accept the whole world as his disciples. He accepted disciples in Australia while in Europe. He accepted disciples in America while in India. He accepted disciples he had never met. Srila Prabhupada can do this. He is still doing this. It is in our hands to get the credit for helping him do this by agreeing to remain his faithful representatives. Q13: Then we should ask new devotees to surrender heart and soul to someone they can never meet personally or write a letter to. A13: Do you think Srila Prabhupada is dead? The issue here is the authority of the Jagat Guru. He never said his physical presence was essential. Many of his so-called "direct" disciples, devotees initiated prior to 1977, never saw him or wrote to him. He never stressed his physical presence. Srila Prabhupada said following his order is essential. His order is directly the will of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. Why should we tax our brains to justify defying Srila Prabhupada's order? The problem is that devotees have not carefully heard from Srila Prabhupada or his genuine representatives. They've been misled by the gbc to think Srila Prabhupada is gone and can no longer personally guide or initiate devotees.

Q14: According to Vedic tradition, when the guru departs, his disciple becomes the initiating guru and accepts his own disciples. This is the parampara system. We can't stop this eternal system. A14: There is no such tradition of defacto guru, or guru by automatic inheritance. Yet all Vedic traditions are satisfied if we follow Srila Prabhupada's formula for expanding the worldwide mission of Krishna consciousness. One day there may be millions of devotees qualified to offer diksha. Yet in Srila Prabhupada's mission, they will follow Srila Prabhupada's system and train disciples to offer their full devotion and surrender to Srila Prabhupada and His mission rather than to themselves. Such self-realized souls may have many devoted followers. Pure devotees teach by their example how to serve Srila Prabhupada's mission as humble representatives of the Saktyavesa Avatar, the Jagat Guru. If representatives of Srila Prabhupada train everyone to accept Srila Prabhupada as acharya, the parampara system will flourish gloriously. Advanced devotees will happily agree to remain humble representatives of His Divine Grace, the Jagat Guru, Srila Prabhupada. Q15: But don't all genuine spiritual masters accept disciples on behalf of the previous acharyas? Don't ISKCON gurus engage their followers in unalloyed service to Srila Prabhupada? A15: Yes, to the first question. No, to the second. They are misleading their so-called disciples. These ambitious men could have been loved and honored as the representatives of Srila Prabhupada, but instead, due to false ambition, they created intrigue and suffering for everyone, including themselves. What's at stake here? Why all the fuss to reject Srila Prabhupada's final order on initiations? Think about it! Q16: Isn't diksha just a formality? Isn't it the Hare Krishna mahamantra that actually initiates everyone? A16: Diksha is the process by which one can awaken his divya-jnana and vanquish sinful reactions (CC Mad 15.108). The initiation ceremony is a formality, but that also has been recommended and established by our Gaudiya Vaishnava acharyas, beginning with Rupa Gowsami. By definition, then, the diksha-guru must be a fully self-realized soul. No one else is qualified to offer true diksha.

Q17: If everyone takes siksha from Srila Prabhupada, isn't that enough? Why should we worry who initiates? A17: The siksha-guru and diksha-guru must be seen equally. Generally, they are the same person. They are both absolute. Why deny new devotees the assurance of being directly connected with Srila Prabhupada through both diksha and siksha? Who will they accept as Srila Prabhupada's equal? The real point is following the formula Srila Prabhupada personally arranged. Why does the GBC refuse to accept Srila Prabhupada's arrangement? Q18: The GBC believes that ordaining gurus is the most effective way to recruit and train devotees and thus continue the parampara. A18: The parampara is continued by disciples who follow the order of the Acharya. ISKCON devotees must follow Srila Prabhupada's instruction to preach on His behalf. Srila Prabhupada is the Jagat Acharya. His position is the same as Lord Nityananda's or Lord Balarama's. No order of His Divine Grace can be changed or ignored. By training everyone to be disciples of Srila Prabhupada, the parampara will continue gloriously. Q19: I think most ISKCON gurus are representing Srila Prabhupada's mission. A19: Preachers who represent Srila Prabhupada's mission teach that Srila Prabhupada is the absolute shelter for all ISKCON devotees. They teach devotees to hear from Srila Prabhupada and worship him with full surrender. They don't encourage devotees to worship mixed devotees or offenders as the initiating spiritual master. Nor do they teach that mixed devotees are in the Gaudiya Vaishnava sampradaya. Rather they train devotees to accept Srila Prabhupada and surrender to his mission directly. Unless the GBC accepts Srila Prabhupada's order, they'll continue to mislead innocent devotees and create chaos. Q20: Are all ISKCON gurus offenders? A20: According to Srila Prabhupada, those who attempt to exploit or misdirect the mission of the Acharya due to personal ambition are "severe offenders." No one can capture the post of Vaishnava Acharya by artificial arrangements. "A Vaishnava acharya is self-effulgent, and there is no need for any court judgment." (CC Mad 1.220 purport) Srila Prabhupada and Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati both warn that one who covets the post of Vaishnava Acharya or tries to assume the post without authority causes havoc by his imitation. Even Gadadhara Pandit, the incarnation of devotional energy, says he needs a direct order to initiate. He was not willing to assume the post of Supreme Personality of Servitor Godhead without a direct order from Lord Chaitanya. Yet if we ask an ISKCON guru, "When did Srila Prabhupada order you to become the initiating spiritual master?" What will he say?

Q21: He might say, "I am a guru because the GBC confirmed my nomination. I don't claim to be absolute. Only my disciples see me that way because the shastras say the guru must be worshipped like God. I accept the authority of the GBC as absolute. In that way, I am absolute." A21: This is no reply. They'll agree to be ritviks of a deviated GBC but not of Srila Prabhupada! They misrepresent the most exalted post of Vaishnava guru. By their deviation, they've opened the flood gate for sahajiya cheating and anarchy. Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati warned, "One who thinks he is guru is 'garu'" 'Garu' means cow. We may worship a cow sometimes, but it remains an animal. (END)

HOW DO WE KNOW THAT SRILA PRABHUPADA WILL ACCEPT US? By Nityasiddha das

One of the major arguments ISKCON GBC and gurus raise against Srila Prabhupada accepting disciples after his physical departure is they say there is no confirmation from Srila Prabhupada that he has agreed to accept the guru-disciple contract with any particular individual. There is no letter accepting a disciple after being recommended by one of his senior managers such as temple president, etc. There is no meeting in person where Srila Prabhupada would see and acknowledge accepting someone as a disciple. They say: "How do we know Srila Prabhupada wanted someone as a disciple or that he actually accepted him? Since he is now expired, and gone, how does Srila Prabhupada even know someone is asking to be initiated?"

This tricky argument plays on the ignorance of what Srila Prabhupada actually set up as an initiation system for ISKCON's future "henceforward." The July 9 Order dispenses with ALL requirements involving Srila Prabhupada's physical participation in his initiating of disciples. He thus left the last remaining external formalities of initiation to his responsible managers to screen and approve new disciples and do the fire sacrifice after an "officiating acharya" chanted on the beads and gave the name (which was sent to be entered into Srila Prabhupada's Disciples Book). There was no more any requirement for Srila Prabhupada's involvement on the physical plane. It did not matter anymore where Srila Prabhupada was, or if he departed or not. He trusted his responsible managers to carry on an initiation system he had set up in stages since 1970. There is no question whether Srila Prabhupada would accept anyone as a disciple. By his divine mercy he was accepting ALL initiation recommendations from his responsible managers. This is comparable to the unlimited blessings of Jesus Christ, who is said to have paid for the sins of all who would simply believe in him and follow his teachings. Or comparable to Vasudeva Datta who prayed to accept the sins of all living beings in the universe. But the small-minded ecclesiastic ISKCON phony gurus cannot appreciate the causeless mercy, spiritual empowerment, and divine mercy of such a great pure devotee who would no longer even need to have a relationship on the physical plane before accepting someone as a disciple. They are faithless and cannot know that Srila Prabhupada is present where he wants to be and where his followers are. In 1990, Ravindra Svarup challenged during the “ritvik debate” that if you send a letter to Srila Prabhupada, will you get a reply? ...not understanding that the letter of July 9 is already his answer to all who want initiation (at that time this document was unknown). The whole world could surrender and become disciples of Srila Prabhupada, as he removed all further restrictions. Anyone who follows the 4 rules, chants 16 rounds, and studies his books, even if it be millions, he will accept as his disciples. There is no more need of any acceptance letter or meeting.

Even prior to Srila Prabhupada’s departure, he accepted all those who were recommended. There never was any requirement for meeting him in person. Now the acceptance letter was no longer part of the process either. From July 9 to Nov. 14, 1977, Srila Prabhupada initiated hundreds of disciples through this system and he was totally uninvolved externally. So after Nov. 14, 1977 why would there any problem with continuing that system that the GBC accepted and used for those 4 months? The GBC and gurus cleverly play games with words to confuse us, in their desperate efforts to maintain their guru regime’s charade. (END)

FURTHER THOUGHTS

(1) Disciplic Succession does not always mean that one has to be initiated officially. One can be Srila Prabhupada’s disciple even if he is not initiated officially. “...disciplic succession does not always mean that one has to be initiated officially. Disciplic succession means to accept the disciplic conclusion.” (SPL Dinesh Oct. 31, 1969) “Well, initiation or no initiation, first thing is knowledge... Initiation is formality. Just like you go to a school for knowledge, and admission is formality. That is not very important thing.” (SPConv Oct. 16, 1976) (2) How does the bonafide diksha guru Srila Prabhupada accept us? “In our Krishna consciousness movement, the requirement is that one must be prepared to give up the four pillars of sinful life-illicit sex, meat-eating, intoxication and gambling. In Western countries especially, we first observe whether a potential disciple is prepared to follow the regulative principles. Then he is given the name of a Vaishnava servant and initiated to chant the Hare Krsna maha-mantra, at least 16 rounds daily. In this way the disciple renders devotional service under the guidance of the spiritual master or his representative for at least six months to a year. He is then recommended for a second initiation, during which a sacred thread is offered and the disciple is accepted as a bona fide brahmana.” (CC Mad 24.330) (3) Srila

Prabhupada knows how to guide a sincere soul who surrenders to him. He makes it very clear “the acharya is a perfect brahmana and has unlimited intelligence in guiding the activities of his disciple.” (SBhag 6.7.15 purport) Unlimited, by time or space, physical presence or not. (4) SP stated July 7, 1977 that ritvik representatives could accept devotees as his disciples without consulting him; thus he removed himself from screening, approving of new disciples. His physical involvement or even consent was no longer required. SP: So without waiting for me, wherever you consider it is right. That will depend on discretion. Tamal: On discretion. SP: Yes. (5) “The disciple must admit that he will no longer commit sinful activity—namely illicit sex, meat-eating, gambling and intoxication. He promises to execute the order of the spiritual master. Then the spiritual master takes care of him and elevates him to spiritual emancipation.” (CC Mad 24.256) This care continues after Srila Prabhupada has physically departed, or otherwise all those initiated before 1977 would need to get a new living guru? (6) Q: How important is formal initiation? SP: Formal initiation means to accept, officially, to abide by the orders of Krishna and His representative. That is formal initiation. Officially accept, “Yes, sir, I shall accept. I shall do whatever you say.” This is initiation, official acceptance of the job. That’s all. Now, you formally accept, and if you do not do the duties, then where is the question of other function? [...] Initiation means this is the beginning of accepting the orders of Krishna and His representative to carry out. This is the beginning. That is initiation. Just like if you enter in an office establishment, so you accept the terms of service. That is initiation. Then you go on serving, you become promoted, you get salary increase. You become recognized. You become officer. (SP Lecture Feb. 22, 1973) (7) SP: Who is my disciple? First of all let him follow strictly the disciplined rules. Disciple: As long as one is following, then he is... SP: Then he is all right. (SP Conv June 13, 1976) (8) SP: Chain is broken when there are false spiritual masters. Otherwise it is not broken. Chain is broken if a so-called spiritual master speaks something manufactured. Then the chain is broken. Otherwise chain is not broken. (SP Sept. 2, 1976) We conclude that those ISKCON gurus who are saying that the officiating acharya system is breaking the disciplic succession, it is actually they who are breaking it.

---

PART 19: THE SOLE DIKSHA GURU

“Only unto one who has unflinching devotion to the Lord and to the spiritual master does transcendental knowledge become automatically revealed.’ Such relationship between the disciple and the spiritual master is eternal. One who is now the disciple is the next spiritual master. And one cannot be a bona fide and authorized spiritual master unless one has been strictly obedient to his spiritual master. Brahmaji, as a disciple of the Supreme Lord, received the real knowledge and imparted it to his dear disciple Narada, and similarly Narada, as spiritual master, handed over this knowledge to Vyasa and so on. Therefore the so-called formal spiritual master and disciple are not facsimiles of Brahma and Narada or Narada and Vyasa. The relationship between Brahma and Narada is reality, while the so-called formality is the relation between the cheater and cheated. It is clearly mentioned herewith that Narada is not only well behaved, meek and obedient, but also self-controlled. One who is not self-controlled, specifically in sex life, can become neither a disciple nor a spiritual master. One must have disciplinary training in controlling speaking, anger, the tongue, the mind, the belly and the genitals. One who has controlled the particular senses mentioned above is called a gosvami. Without becoming a gosvami one can become neither a disciple nor a spiritual master. The so-called spiritual master without sense control is certainly the cheater, and the disciple of such a so-called spiritual master is the cheated.” (SBhag 2.9.43)

Now, we examine the evidence that Srila Prabhupada himself is the diksha guru he arranged for ISKCON’s future after his physical departure. Some will choose other “gurus,” but it should be understood how Srila Prabhupada is definitely available as diksha guru for all those who follow his instructions. This is a tough pill for ISKCON misleaders, but it is the truth. The bottom line: reject the imposters and recognize Srila Prabhupada as the sole diksha guru for his mission, movement, and institution, according to his own arrangements and instructions. Patient study will show this to be fact.

---

CHAPTER 185: DIDN'T SRILA PRABHUPADA WANT GURUS?

(1) "In the purport of NOI 5 we see Prabhupada advises us to be careful to accept initiation from an uttama-adhikari Vaishnava. One can take initiation from a madhyama or a kanistha, but such a student will not be able to advance very well toward the ultimate goal of life under this insufficient guidance, therefore one MUST accept an uttama adhikari as his spiritual master. So if you do not care about the ultimate goal of life, take initiation from a madhyama or kanistha devotee. But [...] that is spiritual death [...] So one must be very careful to accept an uttama adhikari as his spiritual master. To use this NOI purport to claim that one can take initiation from a madhyama or a kanistha and to insinuate that this is recommended by Prabhupada is extreme cheating, clutching at straws. One must take initiation from an uttama devotee." (Madhudvisa das, 2009)

(2) "The misunderstanding of 'if you become a disciple in parampara, automatically that means you should be guru,' is not that automatically become a diksha guru. I've been a guru since 1974 when I began passing out Srila Prabhupada's books. But a vartma padarsaka guru, for God's sake." (Mahasrnga das, 2016) (3) "Does Srila Prabhupada say that Lord Chaitanya's 'amara ajnaya' instruction to become a spiritual master means to initiate (diksha)? No no no! Teach them to just 'chant Hare Krishna, that's all.'" If you take the amara ajnaya verse to mean diksha as the crims do, then that means Mahaprabhu would have given diksha to His devotees and ordered them to give diksha while in His presence.. Absolutely absurd! Just think about it. Vartma pradasak or siksha-guru at best!" (Balaram das 2020) (4) "Srila Prabhupada wanted to stop giving sannyas initiations in 1977 because so many were falling down. Then the logical conclusion would be: if so many of the so called leaders were falling down, then how could he grant these same people the right to become diksha gurus?" (Damaghosh das, 2016) (5) "Here is some simple logic: If there really was a clear order for all disciples to become diksha gurus, in Srila Prabhupada's teachings and instructions up to May 1977, then why did the GBC through Satsvarupa ask Srila Prabhupada: 'Particularly at that time when you're no longer with us, we want to know how first and second initiation would be conducted.' The idea that anyone could be a guru only developed after Srila Prabhupada departed and the disease of guru ambition spread through the institution." (Unknown) (6) "I realize that the entire initiation issue has been fraught with problems and has not been a clear issue. Therefore I believe that by discussions matters can be clarified, and I would therefore encourage you to write me further in this regard." (Tamal letter to Gauridas Pandit das, Aug. 9, 1987) But this was duplicity only. When Gauridas twice wrote Tamal back further on the issue, there were no replies. Here Tamal admits the guru issue was not clear in 1987, so how was it clear in 1977, or 1978, or even today?

LORD CHAITANYA'S ORDER WAS TO BE A SIKSHA GURU, NOT DIKSHA

From ISKM's Initiations After 1977 re: the ISKCON apologists' argument that Srila Prabhupada spoke often about his disciples becoming initiating spiritual masters:

"Srila Prabhupada previously may have seemingly encouraged his disciples many times to become gurus in the future, after his physical departure, and initiate devotees on their own, thus continuing the chain of disciplic succession. Why then would he later introduce the ritvik system of initiations and stop the disciplic chain with him being the last in the succession? It is prudent to remember that disciplic succession means the disciplic conclusion, or the science of devotional service to the Supreme Personality of Godhead, as stated in BGita 4.2. As long as Srila Prabhupada's books are spreading the message of Krishna consciousness, the disciplic succession is not considered broken. Still, we shall study the open order for everyone to become guru, which was also issued by Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. The instruction for everyone to become guru is found in the following verse in CC, often quoted by Srila Prabhupada: yare dekha, tare kaha 'krishna'-upadesa/ amara ajnaya guru hana tara' ei desa (CC Mad 7.128) 'Instruct everyone to follow the orders of Lord Krishna as they are given in Bhagavadgita and Srimad Bhagavatam. In this way become a spiritual master and try to liberate everyone in this land.' However, the type of guru which Lord Chaitanya is encouraging everyone to become is clearly established in the detailed purports following this verse: (1) 'That is, one should stay at home, chant the Hare Krishna mantra and preach the instructions of Krishna as they are given in Bhagavad-gita and Srimad Bhagavatam.' (CC Mad 7.128 purport) (2) "One may remain a householder, a medical practitioner, an engineer or whatever. It doesn't matter. One only has to follow the instruction of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, chant the Hare Krishna maha-mantra and instruct relatives and friends in the teachings of Bhagavad-gita and Srimad-Bhagavatam... It is best not to accept any disciples." (CC Mad 7.130 purport)

"We can see that these instructions do not demand that the gurus in question first attain any particular level of realization before they act. The request is immediate. From this it is clear that everyone is simply encouraged to preach what they may know, and in so doing become siksha, or instructing, gurus. This is further clarified by the stipulation for the siksha guru to remain in that position, and not then go on to become a diksha guru: 'It is best not to accept any disciples.' To accept disciples is the main business of a diksha guru, whereas a siksha guru simply needs to carry on his duties in assisting the diksha guru and preach Krishna consciousness as best he can. It is clear from Srila Prabhupada's purports that, in the above verse, Lord Chaitanya is actually authorizing siksha gurus, not diksha gurus. Even though Srila Prabhupada did mention many times earlier on to encourage everyone to go on to become diksha-gurus, his order in the July 9, 1977 should supersede all of his previous statements. The following clears up this matter: SP: I may say many things to you, but when I say something directly, 'Do it,' your first duty is to do that. You cannot argue, 'Sir, you said me like this before.' No, that is not your duty. What I say now, you do it. That is obedience. You cannot argue. Of course, Krishna never said anything contradictory, but if when one thinks foolishly that Krishna said something contradictory, no, that is not to be. You could not understand. So 'Even though you could not understand, you take My direct orders now, sarva-dharman parityajya mam ekam That is your business.' The master says like that, and the servant's business is to accept it as it is, without any argument. (SP Lecture Apr. 15, 1975)

"In BGita, Lord Krishna gave many instructions, of all types of yoga, but all this was superseded by His final instruction: 'Abandon all varieties of religion and just surrender unto Me. I shall deliver you from all sinful reaction. Do not fear.' (BGita 18.66) 'You just give up everything and become My devotee, My worshipper' –should be taken as the final order of the Lord, and one should follow that principle.' (TLC Ch. 11) Even the final instruction given by Sankaracharya in his song 'Bhaja Govindam,' was also meant to supersede all his previous Mayavadi or impersonal instructions. Sankaracharya clearly advises right in the beginning of his song that all his previous deliberate Mayavadi misinterpretations of the Vedic texts by elaborate study of grammatical arrangements is useless to help anyone at the end of life. He advises everyone to forget such nonsense and just worship Govinda in devotional service if one at all wants real benefit. The point is that to execute the final instruction is the immediate duty of the disciple, not to argue about previous instructions that may seem contradictory. The final instruction supersedes all previous instructions. Therefore, the 1977 July 9th letter/directive and the declaration of Will of Srila Prabhupada should be taken as his final instructions in this connection and should not be argued upon. All this points to again the same thing: Srila Prabhupada is the authorized diksha guru of ISKCON for as long as his books remain." (END)

AMARA AJNAYA: DISCIPLIC SUCCESSION OF SIKSHA GURUS

(1) Gopala Krsna: Srila Prabhupada, I am just trying to clarify- I don't want to offend anyone- but no disciple of yours should call himself diksha-guru or siksha-guru. Am I right? SP:..Well, everyone is engaged to become siksha-guru, but one should become perfect. The attempt is- what is called? Probationer. When probationer period is finished, then he is naturally, automatically, bona fide guru. Not in the probationer period. That is immature attempt. That will failure. Amara ajnaya, Caitanya Mahaprabhu said: "By My order." So all my disciples are expected to become siksha-guru on my order, not by his own order." (SPConv May 30, 1976) (2) Guest: But there are so many disciples of one guru. Are they come all in bona fide disciplic succession? SP: Hmmm? Well, everyone is in a bona fide disciplic succession provided he keeps that tradition, keeps that tradition. Apani acari prabhu jive sikhaila. One must behave that "I belong to this disciplic succession. I must keep myself fit for the post." Then it is all right. If he deviates, then he deviates the disciplic succession. Hare Krishna. Chaitanya Mahaprabhu says frankly that... This is disciplic succession. Amara ajnaya: "Just carry out My order." Then you are in disciplic succession. If you do not keep yourself in the order of Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, then simply by becoming disciple, you are not in the disciplic succession. This is disciplic succession. Chaitanya Mahaprabhu said this clearly, amara ajnaya guru hana tara ei: "Wherever you live, you become a spiritual master." How? Yare dekha tare kaha krishna-upadesa: [CC Mad 7.128] "Whomever you meet, you only speak what Kṛṣṇa has instructed." Then you are disciplic succession. It doesn't matter what you are and where you are. It doesn't matter. This is disciplic succession. And if you think, "Now I am initiated. I am now liberated. I have no other business," then you are not in the disciplic succession. You must preach. That is disciplic succession. Guest: This is the definition of a disciple. SP: Yes. Amara ajnaya guru hana tara ei desa yare dekha... You have to... Anywhere, any friend, any businessman, "Are you Kṛṣṇa conscious? Chant Hare Kṛṣṇa." That's all. What is the loss in that? "My dear friend, I request you to chant Hare Kṛṣṇa mantra." Where is the difficulty? (SPConv Mar. 9 1974) [So the guru in Lord Chaitanya's order to all is to be a siksha guru, simply tell people, friends to chant Hare Krishna; it is not a blanket order to become diksha guru!]

ALL OF MY DISCIPLES WILL TAKE THE LEGACY: EVOLUTION OF THE PLAN FOR FUTURE

In 1970, four years after incorporating ISKCON, Srila Prabhupada created a committee within ISKCON, the Governing Body Commission (GBC), and began training his senior disciples to take over the management of his society. He hoped to retire from management completely and have the GBC become the "ultimate managing authority" in ISKCON, so he could complete his translation and commentary on SBhag without disturbance. He also hoped that the GBC, when fully trained, could also take over the duty of initiating new disciples after his death. Hansadutta Swami, who was appointed to the original GBC: "He [Srila Prabhupada] told me personally, 'I am training you to be guru. I am training you to be perfect, so that in my absence things will go on.'" During a June 1976 interview, Srila Prabhupada explained that he was presently training his most "advanced students" to become his successors. Interviewer: Is there anyone who is designated to succeed you as the primary teacher of the movement? SP: I am training some, I mean to say, advanced students so that they may very easily take up the charge. I have made them GBC. They are under my direct training, and I think they will be able to conduct this movement. Interviewer: Do you expect to name one person as your successor or have you already? SP: That I am not contemplating now. But there is no need of [only] one person.

A month later, Srila Prabhupada spoke to a reporter, explaining he was training his leading GBCs to succeed him in the future. Interviewer: Do you have a successor to take your place when you die? SP: Not yet settled up. Not yet settled up. Interviewer: So what process would the Hare Krishnas...? SP: We have got secretaries. They are managing. Disciple: He has appointed from all the disciples a group of secretaries [the GBC]. Each one is in charge of a different sector of the world. Interviewer: How many secretaries? Disciple: Presently there's eighteen. Interviewer: And so that group of eighteen secretaries will choose another leader? SP: I am training each one of them as leader so that they can spread extensively. That is my idea. Despite Srila Prabhupada's attempts to train his leading secretaries, by November 2, 1977 (days before he departed), his confidence in his most "advanced students" had declined dramatically. When asked, "Who will succeed you as the leader of the Hare Krishna movement?" -instead of suggesting, as he did earlier, that his leading GBC secretaries would "conduct his movement," he responded more broadly, "All of my disciples will take the legacy... I— one— may soon pass away, but they [my disciples] are hundreds, and this movement will increase. It's not that I'll give an order, 'Here is the next leader.' Anyone who follows the previous leadership in a leader... All my disciples are leaders, as much as they follow purely."

Obviously Srila Prabhupada had changed his mind about his disciples initiating their own followers after he departed, if that is even what he ever contemplated. There are some references from the late 1960's and a few before 1975 as well- where Srila Prabhupada indicates that he wanted his disciples to become spiritual masters to initiate on their own. But by 1976 and 1977, Srila Prabhupada no longer spoke in this way. By May 1977, he had refrained from speaking anything further about their becoming initiating gurus for a long time, and even as his departure became more imminent and the issue would seem to be urgent, he still said absolutely nothing about his disciples becoming full gurus. To the contrary, in July 1977 Srila Prabhupada instituted a novel and ingenious initiation system by which he himself, on the spiritual platform where real initiations take place, would continue to "initiate" disciples through priests who would perform all the formalities on his behalf. On May 28, 1977, Srila Prabhupada's senior disciples purposefully asked loaded questions because they already had their secret plans to takeover the movement as successor gurus, to be later ratified by a GBC body which they controlled. The May 28 questions seem to have been aimed at securing some tangential approval for future gurus. A closer look, however, shows that Srila Prabhupada only named 11 ritvik representatives but zero successor initiators. He never gave any order to anyone to initiate as diksha or regular gurus, and the order must be there if one is to be an authorized initiating guru. Although Srila Prabhupada did speak in earlier years about gurus in the future, when the time of his departure loomed, he actually gave a different system altogether. We must accept that his instructions on July 9, 1977 superseded and overrode all previous indications. As SP made clear on May 28, 1977, his disciples could become full gurus only when he gave them the order to do so. But since there never was an order, then they must continue to be ritvik representatives of the acharya.

GBC HAS MANY QUOTES BUT, STILL, THERE NEVER WAS ANY ORDER

The GBC and guru apologists regularly present a long list of quotes from Srila Prabhupada that seem to state that his disciples will, can, or should "become gurus" and take disciples of their own. So, isn't this sufficient evidence that Srila Prabhupada wanted and expected devotees to become initiating gurus after his physical departure? No, actually they are not, and these quotes all fall into the following categories, which do not qualify as justification for assuming the role of diksha guru. (1) General descriptions of various principles, such as waiting for one's guru to depart before initiating (2) Tactful dealings with obviously guru-ambitious disciples (3) Indications about possible later events that may or may not occur, and actually did not occur (4) Srila Prabhupada expressing hopes for his disciples, but at the end he stopped speaking in that way (5) Regardless of what was said previously, we must go by Srila Prabhupada's LAST instructions, even if it is different or opposite. The last thing he gave us was a ritvik representative system with no mention whatsoever that this system would ever change to something else, such as when he departed. In his last 2 years he never gave any instructions about there being diksha gurus in their own right. As Tamal said in Dec. 1980, if this is what he intended, he would have spent days elaborating in detail how that would be structured and work. Instead, he said zero about it. The only thing he gave regarding future initiations was the July 9 Order.

Many times Srila Prabhupada expressed his desire that his disciples would become future spiritual masters, if they could become qualified, but in the May 28, 1977 talks, as he had already made clear in his books as well, he clearly stipulated that to become guru, one needs the order from him first. Srila Prabhupada's hopes do not equal an order. By late 1977 Srila Prabhupada had only prescribed officiating acharyas, and had not instructed anyone to become an initiating guru. He made clear that unless and until they were "ordered," no one could become initiating guru. That order cannot be found anywhere in Srila Prabhupada's instructions. Even Hansadutta's offer of a reward of $108,000 has not uncovered any such order from Srila Prabhupada. It does not exist; it was never given. His hoping for gurus and giving the order to actually act as diksha guru are two different things. Srila Prabhupada also made clear that whatever he orders last is what must be followed, even if he said something different earlier. The last instruction is what the disciple must take as the valid instruction to live by, not cherry-pick earlier quotes to justify what we want to do. So regardless of the meaning of the quotes about becoming gurus with disciples, the stress must be on what were Srila Prabhupada's LAST instructions, because they supersede all others. He said so many things, but this point, the real point, he left unclear? The July 9, May 28, and the Last Will are the three directions that SP gave us for what he wanted after he left. Like a father who may have said so many things to his children, the last, signed Will takes precedence over all other wills or things the father said previously.

"He [Bhaktisiddhanta] never recommended anyone to be acharya of the Gaudiya Math... If Guru Maharaja could have seen someone who was qualified at that time to be acharya, he would have mentioned. Because on the night before he passed away he talked of so many things, but never mentioned an acharya. Therefore we may not commit the same mistake in our ISKCON camp." (SPL Rupanuga das Apr. 28, 1974)

THE JULY 1971 DETROIT INITIATIONS FIRE SACRIFICE By Nityananda das

To justify their guru system, the GBC often quotes: GUEST: After you, is it any decision has been made who will take over? SP: Yes. All of them will take over. These students, who are initiated from me, all of them will act as I am doing. Just like I have got many Godbrothers, they are all acting. Similarly, all these disciples which I am making, initiating, they are being trained to become future spiritual masters. [...] GUEST: You have ten swamis. And outside of swamis, what's the lower... SP: Now, they're competent. They can, not only the swamis, even the grhasthas, they are called dasa adhikari, and brahmacaris, everyone can, whoever is initiated, he is competent to make disciples. But as a matter of etiquette they do not do so in the presence of their spiritual master. This is the etiquette. Otherwise, they are competent. They can make disciples and spread. They can recruit more members in this. They do, but they are being trained up. Just like here in this meeting, one of my disciples, he is acting as priest. It is not myself; he is acting. So some of my students, they are acting as priests, some of them are swamis, so they are competent to make disciples. (July 18, 1971)

I attended this fire sacrifice in Detroit. Srila Prabhupada, from his Vyasasana, was coaching, training Jagadish, my college classmate, how to perform the fire sacrifice, step by step. Srila Prabhupada corrected and interrupted him often, every minute or less, ending up giving most of the lecture himself. He was training Jagadish to perform the formalities of initiation. Nothing was conveyed nor understood at that time that he was teaching or authorizing Jagadish or anyone to later initiate their own disciples. He was just training him as a priest, as he himself said, where they would be initiating disciples on his behalf. Competent to do a fire sacrifice, where disciples were being made for Srila Prabhupada, that's all it was. My wife was one of the initiates. What kind of spiritual master was he training, and whose disciples would they be? Obviously the qualification for being diksha guru is not simply that one is initiated! Twice: "acting as priest." Yet the GBC does their cherry-picking to support their defective doctrines. Even the devil knows how to quote scripture.

Srila Prabhupada was just proud to teach Jagadish das how to do a fire sacrifice, give an initiation lecture, and officiate at this initiation ceremony in these early years of the movement. From 1965 Srila Prabhupada had been doing almost everything, but gradually taught devotees to cook, lecture, write, do kirtan, and now he was training Jagadish, one of his original 12 GBCs, to officiate initiations. There are no other pastimes after Detroit 1971 to confirm that Srila Prabhupada was training disciples as diksha gurus. Even if the GBC is correct on this, Srila Prabhupada clearly changed his mind later, evidenced by his 1977 ritvik plan. (END)

SRILA PRABHUPADA CHANGED HIS MIND ABOUT DIKSHA GURUS?

Much evidence shows that by 1977 Srila Prabhupada had decided none of his disciples were qualified to act as initiating guru. Tamal and Bhavananda both agreed on this with Srila Prabhupada in 1977. Nevertheless, we need only ascertain exactly what were his last instructions about future initiations. He said he would appoint some to act as ritvik representatives and he then did appoint 11 of them on July 9, 1977. This is the last arrangement he made, and thus the one we should follow. The numerous quotes produced by ISKCON leaders and new-guru apologists for their becoming diksha gurus actually: (1) Refer to acting as a siksha guru, (2) Require waiting for a future order to act as a diksha guru, an order that never was given, (3) Express Srila Prabhupada's hopes that his disciples would become qualified in the future so that he might maybe then order them to act as diksha guru, but which he never did.

IS SRILA PRABHUPADA THE SIKSHA OR DIKSHA GURU OF ISKCON?

From ISKM's Initiations After 1977: "Another contention is that since Srila Prabhupada is giving us the teachings through his books, he is the siksha guru and the diksha guru is the one who gives the spiritual name. But as we have already witnessed in the preceding definition of diksha, diksha means the imparting of transcendental knowledge by the spiritual master. The giving of the name and chanting on the beads is only a technical detail and formality that other devotees can do on behalf of Srila Prabhupada as he instructed in the July 9, 1977 letter/directive. Real initiation is the transmission of transcendental knowledge given by the diksha guru and the siksha guru is anyone who guides others according to the teachings of the diksha guru. Srila Prabhupada is the initiator guru (diksha guru) and his responsible disciples should become the instructor gurus (siksha gurus). The following quotes by Srila Prabhupada clarify. (1) 'The GBC should all be the instructor gurus. I am in the initiator guru, and you should be the instructor guru by teaching what I am teaching and doing what I am doing.' (SPL Aug 4, 1975) (2) 'Sometimes a diksha guru is not present always. Therefore one can take learning, instruction, from an advanced devotee. That is called the siksha guru.' (SPLecture July 4, 1974)

Srila Prabhupada is thus ISKCON's real diksha guru and also the primary siksha guru.

FALSE GURU BUSINESS WILL GO ON, BUT AT LEAST IT MUST BE OUTSIDE ISKCON

Srila Prabhupada's institution is not meant for gurus other than he himself. Those who want to be guru, or feel that is their destiny, they should do so outside of ISKCON so not to disturb Srila Prabhupada's followers in ISKCON nor take advantage of Srila Prabhupada's assets for their own purposes. ISKCON must be reserved exclusively for Srila Prabhupada as the Founder and Living

Acharya, and we do not mind if there are gurus elsewhere, provided they respect Srila Prabhupada's Mission as his mission, and not as theirs. A child may live in his parents home or go out to build his own home, but he must not claim his parents home as his own home, locking his parents up in a back room. This is an offensive mentality, and very disturbing. Reporter: Have the real gurus like yourself ever tried to put a stop to the false gurus—that is, put pressure on them to GURU TRAINER (LEFT) put them out of business, so to speak? SP: No, that is not my purpose. (SSR 2)

DIKSHA GURU TRAINING SCHOOL

Now no one in ISKCON is approved as an initiating diksha guru unless they have first completed the GBC mandated "guru training program," believe it or not! It is called: Seminar on Being a Guru in ISKCON, and is taught by ISKCON guru Prahlanananda Swami, who recently sent out a notice as follows: "I am writing to invite you to participate in ISKCON's "Spiritual Leadership: Being a Guru in ISKCON," this upcoming Feb. 17-20, 2013 in Mayapur. The 4-day seminar covers many pertinent topics, including: Role and Identity of the Guru in ISKCON, Principles of Spiritual/Guru Leadership, Relationship with the ISKCON Institution, Guru-Management Dynamics, Guru-Disciple Relationship, Care of Disciples, Pastoral Skills, Spiritual Health, Peer Association. The Guru Seminar is highly interactive and provides opportunities to share realizations with fellow senior Vaishnavas. It was organized by the GBC Guru Services Committee with the direct input of senior leaders including Bhakticharu Swami, Jayapataka Swami, Radhanatha Swami, Ravindra Svarup prabhu and other senior devotees and educators. As per ISKCON Law this Seminar is mandatory for devotees who take up the service of diksha guru. The GBC also 'highly recommends' it for siksha gurus, senior managers and other ISKCON leaders. The Seminar is open to ISKCON gurus (diksha and siksha), sannyasis, regional directors, temple presidents and other senior leaders who have at least ten years of active service in ISKCON. (References may be required) Prahlanananda Swami, Guru Services Committee Chairman” / ISKCON has become an ecclesiastic institution, a church. What kind of diksha guru must be trained in the skills of being a guru? Sounds like mundane teacher training...

MAKING GURUS BY VOTES? A CRITIQUE ON ISKCON’S GURU VOTE SYSTEM

ISKCON’s present system of supposedly creating new members into the disciplic succession is done via a complex vote approval procedure. With objections from three GBCs or without three GBC endorsements, plus other conditions and votes, and one cannot attain ISKCON guruhood. One must be a party player, line up lots of friends, and placate one’s adversaries. Sort of like the mob or politics. This is how all new initiating gurus since 1987 have been “authorized and certified.” Yet many persons in the general membership as well as in the leadership, perhaps a majority altogether, do not believe this is what Srila Prabhupada wants, or at least is not even a good system. Even Urmila dasi, an approved candidate as the first female diksha guru in ISKCON, vented in recent years on Facebook how the ISKCON guru approval system is not bona fide. She was the 2016 chairman of the GBC’s Shastric Advisory Council, an auxiliary committee meant to determine the verdict of shastra in various philosophical matters. Yet, this concocted guru approval system in ISKCON is the best that ISKCON has been able to come up with. They have failed to produce any explanation for why this system was decided upon, or what authority it is based upon beyond the GBC’s speculation. It is totally unprecedented and untraditional in Gaudiya Vaishnavism history. Everyone knows that Srila Prabhupada disdained “rubber-stamp” gurus or gurus made by votes. The GBC claims that since they were given the responsibility to be ISKCON’s “ultimate managing authority,” that they could therefore “managerially” create something which is forbidden by Srila Prabhupada and not found anywhere in the shastra. And then the GBC has the gall to criticize the ritvik representative system that Srila Prabhupada introduced, as being unprecedented and untraditional. Talk about hypocrisy. So by falsely interpreting their authority to justify their doing anything they want without any basis in shastra or in Srila Prabhupada’s teachings, and then actually doing exactly what Srila Prabhupada warned not to do, the GBC has lost any authority they may have had. ISKCON leadership has deviated so much that it is just a matter of a little time before they are deposed or their hijacked society loses all spiritual potency due to severance from Srila Prabhupada’s mercy. The GBC must be sidelined and removed.

ISKCON GURUS REFER TO A LETTER TO TUSTA KRISHNA SWAMI (TKS)

Srila Prabhupada struggled with TKS to follow his instructions and to stay in ISKCON. TKS had joined with the Sai (SiddhaSvarup) group in Hawaii and there was a serious issue of their not following Srila Prabhupada’s principles, such as shaved heads, wearing Vaishnava robes, etc. ISKCON GBCs are fond of quoting a Srila Prabhupada letter to TKS dated Dec. 2, 1975:

“...Every student is expected to become Acharya. Acharya means one who knows the scriptural injunctions and follows them practically in life, and teaches them to his disciples. I have given you sannyasa with the great hope that in my absence you will preach the cult thruout the world and thus become recognized by Krishna as the most sincere servant of the Lord. So I'm very pleased that you have not deviated from the principles I have taught, and thus with power of attorney go on preaching Krishna consciousness, that will make me very happy as it is confirmed in the Guru vastakam- yasya prasadat bhagavata prasadah- just by satisfying your Spiritual Master who is accepted as the bona fide representative of the Lord you satisfy Krishna immediately without any doubt. I am very glad to inform you that Sudama Vipra Maharaja is also now following my principles.[...] Keep trained up very rigidly and then you are bona fide Guru, and you can accept disciples on the same principle. But as a matter of etiquette it is the custom that during the lifetime of your Spiritual master you bring the prospective disciples to him, and in his absence or disappearance you can accept disciples without any limitation. This is the law of disciplic succession. I want to see my disciples become bona fide Spiritual Master and spread Krishna consciousness very widely, that will make me and Krishna very happy.”

However, TKS’s history gives insight and perspective that discourages the rushed conclusion that Srila Prabhupada had authorized all his disciples to become initiating gurus. In another letter just weeks earlier on Nov. 9, 1975 we see: “I am in due receipt of your letter, October 16, 1975, along with the enclosed letters from persons you are recommending for initiation. I have no objection to your recommending these devotees, but whether you are acting as a sannyasi and observing all the rules and regulations and keeping yourself in sannyasi dress? On your confirmation I shall accept all these boys and girls as my disciples. So long as one continues to follow the rules and regulations, he continues to be my disciple wherever he may be.” After Srila Prabhupada departed, TKS operated outside ISKCON, passing away years ago. Sudama Vipra Swami was TKS’s close friend from the Sai group, and both were shaky in following the basic practices, so how would Srila Prabhupada be authorizing them as ready or capable of initiating their own disciples? The Dec. 2, 1975 letter was Srila Prabhupada’s tactful, transcendental maneuver to secure his disciple’s further progress. TKS was audaciously asking if he could initiate disciples, being ambitious, and Srila Prabhupada expertly handled the situation by encouraging his preaching to become purified of personal ambitions and to postpone the question of becoming guru. No one else had the nerve to ask this of Srila Prabhupada in 1975: Can I initiate my own disciples? But since TKS had done well in NZ, just as Sudama Vipra Swami had in the Philippines, the primary concern was to keep them preaching, if they wanted to be gurus. Srila Prabhupada did not outrightly forbid their idea, yet neither did he give them the necessary explicit order to be a guru. He simply said he had to wait and that he hoped he would become qualified to take disciples. We must always be cautious regarding Srila Prabhupada’s letters which addressed an individual devotee’s specific circumstances, and that those instructions cannot be whimsically applied universally, and this letter is of that nature; it applied to TKS’s specific and unique circumstances. Many SP letters gave unique instructions clearly for that devotee only. The examples are numerous, well-known, and easily appreciated in that way (unless one is the dishonest GBC).

Years earlier, Dec. 14, 1972, Srila Prabhupada had also advised Tusta Krishna about becoming a guru: “As for your next question, can only a few pure devotees deliver others, anyone, if he is a pure devotee he can deliver others, he can become spiritual master. But unless he is on that platform he should not attempt it. Then both of them will to go to hell, like blind men leading the blind.” Note that Srila Prabhupada is warning him not to go to hell by falsely assuming the post of initiating guru, something the GBC does not mention. Further to Tusta Krishna Swami’s history, he whimsically closed the Brisbane temple, and he influenced the Auckland temple with Siddhasvarupa’s “philosophy.” He always remained very close to Siddhasvarupa. On hearing of Siddha’s rift and separation from ISKCON in 1973, Tusta Krishna gave the Auckland devotees the choice of staying or joining him in Hawaii. Abandoning Auckland and the deities there, all but two devotees walked out and help was urgently sent from Australia. Srila Prabhupada wrote to Tusta Krishna and Beharilal das:

“News has come to me that you want to sell our temple to somebody else, which I cannot believe. Even that you have been in charge of the New Zealand centre, now you have taken it as your personal property and you have demanded from Madhudvisa Swami the price of the temple. This is all amazing to me. I do not know what is your decision. Tusta Krishna has already left and is in Hawaii with Siddhasvarup Ananda Maharaja. I never believed that again you would go back to your old habits, giving up the Krishna consciousness movement in a whimsical way. Please do not make this mistake. It will be a great calamity for you. If you have any misunderstanding with the GBC member, you should have let me know. But I do not think that there could be any misunderstanding. When I was last at the New Zealand temple, everything was so peaceful and hopeful. Now, all of a sudden, you have changed that program and taken to your original ways? I am so much aggrieved to receive all this news. For Krishna’s sake, do not do these things. I request Tusta Krishna to go back to NZ and take charge of your duties, and when I shall go to Australia, I shall go to New Zealand and see things personally. Please do not leave Krishna. You will not be happy. That is my request.” (SPL Oct. 15, 1973)

Four days later, Srila Prabhupada sent a telegram to Tusta Krishna Swami in Hawaii: “Refer my letter dated Oct. 15 care of Sudama copy being sent under separate post. Do not sell New Zealand temple to others. If you want money I shall pay to you, rest assured -Bhaktivedanta Swami” Brisbane and Auckland were not the only centres disturbed by what was called “The Big Split.” Devotees had also left the Melbourne and Sydney temples, going to Hawaii or practicing spiritual life outside and separate from the temples. It was a difficult and confusing time for all the devotees. Many had affection for those that had left; others found it hard to discriminate between who was right and who was wrong. "We had to actually take a firm position and say that what SiddhaSvarup had done was wrong. Some devotees argued: 'Well, SiddhaSvarup left the temple, so why do I have to stay in such a disciplined atmosphere? Why can't I go? I can keep my Krishna consciousness out on the beach, like Siddha does.' So we had to draw a line and say: 'No, that's not what Prabhupada wants. He wants you to stay and look after the temple. He wants you to do these disciplined daily activities, to go out on the street and chant Hare Krishna and sell his books.' Some would counter, 'Well Siddha and his followers don't have to do it, so why should we?' We had to make a distinction and make it quite clear what Prabhupada actually wanted." (Madhudvisa das, in The Great Transcendental Adventure, Kurma das)

On Oct. 29, 1973 TKS telegraphed Srila Prabhupada: "...Received your letter and telegram today. Temple will not be sold. All papers to be signed over to you. Never intended to claim property or money as my own. Detailed letter follows. Please forgive any confusion or anxiety my blunders have caused you -Your servant, Tusta" In early Nov. 1973, Srila Prabhupada replied: "...your telegram has been redirected from Bombay. I am so much pleased to read it because I know that all of you, SiddhaSvarup Maharaja, Sudama Vipra Maharaja and yourself are all good souls and so I also know that Gaurasundara is also of this same level, but I do not know why this disruption has taken place. If there is any misunderstanding with the GBC men, that can be readjusted by mutual understanding. I wanted to see you all to mitigate this misunderstanding [...] So kindly take my word and do not leave our Society. If you cannot agree with the GBC, I can take up your matter personally and do the needful. I love you all very much and if you go away and stay independently, that will be a great shock for me. I want to meet you all together. Let me know where I shall go to meet you." Srila Prabhupada also wrote Sudama Vipra Swami: "So long I am living I wish you all be strictly under my guidance without any fratricidal disagreement. There is very good scope for preaching [...], so let us do it conjointly."

Srila Prabhupada would not tolerate what he called the "concocted ideas" of no book distribution or street sankirtan, not following the disciplined temple life, and slackness in the basic regulations. Srila Prabhupada had wrote to Beharilal das (Dec. 13, 1973) with stern disapproval of their proposed alternative to the disciplined ISKCON temple environment: "I have not received any reply from Tusta Krsna Swami to my letters. I do not know why he has left New Zealand. In Hawaii a great wrong doing has been done by Gaurasundara and Siddha-svarupa. They sold the temple and went away with all the money without taking any permission from me. It is a fall down on their parts. They have done the wrong thing. You should not go to Hawaii to join them. Stay in New Zealand and work cooperatively with Madhudvisa Swami. The 'communal form of Krishna consciousness' which you mentioned is not approved by me. It is all concoction. My guru maharaja condemned this practice. You must stay together and vigorously preach the Krishna consciousness philosophy to the world. That is the real spirit of Lord Chaitanya's movement. Do not fall victim to this sentimentalism. That is not our dharma." In Dec. 1973 SP wrote Madhudvisa S: "I have not heard from Tusta Krishna or SiddhaSvarup Goswamis, nor do I know anything of their plans to return to New Zealand. Try to convince them to return to our society and work co-operatively; that they have gone away is not a good thing and it is a deviation from our line of parampara. Rather, avoiding fault-finding and anarchy, they should keep our standards and work maturely and not cause factions and splitting. I am not at all pleased at what they have done. But if they return, let us forget what has happened and go forward. As sannyasins, they may preach and you may manage affairs. That will be very nice. We have got so much vital spiritual knowledge to distribute to the public, and they are in desperate need of it. The whole world is going to hell and everyone is suffering. In light of this, how can we argue amongst one another and neglect our responsibility for reclaiming these fallen souls for going back to home, back to Godhead."

Further, Srila Prabhupada has made a clear and strict requirement that his disciple must receive a specific order from him before undertaking the initiating of their own disciples (an order that Srila Prabhupada never gave to any nor all of his disciples). The Dec. 2, 1975 letter does not order anyone, TKS included, to accept disciples. This seems pretty obvious, but the GBC trots out these letters as though they were a blanket approval to all Srila Prabhupada disciples to become an initiating guru after Srila Prabhupada departed. Srila Prabhupada may have wanted and hoped his disciples would become qualified as initiating spiritual masters, but he never explicitly approved any of them as such, and without an order, they are unauthorized to do so. Srila Prabhupada agreed when Tamal in April 1977 told him that none of his disciples were qualified to be guru. In 1974, TKS left ISKCON again, and then came back. He was unsteady and Srila Prabhupada tried to encourage him by all means he could, including the lure of becoming a spiritual master later. But preaching was paramount. Feb. 2, 1975 Srila Prabhupada again wrote TKS about following the basic program: “Make sure that you keep the whole program pure by carefully following all of the rules and regulations that I have given, rising early, attending mangala arati and holding classes, chanting 16 rounds daily, observing the four basic principles, no intoxication, meat-eating, etc. Then everything will be a great success.” Until he passed away around 2000 or so, TKS preached vigorously and successfully in many parts of the world. Obviously confused, he offered prayers to his “two Prabhupadas”- Bhaktivedanta Swami and SiddhaSvarupananda Swami, who calls himself “Jagat Guru” and a diksha guru.

CHAPTER 186: THERE WAS NO ORDER FOR GURUS

(1) “Try to understand. Don't go very speedily. A guru can become guru when he's ordered by his guru. That's all. Otherwise nobody can become guru.” (SP Lecture Oct. 28, 1975) (2) “Our mission is to serve bhakta-visesa and live with devotees. Not that you take the place of the guru. That is nonsense, very dangerous. Then everything will be spoiled. As soon as you become ambitious to take the place of guru—gurusu nara-matih. That is the material disease.” (SP Conv Apr. 20, 1977) (3) “A lie can travel halfway around the world while the truth is putting on its shoes.” (Mark Twain)

In the Hare Krishna Movement, even 45 years after Srila Prabhupada's departure, there remains a huge number of devotees still ignorant of the most basic facts of ISKCON history. The fact is there was no appointment of initiating gurus by Srila Prabhupada, and the zonal acharya's claims of being appointed was a big lie. There was only the July 9 Order, appointing officiating representatives to initiate on Srila Prabhupada's behalf, “henceforward.” Aside from the debate over temporary or permanent ritviks, the fact is there was never any appointment or order for gurus to take their own disciples. The GBC admits they lied about this. So, if they lied about something so major... how can they be trusted to tell the truth about anything else?

Satsvarupa Maharaja wrote to Giriraja Swami (Remembering Srila Prabhupada, p. 15, 1979): “Yes, we gave as many references to the shastra as possible, but ultimately the most convincing consideration was that the gurus were appointed by Srila Prabhupada... Of course, you are making the point that the Godbrothers can view the new guru according to impartial judgement based on the scripture... however, I want to point out that the guru's appointment by Srila Prabhupada is absolute; it is not a matter of rank. No. He is actually guru by virtue of his appointment... Prabhupada's selection is not printed in his books, but it is a demonstration of his personal instruction, and is absolute. This appointment is all-crucial. If you seek to undermine it from the books, you are undermining Srila Prabhupada. If they (the devotees) see senior men turning to the scriptures to doubt whether the guru is bona fide... then the demons will find room to enter.” But this was all a huge bald-faced lie.

By the end of the hellish decade of the zonal acharyas (1978-1987), ISKCON had undergone a so-called reform of its guru system. The GBC, spurred by a general revolt of the middle managers of temple presidents and older devotees, admitted that there was no appointment of initiating gurus by Srila Prabhupada. The hoax was exposed. The GBC later apologized for the zonal acharya era, but in 1987 another system of gurus was instituted, another one that also was not given by Srila Prabhupada. Saying that Srila Prabhupada had not made full arrangements for the future of the disciplic succession and had left the matter to them to decide, the GBC invented a new vote approval process for initiating gurus. That system is still in effect today.

A widespread misunderstanding amongst devotees is that the zonal gurus simply abused their positions and this caused havoc in ISKCON. Actually it was their lie of being appointed as successor acharyas that created havoc in ISKCON. E.g., in Unalloyed Devotion by Yamuna dasi, we see this misunderstanding (Vol. 2, p. 100): “Just as Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati Thakura did not name a successor, but rather asked for a Governing Board to manage the Gaudiya Math, so similarly Srila Prabhupada, with a GBC already in place, initially named eleven disciples to give mantra, or diksha, initiation after his manifest presence. Some of the gurus were uncomfortable in the role of accepting worship on the level of Srila Prabhupada, and even openly expressed it. Yet others, more assertive and assured of their position, overruled the ambivalent gurus, and the rest is history... this seemingly simple instruction of Srila Prabhupada metamorphosed into a mandate for an extravaganza of abuse of power.” Even the esteemed Yamuna dasi has grossly misunderstood ISKCON history.

Many devotees misunderstand that the problem with ISKCON’s post-1977 gurus was that they went overboard and became arrogant, mistreated their Godbrothers and accepted worship beyond what they deserved, etc. The pseudo “reforms” of 1985-7 did nothing to correct the real problem of poisoners and charlatans falsely assuming the post of guru. The simple truth is that the July 9 Order appointed only officiating priests to give initiation on behalf of Srila Prabhupada. Nothing lends support to the false idea that these 11 ritviks were temporary, including from the May 28 conversation. It is necessary to clear up this appointment misunderstanding completely. There was no appointment nor order to become guru.

NOT RUBBER STAMP

SP: What is the use of producing some rascal guru? TAMAL: Well, I have studied myself and all of your disciples, and it's clear fact that we are all conditioned souls, so we cannot be guru. Maybe one day it may be possible... SP: Hm. TAMAL: ...but not now. SP: Yes. I shall produce some gurus. I shall say who is guru, 'Now you become acharya. You become authorized.' I am waiting for that. You become, all, acharya. I retire completely. But the training must be complete. TAMAL: The process of purification must be there. SP: Oh, yes, must be there. Chaitanya Mahaprabhu wants that. Amara ajnaya guru hana. "You become guru." (laughs) But be qualified. Little thing, strictly follower... TAMAL: Not rubber stamp. SP: Then you'll not be effective. You can cheat, but it will not be effective. Just see our Gaudiya Matha. Everyone wanted to become guru, and a small temple and "guru." (SPConv Apr. 22, 1977) Bhavananda cited Srila Prabhupada saying in May 1977 “You are all children. None of you has any intelligence.” And Bhavananda admitted to Srila Prabhupada on Oct. 26, 1977: “We have not grown that much... We're still children.” So, none were capable or qualified to initiate disciples.

Not only did the GBC approve the zonal acharyas as diksha gurus and permit their extravagant worship, they also committed another huge deviation in 1978 when they ruled that guru candidates needed a 3/4 vote of approval. Srila Prabhupada called such a guru authorized by an ecclesiastical body a “rubber-stamp” guru. He explained, “Mundane votes have no jurisdiction to elect a Vaishnava acharya. A Vaishnava acharya is self-effulgent, and there is no need for any court judgment. A false acharya may try to override a Vaishnava by a high-court decision, but Bhaktivinoda Thakura [father of Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati] says that he is nothing but a disciple of Kali-yuga.” [CC Mad 1.220 purport] Also there is this: “My Guru Maharaja... requested his disciples to form a strong Governing body for preaching the cult of Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. He never recommended anyone to be acharya of the Gaudiya Math... Sridhara Maharaja and his two associate gentlemen unauthorizedly selected one acharya and later it proved a failure. The result is now everyone is claiming to be acharya even though they may be kanistha adhikari with no ability to preach. In some of the camps the acharya is being changed three times a year. Therefore we may not commit the same mistake in our ISKCON camp.” (SPL Rupanuga Apr. 28, 1974) Initiating gurus are not made by the farce of a voting system.

TESTIMONIES THAT THERE WAS NO APPOINTMENT OF GURUS

ONE: At Srila Prabhupada’s funeral ceremonies in Vrindaban on Nov. 17, 1977, SiddhaSvarupananda Swami was asked by Hrdayananda Swami to speak. Although reluctant to do so, he agreed. Puskara das: “I was in Vrindaban at Srila Prabhupada’s funeral festival 5 days after Srila Prabhupada left the planet. ISKCON big shots spoke in the Krishna-Balarama Mandir. I heard Hrdayananda speaking with Siddha, imploring him to also speak. Siddha kept repeating, “They don’t want to hear what I will say.” But Hrdayananda persisted and convinced him to speak to the assembly of devotees. Siddha-Svarupa sat down on the speaker’s cushion and there was dead silence. ...Siddha sat in a lotus posture intensely focused and riveted with brow knit for about a minute before saying anything. When he finally spoke, he right-off stated, ‘Now that Srila Prabhupada is no longer here, all disciples have become guru. Srila Prabhupada did not appoint any particular persons as his chosen successors.’ (Note: At least he understood one thing correctly.)

TWO: In Buffalo, NY, Sept. 3, 1982, Gurukripa das: “Prabhupada did not give any names for diksha guru. He just gave names for initiations to be carried on as they had been in the past. The proof is that his later statements indicated that no one was qualified. Prabhupada never talked these things that all madhyamas should immediately begin initiations. He did not go into detail (on this). There is not one man in this guru thing who can come forward and say that Prabhupada told him directly: ‘Now I want you to become a spiritual master.’ He didn’t tell anybody that. But that is their desire. They wanted this new designation... All of these men were neophytes when His Divine Grace departed... They were so immature. How they could all of a sudden pose themselves to be on an equal level with His Divine Grace? ...Kirtanananda wanted to be guru. Everybody knew that. He came to Hawaii... Prabhupada chastised both him and Hansadutta... This desire to be guru is also a material desire... When he was asked several times how things are going to go on he said, ‘All my disciples will work cooperatively.’ He did not say, ‘All of you are self-realized souls and you can go on and do it...’ He never said, ‘and I appoint these eleven to be your leaders.’ ...Their mood was not to explain. Their mood was deceptive and secretive, even to the other GBCs. I personally tried to say a few words, but the atmosphere was too strong against it. They were saying, ‘Don’t talk about this, it is already decided.’ I didn’t understand. They said that they were appointed... No one asked to see the evidence of the so-called appointment... No one even brought it up. Those who were in the position to benefit didn’t want these things to be brought up. They wanted to do what they wanted to do.

“Since they all had their independent zones, they wanted to go into their own areas and act... Tamal and them were saying that they would get rid of the envious ones by this process. This is nonsense. These men are not free from the modes of nature... They instead put panic into the atmosphere saying that if they didn’t do this whole guru thing, that the whole society would fall apart. But that is not their concern. That is Krishna’s responsibility. Our position is to surrender to the orders of the spiritual master... I never saw these men addicted to the Holy Name. None of them... I don’t remember chanting kirtan with any of these men. I’ve never even seen some of them lead a kirtan... I was living with them. I have known them quite well. None of them had a taste. They say that the GBC is the cumulative successor guru, but it is not a fact. GBC was granted authority only on the basis of Prabhupada’s books... (which) hold the ultimate authority. ...We have seen many, many discrepancies in this GBC in their understanding of shastra. They cannot just claim that anyone who disagrees with them is envious. The cumulative GBC is not infallible. This infallibility concept is bogus. I’ve seen Prabhupada throw out whole GBC decisions... I’ve been in many of these GBC meetings. There is so much politics going on in there, under the table stuff. Arguments, people bored ... to go to lunch... they cannot sit down and chant the Holy Names... They’ve got to have some position. They’ve got to control... They are not self-satisfied... They put their names on the Vaishnava calendar next to the self-realized souls. In order to establish their position, they’ve had to bluff and lie. And they’ve had to chase out anybody who was able to see the light of it... they are totally bewildered regarding what is guru tattva... Tamal refused to go to China. Everything is all watered down... because they are all after this flickering material opulence... There is no question of authoritarian dictatorship.

"The spiritual master must have the qualities of the true guru before he can have the guruvastakam sung to him. Otherwise he is a liar, a bluffer, and a cheat. These men, in private to me, have admitted that they are not on the true platform. Bhagavan, I asked him, 'How can you tell your people that you are a pure devotee? Why don't you tell them what you really are?' He said, 'We cannot tell them that,' indicating that they would all leave if it was so revealed. (They) claim that they are bona fide spiritual masters because their spiritual master has appointed them. Prabhupada never appointed anyone to be diksha guru, sit up on some high seat in Prabhupada's temples, and take worship and allegiance meant for the mahabhagavat. They like to use this word 'appoint.' ...sometimes when they are confronted, they say that they mean that these men were recognized by Prabhupada, that they were fit to be bona fide spiritual masters. But that is their interpretation of the word appointed. Prabhupada asked the GBC if they had any questions... The third question was 'How should initiations go on after your disappearance?' That's when the so-called appointment took place... (and) the conversation in June 1977... But they do not mention a third conversation on Nov. 2, 1977...

"Prabhupada said that all of his disciples will take the legacy. There was no mention of any appointed acharyas. The GBC claims it is the successor to Prabhupada... as the cumulative successor. But Prabhupada has gone nowhere, he is still here... The tendency throughout history of these kinds of people is to create some kind of monopoly after conspiring together. This philosophy that the GBC is the successor is bogus... The GBC oppresses devotees by telling them that they are deviating... if they don't do everything exactly as the GBC dictates. (But) they are (only) managers and spiritual advisors. This Lilamrita especially shows how the GBC, which has approved it, must be rejected. His Divine Grace is compared to a derelict, he's called a doting old man, he is said to be bewildered. They admit that some of their 'appointed' gurus have publicly been exposed as fallen and they rationalize this on the basis that such persons "temporarily lost sight of Krishna." What about Jayatirtha, who was having sex, blowing dope, and taking LSD the whole time they were recognizing him (as guru)? ...giving shelter to and directing back to the spiritual sky... allowed to stay with Jayatirtha, worship him with the Guruvastakam prayers... even (after) they found out about it. It was kept hushed. Ramevara flew to India to try and convince Jayatirtha to stop taking drugs, while back in London, he was still being worshiped on the same altar as Radha and Krishna and all the acharyas. This is the standard of protection afforded by the GBC with their so-called absolute status. So many of these GBC men have publicly been exposed as fallen in the same way, such as... They are conditioned souls. Where does shastra say that a group of men can get together and appoint gurus? Ramesvara did not even chant his rounds after becoming acharya... he could not do it... he also said he did not need to read Prabhupada's books. Bhavananda is enamored with Hollywood and surfs. Tamal stopped book distribution in his zone. Hansadutta drew headlines with his weapons arsenal. They say, 'We are preaching, distributing books.' But you cannot do these things if you had not taken the post of guru? They charge us with not preaching, but they have taken away our facility. They have ostracized us, condemned us. I was with Prabhupada personally very often. There was no particular disciple which he said as being most excellent in his view. No particular disciple Prabhupada specifically gave instructions to (become guru). They say that this movement is run on the basis of GBC authority, but Prabhupada says it is on authority of BGita and SBhag. Now everything has become degenerated in politics, material development, expansion."

THREE: A few others also questioned the legitimacy of the "appointment" of the zonal acharyas, such as SiddhaSvarupa Swami, who was in Mayapur in 1976 when Srila Prabhupada received news that his godbrother Bhakti Vilasa-Tirtha Maharaja had passed away and had appointed a successor in his mission. SiddhaSvarupa, who was in Srila Prabhupada's room, remembered his spiritual master's anger: "Srila Prabhupada always spoke out strongly against this whole business of hereditary spiritual masters, appointed gurus, ecclesiastical acharyas, etc. Never in any of his books or in any of the thousands of lectures he gave will you find condoning the idea that one can become guru by appointment. I was once sitting with him in his room in Mayapur when he received a letter sent out by one so-called acharya of the Gaudiya Math line. The letter said: 'Bhaktisiddhanta neglected to make it clear who the next acharya was supposed to be; therefore, I had to go through the courts and there was so much confusion. But I will not make the same mistake. Therefore, to make things quite clear, I am now designating that my son will be the next acharya.' Srila Prabhupada was furious with this news. Shaking the letter, he exclaimed, 'Appoint! Appoint! Appoint! Acharya is never appointed! He is thinking it is by accident my Guru Maharaja did not appoint a successor? My Guru Maharaja wrote so many thousands of words. If he wanted to appoint a successor, why he could not write these few words: "I appoint so-and-so as the next acharya?" Why he could not write it? He is somehow deficient in some way? No! Acharya is not appointed!' So our own spiritual master, Srila Prabhupada, also refused to follow this materialistic philosophy of appointed acharyas." (ENE, Doktorski, p. 82)

FOUR: In 1999, BV Puri Maharaja, Srila Prabhupada's Godbrother, recorded his memories, stating Srila Prabhupada had made eleven appointments for ritvik only, not for gurus. Puri Maharaja warned Srila Prabhupada that even though they had not been blessed to act as guru after Srila Prabhupada would leave, the ritviks would assume guruship anyways and then "go down." "Here [Vrindaban, late 1977] when Prabhupada was lying [in bed], I said, 'Maharaja, you should survive ten more years.' 'How can I survive?' [Prabhupada replied.] 'You see my pulse.' I saw [his] pulse was not beating. 'Then how can you say that I must stay ten years? I cannot stay ten years.' [I answered], 'Unless you stay there will be no peace and unity among these Westerners. They are very strong heads. They won't unite. After your demise, the institution will be nowhere. At least you must put them in line. They should have some tradition. In India there is some tradition, but in Western countries no tradition.' Then he said, 'What to do? Everything [is] Krishna's will.' And he passed away. Previous to that occasion I asked, 'Maharaja you have established 11 gurus. There is no harmony. This can be no harmony. Guru must be one. You have selected 11 gurus.' He said, 'I have not selected [11 gurus]. I have appointed 11 ritviks.' I said, 'Ritviks, as long as you survive, they are ritviks. After your demise they are gurus. And unless guru blesses a disciple to sit on the throne and continue this service, he cannot survive. He cannot sit then. He must go down. And that sure it is happening now.' Then he said, 'What shall I do now?? ...I have done my duty. Now the rest depends upon the Lord. What can I do?' ...Then he stopped discussion. So it was not under his control in the last moment."

FIVE: Tamal confessed to a huge revelation in Dec. 1980 at Topanga Canyon (see Ch. 68) as follows: "Actually, Prabhupada never appointed any gurus. He didn't appoint eleven gurus. He appointed eleven ritviks. He never appointed them gurus. Myself and the other GBC have done the greatest disservice to this movement the last three years because we interpreted the appointment of ritviks as the appointment of gurus."

THE APPOINTMENT HOAX WAS ALMOST UNIVERSALLY ACCEPTED

So effective was the shamelessly audacious and brash lie that Srila Prabhupada had appointed eleven acharyas that almost everyone fell for the hoax- hook, line, and sinker. Even the academic scholars who had specialized in studies of the Hare Krishna movement were fooled. Their outside, "objective" point of reference was of no assistance in piercing the veil of lies. Longtime ISKCON observer and academic Burke Rochford, Jr. wrote in Hare Krishna in America (p. 222, 1985): "In the months preceding his death, Srila Prabhupada had appointed eleven of his closest disciples to act as initiating gurus for ISKCON... The initiated disciples would then recognize their guru as their spiritual master in the same way that Prabhupada's disciples saw him as their ultimate spiritual authority. Through this arrangement, the time-honored disciplic succession would continue..."

IF NO MORE SANNYASIS IN 1977, THEN WHY APPOINT GURUS IN 1977?

"It is only basic common sense that if Srila Prabhupada stopped giving sannyasa in 1977 because they couldn't even follow the four regulative principles as a sannyasi, then why would he say everybody can become guru or acharya? He said so many are falling down (his so called leaders or 'big guns')- then why would they be given the status of acharya?" (Damaghosh das, 2015) "And this kind of hypocrisy—they have taken sannyasa and mixing with woman. This is not to be allowed. If you want woman you get yourself married, live respectfully. We have no objection. But this hypocrisy should be stopped. There have been so many fallen down. First of all there will be no sannyasi anymore. I have got very bad experience. And at least, we are not going to create new sannyasis. And those who have fallen down, let them marry, live like respectable gentlemen. I have no objection. After all, young man, fallen down—that's all right. It is by nature's way. But marry that girl. That I am insisting from the very beginning, that no friendly liaison. If you want, get one nice... They are, all of them qualified. Get one wife and live like a gentleman. Similarly woman. Live with one husband fastidiously, with children. What is the wrong there? We have so many grihastha devotees. You have got children. [...] Live with husband, wife. There is no restriction for husband and wife. But what is this nonsense that you take sannyasa and make relation with...? This should be completely stopped." (SPConv Jan. 7, 1977)

Srila Prabhupada gave sannyasa only to three select men after he spoke this. Still, the point is, if the devotees were not really even qualified for taking sannyas, how could they be qualified as an initiating guru, which requires a much higher qualification? There was no guru appointment or order.

WHY DID SRILA PRABHUPADA NOT CLEARLY SAY HE WANTED DIKSHA GURUS?

Since he did not want anyone to be diksha guru, he never gave any order for it. Only by stretching quotes and making fallacious arguments does the ISKCON GBC-guru elite try to convince us that Srila Prabhupada wanted initiating "regular" gurus. If Srila Prabhupada actually wanted them, would he not have made it very, very, irrefutably clear, and (as Tamal stated on Dec. 3, 1980) elaborate for days on end about all the details of how it was to work? Exactly where do we see His Divine Grace wanting a system other than the officiating acharya system he spoke of on May 28, 1977? And after the July 9 Order finalized this ritvik representative system, do we see anywhere before his departure that he made any changes to it? If he wanted something else for after he departed, why did he not say so? He could have said many things in his last year, but he did not. He could have stated in clear terms, before he went into samadhi, if he wanted us to: (1) Find a living pure devotee outside of his ISKCON to take shelter of, (2) Wait for a pure devotee to arise in our midst who would begin initiating new devotees, (3) Institute a successor Zonal Acharya regime in ISKCON, or (4) Devise a rubber-stamp, vote-approval process to certify eagerly-volunteering diksha gurus./ But he did not give any of these instructions, and actually he strenuously preached against these things. If anyone has any new information on this, they should bring it forward. All we do know for fact is he set up the ritvik system starting in 1970 and he had it officially instituted just 4 months before he departed. So all we have is the officiating acharya/ ritvik representative system. Who are we to stop others from taking shelter and diksha from Srila Prabhupada? He lives forever. There are many devotees who have accepted this system of ritvik given by His Divine Grace. Only the bogus Gaudiya Math and ISKCON GBC/gurus want this living guru system kept going. We must stop placing words in our Acharya's mouth. Let him speak for himself and we must only listen and follow. Change not one thing. (Vaikunthanath das)

RESTORE THE MISSION MEANS TO RECOGNIZE SRILA PRABHUPADA AS CURRENT LINK

The model of Srila Prabhupada as the current link to the parampara, as being available universally as the transmitter of transcendental knowledge to anyone who follow his instructions, as the diksha guru for whoever would like to accept him, will not need to be accepted by everyone. If some insist on choosing someone other than Srila Prabhupada as their diksha guru, that is their free will to decide. Best wishes, good luck. But those who want and accept Srila Prabhupada as their direct and current link, their choice should be respected and honored. The interference in the free spiritual choices of devotees must end. The shastra, experience of thousands, and siddhanta all support this without doubt. The system of accepting Srila Prabhupada as one's current link to the Vaishnava parampara should be accepted, honored, and respected in ISKCON. As it is, those who relate to Srila Prabhupada as their current and direct link, and who encourage others to do so, are excluded, banned, ostracized, etc. in ISKCON. This is plain wrong. How can Srila Prabhupada be pleased by this? The unauthorised gurus do not want any competition from Srila Prabhupada, and therefore they have struggled for four decades now to keep Srila Prabhupada locked away in a jar in the back closet with the label: WARNING! POISON- DO NOT TAKE- DANGER- GREAT HARM TO SPIRITUAL HEALTH- But those who would interfere with the free delivery of SP's divine mercy and diksha will suffer greatly for this worst of all crimes. They must be removed and cast aside. This will restore the mission.

THERE WAS NO ORDER TO BECOME DIKSHA GURU by Mahesvara das

The ISKCON apologists constantly refer to the quote from Lord Chaitanya about becoming a guru, but they never pay attention to Srila Prabhupada's warning and restriction as follows: SP: Yes. I shall produce some gurus. I shall say who is guru, 'Now you become acharya. You become authorized.' I am waiting for that. You become, all, acharya. I retire completely. But the training must be complete. [...] But be qualified. Little thing, strictly follower... TAMAL: Not rubber stamp. SP: Then you'll not be effective. You can cheat, but it will not be effective. Just see our Gaudiya Matha. Everyone wanted to become guru, and a small temple and "guru."

This was April 1977, and Srila Prabhupada was still waiting for the training to be complete, for the qualifications to manifest before he would say who could be a guru. Meanwhile, "everyone wanted to become guru..." and what kind of guru is he who self-appoints himself and gets a rubber stamp approval from a deviated GBC? Also the ISKCON-ites often will "humbly" admit they are not pure devotees, and say how do we know there are not many pure devotees in ISKCON? This challenge of course means that they may be a pure devotee and who are we to say they are not? This is their bluff. Yes, a guru must be uttama adhikari pure devotee, and maybe they are, and if we risk denouncing them, then we will go to hell, etc. In this way they shut up their critics and they go on pretending to be humble while taking the position of guru which is reserved only for pure devotees. Rascaldom. Even if someone is a pure devotee, still he must await the order from his previous guru to become a guru. SP: Try to understand. Don't go very speedily. A guru can become guru when he's ordered by his guru. That's all. Otherwise nobody can become guru. (SPlecture Oct. 28, 1975)

SP: Chaitanya Mahaprabhu says, "amara ajnaya" [CC Mad 7.128], "On my order." That is the crucial point. One does not become spiritual master by his own whims. That is not spiritual master. He must be ordered by superior authority. Then he's spiritual master." (SPlecture Aug. 3, 1973)

So "on my order" means to wait for that order, not that it has already been given to everyone to become rascal, imitator gurus. Srila Prabhupada said: "Yes. I shall choose some guru. I shall say, 'Now you become acharya.'" However, Srila Prabhupada never did say that any one individual or group of individuals should become diksha guru. If the early quotes where Srila Prabhupada expresses his desires that his disciples will one day become initiating spiritual masters actually constituted the order to do so, as the ISKCON ambitious wannabees claim, then why does Srila Prabhupada say in 1977, just months before his departure, "When I order" and "I shall say" and "I am waiting"? It can only mean that as yet there had not been any order. Srila Prabhupada wanted, and hoped, that he could one day give that order to be guru. But it never happened, and so many have falsely claimed there was an order, and they became unauthorised gurus, and it has not been effective. "Self-made guru cannot be guru. He must be authorized by the bona fide guru. Then he's guru. This is the fact... Similarly, bona fide guru means he must be authorized by the superior guru." (SPlecture Oct. 31. 1972) "One should take initiation from a bona fide spiritual master coming in the disciplic succession, who is authorized by his predecessor spiritual master. This is called diksha-vidhana." (SBhag 4.8.54 purport) SP: "When I order, 'You become guru,' he becomes regular guru. That's all. He becomes disciple of my disciple. That's it." (SPConv May 28, 1977)

"When" means later. The May 28 talks were NOT the order, and no order to become diksha guru was given at any other time either. There was no order, period. Further, we must note that Srila Prabhupada, although sometimes speaking of his disciples becoming a spiritual master and accepting disciples, never used the terms initiating or diksha guru. It is legitimate to consider that Srila Prabhupada was simply encouraging his ambitious disciples that they may become initiating gurus in the future, under certain conditions, of course, but that in the end, he decided otherwise. (END)

DISCIPLES OF ISKCON GURUS ARE REJECTING THEM AND GOING TO SRILA PRABHUPADA

We are discussing how Srila Prabhupada remains the current and direct link to the Gaudiya Vaishnava parampara. He is available to anyone who wishes to follow his instructions and to take diksha, or transcendental knowledge, from him, formalized by the officiating acharya or ritvik representative system that he himself arranged for and set up in stages in ISKCON as early as 1970. As awareness of this truth circulates, we are witnessing an interesting phenomenon whereby disciples are rejecting their ISKCON gurus and taking Srila Prabhupada as their diksha guru instead.

One testimonial: "I am a former disciple of ISKCON guru Bhakti Vikasa Swami. I read The Final Order and I came to accept that Srila Prabhupada never authorized anyone to become diksha gurus. Srila Prabhupada only authorized ritvik acharyas, or priests who initiate on behalf of Srila Prabhupada. My personal experience with Bhakti Vikasa Swami (BVKS) was mostly positive. I attest to the purity of his character; he doesn't associate unnecessarily with women, and has not had any falldowns from the sannyas ashram. He is also quite scholarly and experienced in Vedic culture. We are not attacking his character. But nor can we testify that we believe he is a liberated soul, which is the qualification to act as a diksha guru. How can one untie the knots of illusion of others if they themselves are not fully freed from the ropes of illusion? I also want to make it very clear that I am not doubting the sincerity of BVKS's absolute dedication to Srila Prabhupada. It was his utmost surrender to Srila Prabhupada which originally attracted me to select him as a guru. Another quality of his that I find to be very inspiring is his tremendous enthusiasm for preaching. BVKS has many wonderful qualities, but we feel that he has fallen into the trap of thinking himself a guru, just like so many other senior disciples of Srila Prabhupada. It has been the experience of many former disciples of ISKCON gurus that their ISKCON guru served as an obstacle to their relationship with Srila Prabhupada, rather than help develop that relationship. It is as if the ISKCON guru comes between the devotee and Srila Prabhupada, cutting off the devotee from Srila Prabhupada. Again, I have nothing against BVKS, I have only affection for him. But until he begins to follow Srila Prabhupada's Final Order, which is that he should act as a ritvik acharya, initiating people on behalf of Srila Prabhupada and who are thus considered Srila Prabhupada's disciples and not his own, I cannot risk jeopardizing my relationship with Srila Prabhupada by associating with him. The fact remains that Srila Prabhupada never set up a diksha guru system in ISKCON. He established a ritvik acharya system, with devotees who would act as priests and initiate people to be Srila Prabhupada's disciples.

"Of course ISKCON gurus never teach this part of ISKCON's history. Don't the disciples of all these ISKCON gurus ever stop long enough to ask themselves the question 'Hey, where are all of Srila Prabhupada's disciples and why are most of them not in ISKCON anymore?' The answer to this question is that after Srila Prabhupada departed in 1977, the 11 devotees Srila Prabhupada named to become ritvik acharyas disobeyed Srila Prabhupada and made themselves into diksha gurus. In other words, they stole new devotees from Srila Prabhupada and made them into their own disciples. For this offense against Srila Prabhupada, most of the original 11 fell down into scandalous behavior, while others deviated philosophically, or both. Any disciple of Srila Prabhupada who protested against these unauthorised gurus were kicked out of ISKCON, or even murdered sometimes. Naturally, most Srila Prabhupada disciples left ISKCON. This deviation of becoming a diksha guru instead of becoming a ritvik acharya, which is what Srila Prabhupada ordered, has nearly totally destroyed the Hare Krishna movement. The only thing that can unite the devotees again is if everyone again centers around Srila Prabhupada's lotus feet, and all of the ISKCON gurus surrender their so called disciples back to Srila Prabhupada's lotus feet. This is the only hope." (Caitanya das, Jan. 7, 2010)

SRILA PRABHUPADA NEVER APPOINTED ACHARYAS (By Yasodanandana Das)

(1) PRABHUPADA SAID HIS GURU MAHARAJA NEVER APPOINTED ANYBODY AS ACHARYA: "...They wanted to create artificially somebody acharya..." Note: The ISKCON GBC artificially created 11 acharyas in March of 1978. If Srila Prabhupada wanted to appoint 11 diksha-gurus, why did he not directly say? (2) "HE SAID SO MANY THINGS, AND THIS POINT HE MISSED? THE REAL POINT?" "...and they insist upon it. They declared some unfit person to become..." (SPConv Aug. 16, 1976) Note: Similarly Srila Prabhupada said so many things in the last few months of 1977, and the real point he missed? The GBC misunderstood and misrepresented to the ISKCON devotees that 11 had been "appointed" as acharyas. And they insisted upon it. And they declared some unfit persons to become acharyas. If Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati did not appoint anyone as acharya [or diksha guru], how can we think that Srila Prabhupada would appoint one acharya or a group of acharyas for his mission, in direct contradiction of his criticism of this whole concept?

(3) BHAKTISIDDHANTA SARASVATI THAKURA NEVER NOMINATED "ANY ACHARYA" AFTER HIM: "...I have also read specifically your articles on the matter of acharyas, wherein on the 14th paragraph I see the acharya shall be entitled to nominate in writing his successive acharya. But we do not find any record where our Srila Prabhupada (Bhaktisiddhanta) nominated any acharya after Him. Different persons have interpreted on this point, and everyone of our God brothers are acting as acharya, so this is a controversial point which I do not wish to enter into while we are proposing for cooperation..." (SPL Swami Bhagavata Maharaja Aug. 21, 1969) Note: There is no record Srila Prabhupada "nominated any acharya after him." (4) SRILA PRABHUPADA ON OBEDIENCE: "I may say many things to you, but when I say something directly to you, you do it. Your first duty is to do that, you cannot argue -'Sir, you said to me do like this before', no that is not your duty, what I say to you now you do it, that is obedience you cannot argue." (SPLecture Apr. 14, 1975) (5) GURU CANNOT BE SELF-MADE: GURU MUST BE AUTHORIZED. "Guru cannot be self-made. No. There is no such single instance throughout the whole Vedic literature. And nowadays, so many rascals, they are becoming guru without any authority. That is not guru. You must be authorised. Evam parampara-praptam imam ra... As soon as the parampara is....kalena yogo nasta parantapa, immediately finished. The spiritual potency finished. You can dress like a guru, you can talk big, big words, but it will never be effective." (SPLecture Feb. 27, 1977) (6) GURU MUST BE AUTHORIZED BY THE BONA FIDE GURU. "Self-made guru cannot be guru. He must be authorized by the bona fide guru. Then he's guru. This is the fact... Similarly; bona fide guru means he must be authorized by the superior guru." (SPLecture Oct. 31, 1972)

(7) GURU MUST BE AUTHORIZED BY HIS PREDECESSOR SPIRITUAL MASTER: "One should take initiation from a bona fide spiritual master coming in the disciplic succession, who is authorised by his predecessor spiritual master. This is called diksha-vidhana." (SBhag 4.8.54 purport) (8) GURU MUST BE ORDERED BY HIS GURU: "A guru can become guru when he's ordered by his guru. That's all. Otherwise nobody can become guru." (SPLecture 1975) "Chaitanya Mahaprabhu says, 'amara ajnaya, On my order.' That is the crucial point. One does not become spiritual master by his own whims. That is not spiritual master. He must be ordered by superior authority. Then he's spiritual master." (SPLecture 1973) (9) RESULT OF GAUDIYA MATHA'S ATTEMPT TO BECOME MORE THAN GURU: "Why this Gaudiya Matha failed? Because they tried to become more than guru. [...] They declared some unfit person to become acharya. Then another man came, then another, acharya, another acharya." (SPConv Aug. 16, 1976) (10) GURU MUST BE ORDERED BY HIS GURU. "A guru can become guru when he is ordered by his guru. That's all. Otherwise nobody can become guru." (SPLecture Oct. 28, 1975) (11) POSITION OF THE ACTUAL GURU: "An actual guru always remains the servant of his own guru and the predecessor acharyas. Attempting to become a guru without one's own guru's order is a materialistic ambition. Accepting followers and circumventing one's own guru is offensive." (My Glorious Master, Bhurijana das, 22-11) (12) POSITION OF GURUS WITHOUT AUTHORITY: "Guru cannot be self-made. No. There is no such single instance throughout the whole Vedic literature. And nowadays, so many rascals, they are becoming guru without any authority. That is not guru. You must be authorised. Evam parampara-praptam imam ra... As soon as the parampara is... kalena yogo nasta parantapa, immediately finished. The spiritual potency finished. You can dress like a guru, you can talk big, big words, but it will never be effective." (SPecture Feb. 27, 1977)

(13) GURU MUST BE AUTHORIZED BY THE BONA FIDE GURU: "Self-made guru cannot be guru. He must be authorized by the bona fide guru. Then he's guru. This is the fact...Similarly; bona fide guru means he must be authorized by the superior guru." (SPecture Oct. 31, 1972) (14) GURU MUST BE AUTHORIZED PERSON: "Therefore guru must be authorized person, not that bhumi-phala-guru. No. I am guru," no. You cannot become guru unless you are agent to draw out the mercy water from the ocean of mercy of Krishna. That is guru. And therefore a guru is not an ordinary person. He is the representative, bona fide representative of Krishna." (SPecture Nov. 30, 1976) (15) GURU CANNOT IMPART INSTRUCTIONS WITHOUT BEING AUTHORIZED: "The schoolmasters in the modern days are paid agents for giving some information, but the spiritual master is not a paid agent. Nor can he impart instruction without being authorized." (SBhag 2.9.43) "A guru can be guru when he is ordered by his guru. That's all. Otherwise nobody can become guru." (SPecture Oct. 28, 1975)

(16) SRILA PRABHUPADA PREDICTS WHAT HAPPENS WHEN THE ACHARYA DISAPPEARS: "Unfortunately, when the acharya disappears, rogues and nondevotees take advantage and immediately begin to introduce unauthorized principles in the name of so-called svamis, yogis, philanthropists..." (SBhag 4.28.48) (17) DO NOT MAKE ADDITION, ALTERATION. RESULTS OF MAKING ADDITIONS & ALTERATIONS: "Many times they give me very great credit that I have done wonderful. Yes, I have done wonderful. But what is the reason? Because I am not a rascal. I speak what Krishna has spoken. That's all. Very easy. Everyone can do that. Not only I. Any of you, you can do this. Simply speak what Krishna has said. That's all. Don't make addition, alteration. Then you become rascal. Immediately you become rascal." (SPecture Aug. 10, 1974) (18) DANGER OF CONCOCTING: "Don't concoct. Don't you sing daily? Don't manufacture ideas. That is dangerous. Ara na koriha mane asa. Chaitanya Mahaprabhu teaches by His example. Guru more murkha dekhi' karila sasana. Chaitanya Mahaprabhu said to Prakashananda Sarasvati that 'My spiritual master saw Me fool number one, so he has chastised Me, that Don't try to read Vedanta; chant Hare Krishna.'" (SPConv) (19) GO TO RIGHT PERSON WHO HAS SEEN. DO NOT MAKE YOUR OWN INTERPRETATION: "Therefore Krishna says, tad viddhi pranipatena pariprasnena sevaya: "One who knows, go and understand from them, from the guru." Don't make your interpretation, rascal. You shall remain always a rascal. Then what is the use of all these verses? If it is so easy to understand Krishna then why Krishna says, tad viddhi pranipatena pariprasnena sevaya: "Then you will understand. Go to the right person who has seen." (SPConv Dec. 10, 1975) (END)

CLAIMS OF A GURU APPOINTMENT (THE BIG LIE AND HOAX)

First, the rascal poisoners and their cohorts made false claims that Srila Prabhupada appointed 11 of them as successor gurus, and they hijacked the organization with the greatest of deceit, lies, pretense, and ambitious tyranny. They posed as absolute gurus but one by one they fell flat on their faces in disgrace. In 1987 the ISKCON GBC-guru elite was deposed in a rebellion by second tier leaders, but by luring the reformers' leaders into the guru club, they managed to retain their guru businesses by sharing the assets of the Acharya. Below we see some of the audacious lies and false claims made from 1978 to 1987. (1) The Process For Carrying Out Srila Prabhupada's Desires For Future Initiations: A paper prepared by the GBC in consultation with higher authorities, issued by GBC Mar. 26, 1978 stated: "The GBC members met together in Vrndavana and prepared a few last questions to put before Srila Prabhupada. [...] Then he said that he would name the initiating gurus later. [...] Then one day in June he gave his secretary the names of 11 disciples who would be initiating the disciples. [...] A delicate situation may arise when in one ISKCON temple there are disciples of different gurus. The natural way to avoid this is for a guru to perform diksha in his own zone. Srila Prabhupada deliberately chose gurus in different parts of the world to arrange for this. [...] A second seat, however a little below Srila Prabhupada's vyasasana, should be given to the initiating guru. [...] Those who are already empowered to initiate will extend the number by their consideration. In this way it will have spiritual characteristics. The 11 picked by His Divine Grace will extend themselves. [...] Now these godbrother's are worshiped by their disciples as genuine spiritual masters. This means for example, that they are to be considered, as stated in the Guruvastakam, as nikunjo-yuno rati keli siddhyai - intimate assistants in the pastimes of Krishna." (2) Tamal wrote a letter to Upananda das Dec. 13, 1978: "The argument that after the departure of the spiritual master anyone of his disciples can give initiation, cannot be applied in the case of Srila Prabhupada who specifically named 11 persons only at first to fulfill this function. These 11 persons were named by Srila Prabhupada in the beginning of July, 1977... These names were dictated to me as I was serving as his secretary, and now he had me write a letter to all the GBC's and Temple Presidents which he also signed as approved on the 9th of July listing their names and defining their function. [...] Thus, we can understand... that Srila Prabhupada clearly appointed 11 successors for initiation. Whatever process may have been followed by past acharyas, Prabhupada chose to appoint. [...] Even after having these facts clearly explained, if some one continues to blaspheme the 11 gurus, their legitimacy, then he blasphemes ISKCON, the spiritual vehicle created by Prabhupada to fulfill his will, and he blasphemes the GBC - the approved driver of the vehicle - [...] he is not a disciple at all. Rather he is the killer of gurudev and his spiritual whereabouts is unknown."

(3) From Tamal's 1984 edition, Servant of the Servant (p. 361): "Since the disappearance of our beloved spiritual master, we have seen such disenchanting persons come forward trying to cast doubt on the legacy left by Srila Prabhupada. When Srila Prabhupada appointed from among his senior disciples eleven persons to continue the process of initiation, and when after their spiritual master's departure those whom he selected assumed their duties by his command, the critics began to bark their discontent. Though they leveled their remarks against the successor gurus, in reality their criticism was aimed at Srila Prabhupada himself. Just as in 1970, the present dissatisfaction is being unabatedly fed by some of his Godbrothers in India. Doubt in Srila Prabhupada's successors is a thin veneer covering the same malicious attempt as was made in 1970 to minimize Prabhupada's position as the founder-acharya of ISKCON. Srila Prabhupada saw this attempt as the greatest danger to his disciples and the Society which he had created, and he acted at once to curb it. In the same light, we who are his faithful followers must defend Prabhupada's successors to protect their disciples and to preserve the unity of ISKCON and the prestige of its founder-acharya. By his letter of June 21, Srila Prabhupada did not merely confirm his own transcendental position as my spiritual master. As he stated, "Any living entity who is conditioned can achieve the perfectional stage of life by the above-mentioned processes and the vivid example is Narada Muni." The critics may argue that appointment alone is not a guarantee that one has actually achieved this perfectional stage of life; Prabhupada might have appointed disciples for lack of anyone better, or hoping that they might one day achieve the desired realization. To such irresponsible criticism we answer a decisive "No!" Srila Prabhupada chose them because they merited his confidence. How do we say so? -by their qualifications in regard to all categories as determined in Srila Prabhupada's own books, the spiritual law books for this age, i.e., that they repeat Krishna's words, received in disciplic succession. Srila Prabhupada conferred his blessings upon these disciples, seeing that they had dedicated themselves heart and soul to assisting him in the preaching mission of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. Thus he considered them to be uttama-adhikari, all highly advanced devotees worthy to be accepted as spiritual masters.) Critics may doubt whether our ISKCON acharyas are actually liberated. Do they know their rasa (liberated relationship) with Krishna, and will they be able to instruct their disciples similarly? But such questions bring one dangerously near the precipice of spiritual calamity. [...] to suggest that Srila Prabhupada was not therefore of the highest liberated realization, not qualified to fully guide his disciples, is preposterous. Srila Prabhupada clearly defines how we should understand the spiritual master's liberated condition. [...] the greatest proof of the bonafidity of Srila Prabhupada's successor acharyas is their new disciples. It is said, phalena paricyate: One is recognized by the results of his actions..."

(4) In a letter from Tamal to Gadai das, June 16, 1982 he again claims the 11 were appointed gurus: "I do not think that there is any problem in accepting the spiritual masters who Srila Prabhupada appointed. [...] The real proof is to see that they are acharya, not simply by appointment, but by actions. Our movement is progressing and growing more and more, at least as much as it was during Srila Prabhupada's time. [...] You have enclosed a clipping from Back To Godhead in which Srila Bhaktipada (Kirtanananda Swami) is advertised as 'Bona fide Spiritual Master.' You say 'this seems a little strange to me.' Would you please explain to me what seems strange? " (5) "During his last months in this world, Srila Prabhupada selected eleven senior disciples to act as initiating gurus who could accept disciples after his disappearance. Thus, now that His Divine Grace has left us and gone to the eternal, spiritual world of Krishna, there shall be not just one leader but numerous gurus to carry on this tradition." (BTG 1978 Vol. 1, p.36)

Feeble Apology with a New Lie and Hoax

In 1991 the ISKCON GBC, through the BTG magazine, made a feeble apology for the excesses of the zonal acharya era. It took them 13 years to finally admit this much. But they never openly, honestly admitted that the GBC had lied about the 11 being appointed by Srila Prabhupada. They just said they should have allowed more devotees into the guru club! Since 1987 their claim and new lie is that Srila Prabhupada gave the GBC full authority, and that the GBC's actions are as if Srila Prabhupada himself did them, and that they have decided that new gurus can be approved through a no-objection vote system. This claim is just as false, empty, and unsubstantiated as their first big lie. (1) "But by the influence of maya, illusion, a different idea soon evolved- that Srila Prabhupada had appointed eleven 'pure devotees' to serve as the only gurus after him. These eleven, the idea went, should each serve as the spiritual master for a geographical 'zone' of the world. This zonal guru system, as it came to be called, prevailed in ISKCON for about ten years, until its falseness became clear [...] we express our heartfelt apologies for contributing to the hurts and wrongs devotees endured when ISKCON diverged from Srila Prabhupada's instructions." (Editor Jayadvaita Swami, BTG #25-1, 1991)

(2) Tamal confessed, Dec. 1980, Topanga Canyon (see Ch. 68): "Actually, Prabhupada never appointed any gurus. He didn't appoint 11 gurus. He appointed 11 ritviks. He never appointed them gurus. Myself and the other GBC have done the greatest disservice to this movement the last 3 years because we interpreted the appointment of ritviks as the appointment of gurus."

Conclusion

Hansadutta offered a still unclaimed $108,000 reward to anyone who could provide proof that Srila Prabhupada had given an order to anyone to become a diksha guru after him, who remains living in the hearts and minds of his loyal followers. He remains the current, direct link to the parampara and fully available as diksha spiritual master via the officiating acharya or ritvik representative system. Only fools dare to take his place and distract others from His Divine Grace. "A foolish person who manufactures his own ways and means through mental speculation and does not recognize the authority of the sages who lay down unimpeachable directions is simply unsuccessful again and again in his attempts. Purport: At the present moment it has become fashionable to disobey the unimpeachable directions given by the ācāryas and liberated souls of the past. Presently people are so fallen that they cannot distinguish between a liberated soul and a conditioned soul. A conditioned soul is hampered by four defects: he is sure to commit mistakes, he is sure to become illusioned, he has a tendency to cheat others, and his senses are imperfect. Consequently we have to take direction from liberated persons. This Kṛṣṇa consciousness movement directly receives instructions from the Supreme Personality of Godhead via persons who are strictly following His instructions. (SBhag 4.18.5)

CHAPTER 187: THE BONA FIDE SPIRITUAL MASTER

The present guru system in ISKCON, which was never authorized by Srila Prabhupada, is just a scam. (1) "...Don't approach the cheater guru, bluffer guru, and be cheated. Stop this business. This has spoiled the whole spiritual atmosphere of the world." (SPConv Mar. 13, 1975) (2) "As for your next question, can only a few pure devotees deliver others, anyone, if he is a pure devotee he can deliver others, he can become spiritual master. But unless he on that platform he should not attempt it. then both of them will to go to hell, like blind men leading the blind." (SPL Tusta Krishna Dec. 14, 1972) (3) "The so-called spiritual master without sense control is certainly the cheater, and the disciple of such a so-called spiritual master is the cheated." (SBhag 2.9.43 purport) (4) "No demigod can perform this act of delivering the conditioned souls, because the demigods themselves are conditioned. A conditioned soul cannot deliver another conditioned soul. Only Krishna or His bona fide representative can deliver him." (NOD Ch. 9) (5) "Another meaning of guna is rope; it is to be understood that the conditioned soul is tightly tied by the ropes of illusion. A man bound by the hands and feet cannot free himself-he must be helped by a person who is unbound. Because the bound cannot help the bound, the rescuer must be liberated. Therefore, only Lord Krishna, or His bona fide representative the spiritual master, can release the conditioned soul." (BGita 7.14 purport) (6) "On the whole, you may know that he is not a liberated person, and therefore, he cannot initiate any person to Krishna consciousness. It requires special spiritual benediction from higher authorities." (SPL Janardana Apr. 26, 1968)

(7) "In other words, the spiritual master must also be well versed and learned so that he may be able to answer all these inquiries from the devotees. Thus one who is not well versed in the authorized scriptures and not able to answer all such relevant inquiries should not pose as a spiritual master for the matter of material gain. It is illegal to become a spiritual master if one is unable to deliver the disciple." (SBhag 2.8.7 purport) (8) "Gosani means gosvami. A person who has full control over the senses and mind is called a gosvami or gosani. One who does not have such control is called a godasa, or a servant of the senses, and cannot become a spiritual master." (CC Adi 7.13 purport) (9) "The subject matter itself is difficult. Therefore ordinary persons or a little advanced person cannot understand it. And unless one is fully aware of Krishna, one cannot become spiritual master." (SPConv Aug. 12, 1976) (10) "You should accept a guru who is infallible. Otherwise it is useless. He accepted guru Krishna because Krishna is infallible. If we accept guru, a bogus guru, then it is no benefit. Guru means Krishna's representative. Guru... Not that everyone can be guru." (SPLecture Oct. 3, 1976)

(11) "Otherwise, don't try to become guru. Impersonalists, half-understood, partial-understood, he cannot become guru. This is the Chaitanya Mahaprabhu's formula. Therefore first of all try to understand Krishna. You will understand in such a way that you can refute all others' argument, all others' opposition. There are so many opposing elements. Then you are guru. Otherwise you cannot become a guru. Guru is not so teeny thing or trifle thing that everyone becomes guru maharaja. No. That is not guru." (SPLecture Jan. 28, 1975) (12) "Acharya, guru, he is completely surrendered to Krishna. He has taken the shelter of Krishna, being completely freed from all material affection. Brahmany upasamasrayam. Everything... Everyone has got some material desire to fulfill, but a guru or acharya has no such business. That is the symptom of acharya. He has no more any material business. [...] He has finished all business of material satisfaction. That is the symptom of acharya. And sabde pare ca nisatam. [SBhag 11.3.21] And he has taken full bath in the ocean of transcendental [...] Tasmad gurun prapadyeta, one should surrender to such spiritual master." (SPConv Jan. 5, 1971) (13) "Help can only be given by a spiritual master like Krishna. Therefore, the conclusion is that a spiritual master who is one hundred percent Krishna conscious is the bona fide spiritual master, for he can solve the problems of life." (BGita 2.8 purport) (14) "In order to attain the highest perfection of life one must approach a bona fide spiritual master coming in the disciplic succession from Lord Krishna Himself. The self-realized spiritual master is able to present the real conclusions of Krishna's instructions in a way that can be understood and executed as applicable to this day and age. This is the special purpose and great need of accepting a bona fide spiritual master. The rare opportunity to approach a bona fide, self-realized spiritual master coming in the authorized chain of disciplic succession is available to everyone today and is indeed intended for everyone in every town and village to take advantage of, owing to the mercy of Sri Krishna Chaitanya Mahaprabhu and [Srila] Prabhupada. Readers should ascertain the philosophical basis of taking shelter of Srila Prabhupada - the current approachable link in the disciplic succession - by adhering to the principles and instructions given in his books. The execution of Srila Prabhupada's discipline will surely elevate one to the perfectional stage of life leading back home, back to Godhead." (Srila Prabhupada's Diksha, Vidura Mahatma das) (15) "A pure devotee of the Lord does not live on any planet of the material sky, nor does he feel any contact with material elements. His so-called material body does not exist, being surcharged with the spiritual current of the Lord's identical interest, and thus he is permanently freed from all contaminations of the sum total of the mahattattva. He is always in the spiritual sky, which he attains by being transcendental to the sevenfold material coverings by the effect of devotional service. The conditioned souls are within the coverings, whereas the liberated soul is far beyond the cover." (SBhag 1.13.55)

WHO CAN BE A DIKSHA GURU? (from ISKM's: "Initiations After 1977")

There are two criteria for a person to become an initiating spiritual master: (1) Possessing the qualification of a first-class devotee (2) Authorization by his spiritual master. Being a pure devotee is the preliminary qualification to become a guru. But that alone does not automatically mean that he becomes a diksha guru. He still needs the authorization of his guru to become a regular diksha guru. Of course, if one is authorized by his guru to become a guru, it is to be understood that he is already a pure devotee because that is the preliminary qualification to become a guru. Let us now revisit the above criteria from the philosophical or scriptural viewpoint. For this we refer to texts from the Vedic literature and the quotes of Srila Prabhupada.

QUALIFICATION OF A DIKSHA GURU: A bona fide spiritual master is a pure, first-class devotee. There are 3 classes of devotees and the spiritual master should be a first-class devotee. The qualifications of first-class devotees are: (1) "The most advanced devotee sees within everything the soul of all souls, the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Sri Krishna. Consequently he sees everything in relation to the Supreme Lord and understands that everything that exists is eternally situated within the Lord." (S Bhag 11.2.45) (2) "A true yogī observes Me in all beings, and also sees every being in Me. Indeed, the self-realized man sees Me everywhere." (BGita 6.29) (3) "As far as the development of faith is concerned, one who is well versed in the literatures of devotional service and has attained the stage of firm faith is called a firstclass person in Krishna consciousness. And in the second class are those who are not very advanced in understanding the devotional scriptures but who automatically have firm faith that Krishna bhakti or service to Kṛṣṇa is the best course and so in good faith have taken it up. Thus they are superior to the third class who have neither perfect knowledge of the scriptures nor good faith but by association and simplicity are trying to follow. The third-class person in Krishna consciousness may fall down, but when one is in the second class or first class, he does not fall down." (BGita 9.3 purport) A bona fide guru never falls down from his devotional position to engage in nondevotional or sinful or materialistic activity. (1) "A sober person who can tolerate the urge to speak, the mind's demands, the actions of anger and the urges of the tongue, belly and genitals is qualified to make disciples all over the world." (NOI 1) (2) "The guru must be situated on the topmost platform of devotional service. There are three classes of devotees, and the guru must be accepted from the topmost class. The first-class devotee is the spiritual master for all kinds of people." (CC Mad 24.330) (3) "When one has attained the topmost position of maha-bhagavata, he is to be accepted as a guru and worshiped exactly like Hari, the Personality of Godhead. Only such a person is eligible to occupy the post of a guru." (CC Mad 24.330 purport) (4) "Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakura has given some practical hints to the effect that an uttama adhikari Vaishnava can be recognized by his ability to convert many fallen souls to Vaishnavism. One should not become a spiritual master unless he has attained the platform of uttama-adhikari. A neophyte Vaishnava or a Vaishnava situated on the intermediate platform can also accept disciples, but such disciples must be on the same platform, and it should be understood that they cannot advance very well toward the ultimate goal of life under his insufficient guidance. Therefore a disciple should be careful to accept an uttama-adhikari as a spiritual master.” (NOI 5 Pt)

AUTHORIZATION OF DIKSHA GURU: Although the spiritual master should be a first-class devotee, it is not that every first-class devotee automatically becomes a spiritual master. He still needs to meet the second criterion- authorization. There are many examples throughout Vedic history of pure devotees who did not become spiritual masters. So a pure devotee is not synonymous with a spiritual master but a bona fide spiritual master should be a pure devotee of Lord Krishna. (1) “On the whole, you may know that he is not a liberated person, and therefore, he cannot initiate any person to Kṛṣṇa consciousness. It requires special spiritual benediction from higher authorities.” (SPL Janardana Apr 26, 1968) (2) “One should take initiation from a bona fide spiritual master coming in the disciplic succession who is authorized by his predecessor spiritual master. This is called diksha-vidhana.” (SBhag 4.8.54) (3) “Try to understand. Don't go very speedily. A guru can become guru when he's ordered by his guru. That's all. Otherwise nobody can become guru.” (Oct. 28, 1975) (END)

THE GURU MUST BE BONA FIDE, ALL OTHERS ARE “USELESS”

Simply because a spiritual seeker places his full faith in a spiritual master will not bring any positive results unless that spiritual master is bona fide, authorized in a fully functioning Vaishnava disciplic succession. Just because one believes a yellow metal to be gold, does not make brass into gold. Regardless of the good intentions of either the student or the guru, if the guru is not bona fide, there will be no success in spiritual advancement. Mistaken belief will not change the fact, and therefore the burden on the seeker to find a truly bona fide guru is very great indeed. (1) “Unless one is initiated by a bona fide Spiritual Master, all his devotional activities are useless. A person who is not properly initiated can descend again into the animal species.” [CC Mad 15.108] (2) “Therefore having a bona fide Spiritual Master and serving him and pleasing him, and getting his mercy is essential. Otherwise there can be no advancement in Krishna consciousness. And unless that spiritual master is a pure devotee of Krishna, he has no potency to give Krishna. He is simply a cheating rascal.” (3) “So, in fact, above all the rules and regulations, and offenses I have mentioned, the most important thing, the essential thing which is required, if you want to come to the stage of purely chanting the Hare Krishna mantra, is, you must have a bona fide Spiritual Master, who is a pure devotee of Krishna. Without having a bona fide Spiritual Master you can chant Hare Krishna for ever, but will not be able to advance, because Krishna does not reveal Himself in this way. He only reveals Himself to those devotees who surrender to and serve and please His pure devotee.” (SPL 1969) (4) “This is religion. [...] If you do not get a qualified guru, then everything is bogus. If you, by good fortune, if you get the association of a guru, qualified hamsa [...] Paramahamsa guru means sannyasi's last stage is paramahamsa. Katicaka, bahudaka, parivrajakacharya, and paramahamsa, these are the different stages... So one must find out a guru who is paramahamsa. Neither katicaka, nor bahudaka, nor parivrajakacharya. Paramahamsa. .... Then our strong desire to enjoy this material world in different way, that will be slackened. That is wanted.” (SPLecture Jan. 11, 1976)

BONA FIDE GURU MUST BE ON THE TOPMOST PLATFORM

Srila Prabhupada again makes it clear that an initiating guru must be an uttama adhikari, not madhyama or kanistha. Repeatedly this simple requirement is found throughout his teachings. (1) “One should not become a spiritual master unless he has attained the platform of uttama-adhikari.” (NOI 5 p. 71) (2) “In the Padma Purana, the characteristics of the guru, the bona fide spiritual master, have been described: [...] The guru must be situated on the topmost platform of devotional service. There are three classes of devotees, and the guru must be accepted from the topmost class... When one has attained the topmost position of maha-bhagavata, he is to be accepted as a guru and worshiped exactly like Hari, the Personality of Godhead. Only such a person is eligible to occupy the post of a guru.” (CC Mad 24.330) (3) “The guru must be situated on the topmost platform of devotional service... When one has attained the topmost position of maha- bhagavat, he is to be accepted as a guru... Only such a person is eligible to occupy the post of guru.” (CC Mad 24.330) purport) (4) "Anyone, if he is a pure devotee he can deliver others; he can become spiritual master. But unless he is on that [uttama-adhikari] platform he should not attempt it. Then both of them [so-called guru and disciple] will to go to hell, like blind men leading the blind." (SPL Tusta-Krishna Dec. 14, 1972) (5) "Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu has therefore advised us, to hear the glories of the Lord from a realized person... Unless one is personally a realized soul in the science of Krishna consciousness, a neophyte should not approach him to hear about the Lord, for this is strictly forbidden by Srila Sanatana Goswami." (SBhag 10.1.4 purport)

SRILA PRABHUPADA IS A MOST EXALTED SPIRITUAL MASTER OF THE WHOLE WORLD

(1) "The Krishna consciousness movement is spreading to enlighten people about their real position, their original relationship with Kṛṣṇa. One requires Krishna's special power in order to be able to do this." (CC Mad 19.114) (2) "Soon there will appear a personality who will preach the holy name all over the world." (Bhaktivinoda Thakur) (3) "Only Lord Chaitanya can take my place. He will take care of the movement." (SPConv Nov. 2, 1977) (4) "His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada is a personality whose greatness defies description. He was and is the Founder-Acharya of ISKCON, a spiritual movement meant to educate all the world about God and our eternal relationship with Him. Srila Prabhupada translated huge volumes of ancient Sanskrit and Bengali literature into English and wrote elaborate commentaries on them while simultaneously directing the creation, expansion, and management of a worldwide spiritual movement for the welfare of all humanity. In his translation and commentary on BGita, SBhag, CC, and NOD, Srila Prabhupada gave us access to the highest and most confidential realizations of Gaudiya Vaishnavism, the esoteric tradition which he so ably represented. In his books, Srila Prabhupada has made himself available to those seeking the priceless jewel of his eternal association. In his transcendental words, he not only delivers himself to the reader but he simultaneously delivers the Supreme Lord Krishna to them, for the Lord always fulfills the desires of His unalloyed devotees. But to taste the kind of bhakti-rasa, or nectar of devotion, that Prabhupada was giving, it is necessary to develop full faith in Guru and Krishna. Despite his greatness, we, as his disciples, were blessed to be able to share an intimate loving relationship with him. Although Prabhupada was directing the activities of thousands of his followers all over the world, he made each person feel that he or she was a recipient of his special attention and love. He recognized our individuality and taught us its true meaning in spiritual terms. While rendering personal service to him, one learned that Srila Prabhupada embodied a standard that was completely spiritual -free from envy, greed, lust and the desire for fame or adoration. His only activity in life was loving Krishna and teaching others to do the same. In spiritual slang he was known as a 'Vaikuntha man'-he was in this world but not of it. He was and is here to take us back to home, back to Godhead. Srila Prabhupada fit the description of a 'nitya-siddha,' i.e., a pure devotee, an eternally liberated soul in the material world (who is here only to serve the Lord's mission). The scope of his activity revealed him as a 'shaktyavesh-avataar' as well, that is to say, he was a living entity who was especially empowered by God. What he accomplished in a few short years ranks as a rare event in human history, the greatest dispensation of Divine Compassion since the advent of Chaitanya Mahaprabhu Himself, some five hundred years ago. The accomplishments of Srila Prabhupada in fulfilling the mission of Lord Chaitanya are unprecedented even when compared with great acharyas of the disciplic succession (i.e., the unbroken line of masters that dates back to antiquity). Those of us who had the fortune to approach his lotus feet received an immeasurable blessing in that we were able to personally witness a great acharya in action, and he allowed us to work with him for the sake of the Lord's mission." (Journey to the Pacific Rim)

TAMAL: He knew. He saw you in your activities. SP: Yes, he said that "Maharaja, you are seeing he is grhastha. He is more than many yogis." He used to say, that boy. (SPConv 1977)

THE BONA FIDE SPIRITUAL MASTER CAN TAKE THE KARMA OF HIS DISCIPLES

Some of the ISKCON gurus say they are just monitor gurus that are giving diksha on behalf of Srila Prabhupada. They say there is no need to be uttama adhikari to be monitor guru; yet still they feel they are the diksha guru (?!) Or they say that Agni in the initiation fire sacrifice takes the karma of their disciple and they only take the karma after initiation if the disciple misbehaves. Srila Prabhupada never said this, and said the initiating guru takes the disciple's karma; this is unfounded. But unauthorised gurus cannot take the karma of their so-called disciples because they have no ability to transfer karma from one to another; this requires very great power and spiritual advancement. With unbona fide gurus, this is just a symbolic pretense only, and the disciple keeps his karma, but loses the opportunity for true spiritual emancipation, probably lots of money, and a lot of valuable time, having been cleverly cheated. ISKCON gurus are, at best, in effect and reality only officiating deputies even though they delude themselves as being diksha gurus. They may give the name, beads, and fire sacrifice but they are unable and unempowered to give real diksha, or the transmission of transcendental knowledge into someone's heart. They can only repeat what Srila Prabhupada has said, and direct their followers to Srila Prabhupada's books. Thus Srila Prabhupada is the living, effective diksha guru even though they insist that they are. Yet, in spite of their delusions, they are only a priest at best. Of course, the great offenses they commit by officially taking Srila Prabhupada's position and distracting/ blocking devotees from direct access to Srila Prabhupada will undermine and destroy the spiritual life of even those who began with some sincerity. One cannot drink poison forever without lethal effect.

(1) "The professions of a qualified brahmana are pathana, pathana, yajana, yajana, dana and pratigraha. The words yajana and yajana mean that a brahmana becomes the priest of the populace for the sake of their elevation. One who accepts the post of spiritual master neutralizes the sinful reactions of the yajamana, the one on whose behalf he performs yajna. Thus the results of the pious acts previously performed by the priest or spiritual master are diminished. Therefore priesthood is not accepted by learned brahmanas. Nevertheless, the greatly learned brahmana Visvarupa became the priest of the demigods because of his profound respect for them." (SBhag 6.7.35 purport) (2) "I have seen what you have written about your protection by my humble self, but that is inevitable when a Spiritual Master accepts somebody as disciple. Krishna says in Bhagavad-gita that He takes charge of a surrendered soul; so much so that Lord Krishna protects His devotee from all his sinful activities in the past. Similarly, the Spiritual Master, when He accepts a disciple and the disciple surrenders unto Him, He has got the responsibility of absorbing the sinful reaction of His disciple's life. This is a great responsibility of the Spiritual Master." (SPL Sept. 19, 1969)

CONCLUSION

Once one understands these two facts: (1) Srila Prabhupada is an authorized, bona fide, self-realized spiritual master and pure devotee of Krishna (2) And he is also still available indefinitely as diksha and siksha guru via his books, followers, deity, photos because of his having arranged for this with the July 9, 1977 Order- then there is no need to disqualify or evaluate anyone else. It is for this reason that the ISKCON elite guru club will not allow anyone to accept Srila Prabhupada as their primary or diksha guru, because if they did, who would want anyone else? They would be out of the diksha guru franchise business. When the almighty Sun rises in the morning, of what use are the lamps and torches that seemed so useful in the night? Thus they vehemently demonize any proposal of accommodation along these lines. The result is that sincere persons must not only search for a so-called spiritual master from amongst a crop of pretenders, but they must also: (1) struggle to overcome the defective and cheating propaganda put out by the corrupt institution of ISKCON, (2) live with meager or even negative results by following such pretenders, (3) deal with the better than 50-50 odds that their guru will be exposed as a fraud. But returning back to home, back to Godhead is never cheap or easily achieved. Sincerity and prayer to Krishna is the price. Krishna will rescue any sincere soul from all maya.

INTRODUCTION

On May 28, 1977 a GBC committee of six met in Srila Prabhupada's Vrindaban room and asked various questions about the future of ISKCON after Srila Prabhupada departs. The brief discussion was for only a few minutes and about Srila Prabhupada's intentions for how initiations should be conducted in his physical absence. Opposing parties both claim this conversation supports their conflicting interpretations, while many take the talks as confusing or ambiguous. The conversation was deliberately withheld from devotees from 1977-86 by the GBC's secret order to Ramevara Swami, who controlled the Bhaktivedanta Archives. Apparently he kept this tape and other documents hidden in his personal office safe. After thoroughly studying many analyses and discussions on the May 28 conversations about initiations in the future, the following simple breakdown as given below should clear up any confusion and most doubts anyone might have had.

"It is important to note that the tape recording of this important conversation was secreted away in the BBT archives for years and was unavailable except to the highest-ranking leaders. When the transcripts were finally made available to the public, there were three or four different versions. Even the tape itself has anomalies that suggest splicing: strange clicks, changes in background noise, changes in voice volume levels, etc." (ENE, Doktorski, p. 25) There are persistent and serious questions as to whether the May 28 tape recording was doctored. There are also differing views about how the May 28 talks relate to later conversations in June, July, and to the July 9 Order. The analysis begins:

TRANSCRIPT OF THE MAY 28 TAPE RECORDING

SATS: Then our next question concerns initiations in the future, particularly at that time when you're no longer with us. We want to know how first and second initiations would be conducted. SP: Yes; I shall recommend some of you. After this is settled up, I shall recommend some of you to act as officiating acharyas. TAMAL: Is that called ritvik-acharya? SP: Ritvik yes. SATS: Then what is the relationship of that person who gives the initiation and the... SP: He's guru. He's guru. SATS: But he does it on your behalf. SP: Yes. That is formality. Because in my presence one should not become guru, so on my behalf, on my order... Amara ajnaya guru haya. Be actually guru, but by my order. SATS: So they may also be considered your disciples. SP: Yes, they are disciples. Why consider? Who? TAMAL: No, he's asking that these ritvik-acharyas, they're officiating, giving diksha. Their... The people who they give diksha to, whose disciple are they? SP: They're his disciple. TAMAL: They're his disciple. SP: Who is initiating. His grand-disciple. [Or: "He is grand-disciple"] Hear for yourself at: [granddisciple.mp3 /http://www.iskcon-truth.com/video-player/granddisciple.mp3] SATS: Yes. TAMAL: That's clear. SATS: Then we have a question concer... SP: When I order, "You become guru," he becomes regular guru. That's all. He becomes disciple of my disciple. That's it.

In Vrindaban on that day were most of the GBC men, including Tamal-Krishna Goswami, Kirtanananda Swami, Satsvarupa dasa Goswami, Bhavananda Goswami, Ramesvara Swami, Jayapataka Swami, Jayatirtha dasa, Bhagavan dasa, Gopal-Krishna Swami, Bhakticharu Swami, Giriraja dasa, Rupanuga dasa, Jagadisa dasa, and Bali-Mardan. Only six (Tamal, Satsvarupa, Rupanuga, 3 more) went to see Srila Prabhupada, Satsvarupa was the spokesman, with the only other person to participate in the initiation discussions being Tamal.

WAS THE MAY 28 TAPE EDITED OR DOCTORED?

In 1997 the GBC commissioned Norman Perle, an audio forensics specialist, to examine a poor quality copy of the May 28 tape and determine if it was edited or tampered with. This was undertaken because so many devotees thought so, and the GBC chairman decided to try to settle the rumors. However, the paltry $500 budget produced only misleading results. (See Ch. 12) The study was useless and verified only the already known "starts and stops," none of which are in the future initiations conversation. Perhaps a future study on the original Archives master tape could determine whether the tape was edited. Perle's report stated there was a high likelihood of editing because he thought the stop-starts were suspicious, but that is how the tapes were recorded at that time, by turning the recorder back on when conversations resumed. The result of Perle's work is devotees now are MORE suspicious of the tape, but for the wrong reasons, thanks to the GBC's shoddy forensics study. The GBC is incompetent. Bottomline is, the tape still needs to be properly examined for tampering/editing.

In the area of the recording about disciples and grand-disciples, there are a number of apparent anomalies, like background noises, volume changes, clicks and a broken, seemingly senseless and awkward flow of words that is disjointed and confusing. One of the most anomalous spots is where Srila Prabhupada says: "Why? ...Consider?" as though it were two separate questions in a very different, high-pitched tone of voice that comes across as strangely unnatural. We must note that this May 28 tape recording was kept hidden from the devotees until it was surreptitiously leaked by someone at the Los Angeles Archives around 1984 to RavindraSvarup das, and that previously many devotees saw various differing transcriptions of the talks, further adding to suspicions. Also, Ramesvara has admitted to editing the Varnashrama Walks 1974 tape and a SBhag purport about sex and women. If he did this twice in other instances, it is very plausible the GBC and Ramesvara spliced or edited the May 28 tape. The GBC also decided to hide their 1978-79 discussions with Sridhar Maharaja. Between 1977-1983 (when the Lilamrita came out) was 6 years, during which the tape could have been edited by a simple splicing and then recopying the edited original. Perhaps the reason it was not publicly released after being altered is that they were unhappy with their amateurish results, in that the tape was now confusing, but at least they were able to move the parts about grand-disciples and disciple of my disciple in a way that suited their purpose somewhat better. This is all conjecture at this point, at least until a professional study of the tape determines the tape's authenticity.

Regardless, even if the tape was doctored, it wasn't done very well, and as it is, it still makes clear that Srila Prabhupada would choose Ritviks to initiate on his behalf after his departure.

After all, isn't that what the clearest part of the conversation says? The later part about grand-disciples and so on is very disjointed, illogically connected to the first part, and laden with the technical anomalies described earlier. The first and last parts of the same conversation appear to contradict each other, and the clearest evidence is in the first part: SATS: Then our next question concerns initiations in the future, particularly at that time when you're no longer with us. We want to know how first and second initiations would be conducted. SP: Yes; I shall recommend some of you. After this is settled up, I shall recommend some of you to act as officiating acharyas. Tellingly, ISKCON apologists ignore this section, and simply quote the words grand-disciple and disciple of my disciple. They do not discuss the context of these words because that would totally undermine their interpretation. Their selective process is dishonesty. But there is a perfectly rational explanation to the second part of the conversation, found in Appendix 17, where confusion arises from a communication disconnect between the conversation participants. It is not a sudden shift of gears by Srila Prabhupada, where he suddenly decides to endorse initiating gurus instead of the ritviks he just a minute before had announced. Overall, May 28 fully supports the case for permanent ritviks ISKCON.

So, while it would be very valuable to determine if the tape had been tampered with, in the meantime the tape, as it is available to us, remains conclusive that Srila Prabhupada would be choosing ritviks to initiate disciples for him as his disciples after his disappearance. This is apparent from the discussions below. However, the devious GBC will continue to pick words out of context, interpret them in isolation, and ignore the rest of the conversation, to justify their false guru system. The words grand-disciple and disciple of my disciple, that the GBC loves to quote, contradicts Srila Prabhupada's announcement of appointing only ritviks. Why does the GBC ignore the first, very clear part of this conversation? As we explore below, there is a very easy remedy to the apparent contradiction, to understand what Srila Prabhupada was actually saying.

There are some arguments against the May 28 tape having been tampered with. Why would the tape have been concealed and kept restricted, unavailable to devotees for so many years, if it was doctored into something that supported the ISKCON unauthorised guru system? (They may have done a poor editing job and so, as additional insurance, kept it hidden anyways.) Also, another GBC who attended the talks, the honest Rupanuga das, confirms that the tape matches how he roughly remembers the conversation. But, even if the tape was doctored, the version we now have still supports the conclusion that Srila Prabhupada was going to choose ritviks to initiate disciples for him after his departure. Also, as we'll see, the officiating ritvik representative initiation system does not depend on the May 28 talks alone (see Ch 189 etc.)

SATSVARUPA ASKS QUESTIONS BASED ON HIS MISUNDERSTANDINGS

Satsvarupa, as seen in the conversation, did not "understand the difference between the initiation ceremony conducted by an officiating ritvik (deputy priest) and the actual initiation itself—the internal, spiritual contract between a qualified and authorized uttama adhikari diksha guru and a sincere disciple. Diksha, or formal initiation into the sampradaya, is commonly regarded as the sacred contract between the guru and the disciple in which the guru accepts the disciple as his student and the disciple accepts the guru as his master. Although diksha occurs in the heart, it is usually (but not always) marked by a ceremonial ritual during which the disciple participates in an agnihotra yajna (fire sacrifice) and makes certain vows." (Alternate Analysis, Doktorski) Srila Prabhupada said: "Initiation is a formality. If you are serious, that is real initiation... My touch is simply a formality. It is your determination. That is initiation." (The Search for the Divine, BTG #49)

Srila Prabhupada had difficulty with Satsvarupa's questions due to his doctrinal misunderstandings, and therefore the answers may seem confusing, but which is due to Satsvarupa's confusion. And, ISKCON apologists take advantage of Satsvarupa's misunderstandings to promote their misinterpretation, namely that Srila Prabhupada wanted disciples to become guru after he left and initiate their own disciples. Many have debated the May 28 talks with numerous interpretations, causing consternation and intellectual fatigue amongst devotees. But the confusion can be easily cleared up with the explanations and discussions below.

INITIATIONS IN THE FUTURE, AFTER SRILA PRABHUPADA LEAVES

Right away the key question is asked: "When you're no longer with us."

SATS: Then our next question concerns initiations in the future, particularly at that time when you're no longer with us. We want to know how first and second initiation would be conducted.

This fully contradicts the GBC position that Srila Prabhupada was choosing some ritvik officiators only until he passed away, and that afterwards they would all become full "regular" gurus. When the hidden appointment conversation was finally leaked in 1984, the guru appointment hoax was exposed. By 1986 the appointment lie was generally accepted, and the GBC then formulated a new explanation: that "everyone understood" (even if there had been no initiating guru appointment) that Srila Prabhupada wanted the ritviks to assume "regular" guru status upon his departure (so the ritviks were only good for 4 months?) But this misinterpretation has no support from anything, much less from the May 28 talks themselves. It is a convenient conjecture based on nothing.

OFFICIATING OR RITVIK ACHARYAS

Srila Prabhupada answered that he would appoint some "officiating acharyas."

SP: Yes. I shall recommend some of you. After this is settled up, I shall recommend some of you to act as officiating acharyas. TAMAL: Is that called ritvik-acharya? SP: Ritvik, yes.

(1) The above exchange establishes beyond doubt: Srila Prabhupada would appoint "officiating acharyas" (also called ritviks) to perform initiations when Srila Prabhupada was not present. (2) And then on July 9, 1977, Srila Prabhupada actually did appoint 11 men to conduct initiations in ISKCON, just as he said on May 28. But the individuals he appointed would only accept disciples on behalf of Srila Prabhupada.

The above facts mean that Srila Prabhupada continues to remain diksha guru after his departure via the use of ritviks. Those opposed to this conclusion are faced with facts above, and need to somehow magically come to an opposite meaning! Srila Prabhupada did NOT even hint at "dikshaguru" nor "acharya," which nullifies ISKCON's idea of successor diksha-gurus accepting their own disciples. Srila Prabhupada says: "officiating acharyas." Tamal immediately followed up with the terminology "ritvik," which was confirmed. Tamal was asked years later where he first heard the terminology "ritvik," and he vaguely said it was somewhere, sometime in South India. This is probably not true. It is highly suspected that Srila Prabhupada discussed ritviks on occasions not long before May 28, but those tapes are unavailable. How would Tamal know of the ritvik concept if he had not heard it from Srila Prabhupada earlier? Tamal equates "officiating acharya" with "ritvik-acharya" which is the second repudiation of the successor diksha-guru scenario in ISKCON. Srila Prabhupada chose to call the post of such a priest as "officiating acharya." In a number of July 1977 letters, Srila Prabhupada referred to "ritvik representative" of the acharya, and he was appointing them as officiating acharyas, not the successor gurus that the GBC claimed in March 1978.

"Satsvarupa asked how initiations should be conducted in the future, particularly after Prabhupada's passing. Prabhupada's answer is straightforward: he would recommend some of his disciples to act as ritviks or deputies. The ritviks do not initiate their own disciples; the ritviks officiate at ceremonies in which the disciple accepts initiation from the actual acharya by proxy. It is clear that in the future after his departure, initiations in ISKCON should continue by ritvik representation. If Prabhupada's leading disciples had been uttama or madhyama-adhikaris, with a sincere, submissive service mentality, the talks might have ended there with this kind of reply: 'Thank you, Srila Prabhupada. Our questions about initiations in the future have been answered. We will follow your orders, for we have no desire to accumulate wealth, nor do we desire beautiful women, men, or boys, nor any number of followers. We only want your service birth after birth.' But this was not the answer the leading disciples wanted to hear. They hoped Srila Prabhupada would have said, 'Well done, my good and faithful servants. I will appoint some of you to be successor acharyas after my departure to carry on the disciplic succession by initiating your own disciples—my grand-disciples—who will worship and obey you just as you did me.' It is safe to say that Srila Prabhupada's disciples were stunned by their spiritual master's order to continue the disciplic succession with officiating ritviks, so they then tried to re-phrase the question to get the answer they wanted to hear." (Alt. Analysis, Doktorski)

WHAT IS THE RELATIONSHIP?

Satsvarupa then asks for some clarification. He and Tamal wanted to know if the new disciples would be their disciples or Srila Prabhupada's disciples. This goes to the heart of the guru controversy.

SATS: Then what is the relationship of that person who gives the initiation and the... SP (interrupting): He's guru. He's guru. SATS: But he does it on your behalf. SP: Yes. ...

Why do they doubt whose disciples they will be? They had foreknowledge of Srila Prabhupada's plans regarding ritviks. Satsvarupa, reading from his list of questions, asks whose disciples will they be? This indicates they were worried if they would get their own disciples. Srila Prabhupada interrupts Satsvarupa for speaking of the ritvik as "that person who gives the initiation," as the ritvik only does the rituals. The real initiation is given by Srila Prabhupada as the diksha guru. The ritvik is merely officiating on behalf of the acharya. Srila Prabhupada immediately noted the error, interrupting, "He's guru. He's guru." ...which meant he himself as the initiator. The initiate is Srila Prabhupada's disciple and the ritvik priest does the formalities.

IN MY PRESENCE

SP: Yes. That is formality. Because in my presence one should not become guru...

This has been widely misinterpreted to lend support to ISKCON's guru system, that since one should not initiate while Srila Prabhupada is present, then they will automatically do so when he departs. This is not logical or honest, and is trickery to justify their concocted guru system. To initiate after his departure still requires the order to be a diksha guru; it is not automatic. That order never was given (Ch. 186). The GBC claims the order was given by "Srila Prabhupada's many instructions to be a guru," but which are properly understood to refer mostly to being a siksha guru. If we just need to wait until the departure to be guru, then why the need for an order? This is twisting the philosophy to suit one's own personal ambitions to be a diksha guru. Srila Prabhupada never said that as soon as I am gone, you can all be initiating gurus. Srila Prabhupada tried to tell them they were not qualified, but they foolishly ventured where angels fear to tread anyway.

"ON MY ORDER" - WHERE IS THE ORDER?

Srila Prabhupada says three times, "On my order" and "But by my order" and "When I order. You become guru." But he did not give any order at any time. Srila Prabhupada is speaking of an order in the future. So, this tape cannot be the "Guru appointment Tape" because he is talking of the future. All instructions up to May 28 were waiting for a later specific order to become initiating guru (which never came). SP: Yes. That is formality. Because in my presence one should not become guru, so on my behalf, on my order... Amara ajnaya guru hana. Be actually guru, but by my order.

Then, later in the conversation, Srila Prabhupada repeats again about the order:

SP: When I order, "You become guru," he becomes regular guru. That's all....

This is the third repudiation of Srila Prabhupada's disciples accepting their own disciples.

Just weeks earlier on April 22, 1977 Tamal admitted to Srila Prabhupada that none of his disciples were qualified to be diksha guru, and Srila Prabhupada agreed, saying, "I am waiting for that." It was the same on May 28. And on May 27, Bhavananda told Srila Prabhupada that some men will try to pose as guru. "Among yourselves, there is no strong man. That is the defect., All like child." (SPConv) The only order given was to be officiating or ritvik acharyas, finalized and memorialized in the July 9, 1977 Order to all GBC's and temple presidents. Yet, ISKCON's misleaders conveniently overlook the three times Srila Prabhupada gave the caution to wait for the order to become a diksha guru: when I order, by my order, on my order. Where is the order of specific authorization as initiating diksha gurus? The numerous quotes produced by ISKCON for becoming diksha guru are rightfully qualified in one of these ways: (1) They refer to acting as a siksha guru, (2) They require waiting for a future order to act as a diksha guru, (3) They express Srila Prabhupada's hopes that his disciples would become qualified in the future so that he could then order.

May 28 Srila Prabhupada does not appoint anyone to become diksha gurus; he only would appoint ritviks. Would Srila Prabhupada say "when I order" if he had already given that order? If Srila Prabhupada had already given the order prior to May 28, 1977, as the GBC claims, then why does Srila Prabhupada now speak about a future order for becoming diksha guru? If he had already given the order to initiate their own disciples, then he would have said something like, "as I have already ordered" or "according to my previous order" or maybe even, "when you think you are qualified." With "when I order," Srila Prabhupada is clear that the order has not yet been given as of May 28. April 22 he had said the same thing: "Yes. I shall choose some guru. I SHALL SAY, 'Now you become acharya. You become authorized.' I am waiting for that. You become all acharya. I retire completely. But the training must be complete." On July 9 he actually did give an order, but (sorry...) it was only for ritvik representatives, not for diksha gurus. After July 9, 1977, Srila Prabhupada gave nothing more to contradict his order for ritviks "henceforward." What is so hard to understand? It is hard for the crooked, but easy for the simple-hearted. "When I order, "You become guru," he becomes regular guru." Clearly there are no disciples of the disciple until the order is given, which was never given.

WHOSE DISCIPLE ARE THEY?

Now we enter the area where the ISKCON leaders have made confusing interpretations.

SATS: So they may also be considered your disciples. SP: Yes, they are disciples. Why consider? Who?

TAMAL: No, he's asking that these ritvik-acharyas, they're officiating, giving diksha. Their... The people who they give diksha to, whose disciple are they?

By saying "So they may also be considered your disciples," Satsvarupa thinks the ritviks will have disciples, and also be Srila Prabhupada's disciples as well, at the same time! Two gurus for one disciple? He is very confused. His earlier question is not clear; "that person who gives the initiation" could mean either the ritvik or Srila Prabhupada himself- he thinks the ritvik is giving the initiation. As the talk continues, it is clear Satsvarupa and Tamal both think the ritvik is the initiation giver, while at the same time, Srila Prabhupada knows it is he himself who gives diksha initiation. It is this dichotomy that causes the confusion throughout the rest of the discussion. The two parties were thinking on different tracks. Therefore we should read the conversation from Srila Prabhupada's point of view and understanding. When he says "He's guru," he is speaking in third person, referring to himself, not the ritvik. A ritvik is an officiator for the real initiator, the acharya, and delivers initiation only as an agent, like a postman working for the postal service. How can a ritvik be the guru or take his own disciples? If he did so, he would not be a ritvik, a priest, but a full guru.

Srila Prabhupada is audibly agitated with Tamal and Satsvarupa's misunderstanding of his answers, and reacts in unusual, staccato words: "Yes, they are disciples. Why consider? Who?" He says, yes, they are disciples, meaning his disciples, as he is speaking from the third person position, asking "why consider?" and "who?"- showing consternation at Satsvarupa's confusion. Even though Srila Prabhupada has already clearly answered the question about "whose disciples are they?"- still his GBC men think the ritviks will have their own disciples, or at least were hoping so. Ritviks or whatever, they wanted their own disciples! The question was already asked ("whose disciple are they?") and Satsvarupa asks it again (are they "your disciples?") Answering in the third person, Srila Prabhupada says they are his disciples, but Satsvarupa misunderstands the answers as is evidenced from his later secretarial notes on the meeting. (see Ch. 84: "The disciples they [ritviks] accept shall be their disciples.") So Srila Prabhupada immediately answers again to the same basic question on the ownership of disciples, and he repeats the answer he has just given (i.e., he is the owner of the disciples). Satsvarupa asked the same question again. "Why consider" they are disciples of both parties? SP wondered who is Satsvarupa talking about: the ritviks or himself (the acharya)?

Tamal and Satsvarupa hoped to catch on tape what they needed to justify their becoming diksha gurus. They wouldn't mind if the new initiates were disciples of both Srila Prabhupada and the ritviks, because as soon as Srila Prabhupada was gone, the disciples would be exclusively theirs. No problem, since the poisoning was underway and with Srila Prabhupada coming 12 days earlier to Vrindaban "to die," they would not have to wait long to get their own disciples. First, Srila Prabhupada clearly said he will choose some ritviks to initiate disciples on his behalf after his departure. Then he says the opposite? No, of course not. Srila Prabhupada knows they are his disciples, while the GBCs hope they will be their disciples. But because their minds are confused about whether the ritvik or the acharya gives the initiation, their prejudiced, preconceived questions are misleading and confusing. They were hoping that "on my behalf" would be symbolic and that the ritvik would have their own disciples, just as any acharya initiates "on behalf" of the disciplic succession. They hoped "on your behalf" would still allow them to keep the disciples for themselves. Clearly they are confusing initiation of transmission of knowledge into the heart with the formalities of initiation.

Then Srila Prabhupada replies to Tamal's misunderstanding, when he repeats the same question which Srila Prabhupada already answered earlier. Three times, and they still did not understand. The GBC apologists say that "He's guru" refers to the ritviks. But ritvik cannot be diksha guru. Why is Srila Prabhupada talking of ritviks if he meant diksha gurus? We note that the first half of the conversation completely contradicts the GBC interpretation and does not fit with their interpreted meaning of the second half. But the GBC never refers to the first half. In other words, they support their arguments by using only the second part of the conversation, out of context, and ignoring the rest. Those given initiation by the ritviks will be Srila Prabhupada's disciples.

TAMAL HIMSELF CLARIFIES WHOSE DISCIPLES THEY WILL BE

ISKCON apologists like to focus on the "Whose disciples will they be?" part of the May 28 conversation because it gives them a way to interpret that Srila Prabhupada was planning to appoint initiating gurus with their own disciples. However, Tamal himself in the Dec. 3, 1980 Topanga Canyon "confessions" said the following (Ch. 68): "Actually Prabhupada never appointed any gurus, he appointed eleven ritviks. He never appointed them gurus. Myself and the other GBC have done the greatest disservice to this movement for the last three years because we interpreted the appointment of ritviks as the appointment of gurus. What actually happened was that Prabhupada mentioned that he might be appointing some ritviks, so the GBC went to Prabhupada, 5 or 6 of us. We asked him, "Srila Prabhupada, after your departure, if we accept disciples, whose disciples will they be, your disciples or mine?" ...So Prabhupada said, "I will appoint so many...", and he started to name them. He made it very clear that they're his disciples. At that point it was very clear in my mind that they were his disciples. ...You cannot show me anything on tape or in writing were Prabhupada says: 'I appoint these eleven as gurus'- it does not exist. Because he never appointed any gurus. This is a myth."

So Tamal himself, leader of ISKCON misleaders, the "intimate personal secretary" of His Divine Grace and the one most privy to what Srila Prabhupada was intending for the future of the movement, spilled the beans on the ISKCON guru hoax. They were appointed only as ritviks, and that's all. All disciples given initiation by ritviks after Srila Prabhupada's departure would be Srila Prabhupada's disciples. There was no order for (or appointment of) diksha gurus. Tamal confirms those initiated would be Srila Prabhupada's disciples.

GRAND-DISCIPLES AND DISCIPLE OF MY DISCIPLE?

Let us keep in mind that the third party usage of "his" by Srila Prabhupada, wherein he has been referring to himself and not to the ritviks, will be consistent through the rest of the conversation.

SP: They're his disciples. [Srila Prabhupada's] TAMAL: They're his disciple. SP: Who is initiating. His grand-disciple. [After he orders] SATS: Yes. TAMAL: That's clear. SATS: Then we have a question concer... SP: When I order, "You become guru," he becomes regular guru. That's all. He becomes disciple of my disciple. That's it.

But where is the order? With no order, there are no grand-disciples. Srila Prabhupada's answer for whose disciples they are, is the person "who is initiating," namely himself, the acharya who is deputing his ritviks to give initiation on his behalf. Srila Prabhupada's answer is in the third person: "They're his disciple." Srila Prabhupada does not say "they are my disciple," and neither does he say, "they are the ritvik's disciple." The "His" in "His grand-disciple" can only refer to Srila Prabhupada, the initiator, giver of diksha, not the ritviks. Srila Prabhupada's use of "His" refers to himself in the third person, as he was also referring to himself when he said "they're his disciples - who is initiating." Those initiated by ritviks will be Srila Prabhupada's disciples until he orders them to act as diksha gurus, and at that time, their disciples will be Srila Prabhupada's grand-disciples. The words "grand-disciple" and "disciple of my disciple" refer to a time after he gives an order to become guru. Only then, after a future order, would Srila Prabhupada have grand-disciples. Srila Prabhupada never ordered any diksha gurus, on May 28, before, or after. The only order was for ritviks on July 9.

"His grand-disciple" is transcribed by the GBC as "He is grand-disciple." But either way, the meaning is the same. The first transcript of May 28th was a 1984 attachment to Ravindra's Svarup's Under My Order, "edited and checked by Jayadvaita Swami," and it stated "His grand-disciple." Then all official transcripts were changed to "He is grand-disciple:" in Conversations (1990), Gurus and Initiation in ISKCON (1995), Disciple of My Disciple (1997), Prabhupada's Order (1998), Prabhupada Vedabase "Folio," (all editions). One who listens to the tape will hear only ONE, not two, words are spoken by Srila Prabhupada as "his," not "he is."

/granddisciple.mp3 /http://www.iskcon-truth.com/video-player/granddisciple.mp3)

When Tamal accepts "They're his disciple," we assume he understands they are Srila Prabhupada's disciples, just as he attested in Dec. 1980. After Srila Prabhupada says, "His grand-disciple," he stops Satsvarupa from changing topics. He continues from "His grand-disciple" with "When I order, 'You become guru,' [then] he becomes regular guru. That's all. He becomes disciple of my disciple." So, grand-disciples come after the order is given for ritviks to become regular gurus. Srila Prabhupada concludes that his disciples can become regular guru and accept their own disciples only when he orders them, meaning he did not yet give the specific order for his disciples to become "regular" diksha gurus and accept their own disciples in ISKCON. Besides, a blanket order from Srila Prabhupada for all to become guru, which never came, would be meaningless, as it bypasses the qualification requirement. As Tamal wrote: "A succession of all is a succession of none." The talks near the end seems awkward and stilted, due to Satsavrupa's and Tamal's misconceptions on whether an officiating ritvik gets his own disciples. Grand-disciples come when Srila Prabhupada gives the order to act as guru, then his disciples have their own disciples. But there was no order.

IF WE REMOVE THE INTERRUPTIONS, THE CONFUSION IS GONE

Confusion dissipates once we understand Srila Prabhupada speaks of himself in the third person, and how the GBCs are on a different wave-length. Only by out-of-context quoting does the GBC fool people. The meaning is more clear without interruptions: "They are his disciples... who is initiating. His grand-disciple... when I order you become guru, he becomes regular guru. That's all. He becomes disciple of my disciple." Paraphrased: "They are my disciples, I am initiating. My grand-disciple will come when I order my disciples to become guru, then they become a regular guru, not just a ritvik. That's all. The initiate becomes disciple of my disciple." Incredibly, why did the GBC never clarify this? Because they wanted it to be vague.

OFFICIATING ACHARYAS BECOME REGULAR GURUS WHEN PRABHUPADA LEAVES?

The ISKCON GBC promoted in 1978-1987 the ludicrous theory that an officiating acharya automatically becomes a diksha guru after Srila Prabhupada's departure, and therefore when Srila Prabhupada was appointing ritviks, he was actually appointing the future successor diksha gurus. Several GBC men said, "It was just understood by everyone." We do not know how they came to "understand" this, but the evidence that matters comes from Srila Prabhupada's instructions, not their wispy understanding with no evidence. The July 9 Order clearly states there that those initiated by these 11 ritviks will be Srila Prabhupada's disciples. There is no mention anywhere of the ritviks initiating their own disciples later or at any time, before or after Srila Prabhupada's departure. The letter only states "HENCEFORWARD." Neither is it stated in the May 28 conversation. In Srila Prabhupada's July 9 Order: "The name of a newly initiated disciple should be sent by the representative who has accepted him or her to Srila Prabhupada, to be included in His Divine Grace's 'Initiated Disciples' book. The newly initiated devotees are disciples of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupad, the above eleven senior devotees acting as His representative."

It is clear Srila Prabhupada wanted initiations to be carried out by "ritviks," not by successor diksha gurus. How can this not be understood? Well, not by Tamal in his The Perils of Succession: "Six months before his own demise, Prabhupada had announced that he would appoint some of his disciples to perform all of the functions of initiating new disciples, as he had become too ill to do so. Those so initiated would still be Prabhupada's disciples, while those who would be initiated after his demise would become his grand-disciples." Amazingly, this is not found in the May 28 talks...

In 1987 the ISKCON misleaders adopted a radically different system for initiations and gurus. Rather than depend on the appointment hoax, they switched to a new strategy- that the GBC can concoct whatever guru system it wants since that is its mandate! However, one who must adjust and change his philosophical positions is admitting they were wrong the first time, so why would they be right the second or third time? The GBC says Srila Prabhupada neglected to make definite arrangements for initiations in the future, and that the ritviks were only a temporary measure, an impossible interpretation of the May 28 and July 9 evidence. They say the GBC is invested with full authority to carry forward the movement, and that they need "living" initiating gurus to continue the disciplic succession. They concocted a system of vote-approved diksha gurus and quietly ratified the remaining members of the original eleven as bona fide, GBC-approved diksha gurus, even though they had lied, cheated, and hoaxed for 10 years that they were appointed by Srila Prabhupada as successor zonal acharyas. How can devotees have any faith in the GBC when they create defective doctrines in such a corrupted manner? Also, 1978-82 the Acharya Board within the GBC was the authority in ISKCON, and not the GBC. When their "gurus" began to deviate, they came to their senses and decided it would be better for all of them if the GBC instead was the supreme ISKCON authority.

Again, their repeated changes betrays their speculative program. Ritviks do not become initiating gurus without an order from the acharya.

ISKCON GBC INTERPRETATION OF MAY 28 TALKS IS DEFECTIVE

In Part 20, Defective Doctrines, the ISKCON policy papers are debunked. Disciple of My Disciple and others are found to be faulty and deviant interpretations by ignoring the need of an order to initiate. How do they reconcile the first half of the conversation where it is absolutely clear that ritviks will initiate for Srila Prabhupada after his departure? Srila Prabhupada did a 180 reversal in the course of 2 minutes? Anyway, the May 28 talks do not alone determine the future course of gurus in the movement because the later July 9 Order is the definitive, final, signed, and concise instruction on the matter. If the May 28 talks never happened, the July 9 Order would be sufficient in itself, and not vice versa. GBC ridiculously uses their May 28 interpretations to qualify the meaning of the July 9 Order. Tamal describes the May 28 talks as “elliptical”: “...it is no wonder the issue has sparked such heated debate. The 'appointment' conversations and correspondence of Prabhupada in the year prior to his demise are sufficiently elliptical to allow various interpretations. Guru improprieties [...] in the 1980s were a confirmation for some that the gurus should be at best no more than proxies. Prabhupada was the actual guru, they argued, and they presented their interpretation of his statements as the warrants to prove their case. But the GBC gave these statements an entirely different reading, one [...] firmly in keeping with the traditional understanding of the principle of disciplic succession, a principle enunciated throughout Prabhupada's teachings.”

Tradition may be the normal default, but Srila Prabhupada gave clear instructions in his July 9 Order for something very specific, regardless of tradition. The GBC overrules Srila Prabhupada's innovative (but not unprecedented) methodology prescribed in the July 9 Order by invoking tradition above acharya. Traditions are made by the acharyas. Acharyas are not made by traditions. Traditional or not, Srila Prabhupada made an officiating acharya or ritvik representative method for future initiations, but this does not suit those who want to become the next acharya. (Ritviks are traditional in the Madhva and Ramanuja lines.) Also Tamal deviously implies that the idea of “proxies” arose in the 1980's due to guru improprieties, deliberately obscuring how the July 9 Order had established ritviks or proxies as Srila Prabhupada's plan which requires no different “reading.”

FINAL PART: THEREFORE I SHALL SELECT SOME OF YOU

After discussing the BBT, Srila Prabhupada suddenly returns to the guru issue to stress a point. It may seem that Prabhupada is telling his disciples, “I shall select some of you to become guru.”

SP: Chaitanya Mahaprabhu says, “amara ajnaya guru hana.” One who can understand the order of Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, he can become guru. Or one who understands his guru's order, the same parampara, he can become guru. And therefore I shall select some of you. (hums)

They desperately wanted to hear Srila Prabhupada tell them that he will select some of them to become guru, and that after he departs, they will initiate their own disciples. But because this passage must be taken in the context of the whole conversation, this interpretation is wrong. Earlier, when Satsvarupa asked about “initiations in the future, particularly at that time when you're no longer with us,” Srila Prabhupada clearly and deliberately replied, “I shall recommend some of you to act as officiating acharyas... Ritvik, yes.” Did Srila Prabhupada change his mind so quickly? Did he suddenly decide that his leading disciples had become uttama-adhikari, self-realized devotees now qualified to become diksha gurus and initiate their own disciples? How could he give two opposing instructions within a few minutes? And what did Srila Prabhupada soon select? He selected 11 men, on July 7-8, as ritvik representatives to initiate for the acharya, Srila Prabhupada. He never selected any initiating regular gurus, nor did he ever give any order to anyone to act as an initiating guru. And just because Srila Prabhupada departed, does not automatically make them diksha gurus. If we think the May 28 talks mean Srila Prabhupada would select regular gurus, then we will be disappointed because it never happened. The answer as to whose disciples will they be, was settled beyond doubt July 9. The GBC interprets differently by using a few words in the May 28 talks to impose their understanding on the July 9 Letter. But the July 9 Order should be used to understand the May 28 talks. The GBC does everything backwards. Like mayavadis, they try to screw out some indirect meaning to suit their idea.

GBC (AND RITVIKS) CAN BE REPLACED

They discuss replacing fallen GBC men. So, if a GBC can be replaced, the same would be true for officiating ritviks because ritviks should also be acharya-like, strict in their standards.

TAMAL: Of course, if someone has a falldown, just like in the past some GBC men have fallen down... SP: He should be replaced. TAMAL: Then he should be replaced. But that's a serious falldown, not some minor discrepancy. SP: They [GBC] must be all ideal, acharya-like... In the beginning we have done [allow unqualified men] for working. Now we should be very cautious. Anyone who is deviating, he can be replaced.

On July 7, Srila Prabhupada, while naming the ritviks, said "Who is nearest." Being replaceable and chosen based on geographic location could never apply to diksha gurus. A ritvik may come and go, but everyone would be receiving diksha from Srila Prabhupada, who never falls down, and no devastating effects would result as if their ritvik fell down. This is confirmed by Gauridas Pandit das who heard Srila Prabhupada speak exactly about this in July 1977: "TKG asked Prabhupada if there could be more ritviks appointed in the future and Srila Prabhupada said, 'Yes, the GBC can elect at Mayapur.'" TKG: 'What if a ritvik falls down?' Prabhupada said, 'Then the GBC can remove.'" The ritviks were not diksha gurus (who never fall down).

INITIATION PROTOCOLS (by Locanananda das (LD), abbreviated, Oct. 4, 2014)

Q: The issue of initiations in ISKCON has divided devotees for several decades and appears to have evolved into a schism. What is your personal perspective on this issue? LD: As president of the Amsterdam temple in 1977, I received the Summary Report of GBC meetings in Vrindaban May 27-29, 1977 where only two of the three questions Srila Prabhupada answered on May 28th were included, and the answer to the third question about future initiations was not. A few weeks later, I received a copy of the July 9th letter explaining the new initiation protocols. It didn't seem as if much had changed. Initiations would resume despite Srila Prabhupada's ongoing illness. The letter also addressed the selection of "ritvik" representatives of the acharya and referred to the May 28 meeting with Srila Prabhupada, but there was no explanation how the two were connected. We were in the dark for years as to what instructions Srila Prabhupada had actually given the GBC as a mandate for future initiations. Q: Would you say it was a cover-up and hijacking of the movement? LD: There is no question, vital information was withheld from the devotees that was critical to the future of our society. But even after the transcript of the May 28, 1977 conversation was released in 1985, Srila Prabhupada's intentions were still not understood, and everything was subject to interpretation. Rather than carefully analyze the actual words of the spiritual master spoken on May 28, which was unavailable anyway, the devotees who sought reform in the mid-80's did so on the basis of general instructions in Srila Prabhupada's books. It is a subtle point, but Srila Prabhupada did not manage the Society through his books. He managed through letters and conversations with the leaders that addressed specific management issues. Also, on occasion, so certain standard management procedures were followed everywhere, Srila Prabhupada would have a letter sent out to all of the centers stating a policy that he wanted to introduce globally, such as the July 9, 1977 letter. It is noted His Divine Grace does not mention the GBC in his books, even though the GBC acts as the primary instrument for the execution of his will by overseeing the management of all ISKCON operations. The question of how initiations would be conducted when His Divine Grace would no longer be present was basically a management issue, and the answer is not to be explicitly found in his books, although his books can be used to philosophically substantiate his managerial directive. So, we are looking for his ISKCON-specific instructions concerning future initiations, and they can be found clearly stated in the May 28 discussion with the GBC. Q: What were Srila Prabhupada's words and intentions in the May 28 conversation?

LD: That day, there were 19 GBCs in Vrindaban. To ask the most delicate questions, a six-man committee of original 1970 GBCs went before Srila Prabhupada. The first question was about GBC members and then: “Then our next question concerns initiations in the future, particularly at that time when you are no longer with us. We want to know how first and second initiations would be conducted.” Srila Prabhupada replied immediately, directly and succinctly: “Yes. I shall recommend some of you. After this is settled up, I shall recommend some of you to act as officiating acharya.” Srila Prabhupada introduced a new term not found in any previous conversation. It described the role of future initiators in ISKCON. I don’t know why the GBC hid this instruction from the devotees. Perhaps it just wasn’t what they wanted to hear. The Summary Report stated that some of the questions the GBC asked Srila Prabhupada would not be answered until later. We now know that to be untrue. He answered all of their questions that day. The initiations question the GBC asked was not included in the Report. Srila Prabhupada’s answer to that question was that when he would no longer be present, initiations would be performed by officiating acharyas selected from among his leading disciples. The leaders never liked that. [...] They have no faith in that instruction. The present GBC thinks it has everything figured out, but as long as they do not accept Srila Prabhupada’s nomenclature, they will be treading water in a sea of speculation. What they need to do is pass a resolution stating that “Henceforward, anyone who initiates in ISKCON will act as an officiating acharya.” These are Srila Prabhupada’s exact words. Srila Prabhupada certainly did not say, “I shall recommend some of you to act as diksha gurus.” Looking at the flow of the May 28 talks, we see the questioners were interested in a specific outcome, that they would be gurus with their own disciples. This blinding ambition kept them from implementing Srila Prabhupada’s order for officiating acharyas, which was divinely inspired announcement. On one hand, His Divine Grace had to arrange for the continuation of initiations in his worldwide movement without violating the law of disciplic succession. He had to account for the management structure already in place with its GBC and temple presidents whose authority he did not wish to subvert. In a letter to Sivananda Jan. 23, 1969, Srila Prabhupada wrote: “The spirit of the disciplic succession may not be changed, but there may be adjustments made to suit the special circumstances.” Never before in recorded history had a Vaishnava acharya introduced the teachings of Vedic culture and the yuga dharma of Sankirtana to every continent, making devotional service available to the entire human society. The ISKCON vehicle he had created was meant to carry his universal message to every town and village as predicted by Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. The process by which millions of converts would be initiated into our Vaishnava sampradaya had to be established without creating factions, keeping Srila Prabhupada in the center as the devotees’ absolute spiritual authority and object of worship. Srila Prabhupada had called for “unity with diversity,” and the two would have to be in balance for ISKCON to remain a cohesive organization based on love and trust, managed under a spirit of cooperation.

Q: How likely is the GBC to adopt the officiating acharya concept? LD: I recently asked a GBC member why they would not use this term, and he said, “it sounds too ritvik.” This is a big problem within ISKCON, the GBC does not take Srila Prabhupada’s words as final. They want to introduce their own idea, their own interpretation, their own method, their own culture. Even if you could provide ten quotes from Srila Prabhupada stating his opinion, they will still refuse to give up their attachment to a false idea. So without external pressure, I don’t see the GBC showing favor to Srila Prabhupada’s recommendation. They are thinking that if it were really that important, he would have mentioned it over and over again. How many times did Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati instruct Srila Prabhupada to take Lord Chaitanya’s teachings to the Western countries? Srila Prabhupada immediately took that instruction and cherished it within his heart as his life’s mission. We must also make his order our life and soul without him having to repeat it 10 times.

Since 1978 the GBC has rejected Srila Prabhupada’s arrangements. What would cause them to have an about-face now? It will only come from external pressure. When the guru reform movement met with the GBC in 1985, they were forced to make adjustments in its initiation protocols. Big Vyasananas, daily guru pujas and honorific titles were out. More gurus were voted in. The field opened up, but still no one thought to act as an officiating acharya. Everyone wanted to be jagad-guru and initiate disciples all over the world. And to this day, as a result of its ever-changing experimental system of initiations, ISKCON continues to suffer the constant dilemma of parallel lines of authority between the temple managers and the initiating gurus. I believe this conflict in authority is the principal reason why people do not live in ISKCON temples but prefer to live outside and visit the temples only on Sunday. They want to avoid conflict. The Prabhupada disciples still in ISKCON had clout. There were many temple presidents, sannyasis and senior men clamoring for change. The GBC was backed into a corner and they had to bend. But who can apply that kind of pressure today? The GBC does not tolerate any opposition from the rank and file. Sannyasis, who are supposed to be independent of that sort of ideological tyranny, cannot object to the deviation lest they lose the right to initiate within ISKCON. How can outside devotees bring about change to ISKCON management?

So, on behalf of Srila Prabhupada, we want to know who authorized the GBC to reject his arrangement that initiations be performed by officiating acharyas? We have to ask them, “How can you keep Srila Prabhupada central as everyone’s object of service, worship and meditation when you are positioning yourself and accepting worship as though the current link to the disciplic succession? By what right and on whose authority do you claim this special honor?” And further, when did Srila Prabhupada authorize the GBC to introduce new forms of worship in his temples, particularly the worship of new gurus? And if you say it is Vaishnava tradition, we must ask when did Srila Prabhupada authorize the GBC to introduce some tradition other than what he himself had personally authorized? When did Srila Prabhupada suggest that his disciples who did not give diksha could be referred to as “non-guru godbrothers” as the GBC has done. According to Lord Chaitanya’s teachings, any Vaishnava can be seen as guru, not only those who have formally initiated disciples. The GBC concoction of a two-tiered society in which some godbrothers are worshiped as guru and some are not goes against Srila Prabhupada’s order that everyone should treat his godbrothers as “prabhu.”

Q: There is certainly a lot more to be said on the issue of initiations. We could go through the May 28 talks line by line, but any concluding comments for today? LD: Yes. The problem is that today’s leaders, and hence their followers, do not take Srila Prabhupada’s words as absolute. They think they have to confirm what he said with scriptural references and the opinions of previous acharyas and even Vaishnavas from other lines, but that is not the position of the disciple of a spiritual master who is a pure devotee of Krishna. Srila Prabhupada is our leader and if you bury his instructions, you have no authority and no empowerment. The current initiation protocols in ISKCON may appear to be bona fide because they are based upon the GBC’s speculative guru-tattva, but they should agree with Srila Prabhupada’s ISKCON-specific managerial instructions as described above. This principle was discussed with Professor Staal in 1970. His Divine Grace wrote: “We have to accept everything favorable to the circumstances. Rejection of other methods in a particular circumstance does not mean that the rejected ones are not bona fide. But for the time being, taking into consideration the age, time and object, methods are sometimes rejected even though bona fide. We have to test everything by its practical result.” So what is the practical result of the GBC’s three decade experiment, complete with fallen gurus, bogus re-initiations, luxurious life-styles, and all sorts of felonious activity? In one word: devastation. The GBC rejects Srila Prabhupada’s May 28 opening answer on officiating acharyas and jump to his final comment about regular gurus, but you cannot correctly understand the final comment if you reject the opening comment. The whole conversation has to be understood line by line in relation to the original answer. If you reject even one word uttered by the spiritual master, how can you act as a transparent via medium and give diksha on his behalf? So we call upon all devotees to question the GBC and all ISKCON gurus on this point. “If Srila Prabhupada said he would recommend officiating acharyas to conduct initiations when he would no longer be present, why do you choose not to act as an officiating acharya?” Confront them. Let them feel the weight of having ignored the direct order of the founder acharya for four decades. And if they want to discuss guru-tattva, we can do that, too. The guru/disciple relationship means you take the order of the spiritual master as your life and soul and you mold your life so you can always follow his order. So what have you done with the order for officiating acharyas to initiate in ISKCON besides defecate on it? Therefore, we say, “Fie on you for posing as maha-bhagavata acharyas and accepting worship although you were never free of material hankering. And fie on you for covering up Srila Prabhupada’s instructions to all of his disciples concerning future initiations and for thinking Srila Prabhupada’s words are not sacrosanct. And fie on you for allowing so many of your godbrothers to fade away into oblivion because they had no place in the new ISKCON where you must be a GBC/guru clone or ‘yes man’ to survive. Fie unto you!” (END)

ISKCON APOLOGISTS HAVE A VERY WEAK CASE FOR THEIR BOGUS INTERPRETATION

Their arguments are very weak. Even the GBC apologist Jayadvaita Swami agrees it is not clear that disksha gurus are being endorsed in the May 28 talks. And it is the July 9 Order that is the FINAL ORDER on the issue anyway, regardless of May 28 interpretations.

MAY 28 TALKS’ CONFUSION CREATED BY GBC

Considering pronoun, antecedent, and English grammar construction, “he” would make “who is initiating” (Srila Prabhupada) into the initiated, a fatal flaw. And, how can the ritvik have grand-disciples? Another source of confusion is that the transcript does not note that after Srila Prabhupada says “Who is initiating,” he PAUSES before saying, “His grand-disciple,” and then PAUSES again. Here are all the variations of the May 28 transcript over the years:

Sats: So (then) (they) (they'll) (may) also be considered your disciples? SP: Yes, they are disciples, (but) (why) consider ... who (?) Tamal: No. He is asking that these ritvik acharyas, they are officiating, giving diksha, (their)... the people who they give diksha to, whose disciples are they? SP: They are his disciples. Tamal: They are his disciples (?) SP: Who is initiating.

Please note where Srila Prabhupada states: 'They are HIS disciples' and here Srila Prabhupada is speaking in the third person, referring to himself as the INITIATOR. Much confusion arises simply because Tamal and Satsvarupa are thinking that the ritvik is the initiator instead of simply the officiator. When he, his, and who are consistently referenced correctly to the initiator, the ritvik/officiator, and the initiate, the confusion ends. Better to take the final instructions in the July 9 Order. The GBC likes to interpret the July letter by creating confusion in the May 28 talks. How can an EARLIER conversation modify a LATER letter that is supposed to be the result of that conversation? (see http://surrealist.org/jpgspdfs/appointment\_tapes.pdf)

CONCLUSION

In the first half of the May 28 talks, in reply to Satsvarupa's original question on what the GBC were to do for first and second initiations “when you no longer are with us,” Srila Prabhupada four times repudiated that ritviks would have their own disciples. It is inconceivable that he then changed his mind in replying to essentially the same question from Tamal: “Whose disciples are they?” Naturally we cannot settle on an interpretation disharmonious with the earlier discussion! The correct understanding was later confirmed in Tamal’s 1980 confessions. The GBC’s misinterpretation was written into the May 28 meeting’s minutes, and was omitted from the report on those meetings to the GBC body and temple presidents. (Ch. 84) The conversation about the future of initiations in ISKCON is short but confusing due to Satsvarupa’s questions based his philosophical misunderstandings about initiation. Also the leading secretaries hoped Srila Prabhupada would appoint some of them as diksha gurus to initiate their own disciples after his death. But instead, Srila Prabhupada surprised them with officiating acharyas. Thereafter they concealed their deviant interpretations until after his departure when they besmoozled the devotees in their criminal takeover of the institution. Some of the most ambitious GBC secretaries were poisoning Srila Prabhupada with heavy metals and quietly conspiring amongst themselves how ISKCON could be exploited by them as zonal acharyas.

Tamal, Satsvarupa, and other leading men were disingenuous with Srila Prabhupada, appearing very submissive while plotting their poisoning and takeover. They were poisoning him for a long time already, as seen by Srila Prabhupada’s sudden, massive health crises in New York (previous July 20), Mayapur (Feb. 26) and Hrishikesh (May 16), as confirmed by hair Samples A and D from early March 1977. Double-tongued and false-hearted, they tried to get Srila Prabhupada to make them initiating gurus. Their crooked ambition and defective interpretation of the May 28 talks was confirmed by Tamal himself Dec. 3, 1980 when he confessed it was very clear to him at the time that Srila Prabhupada was not appointing gurus but only ritviks to initiate disciples for Srila Prabhupada after his departure. Once it is understood that Srila Prabhupada was being asked questions by GBC men who were confused, and that Srila Prabhupada was humbly answering in the third person, as he often did, the conversation becomes clear. But however the May 28 talks are interpreted, the more important evidence is the July 9 Order, signed by Srila Prabhupada. Still, May 28 and July 9 are harmonious. Whose disciples they would be is settled by the written and signed July 9 Order, which is the most important piece of evidence validating the Srila Prabhupada's post-1977 ritvik representative initiation system. Ther July 9 Order supersedes anything that "would" be in the May 28 conversation.

Srila Prabhupada's instructions for carrying out initiations in ISKCON after his physical departure was that he would recommend some disciples as officiating acharyas or ritvik representatives. On June 4, 1977 he wrote in his Final Will that ISKCON property trustees must be his duly initiated disciples. This confirms his no change "henceforward" order sent to all GBCs and temple presidents on July 9 announcing his 11 chosen ritvik representatives to initiate disciples on his behalf indefinitely. May 28, June 4, July 9 are Srila Prabhupada's replies to the GBC questions on how to do initiations in the future. In the next 4 months until his physical disappearance, Srila Prabhupada never changed these orders in any way. SP: "All my disciples will take the legacy. If you want, you can also take it. Sacrifice everything. I, one, may soon pass away. But they are hundreds, and this movement will increase. It is not that I give an order, 'Here is the next leader.' Anyone who follows the previous leadership is the leader [...]. All of my disciples are leaders, as much as they follow purely. If you want to follow, you can also lead. But you don't want to follow. Leader means one who is a first class disciple. Evam param parapraptam. One who is following is perfect." (BTG 13.1-2) (Ironically, ISKCON uses this same quote to support their bogus system. Above, Srila Prabhupada was speaking of siksha gurus.) https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=V\_K\_IdPORwk <https://archive.org/details/May28>

CHAPTER 189: THE JULY 9th ORDER

"Recently when all of the GBC members were with His Divine Grace in Vrindaban, Srila Prabhupada indicated that soon He would appoint some of His senior disciples to act as "ritvik"—representative of the acharya, for the purpose of performing initiations, both first initiation and second initiation. His Divine Grace has so far given a list of 11 disciples who will act in that capacity:

His Holiness Kirtanananda Swami

His Holiness Satsvarupa dasa Goswami

His Holiness Jayapataka Swami

His Holiness Tamal-Krishna Goswami

His Holiness Hridayananda Goswami

His Holiness Bhavananda Goswami

His Holiness Hamsadutta Swami

His Holiness Ramesvara Swami

His Holiness Harikesa Swami

His Grace Bhagavan dasa Adhikari

His Grace Jayatirtha dasa Adhikari

In the past, Temple Presidents have written to Srila Prabhupada recommending a particular devotee's initiation. Now that Srila Prabhupada has named these representatives, Temple Presidents may henceforward send recommendation for first and second initiation to whichever of these eleven representatives are nearest their temple. After considering the recommendation, these representatives may accept the devotee as an initiated disciple of Srila Prabhupada by giving a spiritual name, or in the case of second initiation, by chanting on the Gayatri thread, just as Srila Prabhupada has done. The newly initiated devotees are disciples of His Divine Grace A. C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada, the above eleven senior devotees acting as His representative. After the Temple President receives a letter from these representatives giving the spiritual name or the thread, he can perform the fire yajna in the temple as was being done before. The name of a newly initiated disciple should be sent by the representative who has accepted him or her to Srila Prabhupada, to be included in His Divine Grace's "Initiated Disciples" book."

[Audio of July 7, 1977 appointment of 9 ritviks: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=FgumF51dMhA>]

On May 28, 1977 Srila Prabhupada announced he would soon appoint some "officiating acharyas" to initiate his disciples after his departure. There was a short discussion on the matter, one portion of which has been confusing to some with its reference to "grand-disciple" and "disciple of my disciple." Five weeks later, Srila Prabhupada named 7, then 9, then a total of 11 "ritviks" to initiate devotees as Srila Prabhupada's disciples starting immediately and continuing indefinitely "henceforward," and, as per the May 28 talks, "especially when you are no longer with us." Tamal, as Srila Prabhupada's personal secretary, drafted a letter according to Srila Prabhupada's instructions. Srila Prabhupada reviewed it and signed it, and it was sent by Tamal to Ramevara for duplication to all GBCs and temples. However, many or most devotees never saw it until 1990 when it was uncovered by Yasodanandana das and published in Vedic Village Review, as it had been sequestered in Ramesvara's safe and hidden from the society. This was the now famous July 9 Order, a major policy document which outlined how initiations were to go on in the future. In Srila Prabhupada, His Movement, and You (1993 Hansadutta), the significance of the July 9 Order is elaborated:

"In regards to gurus, Prabhupada left only one document giving policy direction and individual names for [the] initiation process. [The July 9, 1977 ritvik henceforward directive], and it is clearly stated they will act as ritviks. Prabhupada left other policy documents, such as the BBT trust, the Direction of Management, Mayapur Vrindaban Trust, and he also recorded a last will and testament. But none of these formal policy documents says anything about acharyas or gurus initiating after his demise. The only document dealing with the issue of initiations is the letter of July 9, 1977. As for tape recordings of conversations Prabhupada had with various GBCs prior to his departure, they cannot be accepted as [final] evidence in regards to this issue, because Prabhupada would discuss a particular point with his disciples from many different angles. BUT WHEN MAKING MAJOR POLICY CHANGES OR INTRODUCTIONS, Prabhupada was very deliberate and careful to formulate such policies on paper with signatures. Prabhupada was very businesslike and did not do things whimsically or carelessly. Certainly the most IMPORTANT QUESTION in his mind and in the mind of his leading disciples at the time of his disappearance was who will initiate and under what circumstances such initiations will take place. The answer is plain and simple in his letter of July 9th, 1977. However, Prabhupada's disciples, being filled with ambition for more than merely continuing to act as his representatives (ritviks) or deputies, simply exaggerated their position and justified this ambitious fever by disregarding the July 9, 1977 letter and magnified some prior conversations [...] Prabhupada wrote at least 7,000 letters and recorded trust documents, and ultimately he left a last will and testament. [Recounting of Tamal's Topanga Canyon confessions: see Ch. 68]..."

"I was present with Tamal Krishna Goswami when he admitted publicly: 'Prabhupada never appointed any gurus. He did not appoint eleven gurus. He appointed eleven ritviks. He never appointed them as gurus. Myself and the other GBC have done the greatest disservice to this movement for the last three years, because we interpreted the appointment of ritviks as the appointment of gurus... [Prabhupada said], "All right, I will appoint so many," and he named them. He made it very clear that they were still to be his disciples. At that point it was very clear in my mind that they were his disciples... If it had been more than that [officiating priests], you can bet your bottom dollar that Prabhupada would have spoken for days and hours and weeks on end about how to set up this thing with the gurus. But he did not, because he already said it a million times. He said, "My Guru Maharaja did not appoint anyone. It is by qualification." We made a great mistake. You cannot show me anything on tape or in writing where Prabhupada says, "I appoint these eleven as gurus." It does not exist, because he never appointed any gurus. This is a myth.'

ISKCON

INTERNATIONAL SOCIETY FOR KRISHNA CONSCIOUSNESS

Founder-Acharya : His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada

July 9th, 1977

To All G.B.C., and Temple Presidents

Dear Maharajas and Prabhus,

Please accept my humble obeisances at your feet. Recently when all of the GBC members were with His Divine Grace in Vrindavana, Srila Prabhupad indicated that soon He would appoint some of His senior disciples to act as "ritvik" - representative of the acarya, for the purpose of performing initiations, both first initiation and second initiation. His Divine Grace has so far given a list of eleven disciples who will act in that capacity:

His Holiness Kirtanananda Swami
His Holiness Satsvarupa das Goswami
His Holiness Jayapataka Swami
His Holiness Tamal Krana Goswami
His Holiness Hridayananda Goswami
His Holiness Bhavananda Goswami
His Holiness Kamsadutta Swami
His Holiness Ramesvara Swami
His Holiness Harikesa Swami
His Grace Bhagavan das Adhikari
His Grace Jayatirtha das Adhikari

In the past Temple Presidents have written to Srila Prabhupad recommending a particular devotee's initiation. Now that Srila Prabhupad has named these representatives, Temple Presidents may henceforward send recommendation for first and second initiation to whichever of these eleven representatives are nearest their temple. After considering the recommendation, these representatives may accept the devotee as an initiated disciple of Srila Prabhupad by giving a spiritual name, or in the case of second initiation, by chanting on the Gayatri thread, just as Srila Prabhupad has done. The newly initiated devotees are disciples of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupad, the above eleven senior devotees acting as His representatives. After the Temple President receives a letter from these representatives giving the spiritual name or the thread, he can perform the fire vaji in the temple as was being done before. The name of a newly initiated disciple should be sent by the representative who has accepted him or her to Srila Prabhupad, to be included in His Divine Grace's "Initiated Disciples" book.

Hoping this finds you all well.

Your servant,

Tamal Krana Goswami

Tamal Krana Goswami
Secretary to Srila Prabhupad

Approved

A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada

Shri Krishna Balaram Kirtan & International Society for Krishna Consciousness, 1 College Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017, U.S.A. (U.S.) India - phone 172.
New York - phone 172. London - phone 172. Hong Kong - phone 172. Singapore - phone 172. Sydney - phone 172.

"Even in a court of law such evidence as tapes would not hold weight in the presence of written documents. Prabhupada used to say, 'You can say anything, but don't put it in writing.' So the conclusion is simple, if we simply agree to accept it. Prabhupada appointed 11 ritviks for initiating on his behalf. If anyone can produce a document or a letter stating otherwise, let it be seen. But putting so much merit on vague, hissing tape recordings in regards to such a serious issue as guru and acharya is completely out of order. Because rank and file devotees are innocent, they have unquestioningly accepted the overblown, exaggerated proposal made by their senior godbrothers, but judging a thing by its result, we can understand now after 16 years that it was the fever of pratistha which induced the senior godbrothers to overestimate and overstep the actual role that Prabhupada ordered them to play, namely as deputies, representatives, ritviks, or monitors in the class in the absence of the teacher. Any sane, humble devotee can see this, and all devotees can live and serve Prabhupada harmoniously under this management. But to have dozens of so-called acharya-gurus, each with their small band of fanatic, neophyte followers will result only in chaos, confusion and ultimately disintegration of Prabhupada's preaching mission worldwide. Actually, that has already happened in the USA. That has been demonstrated full-blown. It is a matter of time only before the same disintegration of the unified ISKCON preaching mission will take its toll in all the countries of the world."

ANALYSIS OF JULY 9 LETTER from Intern'l Sri Krishna Mandir's "Initiations After 1977"

(1) Srila Prabhupada's crystal clear management style is that an important directive is written and issued to all temples, not given in a haphazard, confusing, private room conversation. (2) In the first paragraph, Tamal referred to the May 28, 1977 conversation of the GBC with Srila Prabhupada about the initiation process. The July 9 Order is the clarification of that conversation and points to it. (3) We note how the May 28 conversation started, "particularly when you are no longer here with us"? It unquestionably points to the time after Srila Prabhupada's departure. The July 9 Order should be understood in that context. (4) Srila Prabhupada was appointing ritvik (Bengali pronunciation: rittik) representatives of the acharya. He clearly did not appoint any gurus. (5) Next, he clarifies that the 11 names that are to be mentioned will act in the capacity of ritviks, reiterating that they are not appointed as gurus. (6) After the 11 names have been listed, the word 'henceforward' indicates an immediate start point but an indefinite end point or at least until another order in the future supersedes this order. And Srila Prabhupada never issued any order after this to imply that these 11 persons would automatically become full gurus after his disappearance. Moreover, this word should be understood in context with the original May 28, 1977 question when Satsvarupa said, "particularly when you are no longer here with us." (7) The initiation recommendations should be sent by Temple Presidents "to whichever of these eleven representatives are nearest their temple." 'Nearest' implies convenience, and not a sacred guru-disciple relationship. Tamal explained in 1980: "This is a very important point, because when it comes to initiating, if it isn't whoever is nearest, it's wherever your heart goes. Who (you) repose your faith on, you take initiation from him. But when it's officiating, it's whoever is nearest, and he was very clear. He named them. They were spread out all over the world, and he said, 'Whoever you're nearest, you just approach that person, and they'll check you out. Then, on my behalf, they'll initiate.'" (8) Then the following phrases where Srila Prabhupada undeniably is appointing ritvik representatives of the acharya (himself) and his undisputed position as ISKCON's diksha-guru: (a) "these representatives may accept the devotee as an initiated disciple of Srila Prabhupada" (b) "The newly initiated devotees are disciples of HDG A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada" (c) "The name of a newly initiated disciple should be sent by the representative who has accepted him or her to Srila Prabhupāda." (d) "to be included in His Divine Grace's "Initiated Disciples" book." (9) One may ask as to what would happen after these eleven have passed away or fallen from grace for any reason. Tamal, in his confession in 1980, quoted Srila Prabhupada as saying, "As is necessary, others may be added."

The July 9 Order is rock-solid evidence that SP set up the ritvik system of initiations and is thus forcefully driving the point home that all future disciples of this movement are his disciples. (END)

TAMAL CLAIMS HE WROTE THE JULY 9 LETTER, NOT SRILA PRABHUPADA

Decades later Tamal would claim the July 9 letter was not intended to apply after Srila Prabhupada's departure, and that ritviks would cease to function when Srila Prabhupada had gone. He said that since he himself had composed and written the letter, as Srila Prabhupada's secretary, only he really knew what the letter meant. By writing it, he did not mean for it to apply after Srila Prabhupada's departure. Even though Srila Prabhupada read the July 9 letter and then approved it by his signature, Tamal claims that only he can settle the debate about what the word "henceforward" really means, and that it only means until Nov. 14, 1977. Tamal actually believed Srila Prabhupada was just someone who signed his letters and that he was the real authority and brains behind the July 9 Order. He says we should consult him as to its real meaning, which he would know best since he had written it, not Srila Prabhupada. Such are the delusions of crazy men, overestimating their importance and neglecting the pure devotee. Thus the ISKCON GBC maintains that the July 9 Order was only valid for 4 months until Srila Prabhupada's departure, supported by Tamal's statements.

IS JULY 9 ORDER EFFECTIVE ONLY UNTIL SRILA PRABHUPADA'S DEPARTURE?

Often ISKCON apologists will criticize "ritvikism" by saying their whole position depends on this one word, "henceforward." From the IRM website: "It is not claimed that the permanent nature of the July 9th directive depends on the word henceforward. From p. 3, The Final Order: 'Furthermore the argument that the whole ritvik system "hangs" on one word - "henceforward" - is untenable, since even if we take the word out of the letter, nothing has changed. One still has a system set up by Srila Prabhupada four months before his departure, with no subsequent instruction to terminate it. Without such a counter instruction, this letter must be seen as Srila Prabhupada's final instruction on initiation, and should therefore be followed.' As is made clear, the directive gives a permanent system for ISKCON [which] is not subsequently terminated. If a directive gives a system for ISKCON to follow, the sane course would be to follow it, not stop following it!"

From Eleven Naked Emperors (Doktorski): "It is important to note the use of the word 'henceforward' in the July 9 letter, indicating that the ritvik priest representatives Prabhupada appointed would continue to act in that capacity as ritviks not just during Prabhupada's lifetime but after his death. In other words, Prabhupada indicated that the disciplic succession in ISKCON should continue in perpetuity by ritvik representatives (siksha gurus) of the Founder-Acharya, not by diksha gurus. This interpretation is supported by Prabhupada's "Declaration of Will" (June 4, 1977) which states, "The system of management will continue as it is now and there is no need of any change." Prabhupada had been initiating new disciples by ritvik representation for many years already and there was "no need of any change" in the future after he passed away."

The July 9 letter starts by reference to the "recent" May 28 GBC meeting: "Srila Prabhupada indicated that soon He would appoint some of His senior disciples to act as "ritvik..." And when Srila Prabhupada was asked about initiations "in the future, especially after he was no longer with us," he replied he would appoint some officiating acharyas or ritviks. Therefore the ritviks appointed on July 9 must be for after Srila Prabhupada's departure. Yet the ISKCON GBC insist on another interpretation, crazy as it is. Srila Prabhupada knew the July 9 Order referred to the May 28 talks, so the ritviks are for the future, after his departure.

"Yet, the GBC proclaim that this letter only refers to when Srila Prabhupada was ill, from July 9 to Nov. 14. But, that was NOT the question put before Srila Prabhupada at the 'recent' May 28 meeting, and it was NOT what he replied to, stating he would soon appoint ritviks. Thus, the GBC's explanation is FLAWED. Were both Tamal and Srila Prabhupada forgetful of what the question was on May 28? Were both of them acting foolishly in writing and signing the July 9 Order? If so, then where are Srila Prabhupada's instructions for what to do with ritviks after he departed or that they would become diksha gurus? Srila Prabhupada made all arrangements for the 4 months until his departure and nothing in writing or on tape for the thousands of years after his departure? Right. Come on... Does the GBC think we were born yesterday?" (Ameyatma das)

GURUKRIPA DAS WAS THERE AT THE TIME AND REMEMBERS

Eventually, a backlog of requests for initiation during Srila Prabhupada's "illness" necessitated the official appointment of 11 "ritvik priests," who were not spiritual masters of the disciples; they were representatives of the spiritual master. Gurukripa das, the GBC for Hawaii, Japan, and Hong Kong, and who spent much of 1977 with Srila Prabhupada in Vrindaban, explained: "In the beginning Srila Prabhupada did the diksha [initiation], the fire sacrifice and the name giving. As the numbers of disciples increased, he authorized some senior sannyasis to pick names and chant on the beads. In 1977 during the months of May, June, July, I was in Vrindaban with Srila Prabhupada, giving him his massage between 1 to 5 am. During the day, many letters would arrive. We decided that maximum five letters daily that would give joy to Srila Prabhupada would be read, like numbers of books sold, etc. After some weeks like this, there were stacks of letters, as hundreds of people were panicking that Srila Prabhupada would leave the planet before they were given initiation. At this time, this situation was brought before Srila Prabhupada in his room by Satsvarupa, Tamal, myself, and maybe some others. Up until this time it was a very simple matter that we were doing the initiations, but we first had to ask permission. Srila Prabhupada never refused any recommendation from his senior men. And personally, I would sometimes argue with some GBC that they were giving it too easily. At this meeting, Srila Prabhupada basically said, 'From here on, if you feel they are ready, then you may give the initiation on my behalf.' I understood this for what it was, simply extending the authority a little further than it had been. Tamal began to say, 'But which devotees will do this?' Srila Prabhupada said, 'Whoever is closest.' Tamal said, 'Can Bhavananda do? Can Jayapataka do?' Then eleven names came out. Soon after his [May 28] conversation with the GBC, Prabhupada officially appointed 11 senior disciples to act as ritvik representative for the acharya."

HENCEFORWARD, FUTURE, CONTINUE: DOES THIS MEAN TEMPORARY?

Srila Prabhupada spoke and wrote about a permanent, indefinite arrangement for the future, not a temporary initiation system intended to last for only for a few months until he would physically depart on Nov. 14, 1977. ISKCON insists, however, that the ritvik arrangement was meant to be temporary. They say that after Srila Prabhupada's departure, the 11 ritviks would automatically become full gurus in their own right. Later, they conceded that the 11 being appointed as full gurus was a lie, and a new system was concocted by them for approving gurus. Yet even now, they somehow insist the ritvik system was temporary. What to believe from them? First they say this, then that is exposed as a lie, then they say something else, and we should trust them? Their credibility is zero. Regarding this issue, here are some quotes to support it was permanent: (1) "Then our next question concerns initiations in the future, particularly at that time when you're no longer with us." (May 28 talks) (2) "may henceforward send recommendation..." (July 9 Order) (3) "...continue to become ritvik and act on my behalf." (Tamal to Hansadutta July 31, 1977) (4) "...the process for initiation to be followed in the future." (Tamal to Kirtanananda July 11, 1977) (5) "...continue to become ritvik and act on my charge." (Tamal to Hansadutta July 19, 1977) (6) "...Prabhupada never appointed any gurus. He didn't appoint 11 gurus. He appointed 11 ritviks. He never appointed them gurus. Myself and the other GBC have done the greatest disservice to this movement the last 3 years because we interpreted the appointment of ritviks as the appointment of gurus." (Tamal Dec. 3, 1980)

Suppose if somebody is assured that now, henceforward, you haven't got to do anything, everything will come automatically, naturally one becomes prasannātmā, very jolly. I am free from the anxieties. Because this material world means full of anxieties, sadā samudvigna-dhiyām. That is material world. And when you come to the spiritual platform, there is no anxieties, no... Na śocati na kāṅkṣati. That is anxiety-free. So anxiety-free does not mean you haven't got to do anything.

Vṛndāvana, Sep 8, 1976.

We see "continue," "future," and "henceforward" -all point to the permanency of the ritvik system.

Furthermore, there is no statement from Srila Prabhupada anywhere that even hints that this system was to terminate on his departure. Some ISKCON gurus, including Trivikram Swami, have said something like, "At the time, it was clear to all of us that ritviks were temporary, and that after Srila Prabhupada departed they would become full gurus. There was no question at the time." But in 1978 they also claimed the appointment of zonal successor acharyas was clear to them, and it turned out to be a colossal hoax, which is when they concocted a voting system to approve new ISKCON initiating gurus. So how clear are they about anything? Who in their right mind would listen to anything such liars have to say? They cannot be trusted. Pathological liars. Reject the ISKCON cheater-leaders and objectively study the issue without falling for their lies and deceit. Srila Prabhupada's system of initiations by ritviks was permanent.

SRILA PRABHUPADA ARRANGED FOR AFTER HIS DEPARTURE, NOT UNTIL (by Nityasiddha das)

If someone makes a will, and leaves his children his wealth, would that be interpreted to mean only until he dies? Think about it. So how much sense can there be in the GBC's claim that the ritvik representatives were intended only until Srila Prabhupada departed? Is it logical that Srila Prabhupada would make arrangements for only the next 4 months of his manifest presence? And he then totally neglected to make arrangements for the next thousands of years? This makes no sense. Yet this is what ISKCON maintains as the keystone to their unauthorized guru approval system. They say Srila Prabhupada made NO arrangements for new initiating gurus after his “death” and therefore a guru-approval system had to be concocted by the GBC.

Srila Prabhupada came back to Vrindaban May 16, 1977 when he felt close to death, and he wanted to make final arrangements for after his departure. There was a long list of preparations Srila Prabhupada made after May 16 and up to Nov. 14, 1977 and they ALL were for AFTER his departure: (1) He registered his Final Will, effective from June 4 and AFTER (not until) his departure. (2) He finalized arrangements for the Bhaktivedanta Charity Trust to restore temples in India AFTER his departure. (3) He finalized the details for the Bombay ISKCON temple opening and operations which would take place AFTER his departure. (4) He finalized arrangements for stipends for his former family members, which would go on AFTER his departure. (5) He made final arrangements and requests, and gave final advice for his senior men to work together and maintain ISKCON AFTER his departure. (6) He transferred the signature power on all bank accounts from himself to others, to go on AFTER his departure. (7) He made arrangements for where his body would be interred and where a samadhi would be built, which would occur AFTER his departure. (8) He made clarifications and gave instructions regarding GBC tenure, various trustees, loan instructions, banking arrangements, all to be done not just until his departure, but primarily for AFTER. (9) And so on, Srila Prabhupada made so many HENCEFORWARD arrangements for AFTER his physical departure, including the July 9 letter for future initiations up to and AFTER his departure. (10) Was the ritvik representative system of initiations on his behalf the only temporary arrangement he made, while all these others were permanent? And to believe this in the face of NO evidence except flawed arguments about traditional parampara continuance? No, “henceforward” is not temporary. Srila Prabhupada made arrangements for his departure to include UNTIL and AFTERWARDS.

Yet, in the face of the obvious, the GBC insists Srila Prabhupada appointed 11 ritviks only until his departure, and that afterwards they would automatically become full, regular gurus authorized to initiate their own disciples. And Srila Prabhupada somehow failed to mention that? Even though he methodically and thoroughly attended to all other details? The GBC claim is incredibly illogical. Nowhere does Srila Prabhupada even hint at the July 9 Order being a stop-gap measure for only during his time of illness, or valid only until his departure. Satsvarupa’s “when you’re no longer with us” is quite clear, no? Damaghosh noted their incredulous argument that “henceforward” is temporary: “The real problem in the Hare Krishna movement is that devotees don’t carefully read the books. I saw Dravida das giving his take of ‘ritviks’ in that Disciple of My Disciple video by ITV, and he said the entire ritvik argument is based on the word ‘henceforward.’ They don’t read the books, and this man is supposed to be one of their ‘best.’ This man is missing the obvious or Krishna has just totally taken away his intelligence. I call this guy Dravida Gorrilla, always disturbing the devotees. Do Prabhupada Anugas solely rely on that word ‘Henceforward’ in defending arguments? No, because the shastric ammunition is so extensive beyond that one word. It is actually confirmed in all of Prabhupada’s books, if one is honest and not searching selectively and interpreting according to one’s pre-attached notions. Besides, ‘henceforward’ is pretty darn clear just in itself.” (END)

DOES “RITVIKISM” DIRECTLY CONTRADICT THE PRINCIPLE OF PARAMPARA?

In 2008 the GBC passed resolutions offensive to Srila Prabhupada about the Prabhupada Anuga rescue of ISKCON Long Island temple: “(2) Whereas the doctrine that Srila Prabhupada desired to continue to act as diksha-guru after his departure from this world, and did not desire any of his disciples to give diksha, or initiation, in succession after him is an errant philosophical deviation (known as ritvikism); and (3) Whereas ritvikism directly contradicts the principle of parampara itself (of successive diksha and siksha-gurus), which sustains the pure teachings and practices of Krishna consciousness; and (4) Whereas this principle has been established by Krishna, the Supreme Personality of Godhead Himself, and is upheld by all of the bona fide acharyas (teachers) in the Gaudiya Vaishnava religious tradition, as well as all followers of Vedic culture; and (5) Whereas in the informed ecclesiastical opinion of the Governing Body Commission of ISKCON, ritvikism has on numerous occasions been formally deemed to be an extreme deviation from the teachings of Srila Prabhupada and the Krishna consciousness religion...” This GBC statement is a direct blasphemy against Srila Prabhupada, for which the GBC collectively will pay their dues. The bigger the audacious lie, it seems more people fall for it. The July 9 Order continues to frustrate ISKCON’s ambitious, fraudulent initiating gurus and interfere with their illegal perks and benefits.

DEFEAT OF RITVIKS BY ROCHANA DAS REVIEWED

Rochan das, of the Sampradaya Sun website, wrote in 2012 a lengthy treatise titled “Defeat of Ritviks.” However, rather than defeat, his nit-picky arguments and pointing to a few supposed faults in The Final Order by Krishnakant accomplished only this reaction: “If this is the best refutation of The Final Order, at 200 pages and years in the making, with great detail and many appendices, then the ritvik process for initiations in the future after Srila Prabhupada’s departure must be correct!” Rochan’s “defeat” only raises minor technical issues, something akin to, “Since we did not start our advertised meeting on time, then we cannot say it is the correct meeting, and thus whatever we discussed not did really happen.” Rochan questions whether “ritvik” and “rittik” are different, and which GBC meeting was referred to in the July 9 Order (May 28, July 7, or ??), and whether, since “rittiks” sending names of new initiates back to Srila Prabhupada for inclusion in the Disciples Book, would mean that the ritvik system was valid only while Srila Prabhupada was still around to personally receive those names? He interprets, that while naming the ritviks, Srila Prabhupada said, “In India, I am here,” this indicates the July 9 Order was effective only while Srila Prabhupada was “here.” Rochan states the following, “As our detailed analysis in DOR shows, this 'historical account' of TFO contains one contradiction, one error of logic, one unsubstantiated claim, and six errors of fact.” But his nine contrived items amount to very little, and his analysis is reminiscent of arguing over the correct pronunciation of a word that everyone understands no matter which way it is spoken. His interpretation of guru tattva differs with the “officiating acharya” system and also with the ISKCON no-objection vote system, and is too vague to understand what it really is. As they say, it takes all kinds...

THE AVAILABLE RECORDINGS, TESTIMONIES LEADING UP TO JULY 9 ORDER

July 5, 1977: “On July 5th Tamal asked Srila Prabhupada about some devotees who wanted to get initiated as he was getting many requests from the Temple presidents. This conversation occurred in the garden as I fanned him. Srila Prabhupada said: ‘Tomorrow I will announce some ritvik acharyas who will initiate disciples on my behalf when I leave the planet.’ It was actually two days later on July 7 when Srila Prabhupada named the first eleven ritvik acharyas.” (Gauridas Pandit das, Tamal assistant)

July 7, 1977: Vrindaban Conversation: Tamal: Srila Prabhupada? We're receiving a number of letters now, and these are people who want to get initiated. So up until now, since your becoming ill, we asked them to wait. SP: The local, mean, senior sannyasis can do that. Tamala: That's what we were doing... I mean, formerly we were... The local GBC, sannyasis, were chanting on their beads, and they were writing to Your Divine Grace, and you were giving a spiritual name. So should that process be resumed, or should we...? I mean one thing is that it's said that the spiritual master takes on the... You know, he takes on the... He has to cleanse the disciple by... So we don't want that you should have to... Your health is not so good, so that should not be... That's why we've been asking everybody to wait. I just want to know if we should continue to wait some more time. [Here Tamal starts stuttering again. Was he holding up the initiations so he and others could get them as disciples when Srila Prabhupada expired from their poisoning?] SP: No, the senior sannyasis... Tamal: So they should continue to... SP: You can give me a list of sannyasis. I will mark who will... Tamal: Okay. SP: You can do. Kirtanananda can do. And our Satsvarupa can do. So these three, you can give, begin. Tamal: So supposing someone is in America, should they simply write directly to Kirtanananda or Satsvarupa? SP: Nearby. Jayatirtha can give. Tamal: Jayatirtha. SP: Bhavanan... er, Bhagavan. And he can do also. Harikesha. Tamal: Harikesha Maharaja. SP: And... Five, six men, you divide who is nearest. Tamal: Who is nearest. So persons wouldn't have to write to Your Divine Grace. They could write directly to that person? SP: Hm. Tamal: Actually they are initiating the person on Your Divine Grace's behalf. Those persons who are initiated are still your... SP: Second initiation we shall think over, second initiation. Tamal: This is for first initiation, okay. And for second initiation, for the time being they should... SP: No, they have to wait. Second initiation, that should be given... Tamal: Should... Some devotees are writing you now for second initiation, and I'm writing them to wait a while because you're not well. So can I continue to tell them that? SP: They can do second initiation. Tamal: By writing you. SP: No. These men. Tamal: These men, they can also do second initiation. So there's no need for devotees to write to you for first and second initiation. They can write to the man nearest them. But all these persons are still your disciples. Anybody who gives initiation is doing so on your behalf. SP: Yes. Tamal: You know that book I'm maintaining of all of your disciples' names? Should I continue that? SP: Hm. Tamal: So if someone gives initiation, like Harikesha Maharaja, he should send the person's name to us here and I'll enter it in the book. Okay. Is there someone else in India that you want to do this? SP: India, I am here. We shall see. In India, Jayapataka. Tamal: Jayapataka Maharaja. SP: You are also in India. Tamal: Yes. SP: You can note down these names. Tamal: Yes, I have them. SP: Who are they? Tamal: Kirtanananda Maharaja, Satsvarupa Maharaja, Jayatirtha Prabhu, Bhagavan Prabhu, Harikesha Maharaja, Jayapataka Maharaja and Tamala Krishna Maharaja. SP: That's nice. Now you distribute. Tamal: Seven. There's seven names. SP: For the time being, seven names, sufficient. You can make Ramesvara. Tamal: Ramesvara Maharaja. SP: And Hridayananda. Tamal: Oh, yeah. South America. SP: So without waiting for me, wherever you consider it is right... That will depend on discretion. Tamal: On discretion. SP: Yes. Tamal: That's for first and second initiations. SP: Hm. Tamal: Okay...

Above, Tamal made a point that SP's saying, "Who is nearest" proves the ritvik appointees would be simply functionaries and not diksha gurus who attract the hearts of their disciples. Ritviks would simply be regional agents, not diksha gurus themselves. Also, clearly, on his behalf.

JULY 8: After choosing 9 ritviks to initiate on his behalf, two more were added (Bhavananda and Hansadutta) by Srila Prabhupada to the list (no tape recording available) before the July 9 Order was sent out. These discussions were recorded, as testified to by Gauridas Pandit das. We see in Tamal's diary and discussed by Tamal in his Topanga "confessions": "Later on I asked him two questions: 'What about Brahmananda Swami?' I asked him this because I happened to have an affection for Brahmananda Swami. So Prabhupada said, 'No, not unless he's qualified.' Before I got ready to type the letter, I asked him 'Srila Prabhupada, is this all or do you want to add more.?' He said, 'As is necessary, others may be added.'"

JULY 10: The day after Srila Prabhupada signed the ritvik-authorization order, Tamal admitted to Yasodanandana that Srila Prabhupada said the ritvik system would continue after his death. Yasodanandana wrote down this conversation in his diary, which he still has, for July 10: Tamal: Yasoda, did you see this? Yasodanandana: No. What is it? Tamal: This is signed by Prabhupada. (Tamal showed Yasodanandana the July 9th order and pointed to Srila Prabhupada's signature on the left hand bottom corner. Yasodanandana read the entire letter and then asked questions.) Yasodanandana: What does all of this mean? Tamal: Devotees have been writing to Prabhupada asking for initiations, and now Prabhupada has named eleven ritviks who can initiate on his behalf. Prabhupada said that others can be added. Yasodanandana: And when Prabhupada departs? Tamal: They'll be ritviks. That's what Prabhupada said. It's all on tape.

It is truly amazing the types of arguments put up by ISKCON and its hijackers who are ready to say anything in hopes of protecting their guruship legitimacy. There could be many more chapters to answer all the opposition they present to this simple, clear letter. Ultimately, one can lead a horse to water, but one cannot force it to drink. Those that do not want to understand, never will. These explanations and discussions are meant for those with open hearts and minds unpolluted with the dangerous, dreaded acharya disease. Hopefully this book will be of some use to those who would try to clear up the insidious and polluting doubts that have been propagated by the ISKCON criminals and their indoctrinated followers. “There is no way that they didn't question Srila Prabhupada extensively about diksha after his departure...” (Anuttama dasi, 2017) (1) May 28: He would appoint some of his senior disciples to act as ritvik representative of the acharya. (2) July 9: “the above eleven senior devotees acting as His (Prabhupadas) representative,” (3) “The newly initiated devotees are disciples of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada,” (4) “Names of newly initiated disciples should be included in His Divine Grace's ‘Initiated Disciples’ book.”

---

CHAPTER 190: THE LAST WILL

LAST WILL IS EVIDENCE SUPPORTING JULY 9 ORDER

On June 6, 1977 Srila Prabhupada legally recorded his final Will (signed June 4), as a preparation for his departure. This legal document contains important instructions. In Nov. 1977 a Codicil or addendum was made to the Will, adjusting the maintenance amounts for Srila Prabhupada's former family. The Will is lengthy and here we will look at three key excerpts which relate to Srila Prabhupada's guru tattva. (1) “The Governing Body Commission (GBC) will be the ultimate managing authority of the entire International Society for Kṛṣṇa Consciousness.” Under the present GBC guru system, temple presidents will have a conflict of loyalty between their initiating guru and their GBC rep. Differences of opinion between guru and GBC creates a struggle for authority that undermines the institution. Of course, the guru prevails, and thus ISKCON is now a gurocracy, an institution controlled and operated by its gurus for their benefit. This conflict does not exist under Srila Prabhupada's system for initiations. The GBC has misinterpreted and misused their “ultimate managing authority” to make major changes in ISKCON's management system, expressly forbidden in the next clause of the Will. GBC authority is to simply MAINTAIN what Srila Prabhupada had left us with, and not to concoct new things, all of which have proved failures.

(2) “Each temple will be an ISKCON property and will be managed by three executive directors. The system of management will continue as it is now and there is no need of any change.” The method of initiations is a matter of management. Srila Prabhupada formalized his officiating acharya system, as he called it. So why did they change it? Because they presumed that Srila Prabhupada had forgotten to leave instructions on how to initiate after his departure? That's plain ridiculous. And Srila Prabhupada made arrangements for only 4 months until his departure? And he did not even say to the GBC something like, “I took care of my last four months, but you guys figure out something for the next 10,000 years after my departure”...?? The GBC actually says that they were authorized by Srila Prabhupada in his Last Will to do whatever they want. But what they have done is a huge change in the way Srila Prabhupada set up ISKCON to be managed. There was no need of any changes, including to his system of initiations. The GBC forgot their 1975 resolution: “The GBC has been established by His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada to represent Him in carrying out the responsibility of managing the International Society for Krishna Consciousness of which He is the Founder-Acharya and supreme authority. The GBC accepts as its life and soul His divine instructions and recognizes that it is completely dependent on His mercy in all respects. The GBC has no other function or purpose other than to execute the instructions so kindly given by His Divine Grace and preserve and spread His Teachings to the world in their pure form." (3) In point #3 of the Will, each ISKCON property in India was entrusted to 3 executive directors and the names of the properties and their executive directors were listed. Then the Will says this: "The executive directors who have herein been designated are appointed for life. In the event of the death or failure to act for any reason of any of the said directors, a successor director or directors may be appointed by the remaining directors, provided the new director is my initiated disciple following strictly all the rules and regulations of the International Society for Kṛṣṇa Consciousness as detailed in my books, and provided that there are never less than three (3) or more than five (5) executive directors acting at one time." When the draft of the Will was being read out by Giriraja Swami, June 2, 1977, to Srila Prabhupada, it stated "an initiated disciple," but in the final document it has been changed to "my initiated disciple." Obviously Srila Prabhupada wanted this exact change, indicating very clearly that in his movement's future only his initiated disciples should be property trustees. But if there are no more disciples being initiated by Srila Prabhupada after 1977, how will this be possible? Perhaps by 2060 all pre-1978 Srila Prabhupada disciples will have passed away. Who will be the directors of these properties then? The deduction is that all the future disciples of this movement are Srila Prabhupada's disciples, initiated through the system set up by Srila Prabhupada himself. The GBC and Ravindra Svarup scoff at this idea, saying this interpretation is too literal and meaningless. We think not. While not conclusive in itself, it is definitely strong supporting evidence in the whole picture. The Final Will is consistent with the July 9, 1977 Directive and the May 28, 1977 conversation. We note that the function of a Will is to ensure that after one passes away, one's desires and wishes are carried out, and thus they are always very carefully worded to avoid ambiguity and to preempt those who will deceitfully try to contradict the intent and meaning of the Will. Srila Prabhupada wanted ISKCON to continue indefinitely after he and all his directly initiated disciples left their bodies. How can this happen if there are no more initiations by Srila Prabhupada? His Will clearly indicates his own system of initiations and how he was willing to, and would, retain his position as the diksha guru of ISKCON even after his physical departure from this world. We note the Will was concealed, unavailable to devotees many years after 1977 and also there are missing tapes of important conversations with Srila Prabhupada, such as July 6-7, 1977, missing letters, documents: see Ch. 63, 64, 84, 85.

GBC MUST FOLLOW SRILA PRABHUPADA'S LAST WILL RE: MANAGEMENT

The GBC must follow Srila Prabhupada's management system as in his June 4, 1977 Last Will, including the initiation system he announced on May 28, 1977 for "when you are no longer with us" and which was formalized on July 9, 1977 with an Order to all temple presidents and GBCs. "The system of management will continue as it is now and there is no need of any change." On Oct. 8, 1977, Srila Prabhupada said: "Don't fight amongst yourselves. I have given the explanation, my will. Execute like that." Srila Prabhupada's Last Will includes this clause: "...provided the new director is my initiated disciple..." This is a strong confirmation that the ritvik representative system (announced just days earlier) was to go on after his departure. Or how could the properties have his disciples as directors 80 years later? Instead, the GBC concocted a vote-approval method of for ambitious men to be bogus gurus. Srila Prabhupada said in a Philadelphia lecture July 12, 1975 (with Ravindra Svarupa present): "You are singing every day, guru-mukha-padma-vakya, cittete koriya aikya, arna koriho mane asa. This is life. [...] You accept the bona fide guru, and what he orders you, carry out. Then your life is successful. [...] You rascal, you do not desire anything else." The GBC says the choice of words in the Last will was accidental and means nothing, and Srila Prabhupada was not speaking about the future of his mission.

---

CHAPTER 191: INITIATIONS HERESY

ISKCON “gurus” claim to be authorized by the GBC via a “no objection vote,” a methodology designed to have control over who is “approved” as guru while still being able to claim it is not a direct vote. Anyone can assume the post of guru unless he gets three objections, which will sink his “approval.” He also needs local approvals, etc. It is a reverse vote, but a vote approval nevertheless. This system is unheard of in any Vaishnava sampradaya or Math. It is a totally novel invention, unprecedented, untraditional, based on nothing, yet the GBC insists it is valid and authoritative. And the GBC has the audacity to say the ritvik methodology, based on the May 28 conversation and July 9 Order, is itself unprecedented and untraditional.

SRILA PRABHUPADA APPOINTED “RITVIKS” --SO WHY IS IT DEMONIZED?

The GBC should clarify if Srila Prabhupada is a “Ritvik-ist” preaching Ritvik-Philosophy, which the GBC calls “Ritvikism.” But since Srila Prabhupada himself introduced the term “Ritvik,” it is very offensive to Srila Prabhupada to denounce this word. The attempt of the GBC to degrade the transcendental Vedic term “rtvijah” or “ritvik” to a feared, hated, and derogatory word is another offense that has entered ISKCON due to their neglect of Srila Prabhupada’s instructions. Essentially, the GBC declares Srila Prabhupada to be deviant: “...is an errant philosophical deviation (known as ritvikism).” Is Srila Prabhupada a deviant “Ritvikist”? To call him or his disciples who follow his instructions “Ritvikist” or “Ritvikvadis” is offensive to Srila Prabhupada and his movement. These designations (Ritvikist, Ritvikvadis) are words concocted by unauthorised gurus and their followers who are antagonistic against Srila Prabhupada’s instructions to act as his ritvik representatives.

SP: “I have selected you among eleven men as ‘ritvik’ or representative of the acharya, to give initiations, both first and second initiation, on my behalf.” (July 10th) SP: “...continue to become ritvik and act on my charge.” (Jul 19, ‘77) SP: “...continue to become ritvik and act on my behalf.” (Jul 31, 77)

SP: “Yes; I shall recommend some of you. After this is settled up, I shall recommend some of you to act as officiating acharyas.” TAMAL: “Is that called ritvik-acharya?” SP: “Ritvik, yes.”

Srila Prabhupada’s signed order of July 9, 1977 addressed to all temples presidents and GBCs states: “to act as ritvik representative of the acharya, for the purpose of performing initiations.” ...and: “Srila Prabhupada indicated that soon He would appoint some of His senior disciples to act as ritvik – representative of the acharya, for the purpose of performing initiations, both first initiation and second initiation.” Why is the GBC calling Srila Prabhupada’s ritvik-order (to act as ritvik representative) as “ritvikism” as though it were some disease? Why are the GBC and ISKCON gurus so offensive to Srila Prabhupada? ISKCON has demonized what they call “ritvikism.” A 1990GBC resolution and reinforced by another resolution in 1999, paints the idea that Srila Prabhupada can initiate his own disciples after 1977 as a type of insanity, a radical deviation, and poisonous to one’s spiritual life. Hrdayananda wrote an article claiming the Vedic dictionary did not have the word “ritvik,” and that therefore it was not a part of Vedic tradition. However, Srila Prabhupada himself used the word and its derivatives 17 times in his books, each time meaning “priest.” So that we can properly understand ISKCON’s formal and offensive position on “ritvikism,” here are excerpts of the 1999 resolution.

301. [LAW] RESOLUTIONS CONCERNING THE DOCTRINE OF RITVIKISM

Whereas in 1990 the GBC Body ruled that the doctrine called the “posthumous ritvik theory” or “post-samadhi ritvik theory” (hereinafter called “ritvikism”) is a “dangerous philosophical deviation” and prohibited its teaching and practice in ISKCON, and Whereas the decision of the GBC Body has been recorded in the ISKCON Law Book under the heading “Specifically Outlawed Doctrines and Practices,” as follows: “6.4.7.2 ‘Posthumous Ritvik’ Doctrine: “The doctrine that Srila Prabhupada continues to initiate direct diksha disciples after his departure from this world through officiating priests (ritviks) is a dangerous philosophical deviation. It is totally prohibited in ISKCON. No devotee shall participate in such posthumous ritvik initiation ceremonies in any capacity including acting as ritvik, initiate, assistant, organizer, or financier. No ISKCON devotee shall advocate or support its practice.” And, Whereas a number of devotees in and around ISKCON, some of whom hold positions in ISKCON as managerial and spiritual authorities, have begun again to practice and preach a refurbished version of ritvikism, and Whereas the GBC Body has again carefully examined the case for ritvikism as currently presented, [...] and has [...] given the current versions of ritvikism careful attention and all due deliberation to the best of its ability: Be it hereby resolved THAT:

(1) The GBC Body states that it finds the arguments for ritvikism as represented to it by Madhu Pandit das and other of his associates, and as preached by them around the world, to be erroneous in its conclusion as well as specious and sophistical in its conduct. The case for ritvikism is false and duplicitous in its method of procedure and in its selection and use of evidence. It depends heavily on speculation and word-jugglery. It presents it’s radical and speculative departures from the consistent teachings of Srila Prabhupada, his predecessor acharyas, Srila Vyasadeva, and the Lord Himself, under the name of “tradition” and “no change.” The effect of these arguments is only to bewilder, delude, and misguide innocent devotees from the teaching set forth by Krishna and upheld without exception by all Vaishnava acharyas. (2) The GBC Body reaffirms strongly its resolution of 1990 entitled “Prohibition Order Against the Posthumous Ritvik Theory.” (3) ISKCON Law 6.4.7.2 is hereby amended to read as follows: “6.4.7.2 ‘Ritvikism’ aka ‘Posthumous Ritvik Theory,’ ‘Post-Samadhi-Ritvik Theory,’ ‘Proxy Initiation Theory,’ ‘No Change Theory,’ etc. “The doctrine that Srila Prabhupada desired to continue to act as diksha guru after his departure from this world and did not desire any of his disciples to give diksha in succession after him is a dangerous philosophical deviation. Ritvikism directly goes against the principle of parampara itself (of successive diksha and siksha gurus), which sustains the pure teachings and practices of Krishna consciousness. This principle has been established by Krishna and is upheld by all Vaishnava acharyas. Indeed, it is accepted by all followers of Vedic culture. Ritvikism is thus an extreme deviation. It is utterly erroneous to espouse it, deluding and misguiding to teach it, and blasphemous to attribute it to Srila Prabhupada. No one who espouses, teaches, supports in any way, or practices ritvikism can be a member in good standing of ISKCON.” (4) The GBC acknowledges that this Body has since 1977 made changes in the manner in which initiations are carried out in ISKCON, is contemplating changes at present, and may well make changes in the future. However, the GBC Body maintains that these changes concern practical adjustments according to time, place, and object undertaken in the application of absolute, unchanging principle. Ritvikism contravenes absolute, unchanging principle. Hence it is categorically different from the permissible adjustments within the power of the GBC Body. In spite of its adjustments, the GBC Body has held steadily to the principle of parampara and remains committed to it, for it is the teaching of Srila Prabhupada and his predecessors, and it is a necessity in the matter of sustaining a living tradition.

302. [LAW] ENFORCEMENT OF ISKCON LAW REGARDING RITVIKISM

[...] It is hereby resolved THAT: (1) The GBC Body unequivocally rejects in principle any proposals that ritvikism be in some manner or another accommodated or tolerated within ISKCON. [Unanimous] (2) The GBC Body hereby makes known it’s strong determination to enforce ISKCON law in the matter of ritvikism [...] to enforce the prohibition against ritvikism in ISKCON. [Unanimous] (3A) The GBC Body declares that to espouse or preach ritvikism includes the following censurable offenses under the provision of ISKCON Law (8.4.1. 3): (1) Conscious and serious philosophical deviation from Srila Prabhupada’s teachings (2) Willful violation of GBC Body resolutions (3B) Further, the GBC Body hereby rules that in relation to the espousal of ritvikism these offenses are of a sufficiently serious nature as to warrant immediate imposition of the penalty of probation, including its attendant program for rectification. [...] and [...] to establish a specific program of rectification, as provided in ISKCON Law 8.4.2.2, which can include (1) Disciplinary or remedial transfer to another location. (2) Reformatory change of service. (3) Prohibited for visiting or living in a specified temple or community. (4) Specific spiritual remedial programs. (5) A divestiture of certain actions for the period of probation. (6) Reasonable and just reformatory programs./ In consideration of the above findings, the individuals

Adridharan das, Sattvik das, Madhu Pandita das, Candalapati das and Navayogendra Swami, as above listed, being members of ISKCON India, are hereby deemed as unfit to be members of ISKCON India...

SRILA PRABHUPADA'S METHOD VS GBC METHOD

The GBC position is flawed and corruptly self-serving. The ISKCON gurus, who reek of ulterior motive to no end, adamantly insist their version of parampara is the correct one. The officiating acharya system of formalizing initiation by the mahabhagawat Srila Prabhupada is Srila Prabhupada's own arrangement, and the misleadership of ISKCON is so insane that they will demonize what he has given us. ISKCON has yet to define the guru/initiation system they are using, and their series of partially updated and defective doctrinal policy papers are exposed in Part 20. Their methods are a dangerous philosophical deviation, and they are actually criticizing Srila Prabhupada by demonizing the initiation process he himself gave us for the future. They are the offenders, not those who want to follow Srila Prabhupada as their current link to the parampara. If someone wants to take Srila Prabhupada as their diksha guru, even if it were wishful thinking and sastrically unsupported (which it is not), what's the big deal? Those who have destroyed ISKCON for 45 years are now going to become defenders of the "Holy Grail" from those who want Srila Prabhupada as their guru? Only because the greedy guru-wannabees want to maintain a diksha monopoly, do they scream bloody murder about so-called "ritviks" that threaten their way of life, income stream, and guru business. The GBC claims without any proof that this is a "dangerous philosophical deviation" and try to scare those under their influence to not take Srila Prabhupada as their diksha guru...

HOW TO RECTIFY THE OFFENSES? (from ISKM's "INITIATIONS AFTER 1977")

The answer is very simple. One should stop disobeying Srila Prabhupada and follow the ritvik system of initiations. If the leaders of ISKCON can do this, it is the best thing that they can ever do and we shall be forever grateful to them. But if they do not do so, we cannot remain party to the offence by supporting them. We have no choice but to work independent of them, with like-minded devotees who are serious about reinstating Srila Prabhupada as the sole diksha guru, until such a time when the management of ISKCON understands their own folly and choose to rectify it. For those who are interested in rectifying the situation, the first thing to note is that the instruction of the spiritual master is the supreme guiding principle for the disciple. His instruction should never be ignored. "One should know the acharya as Myself and never disrespect him in any way. One should not envy him, thinking him an ordinary man, for he is the representative of all the demigods." SBhag 11.17.27 "The pure devotee should execute devotional service by giving the greatest respect to the spiritual master and the acharyas. He should be compassionate to the poor and make friendship with persons who are his equals, but all his activities should be executed under regulation and with control of the senses." (SBhag 3.29.17) "The spiritual master is as good as the Supreme Personality of Godhead, and therefore one who is very serious about spiritual advancement must regard the spiritual master in this way. Even a slight deviation from this understanding can create disaster in the disciple's Vedic studies and austerities." (SBhag 7.15.27 purport) Thus one should thoroughly study the ritvik system of initiations from both the documentary and scriptural evidence that supports it and be convinced of its veracity and then openly talk about it to sincere devotees. One may fear offending senior Vaishnavas if one rejects the association of the deviant ISKCON but who in ISKCON is a more senior Vaishnava than Srila Prabhupada? How can we commit offence at his lotus feet or tolerate others doing so? And how can anyone be called a Vaishnava if such a person wilfully offends Srila Prabhupada? These should be the considerations of a sincere devotee.

"Cheating and weakness are two separate things. Persons devoid of a cheating propensity achieve perfection in life, but a cheater is never successful./ Vaishnavism is another name for simplicity. Cheaters are non devotees. Sincere persons can be weak, but they are not cheaters. Cheaters say something but do something else. Weak people are embarrassed by their defects, whereas cheaters are maddened by their achievements. I will cheat the acharya, I will deceive the doctor, I will nourish the poisonous snake of my sinful propensity with banana and milk, hiding him in the hole of my cheating propensity., and I will demand name and fame from the people while posing as a saint. These are not symptoms of weakness but of utter deceitfulness. Such cheaters will never achieve any good. By hearing humbly from saints with a sincere attitude, however one will gradually attain auspiciousness. After accepting tridandi sannyas, if one remains busy with wordly activities, thinking that family life is more important than spiritual life or maintaining the sinful mentality of kidnapping Sita from Rama as Ravana did even while dressed as a devotee, then one is a self-killer. We are far from the worship of Hari. Even if we have weakness and have enough anarthas to last us for millions of years, we are not as misfortunate as if we possessed a cheating propensity. It is better to take birth as animals or birds than to take shelter of cheating.” (Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati Thakura) (END)

GBC VS. PRABHUPADA: GBC HERESIES REJECTED (By Narasimha das)

The Iskcon GBC philosophy on guru-tattva and initiations has evolved over the years. In the late 1970s and early 80s, they abandoned the hoax that 11 individuals had been appointed and empowered by Srila Prabhupada to act as zonal acharyas, but did not openly apologize for this. The GBC allowed these 11 to make their own authority structure as “The Acharya Board” and decreed that only these 11 could be initiating spiritual masters in Iskcon and, in the future, only they could appoint other diksha-gurus. In the later 1980s, after most of the “chosen 11” fell down grossly and/or went insane, these contentions were overturned under mounting pressure from a so-called guru reform movement that decided these 11 “Iskcon acharyas” could no longer be zonal autocrats above the authority of the GBC. The GBC resolved that only a majority vote of the GBC body would have authority to sanction and regulate initiating spiritual masters in Iskcon who could initiate his own disciples in Srila Prabhupada’s mission. They decided that “diksha-gurus” no longer accept elaborate public worship in Iskcon temples and titles and prayers meant for maha-bhagavatas, and tried to reduce the power and ritual status of “Iskcon acharyas” while opening the door for all senior preachers “in good standing” to covet the post of “Iskcon guru.” In these ways clever GBC men quelled the “guru reform movement” within Iskcon. GBC resolutions regarding initiations and guru-tattva have been inconsistent and contradictory. It is hard to find two “Iskcon gurus,” GBC members, or Iskcon devotees with the same views on these topics. New devotees often doubt whether the praises they sing to the spiritual master should be to their so-called Iskcon guru or to Srila Prabhupada. Should they hear primarily from Srila Prabhupada, or more from their “living guru”? Should they offer prayers and worship to a picture of their “guru” on the altar before doing Deity worship or offering food? If so, would he even know? Are all prayers to the spiritual master just ritualistic hyperbole that can be applied to any so-called “guru”? Below is a summary of the GBC’s clearly implied philosophical ideas that are against the teachings of Srila Prabhupada and we have provided the correct understanding of guru-tattva and diksha according to the Srila Prabhupada’s instructions. Authorized references are cited at the end, which are only a few of 100’s of similar references throughout Srila Prabhupada’s books.

(1) GBC: The spiritual master is self-made or nominated by his peers or followers and sanctioned by the GBC, an ecclesiastical board. There is no need for a direct, specific order from Srila Prabhupada to become a diksha-guru in Iskcon. Srila Prabhupada’s siddhanta (SPS): “A guru can become guru when he is ordered by his guru. That’s all. Otherwise nobody can become guru.” (# 1, 2, 10) (2) GBC: Srila Prabhupada authorized the GBC to sanction and dismiss diksha-gurus in ISKCON. SPS: “Mundane votes have no jurisdiction to elect a Vaishnava acharya. A Vaishnava acharya is self-effulgent, and there is no need of any court judgment.” Prabhupada authorized the GBC to select (or dismiss) representatives (ritviks), who initiate on His behalf. No one can be a diksha-guru without the direct order of Krishna or His perfect devotee and no ecclesiastic board can appoint or dismiss bona fide spiritual masters. (#1, 2, 10, 15) (3) GBC: Lord Chaitanya gave a blanket order for every devotee to initiate his own disciples. SPS: “Vallabha Bhatta wanted to be initiated by Gadadhara Pandita, but Gadadhara Pandita refused, saying, ‘The work of acting as a spiritual master is not possible for me. I am completely dependent. My Lord is Gauracandra, Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. I cannot do anything independently, without His order.’ ” Srila Gaurakishora said the same to Srila Bhaktisiddhanta. Lord

Chaitanya ordered His followers to become “gurus” by asking everyone they meet to chant Hare Krishna. He never ordered all devotees to initiate their own disciples. Many great devotees never initiated disciples. (#2, 3) (4) GBC: Those who are not self-realized souls/ topmost Vaishnavas can be diksha-gurus if the GBC approves. SPS: “Only a topmost devotee, a maha-bhagavata, is eligible to occupy the post of guru.” (#4) (5) GBC: A spiritual master may sometimes fall down and become demoniac. SPS: “There is no possibility that a first-class devotee will fall down...” -- “The bona fide spiritual master is in the disciplic succession since time immemorial.” (#6, 8)

(6) GBC: A student of Krishna consciousness may select any spiritual master, according to his or her personal tastes and the ecclesiastical conventions current in Iskcon. SPS: “Sri Jiva Goswami advised that one not accept a spiritual master in terms of hereditary or customary social and ecclesiastical conventions. One should simply try to find a genuinely qualified spiritual master for actual advancement in spiritual understanding.” (#8) (7) GBC: Iskcon gurus who have fallen down, if rectified, may be reinstated by the GBC. SPS: “A bona fide spiritual master is in the disciplic succession from time eternal, and he does not deviate at all from the instructions of the Supreme Lord.” (#10) (8) GBC: There are various levels of spiritual masters, or diksha-gurus, and not all are uttama-adhikaris. SPS: “The spiritual master is always considered either one of the confidential associates of Radharani or a manifested representation of Sri Nityananda.” Only such a liberated Vaishnava can impart transcendental knowledge into the heart of a disciple. (#4, 7, 11) (9) GBC: The bona fide spiritual master dies, like all mortal men, and thus becomes “posthumous” and thus useless in the matter of initiating and guiding students of Krishna consciousness. SPS: “The spiritual master is eternal...” “He lives forever through his divine instructions, and his follower lives with him.” “He reasons ill who tells that Vaishnavas die!” (#12) (10) GBC: One must accept as one’s diksha-guru a man (or woman!) who is living. A posthumous spiritual master, one dead and gone, cannot offer diksha and impart transcendental knowledge. SPS: “The spiritual master is eternal.” “Although a physical body is not present, the vibration should be accepted as the presence of the spiritual master. Vibration- what we have heard from the spiritual master- that is living.” (#10, 12) (11) GBC: Students of Krishna consciousness whose spiritual masters have fallen from grace with the GBC may shop around for another Iskcon guru and accept “re-initiation” as many times as required for them to find an “Iskcon guru” who is steady. SPS: “A devotee must have only one initiating spiritual master because in the scriptures acceptance of more than one is always forbidden.” (CC Mad 22.71 purport)

(12) GBC: Every senior Iskcon devotee, even a dependent woman or a neophyte with no ability to preach, is eligible to initiate his or her own disciples in Iskcon. Srila Prabhupada, however, is ineligible because he cannot posthumously offer diksha. One needs a guru who is alive. A fully transcendental guru with a spiritual body is useless in the matter of initiating devotees after his demise. SPS: “The spiritual master is eternal.” He is not limited by material considerations of time and space. “A perfect Vaishnava is all-powerful, just like the Supreme Lord.” (#7, 12, 13) (13) GBC: Not all of Srila Prabhupada’s instructions and orders are to be accepted literally or permanently. Some may be interpreted, altered, edited--or rejected as being outdated. For instance, His final order on initiations (July 9, 1977), which he ordered sent to all ISKCON leaders and temples, is now obsolete and must therefore be rejected in favor of the current system for initiations created by the GBC. SPS: “They did even consider with common sense- that if Guru Maharaja wanted to appoint somebody as acharya, why he did not say? He said so many things, and this point he missed? The real point? And they insisted upon it. They declared some unfit person to become acharya. And then another—‘Acharya!’ Another- ‘Acharya!’ (SPConv Aug. 1976) A genuine disciple of the spiritual master always accepts his instructions wholeheartedly and without speculation. He never tries to dodge, ignore, argue against or subvert the acharya’s instructions. (#7, 12, 13, 14) (14) GBC: At the time of his demise, Srila Prabhupada’s instructions and ideas regarding the future of initiations in ISKCON were vague or contradictory. He left it to the GBC to sort out the details. SPS: “I shall recommend some of you...to act as representatives of the Acharya. Ritvik, yes.” Srila Prabhupada specifically responded to the question of how initiations would be continued in ISKCON after his departure by dictating, reviewing and signing an official directive establishing ritvik representative initiations. He ordered that this directive be sent to all leaders and GBC members in ISKCON. Ritvik representative initiations were nothing new for ISKCON. The ritvik system of initiations and all standards had been current in ISKCON for several years prior. Nonetheless, through this official directive and numerous conversations thereafter, Srila Prabhupada clarified it in detail and institutionalized the procedure to operate without his personal supervision. There is nothing vague or contradictory in His numerous instructions. (#15)

(15) GBC: Iskcon is meant for recruiting disciples for living Iskcon gurus. Those who claim to be direct disciples or aspiring direct disciples of Srila Prabhupada are deviant upstarts if they joined Iskcon after 1977. In the history of Vedic culture posthumous ritvik initiations have never been seen. SPS: In Srimad-Bhagavatam and other Puranas there are many stories of ritvik priests conducting Vedic sacrifices under the auspices of a great rishis who were not present on the same planet. There are no injunctions anywhere barring so-called “posthumous” ritvik representative initiations. Prabhupada clearly stated that all ISKCON leaders and trustees now and in the future must be “my initiated disciples.” (See Prabhupada’s “Final Order on Initiations,” July 9th, 1977, Srila Prabhupada’s “Final Will,” “Directions for Management” and May 28, 1977 Conversation. (16) GBC: Post-1977 Iskcon devotees may accept Prabhupada as their instructing guru and param-guru, but they need to take initiation from a living guru to get Prabhupada’s blessings and mercy. SPS: Srila Prabhupada as founder-acharya is both the diksha-guru and siksha-guru for all serious students of Krishna consciousness. Advanced disciples may also act as “instructing guru” by teaching devotees to accept Srila Prabhupada and follow his instructions. (#8, 15, 16) (17) GBC: Vaishnava gurus are ordinary men who make common mistakes, and even great devotees sometimes become degraded under the Lord’s external maya-shakti. SPS: “One should consider the Acharya to be as good as the Supreme Personality of Godhead. In spite of these instructions, if one considers the spiritual master an ordinary human being, one is doomed. His study of the Vedas and his austerities and penances for enlightenment are useless, like the bathing of an elephant.” (#5, 9) (18) GBC: Although Srila Prabhupada accepted what he had at the time, his books had many errors. Although hundreds of senior devotees have happily chanted these verses and translations in Prabhupada’s presence and afterwards for many years, these sayings needed several revisions done by expert pundits. SPS: “These rascal editors, they are doing great havoc, and they [Jayadvaita, Dravida?] are being maintained by Ramesvara and party... And this rascal is always after change- Radha-vallabha- he’s a great rascal.” “Mistakes, illusions, cheating, and defective perception do not occur in the sayings of authoritative sages.” (#14, 5)

(19) GBC: Unless the GBC sanctions diksha-gurus, the disciplic succession cannot continue. Srila Prabhupada is dead and gone; he cannot initiate or order anyone to become guru. SPS: The guru-parampara is continued not by the manipulations of blind clerics but by genuine disciples. When repeatedly asked who would be His successor, Srila Prabhupada replied, “My success is always there. Yes. Just like the sun is there always. It may come before your vision or not- the sun is there. But if you are fortunate you come before the sun... The sun is open to everyone.” (SPConv Feb. 12, 1975) “Only Lord Chaitanya can take my place. He will take care of the movement.” (SPConv Nov. 2, 1977) (#7) (20) GBC: Srila Prabhupada was not poisoned, even though he had all the external symptoms of being poisoned, and even though he specifically pointed out that someone had said he was given poison. Srila Prabhupada was mistaken, and all the inconclusive corroborating evidence that seem to confirm his statements can be rejected. No need for further investigations. SPS: “Someone said poison was given [to me].” “Killed by Ravana or killed by Rama. Better to be killed by Rama.” “Better to kill me here [in Vrindaban rather than at a Delhi hospital].” “This is also suicide [staying in room under care of secretary and servant].” Srila Prabhupada noted that he had all the symptoms of one who is being poisoned, that he heard someone say he was given poison, and this was confirmed by at least three doctors and several forensics tests. Also the conspirators were caught on tape, talking about putting poison. Therefore it is logical to assume, based on Srila Prabhupada’s condition and statements, someone tried to kill him with poison. (#5)

SUMMARY CONCLUSIONS: It is truly said, “One bad apple spoils the bunch!” In this case, at least three or four bad apples polluted the entire GBC body, most Iskcon leaders and most senior preachers. Due to the poisonous ideas introduced by a few foolish individuals, leaders in Iskcon, following illicit advice from deviant Gaudiya Math leaders, diverted this great institution from the correct understanding of Gaudiya Vaishnava siddhanta and sadhana-bhakti, particularly with regards to guru-tattva and diksha. Immediately after Srila Prabhupada’s disappearance, top GBC leaders began consulting Gaudiya math leaders for the purpose of circumventing Srila Prabhupada’s instructions on initiations, although Srila Prabhupada had clearly forbid them from consulting those whom he held responsible for disobeying the orders of Srila Bhaktisiddhanta and his mission regarding the same issues. Similarly, the GBC consulted outside Brahmins and a couple self-proclaimed iskcon pundits for the purpose of changing Srila Prabhupada’s standards of Deity worship and His books.

In the later part of the 1980s, the GBC officially banned all scriptural and philosophical discussions on the topic of initiations in ISKCON and labeled all devotees who wanted to follow Srila Prabhupada’s system for ritvik initiations as heretics, fools or fallen demons. Today the Iskcon GBC is comprised mostly of disciples and followers of “Iskcon gurus.” Most GBC members and “Iskcon acharyas” from the 1980s have been killed, kicked out, have gone insane, or fallen completely from the path of Krishna consciousness. Others are preaching a sahajiya hodge-podge of Krishna consciousness and Hinduism. (Only one former “zonal acharya” has admitted his mistake and rectified it.) On the other hand, by Krishna’s grace, almost all of the original proponents for Srila Prabhupada’s ritvik system are still actively preaching Krishna consciousness as it is, along with hundreds of newer devotees all over the world who are doing the same. Some devotees ask, “What is the harm if I accept an Iskcon guru as my so-called diksha-guru as long as I follow Srila Prabhupada’s instructions?” The problem with this approach is that it involves conceding dangerous philosophical misconceptions and contradictions. It involves impure diet and association. The GBC’s disobedience is not an innocent blunder but rather a deliberate conspiracy to utilize Srila Prabhupada’s mission for personal prestige and gain. Such motives have polluted maya-iskcon with false ambition, which is the original cause of every jiva-atma falling into the material world. Such ambitions in maya-iskcon have led to wholesale guru-aparadha, Vaishnava-aparadha and sadhu-ninda. Srila Prabhupada’s name, fame, temples and institutions are being exploited by deviant upstarts, and his important teachings are being twisted, minimized or ignored by Iskcon leaders as official policy.

REFERENCES: (1) “Mundane votes have no jurisdiction the elect a Vaishnava acharya. A Vaishnava acharya is self-effulgent, and there is no need of any court judgment.” (CC Mad 1.220 pt) (2) “A guru can become guru when he is ordered by his guru. That’s all. Otherwise nobody can become guru.” (SPL Oct. 28 ‘75) (3) “Vallabha Bhatta wanted to be initiated by Gadadhara Pandita, but Gadadhara Pandita refused, saying, ‘The work of acting as a spiritual master is not possible for me. I am completely dependent. My Lord is Gaurachandra, Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. I cannot do anything independently, without His order.’” (CC Ant 7.150-1) Gaurakishora Das Babaji said the same thing to Srila Bhaktisiddhanta. (4) “When one has attained the topmost position of maha-bhagavata, he is to be accepted as guru and worshiped exactly like Hari, the personality of Godhead. Only such a person is eligible to occupy the post of guru.” (CCMad 24.330 pt) (5) “Mistakes, illusions, cheating, and defective perception do not occur in the sayings of authoritative sages.” (CC Adi 2.86) (6) “A bona fide spiritual master is in the disciplic succession from time eternal, and he does not deviate at all from the instructions of the Supreme Lord...” (BGita 4.42 pt) (7) “He opens my darkened eyes and fills my heart with transcendental knowledge. He is my lord birth after birth. From him ecstatic prema emanates; by him ignorance is destroyed. The Vedic scriptures sing of his character.” (Sri Guru Vandana, 3) (8) “Srila Jiva Goswami advised that one not accept a spiritual master in terms of hereditary or customary social and ecclesiastical conventions. One should simply try to find a genuinely qualified spiritual master for actual advancement in spiritual understanding.” (CC Adi 1.35 pt) “One should take initiation from a bona fide spiritual master coming in disciplic succession who is authorized by his predecessor spiritual master. This is called diksha-vidhana. (BGita 4.8.54 pt) (9) “There is no possibility that a first-class devotee will fall down...” (CC Mad 22.71 pt) (10) “A bona fide spiritual master is in the disciplic succession from time eternal, and does not deviate at all from the instructions of the Supreme Lord...” (BGita

4.42 pt) (11) “The spiritual master is always considered either one of the confidential associates of Radharani or a manifested representation of Sri Nityananda.” (CC Adi 1.46 pt) (12) “The spiritual master is not the question of [‘living’ or ‘dead’]... The spiritual master is eternal--the spiritual master is eternal.” (SP Lecture Oct. 2 ‘68) “I will never die. I shall live from my books, and you will utilize.” (SP Interview, July 16, 1975) “Although a physical body is not present, the vibration should be accepted as the presence of the spiritual master. Vibration—what we have heard from the spiritual master—that is living.” (SP Lecture Jan. 13 ‘69) “One should consider the Acharya to be as good as the Supreme Personality of Godhead. In spite of these instructions, if one considers the spiritual master an ordinary human being, one is doomed. His study of the Vedas and his austerities and penances for enlightenment are useless, like the bathing of an elephant.” (SBhag 7.15.26 pt) (13) “Regarding the disciplic succession, there is nothing to wonder for big gaps. We have to pick up from the prominent acharya and follow from him.” (SPL Apr. 12 ‘68.) “...one has to associate with the liberated persons not directly, physically, but by understanding, through philosophy and logic...” (SBhag 3.31 pt.) “Although the physical body is not present, the vibration should be accepted as the presence of the spiritual master. Vibration--what we have heard from the spiritual master --that is ‘living’.” (SP Lecture Jan. 13 ‘69) (14) “So we follow that ‘No Change Policy’. Not that because I think I have become now advanced, I change this to that. That means I am not advanced. My knowledge is imperfect. Therefore I am changing.” (15) “They did even consider with common sense- that if Guru Maharaja wanted to appoint somebody as acharya, why he did not say? He said so many things, and this point he missed? The real point? And they insisted upon it. The declared some unfit person to become acharya. And then another- ‘Acharya!’ Another- ‘Acharya!’ So better to remain a foolish [simple] person perpetually to be directed by Guru Maharaja. That is perfection. And as soon as he [the upstart] learns that Guru Maharaja is dead, ‘Now I am so advanced that I can kill my guru and I become guru.’ Then he’s finished.” (Aug. 16 ‘76) “If everyone just initiates, then there will only be contradictory results. As long as it goes on there will only be failure.” (SP poem 1961) “I shall recommend some of you to act as officiating acharyas. Ritvik. Yes.” (SP Conv May 28 ‘77) -- “So, deputies... These initiations -I have deputed my disciples. Is it clear or not?” (SP Conv Oct. 18 ‘77) See “Final Order on Initiations” July 9 ‘77 (16) “I am the initiator guru, and you should be the instructor guru by teaching what I am teaching and doing what I am doing. This is not a title, but you should actually come to this platform. This I want.” (SPL Aug. 4 ‘75) (END)

MAYA’S LAST SNARE: THE ORIGINAL SIN AGAIN (By Narasimha das)

It will be difficult to properly understand the controversy in ISKCON regarding spiritual initiations and the bona fide spiritual master unless we first carefully consider the fundamentals of guru-tattva and authorized explanations regarding the cause of conditioned consciousness.

WHEN GOOD PREACHERS GO BAD: I read in a BTG magazine (Jan./Feb. 1996) three brilliant articles regarding the question, “How does the living entity, who was originally with Krishna, fall into the material world?” The first two were by Srila Prabhupada, the other by one of his disciples. Quoting Srila Prabhupada extensively, the latter author elaborates upon and helps emphasize Srila Prabhupada’s conclusion: the jiva soul has no real or substantial contact with matter at any stage; rather he exists eternally as part and parcel of Krishna in the spiritual world. His conditioning under the modes of material nature is simply a momentary dream arranged by Krishna’s external energy to help fulfill his minute, independent desire, or his false ambition to be the Lord. In spite of this brief dream, the soul remains part and parcel of Krishna eternally. This is one topic of Krishna consciousness that is a difficult one for embodied souls to understand, but Srila Prabhupada resolves the topic as simply as possible in his two articles (a lecture and an essay), and the other BTG author elaborates brilliantly, as Srila Prabhupada wanted his disciples to do when writing and preaching. This devotee expertly illustrated that material time is insignificant when compared to eternity, and although not a self-realized soul, as I will show below, did his duty as a preacher and representative of Srila Prabhupada. “I am the initiator guru and you should be the instructor guru by teaching what I am teaching and doing what I am doing. This is not a title, but you must actually come to this platform. This I want.” (SPL Aug. 4, 1975)

Srila Prabhupada credited one of his senior, learned Godbrothers with playing an integral part, through his misleading preaching and speculation, in creating the debacle that ruined the once vibrant and powerful mission created by Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati. Similarly, many sober devotees credit the writings of this same intelligent BTG writer (above) with playing a key part in the creation of the current bogus system of voted in “gurus” that has severely divided and weakened Srila Prabhupada’s institution, ISKCON. The question arises: “How it is possible that many seemingly intelligent devotees have gone along with this unauthorized system of ecclesiastical elections for sanctioning and reprimanding so-called diksha-gurus, a system which is obviously in direct defiance of Srila Prabhupada’s written and verbal orders and in direct defiance of the Gaudiya siddhanta on guru-tattva?” For those who have carefully studied Srila Prabhupada’s books, it may seem amazing that some of these devotees have been able to go on, in some fashion, with devotional service. A few of these misguided devotees seem able to continue preaching the holy name and serving in brilliant ways, even though they are unable to understand some of Srila Prabhupada’s most important instructions regarding sad-guru, guru-parampara, great Vaishnavas, and the mission and teachings of the Krishna consciousness movement.

It may seem that the question, “How did Srila Prabhupada’s empowered and united ISKCON become fragmented by many deviant camps?” is as difficult to understand as the question “How did liberated souls fall into illusion in this material world?” In fact, looking closer, this question is far easier to resolve, that is, if one has already understood, at least in principle, how conditioned souls come under the influence of the Supreme Lord’s external energy. Following the example of the BTG writer referred to above, I will attempt to resolve this latter question by elaborating upon and emphasizing Srila Prabhupada’s explanations and conclusions.

IMITATORS BEWARE: In a nutshell, the reason those who are almost liberated or theoretically liberated fall into maya again is because they are not in fact completely liberated but only imagine themselves to be so. Instead of learning to remain forever as the humble followers of Lord Chaitanya’s or Lord Krishna’s nitya-siddha parishads, they try to imitate them. This is due to false ambition. This same principle applies even to great demigods like Lord Brahma. (1) “There is a gulf of difference between theoretical freedom and actual freedom from material bondage.” (SBhag 3.27.20 purport) (2) “A nitya-siddha devotee comes from Vaikuntha upon the order of the Supreme Personality of Godhead and shows by his personal example how to become a pure devotee. A pure devotee, therefore, is a practical example for all living entities, including Lord Brahma.” (SBhag 7.10.3 purport) (3) “As soon as a foolish disciple tries to overtake his spiritual master and becomes ambitious to occupy his post, he immediately falls down.” (SBhag 5.12.14 purport.) (4) “However, one should not imitate the behavior of an advanced devotee or maha-bhagavata without being self-realized, for by such imitation one will eventually become degraded.” (NOI, 5 purport) (5) “One should not try to be an artificially advanced devotee, thinking, ‘I am a first-class devotee.’ Such thinking should be avoided. It best not to accept any disciples.” (CC Mad 7.130 purport) (6) “They did even consider with common sense—that if Guru Maharaja wanted to appoint somebody as acharya, why he did not say? He said so many things, and this point he missed? The real point? And they insisted upon it. The declared some unfit person to become acharya. And then another-‘Acharya!’ Another-‘Acharya!’ So better to remain a foolish [simple] person perpetually to be directed by Guru Maharaja. That is perfection. And as soon as he learns that Guru Maharaja is dead, ‘Now I am so advanced that I can kill my guru and I become guru.’ Then he’s finished.” (SPConv Aug. 16, 1976)

A BRIEF HISTORY POST-1977 ISKCON: Anyone who knows anything about the history of ISKCON understands that immediately upon Srila Prabhupada’s disappearance from this world, or even before, some of his leading disciples conspired to claim that they had been chosen by Srila Prabhupada to be his successors and act as diksha-gurus, or acharyas. They claimed they were chosen to lead the movement and initiate new disciples joining the mission of Krishna consciousness as their own disciples. After several of these supposedly chosen successor acharyas were exposed for gross deviations, many devotees began to question their absolute authority and their alleged appointment by Srila Prabhupada. As it turned out, when all evidence was analyzed, no instruction was found from Srila Prabhupada naming these or any others as guru successors. Nor could be found any instruction suggesting the GBC should sanction diksha-gurus. Rather Srila Prabhupada had sanctioned only ritviks to initiate on his behalf. The ritvik system of initiations had been current in ISKCON for several years prior, and just before his departure from this world, Srila Prabhupada instituted it officially to operate without His direct supervision. He did this by the written order dated July 9, 1977. Srila Prabhupada ordered that this signed document be sent to Los Angeles to be copied and sent to all ISKCON temples and GBCs. Apparently this signed document was largely squashed by conspirators, but in the months following, Prabhupada confirmed this order several times in letters and conversations. Most devotees never saw this July 9 order until 13 years later. Unfortunately, Srila Prabhupada's final order on initiations and similar written and verbal instructions regarding ritvik representative initiations were buried for years by Iskcon's top brass. Then, in 1988-90, a popular devotee magazine (Vedic Village Review) published these instructions and distributed them widely. At this point, due to the widespread effect this publication was having on popular opinion, various leading GBC men began a campaign to minimize Srila Prabhupada's final order on initiations, claiming it was a temporary stop-gap instruction only. The doubt they deliberately created was the beginning of wide-scale guru-aparadha in the maya-ISKCON, particularly among leading GBC men. GBC spokesmen argued that if this order was to be taken seriously, the disciplic succession could not continue. Such doubtful arguments revealed the GBC's shallow understanding of the disciplic succession, which is continued by genuine disciples and self-realized souls -not by ecclesiastical arrangements for sanctioning upstart "gurus." They argued that the original 11 appointed ritviks mentioned in Prabhupada's final order on initiations had misunderstood their appointment as ritviks to be appointments as successor acharyas and for this reason they had created an exclusive club of so-called zonal acharyas. While agreeing that this was a mistake, the GBC continued to vehemently argue that a "nonliving" guru, a guru without a physical body, cannot possibly continue initiating disciples after his demise, and therefore some system of authorizing new diksha-gurus was needed in ISKCON.

BAD APPLES SPOIL THE BUNCH: With false logic and word jugglery certain leading pundits among the GBC gradually convinced many of their colleagues that they too could become Srila Prabhupada's successors and initiate their own disciples in ISKCON -even though they had not been appointed by Srila Prabhupada, even though they were not self-realized souls, even though Srila Prabhupada had never suggested any institutional system for sanctioning diksha-gurus. Blinded by false ambition, they argued that since Srila Prabhupada was now dead and gone, the GBC was the new absolute authority in ISKCON and this ecclesiastical body should therefore sanction or approve new diksha-gurus. When asked where in shastras or Srila Prabhupada's instructions is it said that diksha-gurus are nominated, voted in, self-appointed, or sanctioned by clerics, they claimed that Lord Chaitanya had already issued a blanket order for all preachers to become gurus and initiate their own disciples in the Krishna consciousness movement. When asked why, then, did devotees need sanction from the GBC to initiate, since Srila Prabhupada himself had not sanctioned any diksha-gurus or suggested any system for doing so, they claimed that as a matter of formality and for the sake of maintaining order in ISKCON, preachers should first apply to the GBC for permission to initiate.

In official GBC documents and essays, these arrogant clerics stepped up their campaign to deliberately minimize Srila Prabhupada's instructions for ritvik representative initiations, minimize his position as Acharya of ISKCON, and minimize his status as Sampradaya Acharya and Sad-Guru by suggesting that he was just one more temporary teacher in a long line of gurus and disciples. In this way, intoxicated by false ambition, most leading preachers in maya-ISKCON became infected with guru-aparadha. Some also fell into the last snare of maya, which is to think oneself equal to Krishna or His empowered expansions. "As soon as a foolish disciple tries to overtake his spiritual master and becomes ambitious to occupy his post, he immediately falls down." (SBhag 5.12.14 purport.) "However, one should not imitate the behavior of an advanced devotee or maha-bhagavata without being self-realized, for by such imitation one will eventually become degraded." (NOI 5)

Although the maya-gbc has changed its stance repeatedly over the years, today they say that anyone in Iskcon in good standing (except Srila Prabhupada) can adopt the post of diksha-guru in the Krishna consciousness movement, if approved by the GBC, and may even conduct ritvik representative initiations, as long as Srila Prabhupada is not accepted as the initiator. (See "Idol Worship in Iskcon?" at www.krishnaconsciousnessmovement.com) Simply by volunteering, any devotee in Iskcon with a physical body, even a dependent woman, can become a pseudo diksha-guru, as long as the gbc approves. This idea contradicts the specific orders and sadhana SP established for initiations. Furthermore, such an idea contradicts the siddhanta of all Vaishnava shastras. The entire gbc stance regarding the issue of guru-tattva in Iskcon boils down to one absurd idea: "The nitya-siddha associate of Krishna, an empowered pure devotee who has an eternal transcendental body, is unable to initiate, yet neophyte sadhakas with gross material bodies are able to do so, as long as the GBC approves."

INSTRUCTIONS ON GURU-TATTVA: Below I have provided a few examples illustrating the actual Gaudiya Vaishnava siddhanta on guru-tattva: (1) "Vallabha Bhatta wanted to be initiated by Gadadhara Pandita, but Gadadhara Pandita refused, saying, 'The work of acting as a spiritual master is not possible for me. I am completely dependent. My Lord is Gaurasundara, Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. I cannot do anything independently, without His order.'" (CC Ant 150) (2) "Try to understand. Don't go very speedily. A guru can become guru when he is ordered by his guru. Otherwise nobody can become guru." (SPConv Oct. 28, 1975) (3) "When one has attained the topmost position of maha-bhagavata, he is to be accepted as guru and worshiped exactly like Hari, the personality of Godhead. Only such a person is eligible to occupy the post of a guru." (CC Mad 24.330 purport) (4) "One should not try to be an artificially advanced devotee, thinking, 'I am a first-class devotee.' Such thinking should be avoided. It best not to accept any disciples." (CC Mad 7.130 purport)

These quotes above clearly show that the maya-GBC's claim that anyone can initiate simply because they seem to be following the basic sadhana is false. The first quote disproves the maya-GBC's claim that Lord Chaitanya issued a blanket order for everyone to become a diksha-guru. If one of the Sri Panca-Tattva needs an order to initiate His own disciple, then what to speak of others? In truth, Lord Chaitanya simply ordered devotees to preach Krishna consciousness in a humble way by speaking whatever they knew about Krishna consciousness to whomever they happened to meet. Thus Prabhupada and our great Gaudiya Vaishnava acharyas have advised, "It is best not to accept any disciples." The quotes below, and many others, prove that the bona fide spiritual master does not require an appointment/ sanction from embodied souls or ecclesiastical clerical bodies. Rather, the true spiritual master is chosen and personally empowered by Krishna and His expansions in the category of infallible guru-tattva. These quotes below also prove that a genuine spiritual master or nitya-siddha Vaishnava, such as SP, is not an embodied soul with a temporary material body, as the maya-GBC has repeatedly suggested by claiming that Srila Prabhupada cannot initiate disciples "posthumously." (1) "The bona fide spiritual master is in the disciplic succession since time eternal, and he does not deviate at all from the instructions of the Supreme Lord." (BGita 4.42 purport.) (2) "He reasons ill who tells that Vaishnavas die, when Thou art living still in sound." (Bhaktivinoda Thakura) (3) "He lives forever by His divine instructions and the follower lives with Him." (Dedication, SBhag)

The quotes below contradict the maya-GBC's claim that new students in Krishna consciousness should be satisfied to surrender heart and soul to a rubber-stamped pseudo-guru sanctioned by neophyte clerics. These quotes also show that true diksha is not a matter of ecclesiastical or ritualistic traditions. (1) "Unless one is initiated by a bona fide spiritual master, all his devotional activities are useless. A person who is not properly initiated can descend again into the animal species." (CC Mad 15.108 purport) (2) "Jiva Goswami has advised that one not accept a spiritual master in terms of hereditary or customary social or ecclesiastical conventions. One should try to find a genuinely qualified spiritual master for actual advancement in spiritual understanding." (CC Adi 1.35 purport) (3) "Diksha actually means initiating the disciple with transcendental knowledge by which he becomes freed from all material contamination." (CC Mad 4.111) (4) "The spiritual master awakens the sleeping living entity to his original pure consciousness so that he can worship Lord Vishnu. This is the purpose of diksha, or initiation. Initiation means receiving pure knowledge of spiritual consciousness.” (CC Mad 9.61) (5) “Unless one is initiated by the right person who always carries within his heart the Supreme Personality of Godhead, one cannot acquire the power to carry the Supreme Personality of Godhead within the core of one’s heart.” (SBhag 10.2.18) (6) “Therefore a disciple should be careful to accept an uttama-adhikari as spiritual master.” (NOI 5 purport.) (7) “...help can be given only by a spiritual master like Krishna. Therefore the conclusion is that a spiritual master who is one hundred percent Krishna conscious is the bona fide spiritual master, for he can solve the problems of life.” (BGita 2.8 prt)

SEVERE OFFENDERS: Srila Prabhupada prophetically warned of those who would envy the exalted status of the spiritual master: “And as soon as he learns that Guru Maharaja is dead, ‘Now I am so advanced that I can kill my guru and I become guru.’ Then he’s finished.” (SPConv Aug. 16, 1976) After many of the maya-GBC’s artificially sanctioned diksha-gurus fell down in bizarre ways or left the movement or exhibited strange behavior not befitting Vaishnavas or even ordinary karmis, the maya-GBC tried to explain these falldowns by claiming that highly advanced Vaishnava acharyas often fall into maya and therefore no one should blame the GBC for these events and the traumas in the spiritual lives of thousands of devotees these bogus pretenders caused. The maya-GBC’s claims regarding so-called falldowns of great Vaishnavas are too offensive to repeat here without a full treatment (see “Sri Guru-tattva 101: A Brief Primer”) In brief, such statements are proof that the entire maya-GBC has been contaminated by blasphemy and severe offenses to Srila Prabhupada, the guru-parampara, and all devotees in Srila Prabhupada’s mission. (1) “There is no possibility that a first-class devotee will fall down...” (CC Mad 22.71 purport) (2) “A bona fide spiritual master is in the disciplic succession from time eternal, and he does not deviate at all from the instructions of the Supreme Lord...” (BGita 4.42 purport) (3) “A first-class devotee never deviates from the principles of higher authority...” (NOD Ch 3.)

Instead of encouraging all students of Krishna consciousness to accept the infallible, current Sampradaya Acharya, Srila Prabhupada, as their diksha-guru, as Srila Prabhupada wanted, the maya-gbc has repeatedly claimed Srila Prabhupada is dead and that devotees who have joined His mission after 1977 need to accept a GBC rubber-stamped “diksha-guru” instead of Srila Prabhupada. Such ideas are refuted here: (1) “The spiritual master is not the question of [‘living’]... The spiritual master is eternal—the spiritual master is eternal.” (SPlecture Oct. 2, 1968) (2) “He lives forever by His divine instructions and the follower lives with Him.” (Dedication SBhag) (3) “When one has attained the topmost position of maha-bhagavata, he is to be accepted as guru and worshiped exactly like Hari, the personality of Godhead. Only such a person is eligible to occupy the post of a guru.” (CC Mad 24.330 purport) (4) “If everyone just initiates, then there will only be contradictory results. As long as it goes on there will only be failure.” (SP poem 1961)

Srila Prabhupada said about how initiations would continue after was no longer with us: (1) “I shall recommend some of you to act as officiating acharyas. Ritvik. Yes.” (SP May 28, 1977) (2) “So, some deputies... These initiations, I have deputed my disciples. Is it clear or not?” (SP Oct 18, ‘77)

When asked if he could accept offerings through his picture or murti, as Lord Krishna does, Srila Prabhupada replied: (1) “Yes. Sakshad-dharitena samasta-shastrair. The guru is non-different than Krishna.” (SP Oct. 27, 1975) (2) “Like Krishna can be present simultaneously in millions of places, similarly the spiritual master also can be present wherever the disciple wants.” (SPL May 28, 1968)

The quotes below disprove the maya-GBC’s claim that Srila Prabhupada is dead and gone and thus no longer able to initiate new disciples. (1) “Although a physical body is not present, the vibration should be accepted as the presence of the spiritual master. Vibration—what we have heard from the spiritual master—that is living.” (SPlecture Jan. 13, 1969) (2) “The spiritual master is not the question of [‘living’]... The spiritual master is eternal—the spiritual master is eternal.” (SPlecture Oct. 2, 1968) (3) “I will never die. I shall live from my books, and you will utilize.” (SP Interview July 16, 1975) (4) “Only Lord Chaitanya can take my place. He will take care of the movement.” (SPConv Nov. 7, 1977)

From these quotes and many others we understand how most leaders in maya-ISKCON fell from an exalted status as servants of the pure devotee, Srila Prabhupada, and became servants of maya instead: they became carried away by false ambition. Simply stated, in Srila Prabhupada's own words, they became "envious of the exalted status of the spiritual master." Srila Prabhupada, as the Supreme Personality of Servitor Godhead, showed the full opulence of guru-tattva and was worshiped and adored by millions of people all over the world. Some of his leading men became ambitious to enjoy an exalted status like Srila Prabhupada's, and they gradually infected many of their colleagues with this same false ambition, and they drove away thousands of sincere souls from Srila Prabhupada's divine mission and divided ISKCON into many branches of bogus cults. They disrupted the sublime mission of Lord Chaitanya, which is based on humble following and surrender rather than aspiration for position, wealth and followers. Na danam, na janam, na sundarim.

AGAIN BECOME A MOUSE: Srila Prabhupada always showed the example of humble following and preached Lord Chaitanya's mission of full surrender to Krishna. He often warned that false ambition could ruin ISKCON as it ruined the Gaudiya Math. False ambition, after all, is the original cause of our fall into material life of birth and death. Srila Prabhupada recognized most of his disciples could not immediately accept Lord Chaitanya's supreme path of pure devotional service, so he created an institution with many positions of responsibility and honor to accommodate devotees who wanted such positions, such as Swami, Goswami, Temple President, GBC, BBT Trustee, Brahmin, Personal Secretary and, finally, Ritvik of the Acharya. But still these ambitious upstarts were not satisfied even with these exalted honors and titles. At last, they tried to force Srila Prabhupada to appoint them as diksha-gurus or acharyas. In spite of their insistence, Srila Prabhupada never agreed to appoint diksha-gurus and never authorized the GBC to appoint or sanction diksha-gurus. The reason Prabhupada never did so is obvious for sane devotees who have understood the fundamentals of Gaudiya Vaishnava siddhanta. Sober devotees should carefully note the fate of upstarts who think they are so advanced that they can defy Srila Prabhupada's orders and imitate or usurp His position. (1) "And as soon as he learns that Guru Maharaja is dead, 'Now I am so advanced that I can kill my guru and I become guru.' Then he's finished." (SPConv Aug. 16, 1976) (2) "On the whole, the spiritual master is an agent of Krishna. Either he is assistant to the gopis or assistant to the cowherd boys. He is on the level of Krishna. That is the verdict of all scriptures." (SPL Sept. 26, 1969) (3) "One should consider the spiritual master to be as good as the Supreme Personality of Godhead. In spite of all of these instructions, if one considers the spiritual master an ordinary human being, he is doomed. His study of the Vedas and his austerities and penances for enlightenment are all useless, like the bathing of an elephant..." (SBhag 7.15.26 purport) (4) "Therefore a disciple should be careful to accept an uttama-adhikari as spiritual master." (NOI 5 purport.)

DISCIPLES OF KALI-YUGA: It would take an entire book to detail the deviations and reactions caused by the post-1977 GBC, the maya-gbc. In their latest display of madness, the maya-ISKCON GBC has repeatedly harassed and attacked Srila Prabhupada's most wonderfully successful temple of devotees, namely Bangalore ISKCON. This temple follows a strict sadhana as Srila Prabhupada prescribed, preaches extensively in Bangalore and many other cities in India and the world, distributes millions of books, and millions of plates of prasada, operates a farm project, and does everything for the pleasure of Srila Prabhupada. The leaders of this temple strictly follow the temple sadhana and help train hundreds of resident devotees and brahmacaris on the devotional path. This temple of fixed-up, vibrant devotees inspires a very large congregation, many of whom are also quickly becoming fixed-up Vaishnavas and followers of Srila Prabhupada. The temple management is expert and efficient. The huge temple complex, which includes temples, book warehouses, ashrams, restaurants, goshala, guesthouses, lecture halls, stores, and other buildings and facilities, is kept immaculately clean. The resident devotees are well provided for and are happily engaged in favorable devotional service under Srila Prabhupada's guidance, and thousands of pilgrims visit daily and receive maha-prasadam and books. In spite of all these wonderful programs and success, the maya-ISKCON has spent huge sums of money in and out of court to disrupt and take over this temple. Why? What is the fault? They want to keep Srila Prabhupada in his rightful place in ISKCON as acharya and diksha-guru, in honor of his orders and instructions. But the maya-ISKCON finds such success based on Srila Prabhupada intolerable. They find it intolerable that this temple, with its many staunch disciples of Srila Prabhupada, rejects the maya-GBC's defiant system of upstart, pseudo-gurus. The maya-gbc finds it intolerable that Srila Prabhupada is alive and well at Bangalore ISKCON.

"A jealous person in the dress of a Vaishnava is not at all happy to see the success of another Vaishnava in receiving the Lord's mercy. Unfortunately, in this Age of Kali there are many mundane persons in the dress of Vaishnavas, and Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakura has described them as disciples of Kali. He says kali-chela. He indicates that there is another Vaishnava, a pseudo-Vaishnava with tilak on his nose and kanthi beads around his neck. Such a pseudo-Vaishnava associates with money and women and is jealous of successful Vaishnavas. Although passing for a Vaishnava, his only business is earning money in the dress of a Vaishnava. Bhaktivinoda Thakura therefore says that such a Vaishnava is not a Vaishnava at all but a disciple of Kali-yuga. A disciple of Kali cannot become an acharya by the decision of some high court. Mundane votes have no jurisdiction to elect a Vaishnava acharya. A Vaishnava acharya is self-effulgent, and there is no need of any court judgment. A false acharya may try to override a Vaishnava by a high-court decision, but Bhaktivinoda Thakura says that he is nothing but a disciple of Kali-yuga." (CC Mad 1.220 purport) This purport illuminates why the maya-gbc has misused so much lakshmi to attack sincere, bona fide Vaishnavas from a project they developed by their sincere devotional efforts over more than two decades. These kali-chela upstarts and their misguided followers see Bangalore ISKCON as a cash cow to be squeezed for their own defiant programs of pseudo-Vaishnavism based on false prestige and false ambition. "I wish that each and every branch keep their independent identity and cooperate, keeping the Acharya in the center. On this principle we can open any number of branches all over the world." (SPL Feb. 11, 1967.)

MAYA'S LAST TRICK: It is said that when a devotee or yogi is liberated, or almost liberated, by dint of pure yoga or devotional service, Maya Devi herself offers him all material facilities beyond his imagination, simply for his wish. It may be concluded that the original sin of the conditioned soul that caused him to fall into conditioned consciousness in the first place is the same propensity that causes him to fall into Maya's last snare, even as he approaches the thresholds of final liberation. Maya's last snare works on those who have not rooted out the original cause of falldown: false ambition. Devotees should not be surprised to find this Kali-yuga dream world is full of cheaters who sometimes pose as gurus and Vaishnavas. We should understand clearly that Srila Prabhupada lives forever by his divine instructions and that his followers live with him. Great Vaishnava acharyas are as infallible as Krishna Himself. By remaining always as humble servants at Srila Prabhupada's lotus feet, anyone can easily transcend the evil influences of material existence and return to Goloka Vrindaban, the supreme spiritual abode. Lord Krishna assures us in the Bhagavad-gita that once having returned to His supreme abode, no one returns again to this problematic world of illusion and cheating. (END)

CHAPTER 192: CONTINUE WITH RITVIK REPRESENTATIVES

CONTINUING ISKCON CRISES DUE TO DISOBEDIENCE OF JULY 9 ORDER

In 2016 underlying differences in ISKCON boiled over again as I guru fiefdoms in ISKCON are by nature competitive with conflicting interests. Extreme resentment over western managers dominating the Mayapur project came to threats of violence and the GBC Chairman Pragosh das was told to depart India lest he be thrown off the upper story railings. He left immediately. The politics of the situation was complicated with several overlapping parties and issues, with pro-Jayapataka, Bengali mafia, Western GBCs, ICC, etc. As long as Srila Prabhupada is not the sole diksha guru in ISKCON, these underlying conflicts will continue and eventually result in the fragmentation of the organization when various gurus secede along with their disciples, temples, funds, etc. It is already fragmented, but on the surface, so far, everyone pretends to be unified. Behind the public façade, there is little unity in ISKCON. Perennially the GBC meetings arrange some committees and efforts to “keep Srila Prabhupada in the center”- but this is simply an empty mantra with no substance and is just to placate the sincere membership. The mask of guru bhakti gives lip service to ISKCON’s Founder-Acharya, but the actual placement of Srila Prabhupada in the center as the sole diksha guru would be unacceptable to the GBC. This has been clear from the dispute between Bangalore and Bombay ISKCONs. It would be futile to compete as guru with Srila Prabhupada. From Satsvarupa’s Autobiography, p.225/289: “He is presenting ideas and programs for keeping Prabhupada in the center of things in ISKCON. He is suggesting ways this can be done so that even the devotees who never met or heard Srila Prabhupada will be able to lecture on his life... I have read NK’s summation of the duties of the Prabhupada Succession Committee... to prevent the fading of Prabhupada’s presence as siksha guru and founder-acharya of ISKCON...” What about ways by which devotees could have Srila Prabhupada as their siksha and diksha guru too, thus avoiding any risk of taking a guru who later falls down or taking a guru who cannot deliver them from maya and back to the spiritual world? That option was given by Srila Prabhupada himself, who knew there were no other options for his followers’ success in spiritual life outside of his mercy. Thus he decided to remain fully available to anyone through his books, instructions, service, deity, photos, videos, which are all non-different from himself.

EVOLUTION OF ISKCON’S GURU SYSTEM

The primary problem in the Hare Krishna movement and ISKCON is the “kill guru, become guru” disease. They poisoned Srila Prabhupada physically, pushed him aside, and then sat in his seat as hoax successor gurus. ISKCON guru policy has evolved in many ways from 1978 onwards, but it is still “old wine in a new bottle,” as the ISKCON diksha gurus are self-appointed, unauthorized, cheaters, and bogus. They are not bona fide gurus. Srila Prabhupada is the bona fide world Acharya. Of course, those who insist on taking self-appointed men as their guru, we only give cautionary arguments of philosophy and shastric evidence. But to have a tyrannical, corrupted elite in a church-like bureaucratized institution dictate and forbid that sincere persons can take Srila Prabhupada as their diksha guru if they choose, is the worst evil. Still, ritvik initiations are essentially what is going on in ISKCON, more or less, although no one wants to admit it, being shrouded in false terminology and distractions. Their initiation system is really an ecclesiastical rtvik initiation, after which one takes advantage of one or more siksha gurus to advance in Krishna consciousness. The problem is the magnitude of offenses against Srila Prabhupada by their “kill guru, become guru” mentality and actions, but fortunately Srila Prabhupada is amazingly kind and tolerant. Looking at the present ISKCON initiation system, one takes initiation from a guru who has already thousands of disciples and who does not have time to devote them, so the disciples seek out siksha gurus, like local leaders and senior devotees. Thus, in ISKCON there are essentially ritvik initiations anyway, but unqualified individuals, pretenders, or kanisthas, are being honored as diksha gurus who steal the worship due Srila Prabhupada, the actual deliverer. This is our misfortune and their doom. ISKCON gurus do this to get money, prestige, power. The present parampara will go on also with siksha gurus and, as is their philosophical misunderstanding, it is not interrupted by a ritvik system.

ARTIFICIAL REPRESSION VS FREE CHOICE

Whenever pressure builds up for a revolution, in politics, in thought, or in a spiritual movement, there is the desire to discard the old regime. However, in restoring Srila Prabhupada’s mission, a very interesting approach is that simply by reinstating the essential and missing ingredient, without directly confronting with the existing regime, the situation will rectify itself. The vast majority of devotees would accept Srila Prabhupada as their diksha guru and direct, current link to the disciplic succession- if they had the free and unrepressed choice. The would happen by the indefatigable law of spiritual attraction and higher taste, and not from force or ecclesiastic mandates. So perhaps, rather than fighting with the guru system that exists in ISKCON today, simply by properly glorifying Srila Prabhupada and revealing how Srila Prabhupada is still available as the current, direct link, even only and initially as an alternative option, then due to Srila Prabhupada being the real McCoy and others not, all false promisers of diksha and divine mercy will die off and fade away. The better mousetrap story. But, some will protest that we would thus be “legitimizing” their fraud.

DHIRA GOVINDA DAS: [...] If we endeavor to present eternal and universal Vaishnava philosophical principles to establish that Srila Prabhupada is, for the duration of his movement, available as the current link to the parampara for those who serve and surrender to him in that capacity, then the essential ingredient is restored. [...] Srila Prabhupada, being a truly empowered acharya, stayed loyal to his predecessor acharyas in preaching Krishna consciousness in its purest form and thus took the scale of preaching to an unprecedented level. Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu’s 500-year-old prophecy that the holy name of Krishna would be sung in every town and village of the planet was realized by the single-handed efforts of Srila Prabhupada. He did not invent anything new. As Srila Prabhupada used to say, “Change means rascaldom.” Nevertheless, it was his sheer spiritual genius that he made various transcendental technical adjustments to suit the current times and circumstances in order to propel the movement of Lord Chaitanya forward. We should never confuse such unconventional measures with deviation from disciplic conclusion. One such adjustment was the stipulation of chanting 16 rounds a day, when originally it was 64. Another is the ritvik system of conducting initiations. It is very unfortunate that ISKCON leaders have not yet been able to admit Srila Prabhupada’s ability, authority, right, and power to enact and maintain such a system for the indefinite future. (1) “This is the symptom of an acharya. An acharya who comes for the service of the Lord cannot be expected to conform to a stereotype, for he must find the ways and means by which Krishna consciousness may be spread.” (CC Adi 7.31-32 purport) (2) “Every acharya has a specific means of propagating his spiritual movement with the aim of bringing men to Krishna consciousness. Therefore, the method of one acharya may be different from that of another, but the ultimate goal is never neglected.” (SBhag 7.1.32) (3) “An acharya should devise a means by which people may somehow or other come to Krishna consciousness.” (CC Adi 7.37 purport) (END)

THE IRRESISTABILITY OF THE TRUTH IN THE FACE OF REPRESSION

Vaishnava Journal by Padmapani das started the “ritvik” discussion in 1987. The officiating acharya method of post-1977 ISKCON initiations was fully uncovered in 1989 by Vedic Village Review, a publication which in June 1990 first published the hidden July 9 letter. From this, even in the face of aggressive resistance and repression from ISKCON misleaders, the acceptance of Srila Prabhupada as the current and direct link (terms which came later) spread quickly. With The Final Order by Krishnakant in 1996, a clear explanation of the evidence for ritvik representatives as Srila Prabhupada’s agents for granting diksha became widely studied. A 1996 survey by Hare Krishna movement academic specialist Burke Rochford: (Q1) Must a devotee, not yet initiated, accept a living breathing guru if he or she is to make full spiritual advancement? Results: full time ISKCON members: 86% yes, those no longer active in ISKCON: 52% yes. (Q2) Prabhupada wanted those he named to continue as proxy-initiators after his departure. Results: full-time ISKCON members, 23% yes; those no longer active in ISKCON, 45% yes.

So even before The Final Order had a chance to circulate around the devotee world, already one-quarter of those in ISKCON and one-half of those outside ISKCON had accepted “proxy initiations” by Srila Prabhupada. Since 1996, 25,000 copies of The Final Order have been distributed in physical form, not including countless online downloads. Each copy has circulated through many hands. Acceptance of the July 9 Order’s prescribed post 1977 initiation system increases steadily. Now, in 2022, probably a majority in and out of ISKCON favor the officiating acharya system, but do not make an issue of it since their positions, salaries are at stake. For those outside ISKCON and not deeply associated with the Gaudiya Math, it is estimated three-fourths accept the “final order.” Thus it can be estimated at a majority of all devotees. Even when talk of Srila Prabhupada's original system of ritvik representative initiations is strictly banned in ISKCON, still the truth of the matter continues to spread and become more widely understood and accepted. It is the only solution that makes sense, and so it is easy to appreciate as common sense, what is right, and what Srila Prabhupada wanted. Only those who have invested wealth, emotion, social status, position, and other material considerations into ISKCON's conditioned-soul, self-appointed guru system, will cling to opposition to the "final order," lest they risk what they have at stake. The truth ultimately is irrepressible.

RITVIK REPRESENTATIVE SYSTEM IS WORKING WELL

The ISKCON initiation system is not having favorable results. It has produced endless contradictions and anomalies (see Ch. 106, Parts 14, 15), including a basic dichotomy between the authority of the guru and that of the institution (GBC). Gradually ISKCON has become a federation of guru zones, as temples evolve with the majority of participants loyal to one of 100 gurus. Exceptions are Mayapur, Los Angeles, and Alachua, where devotees own their homes near the temple. In every locale there are increasing numbers of independent devotees while the temple is "staffed" by a few ISKCON loyalists. Much debate has ensued over alternatives to the ISKCON successor guru policy, mostly over whether the July 9th 1977 letter with its ritvik representative arrangement is what Srila Prabhupada wanted. ISKCON apologists have warned about breaking the disciplic succession, but these fears do not apply to practical applications of the officiating acharya system. Foremost is the example of the ISKCON Bangalore Group, which as of 2022 included 30 temples, 1000 full-time devotees, with dedicated congregations in the many thousands. Bangalore president Madhu Pandit das explained how the officiating acharya system was applied (Oct. 22, 2016):

"Once the GBC was put in place through elections, the first thing the GBC decided was appointment of the officiating acharyas as per the July 9 Directive. GBC members are assigned different areas of supervisory responsibilities wherever our temples are there or where new temples are planned to be opened. The GBC body appointed the GBC men of respective areas as ritvik priests for initiation in that geographical area. The temple president does the initiation ceremony whether the ritvik is present or not. The temple president gets the spiritual name from the ritvik for the candidates. For second initiation the thread is given by the temple president and the Gayatri is given through the playing of recorded Gayatri of Srila Prabhupada." Despite being under extreme pressure from ISKCON Bombay in many ways, Bangalore Group has expanded six times over in the last 24 years and opened many temples and preaching programs, including its world-famous Akshaya Patra, feeding millions of school children with hot lunch meals prasada in India. This is a stunning proof of the officiating acharya system's success and viability for the mission at large.

THE DIRECT LINK by Dhira Govinda das, 2005

It is important that the initiate and the Vaishnava performing the initiation ceremony have consistent understandings with respect to the philosophical underpinnings of the ceremony. Here are some points that I consider essential to an understanding harmonious with [Srila Prabhupada being the current, direct link.] (1) The formal initiation ceremony is an official acknowledgment that the initiate has already linked with the parampara through direct connection with Srila Prabhupada. That is, the formal ceremony is not when the initiate becomes linked, and the devotee who conducts the initiation ceremony does not become the direct and current link to the parampara for the initiate. The ceremony is recognition that the initiate has already directly linked to the parampara, through his/her current link to the disciplic succession, Srila Prabhupada. Of course, many Vaishnavas, including the devotee who performs the ceremony, assist the initiate, before, during and after the official ceremony, to enrich his/her personal relationship with Srila Prabhupada. (2) When the initiate refers to "guru" in the singular, Srila Prabhupada is definitively indicated. That is, the term "my guru," or "my spiritual master," refers to Srila Prabhupada. This is an essential understanding. The initiate will, for example, clearly refer to Srila Prabhupada when s/he references verses such as "yasya deve para bhaktir..." and "yasya prasada..." Such verses refer to "the spiritual master," and the initiate distinctly understands that Srila Prabhupada is "the spiritual master" in the life of the initiate. Naturally, this doesn't minimize the extent of other devotees serving as teachers and guides.

(3) There is no philosophical or practical need for worship of anyone else as a link to Srila Prabhupada. This understanding doesn't assume anything about the degree of spiritual advancement of the devotee who conducts the initiation ceremony, or any other Vaishnava. It simply states that there is not need for worship, in terms of photos, pranam mantras, or in other forms, of anyone else as a link to Srila Prabhupada, because Srila Prabhupada provides the direct connection to the parampara for the initiate. Srila Prabhupada established an altar for ISKCON and for his followers. He did not give instructions to alter that altar. That altar consists of personalities such as Srimati Radharani, Lord Chaitanya, Bhaktivinode Thakur, and Srila Prabhupada. Even if the devotee performing the initiation ceremony is uncontaminated by the modes of material nature, as are the personalities mentioned above, still, Srila Prabhupada did not give instructions to change the altar he established. [...] And, if the devotee who conducts the initiation ceremony is influenced by the gunas, then for sure he should not be worshipped [...]. Srila Prabhupada did not indicate that personalities about whom there is doubt regarding their complete transcendence to the modes should be on the altars in his movement, even if only for minutes a day. I doubt Srila Prabhupada would approve of the current system in ISKCON regarding worship of the devotee who conducts the initiation ceremony. At least, there should be respect for the system wherein the initiate directly worships Srila Prabhupada. [...] (4) Srila Prabhupada is the direct and current link to the disciplic succession for the initiate. I state this here again because these terms are important, and do in some instances define who truly comprehends and supports this model and who makes claims about it because it is fashionable, but does not genuinely affirm these truths. (END)

RITVIK REPRESENTATIVE SYSTEM STARTED IN 1970 (by Nityananda das)

In hindsight we see Srila Prabhupada had very early plans for a ritvik representative system in his Mission, and he began instituting the system as early as 1970. Srila Prabhupada's July 9 Order finalized the ritvik system, as he had been gradually transferring responsibility for various parts of the deputy or officiating process for years. I joined ISKCON in 1969 and lived in the Buffalo temple for 6 months. My temple president Rupanuga das recommended me by writing a letter to Srila Prabhupada in Los Angeles for initiation. In March 1970 Srila Prabhupada sent by mail my signed initiation acceptance letter and beads, but the beads had fallen out of the torn envelope in the mail. Rupanuga wrote again, requesting a new, "large-sized" set of beads (I still have them) which came with a slip of paper upon which Srila Prabhupada had written 'Chanted.' ) Rupanuga did the fire sacrifice and gave the lecture. So I was initiated through the mail. Then in March 1971 I received second initiation in Atlanta via Satsvarupa, who did the yajna, lecture, and playing of the Gayatri mantra recording. Rupanuga and Satsvarupa were my officiating acharyas in 1970-71 for both initiations in Srila Prabhupada's physical absence, who could have been on Mars or in any faroff distant place. This was all before I had even spoken with or met Srila Prabhupada in person. As the temple president for New Orleans and New Talavan farm from 1971-77, I myself also acted as a ritvik representative in the initiation formalities for perhaps 30 devotee first and second initiations that I recommended to Srila Prabhupada. He instructed me in his acceptance letters to 'perform the fire yajna' and my GBC told me to chant on the beads myself, as was then often done. In July 1971 I watched in Detroit as Srila Prabhupada supervised Jagadisha's doing the fire sacrifice and lecture for some initiations. In 1972 Srila Prabhupada wrote to me that I should learn how to do the fire yajna for our new initiates in New Orleans, and none of the devotees I recommended for either initiation (except for Bhagwat das) received them in his physical presence. And this was how most initiations in our remote parts of ISKCON were done, through letters and Srila Prabhupada's representatives.

The ritvik system was already 80% implemented in those early years. The one time Srila Prabhupada visited us in 1975, he did no initiations. Of course the terms “officiating acharya” and “ritvik” were not given by Srila Prabhupada until May 1977, which I did not learn of until 1984. I am witness to how Srila Prabhupada progressively deputed the formalities of his initiations to temple presidents from at least 1970. I was given, and gave, Srila Prabhupada initiations via the system which was made official with the July 9 1977 Order. But it wasn’t until much later that I understood all this. We did not understand it until decades later, but Srila Prabhupada was already preparing how things would go on after he left us. No one thought or dared to claim those initiates as their own disciples. Why do they do so in ISKCON today? So, unless Srila Prabhupada was personally present, all initiations involved the priests that Srila Prabhupada had authorized to chant on beads, hold fire yajnas, give Gayatri mantra from his tape, etc. This was Srila Prabhupada’s system for initiations in ISKCON, and no one recognized what it was until after the July 9 Order became widely known in 1990.

An interesting example of ritvik representatives was seen with two devotees on a remote preaching mission in far-off Guyana, South America. “Ask your wife to chant this mantra and you hear it and if possible hold a fire ceremony as you have seen during your marriage and get this sacred thread on your body. Saradia, or any twice-initiated devotee, may perform the ceremony.” (SPL Vaikunthanatha, Saradia Apr. 4, 1971)

By 1973, Srila Prabhupada had trained his GBC secretaries to serve as officiating priests by asking them to (1) approve candidates for initiation, (2) choose Sanskrit names for new initiates, (3) chant on new initiates’ japa beads, and (4) officiate at fire sacrifices. Kirtanananda, Satsvarupa, Karandhar, and Rebatinandana were most commonly conducting the initiation formalities for new initiates, everything but for the written approvals that came by mail from Srila Prabhupada. Of course there were also many times when Srila Prabhupada was personally present for initiations and he would chant on the beads and hand them over during the ecstatic ceremonies in the temple room. Sometimes Srila Prabhupada would himself choose or change a name. (END)

MEMORY FROM AMEYATMA DAS

“I was given first initiation in Los Angeles, 1973. Srila Prabhupada presided over the initiation, he handed us our beads. Karandhar was a leading GBC man and told me details about that initiation that he did not share with everyone, how he had chosen the names of the devotees, and not Srila Prabhupada, even though everyone thought Srila Prabhupada had selected our names. Karandhar told me that he was being trained to perform the initiations, in which he, as well as other senior leaders, would perform the entire process, from making the final decisions who was qualified, chanting on the beads, selecting the new name, and performing the fire sacrifice. Srila Prabhupada set up a structured system where all the training and guidance of devotees was carried out by the GBC-system of management. This system worked whether he was physically present or not. Maybe he was in Hawaii translating, but through this structure he was still accepting disciples all over the world. From the selection and qualification process to the training and guidance to the performance of the ceremonies, he had set up a system whereby his physical presence or on-going personal input was not required. There is no question that this system is rare in the history of Vaishnavism. Once that system was set up, in place and fully tested and running smoothly, it no longer needed his vapu [personal] presence to sustain it. It could go on functioning in the way he set it up for 10,000 years, or even 10 billion years. Even if no other acharya in the past has done this, and we don’t know to say one way or the other, does not make it un-bona fide. (NOTE: It has been established that the Madhvas, Ramanujas also use this system.) Srila Prabhupada has chosen to be very merciful to the fallen souls of this age. He worked hard at setting up an elaborate system that he fully tested out—all in proxy. All without needing his vapu presence. We took it for granted at the time, but now we see it was the officiating acharya system that he announced in 1977.”

SRILA PRABHUPADA WAS NOT PHYSICALLY PRESENT FOR MOST INITIATIONS

Probably most formal initiation rites and ceremonies were not performed directly by Srila Prabhupada in his physical presence. In 1977 he was in India, so all initiations elsewhere were done remotely. He may have travelling or he may have been close by but not presiding within sight over the ceremonies. His physical presence and personal involvement by chanting on beads, giving the lecture, choosing or announcing the new name, doing the fire sacrifice, and so on, were no longer necessary to get initiation. From 1970 Srila Prabhupada had established procedures and conditions for vetting and approving initiation candidates, and the formalities of initiation were conducted very often without his input, participation, or external involvement. Yet, these initiations, even without his physical presence or participation, occurred on the transcendental platform where Srila Prabhupada imparted spiritual mercy and knowledge into the disciple's soul or heart. From Ocean of Mercy by Bhakticharu Swami we hear of initiations on Gaura Purnima in 1977. "The initiation took place on the morning of Gaura Purnima. More than a hundred devotees sat around the sacrificial fire. Srila Prabhupada did not come down to the temple room, but a few sannyasis sat on a dais, called the candidates one by one, and heard our vows to follow the four regulative principles... We also promised to chant 16 rounds... every day. One of the sannyasis, on behalf of Srila Prabhupada, would then give the candidate... chanting beads and announce his spiritual name..." Srila Prabhupada was upstairs throughout.

TOTALLY UNINVOLVED IN INITIATIONS IN HIS LAST FOUR MONTHS (by Nityasiddha das)

Between July 9 and Nov. 14, 1977 Srila Prabhupada was completely uninvolved with the initiations he was granting his new disciples via the ritvik representative system. No chanting or handing over of beads, no choosing names or signing letters, no confirming recommendations, no asking what are the four principles, no performance of or even attendance at the fire sacrifice, no initiation lecture; all and every part of it was done by the deputies or ritviks. They had been trained and authorized to serve as proxies. Srila Prabhupada was lying there apparently unaware (it seemed to us) of who or when his ritvik representatives were initiating on his behalf. It was all done via the Supersoul. He set up a system where he had nothing to do with his disciples' initiation formalities. What is the difficulty if Srila Prabhupada is physically departed? His physical involvement was not there, or necessary, in these last 4 months, so why would "physical presence" suddenly become necessary after Nov. 14, 1977? ...as insisted upon by the ISKCON bogus, cheater gurus? Answer: Because if Srila Prabhupada initiates, then where will they get their disciples?! (END)

A FEW LETTERS SHOWING THE DEPUTY SYSTEM IN EARLY ISKCON

(1) "Upon your recommendation, I have agreed to accept Axel and John as my duly initiated disciples, and also to give second initiation to Subrata. I am sending a separate letter for them. So far going to Dallas for the fire yajna, better you should learn how to perform it and do it there. Every temple president must be very expert in all these things, so you can consult our Krishna Consciousness Handbook for the procedure and if there are any further questions, you can consult with Satsvarupa and he can give you instruction." (SPL Nityananda das May 10, 1972) (2) "n.b. There is one request for 2nd initiation from Yadavacharya das, but I have not received any recommendation from the temple president or a sannyasi." (SPL Gargamuni das May 11, 1972) (3): "On the recommendation of Satsvarupa I am herein accepting you as my initiated disciple. Henceforth your name will be GHANASYAMA DASA." (SPL Ghanasyama das Feb. 16, 1973) (4) "...Please continue to go to the temple and upon recommendation from the president, we shall see about initiation." (SPL Mr. Arora Aug. 20, 1974) (5) "...So far as initiation is concerned, it is best if you live in one of our temples for some time and follow the rules and regulations and chant Hare Krishna on the beads 16 rounds. Then upon recommendation of the temple president, you can be initiated." (SPL Satpremananda S. Sept. 6, 1974)

INSTRUCTOR AND MONITOR GURUS

"Regarding Sydney, that the President has left, if one does not follow the regulative principles, then he will leave. That is a fact. Has somebody else been elected? This is the function of the GBC, to see that one may not be taken away by maya. The GBC should all be the instructor gurus. I AM the INITIATOR GURU, and you should be the instructor guru by teaching what I am teaching and doing what I am doing. This is not a title, but you must actually come to this platform. This I want." (SPL Aug 4, 1975) "13. He must not take on unlimited disciples. This means that a candidate who has successfully followed the first twelve items can also become a spiritual master himself, just as a student becomes a monitor in class with a limited number of disciples." (Easy Journey Ch. 1, 1959) These quotes about instructor and monitor gurus are early introductions of Srila Prabhupada's final plans for "officiating acharyas" or "ritvik representatives of the Acharya." However, the actual diksha or transmitting of transcendental knowledge into the initiate's heart is done by the Acharya, Srila Prabhupada, not the monitor/instructor, who is just the assistant or agent. The monitor or instructor in the institution of the INITIATOR Acharya does not give diksha- he helps with the teaching, performs formalities, and acts on behalf of the teacher. The students belong to the teacher, not to the monitor or assistant instructor. Their initiator is the mahabhagavata, not the monitor guru. Is this clear?

"I SHALL CHOOSE SOME GURU... BUT THE TRAINING MUST BE COMPLETE"

Srila Prabhupada often spoke of his disciples becoming initiating gurus, but he emphasized that their training would first need to be complete and they would need to become qualified. On May 28, 1977 he said several times to wait for his order to become an initiating guru. Also, on Apr. 22, 1977, both Tamal and Srila Prabhupada acknowledged that none of the devotees were ready to be guru. SP: What is the use of producing some rascal guru? Tamal: Well, I have studied myself and all of your disciples, and it's clear fact that we are all conditioned souls, so we cannot be guru. Maybe one day it may be possible... SP: Hm. Tamal: ...but not now. SP: Yes. I shall choose some guru. I shall say, "Now you become acharya. You become authorized." I am waiting for that. You become all acharya. I retire completely. But the training must be complete. "One month later, his leading disciples hadn't made much progress. During May 1977, in Vrindaban, Prabhupada chastised his disciples, including Bhavananda Swami, 'You are all children. None of you has any intelligence.' In Oct. 1977, Bhavananda frankly admitted to Prabhupada, 'We have not grown that much... We're still children.'" (ENE)

Srila Prabhupada never appointed any initiating gurus, but only ritvik representatives, because the training was incomplete, and he could have had other reasons too. Srila Prabhupada agreed that none of his disciples at that time were qualified to become genuine gurus, but he hoped that as soon as someone became qualified—when his training was complete—he would appoint him. But if a disciple were to begin initiating without being fully trained and ordered, he would become a "rascal guru." Tamal also frankly admitted that Srila Prabhupada's disciples (including himself) were all spiritual neophytes in that they were still influenced by material desires. But what about 45 years later, like now? Or 1000 years from now? Wouldn't such a genuine spiritual movement be expected to produce pure devotees who are qualified to give diksha initiation? The reply is that even if there are many pure devotees on the planet, that will not change the fact that Srila Prabhupada made an arrangement and order for his ritvik representatives initiation system.

KIRTANANANDA INITIATES AS RITVIK REPRESENTATIVE

Between the end of July when Kirtanananda received the July 9 Order and when he visited Srila Prabhupada in mid-Oct. 1977, he had given diksha initiation on behalf of Srila Prabhupada to apparently about 70 devotees in total. "Kirtanananda Swami collected $111 from each person he has initiated as ritvik representative and this was the total ($8000)." (Hari Sauri unpublished diary, p. 19) This shows that the July 9 Order was actually implemented in parts of ISKCON. Only two short months later in Dec. 1977, Kirtanananda began initiating disciples on his own behalf, no longer as Srila Prabhupada's disciples. Now they were his men.

EVIDENCE FOR THE POST-1977 USE OF RITVIK REPRESENTATIVE SYSTEM

In any dispute, testimony from reliable sources and witnesses are always highly valued. There are a number of witness accounts that verify that Srila Prabhupada established an officiating or ritvik system that was meant for AFTER his departure, not simply until his departure as ISKCON claims. However, the ISKCON misleadership has discredited and ignored this evidence. (1) Gauridas Pandit das from "On My Behalf:" "One of my services for Srila Prabhupada was to take care of his garden and fan him with the camara while he was there every morning from about sunrise until about 9 am. At these times he would chant japa or listen to devotees chant bhajans or read the books to him. Sometimes the secretary, Tamal, would read letters from the devotees. Srila Prabhupada would dictate a response, then the secretary would type it and bring it back later to read it again to Srila Prabhupada who would approve and sign it. On July 5th Tamal asked Srila Prabhupada about some devotees who wanted to get initiated as he was getting many requests from the temple presidents. This conversation occurred in the garden as I fanned him. Srila Prabhupada said: 'Tomorrow I will announce some ritvik acharyas who will initiate disciples on my behalf when I leave the planet.' It was actually two days later on July 7th when Srila Prabhupada named the first eleven ritvik acharyas." (Tamal later criticized Gauridas Pandit as only being his assistant who would not be in any position to know what really happened.)

(2) In Yasodanandana das' diary, on July 8, 1977 he wrote: "Tamal Krishna Maharaja was talking about [with Prabhupada] ritvik gurus to initiate on behalf of Prabhupada after he leaves the planet." In the same diary on July 10, 1977, is written: "Tamal Krishna Maharaja comes out of Prabhupada's room. TKG: Haribol, Yasoda, did you see this? Yasoda: No, what is it? TKG: This is signed by Prabhupada. [Yasoda looks at the July 9 letter] Yasoda: What does all this mean? TKG: Devotees have been writing to Prabhupada asking for initiations and now Prabhupada has named 11 ritviks who can initiate on his behalf. Prabhupada said others can be added. Yasoda: And when Prabhupada departs? TKG: They'll be ritviks. That's what Prabhupada said. It's all on tape."

(3) Hansadutta repented in 1992 his taking the position of a false initiating guru from 1978-84 as one of the original 11 zonal acharyas, and then consistently maintained that the ritviks were meant to continue their role indefinitely after Srila Prabhupada's departure. (4) Tamal confessed in Dec. 1980 that Srila Prabhupada only wanted ritvik representatives after his departure, not full gurus. (Ch. 68) (5) On a tape recording, Srila Prabhupada dictated a letter to Hansadutta, July 19, 1977: "And nobody is going to disturb you there. Make your own field and continue to become ritvik and act on my charge." (6) On May 28, 1977 Srila Prabhupada responded to the question as to how initiations would be conducted after his departure as follows: SATS: Then our next question concerns initiations in the future, particularly at that time when you're no longer with us. We want to know how first and second initiations would be conducted. SP: Yes; I shall recommend some of you. After this is settled up, I shall recommend some of you to act as officiating acharyas.

In Ch. 64 and 85 we quoted several letters after July 9, 1977 wherein Srila Prabhupada referred to the ritvik representative system of initiations, most of which were hidden from view for decades. Also: "Similarly, a disciple's qualifications must be observed by the spiritual master before he is accepted as a disciple. In our Krishna consciousness movement, the requirement is that one must be prepared to give up the four pillars of sinful life—illicit sex, meat-eating, intoxication and gambling. In Western countries especially, we first observe whether a potential disciple is prepared to follow the regulative principles. Then he is given the name of a Vaishnava servant and initiated to chant the Hare Krishna maha-mantra, at least sixteen rounds daily. In this way the disciple renders devotional service under the guidance of the spiritual master or his representative for at least six months to a year. He is then recommended for a second initiation, during which a sacred thread is offered and the disciple is accepted as a bona fide brahmana." (CC Mad 24.330)

1969: TAMAL ACTS AS OFFICIATING PRIEST IN SRILA PRABHUPADA'S PHYSICAL ABSENCE

"But all of my insufficiencies were more than covered by the intense desire of Srila Prabhupada. It was he who was actually installing the Deity, and I was simply the officiating priest. All of this had taken place by the mercy of the spiritual master. By his blessings we were now experiencing the blessings of the Supreme Lord." (Tamal on deity installation, Nov. 23, 1969, Hamburg, Germany) We note Srila Prabhupada was somewhere else in the world and Tamal was deputed by Srila Prabhupada to perform a deity installation on his behalf. So why cannot an officiating priest give initiation from Srila Prabhupada as per his July 9 order? What difference is there if Srila Prabhupada was upstairs, 50 miles away, 12,000 miles away, or universes away?

WEEKS BEFORE HIS DEPARTURE, THE DEPUTY INITIATORS ARE RECONFIRMED

Again we include a conversation on Oct. 18, 1977 where the deputy initiation system was reconfirmed with clear reference to the named ritviks listed in the July 9 Letter. This shows that between July 9 and Oct. 18 there had been no changes to the ritvik representative system set up by Srila Prabhupada. And there were no changes from Oct. 18 to Nov. 14, 1977 either. July 9 Order was the only arrangement Srila Prabhupada made.

Giriraja: “I said we will explain to the Bengali gentleman just as you have described to us...”
[So what is Giriraja referring to when he says “just as you have described to us”?] SP: Hare Krishna. One Bengali gentleman has come from New York? Tamal: Yes; Mr Sukamal Roy Chowdury. SP: So I have deputed some of you to initiate. Hmm? Tamal: Yes. Actually. Yes, Srila Prabhupada. SP: So I think Jayapataka can do that if he likes. I have already deputed. Tell him. Tamal: Yes. SP: So, deputies, Jayapataka's name was there? Bhagavan: It is already on there, Srila Prabhupada. His name was on that list. SP: So I depute him to do this at Mayapur, and you may go with him. I stop for the time being. Is that alright? Tamal: Stopped doing what, Srila Prabhupada? SP: This initiation. I have deputed the, my disciples. Is it clear or not? Giriraja: It's clear. SP: You have got the list of names? Tamal: Yes, Srila Prabhupada. SP: And if by Krishna's grace I recover from this condition, then I shall begin again, or I may not be pressed in this condition to initiate. It is not good. Giriraja: We will explain to him so that he will understand properly. SP: Hm? Hm? Giriraja: I said we will explain to the Bengali gentleman just as you have described to us, so that he'll be satisfied with this arrangement.

Although Srila Prabhupada and the person seeking initiation from New York are in Vrindaban, Srila Prabhupada refers the initiation to his deputy in Mayapur, namely Jayapataka. He bypassed Tamal and Bhagavan who were also named deputies and present there. Why not refer him to Satsvarupa who is on the East Coast where New York is located? Why Mayapur? Because it was not a choice based on the geography of zones or who Mr. Chowdury was inspired by; it was just a formal ritual by which Srila Prabhupada would continue to grant diksha initiation. The ritvik representatives were just his officiating agents.

“IN THIS CONDITION TO INITIATE, IS NOT GOOD” MEANS WHAT?

The GBC likes to point out how Srila Prabhupada twice said (in July and Oct. 1977) that to initiate “in this condition” is not good, and if he recovered then he might start again. They say this means Srila Prabhupada's ritvik arrangement was only meant for while he was ill, and it would end upon his demise. If that is so, then why did Srila Prabhupada not explain what to do after his impending departure? Actually, he was asked exactly this May 28 and replied that he would appoint some ritviks. So, why does Srila Prabhupada on Oct. 18 only reconfirm the deputy system but not reconfirm whatever it was he wanted differently to take place after departure? Srila Prabhupada knew he was near departure, and yet they think that he forgot to tell what to do afterwards? He only made arrangements for the 4 months before his departure, reconfirming it again days before his departure, and yet he neglected to tell us what to do for the next thousands of years? Srila Prabhupada made many arrangements for after his departure, but he forgot to arrange for future initiations? It is quite obvious that the system Srila Prabhupada set up was to be used indefinitely, “henceforward,” and to “continue as ritvik representative” after his departure.

THE NEED FOR AN UNLIMITED RITVIK REPRESENTATIVE INITIATION SYSTEM

“In India, most gurus maintain one or two humble ashrams where their disciples (perhaps a few dozen, at most a hundred) live and study, who have personal association with their guru and see and hear him often. But ISKCON grew so rapidly in the Americas, Europe, Asia and Australia that Prabhupada could not maintain intimate relationships with all of his disciples; he had to delegate responsibilities to his senior disciples in order to keep his growing mission functioning. As a service to his disciples, Prabhupada's lectures and conversations were recorded on tape and distributed around the world so his disciples could become transcendently enlivened. He stressed that his words were more important than his physical presence. ‘We should take advantage of the vani [the words], not the physical presence [vapu] [of the spiritual master],’ Prabhupada instructed, ‘because the vani continues to exist eternally.’” (ENE, Doktorski)

To keep up with his rapidly expanding movement, Srila Prabhupada put in place his officiating acharya system where his senior men would take care of most of the initiation formalities, saving him much time and aggravation to facilitate his translation work and keeping up with societal management issues. By July 9, 1977, the last of the initiation formalities were deputed to 11 men. It seems that Srila Prabhupada began implementing his deputy system for initiations as early as 1970 because this was his plan for after his departure, and not simply because he saw no qualified disciples to be diksha gurus. “I’m not real comfortable to definitively state such cause and effect, regarding Srila Prabhupada’s psychology. Maybe Srila Prabhupada decided to continue for the lifetime of his movement, the process he had already established, with his representatives taking responsibility for the formalities of the process of initiation, with Srila Prabhupada as the initiates’ current link, regardless of the level of qualification of his disciples. We should be cautious not to assume too much, with unwarranted conclusiveness, in regards to Srila Prabhupada’s decision-making process. Maybe he considered that, whether he had disciples who were pure, empowered devotees or not, the system that he had established pre-Nov. 1977, was the best system for the duration of his movement, regardless of the advancement level of any of his disciples. If we think that Srila Prabhupada did not consider any of his disciples suitable as initiating gurus and therefore he extended the representative system indefinitely, then that leaves the door open for someone to assert, or declare, ‘Yes, there were no pure devotees then, but now, in 2017 (or 2040, or 2525 or 7535...), there is a pure devotee(s)- this one over here, he is an embodiment of the compassion of Srila Prabhupada and the mercy of Lord Chaitanya, and he now should be the direct and current link to the parampara and give diksha initiation....’ My view is that Srila Prabhupada established the process of initiations that he did, with the understanding that his doing so was not and is not dependent on the level of advancement or purity of any of his disciples, now or forever. This is an important point.” (Dhira Govinda das, 2017)

It appears Srila Prabhupada had great hopes his disciples would become qualified to be appointed by him as initiating gurus, but in his later years with us he never gave any such orders. (Ch. 186) The important point is simply that Srila Prabhupada never gave the order to anyone to be an initiating guru, which he had made very clear was necessary to be authorized. It does not matter so much why Srila Prabhupada never gave the order, just that he did not. He spoke often about future gurus, but then clearly warned one needed his specific order and authority to do so, an order he never gave. Jayapataka, Gaur Govinda, and Radha Govinda Swamis apparently claim that Srila Prabhupada verbally ordered them to initiate their own disciples. Perhaps, perhaps not. This is not written or taped anywhere. Nevertheless, Srila Prabhupada is the current, direct link to the parampara and is available to initiate anyone via officiating priests as per his July 9, 1977 Order.

FLOOD OF LOVE OR GODHEAD OR THE SECOND COMING?

In the years leading up to 1977, Srila Prabhupada had often spoken of his disciples becoming trained up to take their own disciples, but by the end of his manifest presence he had not made any specific arrangements for this. Rather, he made a ritvik representative system instead. Srila Prabhupada was the empowered devotee of Lord Chaitanya who would expand the Hare Krishna movement outside of Bengal and Orissa, and as Lord Chaitanya is the most munificent incarnation, we can understand that Srila Prabhupada was the most munificent servant of the Lord. Srila Prabhupada wanted to deliver everyone from the material world- his compassion for the fallen souls- shows hardly any limits. This itself could be the subject of a lengthy study and presentation. (Was he the “Second coming”?) Srila Prabhupada planned to continue to deliver fallen souls once he had departed through his transcendental books, through his followers who would act as preachers or siksha gurus, and through his officiating acharyas who would initiate millions on his behalf even after he went to preach elsewhere in the universe. How else will the flood of love of Godhead reach all the fallen souls if not for Srila Prabhupada’s most merciful plan of using ritvik priests in his physical absence? The number of disciples that Srila Prabhupada was willing to accept, with responsibility for their eventual liberation and karma, was limited only by the restrictions he put in place for his aspiring disciples, namely chanting 16 rounds every day, following the four basic rules, studying his books, doing service and preaching, eating only Krishna prasadam, all for at least six months and getting recommended by a senior devotee. With this formula widely implemented, millions and millions of lost souls could be taking formal diksha initiation from Srila Prabhupada via ritvik representatives in the future of this Kali Yuga. As stated later elsewhere: “So great was his contribution that there is really nothing left for another Acharya to do for the fallen souls of this age. No one else is needed. The deviants minimize his greatness at every opportunity and say they have been appointed or that one will come among us or there are many pure devotees already. However none of them are the empowered Acharya for the age; Srila Prabhupada is. The more they deny this, the more insane they become. Believing in these lies has disempowered His Divine Grace’s disciples from taking up their responsibility of confidently preaching via the established ritvik system, but is employed through the ‘Prabhupada Anugas.’”

ISKCON SLOWLY MIGRATES TO SRILA PRABHUPADA BEING THE DIRECT LINK

As has been extensively documented by the IRM (ISKCON Reform Movement), ISKCON has over the years been pressured by its own membership, the force of truth, and the will of Krishna to revert more and more to the shelter of Srila Prabhupada. This evolution has been a gradual shift, albeit somewhat symbolic, towards the paradigm where Srila Prabhupada is the current link, in effect carrying whatever the ISKCON official diksha gurus may be lacking (particularly after their “falldowns”). Even though they lack in qualification, potency, purity, authority, etc, ISKCON insists on the essentiality of these bogus gurus as a supposed inviolable axiom of parampara, no matter how awkward it may be. The ISKCON bogus gurus remain the focus for the membership and Srila Prabhupada is conveniently used to make up their lack and shortfalls, and then meaningless and vague proclamations are made about Srila Prabhupada’s glories while the institution continues to relegate him to history as dead and gone. For example, ISKCON policy is that new devotees must put their unconditional faith in their conditioned ISKCON guru, worship him as the representative of Lord Krishna, serve his guru franchise operation, and when he publicly “falls down,” ISKCON only offers some trite sympathy and circular advice about taking inspirational siksha shelter of Srila Prabhupada (but not full shelter as the diksha guru). IT JUST MAKES NO SENSE. This balancing act to use Srila Prabhupada as a backstop for their own failures while denying everyone their spiritual rights to avail of the Yuga Acharya is a great crime for which heavy reactions ensue. Nevertheless, ISKCON has been gradually and subtly moving towards recognizing Srila Prabhupada’s transcendental position and stature as the real and indispensable strength of the Hare Krishna movement. While still clinging to the bogus principle of needing a physically living guru, ISKCON has, in many ways, adopted terminology and narratives more synonymous with a defacto “ritvik representative” initiation system. As one devotee wrote recently: “Most temple presidents go along with the show because otherwise they might be out of a job. The show must go on. In the meantime so many devotees are leaving to join the Gaudiya Math or the Prabhupada Anugas. Slowly the GBC will have to decide which way they go.... They are already changing their lawbooks, with nice-sounding resolutions to convince us all that Srila Prabhupada is indeed the prominent guru for all of ISKCON. I am hopeful that one day we will see a paradigm shift so that ISKCON is all inclusive, instead of being exclusive.”

Srila Prabhupada insisted on remaining the Founder-Acharya of ISKCON. This also means that now, even long after Srila Prabhupada’s physical departure, ISKCON is supposed to be an institution ONLY FOR SRILA PRABHUPADA’S FOLLOWERS, not for other’s followers. Those who do not take Srila Prabhupada as the current link to the disciplic succession should go elsewhere. Do we think Srila Prabhupada gave us ISKCON to be used by followers of other supposed acharyas and gurus? If anyone wants to be the guru, let him go elsewhere; he cannot use the ISKCON facility for himself because it is Srila Prabhupada’s institution.

BACK TO PRABHUPADA – THE INEVITABLE FUTURE

The above interesting observations indicate that Srila Prabhupada's living influence on his mission cannot be circumvented in spite of ISKCON's serious deviations and offenses. This is encouraging in the struggle to restore Srila Prabhupada's movement. We see that ISKCON is inevitably and gradually moving towards the July 9 Order's implementation. How can the desire of God's ambassador be checked? No matter how much personal ambition or deviations appear amidst ISKCON's leaders, and even after Srila Prabhupada was horribly poisoned by some of these leaders and the rest of them cover up the crime with lies, deceit, and ridicule, it seems that the supreme will of Lord Chaitanya is ISKCON will go back to Srila Prabhupada. This has been the desire of thousands of devotees loyal to Srila Prabhupada. The will of the pure devotee will be realized, with ISKCON restored to the condition intended by Srila Prabhupada. It is the inevitable future, and participation in this struggle as defenders of Srila Prabhupada's legacy is glorious. Still, ISKCON's GBC refuses to accept that transcendental knowledge (divya-jnana) comes primarily (if not exclusively) from Srila Prabhupada and that his physical presence is not required to avail oneself of his full Divine Grace. ISKCON's symbolic, lip-service concessions saying Srila Prabhupada is the center yet maintaining the principle of bogus "living" gurus is a cheating process which misleads sincere souls away from Srila Prabhupada's shelter. And so the struggle for restoration of the mission continues. ISKCON's deviated siddhanta must be corrected.

Sarcasm from Hanuman das, New Zealand (2022): "According to the GBC Resolution 311, 2012, I'm a bonafide Ritvik connected to Srila Prabhupada and the entire parampara via the invisible link: 'Those devotees initiated by Prabhavisnu Das continue to be connected to Srila Prabhupada and our entire Vaishnava parampara.' So, if you want Srila Prabhupada as your guru, don't say that as you will be labeled a Ritvik and your theory will be rebuked. Instead follow the simple GBC process. Take so-called initiation from an ISKCON guru, and when he falls down, you're connected to Srila Prabhupada and our entire Vaisnava parampara by GBC's invisible link and you then no longer require a living guru, but can simply worship Srila Prabhupada. Many such disciples are operating like this in ISKCON. Thank God the GBC cleared that one up with their deep understanding of Srila Prabhupada's guru tattva. Remember: they are not ritviks!"

LIP-SERVICE FROM BIR KRISHNA SWAMI (BKG)

BACK TO PRABHUPADA, #34, 2011: BKG, ISKCON GBC and initiating guru, gave lip-service at an initiation ceremony he performed Dec. 25, 2011 where he sounds like a ritvik but is not really. (1) "However, as Srila Prabhupada is the primary source of siksha, inspiration, a focal point for devotion, he's the personality who connects us, all of us, me, you, all of us to the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Krishna, because he was sent by Krishna from the spiritual world." (2) "By taking initiation you're connecting with Prabhupada. And my personal request is that you develop a personal relationship with Prabhupada by regularly hearing from Prabhupada, hearing about Prabhupada, worshipping Prabhupada. Prabhupada will appear in your dreams." (3) "...you may say that I was fortunate you know, I got in contact with Srila Prabhupada, I saw Srila Prabhupada, etc., etc., but you're all just as fortunate because a pure devotee is manifest in the most important way in terms of his vani. [...] You have these Mp3 players, you have computers, you can keep in contact and be with Prabhupada practically 24 hours a day. [...] It's a personal relationship, because in the spiritual world, [...] when we go back Prabhupada will be there. And he is there. And then we'll all be part of the same family, Prabhupada's associates in the spiritual world. So for me, that's everything."

BKG emphasises that following the initiation ceremony, the initiate will develop his personal relationship with Srila Prabhupada in exactly the same way he does, and Srila Prabhupada's physical absence is immaterial. But then: (4) "That doesn't mean that I'm advocating ritvik philosophy where, you know I'm definitely giving initiation." He discloses "I am not a ritvik!" and he is not advocating the "ritvik philosophy" (that Srila Prabhupada is the diksha guru). This is another trend which in ISKCON where guru hoaxers make a point of disclosing, unprompted, that they are not proposing the "ritvik" position: "don't think anyone's gonna charge me for being a ritvik..." (Shivarama Swami Jan. 11, 2009)

“the ritvik-vadis [...] they’ll probably love this one! But [...] ritvik-vadis [...] I’m not supporting that as a solution.” (Bhakti Vikash Swami Aug. 24, 2011) Srila Prabhupada explains that when one makes a point of offering unprompted denials it is actually an admission of the very assertion they are trying to deny: “Just like one man was stealing from the room, and there were some sounds, and the master of the house said ‘Who is there? What is that sound?’ The man said, ‘No, I am not stealing.’ [...] Just see the foolishness. The same logic, ‘No, no, I am not stealing.’ Who asked that you are stealing? He asked for the sound, but he disclosed. It is like that.” (SPConv June 7, 1976) To underscore Srila Prabhupada’s logic above, it can be noted that the GBC claim in their resolutions that “ritvikism” is a “dangerous philosophical deviation” (#303-1999). Yet ISKCON’s gurus are unable to explain themselves without being forced to state that they are not preaching this same “dangerous philosophical deviation.” What they do not say: “We are really ritviks who want you to worship us as diksha gurus, and to hide this fact we will first make an announcement that we are not ritviks.” It was explained that the result of getting an initiation by an ISKCON guru is that the initiate ends up with a relationship to Srila Prabhupada that is identical to that which resulted from the many ritvik initiations conducted on behalf of Srila Prabhupada during his physical appearance on the planet. Thus, more and more, ISKCON’s guru hoaxers are themselves admitting that the initiation they provide is no different to a ritvik initiation, and that they are actually functioning as ritviks. But they insist on one big key difference - that the initiate should still worship and regard them as “good as God” diksha gurus - since that, after all, is the name of the game: to garner the benefits of pretending to be a diksha guru, even if one is only a ritvik, due to one’s desire for profit, adoration and distinction. Thus, the guru hoax has turned into nothing but a guru farce. (END)

BHAKTICARU SWAMI (BCS) ESSENTIALLY GIVES RITVIK INITIATION, DENIES IT

BACK TO PRABHUPADA, #32, 2011: After his humiliating exposure in 100 Contradictions: The Life and Teachings of BCS, he has adopted Srila Prabhupada’s initiation system with even more vigor. On 22/7/2011, BCS conducted an initiation ceremony at an ISKCON Germany temple. We compare the initiation ceremony he conducted with how a ritvik initiation ceremony on behalf of Srila Prabhupada is conducted. BCS INITIATION RITUALS: (a) BCS states that initiation is being given on behalf of Srila Prabhupada: “And I am giving you initiation on behalf of ISKCON, on behalf of Prabhupada. [...] On behalf of Srila Prabhupada I give you your spiritual name, Parama Karuna Dasa, [...] So, your name on behalf of Srila Prabhupada I am giving as Nama Chintamani dasi,” (b) No mention is made of making any vow to BCS, and BCS speaks of only making a commitment to Srila Prabhupada, but never to himself: “And your commitment to Srila Prabhupada will be shown by how sincerely you are practising the process.” (c) The ceremony consisted of chanting of Brahma-samhita, a lecture about initiation and surrender, acamana (preparation for fire sacrifice), fire sacrifice, an explanation of and making vows for chanting 16 rounds, giving of spiritual names, and explanation of avoiding the ten offenses while chanting. RITVIK INITIATION: The initiate would go through the same procedure above and become initiated by Srila Prabhupada. In most initiations, especially in later years, the ceremony was not conducted by Srila Prabhupada personally, but by a representative such as a temple president, just as BCS is doing here. In this latter case the spiritual name would be first received via a letter from Srila Prabhupada, or after July 9, 1977, from one of the 11 appointed ritvik priests, who would accept the disciple and give the spiritual name on behalf of Srila Prabhupada, just as BCS has done here. ROLE IN LIFE OF INITIATE: “You want to take initiation from me, but how often we will meet? I think I came to Germany after four years? The Prabhupada installation was? Five years, okay, yes, five years. So, if I come after five years, what will you do for those five years? The question naturally arises, then Maharaja, why are you giving initiation? [...] I agreed with one confidence. That ISKCON is there to take care of you. [...] And you stay fixed up in ISKCON. Because, you see, you will hardly have my association. What is going to happen to your spiritual life, if you are simply depending upon me?” As above, when one got initiated on behalf of Srila Prabhupada via his representative during Srila Prabhupada’s physical presence, the initiate may or may not see or take guidance from that representative, but rather would depend on the physical association of all the other devotees in ISKCON. “Actually what attracted you to spiritual life is Srila Prabhupada. The devotees you met, [...] ISKCON devotees means Prabhupada’s devotees. The books that you read are Prabhupada’s books. You are being sheltered by Prabhupada’s arrangement, in the form of ISKCON. [...] The point is: Always try to remember that Srila Prabhupada is your main spiritual shelter.” [...] And read Prabhupada’s books every day. Why is reading Srila Prabhupada’s books so important? When you read Prabhupada’s books, Prabhupada is guiding you. And Prabhupada’s vani is manifest in his books. Did you ever try this? You have any difficulty, you are in a difficult situation and you just opened Prabhupada’s books to direct you as if Prabhupada is directing you, giving you the answer. Prabhupada is still here in the form of his vani. Prabhupada’s vani is manifest in the form of his books.” Those initiated by Srila Prabhupada during his physical presence, via a representative or not, would have had their main association with Srila Prabhupada via his books, since, most of his disciples never met him.

RELATIONSHIP WITH INITIATE: BCS states he is not acting as the diksha guru, who connects the disciple to Krishna, but he is connecting the initiate to Srila Prabhupada. “And then you decided to accept me as your Guru. Then what is my duty as your Guru? To connect you to Srila Prabhupada. [...] And Guru’s business is meant to be your transparent via-medium. And generally the Guru acts as a transparent via-medium between the disciple and Krishna. But here I am acting as a transparent via-medium between you all and Srila Prabhupada.” When one got initiated by Srila Prabhupada during his physical presence via his representative, this representative was not the diksha guru, since he did not connect one to Krishna. Rather, the representative merely helped the initiate to connect formally to Srila Prabhupada via the medium of the formal initiation ceremony. And as noted, this is how BCS has defined his relationship with the initiate (even though he has used the word “guru” for this.)

CONCLUSION: If BCS had agreed to obey Srila Prabhupada’s orders, and become authorised by the GBC to become his ritvik representative, and carry out initiations according to the procedure given in Srila Prabhupada’s July 9, 1977 directive, he could have carried out the ceremony as he did here. Conversely, someone wishing to become initiated by Srila Prabhupada could have participated in this ceremony, and think he was initiated as Srila Prabhupada’s disciple! Hence, due to the efforts of Srila Prabhupada’s devotees, battling philosophically, the ISKCON gurus are being forced to effectively concede defeat by reinventing themselves as glorified ritviks. However, they continue cheating by ensuring the benefits of being treated as diksha gurus stay intact. This is all part and parcel of the evolution of ‘The Great Guru Hoax’, from Part 1, labelled as acharyas, to Part 2, labelled as “humbler” diksha gurus, to Part 3, even acting and being labelled as ritviks. In this way their guru hoax has continued to mutate and survive, with each new version merely offering a different vehicle by which to achieve the same goal of controlling men, money and properties, with such control either remaining intact or merely changing hands. (END)

HIS PREPARATION FOR DEPARTURE WAS ABOUT MANAGEMENT, NOT GURUS

We note that through 1977, including his rather subdued arrangements for ritvik representatives, Srila Prabhupada was mostly concerned with how things would be managed after his departure. He made his Final Will with management arrangements but nothing directly about future initiations. Even as early as 1970 when Srila Prabhupada made the DOM, although he speaks about his impending departure, and which is the motivation for making the document, he makes no mention of how initiations would continue. From the DOM: “I am getting old, 75 years old, therefore at any time I may be out of the scene, therefore I think it is necessary to give instruction to my disciples how they shall manage the whole institution. They are already managing individual centers represented by one president, one secretary and one treasurer, and in my opinion they are doing nice. But we want still more improvement in the standard of Temple management, propaganda for Krishna Consciousness, distribution of books and literatures, opening of new centers and educating devotees to the right standard. Therefore, I have decided to adopt the following principles and I hope my beloved disciples will kindly accept them.” DOM has three references to management and none to initiations. Srila Prabhupada even says: "During my absence no one shall live in my apartment." Did Srila Prabhupada forget to give us instructions on future gurus, the most important thing? No, he forgot nothing. He saw the most important thing, once he leaves "the scene," to be that his disciples should continue to "manage" the centers. He links his absence with the need to continue to "manage" and expand the preaching nicely. The issue how devotees would succeed him is not even hinted at. Thus in the matter of guruship, the only conclusion that can be drawn from DOM is that things would remain as they are, since he has specifically addressed how and what his disciples should do when he departs, but the issue of them succeeding him as diksha gurus is not at all mentioned or defined at all. We conclude: all written documents to do with managing ISKCON in the context of Srila Prabhupada's departure, namely DOM, Final Will, July 9 Order, and all his books too, all make no mention of any new diksha gurus. There was no instruction for future gurus because Srila Prabhupada wanted things to go on as they already were going on; with no changes necessary. Some ask why did Srila Prabhupada not tell us what to do? The answer is: he did tell us what to do: manage things as they were, make no changes, and that included SP's system of initiations that had already finalized with his July 9 Order.

HOW TO SELECT RITVIK REPRESENTATIVES OF THE ACHARYA NOW?

Now 45 years have passed since 1977. The original 11 ritvik representatives Srila Prabhupada have all deviated, died, or faded away. Only Hansadutta came clean and took up his service as an officiating acharya, although due to chaos resulting from ISKCON's deviations, he initiated only a few as Srila Prabhupada's disciples, although he instructed all his former disciples to take Srila Prabhupada as their diksha guru. Today perhaps well over half of all devotees agree with the officiating acharya method for initiations, but where are the authorized priests? Who has the authority to replace the original 11? Today the GBC will not appoint or authorize officiating acharyas; instead they are fully deviated by approving conditioned souls as phony diksha gurus as Srila Prabhupada substitutes. Due to their deviations the present ISKCON GBC has lost their authority. They refuse to choose ritvik priests to conduct Srila Prabhupada's initiations. In this urgent situation what can be done? The ISKCON Bangalore Group of devotees faced this dilemma after 1998, (Ch. 161) they chose their own GBC, temple presidents, and ritviks. As an organization of 30 temples and 1000's of devotees, they simply held elections and implemented the DOM as though they were a replacement ISKCON. Thus all future new initiates in that organization will be initiated by Srila Prabhupada through their GBC's authorized ritvik priests. In their Hyderabad temple on Sept. 26, 2021, fifty new initiates were formalized in ncompliance with the July 9 Order in an ecstatic ceremony. Those wanting initiation by Srila Prabhupada should contact ISKCON Bangalore and if this option is not feasible or practical, then initiation by Srila Prabhupada is also being granted to qualified, vetted individuals in other Prabhupada Anuga organizations such as Hare Krishna Society, International Sri Krishna Mandir, Jaipur Hare Krishna Community, Camp Garuda, Satvatove Institute, BLISS, etc.

Initiations should not be denied indefinitely by waiting for the reform of ISKCON and its GBC, just so to receive initiation from the original institution. This is the position of some. Who knows how long it will be before the existing, original ISKCON GBC is reformed? There are serious doubts if this will ever happen, and the Hare Krishna Movement must go on; a practical solution must be made. We should not be fanatical. This stance may be overly fundamental, although technically there are arguments in favor of this. The only solution is to choose ritvik priests according to the pressing need, from amongst senior, qualified devotees who are advanced in Krishna consciousness. Due to the emergency circumstances, best arrangements should be made.

(1) "Atyaharah prayasas ca prajalpo niyamagrahah. Niyamagraha means to stick to the rules regulation. Suppose in your faith or in my faith there are certain rules and regulations to be observed. But if I go to some other place where the rules and regulations cannot be strictly observed, and if I want to observe such rules and regulations, then my main business is suffering. So we should not stick to the rules and regulations. We should see to the business. Just like I am an Indian sannyasi. I have come to your country, at your country. Oh, there are many rules and regulations in India which is different from your rules and regulations. But if I follow, if I stick to rules and regulations of Indian conception, then it is impossible to remain here. So I have to propagate this mission, Krishna consciousness, so I am not so much attached to the rules and regulations, but I am attached to the preaching work. So therefore niyamagraha.” (SP Lecture Aug. 8, 1966) (2) “But if one is simply sticking up to the system without seeing ‘How much progress I am making in my life?’ Then that is waste of time. That is called niyamagraha, simply observing the rules. And niyamagraha also means that you should not neglect also the rules. You should not neglect the rules and regulation; at the same time you should not stick up to the rules and regulation.” (SP Lecture March 28, 1966) (3) “There are regular scriptural injunctions for different persons engaged in different occupational duties, and one who follows them is called svadharma-stha, or faithful in one’s prescribed duties. In the BGita (18.48) it is advised that one should not give up his occupational prescribed duties, even if they are not always flawless. Such sva-dharma might be violated in cases of emergency, if one is forced by circumstances, but they cannot be violated in ordinary times.” (SBhag 1.17.16 purport) Another option is to consult with senior devotees in one’s local (or accessible) area and discuss who can act as a ritvik priest. This has already been done in many places for decades, such as Hawaii, China, Alachua, Fiji, Australia, Germany, Russia, etc. By 2022, ritvik initiations were taking place regularly all over the world and one can easily find an opportunity to be initiated by Srila Prabhupada.

CONTINUE TO BE RITVIK (By Hansadutta das, 1998- Excerpted for brevity)

The discussions on May 28, 1977 between Srila Prabhupada and some GBCs regarding initiations in the future were not known to me til years after his disappearance. Srila Prabhupada would say many things on many subjects, but unless a particular policy was written in letter form or a legal document, such discussions were not accepted as final. Prabhupada often said you can say anything, but do not put it in writing. Writing makes it legal. I distinctly remember receiving the July 9, 1977, letter in Sri Lanka; it was clear to me, this letter was Srila Prabhupada’s arrangement for future initiations. I remember feeling some disappointment with the obvious conditional authority that the “rtvik representative of the Acharya” designation implied, because I actually had a great desire to be a guru like Srila Prabhupada, and many leaders had this desire. Still, I understood it was a very responsible and authoritative appointment. On July 10 I received another letter from Srila Prabhupada responding to a letter I sent him describing the Sri Lanka preaching activities where he wrote:

“You are a suitable person and you can give initiation to those that are ready for it. I have selected you among eleven men as “Rtvik” representative of the Acharya, to give initiations, both first and second initiation, on my behalf.’ A newsletter is being sent to all temple presidents and GBC in this regard, listing the eleven representatives selected by His Divine Grace. Those who are initiated are the disciples of Srila Prabhupada, and anyone who you deem fit and initiate in this way, you should send their names to be included in Srila Prabhupada’s ‘Initiated disciples’ book.” (sent by secretary Tamal) I wrote to Srila Prabhupada asking him why he had been so merciful towards me by appointing me as his “Rtvik representative of the Acharya” which I understood to be a very confidential and responsible position. In other words, it was clear to me that this letter appointing “Rtvik Representatives” to initiate new disciples on Srila Prabhupada’s behalf was Srila Prabhupada’s final instructions in anticipation of his disappearance from the world. Srila Prabhupada replied my letter by paraphrasing my question and answering in a letter dated July 31, 1977 as follows:

“You have written to Srila Prabhupada saying you do not know why he has chosen you to be a recipient of his Mercy. His Divine Grace immediately replied, ‘It is because you are my sincere servant. You have given up attachment to a beautiful and qualified wife and that is a great benediction. You are a real preacher. Therefore I like you. (Then Laughing). Sometimes you become obstinate, but that is true of any intelligent man. Now you have got a very good field. Now organize it and it will be a great credit. No one will disturb you there. Make your own field and continue to be rittvik and act on my behalf.” (sent by secretary Tamal) It was clear that Srila Prabhupada had officially introduced the concept of “Rtvik representative of the Acharya” as the arrangement for initiations by his disciples for ISKCON's future. Had there been anything more to clarify certainly Srila Prabhupada would have written another letter to amend what was already so clear. But he never did, other than what he had already written: "Continue to act as ritvik representative of the Acharya."

[...] the July 9 letter gave authority and responsibility that was not allowed previously. The eleven [ritviks] were given the freedom to initiate (first and second) and give the spiritual name without first having to consult Srila Prabhupada by letter and have an appropriate name sent by Srila Prabhupada. This was new. This system [...] was not a blank check -as they were not mature fully qualified Spiritual Masters. [...] the disciples they would initiate would be the disciples of [...] Srila Prabhupada [...]. Although Srila Prabhupada spoke of all his disciples becoming gurus, he never once ordered any disciple "To be a guru"; rather, he gave conditional authority and responsibility to some leading disciples to "Act as [ritviks]" By assuming that automatically upon Srila Prabhupada's disappearance the ritviks would become gurus, everything has gone off track, and ISKCON is in shambles. Still, it is better late than never. Everything can be brought back into focus if we simply come back to the order of the Spiritual Master and act as "Ritvik representative of the Acharya." (END)

VERY RELEVANT TESTIMONY FROM CYAVANA SWAMI

On Sept. 6, 2017 a PTC member received an email from Cyavana Swami, an early Srila Prabhupada disciple who managed a preaching and farming facility in Williston, Florida called Camp Garuda. "Yes, I have stated this many times... some understand it, but most don't and it usually causes some to become agitated. Most devotees never really understood who Srila Prabhupada is. The initiation means to begin on the path of Bhakti, each one must figure out how to take that first step. Srila Prabhupada made it perfectly clear to me that we are not his only disciples. His instruction was, "I have given you everything, don't change anything... I will have millions of disciples." These are the most important instructions Srila Prabhupada ever gave us for the future of his Movement. In my discussions with Prabhupada the subject of adding to and changing the books and philosophy came up frequently, but the question of what to do regarding initiations after he was no longer with us was very difficult to ask, it was almost unthinkable at the time that he would not always be with us. Myself and Brahmananda Swami were in Srila Prabhupada's room one morning in Nairobi, Kenya in 1975. We were performing initiations on his behalf all over the world for some years. At first he seemed surprised at the question, as if he had already made it very clear. So he said to simply continue as he had been training us, 'on my behalf' was not just for then, it is for always. His answer was clear and simple. I am encouraged, especially over the past few years, by the many devotees who are clearly understanding this and Srila Prabhupada's unique and exalted position in our Sampradaya. If someone wants to add to or change a book they can do so in their own name, and of course we must have 'instructor gurus' and teachers to guide disciples on the path, but only SP will fulfill the promise to take us all home, that is certain. I share this with you as a friend. As far as the general population devotees, let them think whatever they want, at least they have a start, many here including me are inspired by your work."

Satyahit das confirmed Cyavana Swami has been consistently stating these memories for many years, in case anyone would think that suddenly he had made them up for some reason, as people are wont to do. Cyavana Swami passed away in recent years.

CONCLUSION: RITVIK INITIATIONS IN ISKCON

Bhima das (Bombay) is a trustee of the Bombay BBT, an Indian trust granted publishing rights by Srila Prabhupada in 1972 for his books. He is outwardly very "anti-ritvik" and openly supports the ISKCON guru-initiation system. He is married to Srila Prabhupada's niece, who refused to be initiated by any ISKCON guru and insisted Srila Prabhupada was her diksha guru. Finally Bhima relented and arranged for her to be formally initiated in Bangalore by Srila Prabhupada via his ritvik representative. If only all others in ISKCON were given the same choice and facility, then ISKCON would prosper and flourish. Fact: ritvik initiations are increasing.

While hoping that his senior disciples would become qualified so he could order them to act as future initiating gurus, Srila Prabhupada instead gave written instructions in the July 9 Order for his ingenious ritvik representative system for initiations after his physical departure. Thus, even if the world became full of pure devotees by Srila Prabhupada's mercy, still, the system that Srila Prabhupada implemented in increasing stages from 1970 onwards established a process of initiation wherein he is fully available as the current link for all members of his movement, for the full duration of his movement, regardless of the level of advancement in Krishna consciousness of any of his followers. The idea that we must wait for the next self-effulgent and self-evident Acharya is unnecessary because Srila Prabhupada, the Yuga Acharya, is already here. The second coming of the Messiah has already happened. Srila Prabhupada NEVER ordered anyone to become initiating guru. The few misunderstood words in the May 28 conversation about grand-disciples is all the GBC has to justify their new diksha gurus to replace Srila Prabhupada as the current link in the parampara. But their interpretations of those few words are out of context and painfully contradictory, but which they choose to ignore. He clearly stated that no one could become diksha guru without receiving the order from him, an order he never gave. Srila Prabhupada instructed Hansadutta, July 31, 1977: "...continue to be ritvik..." And: "My disciples are my agents, my representatives, so by hearing it from them, you are receiving it from me." (SPL Mar. 6, 1968) The ritvik system is what Srila Prabhupada set up for future initiations. This system is similar to how initiations been done in the Madhva and Ramanuja lines since their Acharyas departed over 800 and 1000 years ago. Srila Prabhupada's initiation system is not authorized by the practices of other sampradayas, but at least ISKCON cannot claim that a deputy system is untraditional and unprecedented. Srila Prabhupada is fully authorized to adjust the ways of preaching, but his system is not new, but a revival of an ancient one and it will work well for Srila Prabhupada's followers. Both these other paramparas had other pure devotee disciples during and since the manifest presence of those great Acharyas. But all those pure devotees considered themselves just the humble representatives of their previous acharya. So... there is precedent after all.

---

CHAPTER 193: "SRILA PRABHUPADA SIDDHANTA"

A small 80 pg. guidance publication printed by Hare Krishna Society, 2004, with above the title:

INTRODUCTION: The Krishna consciousness movement is a global congregation based on the instructions of the Vedic scriptures, the world's most ancient and complete books on spiritual science. Specifically, we follow the teachings of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada, whose activities and symptoms prove that he is the predicted great personality (shakti-avesa-avatar) who establishes the mission of God, or Krishna, worldwide. We recognize and accept that Srila Prabhupada is a pure representative of Lord Krishna and the current link in the Brahma-Madhva-Gaudiya Sampradaya. Everyone can attain full perfection by following Srila Prabhupada. In numerous letters and instructions to his disciples and others, Srila Prabhupada urged, "Please study all of my books very thoroughly." (SPL Dec. 1974) He often warned his disciples, "When the waves of maya attack, your little sentiment for Krishna may not save you. All my disciples must be thoroughly trained in the philosophy of Krishna consciousness." (SPL May 1972) Thus, Srila Prabhupada worked tirelessly, night and day, to carefully translate, explain and publish the most important Vaishnava scriptures, such as SBhag, Bgita, and Sri Bhakti-rasamrita Sindhu (NOD).

Several of Srila Prabhupada's disciples have worked together to create this document, a collection of essential truths, or tattvas, which are like effulgent jewels gathered from Srila Prabhupada's books, conversations and lectures. By his preaching, Srila Prabhupada churned the ocean of transcendental nectar for the benefit of every living being in the universe, particularly his sincere discples. Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, the most munificent avatar of Lord Krishna, insisted that His devotees chant the glories of Sri Sri Radha-Krishna constantly and live purely, without material attachments. Without carefully understanding and appreciating the importance of the nitya-siddha devotees of Lord Chaitanya, no one can successfully follow the transcendental sadhana and mood of service that leads irrevocably to Lord Chaitanya's fabulous benediction of pure Krishna consciousness, prema-bhakti. Without the blessings of a great Vaishnava like Srila Prabhupada, no one can advance to the higher stages of Krishna consciousness. All shastras and all great authorities confirm this principle as fundamental and everlasting. To glorify Srila Prabhupada and the great teachers of Krishna consciousness and to defend their mission, we, the disciples of His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada, offer this collection of essential truths for Their pleasure. Without understanding all these spiritual facts very carefully, according to guru, shastra and sadhu, the infallible Vedic authority, no one can preach or practice pure Krishna consciousness. This collection of gems should be kept intact as a complete work and serious disciples will rejoice in understanding this document in its entirety. This transcendental document regarding the Supreme Lord, His empowered devotees, and devotional service will benefit every living being in the universe, even without their immediate knowledge. By Lord Nityananda's divine grace, this brief but concise treatise of Krishna consciousness may help many generations of Srila Prabhupada's disciples remain pure devotees of the Supreme Lords, Sri Krishna Chaitanya Mahaprabhu and Sri Nityananda Prabhu.

[Book references herein are from Srila Prabhupada's authorized and approved, pre-1977 editions.]

PURPOSES OF HARE KRISHNA SOCIETY: (a) To systematically propagate spiritual knowledge to society at large and to educate the people in the techniques of spiritual life, in order to check the imbalance of values in life and to achieve real unity and peace in the world. (b) To propagate a consciousness of Krishna, as it is revealed in BGita and SBhag.. (c) To bring the members of the Society together with one another and nearer to Krishna, the prime entity, and thus to develop the idea, within the members, and humanity at large, that each soul is part and parcel of the quality of Godhead (Krishna). (d) To teach and encourage sankirtana, congregational chanting of the holy name of God, as revealed in the teachings of Lord Sri Krishna Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. (e) To erect for the members and for society at large a holy place of transcendental pastimes, dedicated to the Personality of Godhead, Lord Sri Krishna. (f) To bring the members closer together for the purpose of teaching a simpler and more natural way of life. (g) With a view towards achieving the aforementioned purposes, to publish and distribute periodicals, magazines, books, and other writings.

BASIC CONVICTIONS OF SRILA PRABHUPADA'S HARE KRISHNA SOCIETY: Srila Prabhupada listed the following as basic convictions of the Krishna Consciousness Movement: (1) The Absolute Truth is contained in all the great scriptures of the world. However, the oldest known revealed scriptures in existence are the Vedic literatures, most notably Bhagavad-gita, which is the literal record of God's words. (2) God, or Krishna, is eternal, all-knowing, omnipresent, all-powerful, and all-attractive, the seed-giving father of man and all living entities. He is the sustaining energy of all life, nature, and the cosmic situation. (3) Man is actually not his body but spirit soul, part and parcel of God, and therefore eternal. (4) That all men are brothers can be practiced only when we realize God as our common father. (5) All our actions should be performed as a sacrifice to the Supreme Lord: "All that you do, all that you eat, all that you offer and give away, as well as all austerities that you may perform, should be done as an offering unto Me." (BGita 9.27) (6) The food that sustains us should always be offered to the Lord before eating. In this way He becomes the offering, and such eating purifies us. (7) We can, by sincere cultivation of bona fide spiritual science, attain to the stage of pure, unendingly blissful consciousness, free from anxiety, in this very lifetime. (8) The recommended means to attain the mature stage of love of God in the present age of Kali, or quarrel, is to chant the holy name of the Lord. The easiest method for most people is to chant the Hare Krishna mantra...

PHILOSOPHICAL CONCLUSIONS (SIDDHANTA) OF THE HARE KRISHNA SOCIETY: To help fulfill the aims of Lord Chaitanya's mission and preserve the spiritual science taught by the Brahma-Madhva-Gaudiya Sampradaya, we here reaffirm the worldwide association (sanga) of Srila Prabhupada's bona fide disciples, based on our clear understanding of the following conclusions: (A) SRI KRISHNA IS THE SUPREME PERSONALITY OF GODHEAD: Great authorities (mahajanas) like Sukadeva Gosvami, Narada Muni, Srila Vyasadeva, and Lord Brahma, all great teachers in the Brahma-Madhva-Gaudiya

Sampradaya, and all essential Vedic scriptures confirm that Sri Krishna is the Supreme Personality of Godhead and the original source and maintainer of everyone, including all avatars of God. These facts are realized and taught by pure devotees of the Supreme Lord. "All of the above-mentioned incarnations are either plenary portions or portions of the plenary portions of the Lord, but Lord Sri Krishna, as above mentioned, is the original Personality of Godhead." (SBhag 1.3.28) "Lord Krishna alone is the supreme controller, and all others are His servants." (CC Adi 5.142) "I [Lord Krishna] am the source of all spiritual and material worlds. Everything emanates from Me." (BGita 10.8) "Krishna is the cause of all causes. He is the primal cause, and He is the very form of eternal being, knowledge, and bliss." (BS 5.1) (B) SRI KRISHNA CHAITANYA IS LORD KRISHNA'S MOST MUNIFICENT AVATAR: Sri Krishna Chaitanya Mahaprabhu (1486-1534) is the avatar of Godhead for the Age of Kali, and He is recognized by great devotees of the Supreme Lord as the most munificent incarnation of God (namo maha-vadanyaya). Sri Krishna Chaitanya is identical to Lord Krishna. He descends to liberally grant to the fallen conditioned souls of this age pure love of Godhead (prema-bhakti) by propagating sankirtana, especially through public chanting of the Hare Krishna maha-mantra. "Lord Chaitanya is the original teacher of life's prime necessities. He is the most munificent bestower of love of Krishna. He is the complete reservoir of all mercies and good fortune. As confirmed in Srimad-Bhagavatam, Bhagavad-gita, Mahabharata, and the Upanisads, He is the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Krishna Himself, and He is worshipable by everyone in this age of disagreement. Everyone can join in His sankirtana movement." (Introduction to CC) "One who sees that golden-colored Personality of Godhead, the Supreme Lord, the supreme actor, who is the source of the Supreme Brahman, is liberated." (Mundaka Upanisad 3.1.3) [CC Adi 2.22 purport] [...]

(C) SRILA PRABHUPADA IS AN ETERNAL ASSOCIATE OF LORD CHAITANYA: His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada (1896-1977) is a nitya-siddha Vaishnava (eternally liberated devotee of Krishna) sent by Lord Chaitanya and Krishna to revive the mission of nama-sankirtana and save the world from the dangerous atheistic doctrines of impersonalism (nirvisesa) and voidism (sunyavada). All his activities are eternal and purely transcendental. In fact, the Vedic literature, Lord Chaitanya, and predecessor acharyas have predicted this great personality, Srila Prabhupada, who preaches Krishna consciousness all over the world. Having fulfilled these predictions by founding the global Krishna consciousness movement and Hare Krishna Society single-handedly, he is worshiped by all bona fide Gaudiya Vaishnavas with the name "Srila Prabhupada" (the master at whose feet all others bow). Srila Prabhupada's form (vapu) and instructions (vani) offer the full mercy of Lord Chaitanya to all conditioned souls for the duration of Lord Chaitanya's ten-thousand year Golden Age. (1) "In the Vedic literatures it is recommended that in Kali-yuga people engage in glorifying the Lord by chanting the holy name of Krishna (kirtanad eva krsnasya mukta-sangah param vrajet)..." (SBhag 1.12.34 purport) (2) "...I came to your country single-handed, with this pair of cymbals. Now you are so many chanting Hare Krishna. That is my success. It was the prediction of Lord Chaitanya Mahaprabhu [He] desired that 'In all the towns--in as many towns and villages as there are on the surface of the globe--My name will be broadcast.' He is Krishna Himself--svayam krsna, krsna caitanya-namine-- simply changing His name as Krishna Chaitanya. So His prediction will never go in vain. That's a fact. So my plan was that 'I shall go to America... If I can convince the younger generation of America, they will take it up.' If you kindly take this Krishna consciousness movement seriously, your country will be saved, and the whole world will be saved." (SPlecture May 18, 1972) (3) "Soon there will appear a personality who will preach the holy name all over the world." (Prediction of Bhaktivinoda Thakura) (4) "Without being empowered by the direct potency of Lord Krishna to fulfill His desire and without being specifically favored by the Lord, no human being can become the spiritual master of the whole world... Only an empowered personality can distribute the holy name of the Lord and enjoin all fallen souls to worship Krishna. By distributing the holy name of the Lord, he cleanses the hearts of the most fallen people; therefore he extinguishes the blazing fire of the material world. Not only that, he broadcasts the shining brightness of Krishna's effulgence throughout the world. Such an acharya or spiritual master should be considered non-different from Krishna--that is, he should be considered the incarnation of Lord Krishna's potency. Such a personality is krsna-lingita-vigraha [...] always embraced by the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Krishna. Such a person is... the guru or spiritual master for the entire world, a devotee on the topmost platform, the maha-bhagavata stage." (Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati, cited in CC Mad 25.9 purport) (5) "The Krishna consciousness movement is spreading to enlighten people about their real position, their original relationship with Krishna. One requires Krishna's special power in order to be able to do this... The Lord empowers a special devotee to teach people their constitutional position." (CC Mad 19.114 Purport)

(D) LORD CHAITANYA'S ETERNALLY PERFECT ASSOCIATES COME TO AID HIS MISSION:

Everyone can be promoted to the transcendental abode of Lord Krishna, Sri Goloka, by understanding that Lord Chaitanya is non-different than Sri-Sri Radha-Krishna and His confidential associates are nitya-siddhas, or eternally perfect persons whose births and pastimes in this world are completely transcendental and meant for the benefit of all conditioned souls in the universe. (1) "Thus they are engaged in missionary activities meant to deliver all the conditioned souls in the material universe..." (Prayers to the Six Gosvamis) (2) "The nitya-siddha never forgets his relationship with the Supreme Personality of Godhead... By the order of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, the nitya-siddha remains within this material world like an ordinary man, but the only business of the nitya-siddha is to broadcast the glories of the Lord. All nitya-siddhas within this material world may appear to toil like ordinary men, but they never forget their position as servants of the Lord." (CC Mad 5.113 purport) (3) "A nitya-siddha is one who was never contaminated by the material nature... Nitya-siddhas never came into contact with the material nature. All the associates of Lord Chaitanya are nitya-siddhas, or eternally perfect... We should understand that as Lord Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, Krishna Himself, is transcendental, similarly His personal associates are also nitya-siddha, or eternally transcendental... Simply by accepting that the associates of Lord Chaitanya are eternally free, one is immediately promoted to the transcendental abode of Lord Krishna." (Narottama dasa Thakura) (4) "By the grace of Lord Sri Krishna, we had the chance of being born in a Vaishnava family, and in our childhood we imitated the worship of Lord Krishna... Our spiritual master, who also took his birth in a Vaishnava family, got all inspirations from his great Vaishnava father, Thakura Bhaktivinoda... There is always symmetry between the early lives of all great devotees of the Lord... Such maha-bhagavatas are called nitya-siddhas, souls liberated from birth." (SBhag 2.3.15 purport)

(E) EVERYONE SHOULD ACCEPT SRILA PRABHUPADA AS SPIRITUAL MASTER: As the Vedas underscore, acharyavan puruso veda: to get a bona fide understanding of Lord and His instructions in the scriptures, spiritual seekers must follow a bona fide acharya or spiritual master. Srila Prabhupada affirms this foundational spiritual principle and casts aside the notion that material space and time can somehow prevent followers of the spiritual master from associating with him in the here and now. (1) "Sri Jiva Gosvami advises that one not accept a spiritual master in terms of hereditary or customary social and ecclesiastical conventions. One should simply try to find a genuinely qualified spiritual master for actual advancement in spiritual understanding." (CC Adi 1.35 purport) (2) "One should take initiation from a bona fide spiritual master coming in the disciplic succession, who is authorized by his predecessor spiritual master. This is called diksha-vidhana. Lord Krishna states in Bhagavad-gita, vyapasrita: one should accept a spiritual master. By this process the entire world can be converted to Krishna consciousness." (SBhag 4.8.54 purport) (3) "...one who follows the disciplic succession of acharyas knows things as they are." (SBhag 4.22.24, purport) (4) "...the Christians are following Christ, a great personality. Mahajano yena gatah sa panthah. You follow some mahajana, a great personality... You follow an acharya. Like the Christians--they follow Christ, an acharya. The Muhammadans--they follow an acharya, Muhammad. That is good. You must follow some acharya... Evam parampara-praptam." (SPConv May 20, 1975) (5) "Regarding the parampara system: there is nothing to wonder for big gaps. We have to pick up the prominent acharya and follow from him." (SPL Apr. 12, 1968) (6) "This is called guru-parampara, disciplic succession... This is the perfect process of knowledge. You approach the perfect person and get knowledge, and that is your perfect experience... We are getting knowledge from Krishna, the most perfect. Or you get knowledge from Jesus Christ. That is also perfect, because the source is perfect." (SPConv June 19, 1974) (7) "...one has to associate with liberated persons not directly, physically, but by understanding, through philosophy and logic..." (SBhag 3.31.48 purport) (8) "These are not ordinary books. It is recorded chanting. Anyone who reads--he is hearing." (SPL Oct 19, 1974) (9) "There are two conceptions: the physical conception and the vibration conception. So the physical conception is temporary. The vibration conception is eternal. Just like we are enjoying or we are relishing the vibration of Krishna's teachings. So by vibration He is present. As soon as we chant Hare Krishna or chant Bhagavad-gita or Bhagavata, He is present immediately by His vibration. He's absolute. Therefore, try to remember His words of instruction--you'll not feel separation. You'll feel that He is with you. So we should associate by the vibration, and not by the physical presence. That is real association." (SPConv Aug. 18, 1968) (10) "The guru must be situated on the topmost platform of devotional service. There are three classes of devotees, and the guru must be accepted from the topmost class... When one has attained the topmost position of mahabhagavata, he is to be accepted as guru and worshiped exactly like Hari, the Personality of Godhead. Only such a person is eligible to occupy the post of a guru." (CC Mad 24.330 prpt, citing Padma Purana)

(F) THE BONA FIDE SPIRITUAL MASTER IS NEVER LIMITED BY MATERIAL CONDITIONS:

Wherever Lord Krishna's devotees worship Him, Krishna is present. In the same way, wherever sincere followers worship Krishna's great devotees, these Vaishnavas are present. Krishna's great devotees live forever in their instructions (vani), in their form (vapu), and in the hearts of their sincere followers. Srila Prabhupada remains present in innumerable places simultaneously and accepts the worship of innumerable followers now and at all times, wherever his instructions are sincerely followed. (1) "Just like Krishna can be present simultaneously in millions of places, similarly the spiritual master also can be present wherever the disciple wants. A spiritual master is the principle, not the body. Just like a television can be seen in thousands of places by the principle of relay monitoring." (SPL May 28, 1968) (2) Disciple: In some of our temples, such as Vrndavana, the murti [statue] of Your Divine Grace has been installed, and they [your disciples] are offering prasadam [foodstuffs]... So is it the same [Lord Krishna accepts offerings through His statue or picture] that the prasadam is accepted by the guru? SP: Yes. Saksad-dharitvena samasta-sastrair, 'The guru is non-different than Krishna.' That is accepted by all the shastras... Kintu prabhor yah priya eva tasya, 'But the guru's position is the most confidential servant.' So the guru is the servant God, and Krishna is the master God. Both of them are God--servant God and master God. (SPConv Oct. 27, 1975) (3) Reporter: What will happen to the movement in the United States when you die? SP: I will never die. I shall live from my books, and you will utilize. (SP Interview July 16, 1975) (4) "He reasons ill who tells that Vaishnavas die, when thou art living still in sound." (Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakura) (5) "About one hundred years ago, Thakura Bhaktivinoda also wanted to beget a child who could preach the philosophy and teachings of Lord Chaitanya to the fullest extent. By his prayers to the Lord, he had as his child Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Gosvami Maharaja, who at the present moment is preaching the philosophy of Lord Chaitanya throughout the entire world through his bona fide disciples." (SBhag 3.22.19 purport) (6) "Although a physical body is not present, the vibration should be accepted as the presence of the spiritual master. Vibration--what we have heard from the spiritual master--that is living." (SPLecture Jan. 13, 1969) (7) Disciple: Srila Prabhupada, when you are not present with us, how is it possible to receive instructions--for example, on questions that may arise? SP: Well, the answers are there in my books. Disciple: Other than that--for example, [questions] that we would ask you in [specific daily matters]. Do you direct us, also, through the heart? Besides the Paramatma? SP: If your heart is pure. Everything depends on purity. (SPConv May 13, 1973)

(G) SRILA PRABHUPADA'S WORDS ARE ABOVE DEFECTS: All rituals, procedures and names established by Srila Prabhupada are transcendently pure and perfect. (See "Sadhana," next section) Srila Prabhupada never made mistakes as do all ordinary men. Everything Srila Prabhupada has said and done is pure and perfect, totally devoid of the four defects of conditional life--namely illusion, cheating, imperfect senses and the tendency to commit mistakes. (1) "It is recommended that one honor the spiritual master as being on an equal status with the Supreme Personality of Godhead. Saksad-dharitvena samasta-sastrair. This is enjoined in every scripture. [...] One should consider the acharya to be as good as the Supreme Personality of Godhead. In spite of all these instructions, if one considers the spiritual master an ordinary human being, one is doomed. His study of the Vedas and his austerities and penances for enlightenment are all useless, like the bathing of an elephant. An elephant bathes in a lake quite thoroughly, but as soon as it comes on the shore it takes some dust from the ground and strews it over its body. Thus there is no meaning to the elephant's bath." (SBhag 7.15.26 purport) (2) "Mistakes, illusions, cheating, and defective perception do not occur in the sayings of the authoritative sages." (CC Adi 2.86) (H) SRILA PRABHUPADA'S PREACHING IS EMPOWERED AND COMPLETE: Srila Prabhupada's activities perfectly convey the complete siddhanta (scripturally authorized conclusions) of the Brahma-Madhva-Gaudiya Sampradaya originating from Lord Krishna Himself. Srila Prabhupada is the acharya-vigraha, the best example of the perfect teacher. His preaching exhibits the full manifestation of guru-tattva and guru-puja, the essence of the bona fide guru and worship of the bona fide guru. By studying and following Srila Prabhupada's instructions, everyone can achieve the highest stages of Krishna consciousness. Srila Prabhupada's books are perfect and complete and require no editing or change. (1) "Whatever is to be learned of the teachings of Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakura can be learned from our books. There is no need whatsoever for any outside instruction." (SPL Dec. 25, 1973) (2) "Everyone can become a first-class preacher. Simply cram the purports of my books. The references are there. The philosophy is there. Everything is there." (SPL Sept. 19, 1974) (3) "Simply read my books and repeat what I have written. Then our preaching will be perfect." (SPL Apr. 4, 1975) (4) "...In our Krishna consciousness movement we have therefore limited our study of Vedic literatures to Bhagavad-gita, Srimad-Bhagavatam, Chaitanya-caritamrta, and Bhakti-rasamrta-sindhu. These four works are sufficient for preaching purposes. They are adequate for the understanding of the philosophy and the spreading of missionary activities all over the world. If one studies a particular book, he must do so thoroughly. That is the principle. By thoroughly studying a limited number of books, one can understand the philosophy." (CC Mad 22.118 purport)

(I) SRILA PRABHUPADA LIVES ETERNALLY AS THE SPIRITUAL MASTER OF THE UNIVERSE: To obtain the full blessings of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu and all previous acharyas, we must accept Srila Prabhupada as acharya-vigraha or sad-guru, the eternal spiritual master and follow his instructions. Srila Prabhupada is the current, living link of the Brahma-Madhva-Gaudiya Sampradaya. Therefore, his worship is established as fundamental sadhana for all Hare Krishna Vaishnavas in this age. (See "Sadhana," next section) (1) Reporter: What will happen to the movement in the United States when you die? SP: I will never die. I shall live from my books, and you will utilize. (SP Interview, July 16, 1975) (2) Guest: Are you planning to choose a successor? SP: It is already successful. A genuine thing is always a success. Disciple: One thing he's saying, this gentleman--and I would like to know: Is your successor named? SP: My success is always there. Yes. Just like the sun is there always. It may come before your vision or not--the sun is there. But if you are fortunate, you come before the sun. Otherwise, you remain in darkness. The sun is open to everyone. Our Krishna consciousness movement--Krishna is open to everyone. But if you are fortunate, you come to the light. If you are unfortunate, you do not. That is your choice. (SPConv Feb. 12, 1975) (3) SP: Only Lord Chaitanya can take my place. He will take care of the movement. (SPConv Nov. 2, 1977) (4) Disciple: "You are the real acharya for this age, Srila Prabhupada." (Oct. 3, 1977) Please Note: Srila Prabhupada's response to this comment is silence. He would have objected had the comment been bogus or improper. "It is characteristic of advanced Vaishnavas... that they think themselves ordinary human beings. This is not an artificial exhibition of humility; a Vaishnava sincerely thinks this way and therefore never admits his exalted position." (SBhag 5.24.26 purport)

(J) THE DISCIPLIC SUCCESSION RELIES ON GENUINE DISCIPLES: The disciplic succession or guru-parampara is continued by the spiritual master's genuine disciples. In other words, the disciplic succession relies on disciples who follow the orders, the conclusions, the siddhanta of the sampradaya-acharya. The disciplic succession never relies on ecclesiastical arrangements for authorizing "gurus" or for initiating new generations of disciples. Srila Prabhupada never told his disciples to initiate their own disciples in his mission, and thus he never offered any instructions in this regard. Rather, he carefully trained genuine disciples, like Sriman Jayananda Prabhu, to preach the pure siddhanta of Krishna consciousness, as humble messengers of Lord Chaitanya's mission and humble servants of the Spiritual Master. (1) "I am the initiator guru, and you should be the instructor guru by teaching what I am teaching and doing what I am doing. This is not a title, but you must actually come to this platform. This I want." (SPL Aug. 4, 1975) (2) "One should not try to be an artificially advanced devotee, thinking, 'I am a first-class devotee.' Such thinking should be avoided. It is best not to accept any disciples." (CC Mad 7.130 purport) (3) "If everyone just initiates, then there will only be a contradictory result. As long as it goes on, there will be only failure." (From Phalguna Krishna Pancami, Srila Prabhupada's 1961 poem honoring Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakura)

(K) SRILA PRABHUPADA FORMALLY INITIATES DISCIPLES THROUGH DEPUTED PRIESTS: At least as early as 1970, Srila Prabhupada personally established in his mission a system whereby he has continued formally initiating new disciples (many of whom he had never physically met) through ritvija, deputed priests. This system should always be followed in institutions established by Srila Prabhupada and in institutions representing the mission of Srila Prabhupada and Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. (See Conversations: May 28/ July 7 and July 9, 1977 Letter) (1) "My Dear [Disciple 1], Please accept my blessings. Just now I have received some more requests for giving first initiation... and now I am receiving weekly not less than ten to fifteen such requests from new students. So it is becoming very expensive to send so many sets of beads such a long distance, and it has become a little bothersome for me also, so I think now you may be appointed by me to give first initiations to new disciples by chanting on their beads on my behalf. In America [Disciple 2] is doing that. So now if there are two of you, that will give me great relief. [Disciple 2] will chant on the beads for new devotees in America, Canada, like that; you can chant on the beads for the European continent, new disciples. They shall, of course, still be considered as my disciples, not that they shall become your disciples, but you will be empowered by me to chant their beads and that is the same effect of binding master and disciple as if I were personally chanting." (SPL Jan. 4, 1973) (2) Disciple 1: "Then our next question concerns initiations in the future, particularly at that time when you're no longer with us. We want to know how first and second initiation would be conducted." SP: "Yes. I shall recommend some of you... I shall recommend some of you to act as officiating acharyas." Disciple 2: "Is that called ritvik-acharya?" SP: "Ritvik. Yes." (SPConv May 28, 1977) (3) SP: One Bengali gentleman has come from New York?... So I have deputed some of you to initiate... I have already deputed... So. Deputies... [Disciple 1]'s name was there" Disciple 2: It is already there, Srila Prabhupada. His name was already on that list [of deputies in the July 9 directive, stating Srila Prabhupada's authorized system for initiations 'henceforward']. SP: So I depute him to do this... This initiation. I have deputed my disciples. Is it clear or not? Disciple 3: It's clear... We will explain to the Bengali gentleman, just as you have described to us, so that he'll be satisfied with this arrangement. (SPConv Oct. 18, 1977)

(L) PERSONS FOLLOWING SRILA PRABHUPADA'S INSTRUCTIONS ARE HIS DISCIPLES: Persons initiated according to the sadhana established by Srila Prabhupada and fixed in following his instructions are bona fide students or disciples of Srila Prabhupada. (See "Sadhana," next section.) (1) "Sishya means [one] who accepts the ruling of his spiritual master, and disciple means also the same thing--[one] who becomes disciplined by the spiritual master." (SPLecture Sept. 12, 1969) (2) SP: "Who is my disciple? First of all, let him follow strictly the disciplined rules." Disciple: "As long as one is following, then he is..." SP: "Then he is all right." (Conversation, June 13, 1976, Detroit) (3) "He lives forever by his divine instructions, and the follower lives with him." (SBhag Dedication, 1962) (M)

GENUINE DISCIPLES TEACH ALL, "BECOME SRILA PRABHUPADA'S DISCIPLES, ACCEPT SRILA PRABHUPADA AS YOUR ETERNAL GUIDE." The primary aim of missionary work done by Srila Prabhupada's bona fide disciples is to help everyone hear from, worship and serve Srila Prabhupada and in this way learn the complete science of Krishna consciousness. This is the only sure way for everyone to participate in the sankirtana mission of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu and attain perfection in this life. (1) "...devotional service to the Lord is so powerful that it can cleanse the hearts of the people in general, by the devotional service of the pure, empowered devotee. A true representative of the Lord like Narada, Sukadeva Gosvami, Lord Chaitanya, the six Gosvamis, and later Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakura and Srimad Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakura, etc., can deliver all people by their empowered devotional service." (SBhag 2.8.5 purport) (2) "Knowledge should be taken from the perfect person--because if you take knowledge from a person who is defective, your knowledge has no value. You must take knowledge from the perfect." (SPLecture Apr. 12, 1974) (3) "Just try to learn the truth by approaching a spiritual master. Inquire from him submissively and render service unto him. The self-realized soul can impart knowledge unto you, because he has seen the truth." (BGita 4.34) (4) "By the mercy of the spiritual master, one receives the mercy of Krishna. Without the grace of the spiritual master, no one can make any advancement." (Sri Sri Gurv-astaka, Verse 8) (5) "The path of spiritual realization is undoubtedly difficult. The Lord therefore advises us to approach a bona fide spiritual master in the line of disciplic succession from the Lord Himself." (BGita 4.34 purport) (6) "The spiritual master is the mercy representative of the Lord. Therefore, a person burning in the flames of material existence may receive the rains of mercy of the Lord through the transparent medium of the self-realized spiritual master. The spiritual master, by his words, can penetrate into the heart of the suffering person and inject knowledge transcendental, which alone can extinguish the fire of material existence." (SBhag 1.7.22 purport)

(N) SRILA PRABHUPADA IS WORSHIPED ON THE SAME LEVEL AS LORD KRISHNA: Because Srila Prabhupada is the most confidential and empowered servitor of the Lord, all learned devotees or Gaudiya Vaishnavas in this age worship Srila Prabhupada on the same level as Krishna Himself. All Hare Krishna temples conduct daily worship of Srila Prabhupada, both at mangala-arati while worshipping the Deity and again separately during the daily guru-puja program, as per the principles of sadhana ordained by Srila Prabhupada. (See "Sadhana.") (1) "The spiritual master is to be honored as much as the Supreme Lord, because he is the most confidential servant of the Lord. This is acknowledged in all revealed scriptures and followed by all authorities." (Sri Sri Gurv-astaka Verse 7). (2) "Just like Krishna can be present simultaneously in millions of places, similarly the spiritual master also can be present wherever the disciple wants. A spiritual master is the principle, not the body. Just like a television can be seen in thousands of places by the principle of relay monitoring." (SPL May 28, 1968) (O) SRILA PRABHUPADA BLESSES THE KRISHNA CONSCIOUSNESS MOVEMENT: Srila Prabhupada and our predecessor acharyas--particularly Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakura and Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati--have encouraged and blessed the Krishna consciousness movement, the worldwide sanga of Lord Chaitanya's devotees which now gathers under the banner of various organizations. To continue the pure transcendental tradition of this movement which Srila Prabhupada incorporated in 1966 but which various corporate leaders have misrepresented since 1977, sincere and reform-minded devotees preach Lord Chaitanya's mission around the globe, following the explicit instructions and personal example of the self-effulgent acharya, our Founder-Acharya, Srila A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada, who is sad-guru and jagat-guru, the eternal guru for all his bona fide followers and the guru for all the world. (1) "One can attain the path of liberation from material bondage only by rendering service to highly advanced spiritual personalities." (SBhag 5.5.2) (2) "Unless they smear on their bodies the dust of the lotus feet of a Vaishnava completely freed from material contamination, persons very much inclined toward materialistic life cannot be attached to the lotus feet of the Lord, who is glorified for His uncommon activities. Only by becoming Krishna conscious and taking shelter of the lotus feet of the Lord in this way can one be freed from material contamination." (SBhag 7.5.32) (3) "A person who cannot keep his faith in the words of his spiritual master but acts independently never receives the authority to chant the holy name of the Lord. It is said in the Vedas (SU 6.23): [...] 'Only unto those great souls who have implicit faith in both the Lord and the spiritual master are all the imports of Vedic knowledge automatically revealed.' This Vedic injunction is very important, and Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu supported it by His personal behavior. Believing in the words of His spiritual master, He introduced the sankirtana movement, just as the present Krishna consciousness movement was started with belief in the words of our spiritual master. He wanted to preach, we believed in his words and tried somehow or other to fulfill them, and now this movement has become successful all over the world. Therefore faith in the words of the spiritual master and in the Supreme Personality of Godhead is the secret of success. Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu never disobeyed the orders of His spiritual master and stopped propagating the sankirtana movement. Sri Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Gosvami, at the time of his passing away, ordered all his disciples to work conjointly to preach the mission of Chaitanya Mahaprabhu all over the world. Later, however, some self-interested, foolish disciples disobeyed his orders. Each one of them wanted to become head of the mission, and they fought in the courts, neglecting the order of the spiritual master, and the entire mission was defeated. We are not proud of this; however, the truth must be explained. We believed in the words of our spiritual master and started in a humble way--in a helpless way--but due to the spiritual force of the order of the supreme authority, this movement has become successful." (CC Adi 7.95-96 purport) (4) "No one should think that this Krishna consciousness movement is a new movement. As confirmed by Bhagavad-gita and Srimad-Bhagavatam, it is a very, very old movement, for it has been passing down from one Manu to another... Krishna consciousness, based on the nine principles of devotional service (sraavanam kirtanam visnoh smaranam pada-sevanam, arcanam vandanam dasyam sakhyam atma-nivedanam), will never be stopped. It will go on without distinction of caste, creed, color, or country. No one can check it." (SBhag 4.28.31)

(P) SRILA PRABHUPADA'S AUTHORIZED PRINCIPLES OF SPIRITUAL PRACTICE (SADHANA):

"Devotional service of the Lord that ignores the authorized Vedic literatures like the Upanisads, Puranas, and Narada-pancaratra is simply an unnecessary disturbance in society." (Nectar of Devotion) The following principles of spiritual practice have been established by Srila Prabhupada and are recognized, accepted, and followed by the bona fide disciples of Srila Prabhupada. Disciples fixed in following this sadhana are true representatives of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. Deviation from these principles causes schisms, fall-down from the path of pure Krishna consciousness, and disturbance in human society. NINETEEN ITEMS AS FOLLOWS: (1) OFFERING OBEISANCES TO SRILA PRABHUPADA: When devotees offer pranamas (obeisances) to Srila Prabhupada, they should do this clearly and audibly, with the following two prayers, or pranama mantras:

nama om visnu-padaya krsna-presthaya bhu-tale/ srimate bhaktivedanta-svamin iti namine // namas te sarasvate deve gaura-vani-pracarine/ nirvisesa-sunyavadi-pascatya-desa-tarine "One should not offer obeisances silently to the spiritual master; or in other words, one should recite aloud the prayers to the spiritual master while offering obeisances." (NOD Ch. 8) (2) STANDARD MANTRAS FOR KIRTANAS: All kirtanas should begin with the above-mentioned pranama mantras to Srila Prabhupada, which may be followed by chanting "Jaya Prabhupada." The prema-dhvani (respectful obeisances at the end of kirtana) should be recited starting with pranamas to Srila Prabhupada and the predecessor acharyas, and continuing with the other standard, authorized pranamas taught by Srila Prabhupada.

(3) QUALIFICATIONS FOR PERFORMING DEITY WORSHIP: Deity worship in temples of the Hare Krishna Society must be performed exclusively by pujaris who are Srila Prabhupada's initiated disciples. By his order, Srila Prabhupada's disciples and students must chant at least sixteen rounds of the Hare Krishna maha-mantra on beads daily and must follow the four regulative principles of Vaishnava life--that is, no illicit sex, no meat-eating, no gambling, and no intoxication. The highest standard recommended by Srila Prabhupada is for disciples to rise by 4 a.m. The principle is to rise early for mangala-arati. (4) WORSHIPING THE AUTHORIZED DISCIPLIC SUCCESSION: Guru-parampara-

puja (worship of the authorized disciplic succession) is essential in Krishna conscious sadhana. Offerings should be directed first toward the picture of Srila Prabhupada and should proceed (moving rightward from the picture of Srila Prabhupada) to pictures of Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati, Gaura Kisora das Babaji, Bhaktivinoda Thakura, Jagannatha das Babaji, the six Gosvamis, and the Panca-tattva. On the altar with Srila Prabhupada's picture may be only pictures of bona fide predecessor Vaishnava acharyas of the Brahma-Madhva-Gaudiya Sampradaya. "The guru must be situated on the topmost platform of devotional service. There are three classes of devotees, and the guru must be accepted from the topmost class... When one has attained the topmost position of maha-bhagavata, he is to be accepted as guru and worshiped exactly like Hari, the Personality of Godhead. Only such a person is eligible to occupy the post of a guru." (CC Mad 24.330 purport)

(5) AUTHORIZED PAINTINGS AND PHOTOGRAPHS: Only authorized paintings and photographs- pictures of bona fide acharyas and also of Deities shall be placed on the temple altar or walls. Srila Prabhupada instructs that the disappearance day of Jayananda Prabhu may be honored with ceremonies (puspa-abhiseka) and feasting, feasting, as are the disappearance days of other bona fide, recognized Vaishnava saints. (6) ONLY SRILA PRABHUPADA'S VYASASANA IN TEMPLES AND CENTERS: As with Srila Prabhupada's daily guru-puja, Srila Prabhupada's vyasa-asana is a permanent feature in all Hare Krishna temples and centers. A modest floor seat (asana) shall be provided for speakers or those giving class on the authorized shastra, the authorized and approved pre-1978 editions of Srila Prabhupada's un-revised, original books. (7) WORSHIP APPROVED BY SRILA PRABHUPADA: Only Srila Prabhupada's guru-puja and the worship of authorized Deities and predecessor Vaishnava acharyas, as mentioned above, will take place in the temple or any other place of Krishna conscious worship. (8) AUTHORIZED FESTIVALS: All Hare Krishna temples must conduct ceremonies for proper observance of Srila Prabhupada's avirbhava-mahotsava (appearance festival) and tirobhava-mahotsava (disappearance festival). These auspicious days should be celebrated in a grand way, as far as possible. Similarly, the appearance and disappearance observances of the authorized predecessor Vaishnava acharyas, Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, Sri Nityananda Prabhu, Sri Advaita Prabhu, other members of the Sri Panca-tattva and parsadas (associates of Sriman Mahaprabhu), Sri Krishna, Radharani, Ramacandra, Varaha, Narasimha, Vamana, and other avatars and bona fide, recognized Vaishnava saints should be celebrated with devotion and enthusiasm. (9) HOW TO OFFER FOOD: Offering of food, or bhoga, to the Deity shall be done by using the following mantras: nama om visnu-padaya krsna-presthaya bhuta-tale/ srimate bhaktivedanta-svamin iti namine: "I offer my respectful obeisances unto His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada, who is very dear to Lord Krishna, having taken shelter at His lotus feet." namas te sarasvate deve gaura-vanipracarine/ nirvisesa-sunyavadi-pascatyadesatarine: "Our respectful obeisances are unto you, O spiritual master, servant of Sarasvati Gosvami. You are kindly preaching the message of Lord Chaitanyadeva and delivering the Western countries, which are filled with voidism and impersonalism." namo maha-vadanyaya krsna-prema-pradaya te/ krsnaya krsna-caitanya-namne gaura-tvise namah: "O most munificent incarnation! You are Krishna Himself appearing as Sri Krishna Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. You have assumed the golden color of Srimati Radharani, and You are widely distributing pure love of Krishna. We offer our respectful obeisances unto You." namo brahmanya-devaya go-brahmana-hitaya ca/ jagad-dhitaya krsnaya govindaya namo namah: "I offer my respectful obeisances to the Supreme Absolute Truth, Krishna, who is the well-wisher of the cows and the brahmanas as well as the living entities in general. I offer my repeated obeisances to Govinda, who is the pleasure reservoir for all the senses." (CC Mad 13.77) "You may say the prayer to the spiritual master three times, and also the namo brahmanya prayer three times, when offering prasadam. That is very nice, to say the mantra three times. Also, you may, after offering to the spiritual master, offer to Lord Chaitanya by saying the prayer namo maha-vadanyaya three times, and then offer to Krishna thrice." (SPL Mar. 26, 1968) (10) BOOKS AUTHORIZED BY SRILA PRABHUPADA: For personal study, readings, classes, and public distribution, we accept only the authorized and approved pre-1978 editions of Srila Prabhupada's books. We do not accept the unauthorized changes made to Srila Prabhupada's books by various editors. "I have given you the process of disciplic succession... So in the parampara system, in that disciplic succession, you will find no change. The original word is there. That is the thing... If you want the real thing, then you have to take the old, the oldest. You cannot change anything." (SPLecture Dec. 1, 1966) "In my books the philosophy of Krishna consciousness is explained fully, so if there is anything which you do not understand, then you simply have to read again and again. By reading daily, the knowledge will be revealed to you, and by this process, your spiritual life will develop." (SPL Nov. 22, 1974) (11) UNAUTHORIZED SUCCESSOR ACHARYAS OR DIKSHA-GURUS: Srila Prabhupada did not practice a system of nominating or appointing successor acharyas or diksha-gurus. Nor did Srila Prabhupada authorize any person, group, or organization to nominate or appoint successor acharyas or diksha-gurus. Nor did Srila Prabhupada indicate that one may appoint himself as diksha-guru or acharya simply by adopting the role or status. Such ideas are insidious concoctions, unsubstantiated anywhere in Srila Prabhupada's teachings or directives for sadhana. (a) "...I am fool number one.' That means that is liberation. You must be ready always to be chastised by the guru. Then one is liberated. And as soon as he thinks that 'I am beyond this chastisement--I am liberated,' he's a rascal. Why does Chaitanya Mahaprabhu say guru more murkha dekhi' karila sasan? This is sahajiya-vada-- thinking, 'Oh, I have become liberated. I don't require any direction of my guru. I'm liberated.' Then he's a rascal. Why did this Gaudiya Matha fail? Because they tried to become more than the guru. He--before passing away--he gave all direction and never said that 'This man should be the next acharya.' But these people--just after his passing away, they began to fight: 'Who shall be acharya?' That is the failure. They never thought, 'Why--Guru Maharaja gave us instruction on so many things--why did he not say that this man should be acharya?' They wanted to create artificially somebody as acharya, and everything failed. They did not consider even with common sense--that 'If Guru Maharaja wanted to appoint somebody as acharya, why did he not say? He said so many things, and this point he missed? The real point?' And they insisted upon it. They declared some unfit person to become acharya. Then another man came. And then another--'Acharya!' Another--'Acharya!' So better remain a foolish person perpetually to be directed by Guru Maharaja. That is perfection. And as soon as he learns that Guru Maharaja is dead, 'Now I am so advanced that I can kill my guru and I become guru.' Then he's finished." (SPConv Aug. 16, 1976) (b) Guest: When did you become the spiritual leader of Krishna consciousness? SP: When my Guru Maharaja ordered me. This is the guru-parampara. Try to understand. Don't go very speedily. A guru can become a guru when he's ordered by his guru. That's all. Otherwise, nobody can become guru. (SPConv Oct. 28, 1975)

(12) DISOBEDIENT, UNAUTHORIZED IDEAS ABOUT INITIATION: Persons posing as gurus often propagate the following deviations: (a) Vaishnava gurus or acharyas may be authorized by ecclesiastical arrangements (acharya boards, two-thirds-majority votes, and so forth) or appointed from among immature devotees. (b) Vaishnava gurus are self-made or nominated by their friends and followers. (c) Vaishnava gurus are ordinary men who sometimes make common mistakes, and even great devotees (mahajanas) sometimes become degraded under the Lord's external maya-sakti. (d) The bona fide spiritual master may sometimes become a demon. (e) Sadhana-bhaktas, neophyte Vaishnavas, may accept special instructions and special siddha-pranali "initiation" from an unauthorized, self-styled guru if he claims to be augmenting the teachings of the bona fide Vaishnava acharya. (f) Neophyte Vaishnavas, although sincerely engaged in the service of the bona fide acharya, require "re-initiation" by an ecclesiastical "guru" when their former ecclesiastical "guru" deviates. (g) A student of Krishna consciousness may accept initiation, diksha, from more than one guru. (h) Vaishnava acharyas die or become "posthumous," like all mortal men, and thus become inaccessible or ineffective in the matter of initiating and guiding new disciples. (i) Some of the instructions of the Vaishnava acharya automatically become irrelevant after his disappearance. (j) The idea of "reinitiating" devotees who have already earnestly begun serving Srila Prabhupada, having received the bhakti-lata-bija or seed of devotion, is against Vaishnava principles. // Sincere students reject all these unauthorized ideas and never accept imitators as substitutes for the genuine Vaishnava acharya. "There is no possibility that a first-class devotee will fall down..." (CC, Madhya-lila 22.71 purport) "A devotee must have only one initiating spiritual master, because in the scriptures acceptance of more than one is always forbidden." (CC Adi 1.35 purport) "Sri Jiva Gosvami advises that one not accept a spiritual master in terms of hereditary or customary social and ecclesiastical conventions. One should simply try to find a genuinely qualified spiritual master for actual advancement in spiritual understanding." (CC Adi 1.35 purport) "One should take initiation from a bona fide spiritual master coming in the disciplic succession, who is authorized by his predecessor spiritual master. This is called diksha-vidhana. Lord Krishna states in Bhagavad-gita, vyapasrita: one should accept a spiritual master. By this process the entire world can be converted to Krishna consciousness." (SBhag 4.8.54 purport) (13) SRILA PRABHUPADA'S AUTHORIZED SYSTEM FOR INITIATIONS: Srila Prabhupada has ordained and implemented a system for initiations in his mission using deputed priests of the acharya, who offer formal initiation on behalf of Srila Prabhupada. This system has been in place and functioning since at least 1970, seven years before Srila Prabhupada's disappearance. Via numerous spoken and written directives, Srila Prabhupada has clearly delineated his intention to continue initiating disciples by this system "henceforward." Srila Prabhupada's sincere followers accept his system without speculation, following the infallible authority of sadhu-shastra-guru. (See conversations May 28 and July 7, 1977; July 9, 1977 Letter)

(14) "KNOWLEDGE SHOULD BE TAKEN FROM THE PERFECT PERSON:" Only an uttama-adhikari, a topmost, perfect devotee, is qualified to deliver the student from the miseries of the material world and the cycle of birth and death. Therefore, the shastras and acharyas recommend that serious students of Krishna consciousness accept only an uttama-adhikari as diksha-guru. Students should not approach imperfect persons who are subject to fall-down. Serious devotees should not accept initiation or "re-initiation" according to temporal ecclesiastical arrangements but should rather accept only the topmost devotee as diksha-guru, according to the sadhana prescribed by Srila Prabhupada. (a) "The whole world is in the blaze of material pangs, threefold miseries, and a person who is authorized to deliver people from those material pangs—he is called a spiritual master." (SPLecture Aug. 17, 1968) (b) "...help can only be given by a spiritual master like Krishna. Therefore, the conclusion is that a spiritual master who is one hundred percent Krishna conscious is the bona fide spiritual master, for he can solve the problems of life." (BGita 2.8 purport) (c) "Since one cannot visually experience the presence of the Supersoul, He appears before us as a liberated devotee. Such a spiritual master is none other than Krishna Himself." (CC Adi 1.58) (d) "A bona fide spiritual master is in the disciplic succession from time eternal, and he does not deviate at all from the instructions of the Supreme Lord..." (BGita 4.42 purport) (e) "The spiritual master is always considered either one of the confidential associates of Radharani or a manifested representation of Sri Nityananda." (CC Adi 1.46 purport) (f) "On the whole, the spiritual master is an agent of Krishna. Either he is assistant to the gopis or assistant to the cowherd boys. He is on the level of Krishna. That is the verdict of all scriptures. Krishna is worshipable God, and the spiritual master is worshiper God." (SPL Sept. 26, 1969) (g) "... a disciple should be careful to accept an uttama-adhikari as a spiritual master." (Nectar of Instruction, Text 5 purport) (h) "Knowledge should be taken from the perfect person—because if you take knowledge from a person who is defective, your knowledge has no value. You must take knowledge from the perfect." (SPLecture Apr. 12, 1974) (15) SRILA PRABHUPADA'S ORIGINAL TEACHINGS--MORE THAN SUFFICIENT: Srila Prabhupada's bountiful vani or instructions in his original, un-revised writings and in his recordings are more than sufficient for the practice and propagation of Krishna consciousness. Sincere students of Krishna consciousness strive to absorb their consciousness in Srila Prabhupada's original books and recordings and to live by his eternal, divine instructions. "Whatever is to be learned can be learned from our books. There is no need whatsoever for outside instruction." (SPL Dec. 25, 1973) (16) AUTHORIZED VS. UNAUTHORIZED ASSOCIATION: The bona fide Krishna consciousness movement encourages and promotes the association of Vaishnavas, based on recognizing and relishing Srila Prabhupada's unique position as a nitya-siddha Vaishnava and sakty-avesa avatara and the Sampradaya Acharya and beloved guru for all his sincere followers. As a matter of course, Krishna conscious devotees come together and preach on this basis, following Srila Prabhupada's instruction, "Always keep the Acharya in the center."

(17) FOLLOWING SRILA PRABHUPADA'S FORMAT FOR VARIOUS FUNCTIONS: Members of the Krishna consciousness movement naturally cooperate to arrange Vaishnava festivals on a regular basis and try to preach, according to individual capacity, following the format given by Srila Prabhupada, with the chanting of the Lord's holy names, readings and classes from Srila Prabhupada's original books, discussions based on his Bhaktivedanta Purports, and prasada offered and distributed in the way Srila Prabhupada has shown us. (18) OPEN PUBLIC DISCUSSION ENCOURAGED: Srila Prabhupada encourages istha-gosthi (public discussion) among devotees. Members of Krishna consciousness movement agree to encourage and promote istha-gosthi among ourselves and others, to discuss the proper conclusions of Vaisnavism and their practical application, based upon Srila Prabhupada's teachings. "A sincere student should not neglect the discussion of such conclusions, considering them controversial, for such discussions strengthen the mind. Thus one's mind becomes attached to Sri Krishna." (CC Adi 2.117) (19) SERVING SRILA PRABHUPADA, TOGETHER: In conclusion, we embrace the simple yet sublime Vaishnava principles of serving Srila Prabhupada--the Acharya--and working together to help him distribute the blessings of Lord Sri Krishna Chaitanya all over the universe. "No one can check the spread of the Krishna consciousness movement, because upon this movement is the benediction of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, Lord Chaitanya Mahaprabhu." (CC Adi 17.204 pt) "The spiritually powerful message of Godhead can be properly discussed only in a society of devotees, and it is greatly pleasing to hear in that association. If one hears from devotees, the way of transcendental experience quickly opens, and gradually one attains firm faith that in due course develops into attraction and devotion." (SBhag 3.25.25) "He lives forever by his divine instructions, and the follower lives with him." (SBhag 1962) www.harekrishnasociety.org

---

CHAPTER 194: PRABHUPADA ANUGAS

(1) Prabhupada Anuga means follower of Srila Prabhupada and was a term first coined in 1988 by Vedic Village Review. (2) "We are asking, following the footsteps of predecessor, Rupa Goswami, Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. Chaitanya Mahaprabhu's instruction to Rupa Goswami. Rupanuga. Therefore we are called rupanuga. Anuga. Anuga means following. Going, following the footsteps of Rupa Goswami. So as the, Rupa Goswami is following his predecessor, Chaitanya Mahaprabhu, so we have to follow our predecessor. Then we will be successful." (SPLecture Jan. 9, 1973) (3) "In regards to the metaview, of unification, that would seem to involve establishing rigorous yet flexible guidelines, and standards, in regards to which devotees and projects warrant inclusion in the sanga of strict followers of Srila Prabhupada. All of that within the context of acintya-bheda-bheda-tattva, that, while someone may not, due to various reasons, be eligible [or want] to be part of a particular site/ organization/ federation, etc., that doesn't mean that they're not contributing to Srila Prabhupada's movement. We need to broaden realization and acceptance of some fundamental principles, as a basis for unity." (Dhira Govinda das, 2016)

INCREASING PRABHUPADANUGA ADHERENTS

Those who advocate that Srila Prabhupada arranged to initiate disciples post-departure via the officiating priest or ritvik representative method are increasing in numbers as the years go by. An ISKCON so-called guru recently admitted by that the greatest threat to ISKCON is the "ritviks," commonly called Prabhupadanugas, and they are now a widespread phenomenon all over the planet. Due to the internet's information revolution, devotees have been able to discover and understand the truth of Srila Prabhupada's teachings and his guru-siddhanta. The false assumption that an ISKCON controlled by corrupted leaders has a monopoly on Srila Prabhupada's "divine grace" is being exposed to millions as a cheating crime. Intelligent devotees worldwide are studying Srila Prabhupada's instructions intently. That Srila Prabhupada appointed ritvik representatives to initiate on his behalf as his own disciples after his disappearance has become a given, standard axiom in Krishna consciousness for those whose intelligence is no longer clouded by the polluting influence and defective doctrinal propaganda of ISKCON's pretentious and self-serving gurus.

The ISKCON institution appears to be expanding in some parts of the world, especially India, with loosely committed Hindu congregations attending weekly temple programs, but the dedicated membership is actually dwindling while salaries for managers goes higher. This is due to the gradual attrition (defection) of those who come to understand the nature of ISKCON's spiritual corruption, and that the ISKCON guru system is not what Srila Prabhupada wanted. ISKCON is bleeding a slow death with its underlying false premise of the need for living gurus who are as much conditioned and imperfect as the disciples they cheat. "I pray to Krishna that you all may use your intelligence for Krishna's service and not for any personal ambition. We have worked very hard and established a great institution, but if we think for our personal benefit then it will become ruined. This is my only concern..." (SPL Nov. 1, 1974) As the truth continues to expand due to its own purity, Srila Prabhupada becomes the sole diksha and primary siksha guru for increasing numbers of devotees. The Prabhupadanuga world is thriving on its own merits while the corrupt ISKCON institution dies from its disease of facilitating material ambitions. Anyone with an honest heart and sincere intentions will eventually become a Prabhupadanuga, whereas those with ulterior motives, like to be a phony guru, will remain bewildered. ISKCON, short of internal revolt and reformation, is destined to the same fate as that of the Gaudiya Math.

UNITY IN DIVERSITY

The lack of organization and natural decentralization in the Prabhupada Anuga sphere has led some to lament the seeming lack of cooperation amongst its adherents, and they frequently point to the spats and quarrels over minor details that manifest in cyberspace. Unfortunately, the most vocal in any persuasion receive disproportionate attention and create prejudice for others. The ISKCON faithful gloat over the apparent disarray amongst Prabhupada Anugas compared to their own institution's bureaucratic, repressive tyranny with rules, procedures, and bylaws which give an impression of stability and strength. Under the surface, however, ISKCON is weak and weakening, whereas Prabhupada Anugas have strength and are strengthening. This strength comes from the basic principles of unity amongst all Prabhupada Anugas in following the orders of Srila Prabhupada and being faithful to his guru tattva and instructions. The atrocity of false guruship in ISKCON has resulted in a paper tiger confederation of temporarily, mutually supportive fiefdoms or franchises that cooperate only so long as it serves their separate agendas. Their self-destructive focus is divided amongst scores of low-class competitive guru clans centered on unauthorized and unempowered misleader-gurus. The difference between pledging one's life and service to Srila Prabhupada and to a false guru is vast. ISKCON's unity will last only while it is convenient to the competitive participants, whereas the world of Prabhupada Anugas, although sometimes superficially discordant, is united around a set of basic principles of loyalty to Srila Prabhupada's instructions, and all-importantly, to those critical instructions regarding his position as the sole diksha guru for everyone. There is agreement on the central fundamental point of emphasizing Srila Prabhupada as the diksha guru and current acharya. Silver lining in decentralization?

WWW.PRABHUPADAANUGASWORLDWIDE.ORG

This website has been set up as a meeting place for Prabhupada Anugas worldwide, and anyone accepting the basic principle of Srila Prabhupada as the sole diksha guru may be listed with their particulars. Organizations, centers, homes, or individuals are welcome to list thereon. The basic principles of agreement are listed as a mission statement for the international alliance of Srila Prabhupada followers at the website.

NINE BASIC MISSION AXIOMS FOR ALL SRILA PRABHUPADA FOLLOWERS

(1) Srila Prabhupada is the current acharya and diksha guru of the Krishna Consciousness Movement and ISKCON based upon the only system which he used, practiced, taught and established with detail and clarity over a dozen years and finalized/confirmed in his July 9, 1977 written directive. (2) Srila Prabhupada's unrevised, original pre-1978 books are the basis of the Krishna Consciousness movement and ISKCON. Srila Prabhupada's followers and disciples should use these books for study and distribution. (3) Srila Prabhupada's original method of offering aratika and bhoga to the deities as he instructed and practiced during his manifest presence should be the method followed by all Srila Prabhupada's followers and disciples. (4) Photographs of Srila Prabhupada and the authorized predecessor acharyas, as practiced by Srila Prabhupada, should be the only ones on the altars and preaching centers of Srila Prabhupada followers and disciples. (5) The jaya dhvani [respectful obeisances] prayers at the end of kirtana should start with pranams to Srila Prabhupada and the predecessor acharyas, and continue with other standard authorized pranams taught by Srila Prabhupada. (6) Srila Prabhupada's original method of offering pranams to him by audibly reciting nama om vishnu padaya and namaste sarasvate deve should be practiced by Srila Prabhupada followers and disciples. No other pranams should be chanted. (7) Srila Prabhupada is the pure Vaishnava who is meditated on when singing Sri Gurvastakam. (8) In the list of disciplic succession given by Srila Prabhupada, His Divine Grace AC Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada is number '32', with no need for a '33' as a link to '32.' (9) The terms "my guru or my spiritual master" refer to His Divine Grace Srila Prabhupada. (Dhira Govinda, Yasodanandana)

INDEPENDENTLY THOUGHTFUL AND THE CHOICE IS STILL OURS by Dhira Govinda das

It is essential that we emphasize Srila Prabhupada's wish that his followers be independently thoughtful. "Krishna Consciousness Movement is for training men to be independently thoughtful..." (SPL Dec. 22, 1972) Relatedly, it's crucial that, as a basis for international cooperation, each center, temple, project, devotional community, and individual, is capable, on all levels, to manage themselves peacefully and independently. "You manage your affairs peacefully and independently, and try to improve the spiritual atmosphere of the centers more carefully." (SPL Apr. 8, 1972) [Although Srila Prabhupada wanted us to cooperate together if at all possible, with the GBC as our spiritual guides, ultimately affiliation with the GBC and ISKCON is a matter of personal choice.] So, each center, and individual, for that matter, chooses whether they want to affiliate with the international body. That choice, naturally, will be based, hopefully, on whether the international governing body genuinely serves and enhances the center's/individual's Krishna consciousness and contribution to the sankirtana mission. If not, then I would recommend and encourage any particular center, or individual, to not affiliate with, or become a member of, the international governing committee. If a center does decide to join the confederation of centers/projects/individuals connected with the international governing committee, then there are rights and responsibilities intrinsic to that membership.

Through isthagosthi, in the form of SBhag or BGita class discussion, and in other forms, our grasp and realizations of the principles and practical applications of Srila Prabhupada's siddhanta naturally deepen and expand. We welcome such discussion, from all members of Srila Prabhupada's movement. And, individuals and groups serving in leadership capacities in Srila Prabhupada's movement, are responsible to establish distinctions, on the principle of acintya-bheda-bheda-tattva, regarding, for example, which sets of diverse perspectives enhance and enrich the Prabhupada-centered sanga and katha, and which viewpoints and practices are divergent in such a way so as to not be accepted within the boundaries of the institutions founded and inspired by Srila Prabhupada. Through communication, discussion, the genuine spirit of isthagosthi, we enhance our understanding, of ourselves, of each other, and of Srila Prabhupada. There are the principles of independent thoughtfulness and free choice with regards to affiliation with any group. I would want to look at the group, the international committee, and determine whether it's sufficiently close to my understanding of Srila Prabhupada's spirit and teachings, to officially affiliate with it. That, within the context of course, of being genuinely open-minded to hear from others and expand and maybe even change my perspectives. I'd expect and hope for such independent thoughtfulness from all of Srila Prabhupada's followers, worldwide. (END)

THERE ARE NOW OPTIONS FOR EX-ISKCON MEMBERS

Dhira Govinda das re: options for those who no longer wish to participate in ISKCON due to the guru and other issues: "ISKCON Bangalore and its affiliated temples have an elected GBC structure, and they understand, live and preach proper siddhanta with respect to Srila Prabhupada as their current link to the parampara. So, joining or affiliating with the ISKCON Bangalore group is a viable, Prabhupada-centered option. Surely the leaders in ISKCON Bangalore are ready under some reasonable conditions to accept individuals and temples into their organizational structure. The ISKCON Bangalore group is enlightened with regard to the philosophical principles of Srila Prabhupada as our direct, living and current link to the disciplic succession. Thus, for those who find the restoration of the mission to be unnecessarily complex, and assuming that they're qualified, they can participate in an already existing leadership structure that is quite good. There are now also many other groups worldwide with whom one may associate, affiliate, integrate, or participate."

CONCLUSION

"They are the Vapu-Vadis, and we are the Vani-Vadis." Ameyatma das (2009)

"Regarding general state of affairs at Amsterdam temple, I can understand there is some disturbance among you, but that is not to be taken very seriously. Real business is preaching work, and if there is full attention on this matter only, all other businesses will be automatically successful. Fighting amongst ourselves is not at all good, but if our preaching work is neglected, or if we fall down in following the regulative principles such as rising before four, chanting 16 rounds, like that, if these things are not strictly observed then maya will enter and spoil everything. So my best advice to you is to strictly observe these things yourself and be the example so that all others may follow. We should not criticize each other, as Vaishnavas, because there is fault in everyone and we may be ourselves subject to criticism. Best thing is to be above suspicion ourselves, then if we see discrepancies and make suggestion the others will automatically respect and take action to rectify the matters. That is cooperation. And we must exist on such cooperation, otherwise the whole thing is doomed if we simply go on fighting over some small thing. So try to organize things and preach together in this spirit, and that will please me very, very much." (SPL to Madhumangala das Nov. 18, 1972

"I have received report [...] that they are enamored by your behavior, your character, and your devotion. In the newspaper cuttings also they gave such hints. In other words, everyone is appreciating your presentation. Please keep up this standard of behavior. Do not make any artificial discrepancies amongst yourselves because you are acting on a very responsible business. Perhaps you know that there are many political parties in a country, but when the country's total responsibility has to be executed, they become combined. To have some little disagreements amongst yourselves is not very unnatural because we are all individual beings. But as we are all working on behalf of Krishna we should always forget our personal interests and see to the prime cause." (SPL Gurudasa, Yamuna 1969)

CHAPTER 195: SRILA PRABHUPADA'S PERFECT, NATURAL ARRANGEMENT

Srila Prabhupada's Perfect, Natural Arrangement for the Simple System of Initiation into the Krishna Consciousness Movement... By Praghosa das, book distributor (2006)

PRABHUPADA GIVES DIKSA INITIATION: (1) "The Guru is not a mortal, erring creature like ourselves. He is eternal Servant of Sri Krishna Whom He sends into this world for the deliverance of fallen souls. He comes into this world on this "Mission of Causeless Divine Mercy" in order to help us to rise, out of the depths of sin to our natural state of absolute purity, by methods which are perfectly consistent with the principles of our really unbiased reason. So long as we refuse to listen to him we are doomed to misunderstand everything." (SBSST) (2) Vaikunthanatha (ACBSP): "[...] When I first joined, I'd been taught that the parampara-system is like a chain, and if you're not initiated, if you're not linked up to this chain, then you can't go back to Godhead. I thought, 'We're distributing so many books, but if the people who read them are not initiated, then they can't go back to Godhead.' So, one day I followed Srila Prabhupada [...] I said, 'Srila Prabhupada, we're distributing so many books but if people aren't initiated, then they can't go back to Godhead.' Srila Prabhupada turned, looked me right in the eyes and said, 'Just by reading my books they are initiated.' I thought, 'That is an incredible example of compassion.'" (3) "Diksha is the process by which one can awaken his transcendental knowledge and vanquish all reactions caused by sinful activity. A person expert in the study of the revealed scriptures knows this process as diksa." (CC Mad 15:108) The above statements are not hyperbole by our Acharyas. They are acknowledged as objective reality. The assignation of such value to the spiritual master - rendering the Guru as "worshipable" is established by the Supreme Lord Sri Krsna Himself. His Divine Grace Srila Prabhupada asserts this in total - in the following offering delivered in 1936 as his Vyasa Puja offering of glorification of Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati Thakur on his appearance day. In the following essay SBSST explains in detail - all the essential details concerning initiation in Krsna Consciousness under the guidance of the Bonafide Spiritual Master. It can be found here: http://www.gosai.com/chaitanya/srila\_sridhara\_mj/sri\_guru/sri\_guru\_pref.html

The presentation of the facts - as they pertain to The Spiritual Master and how we are able to access his guidance and Mercy are perfectly facilitated in the arrangements of the Founder Acharya for ISKCON - Srila Prabhupada. Carefully read them below and you will see the simplicity and ease with which Srila Prabhupada set about arranging for the whole world to come under the shelter of our Spotless Parampara descending from Lord Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu! Srila Prabhupada's instructions on initiation are in perfect harmony with both his own essay and the essay on initiation by Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati Thakur Srila Prabhupada. They are:

(A) JULY 9, 1977 LETTER/ ORDER This is the conclusory communiqué to all temples presidents and GBC's on the subject of future initiations/gurus in ISKCON after Prabhupada leaves his body. These instructions were sent after several GBC meetings during the previous month specifically on this subject. The specific word "henceforward" has only one meaning, viz. "from now on" or "from this time forward." This is both according to Srila Prabhupada's own previous usage of the word and the meaning ascribed to it by the English Language. Unlike other words, the word henceforward is unambiguous since it only possesses one dictionary definition. The word "henceforward" does not mean "from now onwards until I depart." It simply means "from now onwards." There is no mention in the letter that the system should stop on Srila Prabhupada's departure, neither does it state that the system was to only be operational during his presence. This is the simple safe and secure system set up by Srila Prabhupada four months before his departure, with no subsequent instruction to terminate it. Without such a counter instruction, this letter remains intact as Srila Prabhupada's instruction on initiation. This legal ISKCON document states ISKCON initiation policy from that time (July 9, 1977) onward. The recording of names cannot refer to the chronological validity of this document because there is no all-important time limitation stated nor is there mention of any time limitation in any of Prabhupada's other written or recorded statements on ritvik initiations. Therefore the word "henceforward" can only mean "from this time onwards" or until this document is specifically countermanded by him. This never took place.

Therefore, the appointed successor diksa-guru system in ISKCON today - which is obliged as the only choice offered a new devotee, is not the authorized system left us by Srila Prabhupada. One can only conclude that Srila Prabhupada's original system was rejected by the leadership of ISKCON. It is safe to conclude, upon careful examination of all the evidence, that this "rejection" was the result of personal motivation due to immaturity and/or insubordination and your basic immaturity, in concert with the acceptance of the guidance of "Higher Authority"**(see below) in the form of Sridhara Maharaja in 1978. It has endured to this day.

**In 1978 the GBC "consulted" HH Sridhara Swami as to "How" they were to put into effect Srila Prabhupada's instructions in this matter of initiations. He counseled that the new men should be given an opportunity to "study the candidates" for some time - in order to determine in whom they were to repose their sraddha or faith." This was quite literally - a complete and total reversal of Srila Prabhupada's direct order in this matter. Srila Prabhupada's system of initiation never obliged the new men in Krsna Consciousness - whose faith in the science of Krsna Consciousness rested 100% upon his books and the standards maintained universally by ALL his initiated disciples - to upon his physical absence - search from amongst his authorized men -for a qualified "candidate" who was to be viewed as "worthy" of this new man's faith. Temple to Temple - leader to leader - the process was sublime and "standardized." There was no question of these men being "candidates." Srila Prabhupada's original appointees were "AUTHORIZED" to re-present Srila Prabhupada and HIS standards. That is all. There was no instruction to now "search from amongst them" thus scuttling the very simple and standardized procedures long established by Srila Prabhupada for the easy adoption of Krsna Consciousness by anyone - anywhere - in the world. It should be noted that the word "candidate" used by Sridhara Swami is in actuality to be applied to the aspiring disciple;not THE SPIRITUAL MASTER. A "Candidate" seeks the "approval" or vote of confidence from others. Srila Prabhupada was never a "candidate" or "suitor" seeking our approval or allegiance. He came to us - unrequested and unannounced and he introduced the absolute truth - within the atmosphere of open rebellion - that is this degraded Western culture. We could then accept or reject his authority - but he was not seeking our vote of confidence. We were humbly requesting his confidence in our sincerity to follow his standardized presentation of the science of Krsna Consciousness. The mere fact that Sridhara Swami even used this word to describe the appointed representatives of the Acharya Srila Prabhupada - denotes his own misunderstanding of his own position in relationship to Srila Prabhupada. He viewed himself - in the presence of the self-effulgent Acharya Srila Prabhupada - as a "candidate" for the allegiance or commitment of aspiring disciples, when he should have openly admitted to Srila Prabhupada's obvious exclusive authority as Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati's successor and shown full insistence that ALL should take full and unreserved shelter of HDG Srila Prabhupada.

This counsel was rejected in its essence however and the GBC adopted the Zonal Acharya system instead. In this they got it 50% right: no need to search for one's "personal favorite" - but they misrepresented them selves as Acharyas. This inevitably led to a major rift between local leadership and the "gurus" who assumed the instruction to surrender to one's spiritual master - with "body, mind and intelligence" (CC Mad 15:108) was to be directed to them personally - as opposed to Srila Prabhupada and his mission. Gurus were "commandeering men and money" for their projects oft times without considering the input of inspiration of the Local Leadership. When they balked at the "intervention" they knew to be incorrect or misguided - the battle began. Exactly the effect Srila Prabhupada said would spoil his mission: "Quarrel is not Good. Quarrel is material." A series of falldowns and major losses of important assets - all acquired through the hard work of trusting devotees - served to undermine the very empire Srila Prabhupada had created. Later - the "counsel" Sridhara Swami was proffered by the next generation of reformers in 1986-as they argued in favor of opening up the position of Acharya to more men -AND -now encouraging the newcomers to search amongst the "candidates" -to see which one could actually inspire their conviction or "sraddha" as Sridhara Swami called it. We now see this phenomenon of "suitorship" being proffered within Srila Prabhupada's mission to one extent or another as the "exclusively" proper transmission of Srila Prabhupada's instructions. It is acceptable only if and when Srila Prabhupada's original system of "appointed" or "authorized re-presentatives are first clearly explained to be Srila Prabhupada's actual original arrangement.

Srila Prabhupada's Supporting Instructions: There were other statements made (Srila Prabhupada, his secretary) after the July 9th letter, which clearly indicated that the system of officiating acharyas, working under the scrutiny and sanction of the mission itself and whose authorized duties were carefully enumerated, was intended to continue without cessation: (a) "...the process for initiation to be followed in the future." (July 11) (b) "...continue to become ritvik and act on my charge." (July 19) (c) "...continue to become ritvik and act on my behalf." (July 31) In these documents we find words such as "continue" and "future" which along with the word "henceforward" all point to the permanency of this effective system. There is no statement from Srila Prabhupada that even hints that this system was to terminate on his departure.

(B) Letter to Hansadutta Das July 10, 1977 (C) Letter to Kirtanandanda Swami from Srila Prabhupada July 11, 1977 (D) Letter from Ramesvara Das - to all Godbrothers throughout ISKCON July 21, 1977 (E) Letter from Tamal as secretary, Srila Prabhupada) to Hansadutta July 31 1977 (F) Srila Prabhupada's Declaration of Will June 5, 1977 (G) Last Will Codicil Nov. 5, 1977 (H) Finally, and most importantly, Tamal sent the following letter to Vasudeva prabhu in Fiji only 27 days before HDG Srila Prabhupada left this world - providing the DIRECT TEMPLATE along with Srila Prabhupada's own sense of importance and URGENCY to "increase the number of devotees" from amongst the "local natives"- be they in Fiji, Nigeria or Michigan! Oct. 18, 1977: "My dear Vasudeva Prabhu, [...] I have been instructed by His Divine Grace Srila Prabhupada to reply your letter dated Sept. 29, 1977. Although His Divine Grace is very ill, still he is so much interested in Fiji and the Krishna-Kaliya Temple that I thought it proper to read your Letter to him. Srila Prabhupada heard everything with great attention. Srila Prabhupada was very pleased to know that book distribution is being increased with the ample assistance of householders living outside the temple. Prabhupada said that 'any of these sincere householders should be initiated. Increase the number of devotees there. You initiate them with a fire ceremony. I have already named eleven of my disciples so you can write to any of them the recommended persons and after receiving the spiritual name, you can hold a fire ceremony.'

*This conforms to Srila Prabhupada's clear instructions in the purport to CC Mad 15: 104-8 as to how the new men approaching our International Society for Krsna Consciousness for initiation are guided. "In the morning, afternoon and evening, one should worship the Deity, chant the Hare Krsna mantra, offer oblations, perform a fire sacrifice, and feed the brahmanas. These five activities constitute purascarya. To attain full success when taking initiation from the spiritual master, one should first perform these purascarya processes."

The word purah means "before" and carya means "activities." Due to the necessity of these activities, we do not immediately initiate disciples in the International Society for Krishna Consciousness. For six months, a candidate for initiation must first attend arati and classes in the sastras, practice the regulative principles and associate with other devotees. When one is actually advanced in the purascarya-vidhi, he is recommended by the local temple president for initiation. It is not that anyone can be suddenly initiated without meeting the requirements. When one is further advanced by chanting the Hare Krsna mantra sixteen rounds daily, following the regulative principles and attending classes, he receives the sacred thread (brahminical recognition) after the second six months. In concert with Book Distribution (see Vaikunthanatha above) and his GBC/Temple President managerial system - Srila Prabhupada's perfect system does not ask of those who come to Krsna Consciousness, giving up any and all forms of "pretentious" religion, to now "pretend" that ANYONE is infallible and incapable of disappointing our Acharyas. Their "initiation" into Krsna Consciousness is not contingent upon their finding an "infallible" representative of Srila Prabhupada and the Parampara - but rather upon their willingness to serve the instructions of Srila Prabhupada as they naturally descend to them through his Bhaktivedanta Purports and the honest and loyal devotees who are carefully following those same instructions and "authorized" to teach the next generation how to do likewise. The life force of our progress in Krsna Consciousness is not dependent upon the person of the guru. His satisfaction with the disciple is the by product of our accepting his simple instructions. In the above cited verse and purport to CC Mad 15:108 it is stated: "Without performing the purascarya activities, one cannot become perfect even by chanting this mantra for hundreds of years. However, one who has undergone the purascarya-vidhi process can attain success very easily. If one wishes to perfect his initiation, he must first undergo the purascarya activities. The purascarya process is the life-force by which one is successful in chanting the mantra. Without the life-force, one cannot do anything; similarly, without the life force of purascarya-vidhi, no mantra can be perfected."

So it is the emphasis upon training the new devotees in their adoption of this puruscarya process - for a minimum of 6 months - that is the actual "life force" that will bring them success in their chanting. It is this success - the increase in their attraction to Lord Krsna - and the diminishment of their attraction to the material world and whatever it pretends to offer - the serves to generate their faith in this process given by Srila Prabhupada. It is faith in Krsna and the means to please and attain him - that the Spiritual Master seeks to produce within us; not faith in him but faith in Krsna and the power of His Name. THAT is where a new man's faith will yield the desired effect. Srila Prabhupada never so much as hinted that the men he selected to execute this important yet simple aspect of devotional service - were merely by means of this appointment - to be understood to be self realized or perfected souls - situated in "unbounded transcendental happiness" and incapable of disappointing him or the new initiates. He made it clear in his follow up letter to Hansadutta prabhu exactly why he had chosen him: "It is because you are my sincere servant. You have given up attachment for a beautiful and qualified wife and that is a great benediction. You are a real preacher. Therefore I like you." No doubt his reasoning behind the other men was similar. All of us who knew these men and that period of ISKCON'S history know that these men were seen by Srila Prabhupada as his trusted and responsible and most capable leaders. Their loyalty was not in question then.

SIMPLE, SUBLIME, SECURE: The absence of a countermanding order in this matter, is extremely significant. If we study the above cited "Codicil" to his will that Srila Prabhupada legalized on Nov. 5, 1977, we find that he concluded that such a "codicil" was needed because he wished to "clarify certain things which are to a certain extent a little vague in my previous Will dated 4th June, 1977." What followed were specific "countermanding" instructions to his will. These new instructions rendered certain details in the will - dealing with the changes in the codicil - to be his clear and no longer "vague" wishes in those matters. Had Srila Prabhupada considered his instructions on initiation to have been likewise "vague" - he certainly would have left countermanding instructions. He did not. Over the years there have been countless attempts on both side of the issue of initiation to explain WHY he did not. All that matters in the end is - that he did not. We are thus left with the instruction only. In the material world there are numerous official organizations - literally thousands in every country - whose management is highly dependent upon very clear chains of command. Systems such as the US Navy, or Federal Reserve Banking System, Red Cross, or US Coast Guard, to name only a few - are extremely dependent upon rigid adherence to all internal memorandums that deal directly with the execution of the affairs of each of those systems. In many cases - such adherence is routinely acknowledged as connected to factual "life and death" for countless individuals. No officer of such institutions is able to arbitrarily alter - or ignore - any internal memo - that directly mandates their actions. Doing so can and in most cases will result in highly negative consequences for everyone involved and in due course the violater(s) of such internal instructions are terminated. Where their refusal to follow orders can result in death, destruction or enormous financial loss - their insubordination can even result in the offender's being placed in prison or their death! These organizations are important - yet their influence is at the utmost, dealing with "Life and Death" only. ISKCON however deals directly with Life and Death repeatedly for all living entities!

Consequently - each of Srila Prabhupada's direct memos - sent to his GBC and Temple Presidents - dealing with precisely what he wanted accomplished and how He had determined was the best way to achieve that - need to be recognized as infinitely more significant than any "internal memorandum or instruction" serving to guide the actions of any other organization in the world. They should be followed with resolute determination. Any thing less is insubordination. The management of Srila Prabhupada's ISKCON is millions and millions of times more important than all of the mundane institutions in this world that carefully ensure that their instructions are strictly followed. End of Story. In the above essay on "Initiation" SBSST states: "It is, however, very rarely that a person with modern culture feels inclined to submit to the guidance of another specially in spiritual matters. But the very person submits readily enough to the direction of a physician for being cured of his bodily ailments. Because these latter cannot be ignored without consequences that are patent to everybody." We all work in a world that carefully guards the sound principles that serve to ensure with careful and secure management, our wealth and/or our person. For example, we tend to choose airlines that we are reasonably certain follow the internal guidelines established by their company's management, that see to the all-important maintenance of the aircraft itself. Were we to know that in general the maintenance crew regularly ignores the internal guidelines of a particular airline as they directly pertain to the proper upkeep of the aircraft - there is NOT ONE GBC OR GURU in ISKCON who would knowingly test fate by flying such a whimsically managed airline where the men responsible for the safety of the aircraft regularly disregard the internal memos concerning the proper upkeep of the aircraft that are provided almost daily by their authorities: thus increasing the routine risks associated with air travel. Likewise- no one would invest in a business or company of any kind- if it was discovered that the "chain of command" that is naturally vital to the health and profitability of any company - was regularly ignored or contradicted - without authority by the managers and employees. As SBSST states above exactly why such caution is naturally exercised: "Because these latter cannot be ignored without consequences that are patent to everybody." If this be true in such material situations, how much more cautious need we be in adhering to the instructions of our Acharya as they pertain to the management of his ISKCON mission. SBSST states - that all that is needed to make our life successful is our consulting and following the instructions of a really competent "spiritual physician". "The evil that results from our neglect of the ailments of the soul is of a nature that paralyzes and deludes our understanding and prevents the recognitions of itself. Its gravity is not recognized as it does not apparently stand in the way of our worldly activities with the same directness as the other. The average cultured man is at liberty to ask questions without realizing any pressing necessity of submitting to the treatment of spiritual maladies at the hands of a really competent physician."

Srila Prabhupada's simple and effective arrangement for bringing THE spiritual master easily within reach of every single soul - in any town or village of the world is obvious to all but the most stubborn. Clearly he established himself as the "really competent physician" and perfectly arranged for all souls to come under his expert guidance and care with the help of his books and his devotees. The arrangement of Srila Prabhupada - solid men - devotees in fine standing - authorized to initiate on his behalf - clearly representing themselves as "officiating acharyas" - confirming the devotees initiation as Srila Prabhupada's grand disciple and an initiated member of ISKCON - is in fact the arrangement that is spelled out by HDG Srila Prabhupada as his instructions in the matter, in all the Directives sent out to his loyal men throughout the world. For anyone to protest otherwise - is merely "inventing" in the face of all the clear and simple evidence to the contrary. This does not prevent someone from rising to the level of purity where it is naturally recognized by some and they may choose to accept this person as guru. But that must happen naturally, not with the assistance of coercive arrangements that bar him from first considering the arrangement of Srila Prabhupada for his easy initiation as it is described in his letter to Vasudeva prabhu. Anyone who prevents Srila Prabhupada's initial arrangement from being the primary arrangement offered by His Divine Grace to any new man - is guilty of a very grave infraction. Whether done in ignorance or malice -such withholding of Srila Prabhupada's instructions constitutes cheating of the highest order.

Krishna Consciousness is a very natural process. For some - their approaching Krsna - through the spiritual master - will conform to the process as given by Srila Prabhupada when he was both here with us and his simple system he left us. Their progress in both "vairagya and vidya" will be almost entirely dependent upon their immediate devotee association; the Temple residents, Temple President etc. They may have little to no contact with, nor dependence upon, those men authorized to confirm their initiation. Others though, may attribute great value to the association and leadership of some of these men and will naturally feel their Krsna Consciousness intimately linked with the compassion and guidance of one or some of these devotees. Whether the relationship between the devotees and the men authorized to initiate is seen by them to be one of guru or "officiating guru" - the position of Srila Prabhupada's men is the same; to properly exemplify their commitment to the simple science of Krsna Consciousness as given us by Srila Prabhupada, with enthusiasm to share this science with any and all who can take it and to cooperate with the simple yet highly effective GBC/Temple President managerial system so carefully constructed by our Spiritual Master Srila Prabhupada. The new devotee may relate with them more intimately as guru but the relationship must always be endorsed FIRST as "official" by those leaders in ISKCON who have fully embraced their OATH OF ALLEGIANCE to Srila Prabhupada as the Supreme Authority for the Krsna Consciousness movement - while under the banner of ISKCON. There are countless devotees out there - whose joyful identification with ISKCON is only with the eternal principles of Krsna Consciousness - the spiritual idea that gave birth the ISKCON. I don't need to name them but they reject Srila Prabhupada as the Supreme Authority for this eternal mission. They reject his position as "exclusive" authority" - under the banner of ISKCON as he asserted. So they are not willing to work "on behalf of Srila Prabhupada's local preachers" in the proscribed manner given us by Srila Prabhupada. That is their loss but what can be done. "You can lead a devotee to the kirtan - but you can't make him dance!"

AGAIN - SIMPLE - SUBLIME - SECURE. SBSST states in the above essay "The crux of the matter lies not in the external nature of the ceremony of initiation as it appears to us because that is bound to be unintelligible to us being an affair of the other world, but in the conviction of the necessity of and the successful choice of a really good preceptor." The Liberty to Choose -based upon our sound reasoning and the wisdom of the scriptures - the "really good preceptor" now some 30 years after Srila Prabhupada left us, will find some men more willing to place their confidence in a direct relationship with one of Srila Prabhupada's duly initiated men who have proven themselves sufficiently to be capable of guiding them by precept and example as their "good preceptor." This will always be a matter of individual choice. Some will naturally prefer to avoid any risk of disappointment in this choice -by accepting Srila Prabhupada's simple system. They must never be discouraged to do so but likewise no one should object to a man's independently "assigning" absolute value to one of Srila Prabhupada's disciples as his guru either, provided this "guru" remains committed to Srila Prabhupada's system of management that emphasizes the instructions of Srila Prabhupada and his wishes to uplift "the local natives" with the assistance of his duly appointed GBC and Temple Presidents. This is extremely important. **See the above letter from HDG to Vasudeva das in Fiji.

In either case - The order to seek and take shelter of the Bonafide Spiritual Master is simple and clear. How it can most easily be accomplished within the framework of Srila Prabhupada's teachings and ISKCON mission is likewise simple. With Srila Prabhupada's arrangement, there is no risk of disappointment. If one elects to take a risk -choosing to take shelter of Srila Prabhupada by accepting one of his disciples as his Guru, it is personal and can thus never jeopardize the authority of The International Society for Krsna Consciousness in any way whatsoever. He must be free to subjectively "assign" absolute value to his Spiritual Master and he must be allowed to subjectively consider his Spiritual Master in light of the "objective value" placed upon the Spiritual Master by Lord Sri Krsna Himself. (See my opening statement: "The Guru is not a mortal, erring creature like ourselves.") This is his natural right and we can no more disturb that - than we should hide from him Srila Prabhupada's original system established on the 9th of July 1977.

Likewise the officiating acharya's position is to be considered every bit as objectively valuable or worshipable by Srila Prabhupada and Lord Krsna. As in the Military - the rank is saluted - not the man; though the officer may in time also inspire great respect and love from his men. So too the new men should be taught to comprehend the officiating acharya as a direct manifestation of the mercy of Srila Prabhupada. He is "appointed" or handpicked by Srila Prabhupada directly or through his leaders and serves as his directly appointed "agent". So the service he does - is every bit a part of Srila Prabhupada's "worship" of the Parampara and is part and parcel of the entire Parampara's delivering Krsna Consciousness to the world. All representatives of the Parampara - do what they do ON BEHALF of their previous Acharya. So in this sense - all gurus - are "officiating gurus" or "ritvik representatives" of their spiritual master. The blessing Srila Prabhupada gave us is merely to spell it out for us. That's all. When he first appointed the original 11 - Tamal Krsna Goswami - revealing his neophyte condition asked "Whose disciples are they Srila Prabhupada - yours or ours" and Srila Prabhupada immediately shot back "WHY consider whose?" The officiating acharyas are guru - they represent the Supreme Authority for the Krsna Consciousness movement on this planet - but their authority is specifically enumerated by Srila Prabhupada - and this serves the mission of Srila Prabhupada very nicely. If one is not willing to accept this - then there are countless "camps" out there- wherein one can do as they see fit- but "under the banner of iskcon" Srila Prabhupada's exclusive authority and directions are clear.

We need not complicate this aspect of devotional service. Devotees should not waste time fighting amongst themselves over this issue. Groups who advocate coercively barring the new men from accepting Srila Prabhupada's duly initiated men as their guru - on the grounds that Srila Prabhupada's system for initiation - forbids them from doing so - overlook the simple essence of the teachings of our Acharyas; "the conviction of the necessity of and the successful choice of a really good preceptor." This is and will always remain a matter of personal conviction. Srila Prabhupada's Bhaktivedanta purports are clear as to who can and who cannot act as guru. They clearly spell out the superlative method of fulfilling the requirements in this matter. That is indisputable. However, his leaving us with a risk-free system of "authorized" men who meet the minimum requirements in terms of qualifications - and the maximum qualifications where it matters most - loyalty to the purpose of Srila Prabhupada and his International Society for Krsna Consciousness - His ISKCON - to initiate on his behalf - is clear and likewise indisputable by all but the stubbornly insubordinate. In the end - it is entirely up to the aspiring devotee. We need only explain to him his two options - and allow him the liberty to determine for himself - how he will meet the required mandate to seek out and take shelter of the "really good preceptor." In either case - his duties will remain the same; to work cooperatively with this Temple President, GBC representative and fellow godbrothers and godsisters. His mission will remain the same. If he strictly follows the teachings of our Srila Prabhupada - in the end, he can be confident that the results will also - be the same. He will achieve the actual goal of life -fully pleasing the Supreme Personality of Godhead.

Grown men are at liberty to determine whether they wish to simply accept the shelter of Srila Prabhupada and his instructions as he provided in his internal memo of July 9th 1977, or they can exercise their own liberty to choose from amongst any of the duly initiated disciples of His Divine Grace in good standing and take shelter of them as their chosen spiritual master - fully aware though that their choice - is in fact their personal choice - and they will have to live with the consequences of that decision - auspicious or not so. Both methods constitute the same act; taking shelter of Srila Prabhupada and the Parampara. An impartial analysis of reality will lead to one's recognizing that for the most part - ISKCON has in substance accepted this arrangement - which is most natural. Their only defect lies in their not admitting it to themselves. So much effort and money are being squandered in opposing those who simply publically acknowledge this reality. This is senseless and has led to gross mismanagement on many levels. If common sense can trump pride and this reality is accepted - all conflict in this matter will end and we can all get to the business at hand; Saving all souls entrapped in this material world with the wonderful Mercy of Lord Chaitanya Mahaprabhu.

ADDENDUM: Conclusion: Over the years since 1977 there have been countless arguments made for and against the acceptance of the above evidence and their obvious mandates. It is important to note that all arguments beg for summary adjudication; the means to settle them. In this particular case - we all may be well intended but "good intentions" are not the means to measure the value of any particular argument in a disagreement. Only when there is a mutually accepted "final authority" whose authority is accepted as Absolute and Final - can dispute cease. For all those "initiated" by Srila Prabhupada by means of his authoritative presentation of Krsna Consciousness - he is that undisputed Absolute and Final authority. Other than Srila Prabhupada - we have no means to decipher the relative from the absolute; The Truth from Fiction. Consequently I offer the following as a final note to the above paper; the above paper being the summary adjudication of the "contended facts" and relevant evidence- the simple verbatim presentation of Srila Prabhupada's recorded instructions on this matter. Up till now - I have found no one who disputes the existence of this evidence. However the disputes have always manifest after the above cited "evidence" has been accompanied by the myriad of interpretations and/or alterations introduced by others. Unless the above evidence is allowed to stand on its own merit - as Srila Prabhupada's own intended directives - we are left then with a movement that is fractured into as many opinions as there are members!

Srila Prabhupada in his own exchange with the famous Professor Staal stated: "Regarding our correspondence, actually this quotation and counter-quotation cannot solve the problem. In a court both the learned lawyers quote from law books, but that is not the solution to the case. The determination of the case is the judgment of the presiding judge. So argument cannot bring us to a conclusion." So I offer this final note from His Divine Grace to support my conclusion - which is this: (1) His Divine Grace Srila Prabhupada is our accepted Final and Absolute Authority - he is the "Judge" on this matter. (2) The evidence cited in this paper is merely a verbatim presentation of his factual instructions - nothing more - nothing less. (3) Without accepting those instructions - verbatim - in the ultimate issue - we are left with as many interpretations as there are human beings on the planet./ Final Note by Srila Prabhupada in his wonderful exchange with Professor J. F. Staal: Professor of Philosophy and of South Asian Languages University of California Berkeley, California in January 1970: "In a court of justice two lawyers put forward their respective relevant arguments taken from the authorized law books to decide a point, but it is up to the judge to decide the case in favor of one of the litigants. When the opposing lawyers put forward their arguments, both of them are legal and bona fide, but the judgment is given as to which argument is applicable to the particular case. Lord Chaitanya gives His judgment on the authority of sastras that the chanting of the holy names of the Lord is the only means to elevate one to the transcendental platform, and actually we can see it is effective. Each and every one of our students who has seriously taken to this process may be examined individually, and any impartial judge will find it easy to see that they have advanced in their transcendental realization further than any philosophers, religionists, yogis, karmis, etc. We have to accept everything favorable to the circumstances. Rejection of other methods in a particular circumstance does not mean that the rejected ones are not bona fide. But for the time being, taking into consideration the age, time, and object, methods are sometimes rejected even though bona fide. We have to test everything by its practical result. By such a test, in this age the constant chanting of the Hare Krishna maha-mantra undoubtedly proves very effective. A. C. Bhaktivedanta Swami"

Arguments that do not favor the simple acceptance of Srila Prabhupada's clear instructions in this matter - for any reason whatsoever - spring not from the Absolute but from the Relative consideration of our minds. The moment we replace the exact words of our Acharya, or we augment them with OUR interpretation, which spring from our "biased reason," we in fact hear ourselves, not Srila Prabhupada, and as Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati said, "So long as we refuse to listen to him, we are doomed to misunderstand everything." (END)

CHAPTER 196: COMING BACK TO SRILA PRABHUPADA

(1) "So gurun ahatva. A devotee of Krishna, if need be, if he's unqualified guru... Unqualified guru means who does not know how to guide the disciple. Guru's duty is to guide. So such kind of guru can be at least rejected. That is Jiva Gosvami's... Karya-karyam ajanatah. A guru who does not know what to do and what not to do, but by mistake, by mistakenly I have accepted somebody as guru, he can be rejected. By rejecting him, you can accept an actual bona fide guru. So guru is not killed, but he can be rejected. That is the injunction of the shastra." (SP Lecture Aug. 5, 1973) (2) "Unless one is initiated by a bona fide Spiritual Master, all his devotional activities are useless. A person who is not properly initiated can descend again into the animal species." (CC Mad 15.108) (3) "Just like Dhruva Maharaja. He was advised by his mother that 'If you go to the forest you can see God.' So he went there. But when he was very serious, then Krishna sent him Narada Muni. So if you are actually serious about Krishna, then Krishna will send you some of His representative and he will take charge of you. That is the process. If you do not find a guru, that means Krishna is not yet pleased, either you are not serious." (SP Conv Sept. 11, 1972)

MANY THOUSANDS HAVE LOST OR REJECTED THEIR UNAUTHORISED GURUS

Srila Prabhupada initiated 5000 disciples between 1966 and 1977. After his departure his senior men took over the GBC and imposed an unauthorized system of eleven new zonal acharyas, and began initiating their own disciples. Gradually additional gurus were approved by the GBC and about 100 gurus since 1978 have now initiated in total perhaps 200,000 disciples. Jayapataka and Radhanath both had 50,000 each in 2020. However, over the years at least 50 of these 100 ISKCON gurus have publicly been exposed as fallen and left their disciples essentially stranded in a no-man's land. Thousands were then reinitiated by another ISKCON guru, and some have been reinitiated several times over as each guru faded away into maya. Harikesha had about 3000 disciples, Jayatirtha 500, Ramesvara 500, Hansadutta 500, Kirtanananda 2000 (estimates).

There have been over 10,000 "re-initiations" in ISKCON, but Srila Prabhupada never mentioned anything about it, and this is another clear proof that ISKCON's initiation and guru systems are concocted and not aligned with Srila Prabhupada's desires or instructions. Those who thus lost their ISKCON guru faced much anguish, uncertainty, and confusion. How was it possible for their "bona fide" guru to fall down? Who could they now trust a second (or third, fourth) time? It was difficult to re-develop faith in another guru after being betrayed once, and many became discouraged and drifted away from Krishna consciousness. Some gravitated towards the Gaudiya Math and took shelter or reinitiation from Sridhar, Puri, Narayan Maharajas, or others. Some decided to go on without a "diksha" guru by association with devotees, continuing their spiritual practices (even unaware of Srila Prabhupada's availability). They knew of no solution to their dilemma; chaos reigned; many hearts were broken, taking many lost years to recover enough just to start chanting again.

Since about 1990, when information about Srila Prabhupada's universal availability as the direct, current link to the parampara became widely known, many devotees have rejected their ISKCON gurus, even those still in "good standing." Increasingly, devotees worldwide have begun to take Srila Prabhupada as their connection to the parampara, rejecting (outright or silently) their ISKCON guru as disqualified or unauthorized. Based on anecdotal information, about half of the followers of the Hare Krishna movement have taken Srila Prabhupada as their diksha guru, and most do so quietly, privately, careful not to upset others with their secret decision. The process of coming back to Srila Prabhupada after having been formally initiated as a disciple of an ISKCON guru is often a lengthy and difficult journey. While some quickly and naturally adjust to a newfound conviction that Srila Prabhupada is their eternal diksha guru, for some it is more confusing, painful, and troublesome. Due to the deviations of misleaders and ambitious men posing as worshipping gurus, many devotees' lives have been upended and destroyed. Most often the betrayal by a false guru is more traumatic than a dozen normal divorces. The innocent have suffered greatly, and devotees are forced to search their hearts to increase their sincerity in dealing with these circumstances. Second only to the poisoning of Srila Prabhupada's body, the poisoning of Srila Prabhupada's mission and the infection of devotee's lives and minds with deviant policies, philosophy, and practices is the most serious crime of these misleaders. Even though most of ISKCON's present misleaders had no direct involvement in Srila Prabhupada's poisoning by heavy metals, they are nevertheless deeply implicated in this crime by: (1) Covering up the crime and evidence by denials, lies, and refusal to conduct or cooperate with an honest investigation (2) Demonizing those who privately investigate and protest this poisoning (3) Benefiting from Srila Prabhupada's poisoning by taking his seat and assets as unauthorized gurus or allowing/ facilitating others to do so.

"So far as my starting a separate organization known as ISKCON, it was inevitable because none of our godbrothers are cooperating with one another. Every one of us is conducting his own institution, and there is difference of opinion even between Gaudiya Mission and Gaudiya Math." (SPL May 23, 1969)

STORIES OF HOW DEVOTEES CAME BACK TO SRILA PRABHUPADA

There were a series of inspiring accounts of various devotees who left ISKCON and came back to Srila Prabhupada's shelter in Back to Prabhupada, an IRM magazine (www.iskconirm.org).

WHERE IS THE ORDER THAT RITVIKS WOULD BECOME DIKSHA GURUS?

It is outright insanity to approve by vote any conditioned soul who has been "properly following the principles" for a few years as an initiating diksha guru, yet this is what ISKCON does.

Naveen Krishna das worked closely with Tamal in Dallas for over 6 years and confided in Naveen on all matters because he trusted him and relied on him in all practical matters. Starting with the demise and departure of Jayatirtha in 1982, and throughout the departures of Bhagavan, Hansadutta, Ramevara, Bhavananda, and Kirtanananda, Naveen would have regular long and intimate discussions with Tamal about the guru and initiation system that ISKCON was using and about what Srila Prabhupada intended for ISKCON. They discussed how to best deal with the problems in ISKCON, especially how the zonal successor system was obviously failing. Tamal frankly admitted to Naveen privately that Srila Prabhupada had wanted the officiating acharya or ritvik system to be used after his departure, and how (supposedly) he had dissuaded Srila Prabhupada from doing so, and that the 11 acharyas were approved by Srila Prabhupada. Tamal always thought he knew better than Srila Prabhupada (Part 9). When the zonal system was dismantled in March 1987, Tamal could not admit this error, and thought the only recourse was to open the door to many more initiating gurus. He did not exactly like this idea, but to his mind, there was no other viable option. Naveen and Tamal discussed the Pyramid House talks and Tamal admitted that this was how Srila Prabhupada had intended things to be, ritviks only, but that he had convinced Srila Prabhupada that this system would never work, and he claimed Srila Prabhupada changed his mind and agreed to let them be zonal acharyas. Of course, there is no written, audio, or other evidence to support what we know was just Tamal's demented megalomania.

CONCLUSIONS

(1) "My stance is that whatever one's understanding of the May 28 conversation or the July 9 letter, the philosophy of Prominent Link stands. In this way the paper can bridge gaps and resolve deep conflicts in our Vaishnava society." (Dhira Govinda das, 2002) (2) "The modern day ISKCON guru appointment system is nothing more than a business franchise wherein once one is rubber-stamped as an ISKCON-authorized travelling disciple-recruiter, they are entitled to all the larks and perks, prestige, fame, admiration, privilege, donor base, wealth, tax haven and so on that goes with the job. It is a pseudo-spiritual racket!" (Krishnachandra das, 2016) (3) "After me there will be no more Acharyas." (Srila Prabhupada, 1967, cited by Yasodanandana das: "This was first cited in the Jadurani papers in the early 1980s. Rohini Kumar das personally told me in 1993 in Badger, CA, that Srila Prabhupada once told him, in answer to an inquiry in N.Y. c.1967, about who would succeed him, that after him there would be no more acharyas. My understanding is that there would be no more acharyas like him. Rohini Kumar lives in San Francisco somewhere."

(6) The summary is that Srila Prabhupada is the REAL ACHARYA FOR THIS AGE.

PART 20: DEFECTIVE DOCTRINES

(1) "One who understands and appreciates the disciplic succession is certainly advanced, and we should always be very careful to give full respect to those who have so carefully handled this Divine Fruit of transcendental knowledge before us. Even a slight change will spoil it. That is why I have always been so careful to give you only those things which I have heard from my Guru Maharaja." (SPL Hansadutta Aug. 1967) (2) "The standards I have already given you, now try to maintain them at all times under standard procedure. Do not try to innovate or create anything or manufacture anything, that will ruin everything." (SPL Bali Mardan Sept. 18, 1972) (3) "The truth does not mind being questioned, and a lie does not like to be challenged." (?) (4) Srila Prabhupada once said something like, "We haven't got to answer every argument of a crazy man." (5) "A devotee should have intelligence to know who is deviating. Surrender by your iontelligence but don't surrender your intelligence." (SPL Bali Mardan 1974) The principal deviations that have manifested after Srila Prabhupada's physical departure are addressed here in comparison to Srila Prabhupada's instructions. As one studies the mayavada philosophy to the extent of becoming able to defeat it, one may become familiar with the history of defective doctrines in Srila Prabhupada's mission so that he may no longer be led astray and be able to recognize and debunk them. It is incomprehensible how those who subscribe to ISKCON's defective doctrines have simply disconnected themselves from reality. They seem to believe that by repeatedly stating their errant positions that their members will be persuaded. Their incantations of faulty philosophical phrases resonate only with those who are blocking their intelligence, lacking in intelligence, or are already sold into the dark side of pursuing their material ambitions in the guise of spiritual practices.

FRAUD OF BECOMING FALSE GURUS LED TO FRAUD OF FALSE DOCTRINES

Yasodanandana das explained: "The eleven zonal acharyas were frauds. They were never appointed by Srila Prabhupada as acharyas or diksha gurus. While Srila Prabhupada was here, there was no public announcement that he had appointed eleven acharyas or diksha gurus. Immediately after Srila Prabhupada passed away, there was no public announcement that these eleven had been appointed by Srila Prabhupada as acharyas or diksha gurus. Only at the March 1978 Mayapura meetings, they announced that they had been appointed as acharyas and diksha gurus. If Srila Prabhupada had actually appointed them, Srila Prabhupada would have announced their appointment during his manifested presence, or they would have announced it shortly after his passing. But no, they waited four months to announce their appointments. Why? Because Srila Prabhupada never appointed them. During those four months, and even well before Srila Prabhupada departed, they were colluding between themselves. Not the entire GBC; only select members were involved in this conspiracy. It was a conspiracy of silence. They knew what they wanted to do, but they kept quiet about it until the March 1978 GBC meetings."

One fraud leads to another. When they hijacked the mission by lying that Srila Prabhupada had appointed them as successor acharyas, then they had to manufacture so many false doctrines to support and justify the anomalies and contradictions that ensued. Their great deception must be exposed and the bogus imposters rejected. ISKCON today is not the ISKCON that Srila Prabhupada established. Today anyone in ISKCON can be a guru with an application to the GBC. If they meet the basic standards set by Srila Prabhupada for a neophyte devotee (chanting 16 rounds, following the 4 regs, attending the morning program), and have enough political connections, they can be approved as a diksha guru by a “no-objection” vote, a rubber-stamp method.

All their defective doctrines were created to justify their guru hoax.

CHAPTER 197: SATSVARUPA NEWSLETTER: DEC. 1, 1977

NEWSLETTER CONCERNING INITIATIONS AND INITIATING GURUS:

Dear prabhhus: Here is some information as I understand it regarding initiations and initiating gurus. Last May, when the GBC body in its entirety was present in Vrindaban with Srila Prabhupada, we asked him how initiations would take place in the future. He said he would pick a number of men who would initiate as gurus. As the GBC secretary, I then asked, on behalf of the others, whether these gurus would take disciples on his behalf, or would they be disciples of that guru. [Hmmm. GBC thought at that time that Srila Prabhupada could initiate after his departure.] Prabhupada said they would be disciples of the new gurus. Then about a week later [6 weeks], Srila Prabhupada himself gave 11 names of devotees who would be those initiating gurus. The list of the names was circulated and at that time they were to act as rittvic, or representative, gurus on Prabhupada’s behalf. But upon his disappearance these men have become designated initiating gurus. [Designated by whom or what; where is the evidence?] The conversation in which Srila Prabhupada discusses these things with the GBC has been recorded on tape. [GBC ordered it to be unavailable to the devotees.]

But how can some of Prabhupada’s disciples presume to become gurus after Prabhupada? The answer is that there is no way that they can become acharyas equal to His Divine Grace, Srila Prabhupada. Probably no one like him will appear for centuries. If any of his disciples think that now they have become acharyas like Srila Prabhupada, they would commit a great offense. But that they can become gurus is already a fact since he has empowered them to do so. I thought of the historic example of Ramanuja. After Ramanuja there was no question of anyone immediately equaling him, but this did not mean that there were not gurus in his line following Ramanuja. Still gurus and disciples of that line worship the great acharya Ramanuja, although only those who were living at the same time as he could accept him as their initiating guru. [They use ritviks today.]

Therefore, acknowledging that no one can presume to imitate Srila Prabhupada, it does not mean that there will be no new disciples. If we view what we may call the minimum requirements for guru, we will find that it is not an impossible proposal. Srila Prabhupada says (TLK 87): “If we stick to this principle we can become gurus. We don’t need to change our position to become a guru. All we have to do is follow the disciplic succession stemming from Sri Krishna. One may think, ‘I am illiterate and have no education. I was not born in a high family. How can I become a guru?’ Chaitanya Mahaprabhu says that it is not very difficult. Simply speak whatever Krishna speaks. Then you become a guru.” [Would that be a siksha guru?] Then: “Instruction has to be taken from one who is in knowledge. It doesn’t matter what his position is. One should simply learn from one who knows. Whoever is qualified in Krishna consciousness can become a guru. His family or material identity does not matter. He simply must know the science. If he knows the science of Krishna, he can be a guru. We only need repeat what Krishna has said...”

When Srila Prabhupada first made disciples in America, he was the only person responsible for taking care of the new disciples. As ISKCON grew, however, he began to share the responsibility of upbringing his disciples with the temple presidents, GBC, and sannyasis. In many cases the new initiating guru will not be the sole devotee responsible for taking care of the new disciples, to insure their going back to Godhead. E.g., in your temple you have recruited men and they are naturally indebted to you. They are also indebted to Srila Prabhupada. It is Srila Prabhupada's books they are learning from. It is Prabhupada's ISKCON which protects them, although they cannot become Prabhupada's disciple. [This is the "living guru" philosophy and their great crime in denying Srila Prabhupada to the devotees.] The initiating guru of such a new man is therefore only one of a number of devotees who are caring for his spiritual life. There will be different kinds of relations between the gurus and their disciples in situations like New Vrindaban, or Radha Damodar party, where the guru may actually recruit the man and stay with the man, such a disciple will have a great deal of personal dependence and receive intimate instruction and even worship his guru. But we will have to accept disciples in other situations in order to maintain and increase ISKCON. This is Prabhupada's desire. However, according to the sastra, the guru-disciple relation is real and personal so we cannot reduce it to nothingness. It is to be hoped that an actual relationship will develop between the guru and disciple. The disciple will be grateful to his guru for bringing him in contact with the great acharya, Srila Prabhupada, [Contact with Srila Prabhupada in already there in his books, worship, service.] and thus through disciplic succession, in touch with Lord Chaitanya and Krishna. He will appreciate that he is situated in Krishna consciousness by the grace of his initiating guru. [Actually, by Srila Prabhupada's grace.] Hopefully the guru will regularly visit or the disciple visits his guru, and the guru will want to see his progress [and donations, worship...] These things will have to happen naturally...

My policy would be that I would only allow worship of Srila Prabhupada in any temple, and

The above reflections are my own, which I have arrived at in discussion mainly with Hrdyananda Maharaja and Tamala Krsna Maharaja. They do not form any official policy. The official policy is simply that the eleven chosen men may initiate disciples and they are actually the guru of that disciple. Some gurus will probably take disciples before Gaura-Purnima, and we can gain some experience by then, and perhaps the GBC will have something further to say on the matter when they meet. If you have any further questions feel free to ask me.

Let us continue strongly and harmoniously in Krsna consciousness now that this great new responsibility has been thrust upon all of us by Srila Prabhupada's disappearance. "How much you love me," Srila Prabhupada said in his last months, "will be demonstrated by how you cooperate amongst yourselves after my disappearance." Before we speak of any expansion at this time, let us at least dedicate our lives to maintaining what Srila Prabhupada has given us, and not allowing it to deteriorate. The good son looks after the property of the father, and the good disciple does also. Prabhupada's main spiritual legacy is this ISKCON movement itself, in terms of temples, books, and the sankirtan program. That is our main duty now, to see that it continues to go on nicely.

Your servant,
Satsvarupa das Goswami
 Satsvarupa das Goswami

not the worship of any new initiating guru. [He very soon did accept lavish worship in the temples simultaneous to Srila Prabhupada's guru puja, and he then feebly apologized for it in 1986.]

Only Srila Prabhupada's picture should be on the Vyasasana and guru puja should be to Srila Prabhupada. At least that is my opinion. It may be that disciples will be present of a guru, although the other devotees in the temple will be worshipping Srila Prabhupada. We've seen this work in a natural and harmonious way in Vrindaban. [...] So what is the harm if, in an ISKCON temple, everyone worships the greatest guru, Srila Prabhupada, to whom we are all eternally indebted? Sometimes a new guru will receive more formal worship. For myself, I do not intend to initiate until at least after Gaura Purnima. If you want, you can wait. This initiation, however, is not necessarily a zonal function, and perhaps other gurus will accept new disciples from your temple. I would think that as part of your training up a new man, you would want to advise him as to who you think he should take as a guru, but it should not be forced. [Unless someone wants Srila Prabhupada.] After all, the man has to have full faith, and we hope he will develop a loving relationship with his guru. So if a devotee wants to take as guru someone other than you advise, it can be discussed and he should be allowed to choose with good reasons.

COMMENTS: On Dec. 1, 1977, just two weeks after Srila Prabhupada departed, Satsvarupa sent out his newsletter to maybe 20 close supporters in his own zone. Though the 11 successor acharyas were not announced until 4 months later in late March 1978, Satsvarupa and the others had already hammered out their narratives, their qualifications, how the hoax would go down. This newsletter shows the 11 had worked out their plans for a gurujacking of ISKCON well before Srila Prabhupada's departure. However, Satsvarupa confuses the greatly different siksha and diksha gurus.

He gives no evidence that the ritviks were to become full gurus after Nov. 14, other than refer to the May 28 tape, which when finally was leaked 7 years later, no such appointment of gurus was to be found on it. Satsvarupa's deceit and ambition is hard to miss in light of ISKCON history, and it is revealed how the gentle appearing Satsvarupa was a key mastermind and articulator/spokesman for the hijacker's narratives about their being appointed (exposed as a total hoax by 1986). They did not even observe any time to mourn Srila Prabhupada's disappearance and were discussing their ascendance to his seat even while listening to him plead with them not to change anything, but to simply go on as he had set things up. Satsvarupa used this newsletter to garner feedback in his own Eastern/Southern USA GBC zone, so to polish his hoax narrative, while other zonals began initiating just a few weeks later. One of his temple presidents, Nityananda das, was not on the mailing list.

---

CHAPTER 198: GBC POLICY PAPER MARCH 26, 1978

A succinct summary of the zonal acharya era (1978-87) is given by Doktorski in Eleven Naked Emperors, Introduction: "During a single scandal-filled decade, eleven leading managers of the International Society for Krishna Consciousness (ISKCON)—more commonly known as the Hare Krishna movement—utilized deception and collective fantasy to enact a bloodless coup, which resulted in the hijacking of a Gaudiya-Vaishnava religious organization, the banishment of dissenters, the abuse of innocents, the brutal murder of one outspoken reformer, and the nearly-fatal hemorrhaging of the society as thousands of once-loyal members defected or were blacklisted. This ten-year-long reign of self-aggrandizement and political intrigue by the self-appointed leaders, characterized periodically by strong-armed tactics, tainted the society which had been carefully and painstakingly tended to and cultivated for more than a decade (1966-1977) by the society's founder and spiritual preceptor, His Divine Grace A. C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada. ... the term "zonal acharya" refers to a spiritual leader who presides over a specific geographical region. Each of the eleven had their own 'kingdoms' where they were worshiped as good as God. Their orders were considered to be coming directly from Lord Krishna, the Absolute Truth and the Cause of all Causes. Unfortunately, the system of guru succession that they established was fraught with unanticipated and unresolvable issues, least of all that the entire system was based on a fallacy." The zonal acharya era was established by this 1978 GBC policy paper.

The eleven zonals easily carried the vote of the GBC body (26 members, needing only 2 more than their own 11 votes) to approve their first position paper, written by Hridayananda and Satsvarupa, on Mar. 26, 1978, entitled: "The Process For Carrying Out Srila Prabhupada's Desires For Future Initiations: A paper prepared by the GBC in consultation with higher authorities (a paper prepared by the GBC in consultation with higher authorities) The misinformation and fraud contained in this 1978 GBC policy paper is enormous. Briefly, the document erroneously stated: "One very important question was how disciples would be initiated in the parampara after the departure of His Divine Grace. When asked this question, Srila Prabhupada replied that he would name some persons who could initiate disciples after his disappearance. We then asked him who the spiritual master of such disciples would be. He replied that the new initiators would be the disciples of those whom he empowered to initiate and that he, Srila Prabhupada, would be their grand spiritual master. Then he said that he would name the initiating gurus later." [This misinterpretation refers to the May 28 talks.]

Then: "On naming these disciples, he ordered that they become "ritvik acharyas," which means that they were to initiate disciples on his behalf. He indicated, as he had said in May, that these ritvik acharyas named by him would, after his disappearance, continue as initiating spiritual masters. He named eleven but said that the number could be increased in the future." [Indicated? Where? This was only their interpretation.] These two paragraphs dishonestly and cleverly "pick and choose" and re-arrange tidbits out of context from the May 28 and July 7 conversations. Also reference is made to “indications” that ritviks would become full gurus after Srila Prabhupada left, but such indications by Srila Prabhupada are non-existent. There is only their self-serving claim made by some senior men (all of whom are gurus or close supporters): “It was clearly understood by everyone at that time...” But this is just bluff and deceit to address doubts about their guru takeover. This is not in writing nor on any tape. The few doubters who spoke up were but weak cries lost in the coming hurricane. Then: “Let us deal with each other in love and trust [...] Now more than ever we must cooperate amongst ourselves. Let us not make the tragic mistake of the disciples who break into factions over party disputes and disobey the order of the spiritual master. [What order?] The carrying on of the Krishna consciousness movement means we must have new disciples. Therefore Srila Prabhupada has given us new gurus. Let us heartily welcome into our midst...” [Later, GBC admitted no gurus were appointed.]

The sub-headings of their paper addressed some of the immediate issues presented by ISKCON suddenly having 11 new gurus in place of Srila Prabhupada: Worship of the Diksha Guru, A Godbrother’s Relationship with an Initiating Guru, First and Second Initiations, How to Choose a Guru, Siksha and Diksha Gurus, Accepting Karma, Several Gurus in One Temple, Worship of the Guru, Vyasasanas, Pranam Mantra, How Will More Gurus be Added?, Understanding Absolute Faith in One’s Guru. An essay by Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati, “Assuming Responsibility of Being Guru” was attached. (See Ch. 91: Contradictions and Anomalies)

An excerpt from a zonal acharya guru system defender from early 1980’s: “Factually, what is the position of those empowered by Srila Prabhupada to act as gurus? Does it mean that because they’ve been given the position of guru they are, as in the verse, nikunja-yuno rati keli siddhai, actually intimates of Krishna? [...] Srila Prabhupada has given us the familiar example that while ordinarily a judge must first possess all qualifications and only then sit on the judge’s bench, bhakti-yoga offers such facility that one first assumes the activities of a devotee and then the qualifications follow. The new gurus have taken the charge—but that charge has not come only by chance. It was Srila Prabhupada’s own picking. [This was the big lie.] So if they try, Krishna will help. Prabhupada and Krishna are not cheats. (But the zonals definitely were!) They will come to a sincere devotee with all Their might and instruct him, ‘Do like this. I’m helping. I’m behind you.’ When we are all sincere, it will happen like this. We all know what we have to do; we simply have to carry it out sincerely. Surely His Divine Grace is continuing to direct us through these changes.[...] The sisya [novice] will not tolerate any other Vaishnava’s coming to disturb the absolute position of his guru. This is the heart’s feeling or proper Vaishnava sentiment, and disciples of Srila Prabhupada should be sensitive to this and careful not to disturb the relationship between the new gurus and their disciples. You may look upon your godbrother who’s now a guru in your own way, but you must behave so that the new bhaktas’ and disciples’ faith is not disturbed. Your conception of him may be kept in the mental world, but not shown on the outside.” [Sridhara Swami’s advice?]

DEVIATIONS AND LIES OF GBC’S MARCH 1978 PAPER (compiled by Yasodanandana das)

“A spiritual master must have seen Kṛṣṇa. Without seeing, he cannot be spiritual master.” (SPLecture Jan. 12, 1969) This article is written to expose the deviations and lies that have been taking place for so many years in ISKCON, that has lost the trust of many and has become a Neo-Hindu hodge-podge community, where members are treated like cash cows for large donations. This 1978 GBC paper claims Srila Prabhupada appointed the 11 ritviks to start acting as diksa gurus after his physical presence, which is NOT TRUE. The entire paper can be read at the GBC website. To refute such bogus claims, we extract some ridiculous and shocking passages from that paper which offend not only Srila Prabhupada, but also the entire Vaishnava community. These statements are completely against Srila Prabhupada’s teachings. One can become a bonafide Guru only when one is properly ordered and authorized, and is fully liberated from the clutches of material nature, not just by wearing a saffron or sitting on a Vyasasana. The Guru is the most confidential servant of Krishna and very dear to him. “...One should take initiation from a bona fide spiritual master coming in the disciplic succession, who is authorized by his predecessor spiritual master. This is called dīkṣā-vidhāna..." (SBhag 4.8.54) Now these deviations are examined and corrected.

(1) "IN CONSULTATION WITH HIGHER AUTHORITIES" (AKA GAUDIYA MATH): Who are these higher authorities? Were they authorized by Srila Prabhupada? Did Srila Prabhupada ever authorize his GBC to consult with "Higher Authorities"? Did Srila Prabhupada ever authorize any "higher authorities" than him in his movement? The GBC has not offered any credible explanation for this offensive statement. This consultation was done with the Gaudiya Math advisor, Sridhara Maharaja. Srila Prabhupada had strictly advised to cut off any connection with these people, because they also tried to poison both Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati and Srila Prabhupada's missions. He did not want a Gaudiya Math Part 2, so consultation with them is poisonous to Srila Prabhupada's movement. "Actually, amongst my Godbrothers no one is qualified to become acarya. So, it is better not to mix with my Godbrothers very intimately because instead of inspiring our students and disciples they may sometimes pollute them. [...] So Sridhara Maharaja and his two associate gentlemen unauthorizedly selected one acharya and later it proved a failure." (SPL Rupanuga 28/4/74) [other warnings about his Godbrothers from Srila Prabhupada] There are many quopytes (see Ch. 88 Book One) [...]

(2) FALSE CLAIMS REGARDING GURU APPOINTMENT: GBC paper states: "...then one day in June he gave his secretary the names of eleven disciples who would be the initiating disciples..." Actually, it was on July 7, 1977 And the resultant order of July 9, 1977 makes no reference whatsoever to the 11 becoming initiating spiritual masters. GBC paper continues: "He indicated, as he had said in May, that the ritvik acharyas, named by him would, after his disappearance, continue as initiating spiritual masters..." This is a fabrication, the letter of July 9, 1977 makes no reference whatsoever to the original 11 ritviks becoming initiating spiritual masters. [...] In the July 9 letter, Srila Prabhupada selected these 11 devotees as his officiating representatives: "In the past Temple Presidents have written to Srila Prabhupada recommending a particular devotee's initiation. Now that Srila Prabhupada has named these representatives, Temple Presidents may henceforward send recommendation for first and second initiation to whichever of these eleven representatives are nearest their temple. After considering the recommendation, these representatives may accept the devotee as an initiated disciple of Srila Prabhupad by giving a spiritual name, or in the case of second initiation, by chanting on the Gayatri thread, just as Srila Prabhupada has done. The newly initiated devotees are disciples of his divine grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta swami Prabhupad, the above eleven senior devotees acting as His representative. After the Temple President receives a letter from these representatives giving the spiritual name or the thread, he can perform the fire yajna in the temple as was being done before. The name of a newly initiated disciple should be sent by the representative who has accepted him or her to Srila Prabhupada, to be included in His Divine Grace's 'Initiated Disciples' book." (SPL to All G.B.C., All Temple Presidents July 9, 1977)

SP: "Try to understand. Don't go very speedily. A guru can become guru when he's ordered by his guru. That's all. Otherwise nobody can become guru." (SPLecture Oct. 28, 1975) If anyone is still not convinced by these arguments, then let us hear it from those who have admitted that no such gurus had been appointed. In late 1980 Tamal and Hansadutta were travelling around ISKCON, having been suspended as gurus and GBCs by the GBC for activities unacceptable to them, such as demanding that godbrothers must approach Srila Prabhupada through Tamal. They were relieved of their zones. Tamal called for an open discussion in Topanga Canyon, CA. on Dec. 3, 1980. Hansadutta, Dhira Krishna, Kirtiraja, Jayadvaita and others were present, and the talk was recorded. Tamal: "I've had a certain realization a few days ago. (...) There are obviously so many statements by Srila Prabhupada that his Guru Maharaja did not appoint any successors. (...) Even in Srila Prabhupada's books he says guru means by qualification. (...) The point I want to state on that is this realization, and I feel that the GBC body, if they don't adopt this point very quickly, if they don't realize this truth: You can't show me anything on tape or in writing where Prabhupada says, "I appoint these 11 as gurus." It doesn't exist because he never appointed any gurus. This is a myth. Everyone is qualified to right now give initiation and you'll see no blood and pus will fall out of the sky, no thunderbolt will strike you dead..." Satsvarupa admits ISKCON gurus are imitators: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Pz37qsyc8-M>

Those who demonize ritviks certainly do have ambitious desires. All those who join ISKCON are first instructed to ridicule the Ritviks and think Srila Prabhupada as "dead."

(3) FALSE CLAIMS OF NIKUNJA-YUNO STATUS: GBC Paper states: "Now these Godbrothers are worshiped by their disciples as genuine spiritual masters. This means, from example, that they are to be considered, as stated in the Gurv-Astakam, as Nikunja yuno rati keli siddhyai, -- intimate assistants in the pastimes of Krishna. how are their old Godbrothers to understand that their fellow Godbrothers has assumed the position of associating with Krishna in this way." Really? From ISKCON history, this has been shown untrue.

(4) PUT ON THE UNIFORM AND IT WILL SHOW YOU WHAT YOU HAVE TO DO: GBC report: "Once during the war, a patriotic advertisement appeared showing a picture of a military uniform and the saying: 'Just take this uniform and the dress will show you what you have to do.' If one is sincere and is given a particular charge or post, he will learn what the duties of that post are..." Srila Prabhupada did not teach this.

So, this means that one must first become a Guru and then qualifications will come automatically? If any man puts a white coat and a stethoscope and opens a clinic without a qualifying MBBS exam, will he be able to cure a patient? One cannot be a first-class doctor without qualifying the required examinations with excellent grades. Srila Prabhupada states here who can be a Guru. "A sober person who can tolerate the urge to speak, the mind's demands, the actions of anger and the urges of the tongue, belly and genitals is qualified to make disciples all over the world." (NOI, 1) "The guru must be situated on the topmost platform of devotional service. There are three classes of devotees, and the guru must be accepted from the topmost class." (CC Adi 24.330) "Now, Canakya Pandita gives three things, formula, 'If you want to be fortunate, then do these three things.' What is that? Murkha yatra na pujanya: 'Do not give any credit to the rascal.' That is first qualification. Don't be carried away by the rascal. Murkha yatra na pujanya. If you worship a rascal, then your life is spoiled. You must worship a really learned representative of God. That is very good." (SPLecture 1975)

(5) BIRTH OF ZONAL ACARYA CONCOCTION: GBC states: "a delicate situation may arise when in one Iskcon temple there are disciples of different gurus. The natural way to avoid this is for a guru to perform diksa in his own zone. Srila Prabhupada deliberately chose gurus in different parts of the world to arrange for this. But this is only a general principle, and there may also be special arrangements..." But Srila Prabhupada did not set up a zonal acharya system, the GBC did. Srila Prabhupada: "...So we shall not think that this is my zone, that is his zone, just like the Indian and Pakistan nation are thinking, and then there is war, no. Lord Caitanya has given us the task to spread His message all over the world, and any process which may be useful for facilitating this business, that we shall gladly adopt, never mind his zone or my zone, that is material designation. But we shall always do everything in cooperative spirit and avoid any fighting amongst us..." (SPL Nov. 18, 1972)

(6) ADDITION OF MORE SELF-APPOINTED GURUS?: GBC paper states: "Those who are already empowered to initiate will extend the number by their consideration..." Srila Prabhupada: "...disciple of Kali cannot become an acharya by the decision of some high court. Mundane votes have no jurisdiction to elect a Vaishnava acharya. A Vaishnava acharya is self-effulgent, and there is no need for any court judgment. A false acharya may try to override a Vaishnava by a high-court decision, but Bhaktivinoda Thakur says that he is nothing but a disciple of Kali-yuga." (CC Mad 1.220) Srila Prabhupada: "...Not that anyone and everyone becomes a guru. No. If you want to be cheated by such rascal guru, that is your business, but who is guru, that is stated in the Bhagavad-gita. Anyone who preaches the teachings of Krishna, he is guru. Chaitanya Mahaprabhu also says, amara ajnaya guru hana tara' ei desa (CC Mad 7.128): "You become a guru on My order." "How shall I become guru? I have no knowledge." [...] Simply repeat the instruction of Kṛṣṇa, you become guru." Everyone can become..." (SPConv-July 11, 1976) his guru? One must choose according to his sraddha, his faith. A newcomer should be given some time. He should consider to whom he will submit, based on his faith in him. There are five stages in successfully approaching a spiritual master, and the first is to hear (Sravanam)... The second stage is acceptance both by the preceptor and the disciple. Then sadhana, the attempt for realization, will begin. In the beginning, it is an open field the candidate hears, and then the connection should come between guru and disciple. One should take help from senior Vaishnavas so as to avoid error." The last line "One should take help from senior Vaisnavas so as to avoid error" is ludicrous. If all 11 were equally qualified, what error would a person make by picking any of these Gurus?

(7) MULTIPLE CHOICE GURUS: GBC paper: "...How does one know who is to be

"Sometimes we display our foolishness by accepting somebody who is barely even educated as our Spiritual Master. That is another sign of our foolishness." (TLC Ch. 18) If we compile all those deviations from the past 40+ years, the list will be endless. All this is very tragic to 1000s of those who devoted all their lives to the service of Krsna and Srila Prabhupada but had to leave the movement due to so many bad experiences. Also, those who are now the victims of these things, the loss that is done is very huge. But if we promise to dedicate our entire life to the service of our Guru (only Srila Prabhupada) and Krishna, we can go back to home, back to Godhead without even a slightest difficulty. An international alliance of all devotees who promise to dedicate their lives to Krishna Consciousness must be formed as soon as possible, so that by a good association this world shall be delivered, thus fulfilling the mission of all previous acaryas. If our heart is pure, then Srila Prabhupada will direct us from the heart. Devotee: Srila Prabhupada, when you are not present with us, how is it possible to receive instructions, for example, on questions that may arise? SP: Well, the questions are... Answers are there in my books. Devotee: Other than that, for example, that we would ask you in... SP: Yes. Devotee: Do you direct us also through the heart? Besides the Paramatma? SP: If your heart is pure. Everything depends on purity. [SPConv May 13, 1973] [...]

---

CHAPTER 199: GBC POLICY PAPER AUGUST 17, 1980

The emergency GBC policy paper of Aug. 17, 1980 had a cover letter signed by Bhagavan das Goswami (Chairman), Jagadish das (Vice-Chairman), and Jayapataka Swami (Secretary): "Questions regarding the GBC policy of guru worship, having serious implications to our Society, have been placed before the GBC Officers' Committee for necessary actions... (which) has appointed a subcommittee to effectively prepare the following paper dealing with the position of the spiritual master in ISKCON. The subcommittee members are: (Bhagavan, Jagadish, Satsvarupa, Hridayananda, Jayapataka)... The purpose of this paper is in no way to modify or change the existing GBC position but rather to clarify this position through evidence of guru, sadhu, and shastra... A full GBC meeting shall discuss further specific points which may be necessary. We hope this paper will serve as a helpful guide and tool. Thank you for accepting Lord Chaitanya's lotus feet as your life and soul..."

Section One/ Introduction emphasizes the need for all devotees to unify with faith in the new gurus lest ISKCON split apart, and how we should all accept the infallible authority of the GBC, etc.

"Certain persons in ISKCON have questioned the procedure of guru-worship which the GBC established with their paper released in March 1978. Extremists have even doubted the validity of the parampara from Srila Prabhupada. A controversy has arisen that is disturbing ISKCON. On the one hand, some concerned Godbrothers are worried about the worship given to ISKCON gurus, having seen that a guru-Godbrother is capable of serious mistakes. On the other hand, the GBC members are concerned that the sacred principle of the guru not be disturbed, that Vedic culture not be distorted, due to the mistakes of some. Ironically enough, both the the GBC and the critical Godbrothers are afraid of the same thing: a split in Prabhupada's ISKCON. Some concerned Godbrothers fear that that the gurus will become adversely affected and fall down, or that the worship itself is minimizing Srila Prabhupada's position. The GBC sub-committee feels that this excessive criticism may crack what Srila Prabhupada called the very foundation of spiritual life, faith in the guru parampara. The most important thing is that ISKCON remain unified. And ISKCON must remain unified according to the parampara conclusions of Krishna consciousness that Srila Prabhupada has given through his books and other instructions. Granting that in this controversy both sides have love for Srila Prabhupada and ISKCON and that both sides are motivated by a desire to save ISKCON from splitting, we must resolve this conflict by first recognizing a oneness in purpose. That oneness in interest is to serve Srila Prabhupada's mission. Encouraging his disciples to persist in their love and trust in ISKCON despite its 'growing pains,' Srila Prabhupada used to quote a line of English poetry: 'England, with all thy faults I love thee!' In his will, written in May 1977, Srila Prabhupada entrusted the GBC to be the 'ultimate managerial authority' in ISKCON. The questions regarding the gurus should be brought before the GBC body at its annual meeting in the prescribed form. Even an ISKCON emergency should be handled by bringing the matter to the GBC Chairman for action. We caution our Godbrothers not to try to take the law into their own hands. And ALL persons involved in this controversy should use restraint and not become implicated in offenses to the devotees, or fanatical actions. The GBC paper of 1978 still stands regarding the continuance of guru-parampara. This present paper will not refute those conclusions but clarify them in the light of the current controversies. It will attempt to provide guidelines and safeguards for the future. But as we wrote in 1978, we repeat: 'Let us not make the tragic mistake of disciples who break into factions over party disputes and disobey the order of the spiritual master.'"

COMMENT: The new gurus rode on the coattails of ISKCON's momentum built up under Srila Prabhupada's hard work as though their "accomplishments" were proof of their spiritual advancement. The GBC paper asked: "...can ISKCON gurus deliver their disciples to the topmost platform of Krishna consciousness?" and explains at length how by properly following the bhaktiyoga process one may attain perfection, but actually fails to answer their own question. "On the other hand, one who is faithfully and properly executing the duty of guru cannot be criticized. Although Srila Prabhupada personally empowered and appointed some of his disciples to be bona fide spiritual masters, criticism is lodged that they are not real spiritual masters in the traditional sense. Such criticism is destructive and false, as will be pointed out in various ways. The devotees of ISKCON should not lend credence to those who blaspheme Srila Prabhupada by agreeing with them that the sankirtana method of preaching is not sufficiently potent to bring the preacher to the highest standard of devotional service." The paper states one should not "harass a bona fide spiritual master by artificially demanding that he 'confess' his internal spiritual position," similar to the "Don't ask, don't tell" policy. Another defense in the dance around the issue of whether the new gurus were uttama-adhikaris was if one thinks Srila Prabhupada was not capable of producing pure devotees, he is actually offending Srila Prabhupada! They claim they are bona fide, empowered spiritual masters, based on their being strictly and properly engaged in repeating Srila Prabhupada's message. But, what of the homosex, LSD, Percodan, sex with disciples, prostitutes, pornography, child abuse, etc – all which appeared often in the ISKCON initiating gurus?

SECTION TWO: ILLOGICAL, MISLEADING PHILOSOPHY: Improper Criticism: The GBC characterizes recent controversy over the new gurus as "illogical, misleading philosophy" and challenges critics to provide shastric proofs for their doubts. Some persons, citing many scriptural references describing the qualities of the maha-bhagavata, have questioned whether any ISKCON acharya exhibits these qualities. And they have further concluded that the ISKCON acharyas cannot live up to the requirements of a regular guru in devotional service. This criticism is speculative; it is also against the etiquette of gentle devotees to judge or investigate a sincere devotee as to his inner realization. But aside from that, the whole line of reasoning is fallacious and the argument inapplicable. It starts with a speculative opinion and backs it up with quotes from Srila Prabhupada's books; by this method one could 'prove' all kinds of things."

SECTION THREE claims to prove from shastra that the new gurus are in indeed uttama-adhikaris and to deny this nourishes the enemies of ISKCON. It concludes: "...to speculate on the mind of the guru is a great offense. Some critics do not estimate spiritual advancement in terms of the standard criteria of shastra but instead speculate on internal experiences that are not at all meant to be studied in determining a bona fide guru... we find no mention whatsoever of this internal examining process, nor a confessing process... It is not a Vedic process and is based on foolish concoction." In other words, the GBC paper chastises those who ask if the new ISKCON gurus are uttama-adhikaris or not, and tells them it is offensive, even though the qualification of delivering a disciple is that one must be an uttama-adhikari, not a conditioned soul! SECTION FOUR (Standard Guru-Disciple Relationship) asserts that the new ISKCON gurus are bona fide and authorized, and therefore their disciples must worship them as being "as good as God" or the entire disciplic succession would be "in danger." Again, their flawed assumption is that they were bona fide gurus.

SECTION FIVE (Respecting Srila Prabhupada and His Representatives in ISKCON Temples) discusses how unity would be preserved in ISKCON by having both the worship of Srila Prabhupada and the new gurus together in the temples, not separately or privately. Although Godbrothers should not "be pressured even subtly into worshipping his guru-Godbrother," it was very much encouraged as fitting to humble devotees honoring other Vaishnavas. Tamal had just been suspended from his guruship for one year due to demanding the worship of his Godbrothers, so the GBC reinforced that worship of guru-Godbrothers was optional but shastrically bona fide. Of course, worship of conditioned or secretly fallen souls is not recommended in the shastra, but this fact was not admitted nor addressed. Defense was given for the titles used by the ISKCON gurus (e.g., Guru-pada, Chaitanyapada, Bhaktipada), and again the scare tactic is used of misunderstanding "the mood of the spiritual world." The new gurus' legitimate advancement and achievements must be recognized. "It is not the mission of this movement to disrupt the traditions of Gaudiya Vaishnavas and to minimize the position of Srila Prabhupada by stating that his disciples who are acting as bona fide spiritual masters are somehow less than real spiritual masters. If it is stated that a bona fide spiritual master who is a disciple of Srila Prabhupada is an advanced Vaishnava, this does not mean he is equal to his own spiritual master. Srila Prabhupada is a saktyavesa avatara far beyond our capabilities, but if we feel that the process to glorify Srila Prabhupada is to suppress the legitimate spiritual advancement and achievement of his disciples and that Srila Prabhupada will remain unique by not recognizing other bona fide Vaishnavas, then we have completely misunderstood the mood of the spiritual world. The father is most glorified..."

SECTION SIX (Jumping Over the Spiritual Master) deals with how Srila Prabhupada wanted the GBC members to cooperate together and accept the collective policies of the GBC as a whole, while not "relying excessively on one's own intelligence." Caution was given on the tendency to trust one's intelligence rather than the "empowered collective intelligence" of the GBC: "Anyone who knowingly or unknowingly is setting up his own basis of authority rejecting Srila Prabhupada's instructions should be known to be deviating. No leader of this movement can implement unauthorized policies against the policy of the GBC." In other words, don't think, just do as the GBC says... Then the real insidiousness of the paper begins with, "To be completely understood and applied, Srila Prabhupada's books must be read with the guidance of older devotees. And the books when read properly will always order people to approach the spiritual master." In other words, trust the new ISKCON gurus in all matters, and do not jump over them with your own ideas or intelligence.

"The above references unequivocally prove that only within this ISKCON movement can we satisfy Srila Prabhupada's desire. Even the initiating gurus of this movement are empowered as initiating gurus for ISKCON. Should they leave this ISKCON movement, by will of providence, their franchise no longer remains valid. Does not remaining within the ISKCON movement mean accepting the management, authority, and system that Srila Prabhupada has given us? Is there any alternative for managing this society and pleasing Srila Prabhupada? [...] To 'take the law into one's own hands' would not be an acceptance of Srila Prabhupada and his GBC's authority, and thus is a suicidal path. True humility and concern for the welfare of this movement can only be achieved by accepting Srila *Prabhupada's and the GBC's authority. The spiritual masters and leaders of this movement must take a submissive position in this regard and work for the (movement's) betterment..."

Included was a veiled warning to some of the members of the Acharya Board, likely in reaction to internal rumblings of schism due to breakaway gurus (Jayatirtha left in 1982), or perhaps due to the intense dissatisfaction by Tamal and Hansadutta for being suspended. "This deals with protecting Srila Prabhupada's movement from two basic dangers which have arisen. The first is brought about by the tendency to act independently, accepting one's own intelligence as the ultimate criterion for understanding the shastra, and avoiding the GBC which Srila Prabhupada has appointed to safeguard this movement; the second grave danger is the effect of whimsical interpretation of the status of the spiritual master in our present-day sampradaya."

SECTION SEVEN (Protecting Srila Prabhupada's Movement) further promotes the GBC and gurus and how all ISKCON members should cooperate fully with their controversial policies [and lies?] and directly refuted Ramevara's unilateral decision to make changes in his zone's guru policies: "...causes for the falldown and failure of the Gaudiya Math. Srila Prabhupada has taken extreme precaution that a governing board be formed, and it was his emphatic and unequivocal desire that no one should deviate or be independent from this GBC authority. A practical example is that during Srila Prabhupada's physical presence no one would consider changing policies or procedures of temple worship without consulting His Divine Grace and getting his permission. Similarly, no changes in policy or procedure should be implemented in ISKCON now without the permission of the GBC. That persons are going against this standard demonstrates a lack of faith in Srila Prabhupada's instructions (that the GBC shall be his representative). This lack of faith in the spiritual master is the cause of schism – the main cause of possible ruination of the ISKCON movement."

The paper addresses widespread discontent in the devotees over the guru system, but also the "independent" and "whimsical" actions of their own gurus, "...otherwise the obvious and most dangerous result is... we shall be separated from the Chaitanya tree. We shall become asara, useless. [...] However, whenever people act independently without authorization there is tremendous disturbance (which) is the result of deep offense to the spiritual master and Vaishnavas. If anyone tries to agitate the devotees' minds and create some kind of 'mass movement' against the GBC then responsible devotees should turn a deaf ear (and) wait for the proper Vaishnava assembly to discuss these things and take appropriate actions according to the established GBC procedures. [...] policy change should be enacted in authorized GBC meetings. It is useless, dangerous, and extremely harmful to fight or to act whimsically. [...]" Then a very forceful and intimidating argument was inserted into the paper which was meant to shut up all critics of the new ISKCON gurus. "How can ISKCON portray its (gurus) to be ordinary men subject to the four defects of material life... unable to instruct their disciples properly? If this fanatical over-reaction were accepted then it would reduce ISKCON to the status of a dead sampradaya. The breakdown of faith will create anarchy." The paper advised against "saying that Srila Prabhupada's disciples are not or cannot become advanced devotees of the highest order..." In response to the discontented ISKCON devotees who had defected to Sridhar Maharaja's ashram in Navadwipa, the GBC warned about "avoiding being agents for ISKCON enemies"- "It is one of the greatest services we can do for ISKCON's enemies and Kali's agents to publicize that our gurus following Srila Prabhupada are second/third class devotees unable to deliver a fallen soul to the highest position of bhakti. The sahajiya enemies [...] already are having their agents spread rumors in the USA and other parts of the world that people should go elsewhere for getting the highest understanding of devotional service. Actually anyone who thinks that the disciples of Srila Prabhupada cannot deliver fallen souls to the highest spiritual platform has not understood the essence of the teachings of Srila (Prabhupada) or Srila Bhaktisiddhanta..."

Then, to further frighten devotees who might doubt the perfect authority of the GBC-gurus: "A pure devotee can also fall under the influence of outside forces. This was seen in the case of Dhruva Maharaja and other great devotees. By associating with senior Vaishnavas one is protected, but by taking advice from less advanced devotees one can become misled. The poison of asampradayas can break the very faith and structure of our disciplic succession. If a devotee is not careful to take advice from his higher authorities he can carry the poison of disease. He can affect another or himself without being aware of the disease or how the infection entered. A danger of the above-mentioned new guru philosophy is that rather than stressing preaching and other practical symptoms authorized by Srila Prabhupada for recognizing advanced Vaishnavas, unascertainable qualifications like siddha-deha, siddha-pranali, asta-sattvika-bhava, etc., may instead become the criteria, thus creating another sahajiya group simply trying to obtain spiritual sense gratification... Less intelligent devotees... may be misled and join sahajiya camps where self-proclaimed (so-called) living uttama-adhikari maha-bhagavata gurus are cheaply available to further mislead them."

Various offenses were cited that could come from controversies that had arisen: "These great dangers should not be minimized." Emphasis was put on not disturbing the relationship of the so-called grand-disciples with the new ISKCON gurus. An appeal is made to devotees at all levels to report any discrepancies to the GBC for "necessary action," and to "be quick to forgive and forget where it is seen that a devotee has undertaken corrective measures" and has complied with the GBC policies.

SECTION EIGHT (Philosophical Understanding of Discrepancies and Their Rectification), the GBC paper goes completely off the track. Looking back several decades ago, it is almost incredulous: "The material nature is very strong, and sometimes due to inattention even an advanced devotee can temporarily deviate from his position... There are examples in SBhag of great devotees having difficulty. Chitraketu unnecessarily criticized Lord Shiva; Dhruva Maharaja became overwhelmed by anger [...]; Lord Brahma was affected by sex attraction for his daughter; and Bharata Maharaja, who had attained the bhava stage, neglected his devotional service due to mundane affection for a deer. These examples are very instructive. In each of these cases the devotees involved resumed their previous high standards of devotional service. There is no question of a permanent setback in Krishna consciousness. In fact, sometimes Srila Prabhupada pointed out that failure is the pillar of success... The sankirtan movement is a great war on the illusory energy. We should expect that there will be casualties on our side. When there are injuries or temporary setbacks we should not retreat or abandon the fight. These setbacks are due to a temporary lapse of Krishna consciousness. Upon realizing his mistake a devotee can immediately rise again to fight with renewed strength. A devotee should not be derided or blasphemed for a falldown once the rectification process has been given by the spiritual master and accepted by the disciple... It is the duty of ISKCON's initiating gurus to sit on their Vyasananas and defeat the ignorance of the age by their strong preaching. Some of our men may have difficulties, but their problems are due to their having lost sight of Krishna for the moment, not due to sitting on a vyasana... Arjuna also wanted to step down from his chariot and abandon the fight, but Krishna condemned this as a great mistake. Similarly, it will be a great mistake if our initiating gurus step down from their vyasananas. Rather, let them preach boldly by the side of Krishna as Arjuna fought boldly to crush the demoniac forces on the Battlefield of Kuruksetra... So let us accept these failures and setbacks as pillars of success."

The paper states that even uttama-adhikari devotees fall down from time to time and if there are "failures and setbacks" they should be seen instead as "pillars of success." This is the most controversial part of the GBC paper, as it proposes that even Srila Prabhupada could fall down or that the falldowns of supposedly bona fide spiritual masters are to be expected sometimes. "... Lord Brahma was affected by sex attraction for his daughter." But Srila Prabhupada establishes Lord Brahma's liberated and pure status: "This extraordinary immorality on the part of Lord Brahma was heard to have occurred in some particular kalpa (epoch), but it could not have happened in the kalpa in which Brahma heard directly from the Lord the four essential verses of Srimad Bhagavatam, because the Lord benedicted Brahma, after giving him lessons on the Bhagavatam, that he would never be bewildered in any kalpa whatsoever. This indicates that before the hearing of Srimad Bhagavatam he might have fallen victim to such sensuality, but after hearing Srimad Bhagavatam directly from the Lord there was no possibility of such failures." (SBhag 3.12.28) Lord Brahma experienced some apparent sex attraction before hearing the essential Bhagavatam verses, but the GBC failed to mention this. The GBC implies that Brahma's illusion occurred after he had heard the Bhagavatam and had become a liberated eternal preceptor guru. It is thus clear that we must use the greatest caution in analyzing the exalted position of Brahma and other Mahajanas. The GBC obviously did not understand the difference between an eternal associate of Krishna (nitya-parsada), and a regular sadhaka (practitioner in devotional service). And another misunderstanding: "Dhruva Maharaja became overwhelmed by anger at the yakshas for killing his brother."

Srila Prabhupada explains brilliantly the nature of Lord Brahma's position (SPL Himavati Mar. 23, 1969): "There are many other stories also, but such apparent falling is without any influence to very, very advanced devotees. A neophyte should always be careful. One should not discuss about such great devotee's apparent falldown. Just like one should not discuss about the sun who evaporates urine from the earth; it is possible for the sun to do it, and still remains the sun, but for ordinary man if he lives in a filthy place he will be infected. So Lord Shiva or Lord Brahma, they are highly elevated devotees, and we should not try to criticize about their behavior even though it appears against the rules... So far Lord Brahma and his attraction for his daughter; this illustration should be taken by conditioned souls, that even a person like Brahma is sometimes victimized, how much careful we should be... This is an example set for us by great devotees."

Srila Prabhupada clarifies, "Dhruva Maharaja was a liberated soul, and actually he was not angry with anyone, but because he was a ruler, it was his duty to become angry for some time in order to keep the law and order of the state." (SBhag 4.11.13) And: "Dhruva Maharaja was a mahabhagavata, or a first class pure devotee..." (SBhag 4.12.8) "It is our duty to remember always that in comparison to Dhruva Maharaja, we are very insignificant. We cannot do anything like what Dhruva Maharaja did for self realization, because we are absolutely incompetent to execute such service." (SBhag 4.8.73) And: "By associating constantly with the Supreme Personality of Godhead in his heart, Dhruva Maharaja naturally became equal to the greatest, Brahman, by His association and thus he became the heaviest, and the entire universe trembled." (SBhag 4.8.78) This GBC paper also misunderstands Arjuna: "Arjuna had difficulties in the beginning of the battle of Kuruksetra, but it was due to his losing sight of Krishna, not because of his accepting a superior position to Krishna. It was Arjuna's duty to accept the Supreme Lord as his chariot driver in his fight against Duryodhana's forces." The GBC-guru cartel thus impudently compared the abominable illicit activities manifest in their own midst to the so-called illusions of Lord Krishna's eternally pure associate. Srila Prabhupada says differently: "Arjuna conquered both sleep and ignorance because of his friendship with Krishna. As a great devotee of Krishna, Arjuna could not forget Krishna even for a moment, because that is the nature of a devotee. Either in waking or sleeping, a devotee of the Lord can never be free of thinking of Krishna's name, form, qualities, and pastimes. Thus a devotee of Krishna can conquer both sleep and ignorance simply by thinking of Krishna constantly. That is called Krishna consciousness." (BGita 1.24) Srila Prabhupada: "His intelligence could not be polluted at any time, because he was a devotee and constant companion of the Lord, as is clear in the fourth chapter of Bhagavad-gita. Apparently Arjuna's intelligence became polluted because otherwise there would not have been a chance to deliver the teachings of Bhagavad Gita for the good of all polluted conditioned souls engaged in material bondage by the conception of the false material body..." (SBhag 1.9.36)

On Jan. 7, 1990, in a Bhagavatam class, prior to a temple president's meeting on the so-called guru issue, Jayapataka Swami (co-author of this 1980 GBC paper) alleged that sometimes, for a few minutes, great eternally liberated souls like Bhishma and Arjuna fall under the Lord's deluding energy, which covers those who are envious of the Lord. This delusion simply covers for their own impurities.

CONCLUSIONS AND SUMMARY

This classic GBC policy paper would go on to haunt ISKCON for decades with its fallacious shastric interpretations and bogus rationalizations for the falldowns of ISKCON gurus. While it succeeded in intimidating devotees to remain loyal, it also alienated and shocked the more intelligent and sincere devotees in the movement, and they recognized clearly that there definitely were some serious anomalies that had developed in Srila Prabhupada's movement. Gradually, bit by bit, the bogus policies and concepts perpetrated in this GBC paper were unwound and counteracted, but much of it remains in effect 40 years later as ISKCON policy. One could become very entangled trying to unravel each piece of false understanding and cheating in this paper, but the basic defect is simple: the lie and hoax that Srila Prabhupada ever appointed or authorized anyone to initiate disciples on their own behalf. Srila Prabhupada only appointed 11 ritvik acharyas to initiate disciples on his behalf "henceforward," and they would always be disciples of His Divine Grace.

CHAPTER 200: GBC POLICY PAPER MARCH 1981

At Mayapur in 1981, the GBC produced a short policy paper titled, "The Descending Process of Selecting a Spiritual Master in the Krishna Consciousness Movement." This was upgraded as a standing order at the 1982 GBC annual meetings, and delineated the GBC's considerations for choosing an ISKCON "acharya" or initiating guru. Necessity, qualification, and vows were described in detail. After fraudulently claiming that Srila Prabhupada had appointed 11 initiating gurus, the GBC now continued to expand their fraud by delineating procedures and criteria by which the GBC can choose more initiating gurus. GBC Resolution (1982):

That the "considerations for choosing an acharya" be a standing order of ISKCON as follows:

(I) Necessity: (1) if any acharya feels that his preaching area is too large to see the devotees on a regular basis, this would constitute a necessity for adding an initiating guru. (2) if any acharya feels that he doesn't want to initiate any more disciples, this could create a need. (3) when significant member of advanced Vaishnavas recognize outstanding qualities of particular devotee to become an initiating guru this could create a need. (II) Qualification: (1) He is learned in Shastras. Srila Prabhupada says in the first canto of Srimad Bhagavatam that the acharya does not deliver lectures capriciously or does not try to screw some obscure meaning out of the scriptures. His shastric knowledge should be firmly based in siddhanta or conclusion, and he should be effective in his practical preaching. (2) He should show understanding of, and dedication to Srila Prabhupada's mission, maintaining and establishing book distribution and other projects. (3) He recognizes the GBC as the ultimate managing authority in ISKCON. (4) He has excelled in preaching activities. (5) He should also be free from Kamini, attachment to sense gratification, pratistha, false prestige and personal ambitions, and Kancan, the accumulative spirit. (6) He should be free from nisiddha - acar, behavior against Vaishnava principles, he should also be free of kutinati, diplomatic or duplicitous behaviour. He should also be free from puja or the desire for personal worship; and he should be free from labha, mundane profiteering. (III) Vows: (1) He must agree that his personal mission is the same as the mission of Srila Prabhupada, to flood the world with transcendental literatures like Bhagavad Gita and Srimad Bhagavatam and to "do as he was doing" in establishing ISKCON all over the world. (2).He must agree that Srila Prabhupada is represented by ISKCON and that ISKCON is governed by the GBC. Even Srila Prabhupada said he was a member of ISKCON; so when Srila Prabhupada gives one permission to be a guru, it is to be a guru for and within ISKCON, not outside. (3) He must agree that external behaviour is indeed a sign of internal realization, and must harmonize with ISKCON policies in general, and never act in a way which might unnecessarily jeopardize our worldwide mission. He should understand that taking disciples restricts external behaviour. (4) He must agree to carefully study and review aspiring disciples, so as not to make a mockery of the initiation process, and he must give his disciples directions and examples which corroborate with that of Srila Prabhupada and teach his disciples that they are part of ISKCON. (5) That as ISKCON is non different from His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada no one has the right to lead anyone away from ISKCON. (6) That when there are significant difficulties with a GBC member one should state his problem in writing and forward to the GBC officers committee for necessary consideration.

COMMENTS: Necessity, qualification, vows. What about the order from Srila Prabhupada to become diksha guru? What about the arrangement Srila Prabhupada had already made for future initiations? Where did Srila Prabhupada ever tell the GBC or anyone that he had appointed new diksha gurus or that the GBC should do so later? If Srila Prabhupada can accept his own disciples through the ritvik representative system, as is argued convincingly from the evidence, by logic, and shastric understanding, etc, what necessity is there? And why worry who is qualified or following vows properly in order to rubber stamp bogus gurus? After fraudulently claiming that Srila Prabhupada had appointed 11 initiating gurus, the GBC now continued to expand their fraud by delineating procedures and criteria by which the GBC could approve more initiating gurus. However, the GBC's real business should have been to adopt Srila Prabhupada's instructions, not to falsely assume the right to manufacture a process for "creating" new supposed acharyas.

---

CHAPTER 201: GBC POLICY PAPER MARCH 1982

The GBC policy paper of Feb. 27, 1982 was called, The Process for Expanding the Number of Initiating Gurus in ISKCON. "That all GBC be nominated as candidates to become initiating Gurus with the requirement that they receive the blessings of 3/4 (three fourths) of the GBC members present to begin their initiating role. Thereafter the individual GBC men who are initiating will be responsible for recommending new candidates for initiating Guru from the godbrothers within their zone. These names must then receive the blessings of 3/4 (three fourths) of the majority of the GBC present at the annual meeting for them to begin their initiating roles. The GBC shall prepare a paper elaborating this proposal." For four long years the GBC had declined to add any new gurus beyond the original eleven, to the consternation of many guru aspirants. To many it was clear why the guru-controlled GBC was reluctant to do so: they were in no hurry to increase the competition for disciples. Like powerful businessmen, the new zonal gurus were establishing their individual empires called "preaching fields." When the GBC finally responded to the rising tide of great pressure from the devotees, they acted in a way that was widely seen as cleverly self-serving. The policy paper issued by the GBC in 1982 included a section about what a devotee should do in the case that their guru has publicly been exposed as fallen or leaves ISKCON, as Jayatirtha had just done. They defined what constituted a falldown, and also recommended that such devotees take "re-initiation" from another ISKCON guru in good standing. This was a new and controversial practice. (see Ch. 128: Recycling Disciples)

The first stage of the movement's hijacking by bogus gurus was the hoax and outright lie that Srila Prabhupada had appointed the 11 ritviks to be full successor acharyas after his departure. When the pressure became too great that they open the guru door to others, they initiated stage two, the expansion of the original eleven, instituting a tight and restrictive policy of how to add further initiating gurus. This was when they reaffirmed their 1978 decree of needing 75% of the GBCs to vote an approval of additional gurus, adding more conditions and details. And in fact some new gurus were added. The GBC hoped to quiet the troops with this concession. In actuality it whetted the guru appetite of many more and the complaints grew in volume. Every disciple has the right to take disciples, it was widely proclaimed, so why was the GBC disallowing? The new candidates were to be from amongst the GBC members only, and Godbrothers in each zone would need to be recommended by their GBC gurus, and then approved by 75% of the entire GBC. There is very little chance of any Godbrothers meeting these requirements. Which GBC-gurus would want a competitor in their own zone? Svarupa Damodar, Panchadravidas, and Gopal Krishna Swamis were the three new gurus in 1982. Gopal Krishna had agitated to be the first "Indian-bodied" ISKCON guru; Swarup Damodar was no territorial threat because he was from Manipur, an undeveloped area. Panchadravida went to Mexico; Latin America was just too big for Hridayananda to manage alone, and Panchadravida was a ferocious GBC supporter. These three were approvable, but the long line of others had to wait due to the GBC-guru politics of exclusivity.

---

CHAPTER 202: ENDING THE FRATRICIDAL WAR (1984)

Ravindra Swarupa's Nov. 1984 paper that energized the so-called guru reform of the mid 1980's failed to identify or address the real problems in ISKCON after Srila Prabhupada's 1977 departure. His paper has already been carefully examined in Book One Ch. 98: Phony Guru Reforms. An excellent analysis and critique is given by the IRM (The False Dawn of Guru Reform) at www.iskconirm.org. Further repeat is unnecessary.

---

CHAPTER 203: UNDER MY ORDER (1985)

Ravindra Svarupa presented his essay Under My Order: Reflections on the Guru in ISKCON to the North American temple presidents in New Jersey in Aug. 1985. He had studied the July tape recordings of the appointment of ritviks, Tamal's underground Topanga Canyon confessions, the May 28 talks about future initiations, and he concluded that Srila Prabhupada had expected the ritviks to become initiating gurus after his departure, but that the position of acharyas as the eleven had assumed was unjustified and catastrophic. He identified the problem in ISKCON as the zonal acharya system being the improper manner for the new gurus to operate. His solution was to open the doors to anyone for becoming an initiating guru, without any zones or geographical restrictions. He included a copy of Pradyumna's 1978 letter about the ISKCON acharyas being unauthorized, and concluded they were simply initiating gurus, not acharyas. (Pradyumna had consulted primarily with Sridhara Maharaja.) Ravindra Swarupa extensively consulted with Tamal and other key zonal acharyas in the making of his paper's conclusions. Tamal knew a change was inevitable; he worked with the head of the reformers to redirect the "reform" in a direction which he and his allies could continue as gurus.

Ravindra Svarupa's theme was that Srila Prabhupada had appointed only ritviks and not acharyas, although he somehow, without any evidence, also concluded that it was "understood" that the ritviks would become initiating gurus after Srila Prabhupada's departure. For example, he states: (1) "Most devotees who have studied the transcribed conversation [July 8, 1977] wherein the 'appointment' is made agree that it is reasonable to conclude that Srila Prabhupada expected those who officiated as ritviks in his presence would continue after his disappearance as diksha-gurus under his order." (2) "In his discussion at Topanga Canyon, Tamal Krishna Goswami says, concerning the appointed ritviks, 'Obviously, Srila Prabhupada felt that of all the people, these people are particularly qualified. So it stands to reason that after Srila Prabhupada's departure, they would go on, if they so desired, to initiate.'" (3) "Prabhupada gave 11 men permission to make disciples. [Really???] His order was misunderstood. Thus, in the Introduction of a 1979 Vyasapuja book for one of the original eleven acharyas we read, 'Desiring to prepare his disciples for his departure, Srila Prabhupada very wisely selected eleven of his most intimate disciples to become both his material and spiritual successors.'"

Ravindra Svarupa made this assessment: "Thus, the appointment of ritviks is interpreted as the appointment, not merely of diksha-gurus, but of successors, and not merely of successors, but material and spiritual successors, which is to say, acharyas. Consequently, ISKCON itself now passed into the hands of eleven appointed "successor acharyas." The formation of exclusive and private zones over which the "zonal acharya" exercises total material and spiritual authority is one symptom of the illicit creation of "successor acharyas." A second symptom is the way special asanas have been established for the initiating gurus. [...] through our misunderstanding of Srila Prabhupada, the initiating gurus assumed a position which was not granted to them, or to anyone, by Srila Prabhupada, and which came into direct conflict with his instructions for ISKCON.”

“Under My Order” was endorsed by all North American temple presidents and sannyasis present as representing an accurate accounting and critical analysis of events within ISKCON. Further emphasizing the seriousness of the deviation of ISKCON's leaders, Ravindra Svarupa writes: “If we do not change, some future acharya, emerged out of the shambles of a dismantled ISKCON, will pass the same kind of judgement on us that Srila Prabhupada passed on his deviant Godbrothers. If we do not change, this future acharya will be able to write: ‘Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada, at the time of his departure, requested all his disciples to conduct missionary activities cooperatively under the authority of a governing body. He did not instruct any particular men to become the next acharyas. But just after his passing away, his leading secretaries made plans, without authority, to occupy the post of acharya. The single, international society established by Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada gradually split up into many small, local movements, each headed by a single self-made acharya. Consequently, all these factions were asara, or useless, because they had no authority, having disobeyed the order already ISKCON is in a questionable area in this regard.of the spiritual master.’”

CONCLUSION

Ravindra Svarupa’s flawed analysis missed that Srila Prabhupada did not appoint or instruct anyone to become any kind of initiating guru other than a ritvik representative of the acharya. The reform movement contained a majority faction of those envious of the exclusive positions held by the 11 to 16 or so initiating gurus. The idea that their status should be adjusted and that “all the godbrothers” should be allowed to be initiating gurus- this became the thrust of the so-called Guru Reform Movement. It was just more of the same, namely bogus, unauthorized initiators who would try to replace Srila Prabhupada, all under the influence of the “living guru” misconception. It was a false reform. Also see Ch. 98 in Book One for more discussion.

CHAPTER 204: GURU REFORM NOTEBOOK (1986)

“I have come to realise my participation in a grave error. I have allowed myself to be worshiped and regarded on the level of maha-bhagavata paramahansa, far above my “non-guru” God brothers. As a result, I have slighted and offended my Godbrothers -and Srila Prabhupada- in various ways. And I have mistrained my disciples in these matters.” (Satsvarupa das G., Guru Reform Notebook, 1986)

Left: SATSVARUPA’S 2015 “FEET-WASHING”

DEVIATIONS OF THE GURU REFORM NOTEBOOK:

By Prabhupadanugas, Apr. 29, 2017: “Satsvarupa’s ‘Guru Reform Book’ is actually more dangerous than his obvious mischaracterization of a pure devotee, because of its philosophical deviation, perverted ideology and bogus siddhanta. While we have to give credit to Satsvarupa’s personal reform, his guru reform notebook is a total contradiction of vaishnava philosophy, because it advocates that ‘bad gurus’ and/or ‘fallen acharyas’ (such as in Iskcon) can be reformed. It thus creates a bogus guru system with a perverted ideology and bogus siddhanta. But Srila Prabhupada states quite the opposite: Reporter: But the bad gurus... SP: And what is a ‘bad’ guru? Reporter: A bad guru just wants some money or some fame. SP: Well, if he is bad, how can he become a guru? [Laughter.] How can iron become gold? Actually, a guru cannot be bad, for if someone is bad, he cannot be a guru. You cannot say ‘bad guru.’ That is a contradiction. What you have to do is simply try to understand what a genuine guru is. [...] A guru cannot be bad. There is no question of a bad guru [...] Guru means 'genuine guru.'" (SP Interview)

From Srila Prabhupada's books we understand that 'guru' is synonymous with 'pure devotee' i.e. Guru never falls. Nobody in ISKCON during Srila Prabhupada's time even dreamt of a philosophy that accommodated the idea of a "guru falling down" or fallen gurus who have reformed? "Which previous gurus or acharyas in the disciplic succession had to be 'reformed'? Which previous acharyas were fallen or 'voted in' at all? Which previous acharyas were voted in with a known homosexual," and so on and so forth? This itself shows how badly Satsvarupa has not understood the siddhanta, otherwise he would not have advised a "guru reform" if he knew that gurus do not need reform? For that matter, sincere neophytes also do not need to be "reformed" from illicit sex, drugs and crimes like NM's acharyas need to be rectified from? Which previous acharyas needed reform for deviations? Why does Satsvarupa think that acharyas are less advanced than the neophytes? Only a dull person in the mode of ignorance will accept that someone was a fake mahabhagavat guru, admitted his pretense, but still went on continuing being guru. The fact that such lack of knowledge still remains today is evidenced by the necessity of a "Guru Reform Notebook" which, in and of itself, wrongly suggests that a guru is ignorant. However a true guru, uttama-adhikari is fixed and as stated by Srila Prabhupada: "One should not become a spiritual master unless he has attained the platform of uttama-adhikari." So this is the first problem with Satsvarupa and his GURU REFORM NOTEBOOK, he helped the GBC's promote the idea that their acharyas need "reform" and he thus helped the GBC's contrive a whole convoluted system of —guru reform, guru suspension, guru monitoring, guru voting, guru rectification, guru removal, and even —gurus sometimes being demons and etc. None of this was mentioned by Srila Prabhupada. This offensive attack on the guru-parampara is a continued pattern in Iskcon. The notion that "Krishna's pure guru successors are subject to contamination" (and fall-downs) has expanded in the "living guru" project. For example, a "living guru" based in eastern India, lectured in January 1990, that sometimes, for a few minutes, Krishna's great successor gurus, such as Lord Brahma, become bewildered by maha-maya (mundane illusion). In the following conversation Srila Prabhupada clarified that the acharya has to be a pure devotee and that the idea that he falls down to mode of passion is a concocted one:

Akshayananda: "I was recently told by one devotee that the acharya does not have to be a pure devotee. SP: What? [...] SP: Who is that rascal? [...] Oh, our Nitai? Oh. [...] He manufactured his idea. Therefore he's a rascal. Therefore he's a rascal. Nitai has become an authority? Akshayananda: No, actually he said that he thought... SP: He thought something rascaldom, and he is expressing that. Therefore he is more rascal. These things are going on. As soon as he reads some books, he becomes an acharya..." (SPConv Dec. 10, 1975)

Satsvarupa's GURU REFORM NOTEBOOK alleges that: —great liberated gurus and even the Supreme Personality of Godhead Himself may also be great offenders (pages 24-5), while he stretches even further the attempts to "explain away" the many discrepancies manifested in the GBC's "living guru" project. Examples of great persons who considered themselves great offenders: (1). Lord Balarama, after killing Romaharshana Suta. (2). Parasurama, after killing the kshatriyas. (3). Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati, who refused to take mango, saying, 'No, I am an offender.' (4). Srila Prabhupada, who begged forgiveness in his last days for offending his Godbrothers. (5). Narottama dasa and Bhaktivinoda Thakura, who lament in their songs not exactly for having committed offenses, but for wasting their lives in material life." How do we know that the great, liberated eternal preceptor gurus never become materially conditioned? Because the Vedic literature and Prabhupada's personal example confirm it. How do we know that the "living gurus" are conditioned souls unqualified to hold the post of eternal preceptor gurus? Because, as seen above, they exhibit conditioned defects. They incorrectly misinterpret the Vedic scriptures by their imperfect senses. Some of them even boast that Krishna's pure parampara gurus, such as the "living guru" project's members, "make mistakes all the time." Then they amalgamate those conditioned defects into larger illusions which they forward as position papers, (GBC philosophical reports) and such illusions are supposed to be “the absolute truth.” This means that they are then exhibiting the cheating propensity. Finally, as described above, they shamelessly and unauthorizedly promote all their material defects as the qualifications of the great acharyas and Mahajanas. Very dangerously, the “living gurus” portray the completely Krishna conscious eternal preceptor gurus as faulty, materially affected, mixed devotees. So again, Srila Prabhupada observes the great danger of this deviant philosophy: mixing the contaminated with the pure in CC Adi 7.72: “...thus they clear their path to hell.” Srila Prabhupada clarifies the reasons for the false criticisms towards real acharyas: “Influenced by an envious temperament and dissatisfied because of an attitude of sense gratification, mundaners criticize a real acharya. In fact, however, a bona fide acharya is nondifferent from the Personality of Godhead, and therefore to envy such an acharya is to envy the Personality of Godhead Himself. This will produce an effect subversive to transcendental realization...” (CC Adi 1.46) Isopanisad 12: “By a false display of religious sentiments, they present a show of devotional service while indulging in all sorts of immoral activities. In this way they pass as spiritual masters and devotees of God. Such violators of religious principles have no respect for the authoritative acharyas, the holy teachers in the strict disciplic succession. To mislead the people in general, they themselves become so-called acharyas, but they do not even follow the principles of the acharyas. These rogues are the most dangerous elements in human society. Because there is no religious government, they escape punishment by the law of the state. They cannot however, escape the law of the Supreme, who has clearly stated in BGita that envious demons in the garb of religious propagandists shall be thrown into the darkest regions of hell. Sri Isopanisad confirms that these pseudo-religionists are headed toward the most obnoxious place in the universe after the completion of their spiritual master business, which they conduct simply for sense gratification.”

ISKCON’s “living guru” tactic of devaluing the great liberated devotees has continued in an expanding pattern throughout the years. E.g., the GBC’s “living guru” author Satsvarupa, who wrote the “Guru Reform Notebook” says on p. 15, “On studying Dhruva Maharaja’s case, I do not see at first how it applies to me and my GBC guru Godbrothers. We didn’t pursue an obvious material desire as did Dhruva...” In short, the living guru author tries to paint the GBC’s guru project, with all of it’s odious degradations, sectarian violence, and so on, as somehow higher than a factual pure devotee. But Srila Prabhupada writes: “Dhruva Maharaja was a maha-bhagavata, or a first class pure devotee...” (SBhag 4.12.8) “It is our duty to remember always that in comparison to Dhruva Maharaja, we are very insignificant. We cannot do anything like what Dhruva Maharaja did for self realization, because we are absolutely incompetent to execute such service.” (SBhag 4.8.73) (END)

Satsvarupa apologized for behaving somewhat inappropriately as a zonal successor acharya, by accepting worship from Godbrothers and offending his Godbrothers in various ways. However, he has slyly evaded his actual crime of criminally hijacking the movement with a hoax of being appointed as a diksha guru, accepting his own disciples and dakshina. He is a thief and pretender, a criminal who has stolen Srila Prabhupada’s property, position, followers, assets, temples... His token “reform” is meant to mislead us. On Feb. 10, 1987 Hari Sauri das wrote Satsvarupa with his comments on his guru reform book: “As the leading literary personality within ISKCON as well as a guru, I was dismayed to see your book which is both inconclusive and an expression of personal confusion... Many of our Godbrothers also feel that the book is incomplete, with no conclusion, and does not help the insecurity felt in ISKCON today but rather, adds to it.” Hari Sauri criticized further: “If [you] openly publish the fact that you go outside ISKCON for guidance, [...] then what will new devotees think?” Guru Reform Notebook provides nothing of value to the guru issue.

Henry Doktorski: Kirtanananda Swami (KS) was adamantly opposed to any measures which would limit the absolute relationship between guru and disciple, or limit the amount of worship, such as the ceremony of guru-puja, which disciples offered to the spiritual master. Therefore, KS boycotted the New Vrindaban GBC/temple president meetings of Sept. 1986, except for once when he attended solely to read his recently drafted paper, "On My Order"—a rebuttal to Ravindra-Svarupa's "Under My Order." KS's paper—expanded as a book in 1987—claimed the guru was absolute and could not be accepted/rejected by an ecclesiastical body. He cited many verses. He asserted that ignorance had bewildered ISKCON and the GBC because they had offended Srila Prabhupada by (1) authorizing the editing of his books after his disappearance and (2) failing to complete Prabhupada's samadhi (mausoleum) in Vrindaban. KS lectured his Godbrothers in the meeting hall:

"That there is a problem in ISKCON, nobody can deny. The nature of the problem, however, is not clearly understood. [...] Essentially, the disturbance in ISKCON centers on two questions: the nature of guru and the organization of our preaching mission. Due to ignorance, we concoct momentary solutions that are no solutions, only to be plagued with the same problems tomorrow. Unless we consult the transcendental sources of guru, sadhu, and shastra, we will not obtain real knowledge. [...] First, what is guru? [...] The spiritual master is the most confidential servant of God, the very representative of God. He is great because he has surrendered to the All-Great, who is visible through him. [...] Who can be guru? Lord Chaitanya says, "He can become a spiritual master if he knows the science of Krishna." [...] Thus we can safely conclude that anyone who strictly follows the regulative principles and preaches Krishna consciousness without deviation may, upon the order of Lord Chaitanya or his own spiritual master, initiate disciples all over the world [...] One does not become guru by the rubber stamp of a commission or even another guru. One becomes guru on the order of the Lord and the spiritual master. [...] You cannot rubber-stamp an acharya, nor can you eclipse him. Since he is the direct representative of the Personality of Godhead, nothing can impede his progress. [...] A person falls from a high position not because he is worshipped—how can guru not be worshipped?—but because he does not accept this worship transparently. One who always remembers that what is offered to him is really meant for Krishna will never fall. [...] The bona fide guru cannot be limited. Sri Guru is Krishna, the Lord and Master of everyone; therefore, Srila Prabhupada once said that everyone was his disciple, only some knew it and some did not. [...] The power of the GBC comes not from armies and material resources, but from the will of Srila Prabhupada. Conversely, without following the will of Srila Prabhupada, the GBC will have no potency. [...] Unity, like the position of guru, cannot be rubber-stamped. We may all be technically within one organization, but if there are different opinions, where is the unity? Purity is infinitely higher than unity, as Srila Prabhupada taught us by his own example in regard to the Gaudiya Math. [...] We have the example of the Gaudiya Maths becoming useless due to disobedience. But where is the disobedience in the present circumstances? What is that disobedience so grave and so offensive as to cause havoc in the whole society of Vaishnavas?"

"The essence of our disobedience surely lies in the thought that we have become Srila Prabhupada's replacements rather than his servants. Have we not neglected his order and disobeyed his instructions by considering ourselves so intelligent that we can alter his books after his disappearance? [...] Due to this disobedience and offense, our intelligence is now lost and we are full of ignorance, so much so that we do not know who or what is guru, but concoct something to fit the need of the day, something that will again be changed tomorrow because it is not eternal truth but mental speculation. It happened to the simple, clear teachings of Jesus Christ 1900 years ago, and now it is happening to the simple, pure teachings of Srila Prabhupada, less than ten years after his disappearance. I call this the Christianization of Krishna consciousness, or, more succinctly, 'Krishnanity.' [...] Perhaps our greatest failure and our greatest disappointment to our spiritual master is our failure, after almost ten years, to complete his Samadhi in Vrindaban in Mayapura. [...] I can personally testify that whatever success we have achieved in New Vrindaban comes only from our having built Srila Prabhupada a Samadhi, his Palace of Gold. [...] and by that glorification of Sri Guru,

Krishna has been pleased and has showered all blessings upon us. [...] Let us avoid the foolish mistake of thinking that the guru is connected to a piece of land or area, or one becomes guru by GBC endorsement. Let us endorse everyone who follows the path of Srila Prabhupada. [...] Let us create a real GBC, a spiritual entity for preaching the glories of the sankirtan movement, a GBC that inspires and enthuses devotees around the world to take up the order of Lord Chaitanya, and, at the same time, maintains the highest standard of purity by personal example and preaching. [...] Krishna and guru are fully manifest to the surrendered soul who is always chanting the holy name.

COMMENTS: So KS presumed he was ordered to be a diksha guru, as well as all his Godbrothers who were following properly and who were properly surrendered, etc, on the basis of Lord Chaitanya's order to all devotees to preach Krishna's teachings and Holy Names. But this is a siksha guru, not diksha. KS was very correct about the independence of an acharya from institutional dictates, and thios applies to the true Sampradaya Acharya, which KS definitely was NOT, as would be seen just a few years later. Pride before the fall. Again, the mistake is in not recognizing that Srila Prabhupada did not order anyone to initiate other than ritvik represenatives, and those initiated would still be Srila Prabhupada's disciples. Henceforward, indefinitely.

---

CHAPTER 206: ISKCON JOURNAL (1990)

After several years of the quarterly Vedic Village Review featuring open discussions on the guru issue and causing much headache for the GBC, and after the "ritvik debate" at the San Diego GBC meeting in Jan. 1990, Tamal, the ISKCON bogus gurus, and their allies knew they had to fight back to save their seats on their thrones. The vote in San Diego was unanimous that the matter be raised at the annual Mayapur GBC meetings for full discussion. Instead, Tamal quickly organized the first (and last) issue of the ISKCON Journal with interviews, discussions, and essays of Tamal, Narayan Maharaja, Jayapataka, Bhakticharu, Shivarama, Ravindra Svarupa, Bhurijana, Satyaraja, Satsvarupa, Suhotra, and Ajamila. Everything they had was thrown against the "ritvik proposition." At the meetings, there was no discussion or study of the issue, simply an endorsement of their journal and another resolution damning the "heretical posthumous initiation theory." A few months later the GBC sent a letter to the three VVR editors demanding recantation, repentance, public apologies, lest they be excommunicated, which they were. The ISKCON Journal relied heavily on Narayana Maharaja's Gaudiya Math policy of allowing unappointed and unqualified men to pose as acharyas and initiating gurus, although unauthorized to do so by Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati. And in spite of Srila Prabhupada's numerous prohibitions against taking advice from his Godbrothers who would only disturb and destroy his movement. The other testimonies were from biased ISKCON gurus or their supporters. The same (and some new) arguments that had been examined by the VVR were rehashed, all for the satisfaction of the choir members. It was a show of force and confidence that kicked the can of doubts in their unauthorized guru system further down the road.

Of the VVR editors: Rupa Vilas das recanted and was reinstated as an ISKCON member in 2004. The other two, Karnamrita das (passed away 2020) and Nityananda das took their expulsion as a badge of honor. The best refutation and debunking of false philosophy is done by www.irm.org.

---

CHAPTER 207: CONTINUING THE PARAMPARA (1994)

"On July 7th, Prabhupada gave the list of those he "chose." The process was already clear. First on his behalf, then regular guru." (Continuing the Parampara, Shivarama Swami, p. 20, 1994)

This essay by Shivarama Swami has been decimated and shredded already by Krishnakant of IRM: <https://www.iskconirm.com/docs/webpages/srs1.htm> There is no need to do it again.

CHAPTER 208: GURUS AND INITIATION IN ISKCON (1995)

"In 1995, the GBC published the 51-page Gurus and Initiation in ISKCON, a compilation of all the relevant ISKCON laws and official papers on the subject (GBC 1995). Nor did that conclude the matter. Fresh legislation in 1996 states, 'Temple presidents, at their discretion, have the right to prohibit its [proxy-initiation] advocates from participating in ISKCON functions or visiting an ISKCON temple if their advocacy creates a disturbance.' Various ISKCON leaders have individually published papers against the proxy-initiation philosophy. Some, like Jayadvaita Swami (Swami, J., 1996a), have conceded that the proxy-initiation people are right on certain non-philosophical points. But the proxy-initiation people are in no way satisfied with such minor concessions. They remain solid in their conviction that the present ISKCON guru system is fundamentally flawed. Their most recent outpouring, an 87-page position paper entitled The Controversy Surrounding Srila Prabhupada's Final Order on the Future of Initiations Within ISKCON, or simply, The Final Order, has prompted the GBC to issue its own response entitled Disciple of My Disciple (1997) along with promises that they will fully document the history and theology of the guru in ISKCON as a way of finally bringing the issue to rest. That, of course, is doubtful..." (Tamal, Perils of Succession) [His doubts have proven valid until today.]

SADHU-SHASTRA-GURU RESEARCH (ANALYSIS FROM ISKCON REVIVAL MOVEMENT)

Part of "Gurus and Initiation in ISKCON" was a paper entitled "On My Order Understood," in which the GBC tried to finally explain Srila Prabhupada's orders on how initiations in ISKCON would continue after his physical departure. This paper claims to be the "final siddhanta" on guru tattva in ISKCON. For years the GBC has argued the "final order" must be wrong because it supposedly breaks the 'law of disciplic succession,' stated by Srila Prabhupada in a letter: "But as a matter of etiquette it is the custom that during the lifetime of your spiritual master you bring the prospective disciples to him, and in his absence or disappearance you can accept disciples without any limitation. This is the law of disciplic succession." (SPL Tusta Krishna Dec. 2, 1975)

The GBC were also very happy to accept that the restriction on initiating in the presence of one's spiritual master was an integral part of this "law of disciplic succession," and used this as their main argument as to why devotees could not initiate whilst their Gurus were present on the planet. This was stated very forcefully in the official GBC paper "Gurus and Initiation in ISKCON" (GII, 1995). "From these quotations it is clear Srila Prabhupada did not want his disciples to initiate, no matter how qualified they may be, as long as their spiritual master was present. [...] It is prudent to assume [he] was speaking as the Founder-acharya of ISKCON, and that he is restricting all disciples of all gurus in ISKCON from initiating in the presence of their spiritual masters. Even though in the past spiritual masters have given disciples permission to initiate in their presence, Srila Prabhupada emphatically forbids it [...] ISKCON is a unique institution in the history of Vaishnavism. We must assume [...] Srila Prabhupada had the vision to set down a law suitable for that unique institution, a law we would transgress at our peril. A disciple's only duty is to worship and serve his spiritual master. His mind should not be agitated over how he may become a guru. A devotee who sincerely wants to make spiritual advancement should try to become a disciple, not a spiritual master."

Clearly, the GBC believes that under no circumstances should anyone initiate in the presence of their spiritual master. [...] Even if the devotees are very qualified, or if they have had permission from their own spiritual masters, Srila Prabhupada strictly forbids this practice for ISKCON for all time. That this restriction is part of a unique "law" of disciplic succession given especially for ISKCON by Srila Prabhupada, and we would be transgressing this at our own "peril" etc etc. Right? Yet, in an amazing U-turn, they decided it is alright for a disciple to become Guru whilst his own Guru is on the planet, after all! As the following sensational announcement by the GBC Chairman, Ramai Swami confirms:

“That an *EXCEPTION* has been made in the case of HH Maha Visnu Goswami in regards to the present ISKCON LAW 6.3.2 (which reads as): ‘No devotee shall give initiation as long as his own spiritual master is present on the planet. A devotee whose spiritual master is present must take all who approach him for initiation to his own spiritual master (or other approved initiating guru).’ Whereas HH Maha Visnu Goswami is doing dynamic preaching—attracting many to ISKCON and keeping others in ISKCON; Whereas there are several unique features to the history of HH Maha Visnu Goswami that should be considered; [he] is often asked for initiation by new devotees; [he] is very elderly; [he] has displayed allegiance to Srila Prabhupada’s teachings; Whereas the subject of disciple’s initiating in the presence of their Guru is an ongoing discussion amongst ISKCON’s leaders; ‘It is hereby resolved that an exception [...] has been made in the case of HH Maha Visnu Goswami. [He] is hereby granted a “no objection” to give initiation to prospective disciples. [...]’”

Please note that [...] Srila Prabhupada and the GBC both obviously forgot to mention this “senior citizen” clause in the “law” of disciplic succession (that we would violate at our own peril!) This is more proof how the GBC’s philosophical position is a joke. They cannot even decide what THEY believe in, what Srila Prabhupada taught, and whether or not the “law of disciplic succession” is really a law that cannot be broken...

From IRM’s Back To Prabhupada Summer 2005: THE “AUTOMATIC SUCCESSION” MYTH: “Srila Prabhupada stated that it was a 'law of disciplic succession' that after the Guru physically departs, his disciples automatically become successor Gurus.” BUSTED: Srila Prabhupada used this phrase, “law of disciplic succession,” once in a private letter (2/12/75) to a deviant disciple, Tusta Krishna das, wrote: “But as a matter of etiquette it is the custom that during the lifetime of your spiritual master you bring the prospective disciples to him, and in his absence or disappearance you can accept disciples without any limitation. This is the law of disciplic succession.” Tusta Krishna had 2 years earlier left ISKCON to form his own faction with Siddhasvarupa (see SPL to Madhudvisa Swami Dec. 15, 1973). However, the GBC themselves no longer accept this “law,” even though they used it for many years as their main piece of evidence for justifying their Guru system, having recently changed their own laws to break this “law,” and allow disciples of Gurus to initiate in their own spiritual master’s presence. Three “grand-disciples” who have thus far been authorized by the GBC to initiate disciples in the presence of their Gurus are: Mahavisnu Goswami, a disciple of Shivarama Swami, Kadamba Kanana Swami, a disciple of Jayadvaita Swami, Candramukha Swami, a disciple of Hridayananda Das Goswami.

This number will continue to increase, as ambitious disciples are ‘bribed’ with Guruship to stay in ISKCON and not form their own societies. Indeed the GBC were forced to take the ground-breaking step of breaking their own “law,” as detailed in the 2001 GBC resolution below, to deal with rumours that Mahavisnu Goswami had apparently already been secretly initiating disciples in violation of ISKCON’s ‘law’ at that time! We see, however, that this so-called “exception” to the “law” has now become a general principle - i.e. the “law” has been broken for good - with at least 3 “grand-disciple” Gurus, and more waiting in line.

In the letter to Tusta Krishna, Srila Prabhupada simply states that after his disappearance, it is possible for a disciple to be a diksa (initiating) Guru himself. This merely states the obvious. If such a possibility did not exist, then a diksa Guru could never be succeeded, and there would only ever be one diksa Guru eternally. Only if such a possibility of disciples being Gurus existed, could we even have a discussion regarding whether or not Srila Prabhupada actually authorised his disciples to succeed him as diksa Gurus for the lifetime of ISKCON. The above quote does not say that all his disciples automatically succeed him or that they are all now being ordered to become diksa Gurus as soon as Srila Prabhupada departs. Such an order to the ISKCON society from Srila Prabhupada does not exist. But just before his departure, Srila Prabhupada did order ISKCON to set up ritviks only, as per the July 9th directive. And so the GBC justifications for their policy disintegrates.

---

CHAPTER 209: WHERE THE RITVIKS ARE WRONG (1996)

By 1996 the IRM gained significant momentum with its book The Final Order, especially amongst noted Srilika Prabhupada "direct" disciples. Jayadvaita Swami, the damned book changer, published his analysis called Where the Ritviks are Wrong. Extracts from IRM's response below: (Jayadwaita's lengthy paper can be easily found online as well as his "Where the Ritviks Are Right." )

(IRM START) [Your paper] is certainly one of the best written and most biting attacks we have thus far sustained. We shall be addressing the issues you raise in far more detail in a forthcoming paper, to be submitted as a discussion document to the GBC. However we felt your thoughtful paper warranted an immediate (rushed) reply. [...] We agree with much in your paper... so we shall mainly address those arguments which we feel you might wish to look at more closely, #1 and 6. We appreciate that your arguments #2, 3, 4 and 5 could only be used supportively once it has been established that the "post samadhi" ritvik system was authorised by Srila Prabhupada. In themselves they would not be conclusive evidence. Nor have we ever promoted them as such. You correctly point to doctrinal variations within the ritvik camp. We shall not waste your time pointing out the numerous differing positions GBC members have presented over the years. Suffice to say good open dialogue can only help to clarify things in everyone's mind. We are grateful for your use of the term 'post-samadhi' as opposed to 'posthumous', which always carried with it mundane connotations. We are happy to use the term. We shall use the term 'Multiple Acarya Successor System', or M.A.S.S., when referring to your favoured method of continuing the parampara - (in this context we use the word 'acharya' in its strongest sense, i.e., initiating spiritual master, or diksa guru). According to your analysis we are supporters of the 'hard ritvik doctrine' with a subtle modification: Srila Prabhupada should be the only initiating acharya for ISKCON, for as long as the society is extant. All members of ISKCON should, in our humble view, aspire to act as instructing spiritual masters, or siksha gurus. We quote: "The GBC should all be instructor gurus. I am the initiator Guru, and you should be the instructor guru by teaching what I am teaching and doing what I am doing." (SPL Madhuvisa Swami 4.8.75) Anyone wishing to initiate on their own behalf should do the honorable thing and form their own institution. The type of 'spiritual master' Srila Prabhupada constantly encouraged all his disciples to become, was siksha, not diksha. This is clear from the purports to the 'amara ajnaya guru hana' section of the CC: "It is best not to accept any disciples." (C. C. Madhya Lila 7:130)

To kick off there are two basic assumptions in your paper which we feel are seriously flawed. The first of these is that p.s. ritvik, by definition, means the end of the disciplic succession, or guru parampara. This is a false assumption. The parampara is eternal. According to Srila Prabhupada the sankirtan movement, and hence ISKCON, will only last for 9,500 more years. Compared with eternity 9,500 years is nothing, a mere blip. That is the time period in which Srila Prabhupada shall remain the current link within ISKCON. After that time period p.s. ritvik will be rather difficult to follow since its practitioners will be hunted and eaten. Previous acharyas such as Vyasadeva have remained 'current' within the parampara for even thousands of years. In times previous to Madhavacharya, sages were not up-in-arms about Srila Vyasadeva ending the parampara. Why then should you be so concerned about the duration of Srila Prabhupada's reign as current link?

The second point we need to urgently address is your 'regular vanilla' concept. If there is one feature which most distinguishes diksha transmission in our guru parampara, it is that it is almost entirely devoid of regularity. Despite this you use the concept to frame the entire ritvik issue. We feel the 'regular vanilla' frame is drastically incomplete, and hence potentially misleading. Although you only offer a rough outline of what 'regular vanilla' diksha activity entails, we have gleaned the following basic scenario: According to you the regular form of diksha involves a guru teaching his disciple everything he needs to know about Krishna Consciousness. The disciple cannot just enquire philosophically from the guru, he must personally approach and serve him as well - (but does this service and approach must be to his physical body, one to one? -many of Srila Prabhupada's disciples never met him physically). After the guru leaves the planet, the disciple is connected to him largely through his indebtedness and is immediately free to act as a diksha guru, initiating his own disciples. Any other scenario would presumably be of a particular flavour, and hence not 'regular vanilla'. This is a picture you feel everyone will be totally happy with. But let's look more closely at 'regular vanilla'.

The very first example you give involves interplanetary diksha, (BGita 4.1). SP comments: "So there was no difficulty in communicating with Manu or Manu's son Iksvaku. The communication was there, or the radio system was so nice that communication could be transferred from one planet to another." (BG lecture 1968). Strangely this mode of diksha does not appear to be wholly consistent with what you would have us accept as 'regular vanilla.' Unless you are saying that it is also 'regular' for a disciple to accept a spiritual master who is not physically present on the same planet. The idea is not entirely without merit and this form of diksha sits quite comfortably with the p.s. ritvik system. Srila Prabhupada is still in the universe offering personal guidance to his disciples, at least those who still believe such interaction is possible: "You have asked if it is true that the spiritual master remains in the universe until all his disciples are transferred to the spiritual sky. The answer is yes, this is the rule." (SPL Jayapataka 11.7.69). We also know that Srila Prabhupada is at least as powerful as demigods such as Iksvaku. So transferring or transmitting diksha to receptive disciples should present him no difficulty at all, from whichever planet he may presently reside. This exchange seems to be slightly more mystical than mere feelings of 'indebtedness': "Just like Krishna can be present simultaneously in millions of places. Similarly, the Spiritual Master can be present wherever the disciple wants. A Spiritual Master is the principle, not the body. Just like a television can be seen in thousands of places by the principle of relay monitoring." (SPL 16.5.68) Aside from the facility of internal realisation afforded by off-world diksha transmission, we also have the added, and in our case quite essential advantage, of the extensive spiritual infrastructure and support system which Srila Prabhupada put in place whilst he was physically present. This physical support system includes his books (from which he is non-different), his tapes, videos, murti, temples, society, GBC, etc. If you really do believe 4.1 is an example of 'regular' diksha then maybe we are not so far apart after all. One of the main objections we have come across to taking a mukhya vritti, or literal interpretation of the July 9 Order, is that off-world diksha transmission violates shastra. And yet by using 4.1 as your only shastric example of the parampara you imply it is quite the thing to do.

We shall now look at examples of the enormous diversity of diksha activity in our parampara. We have observed that violations of 'regular vanilla' fall into five basic categories, although there could be many others: (1) Gaps. These are all the occasions when an acharya in the parampara leaves, and there is no next link to immediately start initiating. Or the person who is to become the next link does not immediately receive authorisation from his spiritual master to initiate upon his departure. For example there was a gap of some 20 years between the departure of Srila Bhaktisiddhanta and the next bona fide initiation in our sampradaya. Gaps of over 100 years are not uncommon between members of the disciplic succession. (2) Reverse gaps. These are all the occasions where an acharya has not yet left his body before his disciples start initiating. Lord Brahma, for example, has not yet left his body, and yet generations of successor gurus have initiated millions upon millions of disciples. According to the GBC's recent book 'Gurus and initiation in ISKCON' (p. 23), this is common in our sampradaya. (3) Siksha/diksha links. These are instances of a disciple accepting an acharya as his principle spiritual master long after he has left the planet. Whether the departed acharya is a siksha or a diksha guru to the disciple is often unclear. Srila Prabhupada does not generally specify. Although these disciples invariably go through some sort of ceremony with someone who is physically present, that does not preclude the departed acharya from being his diksha guru, just as a ritvik ceremony does not mean the temple president or name-giving ritvik is the diksha guru. (4) Mode of initiation. These are anomalous forms of initiation where unique, or inconceivable forms of diksha transmission take place. E. g., Lord Krishna to Lord Brahma. Or Lord Chaitanya whispering into a Buddhist's ear. (5) Successor systems. This refers to differing successor acharya systems within our sampradaya. Bhaktisiddhanta had a 'self-effulgent' successor system. Srila Prabhupada seems to have opted for an officiating acharya system with his books as the successor.

So with such abundant variety, what does 'regular vanilla' mean? And yet such diksha activity undeniably exists in our parampara system. Let's look at some more deviations from 'regular vanilla': It appears Bhaktivinoda Thakur formally initiated nobody, and set up an extensive nama hatta network with no diksha gurus in sight. Is this 'regular vanilla'? Lord Chaitanya gave formal initiation to nobody; Haridas Thakur seems neither to have received nor given formal diksha. Were these 'regular vanilla'? Gaurakisora das Babaji, whilst amply qualified, had no desire to initiate anyone and practically had to be forced into it by the sheer persistence of Srila Bhaktisiddhanta. Is this 'regular vanilla'? Srila Bhaktisiddhanta instructed only for a GBC, and no authorisation for his disciples to initiate. Srila Prabhupada made many references to his godbrothers' lack of authorisation and qualification to act as acharyas/initiating gurus: "Amongst my godbrothers no one is qualified to become acharya." (SPL Rupanuga 28.4.74) "On the whole you may know that he (Bon Maharaja) is not a liberated person, and therefore he cannot initiate any person to Krishna Consciousness. It requires special benediction from higher authorities." (SPL to Janardana 26.4.68) Srila Bhaktisiddhanta had left the planet, so according to your 'regular vanilla' parampara concept one would have thought there would be nothing preventing the kind of guru free-for-all we see in ISKCON, and yet Srila Prabhupada did not approve: "If everyone just initiates then there will be contradictory result. As long as it goes on, there will be only failure." (Phalgun Krishnan Pancami, 23) Srila Bhaktisiddhanta left it that a self-effulgent acarya would emerge. 30 years later he did. Was this 'regular vanilla'? We could give pages of examples of irregular vanilla, and quite a few examples of tutti fruti (especially after 1977), but perhaps you see our point.

If by 'regular vanilla' you are referring to the general principle of accepting a current link guru who is an authorised member of the disciplic succession, then we are in total harmony. The p.s. ritvik system allows unlimited numbers of people to approach, enquire and serve Srila Prabhupada, who is just such a spiritual master. The mechanics of how such acceptance takes place may vary according to time place and circumstance, but the principle remains the same. This principle is certainly not compromised in any way by p.s. ritvik. According to the cover of the Bhagavad Gita (1983 edition), which you yourself revised, Srila Prabhupada is the current representative of the disciplic succession. Despite being clearly stated on your own revised book, when we last met, you adamantly insisted in the strongest possible terms, that Srila Prabhupada was in fact not the current representative of the disciplic succession. To justify your dramatic shift in position since 1983 you invoked the injunction that 'in order to be a current link the guru must be physically present.' If you recall we looked up the term 'current link' on folio and found it was only mentioned once in Bhagavatam. On reading the relevant section we found no trace of your injunction. You then said that the very definition of the word 'current' meant 'physically present'. When we brought you a dictionary you seemed unable to substantiate even this claim. We will tie up the 'current link' issue before returning to your paper. We reject your injunction that 'a current link must be physically present' for the following reasons:

The term 'current link' is only used once in all of Srila Prabhupada's teachings, and there is no reference to physical presence adjacent to the term. Were physical presence essential it would certainly have been mentioned. The dictionary definitions of 'current' do not refer to physical presence [and] can be readily applied to a physically absent Spiritual Master and his books: 'most recent', 'commonly known, practised or accepted,' 'widespread,' 'circulating and valid at present.' (Collins) All these definitions can be applied to Srila Prabhupada and his books. The very purpose of approaching a 'current link' can be fully satisfied by reading Srila Prabhupada's books: "... in order to receive the real message of Srimad-Bhagavatam one should approach the current link, or spiritual master, in the chain of disciplic succession." (SBhag 2.9.7) Srila Prabhupada also uses the term 'immediate acharya' as synonymous with 'current link'. The word 'immediate' means: 'Without intervening medium,' 'closest or most direct in effect or relationship.' (Collins) This validates a direct relationship with Srila Prabhupada with no need for intermediaries, regardless of physical presence/absence. Since there are examples of disciples initiating when their guru was still on the planet, there would appear to be no direct relationship between current link status and physical presence. If it is possible to be the next current link even whilst your own guru is physically present, should it not be possible for a departed acharya to also remain the current link? The emergence of a current link is not based on physical considerations. If they are, then you have failed to show how. As the current link, it is Srila Prabhupada we must approach for initiation. Whether SP is physically present or not is irrelevant to the transcendental process of diksha, as he made amply clear so often in his books, lectures, conversations, letters: "Physical presence is immaterial." (SPLecture 19.1.67) "...one has to associate with liberated persons not directly, physically, but by understanding, through philosophy and logic..." (SBhag 3.31.48) "So we should associate by vibration, and not by the physical presence. That is real association." (SPL 19.1.67) "So spiritually appearance and disappearance, there is no difference ... spiritually there is no such difference, appearance or disappearance." (S.P. Lecture 13.12.73) "We should associate by the vibration and not the physical presence. That is real association." (SPLecture 1968) "...presence by my message is the real touch." (SPL 1967)

This is what Srila Prabhupada consistently taught up until 1977[...] Anyone who chants 16 rounds a day, reads Srila Prabhupada's books, and follows strictly the four regulative principles, is eligible to be recommended for ritvik initiation. Srila Prabhupada will accept unlimited numbers of such sincere souls as his initiated disciples. We just need to facilitate the whole thing. SP: Who is my disciple? First of all let him follow strictly the disciplined rules. Disciple: As long as they are following, then he is... SP: Then he is alright. (13.6.76)

ONE: ARGUMENT FROM RESTATEMENT OF WHAT'S ACCEPTED: The centre of the controversy is the final instruction. Although you refer to the May 28 conversation as the 'final instruction,' July 9 is 6 weeks more final. You say everyone accepts the July 9 order and the ritvik system. Yet, in our experience (1996) most devotees never read the July 9th letter before we gave it to them, and are quite surprised when they do. We have spoken to prominent GBC men who claim never to have seen it. Having read it, and understood that it was the only signed directive to the society from Srila Prabhupada on the future of initiation, many become sympathetic to p.s. ritvik. You might say they were gullible fools, but maybe we should not judge too hastily.

May 28 Conversation: Srila Prabhupada is first asked about initiations in the future, particularly when he was no longer present. He says he shall be appointing some disciples to act as officiating acaryas or ritviks. He then answers some muddled questions about guru disciple relationships within the system, mostly in the third person as was his custom. Srila Prabhupada then finishes by saying that there would be gurus if he orders them, and should he ever do so they would then be disciples of his disciples. His use of phrases such as 'on my order', 'but by my order' and 'when I order' prove incontrovertibly that this May 28 conversation could not be the order proper, where we would expect Srila Prabhupada to say something like 'I am now ordering all my disciples to become diksha gurus on my departure'. That would be strong evidence for your M.A.S.S doctrine. Unfortunately nothing even approaching such a statement appears in this conversation, or any other for that matter. Surely you must see this! Some people argue that the order to become guru was already given by Lord Chaitanya. But, as discussed, this refers principally to siksha not diksha. Why would Srila Prabhupada say 'but by my order,' if the order was already given? This would not make sense. Why would he also condemn his godbrothers for posing as acharyas, and teach that one must first receive specific authorisation from the predecessor acharya before initiating, if anyone could do it [or the order was already there]? Enough said.

The Final Order: Moving on to the actual 'final order,' the one issued to over 100 GBCs and temple presidents, given on July 9, we see Srila Prabhupada did exactly what he said he was going to do [on May 28.] He selected ritviks to act 'henceforward,' initiating on his behalf. There is not even a whisper about diksha gurus in this final order. The letter does not say, 'this system should end on my departure' or 'this is a temporary measure due to sickness' or 'once I depart please find a copy of my letter to Tusta Krishna for further instructions.' We can only assume therefore that it was meant to carry on. As we saw, Srila Prabhupada consistently taught that his physical presence was immaterial. Thus his physical departure can have absolutely no relevance to the July 9 Order. In fact the very way in which the ritvik system operated required absolutely no physical involvement from Srila Prabhupada, so then why should even his departure affect it in any way? [Why do you say] Srila Prabhupada wanted the system to stop at his departure? [...] Srila Prabhupada [sent] over 100 letters to the entire movement on a subject the GBC body had not asked him about, and which was only to have relevance for four months, namely initiations during his physical presence? [Really?] And at the same time the most important issue, the one which Satsvarupa and the GBC had specifically asked him about, the process of initiation for after his departure, he remained utterly silent on? No written instructions and no signed letter to that effect? The absurdity of this proposition beggars belief.

The next [flawed] defence is, he did not need to write a letter about how to continue initiation once he had left, since he had already explained in explicit detail so many times what was to be done. But this assertion raises further absurdities. If Srila Prabhupada's teachings for an entire decade on how to run the parampara in his absence were as crystal clear as you say, so clear he did not even need to issue a specific directive on the matter, why did the GBC send a special delegation to his bedside on May 28, 1977? A delegation whose sole purpose it was to find out what was to be done about initiations once Srila Prabhupada left... [...] You insinuate the way to carry on a parampara was already obvious, so why did the GBC have to ask Srila Prabhupada at all? If it was all so clear to you and everyone else precisely how Srila Prabhupada wanted things to run after he left, why is it that you had to completely dismantle the zonal acarya system ten years on? [And admit this had been an gross mistake?] The only examples you can offer of Srila Prabhupada ever mentioning his disciples initiating are extracted from letters to ambitious deviant devotees like Tusta Krishna. Humble devotees, who simply went diligently about their service, never received letters describing their glowing future as initiator gurus. For the unhealthily ambitious (Hansadutta included), Srila Prabhupada would sometimes dangle the guru carrot, perhaps in order to keep them in devotional service a little longer. The obvious point is: You cannot modify the July 9 Order on the basis of documents, which the recipients of the order had no access to. That would be a form of cheating. The letters you quote from were not published for many years after Srila Prabhupada departed, and can therefore have no direct bearing on the issue. They could act as supporting evidence if you had a clear-signed directive to the whole society from Srila Prabhupada indicating the M.A.S.S. But you don't have such a letter. Honestly, your thesis does not hold up too well, does it? Time to look at things differently.

Srila Prabhupada is unique. There has never been a world acharya before. No previous acharya has ever stated that his books would be the law books for 10,000 years. There has never been anything like ISKCON before. Srila Prabhupada set his own precedent. THERE IS NO 'REGULAR VANILLA.' Thus we are left with a unique acharya ordering his disciples to operate a ritvik system 'henceforward.' Why did they stop?

TWO: LINGUISTIC ARGUMENTS: You do not believe the ritvik system should have continued past Srila Prabhupada's disappearance because it does not say in the letter the words, 'this system will continue after my departure.' We have a few points for you to consider: (a) The July 9th letter also does not state that the ritvik system 'should end on Srila Prabhupada's departure,' yet you adamantly insist that it should, why? (b) The letter also does not state that the ritvik system 'should run while Srila Prabhupada is still present,' and yet you insist that it was correct to run it while he was present, why? (c) The letter also does not state that the ritvik system should run 'until Srila Prabhupada's departure' and yet you insist that it should only have run until his departure, why? (d) The letter also does not state that the ritvik system should ever stop, and yet you insist that it should stop, why? In summary, you insist: (a) The ritvik system must stop. & b) It must stop on Srila Prabhupada's departure. Neither a) nor b) appears in the July 9th letter. They are purely your own invention inspired by the 'regular vanilla parampara system,' [...] with no basis in reality. Your argument is that since the letter is not specific about the time period in which it is to operate, it must therefore stop at departure. This is completely illogical, might we say a classic argumentative blunder. The letter also does not say the ritvik system should be followed after Aug. or Sept. 1977 [...] The letter does not specify that the system should be followed on July 9th either, so according to your logic it should not have been followed at all. Even accepting that 'henceforward' can at least stretch to the end of the first day of the order being issued, it does not say it should be followed on the 10th of July, so perhaps it should have stopped then? ...yet you happily go along with the ritvik system until Nov. 14, 1977. Unless we take the word 'henceforward' literally to mean 'indefinitely' we could stop the system at any time after July 9, so why choose Nov. 14?

There is no example either in Srila Prabhupada's 86 recorded uses of the word 'henceforward', nor in the entire history of the English language where the word 'henceforward' has ever meant: 'Every time period until the departure of the person who issued an order.' Yet you insist that this is what the word must have meant when it was used in the July 9 letter. Your insistence that this is so seems only to be based on a false conception of how a parampara operates. This misconception, together with your conspicuous bias towards the M.A.S.S. (which itself has no clear instructional basis), is thus causing you to twist and distort a straightforward request from your spiritual master. Not a healthy situation. Even your Juhu beach example is not relevant since the activity of walking on the beach is interrupted, not necessarily by death, but by any external circumstance which might render the walking impossible. For example flying off to another country. If something is impossible, then obviously there is no question of doing it. The only thing your example validates is that one must continue carrying out an instruction until it becomes impossible to perform any longer. Srila Prabhupada's departure was not the type of external circumstance which would render the ritvik system inoperable, or impossible, since the system was set up specifically to operate without any physical involvement from him whatsoever. Perhaps in 9,500 years time, after the last ritvik priest has been barbecued, perhaps external circumstances will have rendered the instruction inoperable. Until that fateful day we really do feel the system should be left to run 'henceforward.' Regarding the literal problem with the word 'henceforward,' you claim only the original 11 appointed ritviks are authorised to initiate on Srila Prabhupada's behalf, and hence we cannot take 'henceforward' literally because they will all die some day. But please consider this:

From the 3.12.80 Topanga Canyon "confessions": Tamal: Srila Prabhupada, is this all or do you want to add more? SP: As necessary, others may be added." /Certainly if some or all of the ritviks died or seriously deviated that could be deemed a 'necessary' circumstance for more ritviks to be 'added.' Do you doubt Tamal's testimony? The July 9th letter defines ritvik as: 'representative of the acharya'. It is perfectly within the remit of the GBC to select or decommission anyone who represents Srila Prabhupada, be they sannyasis, temple president or GBC. At present they see themselves as capable of approving diksha gurus, who are supposedly direct representatives of the Supreme Lord Himself. It should therefore be well within their capacity to select a few name-giving priests to act on Srila Prabhupada's behalf? The July 9th letter shows Srila Prabhupada's intention was to run a ritvik system 'henceforward.' Srila Prabhupada made the GBC the ultimate managing authority in order that they could maintain and regulate all the systems he put in place. The ritvik system was his system for managing initiations. It is the job of the GBC to maintain the system, adding or subtracting people as they do in all other systems over which they were authorised to preside. Srila Prabhupada letters on July 9, 11 and 21 indicate the list could be added to with the use of the phrases 'thus far,' 'so far,' 'initial list' etc. So a mechanism for adding more ritviks was put in place, though not yet exercised. [...] Even if you reject all the above, including Tamal's admission, you must accept Srila Prabhupada intended the system to run for at least the next 50 years or so after 1977. At the least, the system must last until all the original ritviks are deviated or dead. Certainly you present no grounds that the order was meant to end on Nov. 14, 1977.

Taken together with the Final Will, it is quite clear Srila Prabhupada's intention was for the system to run indefinitely, with the GBC simply managing the whole thing. Did Srila Prabhupada want the GBC to manage the society 'henceforward'? Do you object every time the GBC selects a new member? Do you warn them that if any of them ever die they can never be replaced? Anyone speaking like that at the Mayapur meetings would be quickly escorted from the property by men in white coats. If you could find within yourself the generosity to apply your 'residential quarter on the Ganges' principle to this letter, we are convinced you would very quickly see what Srila Prabhupada's intention was. Your argument that the remaining ritvik appointees think p.s. ritvik is 'bunk' is completely irrelevant. Obviously it does not logically follow that just because a disciple refuses to obey the guru's order, the order is then invalid. All such refusal highlights is the quality of the disciple. You have been a little hard on our 'soft-ritvik' counterparts. It is always theoretically possible that Krishna could intervene in some way to allow Srila Prabhupada to countermand the July 9 Order, as is hinted in the following: Reporter: You are now the leader, the Spiritual Master. Who will take your place? SP: That Krishna will dictate, who will take my place. (SPConv 7.14.76) And on another occasion: SP: Only Lord Chaitanya can take my place. He will take care of my movement. (SPConv 2.11.77) Whether a miraculous intervention will ever occur to modify the final July 9 Order is speculative. As 'hard' ritviks we are doubtful. The safest thing is if we try to follow the orders Srila Prabhupada did give, not worry about ones what may come in the future, or worse still, invent our own. The parampara is maintained by Lord Krishna Himself, so we need no more worry about its upkeep than we would about the orbits of the planets. Both are equally beyond our control.

(An example of Srila Prabhupada using "henceforward" elsewhere: "Simply you have to change the consciolusness, that "Henceforward I shall act only as directed by Krishna." That's all. You are liberated. It is one minute..." (SPConv Jan. 4, 1977) Is surrender to Krishna only valid for 4 months?

THREE: 'ARGUMENT FROM A LACK OF COUNTER EVIDENCE': The only time we invoke this argument is when someone tells us that ritvik goes against all Vaishnava teachings. When we ask them which specific teachings it violates, they then tell us we are making a 'classic argumentative blunder.' Such is the word-juggling sophistry with which we have to contend. As you say, just because it is not condemned in shastra does not mean Srila Prabhupada wanted it. But as you appear to begrudgingly concede, p.s. ritvik does not violate any shastric principles. This is comfort at least for the growing numbers of devotees who wish to take the July 9 Order 'literally.' To accept Aristotle's ghost certainly violates shastra since he is not an authorised disciplic succession member, much less a current link.

THE FINAL WILL: This has to be the most extraordinary attempt to re-interpret a clear directive we have ever encountered. Let us first quote from your 'Argument from logical necessity' where you point out that just because Srila Prabhupada thought his disciples were not qualified, it did not follow that he must have set up a p.s. ritvik system. 'Instead, if he found his disciples all unfit he could have blessed one or more to quickly attain spiritual perfection. Or he could have declared that henceforward Krishna Himself, or the Bhagavatam itself, or the holy name itself would be the spiritual master. Or he could have simply left everything up to Krishna. The point is that it's not enough to talk about what Srila Prabhupada could have done. We have to see what Srila Prabhupada actually did.' We totally agree with the above. We have to see what Srila Prabhupada actually did, since he could have done one of practically unlimited things, bearing in mind that there is no such thing as 'regular vanilla.' The bedside GBC delegation is proof that nobody knew what Srila Prabhupada was going to do (for future initiations].

We quote you again from your section dealing with the Will and the phrase 'my initiated disciple': "And ultimately one can become not only his (Srila Prabhupada's) disciple in spirit but his 'initiated disciple' through the guru-parampara system." One might ask, if it is possible for anyone to become factually an 'initiated disciple' of Srila Prabhupada, then what are we all arguing about? Quite remarkable! You then go on: "In this sense, by the grace of Srila Prabhupada, one can become not only his disciple, but at the same time the disciple of Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati Thakur, Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakura, the six Gosvamis, and all the other acaryas in Srila Prabhupada's line." So we are left with two options if we are to accept your thesis literally (as unfashionable as it may be to do so): It is acceptable to have more than one initiating spiritual master. In which case you are preaching a form of semi-ritvik, or perhaps more accurately multi-ritvik, with a new initiate becoming a direct disciple of every previous member of the disciplic succession; or It is only permissible to have one initiating spiritual master. In which case Srila Prabhupada is preaching full-blown ritvik: 'my initiated disciple'. CC Adi Lila 1.35 states it is forbidden to have more than one initiating spiritual master. Therefore the only possible conclusion is that Srila Prabhupada was upholding p.s. ritvik in signing the Will. You may now argue that when you said we were all Srila Prabhupada's disciples, along with every previous acharya, what you really meant was siksha not diksha disciples. Unfortunately the word 'initiated' precludes this interpretation. And since Srila Prabhupada only refers to disciples as being 'his', not Srila Bhaktivinoda's, and since multiple diksha is forbidden, we must reject your thesis as another colorful invention.

THE TERM 'INITIATED DISCIPLE' CAN ONLY REFER TO DIKSA. Thus it is quite clear the will supports our understanding of the July 9 letter, not yours. Srila Prabhupada expected to continue acting as a diksa guru long into the future; henceforward in fact. In view of your earlier statement that we must see with an open mind 'what Srila Prabhupada actually did', not what we think he should have done based on our own imperfect speculation, we can only come to one conclusion: THE WILL SUPPORTS P.S. ritvik. Having covered the main issues we will now seal the case with a few more points and some questions. (1) Argument from a need for evidence. Please show a signed letter from Srila Prabhupada to the whole society which: (a) Countermands the final July 9 Order on future initiation (b) Establishes beyond doubt the M.A.S.S., with all its contrivances and machinations. (2) Argument from a need to show precedent. Please provide the following: (a) Clear statements from Srila Prabhupada that before carrying out his instruction we must first check the entire history of Gaudiya Vaishnavism to make sure the identical order was issued, and carried out, at some point in the past. (b) An example from the history of our parampara where a plethora of diksha gurus were subordinate to a [GBC] committee who could approve, suspend and terminate them. (3) Argument from a need for good logic. Logical arguments constructed around a false premise are useless. Which arguments in this paper are logically deficient? (4) Argument from a need for consistency with Srila Prabhupada's teachings. Where is an example of Srila Prabhupada issuing an instruction which could only be properly understood by reading documents which were inaccessible to the persons receiving the instruction? Specific teachings of Srila Prabhupada which a p.s. ritvik system clearly contravenes. One reason you give for rejecting the post-samadhi ritvik system is it is not mentioned in Srila Prabhupada's books. But the pre-samadhi ritvik system is also not in Srila Prabhupada's books, and you have no objection to that. Mention in Srila Prabhupada's books is a red herring argument. There are numerous systems of management put in place by Srila Prabhupada, which continue to this very day, which have absolutely no mention in his books. Another point to consider is that the initiation ceremony itself is not described in Srila Prabhupada's books. Why would you expect the name-giving function of a ritvik, which forms a tiny part of the proceedings, to be specifically mentioned in Srila Prabhupada's books if the main bulk of the ceremony is not described at all? Is that logical?

(5) Argument from Srila Prabhupada's final instruction. Please study your calendar and look up the word 'final.' (6) Argument from how Srila Prabhupada expressed his desires. Nowhere in Srila Prabhupada's books or letters to the whole society does he ever describe the M.A.S.S. The only signed directive to the entire society on the future of initiation is the July 9 Order, which upholds p.s. ritvik. (7) Argument from a need to reject new doctrines. The ritvik system was up and running in 1977, and was put in place personally by Srila Prabhupada to run 'henceforward.' The M.A.S.S was introduced in two phases. The first phase began in March 1978. The second modified version was set up around 1986-7. Srila Prabhupada described neither version./ To reiterate, we are producing a much more thorough presentation on the ritvik issue, which we would be happy to forward to you once it is complete. Please re-consider your position on Srila Prabhupada's final order. You are a sincere follower of Srila Prabhupada, and you believe that p.s. ritvik is a heresy to be stamped out with papal vigor, but please pray for his direction on the matter. If you pray deeply we are sure that he will answer you very swiftly. ISKCON leaders may not listen to us, but they will listen to you.

---

CHAPTER 210: DISCIPLE OF MY DISCIPLE (1997)

"The present paper will show that on May 28th, 1977, Srila Prabhupada ordered his disciples to become initiating spiritual masters." (Disciple of My Disciple, p. 2, Badrinarayana Das, Umapati Swami et al., 1997) This essay was also made into a film and many were influenced by the devious misrepresentations therein. This essay has been fully decimated and exposed for its flaws by Krishnakant of the IRM: https://www.iskconirm.com/docs/webpages/final\_order\_still\_stands.htm

The IRM's Final Order booklet of less than 100 pages clearly establishes what Srila Prabhupada wanted for gurus and initiations after his departure. Every devotee should study it carefully.

Indradumnya Swami (IDS) stated: "The GBC asked Prabhupada that question, 'What about when you leave?' Prabhupada said, 'They will be disciples of my disciples.' Okay? Just remember that one line. Prabhupada said, 'They will be disciples of my disciples.' 'My disciples will be regular gurus,' he said. Now, in order to substantiate their speculation, they twist everything, and turn everything, and take references from other places." This is another lie from IDS. The actual conversation: SATS: Then our next question concerns initiations in the future, particularly at that time when you're no longer with us. We want to know how first and second initiation would be conducted. SP: Yes. I shall recommend some of you. After this is settled up, I shall recommend some of you to act as officiating acaryas. Tamal: Is that called rtvik-acarya? SP: Rtvik, yes. (SPConv May 28, 1977) Note what will happen "when you leave" is not "they will be disciples of my disciples" but "they will be ritvik." IDS twists everything. At the END of this conversation: SP: "When I order you become guru, he becomes regular guru, that's all. He becomes disciple of my disciple." But this order for "regular" or Diksa gurus was never given, and clearly the impending order for ritviks is not the order for Diksa Gurus.

---

CHAPTER 211: PRABHUPADA'S ORDER (1998)

Sometimes the ISKCON gurus try to say that Srila Prabhupada had given the order to be an initiating guru. One example is Indradumnya Swami: "You'll have to become spiritual master. You, all my disciples, everyone should become spiritual master. It is not difficult." (SPlecture Aug. 22, 1973) IDS claims this statement is an order from Srila Prabhupada for him to act as a diksa guru. However, Srila Prabhupada goes on to explain in the same lecture why becoming the spiritual master he refers to "is not difficult": "if you cannot do anything, simply come and offer your obeisances: 'My dear Lord Krsna, I am so poor, so unfortunate, I cannot do all these things, but I offer my humble obeisances unto Your lotus feet.' That much also. If you do this, you become spiritual master." Srila Prabhupada states you do not need to do anything other than to just offer obeisances to Krishna and you become the kind of spiritual master he is speaking of! Therefore, Srila Prabhupada is clearly not speaking of a diksha guru, which requires one to be a topmost maha-bhagavata but speaks of an instructing, or siksha, guru. IDS even realises this, stating: "He said, 'To become a spiritual master is not a difficult thing.' We don't want to contradict his words but, that was his kindness upon us. In reality it's a challenge to become a good devotee." He accepts that to try to claim that Srila Prabhupada here is actually speaking of a diksha guru, which does require one to be very qualified, would effectively be "to contradict his words." Hence, IDS is not able to produce evidence that SP asked him (or anyone else) to become a successor diksa guru. <https://www.iskconirm.com/docs/webpages/btp58-Indradyumna-Swami.html>

CHAPTER 212: TAMAL'S SINISTER REFORM AND RENEWAL

CONSTRUCTIVE THEOLOGIZING FOR REFORM AND RENEWAL

By Thomas Herzig (Tamal Krishna Goswami) & Kenneth Valpey (Krishna Kshetra Das) (Essay published by Cambridge University Press, in Edwin Bryant's: The Hare Krishna Movement: The Postcharismatic Fate of a Religious Transplant, 2004.): Since the demise of its charismatic founder [What about descriptors like pure devotee, pure saint, or enlightened messenger of Godhead? Oh, right, academics only relate to their own mundane terminologies.] in 1977, the International Society for Krishna Consciousness (ISKCON) has faced a growing institutional disaffection among its initiated membership. In outreach, if results are judged quantitatively, a slackening of missionary fervor has failed to attract new recruits to replenish the diminishing ranks of its fulltime members. An official survey conducted in 1998 has found ISKCON's underlying problems to be largely sociological. Rarely is the theology deemed suspect. It is regarded as sacrosanct, as if to tamper with it is to court disaster. [Why not tell of how the teachings WERE tampered with? By renegade gurujackers? Including yourself as leader?] ISKCON's founder, A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada (1896-1977), a disciplic successor to the sixteenth-century ecstatic Shri Chaitanya (1486-1533), emphasized clear literary sources and subcontinental enculturation to validate social change in the contemporary global order—a future he hoped to forge by legitimating a reenvisioned past. [Literary or scriptural? Enculturation or divine varnashrama? Tamal posits that Srila Prabhupada wanted to reestablish a reenvisioned past? Sickening...] But any amalgam of past and present is never entirely homogenous. For a self-consciously traditional movement, fixed on the one hand by the mammoth literary canon of its founder, confronted on the other by the ever-changing conditions of time, place, and circumstance, consequent tensions are a natural outcome. [This assumes that absolute truth must be relativized and accommodated to changing mundane culture and standards... which Tamal surely understood was completely anathemic to Srila Prabhupada's revelations on Vedic science/truth. ]

ISKCON's initial efforts within the counterculture and its reverse missionary endeavors in India and the Hindu diaspora are well documented, as is the postcharismatic turmoil that has beset its ranks. [Tamal is such a rascal, blaming ISKCON's troubles today on Srila Prabhupada's absence – postcharismatic- and not where it belongs, on the disobedience of ISKCON leaders like himself.] To date, however, this large body of social scientific research has at best exposed the strain of ISKCON's premodern appeal against modern realities and postmodern assumptions, stopping short of in-depth theological analysis and problem solving. This paper begins to fill the lacuna by identifying likely locations- flexible postulates and porous boundaries- hospitable to theological construction. The authors, both active leaders within ISKCON and at the same time academics [Tamal is like Jerry Lewis in the movie The Imposter, moving from one phony role to the next, leader, acharya, Srila Prabhupada's trusted servant, and now, academic?] feel a dual obligation, on the one hand to ISKCON, on the other to academe. [If there is a conflict of obligations, trust Tamal to choose that which will benefit him the most. We note, Srila Prabhupada never told any disciples to become mundane academics, something which this essay clearly shows Tamal has done.] Ideally, one finds in one's different affiliations a mutuality of interests and methods; practically, this is not always the case. As a work in progress meant to encourage dialogue within and between these two fields of discourse, the position advanced in this essay is at best exploratory, not advocacy. If ISKCON feels our probing too insistent, or if the academy feels we have held back and not dug deeply enough, we request each to recognize the constraints under which we operate and to appreciate that ours is indeed a delicate tightrope act. [Better to go out and distribute books and open temples, Tamal.]

[We desist from commentary since we surmise the reader will see the deviations clearly.] The term “theology,” despite and perhaps because of its obvious Christian currency, has circulated widely enough now to defy sectarian limits and finds acceptance even amid nontheisms: thus “Buddhist Theology.” It should therefore come as no surprise that ISKCON’s founder Prabhupada, ever willing to adopt “skillful means,” also takes possession of the term to describe his theology. We, too, will theologize, but we will do so employing a long-respected Chaitanya Vaishnava hermeneutic that organizes theological inquiry into pramana (the means to acquire valid knowledge) and a threefold prameya (the object of valid knowledge): sambandha (relationship), abhidheya (process), and prayojana (motive or goal). Prabhupada’s explanatory translation to a defining Chaitanyaite text unpacks the terms’ essential meanings: The Vedic literatures give information about the living entity’s eternal relationship with Krishna, which is called sambandha. The living entity’s understanding of this relationship and his acting accordingly is called abhidheya. Returning home, back to Godhead, is the ultimate goal of life and is called prayojana (CC 2.20.124). The great advantage of this schema is the confidence it has enjoyed from Shri Chaitanya’s earliest theologians to his most recent exponents. The congeniality of a familiar system is obvious, particularly when for most traditions explicit doctrinal originality is regarded not as a virtue but as a deviation. Let us start by discussing pramana.

In contradistinction to the current aversion to an absolute, ahistorical vocabulary of any sort, Gaudiya Vaishnavism insists upon the capacity of valid knowledge (prama) to reveal and circumscribe the true nature of an object as it actually is. For the followers of Chaitanya, shabda (from shabd, to sound) is revelation, not just verbal testimony, and is the only ultimate source of valid knowledge in which epistemological certainty resides. In addition to the Vedas and Upanishads, shabda’s divine status is extended to all of the tradition’s chosen texts. Jiva Gosvamin (1513- 1598), the tradition’s preeminent theologian, lists ten pramanas, which he then collapses into three- pratyaksha (sense perception), anumana (inference), and shabda- before concluding that only the last, shabda, is independently reliable in revealing the absolute. Prabhupada follows Jiva. The Chaitanya Vaishnava tendency to diminish other pramanas like pratyaksha and anumana enables Prabhupada to make remarkably little allowance for modernity. His exegetical method, while clear and theological, above all, is literal. Applying it to texts like the Bhagavata Purana (also known as the Shrimad Bhagavatam), replete with detailed cosmographies and genealogical histories, he considers the intent of the original authors and the meaning for the believing community today to be the same, with the conviction that the plain meaning discernible in the text now is what it was then. For example, Prabhupada reads as accurate the Puranic accounts of creation, without reducing them, either historically or culturally. Whatever there is in his exegesis of theological reflection, ritual performance, or moral obligation is not sufficiently sophisticated to impress those who decry his explications as naïve realism (an unsupportable one-to-one correspondence between depiction and reality)-though whether such a judgment of any well-reasoned perception is fair may be seriously questioned. In ISKCON, literalism often is equated with intellectual chastity. Thus: “The members of ISKCON, who live perpetually at the feet of Shrila Prabhupada, may speculate how Shrila Prabhupada’s statements are true, but they may not challenge his statements, or claim that they are false. This is precisely what it means to accept Shrila Prabhupada as the founder-acharya.” (Hridayananda 1996:viii). The author of this statement is paraphrasing an instruction he himself received from Prabhupada. Indeed, this view is the guiding ethos for VAST (Vaishnava Academic Studies), a moderated ISKCON Internet forum.

If ISKCON wishes to avoid the label of naïve realism, a number of strategies suggest themselves. One is to also acknowledge the strength of pramanas other than shabda in order to make conditional allowances for historically contingent, “relative” knowledge. Prabhupada himself shows that this may be done. While certainly favoring revelation over reason and perception, for audiences unfamiliar with the text tradition he makes ample use of logic and everyday examples. Further, following the lead of nineteenth-century theologian Bhaktivinoda Thakur (1838- 1914), ISKCON can reexamine its traditional texts and reappropriate them in ways consistent with modernity, discerning the symbolic through critical scholarship. As with Bhaktivinoda's experiments, this would provide a new dimension to sambandha, the area to which we next move. Sambandha's connotative sense embraces numerous ontological categories. As well as the godhead's nature, the living being, and the world, sambandha signifies the action of the godhead and its infinite energies as they relate with each other, a subject treated in a manner unique to this school under the axiomatic principle of achintya-bhedabheda (inconceivable simultaneous difference and identity). To Bhaktivinoda, matters of phenomenal knowledge (i.e., Puranic history and cosmology) are particularly amenable to rational analysis, even if transcendence (i.e., Krishna, bhakti, etc.) is not. In his innovative Krishna-samhita, thousands of yuga-cycles of Prajapatis and Manus are compressed to conform to an Indian history of some 6,000 years complete with migrating Aryans, and Mogul and British rule. The same time frame is linked to a progressive intellectual history encompassing all major texts, assigning the Bhagavata, for example, to an anonymous ninth-century Dravidian origin. Krishna and his abode's supremacy are rationally established, his incarnations tied to human evolution, his lila framed within a discussion of the limitations of human language, and his destruction of demons related metaphorically to the removal of corresponding obstacles to devotion.

Whether a clearly nineteenth-century Bengali bhadrakalok hermeneutic responding to historically and culturally specific assumptions is any longer appropriate is not the issue; that a person who is widely credited with inaugurating modern Chaitanya Vaishnavism makes every effort to accommodate modern intellectualism is. More important than the particular hermeneutic is its motive and method. Similar progressive theologizing may be necessary if ISKCON is to embody Shri Chaitanya's mood of magnanimity (audarya). Unlike many of Bhaktivinoda's contemporaries who willingly sacrificed much about Krishna that offended them, revisionism along the lines Bhaktivinoda practiced need not be revolutionary. Moderate theologizing that harnesses "tradition as a modality of change" [...] can express fidelity and continuity with the past while forging connections to the present and future. The status and role of women within ISKCON is an area to which this approach may be applied to great advantage. Normally a topic for the praxis-rich province of abhidheya, its problems may be traced to ontological confusions; hence, its placement under sambandha.

Some of Prabhupada's statements seem blatantly sexist, yet he opened his movement to women. Though offered fatherly affection by Prabhupada, women in the eyes of his male disciples were like Ma ya (the illusory energy)- both encoded female. Like Maya, they were seen as threatening to men's spiritual progress. Initially accorded equality by Prabhupada, women in ISKCON were gradually disenfranchised, tolerated more than welcomed. This had disastrous consequences: their stigmatization affected ISKCON's social fabric to such an extent that at present, despite much conscious effort to right the situation, the society has yet to recover. Kim Knott (1995) has problematized ISKCON's difficulties reconciling traditional models with modern realities, juxtaposing the theoretical gender equality of a soul-based theology in which the feminine divine Radha is the exemplar par excellence with stri dharma (the duty of a woman) understood as three distinct levels of meaning within Prabhupada's teachings- bhagavat dharma (divine duty), "Vedic" varnashram dharma (ancient notion of duty based on orders and stages of life), and "Hindu" varnashram dharma (its modern interpretation). The multivalent weighting of the founder's statements has, and will continue to have, a decisive bearing on ISKCON's history. If ISKCON is to be rid of residual sexism, a theology is needed that interprets his comments in the spirit of bhagavat dharma, taking into account the hard realities of present life, even if in doing so the principles of varnashram dharma are set aside. The unfair sexual bias implied by the Maya narrative needs reworking to reflect the Chaitanya Vaishnava perspective of the feminine gender generic to all souls, including those who are male-embodied. This would certainly be in keeping with the spirit of bhakti in pan-Indian religious history, as Fred Smith points out: "In Sanskrit grammar, bhakti is feminine, just as yoga, dharma, and yajna (sacrifice) are masculine. Not just grammatically, however, but substantially, did the rise of bhakti... redress the imbalance of the masculine and feminine forces in (official) Indian religion.”

Can our agenda be pushed further? A radical discontinuity with Chaitanya Vaishnava theology within the realm of sambandha might mean, for example, blurring the divide that separates personalists from impersonalists. Traditionally, Vaishnavism has defined itself over and against Advaita Vedanta. The Chaitanyaites have framed their entire discussion of sambandha around explicating the nested tripartite model of ultimate reality as brahman, paramatma, and bhagavan. While maintaining that bhagavan alone is the full expression of this highest truth, under the school’s axiomatic principle of achintyabhedabheda (inconceivable difference and identity simultaneously), they can claim, much as Advaita Vedantists do, that reality is nondual and one without equal (advaya-jnana-tattva). Still, only faint praise is given brahmavadins, while mayavadins are censured with the harshest rhetoric. Indeed, Prabhupada defines his mission in terms of their defeat. To be fair, the reverse is equally true: those adhering to the advaita viewpoint often depreciate the Vaishnavas. Impersonalists and Vaishnavas rarely perceive each other as fellow travelers, despite having much in common. For ISKCON, at times this has meant alienating many in its diasporic Indian congregation who feel confused, if not offended, by what they perceive to be sectarian conflict in ISKCON’s condemnation of revered people, past and present, because of impersonal beliefs. Can this rhetoric of exclusivity be toned down to move toward an internal pluralism? In the Gita (4:11), Krishna exemplifies a spirit of responsiveness: “As they surrender unto Me, I reward them accordingly.” It should be possible to adjust the balance that presently favors difference over identity without subverting the unique realization of the jnanin (brahman), the yogin (paramatma), or the bhakta (bhagavan).

Looking outside the Chaitanya Vaishnava tradition, apparently competing, extratraditional views of the godhead may be assessed in proportion to their ability to marshal numerous relational models of the godhead, the living entities, and the world. Images of transcendence from beyond the tradition that resonate with Gaudiya theology could amplify the understanding of Krishna’s multiple roles in Vrindavan as friend, son, and lover, and through his expansions and incarnations, in numerous other relationships, not the least as overseer paramatma of the bound jiva. 17 Both outside and inside, the flexibility of ontological categories needs to be tested further if a theology of accommodation is to replace one of exclusion. Within the tripartite schema of sambandha-abhidheya-prayojana, asymmetrical disjunctions between inherited tradition and actual contingency are most noticeable within the division of abhidheya- process or execution- to which we now turn. Here, bhakti, devotional practice, is the process leading to the ultimate goal of Krishna prema (love of Krishna). Over centuries, bhakti’s discursive formulations have massaged whatever traditional rigidities resisted the flux of contingency. Bhakti receives detailed explication throughout the Chaitanya Vaishnav a canon. Despite its inclusivist character, both its definition and its eulogy emphasize transcendent efficacy and superiority: bhakti as a mode of living is thoroughly different from and independent of karma, jnana, and yoga, those orientations or practices otherwise typically celebrated in pan-“Hindu” texts.

Rupa Gosvamin (1489- 1564) and other systematizers following Shri Chaitanya offer what they believe to be a comprehensive program of practice leading to spiritual perfection. Rupa’s elaboration on bhakti begins with a sixty-fouritem list comprising “rule-governed practice” (vaidhi-sadhana-bhakti) followed by “attraction-governed practice” (raganuga-sadhana-bhakti). These are followed in turn by matters pertaining to our third methodological category, the goal (prayojana)-bhava and prema bhakti. Flowing underneath Rupa Gosvamin’s several categories and subcategories of Krishna bhakti are two orientations, one “vertical,” the other “horizontal” or “lateral.” “Vertical bhakti” (O’Connell, unpublished) refers to all aspects of practice and attitude emphasizing hierarchy, the paradigmatic distinction being that of the godhead Krishna and the bhakta (i.e., the Vaishnava practitioner as subordinated servant of Krishna). “Lateral bhakti” refers to not only the dimension of mutuality that characterizes devotional feelings between one bhakta and another but also that between the godhead and the bhakta, wherein sweetness and proximity supersede majesty and distance. To date, ISKCON’s missionary priorities, arguably, have made greater purchase on the vertical, hierarchical vector. An important constructive strategy would be the recovery of a neglected principle of balance and interdependence between these two modalities. A point of departure is an often-quoted verse fragment from the revered seventeenth-century Vaishnava poet Narottama Das: Sadhu-shastra-guru bakya, hridaye koriya aikya, “making the statements of saintly persons, scripture, and preceptors unified within my heart [ . . . may I attain prema].” Saintly persons, scripture, and preceptors comprise the body of authority we are referring to here as tradition. Emphasizing the vertical principle of authority, ISKCON members often inadvertently distance themselves from Narottama Das’s verse, failing to recognize that the living practitioner, as a recipient of tradition, is the implied “final arbiter” among these three representatives of traditional authority. Indeed, the practitioner is not simply a passive recipient of tradition; rather, through active engagement, she or he participates in and inevitably reinvents tradition. Examining these 3 sources of authority in terms of lateral reciprocity, the role of the practitioner is of crucial importance on the vertical/lateral grid.

Such an exercise might best begin with the last of the aforementioned three authorities, the guru. Chaitanya Vaishnava literature abounds in narratives and explications about guru-disciple relations that emphasize the guru’s authoritative position. Scriptural lessons instruct a disciple to regard him or herself as a veritable fool in the presence of the guru, who is to be seen and worshipped as a direct manifestation of the supreme lord, Krishna. Obviously, such a theology is open to potential abuse, as ISKCON experienced after Prabhupada’s demise. The excesses of the hierarchical model of guruship victimized many of the successor gurus and their followers. Yet a careful study of Chaitanyaite literature also reveals a counternarrative of intimacy and collegial reciprocity that nuances the hierarchical emphasis. Arjuna, for example, reminds readers of the Bhagavad Gita of his intimate relationship to Krishna even as he begs pardon for any indiscretions before Krishna’s Virat-rupa (universal form). In Krishnadas’s Chaitanya Charitamrita, Shri Chaitanya receives instruction from Ramananda Raya, who otherwise serves as Chaitanya’s follower if not disciple.

If, as Chaitanya Vaishnavism claims, the relationship between guru and disciple in some ways replicates that of the bhakta and Krishna, one would expect to see in it a parallel dynamic of reciprocity based on deemphasizing vertical polarity. As suggested earlier, a notable Chaitanyaite strategy is to undercut divine majesty to make way for unrestrained intimacy between the lord and his associates. Similarly, the guru, to further a disciple’s understanding of and participation in Krishna’s intimate pastimes, may subdue his own authority in favor of cooperative reciprocity, thus encouraging the disciple to think and act as a partner in the mutual pursuit of spiritual perfection. An important consequence of this element of partnership in the traditional master-servant model would be a deeper sense of spiritual community. Hierarchy emphasizes exclusionary relationships: identification with one’s guru to the exclusion of collegial relations (with all spiritual aspirants, Vaishnava or otherwise), results in sectarianism. Within the guru-disciple relationship, tempering hierarchy with communality would develop a much-needed mutuality among fellow practitioners in ever-widening circles of participation. Participation is central to the Chaitanya Vaishnava account of bhakti. Karen Prentiss, in her recent book The Embodiment of Bhakti, argues that bhakti is most fully understood to be “a theology of participation in God and the ability to reach God”. Participation suggests reciprocity, the idea of exchange or sharing contained in bhakti’s verbal root- bhaj. What is further implied is a “cybernetic” principle of appropriateness of response- a sensitivity to immediate circumstance- in other words, the pragmatic dimension of bhakti. Openness and flexibility in interpretation permits the revelatory basis of the tradition to remain susceptible to contemporary experience, to coalesce as a crystallized conviction within each practitioner’s heart.

Looking at Narottama Das’s second source of traditional authority- the sadhu- through a Bhagavata Purana definition, we find virtues that deny any specific cultural identity. One who exhibits tolerance, mercy, friendliness to all, and peacefulness and is without enemies is a sadhu (Bhag . 3.25.21). This suggests that people beyond those accepted customarily as sadhus in India deserve to be considered as such. This nonsectarian reckoning obliges Chaitanya Vaishnavas to acknowledge and welcome a wide range of people as genuine spiritual participants from whom wisdom may be gleaned. But what of their spiritual practices? Must these fall within Rupa Goswamin's sixty-four categories to be accepted as bhakti? Perhaps not. Chaitanyaite practices centered on chanting names of God, hearing and recitation of devotional texts, and worship of divine images need to be reexamined in the context of a broader spectrum of practitioners.

To the objections that our proposed reassessment of guru and sadhu will wither before the stipulations of Narottama Das's third source of authority, namely, shastra, our basic claim is that interpreting scripture is a perpetual process of reappraisal by the reader or hearer. Practitioners must admit this openly for tradition to serve a vital, liberating function in their lives. That for the disciple the guru is the central interpreter and that sadhus are secondary interpreters cannot obscure the fact that the "end user," the practitioner, is the final interpreter. As "Protestant" as this may sound, it simply recognizes that although scripture maintains boundary structures to delimit those qualified to interpret, the very nature of print culture and mass distribution democratizes the system.

The hermeneutical circle or interpretative horizon of scripture for modern readers has exploded out into the entire range of presently available texts drawn from an ever-increasing spectrum of religious and secular traditions. Canonical works no longer enjoy the seeming autonomy they once had, nor are they impervious to scrutiny from outside readers. The top-down, "vertical" process of receiving spiritual truth from infallible scripture is now, more than ever before, faced with the pervasive presence of a multiplicity of voices that challenge the privileged position of any one of them. Shri Chaitanya is remembered best perhaps as constantly given to ecstatic states, absorbed in Krishna prema. This, after all, is the prayojana, the motive or goal to which Chaitanya Vaishnavas aspire, and the final division of our study. Much of the Chaitanyaite prescriptive as well as narrative literature conduces to bring about prema, the ripened fruit of bhakti. Liberation is conceived not as the nondual union of Advaita Vedanta but in terms of active seva (cherished service) in relation to the godhead, ideally, an intimate reciprocity between the seva and the sevaka- Krishna and his devotee. While love for Krishna (prema) remains the tradition's normative goal, its achievement is open to question. Since the passing away of ISKCON's founder, its members often appear uncertain, in practice if not in theory, about the basis of attaining Krishna prema and about how to recognize such love once it manifests. The texts abound in theory, and narrative exemplars are plentiful enough. The confusion arises largely from the importance the founder, Prabhupada, gave to his mission and from his stress upon "rule governed practice" (vaidhi-sadhana-bhakti) rather than "attraction-governed practice" (raganuga-sadhana- bhakti). This emphasis, though in apparent contradistinction to previous preceptors, closely parallels that given by his own guru, Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati (1874- 1937). 27

In framing the problem, polarities suggest themselves. Is Krishna Consciousness a state of internal ecstasy or manifest missionary enthusiasm? If the latter, did Prabhupada alter the traditional understanding of prayojana, or did he act in fulfillment of Shri Chaitanya's mission by emphasizing proselytizing more than the practice of raga? Stated in another way, in a tradition that views bhakti as both its means and its end, to what extent are the words "back to godhead" (the title of ISKCON's monthly magazine) world affirming or world denying? Evolving theological constructs that replace this either/or dichotomy with a both/and synthesis would demonstrate that these seemingly competing moods are in fact outward and inward expressions of the same Krishna Consciousness, reflecting the esoteric and exoteric nature of Shri Chaitanya's own appearance.

One might begin by justifying Prabhupada's sacralization of a broad range of missionary endeavors as sankirtana- the celebratory glorification of the lord. Beyond the public chanting of the Hare Krishna mantra popularized by Shri Chaitanya, Prabhupada exploited diverse resources to publicize Krishna's glories, at the same time promising that all such efforts are a powerful, transformative force, purifying the consciousness and enabling one gradually to come face to face with God. One might continue to theologize by suggesting that with the advance of kali yuga, the present age of degradation, a more contemplative mood now appears inadequate and difficult. Few are prepared to renounce the world, and those who are not lack the purity to stay in it. The solution? Sankirtana, taking part in Shri Chaitanya's mission, which compensates for all personal insufficiencies by attracting Krishna's special mercy. Does Krishna not state in the Gita 18:69 that those who preach his message are the most dear to him? While such facile theologizing may be textually and pragmatically legitimized, it easily can spawn (and has spawned) disquieting modalities: e.g., "mission as warfare," and the no less savory, "mission as business." Devotees transform into soldiers, temples into arsenals, stockpiling caches of time bombs (cases of books), zealously deployed at airports amid unsuspecting souls- the result: "Hare Krishna Explosion!" Similar mercantile metaphors can easily be derived. Its leadership scandalized, its population decimated, and a whole generation of Krishna kids feeling forlorn as parents trooped off to fight battle after battle, ISKCON needs much fixing.

If within the realm of prayojana, mission is to retain the premier status Prabhupada assigned it, "compassion" will have to replace "warfare" as the appropriate modality as the members of both ISKCON and those of mainstream society increasingly integrate. Prabhupada writes: "One who is interested in his own salvation is not as advanced in Krishna consciousness as one who feels compassion for others and who therefore propagates the Krishna consciousness movement. Such an advanced devotee will never fall down for Krishna will give him special protection." Brahmins are especially dear to Krishna. Will he not be pleased if ISKCON members exchange their past aggressive militancy and mercantile acquisitiveness for brahmanic compassion? For this to happen, proselytization will need to be balanced with more contemplative practices. Rupa Gosvamin emphasizes five items that are most potent: residence in Mathura-Vrindavan, divine image worship, recitation and hearing of the Bhagavata, chanting of the holy names, and service to exalted Vaishnavas. With the turn inward, attraction (raga) more than rules (vidhi) gradually will govern personal development. These changes are taking place already. Seminars offered to devotees during the past decade have largely centered upon missionizing ethics, personal lifestyle, and individual realization, indicating an unquestionable shift from quantitative to qualitative evaluation. Conferences on women, on youth, and on family are signs of social maturation, as the refreshingly honest and open ISKCON Communications Journal, now in its tenth year of publication, forecasts an increasingly healthy intellectual muscularity. And another sign of change: the transition from monastic ashram life to private households that has characterized ISKCON demographics since the founder's demise has not necessarily been a move away from contemplative life. Instead, sacred space is increasingly defined in terms of the individual/familial rather than the communal/collective. Unable to worship daily at the temple due to work, and consequently with less institutional pressures, individuals are free to pursue their own perfection, which they now do most often in the context of family life. A profusion of newly published titles- many of them translations into English from the standard Chaitanya Vaishnava corpus- now support the cultivation of raganuga-sadhana-bhakti. Devotional biographies of recently deceased ISKCON Vaishnavas hint at their attainment of Krishna prema. All these developments indicate the dichotomous questions noted earlier are being resolved naturally- even while a theology that endorses the solutions is yet to be articulated officially.

This essay, an attempt to suggest the directions such theologizing might take, lays the groundwork by organizing inquiry along the divisions of sambandha, abhidheya, and prayojana. Their usefulness here leads us to recommend them as investigative categories for other forms of Hinduism and beyond. The authors have explored as a possibility an open-ended, gender-equal, less culturally specific, and less hierarchical theological model that attempts to engage diverse theological communities and to serve as a comparative frame for other Hinduisms while retaining a Vaishnava bhakti outlook. In doing so, we have taken for granted a plurality of religious perspectives as a healthy, commonplace fact of life. ISKCON members clearly are obliged to recognize and interact with a field of ideas and worldviews much broader than premodern Chaitanya Vaishnavas ever encountered. If they continue to equate literalism with intellectual chastity, if they hesitate to contextualize and properly interpret the words of their founder, there will be little room for acknowledging and welcoming this multiplicity of voices in the pursuit of a wider spiritual community. We believe that the principle of balancing what we referred to as "lateral" and "vertical" coordinates can and must be extended beyond present devotional relationships if ISKCON members are to recognize their responsibility to themselves and to the tradition they hope to represent. (END)

(We decided to give so much space ("rope") to Tamal so he could hang himself.)

COMMENTS: With reference to specific areas which he thinks reform and renewal could be applied, Tamal mentions "the status and role of women within ISKCON," "blurring the divide that separates personalists from impersonalists," and "within the guru-disciple relationship, tempering hierarchy with communality." To those who hold fundamental and complete faith in Srila Prabhupada and his teachings, these ideas of change are most disturbing. Tamal and his kind are intent on further destroying the Mission in the name of "progress." Tamal concludes his essay with this academically shrouded proposal for modernizing Srila Prabhupada's teachings and ISKCON's programs, lest there is failure in "acknowledging and welcoming this multiplicity of voices in the pursuit of a wider spiritual community." Such arrogance, audacity, and illusion. The closer one looks, one can almost see how Tamal would justify Srila Prabhupada's poisoning as necessary for the betterment of the movement. In a June 7, 2009 article by Mukunda das (Sun):

"The authors have explored as a possibility an open-ended, gender-equal, less culturally specific, and less hierarchical theological model that attempts to engage diverse theological communities and to serve as a comparative frame for other Hinduisms while retaining a Vaishnava bhakti outlook. In doing so, we have taken for granted a plurality of religious perspectives as a healthy, commonplace fact of life. ISKCON members clearly are obliged to recognize and interact with a field of ideas and worldviews much broader than premodern Chaitanya Vaishnavas ever encountered. If they continue to equate literalism with intellectual chastity, if they hesitate to contextualize and properly interpret the words of their founder, there will be little room for acknowledging and welcoming this multiplicity of voices in the pursuit of a wider spiritual community. We believe that the principle of balancing what we referred to as "lateral" and "vertical" coordinates can and must be extended beyond present devotional relationships if ISKCON members are to recognize their responsibility to themselves and to the tradition they hope to represent. [...] this piece of literary dribble is nothing short of the most offensive material ever to be produced by an alleged ISKCON devotee. Every line in this material I found to be most offensive and depreciative to our Srila Prabhupada, even though they hide behind pseudo-academic word jugglery. To Tamal KG and Krishna Ksetra, Srila Prabhupada was the cause of all the problems in ISKCON... They claim that Srila Prabhupada was a "charismatic" personality that used a top-down (vertical) authoritarian approach that did not allow any room for questioning or intelligent independent thought. They blame this attitude of his for the cause of all the problems in ISKCON. They cite Srila Prabhupada for forcing us to become blind followers and to accept his instruction without question. Maybe HG Krishna Ksetra Prabhu forgets just how heavy and authoritarian Tamal KG was and how he never listened to anyone except himself. How he alienated his godbrothers and the women of ISKCON? We certainly have not forgotten. ...just how far these two are/were willing to go to try and ruin this movement and deprecate its Founder-Acharya, Srila Prabhupada. It is especially incumbent on the disciples of Tamal KG to not be the blind followers that he speaks of, and to read this document and decide for themselves with an open and rational academically critical mind, exactly what these two are saying. It is interesting to note the authors use the term 'demise' which means - the time when something ends... for it is certainly the end of Srila Prabhupada's time if we believe these guys."

July 5, 2009, Gopinath das posted his essay titled Religious Integration of ISKCON by Academia: "In the above mentioned essay, Krishna Ksetra and Tamal KG are proposing the solution to solve ISKCON's 'academically identified sectarianism,' by presenting the conclusion that we should see and accept the Mayavada doctrine, as another valid form of realization of God -- equating it with five primary rasas we can have with Krishna - and insinuating that this is a 'mature and advanced understanding' of a person who is on the Raganuga sadhana platform. Certainly, as an aspiring Vaishnava we offer respect to every living entity, including the imperonalists and atheists, etc. Whilst in their association we do follow the formal social code of gentleman (naimittika-dharma). However we are careful not to intimately mix/associate with them and under no circumstances do we take association from such individuals. Raganuga sadhana bhakti does not connote the idea that you stop discriminating (it's all love). The cheap 'spontaneous' devotional service that is proposed by the writers is classified as cheating and termed Sahajiyism. It appears that if we want to be seen as advanced souls by them and other authorities within academia, we need to accept this academically proposed 'advanced' religious pluralism, or in other words, Spiritual Integration in a form of the academically contrived consortium called "Interfaith." "It is important to understand the role ISKCON Communications Journal (ICJ) is having in the implementation of this academically contrived religious pluralism into ISKCON. If you visit their official web site, the reader can access numerous articles (dating back to the early nineties) advocating the necessity for ISKCON to embrace this religious pluralism in order to ensure its acceptance and survival in the world. Tamal KG and Krishna Ksetra are acknowledging the crucial role ICJ is playing in the religious integration of ISKCON. In their essay, [they] write: "[ICJ], now in tenth year of publication, forecasts an increasingly healthy intellectual muscularity." The intellectual muscularity they are referring to is evident when you do a search on the new SP folio. All the pluralistic articles (and many others) are available; this proves the success they are having in imbedding the idea of religious pluralism into ISKCON and its leadership as a necessity.

"One small aspect of this proposed Religious Pluralistic Integration of ISKCON by Tamal KG and Krishna Ksetra das in the essay is Hinduization. The writers suggested in their paper that we need to 'tone down' Srila Prabhupada's teachings in order to appease Hindu Diaspora sensibilities. We see that this 'toning down' is already taking place. Especially in England, where the writers wrote this essay. Over the past couple of years we read numerous articles on the Sun written by stalwart Mahavidya das, where he is expressing his concerns regarding the systematic Hinduization of ISKCON. He provided ample amounts of documented evidence exposing the Management of Bhaktivedanta Manor and the Soho temple, while asking them to provide an explanation for these pluralistic integrations, which are completely against Srila Prabhupada's teachings. To this day he has not received appropriate answers, besides getting BANNED... May I suggest to Mahavidya that instead of asking local myopic managers (arms of the body) for the explanation, (there is a good chance that they don't know the real answers), he should refer these questions at the Oxford academia who are the head or brain of the body, as they are the ones advising and guiding ISKCON with this brilliant idea of Religious Pluralism. Start with Krishna Kshetra, since Tamal KG is not around anymore. In their essay, [they] are advocating that a judgment on the above academically proposed pluralistic solution can only be made with your own sense perception, (pratyaksa), whereas the uneducated ISKCON members and Gaudiya Vaishnava preceptors minimized this form of obtaining knowledge, as they considered it inaccurate due to the 'alleged' four defects of the living entity. After acquiring an academic degree, you become properly trained and accepted in academia's circle. This academic circle believes that they are of such high intellect that they are above the four defects of the living entity, and it is only through their guidance, which comes from their gigantic collective knowledge base, that we can properly comprehend the Vedas and the previous Acharyas (this includes 'simplistic' teachings of Srila Prabhupada) and see the fundamental flaws which exist, and therefore make the necessary changes to make their purport have rational and relevant meaning according to time, place, and circumstance within the modern context. Tamal Krishna Goswami confirms the need for such rational/relevant reinterpretation in his writings on Hare Krishna at Southern Methodist University: 'But when the guru departs, sadhu and shastra can take on a new import, as those who succeed him become the new interpreters of past precedents, scriptural law and the new set of circumstances.' [...] I acknowledge there may be academic devotees who are teaching/preaching pure Krishna Consciousness to the academia, as per Srila Prabhupada's instructions, but unfortunately we never hear about their preaching activities. For the Institution believes that only the devotees with big positions and titles are the real preachers and the real representative of ISKCON.”

It appears to many Tamal was sent by the asuras to destroy Srila Prabhupada’s Mission. Thankfully Lord Krishna put an end to his nefarious and all-too-potent efforts by arranging his meeting with a mango tree at a high rate of speed. See also Ch. 126: Academia where Tamal’s book on bhaktiyoga is reviewed (it being full of the same academic trash.)

CHAPTER 213: “REGULAR GURUS” (2004)

In perhaps their 42nd iteration of their guru-initiations policy, the GBC in 2004 issued a resolution and statement to buttress their deviated, concocted system with yet another official edict and proclamation. (GBC RESOLUTION 409, 2004) CONTINUING THE DISCIPLIC SUCCESSION:

WHEREAS: The paper "On My Order-Understood" contains assumptions and assertions that, in numerous places, do not match the available evidence from the statements of Srila Prabhupada, And the GBC desires to make a more concise statement, RESOLVED: "On My Order-Understood" is replaced as official GBC policy by the following statement. The GBC officially accepts the following conclusions about continuing the disciplic succession: Srila Prabhupada consistently said that his disciples would themselves become spiritual masters. Guru, sadhu, and sastra all support this standard way of continuing the disciplic succession. Srila Prabhupada said that his disciples would become "regular gurus" and that each of their disciples would thus be a "disciple of my disciple." On the strength of our Vaisnava tradition and the statements of Srila Prabhupada, the GBC concludes that Srila Prabhupada intended his disciples to become "regular gurus" after he physically departed. As a matter of utmost ecclesiastical responsibility, ISKCON's ultimate managing authority, the GBC, regulates who within ISKCON may perform the service of initiating disciples. When the GBC allows a devotee to take up the service of initiating, it does not thereby endorse him as an uttama adhikāri or "pure devotee" or certify his having achieved any specific state of realization. Rather, the GBC indicates that it has no objection to his initiating disciples within ISKCON. Each prospective disciple, before initiation, should become familiar with the qualifications mentioned in Srila Prabhupada's books as those that a spiritual master ought to have and decide for himself which senior devotee, if any, to approach for initiation. Within this context, the choice of whom to select as one's spiritual master is ultimately the prospective disciple's own responsibility. [COMMENTS: Do not blame anyone but yourself for adhering to the GBC's "ISKCON laws."]

Then in 2004, in the same breath, the GBC issued more modifications and “patches” to their broken and speculative guru-initiations system by adjusting their guru vote approval technicalities.

RESOLUTION 413 Amendment To Iskcon Law Of Guru Nomination Voting Requirement:

WHEREAS: The current ISKCON Law provides that a ten-person committee, by a simple majority, may nominate a candidate for serving as a guru, A simple majority allows a thin margin of support, When the GBC Secretary sends the GBC members the name of a candidate, he does not send the full report of how the members of the nominating committee voted and their reasons, RESOLVED: Section 6.4.1.1 shall be amended to read as follows: A candidate for guru in ISKCON must first receive a three-fourths majority vote of approval in a council composed of all the GBC zonal secretaries of his current preaching area and at least ten other senior devotees residing in his area of activity. The council will be organized and convened by the GBC zonal secretary(s). Section 6.4.1.1.2 shall be amended to read as follows: The council shall evaluate the candidate according to the qualifications for guru given by Srila Prabhupada in his oral and written teachings and by the GBC Body in its standards and guidelines. Each member of the Area Council shall fill out the Guru Qualifications Checklist and return it to be compiled by the Area Council chairman. [see Guru Qualifications checklist.]

Section 6.4.1.3.2 shall be amended to read as follows: After verifying that the candidate has been properly endorsed, the GBC Corresponding Secretary shall send the candidate's name with the full letter of endorsement and the compilation of responses by the local nominating committee to all members of the GBC.

CHAPTER 214: ISKCON RE-INITIATIONS (1989 & 2012)

The GBC issued a paper titled “GURU ASHRAYA” in 1989 wherein they instituted and justified an institutional policy whereby the disciples of “fallen gurus” who had “become demons” should be “re-initiated” by one of the remaining ISKCON “authorized” gurus, lest their connection to the disciplic succession be lost. After about 2000 to 2005, reinitiations lost considerable momentum in ISKCON and the more typical ideology nowadays is that devotees who have lost their guru to maya should simply take shelter of ISKCON, senior devotees, and Srila Prabhupada. However, ISKCON’s GBC has never really explained how the connection to the disciplic succession works in regards fallen gurus, ISKCON gurus, or even Srila Prabhupada himself. ISKCON has become a church with an evolving culture of meaningless, contradictory rituals that no one understands. For example, how does a bonafide guru who can deliver disciples ever possibly become a demon? In 2012, the re-initiation issue arose again with new complications due to the speculative, concocted GBC guru policies.

From Shastric Advisory Council (Sac): Re: Sukadeva Swami Becoming An Iskcon Guru:

Jan. 26, 2012: In 2005 the GBC Exec Comm’s Lilasuka das asked the SAC for assistance in the GBC’s consideration of the request that Sukadeva Maharaja be allowed to initiate disciples. (He received all of his initiations from Kirtanananda Svami, an excommunicated and disgraced ISKCON guru, sannyasi, and pedophile): “On request of the GBC Executive Committee, I am presenting you the following issue: HH Sukadeva Swami has approached the South Indian Divisional Council for approval as an ISKCON initiating guru. He is originally from Andhra Pradesh, joined in Bombay in the late 70’s or early 80’s, and took initiation as well as sannyasa from Kirtanananda. He was in charge of Kirtanananda’s center at Kurukshetra in the late 80’s or early 90’s. He was welcomed back in ISKCON around the same time as the Chowpatty devotees, but he did not take re-initiation subsequently. He still preaches in Kurukshetra in cooperation with the ISKCON temple there and is also preaching in some previously undeveloped areas of Andhra Pradesh. The South Indian Divisional Council and RGB [wants to know] whether there would be any future technical objection that he could not submit a letter from his diksha-guru directing him to go through the authorization process. Jayapataka Swami approached the GBC Body for clarification on this point. I am assisting him in this regard.

*“First, for your reference, here is the entire current ISKCON law section on eligibility to be a guru, updated to include the change made in 2002: 6.3 Eligibility of Devotee to Be Guru in ISKCON

6.3.1 All Devotee’s Initiations From ISKCON Gurus (1) No devotee shall be eligible to become a diksha-guru in ISKCON unless he has received all of his initiations from ISKCON-approved gurus in good standing. (2) A devotee initiated by a bona fide Gaudiya Vaishnava guru before joining ISKCON may be considered as a special case by the GBC body. 6.3.2 No One Can Give Diksha While Guru is Present: As taught by Srila Prabhupada, the etiquette of not initiating in the presence of one’s diksha-guru will be upheld in ISKCON. However, Srila Prabhupada and historical precedents also teach us that disciples may sometimes initiate in the physical presence of their diksha-gurus. If a diksha guru desires for this to happen, he can direct his disciple to go through the normal GBC procedure for initiating. 6.3.3 Requirement for Consent of Mantra Guru: Devotees who have received first initiation from Srila Prabhupada and second initiation from one of Srila Prabhupada’s disciples may, with the written consent of the mantra-guru, be accepted as candidates for initiating spiritual master like any of Srila Prabhupada’s other disciples.

“Can SAC discuss this and inform the GBC how they see a solution through sastric references?”

SAC'S REPLY: [...] Upon careful study, we believe that the following ISKCON law needs to be revised: 6.3.1—(see above.) This law appears to be in conflict with the GBC paper on re-initiation. That paper gives the circumstances in which it is necessary for a devotee to retake mantras. That law, based on Sastric evidence, says that one should retake mantras if the guru is not a Vaishnava or has become something other than a Vaishnava (e.g. a Mayavadi) or if he becomes inimical to Vaishnavas. The basic definition of a Vaishnava is given in Hari-bhakti-vilasa and its commentary (1.55) verse as follows: “After having taken Vaishnava initiation, a person should involve himself seriously in worship of Lord Visnu. Such a person is designated a Vaishnava by those who are learned, while a person who is different than this is called a non-Vaishnava.” The term ‘non-Vaishnava’ has been spoken. ‘Non-Vaishnava’ is herein defined by first listing the general characteristics of a Vaishnava and then stating that a non-Vaishnava is someone who is different from that.”

Thus far, our definition of a Vaishnava is one who has taken Vaishnava initiation and is seriously worshipping the Lord. Therefore, a devotee who has these basic symptoms is a Vaishnava even though he may be having difficulty in his spiritual life. The GBC paper also addresses the question of a fallen Vaishnava guru. The indications from Shastra are that a disciple should not reject a guru or his mantras who remains a Vaishnava although fallen. The Sastric recommendation is that the disciple should see if the guru can be reformed somehow. In Sri Krishna-bhajanamrta (verse 59-61) it is stated: “If the spiritual master commits a wrongful act breaking Vaishnava relative principles then one should, in a solitary place, confront him for his rectification using logic and appropriate conclusions from sadhu, Shastra and guru references, but one is not to give him up. One should not be hesitant or fearful because one is confronting or challenging a spiritual master. For it has been prescribed that one must appropriately discipline even a spiritual master who is (1) bewildered about what he should or shouldn't do (2) who is inexperienced or ignorant (3) who has deviated from the Krishna conscious path or (4) who is bewildered by false pride. This statement of the revealed scriptures is applicable at all times and under all circumstances.” However, according to Jiva Gosvami and Bhaktivinoda Thakura, a guru is also considered a “non-Vaishnava” if he refuses to be reformed and (1) becomes a Mayavadi or (2) becomes envious of Vaishnavas or (3) preaches against the truth or (4) acts immorally and sinfully such as running after women for illicit sex or (5) is bereft of devotion to Sri Krishna. In these cases one should also retake one's mantras from a Vaishnava who displays Vaishnava qualities. These statements are in context with the Narada Pancaratra verse that orders one to retake one's mantra (avaishnavopadistena). In Bhakti-sandarbha (anuccheda 238) it is stated: “It is for one's ultimate good to also serve other Vaishnavas, by the order of one's divine spiritual master and not in conflict with one's service to him. By acting otherwise one will accrue fault, as is stated by Sri Narada: ‘If one in the presence of one's guru worships someone else first, he will obtain an evil destination and his worship will bear no fruit.’ ”

“It may happen, however, that one has failed to take shelter initially of a guru who fits the description of words such as ‘fully absorbed in the sound form and the personal form of the Supreme (Bhagavatam 11.3.21) and has not received permission to show proper respect, etc. to great devotees from his guru due to the guru's envy and so on. Such a prohibition (from the guru) is fundamentally against the order of revealed scripture and should be disregarded. Indeed, to follow that order would endanger both the disciple and the guru. With this and other considerations in mind it has been said in Sri Narada Pancaratra, ‘One who speaks unjustly and one who hears unjustly both go to a fearful hell for an immeasurable duration of time.’ ”

“Therefore such a guru should be worshiped only at a distance, and if he is inimical to Vaishnavas he must simply be rejected, according to the statement of smrti, ‘It is enjoined that a corrupted spiritual master who cannot distinguish what should be done and what should not be done, who has gone astray from the right path, must be abandoned.’ (Mahabharata, Udyoga-parva 178.24) After all, he is not a Vaishnava because he is devoid of the mood of Vaishnavas, and he is described in such words as the verse beginning avaishnavopadistena (Narada Pancaratra). In the absence of the kind of divine spiritual master defined previously, the best thing to do for one's ultimate benefit is to regularly serve an advanced devotee (maha-bhagavata). A devotee should be selected who is sympathetic as Sri-guru should be and whose heart is inclined to showing one mercy. Or, in the view of Sri Hari-bhakti-sudhodaya, 'Whatever a person associates with, he will acquire its qualities just as a gem reflects ambient light. Thus one who is intelligent should for the prosperity of his community take shelter of those who belong to his own flock.' One more point is that unless a guru shows mercy the disciple's heart will not form attachment to him." And in Jaiva-dharma, Srila Bhaktivinoda Thakura has written, Vijaya, "The scriptures forbid giving up the diksha-guru. However, if he is incapable of imparting proper knowledge of devotion and of Vaishnava etiquette, how can he be in a position to teach?" Raghunatha dasa Babaji, "Before a person accepts formal initiation from a guru, he must test the guru as to whether he is well-versed in the Vedas and in the science of the Supreme Absolute Truth. Only such a bona fide guru is indeed able to instruct his disciple in all matters. It is true that the diksha-guru should not be rejected, but there are two bona fide reasons to give him up. "First, if for some reason or another at the time of initiation the disciple did not recognize the devotional caliber of the guru and later found out that the guru was neither conversant with the conclusions of Shastra, nor a Vaishnava, so that he, the disciple, could not make any spiritual progress, then the disciple should reject the unqualified guru. Many scriptural sources support this course of action. Eg, the Narada-pancaratra (cited in Hari-bhakti-vilasa 1.62): "Any person posing as an acharya, but speaking unauthorized philosophy contrary to the teachings of the shastra and any one who claims to be his disciple and hears such, thereby lending credibility to such nonsense, both are bound for Hell.'

"The Mahabharata, Udyoga-parva, 179.25, re: story of Amba: "A person who is wallowing in carnal pleasures and material comforts, confused about the human goal of life and devoid of bhakti, and who poses as a guru, such a depraved charlatan must be rejected.' "Another quote from the Hari-bhakti-vilasa, 4.144: "If one receives mantra-diksha from a non-Vaishnava who runs after women and is bereft of devotion to Sri Krishna, one is certainly doomed to Hell. Therefore, one must immediately act according to scriptural injunctions and take re-initiation from a real, properly qualified, Vaishnava guru.' The second reason is that if a guru who was a Vaishnava and knowledgeable in Krishna consciousness at the time of initiation becomes a Mayavadi and a Vaishnava-hater as a result of bad association or otherwise, or he behaves immorally and sinfully, then the disciple must give him up. However, if the guru is neither inimical to Vaishnavas, nor a Mayavadi, nor addicted to sinful activities, but however lacks knowledge of the scriptures, then his meager scriptural understanding should not be a cause for rejection. In this case, the disciple may approach his guru with due deference to procure his permission to receive spiritual knowledge and instructions from an advanced, pure Vaishnava, and thus engage in serving and learning from the knowledgeable Vaishnava."

Under these sastric understandings, it is possible for an ISKCON guru not to be in good-standing and still be considered a Vaishnava. And therefore his disciple would not have to retake the mantras he received from him. In other words, the guru could be still a member of ISKCON—and still a Vaishnava—but not in good-standing because of a temporary fall-down or difficulty. An example of this could be that of a fallen guru who is under a program of rectification by the GBC and only temporarily suspended from giving initiations. Therefore, under the GBC's 1989 re-initiation paper and its sastric support, the disciples of such a guru should not reject their guru or retake the mantras they received from him. Thus the law that states that a guru must have all his mantras from a guru in good-standing in ISKCON appears to be in conflict with the re-initiation paper and related sastric injunctions. This contradiction could be resolved if the guru-authorization law were rewritten in the following way: "In order to be a ISKCON guru, a devotee should have all of his mantras from a guru who is an ISKCON member and has maintained at least minimal Vaishnava qualifications and can thus still be considered a Vaishnava according to the relevant definitions given by guru, sadhu and shastra." This would bring the two laws into harmony. Under this new law, it would be possible for a prospective guru to have his mantras from a living Vaishnava guru who is not in good-standing in ISKCON. E.g., a fallen guru who accepted a program of rectification and temporary suspension of the right to give initiation may still considered a Vaishnava. We have given some relevant sastric evidence for what constitutes being considered a Vaishnava. If there are doubts if a guru is a Vaishnava in any particular case, the GBC should decide. But that decision should be taken after the disciple has first formed his own opinion. We believe that in the first instance it is the disciple who should make this judgment. If the close associates of the devotee or his local authorities believe he has made a wrong decision, they should try to educate and reason with him in an informal matter. A wrong decision occurs if one prematurely decides to retake mantras from another guru when one's existing diksha-guru remains a Vaishnava despite a temporary fall-down. A wrong decision also occurs by not retaking mantras in a timely fashion from another guru when one's existing diksha-guru has become a non-Vaishnava.

How does this apply to the current case? Kirtanananda Svami has been expelled from ISKCON, but the GBC law provides an exception for devotees who have received mantras from Vaishnava gurus outside ISKCON. So the real question here is the status of KS as a Vaishnava. The GBC should decide if he has become a non-Vaishnava according to the definitions given above. Perhaps the EC should show Sukadeva M. the relevant ISKCON laws and re-initiation paper, then ask him how he sees his position in relation to the specific matter of retaking mantras. As we have seen, the evidence from guru, sadhu, and shastra tells us that mantras should be retaken (1) if the guru was not an initiated Vaishnava when he gave the mantras, or (2) if the guru has since become a non-Vaishnava by becoming a Mayavadi or atheist after giving the mantras, or (3) if the guru has become a non-Vaishnava by becoming addicted to sense gratification or worse, (4) an offender or hater of Vaishnavas. Having considered this, Sukadeva M. should express his opinion about whether or not he should retake the mantras he received from KS. If he feels that KS is still a Vaishnava according to the relevant considerations, this will explain why he has not retaken the mantras he received from him. In this case, the GBC would have to decide whether or not to accept his opinion. If the GBC does accept this, then Sukadeva Maharaja would require permission from KS in order to start initiating disciples of his own. The normal system is that a disciple should not initiate in the presence of his living diksha-guru. That is considered an offense unless the diksha-guru gives the disciple the order or permission to do it. If Sukadeva M. considers KS to be a non-Vaishnava according to the relevant definitions given above, then he is obligated to retake the mantras he received from him. Consequently, to start initiating his own disciples, he would require the order or permission of the new diksha-guru. Signed by SAC members: Drutakarma, Gopiparanadhana, Purnacandra, Urmila COMMENT: Just see how complicated their minds have become by disobeying Srila Prabhupada's final order. They have to find justifications.

---

CHAPTER 215: FALSE SIDDHANTA

The ISKCON Reform Movement's website (www.iskconirm.org) is excellent and chock-full of discussion and analysis on all aspects of the "guru issue," including very thorough and convincing replies/rebuttals to all opposing arguments of the "post samadhi" ritvik representative system. There are 100s of pages of replies to gurus, sannyasis, SAC, GBC, guru hoax supporters, and Gaudiya Matha participants. Rupa Vilas, Satyaraja, Urmila, Pradyumna, Narasingha Swami, Jadurani, Bir Krishna Swami, Drutakaram, and all the rest of them... in-depth analyses. It will take days to peruse these materials, but well worth the time. Clear, concise answers to all confusions.

E.g., in IRM's BTP #61 Vol 1, 2019 re: ISKCON's Disciples Course we see their indoctrinating new devotees with apasiddhantic nonsense. Attracted to ISKCON by the "bait" of Srila Prabhupada, newcomers are persuaded to "switch" to one of the GBC's own replacement gurus. This is done via a mandatory "ISKCON Disciples Course" which all recruits are expected to attend in order to "prepare" for initiation. The course has a "Students Handbook" to: "use as a reference throughout your devotional career." The statements from this handbook below shows how recruits are conned into rejecting Srila Prabhupada for the GBC's own voted-in gurus. Quotes from the handbook will be presented in shaded boxes. The handbook first correctly presents many quotes from Srila Prabhupada which establish the need to accept a bona fide guru. It then needs to eliminate Srila Prabhupada as being such an acceptable bona fide guru, leaving the field clear for the GBC gurus. " The term "Posthumous Ritvik Theory" is used to both emphasise that Srila Prabhupada is "dead" (posthumous), implying one cannot accept him. The handbook section titled "Arguments Refuting the Posthumous Ritvik Theory" presents 8 arguments against this "Posthumous Ritvik Theory." Every one of these arguments has zero relevance to Srila Prabhupada remaining as ISKCON's diksha guru.

(1) Param guru fallacy: "There is no example or no sastric evidence that one may take diksha from one's param-guru in any of the bona-fide Vaishnava sampradayas. Virabhadra Gosvami, the son of Lord Nityananda Prabhu, in a letter to Srinivasa Acarya ostracized one Jaya-gopal from Vaishnava society for claiming himself as a disciple of his Param-guru." But "one's param guru" refers to the guru of one's own guru, or "grandfather" guru. This is correct and no one, as far as we are aware, is arguing this. The IRM states that one should accept Srila Prabhupada as their diksha guru, not their param-guru. Srila Prabhupada is simply assumed to be the param-guru without any evidence demonstrating why, how and when he stopped being ISKCON's current-link diksha guru, which he has been since 1966. By starting with Srila Prabhupada supposedly being the param-guru, the disciple's course commits the logical fallacy of assuming that which needs to be proven – as the claim that Srila Prabhupada stopped acting as ISKCON's current diksha guru is the very claim that the handbook is supposed to be demonstrating. (2) Fabricated arguments: "The argument that there are no qualified diksha-gurus amongst Prabhupada's disciples indicates that Prabhupada's teachings have not proven effective. So what would be the use of becoming Prabhupada's diksha disciple through the ritvik priest anyway? Ritvik theory implies that only exceptionally empowered acaryas can become guru which is not supported in shastra nor Vaishnava tradition. Ritvik theory implies that acaryas can act contrary to sastra." The IRM is not stating that there are definitely no qualified diksha gurus. It is stating the fact that Srila Prabhupada did not give up acting as ISKCON's diksha guru, thus making such qualified diksha gurus unnecessary anyway. Nor is the IRM stating that only certain "empowered acaryas" can ever become guru. We are stating the fact, as confirmed by the GBC (unwittingly, in their Srila Prabhupada: The Founder-Acarya of ISKCON booklet), that one such empowered acarya, Srila Prabhupada, is the Founder and Acarya of ISKCON, and therefore remains its diksha guru. Nor are we stating that acharyas can or do act contrary to shastra. For shastra does not forbid an acharya from continuing to remain as the acharya, and therefore, diksha guru, of the institution he founded.

(3) Attack on Srila Prabhupada: "Ritvik theory functions by undermining the natural development of faith in living Vaishnavas, which is an essential aspect of bhakti. A ritvik guru gives advice however he does not formally accept the responsibility of delivering the disciple as a bona-fide diksha-guru does." But it is a fabrication that Srila Prabhupada taught "development of faith in living Vaishnavas" is an "essential aspect of bhakti." And if being Srila Prabhupada's disciple ("ritvik theory") undermines bhakti, then Srila Prabhupada is being attacked as having undermined bhakti for initiating many disciples who never had physical contact with him – the same position as those becoming his disciples today. Yes, a bona fide diksha guru (Srila Prabhupada), not the ritvik, delivers the disciple. Conclusion: As we see above, devotees are being conned with a list of nonsensical and fabricated arguments that have no relevance to whether or not they can actually accept Srila Prabhupada as their diksha guru. Speaking about false gurus, Srila Prabhupada said: "You can cheat, but it will not be effective". (SPConv Apr. 22, 1977) This also applies to arguments attempting to support false gurus. Devotees are being indoctrinated by ISKCON, fed only lies, and this GBC program will soon collapse.

SRILA PRABHUPADA WOULD NOT CONTRAVENE VAISHNAVA TRADITIONS

Often we hear that the post-samadhi ritvik representative system for initiations is unprecedented in and untraditional to Vaishnava culture and history, so Srila Prabhupada would never have done that! However, this system appears to have been in use in the Madhva and Ramanuja sampradayas since the departures of their great acharyas up to a thousand years ago, and just two quotes below dispense with that theory. (1) "Devotees of the Supreme Lord are not controlled by the scriptures since their activities are congenial to Divine Wisdom. When self-realized devotees ordain any new arrangement, this should be accepted as religious code, even if such new arrangements are not found in the scriptural dictums of the previous sages." (Sri Tattva-Sutra by Bhaktivinoda Thakura) (2)"He said, 'Bhaktivinoda Thakura is Kamala Manjari, a personal associate of Radharani. He ordered me to establish daiva-varnasrama. I must obey his order. The acharya is not under the shastra. The acharya can make shastra. Bhaktivinoda Thakura, the acharya, has inspired me in various ways. By his mercy and that of Gaura Kisora das Babaji Maharaja and the previous acharyas we are going on, not caring for the precise technicalities of smartas." (Sri Bhaktisiddhanta Vaibhava, Bhakti Vikas Swami)

IS SRILA PRABHUPADA'S OFFICIATING ACHARYA SYSTEM SHASTRICALLY SUPPORTED?

For those who claim that the officiating acharya system is not in line with shastra: (1) SP: There are sampradayas: Brahma-sampradaya, Kaumara-sampradaya... Anyone who is bona fide acharya, he can create his own disciplic succession, but one disciplic succession and the other disciplic—they are not different. They are of the same conclusion. The Vaishnava acharyas, just like our Ramanujacharya, Madhvacharya, and Nimbarka, and who that? Rudra-sampradaya? Vishnu Svami. They are all of the same movement. Aradhyo-bhagavan vrajesah, krsnas tu bhagavan svayam [SBhg 1.3.28]. That is their conclusion. There is no different conclusion. Although they have got varieties of methods—suddhadvaita, dvaitadvaita, vasistadvaita, like that—they present the same philosophy in clear way. And Chaitanya Mahaprabhu presented the same philosophy, that acintya-bhedabheda. That is acharya. Acharya gives some way for simple understanding. The same conclusion, but according to the time, circumstances, they give a very easy method to understand. That is acharya. Acharya is following strictly the previous acharya, but according to the circumstances, he may make little changes. That is... That change is not change from the original idea. No. (SPlecture Feb. 19, 1976)

(2) "But sometimes for preaching work, he might have to do something which is not consistent. But if he is criticized, then that man who criticizes, he becomes... Of course, he must be acharya, not a bogus. Ordinary man cannot transgress the laws, but Krishna and His representative, acharya, might be sometimes seen that he has transgressed. Therefore Krishna says, acaryam mam vijaniyan [SB 11.17.27] Vaishnavera kriya, mudra vijneha na bujhaya. In the Chaitanya-caritamrita, Vaishnava acharya, his activities is not understood even by the wisest man." (SPConv Mar. 10, 1972)

(3) "So they very much appreciated, and actually it is so. Vaishnava who is preaching, it may be in a different way, according to time and place and the party—they have to change something, desa-kala-patra— but we have to see the essence. Wherever there is God consciousness, wherever is there understanding... Just like we sometime consult dictionary, a small dictionary, pocket dictionary, and a big international dictionary. Both of them are dictionaries. But according to time, desa-kala-patra, for small child, that small dictionary is sufficient." (SPlecture Oct. 8, 1974)

COMMENTS: Srila Prabhupada was the acharya who brought the message of Godhead all over the Kali Yuga world, and his duty is to spread a bona fide religious system. Even though uncommon and non-traditional, Srila Prabhupada's establishment of the officiating acharya initiation system for the future of ISKCON in his physical absence could not be unbona fide because the acharya only introduces bona fide religious systems. Some disciples will disobey his instructions and others will try their best to "relieve the situation." The disciples must stick to the guru's orders even when it is unpalatable or difficult, giving up all personal ambitions, such as the desire to be a guru himself.

FORMALITIES OF INITIATION AND OTHER THOUGHTS (by Damaghosh das, 2017)

Q: What is the procedure of the movement? Do you initiate yourself all the disciples or do your other disciples also do that? SP: Well, initiation or no initiation, first thing is knowledge. [...] Initiation is formality. Just like you go to a school for knowledge, and admission is formality. That is not very important thing. (SPInterview Oct. 16, 1976) Note: KNOWLEDGE is the pressing need. One can do without admission in a school but he has to have knowledge. Srila Prabhupada wanted everyone to get admission in the "school" i.e. get initiated with a spiritual name, then progress to 2nd initiation Brahman stage. Srila Prabhupada wanted to encourage his novice followers, as the formalities are a great boost, psychologically, emotionally, socially: whatever it took to encourage his disciples, Srila Prabhupada very kindly did that. Formality is essential but it does not mean that you will not make progress if the conditions do not allow for formal initiation. Whereas KNOWLEDGE is essential. Srila Prabhupada met Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati in 1922 but took initiation 11 years later in 1933. Schools and institutions are important although you can study at home and have knowledge. "When guru speaks, you cannot argue. That is not the process. You should accept a guru who is infallible. Otherwise it is useless." (SP Lecture Oct. 3, 1976) "Sarva-sastre kaya, lava-matra sadhu-sange sarva-siddhi haya. For me, personally, I had the opportunity to talk with my spiritual master not more than ten times in my whole life, not more. It may be less than that. But I tried to follow his instruction, that's all, although I was a grhastha." (SP Conv Feb. 3, 1975)

So how was Srila Prabhupada getting instructions (DAILY) from his guru? Over a span of many years, from 1920 to 1935, or 15 years he was with him less than 10 times when he got some instructions, the main ones we know of were: "If you get money print books," and "Preach to the English speaking people of the world, it will do good to you and them." And there were a few more. So how was Srila Prabhupada getting daily instruction, guidance, inspiration, etc from a guru he only met less than once a year? Could you even run a mundane family/business/temple on one instruction a year? No, it takes thousands. And the instructions Prabhupada told us he got were mainly only the above two? Hardly much information for starting a world wide organization one would think? Where did all the extreme details about Krishna Consciousness come from that you will find in Srila Prabhupada's books?? Did he just pull these out of the air? Concoct them? And what about getting guidance AFTER Bhaktisiddhanta left his body? This is when he wrote his books. Srila Prabhupada's books and purports are his "devotional ecstasies" and they came from Lord Krishna through the mercy of his guru- whom he only met less than once a year. The idea of needing a "living guru" is rubbish. What is "living" is not the physical body but the spiritual instructions coming from beyond the body.

Devotee: We can understand all of your instructions simply by reading your books. SP: Yes. Anyway, follow the instruction. That is required. [...] Wherever you remain, it doesn't matter. [...] Follow the instruction. Then you are secure anywhere. It doesn't matter. Just like I told you that I saw my Guru Maharaja not more than ten days in my life, but I followed his instruction. I was a grhastha, I never lived with the Matha, in the temple. It is practical. So many Godbrothers recommended that "He should be in charge in this Bombay temple, this, that, that..." Guru Maharaja said, "Yes, better he lives outside. That is good, and he will do what is needed in due course of time." [...] He said like that. I could not understand at that time what does he expect. Of course, I knew that he wanted me to preach." (SP Conv Feb. 3, 1975)

Srila Prabhupada was not living with his guru or in any Gaudiya matha temple, in his own grhastha ashram. So physicality has nothing to do with spiritual life. It is following the orders of the guru which are the life force or active principle. "However, the disciple and spiritual master are never separated because the spiritual master always keeps company with the disciple as long as the disciple follows strictly the instructions of the spiritual master. This is called the association of vani (words). physical presence is called vapuh. As long as the spiritual master is physically present, the disciple should serve the physical body of the spiritual master, and when the spiritual master is no longer physically existing, the disciple should serve the instructions of the spiritual master." (SBhag 4.28.47) This is the basic ritvik system in a nutshell. The ritvik system goes way beyond initiations. Srila Prabhupada expected his disciples to hear what he said, practice it in their own lives, and then teach it to all others. This is how the movement went on while Prabhupada was physically here with us. The leaders, meeting with Srila Prabhupada or getting a letter from him, would pass down the orders of Srila Prabhupada, and all the local rank and file devotees would follow those instructions. And the movement grew in leaps and bounds because the orders were being carried out. Prabhupada was not physically present simultaneously in all of his 108 temples. But he was present simultaneously by his murti, his orders, his instructions and his books. Prabhupada appointed his leaders to preach in various places throughout the world. They attracted followers who became devotees, and these new devotees preached to others and the system continued in this way until he left the planet. Many of them never physically met Srila Prabhupada, and yet they all were making spiritual advancement, following the orders of the bona fide guru, therefore they all were situated in spiritual life- without Prabhupada even stepping a foot into their temples. These simple non corporal concepts of spiritual life, it seems, are way beyond the minds of ISKCON's misleaders today.

(1) Q: Are you training a successor? SP: Yes, my Guru Maharaja is there. Where is my photo of Guru Maharaja? I think... Here is." (SPConv July 16, 1975) (2) Q: ...to choose a successor. SP: It is already successful. Genuine thing is always success. [...] Q: One thing he's saying [...] is your successor named or your successor will... SP: My success is always there. Yes. Just like the sun is there always. It may come before your vision or not. The sun is there. But if you are fortunate, you come before the sun. Otherwise you remain in darkness. Sun is open to everyone. Our Krishna consciousness movement- Krishna is open to everyone. But if you are fortunate, you come to the light. If you are unfortunate, do not. That is your choice. (SPConv Feb. 12, 1975)

These two conversations are interesting; why Srila Prabhupada explained his "successor" as the "Sun" or for who is his successor, his guru maharaja is always there. In both cases, he never said he would name anyone, as successor. He said "we are creating these devotees who will handle." Handling an organization is totally different than being its "LEADER," whom he said "we have no such thing as here is next leader" So Srila Prabhupada is pointing the questioners to the eternal param para (the Sun) of eternally liberated acharyas as the "successors to the Hare Krishna movement." These Acharyas will keep the message of Bhagavad gita intact, because they, just like the Sun is always visible- "IF you are fortunate." (END)

INITIATING GURU CAN BE A CONDITIONED SOUL PROVIDED HE IS PROPERLY SITUATED?

(1) "According to the deliberate opinion of all revealed scriptures, the spiritual master is non-different from Krishna. Lord Krishna in the form of the spiritual master delivers His devotees." (CC Adi 1.45) (2) "Unless we are pure devotees or liberated souls, we should not make disciples. Instead, we should first become disciples ourselves by taking shelter of a bona fide spiritual master." (Amrita Vani, Bhaktisiddhanta Sarasvati) /Based on these quotes it is evident that a conditioned soul cannot be guru. Srila Prabhupada says that a bound person can't free or liberate another bound person.

HE LIVES FOREVER BY HIS DIVINE INSTRUCTION AND THE DISCIPLE LIVES WITH HIM

(1) Q: ...is that spiritual master still guiding after death? SP: Yes, yes. Just like Krishna is guiding us, similarly spiritual master will guide us. (SPLecture Sept. 23, 1969) (2) Q: Srila Prabhupada when you're not present with us, how is it possible to receive instructions? For example, in questions that may arise... SP: Well the questions are answe... answers are there in my books. (SPConv May 13, 1973) (3) So utilize whatever time you find to make a thorough study of my books. Then all your questions will be answered. (SPL Upendra Jan. 7, 1976) (4) "Every one of you must regularly read our books at least twice, in the morning and evening, and automatically all questions will be answered." (SPL Ranadhira Jan. 24, 1970) (5) "If I depart there is no cause for lamentation. I will always be with you through my books and orders. I will always remain with you in that way." (BTG 13:1-2, 1978) (6) "In my books the philosophy of Krishna Consciousness is explained fully so if there is anything which you do not understand, then you simply have to read again and again. By reading daily the knowledge will be revealed to you and by this process your spiritual life will develop." (SPL Bahurupa Nov. 22, 1974)

Note: This clearly indicates that Srila Prabhupada's books are understood through their own potency- there is no need for a physically present guru to understand the books. Our SBhag is unique because the verses are complemented with Srila Prabhupada's purports, and the book Bhagavata and the person Bhagavata are combined. There is no need for a third party to misinterpret siddhanta.

(1) “[...] the condition of my health is very deteriorating. So I preferred to come to Vrndavana. If death takes place, let it take here. So there is nothing to be said new. Whatever I have to speak, I have spoken in my books. Now you try to understand it and continue your endeavor. Whether I am present or not present, it doesn’t matter. (SP Lecture May 17, 1977) (2) “Please always try to remember me by my teachings and we shall always be together. Just like I have written in the first publications of Srimad-Bhagavatam, ‘The spiritual master lives forever by his divine instruction and the disciple lives with him,’ because I have always served my Guru Maharaja and followed his teachings I am now even never separated from Him. Sometimes Maya may come and try to interfere but we must not falter, we must always follow the chalked out path layed down by the great acharyas and in the end you will see. (SPL Cidananda Nov. 25, 1973) (3) “I shall remain your personal guidance, physically present or not physically, as I am getting personal guidance from my guru maharaja” (SPConv July 14, 1977) (4) Q: What will happen to the movement in the United States when you die? SP: I will never die. [...] I shall live from my books, and you will utilize. (SPConv July 16, 1975)

TRYING TO MAKE HIM A CHRIST-LIKE PERSONALITY (from IRM.org)

ISKCON apologist Satyaraja das stated on BBC: "...their reform is not really a reform as such, but it's a sort of deification of the movement's Founder Prabhupada, trying to make him a Christ-like personality, saying that he is the only Guru; which is clearly not the philosophy of ISKCON or its tradition. In the ISKCON tradition, and it's an ancient, ancient tradition, the Guru is always there with the disciple. If he passes away at a certain time, then the leading followers of that Guru then become gurus themselves, if they're so qualified."

IRM response: Here we see clearly expressed the sheer enviousness towards Srila Prabhupada's position as the only Guru in ISKCON. Although the scriptures clearly state that the bona-fide Guru should be worshipped exactly like God, who does not “die” either. Although Satyaraja holds Prabhupada in contempt for receiving worship on the same level as Lord Jesus Christ, his peer and friend Tamal Krishna Goswami: "I had no doubt that Srila Prabhupada was equal to Lord Jesus in every way." (Servant of the Servant, 1984, p. 25) And another of his peers, Bhakti Caru Swami, stated: "Therefore, when people ask "what do you mean by Srila Prabhupada's having the position of Founder-Acharya," my reply is: "What Jesus is to Christianity and what Muhammed is to Islam, Srila Prabhupada should be that to ISKCON" (Questions and Answers, June 11, 2000) Yet, Bhakti Caru Swami also stated in contradiction: "Christianity does not accept the system of a present guru. They think Jesus is the only one and no one is coming to give initiation, or no one is coming as acharya" (Sept. 1995) So ISKCON is completely confused as to even the basic understanding of Srila Prabhupada's position!

As far as “the Guru is always there with the disciple,” Srila Prabhupada says this is so even if the Guru is physically absent: "I shall remain your personal guidance, physically present or not physically, as I am getting guidance from my Guru Maharaja." (SPConv July 14, 1977) Satyaraja also selectively quotes from Srila Prabhupada's teachings but conveniently omits mentioning that Srila Prabhupada had specifically instructed time and time again that one must be also AUTHORISED to become a Guru: "One should take initiation from a bona fide spiritual master coming in the disciplic succession, who is authorised by his predecessor spiritual master. This is called diksha-vidhana." (SBhag 4.8.54 purport) After several decades, the GBC has not come up with ANY specific authorization from Prabhupada that terminates the ritvik system and appoints Guru successors. And as to whether Srila Prabhupada is the Guru of ISKCON, and that ALL the members of ISKCON are his initiated disciples, to put the record straight: SP: Yes, I am the Spiritual Master of this institution, and ALL the members of the Society, they're supposed to be MY disciples. They follow the rules and regulations which I ask them to follow, and they are initiated by me spiritually..." (SPInterview Mar. 12, 1968) Here Srila Prabhupada clearly claims all members of the institution as his disciples - not only those who are connected with his physical presence. Thus Srila Prabhupada's position as Guru is linked to the existence of the ISKCON institution, and not the existence of SP's physical body. (END)

WHERE IS THE ORDER?

In his “Diary of a Traveling Preacher” (V 6, Ch 9) Indradyumna Swami wrote: “On the morning of my Vyasa-puja celebration, I checked through the list of my over 2,000 disciples. Although all of them certainly knew me, I could not possibly remember each and every one. “It’s a heavy service, isn’t it?” I thought. “But it’s the order of my own guru Maharaja. Have you forgotten that taking disciples is a service to your spiritual master? Are you going to refuse his order now? ‘Along with his instructions comes the ability to execute them.’ remember?” Govinda Prema das wrote to IDS: Is it possible to know when and where Srila Prabhupada gave you the order to become an initiating spiritual master?” IDS replied: “I didn't receive a personal instruction from Srila Prabhupada as regards initiating disciples. Like others who are accepting disciples, I understood that is his desire from reading his books and hearing his lecture tapes. In his absence, those things are our guiding light.” Further email exchanges show IDS grossly misunderstood Srila Prabhupada’s instructions on guru tattva and initiations in ISKCON, and he quickly refused to discuss them and stated he has no time.

Q: Do you initiate? SP: Yes. I initiate also... My spiritual master has authorized me to do this... I am just to serve the order of my spiritual master. That's all. (SPConv July 18, 1966)
But IDS admits he got no order.

CHAPTER 216: SIKSHA AND DIKSHA

The definition of diksha, initiating guru, initiation, and related concepts have been discussed at length previous chapters. Describing the initiation of Devaki by Vasudeva as the appearance of Lord Krishna in the heart: “Thereafter, accompanied by plenary expansions, the fully opulent Supreme Personality of Godhead, who is all-auspicious for the entire universe, was transferred from the mind of Vasudeva to the mind of Devaki. Devaki, having thus been initiated by Vasudeva, became beautiful by carrying Lord Krishna, the original consciousness for everyone, the cause of all causes, within the core of her heart, just as the east becomes beautiful by carrying the rising moon.” (SBhag 10.2.18)

Shastra establishes that the three types of Gurus (Chaitya, diksha, siksha) are non-different. A diksha guru is not necessarily higher than a siksha guru, who can actually be more advanced. For example, the diksha guru of Shyamananda Pandit (Hridaya Chaitanya Goswami) sent him for training to the Six Goswamis of Vrndaban, as they were the most advanced devotees. Also, Narottama das Thakura, Srinivas Acharya and Shyamananda Pandit, they all had different diksha gurus, but had common siksha gurus and lived together as Godbrothers. As per shastra there can be only one diksha guru but many siksha gurus. So to control and retain monopoly over their disciples, ISKCON diksha gurus devised a philosophy of the diksha guru’s dominant status and the need for a “physically present diksha guru.” This ensured their place as the primary person in the lives of their disciples, although backlash from the general body of devotees has allowed Srila Prabhupada to be recognized as the “pre-eminent siksha guru,” but still denying Srila Prabhupada’s clear arrangement to give formal diksha through ritvik representatives as per the July 9 Order.

If devotees become well educated from Srila Prabhupada’s books, they will start questioning ISKCON’s deviations and discrepancies. This is a very big threat especially to the more prominent ISKCON gurus who have tens of thousands of disciples around the globe and for whom it is difficult to maintain control and loyalty. The more a disciple is kept in darkness, it is easier to control the disciple and retain loyalty by imposing tailor-made, deviated doctrines. Studying Srila Prabhupada’s books is very rarely emphasized by these misleaders, and most of ISKCON guru’s disciples hear from their guru rather than from Srila Prabhupada.

Srila Bhaktisiddhanta Saraswati de-emphasized the traditional diksha guru parampara, which had been abused in the past. Instead, he stressed the Bhagavata or siksha-guru parampara. The Bhagavata succession is taken from the Srimad Bhagavatam, wherein Krishna enlightened Lord Brahma, who then spoke absolute truth to Narada Muni, who passed it on to Srila Vyasadeva. His son, Sukadeva Goswami, apparently underwent no diksha formalities but received the essence of Bhagavatam from Vyasa, who recited it in seven days to Pariksit Maharaja, Suta Goswami and others. Srila Bhaktisiddhanta traced the Bhagavata guru parampara from Krishna to Madhvacharya, who while initiated by Achyuta Preksha of the Shankara sampradaya, received the siksha of Vyasadeva. The Gaudiya Vaishnava parampara is therefore traced from Madhva's siksha guru Vyasadeva, rather than from Madhva's established diksha guru. Our lineage is not dependent upon a diksha line — in fact, it runs quite contrary to that concept. Following instructions of the spiritual master and pleasing him is more important than taking diksha from him. We have seen so many disciples of Srila Prabhupada and his guru who took even sanyasa, fall down. This is because they did not follow the siksha of guru. Though George Harrison did not take diksha from Srila Prabhupada, Srila Prabhupada confirmed that he is better than many of his sanyas disciples. Srila Prabhupada confirms this here: "Well initiation or no initiation, first thing is knowledge... knowledge. Initiation is formality. Just like you go to a school for knowledge, and admission is formality. That is not very important thing." (SP Interview Oct. 16, 1976)

"Thakura Bhaktivinoda was not official Spiritual Master of Gaura Kisora dasa Babaji Maharaja. Gaura Kisora dasa Babaji Maharaja was already renounced order, Paramahansa, but Thakura Bhaktivinoda, while He was even playing the part of a householder, was treated by Gaura Kisora dasa Babaji Maharaja as Preceptor, on account of His highly elevated spiritual understanding, and thus He was always treating Him as His Spiritual Master. The Spiritual Master is divided into two parts; namely, siksha guru and diksha guru. So officially Bhaktivinoda Thakura was like siksha guru of Gaura Kisora das Babaji M." (SPL Dayananda May 1,-1969)

(1) Haridasa Thakur was not initiated. (2) In BGita 4.34 Lord Krishna advises to approach a spiritual master and enquire, that was about siksha guru not about diksha guru. It's about "pari prasna," meaning inquiry, not about diksha. (3) If diksha has power, why have so many initiated disciples, including sannyasis of great acharyas like Srila Prabhupada and Bhaktisiddhanta, fallen down? This result comes from violating their siksha. (4) Bhaktivinoda Thakur was never initiated by Jagannath das Babaji Maharaja. He rejected his diksha guru Bipin Bihari for going against the siksha of the sampradaya by calling Srila Raghunatha Dasa Goswami "a sudra." (5) Prahlada Maharaja was instructed by Narada Muni in womb of his mother by siksha, not by diksha. (6) Apparently Sukadeva Goswami was not initiated by Vyasadeva nor did he initiate Pariksit Maharaja. But still, just by the siksha of Bhagawata-katha, Pariksit achieved perfection. So, is siksha more important, and diksha is just a formality? After all, is not our parampara a siksha parampara, and not a diksha parampara?

FURTHER DISCUSSION

Narasimha das: We should stick to the principle that Srila Prabhupada is both the Siksha guru and Diksha guru for all ISKCON devotees now and in the future. Even if we admit that others may also become siksha-gurus in ISKCON, that position is representative and subservient to Srila Prabhupada's absolute siksha position. Srila Prabhupada indicated that devotees may act informally as representative "siksha gurus" simply by faithfully his instructions. But he never gave any sort of formal position or titles in ISKCON like diksha-guru or siksha-guru. Such discussions of all these transcendental relationships and their distinctions can become overly intelligent in some ways. The idea may arise that it's OK to accept some sort of bogus diksha from a bogus iskuru while quietly accepting instruction mostly from Srila Prabhupada. But by so doing, one also must reject some of Srila Prabhupada's instructions, such as the July 9 Directive. I discussed this briefly in "GBC vs. Prabhupada." (See Ch. 191) Our focus is not specifically aimed at understanding the distinction between shiksa gurus and diksha gurus (which Krishnadas Kaviraja says are equal), but understanding who is the bona fide guru. The real, eternal, sad-guru is the spiritual master of the whole universe. All bona fide acharyas in our line are in the category of sad-guru, or jagat guru, but Srila Prabhupada is the current link who is fully available to provide both a diksha and shiksha connection to the ultimate parampara, our Gaudiya Vaishnava line. This is by Lord Chaitanya's arrangement for his divine grace.

Dhira Govinda das: So, is siksha is more important, and diksha is just a formality? I suppose there are comments from Srila Prabhupada that could support the stance that "diksha" refers to the formal ceremony of initiation. Primarily, though, in Srila Prabhupada's teachings, and in this books, "diksha" is used to indicate just the opposite- divya-jnana- Srila Prabhupada giving transcendental knowledge into the heart of the disciple. "Divya-jnan hrde prokasito." So, to say "diksha is just a formality," can be confusing and misleading.

Narasimha das: We should not minimize the importance of diksha. Srila Prabhupada even quotes a scripture that unless one accepts initiation from a bona fide spiritual master he risks falling down to animal life. Although advanced devotees like Haridas Thakur require no formal initiation, they generally accept it and show the example of accepting Vaishnava formalities. Lord Chaitanya took formal initiation. After returning from Gaya and His initiation by Ishwara Puri, He immediately began showing His pastimes as an ecstatic devotee. So, for a sincere devotee, even the formality is part of the transcendental and purifying process of receiving divya-jnana. Srila Prabhupada set up the procedure for formal initiations in ISKCON. No one should deny this or try to minimize it in the name of giving more stress to a shiksha parampara. This is unnecessary and could be misleading. Srila Prabhupada is offering full diksha and shiksha for all conditioned souls in the universe--at least for the next few thousand years. This fact should always be kept in the forefront. Whatever anyone offers in the way of formalities and instructions in ISKCON should be done on behalf of Srila Prabhupada.

Maheswara das: In ISKCON they stress formality initiation -thus they cunningly avoid the process of Krishna being transferred into one's heart from Srila Prabhupada's heart; when Krishna is transferred then one can see Krishna and his svarupa is revealed. This is the science of Krishna. This is why the process can take many life times, and this gets rid of the notion that others have replaced Srila Prabhupada as the diksha guru.

Dhira Govinda das: It seems that siksha becomes diksha. As siksha matures, it becomes diksha. Siksha, essentially is instructions, like chant at least 16 rounds a day, offer all food to Krishna through the process Srila Prabhupada gave us, memorize slokas from BGita and SBhag, offer obeisances when you enter the temple room- these are siksha, practical instructions. As the aspiring devotee follows the practical instructions, then, gradually, the process of diksha emerges, reveals itself. "Diksha," in that sense, indicates divya-jnana; transcendental, realized, transformational knowledge, vijnana, delivered from the fully empowered spiritual master into the heart of the disciple. Divya-jnan hrde prokasito. Tene brahma hrda ya adi-kavaye. Diksha, essentially, is a process, not an event, though of course the event of the formal initiation ceremony is a transcendental part, though not an essential part, of the process of diksha. So, siksha evolves into diksha. At some point in the process of diksha it may be said that the disciple is "initiated," though precisely defining that point is not especially important. Most vital is that the person/ spirit soul is participating in the process of diksha. I've been reluctant to use terms such as "diksha" and "siksha" until only after they've been clearly defined. George Bernard Shaw: "The single biggest problem in communication is the illusion that it has taken place." E.g., "Who's your diksha guru?" Is it who conducted your ceremony of official initiation, or is it the Vaishnava from whom you most directly and powerfully receive transcendental, realized knowledge/ divya-jnana, or it may be understood variously. With poor communication, we're left with the illusion of communication, the resultant frustrations. "I am the Spiritual Master of this institution, and all the members of the Society, they're supposed to be my disciples. They follow the rules and regulations which I ask them to follow, and they are initiated by me spiritually" (SP 12.3.68)

WILL ISKCON SOON DE-INSTITUTIONALIZE THE APPROVAL OF DIKSHA GURUS?

There is a strong undercurrent in ISKCON to change the existing guru system (again!): to de-institutionalize the approval of diksha gurus altogether. ISKCON's GBC, in this scenario, would no longer certify, approve, discipline, or regulate initiating gurus. This would become strictly a private matter for devotees themselves to decide. Anyone would be free to develop a relationship with others either as an initiating guru or as a disciple. There would be no more back-room canvassing, secret obligations, power plays, waiting lists, institutional embarrassments over “falldowns,” monopolization of guruship, and a power-elite of GBC-gurus. It would be the privatization of diksha gurus, just as it always was in the days before the Gaudiya Vaishnavas institutionalized under Srila Bhaktisiddhanta and Srila Prabhupada. Of course, this idea is very threatening to the GBC-guru elite, who strongly oppose such a proposition. Urmila dasi, blocked from initiating as a female diksha guru for many years (she was theoretically approved) and who as a SAC member had voiced disapproval of the ISKCON guru vote system, wrote (2016): “As it is now, from a sociological perspective, they are what is called Power Elites. I don't think it's so much a matter of man or woman gurus, but it is a question of sharing power. As far as women in particular, I think some of those people are in general threatened by any woman having any position that is not subordinate to them. Many gurus with just a few disciples each instead of a few with many disciples? I believe it would help. Having guru be a personal relationship that is not institutionally certified should greatly reduce people's interest in officiating acharyas, in my opinion. [Your] questions assume a paradigm that diksha gurus are an official post in ISKCON, rather than a personal relationship between two people, both of whom might be ISKCON members. There is no official vetting for siksha gurus in ISKCON, without terrible consequences. As Prabhupada says, the siksha guru generally becomes the diksha guru, so such could happen naturally, if Krishna wants it. There is pressure to stop the voting system, but the GBC are intractable on this point. There are a very few but vocal and influential people [...] paralyzing the GBC. Many leaders and rank and file are on both sides. ISKCON is a complex organization.” A different opinion came from Bhakti Vikas Swami, an ISKCON guru, in late 2016: “The idea of “de-enfranchising” guruship in ISKCON never got up much steam and is practically forgotten. Gaura-kesava das was a main proponent. ISKCON is like an ocean; there are multiple issues within it and multiple perspectives about it. In my subjective view, [ISKCON] is increasingly off track. To discuss even one issue would take much time.”

De-enfranchising the ISKCON initiating gurus is opposed by the GBC-guru elite. How then could ISKCON prohibit taking initiation (transcendental knowledge) directly from Srila Prabhupada? It would then be the individual's choice. Of course, ISKCON could issue “guidelines” whereby philosophical parameters decree Srila Prabhupada as still unavailable, defining loyalty to ISKCON, etc. But ISKCON's defective guru system will continue to speculatively evolve over time, as it has the last four decades, and it will still remain full of contradictions and anomalies (see Ch. 91). The present paradigm is more seriously threatened than most understand by those who promote taking diksha directly from Srila Prabhupada as the living and current link in the sampradaya. A decision by ISKCON to end their crazy method of guru approvals or blessings would open the door to taking Srila Prabhupada directly, and even if others offered to give diksha, and whether they were actually effective at that or not, after a short time only a few would choose someone other than Srila Prabhupada. Like an avalanche that requires but a tiny trigger, Srila Prabhupada would quickly prevail by his astronomical competitive advantage and dominate the “guru marketplace.”

De-enfranchisement of bogus, vote-approved diksha gurus in ISKCON might be the required tipping point for the restoration of the mission. It seems that this is the weak point in the corrupt ISKCON institution- the continuous spreading of the ambition to become guru, which will eventually bring the collapse of the tenuous existing vote system. At that time, it will be very difficult to effectively restrict the Prabhupadanugas from convincing others that Srila Prabhupada is the best choice for diksha guru. Once the dam breaks, the flood waters will quickly reveal who and what is able to float and survive all tests. Strategically, it would be intelligent for Prabhupadanugas to take advantage of these ISKCON undercurrents, and perhaps to encourage the collapse of the existing ISKCON guru system. “Guru list should be abolished, and prospective disciple has to decide who is bonafide guru. This is sole responsibility of disciple and he has to live with the consequences of this decision. All Prabhupada's disciples have right to continue the parampara, provided that they follow Prabhupada perfectly, and parampara should not be administratively managed. Because, as you can see, they are in the process of destroying Prabhupada's parampara." (Hanuman das, Nov. 2017)

EPILOGUE

"If just 10% of devotees understand Srila Prabhupada guru tattva, and how, why, by whom he was poisoned, the Hare Krishna Movement will be reformed and saved." (Editor) "At least expose these rascals. We have no power to kill them, but at least we can expose them. That is also great service." (SPConv 1976)

SIMILARITIES BETWEEN GAUDIYA MATH AND ISKCON HISTORIES

"I am very pleased that you all GBC members are remaining vigilant so that the disturbance in our Society may not continue. In Isana and his wife's letters there is reference to Tirtha Maharaja's name, as if they were advised by Brahmananda Maharaja and company to come to India and join Tirtha Maharaja... It is now clear that my Godbrothers take objection of my being called as Prabhupada and on this point they wanted to poison the whole Society—that is now clear. But how it was manipulated- that is a mystery." (Letter to Rupanuga: 25.09.70)

A modern day reformulation of this letter: "Srila Prabhupada wants his sincere disciples to work for correcting the ISKCON deviations with policies that have been rejected in Srila Prabhupada's books, such as the need for a living guru and vote-approved gurus. It is clear that some of Srila Prabhupada's senior disciples privately objected to the ritvik representative system for the future of ISKCON, and on this point they hijacked the movement after mercilessly and cowardly poisoning Srila Prabhupada. That is now clear. But the mystery of who exactly was involved is not yet known."

IMAGINE A WORLD WHERE ALL THE DEVOTEES...

From Eleven Naked Emperors we read of the "What if?" scenario: "Imagine if the eleven ritvik priests had understood and implemented Prabhupada's final order to continue serving as ritviks after his death. They wouldn't have sat on elevated seats, they wouldn't have demanded worship from their godbrothers, they wouldn't have had to consult with Sridhara Maharaja, they wouldn't have formed the acharya board which dominated for a decade, and they probably would have avoided many of the temptations that caused so many to fall down. Prabhupada would have remained the center of everyone's lives. Of course, new devotees who accepted the ritviks as their siksha gurus might have loved them, and why not? The ritvik acharyas deliver Prabhupada and Kirhsna to the novices. But if a ritvik fell away, the new initiates would have known from the beginning that their actual diksha guru was Srila Prabhupada. Even if some of Prabhupada's disciples achieved the perfection of the uttama-adhikari stage, as submissive disciples they would still have obeyed their spiritual master by following the system he established. There would be no loss if they officiated at initiation ceremonies as ritvik acharyas; new disciples would be connected to Lord Krishna through the disciplic succession. Ritvik representation after the death of the acharya has been done in other Vaishnava lines, and Prabhupada taught that the bona fide acharya can make adjustments to fit the need of the times. 'The acharya knows how to adjust things, at the same time keep pace with the spiritual interest,' he explained. 'That is acharya. It is not that the same thing to be applied everywhere. He is eager to engage actually the people in the real benefit of life, but the means may be different.' The perpetual ritvik acharya system is a win-win situation for everyone, and Prabhupada had the potency to authorize it. The system worked perfectly well in ISKCON from 1970 to 1977, and the system has been used successfully for 16 years by ISKCON Bangalore, which today consists of over twenty temples and preaching centers. The ritvik system also works for members of the worldwide Hare Krishna Society and other Hare Krishna movement groups including the ritvik advocates of the ISKCON Reform Movement (IRM). How could the ritvik system, if implemented in ISKCON, not work for the next 10,000 years?"

Can you imagine a world where all the people are encouraged, assisted, and free to have His Divine Grace Srila Prabhupada as their guru? You may think I am a dreamer, but I'm not the only one... Srila Prabhupada often said: "KINDLY HELP ME." May we all come to his aid in these dark times.

WORLD CHAOS WILL INCREASE IN THE FUTURE

"This is our reality today: Almost every major belief structure is under attack and when economic and military crises explode, as they certainly will, societal chaos will surely set in." (Daily Bell, Dec. 4, 2016) There is little doubt that the world's near-term future will become very bleak, chaotic, and full of misery. As followers of Srila Prabhupada, we must be sure to hold tightly to his lotus feet by way of honoring his divine teachings and defending them from changes under pressure from the supposed necessities of the moment. As it is, no changes, keep Srila Prabhupada always as our primary guide, right in the center, our Founder-Acharya, current link to the parampara. No more experimenting with innovations and new approaches for cheap expansion. No more unauthorised gurus, just keep the bona fide spiritual master who is Srila Prabhupada. With this determination, the devotees can survive and even thrive in the face of the worst world chaos imaginable.

SP: That is the difficulty. Everyone sees that "Some way or other, I become guru. Then so many persons will offer me respect. Somehow or other, create some situation. Then I become guru." This is going on. Not bona fide guru. Bona fide guru is indicated by Chaitanya, amara ajnaya guruna: "Become guru." Why ambition? Actually become guru... What is meaning of guru, they do not know. Somehow or other become popular and become guru. This is going on. So with maya you can attract these foolish rascals very easily. If you can manufacture... You cannot, but if you can show some jugglery, then you become guru. (SPConv May 2, 1976)

CONCLUSION

The mission can be furthered by ISKCON but it is not dependent upon ISKCON. Today's corrupted ISKCON institution should be restored to health, and Srila Prabhupada's sincere followers struggle for this end. But the Hare Krishna Movement is far more than the institution, and the Greater ISKCON is wherever Srila Prabhupada is being followed. Follow Srila Prabhupada wherever you are...

(1) "Now that the evidence that Srila Prabhupada was assassinated is in it can now be officially noted that whatever appointments that were made by the immediate ISKCON leadership for who ever in what ever department after Nov. 14, 1977 are all null and void. Indeed whatever expansions that took place from those original appointments and departments are also null and void. This indicates that ISKCON as we knew it then and now did not, does not and never did exist after Nov. 14, 1977. The only real ISKCON that continued after then was the ISKCON that kept the original instructions and did not attempt, conspire or engage in the assassination of His Divine Grace A. C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada. The false criminal ISKCON is now practically ZERO, obsolete and irrelevant and must be avoided at all cost." (Hastigopal das, June 2017)

(2) Srila Prabhupada said when he started ISKCON in 1966: "Beaming like a father over his newborn son, Swamiji said, "This International Society for Krishna Consciousness, ISKCON, is a great tool that we can use to spread our Hare Krishna chanting. If it is not helpful we can dissolve it. So we must be very careful." (Blazing Sadhus, Achyutananda p. 73) (3) In Vaiyasaki's Radha Damodara Vilasa, Revatinandana recalled: "He called Karandhar in and said, 'There is a conspiracy happening. They are trying to take control of ISKCON and take it out of my control... Alright, I will leave and you may have ISKCON. I will go sit under a tree and preach, because I do not require this organization to preach. So you may have the organization and I will leave.' Karandhar said, 'Oh, no, Srila Prabhupada. What good would the organization be without you?'"

(4) "THE RISE OF THE SRILA PRABHUPADA LOYALIST: The ISKCON that Srila Prabhupada established died when Srila Prabhupada entered into Samadhi. The true ISKCON only remains in the hearts of Srila Prabhupada's LOYALIST followers, who refuse to partake in the sham that is now FALSE

ISKCON. These devotees steadfastly dedicate their lives to the original and only diksha-guru / acharya of ISKCON – His Divine Grace AC Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada. Unless and until this bogus and offensive system is purged from ISKCON along with the reprobates that have so blatantly and offensively poisoned Srila Prabhupada and assumed the position of diksha-guru and GBC, we as a Vaishnava society will never please Srila Prabhupada.” (Krishnachandra das, 2016) (6) "As you always desire to help me in my missionary ambition, so also I am praying always to Krishna that the boys and girls who have stretched their helping hand in this country in this connection may always be in good health and continue to assist me in my missionary activities. I am so glad to learn that you are prepared to work even harder, as a forward soldier, to fight the Maya. May Krishna give you more and more strength." (SPL, March 18, 1969) (7) "To fall in love with God is the greatest of all romances, To seek Him, the greatest adventure, To find Him, the greatest human achievement." (St. Augustine)

---

APPENDIX 15: SORTING OUT THE BBT, BBTI, AND KBI

CONCERNING THE ACTUAL, LEGAL IDENTITY OF THE BBT by Bhima das, Singapore

Hansadutta asked me to point out common misunderstandings, particularly with regard to the actual, legal identity of the BBT. Several important take-aways from the BBT court case of 1997: • Bhaktivedanta Book Trust International, Inc. (BBTI) was not and is not the Bhaktivedanta Book Trust (BBT). • The 1972 BBT created by Srila Prabhupada was a valid, legal trust. • Srila Prabhupada vested it with the copyrights to all his books, manuscripts and other documents written by and translated by himself, including copyrights and publication rights. • Prabhupada appointed Hansadutta as a lifetime trustee of his trust. • There were only ever 3 trustees at a time (provision was made for 5). Srila Prabhupada was a BBT Trustee, and upon his departure, there remained two. • Many people claimed to be BBT Trustees who were never trustees. • ISKCON GBC had no legal mandate or power to direct or interfere with the operation of Prabhupada’s BBT. • ISKCON and the BBTI had taken over the publishing operations of Prabhupada’s BBT and diverted the proceeds from it. • BBTI never owned the copyrights to Prabhupada’s books. BBT International, Inc. is not even a trust -it’s a corporation.

CREATION OF BHAKTIVEDANTA BOOK TRUST IN CALIFORNIA, MAY 1972: While there are different kinds of trusts, in principle, a trust is established for someone(s) benefit. BBT created by Srila Prabhupada in California May 1972 was Srila Prabhupada’s legal construct to carry out his intentions while still living and afterwards in perpetuity, and his designated trustees were entrusted to execute the functions of the trust for the benefit of ISKCON (beneficiary). SP explicitly stated the BBT was independent of ISKCON, although he needn’t have stated it, because a beneficiary of a trust DOES NOT OWN the trust and has no say in its execution. The trust belongs to the creator of the trust, SP.

ISKCON ATTEMPTS TO BYPASS THE TRUSTEE AND TAKE OVER THE BBT: By 1980 there were stocks of books that were being distributed, but printing had almost stopped, and gradually stocks declined. In 1980-81 a dispute arose between Ramesvara and Hansadutta- Ramesvara claimed funds were owed to the BBT by Hansadutta’s temples. In 1982 Hansadutta published 20,000 sets of Srimad-Bhagavatam in Singapore for distribution through contract sales; also 10,000 black hard-copy Bhagavad-gita As It Is; 10,000 pocket size black vinyl Bhagavad-gita As It is; 10,000 each of the pocket size newsprint Bhagavad-gita As It Is and hardcover Golden Avatar (Teachings of Lord Chaitanya). Ramesvara, who was never a BBT Trustee, moved to boycott the books in North American ISKCON centres and around the world, including Mayapur. In 1983 ISKCON GBC passed a resolution to remove Hansadutta as BBT trustee [and] to transfer the copyrights to Srila Prabhupada’s books from the BBT to a corporation. Their resolutions did not effect legal removal of the trustee and copyrights from Prabhupada’s BBT because they never had legal standing to do so. BBTI was incorporated (1986) and assumed the publishing Srila Prabhupada’s books. Legally, however, it had no connection whatsoever to the BBT. They simply tagged the same name onto their corporation. Ramesvara had informed the GBC that ISKCON of California, Inc had been carrying out BBT functions under the name 'BBT'. No one had knowledge of any of this. Even the GBC thought ISKCON GBC had authority over the BBT. ISKCON never had legal authority to direct, appoint or remove BBT trustees or to take over operations of the trust or to seize its assets and properties. They created BBTI as an illusory device to take over Srila Prabhupada's BBT and bypass the trustee. BBTI is a California corporation, not a trust, with directors, not trustees. And it owned neither the copyrights to Prabhupada's books nor the publishing rights.

BBT COURT CASE: In 1992 BBTI sued me in Singapore for Bhagavad-gita As It Is copyright infringement. The court case dragged on for several years, but ultimately BBTI withdrew when they were unable to show they owned the copyrights. It came to light that BBTI was not the same entity as Srila Prabhupada's BBT and how did the BBT the copyrights come to be transferred to BBTI? Then in 1996 ISKCON and BBTI sued Prabhupada's BBT and Hansadutta in California, asking the Probate Court to declare that the 1972 BBT was never valid, that it never held Prabhupada's book copyrights, and that Hansadutta had never been a trustee. As part of the discovery process, ISKCON and BBTI declared Prabhupada never owned copyrights to his books because they were 'works for hire' that actually belonged to ISKCON, and that ISKCON 'employees' worked on the books and ISKCON supplied 'them' with room and board, paper, pencil and equipment for that purpose. Srila Prabhupada was not even named as the author of his own books! No name! According to their response, he was only one of the employees. Here are their answers:

IN ANSWER TO INTERROGATORY NO 14: "ISKCON, Inc. did business under the names "Bhaktivedanta Book Trust" and "BBT" from roughly 1971 until 1976. During the relevant time period (1966 through 1976) Srila Prabhupada's books, including all artwork, glossaries and elaborate purports, were "works for hire" created by ISKCON, Inc. ISKCON, Inc. owned common law copyrights in them from the time they were created, and became the owner of Federal copyrights as soon as they were published with a copyright notice."

IN ANSWER TO INTERROGATORY NO 19: "BBTI believes that ISKCON, Inc. owned the copyrights outright because the works in question were "works for hire" created by ISKCON, Inc. ISKCON, Inc. supplied the employees who worked on the books with their materials and equipment. ISKCON, Inc. also supplied each of them with room and board and with a stipend for personal or family expenses. Such employees included those who worked in the art department, photography department, Sanskrit editors, Bengali editors, design and layout specialists, and proof readers, among others." Is this response valid? Granted, 'works for hire' applies where employees create content belonging to their employer. But Srila Prabhupada is the ISKCON Founder-Acharya, ISKCON was his creation, and he was not employed by ISKCON. This argument amounts to saying Srila Prabhupada was only a hired worker of ISKCON. This is the worst aparadha – belittling of Srila Prabhupada.

A LITTLE BACKGROUND: Around the time when BBTI sued us in Singapore, Many devotees (like ritviks) were not allowed to purchase books from ISKCON or BBTI. Also Jayadvaita Swami and his team were revising Srila Prabhupada's books, and both BBTI and ISKCON stopped printing and distributing the original books and made available only the revised books. Many were alarmed at this intellectual and spiritual dishonesty in editing Srila Prabhupada's books, defying his own directive not to change them. Also the 'changed books' were foisted upon the public without any notice of the many revisions to not only grammar and spelling, but to meaning as well. There was concern that Srila Prabhupada's original books were out of print, as well as grave concern about preserving the integrity of Srila Prabhupada's books for the future. So did ISKCON and BBTI really follow the spirit of Prabhupada's instructions although not the letter of the law?

TRUST VS CORPORATION: [...] Why did Srila Prabhupada decide upon the structure of a trust rather than a corporation for his book publishing mission? Why didn't he simply incorporate it to begin with? Because a trust preserves the intentions and instructions of the trust creator, or settlor, and while a trust always has a beneficiary, the beneficiary has no direct control over the trust. When beneficiaries assert they are entitled to the trust property and try to seize it illegally, courts do not look kindly upon beneficiaries who bypass the trustee and hijack the trust. Courts respect and uphold the express wishes of the original creator of the trust and the authority of the trustee(s), unless it's proven they have violated their fiduciary duty— but even then, courts do not hand over the trust to the beneficiaries; they appoint a new trustee. Corporations, on the other hand, change directors by votes and can rewrite articles of constitution as it suits them. Evidently Srila Prabhupada decided that a trust would more effectively safeguard the publishing of his books than a corporation would, and he made it clear that ISKCON, the beneficiary, was to keep its hands off the trust.

When Srila Prabhupada appointed Hansadutta as BBT trustee in 1974, Hansadutta asked him why he had chosen him. Srila Prabhupada answered, 'The temples may fail, the devotees may fail, but my books will live forever.' Now, devotees might think that ISKCON and BBT are authorities unto themselves, above man-made laws. ISKCON and BBTI claimed they had to protect BBT from the 'rogue' Hansadutta. On the contrary, Hansadutta stood up to respect and uphold the wishes of Srila Prabhupada, to defend the BBT, and to protect the integrity of Srila Prabhupada's books. Devotees everywhere owe a debt of gratitude to Hansadutta for continued access to Srila Prabhupada's original books, which are published by KBI under license. BBTI has long ago ceased publication of Srila Prabhupada's original books and ISKCON has practically banned them. If not for Hansadutta's defence of Prabhupada's BBT, devotees today would not be able to buy the original books of Srila Prabhupada. So think again if you are of the mind that ISKCON and BBTI have acted in good faith and executed Srila Prabhupada's directives. ISKCON and BBTI, as caretakers of Srila Prabhupada's mission, have:

- thwarted the BBT trustee Hansadutta from carrying out his duties
- scuppered Srila Prabhupada's BBT
- belittled Srila Prabhupada as nothing more than one of ISKCON's employees
- revised his books in direct defiance of his explicit instructions not to do so
- infringed and recklessly endangered the copyrights to Srila Prabhupada's books by publishing without license from the real BBT

These are the facts and it appears ISKCON and BBTI were either grossly incompetent or deliberately trying to subvert Srila Prabhupada's mission. This raises questions about leadership of the movement. How do they represent Srila Prabhupada? As far as KBI is concerned, they tore a sheet from ISKCON's playbook. Gupta's deception and manipulation to oust Hansadutta and ourselves from the licensee board was just a twist on ISKCON's and BBTI hijacking of BBT. They show no gratitude for Hansadutta's defence of Srila Prabhupada's BBT, which cost us heavily, to which they contributed nothing, then kicked him out. Is KBI the 'good guys' because they're printing Prabhupada's original books, or did they take the license for their personal profit? They opposed Hansadutta's stated intentions to operate Krishna Books (as the licensee was originally called) as a nonprofit modelled after the BBT. Gupta himself scoffed at the idea. He, Niscintya and Vedaguhya thought they would remove Hansadutta and do better themselves. This is the history. (END)

WHAT HAPPENED TO THE BBT? By Hansadutta das, March 29, 2013 (abbreviated)

BBTI (Bhaktivedanta Book Trust International, Inc.) is not the same as Prabhupada's BBT; it is a California non-profit corporation (1988), a deliberate attempt to bypass the legal trust. In 1988 ISKCON GBC voted to assign the copyrights from BBT to BBTI. However, they had no legal authority to do so, because Prabhupada gave express instructions in the trust document that ISKCON was to have no jurisdiction over the trust. For years Ramesvara used ISKCON of America and later another ISKCON registered in California as the dba ("doing business as") "Bhaktivedanta Book Trust" as if they were the actual BBT. For so many years he and the GBC bypassed Srila Prabhupada's actual trust and trustees. Actually Ramesvara was never a legal BBT trustee, he was only appointed like a secretary by Prabhupada. The term "BBT" has been loosely applied to any one of a few different legal entities, a convenient smoke screen for ISKCON to take over the trust. A legally constituted trust consists of the Settlor, or the person who is making the trust; the property vested in the trust; a beneficiary, or the party who benefits from the trust; and trustee or trustees, who carry out the terms of the trust. Bhaktivedanta Book Trust, is no different. Prabhupada is the Settlor and was, until his departure, one of the trustees. He made ISKCON the beneficiary of the trust. He vested all the copyrights to his books in the trust. He designated that there be no more than three trustees at any time. Initially there were just Srila Prabhupada, Karandhar and Bali Mardan. Later, when Karandhar resigned, Prabhupada legally appointed me to replace him. Prabhupada inserted a provision in the Trust Agreement stating that the BBT existed independently of ISKCON and that the trustees were bound to carry out the duties of the BBT separately from and not depending on the ISKCON GBC. But even without such a provision, by law the beneficiary of a trust has no legal right to direct the trustees or to take over the trust assets. So what ISKCON did is illegal. ISKCON bypassed the trustees and took over the operation and property of the BBT. Let's say a father sets up a trust for his children, and vests all his property in it, and appoints a trustee to look after it in the interests of the children. But, the children decide they want direct control over the property and so they scheme to get rid of or go around the trustee and seize the assets for themselves. Why is this wrong? After all, they are the beneficiaries, and the trust is supposed to be for them. But no, the court takes the view that the trust belongs to the Settlor, not the beneficiaries, and although the Settlor may have departed, his expressed wishes live on in the terms of the trust document, and so the court upholds the trust, and finds that the children have attempted to convert the trust res illegally. This is exactly what has happened in the case of Prabhupada's BBT.

[...] In Singapore Bhima das, with one other brahmachary, had been distributing Prabhupada's books in Malaysia and Singapore, even Philippines, Thailand and Taiwan, at least 1.5 million books from 1978. But from 1988 all the regional "BBTs" refused to sell to him. Also the BBT had so many books out of print, and were publishing only the "changed" books. In 1990 I asked Tamal KG to buy Chinese Bhagavad gitas from him, but he would only sell them at the retail price. OK, enough is enough. So in 1990 we printed Bhagavad-gita As It Is in Chinese. Within a few months, Bhima received a letter from a lawyer alleging copyright infringement. The lawyer's client was Sundar Gopal, still working under Tamal. Soon BBTI filed a lawsuit against Bhima in Singapore, claiming their copyrights had been infringed and asking for damages. We challenged BBTI to prove ownership, and they had a fake, back-dated document signed by Svavasa, supposedly assigning BBT copyrights to BBTI. We presented the original Trust Agreement for Prabhupada's Bhaktivedanta Book Trust and the resolution signed by Srila Prabhupada appointing myself as trustee, and demanded BBTI to prove its legal connection to the original BBT. They couldn't do that and withdrew the lawsuit. ISKCON and BBTI sued myself in 1997. It was actually a lawsuit, a direct attack on Prabhupada's original BBT.

ISKCON/ BBTI sought a court declaration that Prabhupada's BBT was never a legally valid trust and thus never held the book copyrights; or IF it was once valid, it had ceased to be valid; moreover, that myself was never a trustee, or if I was, then I had ceased to be or should be removed and new trustees appointed. In the next 18 months ISKCON claimed Prabhupada never owned the copyrights, which were "works for hire," Prabhupada was ISKCON's hired worker (they supplied room, board, dictation machine, paper, pen) and what he wrote was ISKCON's property. (These court documents attached) I did not relinquish my position as BBT trustee lightly. It was a grave decision. Prabhupada appointed me for life to safeguard his books, and I would never have simply thrown it away. But after 18 months of litigation, we had no financial resources to continue into trial. Our lawyer, Fedorowsky (Gupta das), required us for another $100,000 advance before trial. I had no money, so I had to rely on Krishna to send help in defending Prabhupada's BBT. Bhima spent over a million dollars in the BBTI Singapore courtcase. Again Bhima came to the rescue in the US, and he scrambled to retain Fedorowsky. Veda Guhya contributed a quarter of the amount Bhima gave. But we had no money for the trial, and no one else helped. Everyone was silent. No one came forward. Talk of betrayal... no one would support the defense of Prabhupada's BBT. Fedorowsky advised that even if we were to proceed to trial and prevailed, ISKCON/ BBTI would appeal and petition the court to remove me from the trust, and it would go for years. Fedorowsky had already secretly misappropriated the principal in an investment meant to pay his fees. We had no other option for an attorney—Fedorowsky knew ISKCON, the legal issues, and he had discounted fees.

So, I was corralled into accepting a settlement, crafted by Fedorowsky and Amarendra. In exchange for resigning as BBT trustee, I would get an “unfettered” license to publish all of Prabhupada’s original books (pre-1978) pretty much worldwide. If we went to trial and lost, BBTI/ISKCON would get away with everything, be the end of the original books and deprive many of access to books for distribution. And even if we went to trial and won, ISKCON/ BBTI would fight on and eventually I could be removed as trustee. Fedorowsky spoke of the cost of protecting the copyrights, how if the BBT did not file legal action for each and every copyright infringement, then they would be lost to public domain– which might have been done anyway. So to make the best of a bad bargain, I decided to protect the integrity of SP’s original books and enable their publication and make them accessible to the devotees everywhere regardless of their affiliation with ISKCON.

I considered also ISKCON/ BBTI’s assurances the BBT would be left intact. I did what I did for Prabhupada and the devotees. I took a leap of faith to trust our Godbrothers, that the settlement would resolve our differences, serving Prabhupada and his mission by printing and distributing his unadulterated books. Out of gratitude for his services, and desiring to include those who had sacrificed money, time and energy to defend Prabhupada’s BBT and the purity of Prabhupada’s original books, I consented to Fedorowsky, Veda Guhya, Bhima and his wife as members of the Krishna Books Inc board. It was initially agreed the settlement money would be used as startup capital for printing Prabhupada’s unchanged books. But a dispute arose and Fedorowsky laid claim to it, and with Veda Guhya, Bhagavan and Niscintya, pulled the carpet out from beneath us, and ousted myself, Bhima and his wife from the KBI board. Fedorowsky and others took advantage of my trust and good will. I have since put ISKCON and BBTI on notice that their failure to pay out the settlement monies as per the terms of the settlement means that the settlement has been breached, and so I have rescinded my resignation as trustee of the BBT. As far as I know, the BBT is intact. But ISKCON and BBTI continue to produce and distribute counterfeit books, and the BBT courtcase has been swept underneath the bed. To check them with legal action is prohibitively costly. But if the devotees rally and demand remediation, that Prabhupada’s BBT be restored and that BBTI cease all revisions of Prabhupada’s books, then it’s possible that one day things will be right again with the movement. This is my stand. And I call for all Prabhupada’s faithful disciples to stand with me, to stand by Prabhupada’s Bhaktivedanta Book Trust, to stand for Srila Prabhupada and his books. But devotees need to do more than talk. Many devotees have strongly protested the changes to the books, but BBTI and ISKCON turn a deaf ear to them and will continue to do so unless and until they are faced with real consequences such as court action. This costs money. So put your money where your mouth is, and let’s see who is willing to do for Prabhupada.

I am very sorry for so many things I have done recklessly and for having failed to live up to all our expectations. All I can do is ask again for forgiveness from you and from the devotees everywhere, and for your blessings to be allowed to serve Prabhupada alongside his faithful devotees. Your servant, Hansadutta das

P.S. In hindsight, there was a collusion between Gupta and the ISKCON attorneys to sideline my legal position. You may know that Gupta (Joseph Fedorowsky) was indicted for “CONSPIRACY TO COMMIT MURDER” in the 1970’s. He cut a deal by ratting everyone out. Many believe that he remains an FBI informant to this day. These are things I came to know later on. I have these documents.

JUST WHAT WAS RAMESVARA’S ROLE? *By Bhima das (Singapore) March 28, 2013

Ramesvara claims that Srila Prabhupada made him trustee at Mayapur in 1976 after the marathon production of 17 volumes of CC. He also suggests that he himself alone was running the entire BBT operations in North America, etc. When ISKCON/ BBTI brought the courtcase against Hansadutta and BBT, Ramesvara could not produce any document re: his appointment as trustee, and so the court excluded him from giving testimony with no legal standing. Whether Srila Prabhupada named him a trustee or not, he was never a legal trustee. From Hansadutta, “A little history”: “In 1972, Srila Prabhupada made the California “Bhaktivedanta Book Trust,” himself as Settlor and Karandhar and Bali Mardana as trustees. The trust agreement allows for no more than 5 trustees at any time, and states: 'This trust shall exist independently of the International Society for Krishna Consciousness and the Trustees' functions and duties stated herein shall be separate and not dependent on the Governing Body Commission of the International Society for Krishna Consciousness.' In 1974, Srila Prabhupada named Hansadutta das as BBT trustee with the following resolution: 'BHAKTIVEDANTA BOOK TRUST RESOLUTION- The written resignation of Kelly Gifford Smith (Karandhara das Adhikari) is hereby accepted by the trustees of the Bhaktivedanta Book Trust. Hans Kary (Hamsaduta das Adhikari) is hereby appointed as a Bhaktivedanta Book Trust trustee to replace Kelly Smith. Resolved this 15th day of September, 1974; A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami [signature appears on original] William Berke (Bali Mardana das Adhikari).'

Ramesvara claims his appointment as BBT trustee was public at Mayapur festival, 1976. If so, there should be witnesses who can back him up. There is no mention in Srila Prabhupada's letters of addressing him as BBT trustee, but Ramesvara did sign letters between himself and Srila Prabhupada's secretaries or GBCs as BBT trustee from 1976, so perhaps Prabhupada might have called him trustee, like an honorary title. Certainly he was pleased with Ramesvara's management of the BBT operations in North America. Ramesvara also claims that Hridayananda, Bhagavan, and Harikesa were appointed BBT trustees by letter. Again, there is no record of any such letter of appointment or BBT resolution. There does seem to have been confusion between the Indian BBT (a publishing trust) and the California BBT and what was referred to as the "international BBT," with a number of devotees being called trustees. A Srila Prabhupada letter on 26 May, 1976 to Ramesvara alludes to Ramesvara, Jayatirtha and Bhagavan as being BBT trustees. By 1977, Tamal KG is also calling himself a BBT trustee. However, the trust agreement limited the number of trustees to just five so not all these persons could have been trustees of the California BBT. There is no record of any BBT resolution noticing the resignation or removal of any trustees except for Karandhar das. [...] The confusion carried forward even after the incorporation of BBTI in 1988, when the GBC appointed "trustees," who were in fact not trustees, because the BBTI, Inc. was not a trust at all, but a corporation, and they were not even the directors of the corporation. So evidently a number of persons were loosely called trustees, and given some kind of portfolio, but in fact had no legal status as trustees. If Ramesvara's claim is true, why did the court say he had no legal standing in the court case brought by ISKCON and BBTI against Hansadutta back in 1998? [...] This means that as far as the law is concerned, Ramesvara was never a legal trustee. Ramesvara refers a Srila Prabhupada letter to Hansadutta, 8 Dec., 1974, when Srila Prabhupada rejects the proposal of organizing an umbrella corporation with BBT as satellite of ISKCON. (Letters from Srila Prabhupada to Hansadutta since that date point to Hansadutta's continuing role as BBT trustee.) This Dec. 8, 1974 letter does raise a question: Was this perhaps the origin of the ISKCON dba BBT? Srila Prabhupada instructs that ISKCON LA should act as agent of BBT India, with monies going through the ISKCON LA account instead of creating a separate BBT account, and so as to keep BBT legally separate and safe in case ISKCON should go into liquidation. At some point Ramesvara operated BBT under the fictitious business name BBT, but in fact it was just another name for ISKCON of America or ISKCON of Los Angeles. How did Ramesvara operate the BBT accounts and BBT was registered as a dba, "doing business as"?

On 29 July 1975, Srila Prabhupada wrote to Hansadutta: "...I am glad you are selling the books nicely there in Germany. Therefore I have elected you BBT Trustee. Sometimes you should come to L.A. to see the BBT affairs. Ramesvara and Jayatirtha they are doing it, but still sometimes you may come and check. Sometimes you may come and sometimes Bhagavan das may come." Ramesvara says that Hansadutta did not have a hand in management of North American BBT at any time from 1975 onwards. That doesn't mean he was not acting BBT trustee. In 1978 the GBC assigned Hansadutta to Northern California, Oregon and Washington, and found himself in Berkeley, CA just up the road from Ramesvara in LA. At once, Hansadutta cleaned house, and put an end to the prostitution of the Berkeley women's party (Jiva's girls). He got most of the Berkeley women married. The women's party was practically disbanded, with a sudden considerable loss of revenue flowing into Ramesvara's hands. I personally witnessed Ramesvara's furious tirade to these sankirtan women in a tent at the LA Rathayatra in 1979. He referred to a BBT debt that Berkeley had.

1980-81. The movement encountered legal challenges and the media picked up on shifty collection tactics, cheating people of their money. Hansadutta went on TV and called for ending the change-up trickery and prostitution of the women devotees, and introduced a plan for "contract sales" of Srila Prabhupada's books, in which they could be sold in affordable library sets, like Encyclopaedia Britannica, accepting a deposit with installment payments. In May 1980 the GBC held court in LA to discipline Jayatirtha, Tamal and Hansadutta. Hansadutta was sent to Vrindavan and prohibited from initiating or making contact with his disciples, and Ramesvara and Hridayananda came to Berkeley in turns to manage. In 10 months they bankrupted the Berkeley center. They emptied the coffers, sold one of the properties, finished the book stock with a "free distribution" program (Ramesvara's idea), ran the place into debt, and many devotees left. In Berkeley, from 70 devotees under Hansadutta, there remained 20 under Ramesvara and Hridayananda. In Dec.1980 in Topanga Canyon, Tamal KG confessed: 'Prabhupada never appointed any gurus. He did not appoint eleven gurus. He appointed eleven rittviks. He never appointed them as gurus. Myself and the other GBC have done the greatest disservice to this movement for the last three years, because we interpreted the appointment of rittviks as the appointment of gurus...' Hansadutta reported all of this to his disciples in Berkeley and admitted his own inadequacy, how he was not qualified, and directed everyone to worship Prabhupada, to regard Prabhupada as their guru. Ramesvara also gave up sitting on his Vyasasana for a time. Soon Tamal and Ramesvara reverted. But Hansadutta pushed the devotees in his zone to help him print Srila Prabhupada's books and get the contract sales program off the ground. He published three editions of Bhagavad-gita As It Is: vinyl cover with Bible paper, paperback, and hardcover. This was the first printing of the original MacMillan's edition (1972) by BBT upon the end of the MacMillan copyright license agreement. Hansadutta also published the 30 volume sets of small Srimad-Bhagavatam, Golden Avatar (Teachings of Lord Chaitanya), the one-volume Srimad-Bhagavatam, the one-volume Chaitanya-charitamrita, a Chinese Gita and other books in Chinese, Tamil, English for distribution mainly in Singapore, Malaysia, Taiwan and Philippines.

The Berkeley sankirtan collection was divided between paying off Berkeley temple's debts and printing these books under Hansadutta's direction (without any outside funds). Although Ramesvara promised that all the money remitted to BBT from Hansadutta's zone would go towards printing for the contract sales program, he ultimately blocked the program, and he adamantly insisted that Berkeley Temple still owed a debt to the BBT. Hansadutta disputed the amount owed to BBT, and channeled the money to his own BBT printing. In a letter June 6, 1981, Ramesvara asked Jayatirtha's help to come up with a definition of a BBT Trustee, citing passages from DOM and BBT Agreement. "From these statements of Srila Prabhupada it is clear that the Trustees' powers and position is limited, and in the absence of Srila Prabhupada's physical vapu, we have to have some checks and balances. That brings up the difficult question of defining the relationship between the individual Trustees and the International BBT Trustees' Board which meets each year at Mayapur. There are other letters from Prabhupada to various Trustees, especially to me, defining what they can and cannot loan BBT money for, etc. But that is secondary, although very important, to the basic task given to us of defining what is a BBT Trustee. [...] While the individual members don't derive their authority from the Board, some at least were appointed by the Board, and must answer to the Board at least on some matters. Plus the Board must have some authority to review the operations of the individual Trustees, to have any hope for a system of checks and balances, which Prabhupada obviously intended when he originally created only one BBT, with various Trustees, who would all see financial reports of the one BBT." [It appears the LA BBT and the GBC were searching for ways to bring Hansadutta, as a renegade BBT trustee printing on his own, under the control of the LA and GBC-favored BBT.] What does Ramesvara mean here with “Trustee’s Board” and some trustees appointed by the Trustee’s Board, and [Prabhupada] originally created only one BBT? Is there more than one?

1982. Hansadutta’s three Gita editions were presented at the 1982 Mayapur festival where Bhima das set up an exhibit table, but then GBC banned them and the table was dismantled with no sales possible. The 30-volume Bhagavatam, one-volume Bhagavatam and Golden Avatar came out later in 1982. The one-volume CC came out in 1984. Ramesvara denounced the black covers as “demonic” and refused to order them for temple distribution. The rest of ISKCON followed suit and boycotted the books. Hansadutta’s vision of revolutionising book distribution bore fruit with contract sales through the Berkeley, Singapore, and Malaysia devotees. People were eagerly buying the sets.

1983. Ramesvara published the LA BBT’s first Gita since the MacMillan edition, but it was the revised edition. The GBC cited Hansadutta for numerous transgressions, and named a special privilege committee to investigate the charges against him. I have a copy of “Resolutions from the Special Meeting of the GBC Privilege Committee” May 31-June 1, 1983, New Vrindaban. Attendees: Tamal, Hariksha, Kirtanananda, Satsvarupa, Jagadisha and Rupanuga. Please note the following points pertaining to the BBT: (5) The PC has learned that the BBT in America is now operating, for legal purposes, as a corporation known as ISKCON of America, Inc. We resolve that only BBT Trustees should be the officers and Trustees of the ISKCON of America, Inc. and no others. (6) It should be firmly stated by the GBC of ISKCON that [...] Prabhupada gave the rights to print his books directly and independently to each GBC Trustee for publishing in their respective languages and it does not depend on permission from the owner of the copyright. A written statement confirming the above should be given by the custodian of the English copyright (now held by ISKCON of California), so as to avoid any future legal entanglement due to legal judgments or other reasons. (7) As soon as possible the BBT should be incorporated as a non-profit corporation. (8) The Minister of Legal Affairs (Balavanta) should arrange to execute resolutions 5, 6, 7. (9) The PC acknowledges the debt owed by Hansadutta Swami’s zone to the BBT as claimed by the BBT. However, the PC resolves that Ramesvara Swami must find a Krishna conscious method of collecting this debt, without resorting to court action.

Some observations. First, they were confused about BBT’s legal identity and the copyright ownership. The GBC Privilege Committee believed BBT was operating as ISKCON of America Inc. and the copyrights were held by ISKCON of California, Inc. Second, they clearly were mistaken as to the identity of the BBT Trustees and the separation between the BBT Trustees and ISKCON as per the Trust Agreement. The BBT does not come under the jurisdiction of ISKCON or the GBC. Third, they recommended the BBT be a non-profit corporation, contradicting Srila Prabhupada’s authority and own legal arrangement. Fourth, Ramesvara’s status as legal BBT trustee is in question. So, when in 1976 he represented himself as a BBT trustee in a letter assigning the BBT trademark to ISKCON of California, Inc, he had no legal authority to do so. Although Ramesvara was overseeing the jumbo operations of BBT in America, it was not his call to challenge Hansadutta’s authority to act as trustee in publishing books, nor was it his call to initiate a boycott of the publications, and in fact he should have been accountable to Hansadutta the BBT Trustee, not the other way around. Re: the disputed BBT debt, Hanumat Presaka (ACBSP)’s accounting showed that Berkeley temple had $200,000 when Hansadutta was exiled to Vrindaban in 1980, and when he returned the temple was IN DEBT $50,000. Ramesvara took the bank funds, the sale proceeds of a house owned by the temple, took various temple equipments, took and sold farm equipment, horses—worth tens of thousands of dollars— and diverted all Berkeley sankirtan collection to BBT, took a temple vehicle, took Hansadutta’s $150,000 from donations to him, and at the airport even took Hansadutta’s last few dollars in his pocket. Still, Ramesvara claimed Berkeley temple had not satisfied its debt to the BBT. Furthermore, Ramesvara and Hridayananda deliberately set out to destroy the morale of the devotees, drove out most of the devotees, abandoned the farm project. They dismantled everything. Why did the Privilege Committee not instead direct Ramesvara to compensate the Berkeley temple and Hansadutta?

June 13, 1983, Hansadutta replied to the GBC Privilege Committee: “Regarding Rameswara and the BBT, it is my belief that Rameswara should not be able to solely operate the BBT and decide who are the trustees. We must always adhere to the original wishes of Srila Prabhupada and acknowledge the original trustees that he appointed to the BBT. Prabhupada had inconceivable spiritual knowledge and insight into the future of our organization, as well as full knowledge of the people he appointed as BBT trustees. For any single devotee to try to step into Prabhupada’s shoes and appoint himself the chief trustee or overact any of Prabhupada’s instructions, is an immoral act against the whole society. Whomever Prabhupada appointed as BBT trustees should remain trustees [...] If you minimize or take away this ruling of Srila Prabhupada, then you have to take away everything that Prabhupada ever said as wrong, because if we cannot believe entirely in Prabhupada with total trust, we can’t believe in him at all. Therefore, we must live up to the original instructions and arrangements of Srila Prabhupada, and no one man or one committee should be able to overrule him. This same problem can be seen in the mundane example of the Constitution of the United States. All decisions in the courts must live up to the Constitution of the United States. And no court in the land can change the laws of the Constitution. Prabhupada promulgated the original constitution of ISKCON so that no one can be allowed to change any original decisions that Prabhupada made. We must understand that Prabhupada really had the insight to know that ISKCON would come into difficulties in the future, and he definitely made his request, based on this insight, that the BBT should be a completely separate entity so that even if ISKCON fell, the publication and distribution of books would not be hurt. Based on these points, I seriously ask you to consider not changing the original wishes of Prabhupada regarding the BBT, its structure and function. [...] there can never be more than five trustees, and Prabhupada appointed me as one of them.”

1984. Hansadutta was expelled from ISKCON. GBC resolutions as follows: “MARCH 6, 1984. 1. Resolved that Hansaduta Swami is hereby removed from his membership on the GBC, his position as BBT Trustee, his position as an initiating guru. He shall no longer be considered a Sannyasi. All ISKCON corporations are hereby advised that Hansaduta is no longer qualified to serve in any authoritative capacity relative to such corporations. All of Hansaduta’s disciples are directed to accept initiation from another ISKCON recognized guru.” Again, ISKCON GBC had no jurisdiction over BBT, and thus no legal authority to remove Hansadutta as a BBT trustee. Their pronouncement was like a lunatic shouting, “Let the Queen of England be deposed.” 1986. Ramesvara caught with 15-year-old disciple, and left the Society in disgrace. 1987. Incorporation of Bhaktivedanta Book Publishing, Inc. in the State of California. 1988. GBC Resolutions Feb. 1988 refer to BBT: “BBT Trustees. The GBC recommend that three of the current BBT Trustees resign and that five new trustees be added. BBT Copyrights. The highly sensitive issue of what legal entity(ies) should ultimately hold the copyrights to Srila Prabhupada’s book was discussed at length, the issue was ultimately tabled until the new International BBT Trustees complete the reorganization process. (39) Since the BBT meeting on July 15-16, 1987 in Stockholm had an ambiguous and nondefinitive outcome, the GBC wishes the BBT to reconstitute itself. The present trustees, Harikesha, Gopal Krishna, Tamal Krishna, Hridayananda and Jayapataka, have voted to request the GBC to give them definitive guidance for consideration. Accordingly, the GBC asks that Jayapataka, Hridayananda and Tamal Krishna to submit their resignations as International Trustees. However, before any resignations are accepted, the current trustees elect replacements and additions up to a total of seven, and place these names before the GBC for its blessings. (40) That the GBC direct its members, Indian and all other BBT trustees and management to follow the directives of the International BBT trustees regarding matters of International BBT concerns, such as the securing of copyrights to Srila Prabhupada’s books. (43) That the GBC gives its blessings to the plan conceived of by the current International BBT Trustees to replace the three resigning trustees with Sesa, Isvara Swami and Naresvara, under the condition that when they decide to add two additional trustees [...] (72) That the four devotees present who were part of the former International BBT (Tamal, Gopal Krishna, Jayapataka, Hridayananda) shall be requested to recommend an additional two persons to be part of the newly constituted International BBT. This resolution modifies Resolution #43 above. (73) That the local BBTs are requested to withhold transfer of copyrights to an International BBT, as under resolution #40 above, until a proper constitution and by-laws have been accepted by the GBC. The GBC Body appoints a committee of Gopal Krishna, Jayadwaita, Hari Vilas, Sesa, Bhima (Bombay) and Sri Rama to study the issues involved and recommend a constitution and by-laws to the GBC body through correspondence vote. (74) That the GBC Body gives its blessings to Jayadwaita Swami and Hari Vilas das to be added to the International BBT Trustees, as per the recommendation of the four-man committee mentioned in Resolution #72 above.

And with the GBC stamp of approval, BBT International, Inc. was incorporated Oct. 12, 1988 as Bhaktivedanta Book Trust International, Inc. in California. "1989. GBC Resolutions Mar. 1-16, 1989 mention: (51) That all ISKCON devotees are hereby instructed to fully cooperate with the consolidation of rights to Srila Prabhupada's works in the Bhaktivedanta Book Trust-International."

So there was a great mixup over the identity of the BBT, the BBT Trustees, the copyright ownership, and the few persons who knew anything cleverly took advantage of the others' ignorance. Much came to light in the course of the court cases instigated by BBT International, Inc. and ISKCON against Bhima das in Singapore and later against Hansadutta das in California, in 1998. ISKCON and BBTI tried their best to perpetuate various illusions. What a disgrace. (See www.hansadutta.com)

BBT MANIFESTO (JULY 11, 2008 by Long Island ISKCON)

WE, the disciples and followers of His Divine Grace AC Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada declare that: (1) BBT Trustees [1] shall ensure that a sacred spiritual tradition is formed around the books of His Divine Grace A. C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada ("Srila Prabhupada") such that this generation and the subsequent future generations for the next 10,000 years shall treat all of Srila Prabhupada's vani, or teachings, with utmost sacred respect, as words of God. This spiritual tradition, by education, culture, and devotion shall be formed such that no one will allow Srila Prabhupada's teachings to be physically distorted or disrespected in any manner or form that could put the whole basis of our parampara in danger. One of the duties of the Trustees given by Srila Prabhupada in BBT Instrument Document dated May 28, 1972 is "Directing and managing all publicity and distribution of my books;" Hence the Trustees shall direct and manage the publicity of these books with this grave responsibility in their minds. (2) Revising Srila Prabhupada books, whether well intentioned or not, sets a dangerous precedent. If not reverted back now to the original editions, future generations will look at the example and mood set by the first generation BBT Trustees and may do likewise as the times, personalities and circumstances change. Moreover, the current laws provide for copyright control of Srila Prabhupada's books through the BBT, so that only the Trustees of BBT can effectuate the changes. In future when the copyright law releases the copyright of Srila Prabhupada's books into public domain, most likely starting from 2063, if the pure tradition of Absolute Sanctity of these books is not set, anyone with authority in the preaching mission may change them like it has happened to the Bible. On the contrary, if this "revisionist" fallacy is rebutted & reverted and subsequently Srila Prabhupada's original book's "no-change" policy is maintained, then THAT will become the established tradition. It will become part of the history of BBT that initially the books of Srila Prabhupada were "erroneously revised," but then after due consideration by the majority of followers of Srila Prabhupada and on the authority of scriptures, this policy was changed permanently. This will act as a lesson for future generations. Hence the goal of current BBT Trustees is very crucial, and their responsibility is critical, in how Srila Prabhupada and his teachings are regarded in the future for thousands of years to come. (3) For that purpose, there are multiple activities that the BBT Trustees shall perform. (4) First and foremost, all control of copyrights, printing and primary distribution ought to be with Srila Prabhupada's BBT and that BBT shall be reactivated. Without this centralized legal control, as organized and instructed by Srila Prabhupada, it will be difficult to ensure cohesive maintenance of the sanctity of Srila Prabhupada's books. (5) Secondly, the BBT Trustees shall follow all the basic written instructions of Srila Prabhupada regarding the operations of BBT. Srila

Prabhupada formally executed BBT Trust Agreement document dated May 29, 1972. Thereafter Srila Prabhupada gave certain other written instructions to operate the BBT. The BBT shall function exactly according to these instructions: Karandhar Letter to all temple presidents of ISKCON, Inc., Counter-signed by Srila Prabhupada Apr. 22, 1974 /Karandhar Letter to Foreign Divisions of BBT, Counter-signed by Srila Prabhupada Sept. 16, 1974 /SPL all temple presidents Mar. 14, 1974

(6) Third, all initial authorized editions of Srila Prabhupada's books shall be identified and only those shall be printed. All other editions shall be completely scrapped. (7) Fourth, an official history of the BBT shall be published describing in detail the incidences from the inception of the BBT till now so that the future generations can learn from it. (8) Reactivate BBT as a legal Trust: Only BBT, a legal US Trust, registered in Los Angeles, CA, shall be the centralized legal entity that owns all the copyrights of Srila Prabhupada's books all over the world, in all languages. All other corporations or entities domestic/ intern'l shall stop misrepresenting that they are BBT unless authorized in writing to do so by the BBT. BBT shall operate conjointly with its subsidiary divisions around the world as per Srila Prabhupada's written instructions. (9) This BBT shall be the only entity that authorizes printing of Srila Prabhupada's books in US and/or through its offices/subsidiaries in other countries. This is the direct instruction of Srila Prabhupada. "I specifically formed the BBT to invest in it exclusive rights for the printing of all literature containing my teachings, writings and lectures. In this way the collections are to be divided fifty percent for printing new books and fifty percent for construction of temples. The BBT can authorize a center to print, as in the case of foreign translations, with the agreement that when the foreign printing becomes financially solvent they will pay royalties to the BBT. But all printing of ISKCON literature must be by the BBT or under their sanction and approval." (SPL all Presidents Mar. 14, 1974) (10) For the same reasons, the license by BBT to Krishna Books, Inc. ("KBI") should be scrapped. It is redundant and adds another competitor to Srila Prabhupada's BBT, against the direct instructions of Srila Prabhupada above and below: "If temples print independently it will be at the cost of the books I am, myself printing, and could eventually cause the financial ruin of the BBT, meaning I could not order new books from the printer or have sufficient funds for construction of temple projects. I trust this is now clear and you will all do the needful." (SPL all Presidents, Mar. 14, 1974)

(11) All payments from sales of English books must be deposited with BBT LA. Foreign offices/subsidiaries/divisions translating and printing Srila Prabhupada's books ought to give 10% royalty to BBT LA as per Srila Prabhupada's instructions: "Prabhupada just spoke with me regarding the distribution of foreign (other than English) language literature. His direction is that 10% of the gross income on the sales of all of our literatures, books, and magazines, should be sent to The Bhaktivedanta Book Trust." (Karandhar letter to Foreign Divisions of BBT, Counter-signed by Srila Prabhupada, Sept. 16, 1974) (12) Bylaws of BBT shall be adopted in order to supplement the original BBT Trust Agreement Document with later additional instructions by the setlor of the Trust, Srila Prabhupada. These Bylaws would further protect against mismanagement of BBT from happening again. These Bylaws shall include certifications of original books, provisions against revising the books, and editing policies, among others. The BBT governing documents shall be transparently made available over the internet. (13) Obtain Tax-exemption status from IRS: The BBT, a legal US Trust, shall apply for tax exemption from the IRS as per the written directive of Srila Prabhupada. The Trustees shall appoint a competent Probate Lawyer to complete the formalities under the Trust tax-exemption Rules given by the IRS. (14) Open Bank Account of BBT: BBT shall open a bank account in its name in Los Angeles. All other corporations or entity's bank accounts with DBA BBT, or Doing Business As BBT, as being currently allowed by the Trustees in the case of Bhaktivedanta Book Publishing, Inc. ("BBP") bank account in LA are to immediately cease.

(15) All checks and payments for books that are received in the name of BBT are to be deposited in this authorized BBT account and not in the un-authorized BBP account as is being currently done. (16) Transfer all Copyrights back to BBT: All copyrights shall be immediately transferred to BBT from Bhaktivedanta Book Trust-International, Inc.("BBTI"). BBTI, a California Corporation, is a completely different entity from the BBT, a Trust. The Trustees shall order the BBTI directors to: (a) Re-assign all copyright records in US Copyright Office, falsely claiming to be owners of books and other works of Srila Prabhupada back to BBT. Most of the copyright records indicate that BBTI is the current owner of the copyrights, which is illegal. (b) All assigned copyright records ought to reflect that the author of each one of these works is "His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada" rather than the current offensive and illegal classification of Srila Prabhupada as "Worker for hire" that is currently being recorded on all these works. To classify Srila Prabhupada like any other employee of BBT is extremely insulting. (c) All copyright records of any of Srila Prabhupada works, in any translation, in all countries shall also reflect the same. The copyright owner of all translated works should be BBT with its address in Los Angeles, the author shall be mentioned as His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada and additionally the translator should be mentioned as "Worker for Hire" i.e. BBT Volunteer(s) translated that work. Not that Srila Prabhupada shall also be put in the same category of a hired worker or a volunteer like any other devotee. (d) All copyright declarations on all future publications, in any language, from the BBT shall be "© Copyrighted by Bhaktivedanta Book Trust 2009" and not "© Copyrighted by Bhaktivedanta Book Trust-International 2009." This is illegal and a misrepresentation by BBTI. This misrepresentation should stop immediately.

(17) Transfer all Trademark and Logos back to BBT: All trademarks of BBT, currently with BBTI illegally, shall be immediately transferred to BBT: (a) "Bhaktivedanta Book Trust" trademark currently claimed to be illegally owned by BBTI shall be transferred back to BBT. (b) "BBT" logo currently owned by BBTI shall also be transferred to Srila Prabhupada's BBT. (18) Dissolve BBTI & BBP: BBTI and BBP, formed in CA in 1988 and 1987 respectively, without the authorization of Srila Prabhupada, shall be officially disenfranchised as so-called agents of BBT. They have been created to deceive the public into accepting them to be the same or equivalent of Srila Prabhupada's BBT. They are not the same entity as the BBT and they do not follow Srila Prabhupada's instruction for running his BBT in their legal corporate documents. Their bank accounts are to be closed and the current balance are to be immediately transferred back to the new BBT bank account. All other assets they possess or claim to possess are to be also transferred to BBT. Upon completion of the above, these entities are to be dissolved in every country they have been registered. (19) Till that happens, both these organizations shall hereby immediately stop misrepresenting themselves as the BBT or using the logo of BBT or misrepresenting that they own the BBT copyrights. (20) Stop Publishing Other Authors: The BBT Trustees are not to publish any book other than those written by Srila Prabhupada. BBT is not a "publishing house for Gaudiya Vaishnava books" as they write on Krishna.com. Instead this Trust was made by Srila Prabhupada specifically to hold and print his own books. "The properties which shall constitute the Trust Fund include all books and manuscripts and other documents written by me or translated by me, including the following hereinafter listed, and all those written by me in the future, including all copyrights and publication rights incidental thereto:" (BBT Trust May 29, 1972, Sec 1 Trust Fund) (21) Srila Prabhupada may have himself authorized some books by some of his disciples to be printed by the BBT, but he himself could do so as it is his own Trust. But he has not left any specific instructions or policy for the Trustees for including other author's books. His desires to the contrary are "Our translation must be documents. They are not ordinary... One cannot become unless one is very realized. It is not A-B-C-D translation." (May 28, 1977). But the current Trustees have made their own policy. They have copyrighted and published many books from other authors in the BBT. These books are of questionable credibility and authenticity compared to the high standard of the intended books in the BBT- Srila Prabhupada's. This is unethical and not sanctioned by the settlor or the Trust Instrument. (22) The mixing of completely pure books, words of God, with books of questionable purity may make the authority, authenticity, and respect of Srila Prabhupada's books and of his BBT to go down eventually in tandem. As we cannot sit on the Vyasasana of Srila Prabhupada, similarly we cannot put our books with Srila Prabhupada's books on an equal stature, unless he personally asked us to do so. Another official ISKCON publishing house can be made to print books by other authors and other official publications, but BBT should be left alone. (23) BBT funds, trademark & logo are not to be used for any books other than that of Srila Prabhupada's works. Bhaktivedanta Book Trust is A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami's exclusively. It is his personal vehicle to reach out to the whole world and teach them the Science of God, Krishna. It is not a publisher of any or all books on 'Bhakti' and 'Vedanta' as the BBT trustees are apt to present BBT in an impersonal manner. (24) All solicitation of new manuscripts from other authors for printing under the Logo of BBT shall be immediately stopped.

(25) Stop printing all "revised" books: All first editions of Srila Prabhupada's books shall be identified and then printed, "as is" by the BBT. None of the "revisions" shall ever be printed. A note on the book shall identify each book as original and a replica of the first edition printed of each volume. At the end of each book, an editor's note should be added: "Some previous editions of this book were printed that were erroneously changed from the original due to a faulty editorial policy. Please check the authenticity of the edition by checking the inside cover page and our website for the correct edition. If you do not have the correct edition, please send the book back to us, we will send the correct original edition to you free of cost. Or, you can download the free book from {website}." (26)

Transparent, collective editorial policy: A widely discussed and accepted editorial policy shall be adopted by the BBT. This editorial policy shall be encased in the new bylaws of the BBT. (27) The books originally edited and published under the authority of Srila Prabhupada are to be considered free of defect or mistake by those who would consider themselves to be disciples. Srila Prabhupada instructed likewise in reference to seeing "mistakes" in his spiritual masters books. He called this spiritual principle "ashraya prayoga" or seeing a mistake in what the spiritual master has given as his legacy, as disrespectful and a faulty mentality. Only his editors, directly authorized by him to correct any errors, could do so, and that too only for the duration of that service to him understood to be until the editions were approved by Him. No modifications, corrections or explanations can be made to an Acharya's books once he has approved Them. This fact is more applicable now that he has left our physical presence. (28) Exempt shall be those errors specifically identified by Srila Prabhupada to be changed in the next edition. The first editions containing these errors shall be corrected. The overall principle shall be to follow Srila Prabhupada's instruction "to print the books in the original way," i.e. first editions + changes asked for by recorded instruction of Srila Prabhupada. (29) As for the argument of the current editors that there are many genuine grammatical or factual errors (introduced by Srila Prabhupada's transcribers or editors and not by Srila Prabhupada himself), those few specific errors can be considered: (a) to be printed in an errata separately from the books; or (b) to be published on its website; or (c) as footnotes: where the correct spelling or word could be written as a footnote. (30) Current BBT editors have used these few errors to make a case for wholesale unnecessary changes to Srila Prabhupada's books. These changes range from philosophical to the original writing style which are thoroughly unnecessary. This faulty editorial policy shall be condemned in strongest terms and historically recorded for educating the future generations.

(31) Main function of BBT Trustees: As far as the printing of books of Srila Prabhupada, there are mainly two functions that the BBT Trustee shall ensure. (a) Reprint books. Cover, binding etc. can be modified according to current trend to make the book more presentable. (b) Compile more books from Srila Prabhupada's teachings under a certain topic (yoga, science etc) like the BBT are currently doing, but the editing shall be strictly minimal. The editing standard for printing new books shall also be encased in the Bylaws. (32) Integrate Archives with BBT: The Bhaktivedanta Archives shall deed all the historical archive material it possesses to the BBT. The Archives shall preserve and reproduce Srila Prabhupada's works as a department of BBT, not as a division of BBTI. Bhaktivedanta Archives as a separate independent corporation shall be dissolved. It can function as a department within BBT and shall be fully integrated with BBT. Its location need not be changed for now. (33) The Bhaktivedanta Archives shall provide the Vedabase to be freely downloadable from its website; or for a nominal amount for a certain time to offset the actual cost in order to make it available in that format and for future updates. It shall not be more than $49.99 in any event. For full time devotees it shall be freely available. (34) The Archives shall endeavor to make the Bhaktivedanta Vedabase be browsed and searchable from the BBT website itself. The main philosophy of Bhaktivedanta Archives department shall be to distribute Srila Prabhupada's vani (instructions) freely, far and wide using the latest electronic communication medium. Wide distribution is the best method of preserving Srila Prabhupada's teachings. The Archives shall seek to preserve Srila Prabhupada's books using the latest technologies for the next 10,000 years. (35) Back to Godhead was designed by Srila Prabhupada to be the backbone of our movement. It shall again be made likewise. "This Back to Godhead will always remain the backbone of the society because more the magazine is popular the more society becomes popular." (SPL Rayarama Jan. 30, 1967) (36) BTG shall be published as a monthly Sankirtan magazine. Not as a primarily bi-monthly periodical. Of course the subscriptions are important and they shall be serviced religiously but the main customers shall be new people, as per Srila Prabhupada's instructions. BTG price for distribution in the US ideally should be $1, not more than $2 so it can be freely distributed. BTGs of other languages shall follow the same principle.

(37) Book Fund and Temple Fund: The policy of 50% income to BBT Book Fund and 50% of income to BBT temple fund shall be maintained as per Srila Prabhupada's instructions in the BBT Trust Instrument: "The Trustees shall collect all proceeds from the sale of my books, that is One Hundred Percent (100%) of all the proceeds from all of the International Society for Krishna Consciousness Temples and divide these proceeds into two funds, one-half (1/2) for the fund known as the Book Fund, and one-half (1/2) for the fund known as the Building Fund." (38) Transparency of accounting shall be the foundational principle of the BBT as well as full public disclosure of all assets owned by BBT. Monthly financial statements shall be posted on its website. (39) For the time being, the Temple Fund shall not be utilized as per the discretion of the trustees. As Srila Prabhupada says in a video to Ramesvara, "First of all Books!" Until all of Srila Prabhupada's original books are in print in the main languages of the world, none of the Temple Fund money shall be utilized except in the event of an emergency, short-term construction loan that is secured according to current international mortgage securing guidelines, and preferably by an individual guarantor. Instead the Temple Fund should be utilized to print and populate books in all major languages as per Srila Prabhupada's desires. This temporary policy shall be followed at least for the next few years. (40) The Trustees shall use none of these funds for fighting any legal challenges due to their mismanagement. Srila Prabhupada did not allocate the BBT funds for that purpose. If they feel that they are right, then they should use other sources for funding their legal misadventures. (41) Websites: The Krishna.com and www.bbt.info domain name shall be transferred back to BBT. Krishna.com as an arm of BBT, but not the official website of BBT, has a certain amount of laxity in what it can promote. Still, for starters none of the books related to Bhakti Shastras should be sold on the website that are not Srila Prabhupada's books. (42) The official BBT website shall be {website}. (43) Any other websites in the world, in various languages, that are websites of various divisions of BBT or BBTI, shall be similarly transferred to BBT.

(44) Internet Distribution, Copyrights and sales: The fast changes in the Internet have made sharing, distribution and sales of Srila Prabhupada's teachings much easier. These tools shall be utilized to the utmost. (45) As a principle, one basic version of the books, audio and video recording shall be freely available on the net for viewing and searching for non-commercial purposes probably protected by a "creative-commons" license, like this one. (46) Same policy shall be followed for the photos. Low resolution photos of Srila Prabhupada and Krishna shall be readily available and shared. (47) Any extra services like Vedabase, iPOD files, audio books, an electronic book format, downloads of more than 1 book etc. can be charged a proper fee according to current market standards.

We, the disciples and followers of Srila Prabhupada, will do our utmost to see that this manifesto is adopted by the BBT Trustees. We will plead with them, implore them, and we sincerely wish to work conjointly and harmoniously with them, toward the end of pleasing Srila Prabhupada and preserving his great legacy. BUT, if that does not work, and the trustees are unwilling, then we are forced to coalesce around the legal battle to ensue, in order to ensure that these current BBT Trustees are removed, and Srila Prabhupada's BBT is restored to exactly the way that Srila Prabhupada ordered it, so that future generations may benefit from Srila Prabhupada's tireless effort in presenting Krishna Consciousness for the benefit of the whole world. FOOTNOTES: [1] BBT Trustees in refers to BBTI directors who are representing themselves as BBT Trustees.

APPENDIX 16: DECLARATION OF INHERITANCE RIGHTS

By Advaita das (ACBSP), New Zealand: This document is presented to the Global Body of Disciples of His Divine Grace A. C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada, for the following purposes; (i) Overcoming the influence of the unauthorized deviants in positions of initiating gurus. (ii) The liberation of the initiation process from their control for the survival of Srila Prabhupada's mission and its continued global expansion. (iii) For the protection of Srila Prabhupada's authorized books from revision for all time. This is a spiritual demand for strict adherence to Srila Prabhupada's instructions, and a legal injunction within his books of law. There are several key instructions that have been intentionally distorted and misinterpreted by the current unauthorized ISKCON leadership via materially motivated misrepresentations. From the correct, spiritual point of view of Srila Prabhupada instructions, the path forward is self-evident.

(1) ONE FATHER WITH MANY CHILDREN: From the very beginning, all of those coming to KC were bringing others with them. In every temple Srila Prabhupada established, He immediately conferred mutual responsibility of co-training to all of the devotees. We were like a family where the older children helped raise the younger children but no one artificially claimed to be the parent. Srila Prabhupada was unanimously accepted as the only spiritual parent. Actually, almost all of Srila Prabhupada disciples are ritviks disciples, as one devotee or another introduced, trained, nurtured and recommended the new student for initiation to His Divine Grace. This method expanded to include verbal and written recommendations, ceremonies, name selection, chanting on beads, deliverance of the gayatri recording and literally all of the supporting steps leading to being accepted as HIS DIVINE GRACE 's disciple. We were all actually raised in the ritvik system. The unauthorised gurus deny these facts and fracture our normal ritvik family system, taking Srila Prabhupada's disciples for themselves. (2) ADMINISTRATION: To keep the family healthy His Divine Grace established a structure of checks and balances for fairness and equality among His disciples. The GBC is intended to be an administrating body only for maintaining adherence to His standards and to support organized cooperation within and between the individual temples stationed all over the world; No authorization was ever given to change the initiating system or the editing of books. The GBC was to ensure adherence to the instructions of Srila Prabhupada, the temples were to remain autonomous branches, and devotional service is absolute so devotees, "big" or "small" are all on the same level. (3) INITIATION: All of Srila Prabhupada's followers are to chant in public, distribute His books and magazines and invite interested people to the temples. His temples were to provide philosophy and prasadam and spiritual association to those interested. Anyone embracing the philosophy and the chanting was recommended to Srila Prabhupada for initiation when it was seen they were sincere and committed to chant 16 rounds, follow 4 principles, read only His books, eat only Krishna Prasadam, avoid the 10 offenses, live 6 months at this level of discipline to qualify for initiation. Everyone must preach and do sankirtana. He graciously accepted nearly anyone. Srila Prabhupada maintained His post as the Acharya, the only diksha Spiritual Master for His students regardless of whether he was personally present at any particular temple. He is still dynamically occupying His post. (4) BOOK PRINTING: We all distributed and explained His books and read them ourselves daily. We never considered altering them in any way for any reason. The manuscripts, copyrights, printing and distribution rights were held solely in a Trust (BBT), separate from both the administration. Everyone bought their books from the BBT, respecting His Divine grace's rights over their printing, content, etc.

(5) CHECKS AND BALANCES: As the movement expanded Srila Prabhupada firmly established the criteria for initiation, book printing and management and documented them as three separate systems, which were self-replicating. Separately manage administration; increase, train and maintain the number of students; reprint His authorized books. Each was directly reliant upon Srila Prabhupada's instructions: each section of the movement provided many advantages- legal structure, tax status, managerial individuality and most importantly protection from abuse by the other divisions of the structure. From a practical viewpoint any change to this system is unauthorized and disobedient to Srila Prabhupada's wishes and instructions. Disobedience is not the behavior of a sincere disciple. The self-interested disciples have changed and destroyed this structure, consolidating them into one centrally controlled private company, totally contrary to Srila Prabhupada's wishes. Thus they are exhibiting various insanities, the result of disobeying the spiritual master's instructions. Much can be said about the destruction of BBT which allowed the alteration of His books. Similarly, the mismanagement of the temple assets under the unauthorized restructuring plans, and the equally serious crime of the destruction of the authorized initiation method (ritvik) in practice during the presence of His Divine Grace and advocated by Him personally at the time of His passing (as is abundantly evidenced). Also the abuse of devotees that the administration failed to protect.

(6) THE ROOT DEVIATION: The root deviation since 1978 up until this very day is: PLACING SOMEONE BETWEEN SRILA PRABHUPADA AND HIS DISCIPLE. This deviation imposed by self-interested disciples is the lie that you cannot have a direct relationship with His Divine Grace without "permission" or blessings from someone else. This misconception was instilled even before His departure to induce subordination to an institutional authority and move Srila Prabhupada into the background. The strategy to insert a false authority figure between the disciples and Srila Prabhupada was to redirect the authority from His Divine Grace to the deviates. This served to limit the independent growth of faith in Srila Prabhupada's guidance from within and the awakening of His mercy and to suppress any informed criticism of the GBC (like when they restricted His mail, His Divine Grace tapes went missing, alteration of His books, various management changes, etc).

In so many ways via restrictions upon our devotional lives, senior individuals and the GBC, fractured the direct SM/disciple relationship on the subtle and gross platforms. It has been revealed that these various restrictions were the beginning of the insertion of false authority between Srila Prabhupada's and His obedient disciples. This deception was not representative of the heart felt love His Divine Grace exhibited for His students, they are crimes against His Divine Grace and all of us, and is the root lie that has disabled the movement to this day. New fools regularly rise up to propound this same deviation with profound arrogance and word jugglery. Actually, we are never to allow anyone between us and our SM; as the vows we take are personal, one-on-one and not dependent upon any person or distance. The ritvik method employed by Srila Prabhupada is the factual, sustainable, incorruptible method where everyone maintaining their vows delivers other sincere souls to His Divine Grace to establish their own personal relationship with Him and receive diksha initiation. However, because the self-motivated advanced this root deviation to falsely taking authority over the initiation system, the direct link to Srila Prabhupada was externally cut and the authorized ritvik method was stunted along with the spiritual growth of our young family. The movement was then opened to all types of deviations and mal-administrations. This has been a systematic attack upon the relationship of Srila Prabhupada as the Acharya and Diksha Spiritual Master with His disciples. The general intention is to deceive us that Srila Prabhupada is unavailable for a direct relationship with the disciple, and then insert a third party between the two, so that no direct link can be established. This is the strategy of the envious deviants; placing themselves between Srila Prabhupada and you for their self-interest. This has spread to the book changes.

(7) THE SECOND DEVIATION (LIE): "YOU CANNOT HEAR SUPERSOUL IN KALIYUGA" That you cannot have a direct relationship with Srila Prabhupada even though He is on the Supersoul platform was the second destructive lie. It is stated that if the individual (jiva) doesn't use his free will to try to approach the Lord in the heart as the Supersoul (pray & hear), He will remain silent. This relationship is for the living entity to develop and the Lord will reciprocate. "As they surrender thusly I reward them." Therefore if the devotee is misled that he cannot hear the Supersoul he also thinks he cannot hear Srila Prabhupada and doubts that He is on that Supersoul platform. By this lie devotees will be susceptible to instruction from an external false authority. This is the cause of many devotees feeling within that something is wrong, though they are assured following false leaders and their instructions is correct. Srila Prabhupada's passing gave opportunity to deviates to promote the spiritually incorrect theme that Srila Prabhupada was unavailable and thus deny the ritvik system that was already in place. This misconception redirects the disciple from an independent relationship with the Supreme authority in his heart, as Spiritual Master who is on the Super Soul platform and the Paramatma. The devotees then are subjected to false authorities. Deviated, envious leaders claim powers they were never given, employing this lie to displace Srila Prabhupada out of the reach of His many generations of disciples. (8) WE HAVE A DIRECT RELATIONSHIP, NOT INDIRECT: We must all reject this illusion, of an indirect relationship only, because Srila Prabhupada is still encouraging, instructing and teaching His sincere students from within the heart and through His books, worldwide, despite this false conception of disempowerment distributed by the deviates to the new students. These two perspectives of indirectness gave birth to many sub-sections of deception, even more ridiculous in nature; such as claiming that the disciple was unqualified for a direct relationship and personal instruction from Srila Prabhupada, so he had to surrender to these unauthorized "gurus" in the physical. (9) REUNIFICATION ILLUSION: Srila Prabhupada's ritvik method automatically removes the threat of unqualified third party insertions. The unauthorized/ unqualified leaders sometimes fake a willingness to discuss the realignment and reunification of the movement with His Divine Grace's instructions. But scriptural evidence and discussion will never induce the deviates to adhere to HDG's instructions for resolution of the "unauthorized guru" issue. Do not cling to the false hope of 'resolution by evidence'. Since all of the deviates are guilty of these offences they cannot sincerely advocate reform because it immediately implicates them in the crime of unauthorized control (which they live for); not to speak of being guilty of direct disobedience to His instructions. Due to insanity they cannot acknowledge the offenses or accept the consequences. The possibility of restructuring the institution back to the original format has been made impossible through legal, immoral and criminal maneuvering. This complex series of deviations exposes that there was and is a hidden agenda of personal interest driving this deception. So no serious consideration of a correction will ever be made by these deviates, only further deception. The days of a unified institution are gone, because for 40 years the deviates have been destroying Srila Prabhupada's structure, establishing a centralized system contrary to His instructions. Centralized power cannot sustain the expansion of the movement and that is why all previous attempts at consolidation were checked by His Divine Grace. It must also be understood that the ISKCON and the Hare Krishna movement are not synonymous even though both are under Srila Prabhupada's jurisdiction. The movement is far greater than the institution, as Srila Prabhupada has a vast number of sincere followers that are not in the institution. The institution can come or go but the movement will live on in the sincere followers' vows to Srila Prabhupada through His instructions.

(10) WE CAN CORRECT WHAT REALLY MATTERS: It is not the institution that matters; it is the level of Krishna Consciousness that is important. Our responsibility as disciples to His Divine Grace and His mission is to distribute His mercy and that of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu to reclaim the fallen souls of the age employing the sankirtana movement for the upliftment from material consciousness to Krishna consciousness. We must serve that mission with the vision of His Divine Grace. He wanted everyone to become a guru (siksha) and He wanted the movement to follow the ritvik system He used. We are to be faithful to our vows and act as an individual ritvik re[presentative (siksha portion), as we all did from day one and deliver fallen souls to His Divine Grace for diksha initiation. We are all instructed to daily read and discuss only the books by His Divine Grace. This is the basic perspective common to all of His Divine Grace's disciples and the method of invoking His grace. A renewed dedication to His established system must now be adopted to honestly adhere to Srila Prabhupada's instructions. The reunification of the movement and clear path forward comes in:

(a) Neglecting the unauthorized deviates structure (shunning) and where possible maintain control of our various centers dedicated to Srila Prabhupada by managing them independently from the centralized religion concept they have imposed. Start as many new centers and farms as we can independent of the deviate institution. (b) Replace the indirect fragmented system of unqualified 'gurus' installed between Srila Prabhupada and His students with our universal inheritance, the authorized ritvik system, where ALL INITIATED DISCIPLES OF SRILA PRABHUPADA (past, present and future) are authorized and empowered to deliver everyone qualified directly to His Divine Grace for initiation, as Srila Prabhupada personally practiced and instructed; not to any other individual, group or institution. (c) We must forbid any alterations to Srila Prabhupada's personally authorized books by anyone, ever; regardless of any minor imperfections they may contain. (All translations into secondary languages must be vetted for adherence to the spiritual understanding of the English translation of His Divine Grace) Remaining faithful to this standard actually employed by His Divine Grace will re-empower ALL of His Divine Grace's disciples in honorable standing according to the vows already taken with Srila Prabhupada, to preach, teach and recommend for initiation those qualified. This will automatically remove all unwarranted power and control over initiations from the deviates currently trying to hold the movement to ransom for guidance they cannot deliver and we do not need.

Also we must be careful about bureaucratizing the ritvik recommendation; Srila Prabhupada said "He who is nearest." He has empowered every single disciple with the same responsibility under the same standard contained in the vows taken at initiation./ SP: Only Chaitanya Mahaprabhu can take my place. He will take care of the movement. (Break. Then speaking to his disciples in English) They are asking me "After you, who will take the leadership?" And "Everyone will take, all of my disciples. If you want, you can take also. [laughter] But if you follow. They are prepared to sacrifice everything, so they'll take the leadership. I may, one, go away, but there will be hundreds, and they'll preach. If you want, you can also become a leader. We have no such thing, that 'Here is [the next appointed] leader.' Anyone who follows the previous leadership, he's a leader. 'Indian,' we have no such distinction, 'Indian,' 'European.'" Brahmananda: They wanted an Indian to be leader? SP: Yes (laughs) "Everyone, all of my disciples, they are leaders. As purely as they follow, they become leaders. If you want to follow, you can become a leader. You are Indian. But you don't want" I told them that. Tamal: Yes, they probably wanted to propose somebody who would take over our movement. SP: Yes. Leaders. All nonsense. Leader means one who has become first-class disciple. He is leader. Evam parampara-prapta... One who is perfectly following... Our instruction is ara na kariha mane asha. You know this What is that? Guru-mukha-padma-vakya, chittete kariya akiya, ara na kariha mane asha. Who is leader? A leader to become leader, is not very difficult, to provided one is prepared to follow the instructions of a bona fide guru. (SPConv Nov. 2, 1977) The corrupt powers do not belong between Srila Prabhupada and the ritvik methodology He installed. They are not the authority over the initiation process as they profess. They were at most authorized as "some" of the ritvik representatives. Each & every disciple constitutes the 'balance' of the ritvik representatives. Anything else is a deviation and inadequate for the necessary global expansion.

(11) TIME, PLACE AND CIRCUMSTANCES: All of the events surrounding the last days of Srila Prabhupada's life must be viewed in context. The 'senior' devotees were conspiring to get rid of him (for years) and broker control through a series of lies and compromises to cut up the power and assets into a workable illusion that they could sell to the global body of devotees in the movement. Srila Prabhupada had employed the system of ritviks by 1970 and it was still in action in 1977, but He had to temper the universal application before His power crazy 'leaders' by appointing some "ritviks" to appease their lust for power, knowing that they would not allow a dying man to dissipate the power they were conspiring to concentrate by allowing/acknowledging every disciple's right of inheritance within the ritvik system already functioning. He simply gave them what He had given to all His disciples all along, in letter form (July 9, 1977). In essence His Divine Grace cheated the cheaters by not giving them what they wanted (absolute power) and maintaining the ritvik system in place. But they falsely took their appointment as 'sole rights to all authority' over all three divisions of His movement (management, initiation & books). This was not intention of His Divine Grace as the evidences confirm. They destroyed all tapes proving His last instruction to them and established what they wanted without authorization. They have gone insane. The method Srila Prabhupada used was not one of appointment; it is one of inheritance. This ritvik method is responsible for the salvation of the majority of the devotees in the movement. Srila Prabhupada was adhering to His established system even in the face of their unchecked greed and envy, even while lying frail and dying under their "care."

SP knew he was only leaving the physical projection of His control, as opposed to abandoning His post and sincere students to the false egos of a group of unqualified 'leaders'. He knew how to guide the movement from His books and the Supersoul platform; He already was. It was the sincerity of the disciple and their realization of His Supersoul presence that was going to shape the future. It would take time and due to his physical departure, it would be a test of faith for every disciple to sort out the distorted lies from His true instructions being delivered from within and without.

(12) TAKE RESPONSIBILITY AND PREACH: We are mature enough to follow Srila Prabhupada's example and instill the initial training and any necessary reform of character needed so that we don't make inappropriate recommendations and burden Srila Prabhupada, while we expand His desire to liberate as many human souls as possible. Srila Prabhupada's acceptance of new initiates was verily guaranteed, especially if they were recommended by His disciples that demonstrated a firm commitment to their vows with Him and to His mission. Even if a disciple fell from the standard, Srila Prabhupada did not reject them; He encouraged and instructed reform. Srila Prabhupada often advised one student to support and reform another student, not to condemn or reject them. In this way His mercy continued to support us all, even in times of non-conformity. This is the necessary perspective for the movement to heal, realign and re-empower all of Srila Prabhupada's disciples and automatically disempower those that have falsely taken control over the body of devotees, while causing all of the unauthorized, criminal deviations that permeate His/our movement. The Ritvik system is a system of direct links. We start with direct disciples that have the direct link to His Divine Grace. They can in turn give the direct link to the next generation of disciples. If however there is no direct relationship to His Divine Grace by initiation that person cannot give it to the next generation. You can't give what you don't have! So those devotees that have taken initiation from an imposter diksha need to renounce him and get the true direct link to His Divine Grace via one of His direct disciples. Then they have the direct link and can pass it on to other qualified candidates. As He demonstrated, this is the only method for the movement to grow within His Divine Grace's authority.

(13) HISTORIC PARAMPARA OR EMPOWERED ACHARYA: Srila Prabhupada had personally demonstrated by example that the 3 divisions of the movement's structure are the factual path He wanted followed, as the Founder and Acharya. From 1966 onward Srila Prabhupada established many precedences for His disciples; these instructions were neither historic practices nor the scriptural injunctions, rather unique adjustments for doing the needful to ensure the successful fulfillment of His mission. If we accept Srila Prabhupada's actions and instructions honestly, we understand that the previously, historically followed methodology and practices do not apply to Srila Prabhupada's instructions because He demonstrated that He was empowered to adjust those very traditions or methodologies. He was an especially empowered Acharya to implement just such changes into the Brahma- Gaudiya Sampradaya, so that the preaching would be effective. This ritvik representative initiation system is one of the most important contributions Srila Prabhupada was empowered to make to the mission of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu. Following Srila Prabhupada's instructions is the only path forward because He was empowered for the purpose. All we need to do is sincerely follow Srila Prabhupada's example of the universal ritvik methodology. We must all accept our true responsibility of being His Divine Grace's disciple and employ the ritvik representative method He incarnated to establish. This empowerment will expand the movement according to His plan. (Every one of you become guru and preach this KC to those you meet). In this context guru means Siksha teacher/instructor not Diksha initiating spiritual master. All of his students have acted as instructors of His teachings to new devotees from day one and He has always been the diksha guru for the movement. None of this was changed by Him.

(14) NO ONE IS QUALIFIED: Srila Prabhupada knew no one would be qualified to replace Him and that He needed to instill His instructions and wisdom into His books for continued reference for the rest of the age. With the maturing of His disciples He would be available to them on the Supersoul platform when they could perceive Him. With the age degrading as rapidly as it is, it is dubious if anyone will ever be capable of replacing His Divine Grace either physically, in book form, or from the supersoul platform. So great was His contribution that there is really nothing left for another Acharya to do for the fallen souls of this age. No one else is needed. The deviates minimize His greatness at every opportunity and say they have been appointed or that one will come among us or there are many pure devotees among us already. However none of them are the empowered Acharya for the age; Srila Prabhupada is. The more they deny this, the more insane they become. Believing in these lies and illusions has dis-empowered His Divine Grace's disciples from taking up their responsibility of confidently preaching via the established ritvik system; HDG is still employing His ritvik method through the "Prabhupada Anugas." (15) EVERYTHING IS THERE IN MY BOOKS: The various concoctions should not disturb the realized devotee. The next generation, like the previous one, does not need the institution to understand and follow Srila Prabhupada's instructions. The institution "ISKCON" is no longer the transcendental refuge He started because it has fallen under the control of the self-appointed envious unauthorized deviates that will not follow His instructions. Under Srila Prabhupada's instructions, we are not allowed to follow others because they are unauthorized deviants in so many ways. We are instructed to 'neglect them'. We cannot follow others and be obedient disciples at the same time. It is required that disciples read only His Divine Grace's books to understand His instructions correctly. Making alterations to Srila Prabhupada's books allows overlapping of authority. In this way the mal-administrators can take charge of spiritual interpretation. In this way the deviates' deception is infiltrated into the institution. The revision of His books further discourages anyone that consults His printed instruction for proper perspective, because these edited books support the deviations. Thus we understand the reason for HDG's separating the books from the management. ("The demons are very intelligent.") (16) RITVIK REFORM THE WHOLE HUMAN SOCIETY: Srila Prabhupada's disciples are distributed everywhere and that is where we need to be to spread Krishna consciousness everywhere. To implement Srila Prabhupada's wishes we need a universal solution that is applicable to every disciple wherever he may be. The power to preach was His mercy and it is everyone's inheritance and responsibility. Just as that mercy was given freely to us, by reviving this method every faithful disciple has the power to distribute Srila Prabhupada's mercy by remaining faithful to the instructions that he received and uphold the vow taken when teaching the same to others. Under the Ritvik standard no one is disadvantaged from his true inheritance and empowerment. Let us reopen the door of ritvik service and cooperate as disciples in good standing (16 rounds, 4 regs, etc) to deliver the world to His Divine Grace for diksha initiation. We have the inherited authority, empowerment, and the responsibility to expand this movement unlimitedly by faithfully following His instructions and practiced method to become ritvik gurus (siksha) for humanity and liberate the world through the mercy of HDG Srila Prabhupada. We have already been instructed in the responsibility of being a Vaishnava. We are here to help His Divine Grace deliver the western countries which are filled with impersonalism and voidism. All we have to do is follow sincerely and not change anything. (17) IN MY BOOKS I WILL LIVE FOREVER: The very same faithful perspective is true to maintain the authority of His Divine Grace's books. No unnecessary changes can ever be allowed for any reason. Our movement is supported by the parampara protection of the purity of the Vedic wisdom and it remaining unadulterated. To allow any change is an adulteration and a direct offence to the entire parampara. Srila Prabhupada was divinely selected to translate and distribute that Vedic wisdom unadulterated to the world. No one has the authority or empowerment to alter anything about His authorized editions. There are actually no second editions only concoctions disguised as His books. Only the books approved by His Divine Grace are the authorized versions. Insist that only those original texts be reproduced, read and distributed. Sever the hand of he who tries to alter Srila Prabhupada's books ! His books establish this movement's authority and purity over all other religious texts, so to alter His books is a crime of the highest order. It must not be allowed by the insane offenders. Also no other books (guru's, math's, or others) are authorized by His Divine Grace as shastra. A book has no instructive precedence if it deviates by even one word from His instructions. Srila Prabhupada is in His books and you can hear Him when reading them. He instructed us not to read others books. We must follow that.

(18) THE SPIRITUAL MASTER IS IN THE HEART OF HIS DISCIPLES: Every disciple knows all too well what Srila Prabhupada expected from us and what we took a vow to uphold. It never changed. He always asked the perspective disciple: "What are the 4 regulative principles and how many rounds must you chant daily?" This is the heart of the initiation vow. This is not to be taken lightly and not to be neglected because we know He will suffer for our transgressions. From within the hearts of his disciples Srila Prabhupada has always served to strengthen their faith and determination and a sense of being needed into all of his students, affirming the same direct family unity He gifted us at initiation. We are not 'once removed' from a direct link to His mercy, no one is. So share the most valuable gift you have been given, the causeless mercy of HDG upon the fallen souls. We must reflect the compassion that He afforded us upon the other fallen souls or we are not representing His mission. Teach every new generation that they have a direct link to His Divine Grace through His disciple's recommendation. Vet them carefully, train them carefully. Encourage them constantly and watch Srila Prabhupada shine His mercy upon them (us) all. Our one-to-one relationship trumps any other structure. You must never accept anyone's illusionary control over your relationship with Srila Prabhupada. The vows shared with His Divine Grace before the sacrificial fire are personal between He and you. There was no one else involved. We promised to serve and surrender to Srila Prabhupada. He promised to deliver and purify us. A joint vow was created and is still honored, especially by Him. This is the real parampara method. No institution or additional individual is ever involved. Don't heed anyone pushing the "Prabhupada is gone" deception! We don't need instructions from bogus "gurus" to become advanced disciples. Everyone must rise up from the fear, hopelessness and faithlessness that has been injected into the hearts of the devotees and the movement by corruption. We need to follow the empowered Acharya instruction's. If we adhere to and deliver this truth to the world, the body of devotees will grow and causeless mercy, love of God will inundate the three worlds! This is THE mission. (19) DO THE NEEDFUL: We have important work in guiding the second, third and further waves of disciples to follow HDG and expand His movement. Actually the groups of devotees that are growing and expanding the movement are the sincere disciples (now coined as Prabhupada Anugas), that have rejected the authority of the criminals in the administration posts, and that have maintained their vows and loyalty to Srila Prabhupada only. We must continue to expose the criminal mentality of insane deviates. The instruction is to reject and neglect them and get back to work for this mission. Srila Prabhupada appreciated those that stayed back to serve. 'Staying back' means; being faithful to our Acharya, not the deviated institution, regardless of the actions of the unauthorized leaders and their blind followers. (20) THE TREE OF DEVOTION: This declaration of our universal inheritance will also serve to cut out the cancers of Hinduism and the Gaudiya Math that has infected our movement. They have no authority. They do not follow or respect Srila Prabhupada as the empowered Acharya for this age. Therefore they will be pruned from the tree for the health of the authorized portion. They have nothing additional to Srila Prabhupada's instructions to give anyone. This empowered universal inheritance method of disciplined obedience will firmly establish this Hare Krishna Movement at the top of human and religious societies permanently. Srila Prabhupada will be accepted as the only true Acharya for the movement, because that is the fact. The imposters will be rejected by every sincere follower of His Divine Grace. You cannot follow both as they are avaisnava and we are empowered Vaishnavas by the authority of being faithful disciples of His Divine Grace, the only empowered branch of the Lord Chaitanya devotional tree.

(21) FAITH IN HIS DIVINE GRACE'S INSTRUCTIONS: By the vows taken, it is the duty of every disciple to follow His instructions. The entire disintegration of our society is caused by not following Srila Prabhupada instructions. The root meaning of ritvik (many sikshas bringing candidates to one empowered diksha) has not been properly analyzed and correctly implemented even though it is the method for expansion of the movement as practiced by Srila Prabhupada since 1966. This is the undisputable solution, a universal ritvik authority that was implemented 50 years ago and always practiced by Srila Prabhupada. This document is propounding the correct perspective as we were trained to follow. We must implement and acknowledge the Inherited Ritvik Authority of Every Disciple as delivered in the instructions and actions of Srila Prabhupada, the empowered Acharya of Lord Chaitanya's mission. / Advaita das (ACBSP) ranknfilebhakta@gmail.com (29 December 2015)

https://www.youtube.com/channel/UC5q9cXXGoa7RlqLciC-\_VSg

Declaration Of Rejection Of Deviate Authority Over The Initiation Process Within Srila Prabhupada's Movement (Declaration of Initiation Authority and Declaration of Disciplic Rights)

We, as direct initiated disciples of HDG Srila Prabhupada, officially declare: (1) The end of deception by self-assumed diksha initiation authority, on behalf of our Spiritual Master Srila Prabhupada, the Only Authorized Acharya of the Gaudiya-Vaishnava sampradaya for this age. (2) The GBC and their falsely authorized gurus are herein relieved of control over all assumed initiations and all faithful disciples that actually belong to the Acharya and Spiritual Master Srila Prabhupada. (3) The GBC have no authority, moral rights or legal jurisdiction over any individual's personal relationship with our Spiritual Master, His Divine Grace A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada, who is the Founder and Sole Acharya of all disciples with total authority over His movement and disciples. (4) We totally denounce the concocted zonal initiation deception and those false gurus supporting it. (5) It is further declared that: anyone that aids, supports or defends these deviates is an accomplice to their disobedience and is guilty by cooperative association. There can be no compromise with these 2 classes of deviates that have illegally and immorally disobeyed Srila Prabhupada's instructions. Under premeditated deception and avarice for personal gain, they knowingly fragment the personal relationship of His Divine Grace and His Disciples. These offenders are subject to punishment by the Spiritual Authority in the instructions of the Acharya, which is required by the body of Srila Prabhupada's disciples in direct defense of His instructions. (6) These OFFENDERS are to be neglected by all Srila Prabhupada's followers, initiated or not, that are true to their vows to His Divine Grace. As a matter of obedience to the injunction that the disciple must defend the Spiritual Master by any and all means at his disposal, we must denounce these deviates, (7) That the true inheritance of all of Srila Prabhupada's disciples is herein reinstated and transferred to them under the authorized ritvik methodology Srila Prabhupada installed and practiced. / This reverses the offense of the denial of the inheritance of ALL disciples faithful to their vows of initiation. This denial of inheritance is in direct disobedience to the authorized instructions of Srila Prabhupada; that everyone become guru and preaches this mission to the world. This declaration delineates the correct path of empowered reform. These declarations guarantee the expansion and preservation of the movement of Sri Chaitanya Mahaprabhu as protected by His empowered Acharya, by returning it to its normal healthy condition as conceived, directed and practiced by Srila Prabhupada. All sincere disciples of Srila Prabhupada must take up preaching with selfless devotion to His instructions as contained in His personally authorized books, bringing all qualified students directly to Srila Prabhupada for initiation. In response to this declaration, all disciples of His Divine Grace that endorse this declaration at heart, must practice and demand responsible obedience to Srila Prabhupada, being grateful for His spiritual guidance, salvation, and causeless mercy. Our beloved Spiritual Master is the empowered Commander in Chief of the sankirtana movement under the direct authority of Chaitanya Mahaprabhu's prediction and the direct instruction of Srila Bhaktisidhanta Saraswati. Both of these empowered instructions are to preach the Sankirtana Movement and constitute specific empowerment of Srila Prabhupada to successfully do so. Therefore to oppose His expansion methods for the authorized movement, for whatever reason, is an offence to our Acharya, to those empowering Him, and to His faithful disciples. We must all strongly denounce such offenders and glorify the unprecedented accomplishments and mercy bestowed by Srila Prabhupada. All disciples of Srila Prabhupada receive the same rights under His divine mercy and instructions. The qualifications to receive these rights are obedience to the vows undertaken at initiation and the instructions given by Srila Prabhupada. Compliance with ones vows qualifies the disciple to receive the:

INHERITANCE OF THESE DECLARED RIGHTS:

(1) To represent His Divine Grace Srila Prabhupada's instructions without adulteration. (2) To train others without adulteration, in the process of Bhakti yoga as received from His Divine Grace Srila Prabhupada and supported by His original Bhagavad-Gita As It Is. (3) To recommend new students for initiation by His Divine Grace Srila Prabhupada when the student is qualified under the standard terms of initiation. (4) All disciples whether direct physical initiates or ritvik initiate disciples are on the same spiritual platform and the relationship with His Divine Grace is personal and absolute. (5) The initiation process is not an administrative issue, it is a devotional vow. Therefore no individual or group or institution has any control over the individual's spiritual relationship between the disciple and Srila Prabhupada, the only Initiating Acharya of Lord Chaitanya's Hare Krishna movement. (6) After initiation everyone remains a direct & empowered disciple of HDG without cessation unless the disciple deviates by not following or opposing Srila Prabhupada's instructions (breaking of one's vows)./ These rights are direct spiritual empowerments awarded universally upon all disciples under the stated conditions. This empowerment is sufficient to continue the ritvik representation process used and authorized by His Divine Grace Srila Prabhupada from 1966 until the Holy Name leaves the planet. Every disciple shares the responsibility to expand the number of students delivered to the Acharya and to preserve the family perspective of unified co-operation to His mission which will ensure the survival, growth and health of the movement. This is the undisputed desire of His Divine Grace Srila Prabhupada that He practically demonstrated during His manifest presence. Endnote: I am confident that any devotee/disciple that considers these statements thoroughly will see and feel within their hearts the truth of this matter. I firmly believe that, and this document is a revelation of His solution to the theft of the inheritance of His disciples by the deviates. This declaration totally disempowers all of these deviates. Please study Srila Prabhupada's books and the issues, then everyone can consult Srila Prabhupada within their heart for guidance and confirmation. The sincere will agree and the deviates will complain. This path of empowerment is the proven method practiced by Srila Prabhupada for sustenance of the mission. Your servant, Advaita das

APPENDIX 17: SULOCHAN ANALYSIS OF MAY 28 TAPE

From The Guru Business, 1984: These two tape transcripts are the "evidence" used by the bogus gurus to fool their Godbrothers into thinking that they had been appointed gurus. This first version of the "appointment" tape is the one that appeared in both Ramesvara's book and Jadurani's 1980 expose of the "gurus" called The Bona Fide Spiritual Master and the Disciple. This version is the only one to date that has been widely circulated, and can easily be misinterpreted to sound like an appointment of "gurus," so we can safely say that this transcript was made by the conspirators. We assume Jadurani never had a copy of the actual tape. So, most devotees reading it thought it to be a bona fide transcript. [The early transcript omitted the pauses, and edited it a bit to sound morte supportive of the GBC claim of being appointed as initiating gurus. Also, instead of "he's grand-disciple" it was "his grand-disciple."]

THE ACCURATE [TRANSCRIPT with commentary]: This version we have compiled is perfectly accurate in all detail—pauses, unclear words, etc. If the GBC has a version that is more clear, and can be heard better, then let them come forward with it now. Otherwise, when we say a segment of words is indistinguishable, that means that not only ourselves but numerous other devotees also could not make out what was being said. We have an excellent copy of the tape and are using the best equipment available.

Sats: Then our next question concerns initiations in the future, particularly at that time when you are no longer with us. We want to know how first and second initiation would be conducted. SP: Yes. I shall recommend some of you, after this is settled up (other matters that they had been discussing), I shall recommend some of you to act as officiating acharya. (Note: Prabhupada establishes that the following conversation is going to be about officiating gurus after his departure, not about gurus "at that time when he is no longer with us.") Tam: Is that called ritvik-acharya? SP: Ritvik. Yes. Sats: Then what is the relationship of that person who gives the initiation and... (Note: This is a meaningless question, so Prabhupada didn't even wait for him to finish it. He "who gives" is guru-Srila Prabhupada. Satsvarupa was thinking of who "officiates" the initiation but his wording was off. The ritvik does not "give" the initiation; he officiates the initiation. Satsvarupa's question is not clear, and so the answer cannot be confirmed to support any conclusion.)

SP: He's guru- He's guru. (Note: The first "He's guru" broke into Satsvarupa's words, and so Prabhupada repeated it. Srila Prabhupada is simply stating his own relationship to his disciple; the one "who gives" the initiation is guru. [...]) Sats: But-he does it on your behalf? (Note: Here Satsvarupa introduces the delusion. In his mind he interpreted the answer as meaning the ritvik is the initiating guru.) SP: Yes. That is formality. Because in my presence one should not become guru. So on my behalf. On my order, "amara ajnaya guru haya." (3 second pause) He's actually guru, but by my order. (Note: Srila Prabhupada is being questioned as to what will be the system after his departure. Prabhupada quotes a verse from the CC that explains how he is "actually a guru." Prabhupada simply gave the key words [so we can] look it up. Prabhupada's intentions for guru after his departure are very clear. Prabhupada was not appointing a diksha guru.)

Sat: So they may also be considered your disciples? (Note: Satsvarupa further reveals his delusion. Two gurus? He has now fully convinced himself that the new devotees are actually his own disciples.)

SP:...(words)...they're disciples, but consider... (2 second pause) Who (?) (Note: Any interpretation of this partial statement is simply mental speculation. However, Prabhupada spoke this in a tone of chastisement, as though he wanted Satsvarupa to give up his delusion. Tamal could see the confusion and so he interjected.) Tamal: No. He is asking that these ritvik-acharyas...

SP: Hmmm... Tamal: ...they are officiating, giving diksha... (Hmmm) ...the people who they give diksha to... (Hmmm) ...whose disciple are they? (Note: We have to give Tamal credit here for picking up on how Satsvarupa's questions were not in line with Prabhupada's answers, so Tamal wants clarity. His wording is concise. Three times Prabhupada said, "Hmmm." He was speaking clearly and there is no reason for any of this tape to be ambiguous, unless it was tampered with.)

SP: They are (d)-his-disciples. (Note: just before the word "his" there is an unmistakable dip in sound. [Sounds like] the word "his" was dubbed in; most likely in place of the word "my." Why would Prabhupada say "his" disciples to a clear question like Tamal's? Even if there were no dip, we would know that it was dubbed simply on the philosophical basis, but with the dip, there is no doubt. Who did the dubbing?) [It also sounds like it could be a stutter, perhaps resulting from a splice, "dis... disciples." This "stutter is totally unnatural.] Tamal: They are his disciples. (Note: This response confirms the dub. From the original bogus transcript, everyone thought Tamal was repeating what Prabhupada said. But that was an easy trick they thought they could get away with. This was not spoken as a question to

Prabhupada as the bogus transcript led one to believe. This was immediately and softly spoken on the side to Satsvarupa simply confirming that the new devotees were Prabhupada's disciples. Had Prabhupada actually said "his disciples," then Tamala would have said to Satsvarupa, "They are our disciples." One word dubs are relatively easy but even then they couldn't make it perfect. Tamal is talking to Satsvarupa, so, when he says, "his disciples," Prabhupada is "his."

SP: Who is initiating. (3 second pause) His grand-disciple. Sats: Yes. (5 second pause) Then we have a question conc... (Note: Please keep in mind, Tamal had just told Satsvarupa that the new devotees were Prabhupada's disciples. That was very clear at this time. So even though these last words cannot be interpreted (cuts may have been made), Satsvarupa had heard all he wanted to and so is going on to the next question. Some tampering may have been done on all these sentences. Why would Satsvarupa have gone onto the next point? This last statement could not have made sense to him. Further questions would have been necessary. At least we could expect that Tamal would have been in there clarifying the statement further if there was even the slightest hint that he was going to be a guru. The whole conversation has very unnatural sound to it and so we know it was heavily tampered with. But as yet we have not found out who did it.)

SP: When I order you become guru, he becomes regular guru. That's all. (Note: The GBC tried to interpret the following [July] tape as that "order" mentioned here as though Prabhupada had all of a sudden changed the whole philosophy and decided that pure devotees can be appointed after all. It is significant that Prabhupada uses the term "regular guru." As of yet we have not found an exact definition for that term from the books. It can be taken as a guru under regulations or as an ordinary guru which would mean siksha-guru. It can't possibly mean a diksha-guru since diksha-gurus are not appointed or ordered. It is significant that all these answers are to Tamal's question, the first clear question. But the answers in this chopped up tape do not confirm any conclusion and so more is needed. So even though Prabhupada said, "that's all," they needed to add the following sentence to clinch their appointment theory.)

SP: (7 second delay) He becomes...(inaudible word(s))...disciple of my disciple. (Click) just see. (Note: This is an obvious dub. Not only does the background noise drop out, but the speed and tone of Prabhupada's voice dramatically changes also. The "just see" is again in a radically different tone and volume from the previous words. This tape was the only "evidence" the "gurus" ever had to support their claim to divinity. If tampering can be proven, the conspirator's hoax will crumble.)

Sats: Next we have a question about the GBC. (Note: There are some very significant points to bring out about this tape. One is that Prabhupada's health and speech were not bad at this time and it would have been no problem to ask more specific questions to seek proper clarification. There are so many good reasons why it is obvious that this tape was tampered with. One is, if it was not tampered with, why was it not available to everyone? It was extremely well guarded. This would have been just the opposite if it actually said what they claimed. But because they were unable to make a good dubbing job, they kept it super-confidential. It is available however from xxx if anyone doubts the validity of this transcript. When Sridhar Maharaja told Jayapataka that a ritvik guru does not make one an initiating guru later, Jayapataka told Sridhar Maharaja, referring to this tape: "Prabhupada has given explicit desires." Sridhar Maharaja believed him, and from the conversation that immediately ensued, the entire bogus guru manifesto was compiled.)

JUNE TAPE [actually July 6, 1977]: Tamal: Srila Prabhupada, we are receiving a number of letters now. People are wanting to get initiated. So, up until now, since you were becoming ill, we asked them to wait. SP: The local senior sannyasis can. Tamal: That's what we were doing formerly. The local GBC sannyasis were chanting on their beads and they were writing to Your Divine Grace. And you were giving a spiritual name. So should that process be resumed or should we...(he then discusses the spiritual master taking the disciple's karma). That's why we've been asking everybody to wait. I just want to know if we should continue to wait some more time. SP: No. Senior sannyasis. Tamal: So they should continue to... SP: You can bring me a list of sannyasis, I will mark. You can do, Kirtanananda can do...(word?) Satsvarupa can do. So (pause) these three can do. Tamal: So supposing someone is in America. Should they simply write directly to Kirtanananda or Satsvarupa. SP: Nearby. Jayatirtha can do. Tamal: Jayatirtha. SP: (word?) ...Bhagavan can do. Tamal: Bhagavan. SP: And he can do also (pause). Harikesh. Tamal: Harikesh Maharaja. SP: Five, six men divide. Who is nearest. Tamal: Who is nearest. So persons wouldn't have to write to Your Divine Grace. They could write directly to that person. SP: (Hmmm) Tam: Actually, they are initiating the person on Your Divine Grace's behalf. SP: Hmmm. Tamal: Those persons who are initiated are still your... SP: Second initiation. We shall think. Second. Tamal: This is for first initiation. Okay. And for second initiation, for the time being we should... SP: Again have to wait. Second initiation, that should be... Tamal: Some devotees are writing you now for second initiation. And I'm writing them to wait a while, because you are not well. So can I continue to tell them that? SP: They can do second initiation. Tamal: By writing you? SP: No. These men. Tamal: These men. They can also do second initiation. So there's no need for devotees to write to you for first and second initiation. They can write to the man nearest them. But all these persons are still your disciples. Anybody who would give initiation is doing so on your behalf. SP: Yes. Tamal: You know that book I'm maintaining of all your disciples' names? Should I continue that? SP: Hmmm. Tamal: So if someone gives initiation, like Harikesh Maharaja, he should send the person's name to us here, and I'll enter it in the book. (Long pause) Is there someone else in India that you want to do this. SP: India I am here we shall see. In India-Jayapataka. Tamal: Jayapataka Maharaja. SP: You are also in India. (Long pause) You can note down these names. Tamal: Yes, I have them. (The list is read, and Srila Prabhupada adds Hridayananda and Ramesvara.) SP: (Long pause) So without waiting for me, whoever you consider deserves. That will depend on discretion. Tamal: On discretion. SP: Yes. Tamal: That's for first and second initiations? SP: Hmmm.

NOTE: One very obvious question: If it were clear from the May tape that the new initiates would be the disciples of the ritviks, then why was this not mentioned on the July tape? Why was Tamal still trying to get Prabhupada to say something else? The answer is that they hadn't yet conceived their plot and dubbed the May tape. There is no mention in this tape of the ritviks becoming anything special after Srila Prabhupada's departure. [This certainly does not support] an appointment of gurus from these two transcripts. [...] [Significantly,] Bhavananda and Hansadutta were not named in this July tape [although they] appeared on the letter issued to all centers that Prabhupada signed... [How did] Prabhupada later on to include them even though Bhavananda had only a year previously [1976] been caught by Pippilai das, pants down, having sex with a Bengali boy in Mayapur. [And] Prabhupada had said that Hansadutta [1974?] was "praying daily that I die so that he can become guru." Prabhupada was aware of the character of all these ritviks. Ritvik has no special authority whatsoever. He simply gives initiation on the guru's behalf. Otherwise why would Prabhupada say, "whoever is nearest." The common argument, introduced by Sridhar Maharaja is, "Well, it only makes sense that if Prabhupada made them ritviks, they must be the most advanced devotees." [...]

Also, Tamal directly confessed (on tape) in the Pyramid House Talks, Dec. 3, 1980: "Actually, Prabhupada never appointed any gurus. He didn't appoint eleven gurus. He appointed eleven ritviks. He never appointed them gurus. Myself and the other GBC have done the greatest disservice to this movement the last three years because we interpreted the appointment of ritviks as the appointment of gurus." The "gurus" placed a great deal of importance on this tape to substantiate their claims, but the fact is that this tape, at least in its present condition, is the least authoritative explanation of guru. But Prabhupada, seeing past, present, and future, knew that this tape would be used to exploit the devotees. And so within this tape he planted one very important line that gives us the all-important clue as to what is the authoritative explanation on the subject of guru after his departure. He gave that clue by quoting "amara ajnaya guru hana." Nowhere does Srila Prabhupada say that a bona fide guru, a guru who actually sees Krishna face to face, can be appointed. The statement, "He's actually guru, but by my order," simply means that everyone is ordered to become guru by repeating what Prabhupada has taught us. It is not necessary to wait to see Krishna face to face to become guru and preach. Everyone should preach immediately by repeating what Prabhupada and Lord Chaitanya have spoken. [...] Everyone must preach from whatever level of realization he is on. But that kind of guru and the actual liberated guru are two different things. One is diksha, and the other is siksha. Anyone who repeats the message purely can become siksha-guru immediately. One's wife, one's mother, a prostitute, a beggar, a Godbrother, etc. Everyone is ordered to become guru in that sense. It is not possible to be ordered to become a pure devotee. The bona fide diksha-guru must be a pure devotee that is actually liberated. That is the conclusion of all of Srila Prabhupada's instructions on these two types of gurus. This May tape does not in any way contradict those instructions. (END)

END BOOK TWO

All Glories to Srila Prabhupada!

NOTES:

SUMMARY OF CONTENTS:

- The unvarnished, true ISKCON history from 1987 to the present
- Incompatibility of the Gaudiya Matha with Srila Prabhupada's mission
- Adulterated books, deity worship, kirtan, practices, philosophy
- Poisoning of the Mission with sahajiya and mayavadi contamination
- Reinitiation, black magic, academia, Hinduization, corruption
- ISKCON has become a gurocratic, mundane, criminal enterprise
- Srila Prabhupada's fundamental teachings poisoned by rascals
- How ISKCON's misleaders converted ISKCON into guru franchises
- Disobedience, deviations and compromise prevail in ISKCON
- Srila Prabhupada's poisoners hijacked ISKCON, stole assets
- ISKCON's concocted, defective doctrines facilitate its bogus gurus
- Srila Prabhupada is physically departed but spiritually present
- How devotee reformers can restore Srila Prabhupada's mission
- Srila Prabhupada's conclusive guru tattva (siddhanta) examined